Hot Time at the City Hall

A Big Crowd Attends the Nominations for the Legislature.

Four Candidates in the Field—Col. Leys, Adam Beck, C. H. Gould and H. B. Ashplant.

Liberal and Conservative Sympathizers Out in Force.

Colonel Leys Gets a Big Ovation From His Friends.

Speeches by the Movers and Seconders—A Prolonged Meeting—Plans for the Normal School Ready—A Tumultuous Audience.

The nomination for the Legislature in the city took place at the city hall this forenoon.

About 11 o'clock Mr. Wm. Nicholl, clerk for Sheriff Cameron, in the name of Queen Victoria, etc., etc., read the proclamation of the lieutenant-governor.

The sheriff said that he was now open for nominations. He understood from the friends of the candidates that the proceedings would be formal until 12 o'clock; after that, 45 minutes would be allowed for the mover and seconder of each candidate.

MR. BECK NOMINATED.

About 11:10 Mr. A. B. Cox mounted the platform, and said he had great pleasure in nominating Mr. Adam Beck for the Legislature of Ontario. (Conservative applause.)

MR. C. H. GOULD NOMINATED.

At 11:15 Mr. Fred W. Daly nominated Charles Henry Gould.

MR. H. B. ASHPLANT NOMINATED.

A moment later Mr. A. Barter nominated Mr. Henry B. Ashplant.

The nominations of Messrs. Gould and Ashplant were received with mingled hisses and applause.

SECONDING NOMINATIONS.

The nomination of Adam Beck was seconded by Wm. Burleigh; that of H. B. Ashplant by George Croft, and that of C. H. Gould by Dr. Swann.

COL. LEYS NOMINATED.

Mr. T. S. Hobbs, as he ascended the platform, was cheered. "I beg leave," he said, "to nominate as the candidate for London in the Local Legislature, Francis Baxter Leys." (Tremendous cheering from all parts of the hall.)

Mr. Hume B. Cronyn seconded the nomination, and the cheering was renewed.

NOMINATIONS CLOSED.

At 12 o'clock noon the returning officer declared nominations closed and read the list of nominees.

THE PARTY COLORS.

Mr. Cameron announced that the candidates' colors would be as follows: Col. Leys, red; Mr. Beck, blue; Mr. Gould, bronze; Mr. Ashplant, yellow.

THE CLERKS.

The clerks of the candidates are: For Col. Leys, Mr. Alex. Purdom, barrister; for Adam Beck, Mr. H. M. Graydon, barrister; for Mr. S. H. Gould, Dr. Swann, dental surgeon. Mr. Ashplant had not notified the returning officer of his clerk's appointment.

PROCEEDINGS BEGIN.

By mutual consent, Ald. Winnett then took the chair, and as Col. Leys and Mr. Beck, with their movers and seconders, took the platform, the cheering was loud and long.

The chairman said that it had been agreed that the mover and seconder of each candidate would be allowed 45 minutes between them. Then Col. Leys would speak for 30 minutes; Mr. Beck for 45, and then Col. Leys again for 15 minutes in reply.

MR. A. B. COX,

as mover of Mr. Adam Back, said he esteemed it as a high honor to move the nomination of Mr. Beck. It was not a very easy thing to go through a contest, and unless a candidate believed it to be a high honor, he would not care to go through the experience of a contest in this city. The candidate always runs the risk of having all his dirty clothes cast up in a most unaccountable manner. (Laughter.) A friend told him that the reason why they were so exceedingly pugilistic in elections was because they had to let off steam in some way or another. He did not believe in personal attacks. It mattered not whether a man had a temper or not in a contest of this kind. His wife will settle that. (Much laughter and a voice, "Where's Beck's wife?") Mr. Gould, as an independent member, would be a wasted man. But Mr. Beck would make a good representative, either at Toronto or at Ottawa, or even as governor-general. (Cheers and laughter.) Mr. Beck has been sneered at because he had told where he was born and how he was brought up. That he had done so, Mr. Cox said, was in Mr. Beck's favor. He knew Mr. Beck, and he was a self-made man—a promising manufacturer. Mr. Beck had been more than just to his employes. (Hear, hear, and voices, "No, no.") If the men who nominated the independent candidate knew Mr. Beck as well as he did, they would be satisfied that when he reached the position to be able to do it he would look after the interests of those who were poor and needy. Again Mr. Cox praised Mr. Beck, and then asserted that the electors should support the Conservative candidate. The government is not satified with being the servants of the people. They want to be our masters.

Voices—"Oh, sit down," and hisses

Mr. Cox, who had been telling stories, pertinent and impertinent to the issues, began another story, and the audience burst into protest.

"Talk politics!" was the cry on all hands.

The chairman said Mr. Cox would have extra time if he were interrupted.

Mr. Cox then told the story of Sinbad the sailor and the old man, amid good-natured interruptions. "This province has nothing to do with Sinbad," said a gentleman in the audience. Sir Oliver Mowat had remained on the back of the province, and had stuck his feet into the province's pockets.

A Voice—Three cheers for Sir Oliver!

This was heartily given.

Then cheers were called for and given for Whitney, and Mr. Cox continued his attack on Sir Oliver Mowat. He objected to the license system being controlled by the Ontario Government, and charged that Conservative dealers had by this time been won over to Sir Oliver's side. Mr. Cox then attacked the British ballot, which is the ballot in use in Ontario. "Why did Sir Oliver Mowat keep that numbered ballot in existence?"

A Voice—To keep Bill Peel from stealing the ballots. (Cheers.)

Mr. Cox then attacked Sir Oliver Mowat for appointing a minister of education, as recommended by Dr. Ryerson. Mr. Whitney's proposition is to appoint a council to aid the minister. He attacked Mr. Ross.

Voices—"Ross is all right." Another voice—"He's a smart man."

Mr. Cox said Mr. Ross had compelled the children to go around the streets wearing spectacles—(loud laughter and "Oh, oh!")—The children are learning "isms" and "ologies," and their morals are corrupt. (Renewed laughter.) He asked them to vote for Mr. Beck, and was cheered when he took his seat.

MR. WM. BURLEIGH

seconded the nomination of Mr. Beck. He said he had made it his business to inquire into Mr. Beck's business, and found that he used his hands well. There were twenty men, who received an average of $10 per week, 14 boys and 20 girls. "If there was an independent candidate in the field," said Mr. Burleigh, "I would support him. (Laughter.) and cries of "There are two of them!") No, there are not. If there are they are not recognized by the labor party of London."

"Yes, they are."

"No," said Mr. Burleigh, "I have proofs that they are not, in my pockets."

A Voice—Your proofs are no good. (Uproar.)

Mr. Burleigh said it was not necessary to speak further of the matter, and took his seat.

MR. T. S. HOBBS

was received with prolonged cheering, and cries of "Eight hundred and three!"

Mr. Hobbs said he saw they were not fond of story-tellers, so that he should not take up much of their time in that way. (Laughter.) He had known his friend the colonel for 20 years as a good-hearted man, anxious at all times to promote the welfare of the city. (Cheers.) He was trying to concentrate his capital, and all his interests, in the city. (Cheers.) Col. Leys was a man whom one could trust with his life. (Cheers.) Mr. Hobbs referred to the campaign of slander against Colonel Leys. "Slander and abuse was poured upon me," said Mr. Hobbs, "and what was the result?"

"Eight hundred and three!" came with a shout from the audience, followed by Liberal cheers.

Mr. Hobbs said he had been defamed for being a bachelor by a leading Conservative—Mr. R. Bardy, Q.C. The speaker was prepared to stand by his record as a boy in London. (Cheers.) They had heard a great deal about the Normal School. (Cheers.) When elected, the speaker had promised to do what he could to advance London's interests in this respect. They all knew it was not an easy matter in a city of this size to get government institutions and London had one already—the asylum. Mr. Hobbs pointed to the claims of other Western Ontario cities and town to the school. Peterboro had offered the government a free site, and a bonus of $100,000 for that school, because the citizens of Peterboro knew that it meant a large expenditure in that city. It meant a direct expenditure of $26,000 per annum by the government for the wages of professors and staff, engineers, watchmen, etc. In addition they knew that 300 or 400 students would be drawn to the city, paying $3 or $4 per week each for board. (Cheers.) Parents in London knew how they were situated at present. If they had boys or girls who wanted to be teachers they had to go to Toronto or Ottawa. "We want the school in the west," said Mr. Hobbs, and the audience cheered. The Ontario government had last year placed $7,500 in the estimates for a site for that school in London. This was not sufficient, and last session, the grant was increased by $25,000. (Cheers.) The Free Press said that the school was a myth because there were no plans. "Gentlemen," said Mr. Hobbs, "the plans are ready." (Cheers.)

Mr. Hobbs pointed out that Dr. Meacham, Mr. Magwood and other Conservative members had opposed that grant. (Hear, hear.) Mr. Whitney was not straighforward, when in reply to an interviewer he said: "Will London get the Normal School?" If the Normal School was a myth, why did the Conservative members and Conservative papers like the Stratford Herald, Hamilton Spectator and Toronto Mail and Empire bitterly oppose London's claim? (Hear, hear.) This school would cost $60,000 or $70,000, every cent of which would be spent in the city. (Cheers.) "All I ask you to do," concluded Mr. Hobbs, "is to send a man there who will press it on. The government are prepared to go on with this work, and they will be returned on March 1. (Cheers.) The government of Ontario recognize that London is a center. Let us support them in recognizing London First." (Cheers.) Slanders have been raised by our opponents, with the object of keeping public questions like this in the background. I have myself been through the mill. I know that in electing Col. Leys, as you will do—(cheers)—that he will do your work well. It has been argued that the Normal School might have been established here before, but let me tell you that it is one thing to say that you ought to get the institution, and another thing to successfully down the opposition of friend and opponent in other places, who believe that they are equally entitled to the institution. (Cheers.) Bury the slanders that have been raised, in absence of legitimate argument, and elect Col. Leys to serve you, and he will do it well. (Cheers.) Let us all act as citizens and work for "London First." Surely we can work unitedly for the best interests of London and in support of good and honest government. (Cheers.) No one has seriously impugned the honesty of the Ontario Government. In all parts of the Dominion, and even in England, the Province of Ontario is held up as the banner province of Canada. (Cheers.) Why? Because it has been well governed and its resources carefully husbanded. (Cheers.) Mr. Cox has attacked Sir Oliver Mowat. Sir Oliver and the statesmen associated with him have done their duty by the province. (Cheers.) Let us vote for this honest government, which has been held up as a model in other provinces of the Dominion. Let us vote to keep that government in power, and that can best be done by electing Col. Leys, the candidate of the people in this city. (Loud cheers.)

MR. HUME BLAKE CRONYN,

who was loudly cheered, seconded the nomination of Col. Leys, and in doing so made an excellent address. At the outset he stated that the Free Pree had accused him and some of his friends of running like a lot of sheep from their candidate. This he wished to refute by his presence, and to show that he was ready to assist to the best of his ability in the election of Col. Leys. (Cheers.) Mr. Cronyn then referred to the warmth of feeling that had been exhibited by the meetings previously. Elections in London had for some time been generally known to be hot.

A Voice—That's what they are.

Mr. Cronyn urged that the recollection of the terrible disaster which followed the last election should have a sobering influence on us all. It was not necessary that men should be so carried away by excitement. They should honestly endeavor to decide upon the best man. ("Col. Leys," shouted many; "Adam Beck!" said others.) "Some of you believe Adam Beck is the best man: stick to it," continued Mr. Cronyn. "We believe

A DINNER PILL.—Many persons suffer excruciating agony after partaking of a hearty dinner. The food partaken of is like a ball of lead upon the stomach, and instead of being a healthy nutriment, it becomes a poison to the system. Dr. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are wonderful correctives of such troubles. They correct acidity, open the secretions, and convey the food partaken of into healthy nutriment. They are just the medicine to take if troubled with indigestion.
