The woolen factory will start in a few days having been fitted up ready for business. It brought two families into the village who had hard work to procure houses. Somebody must build if the village grows.

ELGIN.

MONDAY, May 18.—Mr. Johnston, I. P. S., delivered a very interesting and instructive lecture in the Methodist church on Friday evening. His subject was the educative value of history. Mr. Johnston's delivery is perfect and the way in which he handled his subject showed to his listeners a depth of thought and a large resource of intelect. It was carefully and well prepared and we hope in the near future he will favor us again. Mr. J. R. Dargavel occupied the chair. The choir furnished suitable music. Of course the selections weren't just the latest but then good things never grow old.

The old Canada Methodist church in Caintown has at last been raised to the ground. It was purchased by L. T. Cain and will now be converted into a beautiful summer cottage.

Mr. James Tennant of Caintown has one of the finest stallions on the road.

The Ayer's Manufacturing Company of Lyn have again started up and are running on full time. All kinds of wooden ware are handled in said factory.

ELLISVILLE

To the Editor:

DEAR SIR.—I understand that the brainy and talented scribe of Ellisville has a grievance over the fact that some one had the impudence to insinuate that he had made an untruthful statement about a factory meeting. He states that he meant no harm or to offend anyone. It has just happened as it was intended, no one has been hurt or offended. I see he has undertaken to measure people's understanding. I am not surprised at that, as he is one of the wise men that came from the South, not in sight of a star, but simply to become the shining star of Ellisville. To start with, his head was full of the right material. He then attended a business college. Had it pressed down, heaped up and running over. He gobbled up all they knew, in a few days, and walked off with it, and now he has become a Professor at music and literature. He surprises us by stating that Mr. J. McMillan is taking the people's senses. I would be the last one to believe that Mr. McMillan would be guilty of committing such an outrage on the people. I never knew that was Mr. McMillan's business. I knew he was taking the census. But I don't wish to dispute that gentleman, however. I can only say that if his statement is correct I would advise his friends to pray Mr. McMillan to return that small amount which he must have gathered off him. Yours &c

A CANADIAN.

Minard's Liniment Lumbermans friend

In the Church of Ascension in Hamilton, trouble has been brewing for some time. On the 8th inst, the minister secured the services of a surpliced choir to help in a special meeting, which so enraged the congregation that, when the minister and the choir entered the church, they blew out the lights, whistled, yelled, groaned and hissed, and made noises and cat calls that might be heard from the top gallery of a theatre. The choir commenced to sing, but the congregation drowned the song by singing an opposition one to the tune of Old Black Joe. It was the most disgraceful scene ever heard in a church, and has caused intense excitement. The row was between the Rituals and the Anti-Ritualists.

There is always a period in our lives that we look back upon with pleasure. The boy recalls with pleasure his first pair of long boots. The girl her first, real china face doll. The young man when first he was able to disco r the first faint dark colored fuzz on his upper lip, and the young lady when she could boast of having a real nice beau all to herself. People of maturer years feel proud of saying that they have a home, and are settled securely for life, but there is one day in the year that all rejoice to know is safely past, and that is the day when house cleaning is done. This year the people of Athens and vicinity will feel an extra exuberance if they have got house cleaning done and purchased their wall papers at H. H. Arnold's, and their curtains at G. W. Beach's and thereby saved enough by doing so to buy some fine dress goods at Parish's or Wiltse's and still have enough money left to get that litttle "duck of a bonnet," shown in the windows of Mrs. Thompson's or Mrs. Bristow's millinery windows, and when all these things are purchased we hope they will have an extra dollar to invest in sending the Reporter for a year to some far off friend.

A "Cold Wave" appears to have passed over the greater portion of the Continent of North America during the past week. Our exchanges from all parts of the country speak of cold winds and frosty nights, and in this vicinity the same may be said. On Friday night the cold was so severe that ice accumulated in watering troughs and open vessels. The leaves on the trees, which are about half size, are tinged with a frosty look, and the grass in the open fields has a withered appearance. Plum trees, which are in bloom will suffer most, as without doubt the cold winds and frost will completely blast the blossoms. Apples and small fruits are not far enough advanced to be materially affected, but should the cold winds prevail for a few nights more, they too will be a partial failure. The weather wise, say that this cold weather is caused by a total eclipse on the moon which occurs on Saturday next 23rd inst., and that after that date we may look for rain and warmer weather. All kinds of vegetation needs rain badly, and the long spell of cold weather has retarded growing crops to such an extent that but very little appears above the ground.

The dog tax collector for the village has had a lively time during the past few weeks getting the owners and harborers of dogs to pay the tax and procure the necessary tag. Notices, were posted on every street and "Big Dog" notices in the Reporter and posters warning that all parties neglecting or refusing to comply with the Village By-law, would be prosecuted after the 9th inst. Despite all these warnings there was quite a number who had not made the necessary sacrifice of their time and money and on Monday evening the services of Justice Cawley were obtained and summonses issued against eight who were still delinquent. The next morning after the papers were served the clerk was routed out of bed before the sun had risen and a pitiful appeal made for him to take the money and supply the delinquents with the little brass talisman. He however had no alternative but to send them to "His Worship" to settle which all but two of them did before the hour appointed for the trial. Wilson Riley and Wm. Langstaff appeared and were each fined 50c and costs, eight days being given the latter to pay in. It is the veriest nonsense for owners of dogs to imagine that they can evade or get clear of paying the tax imposed by by-law of the village council. The action of the "Chief" will convince all such persons that the law must, and is going to be enforced.

The Reporter has been the recipient during the past year or two of enough circulars from advertising agents to fill a cart. No less than 8 came to the office in one day, recently. The prices offered are so ridiculously low and the assurance of the agents so great that did we not possess a large amount of forbearance we would be tempted to kick the agent along with his circulars into the street. Just think of our running a paper for the especial benefit of an advertiser who makes the following proposition; "Insert single col. 6 inch ad. 26 weeks, then 3 inch ad. balance of year. This add must have position of first ad. on top of col. or immediately following broken column, ad. must not be preceded by other displayed ads, and the Reporter for a year thrown in." For this they have the gall to offer the magnificent sum of $6.00 per year, payable when you can get it. We were simple enough to be gulled into taking an ad. of this sort about a year ago. Once we drew on the advertiser at sight, costing us 25 cents. In about a week the draft came back, with this laconic sentence within across the face no funds Another time a checque was sent in payment, which we got cashed at a branch of the bank on which the check was drawn. A few days after a notice was sent us to call in and endorse the check. Now to all and sundry of those advertising fakes we say. Avaunt! thou spirits of evil! from this time henceforth we insert only the live business ads. of the live business men of this county and district unless we have a personal knowledge that the business and the advertiser are all O. K. We have come to this determination believing that the class we refer to will appreciate our determination to have nothing to do with quacks or quack medicines. We make bold to say that we can give the class of advertisers we want better value for their money than any other paper published in the United Counties and are prepared at any time to produce our subscription books for the inspection of those wishing information on the matter.

Jas. Ross of Smith's Falls is in town calling on old acquaintances. This is the first time he has been in Athens since his illness some months ago. He has nearly regained his usual health.

Prof. Wiggins says he expects a dry summer this year, and attributes it to the increased use of electricity in towns and the use of wire fences in country, thus keeping away the thunder storms. We wonder how the Prof. accounts for the rainy weather of the past two seasons. Telegraph lines and wire fences were as plentiful then as now. It's about time the old crank was sat on.

Montreal detectives have arrived in Cornwall to assist the local police in the search for the body of the late Patrick Purcell. The point from which it was stolen is a lonely spot on the banks of the St. Lawrence, about five miles east of Cornwall, and there is no person residing within a quarter of a mile of it. It is generally believed that a plot to gain possession of the body was organized as soon as his death was announced. Before the body had arrived from the Maritime provinces a rumor gained circulation that a gang of men were determined to steal the body and hold it for reward.

Brockville Cheese Board.

Special to REPORTER.

The regular meeting of Brockville Dairyman Board of Trade was held on Thursday in Ashwood Hall. The attendance of buyers and salesman was fairly large for the season. There was however, an absence of the gentlemen representing the "greate houses." When the new president asked for order the bulletin board showed a total offering of 1,858 boxes cheese of which 1,202 were colored which has a preference. The bidding for the goods was fairly spirited, most of the boys were in want of cheese. Colored goods brought 10⅛c for high price, while 10c was freely paid for white. There was but 110 boxes sold for the high point mark, and they had to be delivered at Brockville by farmers' carriage. The buyers manifested a willingness to take the whole offering at 10 to 10 1-16. On corresponding date of last year 8¾c was ruling price paid. Thus far this season's goods have sold at about 1¼c advance. This as a matter of fact should stimulate our dairy farmers to give the cow a fair share of good care and good food.

After the board opened Mr. Howard Bissell said he had received a letter from Prof. Robertson, dairy commissioner, which stated that he, with others, intends being at Willow's factory next Thursday and Friday to make public milk tests. The professor wished to have as many present at these tests as possible and Mr. Bissell extended a cordial invitation to all. Mr. M. K. Evertts intimated that the professor would be at Old Fairfield factory on Saturday, 23rd inst. A full list, giving dates on which Prof. Robertson will visit other factories, will be found in another column,

The discussion booked for next meeting, respecting the advisability of doing away or continuing the open bid for cheese placed on bulletin board promises to be something interesting indeed. It is thought by some that many transactions of questionable character will be brought out of darkness.

The local cheese board at Campbellford was re-organized for the season with a fair attendance. Three hundred white cheeses were boarded and 9¼c bid, but no sales.

The Woodstock cheese market opened on the 13th with a little brighter prospect than the previous week. Seven factories were represented and 925 boxes were boarded, of which only 260 boxes were sold at 10c. Buyers did not seem very anxious to buy.

OUR LITTLE ETTIE.

LINES COMPOSED BY HER MOTHER.

She's gone, the beautiful and bright,
Gone to her home above,
Where kinder arms than ours will shield
And fonder hearts will love.

She faded like a wild-wood flower
And left us, lonely here;
No more we'll hear the happy tones
Of little Ettie dear.

That hand that used to smooth my locks,
So lightly o'er my brow,
And pat my cheek so lovingly
Is cold and deathly now.

That little dress she used to wear,
And hat, too, I see,
The slippers that she wore when last
She sat upon my knee.

I miss her too at early dawn,
The morning meal to share;
I do not see her by my side
Within her little chair.

At evening when the children play
Upon the grassy lawn,
I miss those happy tones of hers
And then I know she's gone.

And oft I'll wander to the spot
Where little Ettie lies,
Close by her grand-pa here she rests.
Close by him in the skies.

She sank into that last long sleep
From which she'll not awake,
Until the deep-mouthed trump shall sound
And death's strong band shall break.

Then father, mother, children, all,
From their low graves shall come
To join those broken ties again
And share a heavenly home.
