"August Flower"

For two years I suffered terribly with stomach trouble, and was for all that time under treatment by a physician. He finally, after trying everything, said stomach was about worn out, and that I would have to cease eating solid food for a time at least. I was so weak that I could not work. Finally on the recommendation of a friend who had used your preparations with beneficial results, I procured a bottle of August Flower, and commenced using it. It seemed to do me good at once. I gained in strength and flesh rapidly; my appetite became good, and I suffered no bad effects from what I ate. I feel now like a new man, and consider that August Flower has entirely cured me of Dyspepsia in its worst form. JAMES E. DEDERICK, Saugerties, New York.

GENERAL NEWS.

—The Danube has overflowed its banks in the Pesth district causing serious floods.

—A boat containing a number of sailors belonging to the warship Belle Isle was capsized in Dublin harbor on Feb. 2nd, and four sailors were drowned.

—There is a Chinese theatre in Victoria, B. C., where a company of 13 players has a repertoire of 500 plays, and the bills is changed nightly.

—There are said to be 18,000 newspaper women in London, who have 22 press clubs and authors' societies among them.

—The will of the late Cardinal Manning shows that he possessed less than £100, which was in consols, and a collection of books.

—Dr. Graves, convicted in the Barnaby poisoning case in Colorado, and sentenced to death, will have a new trial and is to be released on bail.

—Some painters in Geneva are painting a panorama of the Bernese Alps, which will have a height of 51 feet and a width of 345 feet to go to Chicago. The whole will cost about $300,000. It was all sketched from the summit of the Mannlichen, 6600 feet high.

—By the explosion of several sticks of dynamite which had been placed near a stove at Poneybrook, Pa., Adam Bornnick and John Slavitake were killed and 25 other miners were seriously injured. It is thought that at least seven of the victims will die.

—According to La Nature, there are about 1,500,000,000 people in the world with nearly an equal division of sex. One-fourth dies before the fifteenth year; the average duration is about thirty-two a minute.

—The Belgian Minister of War has decided that in the future every soldier will be furnished with a small bone disk, bearing his name, birthplace and regimental number, so that in the event of his being killed or injured on the field of battle, identification will be easy and rapid.

—A most extraordinary guard takes up its quarters inside the Bank of England every evening at 7 o'clock all the year around, remaining there until 7 o'clock the next morning. It is an officer's squard, and consists of a drummer, two sergeants and 30 men, all well armed. Each man receives a shilling from the bank authorities immediately upon his arrival, a sergeant's share being two shillings.

—A leading Berlin newspaper in a short article recently complained of inhuman treatment in some of the regments of the German army. Soldiers were made to perform the arm and knee drill movement for nearly 2000 times, and when some failed to complete the drill through exhaustion, jugs of cold water were poured over them and then thrashed with whips, while others were made to lie across two chairs in a certain position and the officers sit upon their unsupported knees till they screamed with pain.

—A bottle found floating near Lerwick, Scotland, recently, contained a message from Fowla, an island of the Shetland group, 18 miles west of the other islands, stating that owing to the absence of communication with the other islands, caused by the exceedingly stormy weather which has prevailed for the past five weeks, the inhabitants of Fowla are on the verge of starvation. They had, at the time the bottle was thrown into the water, only a few potatoes and a little meat left.

—Carlyle W. Harris, of New York, the young student charged with having poisoned his wife, Helen Potts, was found guilty of murder in the first degree by the jury, on the 2nd inst. It has been one of the most sensational cases in recent history and has attracted a widespread interest. About two weeks ago the case came to trial and has been progressing ever since. The jury retired about 9.30, and at 10.45 returned a verdict of murder in the first degree. The verdict was very unexpected to the accused, and he broke down completely when it was announced. His mother, who had been constantly at his side during the trial, was very much affected and created a scene. She fell back in her chair shrieking madly, "It's a lie, a lie." It was several minutes before she became again composed.

—The trouble with a great many, why they do not succeed with poultry, is that they do nothing to deserve success. To be sure they feed liberally, and think their duty done, whereas it is here a little, there a little which tells. The science of poultry keeping is not to be sneered at, and he who studies it attentively will find plenty of food for reflection.

How Patti Was Brought Out.

She Sang for the First Time in Hamilton Forty Years Ago.

The New York Herald thus tells how Patti was brought out:

"One day close on forty years ago I happened to meet the late Maurice Strakosch in some piano warerooms in Toronto, Canada.

"I have just been telling a friend here," said he to me when I entered, "that I have had for some time under my instructions a little relative of mine, not yet out of short dresses, a sister of my wife, who is destined to become one of the greatest singers in the world. She is scarcely ten years of age, but so phenomenal is her voice her execution and her musical genius generally that I have already brought her out in concert and am now arranging for her appearance at Hamilton in conjunction with Ole Bull, Mme. Strakosch and myself. Come and hear her and one day when we meet again you will tell me that I prophesied truely."

Years rolled by and Patti was in the zenth of her fame when Strakosch and I met again, but this time in New York and on the occasion of her last visit to that city. With wonderful tenacity of memory he referred to our conversation of long ago regarding the famous Spanish diva.

Wooing Sleep.

A New Method by Which a Wakeful Man May Find Sleep.

Thn Delsartain doctrine of rest by voluntary muscular relaxation is somewhat confirmed by the experience of those who have acted upon this theory in overcoming insomnia. Nothing so quickly brings body and limbs in such a fashion as to produce muscular relaxation. The legs and arms should be so placed as to bring them in contact with the mattress at as many points as possible. This affords support and relieves the muscles. The body should be disposed in like fashion, and if all has been done properly the woeer of sleep will presently have the consciousness of resting with his whole weight directly upon the mattress. When once this feeling comes sleep usually follows. The plan is far better than the old one of repeating the numerals or going over some meaningless series of words, for it has the double advantage of putting the physical man into an attitude of repose and of distracting the mind of whatever thoughts are at enmity with sleep.—New York Sun.

There is a curious diversity of taste among smokers as to the kind of pipe they prefer. Some like the clay pipe best, others prefer the briar root, others again the meerschaum, some must have their pipe well seasoned before they can enjoy it, others again must have a new pipe and throw it away whenever it becomes a little old. But though this diversity of taste among them is curious, it is not at all curious that there is substantial unity among about the kind of tobacco to be used. Experience has proved to them that the Myrtle Navy brand of Messrs Tuckett and Son is the genuine article.

Drunkenness—Liquor Habit—In all the World there is but one cure, Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.

It can be given in a cup of tea or coffee, without the knowledge of the person taking it, effecting a speedy and permanent cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. Thousands of drunkards have been cured who have taken the Golden Specific in their coffee without their knowledge, and to-day believe they quit drinking of their own free will. No harmful affect results from its administration. Cures guaranteed. Send for circular and full particulars. Address in confidence, GOLDEN SPECIFIC CO., 185 Race Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Ayer's Hair Vigor keeps the scalp free from dandruff, prevents the hair from becoming dry and harsh, and makes it flexible and glossy. All the elements that nature requires, to make the hair abundant and beautiful, are supplied by this admirable preparation.

WOMEN'S COLUMN.

Conducted by the Ladies of the Sackville W. C. T. U.

A Sad Fate.

One reminiscence of the tragedies drink causes may close this paper. In a rude outpost of civilization in Canada, I was once summoned to bury a young man who died of drinking, in a wretched "grog shop." There was nothing by which to discover his name or English address; but he evidently was a gentleman. No burial-place had as yet been set apart in the neighborhood, and the question of finding a spot in which to lay him was only solved by a farmer offering a grave in his orchard. There, among the fruit trees, I read the service over the poor fellow; but, as no one could tell who he was or whence he came, I was not able to write to his friends, to let them know his end. Some tender mother, it may be, or broken-hearted father, far away, was wondering what had become of the boy who once promised so fairly; but they could never learn anything of his fate. He had simply vanished out of life—one more victim of the drink-seller.—Geike.

Intemperance is a wild beast, and was so represented in all the work of the early reform movement. The chief material of the founders of that movement was recitals of its horrors. The Woman's Christian Temperance Union came along, drew beneath this symbol of intemperance two parallel lines that indicate its relation to civilization, to the home, the school, the church, the state, for it is the grizzly bear that stands upon the track of progress. That was a mighty change to come over the movement. More and more we must study to keep this relationship of the curse to the country before the people. We have never dwelt much upon harrowing personal vicissitudes, but have treated the subject in a larger way. Generalizations are now the order of thought, and it has been no small gain to us intellectually, that we have spread the temperance propaganda along scientific, economic and philosophic lines, instead of narrowing our survey to personal results, as was done in early days.

In Syria there is a W. C. T. U. of 500 members.

The W. C. T. U. have fifty local unions in the Sandwich Islands.

China sent a report stating that they had 249 white ribboners in that empire.

The W. C. T. U. has gained during the past year 10,369 new members. Nine hundred and sixty of these come from Japan.

Linnæus said of alcohol that "Man sinks gradually by this fell poison; first he favors it, then he warms to it, then he burns for it, then he is consumed by it.

Dr. Roger Dutt, a Hindoo, says that drunkeness is increasing among the educated classes in his country, owing to contact with Western civilization.

All but nine states out of the forty-four in the United States now make temperance education compulsory in their common schools. There between twelve and thirteen million children in America of whom the law says that they shall be taught the truth against strong drink and kindred narcotics. In the majority of these States no teacher who has not passed a satisfactory examination in the subject is granted a certificate or authorized to teach.

Be not deceived. Whatever any man soweth, at any time, anywhere, that shall he reap. This is a universal law which no man can evade, and which no man should wish to defeat. The farmer would not want the law abrogated in his domain. He would be at the end of his wits and work.... A universal law, just and right, and only terrible to those who get on the wrong side of it. To the sower of wheat it is full of blessing; for the sower of tares it is full of cursing.—From "The Christian Standard."

If we go into temptation we have no right to ask help to resist it. The going into temptation is disloyalty to God. When Providence calls us into places of temptation, then we may ask him to deliver us; but to go into temptation is to invite the devil and reject God. Do not go into society where evil men gather; keep out of bad company; keep away from bad and doubtful places; do not go where you will be tempted. No man knows how weak he is or what slumbering passions are in his nature; hence he cannot afford to expose himself. We all need not more temptations to resist, but more help to resist the temptations we have.

Dr. Koch's cure for consumption went up like a rocket and came down like a stick; but Puttner's Emulsion still shines with undimned lustre as the best remedy for wasting diseases.

AGRIULTURAL NOTES.

—The average yield of corn for the whole of New England, is one bushel more per acre than the great corn belt of the West.

—Arion, the champion two year old, arrived at Boston last Friday safe and sound and was visited by all the horsemen, who declare him to be one of the grandest made horses living.

Frank Heyden, the driver of C. P. Drecke's stallion Bayard Wilkes, by Alcantara, offers to match fifteen yearlings at $100 a side against any other sire's fifteen, and he will match Bayard against the sire of the other colts for $1,000. As Bayard is owned in Maine the other sire must also be a Maine horse. It is said that the defiance is aimed at Nelson.—St. Croix Courier.

—There is some Alcantara stock owned in Amherst.

—A single hen is worth perhaps fifty cents, but one expects that, by dint of energy and a desire to please, she will, the first year and a half of her life, produce twelve to fifteen dozen eggs, worth in the market from two dollars and a half to three dollars, and then sell as a spring pullet for more than she was worth when she began business. All this is possible, provided one encourages the little machine to do its best, keep it oiled with care and nourished with food.

A Plea for the Horse.

Veterinary science and veterinary surgeons can and should do much to lighten the hard lot of animals, which toil incessantly for man; and surely no creature stands more in need of this aid than the horse. His life is often one of continual [illegible] alone, of all creatures is doomed to never ceasing labor. The life of the ox, the cow and the sheep, is one of comparative if not absolute, happiness, while the life of the dog is generally happy.

But the horse seems to be haunted by the demon of labor and fatigue almost from his earliest years, and generally increasing to the hours of his death—to be haunted by a demon whose power to torment seems to increase as the horse becomes older and more worn.

If any animal deserves, as a reward for his services to man, and as a compensation for days, weeks, and years of abuse; if any animal deserves a tranquil future, a glorious pasturage traversed by never-failing crystal streams of water, surely that animal must be the horse.

These views of animal pain and suffering, and the doctrine of an animal soul, are deeply mingled with that of future retribution to man for cruelty to the lower creation. Ruskin has eloquently said: "Can any man account for all that happens to a cab horse? Has he ever fairly looked at the fate of one of these beasts as he is dying? Has he measured the work it has done, and the reward it has got? Has he ever put his hands on the bloody sores through which its bones are piercing, and so looked to Heaven with an entire understanding of Heaven's ways about the horse? Yet the fate of the horse is no dream; no revelation among the myrtle-trees by night. The dust it lies upon and the dogs that eat it are facts. And yonder happy person who owned the horse until its knees were broken over the hurdles; who sold it to a cab-owner as soon as it was blemished; yonder happy person with an immortal soul, with and wealth on earth, shall this happy person have no stripes? If other things are, indeed, reserved for him, Heaven's kindness or justice might be in question therefrom.

The Christian religion is closely allied to the science of medicine, whether human or veterinary; and its brightest, its most hallowed features, is the humanity which it inculcates to man and beast. But the Christain religion does not vouchsafe to us any guarantee for a future state even to those animals next to man in intelligence. The words of the Saviour in regard to the humble sparrows are too often lost sight of, while the expression "of the beasts that perish" too often gives the keynote to the dealings of man with the dumb creation. But wether animals have a future or not it is certain that they feel pain and suffering as keenly as we do ourselves; it is certain that they appreciate kindness or cruelty; above all, it is certain, because it is consistent with the Christian religion to believe, that cruelty by man to animals will be rewarded with many stripes in that future world to which man, whether for his virtues or for his vices, whether for his weal or woe, is heir immortal.—The Horse World.
