Storm Almost Isolates City-Telephone Poles and Trees Fall. Cutting Off Communication—Western Ontario Towns and Cities Suffer Heavy Losses-Roofs Torn From Factories—Windsor Apparently Storm Centre— Ferry Runs Aground.

London and Western Ontario suffered heavily from a hurrican which swept over this district, starting about 6 o'clock Saturday night. In its wake were left wrecked buildings and towers, broken telephone and telegraph lines, and damage to property amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars. Not since Good Friday, 1913, has such great havoc been recorded as was wrought by the Storm King in this district.

Communication with many Western Ontario points by telegraph and telephone was cut off. Those cities and towns throughout the district which could be reached reported heavy damage from the storm.

Roofs were torn from buildings, plate glass windows blown in, trees, billboards, store signs and telephone, telegraph and electric power poles knocked down.

Telephones Crippled.

The Bell Telephone Company officials stated last night that they could company officials in several parts of the city also fell across the tracks. municate no further than Ingersoll in the east, and that while emergency ines occasionally gave connection with Sarnia, Stratford and St. Thomas, other places to the west were out of reach, Most of the breaks in lines were caused by trees falling across cables or by poles snapping off. The Canadian Pacific Telegraph and Great Western Telegraph companies also suffered. Neither could effect any connection with Sarnia last night, and trouble was encountered on other lines.

Live wires hanging dangerously low in several parts of the city also fell across the tracks.

Over 200 Telephones Off.

About two hundred telephone services were reported out of order Sunday by General Manager C. H. Beard, while more are expected today. Outside communication was completely cut off for a time but Sunday the company was successful in establishing connections with Sarnia last night, and trouble was encountered on other lines.

Telegraph wires were also affected, but communication had been restored somewhat on Sunday night.

Live wires hanging dangerously low or on the ground proved a menace to be destrians and motorists. Between London and Glencoe one motorist reported seeing a single stretch of eighteen poles down.

Windsor and Detroit appeared to suffer worse than other portions of the section. It is thought that the storm centered there.

The downtown district was plunged in darkness at 6 o'clock, and car service ceased soon after. The downtown streets presented weird sights with automobile lights glaring through the driving rain and furnishing practically the only illumination. A few candles and gas lamps appeared in shop windows and the streets were almost devoid of people.

More than one person imagined that the end of the world had come and the street was plunged in GALT, Nov. 30.—Thousands of dollars worth of damaage has been done in Galt and district by the most severe gale that has been known in years. Some scaffolding used in building two stories on the old Sun Life building was carried by the wind into the roof of the Red Mill Theatre while it was crowded with patrons. There was a loud crash, and immediately the people in the theatre rushed for the doors. All got out without mishap.

Part of the roof of the Tuckett factory was torn off and deposited in the street. The roof of the Zimmerknit factory suffered a like fate, and a number of the street. Disrupted telephone service and im-passable conditions on some of the county highways prevented a definite estimate of the total damage in this district. There is little doubt but that the loss through the cyclone will be far greater than present information would indicate would indicate.
