Dead Journalism.

It is very amusing to sit quietly at a telescope and see Edward Farrer surreptitiously writing editorials for The New York Tribune, in which he quotes from his articles in The Globe; and then to see this remarkable man turn about and write editorials for The Globe, in which he quotes from his articles in The New York Tribune. E. Farrer as a New York journalist places no mean estimate on the keen insight and sound judgment of E. Farrer as a Canadian journalist. And as a Toronto journalist he warmly reciprocates the feeling of friendly admiration with which he views himself from New York. Altogether a most promising friendship, begun in a formal interchange of courtesies, has sprung up between Mr. Farrer and himself. It is a friendship, sincere and permanent, not built upon superficialties, but on the mutual merits, excellencies and irresistible abilities of his dual self.

In his last article in the New York paper he said that it was doubtful if, after the investigations now going on at Ottawa, Mr. Harrison and Mr. Blaine would care to meet the Canadian Ministers in October.

"The ability of the man as [illegible] is possibly surpassed by the vigor [illegible] which he can grasp a good point when he sees it. The Tribune arrived and he noticed the above. He saw it was an important utterance and in The Globe of yesterday commented on it:

The Tribune's view seems to be that if they condone these gigantic frauds by retaining their tainted colleague, Mr. Abbott and the rest can hardly be regarded as the true representatives of the Canadian people, except upon the hypothesis that Canadians are a nation of rogues with whom it would be unsafe to make a treaty of any sort. This is a harsh judgment, but is it not a just one?

The man who propounds that query could hardly be expected to declare his own judgment unjust. Is it not interesting to watch this unusual performance! And there is instruction in it, too, for we are acquainted with the strange devices to which resort will be had in order to trip up a settlement of the trade difficulties in October or any other month of Tory ascendancy.

Imagine men like Abbott, Thompson and Foster being refused an audience by the American authorities because of civil service rascalities at Ottawa! Think of Blaine, as a purist, refusing to enter a room to talk trade with pilgrims who come from a morally infected district—think of him with hands aloft on the very scene of his own manoeuvres and knee-deep in the debris of a thousand plots, reproving the comparatively innocent and child-like practices of a few ordinary rascals in a foreign capital. Canada can neither look across the lines for a good pattern of political morality nor for reproof however honesty may be outraged by dark workers at Ottawa. It is amusing, this talk of Harrison and Blaine mounting the high horse of political virtue.

The Moses of French Canada.

Count Mercier is the culminating product of all the mistakes made by England in treating with the French subjects on this continent. The language, religion and laws of the conquered people were preserved to them and with England's blessing they were told to maintain their separate existence. It was an error that will warp the history of this continent. When England by force of arms acquired the French possessions she should have made the conquered people in some measure conscious of the changed rule. Their religion should have remained undisturbed, but their language should have been systematically operated upon and moved into second place—their laws radically changed and made to rhyme with English law. It was a mistake to disperse their soldiers, change the flag and call this an abiding conquest. Troubles arose that have grown so grave with passing years that the neglected work of last century will require to be finished at unknown cost in the dawn of the next.

Mercier has done more than any one man ever did to solidify the sentiment of Quebec, and has misused no opportunity to make himself supreme in the preferences of the people. He has approached them masterfully through their creed and their greed, and therefore his success has been nothing short of brilliant. He has ruled Quebec like a prince, exalting his favorites and humiliating those distasteful to him, and now having pranced across Europe from Paris to Rome he returns placarded from head to foot with royal decorations and papal favors to be welcomed as a monarch. And they say those he wears on his person are as nothing to those he brought in his trunk to apply towards the reptile fund. He is playing a high game, and utilizing every advantage of French language, religion and laws towards his definate object—severance from England. History shall know him as the Moses of his race, the Washington of his day. Imperial Federation is impossible with Mercier at large in Quebec, and whether we believe in such a federation or not we must deplore that such a cause can of itself forbid it. In this England may find traces of a retributive justice for mismanagement in the last century. The Quebec Premier believes in Canadian independence and in the meantime a ten million dollar grant from the Dominion treasury. He also believes in himself and is confident he will secure what he asks. The financing of his administration is not like that of one which intends to pay its own debts, and it may soon appear that he has evolved some new scheme through contact with wily minds across the ocean.

Put on Sunday Cars.

The attempt to herd the people of this city into Heaven pell-mell by means of blue laws is ill-advised and destined to fail. The longer the repression is exerted the more violent will be the reaction that all experience tells us is inevitable. If the cars were run on Sunday at regular intervals the working people could escape the town and accept a pleasant alternative to the parks with their ranters or riots. It is all very well for ministers who go away for two months or weeks' holidays in the course of the year and whose labor is not in unhealthy shops—merchants, lawyers and well-to-do people generally, who take their holidays every year and a day out whenever the fancy strikes them—it is all very well for people of this class to say that a solemn Sabbath spent indoors is no hardship. But it is a different matter to thousands of others. There are numberless people in this city who have not had one holiday for years, who work from Monday morning to Saturday night year in and out at labor of the hardest kind. Sunday is the brightness of lives that to an observer look bleak enough. Their hammers cease, their saws are silent, the huge levers and beams among which they toil hang idle on the Sabbath and the men are forced by law to hang idle as the tools of their trade. For they cannot walk with their families to remote parks, or to pleasant spots outside the city, or to friends houses at Parkdale or Leslieville. Sunday brings for these men release from toil, but they are hemmed in with laws lest they should do more than rest as a tired horse rests.

The good people who enjoy holidays and do not engage in an endless round of toil should give a thought to less fortunate brethren and ask themselves if in preserving things as they now are, they are just to others.

In reporting the disturbance in the Queen's Park The World, as usual, led them all. The other papers come whining in behind and try to belittle the nature of the fracas. That is one way of atoning for sleepy journalism.

THE NINE HOUR DAY.

The Master Printers of America are Opposed to It.

At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the United Typothetæ of America, held at Cincinnati, united opposition to the proposed nine-hour rule was earnestly advised:

"Because it will be unequal and unjust in its operation. Under no circumstances could the new rule be made operative in more than one-tenth of our printing offices. When nine-tenths of the offices are working ten hours and one-tenth of them nine hours a general or uniform advanced rate is impossible. It is not, as is claimed by the advocates of nine hours, a loss of one-tenth of our profit; it is a loss of all the profit. The average profit of printing, at present rates and present cost, is decidedly less than 10 per cent. of the receipts. The office that works ten hours and produces $1000 within a given time under the new rule will produce in that time but $900. If it costs as much to produce $900 worth of work as it has cost heretofore to produce $1000 then there can be no profit. The work will be done at cost or at loss.

"A proposed shortening of the hours of labor cannot be fairly done unless it is the joint work of employers and employed. In this, as in other matters, the old rule holds good; It takes two parties to make a bargain."

As a matter of fact the nine-hour movement has been in force in the printing offices of Toronto for some years, and it has been found to work all right for both employers and men.

THE CROP OUTLOOK.

Threshing Has Begun and Reveals a Larger Yield Than Expected.

Harvesting in Ontario, particularly in the western parts of the province, is well under way and the threshing has revealed the fact that the yield will be even larger than anticipated a few weeks ago. Fall wheat promises to yield on an average 10 to 15 bushels per acre more than last year. Peas, barley, oats, and in fact all cereals promise a magnificent return. So far spring wheat promises well.

In the eastern part of the province rains have been somewhat excessive and it is feared that barley may be damaged in color. In the west no such complaints are heard, the color being excellent.

In Manitoba and the Northwest the crops are from a week to 10 days late owing to the backward nature of the weather. The grain, however, so far looks excellent, and it is to be hoped that when it is ripe for the sickle there will be plenty of help to insure its being speedily garnered. A well-known local dealer thus delivered himself to The World in respect to this matter: "It strikes me that if the Canadian Pacific people would look after their own interests they would try to put some of their navvies and other help into the harvest fields in order to facilitate matters and consequently minimize the danger of the crops being caught by frost."

Messrs. Crane & Baird, the well-known local grain merchants have been in communication during the past few days with a number of correspondents in different parts of the province in reference to the crop outlook. The replies with one exception only were of a gratifying nature. These The World was permitted to peruse and here are excerpts from a few of them:

In Elgin County farmers are busy harvesting and the crop of wheat is the largest and the best sample ever raised in the county. One-third is already in the barns. Weather favorable.

In Oxford the outlook was never better, there being a large yield of good plump wheat.

By all appearances the crop in the county of Grey will be magnificent. Fall wheat will be heavy and plump and the crop of peas large.

A correspondent writes from Fergus that all kinds of grain promise a large yield in Wellington county.

In Middlesex the democrat and Manchester varieties are the principal kinds of grain grown, but this year the farmers are experimenting with red clawson and golden cross and the venture promises to be rewarded with a good yield. Wheat in that section has not yet been threshed but there is every appearance of a yield of about 30 bushels to the acre.

From South Grey comes the information that the harvest is just beginning, and that if favorable weather continues the yield of wheat, both as to quality and quantity, will be the best for the past ten years. Peas promise well and oats fair.

Reports from Fenelon Falls, Victoria county, are not so favorable. There will be an average crop of peas, and spring wheat promises well. Fall wheat, however, will be about 50 per cent. below the average, and barley and oats are not expected to do any better.

Several of the correspondents also sent ocular demonstrations of the bountiful character of the crops in the shape of bouquets of wheat, peas, barley, oats, etc., the product of their several districts. Some of these are on view in the window of The World's King-street office.

EVENTS ON WAVE, CREASE, TRACK AND FIELD.

Yachts Return From the Circuit Races—Molehills Magnified Into Mountains—A Strong English Amateur Cricket Team to Visit America—Racing at Many Centres—Trotting To-Day at Woodbine.

All the Toronto yachts have safely arrived at their moorings after their circuit races of the Lake Yacht Racing Association. Quite a fleet arrived in the harbor yesterday morning.

The returned sailors were generally surprised when their friends questioned them concerning incidents at Charlotte and Oswego that had been abnormally magnified by the correspondents of some local papers—events considered very trivial by the yachtsmen, and in which there was certainly nothing extraordinary.

A Toronto tar arrived late at the Oswego ball and wasn't introduced as generally as the early arrivals. This was wired as a uniform insult to Canadian yachtsmen.

A practical joker attached a bucket to a boat at Rochester. This was construed as the work of someone on a rival yacht. Some of the craft did not start after this joke and a connection between the two occurrences was made by a correspondent, declaring that grave disruptions in a certain club would follow, but it will eventuate that everything will continue in harmony as of yore.

ENGLISH CRICKETERS COMING.

Prominent English Amateurs to Visit America This Fall.

PHILADELPHIA, July 27.—A cablegram was received here yesterday by the International Match Committee from C. W. Allcock, secretary of the Surrey Cricket Club, London, stating that a team of prominent English amateurs would certainly visit America this fall.

It was intended to try and induce Lord Sheffield to bring his team to this country, but owing to His Lordship's limited time he was compelled to decline the invitation. As it is the team will be composed of the best English amateurs, and will play in this city, New York, Boston, Baltimore, Toronto, Pittsburg and Chicago. It is intended to make the tour last about ten weeks.

This Was Rosedale's Third Defeat on Saturday.

Rosedale sent an eleven out to the Exhibition Lawn on Saturday afternoon last and the men west of the Subway succeeded in defeating the visitors by 15 runs. For Parkdale Hall and Scott were the only ones to obtain double figures. Eyer with the ball was very destructive, his average reading 4 wickets for 13 runs. Oxley bowled well for Rosedale, taking 7 wickets for 24 runs. Morrison with 12 runs was the only double score for the visitors. The score:

Married Men Victorious.

The married and single men of Norway Cricket Club played a match at the Victoria Park on Saturday, July 25. As the game was decided on the first inning, the married men captured a second victory, with 8 runs in their favor. The batting on both sides was small, but that of Boyd and Burns being very good. The bowling of A. Over and J. Fogg, sr., was also very effective. The day being fine a large crowd of spectators witnessed the game. After the game a very enjoyable time was spent at Mr. Burns', where supper awaited them. Score:

This trip will be a very enjoyable one as the train connections are very satisfactory. The team should do well, judging by the record of the club this year.

THE SILENT STEED.

Toronto Bicyclists Accept the Challenge of the Wanderers for a Road Race.

The challenge issued by the Wanderers' Bicycle Club for a 50 mile team road race, similar to those held in 1887 and 1890, has been accepted and time and date named for 2.30 p.m. Saturday next, Aug. 1. The proposed T.B.C. team is: Nasmith, McClelland, Bailey, Hurndall, W. Robins, Whatmough, Begg, J. Miln, Palin and W. Hyslop.

The coming race meet to be held on Civic Holiday promises to be the most interesting of the season, judging by the large number of entries already received. The prizes, which are the most valuable yet offered at any bicycling event, are on exhibition in McConkey's window.

The T.B.C. Committee, which has in hand the lantern parade on Saturday evening, Aug. 8, wishes all members to put this notice in their hat and make an effort to attend. Lanterns can be obtained at club house Thursday and Friday evenings previous. On account of the difficulty experienced last year on block-paved streets, it has been decided to keep to the asphalt.

NIAGARA CENTRAL RAILWAY.

Toronto Board of Trade Favors Governmental Aid to Bring It Into the City.

The council of the Board of Trade met yesterday afternoon, President John L. Davidson in the chair. Messrs. Harry F. Wyatt, Marshal D. Barr and William Dineen were elected members.

Dr. Ogle and Mr. Sylvester Neelon addressed the meeting with respect to the St. Catharines and Niagara Central Railway. They pointed out the benefits that would accrue to Toronto through the entry of such a road into the city, and asked for the support of the council in securing the desired Governmental aid. The meeting acquiesced and passed a resolution, recognizing the importance of the project as a factor in the development of Toronto, and calling upon the Government to aid to the same extent as it had other railways, namely $3200 per mile.

It was decided to call a special general meeting of the board Tuesday, Aug. 18, at 8 p.m., when an address will be delivered by Colonel Howard Vincent on the question of British trade relations. An invitation to attend will be extended to the members of the United Empire Trade League.

WILL SIR HECTOR STEP DOWN?

The Government Organ at the Capital Publishes a Significant Article.

OTTAWA, July 27.—The Citizen, in an editorial to-day, foreshadows the retirement of Sir Hector Langevin. It adds: "We doubt not Mr. Abbott will deal with all the details and ramifications of these much to be deplored circumstances in a judicial and judicious spirit. Despite the ungenerous strictures of our Montreal contemporary he possesses the confidence of Parliament and, we think, the confidence of the country at large and has as one of his admirers a Minister of Justice whose record is above suspicion. The Premier has a duty to perform and will doubtless fully vindicate the trust of his supporters irrespective of personal consequences.

"In a time of excitement men too frequently punish the just for the unjust; too readily determine on a policy, and afterwards find their actions impelled by false conclusions and erroneous impressions. One thing must not be forgotten—that public clamor is being cultivated, is being forced, is being manufactured by a hostile party anxious to reach the treasury benches; that a false step now might be deplored by all classes throughout the country in days to come—as during another historic period in the political affairs of the Dominion. Thinking men, then, will keeps their heads; go slow, and act as judges, rather than blind partisans. The hope of Canada is in the policy of the Conservative party; he who permits the enemy to secure a snap verdict would assist in countenancing a national blunder."

The Grand Trunk System.

The Grand Trunk system differs from the human system in that the same remedies do not affect it and the same remedies are not needed. For all diseases of the human system there is no tonic, purifier, renovator and strengthener as good as Burdock Blood Bitters. A weak system can be built up by B.B.B.
