MONTREAL AND THE EASTERN LEAGUE.

Montreal, June 29.—An effort is being made, with good chances of success, for the admission of Montreal into the circuit of the Eastern Baseball League. With this end in view, the Montreal Baseball Association has been formed. The right men have taken the matter up, and the scheme is likely to go through. The Wilkesbarre franchise can be secured, and stock of the new association is being rapidly taken.

AMOS RUSIE ON BASEBALL.

All young men who try hard to become prominent ball players do not succeed. Not one in a thousand does. And I suppose there are scores who never try who would be among the stars of the profession had they not followed Mrs. Dombey's fault of not making an effort.

From the day when I first saw a professional baseball game in the early eighties I had an ambition to become a great player as soon as I could get a little older. I never thought of being a pitcher, however. It was the man who made great running fly catches in the outfield who got most of the applause. He was the real hero of the game to me, and to be like him became my desire.

No young pitcher, I presume, was ever wilder in his delivery than I was in my early career. It was my one weakness. But I determined to master the faults, and I did it by constant practice with the fast curve ball. It took hard work and a great deal of it for me to get control of that fast curve. But when I once felt moderately sure of it I knew that the early weakness in my work had passed away.

Such a thing as a sore arm was unknown to me until late in 1894, the year it gave me great trouble, and I worked from beginning to end under a painful handicap. My rest during 1896 undoubtedly did the arm good, but it will never be what it was in the early nineties. I suppose, when I could pitch every day in the week without feeling the least twinge of pain in joint or muscle. Those days will never come back. They never do to the pitcher who has served ten years on the diamond. But with careful use of the arm and a fair amount of work it ought to be good for a number of years yet.

Probably I overtaxed the muscles of the pitching arm in those days when I was skeptical concerning sore arms. My advice to every young pitcher is to go slow in the work which he imposes on his "delivery" arm before it reaches the sore state. An ambitious young fellow, just enjoying the pleasures of popular favoritism, is too apt to court the aches and pains which will come to him later as a sure result of his indiscrete overwillingness. One such incident is fresh in my mind. Recently Seymour, of the New York team, pitched two games in one afternoon at his own earnest solicitation. he won both and enjoyed the homage from the spectators which followed, but such overindulgence in the use of youthful strength is as liable to be paid for as are excesses in drink and modes of living.

The chief point of strength in a pitcher's work does not lie in his arm, but rather in his head. He may have good speed, curves, and control, but if he doesn't know how to use them against different batsmen he is not likely to succeed. Either he or his catcher must know the weakness of every batsman who faces him. They all have such weak spots. There isn't a batsman living who can't be "worked" in one way or another. Probably the two hardest to fool are Tiernan and Anson. Some are weak on high balls. Others cannot hit them at the knee or about the belt. Some will persist in hitting at curves, while there are those who constantly nip at balls they never touch and never will. If a pitcher makes a successful study of the batsmen against whom he must appear, he will have mastered half his success. Until he has had a chance to acquire such general knowledge he should always have a catcher who possesses it and can coach him accordingly. I had Buckley in my early days in the league, and from him I soon learned to suit my delivery to the man who faced me.

Baseball is an art. It must be played with the head. There is always something to learn about it. I am still a student. AMOS RUSIE.

ENTERPRISE THAT PAYS.

The Londons and Hamiltons play here tomorrow; but Hamilton will have a good day's ball nevertheless. The Rochester and Syracuse teams have been secured to play in that city by Manager Stroud, and two games will takep lace. That is enterprise which pays.

DIAMOND DUST.

New York is the first club to win the series from another club, having beaten the Washingtons seven games.

Thirty-four runs, 52 hits, and 7 errors was the New Yorks' record in the Washington series.

The Bostons were shut out for the first time this season on last Saturday. Only three clubs—New York, Baltimore, and Philadelphia—have escaped the whitewash brush. Washington and Cleveland have been shut out four times, Brooklyn, Cincinnati, Louisville, and Pittsburg twice, and Boston, Chicago, and St. Louis once.

All advices from Boston are to the effect that Jimmy Collins is playing a magnificent game at third base. "He's taking foul flies off the fence," declares Patsy Donovan, "like a man picking apples from a tree, and making catches that would be impossible for other third basemen."

A game of baseball was played on Carling's Heights last night between the Reds (average age 16) and the Olives (ages from 19 to 26 or 27), and resulted as usual in favor of the Reds. Score, 13 to 5. Batteries—For Reds, Jackson and Johnson; Olives, Wadd and Lashbrook, Butler and Harley. Umpire—S. Dunn.

The city photographers would like to arrange for a friendly game of baseball, at Springbank, on Friday, July 2, with the dentists.

THE NIGHT RIDER.

With a bell and a disposition to ride moderately, the night rider is as safe, and perhaps a little safer, than the day rider. Streets and roads are practically clear of teams and the inability to see the minute details of grade, surface, etc., leaves the rider comparatively free from nervous strain. Hills are easier to climb or descend, and bad places in the road are more readily got over by night than by day. This may sound paradoxical to those who have not tried it, but it is a fact. Beginners are liable to feel timid at the start, but soon find themselves proceeding with a confidence unknown to their daylight ventures. It is only necessary to give warning of your presence and to ride slowly in order not only to feel safe, but to be safe.

HINTS AND NOTES.

When riding straight ahead never vary your course suddenly to one side without first satisfying yourself that there is no rider behind you.

Dismounting by the pedal should be practiced by bicycle riders, as it is a good thing in case of emergency. Most riders can fall off, if necessary, but it is decidedly more convenient to be able to dismount by either pedal.

A new idea in wheel mechanism will be introduced by a Syracuse firm in the near future. It is understood to be somewhat on the plan of the companion wheel in which the riders sit side by side, only, of course, in the new wheel there will be four riders instead of two.

Japanese cycle manufacturers conduct their business on decidedly quaint lines. They charge for their machines according to the speed at which they are capable of running—that is, what they term "a seven-mile bicycle" may be bought for $30, while a twelve-mile bicycle costs $50.

New York has the latest novelty in bicycle racks. At the entrance to one of the Brooklyn ferries there is a stand. Backing the wheel into the groove it is immediately fastened. By dropping a nickel in the slot the key appears, which enables the wheelman to get his wheel when he returns.

BICYCLIST LASHED BY SNAKES.

Binghamton, June 30.—Alfred Allen, who canvassed for subscribers for weekly newspapers here, had a queer experience last Tuesday. He travels through the country on a bicycle, and was riding down a hill on the road between Montrose and Great Bend, Pa., when he ran into a lot of rattlesnakes. He saw the reptiles in the road ahead, but was going so fast that he could not stop. He realized that he stood a pretty good chance of being stung while going past them, as a rattlesnake is as quick as lightning to strike. The noise of the wheel had put them on the defensive, and the rattles were giving that well-known warning to keep away.

Allen saw that he was in for it, so taking his feet from the pedals and putting them up as far as possible he went coasting down the hill at a lively rate. As the bicycle passed the snakes twenty heads darted out and Allen soon found them whipping him about the back and legs at every turn of the wheels. He became so excited that he paid little attention to the handlebars. The wheel soon shied to one side of the road, dumping him over an embankment. When he got his equilibrium he picked up the wheel and found entwined about the spokes and sprocket chain a mass of dead rattlesnakes, crushed and torn into ribbons. He did not attempt to dislodge them, but waited until a farmer came along and took him and the wheel to Great Bend.

A "LADY" PUNCTURES TIRES.

For puncturing a tire with a hat pin a young lady has been summoned to appear before a police magistrate on Monday next. It is understood the charge will be dropped, as the defendant's father has signified his willingness to pay the costs incurred, including the purchase of a new tire, amounting in all to about $7 50. The mode of tire puncturing is being carried on extensively. Mr. Robert N. Dowsley left his bike opposite his store the other night, and in his absence some one left a gentle reminder in the shape of a pin puncture. —Brockville Times.

SIMCOE CYCLISTS EXCITED.

There was consternation in Simcoe on Saturday, when the bicyclists learned that a deputation of farmers would wait upon the Woodhouse council at Port Dover, with the request that the privilege granted the bicyclists for the cycle path be withdrawn. The path is just completed, at an expense of nearly $200. Mr. H. B. Donly, secretary of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association, telegraphed Reeve Jameson that the bicyclists would expect to be heard before any action was taken.

DAVIDSON WON.

Grand Rapids, Mich., June 30.—At the state circuit bicycle races yesterday, Davidson, of Toronto, won the half-mile, open, professional event in 1:02½. In the one-mile professional tandem, Davidson and K. J. Blouin, of Detroit, finished second to A. F. Bingleheimer, Milwaukee, and Fred Schrein, Toledo, in 2:06, a state record.

RECORD BROKEN.

Springfield, Ill., June 30. — Arthur Gardiner, of Chicago, in the races of the national circuit bicycle meet, held at the state fair grounds, broke the world's one-mile handicap record. There were eighteen starters in the race, Gardiner being the scratch man. Gardiner won the race, his time being 2:05 1-5. Tom Cooper won the quarter-mile open in :32 2-5, defeating Gardiner, Kiser and Cabanne. Cooper also won the mile open in 2:22.

The Lorillard-Beresford stables' chestnut colt Lapwing II., was sold to Mr. Robert Peck for 200 guineas.

ATHLETICS.

BOXING IN BROOKLYN BARRED.

New York June 30.—Superintendent McKelvey, of the Brooklyn police, states that he will not permit the proposed boxing contest between Bob Fitzsimmons and John L. Sullivan to take place. The men were to have met in a six-round exhibition at Ambrose Park, South Brooklyn, on July 5. The police superintendent claims that although the managers of the project have secured a theatrical license, the meeting of the men would be an infringment of the laws governing boxing in the state.

Guest of the Prince

What Canada's Premier Said at the Colonial Institute.

The Heir to the Throne an Interested Listener.

The banquet to the colonial premiers at the Imperial Institute on Friday, June 18, was one of the most important items on the jubilee programme.

The Prince of Wales presided over a large and distinguished company, which included the Marquis of Salisbury and the ex-premier, Lord Rosebery.

The prince proposed the toast of the colonial premiers, and Mr. (now Sir) Wilfrid Laurier was the first to respond. He said: "Your Royal Highness, my Lords and Gentlemen: The toast which your Royal Highness has just proposed in such graceful terms is one which is important at all times, and opens a subject which at the present time, perhaps more than any other, engrosses and absorbs the minds of all thinking men. (Hear, hear.) During the few days in which my colleagues and myself have had the privilege to be in England we have had hourly evidences that the colonies at the present moment occupy no small part in the affections of the people of England. (Cheers.) Sir, the colonies were born to become nations. In my own country, and perhaps also to England, it has been observed that Canada has a population which in some instances exceeds, in many others rivals, the populations of independent nations, and it has been said that perhaps the time might come when Canada might become a nation of itself. My answer is this simply, Canada is a nation. (Cheers.) Canada is free, and freedom is its nationality. Although Canada acknowledges the suzerainty of a sovereign power I am here to say that independence can give us no more rights than we have at the present day. (Hear, hear.)

Lord Landsdowne has spoken of a day when perhaps our empire might be in danger. England has proved at all times that she can fight her own battles, but if the day were ever to come when England was in danger, let the bugle sound, let the fires be lit on the hills, and in all parts of the colonies, though we might not be able to do much, whatever we can do shall be done by the colonies to help her. (Cheers.) From all parts of this country since I have been here, both in conversation and in letters, I have been asked if the sentiments of the French population of Canada were characterized by absolute loyalty towards the British Empire. I have been reminded that feuds of race are long, and hard to die, and that the feuds of France, the land of my ancestors, with England have lasted during many generations. Let me say at once that though it be true that the wars of France and England have their place in history it was the privilege of the men of our generation to see the banners of France and England entwined together victoriously on the banks of the Alma, on the heights of Inkerman, and on the walls of Sebastopol. (Cheers.) It is true that during the last century and the century before, a long war, a long duel, I might call it, was waged between England and France for the possession of North America, but in the last battle that took place on the Plains of Abraham both the generals, the one who won and the one who failed, fell.

If you go to the city of Quebec, you will see a monument erected in commemoration of that battle. What is the character of that monument? Monuments to record victories are not scarce in England or France; but such a monument as this which is in Quebec I do not think you will find in any other part of the world, for it is a monument not only to him who won, but also to him who failed. (Cheers.) It is a monument dedicated to the memory of Wolfe and Montcalm, and the dedication, which is one of the noblest, and best of the kind, not only for sentiments which it records, but also as a literary expression, is as follows: "Mortem virtus communem famam historia monumentum posteritas dedit." Here is a monument to the two races, equal in fame, courage, and glory, and that equality exists at the present time in Canada. In this you have the setiments of my countrymen—we are equal today with those who won on the battlefield on the Plains of Abraham. It is by such acts that England has won the hearts of my fellow-countrymen; it is by such acts that she can ever claim our loyalty. Your royal highness, let me now thank you from the bottom of my heart, for the kind words you have just spoken. Your royal highness has been kind enough to remind us that at one time in its earlier day you visited Canada; many changes have taken place since that time, but let me assure your royal highness there has been no change in the loyalty of the Canadian people. (Cheers.)

FAGGED OUT.—None but those who have become fagged out know what a depressed, miserable feeling it is. All strength is gone, and despondency has taken hold of the sufferers. They feel as though there was nothing to live for. There, however is a cure—one box of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will do wonders in restoring health and strength. DEADLY FIREWORKS.

Two Young Men Fatally Injured by an Explosion.

Revere, Mass., June 29.—By an explosion of fireworks in the package-room of H. Tilton & Co., at Beachmont yesterday, two young men were so terribly burned that one died almost immediately, while the other only survived a few hours. They were engaged in packing fireworks in one of the buildings, when the explosion from some unknown cause occurred.

IN VENEZUELA.

The Resignation of the Cabinet Creates a Crisis.

Caracas, Venezuela, June 29.—The resignation of the Cabinet created a crisis not only on the administration of the government, but also among the people. Excitement runs high, the sensational action of the ministry being the paramount topic of discussion.

President Crespo was unable to harmonize the differences in his official family over the Guiana boundary arbitration treaty. The element that contended that the provisions of that agreement ignored the sovereignty of Venezuela is stipulating that Great Britain and the United States only, and not Venezuela also, name the members of the tribunal of arbitration, has continued implacable.

TALK OF A BIG STRIKE.

Affecting Five States and Involving Nearly 125,000 Miners.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 29.—Notwithstanding the denials of the local officials of the Miners' Association, an afternoon paper publishes a long article in effect that the national officers of the union will issue orders tomorrow for a strike in five states on Saturday. Nearly 125,000 men, it is said, will be engaged in this great conflict, and the battlefield will cover the bituminous coal centers of Indiana, Illinois, West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 29.—Patrick Dolan, president of the Pittsburg district, emphatically disclaims any knowledge of the proposed strike.

DEATH-DEALING FLASH.

Four Convicts Killed by Lightning in Georgia.

Dakota, Ga., June 30.—During a terrific thunder storm, lightning struck a convict camp near here Monday night, and as a result four convicts are dead, ten are dying and twenty escaped during the panic which ensued.

The camp is at the lumber mills of Green Bros., and about 150 prisoners from the state penitentiary are at work there.

During supper, the storm came up, and struck the dining shack, demolishing it. Two of the convicts, negroes, were instantly killed by the lightning stroke; two others, whites, died from their injuries a few minutes afterward, and ten were shocked so badly that they are dying.

About twenty of the felons, seeing their opportunity, dashed past the guards, who were panic-stricken, and made good their escape. After the guards recovered somewhat, they got out their bloodhounds, and the dogs were put on the trail, but owing to the heavy rain which fell the tracks had been well covered up. Only two were captured. The wildest excitement reigns, and hundreds of people are out in pursuit.

Miss Margaret Brown, 627 Colborne street, London, Ont., says: "My mother has been afflicted with nervousness and general debility for a long time. She suffered a great deal with insomnia, and found it almost impossible to sleep.

"I went to W. T. Strong's drug store and got a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, which she took, and derived so much benefit from that I bought another box for her. They have done her a wonderful lot of good, making her nervous system much stronger, giving her restful sleep, and removing many other symptoms which previously distressed her.

"I can truly say that these pills are a great remedy for anyone suffering from weak nerves, general debility, sleeplessness or heart trouble.

GORED BY A COW.

Mrs. James G. Lake, of the Soo, Seriously Injured.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., June 30.—Mrs. James J. Lake, who lives in the outskirts of the city, was so badly gored by a cow Sunday evening that she will probably die.

The bovine's act was apparently premeditated, as she followed Mrs. Lake to a neighbor's house, waited on the outside till the woman appeared a half hour afterwards, and again followed her until Mrs. Lake was nearly home. Making a sudden rush the cow tossed Mrs. Lake up in the air and then gored her fearfully. When help arrived the woman was insensible from the injuries and is now in a precarious condition.

ADAMS' GINGER BEER RECIPE.

Adams Extract .....one bottle
Fleischmann's Yeast ....½ to one cake
Sugar ..... two pounds
Cream of tartar .....One-half ounce
Lukewarm water ..... Two gallons

Dissolve the sugar, cream of tartar and yeast in the water, then add the extract; stir until thoroughly mixed and immediately bottle in strong bottles or jugs, corking and tying the corks securely. Place the bottles in a warm place for several hours until the yeast can work sufficiently to make the contents effervescent, then store in a cellar or other cool place.

If these directions are strictly followed and Fleischmann's or fresh homemade yeast is used, failure to produce a bright, sparkling, foaming and refreshing drink is an impossibility.
