Romance of an Iroquois Princess—Stories of Love and War Poetically Told.

Foremost amongst the books of the season is "Onnalinda," a romance by J. H. McNaughton. It has just been issued simultaneously by Kegan Paul, Trench & Co., the famous London publishers, and by the Onnalinda Publishing Company of New York. It is of high literary merit, entrancing interest, and is beautifully "got up."

Of the romance itself the author says: "History is vague and legendary concerning the achievements of Onnalinda, the Iroquois princess, whose brilliant adroitness baffled the French General Denonville in his invasion of her father's domains, and whose fascinating beauty drew to her side, from the ranks of her enemies, the chivalrous Captain Stark. The loves and adventures of the gallant captain and the charming Onnalinda, together with the story of Ronald Kent and "Glinting Star" are in the province of romance and the theme of this tale."

Such was the author's task, and admirably has he achieved it. In glowing verse of 4500 lines the absorbing tale is told, the entire epic being replete with picturesque descriptions, poetic imagery, glowing word-painting, passionate avowals and stirring scenes. The old world truism that "The course of true love never did run smooth" is given a new setting, and the loves and hates, rivalries and jealousies of civilized life are shown to potently sway the denizens of the forest.

The scene is laid principally in the valley of the Genesee during the invasion by the French under the Marquis Denonville, and so graphically has the talented author depicted the stirring episodes that the reader is transported into the realms of chivalry and romance.

The chief characters portrayed in this beautiful recital are nine in number: Onnalinda, the Iroquois Princess, who both fascinates and disconcerts her enemies; Kinapute, father of Onnalinda and chieftain of the Iroquois, whose country is invaded; Eben Stark, an English captain, who has joined the French, but captivated by the charms of the princess, abandons his general, Ronald Kent, a marksman of marvelous aim, comrade of the captain, and in love with "Glinting Star," the latter the lovely daughter of an Algonquin chief; Oonak the Silent, the Judas of the Red race; a punctilious Frenchman, courier of the general; Ossonin, an unhappy lover of Onnalinda, and Donald, a facetious Scot.

Deftly the author leads his readers through this forest romance, as if by the hand of the lovely heroine herself, and panoramically introduces stirring scenes of contention, loves and jealousies, plots and rivalries, and, above all, the matchless strategy of Onnalinda in foiling her enemies.

Exigencies of space do not admit citations, but scattered through the volume are gems of thought, passages of surpassing beauty, and vivid pictures stamped with the hall-mark of genius. Nothing, however, appears to be overdone, though in reading of the charms of the heroine Shakespeare's lines are called to mind:

If I could write the beauty of your eyes,
And in fresh numbers number all your graces,
The age to come would say, This poet lies—
Such heavenly touches ne'er touched earthly faces.

"Onnalinda" has received gratifying endorsement from eminent literateurs, amongst whom may be specially mentioned Mr. Hon. John Bright, whose facsimile letter appears in the volume. The great "English Tribune," writing to the author, says: "I have sympathy with your Indian people. Their case is one of great hardship. Is it not possible for the friends of the negro to raise their voices in defence of the Red Man? Your poem will excite sympathy, and I hope it will do something to soften the fate of the tribes whom the white man has disinherited." He signalizes the "life and beauty" of "Onnalinda." Lord Lytton, himself the most distinguished of poetic romancers, emphasizes the captivating power of the story which holds the attention alert to the end. The venerable Dr. Daniel Wilson says he was "surprised and gratified by its epic force." Dr. Chas. Mackay states that "Onnalinda" has "felicities of thought and phrase which spring only from the fancy of the true poet."

Already Torontonians have had a taste of the quality of Mr. McNaughton, for in December last Mrs. Nelia Brown-Pond recited some choice morceaux from "Onnalinda" in Convocation Hall at the University. The highest opinions were then expressed of the dramatic force and beauty of the romance.

It may be added that the work is beautifully illustrated from designs by Wm. T. Smedley and engraved by Frank French. It consists of 320 pages, and is issued to subscribers only. Price is in vellum cloth $6; in calf, with silk linings $10. Those desirous of adding a treasure to their libraries should communicate with Mr. Wm. J. Byam, Mail building, in this city.

THE CENTRAL BANK OF CANADA

Upwards of One Hundred and Fifty Creditors of this said Bank, representing deposits amounting to over $300,000, with a view to keeping down the expenses of the liquidation, presented to Mr. Henry Lye a request in writing, to permit himself to be nominated for the vacancy in the office of liquidator at the meeting of Creditors, to be held at the at 2 o'clock. Mr. Lye being already, as the auditor appointed by the Court, a paid officer of the Bank, his appointment as Liquidator will save the expense of an additional officer, and thereby insure an increased dividend to the depositors. He has acceded to the request.

The Creditors above referred to recommend depositors favorable to Mr. Lye's appointment to send their proxies to James Nelson, Barrister, French or Dr. Pattullo of Toronto. These three gentlemen are Creditors in sums amounting in the aggregate to over $136,444.

Creditors who cannot conveniently procure the printed forms may send their written proxies following the form printed below to

JAMES NELSON, Chairman
Creditors above referred to,
54 Front-street east, Toronto.

IN THE HIGH COURT OF JUSTICE.
CHANCERY DIVISION.
In the matter of the Winding-up Act, being Chapter 129 of the Revised Statutes of Canada and of the Central Bank of Canada:

I, ..... being a creditor of the above-named Bank hereby appoint JAMES NELSON, Dr. PATTULLO and JAMES FRENCH, or either of them, as my proxy to vote for me and on my behalf (if I do not attend personally) at the meeting of the Creditors of the said Bank, summoned by direction of the HONORABLE CHANCELLOR BOYD, to be held on the first day of March, A.D., 1888, and at any adjournment thereof.

Dated this.....day of February, A.D., 1888.
