THE COTTON INDUSTRY.

THE PARKS' MILLS HAVE DONE A BIG BUSINESS IN THE LAST SIX MONTHS.

A Fight to Keep out of the Syndicate—The Firm Asks a Rebate on Water, in Order to Economize—Interesting Facts About the Cotton Business.

At a meeting of the Common Council in general committee a few days ago the application of Mr. John H. Parks for a rebate on water was read, and discussed, and afterwards referred to the Board of Works who have now the consideration of this application in view. A GAZETTE reporter called on Mr. Parks this morning, and was given some interesting facts in connection with the cotton industry in Canada. First, however, with regard to the rebate on water which was asked, Mr. Parks explained that the company were doing everything in their power to keep out of the big Montreal syndicate which was absorbing all the smaller establishments in the Dominion and consequently they were endeavoring to economize as much as possible. For many years past a rebate of ¼ cent per hundred gallons (the regular price being 1 cent) had been allowed them, and as they used as much as 12,600,000 gallons in the New Brunswick mills and 2,400,000 gallons in the St. John mills, this meant a considerable saving. Recently, however, the Chamberlain had refused to accept the special rate stating that he had no authority from the Council for doing so.

Messrs. Parks applied for the rebate they received from the old commission on the ground that for certain reasons they desired to economize as much as possible; that if pushed to an extremity they might be compelled to close down; that they gave employment to 500 hands and that in general it was to the advantage of St. John to have the mills operated here.

Mr. Parks had every reason to expect that the rebate would be allowed, because the rebate was allowed all cotton factories paying for water in Canada.

In the discussion on this question before the general committee, Ald. Robertson said that the Parks cotton mill was making money; a recent report showed that the factory made a large sum of money during the past few months. "This," said Mr. Parks, "is in part true. During the past six months our business has been better than at any time for a number of years. Both mills are now working full time, and 300 hands are employed in one and 200 in the other. The average out-put is about $40,000 a month, which means a business of $500,000 a year.

"The reason for this increase in the last six months is found in the fact that during the two years previous the mills worked short time and the production was small; therefore the demand is now much increased. Stocks in the country are very small, and some of the mills bought up by the syndicate have been put on for export to China, for the export trade. There seems to be no reason why this increase in production should not continue. I have never found any difficulty in competing with Upper Canadian manufacturers, and our export trade is done chiefly with Quebec, Montreal, London, (Ont), Hamilton, Winnipeg and Halifax, although we have some with the West Indies. We will not go into the syndicate if we can possibly help it. The Moncton, Halifax and other mills did not go in voluntarily; they were swallowed up by the syndicate; in the keen competition they were worsted and were practically compelled to sell out. And the reason they could not compete with these manufacturers was only because the management could not have been efficient. They sold out at a loss, the mills bringing not more than half the sum they cost. None of these factories, with the exception of the one at Kingston, (Ont) I believe, has been paying, and the shareholders were willing to be rid of them even at a loss.

"About ten years ago, if you remember, there was a kind of craze in cotton. Every little village thought it necessary to have a cotton factory, and everybody wanted to take stock. The inevitable result was that the supply being beyond the demand, money was sunk, and none was made. So when the present Montreal sydicate negotiated for the purchase of these mills they secured them, as I have said, at a low figure, intending to monopolize the whole cotton industry of Canada. They will work only those mills which will pay best, and I am not certain that if they got hold of the St. John mills they would operate them. It would be very much to the disadvantage of the wholesale trade in the maritime provinces to send to Montreal for goods made here, and moreover this would certainly affect prices.

"Now with regard to the management of mills, I do not think that a syndicate is a more competent management than an individual—provided of course the latter understands the business. A syndicate cannot buy cheaper, nor can it produce cheaper, but if it has the monopoly it can practically fix its own prices. It is certainly true that in Upper Canada labor can be secured at a cheaper rate than here, because the French are willing to work at low wages. This is fully offset, however, by the superior intelligence of our employes, which enables them to do more work and do it better.

"We are having a large output at present. Both factories are running to their fullest capacity, and it is difficult almost to get employes. This proves conclusively that in St. John at least work is not scarce, and it should be sufficient evidence that we have no very poor here. What it is necessary to do is to build up those industries which we have, for why cannot St. John manufacture as cheaply as Montreal or any other place, and why should St. John manufacturers ask any other city to do their business for them?"

Mr. Parks then volunteered to show the GAZETTE man through the factory, and a busy place it was, with its hundreds of operatives, its throb of machinery, and its transformation of cotton into cloth with scarcely the touch of a human hand. When Mr. Laurier reached Halifax on his political mission from St. John he stated that he had only seen smoke coming from about one factory chimney in this city. It must have been the Parks factory that attracted his eye, but to the right of this huge Wall street building, and on all sides of it there are just as busy factories and foundries though not so large. Throughout this factory, evidences of order as well as of industry were apparent, and each apartment had its rows of intricate machines attended by deft workers, in most instances girls.

The principle of cotton spinning is based on the fact that the raw material consists of fibres varying from ¾ of an inch to 1½ inches in length. This is passed through a machine, in which it is cleaned, and the fibre made to run in one direction. Then it is rolled, and the rolls transferred to another machine where they are carded, and afterwards attached to the spinning wheels, and transformed into yarn and cotton thread. The operations are full of interest and the adaptation of means remarkable in every degree.

It is pleasing to note this local development of the cotton industry, for, apart from the products, it gives employment to many people throughout the city, and the wages are spent in St. John. The Parks cotton mills maintain 500 hands at a weekly expenditure in wages of at least $2,500, and it is to the interest of the city to have them operated by a St. John manufacturer, and employing St. John people.

GLOUCESTER IS SATISFIED

THE FROZEN HERRING RULING PLEASES THE FISHERMEN.

It Only Applies to Fares Brought in Foreign Bottoms—Practically Restrictive on the Encroaching Newfoundlanders—Leaves the Trade in the Hands of Local Owners.

GLOUCESTER, Jan 25.—General satisfaction is manifested here at the order received by Collector Pew, yesterday, from the treasury department at Washington, ruling that frozen herring brought into this country shall be classed as fish "frozen, preserved in ice, or by other means," for which the rate of duty is three-quarters of a cent per pound, and not as frozen herring at a rate of duty of one-quarter of a cent per pound.

The despatches from Washington, published Saturday, that this ruling substantiates the position of Collector Pew and is against the stand taken by Collector Beard, is wrong. As yet no frozen herring has been received at either port to be ruled upon.

Of course this ruling only applies to the fares brought in foreign bottoms, since it has already been passed upon by the treasury department that frozen herring, procured as fares, and which are brought into this port by our own fish owners, are the product of the American fisheries, and consequently free from duty.

What it does affect is the importation of frozen herring brought into Gloucester Boston or New York ports by Newfoundland fish owners, but as no fares have been entered this season, or since the McKinley bill went into effect, no rulings have been made and this order comes merely in answer to a request for instructions in case fares are landed.

The ruling gives great satisfaction in Gloucester as it is practically restrictive on the encroaching Newfoundlanders, and leaves the trade in the hands of the local owners who built it up.

Mr. William H. Jordan, the largest producer of frozen herring, sending vessels from this port, says: "The ruling is very satisfactory to us. We have had to pay duty on nearly everything we used all these years, and this is the first real protection we have ever had. Now we feel as if we could venture to go into the business on such a scale that we can give cheap fish food to the consumers at a fair profit to ourselves. The large fish owners at St. Pierre have been sending more and more frozen herring to us each year, and if we had not been given this protection we could not have sent a vessel there this winter."

Telephone Service Repaired.

On Sunday, the 18th inst., the big storm and silver frost knocked out 175 telephone wires and 4 poles. Of these 42 wires stretching 500 feet in length over Fisher's pond were down, together with three poles, and 60 wires were down on Smythe street. Line men have been hard at work during the past week repairing the damage, but some difficulty was experienced in erecting poles in the pond. Today however, the work was temporarily completed and manager McMackin deserves credit for the despatch with which he pushed on operation and completed repairs. All wires have been re-stretched, and full telephone connections are now possible.

Our stock of Hamburgs has arrived; we have never been in such a position to do a Hamburg trade as this season; the patterns are exquisite and work very fine; Insertions to match. Also Flouncings and Allovers in Swiss and Cambric. In a few days we will have on our counters some narrow widths of Hamburgs that will be sold very low, in fact much under the regular value as they were bought away down. Linen Towels and Towellings all qualities; New Patterns in Shaker Flannels; Bath Towels and Glass Towels. Hemming free. We pay the car fare.
