The Scrap Bag

I put this (to me very sad) letter received quite lately at the top of this column, because it is my wish that every girl who reads this department should see it:

Dear Editor Scrap Bag,—I am about to be married, and instead of being congratulated, I am aware that I need a defense, and take this means of making it. I am twenty-seven years old—old enough to know better and do better—but I have no choice. The man is a widower with one child. He liked his first wife better than he does me; I liked a man years ago even better than I like him; so we are quits on that. He wants a housekeeper; I want a home. I was brought up to sing a little, and play a little, but have no trade. My parents will be glad to see me settled. I would be happier earning $5 or $6 a week and taking care of myself, but I was not taught how. There are thousands of women in my position. Every man who brings up his daughters without starting them with the means of earning a livelihood is responsible for just such a mistake as I shall make next month. Please will you not say something on this subject in your department. From a Well-wisher of the Scrap Bag.

If it were at all within my power, without stopping to inquire whether it lay within my province or not, my first instinct would be to prevent this miserable marriage ever taking place. I would arise in the church where the ceremony was going on and "shew a just cause" why these two persons should not be joined together in holy matrimony.

It is a not uncommon practice, I am aware, among many to hold up to ridicule all the manifestations of the tender passion; and while it is occasionally made ridiculous by ostentatious displays in public by silly people of all ages, if the real sentiment exists it is far less objectionable and pleasanter to reflect upon than are those cases of marriage in which true love plays no part.

However ludicrous may appear the assumption of the preceding item, it verily conveys more truth than amusement. Many thousands more women than men accept marriage as a makeshift for financial gain. Very few young gifted men of mediocre talent marry old, old women, or violate every other vestige of holy sentiment in their natures to gain a moneyed compensation. The reason that so many girls and women marry for a home and social position is because it is so difficult for them to earn a respectable living unless they have been trained to do well that which is of money value on the market. When it is considered equally culpable on the part of the parents to fail in giving girls, as boys, correct training for self-support, the home, husbands and children will be equally benefitted with the girl and the mother. These remarks do not imply that girls and women are fitted by nature equally with men to perform every sort of mental and physical labor with equal adaptability. There are quite as many varieties of physical and intellectual labor adapted to women as to men and a great many more equally adapted for both men and women.

It is seldom that a man so masters a foreign language that he can express himself therein when greatly excited.

A Welshman, after attempting to take part in a prayer-meeting conducted in English, and finding it very difficult to express the fervor of his heart in the partially-acquired tongue, suddenly broke the halting and laborious sentences with a joyful exclamation:

"Lord, I thank Thee that Thou knowest Welsh!" and straightway launched upon the sea of gutturals which came so readily to his lips.—New York Observer.

PLIGHTED.

Mine to the core of the heart, My Beauty!
Mine, all mine; and for Love, not duty—
Love given willingly, full and free,
Love for Love's sake, as mine to thee.
Duty's a slave that keeps the keys;
But Love, the master, goes in and out
Of his goodly chambers with song and shout,
Just as he please—just as he please.

Mine, from the dear head's crown, brown-golden,
To the silken foot that's scarce beholden!
Give to a few friends hand or smile,
Like a generous Lady, now and awhile,
But the sanctuary heart, that none dare win,
Keep holiest of holiest for evermore;
The crowd in the aisles may watch the door,
The high priest only enters in.

Mine! God, I thank Thee that Thou hast given
Something all mine on this side of Heaven—
Something as much myself to be
As this my soul which I lift to Thee,
Flesh of my flesh, bone of my bone,
Life of my life, whom Thou dost make
Two to the world for the world's work's sake—
But unto each, as in Thy sight, one.
—Dinah Mulock Craik.

DAILY HINTS TO HOUSEKEEPERS.

I like breakfast time better than any moment in the day. No dust has settled on one's mind then, and it presents a clear mirror to the rays of things.

BREAKFAST—Apples. Graham Mush and Cream. Yankee Dried Beef. Browned Hominy. Biscuit Honey. Coffee.
DINNER—Roast Rib of Beef. Potatoes. Currant Jelly. Tomato Sauce. Corn Fritters. White Bread. Yankee Apple Pie. Cheese.
SUPPER—Cream Toast. Cold Meat. Stewed Blackberries. Graham Bread. Tea.

Corn fritters—To every teacup of grated corn add one egg and a tablespoonful of milk. Season with salt and pepper. Stir in enough flour to thicken; fry in hot fat. Instead of grating the corn, prepare as in corn pudding recipe.

Although we are warned that skirts and sleeves are changing, the only visible signs are a few slight modifications in the importations from a few French Modistes. The same diversity in the cut of skirts continues, and the general resemblance; no appreciable diminution in fulness is seen, though a few French models are slightly narrower at the bottom and wider at the top in the back. Absurdly contrasting with this, however, are the efforts of the tailors to popularize extreme width in their severe cloth gowns, against which they have heretofore set their faces. The wise woman of independent and fastidious taste insists upon moderation in the width of all street gowns, and reserves the very full effects for thin materials and dressy gowns.

The pattern shown is in but two pieces, both in circle shape, with seams on the sides only, and is, of course, best adapted to double-fold stuffs. It measures a little over five yards at the foot, fits trimly around the waist and hangs in graceful flutes around the sides and in the back. Most imported gowns are lined with taffeta, and have only a facing—from four to ten inches in width—of stiff interlining; few are interlined to the waist, and some omit the facing. Some braid bindings are again seen; but velveteen is recommended as much more satisfactory and serviceable.

PYROGRAPHY.

Attractive Work Done With a Platinum Pencil.

No art has so radically improved in the last few years as amateur decorative work with women. Embroidered satin banners, knitted sidies and painted plush table scarfs have happily passed into that bourn, the rag bag, whence may they never return, and the ordinary woman whose artistic taste must out, is busy doing some really lovely and valuable decoration on wood and leather with a hot platinum pencil.

A few years ago she began with a half-dozen pokers stuck between the bars of the sitting-room grate, and by skilfully using the clumsy iron points on a nicely sandpapered board, burnt in some good effects. Now, however, all that clumsy method has been done away with, and next to the use of water colors, there is no nicer, neater or more tempting occupation for ambitious hands than pyrography.

A little box holding $5 worth of tools, contains a blotter of benzoline, an alcohol lamp, a rubber tube and blower, with a plantinum point, and for twenty-five cents more a panel of white wood can be bought all ready for experiment. The paraphernalia will occupy just a corner, or a little table by way of a workshop, and the process is as clean as knitting or embroidery. It is also nearly as easy, for though Ruskin says every person who knows how to read and write can and should learn how to draw, draftsmanship is not at all necessary to do very charming things in pyrography.

If any woman has visions of hand-made Christmas gifts already turning in her brain, she can easily gratify her generous impulses by making a number of articles with her $5 pyrographic outfit, that any one would be glad to have. Just to get her hand in and have the management of her tools, a board for chess or drafts is the nicest piece of experimental work. There is scarcely an art supply shop that does not keep on hand the requisite wooden boards for this, and also the exact pattern for the squares, that can be laid down and traced on the wood, after which the beginner needs only to go over the line with her red-hot platinum point. There is no difficulty on that head, for all one has to learn is to keep the left hand regularly pressing the rubber bulb at one end of the tube that pumps evaporating benzoin gas out of the bottle and into the other end of the tube, where the right hand guides the heated pencil over the wooden surface.

After the first bit of work has been nicely finished, any transferred pattern can be burnt out on wood, provided taste and care is exerted, and a wood panel really well-burned is an ornament to take rank with first-rate etching. Now, the woods to use are oak, elm, ash, holly, tulip, cedar, chestnut and teak, and the leading virtue to practise in this as well as in any other fancy work is to choose wisely as to the object to be made.

One clever and ambitious woman wainscoted the wall and paneled the doors of her bath room with handsome pyrographic designs; desk letter boxes, medicine cases, silver chests, tops for folding tea tables and library boxes, meant to hold packs of cards, sets of chess men, etc., are the newest and nicest gifts in pyrography on wood.

It is in leather that the most novel work is done. A hide can be bought all dressed and dyed, then cutand decorated after being mounted like a painter's canvas on a wooden frame. Tall screens and folding photograph frames, center pieces for library reading tables, complete desk outfits, jewel cases of fragrant russet leather and coverings for tabourets and window seats, when done out of leather that is rich red, brown or green and engraved with a platinum point, will beautify a house for generations. Perhaps the most interesting effect yet achieved was shown in a frieze recently finished by the owner of a beautiful oak panel library. Her frieze was made of brown leather, engraved in huge dragons, rampant about elaborate coats of arms. Here and there guided by infinite taste were touches of gilt, with a result little short in beauty of the best cordovan hangings. The frieze has given the keynote for all the decoration of the leather tufted library chairs and lounges, and this admirable work has all been done in one woman's leisure hours in the corner of her sitting-room.

Buttons.

The button cards this season look as if they were a jeweler's display, so brilliant, artistic, and rich are they. Rhinestones of great brilliancy are used lavishly, not only as a setting, but incrusted in brilliant enamel in bands, crosses, and geometrical designs; and these miniatures of dainty Watteau-like enamels handsome enough to use as brooches. Jeweled effects abound, and turquoise and pearls of every hue are lavishly used.

The Pelee Island Gas and Oil Company Strike a Good Oil Well.

Chatham felt Wednesday's earthquake.

Huron's House of Refuge, including extras, will cost about $11,000.

Mr. Dyer, of con. 13, Hulletts, has sold his farm of 80 acres to his son, for the sum of $4,500.

Tilsonburg farmers say that the wheat plant is not nearly so strong as it should be, owing to the continued dry weather.

The Government has caused a flutter among the permanent customs officers at Windsor by requiring them to double their bonds.

The Pelee Gas and Oil Company have struck oil on the estate of Dr. Scudder, on the island. Crude petroleum has been drawn at a depth of 734 feet.

The death is announced of Mrs. Jane Morris, wife of Mr. Thomas Morris, who resides north of Tyrconnel. She had reached the age of 80 years.

The Government has decided to place at the disposal of the municipality of Dunnville, land in the rear of the customs house for the purpose of extending the market grounds.

At Brigden Tom Hayne had the ends of his fingers of one hand crushed in the chopper at his father's flour mill. He narrowly escaped having his arm drawn into the rolls.

For the month of October there were 28 patients admitted to the general hospital at Chatham; 22 discharged, 22 remaining. Fourteen are typhoid fever cases, three only being from the city.

The will of the late Rev. R. J. Laidlaw, D.D., Hamilton, has been entered for probate. The estate is valued at $13,000, which is bequeathed to his children—one daughter and three sons.

Robert Laurie, the popular station agent at Hepworth, formerly of Clinton, was united in marriage at the latter place on Wednesday to Miss Lottie Twiss, a deservedly esteemed young lady of Clinton.

Frank J. Haynes, ex-mayor of Port Huron, came over to this side of the river to get Canadian ducks. Game Warden Sarvis caught him in the act of bagging a couple of fine ones, and he paid a fine of $7 50.

A bylaw to take the sense of the Chatham electorate on the future management of the waterworks resulted in approval of the commissioner system. Commissioners will therefore be chosen at the next municipal elections.

The Waterloo Board of Trade will recommend a bonus of $30,000 to the International Radial Railway Company, which promises to build trolley lines out from Hamilton in a number of directions.

Mr. W. H. Dearing, Exeter, says he harvested no less than 17 loads, or over 500 bushels of turnips, grown from a quarter of a pound of seed. The seed was sown among mangolds, and many of the turnips weighed from 12 to 15 pounds each.

The farm lands of the late Walter Gardiner, lot 9, and the west half of lot 10, in the township of Hibbert, were sold at auction on Wednesday to Mr. R. H. Collins for the sum of $6,040; and by request were again put up and sold to Mr. W. Ward, of Fullarton, for $6,340.

The electric railway projectors have made a survey of Chatham, and pronounced the prospects good. They will invest $150,000 in the enterprise, and will want other stock subscribed as the needs of the several extensions may demand. They will build a loop line in the city, and give a six-minute service.

A serious accident happened to a brakeman on the T., H. and B. Railway, named A. D. McDougall, on Wednesday at Brantford, while shunting cars. Dr. Frank, the physician of the T., H. and B. Company, found his collar bone was broken, and that he had received internal injuries. McDougall was taken to his home at Hamilton.

Mr. Hurlburt, who went to Melancthon Station a few days ago from Mitchell, to measure lumber, was standing on a pile of lumber in Mr. Sloan's mill yard during the high wind storm and a board flew up and struck him on the face, knocking him to the ground. He is still living, but very slight hopes are entertained of his recovery.

The case of Farr vs. Dr. Nichol, of Cookstown, for alleged malpractice in bandaging too tightly a broken arm of Farr's 6-year-old child, making amputation of the forearm necessary, was settled at the Barrie assizes, defendant paying $1,000 and all expenses, which made a total of about $2,200. Farr accepted the offer, and the case was dropped.

In speaking of the toll road question at the West Zorra Farmers' Institute, Mr. J. B. McKay, owner of the road, said if the municipality would pay him $150 a mile, cast, and allow him the statute labor on the road to help keep it up for the next five years and the privilege of collecting toll he would at the end of that time hand the road over to the municipality.

FAREWELL TO MISSIONARIES.

Toronto, Nov. 1.—A crowded public meeting was held last evening at Wycliffe College to the missionaries who are about to leave for their fields of labor under the auspices of this college. Those going as missionaries are Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Robinson, Miss Margaret, Mr. Iaiki, of the native staff of Japan; Rev. and Mrs. J. R. S. Boyd and Miss H. Garnett, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd and Miss Garnett are bound for Ku Cheng, in China, and will take the place of the missionaries recently murdered there. The rest go to Japan. A large collection was taken up during the evening.

HAD A WIFE ALREADY.

A Well-Known Woodstock Lady Deceived by a Stranger.

She Married Him and Found He Had a Wife and Children Living—Wants the Ceremony Voided.

Woodstock, Nov. 1.—Early in the summer, a short, thick-set gentleman of florid countenance, who said his name was Irwin, appeared in town, and announced himself as a traveling agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York. For some time he boarded at the Hotel Oxford, and, as he seemed to have plenty of money and was, withal, good company, he made many friends.

Occasionally he attended the Central Methodist Church, and there he was captivated by the good looks of the organist, Miss Margaret Thomas. He soon secured an introduction. Miss Thomas seemed to fall right away head and ears in love with the gentleman, and they were frequently seen walking and driving together. Thus it was that nothing unusual was suspected when on Oct. 15 Irwin hired a team from Hayward's livery, and drove out of town with his lady love. The same night the rumor went around that the pair had eloped to Ingersoll to be married.

It seems that shortly after the departure of Irwin with her daughter, Mrs. Thomas got wind of their intentions, and summoning her son Charley, they immediately engaged a rig and drove out to Ingersoll post haste. Arriving there they learned that Rev. Mr. Murphy, of St. James' Church, had just made the pair man and wife. Mrs. Thomas at once proceeded to the hotel and found Miss Maggie alone in the parlor, weeping bitterly. When the girl saw her mother she at once expressed her willingness to return home, and mother, son and daughter immediately drove to Woodstock, reaching there before dark.

Irwin, it appears, was in the bar of the hotel drinking his bride's health with a friend when materfamilias arrived, and heard nothing of his young wife's departure until some two hours after he searched and could not find her. When the hotel clerk told him that the girl had gone home, it is said Irwin's face was a picture of misery. He had been partaking too freely of whisky, and his appearance was pitiable.

The following day he returned to Woodstock to claim his bride, but Mrs. Thomas, before delivering up her daughter, insisted upon an investigation of the previous career of the man who wished to be admitted as her son-in-law, and in her efforts she was assisted by several prominent citizens.

After a few days information was definitely obtained that Irwin, by the laws of New York State, was a married man with a family, that he had lived for eight years with a woman in New York, and that his real name is William Henry Pye.

Irwin continued to live in Woodstock until Monday last, when, on receiving a telegram that his first wife was dying, he left for Toronto. Since the trouble first arose Irwin has been the worse of liquor almost all the time.

Yesterday McKay & Bicknell, solicitors, acting for Miss Margaret Thomas, issued a writ in the Common Pleas Division of the High Court of Justice, asking that the marriage ceremony between their client and Irwin be made null and void, and to have the certificate and record of the marriage delivered up and cancelled.

Much sympathy is extended to Miss Thomas. She was one of the best liked young ladies in town. She has, it is understood, applied for an appointment as nurse in the Detroit hospital.

WOMAN'S FORTUNE.

PRETTY FACES RULE THE UNIVERSE.

There's No Beauty Without Freshness and Pureness of Complexion.

Good complexions, handsome eyes, and graceful carriage in women have caused monarchs to forget to rule, and millionaire to cease the worship of gold.

Our literature is filled with advertisements of complexion beautifiers, cosmetics, etc., but beauty is not skin deep. Nearly all women's ills are directly the result of irregularities of the bowels. To avoid these irregularities means to preserve that freshness and beauty of complexion which women crave more than anything else in the world. It means youth and beauty. It means freedom from dizziness, headache and biliousness.

Irregularities of the bowels and the many afflictions arising therefrom, and in fact over seventy-five per cent. of all the ills women are subject to, are derived directly or indirectly from constipation, and the researches of many eminent doctors go to prove the above statement to be true.

Karl's Clover Root Tea, put up by its American proprietors after one of the most scientific formulae ever produced by medical research and skill, comprises not only herbs, which will positively cure constipation and all irregularities of the bowels, but ingredients, which will at the same time act as a tonic to the system, a panacea to the complexion and a boon to those afflicted with headache, dizziness, languor, melancholia, etc.

This remedy can be procured at W. T. Strong's, and we have placed sample packages here also, which will be given to all those who would like to try it before buying.

Regular sizes, 25 and 50 cents. Don't take any other, but be sure you have Karl's Clover Root Tea.
