THE THISTLE.

Oh, thistle!
Armed cap-a-pie, like ancient knight,
When for war was all bedight,
I like you:
For though your leaves are not o'er bonny.
Your bloom is sweet as clover honey.

You're not a dainty creature;
You stand anear the country road,
Beside of mint and dyer's woad,
In humble fashion;
And yet your friends are fairest things
That flit about on painted wings.

You mind me of my father's folk,
The folk of Scotland, where was born
Amidst the shivering haulms of corn,
The first of thistles.
You 'mind me of stern, solemn faces,
Of ragged forms and austere graces.

Your purple blossom,
A barrel rose sharp set with thorns,
Is like the heart, that proudly scorns
Soft ways of living.
Yet hath such store of love it can't conceal it,
Because, forsooth, its sweetness will reveal it.

The heart o' Scotland.
And now I see, that of a thi tle
I've made tooting, blaring whistle
To pipe folk how,
Though born beneath a foreign flag
My true Scotch blood delights—in brag!

NOTES AND NEWS.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Queen Victoria will, it is said, visit Isle of Skye while on her Highland tour. She will be the first British sovereign since James IV. of Scotland who has visited the Hebrides.

The Lord Mayor of London, Sir Sydney Waterlow, has accepted the invitation of the provincial mayors to a banquet to be given at York, in his honor, on the 26th of September.

The Earl of Shaftesbury has been visiting St. Kilda and distributing Bibles, tea and sugar among the islanders. The old ladies say that tea after this fashion is particularly consoling—without money and without scrip.

An English Parliamentary return reports the number of deaths from starvation within the London metropolitan district during the year 1872. There were in all eighty-three dismal cases within the circuit specified, besides thirteen in the eastern division of Middlesex.

UNITED STATES.

The Portland Press tells of a visitor to Mount Desert who had to sleep on one cover of a family Bible the other cover being given to a married couple.

"Jury," said a Western judge, "you kin go out and find a verdict. If you can't find one of your own, get the one the last jury used." The jury returned a verdict of suicide in the ninth degree.

There is a remarkable set of triplets who celebrated their seventy-seventh birthday lately. Their home is situated in Scituate, Mass., and there they have always lived, and have each reared a flourishing family of children. Their example deserves to be followed, but every man cannot be a triplet.

Miss Annie Louise Cary arrived in Boston last Saturday, on her return from Europe, and left at once to visit her relatives in Maine. She is to be a member of the Strakosch Opera Troupe the coming season, and during her summer sojourn abroad has employed her leisure time in studying her part in Verdi's latest opera, "Aida."

They are still discussing the subject of Chinese cheap labor on the Pacific coast, and some of the arguments of the Christian white men are very convincing. Families in Portland, Oregon, who employ Chinese servants receive anonymous letters informing them that their houses will be burned if they do not discharge the said servants. This, now, is right to the point and very enlightened and Christian-like.

A gentleman, named Walter Snowden, in the employ of an insurance firm in Philadelphia, wanted money and put up a job on himself to that end. He dosed of the spare cash in the office and then swung a dumb bell against his head and fell senseless to the ground. At first there was no clue to the robber, but subsequent events cleared up the mystery and now Walter Snowden nurses his aching head in the quiet seclusion of the city prison.

"Will wasps freeze?" has been decided by a Peoria man, who found one in a frozen nest one day last week, and took the insect in the house, and held it by the tail while he warmed its ears over a gas jet. You wouldn't believe it, but the Peoria naturalist says its tail thawed out first, and while its head was so stiff and icy it couldn't wink, its "probe" worked with inconceivable rapidity, to the great distress of the minister, who was present, and was dreadfully distressed by the hideous profanity consequent on each and every movement of the probe aforesaid.

FASHION.

Watered sash ribbons are now very fashionable. They are tied on the sides in large bows oftentimes held by a buckle.

Ladies may be interested to know that overskirts are to be discarded for promenade costumes and indoor toilets, next winter. Skirts will be trimmed with puffings, &c., to simulate overskirts, and for this purpose lace will be much used. Worth, we believe, originated this idea. To him the ladies anxiously look for a practical illustration of the novelty.

Walking skirts of black silk are now trimmed with a flounce of the same material, about a quarter of a yard wide, edged with guipure lace either on the top or bottom of the flounce, or both. This style has just been introduced in New York as being the "very latest" in the French capital.

Tortoise shell jewellery increases slowly but steadily in fashion. No fashionable lady's jewel box is considered complete now-a-days without a set of tortoise, especially the necklace and monogram locket. The ornaments are always genteel and stylish, and can be worn with almost any toilette appropriately.

Wedded Bliss.

You know her. She lives on your street. Her features are either pinched, or full and frowsy. Her dress is wet, ill-fitting, and of no particular pattern; her slippers are broken down; her hair is uncombed; her voice is either shrill or coarse. You have seen her stand out in the back yard, and put a bare arm up to her eyes, and under it peer out to the fence or barn, where a man in an ill-fitting coat is searching for something, and have heard her shout—"John! can't George bring me some water?" And you have heard him cry back—"If he don't get that water I will take every inch of flesh from his bones." And when you have looked at her again, does it seem possible that those angry eyes have drooped in maidenly reserve, or raised in coquetish light to the face of the man in the ill-fitting coat? Can you, by any possible wrench of the imagination, conceive of his tenderly passing peppermints to her; of his taking that hand in his and bashfully squeezing it? But it was so. Many a "God bless you," has been uttered above that bare head, many a kiss pressed on that uncombed hair. The tightly compressed lips have lovingly framed tender invitations to him to take another bite of cake and pickle. The hands that are now parboiled and blistered and marked with scars from the breed knife, and scratches from the last setting hen, were once twined lovingly about his neck, and the nose which is now peaked and red, and looks as if it would stand on its hind legs and scream with rage, once followed the figures of his new vest pattern, or bore heavily against his jugular vein. As little probable as this seems to you, it seems less to her. She has forgotten it. She won't hear it talked of by others. She cannot bear to see it acted by others. Two lovers are to her "a passel of fools." And—but George is rubbing his head, and we turn aside while our heroine readjusts her slipper.—Danbury News.

Scene in Court: Judge—"Have you anything to offer to the Court before sentence is passed on you?" Prisoner—"No, Judge; I had ten dollars, but my lawyers took that."

CONCENTRATED Essence of Jamaica Ginger.

THIS popular preparation possesses all the most valuable properties of JAMAICA GINGER, in a highly concentrated form. It is an Excellent Tonic, and is particularly recommended in that low state of the system resulting from the attacks of Fevers and other debilitating diseases, and in those cases of "Weak Stomach" so prevalent among persons advanced in years, as it gives tone and strength to the Digestive Organs, and by its stimulative influence in the stomach, diffuses a cordial warmth, thereby gradually exhilirating the whole system. It will be found highly beneficial in cases where a predisposition to Rheumatic affections, or of Gout, exists, and to the sufferer from Dyspepsia. It speedily removes Colic, Cramps and pain in the Stomach, and Dysentery.
