POOR BASEBALL IN LAST WITH INDIANS

Indianapolis Easy Winners Over the Leafs in Third Game.

Indianapolis, American Association champions, return home with a one-game margin in the inter-league series. The Leafs played bad baseball in the third clash of the leading teams of the two Class AA leagues yesterday, and the Indians romped home easy winners, 9 to 3. Al Leake was hit with a will late in the game, and the visitors piled up the runs in easy fashion.

Leake should have been derricked in the eighth, and the game could have, probably, been saved. Toronto staged a brief rally in their half of the session, that netted all their runs, and a stoppage put on the Indianapolis happenings in this round would have made a different story. The defensive work of the Leafs was not up to the usual standard, and, taking it all round, it was a very unsatisfactory game from a local viewpoint.

Close to three thousand fans viewed the baseball windup, and they are not hopeful of the International League representatives capturing the series. The teams left here last night, and will play a single game in Indianapolis on Saturday and two games on Sunday.

Northrop, for Indianapolis, was backed by good fielding for the full distance, and only wavered in the eighth round. The Leafs did all their real clubbing here, and their three runs were amassed.

Leake went well for three innings, but the fourth saw the first Indianapolis run. With two out, Yerkes scratched a hit, and a wild pitch helped him around one base. Kirke's good double scored him. The sixth saw the second run for the Indians. McDonald bobbled Dolan's roller, and Reilley sacrificed. Zwilling rolled out, and Yerkes supplied the hit for the run.

The eighth was horrible. Northrop opened with a hit, and Dolan bounced a home run into the left-field bleacher, the first one of its kind during the whole season. Reilley and Zwilling also got hits, but Yerkes popped out. Kirke's hit counted another, and Derrick's smash let over one more. Kirke came in on a wild pitch, and Lotshaw fanned. Gossett walked, but Northrop popped out.

Toronto got their three in this innings. McDonald walked and stole, but the next two died. Truesdale counted McDonald with a hit, and Jacobson doubled. Whiteman's single made the other two runs possible.

Indianapolis added two in the ninth for good measure. With one down, Reilley walked and went to third on Zwilling's hit. Yerkes hit to Leake, and the Leaf pitcher pulled a dumb one by pegging into centre field, and a run counted. Kirke's hit scored the second tally. Derrick hit into a double-play.

SECOND OF SERIES AT ISLAND SATURDAY

Much interest is being taken in the Beaches-St. Marys game at the Island Stadium tomorrow. Another win for the Beaches will give them the City League championship, while a defeat will necessitate a third contest. O'Connell will again pitch for the Beaches, while Graham will do the box work for the Saints, who will present a strengthened team in all departments. Billy Pearson will call the game at three o'clock.

Nominate Wagner For Toronto Club

Honus Wagner has already announced his retirement from baseball next year, indicating that the Dutchman will report a little earlier than he did last year. Honus may not swing on the ball with his old-time vigor, but he will not be thru until the turnstiles refuse to respond to the magic of his name.

CHICAGO IS AFTER TICKET SCALPERS

State Attorney Will Prosecute—Comiskey Taking the Right Method.

Chicago, Aug. 27.—Prosecution of scalpers of world's series tickets on charges of conspiracy to extort probably will be attempted by States Attorney Hoyne, it was said tonight, after he had held a conference with Harry Grabiner, secretary of the Chicago Club of the American League.

Grabiner told the states attorney that, despite every precaution, the speculators were advertising that they will have tickets, and are already taking orders. They are demanding premiums of more than two hundred per cent. for reserved seats. They refuse to take orders for single seats, and require deposits for the full series of three games. Prospective purchasers were told that their money would be refunded if they returned the unused parts of the tickets before the game for which they are issued.

Charles A. Comiskey, president of the Chicago Club, announced that not more than one ticket of the 17,000 pavilion and bleacher seats would be sold to any person, and that the purchaser must go into the park as soon as he has purchased it, thus precluding the possibility of scalpers having agents in line. These tickets, to be placed on sale on the day of the games, have a face value of 50c and $1.

Soccer Notes

The attention of all soccerites is drawn to the Dunlop vs. Wychwood game at the Dunlop athletic field, on Saturday. The proceeds of this game will be given to Phil McKay, the popular full-back of the Dunlop team, who has been out of the game for several weeks owing to a severe injury to his knee and he has consequently not been able to follow his employment. The whole of the proceeds, without any deduction, will be handed over to the player. It is hoped that soccer supporters will rally to the support of one who has done much for the game in Toronto.

MURNANE BENEFIT IS HUGE SUCCESS

Boston, Sept. 27.—The Boston Americans today defeated, 2 to 0, an all-star team recruited from leading players of the American League, with Maranville of the Boston Nationals at shortstop. The entire proceeds went to the family of the late T. H. Murnane, who until his death last winter was considered the dean of American baseball writers. The receipts were well over $14,000.

With two out in the eighth innings, Manager Barry of Boston singled to left off the delivery of Johnson of Washington. Hoblitzell singled over second, and both men scored on Lewis' triple to right-centre.

Cobb of Detroit, Speaker of Cleveland and Jackson of the champion Chicago Americans played the outfield for the all-stars, and contributed sensational plays. McInnis of the Philadelphia Athletics was at first, Chapman (the Cleveland shortstop) at second, and Weaver of Chicago at third. The score:

EXCITING RACING IS ORDER AT COLUMBUS

Fifteen Heats on Thursday, and Seventh Heat Necessary in One Event.

Columbus, O., Sept. 27.—Fifteen heats were raced this afternoon in four regular events, and the unfinished event from Wednesday, and still it was impossible to complete the meeting, a seventh heat being necessary to determine the winner of the 2.13 trot, which was unfinished when darkness came.

William, after his loss of the free-for-all pace, a week ago, again was made favorite today. He failed to finish inside the money, Ben Earl winning the first heat and Miss Harris M., the last two of the event, which was a three-heat race.

Peter Nash was a big favorite to capture first money in the Arch City 2.10 pace, but Ben Ali was master of the good field and dashed away ahead from wire to wire.

Gen. Yorke won the 2.11 event in straight heats. Jeanette Speed challenged strongly the third mile, and the result was a first half in 1.02½. Summaries:

RETURN GAME SATURDAY.

St. Catharines' trimming at the hands of Young Torontos has resulted in strenuous practices on both sides in preparation for the final game at the Beach grounds Saturday. The visitors will come over prepared to carry back the championship, and, as they are a good road team, will battle every inch of the way. The shelf on which The Globe Shield rested for so many years at St. Catharines has been dusted in readiness for its return. The game is called for three o'clock, while the proceeds will be devoted to patriotic purposes.

In the 125 lb. series Deer Park found that several of their candidates were overweight, so they decided to turn over their surplus players to North Toronto.

Still Yet Another Twirler With Speed Of Walter Johnson

Chicago, Sept. 27.—Hod Eller, one of Cincinnati's young pitchers, bids fair to become a National League sensation. It might have been well had the White Sox retained him when they had him.

Eller is a youth with nearly as much speed as Walter Johnson possessed when Walter was ten years younger. He just burns the ball over the plate. Under Mathewson's schooling nothing should be impossible for Hod.

The writer happened to be seated near the Cincinnati bench at Weeghman Park the other day when Eller came out for a little warm-up. He had pitched the day before, but evidently wanted to try out a new kind of delivery.

We watched Mathewson's face as he stood near Eller, and he was plainly surprised and pleased with the result. In fact, he started trying it out a few moments later. But much of Matty's oldtime famous stuff was gone, we regret to state.

Had Matty the arm Eller possesses today it is probable he would attain heights that even he was unable to reach.

When Eller came to the White Sox from Moline in the spring of 1916 he was called the "Walter Johnson of the Three I. League." He had a fair spitter even then, but was wild as a hawk. This was, we suppose, the reason the Hose let him go.

Chicago's loss will doubtless be Cincinnati's gain. The pitcher has picked up a lot of control in the two years. Mathewson has probably done a lot of work with him that the fans do not realize.

Give the pair another two years, and the baseball world will be doubtless amazed at Hod Eller, the sensation of the league. Right now he has as much stuff as Ed Walsh had when the Big Moose had been two seasons in fast company.

In more than one way the two pitchers are similar. Walsh was one of the wildest twirlers possible when he broke in and during his first two seasons on the bench. Billy Sullivan worked constantly with him, trying to improve his control. This came finally, and with it success.

Both Walsh (when he was young) and Eller have the physique and the stamina. Eller is a bit shorter but fully as powerful as the old master. We don't know, of course, whether or not Matty is trying to teach him his fadeaway. Many pitchers have failed because that kind of a delivery could not be learned by them. But even without it Eller seems to have a future.

Who Remembers When Sullivan Was Robbed?

Silver King Sullivan, so-called because of his snow-white hair, used to be an umpire, and before he laid aside the mask and protector he went thru a good many thrilling experiences. One day in this city Sullivan had an experience which he says he will never forget. Let him tell it:

"It was a hot series between the Toronto and Baltimore Clubs," says Sully, "and there was a big crowd out. The fans overflowed the stands, and there were carriages and autos in the outfield. In the ninth innings Toronto was behind, but made a strong rally, and it looked as tho the tide was going to turn.

"Three times during that innings, with the winning run coming across the plate, I had to call the runner out, for every one of the three was out a mile. But the bugs couldn't see it that way, and the crowd—I thought it was the whole world—seemed to start in my direction.

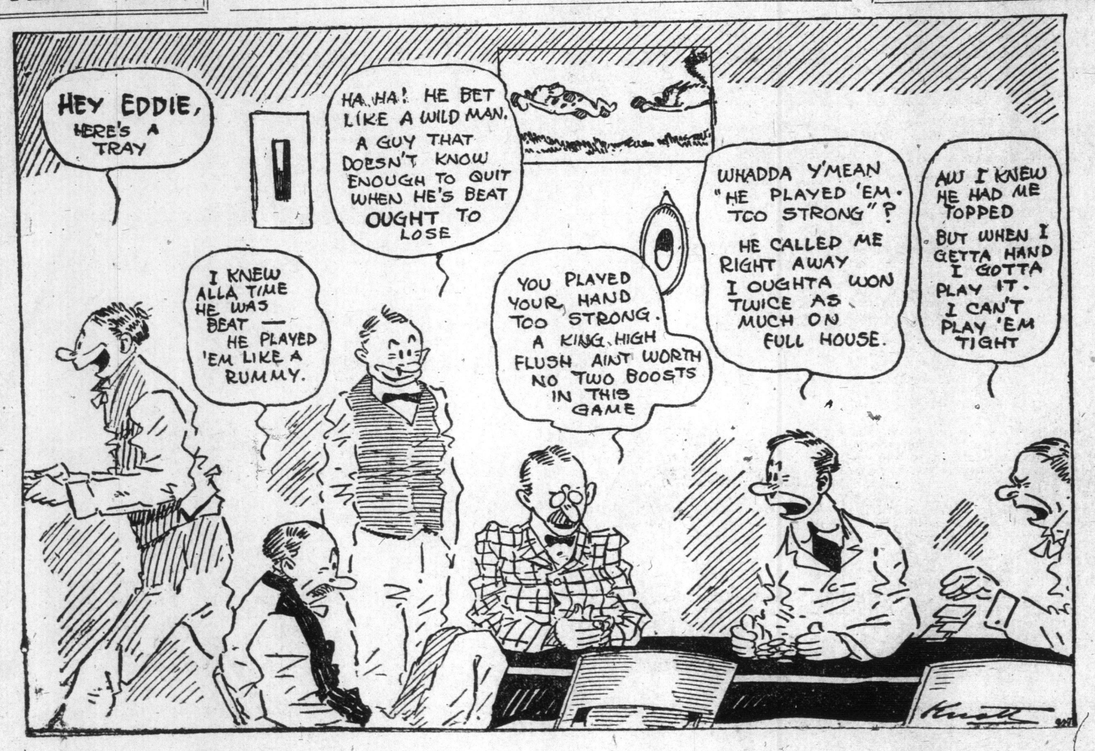
"There was only one sensible thing to do, and that was to hoof it, and hoof it fast. So I beat it around the grand stand and made for the wagon gate. There was a little two-by-four box office at the wagon gate, and I ducked into it and latched the door behind me. The fans were sore and they tried to get to me, but the door held. Finally the crowd tipped the little box office over, but still the door held, and I stuck it out till the police—we called 'em messenger boys because of their size—dispersed the crowd and released me."

HAMILTON HOPES TO DOWN ST. MARY'S COLTS

Up in Hamilton, the champion C.M.R. team, who play St. Marys Colts at Broadview Y.M.C.A. field, Broadview avenue, on Saturday, in the second game of the inter-city series, are figured to beat the Colts. Commenting on the coming struggle on Saturday, The Hamilton Herald says: "If Pitcher Tate heaves them against the Colts as he did against the 20th Century team some three weeks ago, the soldiers are liable to spring the unexpected." This is quite true. Tate had a bad innings last week, and the Colts got the jump on him; after that Tate pitched gilt-edge ball, holding the slugging Colts to nine scattered hits. If Tate gets away to a good start, St. Marys are going to have a hard time to beat him. The Colts have to win Saturday to win the inter-city championship. If they are whipped, a third game will have to be played. Those who saw Tate pull himself together in Hamilton last week predict that he will about beat the Colts.

St. Marys had a stiff two-hour workout last night at Stanley Park, when the whole team went thru a batting and fielding practice, and new signals were worked out. The Colts always play safe, and are pastmasters of inside ball, and are going to take no chances with the C. M. R. Saturday. They are out to beat them, while Rutledge is going after a no-hit game. In the last three games he has pitched he has only yielded ten hits. They were: Oelers 4, Athletics 1, C. M. R. 5. Charlie Maddock is building up the pitching rubber. The game is called for three sharp.

PENNY ANTE "Hindsight" BY GENE KNOTT



HOW TO PLAY GOLF

By Charles (Chick) Evans Jr.

How to Shoot Under a Hundred

Would like to have you say something about being overcoached. I have about ten different things to try to remember before each shot. I have been told to look at the ground behind the ball for topping, to keep the head still, left arm horizontal at top of swing, and right the same at end of swing; to hold club tight with left hand, and only guide it with the right, etc.

All this and more makes golf hard work. Don't you think it would be much better to just be natural and try to hit the ball hard every time, leaving the good form for the fellows who are not satisfied with anything over eighty? I would like to have more dope on how to shoot under 100. A. V. S.

The above letter embodies an interesting and practical question. I have listened to golf instruction by the hour and watched the poor pupil working away and trying with wrinkled brow to keep in mind all the things he has been told. As I watched the futile efforts, I have often wondered just how I would go about teaching a beginner, for my personal acquaintance with the game was acquired in an entirely different manner, for I learned my game as a boy by observation and imitation, and my various faults I have tried gradually to correct.

I am convinced that there is too much detail in teaching. We all ought to know the underlying principles, but detail varies with the physical conformation. It is all nonsense to try to have tightening sensations in the left hand, to remember to keep your head so absolutely still, and the various other things that are so constantly recommended. Furthermore, it is almost impossible. Just grip the club with your fingers as it falls in your hand, and if you keep your eye on the ball your head will be still. It is best to be as natural as possible and get up and hit the ball, with thought, of course, but with a certain abandon, too. The golf swing is a rhythmical stroke, and the rhythm is spoiled by too many jerky ideas.

Golf, of course, is a difficult game, and even the best players have their golden rule, but the whole thing is a process of elimination, and you must take the rules most helpful to you. I have never achieved a good result by hitting my ball carelessly. Always I have a definite idea in my mind. Perhaps I could make a distinction and say that one should hit the ball in a care-free way, but not carelessly. Golf does require concentration and thought.

Breaking a Hundred.

My recipe for breaking a hundred is this: Get the general idea of the game, with a good understanding of the fundamentals. Have a few golden rules selected after trial and practice and advice. Constantly remember the fact that the mind cannot create rhythm and opposition to the senses.

The swings of no two golfers are exactly alike, but stances, grips and general ideas of all good players are closely similar. Your golf form should be governed by the general ideas, plus your individual characteristics. There is one method of gripping the club that is best. It is with the fingers. There is a general stance that is best; there is a general method of describing an arc with the club, and so on. These are fundamentals, and in them one should be well grounded, but it is well not to load one's mind with detail. Suit the detail gradually to your own characteristics.
