WILSON, A GRIPPLE, TAKES PART SHARE IN INAUGURATION

Drives to Capitol With Harding and Then Departs to His New Home.

Washington, March 4 .. Eight of the United States, filled with moments and scenes that will live in history, ended today for Woodrow Wilson, "just plain Woodrow Wilson now," as he himself smillingly assert-Ed.

Under his own roof again as a private citizen, the former president rested tonight, with his burdens of state transferred to other shoulders, and the shouting and tumult of public place behind him. Then, a day that lic place behind him. Thru a day that had taxed his broken physical powers greatly, he came smilingly and with a whimsical, humorous twist to his comments, yet with no hint at regret on his retirement from high office. There was but one incident of the day when that cheerful mood seemed to fail. As he stood in the president's room, Mr. Wilson had been telling Senator Knox that he would not witness in the senate the inauguration of Vice-President Coolidge as he doubted his ability, owing to his physical infirmities, to negotiate the few steps he must climb.

"The senate has thrown me down," said to the Pennsylvania senator, in reference to battle of the past and the peace treaty, "but I am not going to fall down."

A moment later some one touched his arm to call his attention to the fact that Senator Lodge had arrived in the room as head of the joint committee to inform the president that he sixty-sixth congress stood ready ther communication to make to it Mr. Wilson turned toward the man who led the fight against the treaty. His face lost its smile as he listened to the senator's formal report, and there was in his own tone a touch of cool formality, as he said:

have no further communication take. I appreciate your courtto make Good morning." Departs From Precedent.

Mr. Wilson's share in the inauguration ceremonies remained in doubt to the last. It was not until he had finished the business that called him to the capitol that the retiring president made known his final yielding to the entreaties of his physician and Mrs. Wilson to spare himself the ordeal his physical condition would make of adhreence to precedent.

Brooks, negro custodian of the White phouse, awaited him. Mr. Wilson was lifted out of the car and up the two steps by Brooks. At the top he paused to change his glasses and apparently to recover from the effort. Then, grasping his cane, but alone and unaided, he moved thru the door to plod slowly over the three hundred yards of stone flagging to the elevator.

MR. AMEDEE GARCEAU

"I was for many years a victim of that terrible disease, Rheumatism. In 1918, I was laid up for four months with Rheumatism in the joints of the knees, hips and shoulders and was prevented from following my work, that of Electrician.

I tried many remedies and was under the care of a physician; but nothing did me any good. Then I began to take 'Fruit-a-tives' and in a week I was easier, and in six weeks I was so well I went to work again.

I look upon this fruit medicine, 'Fruit-a-tives', as simply marvellous in the cure of Rheumatism, and strongly advise everyone suffering with Rheumatism to give 'Fruit-a-tives' a trial." AMEDEE GARCEAU.

Evidently, it had been pre-arranged that there should be no public comparison to be drawn between the big. strong figure of the new president and the cripplied form of the old, for Mr. Wilson rode on alone to a little-used door where he had but two ation ceremonies remained in doubt steps to mount, and there Arthu

He was carried swiftly to his own new home on "Q" street, and there a few hundred neighbors had gathered to cheer him, unmindful of the ceremonies blocks away at the capitol, where his successor was taking his outh of office.

At home at last, Mr. Wilson stood with Mrs. Wilson to creceive the newspapermen who had accompanied him thru the day and most of whom had been long at the White House. He grasped their hands as they came forward, presented by Mr. Tumulty, and exchanged a word or two with each. About him in the house a score of intimate friends gathered to do him henor on his return to private life, and it was to Admiral Grayson, who thru habit, had spoken to him as "Mr. President," that the cheerful correction was addressed.

Mr. Mills was strongly opposed to the proposed lifting of the embargo against immigration in a few weeks time. He believed it would result in large numbers of work seekers arriving in Toronto from the old country just when the employment situation was due to pick up here, that they would take many jobs which would otherwise go to Toronto's unemployed and that the city would be faced with the necessity of prolonging the relief the necessity of prolonging the relief n easures for several months. It would probably result in the taxpayers this city being forced to spend many thousands of dollars, which a post-ponement of the embargo lifting for a few months would save.
