Jeff. Davis' First Step Towards a Dictatorship.

[From the Richmond Enquirer, Nov. 10.]

The press of the Confederate States would have felt securer in its future freedom had the House of Representatives, on yesterday, seen proper to adopt the resolution of Mr. Foote, of Tennessee, against the recommendation of the President to substitute details for exemptions. But the large vote given for the reference to the Military Committee cannot but be accepted by the press as leaving its future condition uncertain. The members who voted for the assurance of the continued liberty of the press will only have to regret that more of the members were not willing to quiet the anxiety of the country upon this important subject. It is not only among the conductors of the press that this recommendation has created great anxiety, but many of the people believe it to be the initial step to dictatorial powers. They cannot see how the cause of the country will be improved by changing exemptions from details; but they readily understand how every semblance of liberty must depart from the press when conducted by government details. The construction put upon this recommendation of the President was denounced yesterday in Congress as that of a "mad man." "I am not mad, most noble Festus, but speak forth the words of soberness and truth." We would have been most gratified if the honorable member who thus denounced our construction had supplied the press with sounder views as to what the President meant. This paper has never exhibited any spirit of factious opposition to the President, and we receive his repommendation with the deepest regret; but we have been unable to discover any other effect for this recommendation than the dependence of the press for continued existence upon the pleasure of the President, should the Congress substitute details for exemptions. We are writing only of the effect, not of the motives of the President; these are known only by himself and his God. But if he is seeking dictatorial powers, what more certain way of accomplishing his ends than the unlimited control of the press, which the power of detailing editors would give him? If the dictator scheme has friends what better way of advancing it than the reference of Mr. Foote's resolution to the Military Committee, there to slumber until the plot has been fully arranged, and is ready to be sprung upon the country.

Girardin tells his readers that a scheme of making Patrick Henry dictator was talked of in the Virginia Assembly in 1776. Archibald Cary, meeting with Col. Syme, the half brother of Henry, in the lobby of the House, accosted him: "Sir, I am told that your brother wishes to be dictator. Tell him, from me, that the day of his appointment shall be the day of his death; for he shall find my dagger in his heart before the sunset of that day." And the scheme was abandoned, for all knew that "Old Iron" would have made good his threat. There are descendants of "Old Iron" living in Virginia yet.

A Warlike World.—The Opinion Nationale of a recent date gives this dismal picture of the present belligerent condition of the world:—If there be a dead calm in politics as well as business amongst us, it is not the same in all parts of the little planet we inhabit. Threequarters of humanity, in fact, are living in the barbarous state of war.—There is war in Poland, war in Algeria, war in Mexico, war in the United States, war in Peru, war in New Zealand, war in China and Kachgar, war in Japan, war in Affghanistan, war in twenty countries in Africa. This is, unfortunately, enough to discourage the friends of universal peace; and who can say they will not meet with still greater disappointment next year? Italy, Hungary, Poland, Denmark, and the Slavonian population of Turkey are not, it must be confessed, in the most pacific humour: and to those who study the general situation of our continent, it is quite evident that the general situation, instead of getting better, goes on from day to day getting more complicated.

Vancouver and British Columbia.—On the 19th of September Governor Kennedy, opened the fourth Session of the Vancouver Legislature. The Governor asks for its views respecting the proposed union with British Columbia. The Vancouver press oppose this unless Victoria, with the smallest population, has an equal number of representatives. They fear that the question of representation by population will become the stalking horse there, as it has been in Canada. Respecting the Indians the Victoria Chronicle states that they have been driven back by the whites, and treated in a way to make them savage and revengful. British Columbia papers report an abundant supply of gold. All the claims were yielding fair wages. The supply of goods was so great that traders are glad to sell at any price. Dr Rae, of the overland telegraph, had arrived at the mouth of the Quesnelle. He came down from Fort George in a canoe with one Indian. John Fraser, formerly of Hawkesbury, C. W., died on William Creek, on the 3rd of Sept.

Killed by Liquor.—The Hastings Chronicle gives an account of two fatal accidents which occurred last month at Stirling, both caused by over indulgence in liquor. An inquest was held in one of the cases, and the jury appended the following to their verdict: "And the jurors aforesaid do declare that the several houses in the village of Stirling in which liquor is sold without license, should be suppressed, as it seems that a great deal of the drunkenness prevalent in this village may be attributed to them; and the said jurors do further declare, that the proprietors of licensed houses should be compelled to close their bars at the time specified in the statute relating to the sale of spirituous liquors. It was also the unanimous opinion of the jury that had the different places where spirituous liquors were sold, been closed on Saturday evening at the proper hour, the deceased would now have been living, and his usual good health."

Effect of Light.—A tadpole confined in darkness would never become a frog; and an infant being deprived of heaven's free light would only grow into a shapeless idiot instead of a beautiful and reasonable being. Hence, in the deep, dark gorges and ravines of the Swiss Valois, where the direct sunshine never reaches, the hideous prevalence of idiocy startles the traveller. It is a strange, melancholy idiocy. Many citizens are incapable of any articulate speech; some are deaf, some are blind, some labor under all these privations, and are all misshapen in almost every part of their body. I believe there is in all places a marked difference in the healthiness of houses according to their aspect with respect to the sun, and those are decidedly the healthiest, other things being equal, in which all the rooms are, during some part of the day, fully exposed to the direct light.—Epidemics attack inhabitants on the shady side of the street and totally exempt those on the other side, and even in epidemics such as ague, the morbid influence is also thus partial in its labors.—[Dr. Moore.

Kidnapping Canadians.—The following is a translation of a letter from the Northern States which appeared in La Minerve of Saturday last:—"Liquor is one of the most efficacious means of the Yankees to seduce Candians in the army, and we have the sorrow to relate that two hundred Canadians allowed themselves to be sold by one Mr. Mignault in the town of Boston alone, while under the influence of liquor. * * * Another scoundrel who sympathizes with that seller of human flesh, Mignault, of Boston, J. Octave Lafleur, jr., of Springfield Mass., who sold twenty Canadians in six weeks, a great number of whom came from Canada. This young Lafleur often goes to Montreal to buy men and horses, and deserves to be arrested on your side of the lines." The correspondent in question further states that there are now 20,000 Canadian soldiers in the Federal army, where, of course, they are kept in inferior grades and not favored with promotion, although they rank among the hardiest and bravest troops in the army.

☞ "When's the next train?" said a tourist to an Irish railway porter. "Oh, it's just gone, yer honor, worse luck!" replied Paddy.

Big Potatoes.—An editor somewhere in Maine is exasperated at the potato stories which are going the rounds, and revenges himself with the following:—"A gentleman is digging around one for us, and if he can get it lifted, will have it hauled down to our office. It is somewhat damaged as a yoke of oxen had been feeding on it for two days before our friend commenced at it."

A Mistake.—Charles to the altar led the lovely Jane, and to her father's house returned again; where, to convey them on their wedding tour, already stood a brilliant coach and four. When, lo! the gathering showers at once descend, clouds roll on clouds, and warring winds contend; this moves him not, but in his hands his bride, and seats himself enraptured by her side; when thus to cheer the fair one he begun: "I hope we soon shall have a little sun." But she, to whom the weather gave no pain, who heeded not the blast nor pattering rain, but most about her future state bethought her, replied, "My dear, I'd rather have a little daughter."

To ROBT. GIBBONS, Esq., and one hundred and eighty-five others, Municipal Electors of the town of Goderich:

Gentlemen,—

Your requisition, so largely and respectably signed, reached me here this morning, and in compliance therewith I beg to say, that although I had resolved to retire altogether from Municipal politics, I cannot refuse to comply with your request, and, therefore, place myself at your disposal. In doing so I assure you that if elected, with regard to all important questions affecting the finances of the town, including that of the Market, I shall be guided entirely in my line of conduct by the voice of a majority of the Municipal Electors of the town.

I am, gentlemen,

With highest respect,

Your obd'nt serv't,
