LACK OF ARMS DOESN'T KEEP THIS GIRL FROM VARSITY EDUCATION

To have been born without arms is a handicap of course, but not enough to prevent Miss Martha Hale from getting a university education. She is seen writing her notes at the University of California (Berkeley) where she is a co-ed, with the fountain pen clasped between heroes.

The Juggernaut of the Streets

(Providence Journal)

Nearly every motor death is due to some carelessness, folly or inexperience, and the greater prevalence of such deaths in one community than another eloquently bespeaks the deference in the measures taken to prevent them. Reducing the number of accidents through stringent regulation of motor traffic is one of the most pressing demands of the day.

THE WORLD'S PRESS

Once a German Alyaws a German

(London Daily Mail.)

If Germany had been effectively disarmed and if the Peace conditions had been honestly fulfilled—as everyone who is not hoodwinked by the German propagandists knows they have been—there would be no reason for obstructing the allied control officers. Yet, in actual fact, it has been impossible (owing to the stealthy resistance of the German military authorities) for these officers to carry out their work during the past year.

Savings and The Birth Rate

(Boston Globe)

The rate of increase in the population is determined more by interest-bearing bonds than by anything which can be accomplished through committees or legislators. For several generations the French peasant has been tucking away his savings in Government securities. The return on them has become one of the most important factors in his life, even though he does not live very well. A little arithmetic teaches the peasant that the way to dissipate an endowment is to distribute it by having a number of children. He therefore sees an advantage in having only one.

An Easy Job

(Vanceburg Sun.)

To be a successful newspaper man calls for a variety of talents. An all round newspaper man should be able to write a poem, discuss the tariff and other political questions intelligently, umpire a ball game, preach the gospel, report a wedding, saw wood, describe a fire, make one dollar do the work of two, shine in high society, subscribe to charity, go with out meals, sneer at snobbery, overlook scandal, wear diamonds, praise ladies, delight the pumkin raisers, administer to the afflicted, heal the disgruntled, fight to a finish, mould opinions, sweep the office, set type, move the world scorn the flesh and the devil, be everything and see everything on this footstool. It's an easy job.

A Modern Fable

(London Daily Chronicle)

An economical man kept a horse. He conceived the idea of saving on its food, and cut off a tenth of it. The horse still lived, and did its work; so he have orders that another tenth should be deducted next day, and so on till he came to eat nothing. This was done, and on the tenth day the horse died. His owner was exasperated. "Why," he said, "I was teaching it to work without eating, and just as it had finished its lessons and learned to eat nothing at all, the brute died!" Because for a limited time you can impose heavy taxes on trade and industry without starving them to death, it does not follow that hey will remain unsarved if you multiply the taxation , 5, or 6 times.

TALKING WITHOUT THINKING

The prosecuting attorney was examining a negro witness.

"Now, Mose," he said, "tell us what you know about this fight?"

"Well, boss," began Mose. "I think——"

"I don't want to know what you think. Tell us what you know."

"I think——"

"I told you not to tell us what you think."

"But, boss," said Mose, apologetically, "I ain't no lawyer. I can't talk without thinking."—Everybody's Magazine.
