BIBLE TEACHING NOT PERMITTED

School Teachers May Just Read Scriptures.

EXPLANATIONS ELIMINATED

Memory Course Has Proved Valuable Locally.

An effort now underway in many Western Ontario cities to allow Bible reading and teaching in the public schools has not thus far reached London. In St. Thomas, at the present time, a lively controversy is raging over the matter, and a number of the trustees have expressed themselves very strongly on the matter. As yet the outcome of the controversy appears to be in doubt, but a strenuous effort is being made by those behind the movement to institute the teaching of religious matters in the schools.

In this city, according to Inspector Greer, Bible readings are permitted, although the matter of explaining the subjects is left entirely to the pastor of the church to which the children belong. Passages from the Bible are, in many cases, included in the regular class readers, but only in story form, the actual explanation of the subjects being eliminated entirely.

"It is our desire to avoid any religious controversy which might involve the teacher in an way over church matters," declared one of the school inspectors in discussing the matter today. It is pointed out that, to a certain extent, teaching in the schools is governed by departmental rules, although the local board is permitted to decide whether or not passages from the Bible are to be allowed in the schools.

London was only recently complimented by the Middlesex Deanery Sunday School Association for good services rendered by inaugurating a Bible memory course in the public schools.

DECIDE BUYING USED PIANOS FOR SCHOOLS

Board of Education Likely to Take Action on Practice.

When the finance committee of the Board of Education meets in another week or so, its members will be faced with a number of rather interesting problems, one of them being the matter of whether or not to discontinue the practice of purchasing secondhand pianos for the city schools. The board has during the past few months placed a number of pianos in schools of the city and in every case a discarded, remodeled piano was made use of.

It appears, however, that Musical Supervisor Quantz objects very strongly to this plan of using "hand-me-down" articles, and at a recent meeting his objections were voiced by Chairman Edwin Smith. The entire question was referred to the finance committee at the last meeting of the board and since that time several offers from local piano companies have been sent in to the secretary for consideration by this committee.

There is a strong possibility that the entire matter may be laid over until next year, owing to the fact that the purchase of new pianos at the present time would involve a heavy expenditure.

KILLED IN G. T. R. YARDS AT NIAGARA

Fred. Brophy Victim of Wreck To-Day —Brother Resides at Sarnia.

Fred. Brophy, formerly a resident of Stratford, was killed in a wreck in the Grand Trunk Railway yards at Niagara Falls early to-day, according to a report received at the divisional offices of the G. T. R. to-day.

Brophy was employed as a yardman in Stratford for several years and recently was transferred to Niagara Falls. He is survived by one brother, a railroad man at Sarnia.

Church Societies and Clubs

ANNUAL MEETING.

About 100 members of the Home Department of Talbot Street Baptist Sunday school, attended their annual meeting yesterday afternoon, when excellent reports, presented by the teacher, Mrs. F. Hazelgrove, who presided, showed a flourishing condition of the department in which the membership has passed the 200 mark.

An instructive talk by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Bowley Green, on "The Power of the Bible in the Home," in which he gave instances of its great influence in the home and in other sections of the community, was the chief feature of the afternoon, which also included a delightful sing, by Mrs. E. Watt, and several recitations by Mrs. Fred Smith.

Greetings brought from sister societies added greatly to the pleasure and interest of the meeting. The following were present as representatives: Adelaide Street Home Department, Miss Freeland; Maitland Street, Mrs. Fred Brown; Wortley Road, Mrs. Reed; Egerton Street, Mrs. A. Pyman.

At the close of the meeting tea was served, in charge of Mrs. George Stuart, and a pleasant social hour enjoyed.

B. Y. P. U. PRAYER-MEETING.

The prayer-meeting last night at Talbot Street Baptist Church was in charge of the B. Y. P. U., the "Big Brother" of which, S. Hudgell, occupied the chair. The address of the evening was given by the pastor, Rev. Dr. Bowley Green. Choosing as his subject the fourth chapter of Acts and the miracle of healing, Dr. Green said that great power was given to those, whether educated or not, who lived in close contact with Christ. Percy Schott led the singing, while charming solos were contributed to the program by Miss Kathleen Stewart and Miss Elsie Orr. The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Annie Jervis.

QUILTING BEE.

A social afternoon spent in quilting for their bazaar of next week was enjoyed by the Chancel Guild of St. Matthew's Anglican Church at their regular meeting yesterday afternoon, which was presided over by the president, Mrs. Thomas Beer. The devotional part of the program was taken by Rev. T. J. and Mrs. Chariton. At the close of the afternoon refreshments were served by a committee, convened by Mrs. Charles Dyson and Mrs. W. R. Dear.

WELLINGTON STREET W. M. S.

In recognition of the day of prayer being celebrated this week by the Methodist Women's Missionary Societies of the city, the society of Wellington Street Church took charge of the regular weekly prayer-meeting last night, when the president and vice-presidents occupied seats on the platform. An interesting talk on prayer was given by the president, Mrs. Joseph Holliday, who presided. Mrs. R. Booth and Mrs. Kerr, first and third vice-presidents, respectively, led in prayer, while Mrs. E. Colling, second vice-president, opened with a hymn and also led in prayer. Several other members of the society also took part in the devotional part of the meeting.

SOCIAL PROGRESSIVE CLUB.

Mrs. Frank Ram, Rectory street, entertained the members of the Social Progressive Club of the Latter Day Saints' Church at their regular meeting yesterday afternoon. With the hostess in receiving the guests was her mother-in-law, Mrs. Harry Ram. At the close of the afternoon, which, with the president, Mrs. T. B. Richardson, presiding, was spent in marking articles for the bazaar of next Tuesday, afternoon tea was served by Miss Alberta Ram.

The Deil's Reply To Robert Burns

Tonight all true and loyal Scotchmen, be they from Princess Street or Glasgae, Aberdeen or Inverness, will join in honoring their patron saint 'round the festive board. St. Andrews' Society in London will hold its annual banquet in the Tecumseh House and will entertain guests from other local organizations.

The following poem, "The Deil's Reply to Robert Burns," has been clipped from The Greencock News and contributed by Robert Simmie as appropriate of the day:

Oh, wae's me, Rab! hae ye gane gyte?
What is't that gars ye tak' delight
To jeer at me, and ban and flyte
In Scottish rhyme,
And, fausely, gie me a' the wyte
O' ilka crime?

O' auld nicknames ye' hae a fouth,
O' sharp sarcastic rhymes a routh,
And as you're bent to gie them scouth,
'Twere just as weel
For you to tell the honest truth,
And shame the Deil!

I dinna mean to note the whole
O' your unfounded rizmarole;
I'd rather haud my tongue, and thole
Your clishmaclavers,
Than try to plod through sic a scroll
O' senseless havers.

O' warlocks and o' witches a',
O' spunkies, kelpies, great or sma'
There isna ony truth ava
In what you say,
For siccan frichts I never saw
Up to this day.

The truth is, Rab, that wicked men,
When caught in crimes that are their ain,
To find a help are unco fain
To share the shame,
And so they shout wi' might and main,
The Deil's to blame!

Thus I am blamed for Adam's fa',
You say that I maist ruined a';
I' tell ye ae thing, thatts no twa,
It's just a lee,
I fashtna wi' the pair ava
But loot them be.

I'd nae mair haun in that transgression
You deem the source o' a' oppression,
And wae, and death, and man's damnation
Than you yersel';
I filled a decent situation
When Adam fell.

And, Rab, gin ye'll just read your Bible
Instead o' blin' Jock Milton's fable
I'll plank a croon on ony table,
Against a groat,
To fin' my name ye'll no' be able
In a' the plot.

Your mother, Eve, I kent her brawly,
A dainty quean she was, and wally,
But destitute o' prudence wholly,
The witless hussy,
Aye bent on fun an' nonsense alway,
An mischief busy.

Her father had a bonny tree,
The apples on't allured her e'e;
He warned her no the fruit to pree,
Nor climb the wa',
For if she did she'd surely dee,
And leave it a'.

As for that famous serpent story,
To lee I'd baith be shamed and sorry,
It's just a clever allegory,
And weel writ doon;
The wark o' an Egyptian Tory,
I kent the loon.

Your tale o' Job the man o' Uz,
Wi' reekit claes and reested-gizz,
My hornie hooves and smoutie phiz,
Wi' ither clatter,
Is maistly, after a' the biz,
A moonshine matter.

Auld Job, I kent the carle right weel,
An honest, decent kintra chiel,
W' head to plan and heart to feel
An' han' to gi'e;
He wadna wrang'd the verra Deil
A braw bawbee.

The man was geyan weel to do,
Had horse and kye and ousen too,
And sheep and stots and stirks enew
To fill a byre,
O' meat and claes' a' maistly new,
His heart's desire.

Forby, he had within the dwallings,
Three winsome queans and five braw callans
Ye wadna in the hale braid Lallans
Hae fand their marrow,
Were ye to search fra auld Tautallans
To Braes o' Yarrow.

It happened that three breekless bands
O' caterans cam' frae distant lands,
An' took what fell among their hands,
O' sheep and duddies,
Just like your reivin' Hielan clans
Or Border bodies.

I tell ye, Rab, I hae nae share
In a' the tulzie, here or there;
I lookit on, I do declare,
A mere spectator,
Nor said nor acted, less or mair,
Aboot the matter.

Job had a minstrel o' his ain,
A genius rare, and somewhat vain
Of rhyme and lear, but then, again,
Just like yersel',
O' drink and lasses of unco fain,
The ne'er do weel.

He'd sing o' lads and leddies fair,
O' love and hope and mirk despair,
And wond'rous tales wad whiles prepare,
And string thegither;
For a' he wanted was a hair
To mak' a tether.

So, with intention fully bent
My doing to misrepresent,
That Book o' Job he did invent.
And then his rhymes
Got published in Arabic prent
To suit the times.

You poets, Rab, are a' the same,
Of ilka country, age and name;
Nae matter what may be your aim
Or your intentions,
Maist a' your characters o' fame
Are pure inventions.

Your dogs are baith debaters rare,
Wi' sense galore and some to spare;
While e'en the very Brigs o' Ayr
Ye gar them quarrel;
Tak' Colla ben to deck your hair
Wi' Scottish laurel.

Yet, Robin, lad, for a' your spite,
And taunts and jeers and wrangfu' wyte,
I find, before you end your flyte,
And wind yer pirn,
Ye'er nae sae cankered in the bite
As in the girn.

For when ye think he's doom'd to dwell
The lang for-ever-more in hell,
Ye come and bid a kind farewell,
And, guid be here,
E'en for the verra Deil himsel'
Let fa' a tear.

And, Rab, I'm just as wae for thee
As ever thou canst be for me;
For, less ye let the drink abee,
I'll tak' my aith
Ye'll a' gang wrang, and maybe dee
A drunkard's death.

Sure as ye mourned the daisy's fate,
That fate is thine nae distant date,
Stern Ruin's plowshare drives elate
Full on thy bloom
And crushed beneath the furrow's weight
May be thy doom.

ULSTER DISAPPROVES OF DETAINING CATTLE

LONDON, Nov. 30.—(Canadian Press Cable.)—The Ulster members of the House of Commons yesterday waited on Premier Bonar Law as a deputation to express disapproval of a provision in the draft bill for the removal of the cattle embargo that six days' detention at British ports should be required in the case of store cattle landed from Ireland. The Daily Express says it is understood that in introducing the bill providing for removal of the embargo on Canadian cattle the Government will declare that it can be passed through all its stages at the present session of Parliament only if treated as a non-contentious measure. If there is any opposition to the bill, The Express says, it will go over to another session.

LIQUOR PRICES WON'T BE CUT

Quotations In Ontario Will Remain Firm.

DESPITE QUEBEC REDUCTIONS

No Hope For Less Expensive Christmas Cheer.

Although the Quebec License Commission has announced a reduction of five to fifty per cent. in the price of all imported liquors, Ontario will not follow suit. In fact, the manager of the local dispensary stated to-day that even at the reduced price Quebec liquor would not be any cheaper than it can be bought for in this province.

"We sell a bigger bottle here," he said, "and when the difference in freight rates is taken into consideration the price in Quebec has always been higher than in this province. If the reduction is as big as you state, it will bring prices in the two provinces about on an equality."

While the price of liquor in this province is held to be as low as it can be, yet it is said by those in a position to know that Quebec has Ontario beaten when it comes to bargain prices in the ardent. One man who does considerable business with Montreal and is in the latter city at least once a month, said he could purchase liquor in that city at retail, add the freight rate to the price charged between there and London, and still have cheaper liquor ounce for ounce than he can get here at the dispensary. "The only difficulty is that under the law I can't ship it in, so the Ontario Government really has a monopoly of the business."

Whether the reduction in Quebec prices will have any effect on the figure charged by bootleggers is unknown. People who have had experience with those gentlemen say the price charged is usually all the traffic can stand, and if a reduction in Quebec makes it possible for them to get stock at a cheaper figure than before it is not likely that there will be any difference in the local quotations. "The police usually get busy around Christmas time," said one gentleman who has been suspected of disposing of the odd crock to his friends, "so I'm going to lay off it. There's no use in getting the stuff a little cheaper in Montreal if you've got to pay it all into the police court here, and, believe me, I'm not taking any chances."

MOTORIZE LOCAL FIRE DEPARTMENT

Ald. Childs Supports Plank In Mayoralty Platform.

SAVE CITIZENS $6,000

Great Reception For Candidate At McCormicks.

Ald. H. J. Childs, candidate for the mayoralty, was given a great reception at two enthusiastic meetings held at noon to-day at McCormick's factory.

Briefly outlining his platform he cited especially his policy on the restriction of the abuse of the two-thirds vote to foist pavements and other such construction on unwilling taxpayers and promised that improvements will be made only where the people want them. In this connection, he declared, that London must revise its policy so as to provide for better care of unpaved streets.

The motorization of the fire department, which he strongly advocates, will result in important economies and at the same time will greatly improve the protection afforded in all parts of the city. He stated that a $6,000 saving has been made for the ratepayers by temporarily closing the North End fire station. The claim of an opponent that the horses are now "eating their heads off" in the central station was shown to be rashly made without inquiring into the facts. The truth of the matter is that one of the horses which had been in service in the North End station died of paralysis about the time the station was closed up and the other horse was transferred to the public works department and is now in service of the garbage department. Tests actually made with the knowledge of the fire underwriters' inspectors proved that motor apparatus from the central station can get to a fire in the North End more quickly than the horses could haul the apparatus from No. 4, even in their own immediate territory. In two particular cases of serious fires the central companies had two lines of water playing before the North End apparatus arrived. But Mr. Childs showed that when a motor truck is provided in the North End there will be a genuine improvement and it will then be good reason to open the North End fire hall.

AROUSED ENTHUSIASM.

Mr. Childs aroused the enthusiasm of the men especially in addressing the second meeting when he declared that it shall be his purpose to further the efforts of organizations which are now striving to have a hockey arena built in London. The co-operation of the various organizations interested in London's advancement can be secured through the good offices of an interested mayor and Council, he said, and he expressed the conviction that the arena can be made an accomplished fact without calling on the ratepayers for any money.

Mr. Childs humorously remarked that he does not lay claim to having all the brains and business acumen in the world, but he said he believed he could lay claim to having a business training, a knowledge of his home city and sound sense to give the people a service that will insure an efficient and economical municipal administration.

He was given a great ovation at the conclusion of both addresses.
