STRYCHNINE TABLETS CAUSE THE DEATH OF CHATHAM CHILD

Three-Year-Old Tot Eats 20 or 30 Before Discovered.

CHATHAM, June 10.—Little Eva Gosnell, three-year-old, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Gosnell, William street south, is dead as a result of eating a number of laxative tablets containing strychnine and belladonna.

The child secured the bottle without the knowledge of her parents and had eaten between 20 and 30 tablets before she was discovered. Medical aid was summoned, but was of no avail, the little girl suffering a series of convulsions before death ended her sufferings. Funeral arrangements have not as yet been made.

COAL STRIKE MAY END ON JUNE 20 AS RESULT OF BALLOT

Both Sides Are Tired of Struggle, Which Has Now Lasted Ten Weeks—Owners' New Offer Big Improvement On Previous Offers — Ballot Will Include a Nation Pool.

LONDON, June 10.—A resumption of work in the British coal mines Monday, June 20, it is generally assumed here, will result from a decision reached today at a conference of the miners' delegates to take a ballot on the proposals made by the coal mine owners, looking to a settlement of the strike.

This assumption is said to be based less on the idea that the miners regard the latest terms offered by the mine owners as acceptable than on the belief that there will not be a two-thirds majority in favor of a continuance of the strike.

HAS LASTED TEN WEEKS.

The cessation of work in the mines has lasted for ten weeks, and the funds of the miners are exhausted; and, it is asserted, although the terms the mine owners have proposed do not meet the claims the workers have advanced, they constitute a considerable improvement on anything the mine owners have previously advanced.

BOTH SIDES ARE TIRED.

The ballot will include the question of a national pool, for which the men up to the present have been firmly in favor. The view outside the ranks of the miners, however, is almost universal that such a pool would prove impracticable under existing circumstances, and the belief is expressed that it no longer will be allowed to stand in the way of a settlement of the controversy. Both sides are said to be tired of the struggle.

CONFERENCE HELD.

LONDON, June 10.—The conference of the coal miners' delegates held here today decided that a ballot should be taken in all the coal fields on the proposals of the mine owners for a settlement of the strike. This is generally considered a long step toward peace in the coal industry.

The miners' delegates present at the conference today represented 958,000 members of the union. The ballot will be taken next Wednesday, and will be returnable on Friday. A motion to advise the members to vote against accepting the owners' terms was overwhelmingly defeated, and it was decided no recommendations would be made. A two-third majority of the vote will be required to continue the stoppage of mining.

Offer 20 Per Cent Raise.

The main features of the owners' final wage proposals consist of the establishment of a new standard minimum wage by raising the 1914 pay rate, or the 1919 rate in the case of piece-workers, by 20 per cent, this percentage to be calculated on the March, 1921, output, and to be valid for a period of twelve months. Thus, the new average pay would range from 60 to 115 pence per shift, according to districts, with special allowances to the low-paid day workers at the end of twelve months, if the current rates do not provide a subsistence wage.

Surrender Profits.

The owners offer to surrender their profits proportionately to the assistance received by the districts. New district boards, if the proposals are accepted, are to redistribute the districts on an economic, instead of a geographical basis, and a national wages board will determine the ratio of profits to wages in each district. As an alternative, the owners suggest that the new wages standard be settled by a national wages board or by arbitration.

Anglicans Do Not Stress Making People Good by Legislation, Say Clergyman

Synod, However, Approves Action of Attorney-General Raney On Gambling by Standing Vote of 20 to 6.

TORONTO, June 10.—After a discussion on the race track gambling question during which some of the delegates expressed antagonism to Attorney-General Raney in his anti-gambling crusade, the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto this evening passed a resolution deploring the fact that "while the criminal code prohibits the business of gambling at other times and places, exceptions are made whereby this business is sanctioned on race tracks during race meets and at bazaars and entertainments for charitable and religious objects and that the synod expresses the hope that the criminal code will be so amended as to prohibit entirely the practising of gambling."

Not By Legislation.

In the discussion on the gambling question, Rev. N. Clarke Wallace said it had never been the policy of the Church of England to lay stress on the making of people good by legislation. The synod and social service, he said, were capable of initiating their own resolutions and did not need to be told by Mr. Raney what it should pass and what it should not pass. "He may be able to do this with the magistrates," said Rev. Mr. Wallace, "but I don't think he should be able to do it with this synod."

Dr. Thomas, Toronto, remarked that he did not think it fair to say Mr. Raney was trying to dictate to the synod just because he asked it to support his campaign. "If he cannot get support from those who are following Christ," he asked, "where can he get it?"

Raney Is Supported.

C. J. Fox, Toronto, said: "I am opposed to the synod giving Mr. Raney support for the puritanical way in which he is trying to make people good."

Bishop Sweeney said he himself was in sympathy with Mr. Raney's request to the synod to pass a resolution against racetrack gambling, and he thought the whole synod should be in sympathy with the resolution.

A standing vote on it was taken with the result that 20 voted for it, and 6 against.

Status of Women.

The question of the status of women in the councils and ministrations of the Anglican Church was referred to the executive committee after a brief debate. Bishop Sweeney requested that the question be not dealt with until the House of Bishops and the General Synod had it before them. However, two delegates spoke in favor of admitting women to the Anglican councils. L. A. Hamilton of this city, who introduced the subject in a resolution, and whose wife was the first woman member of the Toronto City Council, and Rev. Canon Plumptre, rector of St. James' Cathedral.

It was understood that the question was shelved for another two years.

Spanking Not Dignified.

Rev. Canon Skey and Police Magistrate J. E. L. Jones both of this city, sponsored a resolution in favor of legislation giving magistrates the right to order youthful offenders against the law to be "spanked" instead of being sent to jail.

Bishop Sweeney suggested that the word "spanking" was not sufficiently dignified.

"My lord," said Canon Skey, "the Church of England has suffered from dignity for many years. It is time we got down to business."

The question was referred to the executive committee.

The synod went on record as agreeing with what steps had already been taken by the general synod in approaching other denominations regarding church union. A hope was expressed that the House of Bishops would carry the matter forward by whatever action might seem wise.

CASE OF BRAMMER

to drive off, taking Hindmarsh with them. Witness claimed that with the aid of a lantern he deciphered the number of the car, 63-408, and his brother Hubert took it down as he called it off.

Returning again, however, after a short interval, McCaffery claims that Brammer and his companions made a further demand for money, and Hindmarsh pointed out Hubert McCaffery as the one who had sold him the whisky. The latter two were again asked to settle up to the amount of $400, he says, and Hubert proferred all the cash he had with him, $150 to Brammer, while Hindmarsh wrote another check for $250 which the constable accepted.

Witness declares that he asked the pair to leave them at least one bottle, and Brammer was willing to leave a case, but was overruled by Mason, who pointed out that Inspector Keenleyside might discover the shortage. It was eventually comprised, the witness asserts, that three bottles be left.

The evidence of the second witness for the crown, Hubert McCaffery, coincided in general with the story of his brother. Upon cross-examination by J. P. McEvoy, counsel for Brammer, the McCafferys set the time of the alleged raid and seizure at 10:30 to 10:40, and advanced the additional information that it was a moonlight night. Counsel for defence promises to prove that on the night in question the moon did not rise until long after 11 o'clock. The first witness explained that upon coming to London he inquired concerning the ownership of car No. 63-408 and 63-804; including the last number in order to divert suspicion, he said.

Joseph McCaffery, the third of the brothers on the farm the time in question, also told of the arrival of the three men, two of whom he identified as Brammer and Mason. He explained how the liquor discovered upstairs was carried out to the car and loaded, after which the visitors returned to the house, and Brammer said, according to witness, "Hurry up and settle as I want to get home."

First Demanded $700.

"My brother wrote a check for $300," said the witness, "but they refused to accept it. They demanded first $700. Then they lowered their price to $500 and finally to $400. My brother gave him $150 in cash and Hindmarsh gave a check for another $250."

Cross-examined by the defence, witness admitted that he did not actually read the number of the car himself, but copied the figures down as his brother read them off, aided by the light from a lantern.

"When did you see Brammer again?" queried the defence.

"The following Monday in London," was the reply.

"Why did you go to his house?"

"To make sure he was the man."

"You weren't positive then?"

Cross-examined by Albert Judd, counsel for Mason, witness could not swear as to how the latter was dressed. The only light had been carried upstairs, and the kitchen where he remained was but dimly lighted by the rays of the moon. Witness stated in answer to questions, that he believed the matter was settled for good.

"Where did you first see Mason," persisted the latter's counsel.

"As he came through the kitchen door. There was only one light, and Mason carried it upstairs."

"What kind of a hat did he have one?"

"A cap."

"What kind?"

"I'm not positive. I was looking at his face."

"There seems to be a lot of things that you are not positive about."

"No I was looking at his eyes, not his hat."

"Well what was the color of his eyes?" "I'm not positive, I wasn't worrying about it either when I was expecting to be shot any minute." "Oh, you were watching Mason to see that he didn't shoot. I thought you were busy watching Brammer. Your time must have been pretty well taken up."

Witness could not swear as to the color of Mason's clothes, but thought they were dark.

Telephone Inquiries Made.

Arthur Keene, issuer of motor licenses for the London district, called by the crown, told of issuing license No. 63-408 to Roy Brammer on March 12 last. Cross examined by the defence he related how inquiries had been made to him by telephone all in an hour concerning that number and two others, 63-804 and 60-165; the former license being held by Fred Smith, Thamesville, and the latter by Earnest Hindmarsh.

W. H. Down of the London detective force was next called by the prosecution. He stated that about ten minutes to eight of the evening of May 19 he assisted the prisoner, Brammer, start his machine north on Richmond street from near the corner of Dundas street. Mason was with him, declared Detective Down.

Answering the defence the witness asserted that Brammer had no demerit marks against him during seven years of police duty. Brammer wore a slouch hat he said, while Mason wore a peaked cap, as he remembered, a light suit.

J. H. Keenleyside, license inspector, the next crown witness, denied that he had authorized the defendants to conduct the alleged raid, and that any report of the same had been made to him.

An attempt at this juncture to determine precisely what hour the moon rose on the night of May 19 was halted by His Honor Judge Talbot Macbeth, declaring that this issue could be settled by consulting the almanac.

P. C. Irwin testified that on the night of May 19 he was driving back through Broughdale when, about two blocks north of Huron street he passed Brammer, who in company with some person he could not recognize, passed him going north. The latter wore a cap, and as he thought a dark suit. Witness stated that this occurred about 8 p.m.

Passed Brammer on Road.

Lyle Johnson, Oxford street west, testified that about 8:10 that same evening he was driving south toward the city, when between Concessions 5 and 6 he passed Brammer traveling north. Witness did not notice the man with him.

Recalled to the stand at this point, Hubert McCaffery informed the court that his farm was about 20 miles from London, and to be reached from this city one must start north on Richmond street.

"Brammer was in my garage between 6 and 8 p.m. on May 19," declared Sam H. Rowed, manager of the Ontario Garage. "He came back the following Monday to attend to some parts of his car, and the asked me if I remembered him being in the garage the previous Thursday. He remarked that there had been some trouble out in the country, and a number of a car had been taken, which was supposed to be his. He asked me if I could remember the time. He made some remark about being suspected of the theft of some liquor, and said that Hindmarsh was implicated in the deal, and was then in the crown attorney's office, as he (Hindmarsh) had just telephoned him. I said he was in a bad box, but he replied: 'No,' as Hindmarsh could not, or would not, I just forget the words, implicate him (Brammer)."

Questioned by the defence, witness was not certain as to the exact time on May 19, that Brammer was in the garage, but knew it was before 8 p.m.

Mrs. Edith Smith, aunt of Fred Mason, was the first witness called for the latter's defence. Her evidence was corroborated, for the most part, by her husband, Albert Smith, by Rose Mason, the wife of the accused, and by Tony Cortese of 131 Fullarton street. She testified in effect: Her nephew and his wife were at her home, 56 Richmond street, on May 19, for supper. Mason left about 7 p.m., and returned to the house about 8:20 p.m. She was positive of the time, as expecting guests she had been watching the clock. He wore a blue suit and light cap at the time, she stated, and remained in the house until 11 p.m. She saw him get out of the car, but could not see if any one was with him.

Tony Cortese explained that, as he was feeling ill that day, he had ample reason to remember the date perfectly. He walked to a doctor's office, and not finding him in, went over to Smiths', old friends of his, and spent the evening.

Stiff Cross-Examination.

Although subjected to a stiff cross-examination both witnesses refused to change their stories.

Supporting herself with great difficulty with the aid of crutches Mrs. Brammer was helped into the box to testify in defence of her husband. She said she remembered the day particularly as it was the first day she was able to be out after her illness, and further it was her husband's day off. The latter drove her and the children to Springbank, returning home at 6 p.m. He went out about 7 p.m. in his own car, but was driven home about 10 p.m. by a Mr. Falls. He (Brammer) did not go out again that night, she asserts.

Bruce Falls, traveling salesman for the Harris Abattoir, testified that upon returning to London from Ridgetown on May 19 he went to Burroughs' garage, where he saw Brammer. This was shortly after 9 p.m., witness stated. Brammer, he says, was tinkering with his car, and as he did not repair it sufficiently he (Falls) drove him to Brammer's home, where he stayed until about 11:15 p.m. Questioned by the prosecutor, witness replied that he was sure of the date, because he was due in Toronto the next day, May 20, and in addition to this had paid Burroughs a storage bill of $40 that night.

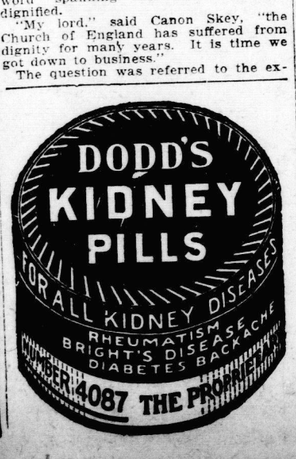
Garageman Testifies.

Alfred H. Burroughs, garage owner, 342 Ridous street, corroborated the evidence of Falls in every particular, and stated that Brammer's car remained in the garage when he (Burroughs) left, and in the morning still stood there with the hood open. He could not, however, swear as to whether the number plate had been removed.

Aged and extremely deaf, Mrs Agnes Coote, grandmother of Brammer, explained that she was at his home in West London on the day in question and gave the same explanation as Mrs. Brammer for being so positive as to the day.

A persistent gruelling cross-examination by the crown counsel failed to shake the testimony of the witnesses for the defence. A noticeable feature of the trial was the fact that Hindmarsh, the alleged third man of the party at the McCaffery farm, and who is said to have purchased whiskey from the brothers, has not been in attendance at the trial, and it is understood further that inquiry for him at his home has proved fruitless. Provincial Officer Palmer was not, as expected, called by the crown. That the trial is attracting unusual attention is recorded by the large audience at both the morning and afternoon sessions, and dozens were unable to find seats. A capacity gathering which frequently had to be called to order remained for the most part close to their seats until adjournment.

Although both prisoners appeared deeply interested in every little detail as the case progressed, Brammer seemed of the two the less worried as to the possible outcome and frequently smiled or otherwise showed his approval or disdain as the evidence was unwound.



NEW SARUM MAN HAS CO-OPERATIVE PLAN FOR FARMERS

Asks County Council To Help Establish Storage and Mills.

MILK PRODUCTS PLANTS

The Middlesex County Council, at its session Friday afternoon, decided to take no action on the matter of providing the district representative of the Ontario Department of Agriculture with a lady assistant. It also agreed that no action be taken regarding the appointment of a second agricultural representative in the county.

The report of the educational committee, which recommended that a grant of $400 be made to each of the high schools in the county and the same amount that was granted last year to the continuation school, was referred back for further consideration, owing to the fact that changes in the school act have been made since last year.

Trucks Tampered With.

County Engineer Charles Talbot told of the work the new county machinery valued at $20,000 was doing. He showed clearly how the replacing of horse-drawn vehicles by motor trucks had saved the county a considerable sum of money. He said that some of the trucks had been tampered with by someone designedly, but that lately no trouble had been experienced.

The councillors were informed that their minutes books, after an absence of three years, had been returned from the courts in Toronto, where an action between the city and county had been awaiting judgment.

Salvation Army officials requested a grant of $250 towards the rescue home and children's shelter. The request was referred to the finance committee. The council was invited to visit the rescue home, the Bethesda Hospital and Ronald Gray Memorial, toward the establishment of which it had given $1,500.

Resolutions for the payment of 70 per cent of the cost of oiling and watering the main streets in Lucan, Ailsa Craig and Parkhill, which connect with county roads, were passed.

Arbitration Explained.

County Treasurer T. E. Robson and Mrs. Robson explained the city and country arbitration regarding the costs of the administration of justice.

Frank Charlton of New Sarum addressed the council at some length, asking for co-operation in a scheme to establish a wholesale plant in the city, where farmers could sell their goods at a profit and consumers could buy the goods at a 10 per cent discount. He also advised the building of a cold storage plant, grain mills and milk product plants (one for every ten square miles) in the county. He said that the labor man and the farmer were having a hard time at present.

An invitation to take a ride on a London and Port Stanley Railroad special train last evening was accepted by the councillors.

Nearly Insane From Leg Ulcers

She tells of suffering and brief story of her relief.

Read these two letters from Sarah D. Lawrence of Roebuck, Ontario. "I can't sleep at night from leg ulcers. I am in pain most of the time. I have doctored but no use. A lady from Winnipeg says that D. D. D. relieved her of a bad case of eczema. That her sores are all healed. Can you help me?"

Now a few words from a later letter. "I have used D. D. D. as directed and my leg is completely well."

Why not be convinced and try this remedy today for any form of skin disease? One application and the itch is gone. Your money back if relief doesn't come from the first bottle. $1.00 a bottle. Try D. D. D. Soap too.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.
