TRIAL OF QUINN HAD TO PROCEED

Witnesses Absent, But Court Would Not Grant a Postponement.

The case of Martin Quinn, charged with the crime of perjury, supposed to have been committed at a polling subdivision of ward 4, at the last Dominion elections on Nov. 3, was called in the assize court this morning. Counsel for defense, Mr. John McEvoy, made several efforts to have the case postponed, but Mr. Justice Meredith refused to delay the trial further. It is possible, however, that the interesting question as to whether the acquittal of the prisoner on the charge of impersonation would not also relieve him of the charge of perjury will be argued before the high court of appeal of Ontario.

The evidence taken this morning was a reproduction of that given at the former trial, the same witnesses being called for the prosecution as before. The scrutineers stuck to their former assertions that they identified Quinn as the man who presented himself at the polling booth. Crown Counsel Sydney Smith was assisted by Crown Attorney McKillop.

Mr. McEvoy subjected the witnesses to a searching cross-examination, his purport being, as before, to show that the evidence against Quinn pointed to mistaken identity. In fact, the trial is a duplicate of the former one, with the exception that the judge and jury are different.

When the case opened, Mr. McEvoy formally moved for postponement on account of the absence of two material witnesses for the defense. He presented the affidavits of Mrs. Sarah Kane and her daughter that the former's son was in the habit of working on the Detroit boats in summer, and was at the present time engaged in such occupation. Counsel said he had sent a constable after witness four times, but could not get him. William Howard, another material witness, was also absent.

"I feel that it is a very suspicious circumstance that these witnesses should disappear just at this time," said the judge.

Mr. McEvoy concurred in this view, and said that it was all the more reason that the trial should be postponed, because the absence of the witnesses would cast a shade of suspicion over the prisoner's case and might prejudice his interests.

The court, however, decided that the evidence given by these two witnesses at the former trial could be used.

Mr. McEvoy then raised another point. He showed that Quinn had been tried and acquitted on the charge of impersonation, and he claimed that the prisoner ought therefore to have been set free from the concomitant charge of perjury.

The judge replied that such action should have been instituted before the trial judge, and that it was now too late. New evidence might be brought forward, which would alter the complexion of the case. With regard to the two missing witnesses, the court said that Mr. McEvoy had the telegraph at his disposal if he wanted to get them quickly.

Mr. McEvoy thought that this remark on the part of the judge might be taken as intimating that counsel had not used every means to reach the missing ones, but the judge denied the implication.

The jury was then empaneled.

When the court resumed the trial of Quinn after lunch, the case for the crown was concluded. Arthur Sadlier, who was called as witness for the crown, was unable to attend.

The case for the defense was opened by the reading of the evidence of James Kane, taken at the first trial. Kane, as already stated, is out of the city. The evidence of Kane, Coyne, Howard and the other companions of Quinn, who swore that he was with them between 4 and 5 o'clock on the afternoon of Nov. 3, is well remembered. As several witnesses for the crowd testified that Quinn was at polling booth No. 7a of ward 4, about two miles away, at the same time, the two sets of evidence are in direct conflict.

"What was the last you saw of Quinn on election day," asked the court to William Howe, another witness for the defense.

Witness replied that he saw Quinn go out of the hallway of the Boswell House about a quarter to 5 o'clock in the afternoon.

ONE YEAR IN THE CENTRAL PRISON

that the sentence of the court be passed.

Mr. Justice Meredith addressed Boyd as follows:

"There are several things to be regretted in this case. It is to be regretted that you, a young, intelligent Canadian should allow yourself to become a decoy-duck to draw Canadian geese across the line to be plucked. Another thing to be regretted is that those so-called millionaires who were your accomplices are not in the box beside you now. The third thing to be regretted is the prosecutor's cupidity or his stupidity, as evidenced in this case, whereby you are made a criminal. eH has, however, received a heavy punishment, amounting to a fine of $10,000."

Continuing, the court said, that he intended to make the sentence light, on account of the circumstances of the case, and the fact that the prisoners are young. The court told Boyd that he had made a false start in life, and hoped that this "tripping-up" would be a lesson to him.

To Stevenson, the court said he was ashamed of a Middlesex boy who would take to gambling for a living.

"You may be certain, on high authority, that your sins will be found out sooner or later, and if you don't turn over a new leaf, you will spend most of your days in the penitentiary."

The sentence of one year in the Central Prison was then passed on each of the prisoners.

Boyd and Stevenson had nothing to say why sentence should not be passed on them, having left that duty to their counsel.

OTTAWA MOURNS DEAD MINISTER

Premier Greatly Affected by Sad News From Woodstock.

A TRIBUTE FROM MR. BORDEN

House of Commons Will Adjourn Until Monday Out of Respect to Late Mr. Sutherland.

Ottawa, May 3. — Genuine sorrow is manifested in political and departmental circles over Mr. Sutherland's death. No man in public life had fewer enemies, and certainly none had so many friends on both sides of politics. The deceased minister can be properly styled a martyr to public duty. When he undertook administrative duties, first at the marine and fisheries department, and afterward in the even more exacting department of public works, he adopted a course in life which was sooner or later to shatter his health. He would enter his office at 10:30 or 11 o'clock in the morning, and remain until 7 o'clock in the evening. The interval at midday, when other men would have taken a luncheon, followed by a brisk walk, was spent by him in the office. His luncheon would be brought in to him, where he sat at his desk. Thus whole days were spent without any exercise save that of walking to and from the Parliament buildings. He lacked perhaps the habit of working quickly which some of his colleagues possessed. His method was slower and more laborious. Perhaps the feeling that he lacked the nervous energy which prompts to swift execution made him more conscientious. Canada had no more faithful servant in the ministry. He gave ungrudgingly of his time to the public service. He gave even more than that—he sacrificed his life.

Sir Wilfrid and his colleagues are greatly shocked over the sad event. The Prime Minister was moved profoundly, and no one could see his display of emotion today without being affected by it. Sir Wilfrid's invariable practice is never to give interviews, and therefore no expression of opinion was sought from him in regard to Mr. Sutherland's death.

Sir Wilfrid said: "I have to inform the House, Mr. Speaker, that I have just received a telegram informing me of the death of Mr. Sutherland, Minister of Public Works. I have to say to the House that, personally, in losing Mr. Sutherland, I lose one of the truest friends I ever had, and I know that the House loses one of its most valued members. I will meet, I am sure, the feelings of the House if I endeavor to say that the House should express its sympathy in this bereavement in some suitable manner, and I do not know that it can be done in any other way than by the House adjourning to attend his funeral. I will therefore move that when this House adjourns tomorrow it stands adjourned until Monday next so as to permit members to attend the funeral of Mr. Sutherland."

A Tribute From Borden.

When the Prime Minister closed, the leader of the Opposition arose and said: "I rise, Mr. Speaker, for the purpose of supporting the motion the Prime Minister has made. The emotion which the right honorable gentleman has displayed indicated to the House more eloquently than even his eloquent words could have done, the very great loss he feels he has sustained on this occasion. Let me say that so far as this side of the House is concerned, I am sure that all of us join most sincerely in the deep sympathy which I know every gentleman on the other side feels for the family of Mr. Sutherland in this bereavement, and especially for the Prime Minister of this country, whose true and valued friend Mr. Sutherland has been for so many years.

"I had the privilege," Mr. Borden continued, "of knowing that gentleman when I first came into Parliament in 1896. He was then an old member of Parliament, and I was a young and inexperienced member. I always met at his hands the greatest kindness and cordiality. Afterwards, in my later acquaintance with public life, I met him on many trying and difficult occasions, particularly on the occasion where he and I were members of a committee two years ago, to which was intrusted the duty of making a redistribution of seats in the Province of Ontario. And although there was a certain feeling at that time which might have led to some display of temper on the one hand or the other, I can say with gratification that Mr. Sutherland and I, at the conclusion of a very difficult and trying investigation, parted just as good friends as when we began.

"I repeat that on this side we extend our most cordial and heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family of our late friend, and to honorable gentlemen opposite, who, by his death, have sustained such a great loss. We, on this side, fully realize the loss which the House and the country have sustained. In his death Canada has lost a man not only of great experience as a public man, but I have always believed, a man of very great executive ability, indeed. I feel that I have the hearty sympathy and support of every gentleman on this side of the House in the words I have uttered, and in my support of the motion of the right honorable gentleman."

The motion of Sir Wilfrid was then agreed to, and the House proceeded to the business of the day, the debate on the autonomy bill.

Reference to Mr. Sutherland's death was made also in the Senate, tributes to his worth and party services by the Secretary of State, Sir Mackenzie Bowell and Sir Richard Cartwright.

Mr. Hyman said: "Possibly I feel Mr. Sutherland's death more than anyone else, for we were very closely identified for many years, not only in politics, but in social life. Anyone, I think, who knew Mr. Sutherland would appreciate the fullness and strength of friendship on his part. He was never the man to push himself forward in public life, but he has always had the appreciation and, I think, the fullest confidence, not only of the Liberal party, but of a very large number of the business men and people generally in Canada."

RAYS MAY CURE DOCTOR HARPER

Cancerous Growth Has Diminished 60 Per Cent.

"LIQUID SUNSHINE" TREATMENT,

Hopes That It Will Shortly Disappear—Experiments Made Before Doctors at New York Hosp'tal.

New York, May 3. — President William R. Harper, of the University of Chicago, who is visiting this city, submitted to an X-ray examination yesterday at the hands of Dr. William J. Morton. The examination was made to find out the effects of what is known as the fluorescent treatment, which Dr. Harper has been undergoing for the internal cancerous growth with which he is afflicted, and which the surgeons found it impossible to remove.

Dr. Harper arrived from Chicago on Sunday, accompanied by Dr. Frank Billings, his physician, and the examination took place at Dr. Morton's office at 19 West Twenty-eighth street. According to President Harper and Dr. Billings, remarkable results were shown. By means of the X-rays measurements were made of the diseased area, and it was found, so it was announced, that this had decreased in size in the three weeks of the treatment from eighteen square inches to only seven square inches, or had decreased more than half. Measurements taken ten days ago on the occasion of Dr. Harper's last visit here showed that the diseased area was twelve square inches, so that the rapidity of abatement which surprised the physicians then has continued. The examination also disclosed that the diseased area is entirely free from contact with the abdominal walls. While the physicians would not say as much yesterday, it is known that they are in hopes that at the next examination, which will probably be made two weeks from now, the growth will have disappeared. Whether this would mean a complete cure can only be a matter of conjecture until time determines.

Dr. Billings said yesterday that the examination had shown remarkable results.

"What is more," said Dr. Billings, "President Harper's general health has continued to improve all the time as the disease area has continued to decrease. He has increased in weight from 170 to 182 pounds, which is remarkable in itself. We have great hopes from the treatment."

There was very little trace of the sick man about President Harper yesterday. He looked stout and well.

"I am certainly feeling fine," he said at the Hotel Manhattan. "I have gained in weight and yet have been working eight hours a day like any other man. It is very remarkable when you think that my life was despaired of only a few weeks ago. I shall remain here two or three days, and hope in that time to have a talk with Dr. McBurney, who performed the operation in Chicago."

The fluorescent treatment which Dr. Harper is taking has sometimes been described as "liquid sunshine." It consists of administering internally a certain medicine which becomes radioactive when the X-rays are applied from without. Through this a new set of radiations, according to Dr. Morton, is set up within the tissues. The most obvious of these radiations is light itself or what is closely akin to it, Dr. Morton says. While this treatment has been tried recently in a few other cases, it is said that the results attained in Dr. Harper's case had not been known before.

An attempt to cure an external cancer with radium was made at a clinic held at Flower Hospital yesterday by Harvey King, of the staff of that institution. The clinic was attended by a small number of students and doctors, among the latter being half a dozen women.

Dr. King has been experimenting with radium recently, using, as he described yesterday, radium pencils, invented by Prof. Liebler, a chemist, of this city. Dr. Liebler has found a solvent for radium, so Dr. King announced, and has succeeded in getting a coating of radium on the outside of celluloid tubes, protecting this with a substance which does not interfere with the activity of the rays.

The patient operated on yesterday was an elderly man with a malignant and rapidly growing tumor on the lower jaw. He has been in the hospital three weeks. He has a weak heart, and it was impracticable to operate radically with the knife yesterday. A small quantity of cocaine was injected and then two incisions were made in the growth.

Into each a tube about an inch and a quarter in length was inserted, one tube being of 25,000 radioactivity and the other of 10,000. The tubes will be left in for 48 hours, when the results will be observed. Dr. King said that other experiments had shown that the effect of the radium rays was to destroy the cancerous cells without harm to the healthy cells, and that in three previous cases the result had been that the growth began to slough off at the end of that time.

Dr. King showed a woman upon whom he said he had tried radium with good results. She had a cancerous growth behind the ear, he said. Tubes of the same radioactivity as those used yesterday had been applied seven times for half an hour each time. Yesterday the growth appeared to have dropped off almost entirely. Dr. King in his lecture also told of a patient who had cancer of the tongue, which had disappeared after fourteen days' treatment.

Physicians who were present yesterday refused to comment on the experiments. 7 venture), Martin (Wellington), Mayrand, Meigs, Miller, Monk, Morin, Mulock (Sir William), Oliver, Parmelee, Paterson, Paquet, Parent, Perley, Piche, Pickup, Prefontaine, Pringle, Proulx, Reid (Restigouche), Riley, Rivet, Roche (Halifax), Ross (Rimouski), Ross (Yale-Cariboo), Rousseau, Savoie, Schell (Glengarry), Schell (Oxford), Scott, Sifton, Sinclair, Sloan, Smith (Nanaimo), Stewart, Talbot (Bellechasse), Talbot (Strathcona), Telford, Thompson, Tobin, Turgeon, Turriff, Watson, Wilson (Russell), Worthington, Wright (Renfrew), Zimmerman. Total, 140.

Messrs. Lewis and R. A. Pringle, of Ontario, voted against their party.

Mr. Fitzpatrick, in carrying on the debate, declared himself pleased with the general absence during the prolonged discussion of anything that could offend the racial or religious feelings of the members. He regretted, however, the campaign that was being conducted by a number of Conservative papers, which was calculated to stir up great bitterness between English and French, Protestants and Roman Catholics. Mr. Fitzpatrick spoke in glowing terms of the splendid patriotism of the French-Canadian, which, he said, was well expressed in the National Anthem, "O, Canada, Mon Pays, Mon Amour."

"I am not aware," said Mr. Fitzpatrick, "that this Government considers it is bound constitutionally to impose restrictions, but I am aware that this Government believes that in good conscience and equity it ought to enact section 16 of this act."

As to the amended educational clause, Mr. Fitzpatrick promised to deal with it in committee on the bill. If the territories were to be given a constitution like one of the provinces, like which province should it be, it must embody only elements common to all. And I make bold to say," he added, "that there is not a single province in the Dominion that has the power to legislate exclusively in regard to education."

Mr. Fitzpatrick next alluded to the statement that Mr. Sifton had not consulted in the construction of the autonomy bill. He said Mr. Sifton had handed to him the draft bill as passed by the Legislature of the Northwest Territories, and on it were notes in Mr. Sifton's own handwriting; and in regard to the school question he wished a clause drawn in accordance with the constitution. There were certain malingering persons who had been spreading reports of grave differences between himself and Mr. Sifton, but he could say that the only differences that ever occurred between Mr. Sifton and himself were those that two self-willed, and two, perhaps, strong-minded men might hold. And if anyone in the House or out of it said otherwise, that person was saying what he knew to be untrue.

A PURELY VEGETABLE PILL.—Parmelee's Vegetable Pills are compounded from roots, herbs and solid extracts of known virtue in the treatment of liver and kidney complaints, and in giving tone to the system, whether enfeebled by overwork or deranged through excesses in living. They require no testimonial. Their excellent qualities are well known to all those who have used them, and they commend themselves to dyspeptics and those subject to biliousness who are in quest of beneficial medicine.

Women complaining that they lack wholesome diversion, owing to the fact that they are engaged six days a week in business pursuits, have effected an organization called the Business Women's New York League, which will seek to bring the members into touch for mutual helpfulness and to provide pleasurable recreation. Among the schemes under discussion is one for buying a place distant from New York where members of the league needing rest can live for a time at small expense.

SOME PERSONS have periodical attacks of Canadian cholera, dysentery or diarrhea, and have to use great precautions to avoid the disease. Change of water, cooking and green fruit is sure to bring on the attacks. To such persons we would recommend Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial as being the best medicine in the market for all summer complaints. If a few drops are taken in water when the symptoms are noticed, no further trouble will be experienced.
