Guff from Gotham.

Henry Allen & Co., New York, to John J. Dixon & Co.: The quotations again went down to-day. The market opened somewhat above the closing, remained strong in the earlier hours and toward the close fell, some of the leading stocks losing one or two points. It was not a day for the expenditure of surplus energy. The weather was not exhilarating; but little energy seemed to be required to push quotations downward. The bears had it all their own way; no support seemed at hand. The events of to-day and of the days which have preceded seem to indicate that a combined movement of the bear element is exerting its pressure upon quotations. The troubles reported in Brazil tended to add flame to the fire and furnished abundant ammunition for the onslaught. The natural drift of prices, too, is downward. Since this condition almost always precedes those which betoken an improvement in conditions, the alteration in exchange rates will necessarily have the effect of diminishing the imports of gold and the bulk of that coin will remain for a time in Europe. There it will do much toward restoring normal financial conditions, but so long as the work of restoration is an unfinished process the natural course of prices must be downward. It is not a time for strong resistance by the bulls, nor is it a time for investors to bring their earnings to the board. Until the work of restoration is completed it is the part of wisdom to let the market alone.

Commercial Chicago.

Counselman & Day, Chicago, to John J. Dixon & Co: General conditions of wheat market are unchanged, and we still feel friendly to wheat on all soft spots. Corn and oats were strong and higher on an urgent demand from both shippers and speculators, corn maintained the whole advance and closed at top, but oats receded ¼c on scalpers reselling in sympathy with decline in wheat. Provisions opened active and higher on general buying orders and packers accepted opportunity of reselling part of their recent purchases in order that advance might not obstruct consumptive demand. On a further good break we advise buying for another upturn.

Chicago Wheat Market.

Kennett, Hopkins & Co. to R. Cochran: Wheat—Stronger cables and widespread complaints of damage by drought were served up to shorts in great variety. The persistence and emphasis with which the reports come in have begun to make a decided impression on traders. As a rule they don't believe the damage already caused is beyond relief by soaking rains and a late mental fall, but as the days and the weather chart shows no moisture over the principal wheat producing States, the shorts are becoming visibly anxious. It is this gradual change of sentiment, this apprehension of possible disaster to the growing crop, that temporarily overshadows the heavy crop movement, and the immense accumulations in store on both coasts. If the rain does not come within a few days, we may see a rise sufficient to drive in shorts, but a general rain would be likely to cause marked weakness. It is a market in which traders do not feel safe to be long over night, neither do they care to be short much while the uncertainty exists, necessarily it is a dull market. A cent or two either way is sufficient to run shorts or shake out longs, and it promises to remain in this condition until it is settled whether drought is to be serious or otherwise. The possibility Russian prohibition still an influential bugbear that keeps traders on the tenter hooks. The Mark Lane Express says Russia has already exported so freely about eight million more than same time a year ago that it will make little difference if prohibition of exports are now enforced. The market is in such condition that an opinion as to immediate direction of prices would be worthless.
