Col. Irvin, Inspector of Artillery, has returned to Ottawa from his tour of inspection in the Maritime Provinces. It is thought that he will refer, in his report, to the great improvements in the Maritime Province forces, which is said to be a matter of much gratification to the Militia Deparment.

A representative of the Philadelphia Evening Star paid a visit to this Province a few weeks ago, and contributed a very interesting account of his impressions of the place to that paper. The account of his visit to this city constitutes one of a series of letters under the head of "Rambles in Canada." We will give the letter next week.

A somewhat novel burglary was attempted in Alymer, Ontario, on Saturday night, 1st inst., when some miscreant pried the corner stone of the new Post Office, which had been laid the previous day, out of its place, and endeavored to open the cavity in which the usual papers and coins had been deposited. He was disturbed in his work and went off. A guard was placed over the stone on Sunday night, and on Monday it was built so that it cannot be disturbed.

Professor Buell gave one of his most interesting and highly artistic exhibitions in the School Hall, Souris East, on Friday night last, the 7th inst. The pictures were excellently placed upon the canvas, and the large audience present were delighted with the entertainment, and were most enthusiastic in their praise of the manner in which everything passed off. Should the Professor ever visit Souris again he may reckon on a big house. While in Souris Professor Buell took several protographs of the village and vicinity, which will be shown in future entertainments.

The great new bell procured for St. Andrew's Church, by the pastor, Very Revd. Monsignor McDonald, V. G., was blessed on Sunday last by His Lordship the Bishop. High Mass was sung by Revd. J. C. McDonald, Rector of St. Dunstan's College. His Lordship occupied a throne prepared for him, on the Epistle side of the sanctuary, and was assisted by Very Revd. Mgr. McDonald. After the Communion His Lordship ascended the pulpit and preached a highly instructive and interesting sermon on the history and uses of bells, and explained to the congregation the significance of the ceremony about to be performed. After Mass His Lordship, arrayed in Cope and Mitre, with Crozier in hand, and preceded by the attendant c'ergy, proceeded from the vestry down to the rear of the church, where the ceremony of blessing the bell was performed. The bell, which is called "St. Andrew," is from the foundry of McShane & Co., Baltimore, and weighs 1620 pounds, being the largest church bell on the Island. It cost upwards of $400. Over $250 were contributed by those present at the benediction of the bell. The church of St. Andrew is a very beautiful edifice of the Gothic style of architecture, and is nicely finished interiorly. A very handsome set of Stations of the Cross adorn the lateral walls. There are also two large paintings, one of St. Andrew, Patron Saint of the church, the other of "Christ Before Pilate," on the Epistle and Gospel side of the High Altar, respectively; while in niches on either side are very beautiful statues of the Blessed Virgin and St. Joseph. Before the High Altar, which, on the occasion in question, was charmingly adorned with lights and appropriate ornaments, hang three massive sanctuary lamps, which are constantly burning. Attached to the church there is a spacious and well-ordered vestry, recently built.

WAR DECLARED.
Maxwell in the Field.

Farmers, don't be gulled by agents who keep the papers stuffed every week with their puffing and blowing, and telling you they can sell as good a reaper or binder as the Maxwell. We will put up five dollars to one against any other in the market. The Maxwell goods have been in use for over thirty years in the States and Canada, and have been thoroughly tested on this Island for the last two years.

If you want to buy the best, ask the following gentlemen: James Doyle, of Charlottetown, who worked with the late Owen Connolly, when the Maxwell Binder cleaned out the Walter A. Wood in the harvest of 1886. After Mr. Connolly having a trial of three or four other binders, he bought the Maxwell. Henry Hyde, West River, which binder he bought after inviting all the binders in the market to his field for trial, and having a trial of the Patterson and Buckeye, and saw the Milwaukee Junior working. Norman McLeod, Orwell, what reaper he bought after using a Frost & Wood. Wm. Fraser, Seal River, what binder he cut his harvest with, using but two horses in the first crop in new land. Thos. Duffy, Morell, what reaper he bought after using the Brantford, P. Tynan, Monaghan Road, what reaper cut his field of new land oats when all others failed to try it. Ask Henry T. LePage, Charlottetown, what rake cleaned out his in Miss Ann McWade's field, Johnston's River, and he will say the Maxwell. And over one hundred others who bought from us the last two years, and they will tell you to buy the Maxwell; and take no other, for it is fifty per cent. ahead of any other in the market.
