A CONFLICT OF AUTHORITY.

RUSSIAN OFFICIALS REMOVE BULGARIAN PLACARDS IN VARNA.

Gen. Kaulbars Instructed to Leave the Principality if the Muscovites are Molested and to Insist Upon Ample Reparation.

VARNA, Nov. 2.—The Russian Consular officials, with the help of sailors from the Russian men-of-war, to-day tore down a number of placards which had been posted in the city by order of the Bulgarian Government. The Russian Consul threatened to land troops if the authorities attempted to prevent the removal of the placards.

Instructions From the Czar.

SOFIA, Nov. 2.—The Czar has sent the following despatch to Gen. Kaulbars:

"Leave at the first case occurring of a Russian subject being molested. The Consul, unarmed, to witness the ceremony of lowering the flag, for which the Bulgarian Government will be asked to give the signal by gun fire. If they refuse, let the ships fire a volley of musketry, then let the flag be lowered three times; at the last time folded and handed to Gen. Kaulbars by his secretary, when all will enter carriages and go to Varna wearing the medals. When Gen. Kaulbars and all the Russian Consuls leave Varna Russia will occupy Bulgaria with two divisions and order new elections, the troops remaining until a new Prince has been chosen."

THE PRINCE INVOLVED.

His Royal Highness of Wales Mixed up in the Campbell Scandal.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—What has hitherto been whispered in society concerning the connection of the Prince of Wales with the scandal attached to the marital relations of Lord and Lady Colin Campbell has been confirmed by excellent authority. Lord Colin has long suspected the Prince of carrying on an intrigue with his wife, and, finally, becoming convinced of the correctness of his suspicions, threatened to include the heir to the British throne among the numerous co-respondents.

Last year, while in search of evidence against Lady Campbell and her alleged paramour, Lord Colin found in her ladyship's desk packages of letters which had from time to time been addressed to her by the Prince of Wales. These letters were not touched in the orthodox language of a lover, but were sufficiently cordial in tone, and betrayed ample solicitude for the lady's happiness to justify the suspicion of her husband that the discreetly-phrased notes really meant more than they expressed.

Lord Campbell immediately divulged the fact and nature of his discovery to his father, the Duke of Argyll, and the latter made haste to lay the matter before the Queen, between whom and the Duke there was held a long consultation, resulting in the summoning of the Prince into the royal presence. His Royal Highness admitted without hesitation that he had written the letters in question, but protested his innocence of any motive in writing them other than a feeling of friendly interest in a brilliant young American lady whom especially struck by the success of her husband's notorious neglect, and, rumor said, worse.

Finally Lord Colin Campbell placed himself and his case entirely in his father's hands, and the Duke, presumably in obedience to the royal command, obtained the letters and forwarded them to the Queen. It is understood that the letters have since been destroyed, and the only tangible evidence of the Prince's interest in the beautiful respondent thus passed forever out of sight.

ATTACKS ON THE ARMY.

The Salvationists Having a Hard Road to Travel in Quebec.

QUEBEC, Nov. 2.—Another disgraceful scene occurred at Jeffery Hale's school-house last evening during the Salvation Army meeting. An immense crowd of rowdies surrounded the building, hooting, yelling and throwing stones. A strong force of police was on hand, but no arrest were made. The Mayor was present and addressed the crowd in the interest of order, but, notwithstanding, a number of panes in the school-room windows were smashed. At a largely-attended meeting of the members of the Loyal Orange Alliance a deputation was appointed to wait upon the Mayor and represent to him the necessity which existed for the proper protection for the female soldiers of the Salvation Army. The Mayor promised that all possible protection should be afforded.

Sam Small's Weakness.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 2.—In reference to the suit entered by Abraham Steinau against Rev. Sam Small to collect a note for $330 for jewelry, Mr. Small wrote from Toronto that the revival work has been so pressing upon him that he forgot all about the note. Rev. Dr. Joyce, of St. Paul's Methodist Episcopal Church, speaking of the matter, said: "I have no doubt that Small has a mania for purchasing such things, a fact which a keen dealer could, no doubt, very easily discover. I know him very well, and I have never seen anything in his conduct that was not consistent with his Christian character. Nearly every man has some weakness that is it difficult to resist, and that appears to be Small's. But he is honest, and I don't think any fear was felt by Steinau of the loss of his money. I think had he come to me I could have assured him that I would get the money from Small for him. I know there have been reports that these men, Small and Jones, have been loose in their expenditures, but I happen to know that Jones has expended $4500 in charities; that he is now supporting four young men in college for the ministry, who otherwise would be unable to graduate, and that Jones gave the $1500 which purchased the camp ground at Cartersville, Ga."

Lone Man Captured.

CALGARRY, N.W.T., Nov. 2.—Supt. Griesbach, of the Mounted Police at Edmonton, has captured "Lone Man," who is supposed to have been implicated in the massacre at Frog Lake last year. Lone Man, relying upon the lapse of time since the rebellion, came into the post with a complaint about stolen horses. He was immediately imprisoned.

Fears for the Ninth.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The determination of the Socialists to make a demonstration on the occasion of the Lord Mayor's Day is causing the authorities much anxiety. The police fear that the gathering of the Socialists will end in a riot. They have warned shopkeepers in the line of march to close their doors and barricade their windows.

Relieved to be in Canada.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—Richard Preston, dealer in worsted goods and tailors' trimmings, has disappeared. He has been dabbling in stocks and has borrowed sums from personal friends to the amount of $150,000. His principal creditor is Thos. Cogr, of Lawrence, Mass. Preston is believed to be in Canada.

CABLE NOTES.

Deaths from Asiatic cholera have occurred in Mayence and Vienna.

It is stated that twelve Russian men-of-war have left Sebastopol for Varna.

The Journal de St. Petersburg says M. Labouleye's appointment is a guarantee of good relations between Russia and France.

The returns of the municipal elections held throughout England and Wales on Monday show Conservative gains of 89 and Liberal gains of 76.

Three patients who were dismissed as cured by Dr. Samuloo, late assistant of M. Pasteur, have since died in Odessa with the usual hydrophobia paroxysms.

The London officers of the chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London and China know nothing of an attack on their institution at Shanghai and its robbery of a large amount of specie.

The Indian Government has received news from Afghanistan confirming the reports of the rising of the Ghilzai tribe and stating that the movement is spreading. The Ameer is sending a large force to Ghuzni to suppress the revolt.

HAGGIS AND HALLOWE'EN.

The Annual Supper of the Toronto Caledonian Society.

Haggis and Hot Scotch were prominent items on the bill of fare laid before the seventy odd Scotchmen and their guests who sat down to the annual Hallowe'en supper of the Toronto Caledonian Society at the Walker House last night. The pudding was prime and the toddy was—well, perhaps it is better not to say anything about it for fear of shocking the temperance folks. The affair was thoroughly Scotch and consequently enjoyable. The company assembled in the hotel parlor and marched in couples to the dining-room to the stirring strains of the pibroch, played by Piper W. K. Anderson. President Alexander Ross sat at the head of the table; his right hower was Dr. McMichael of Buffalo, President of the North American Caledonian Society. President Harry Symons of St. George's Society; President Wm. Wilson of the Irish Protestant Benevolent Society, and President N. L. Steiner of the German Benevolent Society also occupied places of honor. First Vice-President J. C. McMillan and Second Vice-President Wm. Rennie were vice-chairmen. Seated at the tables were such well-known and representative Caledonians as Dr. Daniel Clarke, Robert Jaffray, Dr. James Ross, Hugh Miller, Wm. Henderson, Robert Swan, Wm. Adamson, ex-Deputy Chief Macpherson, John Campbell, Capt. Kenneth Miller, James Springs, Wm. Simpson, G. M. Rose, W. D. McIntosh, Angus McKay, John Ritchie, sr., James Park, John Brimer, Robert Pollock, Thos. Adair, John Barr, R. Green, John Wright, D. Grant, A. H. Hilyard, besides a good sprinkling of younger sons of the heather. Secretary H. A. Little read letters of regret at absence from Sir John A. Macdonald, Lieut.-Governor Robinson, Hon. Alex. Mackenzie, Attorney-General Mowat, Mr. W. R. Meredith, Hon. Alex. Morris, Mayor Howland, H. W. Darling and A. J. Cattanach, President St. Andrew's Society.

The guests testified to their loyalty and patriotism by drinking the usual toasts. Capt. Miller replied for the "Army, Navy and Volunteers." "The Day and All Who Honor It" was drunk in true Highland style, led by Mr. P. J. Maskip, a young man from Islay, who is making a four of Canada, and who did it to perfection. Dr. Clarke was the respondent. He spoke of Scotland's physical, moral, mental and military glories, admired the Scotch for being clannish, and said that of all the instruments invented since the morning stars sang together, the bagpipes stood preeminent for beauty of music, whereat the Caledonians applauded lustily. Dr. McMichael acknowledged "The North American Caledonian Society" in appropriate terms and met with a hearty reception. "The Land We Left and the Land We Live In" drew forth a nice little speech from Mr. Rose. Among other toasts were "Dominion Parliament and Local Legislature," responded to by Mr. Jaffray; "Sister Societies," by their representatives named above; "Mayor and Corporation," by Ald. Steiner; "Agriculture, Manufactures and Commerce," by Mr. Mackie, the young Highlander already referred to, and Mr. D. A. McLougald, of Sault Ste. Marie. More enjoyable than either the menu or the speeches were the Scotch songs by G. W. Grant, Thos. Mitchell, J. J. Jerome, Thos. Adair and Mr. Ritchie. All the singers acquitted themselves well; Mr. Ritchie's "Heathen Jock" was the gem of the evening. Midnight found the "banquet hall deserted."

A Negro Rising Threatened.

RALEIGH, N.C., Nov. 2.—The incendiary speeches of a negro in Randolph County last week caused excitement and led to his arrest. There were current on Saturday reports of his lynching. This morning Gov. Scales received a telegram from Capt. W. F. Johns of the Third Regiment, State Guard, that a negro insurrection was imminent and offering the services of his company there. Gov. Scales instructed him to hold her men in readiness, and to take no action until ordered to do so.

Revived and Died.

ONSET BAY, Mass., Nov. 2.—Commander Chandler, a retired officer of the United States navy, being prostrated by a paralytic shock, was laid out out on Sunday for dead. He revived as the undertaker was manipulating him for burial and wanted to know what all the fuss was about. He asked for something to eat and was given an oyster stew. Having tucked that away he went to sleep and slept calmly all night. On Monday he was again prostrated and died in earnest.

AMUSEMENTS.

Rhea as "The Country Girl"—A Big Program for the Matinee and this Evening.

"The Country Girl," a comedy in four acts, located in England two hundred years back was produced at the Grand Opera House last night with Rhea taking the part of Peggy Thrift, a romping minx of a girl who instead of marrying her guardian, gives him the slip and marries a city spark instead. She plays the part so acceptably as to please, amuse and delight her audience. In the second act she wore the dress of a boy of the period in which the story is laid—the custom of which time, it would appear, was for boys to wear white silk stockings and knee breeches. As on the opening night the support was admirable, the costumes rich and the stage settings very pretty. Mr. Arthur Forest, as leading man, is an able seconder of Mademoiselle's efforts.

Mr. Edwin Davies is Rhea's stage manager, and it is because of his good taste and experience in judgment that all of the scenes and dressings of the stage are so much admired by the audience. Mr. Davies has a keen eye for the beautiful in his profession.

"The Dangerous Game," from the French of Sardou, will be presented at the matinee today. The play received such a reception last season that it is a prime favorite with our theatre goers. To-night a new comedy from the French of Meilhac and Halevy, the authors of "Frou-Frou," will be given. It is cleverly constructed, abounds in ludicrous situations and the dialogue bristles with repartee and bright humor, and as presented by Rhea has been received as the feature of her repertoire. On this occasion Mlle Rhea will wear her famous Queen of Holland dress, which has been the admiration of the ladies in every city where it has been seen. It is the work of Worth, the man-milliner of France.

Toronto Choral Society.

The members of the Toronto Choral Society had a delightful practice at Richmond Hall last night. Judging by the large number present the Society's roll must be quite up if it does not exceed the large membership of last year, when the colossal "Israel in Egypt" was given with such grand effect. "St. Paul," Mendelssohn's masterpiece, is the work under study for the next concert and much progress has already been made in the practice of its delightful choruses. Lovers of the beautiful in song and having some knowledge of music have still an opportunity of taking part in what promises to be a successful concert, as the membership list remains open for a few days longer.

What Mr. Torrington has in Hand.

Sir Arthur Sullivan's cantata "The Golden Legend," which caused a sensation at the Leeds Musical Festival, will be produced in Toronto under Mr. Torrington's direction.

A Toronto amateur orchestra is being organized by Mr. F. H. Torrington and promises to be successful.

More of "Humbug" at the Toronto.

Roland Reed attracted another big audience at the Toronto Opera House last night. There will be a matinee this afternoon. The bill will be changed to "Cheek" to-morrow night.

UNITED STATES NEWS.

Numerous arrests were made yesterday on the east side of New York city for illegal registration.

Surveyor Beattie, of New York, who was shot by a discharged inspector, was much improved yesterday.

The Rochester Herald heads the announcement of the discovery by Prof. Peters of Clinton, N.Y., of a new eleventh magnitude asteroid, "A New Ass to Ride."

James Caffrey, aged 7, James Dougherty, aged 7, John Dougherty, aged 6, and Ellen Dougherty, aged 3, were suffocated in a sand pit at Scranton, Pa., Monday evening.

A round drum connecting the boilers in the Charleston, S.C., cotton factory exploded yesterday. Wm. Oakes, fireman, was literally steamed to death. Richardson, a coal roller was fatally injured.

John Hooley, advance agent for the "Rag Baby" company, committed suicide by cutting his throat at a hotel in Olean, N.Y., yesterday. It is believed he was insane. Deceased was 25 years of age and married.

MAYOR OF NEW YORK CITY

HEWITT, DEM., ELECTED BY 23,000 PLURALITY OVER GEORGE.

Little or no Republican Opposition in the Southern States—Slight Republican Gains in the North—Illinois Opposed to Contract Convict Labor.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Probably no election that ever took place in this city has equalled in interest that for Mayor to-day. Everywhere throughout the city the election was the one topic of interest. The newspaper bulletins were watched by large crowds until the result of the vote for Mayor was known. With one precinct missing the returns are: Roosevelt (Rep.) 60,392; Hewitt (Dem.) 90,296; George (Labor) 67,598; Wardwell (Prohibition) 514. Richelieu Robinson contested as an independent candidate for Congress and was hardly recognized in the voting.

George's Vote Challenged.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—Henry George, accompanied by a number of friends, went to the 23d Assembly District to cast his vote. He walked up to the man who was peddling labor tickets, and after getting his ballots went up to vote. He was challenged by a Tammany "heeler," on the ground that he was not registered and had not resided in his district long enough to vote. George swore his vote in. It was claimed that he had been to Europe and thereby lost his residence. He swore that his family had resided in the state during his absence. It was discovered that the inspectors had changed both his son's name and his own from George to Gorge without authority, to defeat his voting.

The Elections Generally.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 2.—South Carolina elects the Democratic state ticket. The Legislature will be: Democrats 148, Republicans 8 on a joint ballot.

Partial returns from California favor the election of Swift, Republican as Governor.

Alabama went Democratic almost by default.

All reports from North Carolina are of Democratic gains and Louisiana reports a quiet day and a light vote, the Democrats having little or no opposition.

Returns from Iowa are slow and scattered, generally showing slight Republican gains.

Indiana on meagre reports shows slight Republican gains.

Wisconsin evidences small Republican gain. Gov. Rusk (Rep.) has been re-elected by 10,000 plurality.

In Virginia the apathy of the Democrats has practically resulted in the Republicans electing 5 of the 10 Congressmen.

Tennessee returns are that the Democrats have carried everything.

Georgia reports the lightest vote in years, the Democratic ticket being unopposed.

Massachusetts returns indicate that the Republicans elect the Governor by a small plurality. The Democrats gain two Congressmen.

New Jersey reports tend to show that Green (Dem.) is elected governor, and that the Legislature is in doubt.

The present indications are that no choice has been made for governor in New Hampshire on the popular vote, no candidate having a majority. The election will devolve on the Legislature where Republican gains give the Republicans a majority of 24 on a joint ballot.

Beaver carries Pennsylvania for the Republicans for governor by about 30,000.

Ohio shows considerable gains for the Republicans over last year when Foraker was elected Governor by about 18,000.

(Democrat free trade candidate for Congress from Toledo district is again defeated, Bowdle carrying the seat by a larger majority than at the last election.)

Florida shows a Democratic gain.

Minnesota reports that the election has been the liveliest known in the State, and that an unusually large vote was polled. The indications are that Ames for governor, and the entire Democratic state ticket are elected.

Kentucky returns report the re-election of Speaker Carlisle and six others of the eleven Congressional delegates.

In the Toledo, Ohio, District Frank Hurd was badly beaten by Romeis (Protectionist) for Congress.

The Massachusetts delegation adds a number of Fair Traders to the next Congress.

The Republicans gain four Congressmen and lose one in New York State. The Legislature will be Republican. On the head ticket for Supreme Court Judge Andrews (Rep.) is elected over Peckham (Dem.), but the contest is close and no definite statement can be furnished on the meagre returns at hand.

Chairman Cooper of the Republican State Committee claims 40,000 plurality for Beaver in Pennsylvania.

"Bob" Taylor (Dem.) is elected Governor of Tennessee by from 20,000 to 25,000. There was a light vote throughout the State, but it showed Democratic gains in all the districts.

Arrests for Bribery.

HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 2.—Ralph Foster, a prominent Republican and Chairman of the Seventh Ward Committee, and also a select man, was arrested at noon on a charge of bribery at the polls. He was bailed. It is stated that several other arrests have been made. Patrick McGovern, Chairman of the Republican Town Committee, was arrested this afternoon on a charge of bribery at the polls. He was released on bail.

Against Contract Convict Labor.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Scattering returns throughout Illinois indicate that the proposed amendment to the constitution, making it unlawful to let by contract the labor by convicts, has been carried by a large majority. The vote in this county was almost solidly in favor of the measure.

The Czar Sends for His Uniform.

From the Pall Mall Gazette.

When Prince William of Prussia visited the Russian Emperor on the occasion of the recent imperial hunt at Brest-Litovsk, the Czar found himself without Prussian uniform, and the consequence was that a messenger had to travel all the way from St. Petersburg by special train to repair the deficiency. The Czar discovered his loss the afternoon before Prince William's arrival. Sending word to his valet to have a Prussian uniform in readiness for the morrow, the man appeared to say that by his imperial master's orders all uniforms had been left at St. Petersburg.

An aide-de-camp was sent for. "A Prussian uniform must be here by 7 o'clock to-morrow morning." It was then 4 o'clock. The aide-de-camp despatched two telegrams, one to the master of the imperial wardrobe at St. Petersburg, and the other to the railway authorities, and about 6 o'clock a locomotive set off from the Russian capital carrying the messenger intrusted with the required dress. Fresh locomotives were in readiness at Dunaberg and Wilna, and the distance of 950 kilometres was traversed in thirteen hours, a rate of 73 kilometres per hour, so that the uniform was in readiness for the Czar at the time fixed.

More "Scotch Ascendency."

Special Correspondence of the London Times.

Like much else that is enterprising in the newer regions of Canada, Vancouver owes its "boom" largely to the Scotch. Many of them are veteran pioneers, having aided in opening settlements in Ontario, then removing to Winnipeg, and having assisted in setting that city off on a successful career now come to the Western Coast to renew the process. The Vancouver chief of police is a Highlander of massive build, constructed to rival the big trees of this region.

THE COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

Rector MacMurchy's Views on the Value and Growing Needs of the School.

Complaints having been made at this office that American children were attending the Toronto Collegiate Institute, to the exclusion of those who should have a prior claim, a World reporter yesterday visited the Institute and had a talk with Rector MacMurchy. The Rector says that so far as he knows American children do not come to the city merely to attend the school, nor have pupils been refused through want of room. There is always accommodation for one more, though there often arise occasions when it is not advisable to admit an applicant.

The question of increased accommodation and facilities for higher education is one which must soon be faced by educationalists. The Toronto Collegiate is practically a provincial school, and owing to its superior advantages it could with a slight effort be twice filled with pupils. The girls' department is especially sought after, owing in some cases to the sexes being taught entirely separate, and in others to the efficiency of the cause for certificates. Now, what must inevitably come about is the giving over of the present Institute to the boys, and the establishment of a Collegiate Institute for Girls with a curriculum adapted to their special requirements. Why should girls be taught to emulate young men, and be praised when they surpass them? It is desirable that young ladies having the teaching profession in view should take a university course, but who will say that it is a good thing for the ordinary Canadian girl? The subjects to which a girl should give attention are not those usually pursued by young men, but those which young men neglect, such as music, painting, drawing, the art of conversation, elocution and the graces that add a charm, irresistible though undefined. Then there are the more practical branches of cookery, sewing and housekeeping. Where could these subjects be better taught than in a girls' Collegiate Institute, the need for which is amply demonstrated by the numerous ladies' colleges springing up all over the country. If the plan is at all feasible it should be taken up, and Toronto is the city where it should be tried.

SEPARATE NIGHT SCHOOLS.

A Number of Them to be Opened at Once—Revising the Bylaws.

Vicar-General Rooney (chairman), Vicar-General Laurent, Rev. Father Moyna, Dr. Cassidy and Messrs. W. Burns, Kennedy, Curran, Kelly, Hennessy, Ryan, Petley, Fraser, Vincent, C. Burns, Pape, Costello, Herbert, Morrow and Korman were the members present at last night's meeting of the Separate School Board. Trustee Curran objected to the minutes of the last meeting being signed, for the reason, it is alleged, that some members who had attended that meeting were disqualified because of continued absence. He asked for a ruling. The chairman ruled that as far as the law goes none were disqualified, because the board had not declared them to be so as required by law.

The Committee on School Management recommended that free night schools be opened at St. Paul's and St. Mary's Schools, and De La Salle Institute, to meet Monday until the second Monday in March, with McManus, Mr. Horgon and J. F. McNeil as teachers at $20 per month. The board adopted the report, and also decided to open schools at St. Basil's and St. Patrick's, with Thos. J. Ryan and Mr. McDonald as teachers. The special committee appointed for the purpose handed in their revision of the bylaws.

POLICEMAN McRAE'S BRAVE ACT.

He Rescues a Soldier from Drowning in the West Market-street Slip.

While Policeman McRae was doing his beat on Front-street at 3 o'clock yesterday morning he heard screams coming from the foot of West Market street. He hurried down and saw a man struggling in the water, which is of a good drowning depth at that point. For the officer to see was to act. He procured a rope from a schooner lying in the slip and jumped into the water. After several minutes of hard work he succeeded in passing the rope round the body of the man, who by this time was pretty well exhausted. Then McRae got him over to the lower chains of the vessel, up which he climbed, keeping at the same time the drowning man's head above water, which, as might be supposed, was no easy job. The constable blew his whistle, which brought Sergeant Somerville, Policeman Young and Nightwatchman John Pollock to the scene. They landed McRae and his charge safely on the dock. The rescued man proved to be Pte. Gordon of C Company. He had been drinking and wandered down to the Esplanade and walked off the wharf. The officers fixed him up at the Central Station and yesterday he was handed over to the Infantry School authorities. But for McRae's brave act he would have been drowned. A Royal Humane Society medal is in order for the policeman.

Return of the Waterworks Deputation.

Chairman Walker, Ald. Hunter, Ald. Saunders, Ald. Boustead and Supt. Hamilton returned from New York and Brooklyn yesterday afternoon in good shape. They accomplished the object of their mission and will report results to the Waterworks Committee to-morrow afternoon. Part of Brooklyn's water supply—12,000,000 gallons daily—is drawn from artesian wells situated about fifteen miles from the city, whither it is brought in a five-foot brick conduit. There is a fall of six inches in the mile from the wells to the city. The deputation had an interview with Engineer McAlpine at New York touching the scheme to supply Toronto with water from the northern lakes. They also saw the Worthingtons, and will submit to the committee a proposition made by that firm respecting their engines at the pumping house.

Citizens should remember to buy Toronto-made stoves, and thus furnish employment to their fellow-citizens, by buying at Wheeler & Bain's, 179 King-street east.

Reform Candidates in West York.

The Reformers of West York meet in convention at Weston this day week to select a candidate to represent the constituency in the House of Commons. Dr. Lynd, Hugh Blain, H. S. Howland and County Councillor Elliott (of Vaughan) have been mentioned as aspirants for the candidacy. Mr. Blain, however, told a deputation that he would not allow his name to be put before the convention. He could not agree with the party on the Riel question, and thought it would be injudicious to alter the tariff. Whoever the candidate may be he will have to develop great political strength to loosen Mr. Clarke Wallace's grip on the riding.

Gas Leakage at the City Hall.

For several days back there has been a strong smell of gas in the east wing of the City Hall. Yesterday it was so bad that Caretaker Kimber set about to ascertain its source, assisted by Plumber Talbot. After several hours' work the leakage was finally traced to an inch pipe in the cellar, where Talbot was overcome for a short time by the gas. The pipe ran into the ground and had no stopper at the end of it, so that the gas had full vent and escaped by the bushel. The plumber quickly made things all right.

STRUCK ON A SHOAL.

Probable Loss of the Propeller Myles Near Kingston.

KINGSTON, Ont., Nov. 2.—Following are the particulars of the sinking of the propeller Myles. Shortly before noon to-day, while running into the harbor, she struck on the Allen shoal. Capt. Thomas Green, who was at the wheel, said he was coming down under a good head of steam and was endeavoring to keep outside the reef when he hit it a glancing blow, knocking a hole in her side. The crash was so severe that after the vessel had passed over, the propeller's wheel tossed up one of the vessel's planks. People on the shore who noticed the accident, say that the propeller keeled over and many feared she would upset. Capt. Green, as soon as he noticed what had occurred, and finding that the vessel was making water very fast steered for a wharf. He ran alongside that owned by Davidson & Doran, the propeller's bow plunging in the mud there and sticking. The water caused the vessel to settle and she now lies in about forty feet at the stern. Her hurricane deck is partially under water. She keeled over on her side, touched the end of the wharf, and tore out part of her side forward. There is five feet of water in her cabin at one end. The Allen shoal, where the Myles struck, is a small reef about forty by twenty feet in extent. There is fourteen feet of water over it now. There is no insurance on the Myles. The cargo is insured in American companies.

ADAM DARLING'S ABSENCE.

A Liquidator Appointed—The Principal Creditors—A Letter From the Absentee.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—In connection with Adam Darling's absence from the city, Mr. Benning, of the firm of Benning & Barsalou, believing that Mr. Darling has abandoned the estate, made the necessary affidavit this morning justifying the intervention of a liquidator on behalf of the creditors, and stating that Mr. P. S. Ross had been asked to act. A well known business man stated today that he saw a letter from Mr. Darling a few days ago, dated Kansas City, and addressed to a business friend in town, suggesting the appointment of a liquidator in the interest of his creditors. This gentleman further stated that it was well known among his friends that Mr. Darling's finances had been going behind for several years past, and that his business would not justify his manner of living. The protracted law suit with Wm. Darling, this gentleman considered, had largely to do with the present circumstances. It is understood that the largest creditors are Meechan Bros. Staffordshire, England, to whom Mr. Darling owes £4000 sterling. Mr. Benning's claim is for $5000 on an accommodation note, which was renewed about three weeks ago, and the Bank of Montreal is considerably interested.

ARE BEES A NUISANCE?

A Novel Case Tried Before Mr. Justice O'Connor at the Brant Assizes.

WALKERTON, Nov. 2.—At the Assizes today, before Mr. Justice O'Connor, one McIntosh of Southampton applied for an injunction to restrain his neighbor Harrison from keeping bees. It appears that Mr. Harrison has about eighty hives of bees, which were flying all over the neighborhood, and were a great nuisance, especially to the plaintiff, who is a blacksmith, who said that the bees flew about his shop and stung his customers' horses. They were also very troublesome when making preserves, swarming around McIntosh's kitchen in large numbers. The plaintiff contended that the bees were a nuisance and that the plaintiff was entitled to an injunction. The Judge said it was a novel case and he would not grant the injunction, but reserved the application for argument in the full court.

Cruel Treatment of a Girl.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—In connection with a reported abortion case, P. E. Tremblay, advocate, makes statement to the effect that the young woman upon whom the attempted abortion was practised had consulted him. The abortionist is a woman who has been practising it for some time, and one who has been found out has disappeared, as also has the girl's betrayer. The girl says she was subjected to terrible treatment, being stripped of her clothes and beaten with a heavy stick and also a metallic watch chain, which was claimed to possess healing virtues, and she became so ill that she had to consult a doctor, who in his turn consulted Mr. Tremblay.

Tory Nominations for North Hastings.

MADOC, Ont., Nov. 2.—About 100 delegates were present at the Conservative Convention here to-day, being a full representation from all parts of North Hastings. Hon. Mackenzie Bowell, for the Commons, and C. F. Wood, for the Legislature, were nominated by acclamation. Hon. Geo. Foster, Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and Hon. Mr. Bowell delivered addresses in the Masonic Hall to a large audience.

The Railway Commission at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Nov. 2.—The Railway Commission reassembled in this city to-day. Sir A.T. Galt, Chairman, presided, and there were present Messrs. T. E. Kenny, Geo. Moberly and M. S. Lonergan, Secretary. No witnesses were examined, only routine business being transacted. The Board will likely hold sessions here for a couple of days longer.

A Trespasser in the Cemetery.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—Two children have entered an action against their mother, stepfather and the fabrique of Notre Dame to remove the body of a child which was buried in a lot in the Roman Catholic Cemetery by permission of the mother. The children claim that the mother had no right to consent.

Tell the Truth.

Dr. Talmage in his sermon last Sunday said that many business men, although having but a slight education, were compelled by their business life to be intelligent. He explained that business life was a school for integrity. He must have had quinn the shirtmaker in his mind's eye, who, when selling underwear, frankly tells the customer if it is all pure wool.

A BUSY BOARD OF WORKS.

A CIVIC COMMITTEE THAT HAS HEAPS OF TROUBLE ON ITS MIND.

A Lively Parle Between Chairman Carlyle and Ald. Turner Over Contractor Godson's Rights—Ald. Baxter Comes to the Rescue—A Letter From Mr. Tully.

The business of the Board of Works has now grown to proportions that quite rival the bulky proceedings of the City Council. What with the miles of block paving, new sewers and the thousand and one improvements that are continually going on in the city, the Board has heaps of trouble on its head and any amount of worry. It is no wonder, then, that an occasional scene occurs at the meetings. Such an event, of a mild nature, however, occurred yesterday.

When Chairman Carlyle called the meeting to order at 2.30 there were around the table Ald. Jones, Turner, Verral, J. Woods and Steiner, while the usual complement of deputations stood patiently around and awaited their turn to be heard. Chairman Carlyle announced that he had just received a letter from Mr. Kivas Tully which had surprised him a little. The letter read:

TORONTO, Nov. 2, 1886.—Ald. Carlyle, Chairman Committee on Works: DEAR SIR—I have been unable to complete the report on the Garrison Creek Sewer in time for the meeting to-day as I expected. In fact I have not had time to complete the reading of the two volumes of evidence taken before the Coroner's Judge, but from my examination of the work, and after testing the sewer with the water used in Toronto, I can safely recommend, if the committee consider it right to do so, that the sum of $4000 could be allowed to the contractor, Mr. Godson, out of the balance still due him on his contract, which is stated by the City Engineer to be about $7000 to $10,000, the balance being sufficient to make good any defects in the construction of the sewer. KIVAS TULLY.

Everyone who has followed the memorable Garrison Creek Sewer wrangle is aware that the city now holds a drawback of $7000 on the work, together with $2500 for "extras:" that Contractor Godson was handled without gloves by the Board and subsequently by the county Judge for using bricks without straw and mortar that would not stick the construction of the sewer, and that it was otherwise faulty. But Mr. Godson repeatedly offered to make the sewer what it should be if he were so instructed by the city, but he was never instructed to do so, and the $6500 referred to above has been held by the corporation until Kivus Tully makes a report, which his letter explains is not yet ready.

Ald. Turner at once moved a resolution authorizing the treasurer to pay over $4000 of the amount of Mr. Godson, in accordance with the suggestion in Mr. Tully's letter. Chairman Carlyle opposed paying Mr. Godson any money until Mr. Tully sent in a regular report. Ald. Turner pressed his motion, and it was lost on a tie vote: Yeas—Turner, J. Woods, Jones—3. Nays—Carlyle, Steiner, Verral—3.

Ald. Turner characterized the vote as a quibble to keep Mr. Godson out of his money. It was a personal matter with those aldermen who had voted against his motion. "It is purely a personal matter with you especially, Mr. Chairman," added Mr. Turner "and you can think what you like about it. That's my candid opinion."

Chairman Carlyle: "You may think what you like, but it won't have much effect with me or your fellow-citizens, Mr. Turner. It is not true that I have any personal feelings in the matter."

Ald. Turner: "I believe you have, and I repeat it."

Here the matter rested for half an hour, and the ordinary business of the Board was proceeded with. Then Ald. Baxter, who was holding his Revision Court down stairs, had concluded for the day and took his seat at the Boards of Works. Five minutes afterwards Ald. Shaw came in. Ald. Baxter at once moved to reopen the question. Chairman Carlyle ruled that that could not be done unless by a two-thirds vote. Ald. Baxter: "I don't want to reopen the question; I am going to give you something new. I move that Mr. Godson be paid $3900 on account. Ald. Carlyle: "I will not reopen the matter." A vote, however, of 5 to 3 caused the chairman to change his mind and he put Ald. Baxter's motion, which was carried. Yeas—Baxter, Shaw, Jones, Turner, J. Woods—5. Nays—Carlyle, Steiner, Verral—3. A lively time in council is looked for when this recommendation comes up.

Mr. Manning urged the Board to grade the streets west of Bathurst-street on the Cruikshank estate before winter sets in, and charge it to the property owners benefitted; then it could be deducted from Reformers With Nothing to Reform.

Once upon a time Disraeli likened the Whig leaders of that day to a chain of extinct volcanoes, their fires all quenched and their force all gone. The time had been when they had any number of reforms to propose, but at last the supply became exhausted—"played out," as we say on this side the Atlantic. A natural consequence was that the leaders soon found themselves without a party to lead.

Some such idea as this must be what makes the Pall Mall Gazette declare that the Liberal party has become merely an association of men saying "ditto" to Mr. Gladstone. Policy of their own they have none; they merely wait in hopes that something will turn up from their old leader. If he fails them they are "floored," for they have nothing of their own to fall back upon. Truly a melancholy position for a great party to be in, but adherence to Reform principles is not to be blamed for it. No, but something far different—treason to these principles, and a failure to carry them out. During years back the country has been crying out for various reforms, all most urgently wanted; but not one of them would the Reform party leaders trouble themselves with. First there was wanted a Government strong enough to put down murders on one hand, and evictions on the other, in Ireland. Instead of that Mr. Gladstone offers the country Home Rule. Bread is wanted, he proffers a stone. English farm laborers demand the right of living on the land upon which they toil, instead of being crowded into the villages and having to walk miles to and from their work. That Mr. Gladstone cannot give them, but he can give them votes, another case of refusing bread and giving a stone. Those wicked oppressors, the Scottish landlords, who drive the people out, in order to make room for sheep and deer, may destroy and depopulate to their hearts' content, but a Reform Government cares nothing for that. An extension of the franchise, however, is granted and this is expected to pacify Scotland. Every time the Reform leaders are on the rush to treat political reforms; but nothing at all will they do towards those reforms of an economical character, the tendency of which is to give more work and more bread to the people. The policy of merely political reform becomes exhausted at last, and then our brave Reform leaders are at the end of their string. Thenceforth it is either the separation of Ireland, or nothing; the nation sternly refuses to consent to that, and we behold—a Reform party that has nothing to reform.

We have seen substantially the same thing in Canada, too. In 1878 and years preceding the country sent up a bitter cry for just one particular reform—one of such kind as would give employment and wages to our own people, instead of to foreigners. Forsooth our Reform leaders pointed to the great reforms effected by Baldwin and others of his time, say from twenty-five to forty years ago. Ever since Confederation the idea that Canada must some day be a nation has been gathering strength. The slowest Tory had to admit that the thing was to be looked for in the future; the most ardent independence man hesitated to fix the date. Quite naturally we should have expected Reform leaders to have been the prophets of the new era, the forerunners or pioneers to prepare the way. But just the reverse was what occurred. Whenever a policy was mooted, which was really the only policy calculated to develop Canada's commercial independence first, as the material basis of the political independence which was to come afterwards our Reform leaders struck at it with tooth and claw, and would have none of it. They talked patriotically about rendering ourselves less dependent in many respects upon authorities thousands of miles away; but they would still resist to the last any attempt to free Canada from the heavy commercial tribute she was paying to the Mother Country on one side and to the United States on the other. Again a Reform party with nothing to reform. And the party, let us add, will not come to anything until it has something to offer to the country in the shape of a positive policy.

It Will Come High, but They Must Have It.

"Praise from Sir Hubert is praise indeed." The New York Sun is a notorious Canuckophobe, but it has at last discovered that something good can come out of Nazareth. It compares the forest legislation of the United States and Canada, greatly to the advantage of the latter, and praises the acumen of our Government in putting an export duty on saw logs. It proposes to meet this piece of Canadian protectionism by throwing open the United States market to Canadian lumber as the only means of conserving what remains of the depleted forests of that country. Such a policy would be quite consistent with the protective policy of which the Sun is such an able advocate, and its argument in that behalf ought to teach the average free trader what he is so slow to learn—that protectionists are not bound by hard and fast lines, irrespective of circumstances, as free traders are, but that protection is a policy that adapts itself to periods, places and public interests. What the Sun says of the necessity which the United States are under to obtain a supply of lumber from other than their own crippled resources carries another moral, which is that it is a mistake for Canadians to be over-anxious to have lumber put upon the free list. Such a change might be of temporary profit to the few, but could not fail ultimately of doing permanent injury to the many. It is not to the public interest that our timber limits should be rapidly exhausted, no matter how handsomely the results of such an exhaustion might figure in our export returns. In this as in the fishery matter we occupy vantage ground. When the time comes—as come it must—that necessity shall compel our neighbors to throw open their markets to our lumber, it will be the proper policy of the Canadian Government to materially increase the export duty upon logs, and to back that up with an export duty upon sawn lumber.

History May Repeat Itself.

The Globe says that should the Government decide to let the present Parliament live out its natural life of five years "the people would almost be justified in refusing obedience to the mandates of a Government dependent upon a Parliament holding power arbitrarily." Rubbish! Granted that the new Franchise Act has materially changed the complexion of the constituencies, which is the basis of the Globe's contention, the legality of the enactments of the House as at present constituted are beyond question, nor is the survival by a Parliament of a change in the franchise law without both British and Canadian precedents. Nor are the people so anxious for an early election that they are prepared to force a dissolution by rebellion. The trouble with the Globe is that its molehills are all mountains—its wildcats all lions in the public path. In the present instance it has afforded the Tories a fine opportunity to repeat against it their old charge of treasonable teaching, and of desiring to afford its friend Mr. Laurier a chance to carry his gun on the banks of the St. Lawrence instead of the Saskatchewan. When Sir John went to the country prematurely in 1882 the Globe had good ground to find fault with his haste to obtain a snap verdict, but the easy retort was that he had merely accepted the Globe's wild challenge to come on if he dared. Everybody remembers the result of that acceptance, and there are cool heads who still think, the Rielites to the contrary notwithstanding, that in case of a similar acceptance now history might repeat itself in kind though not in degree.

The latest Globule is that the writs will issue so soon as Lord Lansdowne lands. What county is he going to run for? We fancy, however, that they will not issue until after Sir John A. Macdonald shall have returned from Toronto to Ottawa. Lord Lansdowne will probably consult Sir John before turning this country loose upon itself.

The editor of the St. Catharines Journal is talking about running for Parliament. Any man who is not content with being both an editor and a saint is too ambitious. Moss of us have to be satisfied with being only one of the two—which one it is easy to guess.

Southern rice growers complain that the bobolink bird consumes millions of dollars' worth of their crops every year. They think he ought to be the missing bobolink. Perhaps they would trade him off for the Anglo-Canadian sparrow, and give boot.

The Guelph Mercury is publishing Mr. Mowat's voluminous open letter as a serial, which tends to confirm what The World said last Monday of the letter, as indicating that the political situation in this province is serious.

British Columbia can no longer be called the pacific province. Mr. Charltoy is out there and on the stump. He assures the British Columbians that Sir John is up a tree.

Under the heading of "Politics in the Dominion," a Halifax correspondent of the New York Sun describes the political and commercial disabilities of Newfoundland, some of which are only too genuine, but none of which have the slightest connection with Dominion politics. It would be an insult to the intelligence of the Sun's able editorial staff to suppose that they are unaware that Newfoundland has persistently declined to come into the Dominion, and that some of her disabilities are fairly attributable to that refusal. Therefore the only inference is that the United States press is a conspiracy of misrepresentation, for the purpose of discrediting our prosperous confederacy by saddling thereupon the misfortunes of an independent colony, and a mighty mean business it is.

We fancied that the summer season was over, but still all the politicians are talking about "going to the country." They should not let this Indian summer weather mislead them. It cannot last. Still if they would go to the country and stay there all would be forgiven.

On the 31 prox. Michael Davitt told a reporter of the St. Paul Pioneer-Press that he had been "summoned home by friends of the cause," but that he did not intend to go home immediately, as he was "anxious to go to Canada to refute the statements about Mr. Parnell and myself made by emissaries of the Loyal Legion." If it be true, as reported, that Michael is about to be married he will shortly find it advisable to start for home immediately upon being summoned, or else sleep out.

The Winnipeg Sun prints a picture of "the mummy of Rameses II." We should judge from his portrait that Mr. Rameses must have died of old age a long time ago, and that the death notice was delayed en route to Winnipeg.

WOULDN'T LET HER MARRY.

A Father Disappoints An Expectant Bridegroom by Binding His Daughter to the Bedstead.

From the Oswego Palladium, Nov. 1.

The wedding of John Beard to Miss Frankie Perrigo, daughter of Edward Perrigo, was appointed to occur at St. John's Church at 9.30, in Auburn, yesterday morning. At that hour the groom and Mr. Goldthorpe, who was to act as best man, and Rev. F. A. D. Launt were at the church and awaiting the arrival of the bride and her friends. Mr. Launt was vested for the ceremony, but after waiting some time after the appointed time, the bride did not appear. On going to the home of the bride the minister found her father in a great rage. He said that his daughter was in the house, and if she attempted to leave he would shoot her. He could not pacify the irate father and demanded to see the daughter. Mr. Perrigo declared that he could not see her and flourished a revolver and threatened to shoot the minister. The latter told Mr. Perrigo that he had stood in front of guns before and was not afraid and crowded his way into the house. In one of the rooms he found the daughter bound with cords to a bedstead. He untied her and asked her to leave the house with him, which she consented to do. The girl was finally frightened into remaining.

The New York Horse Show.

The New York horse show now being held at Madison Square Gardens, is creating more interest this year than usual. Though there are not so many exhibits in some classes the average of quality is said to be higher than ever before. Among the Canadian animals of the exhibition Mr. Fuller, of Woodstock, shows a pair of chestnut colts and a pair of chestnut riders and drivers. Judge Finkle, of the same town, shows a bay mare by Dr. Butler in the hunter class, in which also is entered Mr. O'Reilly's Minto, a horse purchased in Toronto. In the carriage class Mr. Patteson, postmaster of Toronto, shows a bay gelding which took the prize at the recent Toronto Exhibition and is likely to repeat the feat at New York. Amongst the thoroughbred stallions Woodstock from Owen Sound, and Quito from Montreal are shown, but both are likely to be beaten by Mr. Gebhardt's horse San Sauveur, brother of the famous Eole.

Howling Dogs.

Editor World: The residents of Rose-avenue north of St. James'-avenue are greatly annoyed by the barking and howling of dogs at night. There are a number of useless curs in that vicinity whose owners don't think enough of them to give them shelter, and it is about time something was done to stop this infernal yelping when people are seeking needful rest. A stringent law should be enforced as in New York city where dogs are not allowed to run at large or annoy people.

A RESIDENT OF ROSE-AVENUE.

Keeping Heavy Wagons Off College-avenue.

The Property Committee yesterday decided to take prompt action in keeping all heavily-laden carts, drays or wagons off the Yonge-street avenue. All wagons with material for the new Parliament Buildings will have to enter Queen's Park by the Grosvenor or St. Albans-street gates.

A LIFE'S LESSON.

The Story of a Darned Stocking.

"Don't scowl so, Ellen," said my grandmother, mildly, as I very reluctantly commenced mending a pair of hose. "What would Fred Grahame say if he could see your dimples lost in such a cloud?"

I did not care what Fred Grahame would think, I pouted, or any one else. I was an exception, truly! I had no doubt that every one of the girls was glad that it rained, so we could not go to the picnic, only that they might stay at home to enjoy the exquisite felicity of darning old hose. Oh, of course! how delightful! And I began to cry.

My grandmother looked quietly over the rims of her spectacles, but said nothing. I avoided her gaze and jerked the needle indignantly through the rent and broke it. This was too much, so I tossed the offending stocking aside and walked to the window.

I seated myself and threaded my needle in a worse humor than before. I knew the alternative—that I must either darn my stockings or go without hose—so I darned away. At last I finished and could not refrain from a muttered "Thank heaven!"

"Are you through?" said my grandmother. "I have a little story to tell you.

"You have often seen your cousin Mary, Edward's wife; they were here in the spring. Her many good qualities won your admiration; still, I remember one day that you expressed your surprise that a man so handsome and so nobly gifted could marry one who was almost unmistakably plain—one, too, who admired beauty so intensely as he did. Let me gratify your curiosity.

"Once upon a time, years ago, when he was handsomer than now; and a rising young lawyer, he loved Caroline Willoughby; she was extremely beautiful, accomplished, fascinating, and a great belle. He worshipped her with all the enthusiasm of his gifted nature. One summer evening they were riding down the shady road alone and in silence. He had determined to tell her of his devotion, but could find no words. Her horse shied unexpectedly and she fell; he was at her side in an instant, pale with fright. He conveyed her to the nearest house and sent a servant in hot haste for a physician. He came, and, fearing her limb was fractured, signed to a servant to remove her stocking. Off came the dainty little boot that Edward had so tenderly held as she mounted, and revealed a tattered stocking.

"The physician smiled, assured him no bones were broken, and sent a carriage to convey them home. Entering the house he briefly explained to her mother the circumstances, expressed his regrets, and turned to leave; then, suddenly pausing, he added: 'In the hurry of the moment I had almost forgotten it—Miss Willoughby's stocking,' and, bowing, placed it on the table. The poor girl fainted, and was sick for some time afterward. She really loved him, and 'twas a great blow to her. She married old Goldthwaithe, the millionaire.

"As for Edward, this cold bath to his imagination cured his love. He avoided ladies' society, and rapidly rose to eminence in his profession. 'Twas six years after this when he met your cousin Mary. Her good qualities, her self-sacrificing care of her invalid mother, her warm heart and native sense, interested him deeply; still, his former experience had made him distrustful. Accident decided him. Her former governess was living in very destitute circumstances, in an obscure part of the town, and one wet day she went to see her.

"The carriage not returning, she set out alone and met Edward. He offered his services, and at a muddy crossing her light slipper was left in the mud. He stooped to fit it on; there was no one in sight, and she timidly advanced a pretty foot, with the cleanest of stockings, and one of the daintiest of little darns. He could resist no longer, and, when he told me the story, showed me the identical stocking.

"And now," said my grandmother, kissing me, "this rain is over, the sun shining, and there is Fred Grahame at the door."

The Cause of Consumption.

—Scrofula, manifesting itself in blotches, pimples, eruptions, salt-rheum and other blemishes of the skin, is but too apt by and by to infect the delicate tissues of the lungs also, and result in ulceration thus ending in consumption. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will meet and vanquish the enemy in its stronghold of the blood and cast it out of the system. All druggists.

How to Get Rid of a Wife.

They do these things better in Persia. No man thinks of murdering a wife of whom he is tired, but he sends her as a gift to some bachelor friend whom she has taught to admire her and who is too courteous to refuse. The shah sets this example, and by this means his beloved spouse of the time being is young, handsome and loving and his married life is a perpetual honeymoon. There is no sewing up in sacks, no poison, no bowstring. The favorite cabinet minister or general is informed that he will be favored with a wife from the royal harem, and he smiles and accepts. The Persians have always been reputed a wise people and their wisdom in the matrimonial line is suggestive.

—M. Sheehan, of Oscoda, Mich., writes: I have used Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil on horses for different diseases, and found it to be just as you recommended. It has done justice to me every time, and it is the best oil for horses I ever used.

An English Colonel's Will.

William Robert Brudenell Smith, late colonel in Her Majesty's army, died at his home in Middlesex County, England, April 8 last. He died testate and left a personality in York County of 122 shares in the Consumers' Gas Company of Toronto, valued at $6100. The will was drawn in England Sept. 15, 1885, and was proved there. The testator's son, Lieut. Wm. Charles Smith, and his son-in-law, Augustus Edmund Warren, being the executors as well as the legatees. They ask for probate in the Surrogate Court of the County.

—Mr. R. A. Harrison, Chemist and Druggist, Dunnville, Ont., writes: "I can with confidence recommend Northrop & Lyman's Vegetable Discovery and Dyspeptic Cure for Dyspepsia, Impure Blood, Pimples on the Face, Biliousness and Constipation—such cases having come under my personal observation."

The Latest About Carlotta.

Brussels Letter to the Paris Figaro.

The news from Tervueren reports a painful scene which took place at the chateau where the widow of the unfortunate Maximilian resides. The entourage of the Empress Carlotta seek by every possible means to keep her attention engaged and her mind busy. One of the means most frequently employed is to have a pile of newspapers under her eyes. The other day somebody of the household unfortunately placed in her work-basket a journal containing a notice of "Juarez," a drama, by M. Gassier. The ex-Empress took up the journal and glanced at it with her wonted indifference, but all at once her eyes sparkled and she shrieked, "Juarez! Juarez! Look at them together—Maximilian, Juarez, Bazaine. Quick! Quick! I want to save my husband."

The women-in-waiting and the physicians to Her Majesty rushed in and tried to calm her, but she would not be comforted. She wanted her trunks packed at once to go and save her husband before he would be shot. The trunks were packed and she was told that a special train had been ordered. The Empress wished to start at once, but by much persuasion consented to take a cup of coffee before going on the "special train." A potion was stealthily infused into the coffee by one of the physicians and the Empress at once dropped to sleep. She did not wake till the following morning, when she had forgotten all about the affair, and she has not talked of her husband since.

Capital Punishment by Electricity.

From the Electrician.

There is now being exhibited at Leipsic an apparatus for putting criminals to death by electricity. So long as it is found necessary to retain capital punishment on our statute books it may well be that the electric method is the most merciful and least repulsive process that could be devised for carrying the sentence into effect. But if such means are ever adopted in this country the details will certainly not be carried out in the theatrical manner which commends itself to the Leipsic amateur. In this apparatus, behind the chair in which the condemned man is to take his seat—and by means of which, as we need not explain in detail, his body is placed in circuit with a powerful coil—there stands a conventional figure of Justice with bandaged eyes, holding the balance in her left hand and the sword in her right. The criminal having taken his seat, the proper functionary is supposed to read over the record of his crimes and the sentence of the law. This ceremony completed, he folds up the document and places it in the scale pan, the arm of the balance descends, closes the circuit, and all is over.

Riding Trousers for Women.

Clara Belle in Cincinnati Enquirer.

Speaking of masculine apparel on women reminds me that the fashionable English tailor in New York for women asks them $35 for trousers to wear under equestrian costumes. The riding habits are of Melton or else of a peculiar ribbed material, both coming in light and heavy grades. The basque has a postillion back, and the skirt is made to fit the figure when in the saddle. The same styles that obtained last year are in favor this season, the popular color being the only change. Blue is now the choice, though a dark brown is also in favor. The basques are made with or without stays, as the wearer chooses. If the fair equestrienne cares for patent-leather boots she must pay $25 for them, and with them, of course, wear jersey breeches that fit very tight. This is the style that Sarah Bernhardt introduced in "Fron-Fron." If boots and breeches are not worn, then pantaloons, snugly fitting, held at the foot with a strap, and ordinary laced or buttoned shoes are used. The reader may wonder how on earth trousers are fitted to girls by men makers. Hold! there is nothing immodest about it. Women employes do the close adjusting of the tight breeches. But there are exceptions.

"Will you call on Tuesday to be fitted?" my very scrawniest friend was asked.

"Well, no," she naively replied; "you shape them in symmetrical harmony with the top-boots and I'll fit myself to them."

—Severe colds are easily cured by the use of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, a medicine of extraordinary penetrating and healing properties. It is acknowledged by those who have used it as being the best medicine sold for coughs, colds, inflammation of the lungs, and all affections of the throat and chest. Its agreeableness to the taste makes it a favorite with ladies and children.

Organization Necessary.

First little King—"What's the matter in Bulgaria?" Second little King—"Prince Alexander has been deposed." "Was he given any warning?" "No." "Not even a week's notice?" "No, just kicked out." "Well, I think it's time us Kings had a trades-union."

Lots of Partners Do It.

From the Wall street News.

One of the partners in an Indiana grist-mill which has been closed up by the sheriff was explaining to a New Yorker the other day that it all came about through the good management of his partner.

"Good management in a failure," queried the Yorker.

"Exactly. We kept no books and no cashier. The one who was around the most pocketed the most money, and he managed to be around the most."

—So rapidly does lung irritation spread and deepen, that often in a few weeks a simple cough culminates in tubercular consumption. Give heed to a cough, there is always danger in delay, get a bottle of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup, and cure yourself. It is compounded from several herbs, each one of which stands at the head of the list as exerting a wonderful influence in curing consumption and all lung diseases.

Only One Inducement.

One of Pinkerton's men, who had followed a Chicago defaulter to Montreal, and was anxious to get him to return to the States, held out many promises in vain, and finally said:

"I not only think the case can be compromised, but you will be looked upon as an honest man."

"My dear sir, I was figuring for twelve long years to get hold of this boodle," was the reply, "and the only inducement you can hold out to me would be the promise to help me steal the portion I overlooked in my hurry to get away."

A Coming Pleasure.

From the New York Sun.

"Mr. Featherly," said Bobby, ignoring his mother's signal to keep still, "did you ever hear pa whistle?" "No, Bobby," laughed Featherly: "I never have had that pleasure." "Well, you will," went on Bobby; "he told me that he lent you $5 last night and that he expected to whistle for it."

A New Complaint.

From Youth's Companion.

Edith, 3 year's old, is sitting in the corner leaning her head on her hands and looking very miserable. Her mother inquires: "Aren't you well, Edith?" "Not very well, I dess." "What is the matter?" "I dot a tolic in my head, mamma."

—Skin diseases cannot be successfully treated by external applications. The proper way to cure such complaints is to purify the blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Under the vitalizing influences of this medicine all the functions of the body are brought into healthy action. d

Wiggins.

From the Savannah News.

His name is Wiggins, as it rhymes with Spriggins and the Milesian Higgins and such like fry;
He could beat an Ogeechee nigger in scientific figgerin' on the social status of a quadrilateral lie.

In solar science he could bid defiance to Sir Humphrey Davy or Guy Lussac;
He could form conjunction or other function without compunction, with Mars and Venus, that would beat Medina's, and other planets in the solar track.

His stock commercial was Hind and Herschel, Humboldt, Strabo, Kepler, Marius;
Astrology, biology, demonology, cyclonology, and the nebula in Sagittarius.

With well-planned fictions and shrewd restrictions he'd make predictions of wind and weather;
But all his guessing turned out distressing and as depressing as a much-soaked feather.

Now, heat telluric, and gas sulphuric, and throes usuric rend earth and rock;
So, Wiggins trying, his prophesying, his long tongue lying sets women crying, and strong men flying to avoid the shock.

But this seismologist, this Perkinitecologist, has now no apologist for his foolish prank;
His egregious blunder is a nine-days' wonder. He may go to thunder, the Canadian crank!

FIRED LIKE A HORSE.

Tom White's Broken Back and How It Was Cured.

Modern doctors say there is no cure for a broken back, and few would care to try the remedy that Jemmy Butler, the farrier, applied to Tom White, the whipper-in of Squire Bagelly of County Cork, about a hundred years ago, says the Asian. Tom had crushed his back leaping his horse into a gravel pit; the bone-setter said he was past all human skill, and Tom prayed that the priest might be sent for that he might confess his sins, as he had been a very great "tief." "Ah, don't be botherin' about your sowl," said Jemmy, "and I'll make your body whole again, and give you a better greasing than all the priests in the county if they should be seven years anointing you with the best salvation oil ever invented." Hearing this, Tom submitted to be bound stark naked, face downward, on the kitchen table in the form of the cross of St. Andrew, so that he could not stir a quarter of an inch. Then the horse doctor kneaded the spine as though he had been making dough, and marked the tenderest parts with chalk, the patient all the while roaring like a bull. After which he proceeded to apply a couple of red-hot irons, such as horses are fired with, upon the chalk marks. Nor were they used superficially, for the doctor took care that all the lines should be even and of the same depth, and he walked round and round admiring his handiwork, and putting a finishing touch where there was anything ragged in the outline. This part being finished to his satisfaction, he next used what was called the cold charge—that is to say, Burgundy pitch, black pitch, diachylum, Spanish fly, turpentine, whisky and other horrible compounds melted in an iron ladle, and laid on hot with a painter's brush, as they caulk a boat. On the top of four coats of this was sprinkled lambs' wool as thick as it would stick, until the patient's back looked like a sheep's, and on this was fixed a thin ash board, which was secured by nails driven into the charge, which was about an inch and a half thick. He was to sit stiff for seven days, till the charge dried upon him, and then lie down, if he could. After enduring the most diabolical torture for four months the charge detached itself, the cure was complete, and Tom White never felt the worse for the accident from that time. The narrator of this story says that seventy or eighty years ago it was a common occurrence for human beings in Ireland to be fired like horses for severe injuries to the back and spine, and were mostly cured by the operation.

CATARRH & CATARRHAL DEAFNESS
A NEW HAY FEVER TREATMENT
Sufferers are not generally aware that these diseases are contagious, or that they are due to the presence of living parasites in the lining membrane of the nose and Eustacian tubes. Microscopic research has proved this to be a fact, and the result is that a simple remedy has been formulated whereby these diseases are cured in from one to three simple applications made at home. THE T.L.C. CAN TRY AGAIN

AT LEAST THE LACROSSE COUNCIL SAYS SO BY 8 TO 7.

The Championship in Abeyance—Reports From Baseball Circles—The Handicaps for To-day's Races at Woodbine—Big Stake Races in England.

MONTREAL, Nov. 2.—The National Amateur Lacrosse Association Council gave their decision this afternoon on the championship question, and decided in favor of the Torontos by 8 to 7. The vote was as follows:

For Montreal—Beers, Hon. President; Woods, Montreal Junior; Allan, Cornwall; Guerin, President of the Association, Shamrocks; Seybold, Ottawa; Cleghorn, Secretary-Treasurer; M. L. C. Comstock, Brockville.

For Toronto—Ballantyne, Brampton; O'Laughlin, St. Catharines; Bailey, Ontarios; O'Mara, Peterboro; Fuller, Brantford; Craig, Mount Forest; Hamilton, Toronto; Curran, Young Shamrocks.

Except as regards Curran of the Young Shamrocks, to whom must be accorded in this case the honor of holding the much-coveted "balance of power," it will be seen that the vote was East against West. It is comforting, however, to know there is at least one man in the council from down below who is not governed by sectional feelings. The vote of Seybold, of the Ottawa Capitals, will be a disappointment to many up this way, but after all it cannot be doubted that the decision rests more on sentiment than on a strict interpretation of the rule. The smallness of the Montrealers in striving so strenuously to take advantage of a technicality probably disgusted the Westerners, whose opinion of the affair will not be changed when they come to analyze the Montreal vote. In the first place we have Dr. Beers, a man who holds an honorary permanent position by the grace of every club affiliated with the Association, and certainly should have no voice in the active work of the governing board unless specially requested by the unanimous consent of that board. Then we have Woods, a Montreal Junior. Next comes Allan of the Cornwalls, a gentleman who, being in Fort Macleod, N.W.T., can have but a hazy idea of the situation, and cannot possibly have read all the evidence, if any. Then there is Dr. Guerin of the Shamrocks, whose cardinal principle, as expounded by himself, was understood to be that the President should not vote except in the case of a tie. Seybold of the Ottawa Capitals makes the fifth, and Cleghorn, a member of the Montreal club and Secretary-Treasurer of the association, the sixth, and Mr. Comstock of Brockville, who it was thought would not vote, the seventh. Thus the Montrealers, although nominally beaten by one, looking at the character of the vote and bearing in mind that Dr. Beers, Cleghorn and Woods are members of their club, are in reality routed by the independent opinion of the Council, the Toronto having only one vote in themselves, no officers, no honorary president or president, and no junior representative. Altogether it must be confessed that the Montrealers appear in no enviable light, having proved themselves capable of taking advantage of every petty technicality both in maintaining the championship and in securing votes. Such tactics redound neither to the credit of the club nor of the game as one played solely by amateurs.]

Baseball News from Syracuse.

The Syracuse Standard of yesterday contained the following baseball news: "It is announced that Kappel, Watson and Crethers have signed with Cincinnati, and that Buckley, Marrand Hillman have not. It is thought that when Crothers signed he said that Buckley would doubtless sign also, as they had agreed to go together, and for this reason President Stern telegraphed prematurely that Buckley had signed. Buckley however has a mind of his own, and is evidently honorable if some other ball players are not. A letter was received from him yesterday in which he declares that as he promised to play ball in Syracuse, he will live up to his agreement. He says Cincinnati offered him $1500 for the season to catch Crothers, but he did not answer. Weyhing, one of the Southern League pitchers the Stars were after, has signed with the Philadelphias. The figures of batting averages of Southern League players for the past season are at last out. Larkin stands fifth in batting with an average of .294. Beard's average is .270, Shreve .267, Dickerson .253, Kappel .245, Shellhase .245, Andrews .243, Harbridge .240, Broughton .225, Bittman .192, Knouff .159, Weyling .143, Toy .141. Broughton's average as catcher is .953 and Shellhase's .943. Andrews stands fifth among first basemen, his average being .973. Bittman is third among second baseman with an average of .917. Kappel is third of third basemen, his average of .875. Beard's average at short is .893. Marr at right field has an average of .842. Weyling has the best record among pitchers, Knouff next.

"J. Say and Lewis will probably be on the Stars team next season.

"Veach of the Torontos has signed with the Louisvilles.

"Visner and 'Doc' Kennedy will probably be on the Rochester team next season. Rasbscroft tried to take Kennedy along to the Athletics."

Canadian Cricketers for England.

A plan is on foot to send a team of Canadian cricketers to England next summer. The party will leave next July and play ten games in the last two weeks of that month and the first half of August. The team will include Harley (Guelph), Ogden (Chicago), Boyd, Saunders, Vickers, A. Allan (Toronto), B. T. A. Bell (Montreal), Wright, Henry (Halifax), Burritt (Ottawa), and Gillespie (Hamilton). At least these are the most prominent names in Canadian cricket, and these gentlemen will be asked to go. As a fact, several of them have already agreed to join the party. The proposed matches are: Irish Gentlemen at Phœnix Park, Gentlemen of Scotland at Edinburgh, Royal Engineers at Woolwich, the two universities at Lord's, and the Oval, Manchester, Liverpool, Sheffield and one country match. The expenses will be about $500 per man. If the team spoken of will go, the cricketers should give as good an account of themselves on their trip as did the Americans, who have been in the last three matches defeated by a Canadian team made up of much the same material. The Canadians, should they go, will be warmly received, success in any matches they may play against the southern counties, where they will find good cricket, but not the strength that is developed in the middle and northern counties.—Hamilton Times.

How Thoroughbreds are Valued.

From the New York Mail and Express.

Where do all the race horses go to? This question is often asked by those who go to race courses. Each year about 500 thoroughbreds make their debut on the race course. About 10 or 15 per cent. of these young aspirants for turf honors are successful and the other 85 per cent. are lost to sight. Perhaps two or three, on account of the royal blood that runs through their veins, are sent to the stock farms, and others that are shapely and can show nice action are used for saddle horses. Some are set to draw buggies and carriages, but most of them drop to the level of an ordinary hack or cart horse, and after a few years of hard and thankless work serve as food for cats and dogs. If purchasers there is enough flesh on their bones for a purveyor of dog meat to trouble himself.

Thoroughbred horses, if successful on the race course, are of little use elsewhere. In drawing a wagon they fret and worry and want to run at the speed most natural to them, and rarely live long when put to hard work. A race horse that cannot win a race is the poorest piece of property in the world. But what become of those that run and win races? The average term of horses on the turf is five years. They commence racing as two-year-olds and very few remain on the course able to win races after they have reached the age of six years. After that time those who have been very successful in winning rich stakes and prizes for their owners are sent to stock farms and cared for during the remainder of their lives. Some of them are taken care of by the men who have grown rich on the earnings of their four-footed friend, and one in particular that is thus honored is old bald-faced Monitor. For years he successfully carried the popular orange and blue to the front, defeating the fastest racers that could be brought against him, and now that he is getting old and has lost his speed, Mrs. Lorillard says he shall have a home as long as he lives. He has a box stall at the Logest stables, and on fine days can always be seen eating the grass on one of the paddocks. Occasionally he gets frisky, and feels like running again; he will then canter to one end of the field and gallop across to the other, showing a little of his old-time dash and speed.

What a shout of applause used to greet old Parole when he galloped in ahead of a big field of race horses and added another prize to his millionaire owner's pocket. He is 13 years old now, and after twelve years campaigning he is used as a saddle horse, and on fine days can be seen cantering through the park. He swings his tail in the same manner as when making his old-time rushes in the last quarter of a race. Parole is the best son of Leamington, and Leamington, by the way, was a much despised horse and very little thought of until brought to this country. His dam was Maiden; he was foaled in 1873. He won more money for Mr. Pierre Lorillard, his owner, than any other horse. When a youngster he won rich stakes in this country, and in 1878 the master of Raccoos sent him to England. During the season of 1879 he started in eleven races, of which he won five, valued at $19,403. Among his wins were the Newmarket handicap, City and Suburban and great Metropolitan handicap at Epsom, the great Cheshire handicap at Chester and the Epsom gold cup. In 1880, in England, he won four races worth $1675, and later in the season he was sent back to America. In 1881 he started twenty-four times and finished first twelve times, winning $8625. Among his wins were the Westchester cup, when he beat Gildella, and the Manhattan handicap, when he carried 130 pounds and ran the mile and a quarter in 2.11. In 1882 he won eight races out of twenty-one starts, worth altogether $3025, and in 1883 he won seven times, and credited his owner with $6195. In 1884 he won more races and was then retired. Last year he was again brought out, but could only succeed in gaining second place, and was then retired for good.

To-Day at Woodbine.

The first race at Woodbine this afternoon will be called at 2.45 sharp. Following are the handicaps:

Hunters' Flat, 1½ miles—Cyclone 165 lbs., Blizzard 155, Statesman 140, Marchaway 140, Toronto 140.

Open Steeplechase, full course—Williams, 160 lbs., Viola 150, Wild Rose 150, Lennox 138, Toronto 135, Limerick 130.

Hunters' Steeplechase, short course—Cyclone 165 lbs., Driftwood 150, Viola 150, Standard 140, Limerick 135.

Open Handicap, 1½ miles—Bralt 125 lbs., Geo. L. 122, Wild Rose 120, Williams 112.

Big Stake Races in England.

Those who profess to see danger in the establishment of special valuable races in England, fearing that they will detract from the interest in the old-time events, will not find much comfort in the Racing Calendar of the 21st. At Derby five stakes are announced, to each of which £1000 is added. Three are for 2-year-olds, to run in 1887; one for 2-year-olds, to run in 1888, and one for 3-year-olds to run in 1889. The Kempton Park authorities announce a three-thousand-guineas handicap at a mile to be run May 6, 1887, and for the autumn meeting in October, 1889, a £5000 stake for then 2-year-olds. At Leicester a £1000 stake for 3-year-olds is announced for next July, with a similar race for the Spring Meeting in 1888, with £2000 added to the Zetland stakes for 1888, and £2000 for the Midland Derby for 3-year-olds in 1889. The Kempton Park Royal stakes of £10,000 which will be decided at the Spring Meeting in 1889 has closed with 254 nominations, including the Prince of Wales' Lovalier, an own brother to Paradox; also Ormonde and The Bard, both of which will then be 6 years old.

M. W. Ford a Professional.

President Thomas Clark of the Brooklyn Athletic Association thus declares Malcolm W. Ford, a member of the association and amateur champion all-round athlete, a professional:

"I visited Springfield, accompanied by Mr. Johnston. I there discovered that Mr. Ford, in his own handwriting, registered at what is now known as the American House as T. Williams, Baltimore, upon the 4th day of July, 1886, and was assigned to room 37; also that on the 5th day of July, in his own handwriting, he registered as T. Morton, Baltimore, and was assigned to room 34. I found that the man competing as T. Williams, Baltimore, won and received the first prize, viz., $15, in the running high jump, and the second prize, viz., $10, in the hundred yards dash at the professional games of the Springfield Caledonian Club on the 5th day of July, 1886. A copy of the tickets on which the money was paid I have in my possession. I also came in contact with a number of gentlemen, some residents of Springfield and others residents of other cities, who participated in the games, whose affidavits I have to the effect that they are personally acquainted with Mr. M. W. Ford, and it was he that competed under the name of T. Williams, of Baltimore, and won the prizes above mentioned. I have also received a statement in writing from a number of members of the Boston Caledonian Club, to the effect that Mr. M. W. Ford acted as assistant judge at their games, subsequent to the Springfield games, and that they attended the Springfield games and recognized Mr. Ford, the assistant judge at their games, as the man who competed at the Springfield games under the name of T. Williams. I have received several other letters which, while they are not in the light of direct proof, yet with the other information which I have received tend to confirm so thoroughly the statement made by Mr. George Ross in his affidavit that I am satisfied in my own mind that Mr. M. W. Ford is the man who competed at Springfield under the alias of T. Williams, of Baltimore, on the 5th day of July, 1886."

The Smith Benefit Fund.

Editor World: Can the Toronto Baseball Association or any of its members, or the late manager, Mr. Humphries, give a subscriber any information as to the amount received, or amount given to the mother of Mr. Smith, third baseman, who was drowned at the Island. I understand some charges are still due in connection with the benefit, and as no statement has ever appeared in the press, perhaps you might assist in letting us know.

General Notes.

The fight between Leblanche and Robinson is off. The former failed to put in an appearance at Circleville, O., where the fight was to come off, and the stake money of $800 was given to the Robinson party.

The Wanderers Bicycle Club opened their new rooms in the Arcade last night. The members of other city clubs were invited to join in the house warming. The rooms are nicely fitted up and doubtless will be much frequented during the winter.

It is reported that Mike Kelly, the famous Kelly of the Chicago White Stockings, will not play ball next season, because he has made over $100,000 speculating in wheat. He is good while between now and spring, and if Kelly sticks to wheat he may be mighty glad to play ball next season or do anything else to make a living.

The management of the Hamilton baseball team has already opened up negotiations with some first-class men to fill the vacant places on the team. If money can do it, Hamilton will have a team next year that will make it hard for another club to win—so it is said.—Hamilton Spectator.

The Georgetown (Demerara) Argosy says that at Hamilton the West Indian cricketers met their only defeat in Canada. The members of the team speak in the most appreciative terms of the warm reception they everywhere received and the lavish hospitality extended towards them from the time they arrived in Montreal until their re-embarkation at New York.

Samuel R. Stern, Attorney of the Syracuse Baseball Club, went to Cincinnati on Saturday to move for injunctions in the United States Court to restrain the Cincinnati Club from employing or playing certain players already under contract with the Syracuse Clubs. The managers of the Syracuse Club have determined this course to protect themselves against the clubs of the National League and American Association. Word was received at Syracuse on Saturday that A. A. Stern, the owner of the Cincinnati Club, had signed Crothers, Buckley, Bittman, Marr, Watson and Kappel, all of whom are under engagement with the Syracuse Club, and have advance money. Nothing has yet been heard at Syracuse from Lawyer Stern.

In the course of a few days Torontos' baseball team for next year will probably be announced. Another letter was received from Humphries yesterday asking for his release, but there are certain matters that he is required to settle up before any definite answer can be given. It is supposed he is anxious to sign with Rochester. Fantz and Kearns have signed with Toronto for next year to play first and second base respectively. Everybody will be glad to see Jay in his old position, for an honester, more conscientious, harder working player never stood on the diamond. Kearns has the reputation of being one of the same kidney. The nucleus of the team can, therefore, be pronounced good. The directors are expecting a letter by every mail from Manager Cushman, giving more information.

Business Notice.

Chas. H. Harrington & Son have just bought out the Reform Undertaking Establishment, 355½ Yonge-street, lately carried on by Foley & Wilks. Mr. Harrington, who has been in the business for over twenty years in one place, comes highly recommended as a practical Undertaker. His son has also been thoroughly posted in all branches of the profession, being for some time in the employ of the late John Young of this city. Their thorough business habits and personal knowledge will be a guarantee alone of satisfaction to their patrons. They have added largely to the stock and equipments of the already finely fronted store, and are in a position to supply all orders entrusted to them with accuracy and despatch. x

Boots That R Boots.

The cold damp weather is on us now, winter will soon give the "cold nip" to the toes, and people will be wondering where to get good and solid foot-wear. If they want a pointer on this question they'd better go to J. W. McAdam, corner Queen and Terauley-streets, where they will find one of the finest assortments of men's, ladies' and children's boots in the city, and at a price that will astonish every purchaser. Mr. McAdams sells one of the finest, most stylish and best made boots in the city, and at a price that downs any of his competitors. x

The Leading East End Dry Goods Store.

Fred. Spofford, the east end dry goods man, is just getting his store into shape, and gives the ladies a cordial invitation to patronize him: his large assortment of goods and the prices they are marked at cannot but please all purchasers. Mr. Spofford means to please and profit all his patrons, and he knows how to do it, by giving them value for their money every time. x

Do You Love a Good Cup of Coffee?

—Mara & Co., grocers, 280 Queen-street west, have made arrangements with the largest importers of fine coffees in New York to supply them with the choicest coffee, as sold by the leading retail grocers in that city. No such quality can be procured in the Dominion. Ground daily on the premises. 246x

—Rogers, the gents' furnisher, 346 Yonge-st., cor. Elm-st., has just received a fine stock of Cardigan jackets, which are being sold at prices to suit any purchaser. Splendid value in underwear. x36

A CRAZE FOR TRICYCLES.

Women are Taking Up the Three-Wheelers and Making them Popular.

"The craze for tricycles has started among the women folks," said a noted wheelman to a reporter for the New York Mail and Express, and he spoke at length of the benefits to be derived from a physical point of view. "'It is fine exercise when not indulged in to excess. Women are never moderate in their exercise like men. They cannot stand as much physical labor as men, yet they frequently attempt in the amusement line to do more. I don't think trioycling as healthy as the free, stand-up ride, you might say, on the bicycle. If the American woman would do more straight-out walking it would be far healthier than gigging around in a heavy-pulling tricycle. When roller-skating was a furor look how the girls overdid the thing called healthful exercise. They never knew when to stop, and continued violent exercise for hours at a time. The tricycle I confess is a better and more healthful medium of exercise for women than roller skating. They will carry it too far; tricycles will be everywhere, and the result will be it will be overdone, and the reaction will relegate the noble pastime to innocuous desuetude. Yes, let the tricycle become popular; our women will not walk. It is not amusing, but they can find sport in the three-wheeled 'calisthenic carriage.'"

Farewell to Rev. F. W. Bayley-Jones.

The members of St. Phillip's Church in Spadina-avenue bid farewell last night to their assistant clergyman, Rev. F. W. Bayley-Jones, who is about to return to England. During his stay in Toronto Mr. Jones has endeared himself to a large circle, especially those among whom he labored. He was always ready with a kind word and a kind deed for the poor, and many a mother struggling to raise her family in decency will miss his comforting assurances. The congregation and young people showed their regard for him in a substantial way. During the intermissions of a musical program Mr. Jones was presented with a silver pocket communion service in case, with an engraved address in book form, signed by the members of the congregation. The Bible Class gave him an Oxford Bible, and the C. E. T. S. presented him with a gold badge. Mr. Jones made a touching reply, dwelling upon the kindness and goodwill shown by the people of the congregation during the twelve months he had been with them. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the program. The rector, Rev. J. F. Sweeny, presided.

A Little Too "One-Sided."

The Presbyterian Banner thinks the Episcopal Church must cease to be Episcopal if Christian union is to be brought about. The plan of union proposed by the bishop (i. e., on the basis of the Scriptures as the revealed Word, the Nicene Creed, the two sacraments of Baptism and the Supper of the Lord, and Historic Episcopacy), it says, "is altogether too one-sided. It is useless to protest it, and it would be folly to discuss it. Let the Episcopal church go on and do all the good it can, and let other churches do the same, until more light dawns."

Ionic's New Officers.

Last night was election night with Ionic Lodge No. 25, G.R.C., and these officers were chosen: W.M., F. M. Morson; S.W., John Massey; J.W., G. S. Ryerson; Chaplain, Rev. H. W. Davis; Treasurer, A. R. Boswell; Secretary, R. L. Barrick; Tyler, John Pritchard; Auditors, J. B. Boomer and A. B. Broderick; Representative on Hall Trust, William Roaf. The lodge was honored with an official visit from R. W. Bro. John Ross Robertson, D.D.G.M.

Hindu Child Marriages.

From London Standard.

It is essential for the honor of a Hindu family of good caste, says a writer in a contemporary, that it should contain no unmarried daughter of mature years. The existence of such a daughter is not only a social disgrace, but a religious crime. When, therefore, a female infant is born, the first idea of her father's mind is not one of pleasure, nor perhaps of very active regret, but simply how to find a husband for her. It is not necessary that she should become a wife in our sense of the word. It suffices that she should be given in marriage, and go through the ceremony of the Seven Steps, which completes the religious rite. Aged Brahmans of good family still go about the country, marrying, for a pecuniary consideration, female infants whom they sometimes never see again. Without the memory of men still living this abominable practice was a flourishing trade. A Kulin Brahman, perhaps white-haired, half blind and decrepit, went the round of his beat each spring, going through the ceremony of marriage, with such female infants as were offered, and pocketing his fee, and perhaps never returned to the child's house. So long as he lived she could marry no other man; when he died she became a widow for life. The Hindu child-widow is looked upon as a thing apart and accursed, bearing the penalty in this world for sins which she has committed in a past existence. Her hair is cut short, or her head is shaved altogether, while she exchanges her pretty childish clothes for the widow's coarse and ugly squalid garment; she is forbidden to take any part in any village festival or family gathering; the very sight of her is regarded as an ill omen. Her natural woman's instincts are starved into insensibility by constant fasts, sometimes prolonged to seventy two hours. Amid the genial and brightly-colored life of the Hindu family she flits about disarrayed, silent, shunned, despised—in some parts of India a hideously bald object—without a friend or a hope. There are hundreds of thousands of widows in India who have acquiesced in their cruel lot. They accept with a pathetic faith and resignation the priestly explanation which is given to them. They penitently believe that they are expiating sins committed in a past life, and they humbly trust that their purifying sorrows here will win a reward in the life to come.

Favorite Gems.

From Town Topics.

I was chatting the other evening with Mr. Kunz, mineralogist of Tiffany's, and who, by the way, prepares the annual gem report for the U. S. Geological Survey, when the conversation turned upon some of the more recent favorites in the way of pierres de fantaisie, with which fashion delights in decorating itself. Said he: "One of the handsomest stones to which my attention has of late been directed is the 'Golden Beryl,' so named on account of its brilliant golden color. Everyone is familiar with beryls of one kind or another, the emerald and aquamarine for example. There are common and precious beryls. The latter are never found in sufficient quantity to lessen their gem value, and I have never seen one larger than six or eight carats. The Golden Beryls, of which I was speaking, are of the latter class, and are a native product coming from a mine recently discovered in the Berkshire Hills of Connecticut. In this, as in most instances, they are a by-product of mica deposits. These are by far the finest specimens I have seen." "Beryls of even a yellowish color," said Mr. Kunz, "are rare, much more so are those of such lustre, clearness and rich golden color as distinguish these from Connecticut. I doubt very much whether they will be unearthed in any considerable quantity, and I assume that this depoit will shortly be exhausted. In composition and crystallization they are identical with the emerald and aquamarine, save in the matter of coloring. In hardness they rank as eight, with the sapphire at nine, and the diamond at ten. They have a high degree of brilliancy. As a gem, they are new in the market, and are decidedly handsomer than the topaz. If fashion sets its fancy upon them, I can see no reason why they should not become at once very popular. As for diamonds, the poorer qualities are going down in value. The finer stones are as much prized as ever. Rubies were never in greater demand, nor commanded better prices. Artificial rubies have of late been sold in immense quantities, and it requires a clever expert to distinguish them from the genuine."

THE CLAIMANT VERY POOR.

Sir Roger Tichborne So Called Living in Poverty in This City.

From the New York World.

Confined to his bed in a small room over a Fourth-avenue store the Tichborne claimant moralizes over the bad advice of his English friends who persuaded him to come to America, where they said he could make money by exhibiting himself as a celebrity and reciting the story of his life and his two famous trials. Only thirteen persons attended his first lecture, and he appeared no more on the rostrum. For thirteen years his wife was a favorite at music halls in England, and she secured a week's engagement at a music hall here. Her sickness and the death of their child nearly or quite impoverished the man who has been a claimant to millions.

Thomas Castro, or Sir Roger Tichborne, as he styles himself, supported himself and wife by writing stories of life in Australia. A syndicate of twenty papers throughout the country published one of his stories, and by other similar works he kept his head above water.

Nine weeks ago the claimant was stricken with blood poisoning and has been a great sufferer. Had it not been for the St. George's Society it is hard to tell what would have befallen him.

"All I ask is health and a fair chance," the claimant said to a World reporter. "I have done hard work and am not afraid of it. What are my plans? Ah, that is a difficult question to answer, but anything honorable to keep myself and wife. I have just signed a contract, and sent it over to the other side agreeing to appear at Moss's Music Hall in Edinburgh on 'boxing day,' Dec. 27. I am to receive 50 guineas a week; but when I was there before I had £110 a week. I was foolish to come to America at all but everybody said I could get rich here, and I wanted money to re-open my case. Have I given it up? Not at all; and I never shall. As soon as I get back to England I shall apply at the Westminster Police Court for the arrest of Mr. Thomas, Solicitor of the Treasury Department; Inspector Clarke, who had charge of the case against me, and Inspector Williamson, also of the Scotland Yard detective force, for conspiracy. I have positive evidence that they packed the jury by which they secured my conviction. I was sentenced to fourteen years penal servitude, seven for saying that I was Sir Roger Tichborne, and seven more for denying that I was Arthur Orton. I spent ten years, seven months, seven days and four hours in prison, but that did not alter the facts, and I am now as ready to fight the case as I ever have been."

ROSINA VOKES' SERIOUS ILLNESS.

Little Hope That She Will Ever Return to the Stage.

From the Chicago News.

Miss Rosina Vokes's condition is more serious than is generally supposed. We admit a fear that we shall never again have the pleasure of seeing this gifted and charming woman upon the stage. A terrible mistake was made, we think, in allowing her to appear last Saturday evening. As soon as she came upon the stage it was apparent to all in the theatre that she was very ill. She was death-like pale; she was so weak that she could scarcely walk, her breathing was labored and she seemed totally unable to remember her lines. The few moments that she remained upon the stage were moments of deep anxiety to the people in the auditorium. It was painfully evident that the lady was about to break down and her brave effort to avert that break was simply pathetic. At last Miss Vokes struggled to her feet, attempted vainly to recall the lines that fell to her, put her hand over her heart as if in great pain, forced a smile that was pathetic, the greatest bit of acting she ever did, and saying: "No, I am trying, but I cannot, I cannot," she tottered off the stage andfell to the floor. The sigh that went up from the auditorium as soon as Miss Vokes abandoned her impossible task evinced the sympathy which all felt for the plucky little artist.

The people upon the stage did not suffer the progress of the play to be interrupted by this unhappy episode. Miss Agnes Miller took up Miss Vokes's lines at once and played Miss Vokes's part the rest of the evening. The reports that came from Miss Vokes's sick chamber yesterday were of a discouraging nature. It has been deemed best not to inform the public as to the seriousness of Miss Vokes's sickness, but the lady's condition is now so precarious that there is little hope that any good reason for concealing the truth, which is that, even though Miss Vokes may recover from this present attack, she will in all probability never be able to return to her profession.

A French Artist's Safety Lamp.

From an Exchange.

The unsuitableness of the Davy safety lamp for mines has become notorious, and a French inventor has supplied "perfidious Albion" with light on that subject. Now another French inventor has produced a lamp with which one may almost play ball, and yet escape alive. It is called the "lampe etoile," and as struck by the name of Darte is the devisee. He once lost his sweetheart burned down by the upsetting of a petroleum lamp, and he set to work to prevent such accidents for the future.

The great feature of his lamp is that the burning wick is not the same wick which dips into the oil reservoir. To this it owes its most absolute safety. There are two wicks, one which carries up the oil, and another pressed closely in contact with part of its surface, which supplies the flame by an ingenious system of passages. The inflammable gas, if any, which forms in the surface of the oil, is carried into the open air, and has no chance of reaching the flame except through the top of the lamp glass. By this time, however, it would be so attenuated that it would cease to be dangerous. The inventor knocked one down before the eyes of the London News correspondent and the flame was immediately extinguished. It actually looks as though M. Darte had got around the incendiary cook from the Emerald Isle with that last device, so if families who object to being roasted in their beds for their own breakfast will purchase these lamps and lock up the oil-can Biddy may at last be induced to light her fire in a legitimate way. The impossible has been achieved.
