In addition to the above, those who enter the Evening Classes on the 1st Oct. will receive one month's tuition free of charge.

OUR INDIANS.—Referring to the Indian policy advocated by Lord Dufferin at Winnipeg, the New York World in a recent editorial says: How singular and complete is the contrast between this Canadian policy and our own! What American statesman, writing or speaking of our Indians, would allude to or regard them as "fellow-citizens," or contemplate them as an "appreciably advantageous element in the economical structure" of the country?

CLEOPATRA'S NEEDLE.—A despatch of 18th inst. from London, says: Steamer "Olga," arrived at Falmouth and reports, was compelled to abandon Cleopatra obelisk off Cape Finstere, on Sunday night, during a tremendous gale. Crew on the craft containing the obelisk transferred to the "Olga," but not until the "Olga" had lost her second mate and five hands in endeavoring to rescue them.

A later despatch says, the English stmr. "Fitzmaurice," from Middleborough for Valencia, has recovered the Cleopatra caisson ninety miles north of Ferrol, Spain.

"HIS BEST FRIEND DESERTING HIM" is the title of Grip's last Cartoon. It represents Sir. John in a beseeching attitude imploring a seedy old fellow labelled "Hard Times", who is retreating, to give place to the Rising Sun which represents "Coming Prosperity." On a notice board near Sir. John is the sentence "Numerous and cheering indications of returning prosperity exist," taken from the last report of the Directors of Molson's Bank. In parenthesis are the words, "We hold the Government responsible" Below this is a notice just tumbling down, marked "Opposition trump card"—"The government is responsible for the Hard Times" Sir John with tears in his eyes, says to old "Hard Times"—"Stay, O Stay until after the general Election!" On Grip's first page, under the title "John A's Trouble," are the lines—

Oh, Hard Times, do not go away!
Stay by me till election day;
Thou art my tactics and my friend.
My hopes for Power on thee depend!

The U. S. Episcopal Convention.

The Convention of the Episcopal Church of the United States in Boston has discussed with considerable vigor, but in an admirable spirit and in excellent temper, the proposition to change the name of the Church, so as to drop the word "Protestant" and to incorporate the term Catholic. The excellent tone in which the discussion was conducted was due largely to a speech made by Rev. Dr. John Fulton, of Milwaukee, who, expressing that the change could some day be made, and that all sectarian names would eventually give way before the name of Christ, added at the same time an expression of his belief that that day had not yet arrived. He urged most strongly that they should consider the question in a mild and temperate way, and that no man should be denounced as a revolutionist, a radical, a "Jesuit in disguise" because he favored the change. This speech had a marked influence, and all the succeeding speakers were very calm. The defeat of the proposition was, however, so marked as to excite some surprise. Forty dioceses are represented by laymen, and they threw an unanimous vote against change. Forty-two dioceses are represented by clergymen, and forty-one of these voted the same way, the only diocese voting for change being that of Wisconsin where Dr. DeKoven's influence is so great. This does not of course represent the entire clerical vote, inasmuch as in some of the dioceses there were scattering clerical votes on the affirmative side. Those who fear the Episcopal Church is drifting towards the Roman Catholic Church may gain some hope from this vote out of forty dioceses in the Convention, none of the lay votes, and only a few clerical votes were polled in favor of this proposed change.—St John Globe.

Charley Ross Again.

A despatch of 24th Oct. from Richmond, Ind., says: John Hinman and his mother, an account of whose arrest for the abduction of Johnnie Eddie Moffit, has been published, makes the following statement: Hinman knew nothing of the abduction of Charlie Ross until led to the investigation by young Moffit himself, who in looking at a paper containing his brother's picture, said, "That is my brother Walter. I wonder where he is." When shown the pictures of the home of Charlie Ross, he said, "Oh, that is where I used to live, and there, (pointing among the trees) is where my swing used to be. Way up this street is where I got into a carriage with two men." When shown pictures of Charlie Ross, he said, "I used to have curls then, but they were cut off while I was drumming on a tin pan way up on a high hill on the porch of a big house, before we went on the 'puff, puff'" Hinman says there are at least seven marks on the person of Johnny corresponding with similar marks upon Charlie Ross, and that the boy has been ill-treated for talking to them about his old home. When called "Charlie Ross" he burst into tears, and said "Don't call me that here, or I will be locked up in a dark closet." They say Moffit's adopted daughter cautioned them about making any facts in regard to the boy public, and acknowledged there was a mystery as to who he was. The Hinmans say they did not ask Johnnie to go with them, that he voluntarily ran away from Moffit's and accompanied young Hinman to a waggon in the woods, where he begged to be taken with them, and that they were trying to reach a telegraph office, where they could communicate with Ross. Moffit is a very wealthy farmer, and bears an unblemished reputation. The only statement he will make to correspondents is that he can prove that he adopted Johnnie before the Ross boy was stolen, and that his only object in not giving the facts to the public is for the boy's own good. Hinman's attorney will apply to the Court to have the child placed in the custody of the Sheriff.

Notes by Road and Shore.

[By our Travelling Observer.]

Shippegan, as is well known, is a fishing village and extends along the shore of its fine harbor for a mile or more. We were fortunate or unfortunate enough to arrive in time for the first gale of the season, and should say that Shippegan gales must class A 1. It blew a Northeaster for two days steadily, and Shippegan and the stranger within its gates remained in doors. As there is no railway to Shippegan, strangers don't visit it very often, and outsiders are very apt to regard it as one of those places which are stuck on the map to make a coast look habitable, and as the gale would not let us out, we let ourselves into the commercial affairs of Shippegan as far
