Poetry.

Written for the Signal.

Avoco, again in thy calm sheltered valley,
I woo the retreats by thy wild winding stream,
Where the fair summer flow'rs deck each rural alley,
As mellow'd in soft tints of twilight they gleam.

On the verge of the forest the pale aspens quiver;
The dark-mantled cedar still shadows the dell:
The meek-eyed birch droops its fields o'er the river,
Whose banks bear the moss pink and lovely bluebell.

'Twas here—when the sun o'r broad Huron retiring,
In hues of rich grandeur embellish'd the grove,
Whilst Nature's gay charms round my pathway admiring,
I first own'd the power, and presence of love.
'Twas here—where love's star from the blue zenith beaming
First hallow'd our tryst in the vine-tressel'd glade,
As with valour and truth in his warm bosom teeming
Young Henry first proffered his vows in the shade.

How sad now each scene, of his presence forsaken!
Thy echoes are mute, or they sigh but in pain;
His sweet voice no more shall their rapture awaken!
His foot shall ne'er press thy green valley again.
For far mid the tumult of War's fell commotion
He sank where the bravest in battle did fall,
They gave him a grave in the depths of the ocean—
The winds sang his requiem—the waves were his pall.

But still dear Avoco! thy stream in its wanderings
Can murmur response to my sad-cherish'd pain;
I'll oft trace our haunts by its fitful meandrings,
As oft sigh his name to thy zephyrs again.
I'll sit by the fountain and twine the green willow;
His form my rapt Fancy shall often restore;
Till calmly I'll sleep with thy moss for my pillow,
Where Nature shall wake me to anguish no more.

Canadian Meats for English Markets.

The Canadian News, London, Aug. 10, says:—We have already drawn the attention of our readers resident in Canada to this important subject. Since then cheering tidings have arrived in the form of disease of cattle likely still further to affect the present high price of meat, and which hold out stronger inducements to Canadians to ship as soon as possible an amount of stock equal to their superabundance. We learn that another advance has already taken place in the market value, and that it is fully expected that the prices before Christmas next for the best quality joints of meat will not be less than 1s. per lb., and may even be as high as 10d. per lb. Surely in these figures Canada stock farmers and provision merchants can see their way to opening up and establishing a fresh meat trade with our English markets. We have a regular weekly line of steamers between Quebec and Liverpool, running with marvellous regularity and speed, the average trip not exceeding nine days and a half; and the very low rates now quoted for boxed provisions afford every inducement for a trial to establish this new trade, and we hope to learn that some of the enterprising merchants of Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, or even some of the cities further to the westward have determined upon trying it, at all events as an experiment.

A Yorkshire Pie.

First of all a receptacle is built of the shape and size of a good large cheese box, composed of "salt crust," (that is, made with boiling water), about an inch thick; put no butter in the crust but in its place fresh lard sliced, chopped as fine as possible, so that, when kneaded together, the walls of the receptacle stand firm and erect.

Now for the inside: Take a fine mellow ham (a Yorkshire one if you can get it: if not a sugar cured Virginian) a fine turkey, a goose, a couple of chickens, a couple of ducks, a couple of rabbits, a hare, a brace of pheasants, a few slices of venson, half a dozen pigeons, a dozen quails a woodcock, two or three pounds of sausage meat, some sweet herbs and seasoning, and having deprived the foregoing of all their bones, proceed to stow them away in layers in your crust receptacle just as tight as ever you can get them, until all the interstices are filled up: then put a top crust of the same thickness as the other on, place the pie on a piece of sheet iron in a quite cool oven, and let it slowly bake for three or four hours; take it out very gently, and let it stand until the next day, and then when you cut it you will find it will come out quite solid, like a piece of variegated marble, tasting of everything in general but nothing in particular; a dish that would raise an appetite beneath the ribs of death.

It will be a bounte big pie, too; but there is no fear of its spoiling, for it will keep a couple of months, if needful, or you can manage any how to keep it. Don't talk any more of boned turkey with truffles, or pate de foie gras from Strasburg, for neithes are to be named with the Yorkshire pie.—Wilkes' Spirit.

THE GREAT WESTERN RAILWAY AS COMPARED WITH AMERICAN LINES.—We find the following in the Buffalo correspondence of the St. Catherines Journal:—"Talking of railways, a ride over a few of the American lines soon causes the superiority of the Great Western of Canada to be felt and acknowledged. The cars are cleaner, the track finer and smoother, and the conductors perfect gentlemen, although I cannot say that the American conductors lack in this respect. It would perhaps be impossible to come across a more popular conductor than Mr. Henry Prince,—son of Judge Prince of Algoma,—who has been on the Western for many years, and has yearly added to his host of friends.—His careful kindness and attention to passengers on his train, and his agreeable and urbane conduct, stamp him as the prince of conductors and gentlemen. Of all corporations, a railway has the most to gain by the politeness and conscientious discharge of duty on the part of its employees, and in this respect the Western is very fortunate.

SUPPOSED CASE OF MURDER.—The body of a young woman named Catharine Fitzgerald, supposed to have been murdered, was brought to the Engine House, King William street, Hamilton, on Thursday night, from a house near the Roman Catholic Cemetery. The corpse, says the Spectator, presents a dreadful appearance, the jaw being literally smashed, and the indications are that the unfortunate woman was pomelled to death. She has, we believe, been long known to the police as the inmate of a house of very bad repute.—A man named Matthew Boyd has been arrested and lodged in the cells, supposed to have been the perpetrator of the crime.

GREAT CONFLAGRATION!!

At 1.53 this morning, the Bay street bell sounded the alarm for a fire at Dodgson Shield's & Co's, confectionery establishment, corner of Yonge and Temperance streets, a few hundred yards east of the Bay street fire hall. The fire was observed about 1.49 by the inmates in Dodgson, Shield's & Co's establishment on Yonge street, which building was connected with the confectionery establishment in rear by a one-story brick building. As soon as discovered, the inmates, cut off from communication with the shop below them, ran to the windows, and, with the assistance of a few bystanders who were first at the scene of conflagration, they attempted to make their exit from the third story of the building. Three clerks, who slept in the upper story of the store, made a descent from their rooms by a rope, while from another room one of the young men hung down, and allowed himself to drop, being caught in the arms of the crowd who were collected underneath. As soon as the fire department were on the spot, which was? with great alacrity, ladders were placed at the windows of Dodgson, Shields & Co's, fronting on Temperance-street, and two females, who were in one of the upper rooms, were got safely down.—With a copious supply of water, the steamers were quickly all right, and every effort was made to retard the progress of the fiery elements, which had completely enveloped the three story brick building, used as a bakery and confectionery, fronting on Temperance street. As the wind was blowing from the east, the flames spread towards the brick dwelling house of Mr. Seith, plumber, and Mr. Andrew Henderson, auctioneer. All the furniture in both houses was removed and water poured on the roofs of the dwelling houses. About 2.30, the wind increased, and the rear of the Richmond street Wesleyan Methodist Church caught fire, but was extinguished through the efforts of a few firemen. About the same time the fire caught the roof of the New Connection Methodist Church, pastor the Rev. Mr. Caswell, distant from Dodgson, Shields & Co., about sixty five feet, and in an instant the edifice was in a blaze, the fire licking the roof and so completely forcing its way, that no possible power could save the Church from its unrelenting grasp. The fire then spread with great rapidity, catching the front store of Dodgson, Shields & Co., and Mr. J. Edwards, stationer, and, in less time that it takes to write, both buildings were wrapt in a mass of flames. The two dwelling houses of Mr. Seith and Mr. Henderson were, strange to say, saved, but slightly burnt, although situated in the centre of the flames. At 3.10, the wind increasing, fears were entertained that the Temperance Hall would also catch fire; but, with a powerful stream from the Court Street steamer, it was preserved from the flames at the time we go to press.

Mess. Dodgson, Shields & Co.'s loss is estimated at over $40,000. Insured in the Phœnix Western and Liverpool and London Companies' buildings owned by the firm. Mr. Seith uninsured; building owned by a Mr. Crawford; loss $1,000. Mr. Henderson insured in the Liverpool and London, $400; loss on furniture; building owned by Mr. Wattow. New Connection Church, worth $10,000; insured. At 3.35 the dwelling houses of Messrs Leith and Henderson, which had hitherto withstood the flames, by reason of a stout brick wall which intervened, were a mass of flame, and in fifteen minutes were gutted, notwithstanding the strenuous exertions of the firemen. The furniture in the houses on the north side of Temperance street was all removed for safety, and although the flames had reached the roofs, still it was speedily extinguished. At we go to press the flames are being subdued. The fire is said to be the work of an incendiary. The firemen worked admirably.—[Globe.

Hints for September.

Final preparation of the land, and sowing fall wheat are the chief labors of this month. Let the ground be thoroughly mellow, clear of weeds and their seeds, and, if possible, have some fine manure to harrow in with the seed wheat. By all means use a drill if it can be procured. It is much better to do so than scatter broadcast. Timothy should not be sown at the same time as the wheat, when it is intended to seed down the land. A fortnight later is preferable. Clover should be sown as early as possible next spring. Seed wheat infected with smut should be washed in brine and then sprinkled with powdered slacked lime and well stirred. Begin to give attention to hogs and other stock intended to be cut here. The mistake is often made of deferring the fattening animal's until too late in the season for them to be fed to advantage. Autumn top-dressing of meadows is a good plan if there be any suitable manure to do it with. There is a lull of work between grain harvest and the securing of the root and other late crops which may be improved for doing many odd jobs. Provision of proper shelter of stock, draining of swamps, clearing off meadows of scattered stones and rubbish, picking out weeds from among turnips, so that they may not go to seed, repairing fences, soiling cows and cattle if the pastures are bare, ventilating and cleaning cellars, drawing out stone, and if there be abundance of this material make stone fence. Corn will need harvesting this month, and with careful preservation, the stocks will prove valuable fodder. Make time to attend the Provincial and Local Agricultural Exhibitions, and be sure to take wife and children that all may enjoy an improving holiday. This is a good month for butter-making, and the winter supply should be thought of at this time. In the garden, with the exception of the never-ending fight with weeds, there is not much to do except the pleasing work of ingathering. Strawberry plants may be set out this month, and with careful hoeing, weeding and watering, maybe made to yield a fair crop next spring. Grounds for new gardens or orchards should be well prepared in autumn by ploughing, manuring and thoroughly mellowing. We recommend spring as the best time for planting out fruit trees in this climate.—[Canada Farmer.

A WONDERFUL BRUTE.—A correspondent writing from Melbourne says: Our museum now boasts two stuffed gorillas, male and female, and a young one, which was with the female, its mother, when they were shot by M. DuChaillu in his present African expedition. The male is the most enormous specimen yet heard of, measuring, as he does, six feet nine inches from the sole of the foot to the crown of the head. His girth round the shoulders is five feet six inches, and under the arms he measures four feet eight inches.

☞ A punctual man is very rarely a poor man, and never a man of doubtful credit.—His small accounts are frequently settled, and he never meets with difficulty in raising money to pay large demands. Small debts neglected run credit, and when a man is lost that, he will find himself at the bottom of a hill he cannot ascend.

TRACK OF THE CHOLERA.—The Times marks that hitherto this disease has always advanced in a certain track, presumably from India towards the region of Western Europe. At the present time, we hear nothing what ever of the cholera as on its route from India. It was reported quite abruptly from Alexandria. It has not advanced beyond Marseilles, or beyond any of the infected parts on the east coast of Spain. Southern Italy has been attacked, but only under similar conditions. In short, upon a summary of the evidence we come to this, not that an Asiatic pestilence is advancing upon us across Europe, but that there has been an extraordinary outbreak of cholera in the basin of the Mediterranean.—This marked and special limitation of the epidemic may not unreasonably suggest to us some hopes of immunity. Within the basin of the Mediterranean, no shore has escaped—beyond it, no cholera has appeared.

"By the powers," cried an Irish officer, "that's a pretty soldier! let's go and buy something to have a closer look at her." "Bill, man," said a Scotch companion, "let's go and ask change for a sixpence." "No," said a Yankee, "let's sell her them wooden nutmegs!"
