Papers Read on Important Subjects and Keenly Debated

Fredericton, June 26.—The enrollment at the Teachers Institute has passed the 500 mark, being almost double that of the last meeting two years ago. The teachers are being favored by fine weather and are greatly enjoying their sojourn in the old shaded city. At today's sessions instructive papers were contributed by Principal Bridges of the Normal School, Charles D. Richards of Woodstock, Phoebe W. Robertson of Hampton, Rev. Dr. Kierstead of Woodstock and Prof. Locke of Montreal, while William McIntosh of St. John lectured on Insect Life. Wm. McLean of St. John was elected to the University senate. Tomorrow morning the executive will be elected and several papers read and in the afternoon the teachers will visit the university and will be addressed by Prof Kidner on "Manual Training." They will afterwards inspect the buildings and equipment.

This morning Principal Bridges, of the Normal School, read an excellent paper on "The Functions of the Normal School." The paper was very favorably commented on and was discussed by Inspectors Mersereau, Carter and others.

In the course of his remarks, Inspector Mersereau advised teachers in country ungraded schools not to take up the work of training young persons to enter the Normal School. He suggested that there were superior schools for this sort of training, and a young lady teacher with a school of perhaps fifty ungraded pupils had certainly enough to do without taking up this work.

Inspector Carter took issue with Inspector Mersereau in this point. He claimed that many parents in the country districts could not afford to send their daughters to superior schools at a distance in addition to the cost of training at the Normal School, and if the teachers carried out Inspector Mersereau's suggestion very many young men and women would be cut out from being teachers.

Charles Richards, B. A., of the Woodstock High school, and Miss Phobe W. Robertson, of the Consolidated school, each read excellent papers on literature.

At the afternoon session Rev. Dr. Kierstead spoke on moral training in the public schools and advanced many arguments in favor of its adoption. He pointed out that differences in religion among pupils in the public schools was to some extent a drawback. He thought that education should be recognized as moral training, as by having it the church is brought in touch with the public schools. He held that it was not so much the teaching of religion that is wanted as it is religious teaching. He advocated the adoption of a text book dealing with moral questions. He also advocated the establishment at the university of New Brunswick of a chair for the teaching of scientific education.

He believed it to be the duty of all teachers in a community to work in harmony with Christian churches.

Prof. Henderson, a U. N. B. graduate, now located in the West, opened the discussion and approved of Dr. Kierstead's suggestion that a chair of teaching should be established at the U. N. B. He said there was scarcely a university in the American union that was not provided with such a chair. He spoke of the great moral value of history and regretted that more attention was not given to the subject in the schools of the province. He declared that the teaching of history at the U. N. B. was practically nil.

This statement was questioned, but Mr. Henderson, in reply, stated that he was a graduate of the U. N. B. but had not been taught history since his second year at High School. He said there were pupils in his school in the United States who knew more of Canadian history than he did. He thought a chair should be established in the university without delay.

Principal Bridges, replying to Prof. Henderson, pointed out that Chester Martin of St. John, a U. N. B. graduate and Rhodes Scholar had captured a prize at Oxford for history in competition with students from all parts of the empire as well as the United States.

Rev. J. H. MacDonald made a few pleasing remarks in response to a call from the chair.

Prof. Locke of Macdonald College delivered an able address on The Teacher and His Work, which was briefly discussed.

A. B. Maggs of Sussex and Wm. McLean of St. John were nominated as representatives to the Senate University and a ballot being taken Mr. McLean was elected by a vote of 73 to 64.

The report of the auditor was read and adopted after which the meeting adjourned.

Fredericton, N. B., June 28.—The Teachers Institute closed a very successful three days session yesterday afternoon and a majority of the members left for home by the evening train.

The closing session was spent at the University building and proved very enjoyable. Prof. Kidner delivered a very interesting address on Manual Training and the teachers afterwards inspected the buildings and equipments. Before separating they were entertained to refreshments by Chancellor and Mrs. Jones.

The teachers' institute Saturday morning elected the following executive for the ensuing year, Dr. Bridges, St. John, Principal Foster, Fredericton; H. H. Hagerman Fredericton; A. B. Maggs, Moncton; C. D. Richards, Woodstock; Miss Davis Moncton; John B. Delong, Milltown; H. G. Perry, Hampton; Miss Thorne, Fredericton; Miss Phoebe Robertson, Hampton.

On motion of Principal Myles, of St. John, the resolution was adopted approving of the pension scheme for the teachers submitted to the government by a delegation several months ago and recommended the government to enact legislation next session to carry the scheme into effect.

The resolution suggests that the female teachers be allowed to retire at the age of fifty-five and male teachers at sixty, providing they have completed thirty years' service. It also proposes that teachers on becoming incapacitated after twenty years' service may be pensioned.

Mr. Myles supported the resolution in an able speech. Answering a question, he said it was proposed to ask that female teachers have $250 per annum on retirement and male teachers $400. Miss Thorne, of Fredericton, protested strongly against the proposed discrimination to female teachers. She thought they should have the same pension as men. After remarks by Dr. Bridges, Dr. Inch and Inspector Oblenis, a resolution was passed with the understanding that a committee of both sexes would be appointed to advise with the government in regard to the proposed legislation.

Inspector Steeves read an interesting paper on a course of instruction for the rural schools, which was briefly discussed.

FIELD DAY WEDNESDAY.

Sham Battle Likely to Take Place Next Friday—Soldiers Said to be Doing Good Work With Ross Rifle.

Sussex, N. B., June 28.—The second week at Camp Sussex opens tomorrow morning with musketry practice and company drill. Col. Lessard, Adgt.-General of the forces in Canada, will arrive tomorrow and will spend until Tuesday night at the grounds. Col. Lessard is an active and experienced inspecting officer and the officers are preparing for a thorough drill.

Another matter to be arranged during Col. Lessard's visit is the details in connection with sending the New Brunswick troops to Quebec. It is probable that the best drilled company in each infantry regiment will be chosen to represent the rural corps. It was learned on Saturday that two men and a non-commissioned officer will be sent from the ordnance corps company stationed in St. John. The tents and other supplies will be transported in their charge on July 8. Company H of the R. C. R. Fredericton, now at Camp Sussex, have also received orders to proceed to Quebec early in July.
