FORTY PERSONS KILLED.

TERRIBLE STEAMBOAT DISASTER ON THE MISSISSIPPI.

The Corona Bursts a Boiler—Men, Women and Children Blown into Eternity—Lists of the Dead and Injured—Stories of the Survivors—An Ocean Steamship Collision Reported.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 3.—The steamer Corona of the Ouachita Consolidated Line left here at 7.30 last evening for the Ouachita River with a full cargo of freight and a good list of passengers. She exploded her boilers at False River, nearly opposite Port Hudson, at 11.45 this morning, causing the loss of the steamer and about 40 lives.

The Anchor Line steamer City of St. Louis, Captain James O'Neil, was near by and her crew and boats saved many lives. The surviving passengers and crew were taken on board by Capt. O'Neil and kindly cared for.

The following are the names of the lost as far as known:

J. W. BANKS, captain.
J. V. JORDAN, first clerk.
CHARLES C. F. ELLIS, second clerk.
SWIMP HANNA, third clerk.
FRED DINCKLE, barkeeper.
FRED VERMAN, barkeeper.
PAT RYAN, steward.
DICK CURTIS, fireman.
TOM SHOOK, engineer.
HENRY DOYLE, porter.
JAMES SWIPES, porter.
M. TATE, barber.
HENRY DAVIS, deck hand.
TOM COOK, sailor.
BILLY YOUNG, second mate.
SAM STEEL, Texas, boy.
BOTH CAPTAINS OF THE DECK WATCH.
EIGHT ROUSTERS.
DR. ATWELL, corn doctor.
FOUR NEGRO MUSICIANS.
MR. SCOTT, Smithland, Pa.
MR. DAVIS, stockman, Texas.
MR. KOENICH.
MRS. HUFF of Opelousas.
MRS. KAUFFMAN, NURSE AND ELDERLY CHILD.
MRS. TOM HOUGH of Opelousas, sister of Captain Blanks.
MR. WILSON of Red River Landing.
FIFTEEN ROUSTERS, names unknown.

The Wounded.

The following were wounded:

Captain B. C. CORNWALL, slightly.
B. AUGHMAN, residing on Black River, hurt in side, not dangerous.
Mr. COMSTOCK, Donaldsonville, slightly.
J. J. MORRIDITT, Columbia, La., slightly.
WAYNE, a little son of Henry Black's, slightly hurt about face.
CHARLES A. PEARCE of New Orleans, scalded.
Pilot ROLLINGS, badly scalded on the hands.
Captain T. W. SWEENEY, slightly hurt by flying timbers.
Mrs. F. W. ROBERTSON, slightly hurt.

None of the wounded are expected to die.

About 20 of the crew and about 15 passengers were saved.

The Corona was on her first trip of the season and had but recently come out of the dry dock, where she received repairs amounting to nearly $12,000. She was built at Wheeling, W. Va., several years ago, and had a carrying capacity of 2700 bales of cotton. She was valued at $20,000.

Stories of the Survivors.

Mrs. Robertson says when the Corona arrived opposite False River landing about sixteen miles below Bay of Sara one of the boilers exploded tearing the boat to pieces, when it sank in deep water in a few seconds. Mrs. Robertson was wedged in the ladies' cabin with some debris lying across her lower limbs, but was suddenly released and found herself floating in the water. She sank twice but was picked up and escaped with only a few painful bruises on her limbs.

L. C. Rollings, pilot of the Corona, was asleep at the time of the explosion. He does not know the explosion occurred.

L. P. Mason, Secretary of State, stated that he was in the cabin of the Corona talking to Mrs. Robertson, at about 10 o'clock this morning, when the explosion occurred. He escaped with life preservers and assisted in saving Mrs. Robertson and another lady.

There was very little time for preparation for escape, as the boat went down like lead in a few seconds after the explosion. No one seems to be able to give any explanation as to the cause of the disaster.

Captain T. C. Sweeney, one of the owners of the line, who assumed command on the death of Captain Blanks, says the explosion was not due to too high pressure of steam. The boat had a moderate cargo. She was in mid-stream just below the landing at Arbrosh and had just whistled to pass the steamer City of St. Louis. The explosion blew out the bottom of the boat, the cabin was torn in two, the rear portion floating down the stream and bearing a number of the saved. Captain Sweeney happened to be forward and started at once to put out the flames which began to burn at several places. He says the boat would undoubtedly have burned had she not gone down immediately.

None of the books, papers or other valuables were saved.

The only dead body recovered was that of Fred Overman.

WHICH ONE?

Ex-Mayor Beaugrande Little Exuberant in His Welcome to the Nutmeg Militia.

MONTREAL, Oct. 3.—The Grand Trunk station was crowded this morning to witness the arrival of military visitors from Connecticut. The train was on time, and shortly after 10 o'clock the First Regiment Connecticut National Guards, numbering 488 men, with their band of 24 pieces and distinguished guests disembarked and were received by the Civic and Military Committees. Mayor Grenier, on behalf of the corporation, extended them a hearty welcome and the freedom of the city, to which Senator Hawley, on behalf of the visitors, replied, stating that though they came with all the accoutrements of war they were on a mission of good will, and expressed the hope that there never might be any serious trouble between the two countries. The men then formed in line and marched to the Victoria Rifles Armoury.

While the men went to the armory Governor Buckley, Senator Hawley and accompanying guests went to the Windsor, where ex-Mayor Beaugrand welcomed them on behalf of the French-Canadian citizens and expressed the hope that Canada and the United States might soon be one. In the afternoon ex-Mayor Beaugrand gave a reception to the officers. In the evening they were tendered a military entertainment in the drill hall.

A Bobcaygeon Blaze.

BOBCAYGEON, Oct. 3.—A fire originating from a defective chimney broke out at 10.30 last night in a frame building owned by James Montgomery and occupied by James Thompson as a general store and soon communicated to Montgomery's stone dwelling at the rear of the store and from that to the Rockland horse stables, which were badly scorched. Thompson's stock is a total loss, insured for $400 in the Queen's. The stables were insured in the Western.

THE NEW SCHOOL OF BIOLOGY.

The Best Equipped Institution on the Continent of America.

The new School of Biology in connection with Toronto University is now ready for occupation, and its laboratories and lecture halls will soon resound with student life. Eighteen months have elapsed since the clang of the mason's hammer was first heard on the imposing structure which now stands upon the site of the old Moss Hall. The old hall has not been entirely dismantled—part of it has been utilized, but in a form difficult of recognition. The new pile of masonry will assume still more massive proportions by and by when the university museum is added to it, for it is here that a home is intended for the interesting collections that form the property of the college.

The new building occupies an area of 9620 feet and has been erected at a cost of $45,000. To the right of the main entrance, which is chiefly intended for the use of the students in arts, is the private laboratory of Professor Ramsay Wright, the head of the biological department. This room will be devoted to microscopic work. Dividing this from the lecture hall is a small library containing the books of the department, available also for use as a collating place for general microscopic material.

The lecture room is large, well lighted and ventilated, and it will afford sitting accommodation for 250 students. The seats are arranged in tiers, like the auditorium of an amphitheatre; and the students in the back row can see with ease the operations of the lecturer at the table in front. There is another feature about the seats worth mentioning. There is a flap-table attached to each upon which a note book can be placed—an arrangement that greatly facilitates the students in note-taking.

The heating appliances are controlled by a thermostat, an instrument which not only registers the temperature, but the moment a certain degree of heat is reached closes up the radiators and opens the ventilating shafts. The machinery by which it works is situated on the basement floor below. Amongst the other equipments of the hall is a large plastered disc to be used for projecting. This is moveable on the wall, like the two sliding blackboards beside it, and is weighted and balanced on the basement floor. There is also an admirable arrangement for diagrams on gulding wires, fixed in such a way that the diagrams can be raised or lowered as the operator pleases. Adjoining the lecture hall is an experimenting room well furnished with tables set upon rollers that can be wheeled into any position required.

On the left side of the main entrance is the psychological library, which will be under the care of Dr. Macallum, physiological lecturer. Here there is a whole host of instruments of infinite variety. Adjoining this again is a laboratory for chemical physiology, for the use of fourth year students, and beyond this Dr. Macallum's private room is situated. The basement are large tanks connecting with the projecting apparatus in the lecture hall, store rooms, workshops, tanks for aquatic animals which cannot be obtained during the winter months—one of the tanks being for frogs—scullery and washing, and general furnace room. On the first floor above the lecture hall are laboratories for the third and fourth year arts students, and between them a room in which operations common to both classes may be carried on. There is also in close proximity to these a laboratory for vegetable physiology, a room for microscopic photography. The fittings of all these rooms are complete in every respect. The students are provided with microscopic boxes and desks. On this floor there is a large elementary laboratory furnished also in accordance with the latest ideas of modern requirements in this branch of science. On the second floor there are store and plant rooms, all fully equipped for the work, which will soon be commenced.

AT ST. MARY MAGDALENE.

A West End Thanksgiving Festival—What the Church of the Future is to be.

The new Church of St. Mary Magdalene, in Manning-avenue, celebrated its harvest festival last evening. Willing hands, under Mrs. Ambler's direction, have been engaged for days at the work of decoration, and the result of their labors was the theme of general admiration. The altar and choir stalls were garlanded with the fruits of the season and autumnal leaves and flowers. There was a large congregation, so large that the little building, which forms but a portion of the office as it is to be in the future, could hardly accommodate it. The evensong, which was full choral, was chanted to Gregorian music, and very effective the rendering was. The choir, assisted by members of the choir of St. Matthew's church, was under the direction of the organist.

A sermon appropriate to the occasion was preached by Rev. F. G. Plummer from the text: "Whatsoever a man shall sow that shall he also reap." The thanksgiving services will be continued on Sunday. The present building, it may be mentioned, is to be the chancel of the church of the future. The organ chamber, north transept and 40 feet of the nave will be roofed over temporarily and ready for the accommodation of between 400 and 500 people by Christmas.

CHARLES JARVIS ALSO RUN DOWN.

The Second of the Escaped Prisoners in Prescott Jail—Pearce Can't Get Away.

There was joy in Inspector Stark's office when at 8.30 o'clock yesterday morning he received a telegram from Detective Alf. Cuddy stating that he had captured Charles Jarvis, one of the three prisoners who escaped from the jail.

Maitland, the place where the capture was made, is a small switching station between Brockville and Prescott. As this village on Wednesday evening a report was received that two suspicious characters were lurking in the bush. Detective Cuddy and Chief of Police Hoy of Prescott were immediately notified. They came at once and went in search of the men. It was not, however, until 3 o'clock yesterday morning that they found them first as they were in the act of shoving off a boat for the American side. Jarvis was at once nabbed and a struggle ensued, which ended in his capture. In the darkness of the night Pearce got away.

Jarvis was taken to Prescott and locked up with a heavy pair of bracelets on his hands. Detective Burrows left on the 8.30 Grand Trunk train last night to bring the prisoner back to Toronto.

There seems now to be little chance of Pearce's escape. After the capture of Jarvis Detective Cuddy immediately began to scour the country round about Maitland and many citizens and the police are engaged in the hunt. East of Maitland Pearce can have no chance of crossing the border, as the Galops Rapids commence just below Prescott. On the other hand, if he makes for the West, it will almost be impossible to strike the shore without being captured.

Since then the Magistrate has been looking up the law with the result that Klippert was allowed to take back his prisoner yesterday.

NIGHT SCHOOL TEACHERS.

ARE THE POSITIONS TO GO TO THOSE WHO HAVE GOOD EMPLOYMENT?

The Trustees Have a Lively Talk Over the Matter—A Civil Servant on the List—Where the New Day Teachers are to be Located—"Boxing" Pupils' Ears.

When the recommendations of the Night School Committee came up for discussion at the Public School Board meeting last night some of the members present protested strongly against the appointment of certain applicants for positions as night school teachers. Their ground of objection was that the applicants in question already occupy remunerative positions and should therefore be disqualified. One candidate, William Dawson, an officer in the Inland Revenue Department, was especially objected to on this ground.

Those trustees were present when the meeting opened at 7.45: Herbert Kent (chairman), Brown, Burgess, Downard, Hastings, Henderson, J. Kent, Kerr, Lee, McCracken, McSpadden, Ogden, Oliver, Roden, Schoff, Vair, Whiteside, Williams, Willcock, Johnston and Middleton.

Among the communications was one from Bryce Bros., builders, drawing attention to a check deposited by them with tenders for the erection of the Leslie-street school, and which had been held by the board owing to delay in carrying out the contract. They attributed the delay to a mistake made by them of 100,000 brick in adding up their figures, in consideration of which they requested the return of the check. The letter was referred to a committee.

Under the head of enquiries Trustee Schoff asked if the statement was true that one of the rooms in the basement of the Bolton-avenue school was in an insanitary condition. Trustee Hastings replied in the negative.

Among the notices of motion sent up was one from Dr. Orden, that the School Management Committee be requested to enquire into the correctness of the report that a teacher in Clinton-street school has been in the habit of "boxing" the pupils' ears.

The board went into committee to consider the Finance Committee's report, Trustee Williams in the chair. The report recommended the payment of accounts amounting to $1139. It was also recommended that the caretakers of Lansdowne and Park schools be paid the same salary as the caretakers of other eighteen-room schools, $600 per annum, from Sept. 1; and that the Sites and Buildings Committee be requested, when renting rooms in future for temporary school accommodation, to procure from the landlords, respectively, their offers in writing, stating the terms and conditions on which said buildings are offered for rental.

The report was passed.

The School Management Committee recommended:

That these resignations be accepted; Mrs. R. M. Lloyd, teacher, Phoebe-street; Mrs. J. D. Bradley, Duke-street; Mrs. J. M. Patterson, Sackville-street; Miss M. Woolley, Givens-street.

Also that Miss S. McKenzie, Ryerson School, be promoted to the position of principal in Howard-street.

That the teachers recently appointed be located: Miss M. McIntosh, Miss A. Flows, Miss M. McFarlane, Brock-avenue; Miss C. L. Smythe, Morse-street; Miss J. McTavish, Gerrard-street; Miss A. McRae, Duke-street; Miss A. E. Young, Miss A. Thompson, Miss N. H. Keys, Sackville-street; Miss H. Rogers, Bolton-avenue.

That Miss Mabel Morris holding a second-class certificate be appointed teacher in Brock-avenue.

That assistant kindergartners be promoted to be directresses: Miss Duff, Gladstone-avenue to Queen Victoria; Miss Breckenridge, Lansdowne to Grace-street.

That the following be appointed assistants: Miss Johnston, Park School; Miss A. Wylie, Jones; Katerina Jones, Wellington; Miss Wilkinson, Miss Heakes, Gladstone-avenue; Miss A. McMullen, occasional assistant in Victoria:

That the offer of Prof. G. M. Dawson to present a scholarship in elocution to the best reader in the highest three classes in the Toronto Public Schools be accepted.

This report was adopted.

The Sites and Buildings Committee reported recommending a number of plans and specifications for a new school building in George-street and that they be authorized to advertise for tenders for the several works for its erection. Also that they be authorized to have gas pipes and fixtures put in school buildings where night schools are to be held, to procure from the New Rockland Slate Company of Montreal a car load of slate blackboards at the same rates as before (viz.: 17½c per foot.

The remainder of the report consisted of tenders for a school building in Oser Howell-street and of tenders for a school building in Huron-street. These tenders, which have already been published, were received and the report adopted.

When the name of Mr. Dawson was reached in the night school report as an applicant recommended for the position of night school teacher at Elizabeth-street, Trustee Kerr at once made an inquiry. He asked whether there was any truth in the statement that the candidate already occupied a position as civil servant at a salary of $1200 per annum. Among those who defended the candidate was Chairman Herbert Kent. Mr. Dawson, he said, received only about $600 a year, that he had purchased a house in McCaul-street and was generally in struggling circumstances. The discussion grew wordy, but despite all opposition the clause went through. Another applicant objected to, on the same ground of already being in receipt of large remuneration, was F. D. Featherstonaugh, recommended for the position of head master of the Bathurst-street night school. The applicant, it is said, is at present in receipt of a liberal salary as tutor to the proprietor of a Toronto newspaper's son. The recommendation, however, also prevailed.

"And now, Mr. Chairman," said Trustee Downard, "I calculate to visit that school often."

The remainder of the clauses in the report went through after some brief discussion.

Trustee Kerr was determined to oppose the Dawson recommend and as soon as the committee rose he moved that his name be struck out. The motion was killed on this division:

YEAS.
Kerr,	McCracken,	Henderson,
Hastings	Wilcock,	Middleton,

NAYS.
Downard,	Roden,	Brown,
McSpadden,	Lee,	Baird,
Oliver,	Johnston,	Burgess,
Whiteside,	John Kent,	Williams,
The Chairman—13.

Before the board adjourned Trustee Schoff sent up a notice of motion that the Sites and Buildings Committee be asked to consider the advisability of purchasing a site for a school in Pape-avenue near Danforth.

A letter was read from Trustee Denison asking that his resignation be accepted owing to increase of business. The matter was allowed to stand.

Hartington and Chamberlain as Politics Critics—Boulangists Mobbed.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—Mr. Chamberlain addressed a meeting at Newcastle yesterday. He taunted the Home Rulers with making no serious effort to meet the dissidents in argument, and said that if the Home Rulers wanted to win the next election they must not call the dissidents traitors and renegades, but must fairly argue and show that men who had committed no fault, except that of being unable in twenty-four hours, at the bidding of one man, to repudiate all their previous principles, were wrong. If the Gladstonians wished the dissidents to alter their principles, they would have to convince them that the Liberal policy of the past generation was inapplicable, impossible or ineffectual.

Hartington Criticises Gladstone.

ABERDEEN, Oct. 3.—Lord Hartington in a speech here last night justified the attempt to solve the Irish Catholic university problem, on the ground that both Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Balfour had declared it to be soluble. While crediting Mr. Gladstone with great services to the country and with unrivalled eloquence, he thought the ex-Premier's skill as a tactical leader was less conspicuous. Mr. Gladstone had on three occasions led the Liberals to defeat, and the people were justified in demanding to know where he was leading them now. The adoption of a fresh Irish policy was warranted, not by any demand for reparation for past wrongs, but by the benefits which would result therefrom now and in the future.

JIM BLAINE'S BANQUET.

He Entertains the All-American Delegates and Proposes a Toast.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The first of a series of elegant banquets to be given in many cities in honor of the nation's guests from Central and South America was given at the Normandie hotel last evening by Secretary Blaine. The decorations were unique and tasteful. Covers were laid for fifty-four guests. Secretary Blaine occupied the central place at one end of the table, with Secretary Windom as his vis-a-vis. Mr. Blaine had on his right the Brazilian delegate, Counsellor Layfette, and on his left the Chilian delegate, Dr. Varas. The others, besides foreign delegates, were Gen. Schofield, the members of the cabinet, Walker Blaine, ex-Senator Davis of West Virginia, Minister Ryan, Private Secretary Halford and John Boyle. There was no speechmaking, save a few words of toast from Mr. Blaine at the conclusion of the banquet. In happily chosen words he dismissed the company and proposed a toast, which was drunk standing: "The perpetual friendship and prosperity of all American states." The Marine band furnished music.

Extraordinary, Very!

CITY OF MEXICO, Oct. 3.—Much interest is taken here in the American International Congress. Several papers held open to publish Mr. Blaine's speech, which is extraordinary, as some morning papers here go to press at noon the preceding day and all before 8 o'clock at night. President Diaz said the speech was admirable and members of the cabinet also applauded it.

THE SEIZED SEALERS.

Judge Sawyer's Decision—Thought to Apply to all the Rush Seizures.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—Judge Sawyer has rendered a decision which covers the cases of all sealers seized in Behring Sea. In 1887 the sailing schooner San Diego, owned by L. M. Handy, was seized by the cutter Rush and ordered to Sitka. She went and nearly 600 skins were condemned, brought here and the Admiral Atkins and sold. Handy tried to enjoin the sale here on the ground that the Alaskan Court orders did not hold here, but Judge Sawyer overruled this. The same principle holds in the cases of the two sealers that came here instead of going to Sitka. It is also claimed that it applies to all seizures by the Rush this year, as the orders will hold good no matter where the seized vessels have taken refuge.

The first meeting for the winter season of the Toronto Auxiliary of the McAll Mission was numerously attended yesterday afternoon in Association Hall. Mrs. Duncan Clark, one of the vice-presidents, was in the chair. Miss Caven, the treasurer, reported that since the commencement of their financial year in February last $645 had been received by the auxiliary. Of this sum $500 had been forwarded to France, and $1000 was still required to pay the year's cost of the two mission halls the auxiliary maintains at La Rochelle and Rochfort. Dr. Cuthbertson of Woodstock wrote expressing the desire of himself and friends that a branch of the auxiliary be formed in that town. The lady president explained that at the last meeting Dr. Aikins offered $200 a year provided the balance be collected towards the maintenance of another gospel station in France. On this subject Miss Caven read letters from Mr. McAll and Mr. Sultan, secretary of the mission in Paris. Several stations were recommended, but no definite action was yesterday taken. Miss Carthy gave an interesting account of her visit to some of the mission halls in Paris during the summer. A letter was read from Miss Dodds, a worker in the mission, and sister of the late Rev. George T. Dodds, who died in the work, also giving details of the present position of the mission. A decidedly thankful and hopeful feeling pervaded the meeting.

A WALTZ IN THE KITCHEN.

DID "JOE" BRENNAN TEACH HIS COOK HOW TO DANCE?

The Sensational Trial Which is Going on in Mr. Justice Falconbridge's Court—Two of the Defendants on the Stand—The Follies of Young Men Generally.

Some lively evidence was given at the Assize Court yesterday during the hearing of the suit of Mrs. Susannah E. Brennan against Mr. and Mrs. Michael Brennan for $30,000 damages for having been induced by fraudulent representations as to character to enter into a marriage contract with Joseph Scott Brennan, their son. Mr. Michael M. Brennan, the principal defendant, a leading citizen of Hamilton, was in the witness box when the case was resumed before Mr. Justice Falconbridge. The defendant declared in the course of a severe cross-examination by Mr. J. K. Kerr, Q.C., that he had never heard of his son having been fined in the Police Court at Hamilton in December, 1882, on conviction of being drunk and disorderly, nor had he any recollection of the fact that "Joe" had been indiscreet or had got into trouble with the servant girls. "Joe," the eldest son, was passed over and the youngest son was admitted into partnership, not because witness thought "Joe" would get into trouble with the girls and they would come to take his share, but because Hugh had better business capacity than his brother. "Joe" was a hard-working, industrious mechanic. But he might have made mistakes.

Mrs. Ferguson of Rerins, daughter of Mr. Brennan, spoke of the marriage engagement of Miss Cheffey with her brother "Joe" and testified to the fact that the plaintiff told her on the occasion of her visit to Hamilton in December, 1882, that he was engaged to a young man named David McIntosh in Aid. W. W. Farley's broker's office, in Toronto. Several domestic servants were examined with a view to showing that Mrs. Brennan had made charges against her husband which were not true.

Mrs. Rose (nee Nellie Woods) said that when she was in the service of the Brennans "Joe" would sometimes get very angry on account of his breakfast being late. On these occasions witness would hear anybody but they generally all got out of his way. [Laughter.] Mrs. Brennan sometimes used strong language but not to her husband.

Mr. Kerr: "Were you sometimes downstairs with 'Joe' when Mrs. Brennan was not there?"

Witness: "No; I never was."

Mr. Kerr: "Do you recollect going down one night to get the clock when Mrs. Brennan was in bed?"

Witness: "No."

Mr. Kerr: "Did 'Joe' ever make any advances to you?"

Witness (indignantly): "No; he knew his place better."

Mr. Kerr: "What did he know?"

Witness: "That I would not let him." [Renewed laughter.]

Mr. Kerr: "What; without trying?"

Witness: "I guess he knew better—that is what I mean."

Witness added that she was not dismissed by Mrs. Brennan. She left of her own accord on account of some trouble in the household.

Mrs. Mary Patterson, another domestic of the Brennans, stated that during the time she was in their service Mr. and Mrs. "Joe" Brennan lived comfortably together. In answer to Mr. Kerr she warmly repudiated the insinuation that "Joe" was in the habit of teaching her to waltz; he never even came up and told her he would like to teach her to waltz. [Laughter.]

Mrs. Michael Brennan told the story of the courtship—how Joseph came to ask the hand of Miss Cheffey; how she would hear not one word about an engagement until the young lady's parents had been consulted; how she went with the plaintiff to interview the doctor upon the subject; and how the engagement was ratified and not a question asked as to whether Joseph was a sober boy or not, or what his situation and income was. After the marriage—it might be six or seven months, or it might be more—the doctor came to ask some ugly questions about Joseph—about a young girl who had a little one to him and about a police court conviction. She told the doctor she thought "he was very much out of place to interfere between the young couple." She admitted that "there was a child—its mother was Elizabeth Tibbetson. It is not true that she called her son a fool when he made the admission of the paternity of the child in the presence of the doctor. She felt "sadly sorry" about the child.

Mr. Blake: "What did you conceive to be the character of your son before marriage?"

Witness: "I thought he had the failing of most young men before their marriage. I did not think so very much of it, but I felt very sadly over it. I think it was the natural consequences of youth."

The case will be resumed to-day.

THE CONTRACT LABOR LAW.

Hamilton's Crack Military Band Threatened With Its Penalties.

HAMILTON, Oct. 3.—The Thirteenth Battalion Band left for Chicago this afternoon, but not in the manner that was intended. This morning Bandmaster Robinson received a telegram asking him to have the band go in plain clothes. It had previously been intended to march from the Gore to the station in uniform, but the telegram upset that plan. It has also come out that under the working of the contract labor law the band cannot play for the Chicago Commandery, Knights Templar, on account of its members being aliens to the United States. The band will, therefore, be nominally attached to the Hamilton Commandery. The members do not anticipate any trouble on account of the working of the contract labor law as they expect to get around it without difficulty. Representatives of the Chicago Commandery met the band at London.

The Law Must Be Obeyed.

DETROIT, Oct. 3.—Chief Clerk Christiancy of the Custom House says: "If the Hamilton band goes to Washington there is liable to be trouble. I will insist on an affidavit to the effect that the band is not under contract before the members pass through Detroit. I believe it is their intention to accompany the Knights to Washington. This contract labor law must be obeyed. If the Hamilton band goes to Washington it is under contract each member is liable to a fine of $1000. Any citizen can make complaint, and he is entitled to half the fine. The Chicago Knights Templar will also be liable."

TALKING OF A NEW THEATRE.

Mr. Pelis Says He May Build One in the East End—Notes of Amusement.

Ex-Ald. Pelis is considering the idea of building a theatre in the East End. He owns a large lot on the southwest corner of Frederick and King-streets, and it will be here that the theatre will be situated if built. Mr. Pelis is having plans drawn for a building to accommodate about 2000 people. "I am going to Washington next Sunday," said he to a World reporter last night. "While there I will visit the various places of amusement and will look into some of the modern theatres with a view, together with the experience I gathered in building the Toronto Opera House. I hope to have a first-class theatre for the people of the East End by next fall."

Notes of Amusement.

The Pavilion was crowded again last night and people were turned away from Prof. Morris' show. The Professor will give a special matinee to-morrow (Saturday) morning at 9.30. There will also be performances at 2 and 8 p.m.

The first concert since the opening of the autumn term at the Toronto College of Music comes given in the college hall last night by Mr. W. O. Forsyth, assisted by Mdlle. Adele Strauss, Miss Kate Ryan, Mr. A. S. Vogt and Mr. H. M. Field. The program was replaced by a lecture on the "Early Music of the Greeks and Romans," given by Mr. Forsyth. The large audience received the various numbers with marked favor.

Roland Reed will give three more performances at the Grand this evening, to-morrow afternoon and to-morrow night.

"Woman Against Woman" is pleasing the patrons of Jacobs & Sparrow's Opera House.

Januschek, the great artist, will be at the Grand all next week. It is unnecessary to say that this will be one of the greatest events of the present theatrical season. This is her repertoire: "Mary Stuart," "The Woman in Red," "Meg Merrilies," "Macbeth," "Woman of the People."

The Young People's Guild of St. John's Episcopal Church held a very entertaining promenade concert in St. Andrew's Hall last evening. Among the features of the evening were an operetta "Little Red Riding Hood" by 24 handsomely
