ONTARIO'S NEW SCHOOL LAW

Has Decidedly Increased Attendance at High Schools—Great Work for Vocational Training.

Some respect or fear of the Adolescent School Attendance Act is being shown by the youths and maidens between the ages of fourteen and sixteen, for there is a decided increase in the registration of pupils at the high schools and night schools of the city.

The total registration of attendance at eight high schools up to October 1st, 1921, which is about 800 in advance of last year. This is said to be due to a larger number of the pupils who were "entrained" going into the high schools, and those under sixteen years remaining, in accordance with the new law.

Technical's Big Gain.

The day registration at the Central Technical School has increased by about 400, as compared with this time last year, and Principal McKay anticipates a still further increase.

The High School of Commerce has been obliged to increase its teaching staff and to accommodate its pupils in the corridors and halls in order to provide for the increased attendance.

There has been quite a run on the night schools throughout the city during the past week. There are seven more night schools this year than there were last, and an average registration of between 50 and 60 is already recorded.

It is thought that the new act is responsible for the sudden popularity of night education, but attendance at night school will not fulfill the letter of the law, which, however, is not being stringently enforced this year. In September next the Board of Education proposes to start part-time day classes for adolescents who are at work or are at home on special permit.

It is estimated that about 2,000 adolescents will receive additional education of some kind during the coming year as a result of the passing of the Adolescent School Attendance Act.

FIRST CONCERT KEENLY ENJOYED

Gives Promise of Delightful Series in the Lyceum Course in K. of P. Hall.

Music lovers of the city were delighted with an artistic concert programme which was heard in the Knights of Pythias Castle last evening. It was the first of five in the Lyceum course which has been arranged for this winter under the auspices of the Phonograph Salon, Ltd. The initial concert presented three talented musicians, Madame Baschi, contralto, Miss Edna Scriven, violinist, and Charles H. Atwood, pianist, who took the place of George Anderson, who was unable to come.

Madame Baschi is a European artist who has stepped into prominence with the depth and fullness of her rich contralto voice. Her numbers included "O Sole Mio," Gounod's "Serenade," "The Last Rose of Summer," "The Little Tree," "By the Waters of Minnetonka," "Trovatore," "O Promise Me," "The Rose and the House That Jack Built." All were delightful.

Miss Scriven has a wonderful mastery of the violin, and has the firm yet delicate touch of the true musician, coupled with perfect technique. She played the violin obligato for some of Madame Baschi's songs and as her final number gave an exhibition of whistling in her own piano accompaniment. She received a royal welcome from the audience. Among her numbers were "Jerusalem Fantasia" and "The Humming Bird."

Mr. Atwood acted as accompanist to the soloists, and in his piano solos gave delightful interpretations of some charming numbers. Among his numbers were "Rustling of the Leaves" and "Slush Dance." If the remaining four concerts in the Lyceum course are of as high a standard as the one last evening, the series will be assured of a hearty welcome from large and appreciative audiences. The promoters are to be warmly commended for supplying so great a treat to St. John musical people and should have hearty support in the concerts yet to be given.
