Town & Counties.

☞ A large wolf was killed in the township of Marmora, on the 25th ult. His wolfship had given chase to two young ladies, and was dispatched by their rescuer with a club.

THE WEATHER.—As we anticipated, the snow-storm mentioned in our last was of very short duration. The white mantle has been dissolved, and the weather is now delightful—bearing every indication of Indian Summer.

BANK OF U. C.—The Agency for this town has been removed to the fine new building next the Post Office, which has been fitted up for the purpose in style of much elegance and convenience.

BRAKESMAN KILLED.—A railway friend informs that a brakesman on the B. & L. H. R., named Coles, was killed on Friday last by coming in contact with a bridge, under which the train was passing at the time.

A DEN OF THIEVES.

A subscriber writes us from Clinton that a den of thieves exists in Stanley, the members of which have committed numerous depredations, besides being adepts at incendiarism, &c. Our correspondent says a plough that was stolen from Clinton recently was traced to the neighborhood where Father Snyder's horse was found, through the vigilence of Constable Doyle, of Goderich. Farmers along the Goshen Line, in particular, are warned to be on their guard against the thieves. If there is evidence against any person, as our correspondent seems to intimate, the authorities of the locality should be informed of the fact.

To the Editor of the Huron SIGNAL:

DEAR SIR,—You say you are glad to see the 'Canadian Illustrated News' is improving in appearance. I cannot agree with you, as I counted seventy one errors in the last number.

Yours, &c., &c.,
A READER OF THE C. I. N.

We merely alluded to the engravings. The general appearance of a thing does not include minute details. We are both right perhaps.—Ed. S.

SOCIAL ENTERTAINMENT OF MANCHESTER PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

On Monday evening, the 19th ult., the members of the above named society gave a splendid social entertainment in the Good Templars' Hall, Manchester. A number of the friends and lovers of music were present, having been invited by the members of the Society to participate in the festivities of the occasion. Singing commenced about seven o'clock, when a number of very interesting pieces were sung, which showed that great proficiency had been made in this useful, but too much neglected branch of knowledge.—Great praise is due to Doctor Tamlyn, the able leader of the Phil-Harmonic Choir.—About nine o'clock the company sat down to tables bountifully spread with substantials and dainties, which had been tastefully got up by the excellent ladies of the society. Ample justice having been done to the eatables, Jas. Scott, Esq., was called to the chair, who made a short and interesting speech. Messrs. Yates and Locke being present, addressed the audience at some length, in a pleasing manner. A vote of thanks was tendered to the worthy Doctor, for his efficient and gratuitous services rendered to the society; also, a vote of thanks was given to the ladies for their neatly prepared tea. After singing the National Anthem, the company dispersed, happy to meet, sorry to part, and happy to meet again.

A VISITOR.

Clinton Ploughing Match.

The ploughing match in connection with the Clinton Branch Agricultural Society took place on the farm of Mr. Shipley, Clinton, on Friday last. The day was most unfavorable, a drizzling rain having continued to fall during the entire day. The ploughmen and their animals must have had a hard time of it, and spectators were comparatively scarce. The field was not at all adapted to the purpose, being very uneven, the sod only being of one year's growth and the grass long and rough. We really thought that a better field might have been secured, but we doubt not the managers did the best they could in the interests of the Society. Mr. Biggins, the efficient and gentlemanly President of the Society, was on hand notwithstanding the weather, making things as pleasant as possible for all. The ploughing over, the ploughmen and a number of others sat down to an excellent dinner at Mr. Mooney's Hotel, where, in the pleasures of the table the unpleasantness of the weather was quite forgotten. The prizes were awarded as follows:—

CLASS I.—Over eighteen years of age—iron ploughs—1st, John Salkeld, $3; 2nd, Alex. McDonald, $2; 3rd, Alex. Martin, $1.

CLASS II.—Over eighteen years of age—wood ploughs—1st, Andrew Green, $3; 2nd, William Pearson, $2; 3rd, William Robson, $1.

CLASS III.—Under 18 years—iron ploughs. 1st, Stewart McDougall, $3; 2nd, Wm. Wise, $2.

CLASS IV.—Under 18 years—wood ploughs. 1st, D. McDonald, $3; 2nd, J. F. Dale, $2; 3rd, Wm. Wise, $1.

Considering the state of the weather and the field the ploughing was well executed. Had circumstances been more favorable, the skill of the ploughmen was equal to the task of making a field superior to anything that has ever been seen in Huron.—Courier.

FROM ENGLAND.—Rev. W. B. Thomloe, Prescot, England, says in a letter: "Mrs. S. A. Allen's Hair Restorer and Zylobalsamum are perfect marvels. After using them six weeks, my extremely gray hair is restored to its natural color. I am satisfied it is not a dye." The sale of these articles is very large in England. Sold by druggists everywhere. Depot, 198 Greenwich st., New York.

Aberdonian—"I'm speain' gin ye ha'sic a thing as tibacco?"

Assistant—"I don't know what you mean?"

Aberdonian—"Diona ken tat I'm sayin'? I'm needin' a foo' o' my cuttie, tha's a'."

Assistant—"I really don't understand you."

Aberdonian—(laughing)—"Weel, tha beus ye. Maybe ye wid be sayin' ye diuna understan' me gin I was to spear for the lain o' a preen?"

And with this he left the shop. There was, however, a Scotch shopman present, who had heard the colloquy, and who followed the indignant Aberdonian to the door, where he presented him with a pin, drawing forth the remark that he was glad that there was one in the shop who could understand good Queen's English.—Northern Ensign.

☞ A laughable story is told at the expense of a Williamstown, Mass., grape grower, who made a grand charge one dark night in his nightgown upon a cow that he imagined was some thief after his favorite fruit.—The curtain descends upon human and bovine precipitated in loving embrace through a covered cellar way, where an investigation was being made by sundry terrified females en disabille.

KILLING FOWLS FOR TABLE USE.

A later number of the London Poultry Chronicle has an article on this subject, from which we extract the following:

"If the fowls are to be eaten on Thursday, let them be caught on Monday evening, and then shut up in a basket, absolutely without food or water until the next morning. Being quite empty, they must be killed, not by cutting the throat, but by breaking their necks. Take hold of the tips of the end or flight-feathers of the wings, and the lower part of the thighs and knees with the left hand. Take hold of the head of the fowl in the right hand, turn it (the head) upward in the hand, but simultaneously pull up with the left hand, and press down with the right. Izaak Walton said, 'Impale the frog as if you loved him;' and Talleyrand said, 'No zeal in anything—it is always getting into trouble.' No zeal, no strength, and very little effort is required.—Press downward with the right hand until there is a trifling jerk—it is the dislocation of the neck. Death ensues in a few minutes.—If there is any doubt it can be easily solved by feeling the back of the bird's head—there will be found an 'ugly gap' between the head and the neck. When a fowl is bled to death it is very white, but is often dry; when it is killed by dislocation of the neck it is juicy.—As soon as the bird is dead—indeed I should say directly it is dead—it should be picked. The large feathers, the wings and tail, should be pulled first. The reason why they should be picked is that the fowl then gets cold; it is for the same cause essential that they should be killed early in the morning or in the evening; the latter is preferable. Even in hot weather the fowl is spoiled nine times out of ten by the fermentation of the food, or the decomposition of the water that was in the body at the time of death. The bird fasted and killed as we have described may be drawn and trussed for the spit some hours before it is wanted, and spite of hot weather it will be sweet, tender and juicy."

CHANGING HIS CLOTHES.—For some time, writes the distinguished author of "British Butterflies," previous to changing his dress—even caterpillar is nearly or quite suspended—the caterpillar becomes sluggish and shy, creeping away into some more secluded spot and there remaining until his time of trouble is over. Various twitchings and contortions of the body now testify to the malaise of the creature in his old coat, which, though formed of a material capable of a moderate amount of stretching, soon becomes outgrown, and most uncomfortably tight-fitting, with such a quick-growing person inside of it; so off it must come; but it being unprovided with buttons, there's the rub. However, with a great deal of fidgeting and shoulder shrugging, he manages to tear the coat down the back, and lastly, by patient efforts, shuffles off the old rag; when, lo! underneath is a luxurious new garment somewhat similar, but not exactly a copy of the last, for our beau has his peculiar dress for each epoch of his life—the most splendid being reserved for the last. This change of dress, (moulting, it is sometimes called) is repeated thrice at least in the creature's life, but more generally five or six times. Not only does the outer husk come off at these times, but, wonderful to relate! the lining membrane of all the digestive passages, and of the large breathing tubes is cast off and renewed also.

AN UNFORTUNATE AUTHOR.—A few weeks back we stated that a poor half-starved mortal, who called himself "Author Henry Trevylian," was charged with vagrancy before the Wellington magistrates, and that there was reason to suppose his mind was affected. It has since transpired that his real name is Heighway, and that he was once a popular author! One little book of his—'Leila Ada'—a story of a Jewish convert, we recollect, had a very large sale some ten or twelve years ago, and it appears that Mr. Heighway at one time was a valued contributor to Tait's Magazine. The magistrates have sent the poor unfortunate author to the Salop Lunatic Asylum, there being no doubt that he is at present deranged.—Oxcetry Advertiser.

UNITED STATES CRUISERS ORDERED OUT OF BRITISH PORTS.—The United States armed vessels George Manghan and Ethan Allen, engaged in cruising among the British Islands, have been summarily ordered from some of the ports of Prince Edward Island.—A private letter from an officer attached to the former vessel states that when at Charlottetown an order came from the Governor, requiring both vessels to put to sea, a proclamation in the name of the Queen having been issued making the demand, which was promptly complied with. United States Treasury notes are at a heavy discount at the various ports of those islands. Ship supplies and stores can only be obtained by the payment of coin.

THE QUEEN AND HER TRADESPEOPLE.—I have frequently heard it said, in a tone of censure, that our court is a very parsimonious one—too economical a great deal; but if it be economical, it is just and punctual in the extreme. It is certainly a fact that, so far as milliners and dressmakers are concerned, her Majesty likes to know the price of articles before commanding them—a practice which her subjects would do well to follow; and all her tradespeople know full well that their accounts must be punctually rendered every three months, when they are as punctually discharged—another example well worthy of imitation, and one which, if the ladies of our aristocracy would but follow, they would find themselves saving at least 50 per cent. on their former milliners' bills. They would, too, at once rob the employers of one great and general excuse for overworking their assistants, an excuse which they consider all-powerful, viz., that their capital is so locked up by the long credit they are obliged to give their customers, that they have to do with as few paid assistants as possible. Of course we all know that mere learners could not be trusted with the more delicate parts, in either branch of the business.—The Englishman's Journal.

☞ Mr. D. Maclese has just completed a portrait of Lord Brougham for the Edinburgh parliament house, the contribution of the lords of the court of session and members of the Scottish bar. His lordship is represented in his usual garb—viz, long frock coat or surtout, with velvet collar, velvet waistcoat, plaid trousers, and black stock. In fact the very man, as he is daily seen with massive head and bulky form, is brought before us to the life. His lordship holds in his left hand a document or copy of an address, and with his right hand extended he seems to be in the act of addressing a deputation with much earnestness—nearly an expression or countenance, in short, which was often witnessed by thousands while his lordship officiated in Glasgow two years ago as President of the Social Science Association. Lord Brougham's robes as a peer of the realm are represented as thrown over a table in the background, while the rich gold embroidered purse of a lord chancellor of England lies on a cushion at his feet, indicating the high political and judicial office which his lordship had filled.—Two busts are seen behind the main figure on the canvas, which any one will recognize in a moment as those of his lordship's old friends, James Watt and the Duke of Wellington; and these were introduced by Lord Brougham's special suggestion.

☞ M. Nadar's large balloon, the Giant, has made a second ascent from Paris, and passed over Belgium into Hanover. There, in alighting, the passengers came to grief, as the anchors dragged. M. Nadar had both legs dislocated, M. St. Felix had a shoulder fractured, and Madame Nadar suffered from serious bruizes. Passing the Belgian frontier, the balloon was low in the air, and the revenue officers called out to the voyagers to come out and have their baggage examined.

POWER'S PATENT, AUG. 3, 1863.

THE VICTORIA

WASHING MACHINE!

Obtained the FIRST PRIZE at the Provincial Exhibition in London, in 1861.

THIS

LABOUR-SAVING MACHINE

WAS tested by the Bureau of Agriculture, and declared to be the best yet brought under their notice. It is simple in its construction, easily worked, and not will not tear out of repair.

The cleansing process is effected by the rapid action of the water in the Machine, and not by pressure or rubbing, thereby avoiding the slightest injury to the finest fabrics, with a much less quantity of soap than under the washing board system. Persons who have used them are satisfied that the machine is capable of doing as much work in two hours as can be accomplished in a day by the ordinary process.

Saving 4-5 of the time and labour

And two thirds of the Soap in every instance.

The undermentioned persons purchased Machines, and having given them a full trial, express themselves satisfied:

J. J. Wright, Huron Hotel; Isaac Frederick, Jeweler; W. L. Cox, Signal Office; Aval Nesmyth; H. Holton, Esq.; Peter Nesmyth; Cummings; Robt. Gibbons, Esq.; Wardlaw Paper Co.; R. Runcimen, Esq.; Hamilton Paper Co., Many other names might be added, if necessary.

CASH PRICE ONLY $6.50.

The Subscriber having purchased the Sole Rights for the County of Huron, is now prepared to supply the machines at wholesale or retail, feeling assured that all who buy will be satisfied with the rapidity and ease with which it does the washing, and also the saving of soap. Ladies will confer a favor by calling at my place to be tested at their residences, to which I will be conveyed by the proprietor, if requested again. Should it not be just as represented, the subscriber desires is that the merits of the Machine should be thoroughly tested. Ladies wishing to try it will communicate with the proprietor.
