Poetry.

Wanted.

Wanted, a hand to hold my own,
As down life's vale I glide;
Wanted an arm to lean upon,
Forever by my side.

Wanted, a firm and steady foot,
With steps secure and free,
To take its straight and onward pace
Over life's path with me.

Wanted, a form erect and high;
A head above my own
So much that I might walk beneath
It's shadow o'er me thrown.

Wanted, an eye within whose depth
Mine own might look and see
Whatsprings th from a guileless hea.
O'erflowing with love for me.

Wanted, a lip whose kindest smile
Would speak for me alone;
A voice whose richest melody
Would breathe affection's tone.

Wanted, a true religious soul.
To pious purpose given,
With whom mine own might pass along
The road that leads to Heaven.

"Olive Varcoe."

CHAPTER IV.

In that loveliest of tiny bays, above which stood the Lovers' Seat, with its roof of honeysuckle and jasmine, and its surrounding bower of perfumed shrubs, a large and well-manned boat rested on its oars. Upon the white sands, glittering drastically in the moonlight, the spare figure of Mr. Heriot paced up and down impatiently.

'There goes twelve o'clock,' he said, as the chimes from the church across the park faintly reached him; 'and that confounded packet sails at two. They must row hard now to catch it. Upon my word, I believe these Trewavases mean to bang the girl, after all!'

But, as he spoke, Sir Hilton Trewavas came rapidly down the narrow and steep gorge leading from the park above, and ran eagerly to meet him.

'I guessed you would be waiting here,' he said.

'Where is the girl' enquired Mr. Heriot shortly.

'With Charles Vigo,' replied Sir Hilton. 'She has refused my aid. She goes with him I know not whither. He has got a crew of smugglers together, and if the police overtake them there will be a fight. I watched them go into a boat on that little lonely creek, which runs up between the wooded cliffs on the other side of the village; then I ran thither. The creek winds and twists for more than a mile before it reaches the bay. Ah, there is the boat now creeping out! It keeps in the dark fringe of shadow by the cliffs. Do you see it?'

Sir Hilton's own boat was so close in shore that nearly every word of this dialogue had been heard by the crew; and now one among them—a man in a large pilot coat and slouched hat—started up from the darkness in which he sat shrouded, and displayed to their astonished gazed the serenely smiling face of Mr. Eslick.

'I take the command of this boat,' he cried, in an authoritative voice. 'Give way, men! Follow the boat you see yonder!'

'Throw down your oars, every one of you!' exclaimed Sir Hilton. 'Obey that fellow's orders if you dare!'

'Mr. Heriot, I call upon you to assist me in the execution of my duty,' cried the excited Mr. Eslick. 'I have a warrant here to arrest Olive Varcoe on a charge of murder. Give way, men—give way!'

'You must let them go, Sir Hilton,' whispered Mr. Heriot; 'there is no help for it. We are in for a fight if we overtake the smugglers, that's certain.'

The agile old mummy sprang into the boat as he spoke, and Sir Hilton Trewavas followed him mechanically.

'I take the helm,' said Mr. Eslick, seizing the rudder. 'Row for your lives, men! Yonder boat has not seen us yet; their oars go lazily, and we shall overtake her.'

There is an excitement in a race which human nature cannot resist, and as the men bent to their oars, even the little dried lawyer, whose bones crackled like parchment as he moved, scanned them with a kindling eye, and with a spot of color rising in his sapless face.

As the boat passed out of the shadow of the cliffs into the full glare of the moonlight, Sir Hilton saw with intense vexation that the crew did not consist of his own men, but of strangers. In all things, then, Mr. Eslick had been before him in strategem, and his own rowers had doubtless been got rid of by some ruse, or by the terrors of the law; and had he brought Olive down here, he would only have led her into a well-concerted trap. It was easy to understand now why she was left almost unwatched, and unmolested at the village inn. Mr. Eslick read the young man's thoughts, and a most seraphic smile broke over his fat face.

'I was sorry to take a liberty with your crew and your boat, Sir Hilton,' said he, 'but in the execution of duty ceremony must stand aside. I was obliged to place men here on whom I could depend. You perceive I made sure the young lady would accept your help. I am sorry we are all disappointed. Ah! they see us last we are pursuing them. Give way, lads! They are rowing like demons.'

It was true that Charles Vigo's crew had not yet perceived that the other boat was following them. Unwilling, perhaps, to attract attention by unnecessary speed, they had plied their oars leisurely, and therefore allowed Mr. Eslick's men to shorten considerably the distance between them; but now, they suddenly awoke to suspicion, and, the steady, swift strokes of their oars jerked the large gig forward like a bird; but Sir Hilton's pleasure-boat was much lighter and smaller, and, to his bitter chagrin, he saw it gaining inch by inch on Olive's ark of refuge.

The moonlight poured down on the set, resolute faces of the crew, and on the beaming countenance of Mr. Eslick, whose smiles grew more and more seraphic as the distance shortened between the two boats; and soon, by the rays of the waning moon, and by the phosphoric light dripping from the swiftly plied oars, the faces of the pursuers and the pursued became plainly visible to each other.

Charles Vigo sat in the stern of the gig, guiding the rudder with a skilful hand; his face flushed, and his lips were set firmly together, and in his frank blue eyes there quivered a light that flashed across the moonlit sea upon Sir Hilton's shrinking figure.

'Is it you, Sir Hilton Trewavas?' he cried scornfully. 'Give way, lads! The sight of a traitor makes my blood too hot this summer night.'

A murmur of the oars from hands that seemed to hold a giant's strength, carried the boat forward like an arrow, out of earshot; and Sir Hilton, with a shiver over his strong frame, held back the words that had sprung to his lips. But again their own boat shot forward, her greater lightness and speed making up for the superior strength of the smugglers, and the distance between the two grew momentarily less and less. And now it was that Mr. Eslick caught sight of a figure, wrapped in a large cloak, crouching at Charles Vigo's feet—a figure so shrouded that nothing of it was visible, except a lady's hat and veil.

'Poor little thing!' said he, a smile of satisfaction and pity playing over his vapid features. 'I am glad to see her safe. We shall be down upon them in a minute now. Really, Sir Hilton, for the sake of humanity, one feels sorry for her; she is very young, you know.'

'Confound it, man, hold your tongue!' said Mr. Heriot; 'a policeman should always keep that impish member of the human head between his lips.'

Now Mr. Eslick did not like to called 'policeman;' as head superintendent of that district, he considered himself quite above such language as this; so he resented it in his usual way, by smiling with supernatural amiability, as he said, blandly, 'I believe I know my own business, Mr. Heriot, and I don't wish to be interrupted in my duty by uncalled-for remarks. But for the extra weight of yourself, and Sir Hilton Trewavas in this boat, I should have secured my prisoner before this. Now then, men, two strokes more, and we have them, by—'

An unmistakable oath dropped from the lips of Mr. Eslick, as the two boats got neck and neck with each other. There was no cowardice in the man; his yellow flabby face grew not one whit uglier or yellower as Charles Vigo's crew saluted their pursuers in language of too strong a description to be written.

'Keep off, you ugly varmints. What are you fouling our boat for?' cried one voice.

'Mr. Vigo, I charge you not to break the Queen's peace!' shouted Mr. Eslick, in an authoritative tone. 'Bid your men to stop rowing, and give up my prisoner, Olive Varcoe.'

'Come and take her, you sneaking, mealy-mouthed villian!' retorted a second voice.

'Silence, men!' said Charles Vigo. 'Am I to understand you are pursuing with intent to search, Mr. Eslick?'

'Yes, I have a warrant against her,' replied Mr. Eslick.

'Really,' said Charles Vigo, 'I thought Sir Hilton Trewavas was trying the skill of his boat's crew against mine. Up with your oars, men! This is no friendly race; it is something rarer—it is a Cornish baronet turned policeman.'

The boats grappled as he spoke, and his men, restored suddenly to wondrous good humour, received Mr. Eslick with a great affectation of politeness, and a broad grin of delight, as that gentleman stepped on board and made his way to the stern, smiling more sweetly than he had ever done before. More gentle was his voice, as he stooped down, and laid his hand on the little figure lying still at Charles Vigo's feet.

'Miss Varcoe,' said he, 'I regret to say it is my painful duty to make you my prisoner.'

Then the cloak shook, the hat and veil fell down, and with a growl and an unmistakable snap at the superintendent's fingers, the good ship Bolster stood confessed, his teeth dangerously visible.

A roar of laughter shook the boat from end to end—a roar that rang out into the sky, and began and ended, and began again. The laughter was contagious, for Mr. Eslick's own men joined in it, while the little fusty mummy from the Inns of Court shook and rattled all his bones in glee.

For the first time in his life Mr. Eslick tried to smile, and failed. The attempt was mechanical, for the man was ghastly pale with fury.

'What is the meaning of this?' he cried. 'Where is that woman?'

'Keep a civil tongue in your head, policeman,' returned Charles Vigo, quietly. 'There are no women here, you perceive.'

'And there's only one baby, and that's me,' said the same huge giant who had inclubbered Sir Anthony's friend. 'I'm the celebrated Cornish baby, six foot six in my stockings, and there isn't a sweeter-tempered infant between this and Lunnun church-town.'

Charles Vigo checked quickly the laughter that followed this speech.

'Mr. Eslick,' said he, 'having satisfied yourself that Miss Varcoe is not here, I presume you have no further business with me? Your had better leave my boat unless you wish to be carried out to sea.'

'I shall go on board your yacht, sir, in search of my prisoner,' replied Mr. Eslick.

'You are welcome,' said Charles Vigo. 'The yacht lies in Bosvigo Pool, six miles from this; your nearest way to it will be across the hills.'

'Yes,' said he, 'you are not aware, perhaps, that you are guilty of a felony in aiding the escape of a criminal; but such is the case, Mr. Vigo; and I trust the magistrates will prosecute you for the offence.'

'I said no criminal,' replied Charles Vigo; 'but I am proud to be a friend of Miss Varcoe's. I am proud to defend a most innocent and cruelly-aspersed lady.'

'I am sorry for your blindness, Mr. Vigo,' said Mr. Eslick, his smile returning again to him.

'I am sorry for yours, Mr. Eslick,' said Charles. 'Take care that I do not prove a better policeman than you. I have sworn to bring the murderer of Eleanor Maristowe to justice, and I will do it. No matter where the coward hides, my hand shall drag him forth and give him up to justice.'

'Upon my word,' said Mr. Heriot to himself, 'that country lad has a glimmer of intelligence in him.'

'Sir Hilton Trewavas,' continued Charles Vigo, turning to where the young baronet sat, silent and moody, 'henceforth I shall be ashamed to confess that you and I are neighbours. You have played a really ignoble part to-night; and if I do not tell you all I think of it, I am silent, not for your sake, but for that of Lady Trewavas.'

'You mistake altogether the part I have played to-night, Mr. Vigo,' returned Sir Hilton; 'but your opinion is of little consequence to me.'

'You two hot-headed young fellows will be quarrelling in a minute,' observed Mr. Heriot, grimly. 'Widen the distance between us, my men; this is not precisely the place for a free fight.'

'But don't leave Sir Hilton's friend, the policeman, in my boat, if you please,' said Charles Vigo.

'Don't co ne trouble yourselves to row any nearer,' remarked the Cornish giant, with the blandest politeness; 'I'll hand the wisht little hoddymandoddy over to 'ee. Lor' sure, he esn't heavier than a pedpnpky.'

This last word is Cornish for a tomtit, and certainly Mr. Eslick felt himself quite as small as that diminutive bird, as the giant took him up in one hand, and dropped him into the other boat with no very soft fall.

'I hope you aren't hurt, my dear,' observed the Cornishman; 'I am cruel 'feard the thwart was hard. Rub 'un down a bit, mates (friends), with th' oars; that'all bring 'un too. Well, good night to 'ee, comrades, and a pleasant pull home!'

Mr. Heriot took off his hat as Charles Vigo's boat rowed away, and he kept it off till the twaart was a frank face grew dim and misty in the night air; then he turned his smoke-dried and withered eyes upon a face of quite a different aspect.

'I hope you are satisfied with your night's work, Mr. Eslick,' he said, politely.

That discomfited individual was ill able to recover his smiles and his self-possession; nevertheless he made a commendable effort to do so.

'We are all liable to mistakes, Mr. Heriot,' said he. 'My mistake was that I watched the wrong gentleman. I made certain Sir Hilton was the favorite. I am sure, sir, I beg your pardon that I should have thought, even for a minute, that you would befriend that girl. It's really quite awful to see young Mr. Vigo led away, and blinded as he is. I see how it is; they landed her in the creek, and then pulled out here for a blind. She's hid away somewhere close home, and no doubt my man at the inn will know where.'

Sir Hilton Trewavas was too proud to make any reply. He was galled by every incident of the night; was fiercely angry with himself for having followed Mr. Heriot into the boat, and he was enraged with Charles Vigo for misinterpreting his presence; moreover, he was bitterly ashamed of his own weakness with regard to Olive. It was horrible to him to hear his name coupled with the runaway criminal, whom policemen were hunting up and down the country. Her crime at first had seemed to him wildly tragic, a fate brought on by her love for him; but the scene through which he had just passed vulgarised it, rendered it a common every-day affair, a mere brutal murder, committed by fanatic peasants. After all, there was no grand passion, no absorbing maddening love to redeem it. For how could the woman that so coarsely eloped with Charles Vigo ever have loved him, Sir Hilton Trewavas!

In Bosvigo Pool the little yacht 'Pixy' lay at anchor; but when Mr. Eslick boarded her in hot haste, there were not only no signs of a lady's presence to be found, but apparently there was no preparation made for a cruise, and no intention on the part of her owner to remove her from her moorings.

Old Mr. Vigo knew nothing of his son. The young man had not returned home since the morning he had departed with Mr. Dancrel on that melancholy search. It now became evident that, simple as he looked, he had known how to baffle the astute Mr. Eslick and the malignant Sir Anthony Roskelly. In vain both put forth all their powers, hunting far and near for Olive Varcoe. After a hue and cry of many weeks, they were fain to confess that their search was hopeless.

She had escaped! and after her vanished figure flew the arrows of scorn, ridiculous and bitter, received Mr. Eslick with a great affectation of politeness, and a broad grin of delight, as that gentleman stepped on board and made his way to the stern, smiling more sweetly than he had ever done before. More gentle was his voice, as he stooped down, and laid his hand on the little figure lying still at Charles Vigo's feet.

'Miss Varcoe,' said he, 'I regret to say it is my painful duty to make you my prisoner.'

Then the cloak shook, the hat and veil fell down, and with a growl and an unmistakable snap at the superintendent's fingers, the good ship Bolster stood confessed, his teeth dangerously visible.

A roar of laughter shook the boat from end to end—a roar that rang out into the sky, and began and ended, and began again. The laughter was contagious, for Mr. Eslick's own men joined in it, while the little fusty mummy from the Inns of Court shook and rattled all his bones in glee.

For the first time in his life Mr. Eslick tried to smile, and failed. The attempt was mechanical, for the man was ghastly pale with fury.

'What is the meaning of this?' he cried. 'Where is that woman?'

'Keep a civil tongue in your head, policeman,' returned Charles Vigo, quietly. 'There are no women here, you perceive.'

'And there's only one baby, and that's me,' said the same huge giant who had inclubbered Sir Anthony's friend. 'I'm the celebrated Cornish baby, six foot six in my stockings, and there isn't a sweeter-tempered infant between this and Lunnun church-town.'

Charles Vigo checked quickly the laughter that followed this speech.

'Mr. Eslick,' said he, 'having satisfied yourself that Miss Varcoe is not here, I presume you have no further business with me? Your had better leave my boat unless you wish to be carried out to sea.'

'I shall go on board your yacht, sir, in search of my prisoner,' replied Mr. Eslick.

'You are welcome,' said Charles Vigo. 'The yacht lies in Bosvigo Pool, six miles from this; your nearest way to it will be across the hills.'

'Yes,' said he, 'you are not aware, perhaps, that you are guilty of a felony in aiding the escape of a criminal; but such is the case, Mr. Vigo; and I trust the magistrates will prosecute you for the offence.'

'I said no criminal,' replied Charles Vigo; 'but I am proud to be a friend of Miss Varcoe's. I am proud to defend a most innocent and cruelly-aspersed lady.'

'I am sorry for your blindness, Mr. Vigo,' said Mr. Eslick, his smile returning again to him.

'I am sorry for yours, Mr. Eslick,' said Charles. 'Take care that I do not prove a better policeman than you. I have sworn to bring the murderer of Eleanor Maristowe to justice, and I will do it. No matter where the coward hides, my hand shall drag him forth and give him up to justice.'

'Upon my word,' said Mr. Heriot to himself, 'that country lad has a glimmer of intelligence in him.'

'Sir Hilton Trewavas,' continued Charles Vigo, turning to where the young baronet sat, silent and moody, 'henceforth I shall be ashamed to confess that you and I are neighbours. You have played a really ignoble part to-night; and if I do not tell you all I think of it, I am silent, not for your sake, but for that of Lady Trewavas.'

'You mistake altogether the part I have played to-night, Mr. Vigo,' returned Sir Hilton; 'but your opinion is of little consequence to me.'

'You two hot-headed young fellows will be quarrelling in a minute,' observed Mr. Heriot, grimly. 'Widen the distance between us, my men; this is not precisely the place for a free fight.'

'But don't leave Sir Hilton's friend, the policeman, in my boat, if you please,' said Charles Vigo.

'Don't ee trouble yourselves to row any nearer,' remarked the Cornish giant, with the blandest politeness; 'I'll hand the wisht little hoddymandoddy over to 'ee. Lor' sure, he esn't heavier than a pedpnpky.'

This last word is Cornish for a tomtit, and certainly Mr. Eslick felt himself quite as small as that diminutive bird, as the giant took him up in one hand, and dropped him into the other boat with no very soft fall.

'I hope you aren't hurt, my dear,' observed the Cornishman; 'I am cruel 'feard the thwart was hard. Rub 'un down a bit, mates (friends), with th' oars; that'all bring 'un too. Well, good night to 'ee, comrades, and a pleasant pull home!'

Mr. Heriot took off his hat as Charles Vigo's boat rowed away, and he kept it off till the twaart was a frank face grew dim and misty in the night air; then he turned his smoke-dried and withered eyes upon a face of quite a different aspect.

'I hope you are satisfied with your night's work, Mr. Eslick,' he said, politely.

That discomfited individual was ill able to recover his smiles and his self-possession; nevertheless he made a commendable effort to do so.

'We are all liable to mistakes, Mr. Heriot,' said he. 'My mistake was that I watched the wrong gentleman. I made certain Sir Hilton was the favorite. I am sure, sir, I beg your pardon that I should have thought, even for a minute, that you would befriend that girl. It's really quite awful to see young Mr. Vigo led away, and blinded as he is. I see how it is; they landed her in the creek, and then pulled out here for a blind. She's hid away somewhere close home, and no doubt my man at the inn will know where.'

Sir Hilton Trewavas was too proud to make any reply. He was galled by every incident of the night; was fiercely angry with himself for having followed Mr. Heriot into the boat, and he was enraged with Charles Vigo for misinterpreting his presence; moreover, he was bitterly ashamed of his own weakness with regard to Olive. It was horrible to him to hear his name coupled with the runaway criminal, whom policemen were hunting up and down the country. And I do order that the respective sums mentioned in the said By-Law as the equalized assessment of the several Township Municipalities in the said County and the sums above mentioned amounting to the said sum of $13,190,775 be the equalization of the whole assessment of the said County for the said year."

Cartier the Scape Goat.

Dead men tell no tales, and on this faith Sir George Cartier is it appears to be made the scape goat to bear away the sins of the Cabinet. A short time ago Sir John McDonald insisted on giving his late colleague a public funeral and a monument at the public expense, now, when his iniquities are brought to the light of day, he with equal readiness seeks to avert his own infamy by casting it on the dead. That this course will be taken is indicated by the defence of the ministry published in their organs in which they state that the letter of August last was a private affair of Cartier's, and that the bargain with Allan was made without the knowledge of the other members of the Cabinet. That Sir John knew of the bargain is shown by his telegraphing for and drawing that $10,000.

The "Mail" on Bribery.

We are sorry to observe that the Mail, which was to be conducted on "high, moral principles," comes out boldly and unblushingly in defence of bribery at elections and that on the most gigantic scale. Of course the Mail being partly owned by members of the government cannot be an independent journal and will no doubt defend its owners no matter what wrong they may do. Bribery at elections is made a criminal act with the approval of the same Sir John A. Macdonald who telegraphs for $10,000 more with which to bribe constituencies. It is time for the country to be aroused when the PREMIER defies all law and resorts to wholesale bribery. The Mail has a difficult task before it when it undertakes to defend corruption.

Two Wrongs won't make a Right.

The Government instead of trying to redeem their character by disproving, as they claim they can do, the charges brought against them in connection with the Pacific Railway, are engaged through their accredited organs in throwing dirt at Mr. McMullen as though by blackening his character they would purify their own. The people of Canada do not care what McMullen's antecedents may be. It is sufficient that they know him to be the trusted friend and associate of Sir Hugh Allan, on whom the latter relied to assist him in procuring money to forward his designs. The two friends quarrel and Mr. McMullen reveals the plot, expesing to the gaze of the public the corruption of their rulers in all its hideousness. What the people want is a full and searching investigation, and all the dirt that ministerial hacks may throw at McMullen will not satisfy them that the skirts of the government are clean. The policy which is being pursued on behalf of the accused is simply the outpouring of rage by a gang of robbers against one of their number who has turned Queen's evidence and exposed their nefarious designs. All the squirming of the accused will not avail them in the face of the documents asking for and acknowledging the receipt of corruption money, the genuineness of which has never been denied.

The success of the Carlists in Spain is increasing. The recent capture of Carthagena enabled them to capture the best portion of the Republican navy, which was in the harbour, and which, it is believed, was quite willing to be captured, those in command being in sympathy with the insurrectionists. They claim to have 30,000 well armed men and plenty of ammunition.

In the meantime, the boys will be taken care of by the city authorities.

Assembly.—The beauty and fashion of Goderich, together with our American summer visitors, mustered in full force at the British Exchange Hotel on Friday evening last, to an Assembly given by the gentlemen of the town. We do not propose to be sufficiently well posted in technical terms to describe the ladies' dresses in detail, but we do know that they all looked charming and the large dining room presented a splendid appearance during the progress of the entertainment. Every one appeared to enjoy themselves, and it was pronounced on all hands to be the most successful Assembly ever held in Goderich.

Our Town.—We find the following respecting our town and one of its hotels in the Stratford Herald,—"The prettiest lake towns in Canada is Goderich, and it has become a very popular summer resort. From all parts of Canada and the United States pilgrimages are made to that town, where the lake breeze can be enjoyed in all its purity. The "Maitland House," situated on the high bluff overlooking the lake, affords all conveniences for excursionists and tourists to enjoy themselves. The grounds attached are beautifully laid out, and fitted up with seats, swings, croquet, and other requisites. The landlord, Mr. J. J. Wright, is an attentive host, and spares no pains in order to make his guests feel at home. Remember 'The Maitland' and Joe Wright when you visit Goderich."

Sinking of the Herald.—The steam barge Herald, owned and commanded by R. Hawley, jr., of this town, while proceeding to Detroit with a load of tan bark was run into and sunk by the steam barge Dunkirk, a short distance above Sarnia, early on Thursday morning last. The crew, with the exception of the mate, David Thorburn, escaped. The unfortunate mate must have been knocked overboard by the collision as he was not seen after it occurred. After striking, the Herald was headed for the American shore and sunk, her bows being level with the water while her stern was about three feet under the surface. She lost about half her load. The damage she has sustained is not very serious and she has been raised and taken to Detroit for repairs. The total loss amounts to about $1800, half of which will fall on the insurance companies.

Fatal Accident.—We regret to have to record a fatal mowing machine accident which occurred on Wednesday last, by which Christopher Shannon, who resides on the Bayfield Road about three miles from Goderich, lost his life. The deceased was engaged in mowing, and stopped his horses to allow them to take a rest, he at the same time taking a scythe to mow along the fence to make a track for the machine. While so engaged the horses started and he ran to catch them. He appears to have stumbled, when he was caught by the machine, his right foot and leg and left thigh being so badly cut, the main artery in the latter having been severed, that he bled to death in two or three minutes. His wife and one or two other parties who were not far off ran to his assistance, but he only gave a gasp or two after they reached the spot. Mr. Shannon was an old resident in this section and was universally respected. He leaves a family of five daughters, two of whom are married and live in town.

Excursion of Grand Trunk Employees.—The annual excursion of the Grand Trunk employees from Stratford, Brantford and intermediate stations took place on Saturday last. An excursion train of 15 cars, crowded to their utmost capacity, arrived here at half past nine o'clock, A. M., and the party immediately proceeded to Galt's point, the use of which had been obtained for the occasion. The day was spent in dancing and amusements of various kinds, a number of prizes being given for races and other games. Refreshments were furnished on the grounds for those who had not provided for themselves. A number of the excursionists took small boats and went fishing in the harbour and lake. In the afternoon the steamers East and City of London gave excursions on the lake and a number availed themselves of the opportunity to enjoy a delightful sail. At 6 o'clock the train left on its return journey, the band from Stratford playing lively airs as it moved off. The day was all that could be desired for such an excursion, the only drawback being the dusty state of the streets.

The Aldine for August is to hand. A magnificent full page marine view opens the number, from the pencil of M. F. H. de Haas, N. A., one of our great painters of water scenes. It is a truthful sketch of what may be seen almost any day on Long Island Sound. Mr. F. T. Vance, who has made the region a study, contributes a series of original pictures of the grand Adirondack mountains and lakes, which are very timely, as that region is now full of pleasure seekers. There is a pagoe picture of "Onto Colden," remarkable for its lights and shadows, depth and feeling; one of "Avalanche Lake;" another of "Calamity Pond Brook;" and a charming one of "Plume Falls of the Opalescence;"—four as fine views from the proposed great National Park, as ever appeared in an Art journal. A tender and eloquent full-page picture illustrates a poem called "A Good Dog." The remaining illustrations, all fine works of art, are "Group of Deer," by Specht; "The Explanation," after Herpfer; "Vot Dosh You Peddles?" a humorous sketch by W. M. Cary; "Shoo Fly;" and "Picking Flowers." The literary contents are as unusual, good. Subscription price $5, including Chromos "Village Belle" and "Crossing the Moor." James Sutton & Co., publishers, 58 Maiden Lane.—,New York.

Serious Accident to Sheriff Macdonald.—We regret to have to report a serious accident which happened to Sheriff Macdonald on Wednesday last, from the effects of which he cannot recover. He was at the cemetery on the day in question with some members of his family, and alighted from his carriage to examine a lot, directing those in the carriage to drive round to the gate where he would meet them. He did not make his appearance as promised, and after waiting some time they became alarmed and went in search of him. He was found fleeing besides a fence, quite sensible but wholly unable to help himself. It appears that in getting over the fence a board broke and he fell on his head, injuring his spine between the shoulders in such a manner as to completely paralyze his body below the point of injury. Assistance was summoned and he was conveyed home. His medical attendant at first did not think he could survive many days, but his wonderfully strong constitution has kept him up so far, and there is a prospect that he may hold out for some time. Such an injury generally carries off its victim about the fifth day, but the iron constitution which the Sheriff possesses seems to set disease at defiance, though it must ultimately yield. Mr. Macdonald is we understand, in his 79th year, yet few men of a like age possess his activity and vigour. His many friends throughout the county will we are sure join us in regret at the untoward accident which has befallen him.

Grey

An Unusual Occurrence.—A short time ago, a mare belonging to Mr. John Jones, 10th Concession, Grey, gave birth to twin colts. Both colts died, one living four days and the other five.—Examiner.

Stephen

Changed her Mind.—The Parkhill Gazette is responsible for the following,—"A young couple in the township of Stephen concluded to get married, and went to get the knot tied. When the question was put to the fair one—would she "Love, honor, cherish, and obey," she politely said she "could do better," and without further ceremony she walked out of the room, leaving the minister and bridegroom in bewilderment.

McKillop.

Child Scalded to Death.—On the 21st inst., a sad accident happened on the 14th con. of this township by which a child of nearly two years of age lost its life. The mother of the child, Mrs. Jabez Jermyn had placed a pot full of boiling water on the floor and the little girl in question staggered back and sat down in the water. Dr. Campbell of Seaforth was sent for and everything that medical skill could do was done, but the Dr. from the first gave it as his opinion that the child could not live and the result showed his opinion to be correct, for it died the next morning at 2 o'clock in general convulsions.

Hullett.

Fire.—On Thursday evening last, during the thunder storm, the house of Mr. Wilson, of the 11th concession of Hullett, was struck by lightning, and it and contents were entirely consumed with the exception of a small drawer, containing valuable papers, which Mr. Wilson succeeded in drawing from a set ere the house was wrapt in flames. The escape of the family from an horrible death was little less than miraculous, as the whole of its members were asleep, till one of the children, who had gone upstairs, was awakened by the flames and smoke, who aroused all the rest by its cries of terror, when all escaped without injury. In this instance, the lightning rod which the house was provided with, failed to secure that protection which is, or has been expected from them. Faith in their virtue will be terribly shaken by this untoward event.—New Era.

Lucknow.

Ordination.—On Wednesday 23rd July, the Presbytery of London met at Lucknow for the purpose of ordaining Rev. J. B. Taylor to the pastoral charge of the congregation in connection with the Church of Scotland there. The Rev. T. Wilkins of Stratford delivered an excellent and impressive sermon from II Corinthians chap, VI verse. 1 Rev. J. Sieveright of Goderich addressed the minister, and Rev. H. Gibson of Bayfield, the people. The Town Hall was well filled by a respectable and attentive audience who manifested a marked interest in the solemn services of the day. The settlement is satisfactory to all concerned and gives promise that in this locality Mr. Taylor will find a comfortable place of labour for himself and abundant means of public usefulness. The congregation have a Stone Church in course of erection which they hope to occupy this fall.

Brussels.

Suicide.—We are this week obliged to record a sad case of suicide by a young man named Thomas Lamb, causes by intemperance. The deceased was about 25 years of age, and lived with his parents at the toll-house, two miles south of Brussels. They have only lately come to this neighborhood. The deceased had, from all appearance, greatly abused himself by excessive drinking. On Saturday evening, having found his way home the worse of liquor and greatly depressed in spirits, he deliberately took a dose of laudanum, which, before any assistance could be got for him, caused his death. Coroner Holmes, of Brussels, held an inquest on Monday last, when the jury returned the following verdict: That the deceased, Thomas Lamb, came to his death from congestion of the brain and lungs, caused by the excessive use of liquor, and by laudanum administered by his own hand.—Expositor.

Telegraph Extension.—It is reported that the Dominion Telegraph Company intend establishing an office in Brussels.

Seaforth.

Hay.—Hay is coming into Seaforth in abundance and is now selling at $10 per ton.

Sickness.—Diarrhœa and dysentery are very prevalent in town at present and some deaths have occurred amongst the children.

The Crops.—The crops in this neighbourhood look well, notwithstanding all the grumbling we have heard from the farmers. Peas, barley and oats look particularly well. Potatoes will also be an average crop the bug having injured them but little.

Thos. Knox.—This veteran hotelkeeper has rented Goderich's Hotel, lately occupied by Mr. Murray.

The Mansion House.—Rumour has it that Mr. Carmichael the owner of this house will retire and rent his Hotel to Mr. Murray, late of the Downey House.

Accident with a Circular Saw.—On the 26th inst., a boy of Mr. Martin Charlesworth began playing round the circular saw in Mr. John Martin's "Novelty Shop" and got the use of his fingers off all but a small piece of skin, and two other fingers were badly lacerated. Dr. Campbell was called in and dressed the hand, sticking the finger on and at last accounts it was doing well.

Ashfield.

Council Meeting.—The Council met this day, 9th June, for the final revision of the Assessment Roll as well as for other business.

The minutes of last meeting having been read and approved.

It was moved by Patrick Clare, seconded by Andrew Dreany that the assessment roll having been carefully examined and revised be now accepted by this Council. Carried.

Moved by A. C. Hawkins, seconded by Maurice Dalton that the account of the Star office amounting to sixteen dollars and seventy cents for printing be paid. Carried.

Moved by P. Clare, seconded by M. Dalton that the sum of $100 be expended in each of the various wards in the township this year, and that as $50 each has been expended in wards No. 1 and 5 that said sums be deducted from the apportionments to these wards and that in no case shall the expenditure exceed the apportionment.

Moved in amendment by A. C. Hawkins, seconded by Andrew Dreany that this Council grant the sum of one hundred dollars to be expended in each of the five wards, exclusive of the amount already expended this year in the Dungannon and North West Wards.

The original motion was carried.

Moved by A. C. Hawkins, seconded by Andrew Dreany that the Clerk frame a By-law appropriating part of the surplus fund accruing to this Municipality in purchasing the Railway debentures which the Wellington, Grey and Bruce Railway Company hold against this Municipality and that the Treasurer communicate with the Secretary of the Company as soon as possible about the matter. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Dalton, seconded by A. C. Hawkins that this Council adjourn to meet again on the 1st Monday in August next. Carried.

JOHN COOKE,
Tp Clerk.

Cricket.

To the Editor of the Huron Signal:

Cricket in our Town seems to be at a low ebb at present, not even an evening practice has been held since the 1st inst. It does seem a shame that our club, which has really good material in it, should for the want of a little practise, have sunk so low that any of the surrounding villages can not only challenge but make sure of beating it. I would suggest to the President and officers of the club generally that if they cannot hit upon some expedient for arousing the dormant energies of its members, they had better call a meeting, dissolve the club, sell the "plant" and pay over the proceeds proportionately to the members of the Club.

Yours, &c.,
A Member of the Goderich Cricket Club.

Canada at the Vienna Exhibition.

The London Advertiser of Saturday says,—Our Vienna letter, published today, will not be read without calling up a blush of shame to the face of every reader at the insignificant and insulting spectacle Canada is made to occupy at the World's Fair. Beneath the word "Canada," on a box about a foot square, stand two bottles of tannin oil, sole samples of the resources of a country which surpassed for natural resources: What with tannin oil displays and Pacific Railway scandals, Canada certainly stands an object of derision and scorn before all nations—Christian and Pagan. We look with great interest for the report of Mr. Witton, M. P., and his associate commissioner, and editor of the Ontario Workman, on those two bottles of tannin oil, even if the cost of getting it up should force Sir John to call for "another ten thousand."

The St. Marys Argus suggests that the ladies of that town organize a Whipping Club, to meet for practice every Sunday evening on the loungers who hang around the street corners staring at church-goers.

Pastor and People. A learned but rather longwinded minister, being asked if he did not feel tired after preaching such long sermons, answered:—"No, no, I'm no tired," to which he added, however, with much pawkie naivete, "but, loh me! hoo tired the folks are while!"

John Carpenter, of Michigan, has stopped smoking. He knocked the ashes out of his pipe on a keg of blasting powder.

Searing of the Public Conscience.

Montreal, like New York, is a commercial city which is not often politically roused, but when it is, it makes its feelings distinctly known. Those who have carefully watched the present feeling of indignation here, with that which, in 1855, sent three members to Parliament, the touchstone of whose patriotism was an utter repudiation of Mr. Hincks' commission was to turn out that gentleman and his followers have come to the sad conclusion that a much smaller amount of wrong-doing woke the ire of the community then than is necessary to anger us now. Then the division of some £10,000 of profits on municipal funds between the Mayor of Toronto and the Premier of the country, which funds obtained their value through special legislation, was followed by legal action in Toronto by which Mr. Bowes was made to disgorge his share, and by a political rising in Montreal by which Mr. Hincks was forced to lay down his power and leave for distant parts. Mr. Hincks' publicly announced maxim at that time was that there was nothing wrong in a Premier profiting by changes brought about by legislation, and on this saying he was condemned. It seems however, that time works unhappy changes. Canada has since Mr. Hincks' departure been governed so much on the principles which he fathered, although his successors have not been governed by his master passion, that on his return, the country practically says to him, "You are as honourable as we," and commits to his care the public purse. Nothing is more sad than to see the bold way in which the defenders of the Government now come forward, who, from all appearance, greatly abused himself by excessive drinking. On Saturday evening, having found his way home the worse of liquor and greatly depressed in spirits, he deliberately took a dose of laudanum, which, before any assistance could be got for him, caused his death. Coroner Holmes, of Brussels, held an inquest on Monday last, when the jury returned the following verdict: That the deceased, Thomas Lamb, came to his death from congestion of the brain and lungs, caused by the excessive use of liquor, and by laudanum administered by his own hand.—Expositor.

Conflagration in Baltimore.

Great Destruction of Property

The Loss very Heavy.

Baltimore, Md. July 24—A fire broke out at 10 o'clock this morning, in Joseph Thomas & Co's planing mill, between Liberty and Park streets, extending to the three adjoining blocks, and an immense conflagration is now raging. A special dated 1.30 p m., says, the fire here is still raging. Park street, from the corner of Saratoga, is in flames, every house being on fire, and the fire tends on Clay street, from Park to Liberty-street, and the rear of Liberty from Lexington, to the corner of Liberty and Saratoga streets. St. Alphonsus' school is gone.

On Saratoga, west from Park street, every house is in flames.

On Mulberry street, the fine row of houses on the north-east corner of Park street is on fire. The Maryland Academy of Art and the University of Maryland, adjoining, are burning. The cathedral caught fire, but it is thought it will be saved.

The wind is steady from the south-east, and has carried embers around, causing the destruction of many houses distant from the origin of the disaster.

Baltimore, July 24, (6 p.m.)—The fire is still raging. Eight blocks of fine buildings have been burned, and the water supply is failing.

The intense heat prevents the firemen working to advantage.

Many roofs some distance from the fire are catching from flying cinders.

Eleven squares have been burned, the damage by the fire to day is possible under the circumstances. Eight blocks of fine buildings have been destroyed, and two squares burned out. This is a narrow street, filled with carpenters' shops and box factories.

The steeple of the Central Presbyterian Church is on fire. At 1:30 the fiercest portion of the fire was on Saratoga street, between Park and Liberty streets. On the south side every house in the square is in flames. The fire is spreading so rapidly from the back buildings which reach to the destroyed houses on Clay street.

Among the buildings destroyed were the First English Lutheran Church on Lexington street, and the Central Presbyterian Church, on the corner of Liberty and Saratoga streets, and many private residences on Mulberry and Park streets.

Baltimore, July 24., (6 p.m.)—The fire raged till 3 p m., but by four o'clock was completely under control.

Look on this Picture and then on that.

"I stand here to justify the course the government has taken in this matter; and by God's help I believe I can do so satisfactorily. I know that the charge is a foul calumny. The government deny it in toto. On behalf of every member of it, I can tell the hon. gentleman (Mr. Huntington) that he has been most wofully deceived and that neither by thought, word, deed or action have the government done any thing of which they can be ashamed."

To Europe in a Balloon.

On the 20th of August Professor Wise will leave New York en route for Europe in a balloon. The particulars of the Professor's outfit are as follows:—There will be two balloons, the larger being 318 feet in circumference and 110 feet in height. This required 4,316 yards of cloth, 14,080 yards or eight miles of sewing, and 10,137,000 stitches. The network will be attached to the balloon by 53 Manilla ropes, each 90 feet long. Attached to the net will be a life-boat with water-tight compartments, to be use by the navigator should he reach the sea. Provisions for thirty days will be carried, together with a full assortment of scientific instruments and 5000 pounds of ballast. A lime-stove will give forth heat, and a number of carrier pigeons will be taken along and despatched at intervals along the route with intelligence of the progress of the expedition. The capacity of the larger balloon will be 600,000 cubic feet of gas; of the smaller 400,000 feet, with a lifting capacity of 11,000 pounds. The balloon will carry a limited number of letters and small packages, and those who wish to communicate with their friends in Europe are requested to make early application. The Professor places his reliance on the outward motion of the atmosphere, and on the aerial river which he expects to find over the Gulf Stream.

DEACON ADAMS ARGUMENTS HIS SON.

What's these things in yer pocket, Jake, a bulgin' out so? Hey?
What! Apples! After all my good advice, you've been stealin' apples ag'in on Sabbath day?

A stealin'! Haint I told ye 'tis a sin to steal a pin?
And stealin' apples on Sunday is a blamed
sight meaner thing,
But you will keep stealin' uv 'em, time and time, and time ag'in

Sweet apples, too, I'll venture! The slickest kind of trash!
Such condemned foolish wickedness beats patience all to smash;
I wouldn't had it happen—not for fifty cents in cash.

To steal sweet apples Sunday ain't no
way to behave;
If you dodge the cholera morbus, you'll live to be a knave,
And bring my wig and nat'ral hair in sorrow to the grave.

I've tried to fetch you up to go in a religious way,
And keep the Sabbath holy. You've often heard me say.
I'd rather steal through all the week than on the Sabbath day.

You'd make a purty deacon, would't you?
Why, look at me!
Did I get to be a deacon by petty larceny?
No. Stealin' is too risky for genuine piety.

This is a wicked world, and pious men,
in self defence,
Must circumvent the wicked and cheat
with diligence,
And make bad men the victims of misplaced confidence.

We needn't allus tell the truth to spile
a trade that's brewin',
For if you don't take strangers in in trade, why they'll take you in;
But stealin' apples Sunday is the road to moral ruin.

I don't see, Jacob, where you got your streak of thievery,
It ain't the Adams style. The Adams was just like me;
And on your mother's side, the Brown's were famed fur honesty.

I hope, I re'ly hope, that you won't steal,
my lad,
For if you should get ketched at it,
'twould make me very sad—
Hem! Jacob—hain't you got a good sweet apple for your dad?

ODDS AND ENDS.

A gay spiritualist may be called the happy medium.

Juvenile Negroes.—Black kids, to be sure.

Why is a sword like beer?—Because it is no use till it is drawn.

Why didn't a dog want a place in the ark?—Because he had a barque of his own.

Why is the root of the tongue like a rejected man?—Because it is down in the mouth.

We are told that nothing is made in vain—But how about a pretty girl? Isn't she maiden vain?

Daniel O'Connell, the Irish orator, was applied to by a friend for his autograph; to which he replied: "Sir I never send autographs.—Yours, Daniel O'Connell."

The mayor of a Portuguese city once enumerated among the marks by which the body of a drowned man might be identified, "a marked impediment in his speech."

"Mary, go into the sitting-room, please, and tell me how the thermometer stands." Mary (after investigating): "It stands on the mantelpiece, jest agin the wall, mem!"

Och!" says a love sick Hibernian, "what a recreation it is to be dying in love; it sets the heart aching so delicately, there's no taking a wink of sleep for the pleasure of the pain!"

On his return from a tour which he had been making with his master in Switzerland, an Irish servant, being asked what he had seen, replied, "Oh, shure, one can't see anything. There's nothing but mountains everywhere!"

Booth, the well-known actor, had a broken nose. A lady once remarked to him, "I like your acting, Mr. Booth; but, to be frank with you, I can't get over your nose." "No wonder, madam," replied he, "the bridge is gone."

A paper tells us of a cat which is bringing up two rats along with her own kittens, and thinks she has risen above the prejudices of race. That cat is no fool, and when those rats get plump and fat, she and those kittens will make a most sumptuous dinner of them.

A Comparative Improvement.—Principle Lee of Edinburgh University was frequently complaining of his health, and seemed to take a pleasure in expatiating on his ailments. He was met one morning by Professor Robertson, who expressed a hope that he was well. "Far from well," said the principal, "I've had no sleep for a fortnight." "Then, principal," replied the professor, "you're getting better; when we last met you had not slept for six weeks!"

Body and Spirit.—Archie Campbell, a city officer of Edinburgh, of noted celebrity, had the misfortune to lose his mother; and, in order to gratify her last wish, he had her body conveyed to the Highlands, in a hearse, for interment. He returned, it was rumored, with the hearse full of smuggled whisky. A friend one day, began to tease him on the subject. "Wow, man," replied Archie, "there's nae harm done, I only carried awa' the body, and brought back the speerit!"

An Irishman had a dream which taught him the danger of delay. 'I dreamed,' said he, I was wid the Pope, who was as great a jintleman as any one in the district, an' he axed me wad I drink. Thinks I wad a duck swim; and seein' the Innishowen and lemons and sugar on the sideboard, I told him I didn't care if I tuk a wee dhrap of punch, Cowld or hot?' axed the Pope 'Hot your Holiness,' I replied; and be that he stepped down to the kitchen for the bilin' water, but before he got back I woke straight up. And now it's distressing me I didn't take it cawld.'

A Judicial Climax.—Lord Eskgrove, at the Glasgow Circuit Court, had to condemn two prisoners to death for breaking into the house of Sir James Colquhoun of Luss, assaulting him, and robbing him of a large sum of money. He first, as was his constant practice, explained the nature of the various crimes—assault, robbery, and hamesucken—of which last he gave the etymology; and he then reminded them that they had attacked the house and the persons within it, and robbed them, and then came to this climax—"All this you did; and, God preserve us! joost when they were sitten down to their dinner!"

A Lofty Style.—The Hon. Henry Erskine met an acquaintance who dealt in hard words and circumlocutious sentences. Perceiving that he was lame, Erskine asked the cause. "Why, my dear sir," answered the wordy lawyer, "I was taking a romantic ramble in my brother's grounds, when, coming to a gate, I had to climb over it, by which I came in contact with the first bar, and have grazed the epidermis on my skin, attended with a slight extravasion of blood." You may thank your stars," replied Mr. Erskine, "that your brother's gate was not as lofty as your own style, or you would have broken your neck."

A Model Sermon.—The following very brief sermon was delivered in a certain church in Sunderland on Whit-Sunday:—"My dear brethren, the sermon this morning will be of the very shortest description, in fact it is impossible for me to make it any shorter, because it will consist but one word, and one word only. I wish to address it to the working men and others who intend to keep this Whitsun holiday, and I would to God that this one word may have the weight and influence of a thousand; it is—sobriety." The effect upon the congregation of this admonition was, probably, greater than could have been induced by the most lengthy exhortation.—Sunderland Herald.

Mr. G. P. Ridout, of Toronto, Governor of the British American Insurance Company, died suddenly last Saturday week.

The police business in St. Catharines must be in a flourishing condition. The fines for the first six months of the year amounted to over $1,100.

The Rev. Dr. Taylor, of Montreal, has been presented with a purse of $1,200 by his congregation to commemorate the fortieth year of his ministration to his church.

During the last trip of the steamer Chicora to Prince Arthur's Landing the passengers presented the Captain with $150 for the purpose of purchasing a watch.

Twenty-one car loads of grain recently arrived at Paris station in one day, from Seaforth, and other stations is this vicinity, for Mr. Charles Whitelaw of the new Paris mill.

The Harriston Tribune says the T. G. & B. Railway is being pushed with great vigour, and in a short time it expects to see the engine of the narrow gauge road in the village.

The Homœopathists, through Dr. Campbell, of Toronto, at the Annual Meeting of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario, announced their determination to secede from the Medical Council in a body.

The Medical Council of Ontario is rent by a disagreement between the Allopaths and Homœopaths. The latter have entirely withdrawn and it is thought that the Council will in consequence break up.

On Wednesday night a man named Wm. Dodds murdered his brother-in-law, Richard Forbes, in the township of Keppel. While returning from a logging "bee" the parties quarrelled, and Dodds beat his brother-in-law to death. The murderer then escaped.

A painful report comes from Chippewa to the effect that a man, woman and child, who were supposed to from Toronto, went out in a boat upon the river on Friday afternoon, and, that it is feared they went over Niagara Falls. The names of the parties are not given.

The Belleville Ontario says Mr. Henry A. Johnson, the first white child born on the shore of the Bay of Quinte, died at his home in Picton, on Wednesday last at the ripe old age of 82 years and eight months.

Rev. Dr. Nelles, Principal of Victoria College, Cobourg, has gone to England. He is a delegate from the Wesleyan Methodist Conference to the English Conference, and it is understood that he is authorized by the University Directors to secure the services of a professor for the Chair of Natural Sciences, which is now vacant.

Mr. Dyke, the Ontario Emigration Agent, who was arrested by the German Government on the charge of enticing people to leave the country, has after strong intervention by Lord Odo Russell the English Minister at the Court of Berlin, been dismissed. His case was tried at Stolp in his absence, and a verdict of "not guilty" returned.

We see from a Manitoba paper that some human remains have been discovered on the banks of the Red River, below St. Peter, which have been exposed by the falling of the spring flood. There is a bullet hole through the skull, and from various circumstances, it is surmised that the remains are the bones of Scott, who was murdered by Riel and his gang.

The Orangemen of Brant, Wentworth, Haldimand, Welland, Middlesex, and other places, will make the Falls their meeting place this year. The Welland Telegraph says: "The Orange Brethren intend holding a grand celebration in the grove near here on the 12th July Several brass bands will be present. Upwards of 8,000 Orangemen are expected including a number of brethren from the United States."

At a meeting of the creditors of Mr. E. B. Eddy, the great lumber and match manufacturer of Hull, near Ottawa—whose suspension of business we noticed last week—held on Saturday, it was resolved that Mr. Eddy be allowed to resume business. His explanation of his business affairs was satisfactory to his creditors, and his extensive works were re-opened on Monday.

The inquest on Mr. Miller, who was so brutally murdered by ruffians who had previously made as outrageous attacks on young boyzat their harmless play at Montreal afew days ago, has resulted in a verdict of murder against four of the gang, Gagnon, Godmairo, Frigon and Coto. They will be tried before the Court of Queen's Bench, where it is to be hoped no legal quibble will be allowed to interfere with the execution of the severest possible punishment upon such cowardly shedders of blood. A stern example is needed as a warning to others of this class, of whom there are unfortunately too many in our midst. The killing of Mr. Miller recalls the cat-hook murder in New York for which Foster got hung, and seems even to surpass it in atrocity.

As Mr. Wm. Stockdale was returning from visiting the circus at Peterboro' he and the young lady who accompanied him, met, says the Peterborough Independent, with a rather singular accident. He was driving in a one horse buggy and was going at a good smart pace when from some unexplained cause he did not see a four-year old steer that was lying in the road, and before he was aware of it drove over the animal. The steer rose up suddenly with the buggy on his back and for a few yards horse, buggy, passengers and steer, went together harmoniously at full trot, but the steer diverging destroyed the equilibrium, and buggy, steer, young lady, horse, and Wm. Stockdale retired into the ditch. Happily no bones were broken and though some bruises were received, some fright occasioned, and a parasol injured beyond all possibility of cure, the party reached the Town Hall and were enabled to continue their journey during the afternoon.

A Good Horse.—There is much pleasure and profit in the services of a good horse, and but very little of either in a bad one; no person from choice will retain a bad horse, many, however are in possession of such who need not be. We think there are few horses so bad that their condition cannot be improved and rendered more valuable and useful for their owners, to effect which, there is nothing equal to 'Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy;' it has effected astonishing results in thousands of cases. Remember the name and see that the signature of Hurd & Co., is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

Thomas's Eclectric Oil! Worth Ten Times its Weight in Gold. Do you know anything of it? If not, time you did.

Pain cannot stay where it is used. It is the cheapest Medicine ever made. One dose cures common Sore Throat. One bottle has cured Bronchitis. Fifty cents worth has cured an Obstinate Cough. One or two bottles cures bad cases of Piles and Kidney Troubles. Six to eight applications cure any case of Rheumatism or Inflamed Breast. One bottle has cured Lame Back of eight years standing. Daniel Plank, of Brookfield, Tioga County, Pa., says: "I was cured by fifty miles for a bottle of your Oil, which effected Wonderful Cures of a Crooked Limb by six applications. Another who has had Asthma for years, says: "I have half of a 50 cent bottle left, and $100 would not buy it if I could get no more."

Rufus Robinson, of Nunda, N. Y., writes: "One small bottle of your Eclectric Oil restored the voice where the person had not spoken above a whisper in Five Years." Rev. J. Mallory, of Wyoming, N. Y., writes: "Your Eclectric Oil cured me of Bronchitis in One Week." Dealers all over the country say: "We have never sold a medicine that has given such complete satisfaction as this."

It is composed of Six of the Best Oils that are extracted from Petroleum. It is as good to take as for external use, and is believed to be immeasurably superior to any Medicine ever made. Will save you much suffering and many dollars of expense. Sold by all Druggists in Goderich. Price 50 cents.

CAUTION! FRAUDS ABROAD!

I beg most respectfully to caution the public of the British North American Provinces to be on their guard against purchasing spurious medicines which are being sold as my genuine "Holloway's Pills and Ointment," by certain individuals, of little or no means, trading (for the last few months only) under the style of the "New York Chemical Company." Every artifice is made use of by them for the purpose of imposing upon the public; and the more effectually to deceive, they have the effrontery, in their advertisements, to issue the following caution:—

"The immense demand for 'Holloway's Pills and Ointment' has tempted unprincipled parties to counterfeit these valuable Medicines.

"In order to protect the public and ourselves we have issued a new 'Trade Mark,' consisting of an Egyptian Circle of a serpent with the letter H in the centre. Every box of genuine 'Holloway's Pills and Ointment' will have this trade mark on it. None are genuine without it.

"To Dealers and Jobbers in Drugs and Medicines.

"We call your particular attention to the new style of 'Holloway's Pills and Ointment'—none of the old style are manufactured by us now, nor have they been for months. We therefore caution all purchasers against receiving from any Jobbers or Dealers the old style of goods.

"Information concerning any such goods being offered will be received with thanks.

"We ask the favor of all the information you can give in regard to those counterfeits."

Now! this Company is aware that your laws do not permit them to copy the precise getting up of my Medicines, but in order the more completely to blind the public, they have recourse to another piece of deception, viz. in stating that they deem it necessary, as they say, to make up the Pills and Ointment in another form, and that they adopt a New Label, &c.

Besides the above-mentioned "Chemical Company," there is also a David Pringle of New York, who by consummate trickery is attempting to sell spurious imitations of my Medicines. Beware of him likewise.

This unprincipled Chemical Company has dared to say that I owe very large sums of money in the United States. What is the fact? A newspaper agent obtained, without my knowledge or consent, and by collusion with a party who held a limited power of attorney of mine, an order to advertise my medicines in South America for three years, to the extent or $100,000 in gold. He then sold his claim to a lawyer, who got it referred by the court to a friend of his who gave judgment against me to the amount of $171,232 gold, for part which he said he would have made by it, had I not taken steps to repudiate this vile transaction the moment it came to my knowledge. This judgment will set aside. It cannot be supposed, I am sure, that I owe a cent to any one that I would not immediately pay.

There is no truth whatever in the statement that, I ever authorized any person or persons to use my name for the sale of my Pills and Ointment, although gross frauds have been practised upon me by unprincipled men in this way.

I would ask, as a favor, that should it come to the knowledge of any fancers that spurious medicines are being made and sold in my name, that he be pleased to send me the name and address of the vendor who is selling the same, that I may, for the protection of the public, institute proceedings against him, and I engage to remunerate handsomely my informant without divulging his name.

Should any person have reason to believe that he has been deceived by having spurious imitations of these Medicines, he will oblige me by sending to the address at foot (which he can do at a cost of six cents in postage), one of the books of instructions which are affixed to the same.

My Medicines can be supplied at the lowest wholesale net prices in quantities of not less than $20 worth, viz., 8s.6d., 22s., 33s. per dozen boxes of Pills or Pots of Ointment, for which remittances must be sent in advance. These Medicines are not sold in the United States.

Each Pot and Box of my Genuine Medicines bears the British Government Stamp, with the words "Holloway's Pills and Ointment, London."

Her breathing was short and quick at times causing great distress and apprehension of impending death, and she was greatly prostrated with general debility. At night she was constantly subject to attacks of great difficulty of breathing, the surface of the body becoming cold and she was apparently lifeless, being restored only by great exertion on the part of attendants. She began taking your medicine about a year ago, and she has not had an attack since, and is in the enjoyment of every comfortable health. I have great reason to be thankful for her extraordinary improvement.

Iron in the Blood

PERUVIAN AN IRON TONIC SYRUP

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energising effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, imparting strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women, and thousands cannot reasonably hesitate to follow it as a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

The above cut represents our

$70 Organs,

While thanking our former agents and customers for their liberal patronage and confidence for the past year [and which we still hope to retain], we would respectfully call their attention to our style No. 31. This Organ being a G octave, Double Reed [C Scale] is a very desirable instrument for advanced players, Pianists or parties educating themselves for the pianoforte; and as a parlor Instrument, it meets every requirement.—Our No. 30 is the same as 61, but different style, and more expensive. Our No. 32 is pronounced by all who have seen it to be the finest Instrument in the world. In addition to this organ has two complete setts same as No 30, with two additional half setts, viz, Hautboy and Vox Celeste, making four setts from middle C up and also 1½ octaves of Bass Profundo. We are the first and only parties who make this line of Instruments, and the universal satisfaction they have given, and the immense sale of these Organs, show that they are appreciated and encourages us to make them a speciality.

Applications for agencies, where we have no agents, at all times confidentially solicited.
