THE PACIFIC HOTEL DISASTER.

From the St. Louis Evening News, 25th.

Almost every citizen of St. Louis has, no doubt Had a strong suspicion that the Pacific Hotel disaster was the result of a most diabolical incendiarism, and circumstances are now being devoloped which tend to confirm that suspicion beyond the possibility of a doubt. Ever since the event, our very efficient and sagacious Superintendent of Fires, Captain J. E. D. Cousins, has been conducting an examination into the cause which bids fair to be crowned with the most complete success.

It appears that Mr. Boone, one of the unfortunates who was supposed to have lost his life by the fire, and whose remains were uncovered from the ruins, retired to bed about ten o'clock, in a room adjoining that usually occupied by a man named Charles L. Taylor, alias Sanders, and separated from it by a board partition, and reaching only part of the way up to the ceiling. About 1 o'clock on the morning of the fire, the watchman of the Pacific Hotel met Taylor in the street, and, in the conversation with him, Taylor stated that Boone had $1600 in his room with him.

At 2 o'clock the same morning Taylor went to bed. At 3 1-2 o'clock he went to the Townsley House and took a bed for the night, and slept there. He had no boots on at the time. In the morning the bed in which he slept was found to be considerably stained with blood, and no wound was on the person of Taylor. The room at the Pacific Hotel occupied by Boone was in a part of the building affording the best chance for his escape, had he been alive. When his remains were recovered, they were upon the bed on which he had slept, and it was saturated with blood. There were other unmistakable indications that he had been murdered.

Taking all these circumstances into consideration, suspicion rested so strongly upon Taylor that he was arrested on the charge of murder and arson.

Dr. D. W. Strader, the landlord of the hotel, was its reputed proprietor; but it now appears that he had not a dollar of interest in it, but that it belonged to persons with whom the Doctor was at feud. He also has, therefore, been arrested on the charge of conspiring with Taylor in the perpetration of this demoniacal act.

An investigation of the affair was to have taken place before Justice Herckenrath this morning, but has been deferred until to-morrow morning.—In the meantime Taylor is committed to gaol, and Dr. Strader is detained under surveillance. The suspicion against him is very slight, and the investigation may dissipate it entirely. His arrest was more on the ground of possibility than probability.

Taylor has been about St. Louis occasionally for a long time, and a few years ago was a clerk for Chotean & Barlow. He was also at one time Assistant City Engineer. It is also reported on very good authority, that he had been convicted of a felony in California, and had served a term in the chain-gang at San Francisco. A few months ago he was arrested for an extensive robbery at the City Hotel in this city, but was discharged on account of the man who was robbed not remaining to prosecute. He was so alarmed that he fled the city a few minutes after the robbery.

Taylor is a good-sized, good-looking man, and somewhat noted for his very reckless dissipation. Since his return to the city, he has been known by the name of Sanders only, but we learn has several aliases, one of which is Sanders Taylor.

Charles Waldrup, the watchman at the Pacific Hotel, has also been arrested, and we learn is detained as a witness.

Twenty-one lives were sacrificed by this inhuman act.

Died.

SIR,—It is with much pleasure I have to inform you of the benefit I received from your Lozenges. I was attacked with the typhus fever, during which time I had a violent cough, so that it kept me awake the greater part of the night. A friend persuaded me to try a box of your "COUGH LOZENGES" which I did and am happy to say that with only one box of your valuable compound I was quite free from cough.

You can make what use of this you please, for I think such valuable medicine ought not to go unnoticed.

I remain, Sir, your obedient Servant,
