Mowat Decides Not To Go.

Those people who have been drumming it into our ears for weeks back that Mowat was going don't know what they are talking about. Mowat didn't go yesterday. He had no intention of going. He never had any such intention. He doesn't propose to go in the immediate future, either. Mowat is a fixture. It's all very well for men to get up and shout, "Mowat must go," but how in the dickens are you going to make him go? That's what people are wanting to know. It avails nothing for Meredith and The Empire to rage like the heathen against Mowat and to tell the people that they've got him on the run and that he's going this time, dead sure. What are the facts? When the game is over we find the old man seated at ease on his own verandah, smoking his pipe of contentment and wearing in exaggerated form the bland and guileless smile that is wont to characterize the Mowat profile. Mowat must go! It's the other man who has to do all the "going." Mowat at least won't go! That's settled. Men may come and men may go, but he stays on forever. There's no use running up against a brick wall. The "grand old captain" has again been put in charge of the ship of state and away she sails with colors flying in the air. The man who got up that catchword, "Mowat must go," ought to be ostracized for disturbing the peace. Mowat isn't of the going kind. Mowat will die in harness. Or if he resigns while in office the people will present him with an illuminated address and a silver medal, and his last days will be spent in that sort of peace that passeth all understanding. Mowat and the old silver medal Bull will go down to posterity together in a halo of glory. Make no mistake about it, Mowat will yet be canonized in St. Michael's Cathedral. He will be done in colored glass, clad in a big robe, and under the sandals of his feet will be inscribed the words "Saint Oliver." Thus do we prophecy of Mowat in this life and in the life to come.

As for Meredith let him inspect his armor. He will find it defective. Evidently he needs newer devices of warfare. Why doesn't he try smokeless powder? Why isn't he clad in Dowe's new bullet-proof clothing? The balls have scarred him pretty badly this time. He should have been better prepared for the shower of lead that has fallen among him and his followers. The best word that we can say in his behalf is that he was over-confident. He, like the rest of them, relied on the idea that "Mowat was going," whereas it is now evident that Mowat had no intention whatever of going. We think Davy Creighton must assume most of the responsibility for the disaster of yesterday. He kept on saying, "Yes, Mowat is going," and it is hinted that he told Meredith he had got it direct from Sir Oliver himself that it was his intention to "go." Davy, it appears, is hard of hearing. What Mowat really said was that he was "going in." Davy's auditory lobes didn't gather up the last word, and he took it to mean that Mowat was "going" in the sense that Charlie Henderson uses the word when he is selling household furniture. Truly great events often turn on trifles the most insignificant. How different might it all have been had Davy put a sound trumpet to his ear, or made use of one of those sounding boards that the man who is hard of hearing puts between his teeth!

Certain principles were involved in this election which for the present have been ruthlessly trampled on. These principles, however, will not always remain trampled on. They will rise up like the Phœnix and they will keep rising up until they are settled. But in the meantime Mowat's desire to stay overshadows everything. Mowat himself won't go, nor will the people order him to go. And so these principles which are crying to high heaven for settlement lie prostrate in the dust. Such is the power of Mowatism.

The people of Toronto took delight yesterday in punishing that professional humbug, Joseph Tait. He is one of those self-styled Liberals who know as much about genuine Liberalism as Charlie Moss does about baking hot-cross buns. Never again will Joseph Tait be put in a position where he can monkey with the liberties of the people. Yesterday he was punished because of his nefarious attempt to prevent the young men of Toronto from exercising their right as citizens to vote on the Sunday car question. In only twelve out of sixty-three sub-divisions did Mr. Tait get a majority, and he was running in a constituency where he had been a resident for fifteen or twenty years and where he was supposed to be particularly well known. The fact of the matter is Joseph was too well known. The people sized him up as a canting humbug, a man of considerable small cunning and of some native wit, but a man whose words are insincere. He tried his best to prevent the young men from exercising their franchise, and when he saw he had put his foot in it he ignominiously tried to square himself. His religious convictions guided him in voting against the young men exercising their liberty of citizenship. His political cunning guided him in his endeavors to square himself. Such is the nature of the public humbug. Such was he voted to be yesterday by the people who knew him best. Joe deserves all he got.

Next time the Liberals will keep that fire-brand Sam Blake chained up to his kennel. If a few more Sam Blakes had been judiciously placed in various parts of the province the elections would have resulted differently to what they did. Sam Blake may be a Christian, but he is a Christian from whose heart emanates none of the brotherly kindness that is supposed to illumine the Christian life. Sam Blake had it all his way on the night when he referred to the people of Toronto as "bastard" Protestants. Yesterday the "bastard" Protestants had their first opportunity of avenging the insult. A majority of over two thousand for Howland is the way they took to answer Blake and his insolent tongue. Blake to-day is a whipped cur. He richly deserves his punishment. Sam Blake made an exhibition of himself in this campaign, and he no doubt now regrets his blunder.

His venom has recoiled on himself and on his party. Sam Blake imagined he was going to elect Moss. Instead of that, he is responsible for what is undoubtedly the biggest majority accorded any candidate throughout the province. Having proved such a failure in politics, Sam Blake ought to confine himself to evangelism, for the propagation of which his kindly, humane and Christian-like bearing so eminently fits him. In politics he has proved an eminent failure. His buffoonery was one of the elements that helped to sink him.

We feel a little sorry for Charlie Moss. He is such a good-natured, genial soul. We think, however, it is all for the best. His friends will rejoice to know that Charlie has been spared to them with all the pristine blamelessness of youth beaming from his refulgent eyes and expansive brow. A political career would have spoiled an otherwise innocent, we might almost say, a beautiful, life. For our part we never credited the insinuation that Charlie had serious designs on the leadership of the party. The next time Mr. Moss appears at Osgoode Hall the chief justice will do only what is fitting if he congratulates the would-be politician on his narrow escape from being switched into that broad and easy road that leads to destruction. We congratulate the bar, we congratulate his many friends, that Charlie has been spared them. Having tasted a little of the bitterness of disappointed ambition Charlie will now the better appreciate the beneficent joy that characterizes the man who, in undisturbed serenity, pursues the even tenor of his ways.

We congratulate Mr. Marter on winning one of the most notable victories ever recorded in Toronto. He had been tendered the nomination in a constituency where he was sure of election. He risked a certainty and accepted the nomination in a constituency that was entirely new to him. But the knowledge that he would cross swords with that humbug Joseph Tait no doubt added a piquancy to the contest that agreed very well with Mr. Marter's appetite. From the time he engineered that temperance dodge by which it was thought Mr. Marter would be side-tracked Joseph felt himself oppressed by the ever-present shadow of defeat. Mr. Marter's was probably the most popular victory of all the Torontos. Coming down town on the platform of a trolley just after victory was announced he received the congratulations of citizens of all classes. More than anything else he was welcomed as the vanquisher of Joseph Tait, pseudo-liberal, humbug-in-general.

The election in West Toronto proves the truth of Mr. Lount's assertion that a man cannot ride into power on his pedigree. Mr. Lindsey tried to get a seat in the Legislature by trotting out the ghost of a pedigreed grandfather. If the young man had presented himself on his own merits he would probably not have been buried so deep in the mud as he finds himself this morning. It is difficult to see how a candidate, handicapped on the one hand with such a name as the young man boasts of and on the other hand with a pedigreed grandfather, could escape defeat.

As far as Toronto is concerned, the people have told Sir Oliver Mowat as plainly as they could let it be known that they have no faith in him and his so-called evidences of Christian statesmanship. The people of Toronto know Sir Oliver better than do the people of the province. They see him face to face. They know the members of his Government by everyday contact with them. It must be particularly galling to Sir Oliver to think that he is so little appreciated where he is best known. Toronto's vote of 6000 against the Premier tells him pretty plainly what the people think of his manipulation of the registry and shrievalty offices in this city, and of his retrograde policy in regard to the administration of our affairs generally. We take it that the citizens of Toronto have had a better opportunity of becoming acquainted with the shortcomings of the Mowat Government, and in consequence they have rendered a verdict more consistent with the facts of the case than have the other constituencies.

SANTO'S FIENDISH GLEE.

I HATED CARNOT AND AM GLAD HE HE IS DEAD.

The Assassin Examined Before a Magistrate—Carnot's Body Lying in State—Many Anti-Italian Riots — Police Hunting For a supposed Accomplice—Condolences With Mme. Carnot.

PARIS, June 26.—The funeral train bearing the remains of M. Sadi Carnot, the murdered President of the French Republic, arrived here at 3.10 a.m. The Prefect of the Seine, M. Poubelle, and his staff; the Prefect of Police, M. Loese, and his staff; the railroad officials and General Saussier, the Military Governor of Paris, with his staff, met the body in the station, which was heavily draped with crape and other emblems of mourning.

The ceremonies in the railroad terminus, however, were private and consisted only in the formal transfer of the remains to the Prefect of the Seine. The casket was placed in the hearse in the presence of the officials mentioned and the officers of the late President's military household, headed by General Borius, chief of the military household, Capt. Jaureguiberry and Col. Chamoin. The hearse was then escorted to the Elysee Palace, followed by five carriages including a landau which was occupied by Mme. Carnot and her three sons.

MOBBED ITALIANS IN LYONS.

And Pillaged Their Stores and Taverns—Other Towns Disturbed.

LYONS, June 26.—The disorders here and in other places in France, resulting from the indignation of the people over the assassination of President Carnot, were continued throughout last night. Crowds of rioters paraded the streets of the city from the time the late President's remains left Lyons until this morning, and in spite of the efforts of the police and military the mobs sacked Italian stores and taverns and, after throwing their contents into the streets, made bonfires of everything inflammable.

All night long police were engaged in charging these rioters, who, however, always retreated before the advance of the officers, seeming determined to demonstrate the fact that they were excited against Italians only, and that they were not seeking a conflict with the authorities.

Here and in other towns Italians suffered from the hands of the mob. Wholesale pillage reigned supreme, and large numbers of Italians have been hopelessly ruined. Many have fled from Lyons and more are expected to follow. Others still have sought safety in the country and are hiding in the woods and other such places of refuge. Scenes of disorder similar are reported from Grenoble and Dijon and several other towns, and there is prospect of more rioting to-day. The troops have supported the police to restore order, but the rioting continues in spite of the soldiers and policemen.

SANTO'S MOUTH CLOSED.

He Refuses To Answer Any of the Magistrate's Questions.

The weapon with which Santo killed President Carnot is long, triangular, and of the generally accepted stiletto pattern. Upon the blade is engraved "Record of Toledo." The sheath is of velvet, with red and black stripes. Examining Magistrate Benoist ordered Santo brought before him yesterday and questioned him regarding the crime. The prisoner obstinately refused to make any statement further than he will explain his motive to the jury when the proper time comes. Santo is confined in a cell in the prison of the Palais of Justice, which is strongly guarded by troops.

The Assassin's Admissions.

LYONS, June 26.—Examining Magistrate Benoist gave the assassin Santo another hearing this morning, but was still unable to elicit anything like a clear statement from him. He admitted he was an Anarchist, but denied that he had any accomplices. He declared he acted alone and solely upon his own responsibility.

The police profess to know that Santo has done a good deal of traveling within a short time recently as the bearer of Anarchist messages between Paris and Cette and between Cette and Lyons. The authorities believe that Santo was a member of a band of Anarchists and was selected by lot to murder the President.

Tells of the Murder With Fiendish Delight

LYONS, June 26.—When the examining magistrate asked Santo whether he had a personal grievance against President Carnot, he replied:

"No, but he was a tyrant and I killed him for that reason."

"How did you stab him?" asked the magistrate.

"I pushed aside the horses and advanced to the carriage. I had a dagger concealed up my sleeve. I had only to raise my hand. I aimed at the stomach and brought my arm down sharply, shouting, 'Long live Anarchy!' The crowd rushed upon me and laid me prostrate. I was beaten mercilessly."

"Is the President dead?" asked Santo.

As the magistrate made no reply the prisoner took it for granted that his victim was dead. He smiled and, raising his hand, imitated the act of stabbing the President with undisguised glee.

The examination lasted four hours.

Looking for an Accomplice.

The police are actively searching for accomplices of the assassin which they feel certain he had. They are particularly anxious to find a hairdresser's assistant named Marius Violly who is said to have repeatedly predicted that President Carnot would be murdered in his carriage on arriving here. An Italian woman, who proves to have been Violly's companion, and one of his associates named Roux have been arrested, but Violly himself has disappeared. The police are hopeful, though, that they will be able to trace him. Recently while drunk a friend of Violly's in his maudlin murmurings exclaimed, "I hear the tolling of the bell. Violly has written the article and we are betrayed." This was thought nothing of at the time, but now the tolling of the bell seems to have had a fateful meaning.

Magistrate Benoist thinks Santo was inspired as much by a desire to avenge his compatriots, who lost their lives in rioting in Aigues-Mortes, as he was by the wolf-like sentiment that prompts Anarchists to bathe their hands in human blood.

Guarding the Italian Consulate.

A strong detachment of police guarded the Italian Consulate yesterday throughout the day and will remain there until all danger of an attack on that building has passed.

At the request of the local authorities the Italian Consul has removed the Italian flag from outside the consulate. A company of infantry is held in reserve in a house adjoining. The troops are under arms at the barracks. The cavalrymen keep their horses saddled ready to turn out at a moment's notice. Mourning emblems are worn by nearly every man, woman and child. No dwelling seems too poor to display grief. All the flags are draped with crape, and countless portraits and engravings of the late President, surrounded with crape, are to be seen in the windows.

Carnot's Coachman Dies from Shock.

PARIS, June 26.—Among those who witnessed the arrival of the body of the President at the Elysee Palace were the head servants of the President's household, including his coachman.

The latter was greatly attached to the President and was so affected when he saw the coffin carried into the palace that he fell insensible and afterwards died from shock.

Accident With the Coffin.

PARIS, June 26.—When the coffin containing the body of President Carnot was being taken from the hearse at the Elysee Palace it slipped from the grasp of the men handling it and fell to the ground, bearing the men, who still held on with it. The heavy casket fell upon two or three of the men, injuring them severely.

"Santo's Arm Rendered Them Justice."

LISBON, June 26.—Six Spaniards have been arrested in this city charged with posting red placards yesterday evening in the leading thoroughfares. The placards were inscribed: "Ravachol, Vaillant and Henry are avenged," "Santo's arm has rendered them justice."

Rumored Assassination of the French Ambassador.

PARIS, June 26.—The Cocarde late this afternoon publishes a rumor, which it admitted that it discredited, to the effect that M. Billot, French ambassador to Italy, had been killed in Rome during an anti-French demonstration. The rumor created a momentary sensation. No other newspaper published the sensation.

Investors and Savings Bank Depositors,

Savings banks pay but 3 or 4 per cent. Many other investments pay less and oftentimes nothing at all, particularly during times of depression.

Investors of large or small means wishing a safe and steady income should invest now in the stock of the New England Theatre Company, incorporated in 1891, with a guaranteed dividend of 12 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually (Jan. and July).

This corporation, with the assistance of well-known citizens of Toronto, will erect a magnificent theatre in the city of Toronto at an estimated cost approaching $100,000.

We desire to make this a co-operative enterprise, which will be safe, sure and solid and, as it is a well-known fact that enterprises of this description offer large returns, and when properly managed are absolutely safe; we have, with this in view, decided to offer a limited number of shares of the treasury stock for sale at the par value of $10 each (full paid and non-assessable).

For prospectus and information address Allen J. Litchfield, treasurer, 5 Park-square, Boston, Mass., or H. H. Bridgewater and F. Hayes, agents, 1243 Queen-street west, Toronto.

As Much Care

ought to be taken in choosing Tobacco as in choosing a horse. Good smokers use the Students' Mixture Tobacco, as its known qualities are its best recommendation. Try it.

It may be only a trifling cold, but neglect it and it will fasten its fangs in your lungs, and you will soon be carried to an untimely grave. In this country we have sudden changes and must expect to have coughs and colds. We cannot avoid them, but we can effect a cure by using Hickie's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, the medicine that has never been known to fail in curing coughs, colds, bronchitis and all affections of the throat, lungs and chest.

Pure and Sweet

is the popular verdict upon the quality of the Student's Mixture Tobacco. It is universally admitted to be the most gratifying smoking tobacco in every particular. Ask for it always.

Dear Sirs,—I was suffering very much from diarrhœa, and could get nothing to cure me. A friend told me of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry, and a few doses completely cured me. Thomas L. Graham, Melita, Man.

Derby is acknowledged to be the best plug smoking tobacco in the market, 5, 10 and 20-cent plugs.

Some people laugh to show their pretty teeth. The use of Ivory White Tooth Powder makes people laugh more than ever. It's so nice. Price 25c. Sold by druggists.

Have you tried the Derby Plug Smoking Tobacco, 5, 10 and 20-cent plugs?

Local Jottings.

John Doyle, an old offender, was convicted at the Police Court yesterday of brutally assaulting Ellen Mulqueen and sentenced to two years in the Central Prison.

Mr. S. H. Blake spoke in South Toronto, West Toronto, London and West Durham. Result: Conservatives elected in each constituency and three were Tory gains.

St. Paul's School entertainment will take place in St. Paul's Hall, Power-street, at 2 p.m. to-day.

Robert Duthie, 184 Baldwin-street, and James Johnson, 276 Spadina-avenue, left their bicycles in the Yonge-street Arcade last evening while they went to their rooms. When they returned the bicycles were missing.

A recount is probable in South Norfolk. This constituency was Conservative until 1890, when W. A. Charlton carried it for the Reformers, with 65 majority. He was unseated and in the bye-election increased his majority to 97. His opponent in the present contest, Mr. Cruse, a Conservative Patron, reduced the majority to 17.

The two Lanarks were carried by the Conservatives. South Lanark returned its first Reform member in the bye-election this year, caused by Mr. McLeanaghan's retirement, giving Mr. Clarke a narrow majority of 15. It retrieved its old-time prestige yesterday. North Lanark went Conservative for the first time in 1875, but since then has been sturdily Reform, with majorities ranging from 283 to 92. Yesterday R. J. Preston wrested the riding from his old-time opponent, W. C. Caldwell.

Said an officer of the P.P.A. last night: Though only three of the five avowed P.P.A. candidates were successful to-day still there are 21 members of the body in the new House.

Michael King, charged with the larceny of a tray of rings from Kent's jewelry store, was yesterday remanded for a week.

An old woman named Mrs. Cooper, aged 67, strayed away from the Aged Woman's Home, Belmont and McMurrich-streets, yesterday. She had fair hair, cut short, wore a black tweed dress, no hat or bonnet.

An alarm of fire last evening brought the brigade to the rear of 27 Bulwer-street, but the blaze was extinguished before the firemen arrived. Damage slight.

Dr. Pickering, upon appeal, has been allowed to claim $30,000 instead of $8000 at the new trial of his suit against the Street Railway Company.

James Keating, 4 Regent-street, while working at crib work at foot of Brock-street, had his ankle cut by a piece of flying timber and had to be taken to St. Michael's Hospital.

De La Salle Institute held its annual commencement yesterday afternoon. The Pavilion was crowded with friends of the pupils and great was the applause as the prizes which they had won.

Suit has been filed against the city by Miss Adelaide Ramus, the owner of 1166 and four other stores on the north side of Bloor-street, for $600 damages to the property by flooding. J. J. McKenney, the grocer, who occupies one of the stores, also has a suit against the city for damages to his goods.

Mr. Edward Copping of the City Commissioner's office was severely injured while driving in Jarvis-street. A loose bolt allowed the shaft of the buggy to drop on the horse's leg and the animal bolted. Mr. Copping, in jumping from the rig, was thrown on his shoulder and sustained severe injury to his back and head. He will be confined to his house for several weeks.

Yesterday the annual commencement of the Separate schools of the city was held in the Pavilion, Horticultural Gardens, which was filled with the parents and friends of the pupils. An exhibition of shorthand and typewriting under the direction of the local inspector, Bro. Odo Baldwin, was one of the novel features of the proceedings. Among those who were present were: Very Rev. J. J. McCann, V.G.; Deans Cassidy and Bergin, Rev. Fathers Hand, Lamarche, Cruise, Coyle, Redden, O'Malley, Rohleder, Grogan, Tracey, with the lay members of the Separate School Board. Rev. Father Ryan delivered an address, dealing at length with the progress of the Separate schools of this country. Prizes were distributed to the successful pupils.

Still Another Triumph.—Mr. Thomas S. Bullen, Sunderland, writes: "For fourteen years I was afflicted with piles; and frequently I was unable to walk or sit, but four years ago I was cured using Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. I have also been subject to Quinsy for over forty years, but Eclectric Oil cured it, and it was a permanent cure in both cases, as neither the piles nor quinsy have troubled me since."

Trinity Convocation.

The convocation service was held in the College chapel on Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. In addition to the members of the college staff there were present a considerable number of the clergy of the city and neighborhood. The sermon was preached by the Provost, who took as his text St. John xviii., 36: "My kingdom is not of this world." After pointing out the seeming inadequacy of the means at the church's disposal for the accomplishment of her work he dwelt upon the success which had ever characterized that work when carried on in single-minded devotion to the truth. He dwelt eloquently upon the main object of Trinity to combine in her educational system the development of character with that of the intellect, and to harmonize the several branches of secular learning with the knowledge of God.

The convocation for conferring degrees will be held this (Wednesday) afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Convocation Hall.

A Prominent Musician.

Mr. F. L. Napolitano, 60 Elm-street, writes: "This is to certify that I have received great benefit from the use of St. Leon Water. I have visited the spring on several occasions and can testify to its marvelous power in healing disease, having witnessed numerous instances during my stay there. In my own case the water has completely cured me of indigestion, and I consider it the finest thing in the world for those whose kidneys or liver are in any way affected." 36

The Late President Carnot.

Citizen asks us to give some particulars regarding the late President Carnot's official life.

The deceased statesman was elected to the Presidency in 1887. He was very unpretentious in his daily life and was considered a wise ruler. During his term of office he was subjected to many severe tests of statesmanship and the Republic to exciting trials. Amongst the most important of these were the "Boulanger" folly and the Panama Canal scandals. His powers of statesmanship during this severe crisis were sorely tried, and his administration swayed for a time like a reed in the wind. But he came through unblemished and unscathed. At the time of his death he was visiting the exhibition in the "Parce De La Tete d'Or." Space forbids a more lengthy reference in this column.

It's your fault, not ours, if you don't take advantage of the close prices on all kinds of clothing. You won't believe us perhaps when we tell you that Serge and Tweed Suits that have been marked $8 50 and $10 are selling now at $3 50 and $4 50.

A Crop of Kisses.

From her side I go a-singin' in the mornin'
cool an' gray,
When the dew shines in the furrow, an' the hill climbs into day;
An' I kiss her at the partin'—she's the sweetest thing in life—
Like I use' to kiss my sweetheart, 'fore my sweetheart was my wife.

* * *

It's a kind o' "goodby" kissin'—though it's kissin' mighty soon!
An' I say: "I'll make it last me 'till the shadders point to noon."
An' the keen larks sing: "He kissed her!"
an' the winds sing: "So did we!"
When some wild rose comes a-climbin' an'
jes' steals her kiss from me!
