MAY HAVE BEEN MAN OF TITLE

Creswell, Who Died in Asylum, Identified as Sir Roger Tichborne.

London, Feb. 13. — William Creswell, who has just died in the Parramatta Hospital for the Insane, used to say that he did not prove himself to be Sir Roger Tichborne because he had promised Arthur Orton not to disclose his identity.

According to his friends, Creswell, as Sir Roger Tichborne, was madly in love with his cousin, Miss Kate Doughty, and when he left England for Rio they were mutually bound to each other. They do not, however, seem to have corresponded, as while at Rio Creswell heard for the first time from an officer who was at one time in the same regiment as Creswell—the Sixth Dragoons—that Miss Doughty had transferred her affections to Sir P. Radcliffe, to whom she was afterwards married.

The news is said to have driven Tichborne, alias Creswell, to drink, and he was carried on board the schooner Bella, bound for Australia, in a hopeless state of intoxication. The finding of the court that the Bella foundered was, according to Mr. Priestman, who championed the case of Creswell, erroneous, as the schooner had been proved to have arrived in Australia under the name of Osprey, with Sir Roger Tichborne on board.

The movements of Creswell had been traced from the date of his arrival in the Osprey until his death in the Parramatta Hospital, and nothing will shake the belief of Mr. Priestman that Creswell was Sir Roger Tichborne Creswell was 75 years of age.

50,000 CATTLE PERISH BY COLD

Zero Weather Reaps Rich Harvest of Death in All Sections of the United States.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—With almost unprecedented cold and deep snow, delays in passenger and freight transportation, much loss of human life and some damage to live stock were reported from a vast territory west, south and north of Chicago today. Moderation set in tonight northwest of here. In Chicago the rare temperature of 18 degrees below zero was reported today, causing great suffering among the poor. Hardships are experienced in the Southwest, including Oklahoma, Indian Territory, Arkansas, New Mexico, Missouri and Northern Texas.

With a record-breaking temperature of 25 degrees below zero at Kansas City, and fifteen inches of snow under a clear sky—and this indicates conditions in the whole southwest—a dozen persons have been frozen to death in the last two days in Oklahoma, Indian Territory and adjoining states.

Trains are delayed by snowdrifts, but wheat is protected and live stock losses will not be extensive. The temperature in the southwest tonight tends towards moderation

Henry Ball, of Ponka City, Oklahoma, a wealthy cattleman, was frozen to death while driving; Chas. Williams was found today near Guthrie, Oklahoma, frozen stiff.

In the Middle West, including Iowa, Kansas, Nebraska, and adjoining states, the cold is intense. Trains are much delayed and coal is scarce at several places. Herders and travelers have been frozen on the prairies in several states. Intense cold and deep snow are killing hundreds of deer and other wild animals in Northern Wisconsin and Upper Michigan. Even wolves' carcasses have been found.

Farmers' report that wild cats and wolves appear to have lost all fear, raiding chicken coops, pig pens and even cattle barns. With the south just beginning to recover from the paralyzing to wire and rail communications inflicted by sleet storms of last week, a cold wave spread from Arizona to the Atlantic and from the Ohio River to the Gulf region, heavy snowfalls are reported. Traffic is hindered by snow around Birmingham In Mississippi in the central and northern portions, the tie-up of railways was made almost complete today. There have been no trains between Meridean and New Orleans for a week. Atlanta's expectations of breaking the blockade of last week were shattered by today's blizzard and only three or four wires are giving regular service in and out of the city.

I. E. Bolton, secretary of the Oklahoma Live Stock Association, says the live stock losses this year will be the greatest since 1896. He places the number of head lost on the ranges in Western Kansas, Western Oklahoma and the Panhandle of Texas at 50,000 head.

A general warming up is noticeable tonight in the Northwest, St. Paul showing a temperature of 4 below tonight as compared with 25 below 24 hours ago. In the Canadian Northwest and throughout Montana from 6 to 30 above was reported tonight. Among the temperature recorded tonight are the following: Bismarck, N. D., 22 above; Cheyenne, 24 below; Cleveland, 6 above; Denver, 32 above; Detroit, 2 below; Indianapolis, 10 below; Chicago, 10 below: Kansas City, zero; Duluth, 4 below: Milwaukee, 8 below; New Orelans, 24 above; St. Louis, zero; Omaha, 2 above.

CZAR'S POLICE FLOG A GIRL

Sick Woman Put to Frightful Torture in Order to Extract Secrets.

London, Feb. 11. — The Paris correspondent of the Times wires: Owing to the contradictory reports, colored, no doubt, in one sense or the other in proportion to the sympathy or the reverse which Russia inspires at the present moment, the public mind here is a little confused as to the real extent and nature of the atrocities which were recently perpetrated at St. Petersburg. In the Paris edition of an important New York paper the foreign correspondents at St. Petersburg are soundly rated editorially for having purposely exaggerated the terrors that took place, and this on the authority of this paper's special representative, who, however, admittedly arrived on the scene some days after all the bloody work was over.

As an offset to this Russophile protest, a letter, which appears tonight in the Temps from its accredited special correspondent at St. Petersburg, deserves to be quoted, more especially as the Temps is the most reliable and sober-sided of all the Paris journals, and is the favorite semi-official organ of the French foreign office. According to this correspondent, a Russian, who did not belong to the official class, but who spoke with a profound accent of sincerity, recounted to him that the St. Petersburg police, with the object of establishing the existence of a revolutionist plot, which, however, was purely fictitious, had made free use of the birch in order to force imaginary confessions from their prisoners and from wounded men and women who were being treated in the hospitals, and this in spite of the fact that the practice of corporal punishment and torture had been legally abolished by the Czar.

One girl student, who had had her breast partially severed by a Cossack's saber, was taken away from the hospital before she was half cured and questioned as to her connection with the anarchist organization by the commissioner of police. Her replies being unsatisfactory, she was stripped and flogged with a birch on the lower part of her back until sheer agony forced her to declare anything her torturers wished. She was then returned to the hospital, where it was necessary to place her on an elastic bed filled with curded milk, so dreadfully had she been thrashed.

A student of the Technological Institute was similarly whipped and sent home in a dying condition. Preposterous stories as to the amount of money forwarded from England and Japan were told by rioters, and they were all extracted from the victims of the police under the above circumstances.

The same Russian informant of the Temps states that he visited fifteen out of forty-six hospitals in St. Petersburg in search of a missing relative, and counted 2,195 dead, which would prove that the grand total was very different from the 96 which the authorities confessed to.

SOCIETY DAMES AT MURDER TRIAL

Women of Fashion Show Morbid Curiosity Strongly in Berlin.

Berlin, Feb. 13. — Berlin is astounded by the trial of Louis Berger for the murder of a little girl named Lucie Berlin, whose mutilated body was found by the police in the Spree last June.

Lucie's parents inhabit a small flat in one of those vast barrack-like houses so common in the poorer part of the city, in which the extreme poverty of one section of the tenants leaves them no time to observe that their next door neighbors gain their livelihood by means of vice and infamy.

This particular house, which is owned by a lady of title, is said to harbor upwards of 150 families though many of the families consist of one, sometimes two, persons, whose home contains only one room and a kitchen. The accused did not live here himself, but lodged occasionally with a woman whose flat opened on to the same landing as did that of the Berlins.

The occupation and pernicious life of the class to which Berger belongs, which is generally hidden from the public, has been unrolled and discussed in awful detail during the present trial, and yet it was observed that the occupants of the public galleries were for the most part ladies evidently belonging to the better classes.

The evidence will give social reformers food for reflection for many years to come. It showed that the present dwelling arrangements in the poorer part of Berlin literally encourage vice. Lucie Berlin was brutally murdered, her head and limbs were severed from the body, and were afterward found in the Spree.

The prosecution argues that Berger occupied his landlady's flat during three days which she spent in prison (in this time the murder was committed), enticed little Lucie Berlin into it, committed the crime with which he is charged, packed the child's body in a basket, and dropped all into the river, where the movement of the water caused the basket to open and its contents to fall out. Berger admits that he stayed in the flat at the time referred to.

A most formidable array of scientific evidence has been heard. Psychological scholars have discussed every possibility regarding how and why the child may have been murdered giving, in the course of their evidence the whole known natural history of the "bete humaine."

To Preserve Niagara.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 13.—The effect upon Niagara Falls of withdrawing water for electric power purposes was the subject of a concurrent resolution introduced tonight by Assemblyman Palmer, leader of the Democrats. A similar resolution was a feature of last year's session. It provides for a memorial addressed to the President and Congress of the United States, "requesting that they by treaty or otherwise, enter into negotiations with his Majesty's Government of Great Britain, looking to ome joint action for the preservation of Niagara Falls from further waste and diversion of the waters thereof."

PARISIANS FIGHT OVER CIGAR STUB

Clash Over Disputed Territory and One Lands in the Hospital.

Paris, Feb. 13.—The Paris "megotiers" make a very good thing out of their profession by pushing their crooked sticks under the cafe tables, and annexing cast-off cigar or cigarette ends. One of these, Michael Werzer, has for years had the monopoly around the bourse, which, as may readily be supposed, was a most valuable patch, because the stock brokers smoked good cigars, and left generous stubs. The other day another Richmond appeared in the field in the person of Zepherin Richard, who to the open disgust of Werzer, commenced working the claim he had pegged out.

At first Werzer said nothing, for he consoled himself with the thought that there was enough for two, but yesterday, at the corner of the Rue Vivienne, just as he was about to capture the butt end of a fine cigar, the more agile crook of Zepherin was thrust under his nose and the treasure was borne away by his rival.

This was too much for Werzer, and with a thwack he brought his stick down on the other's head. A battle royal ensued, between the two, which resulted in the intervention of the police. Werzer was sent to the hospital, and Zepherin was conducted to the police station. They will both be unable to resume their duties for some time, and when they come out they will probably find a third person has "jumped" their claim.

WRECK CAUSED A DRUNKEN ORGY

Natives On Coast Soaked Up Booze From Wrecked Spanish Boat.

London, Feb. 13. — At the mouth of the Mersey, on the stretch of Cheshire coast known as Wallasey shore, there have been extraordinary scenes recently. Six miles of beach have been strewn with the products of the groves and vineyards of Spain—oranges and citrons and grapes and barrels of port. The neighboring folk have helped themselves freely to all these riches, and many have drunk the wine unwisely and too well until the scene developed into a drunken orgy.

The steamer Ulloa, bound for Liverpool from Spain with a cargo of Spanish wines and oranges and various kinds of fruit, went ashore on one of the many sandbanks in the mouth of the Mersey, about a quarter of a mile from the Wallasey shore. At night a heavy storm arose and broke up the fore part of the vessel, liberating a large part of the cargo. The wind blew ashore about 300 cases of oranges and numerous boxes of raisins, lemons, figs, and onions together with five 100-gallon casks of port wine.

Toward the next evening the villagers turned out to view the debris left on their shore by the receding tide. Many of the cases of fruit had been burst open by the force of the waves, and the shore for miles was covered with rich-colored fruits, the prevailing tone of which was a bright orange. As the sun began to sink in the west its departing rays caught the wet surfaces of the oranges and a spectacle of the most dazzling brightness was the result.

As night drew on, and as fear of detection was reduced to a minimum, the villagers crept out on the dunes, silently appropriated the cases of oranges, and carried or dragged them home. All night long small boys labored through the quiet streets under the burden of bags of oranges, laying up stores of enjoyment for weeks to come.

The denouement was reached when the first brave man approached a cask of port with bottle in hand. Regardless of excise officers and coastguards alike he soon punctured the side of the cask with a gimlet, and slowly filled his bottle. His example was quickly followed by others, and the casks were pierced with numerous small holes, from which spurted streams of tempting liquor.

Some filled bottles, some sucked at the holes. Presently this mode of tapping became too slow. The bungs were extracted, and out poured copious streams of red wine. Buckets and lading cans were procured, and men were seen trudging home, carrying the wine in buckets as carelessly as if it had been water from the pump.

Bottles in the village were soon at a premium. Sixpence and a shilling each were given for empty whisky bottles, and the owners washed them out with the port before refilling them.

Some ingenious persons hit upon the device of investing in bottles of ginger beer for the sake of the empty bottles, and one man filled as many as 74 bottles during the evening. The wine was consumed in large quantities, many drinking it as if it were beer. The shore soon became the scene of an orgy. Men with fevered brains sang loudly and danced around the casks, and many a roysterer lay down to sleep upon the damp sands. The more seasoned topers paraded the streets on unsteady legs, and the village resounded with the echoes of their drunken songs until the small hours of the morning.

At 3 o'clock in the morning three bonfires shone at distant intervals among the sandhills. Now and again against the flare of burning wreckage was silhouetted a figure. On approaching one discovered a group of seven men lying around a 100-gallon, upturned cask of port. Bottles and cups lay about filled with the wine. Several were drinking; two others in the last stage of intoxication. There was now little of the liquor left, for these men had made several journeys on successive nights with all sorts of utensils, which they had filled and taken home. A similar scene was witnessed at one of the other campfires. The intruder was on each occasion instantly asked to help himself.

The ship and cargo are supposed to be uninsured. The remainder of the cargo is of considerable value, consisting of whisky, rum and tobacco, the whole being valued at $100,000.

When the vessel went ashore the crew was removed, but the captain resolutely stuck to the ship, and when efforts were made to forcibly remove him he ran to his cabin and threatened to shoot anyone who approached.

On Saturday evening large crowds of people came from Liverpool, and the coastguards went so far as to draw their swords in protecting the wine casks.

THE J. B. HILL CASE

A Sensational Affidavit Read Before the Court.

St. Thomas, Ont., Feb. 13.—The trial of J. B. Hill, the bankrupt drygoods merchant, was opened this morning before Police Magistrate Glenn. Considerable time was taken up in discussion of the charge that Mr. Hill's books had not been kept properly, and it was finally decided to proceed with the specific charge that Mr. Hill had, with intent to defraud his creditors, disposed of goods to R. M. Lindsey, of this city. The case is still in progress.

An affidavit was read from J. B. Hill, stating that Nisbet & Auld, wholesale dealers, of Toronto, had pressed him to make an assignment, and required the assignment to be made to Richard Lee, representing that the costs occasioned would be very small, a great deal less than if he made it to parties in London. Mr. Hill also stated that R. C. Nisbet told him when he made the assignment that he had a purchaser for the stock at 85 cents on the dollar, and would purchase the building for $18,000. After the assignment he heard nothing of this purchaser, but Mr. Nisbet told him he would prosecute him and spend $1,000 of his own money to send him to prison. He complained also that his examination had been protracted for an unreasonable time, and he had been addressed by Mr. Arnoldi, K. C., repeatedly in a vicious and insulting manner, referring to religious matters that were highly improper and not connected with his business or estate. Crown-Attorney McCrimmon and F. Arnoldi, K. C., appeared for the prosecution, and J. A. Robinson and C. F. Maxwell for the defense.

ROW IN CONGRESS

Hearst Accuses a Representative of Aiding in a Murder.

Washington, Feb. 13. — Not in recent years has the House of Representatives witnessed such a spectacle as it did today with Messrs. Sullivan, of Massachusetts, and Hearst, of New York, as the central figures. Both indulged in personalities of the gravest character, and so stirred the public as to arouse among certain members feelings of the greatest indignation. Mr. Sullivan heaped upon Mr. Hearst a tirade of denunciation, while the latter, by implication, charged Mr. Sullivan with complicity in a murder. The affair grew out of the recent discussion of the freight rate question in the House, when Mr. Sullivan inquired of Mr. Lamar, of Florida, who was favoring the Hearst bill, why Mr. Hearst did not defend his own bill, this being followed by a criticism of Mr. Sullivan in the New York American and Journal. Several appeals were made to Speaker Cannon to cause the two men to desist in their abuse of each other. Speaker Cannon, however, allowed them to proceed. Mr. Sullivan entirely concluded, but in the case of Mr. Hearst the Speaker, on reconsideration, noting the temper of the House, decided that an accusation of homicide against a fellow member was not parliamentary, because it was calculated to provoke disorder and disturbance. Almost immediately thereafter Mr. Hearst took his seat, hurling defiance, and declaring that it would be his pride to continue his hostility to individuals such as he charged Mr. Sullivan to be.

GIVES EAR TO KOSSUTH

Considered Historical Event May Bring Much Good.

Vienna, Feb. 14.—Francis Kossuth, the leader of the independence party in the Hungarian Parliament, was received recently by the Emperor-King and discussed with his majesty the political situation and the cabinet crisis in Hungary.

The streets to the imperial palace were crowded with people to see the former revolutionist entering the residence of the same Emperor who condemned Louis Kossuth, father of Francis, to death.

The political earthquake which made this posible was the sweeping victory of the united opposition parties at the polls in Hungary on Jan. 26, which gave them control of the Lower House of the Hungarian Parliament. Kossuth declares that it is impossible to govern Hungary without the help of this united party or against its wishes.

Kossuth was with his majesty nearly an hour, and was treated with great distinction. He expressed fully his views and his party's, to which the Emperor listened attentively, but did not make any reply affecting the situation.

If Kossuth stands fast for his party's programme his position is a strong one, and it is believed that he will do so. It is hoped that the Emperor's approaching visit to Budapest, where he will confer with other Hungarian leaders, will do much to help find the solution.

Kossuth declares that he came to Vienna with the purpose and in the hope of convincing the Emperor that no party exists in Hungary desiring to separate the interests of Hungary from those of the house of Hapsburg; that the independence party is most loyal, and that Hungary would become the strongest prop of the dynasty if it were permitted to have free and untrammeled development. He says further, when the independence party's programme is realized all differences between Austria and Hungary will disappear.

The interview with Emperor Francis Joseph is regarded in Austria and Hungary as an historical event, because it is believed it will actually lead to closer relations between the house of Hapsburg and those Hungarians who have been opposed to the existing double form of government. It is hoped that the near future may see the establishment of a system of international life between Austria and Hungary which ultimately will lead to relations similar to those existing between Norway and Sweden. In substance, the independence party's programme is the complete independence of Hungary from Austria as a nation, but Hungary's continuance under the personal sovereignty of the head of the house of Hapsburg and mutual protective unity between the two nations.

The Hungarian Parliament should hold its opening session on Feb. 17, but if no cabinet shall have been appointed by that time the session necessarily will be postponed.

Canadians in London Say Our Goods Are Adulterated.

London, Feb. 13.—One of the best-known Canadians in London, and one closely in touch with the importers of Canadian goods, speaking today, said he knew many instances where Canadian goods were much inferior to the samples shown. "Take maple syrup, for an instance," he said. "It is exceedingly difficult to procure a single gallon of the pure syrup in London, though mostly all who have it for sale claim their article is the real thing. They are not to blame, as no doubt the article has been sold tot them as such. Take another commodity—corn. Today you purchase a can and you find it full, splendid and beautiful corn; tomorrow you purchase another and find it full of husks. Something should be done by the Canadian Government to prevent adulteration of some Canadian goods.

Another Canadian, an extensive importer of veneered timber, to whom was mentioned the difficulty of procuring maple syrup, replied: "It is perfectly true. I found that difficulty. Why, even in my trade in timber, I cannot get veneered timber sent me from Canada. Canadian timber men have, at my request, put the timber in water for two days, but when the timber supplied by them arrived here it would not stand the test of water for half an hour. Many of my customers are very much dissatisfied, so now I have had to look for other markets for veneered timber."

The London Chamber of Commerce is giving a dinner to Lord Minto. The tickets cost 31 shilling and 6 pence.

Source of Supply Poisoned

An Alarming Condition Present in Many Places in Canada—How Best to Correct It.

Many people all over the Dominion are being poisoned slowly but surely, and that by their own carelessness.

The food may be pure, but digestion is not complete, and all that is not digested, rots and ferments, giving off the most violent poisons. What was intended to sustain life really turns into that which destroys life.

The temperature of the body is a little over 98 degrees. Every particle of undigested food lies in the Stomach and Bowels, subject to this temperature, which is as high as in the sun on a hot summer day. It is not necessary to explain how quickly such heat will decompose dead matter, either animal or vegetable.

The Stomach and Bowels must be set right—Anti-Pill will do it. Dr. Leonhardt made his Anti-Pill specifically to correct these conditions, and it has never failed when given a fair chance.

WASTING AWAY

It's the small but constant loss of flesh that indicates physical waste — the gradual slipping away of healthy flesh, pound by pound, which no ordinary food seems to restore. Scott's Emulsion will restore it. This Emulsion is the greatest flesh builder obtainable. Scott's Emulsion first stops the wasting—that's one gain. Then when it supplies new flesh and takes one back to normal strength and weight, that's another gain and a big one.
