J. L. STEWART,..... EDITOR.

MONDAY EVENING, JULY 6.

Poor Parton.

Mr. James Parton, a well known writer who makes a very little fact go a long way, is among those who think they know how to manage a newspaper in a superior manner. He has an article on journalism in the last Harper, from which the average reader must arise with a heart aching because Mr. Parton is not editor of a newspaper. It is sad, the poor New Yorker must reflect, that papers edited by Dana, Marble and Reid have to put up with, when one controlled by Parton should be at hand. The Sun, World, Herald and Tribune are very good, but Parton's paper would be so much superior that the others would die out for lack of support. Somebody else but the average reader has been perusing Parton's article, and he has suffered in consequence. If he had contented himself with generalities, mere assertions, and gossip, journalists would not have noticed him, but, unfortunately for himself, he entered the actual field of journalism so far as to give the particulars of a case that he claimed as proof of his charge of falsehood. He stated broadly that the accounts given by the New York papers of the scenes at the hanging of Lusignani, at Morristown, N. J., May 15th, 1873, were deliberate falsehoods, concocted by the reporters as the result of an agreement to "give the Sheriff fits" for not having admitted them to the jail at an unseasonable hour, after they had spent the night drinking to excess. He quotes their accounts of the hanging as illustrations of "the probabilities of falsehood and of riotous indecency to brains weakened and crazed by the fumes of alcohol."

The Tribune, after treating Parton to a severe dose of caustic satire, says:

We have taken pains to investigate the matter, and we are convinced that the statement of our reporter, published on another page, is literally true, and that Mr. Parton's story is absolutely false in spirit and in detail. The gentleman, whom with others, he so recklessly accuses of drunkenness, brutality, falsehood and slander, has been connected with the Tribune over seven years. He is consistent in total abstinence from wine or spirits, not knowing the taste of either. His professional and personal character is as high as that of Mr. Parton. His reputation for trustworthy observation and reporting, we are compelled to say, is better than that of Mr. Parton. He affirms and offers to make affidavit to the accuracy of his statements, which, by the way, we have verified from other sources.

In justice to Mr. Parton we will state that on applying to him for the sources upon which he based these serious charges against reputable men, he says that he received his information chiefly from a young gentleman connected with one of the newspapers in Morristown, whose name he cannot recall.

And thus is poor Parton snuffed out. The "statement of our reporter," referred to above, is a card from George E. Miles, the writer of the Tribune's account of the murder, flatly denying the charges Parton makes on the authority of some young man whose name he has forgotten, telling anew the story of the terrible hanging, and offering to make affidavit to all the material statements of his report. The Tribune finally polishes Parton off with a sentence that is peculiarly appropriate and intensely caustic in the circumstances, saying that "Mr. Parton is a prosperous historian, but he must be more careful of his facts before he can ever be a reporter." That is as true as it is sarcastic.

Starvation in the West.

Famine is the curse of agricultural regions, strange to say. Countries that raise little food seldom suffer from starvation. Wisconsin is the scene of the latest famine, the grasshoppers having eaten the crops and reduced the farmers to the starvation point. Gov. Davis issued a circular, July 3rd, to the Grangers of the State, in which he says:

I am compelled to ask the co-operation of each Grange of your powerful organization in relieving the destitute of our fellow-citizens in the southwestern counties. That region has been traversed by trustworthy men, and they report unanimously a state of destitution which has no parallel in our history as a State. The time for silence as to this condition of affairs has passed by, and the time for prompt and liberal action by all who are willing to do as they would be done by, has arrived. The counties of Martin, Murray, Jackson and Cottonwood, and a portion of Noble and Watonwan, and possibly other counties have been swept of all crops by grasshoppers as completely as if by fire. Women and children are suffering for food, the implements and stock of the settlers are under mortgage, given in order to tide over the privations of last year. I have told people that their fellow-citizens whom a kind Providence has blessed with abundance will stand by them in this their dire extremity. Contributions in money are most desirable, provisions and clothing scarcely less so. Send contributions to Gen'l. H. H. Sibly, St. Paul, Minn.

If the grasshoppers could be made available as food, and we have no doubt of the ability of a French cook to serve them up in an eatable style, the people might take satisfaction and derive sustenance by devouring the destroyers of their crops.

The fourth of July was celebrated as usual in the United States. The most striking feature of the occasion was the exodus from the cities to the country. Every avenue from New York city to the sea shore and interior was crowded all the previous day, with people eager to escape the din of city celebration, and the steamers and trains were not sufficient to accommodate all who wanted to leave on the morning of the fourth.

New Yorkers are industriously abusing their aged mayor, Mr. Havemeyer. The Mail referred to him the other day as "that old mule." Now he has reappointed two Police Commissioners, who were unseated by a court of justice for illegal official acts, and complaints are showered on him from all quarters. The Herald wants the Governor to remove the Mayor. The World calls him "an impudent old scoundrel," and the Sun stigmatizes him as a cunning old trickster.

James Meehan's arrest at Chicago has been reported. An official letter received from the Chief Superintendent of Police of that city states that no man of the name of James Meehan had been arrested there for shooting a policeman, but adds: "We had a man named James Meehan a short time ago charged with burglary. He was sent to Bridewell, but has been released from there, and his present whereabouts is unknown to us."

The New York Tribune's comet observer, Prof. Parkhurst, "hopes for a collision." Is the Professor a railway director?

The races in Woodstock on Dominion Day were very successful. The Woodstock horses carried off the chief prizes, though several American horses trotted. In the three-minute race a mare called Pocohontas, that had never trotted before, distanced her four competitors and took all the money. Time 2.45.

Because some fellows had a jolly row one night, and made things hot for him, a Missouri editor heaves out this sigh—"Give us back the palmy days of the inquisition, or the foul fires of witchcraft lifting their black columns to the sky; but let the low principle of such midnight cliques, in whose breast is lurking in embryo the feelings of a highwayman, like the putrid yeast of death that often spreads throughout the physician's frame and reduces it to a living skeleton, be banished from the nation over whose domain the star of empire now trembles in its last revolution in the historic heavens."

Jules Janin, the celebrated French feuilletonist, lately deceased, attended the London exhibition of 1851, as a correspondent of a Parisian journal, varying his correspondence by philosophizing on the character of the English people. Seeing on the front of the Royal Exchange the inscription "The Earth is the Lord's," he made a note of it, translating the inscription "La terra est aux seigneurs," his comment on it being that "not even the merchant princes of England can free themselves from a degrading subserviency to the aristocracy."

Poor thing, how it must have wrenched her heart-strings; but she made it a matter of conscience and put it through. And this was the way of it. She was engaged to a young man (as the manner of some is); but one evening when he called and lolled beside her on the sofa, having been up nearly all the previous night, his tired nature gave way and he fell asleep. And then, ye gods, how he snored! She tried to waken him, but failed, until she jerked him to his feet by a vigorous pull at his top knot and got him so as to listen while she vowed "she'd die an old maid before she'd marry a man who snored." And then she sailed away from him forever. Moral: Young ladies must always find out in advance about such little matters as this, if they can!

There is a striking difference between the Old and the New country with reference to freedom of speech. Here you can abuse any individual you please, and as much as you please; but you dare not say a word to the community, however rotten it may appear to you. In England, on the contrary, the individual is a sacred thing; while any one is welcome to criticise and ill use society as much as he pleases. They rather like to be laughed at or abused in England. If the thing is well done they enjoy it, if badly, they don't take the slightest notice of it. They have lived long enough to know that a caricature or a satire cannot in any way effect their merits or their dignity, while it can do some good occasionally. And that is the only way a great nation should look at this sort of thing.

People who are particular about the disposal of their bodies after death will have a variety of methods from which to select. How would the reader, should he become "a body," relish being covered with Roman cement, and so being hardened into a solid mass, with no opportunity for noxious gases to escape? This is the way in which, kind friend, you would be treated. You would be placed in a sarcophagus of already hardened cement. Then what cavities your pale form left would be filled up with the same material, and you would become a solid block of stone—in fact, you might be set up in a graveyard as your own monument, and have all your virtues carved upon your own bosom.

We learn from the Attakapas Sentinel that the white citizens of the parish of St. Martin in Louisiana have formed a league for the protection of "their property, persons, rights, and race." They say that a league of black men is in full organization there, and that under its control the State Government of Louisiana with its municipal and parochial organization has been nothing less than a net work of spoliation. The community is covered with the gloom of abject poverty, despair, and mortal agony. Unable to pay the taxes, their homes are sold by the auctioneer, and while a large portion of the parish is under water, its taxes have been raised from $11,000 to $18,000 by Kellogg's police jury. The courts are partisan dens. The millions that an impoverished people have paid for the construction and repair of levees have been stolen. Immoral and impure legislation and criminal prevarication prevail in all departments of the Government; and over this chaos of infamy, repudiation and bankruptcy seem to portend.

AYER'S AMERICAN ALMANAC has arrived, and is now ready for delivery, gratis, by our druggists, to all who call for it. Our readers may be surprised to know that this little pamphlet, which has become so much a favorite in our section, has quite the largest circulation of any one book in the world, except the Bible It is printed in many languages, and scattered through many nations, as well as supplied to almost the entire population of our own vast domain. Every family should keep it, for it contains information which all are liable to require, when sickness overtakes them, and which may prove invaluable from being at hand in season. If you take our advice, you will call and get an AYER'S ALMANAC, and when got, keep it.

MR. C. SPARROW begs to intimate to Saint John epicures that he has engaged one of the best and most skillful cooks to be had from Boston, and he is now prepared to furnish breakfasts, dinners and suppers in the highest style of the culinary art. The public are respectfully invited to call and try his skill, at the Victoria Dining Saloon, No. 8 Germain street, (opposite Country Market.) tf

Mr. Notman tells us that the present month is the most suitable for photographing private residences, as the foliage is not too thick. He has an out-door staff to attend to work of this kind, and any order he may be favored with will have careful attention.

THE DAILY TRIBUNE and all the most popular Canadian, English and American newspapers and magazines can always be obtained at the bookstore of Mr. W. K Crawford, King street. au 8

Brevities.

Sackville is to have horse and foot races on Wednesday, on the Agricultural Grounds.

It rained incessantly yesterday from 7 a. m. until 9 p. m. when it held up and became comparatively fine. But it was too late then for the usual crowd to appear on the streets.

Sergt. Rider returned from Bangor on Saturday, bringing with him Lenihan. The prisoner is in good health. The Chief went to Boston to spend the Fourth. If he gets the necessary papers from Washington, he will, on his return, bring Robbins, the murderer of Solomon Camp, from Portland.

A very peculiar phenomenon was observed on Saturday night by a number of persons, about half-past nine. There suddenly appeared in the north east a brilliant star, which slowly moved in a westerly directon to about the centre of the arch. There it rested and was seen for some time exceedingly brilliant, when the clouds closed and shut it from sight.

The Board of Trade will meet at 3 p.m. on Wednesday next for the election of an additional delegate to the Dominion Board, and other business.

Sergt. Patterson of the police department left for New York this morning for a fortnight's vacation. Mr. Patterson has not been well for some time and his friends hope and expect he will be much improved in health on his return.

Corns.

By request, Dr. Lindoman, the surgeon chiropodist, has consented to remain in St. John until Thursday, July 9th. If you have corns, bunions, or bad nails, he will cure them without pain or drawing blood, at his room, 32 Victoria Hotel. Remember until July 9th he cures the very worst cases of nails without pain. Office hours from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. 3i

Shipping Notes.

Quick Passage.—The bark Lottie Stewart, Capt. Anderson, arrived at North Sydney, C.B., on the 26th ult., from Barrow, in ballast, in 15 days. This is the quickest passage of the season to that port. The L. S. loaded at this port with deals, discharged cargo in Barrow, took ballast, made the round passage, and arrived in Sydney on the sixty-fourth day.

Point Lepreaux, July 6, 9 a. m.—Wind North, light, cloudy; 1 ship, 5 schooners, and 1 steamer outward; 1 schooner inward.

New Ship.—The Prince Rudolphe, launched from Moran's ship yard, Quaco, a few days ago, is now lying at the Ballast Wharf, being fitted for sea. Her dimensions are: Length 210 feet 1 inch, breadth 38ft 1in., depth 23ft 8in., and she registers 1377 tons. She is owned in Liverpool by Messrs. Moran, Galloway & Co., and will load deals for Liverpool.

New Brunswick Oarsmen in Boston.

At the regatta on Charles River, Boston, on Saturday, New Brunswick had representatives in two races. In the two mile single scull race Brayley, of this city, was opposed by such scullers as Biglin and Morris, both of whom have claimed the championship of America. It is, therefore, not much against so young a sculler that he came in after these men. His boat was also a very inferior one. The race was won by Landers of Philadelphia in 15.14½. The Logan crew, so called, consisting of Absalom Logan (stroke), James Ford, N. Logan (bow), and George Dammery, entered in the race for four-oared working boats. They rowed in their boat, the Crown Prince, and won the race by half a minute. On weighing their boat it was found to be several pounds lighter than required, and the judges decided the race against them. It seems strange that the crew should not have taken the precaution to see that their boat conformed to the regulations, but as they did not they must abide by the consequences. They have well represented St. John oarsmen, however, and as a race between them and the winning crew is proposed, they may yet bring home a prize.

Stabbing Case.

A little before 10 o'clock Saturday evening Hazen Vantassel, in Lambert's saloon, Water street, got into an altercation with a sea captain and became so noisy that Lambert attempted to put him out. While the two were scuffling Vantassel drew a jack-knife and stabbed Lambert in the groin. The blow was so forcibly given that the blade was wrenched from the handle and left sticking in the wound. The wound is fortunately not a very serious one. It was dressed by Dr. Earle at Lambert's house, St. James street. Vantassel was, after the altercation, set upon by the crowd and very seriously beaten. His head was cut open, so that it was necessary to put a number of stitches in it. His cheek was cut, and his eye nearly gouged out. With his wounds he was able to get to a boarding house in Portland, where he was arrested by Sergt. Owens and policeman Sullivan and taken to the Station. Vantassel was quite drunk at the time. He bears a very bad character, this not being the first time that a charge of stabbing has been preferred against him.

If you want a fine-flavored, prime Havana Cigar, give Lawton Bros. a call. 2 King Square. tf

Dramatic Lyceum Theatre.

"Arrah-na-Pogue" was played on Saturday evening to a fair house. It was put on in excellent style. To-night Miss LeClercq makes her first appearance in "The New Magdalen," supported by Mr. Harry Murdock, a popular young American actor.

The Catholic Schools.

The annual subscription for the support of these schools was taken up at the Cathedral yesterday. Though the day was wet and there was not as large an attendance as usual, over $2000 was collected.

The Latest Work.

The latest and most brilliant work of the Street Inspector can be seen on the sidewalk on Jeffrey's Hill. It seems as if this officer has an especial spite against this hill and the unfortunate people who have to traverse it. Last fall he put on a coating of black rotten stone, which in a short time was ground to powder. Now, except on rainy days, the black, nasty dirt fills the air, and penetrates all the houses to the disgust of every housekeeper. But now, as if to err in another way, the Inspector, or Councillor of the Ward (let them divide the honors), has covered the sidewalk on one side with mud, not sand or gravel, but sticky, filthy mud. Yesterday persons who had to pass over it were almost mired. Whoever ordered the stuff to be put on the street should be made to remove it at his own expense.

City Police Court.

The dock at the Police Court will have to be enlarged, if this extensive business continues. There were no less than 23 arrests made between Saturday and Monday, half of them being on Sunday. Owing to the limited room the prisoners were brought in in detachments, or, as the Magistrate termed it, "batches." The amount of rum sold from 10 o'clock on Saturday to Monday morning must be enormous, and at some shops, no doubt, is equal to that sold for the entire week. Sunday is indeed a Godsend to rumsellers who have a back door. The Magistrate made the cheerful announcement before commencing work that the gaol was full, and those unable to pay their fines would probably go across the flats.

George Stack, young in years but well known at the Police Court, must pay $8 for his drunkenness in Union street, or go the to Penitentiary. "I've tried you in gaol already two months, and now you'll go across," said the Magistrate.

William Quirk, another well known offender, was ordered to pay $8 or go the same road and work for the Dominion.

Bernard Doherty and James Kennedy confessed to drunkenness in Prince Wm. street; William O'Brien on the South Wharf; Charles Barnes, William Burns, William Magee and Frank Bond, all sailors, in Brittain street; John Cooper and Robert Thomson, in Sheffield street; George Grear, in Duke street; John Smith, in Sydney street. Each one was fined $8.

Richard Hennan was given in charge by Thomas Burke for being drunk and assaulting him in Brittain street. Burke himself was drunk at the time, so even handed justice was dealt out and both fined $8 each.

Hayer Vantassel and William O'Brien were charged with being two of a disorderly crowd in Water street, and the former is charged with stabbing Lambert. The stabbed man not being able to appear the two were remanded.

Reuben White was charged with having a stolen watch in his possession. The watch was taken from Mr. Daniel Murphy, who lives at the corner of Carmarthen and Princess streets, on Friday night. The police found the watch at Mr. Purchase's in Dock street, where it had been left for repairs, and Saturday White went after it and was arrested. He denied all knowledge of the watch having been stolen, and said another man, whose name he mentioned, had given him fifty cents to go in and pay for repairing the watch. He was remanded until further inquiries are made. White has served one or two terms of imprisonment.

James Brittain was arrested drunk in Prince Wm street. He has been drinking very hard of late and seemed completely broken down. His wife wished him sent to the Hospital until he had recovered, offering to pay for his attendance. A medical examination was ordered.

John O'Brien and John McCarthy were the only two who denied being drunk, and the policemen were sworn to prove the charge. The latter told the policeman that he lied, and the Magistrate threatened to double the fine of $8 if he said so again. He hushed up, but did not look as if he believed him any better than before. O'Brien was sent to the Penitentiary.

Two women were arrested for drunkenness—Annie Lane and Mary Ann Wales. The former had never appeared in the dock before and had a young child with her. The Magistrate let her off with a caution. The latter, one of Miss Rye's importations, found drunk on Johnston's Wharf, was fined $8 or two months in gaol.

Daniel Doherty was charged with breaking and damaging a door belonging to Samuel Buist. The charge was admitted by Doherty, who was very much pleased to get out of a bad scrape by paying for the damage he had done.

Sarah Bailey was brought from Gaol to answer a charge of stealing $100 from John Welsh. There was no evidence to convict her of the robbery, and it was apparent that her story, that she did not know how he lost his money, but that she saw his pocket book with Johnson and his wife, who have left the city, was correct. She was discharged.

Mr. Morissey, who was for so long a time in the employ of M. N. Powers, Esq., has commenced the business of undertaker, etc., on his own account. See advt. tf
