WEEKLY REVIEW.

Grain receipts were light every day this week. Values show very few changes since last week. The general tone of the market was steady, the only exception being oats, which showed weakness outside, but did not change any here. The bulk of receipts were oats, wheat, corn and barley—only a little of the latter.

Clover seed is quiet, only an odd lot coming in; price about steady for clean lots; impure lots are hard to sell.

Alsike is firm and scarce.

Timothy is scarce, at $2 50 to $3 50.

Hay scarce and stronger at the close; $9 50 to $9 50 was the ruling price.

SOUTH PERTH PROHIBITIONISTS.

A convention of prohibitionists of South Perth was held in Mitchell on Tuesday. All the municipailties were represented, except South Easthope. The president of the county alliance, Rev. J. Kenner, said nothing was to be expected from either of the two party candidates now in the field. A committee brought in a resolution favoring the selection of a candidate as the only alternative. The discussion was lively and general, but on a division the resolution passed 34 to 10. A committee was then appointed to find a candidate and report at a later gathering. The committee was instructed to first interview the present candidates, to see how far they might be induced to meet the views of prohibitionists before a third candidate was nominated.

DEAL FOR CANADA ATLANTIC RAILWAY

Its Transfer to Vanderbilt Interests Not Yet Completed—Route of the Canadian Northern.

William Newman, one of the promoters of the Windsor, Essex and Lake Shore Railway, advised the Windsor council that a franchise on the terms proposed by the special railway committee would not be accepted. The committee was instructed to take up the matter again with the railway people, and a conference will be held on Thursday evening.

Asked by wire from Victoria as to the route the Canadian Northern would take through British Columbia to the coast, D. D. Mann wired as follows: "We asked for two parallel lines across the territories—one from Swan River to Yellow Head Pass, the other from Grand View to Edmonton, connecting with the Edmonton, Yukon and Pacific. The latter was granted. The former we voluntarily withdrew. It does not affect the projected line to Bute Inlet in any way."

"I shall be in Ottawa again in about a week or ten days, and I hope then to be able to tell you the position in which the purchase of the Canadian Atlantic stands." This was all that Dr. Steward Webb had to say to the newspaper men Tuesday after he had had an interview with J. R. Booth and E. J. Chamberlain at the head office of the Canada Atlantic. After the interview Dr. Webb and party went to the Canada Atlantic car shops, and then started for his home in Shelburne, Vermont. It is learned that while the deal has gone further than any other effort to purchase the Canada Atlantic, it is not a fully completed purchase, and that a large sum of money must be paid over to the Canada Atlantic within a short time, and that is said to be the reason for Dr. Webb's visit.

GIRLS ASPHYXIATED AT HOTEL IN ST. MARYS

One Is Dead, But the Other Is Likely to Recover.

St. Marys, Ont., April 16. — Emma Langford and B. O'Connell, two of the Office Hotel servant girls, were asphyxiated by coal gas in their rooms during last night or early this morning. The stovepipe passing through the room came apart, with the result mentioned.

Miss Langford was dead when found, but Miss O'Connell is likely to recover.

SHOOTING AFFAIR AT CHATHAM.

Chatham, April 15.—An effort was made to shoot Humane Officer McGregor as he was going home at an early hour Monday morning. As he passed the lumber yard of John Piggott & Sons, which adjoins their mill, a colored man fired at him from the cover of the lumber yard. The man and two companions then made off and escaped. The shooting is believed to be the result of prosecutions made by the humane officer for cruelty to animals.

CUT IN GRAIN AND FLOUR.

Toronto, April 16.—Toronto grain men are anything but pleased with the new British tax on grain. Cables announce a cut of 3⅝ per bushel on grain on passage and not sold. The usual custom is sell c. i. f., and on all grain so sold the buyer will have to pay the tax, while on the remainder the sellers expect to be forced to make good the duty. Flour exporters are more disturbed than the grain men, as the new British tariff gives a direct preference to the British miller in addition to the duty on grain. As figured by local flour men, the new duty means 20 cents per barrel on Canadian flour, while the duty on the wheat to make a barrel of flour would amount to about 16 cents, giving a preference of 4 cents per barrel to the British miller.

CANADIAN ASPHYXIATED IN DETROIT.

Detroit, Mich., April 15.—Asphyxiated by gas from a defective jet, a man supposed to be T. W. Findlay was found dead at noon yesterday in a room of the house kept by Ross Dyer, 92 Columbia street. Findlay came here Saturday night from Canada, saying he would remain about two weeks. He didn't give his name. Saturday night he went to the Empire Theater, and last night to the Lyceum, returning at midnight. At noon today Mrs. Dyer became alarmed because he had not left his room, and had her husband break in the door. Findlay's body was cold when found. From letters in his pockets Coroner Forth decided that the man was T. W. Findlay, a traveling agent for his brother, John Findlay, a wine dealer at Pelee Island, Ont. The dead man appeared to be about 35 years old. In his possession were found $75 and a heavy gold watch. Coroner Forth decided to hold no inquest, saying that death was plainly accidental.

HEALTH INSPECTORS MUST BE MUSICIANS

Melody Plays Important Part in Examination for Position.

"The city health officer here enjoys a sinecure compared to those who fill the same positions in a part of New York State, where I have been visiting for some time," said a Londoner to an Advertiser man today. "Over there an ordinance has been passed relating to the quality of bells peddlers may ring on their rounds, and candidates for positions as health inspectors will have to answer, in their examinations as to qualifications, questions on their knowledge of the Gregorian chant, on the recitative, on the difference between an aria and the whirl of an electric car, on notes and tones and the mezzo as distinguished from the falsetto, and especially on the difference between a cow bell and any other kind of bell.

"The new ordinance gives to peddlers the right to use three bells, each no larger than two inches in length, and these they may ring between the hours of 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. It is expressly stipulated that cow bells are prohibited, that only cast brass bells may be used, and it is prescribed that of these there can be rung only such as give out a melodious and harmonious sound.

"It will not be posssible for a man without music in his soul to be a health inspector in that place. 'Is that a melodious sound?' the examiner will ask of the musically unsound candidate, ringing a cracked bell before him. 'Yes,' replies the candidate, and then two strong men will throw him out of a window.

"It has been suggested that young men who are studying harmony and counterpoint, the violin and the piano, and who wish to make their expenses, apply to the authorities for positions as expert health inspectors. Naturally the examiner must be a high-class and all around musician, and the city will probably have to employ one of the Damroschs for that place or import a master from one of the musical centers of Europe."

The Engine Driver's Duty.

"An engineer on duty has no right to administer a well-merited rebuke to foolhardy boys who happen to be standing dangerously close to the train." This reasoning is approved by the Supreme Court of Missouri in the action of Livingston vs. the Wabash Railroad. The reason for the drastic rule is that harm might occur if an engineer, even for an instant, suffered his eyes to be diverted from straight ahead.

In this case, Myrtle Livingston, a 3-and-a-half-year-old girl, was run over and killed by a north-bound train at defendant's station here, on March 28, 1896. As Engineer Wm. Ross, one of the oldest and best on the road, was pulling his train into the yards, he was compelled to sound the danger whistle to warn some young men from the track. The noise frightened the girl, who ran diagonally across the platform and jumped on the rails a few feet ahead of the train. As the engineer approached, the boys held to their dangerous position and he was compelled to put his air in an "emergency." The speed was checked from twenty to six miles an hour. The young men left the rails just as the locomotive reached them, and as the engineer passed, he turned his head toward them and said: "It's a wonder you fellows wouldn't get off the track!" At almost the same instant the little girl jumped on the track and her head was severed from the body.

The engineer never saw her at any time, but when told of the accident, got down and removed the little corpse from the rails and carried it over to the mother. The jury were instructed that if at the time he discovered the girl on the track, or could have discovered her on the track, the engineer could not have stopped the train, they must find for the defendant. The jury so found, and plaintiff, the girl's father appealed.

The supreme court, in reversing the case, said it was a question for the jury to decide whether the engineer could not have stopped his train if, instead of yielding to the impulse to rebuke the boys on the track, he had kept his eyes ahead and seen the little girl before she entered the track.

It is held that no provocative words or actions are sufficient to justify an engineer in for an instant neglecting his original duty to look ahead while in motion, although the court admits that human nature was most sorely tried by the youngsters, whose thoughtless action may have been responsible for the child's death.—St. Louis Republican.
