A MEDICAL REVOLUTION!

THE WORLD UNANIMOUS.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.

THE GREAT COUNTER IRRITANT!

The virus of disease often makes its way to the internal organs through the pores of the skin. This penetrating Ointment, melting under the hand as it is rubbed in, is absorbed through the same channels, and, reaching the seat of inflammation, promptly and invariably subdues it, whether located in the kidneys, the liver, the lungs, or any other important organ. It penetrates the surface to the interior, through the countless tubes that communicate with the skin as summer rain passes into the fevered earth diffusing its cool and regenerating influence.

SKIN DISEASES & GLANDULAR SWELLINGS.

Every species of exterior irritation is quickly reduced by the anti-inflamatory action of this Ointment. Angry Eruptions, such as Salt Rheum, Erysipelas, Tetter, Ringworm, Scald Head, Nettle Rash, Scabies (or Itch) &c., die out, to return no more under its application. Hospital experience in all parts of the world proves its infallibility in diseases of the skin, the muscles, the joints and the glands.

ULCERS, SORES, AND TUMORS.

The effect of this unrivaled external remedy upon Scrofula, and other virulent ulcers and sores, is almost miraculous. It first discharges the poison which produces suppuration and proud flesh, and thus the cures which its healing properties afterward complete are safe as well as permanent.

WOUNDS, BRUISES, BURNS, AND SCALDS.

In cases of the fracture of the bones, injuries caused by steam explosions, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Rheumatism, Stiffness of the Joints, and contraction of the sinews, it is employed and warmly recommended by the faculty. This marvellous remedy has been introduced by its inventor in person into all the leading Hospitals of Europe, and no private household should be without it.

UNDENIABLE TESTIMONY.

The Medical Staff of the French and English Armies in the Crimea have officially signed their approval of Holloway's Ointment, as the most reliable dressing for sabre cuts, stabs, and gun-shot wounds. It is also used by the surgeons of the Allied Navies.

Both the Ointment and Pills should be used in the following cases:

Bunions,	Rheumatism,	Sore Throats,
Burns,	Ringworm,	Sores of all kinds
Capped hands,	Salt Rheum,	Sprains,
Chilblains,	Scalds,	Stiff Joints
Fistula,	Skin Diseases	Tetter,
Gout,	Swelled	Ulcers,
Lumbago,	Glands,	Venereal Sores,
Mercurial	Sore Legs,	Wounds of all
Eruptions,	Sore Breasts,	kinds.
Piles,	Sore Heads,

Poetry.

THE INFIDEL AND HIS DAUGHTER.

Suggested by reading a newspaper paragraph describing the scene between the brave old Ethan Allen and his daughter, on the eve of her death, when she asked the stern infidel in whose faith he would have her die—his or her mother's.

"The damps of death are coming fast,
My father, o'er my brow;
The past with all its scenes has fled,
And I must turn me now
To that dim future which in vain
My feeble eyes descry:
Tell me, my father, in this hour,
In whose stern faith to die?

In thine? I've watched the scornful smile,
And heard thy withering tone,
Where'er the Christian's humble hope
Was placed above thine own;
I've heard thee speak of coming death
Without a shade of gloom,
And laugh at all the childish fears
That cluster round the tomb.

Or, is it in my mother's faith?
How fondly do I trace
Through many a year long past
That calm and saintly face!
How often do I call to mind,
Now she is 'neath the sod,
The place, the hour, in which she drew
My early thoughts to God!

"'Twas then she took this sacred book,
And from its burning page,
Read how its truths support the soul
In youth and fading age!
And bade me in its precepts live,
And by its precepts die,
That I might share a home of love
In worlds beyond the sky.

"My father, shall I look above,
Amid this gathering gloom,
To him whose promises of love
Extend beyond the tomb?
Or curse the Being who hath blessed
This chequered path of mine?
And promises eternal rest!
Or die, my sire, in thine?"

The frown upon that warrior brow
Passed like a cloud away,
And tears coursed down the rugged cheek
That flowed not till that day.
"Not—not in mine," with choking voice,
The skeptic made reply—
"But in thy mother's holy faith,
My daughter, may'st thou die!"

Episcopal Recorder.

Miscellaneous Selections.

A THORN IN THE MEMORY.

Hartley Bancroft was, in the general acceptation of the term, a kind hearted man. His feelings were easily reached, and these gave, usually, a ready impulse to his actions. But quick feeling has in most case a two fold range, warming now into kindly emotion, and now burning into sudden anger. Your so called kind hearted men are often betrayed into cruel words, and even into cruel actions. But there is this merit about them; when the heat of passion subsides they repent, and sometimes seek to heal where they have wounded.

Such a man was Hartley Bancroft. While the current of events ran smoothly along, the surface of his life reflected the unvarying sunshine, but a very little obstruction sufficed to ripple the waters, and then their aspect darkened.

One day Mr. Bancroft was sitting at his desk, with a pile of checks and bills before him, the sum of which he was taking preparatory to a deposit in the bank. It was late in the day for him to be figuring up his accounts to make, the amount necessary to lift up his notes had been obtained with difficulty. Mr. Bancroft felt both hurried and worried, as his quick, nervous movements showed.

Just at this inauspicious moment a man entered the store, and walked quickly back to where Mr. Bancroft was sitting.

'Good day, Mr. Cartwright.'

There was not a very cordial tone in the voice of Mr. Bancroft, although the other was a customer who had bought of his goods freely.

'Good day!' There was an embarrased air about Mr. Cartwright.

'What can I do for you?' It was only a form of speech on the part of Bancroft, or rather a new mode of saying, 'Don't ask me for any thing.'

Now it happened that Mr. Cartwright was on that day in a very 'tight place,' as it is called.—It was two o'clock, and all of his efforts to get the full amount of money he needed had failed. Several notes had matured, and among them one of seven hundred dollars given to Mr. Bancroft. All but this he had succeeded in lifting; and now, frightened at the aspect of things, he had come, very reluctantly to his creditor, whom he only knew as a kind hearted man, to state the extremity of his case, and ask a check for the amount of his note as a temporary loan.

'I am short seven hundred dollars. Can you help me.'

'No!' was the answer, made in an emphatic tone, and with a knitting of the brows.

Mr Bancroft noticed that his answer seemed to stagger the applicant for money; he also noticed that he grew pale, and had a look of singular distress. But Mr. Bancroft was too much excited and annoyed for these things to have upon him at the time any right influence.

'Then,' said Mr. Cartwright, 'you will have to withdraw my note from the bank. I can not lift it.'

'I shall do no such thing,' angrily replied Mr. Bancroft. 'Take up your notes as I take up mine.'

'I have failed in all my efforts to get money; and if you do not withdraw this note, it will be protested.' Mr. Cartwright said this very deliberately, and in a firm tone of voice, yet with a face like ashes.

'Very well,' was the unyielding answer, 'let it be protested, then. If you can bear the operation, I think I can.'

Coldly, almost sneeringly, were those crule words said. Mr. Cartwright urged his case no further but turned away, and went from the store of his unyielding creditor. Scarcely had he passed into the street before the better nature of Mr. Bancroft rose into the ascendancy, and he reflected on his unkindness.

'William! he called to a clerk.

The young man came instantly.

'Make this deposit, William; and at the same time withdraw Mr. Cartwright's note, due to day. Money is hard to get just now, and he is burdened with heavy payments. We must give him a helping hand.' The merchant spoke kindly, not fretfully. The clerk depart with the bank book and a check of sufficient amount to lift the notes that were due. Mr. Bancroft remained sitting at his desk, and from his attitude, and the aspect of his countenance it was plain that self approval was not the pleasant state of mind in which he was indulging. The veil of a momentary angry excitement was removed, and now, plainly before the eyes of his mind, stood his humbled and distressed debtor, toward whom not a single impulse of kind feeling had actured. He tried so find a refuge from self upbradings in the fact that he had done all the debtor asked—the note was withdrawn.

'Yes,' said a voice within him; 'you have cast a bone, with curses, into the face of a beggar!'

Mr. Bancroft arcted up hurriedly from his desk, walked the length of his store, returned, and sat down again. A long, deep sigh parted his lips.

'What could have possessed me that I so far forgot both duty and kindness? I would give twince seven hundred dollars to recall this act, were it possible to do so.'

Drawing a sheet of paper before him, Mr. Bancroft took up a pen and wrote—

'Mr. Edward Cartwright.

'My Dear Sir.—I have withdrawn your note. Forgive my rough unkindness. I was worried about money matters, and had but just made up my own bank account. We are not always proof against petty annoyances. They sometimes disturb more than larger things. Come in to morrow, and we will arrange for renewal of this note, if you desire it, making the time to suit yourself.'

Mr. Bancroft signed this apologetic letter, and dispatched it forthwith. He felt more comfortable after that. Still, he suffered some pain from having given pain, and no little humiliation for the unamiable weakness he had manifested.

'Did you see Mr. Cartwright?' he inquired of the lad who had taken the note.

'No, sir; he wasn't there.'

'Did you leave the note.'

'Yes, sir.' The lad looked agitated. He stood a moment, as if waiting for further questions, and then said—

'They were just driving him away in a carriage.'

'What!' Mr. Bancroft turned pale.

'They said he had broken a blood vessel.'

Mr. Bancroft started to his feet with an exclamation of mingled surprise and pain.

'There were blood on the floor.'

Mr. Bancroft groaned aloud. After reflecting for moment he took up his hat and went out hurriedly. A walk of five minutes brought him to the store of Mr. Cartwright.'

'What was the cause of this?' he asked of one of the clerks. 'Did he fall? or was he lifting anything?'

'No,' was answered. 'He was sitting at his desk, resting his head upon his hands, when I heard him call in a quick voice, and turning round I saw the blood flowing from his mouth.'

'Has any thing disturbed him,' asked Mr. Bancroft.

'Money has been hard to get during the past week,' the clerk answered, 'and Mr. Cartwright's payments were unusually large. There is one note not lifted yet, and is a few minutes of three o'clock.' The clerk pointed to a bank notice laying on Mr. Cartwright's desk.

Mr. Bancroft leaned over, and saw that it was a notice of the note due to him.

'That is withdrawn from bank,' said he.

'I am glad to hear it,' replied the clerk, 'I think it was your note that did the harm. He had taken up the others and went out two hours ago, after having been all the morning on the street, to try and get the sum required to lift this one; but he failed; and the consequences were more than he had strength to look at calmly. He is a just man, and a kind hearted man, Mr. Bancroft. We who live with him can bear that testimony.'

Mr. Bancroft stood nearly motionless for a long time.

'Where does Mr. Cartwright live?' he inquired at length.

'At number—— Fifteenth Street.'

To the dwelling of Mr. Cartwright he went in all haste. He found every thing there to confirm his worst apprehensions. The hemorrhage had been very profuse. Already so large a quantity of blood had been lost that the sick man was reduced to a low state of insensibility, and still the bleeding continued. The family were of course in the deepest distress. He saw Mrs. Cartwright for a moment, and in that moment the impression of her white, grief stricken face was transferred to page in memory's book that no after event could dim or obliterate. A beautiful daughter; just on the verge of womanhood, glided past him once, and on her face of terror remained to hunt him for life. He saw the physician, and to his inquiries received no hopeful answer.

When Mr. Bancroft left that house of sorrow he went forth almost stealthily, and with a feeling of guilt in his heart.

'My work! my work!' a voice within him kept repeating; and do what he would, he found it impossible to silence the accusing spirit.

'I can never forgive myself if he should die!' said Mr. Bancroft to himself. 'Oh, what evil is sometimes wrought by passion in an unguarded moment! Why did I not think before speaking.'

Alas! the dreaded evil come. Mr. Bancroft was at his store an hour earlier than usual on the next morning.

'Have you heard from Mr. Cartwright?' he inquired, anxiously, of a clerk.

'Yes, sir.'

'How is he?

'Dead.'

'Dead!' Mr. Bancroft stepped back a pace or two, as though a strong hand were bearing against him.

'Yes, sir. He died at seven o'clock last evening; so the paper says.'

Mr. Bancroft sighed heavily; and then walking back to his desk sat down, and remained in troubled thought for a long time. There was only a single aspect of the case that gave him any relief and this was the probable ignorance of every one but himself of the immediate cause of Mr. Cartwright's death. He had not, it was presumed mentioned the unfeeling repulse which he had received, when at the eleventh hour, and, as a last resort, he had gone to one from whom he had confidently expected, not only kind consideration but prompt relief, so that the secret had died with him.

Mr. Bancroft did not visit the house of mourning. He could not look upon the distress which his own conscience charged him with originating; but his heart was veiled in gloomy shadows.

There was no one to prevent Mr. Cartright in his business, which had to be closed. An active, hard working merchant, he had succeeded, through many disadvantages, in establishing a trade that, prosecuted with industry for a few years, would have given his family a moderate fortune. But he was stricken down at an inauspicious moment.—Serious losses occurred in the settlement of his affairs and when all his debts were finally paid there was nothing over for his family.

'Poor Mary Cartwright!' said Mrs. Bancroft to her husband one day about six months after the death of Mr. Cartwright, 'I saw her at Mrs Marvin's to day. She gives music lessons to her daughter Helen. How changed she was.'

Mr. Bancroft made no reply, and his wife was in some doubt as to whether he had really heard her remark.

'She says that her mother has never been out of the house since her father's death.'

Still Mr. Bancroft made no response. But how the words did smite him! Ah! there was a thorn in his memory that time could never extract.

'There was not a dollar left for the family from poor Cartwright's estate!' said a fellow-merchant.

'So I have heard.'

Mr. Bancroft answered with seeming indifference, but his heart quivered as if a blow had been given.

'It is said that the failure to raise money to lift one of his notes killed him!' said another.

'People will say almost anything,' replied Mr. Bancroft, and moved onward.

Time move steadily onward. The seething spot on the surface of trade where Mr. Cartwright went down was obliterated by the onward moving currents; and he was scarcely remembered in the business circles where once his busy face was a familiar object.

But there was one man who could never thrust aside his image; one man in whose memory his presence was a rankling thorn. Many times had he tried to pluck out this thorn by secret acts of kindness to the family of Mr. Cartwright. But the effort only seemed to make the anguish more intense; for the little he offered by stealth contrasted so poorly with the all sustaining life deeds of a husband and father, that he was shamed back into impotence.

The case was hopeless. That single act of unkindness, so fatal in its consequences, was done forever. It had gone beyond his utmost reach; and there was no surgeon skilled enough to extract the thorn it had left to rankle in his memory.

Derby-Conservatism.—What is it.

[From the Liverpool Herald.]

We are sick of Derbyism—it is the curse of the country; its leaders are without principle, and a man would require the philosopher's stone to define their politics. Derbyism! what is it? "It is neither fowl, flesh, nor good red herring;" it pleases nobody, and makes enemies of its friends. Who will tell us what is its policy? what its object and aim? or what it has done to consolidate a national and protestant party? That it has its eyes on the Treasury Bench we are certain, but the difficulty is how to get there, and when there to sit securely in that couch of down. It is very true that many of the Derbyites shudder at the idea of depriving that model seminary, Maynooth, of its £30,000 a year; and Mr. Disraeli and Sir John Pakington generally walk out of the House of Commons when Mr. Spooner's annual motion is to be debated. * * It is quite evident that Derby-Conservatism is on the wane, and that it wishes to make "a flare up" and "die decent." Peace be to its manes.

THE GATHERING CLOUDS.—The Lord Lieutenant has left the country for a short season and gone to England. He has departed from these shores as no Governor of Ireland—no such important Representative of the Queen—should have left them—namely, amid discontent and strong indignation. His name is covered with reproach—the honest and just reproach of the best Irish subjects of Her Majesty. His name will appear ignoble in the future, among the names of those Governors and Statesmen who, thro' weakness, vanity, infatuation and arrogance imperiled the best interests of the country.

What is the present position of the Protestants of Ireland in relation to the Government? Is it not slighting them, repudiating them, disowning them? The Romanist finds every door of Government favor and patronage open to him; while above every such door there might be understood as written—"No Protestant need apply." This is serious. Protestants have been galled in the extreme by what they have observed. But they have hitherto repressed their feelings; they have groaned in spirit and kept silent. Now, however, the cup of their discontent and wrath has been rudely filled. We write in plain terms. We wish to do so. The matter requires all plainness and promptness of speech. Ulster upheaves with excitement. The Protestants of the North feel they are wronged grievously. The hand of despotic authority has struck at them, and they are resolved not to crouch or be crushed From Down to Donegal—from Derry to Fermanagh, there will be heard the loud indignant voice of denunciation. It is a startling question now bursting from many a lip in our towns and villages, on mountain side and plain—'What next?'

We want justice for Irish Protestants. We ask that they shall be dealt with as British citizens, and not as a people who are to be robbed of their rights.

NEW YORK.—Rowdyism, ultra-montanism, Rum, and the democracy are beaten. The whole mayoralty vote east is 84,000 the largest ever thrown. The notorious Fernando Wood, the Democratic Mayor, is beaten at last by a majority 2345 votes. Mr. Tiemann, the Mayor elect, is a Republican, and an out and out tectotaler. The Democrats, however have a majority in the Council of ten; of the police justices five are Democrats and three opposition; of the civil justices three are Democrats and four opposition.

The reign of Terror in New York is over. The large mass of men out of employment, who threatened bloodshed, and robbery, have ceased to be formidable. The Catholics have had a quarrel with the German Liberals; the great masses have divided into factions, and have turned their threats against one another.

The Chronicle.

St. John, N. B., Dec. 11, 1857.

Some considerable excitement has been occasioned lately in consequence of the refusal of our banks to redeem the Central Bank Bills. The reason for which is a matter with which all persons should be acquainted. It is generally known that a few months ago the Central Bank was robbed of a large amount of money; part of which it has since recovered, but since the Smasher Government got into power it removed from the Central Bank the surplus of the Civil Fund, amounting to about £10,000, which with the amount of which the Bank was robbed, caused it to become stringent. Therefore, we lay all the blame at the door of the Government, and if our up-river people suffer, the only parties on whom rest the whole onus are those who compose our GREAT LUMBER GOVERNMENT, and we can assure our readers that acts similar to this will be perpetrated wherever the Government has a chance.

This morning, at a little after ten o'clock, the convict Slavin was executed in front of the jail; he was accompanied to the scaffold by the Sheriff and Clergy, and as soon as the rope was adjusted the wretched man was launched into the presence of the Great Judge, with whom, let us hope that he has found more mercy than he dealt to his victims. He died almost without a struggle. Many thousands were present, who behaved with great propriety, and many of whom had been there since early dawn.

MECHANICS' INSTITUTE.—Last Monday evening, Mr. John Boyd lectured before the members of the above institution on "England, the hope of the World." It was an interesting lecture, and was listened to with deep attention.

Next Monday evening, Mr. J. W. Lawrence will occupy the platform. Subject:—"Notes on New Brunswick."

AVERY'S ALMANACK for 1858 is a splendid specimen of typography, and contains, besides the usual chronological information, a business directory for the whole city. It is, altogether, a most valuable and creditable publication.

At the Annual Meeting of the St. Patrick's Society, held in Stubbs' Hotel on Monday evening, the 7th inst., the following gentlemen were elected Office Bearers for the ensuing year, viz.:—

John A. Morrison, Esq., President;
Samuel R. Thomson, Esq., Vice President;
John Anderson, Esq., Treasurer;
Mr. Robert M'Afee Jun., Secretary;
Rev. William Harrison, Chaplain.

Bangor was visited by a heavy thunder shower on Thursday morning. A fore-and-aft schooner lying at Brewer was struck, and damaged to the extent of $175 to $200. The bolt struck at the head of the topmast, splitting it, and entering the head of the mainmast tore that to pieces as well as the cross trees. It also jammed in the eyes of the rigging so that they were completely buried. The fluid next entered the mast and went entirely through it, and then continued down to the hatchway into the hold, below, sticking down down the Captain and his brother, a little boy, throwing them about eight feet and leaving them in the same posture it found them—sitting.

At another place in the vicinity a man was knocked down by the same bolt and several trees were struck, the bolt following the line of the telegraph wires for some distance.

FIRE.—On the night of the 30th ult., about ten o'clock, the barns, two in number, of a man of the name of Findley, on the Golden Grove road, were discovered to be on fire, and there being no means at hand of extinguishing them, were both burned to the ground. There were in the barns at the time a horse and four cows, all of which were more or less injured, two of the cows so badly that they are not likely to recover. There were also the crops usual on a farm at this time of the year, and a good many household effects in one of the barns, all of which were consumed. The dwelling house was with difficulty saved, a part of the roof being burned. It must have been the work of an incendiary.—News.

CANADA.

Several of the members of the Canadian government having recently resigned, and the Hon. Mr Tache, the Premier, having come to the conclusion to retire from public life, and to be made a baronet by the Queen, the government tendered their resignations. The Hon. J. A. McDonald the Attorney-General of Canada West was entrusted with the formation of a new ministry. The new Government was sworn in on the 27th. It is with one or two exceptions the same Government, with Mr. Sicotte, formerly Rouge editor, as Commissioner of Crown Lands. In reconstructing the Cabinet, overtures were made to the Rouge party, but they could not be seduced from their principles. The new administration is composed in part as follows:—John A. Macdonald, Premier and Attorney-General of Upper Canada; William Cayley, Inspector-General; Robert Spence, Postmaster-General; G. E Carter, Attorney-General Lower Canada; J. C. Morrison, Receiver-General; P. M. Vankoughnet, Provincial Secretary; N. F. Belleau, President Legislative Council; Charles Alleyn, Commissioner of Public Works; and L. V Sicotte, Commissioner Crown Lands. The Toronto Globe, writing of the new ministry, says:—"Mr. Belleau and Mr. Sicotte are no better than Mr. Tache; Mr Alleyn is worse than Mr. Lemieux; and Mr. Polette is less strong where the Government need strength, than Mr. Terrill. In the eyes of the people of Upper Canada, the new Government is precisely the same as the old. Mr. Sicotte, in our view, is the representative of that section of the French Canadian people who are eager to take office, and do not care much what principles they put in force, so that their salaries are punctually paid, and who will join any Government and permit their colleagues to perpetrate any misdemeanor so long as they are undisturbed. Mr. Alleyn and Mr. Belleau are the representatives of the corrupt Quebec party which has aided so much to bring our monetary affairs into their present condition; and Mr. Polette is the incarnation of the priest system. The present Government, like the last, will resist every advance which the people of Upper Canada desire. Representation by Population will be denied; the Separate School system will be maintained and extended, if the priests insist; and the corruption and extravagange of the past three years will go on unchecked. The new Ministry consists of eleven lawyers and an auctioneer. The auctioneer was no doubt intended to knock down the whole lot to the highest bidder, when they cannot be disposed of to better advantage."

Toronto, Nov. 28.—The Governor General today issued a proclamation dissolving the present Parliament The election writs are returnable on the 13th of January next. The prospects are good for a lively time in politics.

COMMUNICATIONS.

[FOR THE CHRONICLE.]

Mr. EDITOR—With your permission I would beg the attention of the present Government (who charm the public ear with the story of tax reduction and economy) to a most glaring, monstrous and unjust taxation—a taxation which can only find a parallel where serfdom and despotism exist—I refer to a tax of two and a half per cent on all Newspapers coming from the United States. This I regard as unwarrantable, and might be called public plunder. Now let us look at the matter; until within two or three months newspapers were admitted "duty free," since which time, however, two and a half per cent has been levied. What authority has the Provincial Treasurer to restrict this rate of duty? If newspapers were unenumerated (which is the case) in the Tariff of Duties passed in 1855, by law, it was the duty of the Treasurer to levy ten per cent, and now, with the recent loan duty, twelve and a half per cent. It is a query where the Treasurer finds the two and a half per cent only. But do we pay taxes on American newspapers which come to us by mail, and why not pay for those which come by vessel? If the Customs' Department received order to collect this per centage, why did not the Postal Department receive the same? Either one of two things must be the fact,—that no such information ever was received at the Treasury, and that the Treasurer is using his own discretion in the matter, or that the Postmaster has been derelict of duty.

If the information which our people obtain from the neighboring Republic is to be taxed, then I ask the present Government where are all their boasted schemes of education? It is absurd; another electioneering dodge. If the poor man, after a day of hard labor, asks information at his fireside, and has to bear a tax of two and a half per cent on the common newspaper, he seeks for it in vain. I ask where is all the lauded schemes of education we hear so much of on the hustings and on the floor of the House.

The duty must be taken off, and that quickly!

FROM OUR LONDON CORRESPONDENT

As a necessary consequence upon the lessened in the interest in the affairs of India, people being once more to ask what Lord Elgin is doing in China. Some say he is on his road home, disgusted at finding himself without employment, and really in a ludicrous position. This we do not believe. The great number of recruits raised, and the calling out of so many regiments of militia will now enable the Government to send a sufficient force to China to bring this miserable feud to an end. We have no faith in the effect of Lord Elgin's diplomacy, as he is here he should remain, till a satisfactory settlement has been effected.

The ministerial letter abrogating the Bank Charter Act, which appeared on the evening of the 12th has stayed the tide of panic, though it has not averted individual failures. Thus in addition to two bank failures at Glasgow, and one at Liverpool, the Wolverhampton and Staffordshire Bank, largely connected with the iron and manufacturing trades of the country, stopped payment on Tuesday. This has been accompanied by the suspension of several firms in the iron trade, while in London every day brings its list of failures. Everybody now says, however, that we have seen the worst of the crisis. Still the demand for discount at the Bank continues, and the authorities must already infringed to a large extent upon the Act of 1844. As they have done this upon the responsibility of the Premier and his Chancellor of the Exchequer, an Act of Indemnity will be necessary, and the Houses of Parliament, which was prorogued until the 17th of December, is now, on account of "divers weighty and urgent reasons," summoned for the 3rd of that month. Much speculation is rife as to the exact motives for this change of plan. It is said that the requisite Act of Indemnity is not the real cause why Parliament is called together, and that money is wanted on the part of the East India Company to carry on the war. Probably the country will be asked to guarantee a loan; but in any case a strong endeavour will be made to overthrow the system of double government, and substitute the direct authority of her Majesty in the three Presidencies instead of "John Company."

Novelists are often charged with exaggeration; but a true story was disclosed at the Lambeth Police Court the other day, which, for romance, it would have been beyond the novelist's art to invent. Seven years ago a medical student, named Wills, met in an omnibus a young girl with whose beauty he was so much struck that he followed her home, found out that her relations lived at Bath, and proposed marriage. But the parents properly rejected his suit, the girl being but thirteen. About four years afterwards Wills met his old flame at the Surrey Gardens. All relations had been suspended between them, and their meeting was purely the effect of chance; but Miss Maxwell's beauty had, by this time, become more developed, and Wills was so much smitten that he again pressed his suit, this time successfully. The marriage took place in 1855. Some days after her confinement, Mrs Wills was attacked by a puerperal fever, her mind gave way, and she was removed to Bethlehem Hospital, where she remained a year. The husband's passion during this time had become cool, he had even married another woman, and the poor woman was taken to her mother-in-law's house by one of her husband's brothers. For some days no tidings did the neglected wife obtain of her husband and child, but at last he wrote, appointing an interview, at which he heartlessly declared that she was not his legal wife, as he had been married prior to their union, and urged her to marry his brother, James Fenton Wills, who, he said, loved and was ready to have her. The wretched woman, with her mind not yet restored, and easily acted on by the threats of him who ought to have been her protector, married her brother-in-law accordingly; but her friends soon heard of the affair, and found out that the first marriage was legal, and that consequently the second was incestuous and void. James Wills then deserted her, but will now be committed for trial for having falsely sworn that he had her parents' consent to the marriage, she being at that time still under twenty-one. Being admitted to bail, he has absconded, but a warrant for his apprehension is issued. The poor girl is now in the infirmary, and this heart-rending story of her wrongs is made known through the medium of the parish officers.

The Parliamentary Reformers of the more advanced school have published their manifesto. They submit the heads of a new Reform Bill, and the points they "go in" for are six in number:—Every householder or occupier of rooms twenty-one years of age and rated to the poor to have a vote; a £10 franchise for counties; equalization of constituencies, so that the largest numbers may have the most representatives; triennial parliaments; the ballot; and no property qualification. But feelers have been put out lately which justify the belief that Lord Palmerston is trying to throw over the question of Reform for another year. True, he is pledged to bring in a Bill on the subject in the coure of the coming session. But it is said that he will appeal to the House whether, in the face of recent events parliament can be expected to devote to the work of setting our house in order and amending our constitution such time and attention as are required for a work of this importance. No doubt, Palmerston would gladly defer for another year a work of such responsibility and involving such risks of losing his power.

Recent news from America informs us that our friends (for so we must call them, as the majority of them come from among us), the Mormons, have determined to resist the Federal government of the United States by force of arms. Brigham Young has called out his militia, and absolutely advances to meet the foe. He says he will stand against the whole army of the Americans and annihilate them. It would not be much to be regretted if the Americans turned the tables and annihilated them.

Robert Davis, who cut his wife's throat at Ball's Pound, while in a state of intoxication, was hanged at Newgate on Monday. He declared to the last that he committed the act when no longer master of himself, and no knowledge of what he had done until some hours afterwards. But Sir George Grey refused by listening to these representations to sanction the dangerous doctrine that drunkenness is an excuse for crime, when that crime is murder, so the law had its course. The wretched man seemed to feel more acutely the degrading manner in which death was inflicted, than death itself. He would not have cared, he said, if he had been ordered to be shot by twelve of the Foot Guards; but hanging was the death of a dog and not of a Christian. It is unnecessary to say that the "victim of the law" was not allowed a choice which he had denied in the case of the case of his own victim.

FROM LATE ENGLISH PAPERS.

ITALY.—L'Eco di Savanoralo tells of a young man who, on his way to the scaffold for murder, was saved from death by a miraculous interposition!—

"The wretched youth, while passing through the streets praying, saluted an image of the Virgin. And now behold the miracle that was seen by the crowd! At this salute the image bowed its head. He entreated to be permitted to kiss its sacred feet, but was forbidden; the bystanders, however, reversed this decision. Having approached, the youth felt his hand grasped by the sacred statue, so that no one could disengage it! At such a sight everybody wearied themselves with exclaiming: 'Pardon, pardon, for the offender;' and pardon was granted."

At Rome the French monks are at drawn daggers with the Pontifical government. According to the Independance Belge, the French school of the Freres de la doctrine Chretienne (Brothers of the Christian doctrine) has been closed. This establishment was opened in virtue of a papal brief, and advantage has been taken of the departure of Count Rayneval to close it. The freres, however, have exhibited some opposition to the decision of the Roman government.

SARDINIA.—The champion of the Priest Party has been returned thrice for three different places. Two of the ministers have not secured the necessary majority in the first voting, and will have to go to second elections The Clerical party, on the whole, have proved their position, but not to any great extent.—The Liberals were too confident, and the priests have worked vigorously, and were all organised.

At Turin, out of seven deputies who supported the policy Government, five supporters of the Cabinet have been elected. For the other two seats the votes are not decisive, and there must be a second election. Throughout the country (except at Genoa, which is the head quarters of the opposition) there will be an imposing majority for Government. The utmost enthusiasm for the person of the King and the institutions of the country has been everywhere manifested during the elections. It has been observed that a considerable section of the higher classes, whose opinions have hitherto been hesitating, have frankly attached themselves to the Government cause.

As far as known 154 Deputies have been elected, of whom 106 are Liberals, and 46 of the Priest party.

The Cattolico of Genoa states that Mazzini was there a few days ago, and that the police had some suspicion of the matter, and endeavored to arrest him, but without success.

REPUBLICANISM IN FRANCE.—At the funeral of Cavaignac, one hundred thousand persons followed his bier. The Pais correspondent of the New York Times says:—After the bier followed several thousand men, with uncovered heads, among whom could be seen all the notabilities of the Republican party, former Ministers and Representatives of the people, literary men, artists, and men of science. Among this immense number of remarkable heads none was so conspicuous as that of Alex. Dumas, with its towering mount of curly almost gray hair. This was the first time the whole Republican party, or rather the whole of the leaders or bourgeoisie of the Republican party, had been brought together since the coup d'etat. As a whole, they struck me as an exceptional body of men.—They looked like tinkers, a little dreamy, enthusiastic, like lovers of isms. Their heads were oddly shaped, and there were more blondehaired men then are ordinarily seen in a large multitude in France. Their countenances were roughly stamped, and showed character in every line. But look at an imperial assemblage at the Tuileries or at any of the official occasions of the present day. You see a body of polite, smooth, fashionable-looking people, remarkable for nothing but their characterless prettiness. But they have the advantage over the first in not being one idea men, of being capable of time-serving to secure position and a fortune."

AUSTRIA.—The convents in Austria will be reformed, and if their inmates object to the strict discipline which was observed by the founders of their respective orders, they will be secularized.

In one of his pastoral letters to the Austrian clergy, the Pope expresses his expectation that the rich convents in Austria would contribute largely to the maintenance of the papal chair; but the Austrian monks refused to part with their money. If Austrians cannot be induced to submit to the strict discipline which is to be introduced into the convents, Bavarian, Belgian, Westphalian, Italian and Spanish monks will be imported, and they will naturally have no right to object to the export of Austrian cash to Rome.

The Jews in Lemberg will in future be obliged to live in the "Ghetto," as the Jewish quarter is commonly called on the continent.

The chairs of theology in the new university of Innspruck are to be filled by Jesuits.

In future no Protestants are to be appointed chief physicians or professors in the General Hospital of Vienna.

BELGIUM.—The opening of the legislative chamber took place on Tuesday afternoon, without any particular ceremony. The senate met at one o'clock precisely. The proceedings were of a merely formal character, and the assembly separated immediately with cries of 'Vive le Roi!' The chamber of representatives met at half past one, and shortly afterwards M.M. Rogier, Frere, and De Vriere took their seats on the ministerial bench, and received the congratulations of the Liberals and anti-Priest party. The proceedings in this lower chamber were also of a formal character and the representatives separated with cries of 'Vive le Roi!' caught up with enthusiasm by the tribunes.

The Moniteur Belge, of Tuesday, publishes a royal decree, accepting the resignation of the late ministry and appointing a new one.

THE PRINCIPALITIES.—The Danubian Principalities are represented as becoming more and more agitated. The Ultra Radicals are urging the population to extreme measures.—They are even talked of establishing a provisional government. The German journals state that if matters go much farther Austrian and Ottoman troops will enter the Principalities to preserve order. Such an armed intervention, however, would be contrary to the treaty of Paris.

The Duke of Oporto, brother of the King of Portugal, is spoken of as likely to be a candidate for the throne of the United Principalities. France is now said to regret that the question of the Union has gone so far, because serious complications must arise between Austria and Russia on the subject.

AUSTRALIA.—By the latest advices from Australia we learn that in two months 10,000 persons had been added to the population of the colony. Numbers complained of want of employment, but would not accept of reduced wages. Crime was on the decrease. In five years the population of Victoria had increased by 400,000. Telegraphic communication with Adelaide was in a forward state, and a grand railway scheme was likely to be adopted. A plan for the federation of the colonies was under consideration. State aid to religion is to cease in Victoria in 1860. The Haines ministry had carried the Land Bill through the lower house. Mr. Fellows, the Solicitor-General, has resigned.

There had been a change of ministry in New South Wales, and Parliament had been prorogued.

SUICIDE OF BREEN.—Breen, one of the McKenzie murderers, committed suicide on Sunday evening last by hanging himself. He was found suspended by an old yellow silk handkerchief from a small piece of wood, one end of which rested on a shelf, and the other on a cleet. A bit of wood, which had a hole bored in it and fitting on a stump of an old nail assisted in the support of the cross stick. The place was too low for the purpose, unless he pressed the weight of his body on his throat by raising up his feet

The only parties allowed to visit him alone were Mrs. Doherty, Mrs. Cirvell Mrs. Travers, and Miss Hogarty, the Sisters of Charity, and the Priest. Mrs. Doherty was with him from half past two to half past six. About 20 minutes after she left, Miss Creighton went to the wicket, and called Breen, but got no answer.

The priest stated in his evidence before the Coroner, that he was visiting him a few minutes before 7 o'clock. He had been called out in a hurry, and on going to Breen's cell door, he saw him as if kneeling He went towards him, and on finding he had hung himself, assisted some persons to take him down.

It was shown by evidence that several nails had been found on the deceased, and on two previous occasions he had attempted to bleed himself to death with a pin. He had threatened several times to take his life.

The Jury returned a verdict of Felo de se. They submitted a written document censuring the Sheriff and his subordinates for exhibiting culpable neglect in their care of the prisoners.

EASTERN AFRICA.—The buffaloes abound all over this district, and are formidable animals to encounter in a herd. Wild animals, also, of almost every description, infest this part, making it dangerous in the extreme, and compelling the traveller and his guides to be ever on the qui vive lest they should stumble on the tiger in his lair, or the buffalo hidden in the fastness of the surrounding jungle. Venemous reptiles, and insects of various denominations, are to be found; and the serpent, "moving its slow length along," may be seen frequently in the line of the traveller's progress.—The boa-constrictor, the monster of the serpent species, is a native of these regions; and the cobra capella, the formidable snake of Africa, whose bite is fatal to human life, frequents the base of the mountains, and is the terror of the natives; while the puff-adder, another member of this venomous tribe, may be met with in the thickets and jungles. The smaller species of reptiles, also are numerous; the tananta'a, and other spiders, whose bite is so powerful as to occasion a temporary paralysation, or even death, have been found in the immediate vicinity of the native hut. Instances of fatal effects from insects are not wanting to prove their existence. Mr Thompson speaks of a case, in his valuable detail, and said, "I was told of a woman who had been recently bit by a very small spider in the toe, and had in consequence, fallen into convulsions, and died in a few hours." Serpents of even the length of forty feet have been spoken of by the natives, which had swallowed the antelope, and have attacked the wild animal in his range; but I never came near any of such a prodigious size. The natives are impressed with a belief, that in the dark recesses of the rock, or in the chasms and interstices of the mountains, reptiles of the most dangerous species are to be found, which appear when the spirit calls them forth, or from instinct, leave their abodes to inhale the pure air, and attack man for food. The iguana is common but quite harmless. Scorpions and centipedes are general but they do not excite the apprehension like the large species of reptiles.

Holloway's Ointment and Pills.—Blotches, pimples, dry eruptions, and all irritations of the skin, fade and disappear after a few applications of Holloway's Ointment. In these cases brisk friction is indispensable. Many of the ordinary eruptions are caused by suppressed perspiration, and as this penetrating unguent at once opens the pores and invigorates the absorbents it dissipates the inflammation by a double process. Ladies whose faces or arms are disfigured by cutaneous diseases, may speedily remove the blemish and restore to the skin its natural tint, flexibility, and softness, by the use of this safe, but powerful counterirritant. The Pills never fail in disorders of the stomach and liver.

IMPORTANT TESTIMONIAL.

31, Wine street, Bristol.

SIR,—It is with much pleasure I have to inform you of the benefit I received from your Lozenges. I was attacked with the typhus fever, during which time I had a violent cough, so that it kept me awake the greater part of the night. A friend persuaded me to try a box of your "COUGH LOZENGES" which I did and am happy to say that with only one box of your valuable compound I was quite free from cough.

You can make what use of this you please, for I think such valuable medicine ought not to go unnoticed.

I remain, Sir, your obedient Servant,

THE EVENINGS.

BY CHARLES MACKAY.

In the summer evenings
When the wind blew low,
And the skies were radiant
With the sunset glow,
Thou and I were happy,
Long, long, years ago.
Love, the young and hopeful
Hovered o'er us twain,
Filled us with sad pleasure
And delicious pain,
In the summer evenings
Wandering in the lane.

In the winter evenings
When the wild winds roar
Blustering at the chimney,
Piping at the door,
Thou and I are happy
As in the days of yore.
Love still hovers o'er us,
Robed in white attire,
Drawing heavenly music
From an earthly lyre,
In the winter evenings,
Sitting by the fire.

VARIETY.

MUCH TRUTH IN A SMALL COMPASS.

We are a free people, a great people, an enterprising people; but it must be admitted, also, that we are a DYSPEPTIC PEOPLE. Our stomachs are by no means as sound as our political constitution; and many of us, if addressed in the language of Macbeth:—

"Let good digestion wait on appetite,
And health on both"—

would anxiously inquire by what means the wish could be realized. That question, thanks to Thomas Holloway, can be triumphantly answered. The unequalled stomachic, known throughout the world as Holloway's Pills, is literally a specific for the complaint. Imperfect digestion results from a dilute condition of the gastric juice—the fluid which dissolves the food in the stomach, and fits it for application to the purposes of life in the form of blood. If the organ which secretes the solvent is in a state of morbid irritation, the fluid will be deficient in quality, and its appointed office in the internal economy of the system will be inefficiently performed. The stomach being disordered, the whole vital machinery to which it furnishes sustenance and strength will be weakened, and the animal spirits, sympathising with the bodily debility, will become greatly depressed. This is DYSPEPSIA; and its victims, when it has assumed the chronic form, are the most miserable of mankind. It is generally accompanied by loss of appetite, attenuation, oppression after eating, irregularity of the bowels, low nervous fever, great debility, palpitation of the heart, broken sleep, pain in the right side and between the shoulders, and profound melancholy. All these symptoms, and every other variety in the manifestations of this distressing malady, are rapidly removed by a course of Holloway's Pills. Putting the testimony of others out of the question, we have full warrant from personal observation for this broad and positive statement.

It is not to be marvelled at, then, that Dr. Holloway has acquired such universal fame. Very seldom do the crowned heads of Europe condescend to invite private citizens to their palaces, but there is scarcely a regal palace in Europe where the Doctor is not a welcome visitor, and whose sovereign has not honored him with some rich present as a testimonial of his esteem. Nor does his renown rest here. He is as well known in China and Hindostan, in Cairo and Sydney, as he is in London. Paris, St. Petersburg, Rome, Madrid, Berlin, Vienna, or New York; and in each of these cities he is honored, and in some instances revered as a benefactor. If he had appeared in a former age of the world, his success would have been attributed to magic. We have even heard that the ignorant peasantry of England and Germany, at the present day, endow him, in their imaginations, with supernatural gifts.

In these remarks upon a man who is distinguished from all physicians whatsoever by the speed, simplicity, and certainty of his cures, we wish to discharge a duty which we owed, or thought we owed, to the public. It is for them to act upon our suggestion as they think fit.—N. Y. "Sunday Mercury."

GENERAL HAVELOCK.—"Old Philos" is a name which, we are sure, must be now making the hearts of old Carthusians dance with pride and delight. The charter-house has boasted of many scholars who have sprung into eminent men—among others, Crashaw, the poet; Addison and Steele the essayists; John Wesley, the religious reformer; and Lord Ellenborough, the Chief Justice. To this list will surely be added "Old Philos." The pet name will be remembered by Carthusians whose memories can go back for 40 years or more. They will not have forgotten the gentle and thoughtful lad who used to stand looking on when others played, and whose general meditative manner procured for him the name of 'Philosopher,' subsequently diminished to 'Philos,' and occasionally applied as "Old Philos." That young and popular philosopher is the soldier at whose name the hearts of Englishmen beat with honest pride. "Old Philos" of the Charter-house is Havelock, the hero of Cawnpore.—London Athenæum.

SALTING PORK.—It is important to have the pork well cooled before salting, and it should not remain unsalted very long after cooling. It should never be allowed to freeze. It should always have a great supply of salt, and of the strongest quality, and brine should be made and poured into the barrel. For if nothing but water is put in with the salt, the pork may be injured before the salt is melted enough to make good brine. The meat should have a weight upon it to keep it under the brine; for if pieces of meat are permitted to rise above the brine, and remain there for any considerable time, they will be tainted and will not taste sweet, as well salted meat always will. A wooden cover is often used to keep the meat under the brine, but a stone cover is better. A hole may be drilled in a stone cover, and a handle inserted, at a very small cost. Agitation of the pork barrel daily will have the effect of preventing the accumulation of scum on the surface, or it may be skimmed off as soon as it rises.—Ex. paper.

In one of the engagements during the war in Egypt, a poor Frenchman, falling into the power of a Highland sergeant, screamed out the only English word he was master of—

'Quarter! quarter!'

'She,ll no ha'e time to quarter thee noo,' replied Donald, 'she'll just cut ye in twa!'

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS.

The blood furnishes the material of every bone, muscle, gland and fibre in the human frame. When pure, it secures health to every organ; it necessarily produces disease, HOLLOWAY'S PILLS operate directly upon the elements of the stream of life, neutralising the principle of disease, and thus radically curing the malady, whether located in the nerves, the stomach, the liver, the bowels, the muscles, the skin, the brain, or any other part of the system.

USED THROUGHOUT THE WORLD.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are equally efficacious in complaints common to the whole human race and in disorders peculiar to certain climates and localities.

ALARMING DISORDERS.

Dyspepsia, and derangement of the liver, the source of infinity and suffering, and the cause of innumerable deaths, yield to these curatives, in all cases, however aggravated, acting as a mild purgative, alternative and tonic; they relieve the bowels, purify the fluids, and invigorate the system and the constitution at the same time.

GENERAL WEAKNESS—NERVOUS COMPLAINTS.

When all stimulants fail, the renovating and bracing properties of these Pills give firmness to the shaking nerves and enfeebled muscles of the victim of general debility.

DELICATE FEMALES.

All irregularities and ailments incident to the delicate and sensitive organs of the sex are removed or prevented by a few doses of these mild, but infallible alteratives. No mother who regards her own or her children's health should fail to have them within her reach.

SCIENTIFIC ENDORSEMENTS.

The London "Lancet," the London "Medical Review," and the most eminent of the faculty in Great Britain, France and Germany, have eulogized the Pills and their inventor.

Holloway's Pills are the best remedy known in the world for the following diseases:—
