

vincial Statute, by which King's College has been established nearly half a century, with the Royal Charter, which enlarged its sphere of usefulness, in 1802, and with the property of that College, which was chiefly contributed by Members of the Established Church, and contributed in consequence of the connection of the College with that Church—a connection which was originally intended, and has subsisted from its first establishment to the present day.

If it should hereafter be thought desirable to attempt the establishment of another Seminary, the Council will be ready to give their concurrence to any judicious plan which may be suggested for that object; and, in the mean time, they hope that this candid expression of their unanimous opinion, will be favourably received by Your Excellency, and by His Majesty's Government, and will relieve the King's College from that abridgment of its usefulness, which some supposed uncertainty, respecting the continuance of the Institution, has already created.

Resolved, That the said Address be presented to His Excellency by the whole House.

PROSPECTUS

OF THE SECOND VOLUME OF THE EUROPEAN.

Published weekly, at New York. J. M. Moore, Editor.

THE very flattering reception which the first vol. of the European met with, has induced the proprietor to make various improvements in the second volume, commencing March 12th, 1836.

As the improvements which have been made in the European are merely connected with its mechanical department, and the quality of the paper, we subjoin the prospectus which was issued for the first volume. The objects of the paper are to keep up a more strict term of intimacy between this country and Europe than at present exists; not merely by publishing foreign intelligence, but by defending foreigners from insults, to which we have been occasionally subjected through the illiberality of a portion of the press, and by fairly advocating our claims to the native American, who, if he discards all prejudice in the examination, cannot fail to acknowledge them.

As Ireland has been the most slandered nation, so shall our columns be more devoted to it than to any other. In the European, Irishmen will, at all events, have one uncompromising friend, whose voice shall never be suppressed while the tongue of slander, or the hand of oppression, is raised against them or their glorious country.

It shall be one of our constant endeavours to conciliate the friendship of the native American; and if we do this in a straight forward and independent manner, we know he will like us all the better.

The European will be a literary, as well as a political and general foreign and domestic, newspaper; so that, when the reader grows tired of a parliamentary debate, or a discussion on the merits of the different candidates at election times, he can turn to another page and refresh himself with a romance, a sonnet, a theatrical critique, or a literary notice.

We publish the paper at the almost nominal price of two dollars a-year, in order to give it a more general circulation than it might otherwise command; but we can assure subscribers that, if a devotion to their interests can be of any avail, we will be behind our contemporaries in nothing but the price alone.

Orders for the paper, addressed to the editor through the Post Office, will be punctually attended to.

As the very limited price of the European will not afford the expense of travelling agents, country subscribers ordering the paper, are requested in all cases to send the money in advance for one year.

Communications must be post paid. Any person furnishing five subscribers entitles himself to a copy of the paper for one year.

New York, March 12, 1836.
Subscribers' names for the European will be received at the BEE OFFICE,
