Chicago Gossip.

Marshall, Spader and Co. wired to J. G. Beaty at the close:

Wheat—Influenced by dry weather in Western Kansas and Nebraska, by light receipts and strong markets in the northwest, the Chicago market has shown considerable strength, part of which was held. Buying power seems to have emanated mostly from shorts and some investment buying of July, but it must be confessed that the general outside interest in the market is deplorably light, which in itself is a serious handicap to bull operations. News from the southwest was very contradictory, some experts claiming damage by dry weather, but other authorities claim no appreciable injury so far. Cash demand poor. The whole hope of higher prices hinges on whether or not damage of consequence will materialize in the winter wheat belt. As long as this hangs over the market we cannot expect much but a small market.

Ennis and Stoppani wired to J. L. Mitchell at the close:

Wheat—The wheat pit assumed the character of a holiday market, the range of prices being about one cent, with the tendency toward higher prices, final figures showing ⅜c gain for the day. There was a general lack of outside trade, trading chiefly being done by the professional element, who went home short last night. News in general was favorable to the bulls; less favorable reports from the southwest; cables showing strength, and primary receipts light. We do not anticipate anything but a traders' position until after the holidays.

Corn—Ruled dull and featureless, the range being within ½c, and there was no special feature of note. The same may be said of oats.

Provisions—Showed signs of liquidation by commission houses and moderate selling by packers. On the declines there was a fair demand. We look for an upward movement after the holidays.

J. R. Heintz & Co. wired R. B. Holden: Wheat—Market opened higher on stronger cables and reports from Kansas and Nebraska that the situation is becoming serious. No rains and no prospects of any for to-night or to-morrow. The local professional traders are all bearish; they claim they want to see the dry weather backed up by buying orders from that section.

Corn—Steady, fairly active. Cash corn demand poor and slightly lower. We can see no inducements to short this corn. The situation remains bullish, and, as the coming crop is a long distance off, we favor purchases on all soft spots.

Oats—More active, and have shown considerable strength. The situation does not look bullish to us.

Provisions—Have shown considerable weakness to-day. This market shows liquidation; shorts were the only buyers. We advise purchases only on good breaks.

A NEW SILVER CAMP ON MONTREAL RIVER

New Ontario Mineral Belt Widens and Big Sum is Paid for a Rich Claim.

COBALT, April 15.—(From the Man on the Spot.)—Fred E. Calverley has returned from an inspection of the new silver camp down in the unsurveyed territory south of Lorraine, known as Silver Centre.

Of the many camp extensions that have been under review at various times, there is no question but that this is by far the most important and the most valuable.

Accompanied by Messrs. Wettlaufer, Dr. Myers and Cadwallader of Buffalo, Mr. Calverley made what he claims to be the "star" trip of the many he has taken to outlying districts, including Larder Lake, Elk Lake, Maple Mountain and the Abitibi camps.

As long ago as 1845 Sir William Logan made a topographical survey of the Ottawa River, from near the Joachim rapids to the head of Lake Temiskaming, and camped near the old Hudson Bay post at Finn Point, and nine miles from the new silver camp. He then declared that a rich mineral area existed in this region, which for 50 years longer was uninhabited and undisturbed save for the swaying of the pines in the northern winds and the shrill cries of wild beasts and the occasional intrusions of Indians, Hudson Bay Co. trappers and hunters.

Prospectors Reap Reward.

To-day on the very spot where Sir William pitched his tent over 60 years ago 500 sacks of ore are lying awaiting the opening of navigation to be transported to the smelter for the enrichment of three adventurous prospectors who are lucky enough to reap a reward commensurate with the privations and struggles that every man who goes prospecting in northern New Ontario has to undergo.

The new camp has been named "Silver Centre," and World readers are not altogether unfamiliar with what has been happening there during the past few weeks. The sale of the Keeley or Josy property, however, for the sum of $300,000 has intensified the excitement over and the interest in the new camp, which has hitherto been largely local.

New York and Chicago capitalists have had representatives in this section during the past two weeks bidding for this property. The New York men bid a quarter of a million dollars and could have had it. A difference arose as to whether this bought the ore sacked at the property and lying on the lake shore. The owners of the lot claimed it did not. Arthur Ferland of Haileybury had a cash deposit of $50,000 ready, but before the question was settled as to who got the ore, the option secured by him and T. R. Drummond of the Nipissing Mine lapsed. Dr. Beattie Nesbitt of Toronto, on his way down from Larder Lake, heard of the new find and the value of the discoveries. He got in touch with Messrs Keeley and Josy and as a result bought the property for $300,000 on behalf of himself and some Chicago associates.

An inspection of the lot discloses that nothing richer has been found in Cobalt at a similar stage of development.

Route to New Camp.

The winter route to the new camp is as follows: Get a team at Cobalt or Haileybury and drive down Lake Temiskaming 13 miles to Finn Point, where there has been a Hudson Bay trading post for over a century. Here one turns into the bush and an old lumber camp road is followed for nine miles to the Keeley claim.

The summer road will be down the lake by boat to Silver Centre, better known as Post 666, which is five miles south of Finn Point. A bake shop and restaurant and a general store have been opened here and a town may be looked for in the near future. An old log road that was used years ago by J. R. Booth, when he was lumbering here, runs in towards the Keeley for two miles. A continuation of this road for a mile and a half will mean a good wagon road to the new shipping mine.

As a matter of fact, this part of the country has the remains of several old roads that the Booths made years ago. These will be utilized in the near future and will make a grand bottom for new roads. One was built that leads almost direct to Temagami and with several shippers in the new camp, the government will undoubtedly use this to divert the traffic to the T. & N.O. Railway.

Original Stakers.

It was in the summer of 1906 that two adventurous young prospectors named Shone and Porter took a canoe trip down the Montreal River from Latchford to where it empties into Lake Temiskaming. They were the first to go prospecting in this district. Several claims were staked by them and the Keeley lot was one. Not being possessed of too much money, they decided that they could not hope to conform with the working conditions, and tried to sell their staking of this claim to raise money to perform the work on other lots which they thought had a more promising appearance.

"The Man on the Spot" was offered this lot for $200. He did not have the dough. Last week it was sold for $300,000.

Shone and Porter, however, had made no valuable discovery, and the lot was thrown open for non-performance of the statutory conditions. In November of the same year R. R. Josy was out on a prospecting trip, and as luck would have it, tramped over this lot. He was impressed with the rock formation and decided to stay and prospect. A small bluff of Keewatin rock was exposed and the face of some locked like the wall of a vein. With pick and shovel he started in and the unsophisticated may be surprised to know what he had to do. Huge boulders had to be removed and a heavy surface of soil and gravel had to be dug thru for 12 and 14 feet before bed-rock was reached. Day after day he toiled away, in perfect ignorance of what might at length be found. Ninety-nine chances out of a hundred, barren rock would be the result. Optimism and courage are two characteristics possessed by every prospector. He goes to bed every night dead sure that success awaits him before another sun goes down. It is true many surface finds are made, but this invariably means that a lot of mother earth, trunks of trees and brush have to be got thru or got rid of.

Labor Rewarded.

Josy was rewarded when he reached bed-rock by finding some signs of cobalt and at the bottom of his trench native silver was visible.

To show what a preponderating influence "luck" is in this game, it may be said and, is said truthfully, that had this trench been dug eight inches either way from where it was, the discovery would not have been made. There would have been no Silver Centre. Decade after decade might have passed before someone else might have come along.

Mr. Josy was accompanied by Charles Keeley, an old Minnesota miner, well-known thruout Cobalt district, and J. M. Wood of Keene, Ont. Josy's former home was in Aylmer, Que. They made sure that a genuine discovery had been made and staked more properties. Not a word was said by any of them about their discovery, and on the 24th of July last year they returned and work has been carried on continuously since that date.

The work consist of an open cut 15 1-2 feet deep (from bed-rock), 27 feet long and 5 feet wide. The vein matter has a width of two feet in places and a strip of solid cobalt ore runs uniformly along the west wall. The balance of the width is composed of black decomposed silver sulphide filled with fine wire silver. This resembles nothing so much as moss made of fine and pure wire silver. The trend of the vein is 16 degrees west of north and it is full of cobalt bloom and in the Keewatin formation. This vein matter carries 3000 ounces of silver to the ton.

350 Bags of Ore Sacked.

Three hundred and fifty bags of ore have been sacked and teamed out of Lake Temiskaming and there are several sacks still in the ore house. The sale has to be closed by the 20th of this month. Purchase price, as already stated, is $300,000, and $50,000 has to be paid on the date named.

The Haileybury Silver Co. will be another shipper in the spring. This company controls a 40 acre claim, originally staked by Louis G. Mayhew of Beachburg, in North Renfrew, and A. G. Brough, formerly of Peterboro. The original stakers retain control of the property and own most of the stock in the company. The promoters of this company deserve great credit for the commendable spirit displayed in the promotion. A modest capitalization of $50,000 and par value of 25 cents per share are the chief features, backed by a good treasury fund.

It lies north of the Keeley and their main vein runs almost at right angles to the Keeley vein. It is a cobalt-niccolite vein averaging six inches in width and carries fair silver values, probably 500 ounces of silver to the ton. Their main shaft is now down 54 feet and will be continued to a depth of 75 feet before drifting will be started. The shaft is an incline and 125 sacks of ore have been taken up and bagged as a result of sinking. It is a good strong vein and higher silver values may be confidently looked for with depth and in the drift. A good-sized derrick is being erected to handle the rock and ore from the shaft. Cook and sleep camps have been built, also a blacksmith shop. Fifty bags of ore have been teamed out the shore of the lake.

Other Good Claims.

The Forneri claim is located about half a mile north of the Mayhew lot and nearly fourteen hundred feet of stripping and trenching have been done to date. The trench is from one to six feet deep. Three men worked on it all last summer and a good cobalt vein is shown for almost the entire length of the trench. It has a width of from one to 14 inches and carries low silver values. Several other small cobalt veins have been uncovered and the owner has been offered, it is said, $150,000 for the property, but refuses to sell.

The Maiden Claim is one and a half miles northwest from Post 666, on Lake Temiskaming, and was worked all last summer and a good cobalt vein, five inches wide, is shown. In places this vein has a width of 14 inches and has been uncovered for several hundred feet. As high values as 1000 ounces of silver to the ton have been got.

The Frodette claim adjoins the Maiden and showings of leaf silver are reported. They were got in the bottom of a six foot test pit in a calcite vein.

The Proudfoot lot consists of 22 1-2 acres between the Keeley and Mayhew. The rich Keeley discovery is only 90 feet from the boundary line. Two trenches have been dug to cross-cut the Keeley vein. They are 14 feet deep and it is said the neighboring vein has been encountered in both cross-cuts. Last week a small calcite vein was found. It had no visible values and results of an assay have not been received.

On the Gibson lots, which consist of three claims 20 chains north of the Keeley, a four-inch cobalt vein has been found which will pass these lots.

The Martin lot adjoins the Forneri. Last week in trenching a cobalt vein was found on the surface of bed-rock. No more work will be done until camp buildings are erected.

Nipissing of New Camp.

Bert Grover of the Calverley-Wettlaufer and Sydney Smith of the Duchess have bought the Sullivan lot and two Bousquet claims, making a total of 132 acres, and propose to own the Nipissing of the new camp. Buildings are being put up on the Trout Lake and supplies were sent in on Monday. A gang of men will set to work prospecting. Messrs. Grover and Smith are mining engineers of high standing and their faith in the new camp speaks volumes for its possibilities.

The snow will not be out of the bush until the middle of May and prospecting for the present is an impossibility. Snowshoe staking has been rampant. This is the curse of the present mining laws. Men swear to what they believe (sometimes) will prove valuable. The entire country for miles around has been staked. The old and honest prospector will not go in and when he gets in he finds everything staked by amateurs, who will afterwards term him a claim-jumper. One thing is absolutely sure. With the opening of spring genuine prospectors are going down into this country and the first man who makes a genuine discovery and can prove his discovery will get the lots. This is only right. Where the sneak comes in and finds a man working on a vein and simply gets a few feet or yards further down or up on the same vein and tries to get the lot, the original staker does not seem to get a fair show.

Shipping Facilities.

A word as to shipping facilities. The mine owner in Silver Centre will have two routes: up Lake Temiskaming to Haileybury by boat and then on T. & N. O. cars to North Bay; or, down Lake Temiskaming to Lumsden's Mills by boat and then on C.P.R. cars to Mattawa.

The Temiskaming Navigation Co. is an old established line and under Managing Director Larochelle has given the north country good service in the past. This company will establish a daily service between Post 666 and the northern towns during the coming season. Wharves and docks will be built and the future of the new camp seems assured.

REVIVAL IN BUSINESS AT MINING EXCHANGES

Speculators Make Purchases in Advance of an Expected Broadening of the Markets.

World Office,
Wednesday Evening, April 15.

The market for mining securities continues to exhibit a revivifying influence that was thought to be scarcely possible a few weeks ago. The markets have scarcely yet appealed to outside investors and only the knowing ones are buying in advance what they think will prove an ultimate big and wide market. Speculators who are short of many of the securities scarcely know what to make of the change in sentiment and failing to knock prices by short sales are throwing epithets of distrust on the current buying. The demand for the usual active shares has developed a shortage of offerings and prices are only held back by room traders, who are taking profits on the advances. Trethewey, Silver Queen and Foster were in demand to-day, but at the same time it might be stated that buyers were in evidence for all the substantial securities and all offerings at concessions were taken without difficulty. Brokers report a much broader enquiry for stocks and higher prices are confidently looked for.
