THE June term of the Supreme Court opens on Tuesday next.

DR. James Handrahan has removed his office from this city to Kelly's Cross, Lot 29

MR Theo L Chappelle, of the Diamond Bookstore, has assigned to Mr Donald Nicholson for the benefit of his creditors.

THE schooner Congo sailed Saturday evening for St. John's, Nfld., with a cargo of cattle valued at $1,280. Mr. Barrett Henderson was the shipper.

THE Stanley arrived Saturday from Pictou, where she had been on the slip repairing. Yesterday she left for her season's work on the fishery protection service.

A YOUNG man named William H. McIntyre, a native of this Province, was killed in the woods at Milo, Me., on the 13th inst., by a tree falling upon him.

R. B. NORTON & Co. have resumed business in their new store, situated on the site of the one destroyed some months ago by fire. It is one of the most imposing looking buildings in the city.

FOUR men named Patk. Lynch, Rod McDonald, Chas. Havill and John Light, all of Halifax arrested at Springhill, charged with placing a trolly on the railway track on the 13th inst., have been committed for trial in the Supreme Court.

A GOOD EXAMPLE—Messrs. Beer Bros. have had a cold water faucet placed in their store for the use of their customers. This will no doubt be greatly appreciated during the hot days of June, July and August.

AT Elmsdale on Sunday evening the barn of Mr. Allan Harvey was struck by lightning, and igniting was burned to the ground, together with several farming implements. A dwelling house near by also caught and was destroyed. Loss about $300.

CAPT. AYLWARD'S schooner Georgie Harold arrived here Friday forenoon from St. John's, Nfld. She is a trim beautiful looking craft and an exceptionally fast sailer. The captain is now loading her with produce for the Newfoundland market.

JOHN McDONALD, of Trout Brook C B, attempted suicide last week by cutting his throat Not succeeding, he obtained a rope and went to the woods and hanged himself But the limb of the tree broke, and he was saved. McDonald attempted suicide some years ago under similar circumstances.

HON. Donald Farquharson has been appointed by the government agent for the distribution of the Paris green imported by them. Other agencies are also to be established throughout the Province. The government sells the article to the agents at 15 cents per lb and they retail it at 18c.

JOSEPH SMITH, of Johnston's River, a prisoner in Queen's Co. gaol applied Saturday to Judge Hensley for a Habeas Corpus to release him from prison under a warrant of commitment issued by H. V. Palmer, J. P. The Judge heard his application took time to consider, and yesterday ordered his release.

MISS ELIZABETH GILL, the young lady who won the medal offered for the best kept set of books in the bookkeeping course at Prince of Wales College, was on Friday presented by Dr. Anderson, in the presence of all the students, with her prize. Owing to its non-arrival in time for the convocation exercises it was impossible to award it sooner.

A prisoner named Erickson, serving out a sentence in Rockhead prison, Halifax, made an attack on Keeper Robert Murray Sunday night The keeper defended himself with a revolver and put two bullets into Erickson, one into his shoulder and the other into his leg The prisoner was dangerously wounded.

BESIDES its many other notable belongings Ottawa is now famed for the linguistic virtuosos of its journalism The latest addition to the art preservative there is a German monthly called "Das Echo," of which Herr Dronge is editor and proprietor The English, French, Danish and German languages are now the mediums through which Ottawa editors enlighten the world.

THE steamer Cuban sailed for St. John's, Nfld., Monday evening with the following cargo: 1000 bags oats, shipped by Carvell Bros; 118 bags oats by Wm. Boyle; 2 horses by Capt. R. Fraser, and 1 each by D. Rogers and John Horne; 74 sheep by Barret Henderson, and 21 by Geo. Wheatley; 20 bdls. leather, by Hagan Bros.; 18 bags potatoes and 18 bags turnips by P. Duffy; 4 box pigs by Blake Bros.

THERE was laid upon our table a few days ago a beautifully gotten up pamphlet entitled "Prince Edward Island as a Summer Resort—Where it is and How to get There." The work—the labors of Mr. H. L. Hall—contains a brief but capitally written description of the Province and a presentation of its many attractions to the summer tourist. Comprehensive notices of Charlottetown, Summerside and North shore resorts as Tracadie, Rustico, Brackley Point Stanhope, Cavendish, etc., are also given. Full and complete information regarding how the Province can be reached both by rail and steamer, and how when in the Province where the different points of interest are to be found, is also well set forth. The work also contains several views of Island scenery, and a number of this city's public buildings. Among the places of which views are given are: Dundas Esplanade Terrace; Scenes on Brighton Road; Queen Square Gardens and public buildings therein; Victoria River; Clarke's Mill Brook, Lot 37; Morell River—head of tide; and the Stanley covering from the Island to the mainland in midwinter. These views are particularly fine, and cannot fail to impress the tourist with the many natural beauties of our sea girt isle. Typographically the work presents an excellent appearance, shedding forth its beauty in four different colors, and reflects great credit upon the publisher, Mr. John Coombs, out of whose establishment it was issued. With 10,000 copies of the book distributed through Canada and the United States it will surely tend to make the beauties of the Province more generally known, and cause the tide of summer tourists to flow with greater force towards the "Garden of the Gulf."

THE Caledonian Club will hold their annual Scottish gathering at Sturis on August 16th.

THE Hotel Acadia, Grand Tracadie Beach, opened Saturday evening for the reception of guests.

THE Bathurst school enquiry has closed until August 2nd, when the counsel will argue the case before Judge Fraser at Fredericton.

FOREST fires destroyed considerable property near Sydney C. B., the latter part of last week. Several dwellings, outbuildings and sheep were reduced to ashes.

CAPT ALEX. McLEOD, for the past forty years sailing master of H. M. Surveying steamer Gulnare, died at his home at Orwell, on Wednesday last, aged 70 years.

ON Sunday evening at Cape Bauld, Botsford parish, ex-Conn. P. LaBlanc, a large lobster packer, went for a walk and on returning home dropped dead as he entered the door. He was a large fleshy man about fifty years of age.

AT Fredericton a few days ago, Chas. Good, an old man of 60 years, was sentenced to ten years in Dorchester penitentiary for arson. At Moncton, on his way to Dorchester, he was smoking a cigar butt and appeared to view his future with great unconcern.

WHEN the night freight from St. John to Pt. du Chene was going into Shediac Friday night it ran over a man named Ephram Herbert, taking off his left foot. It is thought he was under the influence of liquor and was asleep at the time with his foot on the rail.

MR OLIVER WHITE of Murray Harbor was drowned at that place on Wednesday evening last by the upsetting of a boat. In company with a boy he had been out fishing, and was returning when a squall sprung up overturning the boat. The boy reached the shore with the assistance of a tub which had been in the boat.

BROTHER JUSTIN, the head officer of the Christian Brothers in America, who arrived here a few days ago, is understood to have conferred with Archbishop O'Brien in the matter of erecting a college in Halifax. The proposed institution would take the place of LaSalle academy and in addition embrace a full advanced collegiate course.—HX. Herald.

THE Digby Telegram says: Three months ago to-day the schooner Mary E Whorf, Captain Howard Anderson, cleared for the halibut fishery off the Yarmouth coast. Yesterday Captain Anderson and his good crew returned to port During their absence the Mary E Whorf has stocked over $4,000, which gives the owner of high line of the Digby fleet up to date.

A. O. H.—At the regular meeting of Division No. 1, A. O. H., held on Friday evening last, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—M. P. Hogan, C. C.
Vice-President—Patrick McGuigan.
Treasurer—Richard Grant.
F. S.—John Connolly.
R. —Edward Trainor.
Marshal—Thomas Campbell.
I. G.—John McAleer.
O. G.—James Mahoney.

THE residence of Mr Henry G Lawson, postmaster, Stanhope, was discovered on fire about 6.30 o'clock Sunday morning. The whole family consisting of Mr Lawson his wife three sons and a daughter, were in bed asleep at the time. Mr Lawson was awakened by the smoke, and hastily calling the rest of his family an attempt was made to save the contents of their home. In this they were not very successful owing to the great headway the fire had gained, and lost almost all their belongings including their clothing. No insurance.

ON Sunday morning in the Chapel of St. Dunstan's College, Revs. A J McDonald, Eccl. of Grand River, Lot 14, and R. A Macdonald, Eccl of Alberton, were ordained sub-deacons by His Lordship Bishop McDonald, assisted by Rev Dr Morrison, Rector of the College, Rev J P McGrath, of the same institution, and Rev A McAulay of the Cathedral. On Saturday morning next at the same place both these young gentlemen will be ordained deacons, and on the following day in St Dunstan's Cathedral, this city, they will be elevated to the Priesthood by His Lordship Bishop McDonald.

ON the afternoon of the 13th inst two prisoners named John T. Connolly, of Charlottetown and Enos. Carter, of Annapolis, N. S., made their escape from Dorchester penitentiary. They were at work in a field on the penitentiary farm near the woods. Suddenly they threw down their tools, ran for the woods and escaped. They did not long enjoy their liberty though, being captured the following day by Warden Foster about 15 miles from Dorchester. Connolly had but seven months more to serve and Carter a year, but this little escapade will add materially to their terms.

A YOUNG lad named Peter Callaghan aged 17, was drowned Wednesday afternoon last off St. Peter's Island. He and another young man named Steele, belonging to Souris, had returned from this city to Taylor's lobster factory, where they were both employed, and were about anchoring their boat when a squall struck her and she was overturned. Steele managed to get clear of the boat and swam until rescued by a fellow employe in a dory. Callaghan however tangled in the sail of the boat and was drowned. The young lad was the son of Mr. James Callaghan, oiler on the steamer Carroll. His body was recovered Friday evening, brought to this city and interred.

On Saturday morning they go to Egmont Bay. There they will be the guests of Mr J O Arsenault, M P P, father of their leader Rev S J Arsenault C S C, and will remain until the 27th inst, when they return to the mainland.

FARMERS COLUMN.

Selection and Care, of Dairy Cows.

R. S. KINGMAN BEFORE THE WISCONSIN FARMERS' CONVENTION.

I will begin by describing two kinds of cows you may find in almost any herd. One is a close compact, smooth-looking cow, straight-backed, closely-ribbed, with thick thighs—a perfect type of the sympathetic temperament. This is the beef cow, no matter what her breeding may be. You might as well try to make a successful race horse of a Norman as to expect a good dairy cow made up as above described. This is not the cow I wish to spend any further time in describing. Neither do you need to spend any time in looking at her if you are selecting a dairy cow for business. The cow you should select for milk is precisely the opposite in conformation from the one just described.

She is of a nervous temperment and will have more conformation of what is termed a raw-boned animal—with relaxed appearance, a clear expression of the eye, a broad muzzle, a thin neck, drooping a little at the shoulders which should be thin also; ribs should be flat and well apart. As you pass your hand along her back it will have a rough appearance; with broad and long hips, strong back and pelvic arch; with thin thighs, well apart to make room for the udder; with angular shoulders and plenty of chest capacity for lungs and digestion. She should have muscle like a race horse.

Above all, the dairy cow should be deep through the flank, with a square udder running well forward on belly and well up behind, with teats good length and square-ly placed, with long, tortuous or ramifying milk veins terminating forward in large apertures. Size is not essential in the make-up of a good cow. In the flank just above the udder you may find what is termed the milk gland, which is easily found in a good cow. Just how far this is a guide in the selection of a dairy cow I am not prepared to say. My own observation is that the best cows have these glands well developed. These, so far as I know, are the important outward indications of a good dairy cow. The escutcheon theory I have no confidence in whatever.

The real test, however, of a good cow is the amount and quality of milk she will give in a year. Therefore test your cows often in some way, and know for a certainty which cows are paying you a profit and which are running you in debt. It is not at all improbable but the little scrawny-looking cow in the herd that the farmer would sell for a small price to get her out of sight is the very cow that is paying the expenses of the large, fine sleek-looking cow that is the pride of the herd. Test each individual cow often and accurately, and know exactly what she is doing, and when you find a cow that is not paying a profit sell her to the general-purpose farmer or butcher; a dairyman has no use for her. When you have found a good cow do not be too free to dispose of her; do not think she is getting old until the has served you at least ten or twelve years. Do not be too greedy for the few dollars you might realize for a few pounds of old cow beef. That is not the mission of a good dairy cow.

Do not keep a cow that cannot make at least 175 lbs. of butter in a year with good fair treatment, and don't be satisfied with your business until your cows average you 300 to 350 lbs. butter or more per year. Plenty of cows are doing this. Do not discard a cow for the small amount of milk she gives until you have tested the quality of the milk. Plenty of cows are making from one to one and a half pounds of butter daily that give no more than six to nine quarts of milk per day. Some cows persist in going dry from four to six months in the year. These are almost invariably cows of a beefy tendency, and are worthless as dairy cows. Weed them out of your herd as soon as possible. The most profitable cow the dairyman can have is one that gives a fair mess of milk of good quality and does not incline to go dry more than six weeks in incline to go dry more than six weeks in the good of the cow and offspring that she should go dry that length of time. The fact of a cow's going dry a longer or shorter time is largely due to habit; therefore keep your heifers, with first and second calf in milk as near as possible to the time of dropping the next calf.

Cows that are fresh in August and September will give more milk in the year than they would if fresh in the spring, for the reason that you can hold the September cow to her milk during the winter, and when fresh grass comes she will spring up in her milk and continue in a fair flow till near the time of dropping her next calf. On the other hand, any man of experience knows how hard it is to keep a spring milk cow in milk as winter approches. This is one reason why winter dairying is more profitable than summer dairying

The profitable cow of to-day has not come to us by chance. She has descended to us from ancestors that have been bred for hundreds of years or more by careful selection of the fittest with reference to milk production. When animals have been bred for a long time with reference to certain qualities that trait becomes fixed and is transmitted to the offspring with almost unerring certainty. But not so with grades and animals of mixed breeding You often see an excellent cow without any known breeding whose heifer calves make utterly worthless cows and vice versa. Select a cow whose maternal ancestors for several generations are good cows and you have but little risk to run. Among the average farmers there is too little attention paid to selecting a sire. No sire should be placed at the head of a dairy herd unless his maternal ancestors are known to be good dairy cows with healthy, good-shaped udders and teats well placed.

This law of inheritance is too little studied in building up a herd of dairy cows. Many farmers make a practice of selling off their best animals because they can get a few dollars more immediate money and continue to breed from their inferior animals. Such a course is fatal to success. The best animals are none to good to breed from, and this especially applies to the sire. Never breed from a poor sire is a motto every dairyman should keep fresh in his mind. There are a great many farmers who still believe in the general-purpose animal, but happily their numbers are growing less every year. The chief excellences in animals are those that have been bred for generations with a view of developing certain special qualities. After long years—I may say hundreds of years—of careful selection and breeding with a certain object in view breeds of animals are established, and when once established they are termed pure-breds or full bloods. A pure-bred sire used in a herd of females with no especial breeding is almost certain to transmit his peculiar traits to his offspring. And when a pure-bred sire is coupled with a pure-bred female of same breeding you can calculate with unerring certainty what the offspring will be.

Through the great law of transmission great performers have come into existence. Such noted horses as Kremlin and Nancy Hanks and many others are not creatures of chance. Such cows as Pauline Paul that has a test of over 1,100 lbs. of butter in one year, and Mary Ann of St. Lambert, with an official record of thirty-six pounds of butter in seven days, and a record of 807 lbs. of butter in one year, and many other records as good or better than these that have astonished the world with their performances, are not creatures of chance. No general-purpose breeding ever produced such animals, as they are the result of careful selection and breeding for a special purpose for years. When the best results is desired it is to be found among the animals of special breeding The idea of a general-purpose animal is a delusion, and the quicker the farmer can get it out of his head the better it will be for him, and the better for the statistics of the country. The greatest excellence comes only by a careful selection of the fittest for the purpose desired.

HERE WE ARE

AS LARGE AS LIFE!

AND TWICE AS NATURAL!

With Compliments of Star Tailoring Establishment.

IT is fitting to acknowledge through the Press our appreciation of the patronage of our friends in this city and throughout the Island for the last six years; and as we propose to live as long as we can, we are brimful of hope that the future will develop greater things for the customers than the past ever dreamed of

Our objective point is PERFECTION; and until our art will don that title, you will find us selling Suits, cheaper Suits, better-made Suits, than any house in the trade. Our claim is no idle dream, but patent facts.

JOHN T. McKENZIE,
Star Tailoring Establishment, London House.
