The illness of the Prince is said to be slight.

DESPERATE FIGHTING.

Havana, Jan. 11.—The column of troops commanded by Col. Molina, in the district of Alfonso XII., province of Matanzas, have captured an insurgent position, on Mount Manjuari, at the point of the bayonet. The engagement lasted four hours, during nearly all of which time the Spaniards used the bayonet. The insurgents left fifteen killed on the mountain and retreated with many wounded. The troops had two officers and twelve soldiers wounded.

It is announced that 123 wounded insurgents, who were picked up at the battlefield of La Ceiba, are now in the Spanish hospital at San Antonio de Los Banos.

ARBITRATION FAVORED.

London, Jan. 11.—The movement in favor of arbitrating the Venezuelan question with the United States is growing day by day. The Westminster Gazette, after having interviewed statesmen of all parties, bankers and others having important interests at stake, says this afternoon: "Everywhere there were enthusiastic expressions in favor of the proposal to establish a permanent court of arbitration."

From diplomats who have had recent interviews with the Foreign Office, the Associated Press learns there is a decided change of sentiment there and that the unbending antagonism to arbitrate the Venezuelan boundary dispute which was first shown in high circles has almost completely disappeared, and that matters look much more satisfactory than they have at any time since the dispute commenced.

HUNDREDS KILLED BY AN EARTHQUAKE.

Teheran, Persia, Jan. 11.—Two earthquakes have occurred in the district of Khalkhal. The large village of Janjabad was destroyed. Several others were partially destroyed and 300 persons were killed. The second earthquake was very severe. It was felt over an area of 100 miles. The town of Goi was destroyed and 1,000 houses were demolished. In addition great damage was done to many villages. The loss of life was very great. In Goi alone 800 persons were killed, and large numbers of cattle and sheep perished.

The town of Goi, or Khoi, was one of the best laid out towns of Persia in its modern quarter. The district of Khalkhal, in which the earthquake waves seem to have done the most damage, is in the province of Azerbijan, in the extreme northwestern portion of Persia, immediately adjoining the province of Van, in Armenia. Khoi is, or was before its destruction, on the great trade route between the Euxine and Persia, and on the Kotura, a tributary of the Aras.

It had quite an elaborate system of fortifications, which were, however, in a ruinous state, and an inner high wall flanked with towers, the intervening space being occupied with gardens and mud hovels. It was in the central portion of the city that its beauties lay, cool streams and lines of willows running along its broad, regular streets. There was a few good buildings, including the governor's palace, a large brick bazar, and a fine caravanserai. The chief manufactures were copper wares and worsted socks.

In September, 1881, Khoi was visited by a series of violent earthquakes, the seismic waves running northwest and southeast in the direction of the main mountain ranges. The population numbered 30,000, including many Armenians, who occupied a separate quarter of the city.

"JAMESON'S RIDE.

London, Jan. 11.—The first poem of Alfred Austin as Poet Laureate appears in the Times today. It is entitled "Jameson's Ride." The concluding stanzas are as follows:

"I suppose we were wrong—were madmen;
Still, I think at the Judement Day,
When God sifts the good from the bad men,
There will be something more to say.

We were wrong, but we are not half sorry,
And as one of the baffled band,
I would rather have had that foray,
Than the crushings of all the Rand."

SENSATIONAL STATEMENTS DENIED.

The Admiralty denies the statement published in the Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon that a second special squadron would be formed consisting of fast cruisers.

SPECULATORS IN NO FEAR OF TROUBLE.

Though on the surface the situation appears to be threatening those best qualified to judge still view matters optimistically, and declare that the clouds will soon blow over. This view is borne out to a great extent by the course of events at the Stock Exchange, where, despite the alarms and rumors of war, the market was quiet and steady. Even in Kaffir mining shares, which would be disastrously affected by a war or at least by hostilities in the Transvaal, there were fractional advances, showing that speculators have no fear of trouble.

THE OUTLOOK.

Mr. Ballard Smith cables to the New York World: No influential person in England believes there is any danger of war with Germany in the near future. Authentic advices from Berlin are unanimous that no influential person there believes circumstances will arrive in the near future to provoke war with England. But there is no intelligent person in England who does not recognize that the Kaiser is prepared to provoke war in case of further aggressions by England in South Africa, and that, indeed, he is in the temper to quarrel with England on almost any valid occasion offered him. And England is in the mood to accept the Kaiser's challenge whenever it comes. That, I think, is a fair and just statement of the situation today. There seems, however, no probability of any immediate rupture, because the English Government has taken action in South Africa, which removes every shadow of opportunity for complaint by Germany or any other nation.

PRAISE FOR CHAMBERLAIN.

Colonial Secretary Chamberlain has played his cards admirably, and President Kruger, of the Transvaal, has rather played his into Mr. Chamberlain's hands. The Queen's message to Kruger today is the final trump card. I do not know what sensational stories have been cabled to America, but I do know that the above statement of the situation is that which is accepted at both the Foreign Office and the German embassy here, and is corroborated by authentic information tonight from Berlin. No doubt is felt there that the Kaiser's very insulting and, except for its premeditation, very gratuitous telegram to Kruger was deliberate and definite notice to England of his hostility. I learn that at the New Year's reception the Kaiser remarked to one ambassador, in the hearing of Sir Frank Lascelles, the British ambassador: "I hear that a force of the South African Company filibusterers has invaded the Transvaal territory. I hope every one of them will be shot." This, it will be remembered, was after Mr. Chamberlain's disavowal of Jameson's raid, and after the peremptory order to Jameson to lay down his arms. The Kaiser's telegram to Kruger followed. On this declaration of hostility, which seems to have been altogether unexpected, the British Government's action has been prompt and no less threatening.

PLAIN TALK.

There has been, moreover, no mincing words in the Tory and the Liberal press alike in regard to the entire readiness of Great Britain to enter upon a conflict whenever his Majesty gives the the word. Within 48 hours afterwards, they say, it is certain that his Baltic Sea fleet would be united up there by an overwhelming British naval force at the mouth of the Elbe, and at the mouth of the Kattigatt.

Major-Gen. Elliott has divulged what Gen. Count von Blumenthal stated to him at the [illegible] maneuvers was the plan of invasion agreed upon in the strategical department of the Berlin War Office. The Germans were to march 500,000 men through transports for passage across and capture London in a day or two after.

Field Marshal Von Moltke used to say, continues one paper, that he knew nine ways of invading England, but not one of getting out again. Since then England's navy has been strengthened to such a point that no foreign army could possibly hope to get across the channel.

The London Times permits M. de Blowitz to discuss seriously possible aid by England to France in case of a Franco-German war for the recovery of Alsace and Lorraine.

Doubtless, anything is possible with the pain-racked autocrat of Berlin, and we have no means of knowing—sixty or more editors now being in German prisons for lese majeste—what the real opinion of the German people is. It may be, too, that the Kaiser is really in accord with Russia, and that war may be forced upon the most trivial excuse. Otherwise, I am sure, I quote the best opinion in London in saying that there is no immediate danger of hostilities anywhere in Europe.

RHODES RESPONSIBLE.

The impression in well-informed circles here is that the invasion of the Transvaal was indeed a plot of Cecil Rhodes with the ultimate object of establishing a general South African republic, and that it failed either because Rhodes' ability had been overestimated or because his reported collapse at a critical moment is true. A formal official inquiry seems now certain.

CHAMBERLAIN THANKED BY THE QUEEN.

The Queen has addressed an autograph letter to Joseph Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the Colonies, thanking him for his services in connection with the disturbances in the Transvaal.

TO BE LOOKED INTO.

Mr. Chamberlain has cabled to Hofmeyer, the leader of the Afrikander Bund, a party having a large majority in the Cape Parliament, and a supported of Cecil Rhodes and the British South Africa Company, informing him that there will be a full inquiry into the British South Africa Company's raid into the Transvaal, and that further violation of the territory of the South African Republic will be prevented. It is reported that the inquiry will be conducted by a royal commission.

A KNOTTY POINT.

In an interview on the Transvaal situation, J. B. Robinson, the richest of the South African millionaires, and the largest employer of labor in the Rand, said that the question of granting the franchise to the Uitlanders was the only knotty point. In a recent conversation between Mr. Robinson and President Kruger the latter said: "If I give the franchise to the foreigners I may as well haul down the Transvaal flag." Mr. Robinson nevertheless believes that a modified franchise will be given to the Uitlanders.

TO BE TRIED IN ENGLAND.

It is reported that Dr. Jameson will be taken to Natal, where he will be embarked for England, to be tried upon charges of violating the Foreign Enlistment Act, which declares it a punishable offense to prepare a warlike expedition against a friendly state.

BISMARCK FOR PEACE.

The feeling of back-down is still said to be noticeable in the German press utterances, and great importance is attached to an article in the Hamburger Nachrichten, which is said to have been directly inspired by Prince Bismarck, in which it indirectly disapproves of the Government's attitude and adds: "The duty of the Government is more to defend the internal and external peace of the country against disturbances than to promote foreign enterprises."

WILLIAM TO VICTORIA.

London, Jan. 11.—The Telegraph this morning publishes a dispatch from Berlin stating that Emperor William received by special message on Jan. 8 an autograph letter from Queen Victoria. The Emperor's autograph reply is now in the Queen's hands. It is understood that the Emperor remarked to his entourage that he believed that the terms of his reply would be acceptable. The writer of the dispatch affirms that the letters referred to the political situation, and that his Majesty, in his reply, in brief general terms proffered his hand to the English people. The latter, it is said, also confirms the assurances given by the German Ministers that the Emperor had no intention of casting a slur on the dignity of England.

IN CONGRESS.

Washington, Jan. 11.—In the Senate yesterday Mr. Morgan (Dem., Ala.), formerly chairman of the committee on foreign relations, introduced a joint resolution, congratulating the Republic of Transvaal in Africa for the stand for liberty which it had taken and directing the President of the United States to transmit the action to the Republic of Transvaal. Referred to the committee on foreign relations.

A Deadly Foe Who Gives No Quarter.

Disease never grows weary; never proclaims a peace. Poisons bred under certain conditions within our own bodies are the deadly foes of the human race. At first it is only a slight cold, but neglect soon multiplies the trouble. How many thousands there are who are guilty of neglecting to care for their health until they see it slipping from them? Thousands, I should have said millions, have
