pieces of evidence they would be absolutely convinced that Dreyfus did not write the bordereau. This witness who is a fellow probationer of Dreyfus', proved one of the strongest witnesses for the defence, as he brought out in support of his contention that Dreyfus could not have written the bordereau by the following argument: "If, as it first asserted, the bordereau was dated May, Dreyfus could not have written: — 'I am going to the manoeuvres,' because a circular was issued in May informing the probationers that they would not go to the manoeuvres, while, if the bordereau was dated in April, as now asserted, Dreyfus could not have spoken of the firing manual, which was only printed at the end of May."

No one of the generals to-day found a reply to the last argument, which looked like a clincher, General De Boisdeffre alone declaring that although it was true the circular mentioned was sent to the probationers that they could nevertheless, go to the manoeuvres if they made special application.

Generals Mercier and Roget then went on the stage and confronted M. De Fond-Lamothe, and a heated discussion ensued. Gen. Roget asked when the witness had altered his conviction in favor of Dreyfus and M. De Fond-Lamothe replied:—"At the time I was before the court of Cassation I expected proof of my comrade's guilt, and I was thunderstruck when I found the date of the bordereau had been changed.

The prisoner then rose to reply to Gen. De Boisdeffre's argument. He declared he had never asked for permission to go to the manoeuvres, and recalled that when Col. Du Paty de Clam fixed the date of the bordereau in August, he (Dreyfus) pointed out that he could not have written the phrase, "I am going to the manoeuvres." Gen. Roget here interpolated that requests to go to the manoeuvres were usually made verbally, so it could not be proved whether Dreyfus had asked or had not asked to go to the manoeuvres. The General, however, admitted that no inquiry had ever been made on this important point.

General Roget was greatly excited during the foregoing scene, but M. De Fond-Lamothe did not flinch. He retorted quickly to all the General's observations. The two men glared at one another, and once Gen. Roget addressed M. De Fond-Lamothe in such a bullying fashion that the audience hooted him.

MONDAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Rennes, September 5.—The fifth week of the famous Dreyfus court-martial was opened yesterday and conducted with several sensational features. The introduction by the prosecution of evidence concerning the opinion of a European power concerning Dreyfus and the Jews may prolong the court-martial two weeks.

M. Labori rose and declared it to be his intention, now that the prosecution had opened that kind of testimony, to carry it still further and ask for information from a certain foreign government (meaning Germany) as to whether the information referred to in the bordereau was actually conveyed or not and as to whether Dreyfus was the traitor. He had reason to believe that the request of the court would be complied with.

Col. Jouaust, president of the court, decides to allow the request, it will put an international phase to the Dreyfus matter which it has not had formally heretofore. It may also hasten or prevent the threatened French revolution—whichever mood the French population happens to be in at the time.

The important witness of Monday was an Austro Hungarian refugee named Cernuschi. He asked that his letter to Col. Jouaust be read, which was done, the letter declaring that, having been mixed up in political troubles in Austria Hungary, he had been obliged to seek refuge in France, where he had a friend who was a high official of the foreign office of the central European power. This friend, the witness said, told him that certain foreign agents in France might denounce him, the first name mentioned be that of Dreyfus. Another foreign officer, a foreign general of staff, similarly warned him. One day, the witness said, when he was visiting the latter, he saw him take from his pocket a voluminous packet containing military documents. The officer said that in France one could buy anything, adding: "What is the good of Jews if you don't use them?"

M. Labori then announced that as the prosecution had introduced the evidence of foreigners he would follow it up.

Later on Col. Jouaust accused Mr. Labori of attempting to bulldoze the court. There was a hot exchange of words Labori expressing surprise at his own moderation.

The foreign refugee claimed to belong to a noble Servian family but it is alleged no such family of his name exists.

On Sunday there was a disgraceful exhibition given by two colored women and two white men on Tecumseh Park. The four were pretty well jugged and were boosing from one large bottle, which did service for the four. The women were keeping the men company chewing tobacco.

Better vision and relief from all those little eye worries is what you are sure of if you have your glasses fitted by me. Reaume, of Tilbury, were united in marriage at St. Joseph's church. Miss Annie Louise Reaume, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and the groom was supported by M. Kelley. The bride was charmingly attired in a navy blue travelling suit. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Reaume left for their new home in Seattle. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Paul. Miss Thomson was an exceedingly popular young lady and a prominent member of St. Joseph's church. The best wishes of her large circle of Chatham friends accompany her to her new home. Mr. Reaume is also quite well known here, he having resided in this section for many years before seeking his fortune in the west, where he now holds an important position in a large store in Seattle.

HIT WITH A BRICK.

Robert Carey was struck on the head with a brick on Saturday. Mr. Carey was drawing water from the creek at the old Tolin bridge, when a youth passed, chasing some girls. Mr. Carey told the boy to stop, when the youth turned and threw a piece of brick, striking him and inflicting a nasty wound that bled profusely. Mr. Carey saved the brick.

HE LIKES MERLIN.

Dr. Jas. W. Rutherford, jr., who has been taking charge of Dr. Oliver's practice at Merlin during the latter's absence in Toronto, returned to the city Saturday. Dr. Rutherford says he was much pleased with his sojourn at Merlin. The people are nice and hospitable. The country around is exceptionally fine farming land and all the farmers are prosperous. The quail are exceedingly thick in this section this year, especially towards Glenwood and Sturgeon. The shooting promises to be exceedingly good there this year.

At Troy, N. Y., great excitement was caused by the police being notified by Royal G. Brown, a tailor, that on returning home from work he found his wife lying on the floor bound hand and foot. She claimed that a negro had entered the house and assaulted her. The police made investigation, and found that the woman concocted the story to get her husband to remain in the house at night instead of walking out with other women.
