OUR RELIGIOUS CONTEMPORARIES.

The World reads the religious and denominational weeklies of Toronto with great interest. They are often instructive and they are always red hot in their arguments. Four came to hand yesterday.

First was The Evangelical Churchman. It is the organ of the Low Church section of the Anglican communion. Its leading article is on "the perversion of two well-known members of the Church of England in the diocese of Fredericton to the Roman faith." It asks for the cause, and "has no hesitation in saying that we believe that they have been deceived," "have been led astray by the high claims of a man-made system," and blames the Ritualists for a portion of the trouble.

The second article deals with the "mistaken zeal" of the Baptists in planting a church in a field already overstocked. Here is what it says:

It is not want of charity, but in its name, we call the attention of the Christian public to a case of denominational rivalry which has recently been brought to our notice, and which wears upon its face the spirit of discord and division. In the village of Marshville, in the township of Wainfleet, Welland county, there are two strong and well-attended Christian churches connected with the Church of England and the Methodist Church. We have no doubt that a free and full gospel is preached by the ministers of both churches. We are sure that the clergyman of our own church preaches the gospel in its simplicity and power. We believe that the people of the community are, as a rule churchgoers. We are informed that there is only one family connected with the Baptist church in the whole neighborhood. Yet the Baptist Church is now erecting in Marshville a commodious and handsome church at a cost of several thousand dollars, for which the money is being provided from outside sources. When Christians are drawing closer together in many ways, such a proselytizing spirit is unpardonable, when it is evident that the new church can only grow at the expense of other Christian bodies.

Grant the facts and we thoroughly agree with the finding of the Churchmen. There is an immense waste of energy of this kind. Prominent churchworkers have referred to it. We believe that a spirit looking to a union of Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian and Congregationalist, and, perhaps, the Evangelical Churchman is growing up among our people, and we believe the first real sign of this will be when these different bodies agree to divide territory, to keep out of fields already occupied and to direct their energy where it will be most effective. If the churches wish an example from business life, let them look at the banks doing business in Canada. They have a working arrangement among themselves in regard to competition and the occupation of the banking field. The result is that we have excellent banking accommodation in any town requiring it, and no over-competition. We hardly ever hear of a bank agency being withdrawn, but we often do of churches, because of over-competition.

The Catholic Register is the next paper we take up. We regret to read in it the announcement that the issue of this week is the last under the editorship of Father Teefy, whose educational work at St. Michael's College will hereafter require all his time. The Register has among its articles one giving "a short list of notable conversions to the Catholic faith jotted down from memory." Here they are:

In England—Cardinal Newman, Cardinal Manning, Archbishop of Westminster; Marquis of Bute, Marquis of Ripon, late Viceroy of India; Father Coleridge, S.J., brother of the late Chief Justice; Father Wilberforce, brother of the Bishop of Oxford; Thomas Arnold, T. W. Allice, Father Faber, Marshall, Oakley, Ward, of The Dublin Review; Father Luke Rivington, Archbishop Smith, of St. Andrew's and Edinburgh; Lady Georgiana Fullerton Mr. Hope-Scott, Aubrey de Vere, the Irish poet; Joseph Gillis Biggar, O'Neill Daunt, Sir Stuart Knill, late Lord Mayor of London; and thousands of others.

In America we have Orestes H. Brownson, the greatest thinker America has ever produced; Mother Seton, Foundress of the American Sisters of Charity; Father Hecker, Hewitt and Elliot of the Paulist Fathers, Bishops Waddams, Rosecrans, Watterson, Gilmore and others; Monsignor Preston,, Father Fidelis, formerly Rev. Mr. Stone, an Anglican minister; Bishop Ives, Episcopal Bishop of South Carolina; McMaster, editor of The New York Freeman's Journal; General Rosecrans; Col. Bliss of New York, Col. Bradbury of Maine, Sir John Thompson.

The Register does not include the two Fredericton clergymen referred to by The Evangelical Churchman, viz., Dean Alexander and Prof. Stockwell.

Our old friend The Christian Guardian is an excellent paper, but we must disagree somewhat with what it writes about Toronto. It says that Toronto is "'no mean city," and in effect that it deserves the commendation passed on it by our visitors. In spite of this high reputation we must refer The Guardian to the opinion of The Empire, published in this city, to the effect that Toronto cannot assume a public service such as that of lighting the streets because of the corruption that exists among its aldermen and civic officials. Surely a city of which such can be said is out of gear at some points. And then The Guardian puts in a word for Inspector Archabold, for we take the following sentence to indicate him: "Is it nothing that the laws against social disorder are better enforced?" We very much question the result of this enforcement of the laws against social disorder. We believe the disorder has been spread over more surface, and that the vice in question has taken other shapes. Where we altogether disagree with The Guardian is in its inference that Sunday cars have an immoral tendency. Sunday cars to a large city are just as necessary as Sunday streets and Sunday sidewalks. If a Sunday car is immoral so is a Monday one. But Christians just as zealous, just as true as the editor of The Guardian, use Sunday cars in all the big cities through the United States, Great Britain and many of our Canadian cities. We beg to tell The Guardian that Christianity is progressive, and it does not draw the line betwixt itself and the people at Sunday cars. It draws the line in regard to personal conduct, in regard to one's life, and in regard to duty. Sunday cars are not a matter in one's conduct, one's life, ones duty. Dean Stanley, Rev. Mr. Spurgeon did not at least think so.

We had intended referring to the fourth of our religious contemporaries, The Canadian Baptist, but already the subject has tempted us beyond our limits. But it contains an able exposition of the troubles of "a Mr. Capps, a Seventh-day Baptist of Dresden, Tenn" who has been committed to jail for 442 days for doing farm labor on Sunday. He does not deny the charge, but says he rested on the seventh day, according to the Bible. The subject is such an interesting one that we may return to it.

THE PROPOSED M'CAUL-STREET BLUNDER.

Before it is too late action should be taken with a view to keep the trolley cars off McCaul-street. A mistake is made when it is imagined that the people living on McCaul-street are the only ones interested in this matter. The whole city is concerned in seeing that the street car routes are laid out so as to afford the maximum of convenience to the citizens generally. There is no need of a car route along McCaul-street as the routes are laid out at present. But infinitely less will be the necessity for the line when the route up University-street is undertaken, and undertaken it undoubtedly will be in the course of a year or two. The existence of a horse-car route on McCaul-street gives that street no vested rights in a trolley service. Suppose a track of no kind had ever been laid in McCaul-street would the city to-day select that street for a street car route? That is the way the matter ought to be considered. What is or has been is irrelevant. What ought to be is the only point for consideration. Viewed in this light no trolley service would be recommended for McCaul-street, but the Street Railway Company would be permitted to establish the University and Avenue road route, than which there is none more needed in the whole city. There is not a street car rail north of Bloor-street between Yonge and Bathurst-streets, while this district is thickly settled. The convenience of a large section of the city should not be sacrificed because of the objections of a few individuals.

Sunday Observance.

[From The Christian Guardian.]

The Archbishop of Canterbury, addressing a diocesan conference at Lambeth Palace, said that the dinner parties and dramatic entertainments which were beginning to be given in all directions in London on the Sunday could not be too severely condemned. The working people ought to be provided with everything in the way of Sunday recreation, without at the same time oppressing other people, as he was afraid a great many rich people oppressed their servants on the Sunday. A resolution was adopted expressing the view that, beyond the essential attendances at public worship, no uniform rule could be laid down for the due observance of Sunday, which was dependent on varying conditions.

An Apparent Gross Injustice.

Editor World: A week ago yesterday (Wednesday) two men were arrested and locked up upon a charge of highway robbery. The complainant's story was that he met the men on Queen street, west of York, about a quarter to six in the afternoon, and the men asked him for a quarter. He left the men standing on the street while he went into a place of business and got some money changed, and then came back and gave the men ten cents, and walked away.

When this story was told the Police Magistrate he at once dismissed the case in contempt.

Now, Mr. Editor, if I am right the Crown Attorney gets, or should get, a history of each case that he is engaged in, just as I would give my lawyer, if I engaged one, to take a case at court, and if he did his duty he got all the particulars of the case before it came up in court. In the case of the men he refused to allow the prisoners out on bail, though heavy bail was offered, and the prisoners were both respectable men, and belonged to respectable families in the city. So they were forced to lie in jail a week waiting for their trial and discharge. Now, Sir, I would know as a taxpayer is this the way our Crown authorities should act, to keep people at the expense of the county in jail on such flimsy charges, and refusing bail to them when the authorities must know there is nothing in the case, and bringing disgrace on respectable citizens and their families. BYSTANDER.

The Hired Man.

[The Khan in Guelph Mercury.]

He upward looks upon the sea deep
Liquid of the splendid sky;
He sees the cattle standing knee deep
'Neath the sheltering cedars high,
A beast of burden yonder he
Can hear an insect chirp with glee,
While in the twenty-acre field,
Without a shelter or a shield,
See him through the wheat field swing.
He envies every little bug.
Beneath the cool and grassy rug.
The beast afield, the bird awing,
He envies every creeping thing.

Why? Because that in the splendor
Of the torrid noontide high
They can seek the cool ways tender,
And hide away till night is nigh,
And thus escaping from the noon,
Come forth to wonder at the moon,
And to their little neighbors call,
When the eastward shadows fall.
Thus in the nighttime calm and late,
Among the moss and grass and leaves,
With thoughtfulness each bosom heaves
And every little heart elate,
Chirrups softly—God is Great!

He hasn't time among the stubble,
Or on the parched and burning sod,
To harken to the brooklet's bubble,
Or lift his old straw hat to God,
If Christ was preaching somewhere near,
He couldn't spare an hour to hear,
His little joys are somewhat rare,
The summer circus and the fair,
He pitchforks life aside for food
A slaving tired and humble elf,
He weds a worker like himself.
Their creed is easy understood,
That God, tho' very great—is good.

ROBBED A ROTHSCHILD

And Will Also Have to Answer a Charge of Murder.

Marseilles, Aug. 9.—An Italian named Palmireri was sentenced here yesterday to three years' imprisonment for having robbed Baron Arthur de Rothschild of his purse last January at the Toulon railroad. The purse contained 14,000 francs. Palmireri will also be charged at Nice with having murdered Zander Alender near Monte Carlo last December. Alender was an Englishman. He was killed and robbed and his body thrown under a bridge.

FIRST HANGING SINCE 1812.

Execution of a Child-Murderer Takes Place at Allentown, Pa.

Allentown, Pa., Aug. 9.—Lehigh County's first legal hanging since the county was incorporated in 1812 took place this morning in the Allentown jail yard. Harry F. Johnson was the victim. The crime for which Johnson paid the death penalty was the murder of his 3-year-old daughter, Bertha Johnson, on July 25, 1893. After he had been tried and convicted, Johnson confessed that he drowned the child because he did not want to take care of her.

KNOCKED DOWN BY A HORSE.

Two Young Ladies Experience a Narrow Escape From Death.

Miss Ethel Elder and her sister, daughters of Mr. David B. Elder, 12 St. Vincent-street, were knocked down by a horse belonging to Ald. Frankland at King and Yonge-streets last night. If it had not been for the presence of mind of P. C. Kenny they might have received serious injuries. The officer pulled them from in under the horse's feet before they were trampled on. Miss Ethel escaped without being hurt, but her little sister's face was cut.

The Pavilion.

"Nadgy" grows in favor, and never went with more vim than it did last night. The Pavilion was filled in every part by an audience that included many of the best people in the city. But three more performances of "Nadgy" will be given, namely, tonight, to-morrow afternoon and to-morrow night, when the members of the Toronto Bicycle Club and their friends and visitors will attend in a body.

One of the greatest hits of the "Nadgy" performance is Mr. Casselman's singing of the role of Rakoczy. Mr. Sinclair was cast for the part, but was summoned to New York to join Hoyt's "Trip to Chinatown" company. Mr. Casselman took the part at a few hours' notice and made a success of it.

Different Taste.

Suppose that a man has strong intellectual tastes, a love of art or science or literature. He will require, of course, enough wealth to enable him to devote himself without anxiety to his favorite pursuits, and enough, moreover, to train himself in all requisite knowledge. But, granting this, the material conditions of happiness will be sufficiently fulfilled. I think it was Agassiz who observed, when he was devoting himself to science, that he had not time to get rich. Wealth to him would have been rather an impediment than an advantage.

A man like Faraday, who placed his whole happiness in the extension of scientific knowledge, and who was not less honored because he lived upon a modest income, would not have had a greater amount of that kind of happiness had he possessed the wealth of a Rothschild. A man whose pleasure is in reading books or contemplating works of art or listening to music can obtain the highest enjoyment at a very moderate price, and can get very little more if he has the most unbounded wealth at his disposal. If we enquired what men of such tastes had, in fact, derived from them the greatest happiness, we should, I fancy, find ourselves mentioning men comparatively poor, whose enjoyments were even comparatively keen, because they had to devote a certain amount of care and contrivance to obtaining full play for their capacities.

Charles Lamb, plotting and contriving to get an old volume from a bookstall, possibly got more pleasure from his taste than the possessors of gigantic libraries. The sociable man, again, the man whose pleasure in society is the genuine delight in a real interchange of thought and sympathy, who does not desire magnificent entertainment, but the stimulus of intimate association with congenial friends, would probably find the highest pleasure in comparatively simple social strata, where the display of wealth was no object, and men met, as Johnson met his friends at the club, to put min' fairly to mind, and to stimulate intellectual activity instead of consuming the maximum of luxury.

Milton's sonnet to Lawrence gives perhaps a rather severe, but very fascinating, ideal of refined luxury:

What neat repast shall feast us, light and choice
Of Attic taste with wine, whence we may rise
To hear the lute well touched or artful voice
Warble immortal notes and Tuscan air?
He who of these delights can judge, and spare
To interpose them oft, is not unwise.

Nor need we be accused of inordinate boasting if we should say that we would rather have made a third at such a feast than have joined a dozen rowdy courtiers at the table of Charles II.—The National Review.

Toronto's Government.

Toronto, until three or four years ago, was governed by a councils of 40 members. There were 13 small wards each of which elected three men; and these, with the mayor, made a body of 40. But on the occasion of the recent enlargement of the municipal limits, it was decided to reduce the number of wards to six, and allow a representative of four aldermen for each ward. Toronto's greatest length is parallel with the water front, and its business enterprises, both mercantile and manufacturing, are not very remote from the beautiful and spacious natural harbor. The new ward lines all begin at the water's edge and run directly back. Thus each ward in some measure contains every variety of interest and population. The entire council is renewed every year. Longer terms and a system of partial renewal would seem to have superior advantages, but Toronto, although anything but a French-Canadian city like Montreal, or Quebec, has in several respects a municipal system that suggests those of France and the Latinic countries. The municipal system of Toronto and the other cities and towns of Ontario seems to be something of a compromise between the English, French and American systems, maintaining, however, the simplicity and strength of the English and French plans and avoiding the absurdities of our American methods.—Dr. Albert Shaw, in Review of Reviews.

Inconsequential.

"How," she demanded, tremulously, "do you regard winning a poor girl's love, only to cast it from you?"

"As a trifle," he answered, promptly.

Objects to Extending Telephone Patents.

Washington, Aug. 9.—Representative Childs of Illinois presented in the House a petition signed by ex-Solicitor-General Charles H. Aldrich of Chicago against pending bills, he alleges, to extend the life of the Bell telephone patents, which are about to expire. Four bills having this object in view, he says, have already been introduced in the House.

Skepticism—This is unhappily an age of skepticism, but there is one point upon which persons acquainted with the subject agree, namely, that Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil is a medicine which can be relied upon to cure a cough, remove pain, heal sores of various kinds, and benefit any inflamed portion of the body to which it is applied.

Personal.

Col. Gzowski, who has been seriously ill the past few days, is reported by his physician, Dr. J. B. Hall, to be improving.

Mr. Charles Cluthe has returned from a most successful business trip through the Lower Provinces.

P. C. Flynn of the Toronto Police Force and Mr. Wilson, son of Mr. Uriah Wilson, M.P. for Lennox, have been appointed to positions in the postal service.

Mr. James Charlton, General Passenger Agent of the Chicago & Alton Railway, and Mr. A. Drysdale of the same road, were in the city yesterday, the guests of Mr. N. Weatherston, Western representative of the Intercolonial Railway.

Superintendent H. T. Smith of the London Street Railway Company and wife are staying for a few days with their son, H. T. Smith, stenographer, of Toronto. While in Toronto Superintendent Smith will look into the workings of the Toronto Street Railway electric system.

APPENDICITIS.

This Disease is Still a Fad Among Rich People—One of the Rarest of Diseases, However.

A prominent doctor who has performed a score of successful operations for the removal of that troublesome and inexplicable part of the human anatomy, the vermiform appendix, says that the general impression that appendicitis is caused by the presence in the appendix of a cherry stone or currant seed, or a seed of any kind, is entirely erroneous. "I have not found a seed in the appendix of a single one of my cases," he said. "A small bit of digested matter gets into the little sac, if the neck of it is open far enough to receive it. It may remain there for years and cause no trouble, and then again it may bring on the appendicitis almost immediately. Where the patient is in good health, in four cases out of five the operation for removing the appendix is successful. There is a great difference in the length of time taken by surgeons to perform this, or, in fact, any delicate operation. There is one surgeon in the city who has performed the operation in eighteen minutes, which included the time from the moment the patient was brought in on the operating table until he was ready to be taken out. This is half the time that it requires the majority of skillful surgeons to do it. Of course, speed is not everything.

"The appendicitis fad, as the craze among rich people to have their vermiform appendices removed, is called, still continues unabated, and there are few surgeons of prominence now who are not familiar with the performance of the operation.

"Doctors who have allowed the appendicitis fad to carry them away have performed the operation upon a great many people whose vermiform appendices were in good condition, and in some cases patients having weak constitutions have died because of the needless slit in their abdomens. I am very glad to explode that story about the grape-seed and other seeds, especially as the grape season is just coming on. People who have heard about appendicitis have given up the luxury of small fruit in fear of appendicitis, and some of the extremely sensitive ones have even been constantly worried lest some seed that they had swallowed in the past might give them this disease—which is among the rarest of diseases, anyway."—N.Y. World.

The Police Athletic Tournament.

The 12th annual athletic tournament of the Toronto Police Amateur Athletic Association will be held on the Rosedale grounds on Wednesday next. This season's games promise to be the most closely contested that have taken place in athletic circles for some years. The feature of the police games always is the contest for the all-round championship belt, and the medal is presented by the officers of the Q.O.R. The medal is given to the competitor winning the highest number of points on the program. Last year the medal was won by Constable Allison. This year there are a number of likely men who are after it. They are Constables Allison, Nichol, Dodds, Guthrie, Child and Robinson, and every one of them has many admirers.

Other special attractions will be the open handicap 5-mile bicycle race (Inspector Stark, secretary of the association, would like to have all entries for this event in by Monday noon) and the tug-of-war between the Grenadiers and 48th.

The Queen's Own Band will be in attendance.

14,000 Men Ordered to Take Holidays.

Boston, Aug. 9.—All the rubber manufacturers controlled by the Rubber Trust will shut down September 1 for two weeks or a month. These plants employ 12,000 or 14,000 persons. It is stated in some quarters that this action is taken on account of lack of orders, though Mr. Cutler of the Woonsocket Rubber Company says it is to give the employes a vacation. Mr. Cutler added: "The prices of goods will be advanced the first of September, and we think that during September orders will be light, and it will be a good time to give our employes their annual vacations as we are obliged to do so."

Charged With Larceny.

Detective Burrows will leave this morning for London to bring back William Brunt, who is wanted for the larceny of a watch from George L. Howell, 62 Adelaide-street west. Brunt is a barber, and worked in a King-street shop. It is said that Howell gave Brunt the watch to realize on. Brunt did so but kept the money.

The Laurentian.

The steamship Laurentian of the Allan Line, 4000 tons, arrived at Montreal at 1 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 4. She left Liverpool on the afternoon of Thursday, July 26, and on Friday, Aug. 3, she was in Quebec. The Laurentian has made quick passages, but this beats the record. She sails from Montreal on Saturday. Her cabin accommodation is all taken and she will carry a large cargo. The Laurentian has the electric light throughout.

Mr. Henry Graham, Wingham, writes: "I was in North Dakota last May and I took a bottle of Northrup & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery with me, as I did your Liver pills without it. While there a lady friend was suffering with indigestion, biliousness and headache. I recommended the Vegetable Discovery to her and she tried it and the result was that it did her so much good that I had to leave the balance of the bottle with her."

For the Theft of Oars.

On July 18 the boathouse of Hector Macdonald, 27 Strange-street, was entered and several pairs of oars and oarlocks stolen. James Conners, 189 Berkeley-street, was yesterday arrested by Detective Duncan on a warrant, charging him with the theft.

A VICTIM FROM HAMILTON.

WHY HE DID NOT PURCHASE ANY TORONTO PROPERTY.

He Had Read An Editorial In One of the Morning Papers and Would Like to Take the Editor Up to Hamilton.

He was a very angry man as he waited for the train to take him back to his Hamilton home. "You see," he said, "I read in one of your morning papers that choice residential property in Toronto was not worth more than $50 a foot and the best business property was not worth more than $100 a foot. Why, property in Hamilton is almost worth that price, and as I had a few thousand dollars laid aside I thought I would invest in Toronto real estate.

"I was directed to a street called Sherbourne," he continued, "and, by gosh, the lowest I could buy land on that street was $200 a foot, and then the lot was only 100 feet deep. For anything of a decent lot they wanted from $225 to $250 a foot. Then I thought I would try the business part of your city, and struck a few places in Yonge-street. One fellow wanted $1400 a foot, besides the value of the building. Hang it, if another crazy man did not ask me $3000 a foot, and wouldn't rent the store under $3500 a year.

"But I didn't get all the worst of it," and he smiled a Hamiltonian smile. "You see that package (he pointed to a large-sized bundle at his feet), well, I went into guinane brothers' shoe store, two fourteen Yonge-street, and purchased fifty dollars worth of shoes for ten dollars. They're selling a big wholesale stock of shoes at sixty cents on the dollar. I bought a pair of ladies' canvas shoes for fifty cents that would cost me two dollars in Hamilton. They offered to sell their land and building for $70,000.

"Say," and there was blood in his eye, "I'd like to get that fellow up in Hamilton who said the best business property in Toronto was not worth more than one hundred dollars a foot."

CANADA'S GREAT FAIR.

Some Notable Exhibits—Leading Features of the Amusement Program.

Though the time for closing the entries in the leading departments of the Toronto Industrial Fair does not expire until to-morrow (Saturday) so great has been the number of applicants that the space in the buildings is all allotted. Nothwitstanding the re-arrangement of the interior of the Main Building and other departments with a view to economizing space, there is not an inch left, and many of the later applicants will be disappointed.

Among the agricultural exhibits will be a splendid display of farm products from the Dominion Experimental Farm and a well-selected and arranged showing of the products of Manitoba and the Northwest furnished by the C.P.R. They have also arranged for a series of open-air lectures, illustrating life and farming conditions in the Northwest, with stereopticon views to be given from time to time during the second week of the fair. The Victoria Industrial School boys and pupils of the Brantford Deaf and Dumb Institute will be on view at work at the different hand, crafts and mechanical processes taught at those institutions.

The features of the program now in preparation are so numerous and diversified that but a few of the specialties can be mentioned. The performance in front of the grand stand include running, trotting and hurdle races. A match contest between the two famous trotting dogs, "Victor" and "Doc," for $500 and the American championship. Special exhibitions by Kinzer's trotting dog teams of Wooster, Ohio. Grand balloon ascensions, with parachute drop, by Prof. Woolcott and Miss Lamont, the intrepid aeronauts. Daily exhibitions of high jumping, horsemanship, four horse chariot racing and Roman standing races by the Kemp combination and bicycle races. The latter events, five in number, will come off on Wednesday, Sept. 5, and include one mile, quarter and half mile races, open, with flying start; one mile tandem race and a one mile 2.50 class race. A lively competition is anticipated.

Among musical attractions are the Ladies' Vienna Court orchestra and Russian Imperial Court orchestra; organ recitals on a grand church pipe organ and music by a number of the finest bands in the province.

Edison's latest wonder, the kinetograph, the living pictures representing the finest works of European masters. Cooper's great painting, "The Morning of the Crucifixion," California phaetons carriage, etc., go to make up a program which surpasses anything heretofore produced. The grand pyrotechnic spectacle, "The Siege of Algiers," terrific in wonderfully realistic presentation of the devastations of warfare, will be presented every evening.

"Dr. Cupid."

The opening of the Jacobs & Sparrow's Opera House will take place on Monday afternoon, Aug. 13, with the famous and best of comedies, "Dr. Cupid." No farce comedy has ever made the success that "Dr. Cupid" has. Few comedies have any plot to carry it through. "Cupid" has a plot and a good one, and gives its audiences a chance to laugh from the beginning to the end of the play. "Dr. Cupid" is in the hands of a perfect cast of artists, and a great performance can be looked for. The specialties introduced in the piece are all new and original and will include The Tramp, The Country Girl, The Gondola Gavotte, Pearl the Bowery Girl, and The Queen of Brilliants. Miss Daisy Mayer and her band of Pickaninnies originally from the Casino Theatre, New York City. Seats are now on sale at the box office.

Mr. Thomas Ballard, Syracuse, N.Y., writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with the most-to-be-dreaded disease dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pain and want of sleep, and after trying almost everything recommended I tried one box of Parmelee's Valuable Pills. I am now nearly well and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money."
