Canada and the Washington Treaty.

The Mail, the Government organ, gives the following summary, from its Ottawa correspondent, of the correspondence which will be laid before the House to-day between the Imperial and Dominion Governments respecting the Treaty of Washington:—

"The Dominion Government notified the Imperial Government that Canada would not assent to any sale of the fisheries without her consent, and that Britain replied that Her Majesty's Government never had any such intention; that as the negotiations for the Treaty of Washington proceeded, the Canadian Government urged the inclusion of Fenian claims, and also the obtaining of commercial trade advantages in return for the temporary use of the fisheries by the Americans. On these views not being included in the Treaty the Canadian Government strongly remonstrated, and after the Treaty was concluded the British Government appealed to the Canadian Government to carry out the Treaty in the interests of the Empire, and to allow the Americans to fish in Canadian waters. The Canadian Government declined to grant this latter proposition, and placed on record their disapproval of the terms of the Treaty as regard the fisheries and the Fenian claims. The British Government rejoined, and eventually the Canadian Government proposed that, in liquidation of the Fenian claims against Britain, and to meet the anxious desire of the British Government, they would be ready to submit the Treaty for the favorable consideration of the Canadian Parliament, provided the British Government would guarantee a Canadian loan of four millions sterling, to be applied to the construction of the great Canadian Pacific Railway, and the extension of the canal system. The British Government replied, offering to guarantee two millions and a half, and the Canadian Government accepted the counter proposal, in view of the vast Imperial and Canadian interests involved, and in view of associating the British Government with the Canadian Government in the construction of the Pacific Railway and the canals.

The Republican New Departure

That section of the Republican, or as they now call themselves, the National Party in the United States, who are opposed to the re-election of President Grant, held a great meeting in New York on Friday night. Its object was to lay down the platform of the new party, to test the strength of the new organization in the Empire State, and to prepare the way for their Convention, which is to be held in Cincinnati next month, and at which in all probability they will nominate a candidate for President in opposition to General Grant. Judging from the magnitude of the meeting, and the enthusiasm manifested, this "New Departure" of the Republicans will have a serious effect on the prospects of that portion of the party who still adhere to the present Administration, and who are in favour of again running Grant.

It has been evident for some time that there was great disaffection in the ranks of the party. General Grant has made himself very unpopular by reason of many of his appointments to important offices under the Government, and the appointment of every one of his own relations, down to his sixteenth cousin, has intensified this feeling. The feeling is also gradually getting stronger among our neighbors that the one-term principle should be strictly adhered to. Gen. Grant has nearly finished his term of four years, and they argue that he should give place to some other aspirant, who has not yet filled the President's chair. It is clear, therefore, that before long our cousins will be in the thick of a fierce Presidential campaign. Should each of the Republican wings nominate a candidate, and should the Democrats bring out one in opposition to these two, we shall have the pleasure of seeing a triangular fight, with a good chance for the Democrats to win. But it is just possible that the advanced Republicans may bring out a candidate who will be favorable to a large section of the Democrats, in which case they would stand a good chance of beating Grant in his effort to obtain another four year's lease of power.

EDITORIAL NEWS.

THE snow in the Yosemite Valley is over forty feet deep.

A FARMER not far from Guelph who smoked his pipe in his barn is now hauling lumber for another one. He says he doesn't intend to smoke in the new one.

BARNUM has chartered seventy-five cars to transport his great show on its tour through the country. It is expected that he will visit the chief towns of the Dominion.

THE Nova Scotia House of Assembly discussed the immigration question the other night, and as the Dominion Parliament has not yet had time to reach the subject it was resolved that the Executive of Nova Scotia adopt measures expedient to promote and effect a system of immigration adapted to the wants and interests of the Province.

THE Ottawa correspondent of the Hamilton Spectator says that an application will be made to the Government during the present session to aid the line of steamers intended to run from Sarnia to Fort William. The new line will connect with the Great Western and Grand Trunk at Sarnia, and with the Wellington, Grey & Bruce at Kincardine and Southampton, thus serving not Toronto only, but all other parts of Ontario west of Toronto.

AT Adelaide, South Australia, the heat of part of January was intense for the unprecedented number of 12 days. With the exception of two or three hours on the seventh night, when it cooled down so far as to give a promise of a change which did not come, the thermometer never fell below 82 degrees, and ranged in the day up to 108 degrees in the shade. Business was brought almost to a complete stoppage. Even a cold bath was a luxury scarcely attainable, for the temperature of the water rose to 79 degrees.

TIME: night. Local editor of London Free Press with his sweetheart studying the blue vault. They lean over a gate, and looking at the heavenly orbs, maiden filled with enthusiasm, points a taper finger to the zenith and exclaims: "Oh, Malcolm, let us study botany!"

In Southern Europe the cold during the past winter has been unprecedently severe. At Montpelier, in the South of France, the olive-trees have been killed to the ground, and even pine and walnut trees a hundred years old have been destroyed by the long-continued cold.

It is reported that the Pope is about to fill the vacancies in the College of Cardinals. Archbishop Manning's name is prominently mentioned as likely to be among the new appointments.

The value of the annual trade of San Francisco with China is $7,000,000, and yet Californians think John Chinaman should have no standing in their courts and be denied the protection of the laws.

Toronto ladies were in a flutter on Tuesday over the marriage, in the English Cathedral, of Dr. Oliver, late of the 60th Rifles, to Miss Galt, eldest daughter of Judge Galt. Six bridesmaids.
