SIGN COVENANT TO PRESERVE CHURCH

Presbyterians Solemnly Pledge Themselves to Fight Church Union.

CONFERENCE CLOSES

Great Audience Endorses Action of Delegates—New Association Formed.

"We have had a great time." This announcement coupled with an injunction urging the delegates to continue the stupendous work commenced during the past three days constituted the closing remarks of Rev. Andrew Robertson at the conclusion of the Presbyterian Convocation in St. Andrew's Church, West King street, last night.

Yesterday was indeed a big lay for Presbyterians in sympathy with the movement to preserve the church. In the morning despite the inclement weather a large number were present, and with great solemnity pledged themselves, after the fashion of their forefathers, in a covenant to preserve the Presbyterian Church as at present constituted. In the afternoon the delegates signed that covenant and last night the congregation which nearly filled the church endorsed the action which had been taken earlier in the day.

There was no mistaking the enthusiasm with which everything, even to the smallest detail, was dealt with; and the greatest pessimist in the gathering could not but admit that, from an "anti-unionist" point of view, the entire proceedings were successful beyond all anticipation.

Closing Session.

In opening last night's session Principal Fraser, of the Montreal Theological College, the newly appointed president of the association, voiced his keen appreciation of the honor accorded him. He realized the heavy responsibilities connected with the position and only yielded to the request out of a sheer sense of duty. "I am not a recent convert to the cause," he declared. "The proposed organic union has appealed to me only as a very cheap panacea, and I have always cast my vote against the propaganda. Now, however, I am constrained to take a public stand on the matter."

He characterized the action of the general assembly in forcing the matter thru as insane and as a psychological mystery, and in conclusion urged the delegates to consider very seriously the dangers that would beset the new association. He cautioned against conveying to the public any appearance of sectarianism, and said there was a danger that the church would lose her missionary spirit.

West Independent.

Reports from ministers and laymen representing the different provinces of the Dominion followed, and out of these the breezy enthusiasm of the westerners was especially noticable. From the remarks regarding the progress of the movement in their individual presbyteries, it could be gathered that the people of the west, practical at all times, seemed to be indifferent to the matter. Each representative from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta declared that their people cared little for intellectual theological discussions, and this, together with the absence of favorable literature, resulted in a certain apathy toward the movement. "The people of the west have never given a mandate for the union," said one delegate. "They have received no instruction, with the result that they are content to take what is served up to them by people in favor of union."

One pointed out that a spiritual revival was needed in the west, while another claimed that the union movement was purely an ecclesiastical one and not for the benefit of the people.

The Solemn Covenant.

"We, members of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, assembled in St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, whilst affirming our belief in the spiritual unity of all believers, our cordiality towards our brethren of other communions and our willingness for all feasible co-operation with them in the interests of the kingdom of God, express our conviction that the time has not arrived for the discontinuance of the Presbyterian Church in Canada.

"For: Whereas the union committee in its first report and the general assembly of 1905 in adopting that report, laid down as a condition of organic union 'that a union of the churches to be real and lasting must carry the consent of the entire membership.'

"And whereas the first vote of the people in 1911 was taken upon that understanding and out of a total membership of 298,916, 113,000 voted in favor of organic union and 50,733 voted against.

"And whereas the assembly of 1912, on receiving that vote, declared it 'unwise,' 'owing to the extent of the minority,' to proceed immediately to union.

"And whereas in the vote of 1915, out of a total membership of 338,322, 113,600 voted in favor of organic union and 73,735 voted against.

"And whereas, according to the foregoing, from 1911 to 1915, the membership of the Presbyterian Church in Canada increased approximately 40,000, the vote for union increased only 600, while the vote against union increased 23,000.

"And whereas, only about one-third of the entire membership has declared itself in favor of the proposed organic union.

"And whereas the action of the general assembly at Winnipeg was manifestly untimely and ill-advised.

"And whereas the foregoing facts indicate that a case in favor of the proposed organic church union has not been established.

"Therefore, in view of these facts as well as for other reasons, it is hereby resolved that our present duty is to maintain and continue the Presbyterian Church in Canada, and to this duty we solemnly pledge ourselves."

As Their Fathers Did.

Reverently, the delegates present at the morning session stood and pledged themselves in the above covenant to preserve the Presbyterian Church despite all opposition.

"Just as our fathers signed the covenant, so in taking this pledge we assume all the responsibility it entails," declared Rev. Andrew Robertson, as he read the concluding sentence in the document.

A little discussion resulted from the report of the committee nominated to recommend a name for the new association. The word "defence" was suggested by one delegate, but rejected on the ground that the church was not defending itself. The title finally adopted was: "The Presbyterian Church Association," and as a sub-title, the words, "for the continuance of the Presbyterian Church in Canada," were added.

Rev. Principal Fraser, of the Theological College, Montreal, was unanimously elected president, and Dr. Andrew Robertson, of Toronto, first vice-president. The executive committee was appointed as follows:

Vive-presidents: T. C. James, P. E. I.; John McKeen, N. S.; Hon. L. J. Tweddie, N. B.; John McEwan, Que.; John Penman, Ontario; Judge Robson, Man.; Judge Farrell, Sask.; T. W. Monteith, Alberta; Hon. J. C. Brown, B. C.

Central executive: John Turnbull, J. Ross Robertson, Rev. Dr. Eakin, C. S. Macdonald, of Toronto; A. B. Dewar and Rev. W. H. Sedgwick, of Hamilton; Rev. Dr. J. K. Fraser, Galt; R. O. McCulloch, Galt; Rev. A. T. MacGillivray, Guelph; George D. Forbes, Hespeler; G. M. Macdonnell, Kingston; — Cuthbert, Ingersoll; Rev. Robert Johnston, Rev. Malcolm A. Campbell, Rev. J. A. Montgomery, James Rodger, George A. Campbell, K.C., and Prof. D. A. Murray, of Montreal; Hon. R. M. MacGregor; Dr. W. McK McLeod, Sydney, C. B.; E. Kaulbach, Halifax; Rev. T. Baird, Woodstock, N. B.; C. S. Everett, St. Andrew's, N. B.; Donald McKinnon, K. C., Charlottetown, P. E. I.; — Galbraith, Winnipeg; A. T. Angus, Regina; W. M. Connacher, Calgary; Rev. W. G. Brown, Red Deer; Rev. R. G. McBeth, Vancouver; A. B. Fraser, Victoria; with power to add to their numbers.

Deemed Unwise.

The appointment of a field secretary to assist the president and first vice-president was left over for a committee to deal with.

While the committee appointed to deal with the recommendations made by Rev. W. G. Brown of Red Deer, in discussing the relation of the church to the budget, thought that many of them were of great potential value, yet it deemed it unwise to introduce them for discussion in the convocation.

In the afternoon session the following resolutions recommended by a committee were carried:

"Whereas it is evident that the division of opinion on the question of church union in many of our congregations is affecting their harmony and seriously affecting their efficiency, be it resolved that ministers and people be urged to exercise towards one another the utmost toleration and Christian charity.

"That the convocation express its hearty appreciation of the valuable work accomplished by former committees thru whose generous and disinterested efforts the convocation has been made possible and brought to such a successful issue."

The committee appointed to consider the financing of the new association found: First, that the executive committee will be charged with the responsibility of the budget; second, when the full estimates for the ensuing year are prepared it will be the duty of the executive to allocate to the different provincial associations the amounts for which each will be asked to be responsible.

At the conclusion of the session the covenant was signed by all the delegates present.

COALITION MAN WINS.

London, Oct. 19.—The Winchester election to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Colonel Guy Baring, resulted as follows: Major Carnegie, coalition government candidate, 1218; H. C. Woods, independent, 473. The contest was the tamest on record.

WAR SUMMARY

THE DAY'S EVENTS REVIEWED

fighting continues, and it is going in favor of the Serbians. Since Sept. 14 they have captured 43 guns besides trench pieces. The allies have now carried the battle in the direction of Monastir.

* * * * *

In Roumania the situation continues to improve. At Agas, in the Trotus Valley, which the Germans had reached by an incursion thru the Gyimes Pass, the Roumanians have defeated the enemy, destroying twelve of his guns and taking 900 prisoners. This result was obtained by two converging attacks, one by way of Lampris Mountain and the other by way of Gorcasa. The Roumanians took the enemy by surprise and forced him to retire by bayonet attacks. It has always been noticed that the Germans are inferior in man to man fighting with the bayonet.

* * * * *

No German reinforcements can be sent from the western front to aid Von Falkenhayn in his offensive against Roumania, according to Major-Gen. Maurice. The allied command feels that while the situation in Roumania cannot be considered a crisis, it is serious.

* * * * *

The Russians are banishing any hopes that the Germans may have of severing their right flank from the Roumanians by an offensive at Dorna Watra. A German newspaper correspondent admits, in a despatch, that the Teutons are losing their advantage of superior munitionment over the Russians.

In a despatch from the western battlefront Frederick Palmer says that British officers think the war will last another year. Altho certain portions of the German army are inclined readily to surrender, other portions are still capable of putting up a desperate resistance. German morale has not yet been broken altho the time of its breaking may be nearer than is supposed.

Political Intelligence

The Ottawa special to The Toronto News quoted in this column yesterday, taken in connection with what Hon. Robert Rogers said to a World reporter Wednesday night, seems to make it clear that the Dominion election will not be ordered in any event until after parliament has been summoned for another session. It also seems pretty clear that unless the end of the war is in sight the government will challenge the opposition to say whether they will agree to another extension of the parliamentary term or insist upon a wartime election. This challenge cannot be made, or at least no answer can be required until parliament is in session and the debate upon the address in reply to the speech from the throne is concluded.

That debate can be prolonged for weeks if the Liberals desire to postpone the hour of decision. And it is quite likely that we may be well into February before the gage of battle is thrown down and taken up. Even then it does not follow that the government must dissolve in case the Liberals refuse to grant an extension, but it would seem altogether likely that their refusal will be followed by an election, possibly toward the end of March.

The Kingston Standard (Conservative) and The Ottawa Free Press (Liberal), reached much the same conclusion. They unite in saying that both sides are preparing for an election in the near future, but that in all probability parliament will first meet at the usual time in January. It is taken for granted that parliament will be summoned "for despatch of business" on Thursday, January 11.

The Free Press, however, claims that there is a division of sentiment among the members of the government. A majority of the ministers is said to favor the course above outlined, but two or three of their colleagues are said to favor an immediate appeal to the country.

The election will not have to be delayed until parliament votes the supply needed for the fiscal year commencing April 1, 1917. In the first place the election will probably be over by that date, and the new house could be summoned at once. Moreover the constitutional practice is for the opposition to agree to an interim vote when the government announces that it intends to appeal to the people. In 1911, Sir Wilfrid Laurier did not even go to the trouble of getting such a vote, but ran the government on governor-general's warrants from August till October.

Montreal, Que., Oct. 19.—The people of Quebec are a generous race, as it now looks as if this province will take up the Manitoba school question, which at least ought to be good for a couple of years, agitation. This theory is advanced after the speech just delivered at Quebec by Mgr. Beliveau, Archbishop of St. Boniface, and which was pronounced at such a late hour that no one heard of His Grace's remarks till today. At the end of his speech, His Grace gave his hearers to understand that the day was coming when an appeal would be made to the generosity of Quebec in aid of the persecuted of Manitoba. Mgr Beliveau said he did not want to sound a sad note, but the fact remained that a whirlwind had passed over his province, sweeping away everything that was dear to them. "Our faith," he said, "is not probably threatened immediately, altho it is practically. It will be our duty to defend it, for we cannot be traitors to our faith. We will defend our rights to the end and to death if necessary."

Montreal, Oct. 19.—The temperance community here expect that Sir Lomer Gouin will give them a referendum on the question of prohibition. During a recent interview the premier said there were three courses open. A straight prohibition bill, the status-quo and a referendum, so it is to be presumed that a referendum it will be.

GREAT PIANIST SCORES A TRIUMPH IN TORONTO

Paderewski Had Musical World of City at His Feet at Massey Hall.

Paderewski playing at Massey Hall last night had the musical world of Toronto at his feet, the splendid audience sitting in a silence that was almost sacred under the spell of the wizard of technique and the world's greatest master of musical expression. The great musician had often been heard here before but it is doubtful if on any former occasion he achieved a triumph of appreciation equal to that of last night.

The dynamic opening chords with which Paderewski prefaced his first number of "Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue" by Bach, were an impelling force that brought the listener into touch with the performer and the fanciful phrases and flying climaxes of the production were a brilliant introduction to the evening's program. The Beethoven group of the "Sonata, op 57" with its contrasts of allegro andante and presto called forth a burst of spontaneous applause, and after bowing repeatedly and the audience still unsatisfied, the artist responded with another selection. One of the most popular numbers was the charming Chopin group Ballade in G. Minor, Nocturne in F sharp major, Three Etudes Nos. 12, 7, 3, op 10 and Valse A flat major op 34. Here opportunity was given for the weird effects of the minor notes, velvety runs, great chords and the fascinating waltz measure, all of which were produced with a perfection which others may attempt but seldom, if ever, achieve. The pauses in Paderewski's playing were as pregnant with meaning as are the most brilliant passages of technique and the tenderness of the piano tones as effective in their message as the artillery-like attacks of flail-like phrases.

One of the most interesting features was the composition of the performer "Cracovienne Fantaastique," the Polish music suggesting martial scenes and the folk dances of the peasantry who have known more of the sorrows than the joys of life. "Midsummer Night's Dream Fantasia," Mendelssohn-Liszt, was the closing number of a long but wonderfully executed program, one of the most charming things given being Mendelssohn's "Spinning Wheel," played in response to repeated recalls.

Among the large audience were several schools, the occasion being regarded as among the educative opportunities of the year.

WEST TORONTO

IMPROVE PACIFIC AVENUE.

Work Was Commenced Yesterday to Replace Broken Pavement.

The deplorable condition of the north side of Dundas street, between Pacific and Clendenan avenues, where the sewer was constructed, which has been an eye-sore for fully a year, is at last showing signs of improvement. Several times the long narrow strip has been reclaimed with earth and cinders. However, work was commenced yesterday and the broken pavement will be replaced.

YORK TOWNSHIP

MANY MUNICIPALITIES DEFER RED CROSS WORK

Farmers Are Now in Their Busy Season and Not Able to Get Into Campaign.

Comparatively few of the municipal divisions in York County were actively engaged in pushing the British Red Cross movement yesterday, a majority of the towns and villages deferring the collections until the farmers, who are now in the midst of their busy season, will be at liberty to start in on the campaign.

Newmarket had a big organization at work all day, and Mayor Cane said last night that while the storm had seriously interfered the work will be finished today. Last year they raised $35000 and expect to do as well now. Aurora deferred its campaign until today, and the council of the Town of Sutton will meet on Monday and impose a rate of half a mill on the dollar. Markham Village has taken no definite action yet, and Reeve Nigh of Markham Township said yesterday that a big organization meeting would be held in Unionville in a few days to start the campaign. Scarboro Township, according to Reeve Cornell, will soon be into the work, and Reeve Pugsley of Richmond Hill is confident that the campaign started there yesterday and to be finished today will raise $1000. In Whitchurch they are leaving the canvas over until later in the season. Weston will finish the canvas up today or Saturday and expects to raise $4000, while Woodbridge will contribute fully $1000. Brampton yesterday raised $100 by voluntary subscription, and the council supplemented it by another $1000 on the general tax rate. Vaughan Township has levied a half mile rate, which will amount to about $2000.

MRS. MORRISON DEAD.

Prominent Church Woman Will Be Buried in Dundas, Ont., Where She Formerly Lived.

Mrs. Archibald Morrison, wife of the manager of Markham Woolen Mills, died suddenly in that village, following an attack of typhoid from which she was supposed to be recovering. The late Mrs. Morrison was 60 years of age and came with her husband to Markhaam when the latter assumed the position of manager of the local mills. She was prominently identified with the Presbyterian Church Ladies' Aid and Red Cross work. Interment will take place in Dundas, where she formerly resided and where the body will be taken today.
