Real Silver Service For Jail Prisoners

Annual Christmas Breakfast Feast Has All Trimmings of a "Regular Swell" Feed, to Quote Governor Carter's Guests.

Following his custom of many years, Assistant Postoffice Inspector Fred Matthews gave his usual Christmas breakfast to the prisoners of the county jail Sunday morning. Forty-two of Governor Carter's guests became the guests of Mr. Matthews for the time being.

Needless to say, the prisoners were loud in their praises of the menu provided, and declared that they wished that Mr. Matthews had control of the culinary department of the jail for all time.

The usual mush was not even sniffed, for the good and sufficient reason that sausages and fried potatoes had taken its place and could be smelled even in the court room. Real china dishes were used, while the knives and forks were of guaranteed silver. Milk and sugar was to be found in the tea and coffee, while the pudding—well, words failed the prisoner who attempted to describe the pudding to an Advertiser reporter.

"Mr. Matthews was very thoughtful," said the prisoner. "He knew that we were full up with pudding, so he had the nuts and raisins and fruit all put up in separate bags for us, so that we could eat 'em later on."

After the breakfast, the usual Sunday morning service was conducted. Mr. Matthews holds a church service at the jail every Sunday morning.

DEATH OF JAMES SCOTT

Bright Young Member of Advertiser Staff Succumbs.

With the death of James L. Scott, second son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. Scott, 711 Maitland street, which occurred Saturday evening, a young man of much promise was removed.

Prior to his illness, which developed several months ago, he had been on the night editorial staff of The Advertiser as junior, and his enthusiasm and natural ability, marked for him a future as a newspaperman. Through his honest, kindly and self-sacrificing character, he quickly became a member of the inner newspaper brotherhood and was beloved by every member of the staff. He was "our Jimmy" while he was able to continue his work and through the long fight for life he made.

He knew that he would leave his dearest relatives and friends before the year was out, and he was brave and resigned and uncomplaining. His every thought was kindness for those to whom he must soon say farewell, and boy though he was, he felt that he should leave the world better for his having lived. He left all the money he had saved to a good cause, and implored those who called to see him to strive for better things.

James was in his eighteenth year, having been born in this city. While attending the St. George's School and Collegiate Institute he was an unusually clever scholar. Besides his parents, he is survived by two brothers, Roy, of The Advertiser staff, and Charles, attending school. The funeral will be held on Tuesday and will be of a private nature.

PROVES REAL JOY

Abandoned Babe Brings Joy to Home of Foster Parents.

The new-born infant found on the steps of the Children's Shelter last summer, and now several months old, was brought in for Christmas inspection to Inspector Sanders today by the foster-parents. The baby is the picture of health, the embodiment of good-nature, and, to use the words of the foster-parents, they wouldn't take $5,000 for her.

The real parents of the child were never discovered. The baby was found one morning, barely alive. It was taken to its present home a few weeks later, and, under kind and indulgent care, it became the ray of sunshine in the foster-parents' home. To them and to the world forever it will be their own child, and even Santa Claus could bring them nothing that would create more joy and gladness in their home than this once-abandoned girl infant.

Mr. Walters states that he will handle the best quality of meats at the lowest prices in the city, and invites either personal calls or telephone orders. He has some extra fine meat and poultry for Christmas at special prices.

REMEMBERS SOLDIERS

A. M. Smith & Co. Send Gift to Men Under Quarantine.

The soldiers of the Eighteenth Battalion, under quarantine at the fair grounds, received a fine Christmas gift from the firm of A. M. Smith & Co., today in the shape of four cases of maple syrup, 25 cases of tomatoes, 12 dozen cases of pickles, 2 cases of grape juice, 4 cases of marmalade and 3 cases of rolled barley.

The officers especially appreciated this gift, and the men were grateful to know they were not forgotten.

The quarantine will be lifted about Thursday, so the men can get out for the first time in fourteen days, and stretch their legs on the city streets.

BANQUET SOLDIERS ON CHRISTMAS EVE

Women's Canadian Club Changes Time of Christmas Dinner So Men Can Go Home.

To enable the men of the Eighteenth Battalion, whose homes are out of the city, to spend most of Christmas Day with their families, the members of the Women's Canadian Club, who were tendering a Christmas dinner to the soldiers on Friday noon, have decided to hold the dinner at 6:30 Christmas eve, instead. In this way the men from Chatham, Windsor, St. Thomas and many other nearby points, will have an opportunity to reach home early Christmas Day, which would be impossible had the original plan been carried out.

PLEAD NOT GUILTY

Cohen Brothers, of New York, Held on "Assault" Charge.

[Canadian Press.]

New York, Dec. 21.—Joseph and Jacob Cohen, brothers, pleaded not guilty today to indictments growing out of the grand jury investigation into the murder of Barnet Baff, a wealthy dealer in poultry. The Cohens, who hold contracts for the unloading of poultry in the New Jersey Railroad yards, are charged with assault upon Allen T. Pearson, a business associate of Baff.

At the request of the district attorney, the Cohen brothers, although indicted only for assault, were held under $25,000 bail each last week. Bail in this sum was continued today. They could not furnish it.

DR. FIKES COMING.—Rev. Dr. Maurice P. Fikes, of Detroit, Mich., who conducted services in this city several weeks ago, in connection with the Y. M. C. A.'s men's camapign, will speak in Adelaide Street Baptist Church each evening for two weeks, beginning Sunday, January 3. Mr. Fikes gave up his pastorate of the Woodward Avenue Baptist Church in Detroit recently because of ill-health.

TELEPHONE COMPANY WOULD BE EXCEPTED

Does Not Want To Be Included in Proposed Underground Wiring Order.

The grist for the mill of the board of control was small this morning, and of the chicken-feed variety. A communication was read from the Bell Telephone Company, requesting that it be not included in an application to be forwarded by the city railway commissioners and the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission for an order directing all companies to remove overhead wires on Richmond street, between Fullarton street and the G. T. R. tracks; on Dundas street, between Ridout and Wellington. The company has no poles, it says, on these streets, with the exception of a guy pole and anchor, which can be removed.

A pole line on the south side of King, which carries no wires, is left for the purpose of carrying city fire alarm wires. These poles will be removed as soon as the city makes other arrangements. The Bell already has the majority of its downtown wires underground.

"The object in including the Bell Telephone Company," said Mayor Graham, "is to prevent it from going ahead with future work on the streets which would necessitate special legislation to prohibit."

Controller Moore, who has recently been in conference with county representatives, placed before the meeting the terms of the agreement existing between the city and county for the maintenance of the court house and jail. The city formerly paid 65 per cent and the county 35, the new basis of support being 50 and 50. A claim of the county for an amount expended on repairs twenty years ago is acknowledged, with the proviso that should the claim be pushed the city is entitled to a reduction of one-third of the original bill.

The hospital trust proposes to invest the $5,000 of the Anderson trust fund in city debentures. Mayor Graham recommended that the offer be taken up and the sale made of 5,000 worth of 4½ per cent debentures, to net 5 per cent.

Celestial Stops a Colored Feast

Untimely Interruption of Disappearance of His Goose Defeat Dusky Citizen's Dream "Ob Dinnah."

A dusky citizen just scooted along Ridout street with a big, grey, live goose under his arm. Half a block further back, a Chinese collar-wrecker yelled in high-scale Mongolian squeals.

"'Ee gottee gloosee! Gimme backee gloosee!" said John, hopping along as though he were full of hops, as he may have been.

The colored man had his sneaky shoes on, "and jes' kep' on a-wingin'." Finally a citizen and the Chinaman caught up to him.

"I found dis yere bird on King street," said the dreamer of a wonderful vision of a feast off "de king ub fowls."

"Him my birdee," said John Hong Kong. "Gloceryman sellum. Him gloosee lun away. Blackie man plick him up and lun."

"Dey ain't no law to protect a goose runnin' round on the public thur-fares," said the colored man. "Dat goose was just plain and simple my meat—dat's all."

The bird was finally restored to its owner, who showed that it was being fattened for a laundryman's orgie.

ATTEMPT TO JUSTIFY RAID ON ENGLAND

BERLIN (via London), Dec. 20. — A semi-official news agency issues a statement contradicting the allegation that in the bombardment of the east coast of England the German warships attacked unfortified towns, shelling churches, hotels and private houses exclusively, contrary to The Hague convention. The statement points out that Scarborough is fortified, and that at Whitby the Germans shelled only the coastguard and wireless stations.

Answering the taunt that the Germans saved themselves only by superior speed, the statement says that the German cruisers crossed the full breadth of the North Sea four times in six weeks, and that no blame therefore attaches to Germany, if the British fleet missed an opportunity, especially as Germany has shown to disposition to save Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, the necessity of "digging the rats from their hole."

CAMPAIGN NOTES

Some Gossip and Information on What Is Doing in the Municipal Election Pot.

Among the bylaws to be voted on in the municipal elections is one involving the question of votes for married women or giving them the same rights under the municipal act as single women now have. It is believed that this measure will carry, as it has found many supporters.

Other bylaws to be voted on are the license reduction measure, repeal of the board of control, and election of aldermen by the ward system, and a money bylaw for $40,000 to build a bridge over the Thames on Richmond street.

By a majority of one vote or more the above bylaws will be carried.

Ex-Ald. B. W. Bennett is expected to enter the municipal political arena again. Burley Bennett is sure to make a strong fight for anything he goes after.

FORMER LONDON GIRL IN IMPORTANT WORK

Mrs. Kyd Morgan Is Superintending Distribution of Field Comforts to A. M. C.

Through her excellent work in collecting and distributing in a small way, field comforts for soldiers at the front, a former London woman, Mrs. (Major) Claude Kyd-Morgan, of Aldershot, England, has been formally requested by the war office to take complete charge of the field comfort distribution from central rooms in London, to the men of the Army Medical Corps, now on the fighting line.

Mrs. Kyd-Morgan had been conducting her work most successfully along private lines for some weeks, when she received the message from the war office requesting the interview, which resulted in her undertaking the supervision of the large staff of packers, receivers, sorters, etc., in the central distributing rooms at the Royal Army Medical College. During her visit to the war office, Mrs. Kyd-Morgan saw Lord Kitchener and other noted men of the war office staff.

The work at the central rooms is no light task, as large consignments are being received daily of tobacco, pipes, shirts and all manner of knitted goods.

An Ancient Drill Book

Captain E. M. McLean, adjutant of the school of instruction in the armories, has in his possession a French drill book issued in the year 1621. The book is entitled "Maistre du Camp General George Basta," and is one of the rarest editions of its kind either in France or America.

The book is exciting much interest among local military men, especially those attending the school of instruction.

POLICE SWOOP DOWN

filled with sawdust. It was a cockfight of the real oldtime variety, such as so many Londoners have attended in the past.

One Buck To Get In.

The spectators paid $1 to see it, too, according to the police.

When the sergeant broke into the cellar, one of the spectators wrung the necks of the two birds in the pit and threw them to one side. An even dozen birds in wooden cages were in the room waiting eagerly to get their spurs on and scrap. Some of them are as fine birds as ever struck a steel spur into the crop of a Red Indian and are worth from $25 to $50 each.

"Are you coming quietly or how?" the sergeant asked the usual question. The entire cellarful declared for peace and all of them pleaded guilty to the charge of frequenting a cockpit, and Andrew Bricklin to owning the cockpit.

A Select Audience.

Here are the spectators: John Jackson, James Mulhall, William McDonald, Harry Latton, Fred Pepper, Henry Shore, John Harris, Frank Doyle, James Temple, David Johnson, Jack Freeborne, Orland Bellbeck, Daniel Burns, Samuel Palmer, George Parker, Walter Birch, Daniel Bullar, Edward Spence, John Prudum, John Matthews, John Graydon, Henry Braggs, Percy Evans, Albert Tupholme, Samuel McDowell, Samuel Berry, Albert McGillvray, Charles Hammond, James Dewar, William Waide, John Yohn, William Homister, Duncan McLean, William Smith, Michael Tierney, Ronald Anderson, Joseph Nichols, Charles Bricklin and William Short.

How To Dispose of Them.

Chief of Police Williams, ever since the birds have been at the police station, has been puzzling himself as to how the birds may be sold, so the proceeds can go toward the patriotic relief fund or Red Cross fund. According to law, however, the proceeds from confiscated goods must be handed over to the city. The goods must be sold at public auction, so an admission price cannot be charged. A way may still be found to dispose of the birds lawfully, and still make some money for the funds.

Cockfighting has been the favorite illicit sport in London for years. For years London's Red Indian games have captured the championship from the best birds in the country, and Detroit has been the chief rival. In spite of police vigilance, many fights have been held, and it is stated that some of them were quite recent. The devotees of the chickens, however, have frequently had to pay dearly for their sport.

Scores of citizens were arrested several years ago in the county, and what happened to them after the county had got its fees and fines out of them made the bank rolls of the sports look sick.

Prize Fights, Too.

It is also said that several fine little prize fights have been pulled off in this city recently unknown to the officers. A Detroit lightweight and a local boy did the punching several weeks ago.
