MISS ROOSEVELT'S WEDDING

President Announces It Will Take Place Feb. 17 in White House.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The wedding of Miss Alice Roosevelt and Mr. Longworth, according to an announcement made today by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, will take place on Saturday, Feb. 17, at noon. The ceremony will be performed in the East Room of the White House.

Announcement of the date of the wedding was formally made by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt just prior to the reception at the White House tonight to the members of the diplomatic corps.

The ceremony will be performed by the Episcopal Bishop of Washington, the Right Rev. Henry Y. Satterlee, assisted by the Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, rector of St. John's, the church which Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Roosevelt attend. The ceremony will be followed by a breakfast to be served in the state dining-room. No details have been announced regarding this function, but it is the general impression that the company will be composed entirely of relatives and personal friends, and that no rights will be accorded to official position on this historic occasion. This will be following the precedent set by the President and Mrs. Roosevelt on the occasion of Miss Roosevelt's debut.

There are many rumors about the ushers Mr. Longworth will select. So far only two in Washington have accepted this honor—Benson Foraker, son of the Ohio senator, and Representative Robert Adams, of Pennsylvania. It is understood that Buckner Wallingford, of Cincinnati, will attend his brother-in-law as best man, and that Viscount De Chambrun, also a brother-in-law of Mr. Longworth, will be among his attendants. The ambassador to Vienna, the Hon. Bellamy Storer, whose wife is an aunt of the prospective bridegroom, has applied to the State Department for leave of absence in order to be present with Mrs. Storer at the wedding.

COSTLY DIVORCE SUITS

Hartopp-Cowley Litigation Swallows Thousands of Pounds.

London, Jan. 6. — When will the Hartopp-Cowley litigation end, and how much will have been spent on it when the final word is spoken in court? It is now announced that there are to be further proceedings that may be prolonged and costly.

First of all, there was the three weeks' long, abortive trial, when Sir Charles, Lady Hartopp, and Earl Cowley all were declared innocent by a jury of the charges brought against them. Enormous legal expenses running into thousands of pounds every day of the trial were incurred.

The subsequent undefended suit, won by Sir Charles Hartopp, although the actual trial did not cost much, meant a great deal of money expended in preparing the case.

The next phase in the litigation, it is stated, is to be an application to vary the settlement made by Sir Charles on Lady Hartopp when he married her in 1895. The gist of the application is understood to be that the settlement shall be construed as though Lady Hartopp, who has married Earl Cowley, has died without issue.

DEATH BEFORE DISGRACE

Father Kills His Wife and Children and Then Commits Suicide.

Frankfort-on-Main, Jan. 8.—The police received a postcard yesterday stating that George Wendland and family had shot themselves in the town wood.

When the place indicated was visited four bodies were found lying side by side near a tree, to which was pinned a note on which was written: "George Wendland and family. Forgive us our sins."

Wendland, who was employed in the postoffice and was about to be prosecuted for embezzlement, was 45 years of age. His wife was 42, his daughter 18, and his son 17.

The mother, son and daughter were covered with an overcoat and a mantle and, it appears, were shot in a lying position by the father, who then lay down beside them and shot himself.

In each case the dress of the victim had been opened over the heart to allow a certain passage of the bullet to the vital part.

Edward Goes to Athens.

London, Jan. 8.—A telegram to a news agency from Athens says it is announced that King Edward will come to Athens in the spring to attend the Olympian games.

Deal Will Go Through.

Chatham, Jan. 8.—Hon. John Dryden was in the city Saturday re the business in connection with the transfer of the Chatham Loan and Savings Company to the Reliance Loan Company, of which he is president and managing director.

It is undestood that the deal will go though without hindrance.

Mr. Dryden's visit was of a social character.

THEY ARE CAREFULLY PREPARED.—Pills which disitpate themselves in the stomach cannot be expected to have much effect upon the intestines, and to overcome costiveness the medicine administered must influence the action of these canals. Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are so made, under the supervision of experts, that the substance in them intended to operate on the intestines is retarded in action until they pass through the stomach to the bowels.

EUROPEAN PEACE IN THE BALANCE

Despite Pacific Assurances of Kaiser's Officials.

BOTH NATIONS MAKING READY

Germany Likely to Insist Upon All Powers Policing Moroccan Frontier.

London, Jan. 8.—Anxiety over the strained relations between France and Germany still prevails and in some quarters amounts to positive alarm. It is pointed out that the quiet mobilization and general military activity throughout France for the last seven months have put the country on a full war footing. German preparations also have not been lacking. It is argued by some that in the present situation France is as much to be feared as Germany, with regard to the danger of a breach of the peace.

Two views are taken of the German attitude. Many accept the declaration of Count von Tattenbach-Askold, the former special German representative at Fez, that Emperor William is in a genuinely conciliatory mood, that he is heartily sick of Moroccan affairs and that he desires only to see the end of the embroglio. It is further explained that he was misled by Chancellor von Buelow and now sees that the acceptance of the Anglo French entente was inevitable.

Clemenceau on Situation.

M. Clemenceau sets forth the other view with great force. He argues that it is idle to hang on the lips of the German Emperor to know if on this or that day he will be in good humor. The German policy has always consisted of alternations of kindly and threatening utterances and one means just as much as the other.

Germany, he says, will carry things as far against France as she is permitted, and it is France's business to see that such permission is wanting. He anticipates as a result of the conference that an unsatisfactory, patched up peace will be obtained by compromise after Germany has gone as far as she dares in threatening war, and he urges his countrymen to show a stiff back from the start. There is much in the situation which opposes the belligerent view. It is quite true that the French government has been straining every nerve to prepare for a German attack since the almost open threats of war in the early summer. Those preparations, however, have had a purely defensive object. No government, indeed, could have done less under the circumstances, and every effort has been made to avoid the possibility of the charge that France was animated by aggressive motives.

The whole crisis has been of German inception, and the French policy until the present moment has been one of simple prudence.

French Resentment.

It is also true that French national feeling harbors considerable resentment against Germany for her provocative and challenging attitude during the last year. This could scarcely have been otherwise in any self-respecting country. The French press within a few days has been, perhaps, a bit aggressive and contemptuous in its treatment of the Kaiser's reputed peace utterances, but it is altogether wrong to assume that there is any general desire in France to try conclusions at arms with Germany.

The French government understands perfectly that any aggressive move on their part leading to war would cost the support of Great Britain, without whose aid they could not hope successfully to resist the Kaiser's fleet and army. There is, therefore, litle reason to fear the success of a German plan if such a plan exists, to provoke the French into furnishing a plausible casus belli.

It is to a certain extent true, as the Spectator remarks today, that the coming conference offers a fatally easy chance for any parties thereto to make war. The task of thwarting any such intention ought not to be beyond the power of the representatives of the peaceful members of the conference.

Some German Demands.

According to official information received here from Berlin, Germany not only demands that all the powers shall participate in the execution of reforms in Morocco, but that the work of watching the frontier shall be divided among them, thus realizing fears expressed by an official of the foreign office in an interview last Thursday that there was some fear that the German delegates might insist on regulations clashing with what France considered her special privileges, for instance, the policing of the frontier.

If Germany persists in this attitude in the conference, it is believed a very serious situation will arise, as France is certain to resist and Great Britain will support France. The British Government, while believing the conference finally will reach a satisfactory settlement, realizes that persistence by Germany in her demands will cause irritation that will demand the efforts of delagates to remove, and in this it expects the support of the United States, Spain and Italy.

The British public is busy with the elections and is not taking much interest in the question. Members of the diplomatic corps believe Germany is putting forward her demands before the meeting of the conference in order to see how they are received.

In official and unofficial circles the possibility of war is considered the remotest, even if the conference fails, particularly as those who are inspiring the German policy do not belong to the war party, but are powerful commercial men.

Fire at Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Jan. 8.—The drygoods store of Finch Bros. was destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss will total nearly $35,000, with only $2,000 insurance. Fire caught in some mysterious way from the box stove, and, although promptly discovered, defied all efforts to extinguish it.

THOUSANDS HEAR GREAT EVANGELISTS

There was no lasting joy or genuine satisfaction in a life lived outside of Christ. But, on the other hand, there was in the Christian life the highest, deepest, most unspeakable joy known on earth. True, it might be objected that some Christians did not show forth much of this unspeakable joy. But these were the Christians who took just enough religion to make them miserable, who held on to the world with the right hand and held on to Christ with the left hand. Perfect joy only came through a complete surrender to Christ.

The truth of this statement he had proved in his own experience. As a young man he had refused to surrender himself fully to Christ, because he feared it would mean the giving up of some of his pleasures and the sacrifice of his long-cherished ambition to become a lawyer. With wealth and leisure at his command while attending Yale University, he had gone in for a "good time," had plunged into dissipation. But his unholy pleasures had been to him but as apples of Sodom. He had been overwhelmed with bitterness and despair. One night in desperation he had risen from his bed, gone to a drawer in the washstand and searched for a weapon there with which to put an end to his life. "But God in his mercy," he said "would not let me find the weapon. So I dropped upon my knees and prayed to him for help, and promised to surrender my whole heart to him if he would help me. I told him that if he would take the burden off my heart I would preach the Gospel. And he did help me. By accepting Christ I got the deepest and the most wonderful joy and peace and satisfaction. I have had it ever since."

Heaven or Hell.

Not to take Christ, he continued, cost a woman her truest womanhood, a man his highest manhood. It cost every man his hope of heaven, and it gave him no outlook for eternity, but the prospect of eternal damnation.

Here Dr. Torrey emphasized what seems to be the cardinal feature of his theology. Without accepting Christ as our Redeemer, through his suffering on the cross for the curse of sin laid on every man, there was no hope of salvation. "The wrath of God," he said, "the burning displeasure of the Almighty, rests on everyone who does not accept Christ as his savior. For him there is no outlook but God's eternal prison-house of hell. He that believeth not is condemned already. I challenge anybody to show me a verse in the Bible which, properly interpreted, shows that anyone can be saved without open testimony and confession of Christ's saving and keeping power. If we believe in him and accept him we have everlasting life. If we do not believe and refuse him we must perish.

In conclusion, Dr. Torrey offered to those who believed an eternity in heaven; to those who did not believe an eternity in hell. And what heaven meant he described as the supremest hour of joy known to man, multiplied by infinity and carried out to eternity. On the other hand, hell meant man's blackest hour of sorrow, multiplied by infinity and carried out to eternity.

"Are you willing to pay the cost of not being a Christian?" he asked. "It will cost you omething to be a Christian. It will mean the giving up of self and of sinful, worldly pleasures. But, in view of the great reward both in this life and in the next, are you not willing to pay that cost."

The Converts.

Among the converts at night were two young men who had attended the revivalists' meetings at Glasgow and at Albert Hall, London. It was noticeable that quite a number of the converts were English young men, many or whom doubtless had friends, converted during the campaign in England. The majority of the converts at both services were young people.

Mr. Alexander, in a bright, cheery talk to them at the close of the service in the evening, advised them to steadily pin their faith on the rock, Christ Jesus. Only by so doing could they plow a straight furrow right through to heaven.

The services will be continued every afternoon and evening this week, with the exception of Saturday.

Died Aged 135.

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 8.—Mary McDonald, a negress, who claimed to be 135 years old, is dead. Mrs. McDonald was of robust physique and was an inveterate smoker up to a short time ago.

IF YOU ARE a sufferer from colds get a bottle of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup and test its qualities. It will be found that no praise bestowed on it is too high. It does all that is claimed for it, and does it thoroughly. Do not take any substitute for Bickle's Syrup, because it is the best, having stood the test of years. All the best dealers sell it.
