FROM ALL OVER THE MARITIME PROVINCES

Saturday, May 28.

The drenching rain which on Tuesday fell in torrents must have proved a great disappointment to those who expected to spend the holiday in the country. True, a few of the most venturesome ones succeeded in carrying out their original plans by defying the elements and joining the excursionists who went by steamer to picnic at various points on the river, but whether their hardihood met with the reward anticipated is a matter of conjecture. The really fortunate ones were those who left town for the country the previous Saturday, thus assuring themselves of at least two fine days. Among them, Mr. and Mrs. H. Fielding Rankine and Mr. and Mrs. Fred McNeil were particularly lucky, the gentlemen having secured some dozens of trout taken from Ball's Lake, where at the clubhouse the party remained from Saturday until Tuesday. On the holiday, Miss Ethel McAvity, Miss Ena MacLaren, Miss Winifred Raymond, Mr. Harold Crookshank and Mr. Prescott Emerson spent the day at Rothesay, the guests of Mrs. C. H. Fairweather.

SCULPTOR PLEASED WITH THE CHAMPLAIN MONUMENT

Has Endeavored to Depict the Hearty, Rugged Explorer Rather Than the Courtier—Strength and Determination Indicated in Facial Expression—Hamilton McCarthy Formally Presents Statue to Committee on Saturday.

THE CHAMPLAIN MONUMENT

Hamilton McCarthy, of Ottawa, the famous Canadian sculptor, who designed the Champlain monument soon to be unveiled in Queen Square, arrived in the city Saturday.

The statue is a magnificent bronze figure, standing ten feet in height, and is set on a sub-base 12 feet square. The base proper is in itself very artistic, having a a wave ornament running around it and bronze dolphins at each angle. Cut in relief on the front of the base are palms springing from the fleur-de-lis, which encircle the name "Samuel de Champlain," and the date "1604-1904." Above the shift, carved in low relief, are emblems of the ships in which Champlain sailed over the Atlantic, and the signs of the Zodiac. The statue of Champlain executed
