Maryland man who Allows the Most Pol-sonous Reptiles to Bite him. The only man in the world who does not fear a snake bite and upon whom the venom of serpents apparently has no effect is William F. Witmer, whose home is in Woltsville, Md. His performances with copperheads, rattlers, and vipers are a constant source of wonder and amazement to all who know him, and even to his lifelong friends there is a large element of mystery about the man and his strange

He takes great pride in this respect, and when among strangers it is a favorite form of amusement with him to hunt up some ugly looking specimen of the serpens family—the more deadly the better it fits his purpose—and to let the reptile sink its venomous fangs in his bare arm or hand.

Recently, while on a visit in the mountains of western Pennsylvania, a half dozen spotted vipers were found in a bunch under a stone. Rolling up the sleeve of his coat until his arm was bare to the elbow, Wittener proceeded with his other hand to take the largest and ugliest looking viper by the tail, and shaking him spart from the rest of the snakes, swung him about until he was thoroughly enraged. He then allowed the viper to eink its teeth in his arm

Then one by one the other vipers were picked up and allowed to seize the arm until there were a full half dozen of the spottad, writhing things hanging from Watters flesh and winding themselves about the arm in a very frensy of rage. When the spectators were sufficiently horrified, the man took the lanakes one by one by one by the tail and shaking them loose from his arm, killed them like the lash of a whip.

For the rest of the day no one would have been surprised to see the man for any numbness of the flesh, the only trace of the exhibition being a number of tiny red spots on the arm, which looked as it a needle had punctured the flesh. Those were the marks of the snake's tangs.

Witner himself says of the strange peculiarity which be possesses that it is something inherited from his ancestors, one in each generation back as tar as he knows having had this same immunity from the poison of venomous repilies. 'I do not try to explain it,' said he. 'All I know is that to explain it,' said he. 'All I know is that the tail and shake here had and shake the poison of venomous repilies. 'It is only a pastime for me to hunt and catch the most deadly serpents, and a peculiar feature of it is that once a snake has bitten me I have no difficulty in taming it. In fact, at home I have a number of pet rattlers and copperheads which know me and will come when I call them just like a dog.
