HAMILTON NEWS

MILLER A HAMILTON MAN.

The Man Who Cut His Throat With a Piece of Glass Was Not of Toronto.

STREET CAR MEN NOW WANT MORE.

They Demand That the Company Recognize the Union That Has Been Formed.

Hamilton, April 21.—(Special.)—Chief of Police Smith was advised to-day by Chief Dampier of Valdosta, Ga., that a Hamilton man, named Robert J. Miller, suicided in the jail there last Monday. Miller, who suffered from hallucinations, thought he was being chased by a mob and cut his throat with a piece of glass. Inquiries were made by the detectives, who found that deceased has a brother employed as a cigar maker at Blumenstell's factory. Deceased learned his trade as a plumber with the late Mr. Farmer, James-street north.

Want Recognition.

While the street railway employes are satisfied at the backdown of the directors in regard to the 15 cents an hour, they are not yet satisfied. Since their organization as a union they are desirous of securing recognition from the company. They have a committee appointed; and after the acknowledged and all their business transacted though it and not individually, as manner of unions, the men want it to be formerly.

A strike is among the probabilities, if the men's request is not acceded to.

At the Assizes.

In the action of House v. the Grant-Lottridge Brewing Co., in which W. R. House claimed $10,082, on two notes of $4400 and $4500 and interest, judgment to-day was given for the full amount.

In Grimsby Corporation v. H. G. & B. Co., the Chief Justice gave judgment for plaintiffs, and dismissed the defendants' counterclaim, without prejudice to a new action. The action was to restrain the H. G. & B. from obstructing the village streets.

Minor Matters.

A man, who passed himself off as a Bell Telephone Co. repairer, got into the city hospital yesterday and stole a purse, containing $12, belonging to one of the nurses.

J. H. (California) Smith of Grimsby, died this morning early in his 71st year. He had been in poor health for a year.

James O'Neil, while working on the Wentworth-street railway extension this morning, had one of his legs broken in two places by a rail falling on it.

The new aerial truck, made by the Waterous Company of Brantford, has been delivered. It is a beauty.

Parrott, the condemned murderer, is keeping very quiet at the jail. His brother, Daniel, who fought in Cuba with the U. S. army, visited him yesterday afternoon.

Edward Culican, Picton-street west, will be tried at the Police Court to-morrow on a charge of committing a criminal assault on Mary Honeysett, a young girl.

Exalt. Fearnside has received a number of letters congratulating him on the success of the deputation which went to Ottawa re harbor improvements. Mr. Fearnside was chairman of the Harbor Committee last year.

At yesterday's meeting of the S.P.C.A., there was considered a communication from the Montreal society giving reasons for the docking of horses only by skilled veterinaries and asking the co-operation of the Hamilton society in the support of the bill. It was decided that the society should oppose such a measure.

A lamp exploded at the residence of Mrs. Cameron, 83 York-street, to-night, and set fire to the house. Little damage was done.

THE COST OF DUNDURN PARK

Instalment Plan a Rather Expensive Method According to the Figures.

NO RECOMMENDATION MADE.

Victoria Park to Be Lighted, So That the Soldiers Can Drill There—A Short Meeting.

Hamilton, April 21.—(Special.)—Just what Dundurn Park will cost the city if bought on the instalment plan proposed by the owner was made known to-night at the meeting of the Parks Committee. On the 45-year plan, the cost will be $119,970, and on the 30-year basis $96,000. Ald. Nicholson, on behalf of the sub-committee, made the report, but said he would make no recommendation. Chairman Board thought if the committee intends to recommend the purchase of the park, action should be taken at once. The statement was made that the Hamilton Baseball Club has secured the Cricket Grounds, and Dundurn loses a revenue of $1000 a year.

Ald. Ten Eyck said the Mayor wished to be present when the matter is discussed, so the question was laid over.

It was decided to illuminate Victoria Park 10 nights, so the regiment can drill there, the cost to be under $100. Six poles and lights will be put up.

The City Solicitor recommended some changes in the Cemetery Commission Bylaw, and it was discussed informally. The meeting lasted less than an hour.

St. George's Banquet.

The 56th annual banquet of St. George's Society was held in the new Royal Hotel to-night. About 150 sons of merry England were present and the menu was well discussed. Dr. F. B. Ross presided and the vice chair was occupied by Major Mewburn. The toast list was as follows: "The Queen," introduced by the president; "The Day We Honor," introduced by Past President H. N. Kittson, response Dr. J. S. Stone, Chicago; "The British Empire—Canada as a Part Thereof," introduced by Past President J. J. Mason, response Dr. G. R. Parkin, C.M.G.; "Our Fair Dominion," introduced by Past President F. Mackelcan, Q. C., response W. H. Hoyle, M.L.A.; "The Ladies," introduced by Past President W. F. Burton, response J. H. Long, M.A.

A capital musical program was carried out, Prof. Pearce being the accompanist.

Good Rally Expected.

The East York Macdonald Club will meet at East Toronto Village next Friday evening in Carnahan's Hall. Officers will be elected, and addresses will be given by Messrs. J. W. Moyes, O. A. Howland, Thos. L. Church and John T. C. Thompson, son of the late Sir John Thompson. Conservatives of Little York, Scarboro' Township and District are invited to attend.

Two Men Want It.

The committee of the Board of Trade appointed to examine applicants for the position of official weigher and gauger at Toronto met yesterday afternoon, but made no recommendation, and the meeting was adjourned. The two applicants for the position are: Frederick Dickson of Toronto and John Galbraith of Barrie.

ON AND OFF THE STAGE

"Well, what do you think?" That was what everyone was asking his neighbor as they were coming away from Massey Hall yesterday, after hearing Lieut. Dan Godfrey's Band. Of course the enquiry suggested a former conversation and a discussion of the two great bands which have been heard in Massey Hall recently. Some put also the Banda Rossa into the competition. The replies to the query were varied. The Banda Rossa's playing was spoken of as characteristic of the demonstrative nationality it represented, and of extreme effects, from the carefully played solo to the greatest amount of noise it was possible to bring from the sixty instruments. Sousa's Band had a host of defenders. It was claimed that he had more solo artists in his organization, and more individuality as regards expression, than the great band under Dan Godfrey. Some claimed also that Sousa gave greater variety, and catered more to what is called the "popular" ear than does the British organization. Then a sturdy Englishman would come forward and declare that, without doubt, the Godfrey Band produced the richest ensemble effects, and the choicest melody, as well as excelling all in descriptive harmonies. One musical man summed up with the remark that Sousa's Band was composed of a lot of individuals working together, while Godfrey's Band was as one grand organ, with Dan Godfrey as the organist; that the effects brought out were interpretations by Godfrey, while, in the case of Sousa's combination, there was more elasticity, and the players could put their own individuality forward to some extent.

After hearing all these expressions, one feels inclined to allow each to have his own opinion, as it would be perilous, as well as odious, to attempt a comparison.

Of yesterday's two concerts there can only be one opinion: The playing of Godfrey's Band is magnificently perfect in every detail. The veteran conductor's arrangement of "Reminiscences of Mozart" was a great treat in the ensemble, as well as in the different solos. Mr. Kettlewell, the cornettist, established himself in favor here last season, and his work yesterday amplified the good opinions already held. Mr. Evans' euphonium contribution was a beautiful exhibition of tonal purity and clean execution, while Mr. Hughes, clarionet, and Mr. Ketskemity, petite clarinette, played their music with the utmost perfection. The applause after the grand selection was hearty and prolonged. "Bel Raggio," from "Semiramide," given as a flute solo by Mr. Redfern, aroused great enthusiasm, and an encore was persistently demanded. The flautist responded with "Carnival of Venice" variations, which many considered more perfect in execution than the principal number, and the applause was again most enthusiastic. Mr. Kettlewell's afternoon solo was Gounod's "There is a Green Hill," and the marvelous beauty of tone, and the expressive rendering, evoked a furore of applause, which continued until a response was given.

Among the concerted numbers, there was nothing more beautiful than the "Mors et Vita" selection. The rich and devotional music of Gounod was given out with majestic grandeur and all due attention to shading and phrasing, reminding one of a grand chorus and orchestra combined. "The British Guards" march, by C. A. E. Harriss, is a blithesome melody, which won hearty applause and an encore.

Godfrey arranges his players in a way of his own, and mixes up wood, wind and brass promiscuously. For orchestral effects he has two-stringed double basses, and the mellowing quality of these is most enchanting in the softer passages, as well as imparting a fullness to the ensemble which could not be produced in any other way. The afternoon audience was larger than is the rule for band concerts.

The Evening Concert.

The evening program was listened to by a very large audience, and the enthusiasm was great. The overture to "Robin Hood" and the selection from "Mignon" were full of beauty in the rendering. Mr. Redfern's flute solo, "Carnival of Venice," was encored, as was Mr. Kettlewell's cornet solo, "Queen of the Earth." The "William Tell" overture, given by request, was a revelation to many because of the smooth performance of the difficult music. The fantasia, "Canada," introducing popular songs, was a delightful contribution to the popular taste, and was loudly encored. Lieut. Godfrey made a little speech, during which he remarked that the group was played in Hamilton, but people there, he said, did not seem to know the different melodies introduced. Mr. Harriss' march was again played and a repetition demanded. A very amusing contribution was "The Drummer's Dilemma," by Mr. Byrne, a creation of his own, which showed an immense amount of skill, and created much laughter and enthusiasm. The closing number was a grand nautical fantasia, "England and America," arranged by Dan Godfrey, which aroused the audience to such a pitch that they broke into cheers. British and American airs were introduced, and the descriptive work was just what all would expect from the old master. The piece made a great hit when performed at Washington before the President.

Mr. Ben Davies, the celebrated tenor, sang "The Death of Nelson," and "Let Me Like a Soldier Fall," winning recalls both times for superb singing. After the latter, in response to the continued plaudits, he sang a sacred song.

The accompaniments of the band to the various solos were very beautifully judged both afternoon and evening.

"Aunt Bridget" Monroe Next Week.

Ever-welcome George Monroe, with his "Oh, by gosh!" "Gee whizz!" and "Ain't that nice?" will be at the Toronto Opera House all next week. Monroe's great impersonation of "My Aunt Bridget" is conceded to be one of the most unique stage creations now before the public. He is one of the real big favorites of the Toronto's numerous clientele, and, as he has with him this time an organization of exceptionally clever entertainers, his engagement will probably be even more successful than the one he played here last October, when he presented "Her Majesty the Cook." Prominent in Mr. Monroe's support are Flo Irwin and Walter Hawley, Duffy, Sawtelle and Duffy; Ned Munroe and William Mack, Grace Hazard, Margaret Ashton and Thomas Mack.

A New Comedy at the Princess.

"The Troublesome Brother-in-Law," the comedy which the Cummings Stock Company will produce at the Princess next week, possesses the two prime advantages of being entirely new, never having been previously produced in Toronto, and of truth to nature. It deals with an every-day problem—a problem of intense interest to every bachelor and every benedict, every wife and every maid. Its language is bright and intelligent; its points are clear and telling; its situations are exquisitely humorous; its characters are distinctive and its methods are entertainingly original. With so much in its favor, with adequate acting, and with handsome stage settings, it will be acknowledged that "The Troublesome Brother-in-Law" should pack the Princess next week at each of the 12 performances from pit to dome. Meantime seats can now be secured at the box office.

Matinee To-Day.

De Wolf Hopper will give a matinee to-day at the Grand, and "The Charlatan" will conclude its engagement with to-night's performance. That great New York Lyceum success, "The Prisoner of Zenda," will be given here at the Grand Opera House for three nights and Wednesday matinee, commencing Monday, April 24. Although the play has now been several years in the public eye, it is still at the height of its popularity, and the popular demand is greater for it now than for many a new play.

The play was dramatized from Anthony Hope's novel, by E. E. Rose, and shows immense merit. What elaboration there is shows a master hand. The incidents of the novel are closely adhered to, and are most effectively managed, while the atmosphere of romance is never once allowed to relapse. The heart story is touching, strong, and, although its ending may disappoint some who like to see everything turn out happily, it is consistent and sensible.

Mr. Howard Gould, who has made a great reputation in the dual role of Rassendyll and King Rudolph during the past seasons, has been retained to head the company, and will appear here. The scenery is fine and all carried, and requires a special baggage car for its transportation.

The company, besides Mr. Gould, includes Messrs. R. F. McClannin, Vaughan Glaser, Albert Perry, Charles C. Brander, Duncan Harris, Robert Copness, Benjamin Monteith, George Friend, Fred Summersield, and the Misses Margaret Fuller, Nellie Strickland and Amy Ricard.

Miss Huston at London.

The Standard Concert Company appeared at the Auditorium in London on Thursday night under the auspices of the Ladies' Morning Music Club. Speaking of Miss Margaret Huston, The Free Press says: "Miss Huston met with a hearthy and generous reception in her song, from Lohengrin, "Elsa's Dream," and a subsequent group, concluding with the bright spring song by Tosti. Her accompaniments were played by Mr. W. H. Hewlett."

Bijou Theatre.

The regular season of this house will come to a close to-night. A preliminary season of four or five weeks, however, during which time entertainments of different character, together with smokers, etc., will be given.

A Magnificent Program.

The following will be the magnificent program that has been arranged for the grand concert on Monday evening in Massey Hall:
