After the ceremony the party mofored to the home of the bride's people, where a most sumptuous repast was supplied to personal friends and relatives, ably presided over by Mesdames Fawley, Arrowsmith, Corlett and Fowler. After the repast a grand reception and dance was held in the Club hall, the music being supplied by a select orchestra under the direction of Norman Patterson. COLEMAN WILL HAVE A CLOSED RINK THIS YEAR

Coleman, Sept. 26.—A meeting of those interested in a covered skating rink for Coleman met in the council chambers on Friday evening. There was a large turnout. Mr. Geo. Kellock was elected to the chair and Mr. Ed. McDonald acted as secretary of the meeting.

The sentiment of the meeting was strongly in favor of the project. A committee was appointed to canvas the citizens and find out the financial prospects. If everything goes well, the building will be proceeded with at once.—Lethbridge Herald.

REFORESTATION WITH B. C. SEEDS

It is not generally known that before the war agents of the German government sent a party of foresters out to British Columbia to secure fir cones for the seeding of logged-off lands in Germany. These men established a camp on Woodpecker Island, near Prince George, where their cabin still stands. They gathered a great shipment of fir cones which were shipped to Germany, the climate of the Fort George country being similar to that in the section of eastern Germany in which the reforestation operations were being conducted. For years after they had left, the Indians used to gather the cones and these were shipped to Germany by the Hudson's Bay Company.

Today the great scheme of reforestation in the British Isles has been aunched and the seeds to be used will come from British Columbia. The projeit has now reached the point where a plant for extracting seeds from the cones will be established in New Westminster, on the wharf of the public works department.

If, in this, the British Government is years behind the Germans, it has undertaken it with an astuteness equal at least to that of the Teutons, who chose a district somewhat similar in climate to the district in which the seeds were to be grown. The seeds for the British authorities is being gathered in the coast district of this province. The Douglas Fir is said to thrive in the Old Country, the assertion being made that it grows better than in its native land.—Veterans Weekly.

School boards throughout the province are co-operating with the Made-in-B.C. campaign committee by purchasing B. C. products and in other ways.

A check protecting machine invented and manufactured in British Columbia is being put on the market. It's feature is its simplicity and thoroughness.

The Vancouver Board of Trade unanimously passed a resolution urging that steps be taken by the Government at Ottawa to stop Oriental immigration.

Hard times are largely "a matter of mind." Remember the old story of the plague coming from Bagdad. "I killed some, but Fear killed the rest," he said. Do not anticipate hard times in B.C.. Let optimism rather than pessimism prevail.

LIFE INSURANCE AT ACTUAL COST

THE MUTUAL OF CANADA is so organized that it is actually selling life insurance at cost—the only old line company incorporated in the Dominion operating on that principle. Shareholders do not figure in the Mutual Life. There are no "middlemen." All surplus is credited solely to the policy-holders and is used for their exclusive benefit. These profits may be drawn in cash; they may be used to reduce the premiums or employed to purchase increased insurance. In any case the result is to reduce the insurance to a net cost basis. There are many other advantages in the Mutual system. Before placing your insurance get in touih with a "Mutual" agent—he will give you all details.

Spokane, Washington, golf players have been challenged by a team of four of Cranbrook's best male players to meet here during the tournament. It is to be hoped the Spokane golfers will accept the challenge and come over in force. The scenery was never better. Nature certainly has painted her prettiest gems during this month.

HITTING IS LITTLE HARDER THIS YEAR

It is not worth while to waste chunks of sympathy on the poor pitchers of the major leagues.

They haven't earned it, however much they like it. No one ran around the circles shedding tears for them in 1920, and no lively ball alibi was introduced to account for their being hit harder than in 1919.

For the sake of information and for proof that is worth something, a comparison again has been made between the pitching of 1920 and that of 1921. This time the game were taken between July 20th and the end of the month. That is a very fair period for comparison. In July pitchers are quite as good as they are at any time.

In 1920 there were 93 games in that period. The total number of base hits made in those games was 1,811. That was an average of 19 44-93 for each game.

In 1921 the total number of games played in the same period was 83, ten fewer than 1920, showing more postponements and possibly some fewer double-headers, but not effecting in the least the general average. The total number of base hits in 1921 was 1,648 or an average of 19 71-83 per game.

The difference between the bating of 1920 and 1921 is the difference between 71-83 and 44-93, which, for the sake of argument, might be called three-eights. The pitchers this year were hit three-eighths of a hit harder per game than they were in 1920. Wouldn't that shiver your timbers?

The truth is that a lot of squawking and complaining was turned loose by some managers who were not winning ball games and some pitchers who knew they were slipping.

The good citizens of Merritt have consented to a reduction in the strength of their police force.

RECALL FEATURES OF 1920 WORLD'S SERIES

NEW YORK, Sept. 25. — Baseball fans throughout the land have started their annual chatter-box, the speculative forerunner of every world's series, the post-season classic of the national pastime. Patrons of the sport are predicting one of the grandest series in history.

An average of 25,749 persons attended each game in the seven-game series played last year between the Brooklyn Nationals and the Cleveland Americans. The American League team, led by the famous Tris Speaker defeated Brooklyn five out of the seven games. Three contests were played in Brooklyn and four in Cleveland.

The results of the 1920 series follow:

Stanley Covleskie won three games for Cleveland, the first, fourth and seventh and gave but two bases on balls in all of them. He allowed the Brooklyn batters five hits in the first game, one of which was a two-bagger by Zack Wheat. In the second game he also allowed the Dodgers five hits, one a two-bagger by Griffith, the Brooklyn right gardener. The third was another five-hit game, with no extra base wallops.

The most striking feature of the series was the triple play made by Wambganss, unassisted, in the fifth game played at Cleveland on October 10. Wamby took Mitchell's line drive touched second from which Kilduff had started for third, then touched Miller in person as he raced toward second.

Ivy Olson, Brooklyn shortstop, Pete Kilduff, Brooklyn second baseman, and Wamby, Cleveland second sacker, went through the series without an error, Olson had 12 put-outs and 20 assists; Kilduff, 15 put-outs and 28 assists; Wamby, 22 put-outs and 17 assists.

RECORD CROWD WATCH CLEVELAND-NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—A total of 141,000 persons—a new attendance for four consecutive baseball games—passed the turnstile to see the New York-Cleveland series just finished at the Polo Grounds. The figures made public today by Ed. Barrow, business manager of the Yankees did not include 1,500 "dead heads" per day so that the number of persons who actually saw the games was 147,000.

The best world's series attendance record was in 1912 when 136,996 fans witnessed the first four games between the New York Giants and the Red Sox.

Every possible effort is being made to bring the wheat crops of Alberta and Saskatchewan through British Columbia for shipment this year.

BALTIMORE WON PENNANT WITH 119 VICTORIES

BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 26.—Baltimore has made baseball history this season in the international league closing the season with 119 victories, the most ever scored in a league. The old record was 116, made by the Chicago Cubs in 1906.

In the second game today Pack Ogden pitched his thirty-second win of the year, tieing the old mark set up by Rube Vickers many years ago in the Eastern league.

Among other features this year Orioles tied the record of 27 straight games in the Texas League. Orioles will leave Wednesday for the west to engage the pennant winners of the American association, which will probably be Louisville in the little world series championship.

The standing of the teams in the international league at the close of the season is:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
Baltimore	119	47	.717
Rochester	100	68	.595
Buffalo	99	69	.589
Toronto	89	77	.536
Newark	72	92	.439
Syracuse	71	96	.425
Jersey City	59	106	.358
Reading	56	110	.337

Final phases of the project for the establishment of a large pulp and paper mill at Prince George will be discussed with the Government early in October. It is anticipated that the plant will be gone ahead with at an early date.

PAST WORLD'S SERIES FREAKS AND THRILLS

NEW YORK, Sept. 26. — Unusual plays, brilliant performances of individual players and freakly things have entered into many of the series for the world's baseball championship. Such occurrences are recalled each year in fandom and lend to the speculative interest in the championship games about to be played.

1908

The outstanding features of the series of 1908, in which the Chicago Cubs defeated the Detroit Tigers, was the hurling of Pitchers Overall and Brown of the Cubs, Overall won two games, the second, in which he allowed the Tigers four hits and won six to one; and the fifth in which he allowed three hits and won two to nothing. Brown shut out the Tigers in the fourth game, three to nothing, the Tigers getting but four hits of his weird delivery.

1909

In 1909 "Babe" Adams, the veteran Pittsburg hurler, won three games for the Pirates, the first, fifth and seventh, against Detroit. Hans Wagner, the Pirate shortstop, played brilliantly, as did Moriarity, the Detroit third-sacker.

1910

Bender and Coombs pitched and won the entire series for the Athletics against the Cubs in 1910. Coombs won all three games in which he started and Bender won one and lost one. Eddie Collins performed brilliantly afield and at bat for the Mackmen. The Cubs were favorites to win in the series.

1911

The home runs of Frank "Home-Run'" Baker contributed largely to the Athletics' victory over the Giants in the series of 1911. In the second game Baker's homer put the Athletics in the lead and his homer in the third game tied the score after the Giants appeared to have the game on ice.

1912

Thrills aplenty were had in the 1912 games between the Boston Red Sox and the New York Giants. In the eighth game at Boston, on October 16, the score was tie in the ninth. The Giants scored one in the tenth and led. Harry Hooper robbed them of a run that may have staved off defeat by leaning over the fence and taking Doyle's long hit which would have been a homer. Then disaster befell the Giants in Boston's half. Snodgrass muffed a long fly by Engle who batted for Wood, the Boston hurler, whose hand was injured in the previous inning when he stopped Catcher Myer's hard liner. Engle took second on the muff. Snodgrass then made a magnificent catch of Hooper's fly which seemed good for three bases. Mathewson tried all his cunning to strike out Yerkes, and failed, Yerkes walking. Speaker hit the first ball pitched for an easy foul which should have been caught by first-baseman Merkle. As it occured later, by capturing this foul Merkle would have saved the game for the Giants, for Speaker singled, sending Engle across the pan with the tieing run. Yerkes stopped at third. Gardner sent a long sacrifice fly to Devore and Yerkes sped across with the winning run.

1913

In 1913, the Athletics won from the Giants again. One of the bright spots in this series was the great pitching duel between Mathewson of the Giants and Plank of the Athletics, in the second game. The Giants won in the tenth innings, batting Plank for three runs, Barry, Collins and Baker, the great Athletic infielders, performed well. Bender pitched Philadelphia to victory in two games.

1914

The Boston Braves, who have made a great fight in the National League and won their way from the cellar to the pennant, upset all dope in 1914 by winning four games straight from the world's champion Athletics. Little John Evers pulled one of the greatest bone-head plays in world's series history in the tenth inning of the third game. With the bases full, Baker hit a hard grounder to John. John juggled the ball and looked dumb while two men crossed the plate.

1915

The hitting and fielding of George Duffy Lewis featured the 1915 series between the Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia Nationals. He drove in Speaker with the only run in the eighth inning, first game. In the fourth game his two-bagger sent across the winning run for Boston in the sixth inning. He collected three of his team's six hits off Alexander in the third game which the Sox won in the ninth on his single which drove in a run. More than 43,000 persons witnessed the game.

1916

Harry Hooper, of the Boston Red Sox, the same player who saved his team in the series of 1912 by catching Doyle's long hit as it went over the fence, played a brilliant game for his team in the series of 1916 against Brooklyn he batted .333 and played sensational afield. His hits were all timely and contributed to the Red Sox victory.

"Babe" as a Hurles

"Babe" Ruth, now the home run champion and member of the New York Yankees, pitched the Red Sox to two victories over the Chicago Cubs in 1918. Tyler's pitching and hitting also helped the Sox to win the series. Carl Mays, who also is a member of the Yankees this year, won two games for Boston by his airtight hurling.

Last year the triple play made by Wambganss of Cleveland in the fifth inning of the fifth game against Brooklyn; Elmer Smith's homer with three on in the first inning of the fifth game and Bagby's homer with two on in the fourth inning of the same game were features. Speaker the Cleveland manager, played well.

LOUD HORNS FAVORED BY HUDSON MAXIM

The automobile horn that makes the loudest noise has found a warm advocate in Hudson Maxim, the inventor of the silencer for guns, whose device raised among innumerable persons irritated by noises the hope that the silencer might some day be applied effectively to garrulous human beings. His advocacy of the loud and startling signal for automobiles was made known by Mr. Maxim recently at a gathering of inventors in the offices of Dr. Miller Reese Hutchinson, former chief engineer to Thomas A. Edison. Dr. Hutchinson is the inventor of a very well known automobile horn.

Mr. Maxim regarded as an authority on the subject of noise and anti-noise devices by the younger inventors, who look upon him somewhat as their dean, did not mince any words when he took issue with judges and zealous crusaders against loud automobile signalling devices and other noise producers intended for warning those who may step into the path of danger.

"When a man steps in the way of an approaching automobile," said Mr. Maxim, "he ought to be startled. If he isn't startled he is sure to be run down and probably killed or fatally injured simply because he didn't make any particular effort to get out of the way of danger. Efforts have been made by all kinds of well-meaning persons to suppress the loud automobile signalling devices, but they are in error, and if they stopped to think they would realize that the loudest and most startling sound that can be produced by a motorist as a warning signal is the very thing which is so necessary nowadays. Indeed, it should be compulsory for motorists to equip their cars with the most nerve-racking sound producers, instead of instruments that emit soft and sothing sounds. For the latter are the kind that gives the person in danger a false sense of security by soothing his feelings, and he is all the more likely to stay in the path of an approaching automobile so equipped for signalling and be killed.

"On the other hand, if a man is in the path of a moving automobile and a harsh and loud noise is produced to warn him of danger, his first impulse is to jump, and in 99 cases out of a hundred he will jump to safety if warned in time.

"That the startling noise is the best as a warning signal is confirmed by a study of the elemental laws which govern the lives of lower animals. Animals of prey have developed a sense which tell them that it is wrong to make any harsh noise that will warn their intended victims of their approach. Hence the tiger and the panther and similar beasts attack their victims with the greatest stealth.

"Compare their methods of attack with that of the bull. The latter animal makes all the noise he can. He does a great deal of bellowing and cavorting before he charges his victim, and the latter can generally manage to get out of the way in ample time if he wants to avoid being gored."

Mr. Maxim was commended for his views on the subject of the loud automobile horn, and not one of his associates took issue with him.

LIFT YOUR CORNS OFF WITH FINGERS

Tells how to loosen a tender corn or callus so it lifts out without pain.

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn or callus the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, lifts off with the fingers.

Freezone dries the moment it is applied, and simply shrivels the corn or callus without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but will positively rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or hardened callus. If your druggist hasn't any freezone he can get it at any wholesale drug house for you.

THE BRITISH OIL FIELDS

How little foundation there was for the report which was being widely circulated in American newspapers last year that Great Britain was fast gaining a monoply of the oil-producing areas of the world and was straining every nerve to shut out the United States from foreign sources of supply, is shown by a memorandum on the petroleum situation sent by the home government to Sir A Geddes at Washington in April last, but made public only a few days ago. The memorandum shows that while next to the United States Great Britain is the largest user of oil in the world, only 2 per cent. of her total supplies come from Britain and British possessions, 30 per cent. from foreign countries other than the United States and 68 per cent. from the United States.

Dealing with the alleged "closed door" policy of Britain in respect of petroleum supplies the memorandum states that in the United Kingdom there is no ban whatever on exploitation of possible oil-bearing fields by non-British companies. In some parts of the Empire leases are restricted to British subjects, but in others there are no restrictions whatever. Where they do exist they have been imposed as self-defensive measures similar to those made by other countries.

As to the criticism levelled at the British Government in respect to its holdings in the Persian oil fields it is pointed out that the government has no connection with the rights and concessions of the Anglo-Persian Oil Company, whose activities gave rise to the recent outcry in the United States press in regard to British aggression in the world's oil fields. As a matter of fact, that outcry was evidently part of the campaign of propaganda against Great Britain which is in continual operation in the United States and which never misses an opportunity to distort facts to its purpose. Well-informed people in the United States must have been quite aware of the trute situation, but the object, of course, was to persuade the great mass of the people that Britain was shaping her oil policy with a view to repressing the industry and commerce of the United States and to the ultimate establishment of a trade supremacy over the rest of the world. The memorandum effectively disposes of such an idea, but while it may set at rest American suspicion, it is not pleasant for the people of the Empire to find that they are so far behind in the production and control of a mineral which is becoming an essential in industry. The publication of such facts brings out in strong relief the importance of discovering and developing oil fields throughout the Empire, so that Great Britain as well as every other part of it shall be made independent of foreign sources of petroleum. In the light of such a consummation the work going on in our own northern fields and in other parts of Canada assumes a new value. We cease to view them merely as an Eldorado, where adventurous spirits may rise quickly to fabulous wealth and which may increase population and eventually contribute millions to the revenues of the country, and come to regard them as a not unimportant factor in the continuance of the greatness of the Empire and the progress of the Anglo-Saxon race.—Vancouver Province.

HEILMAN CAPTURES AMERICAN LEAGUE BATTING CHAMPIONSHIP

NEW YORK, Oct. 3.—Harry Heilman, Detroit's slugging outfielder, won the 1921 batting championship in the American league by .0003 of a point, according to unofficial figures made public today.

Heilman's boss, Manager Ty. Cobb, gave him a merry chase for the title. They were virtually tied when the season closed yesterday, with .390 but the figures when carried out to four percentage points gave Heilman .3904 and Cobb .3901.

Ruth New York, was third with .377, Sisler, St. Louis, last year's champion, fourth, 371, and Speaker, Cleveland, fifth, .357.

Roger Hornsby the St. Louis Cardinals' star second baseman, topped the National league batters with .398 the unofficial figures showed. Rousch, Cincinnati, was second this year with .352, Cruise of Boston third with .349, McHenry of St. Louis fourth with .348, and Meusel, New York, fifth with .343.

FERNIE MAN MURDERED

John Coward, at one time a well-known citizen of Fernie and member of the firm of Coward and Son, doing business here about fifteen years ago, was brutially murdered near Carbon, last week, where he was interested with G. G. Jewel of Hanbury, in a coal mining property. The Calgary Herald contains the following account of the terrible affair.

Though detectives and constables of the Alberta provincial police are working diligently on the case, no definite clue has yet been discovered leading to the identity of the assassin or assassins who murdered John C. Coward, well known mine owner and manager, Wednesday night near the town of Carbon.

Inspector William Brankly, of the A.P.P., returned Thursday night from Carbon, where he went to investigate the circumstances of the murder. Mr. Brankley said that the examination by Dr. Fawder, the coroner, showed that Mr. Coward had been shot three times through the head.

Two of the bullets entered at the base of the victim's neck, on the right side, and a third one struck him on the right side of the head, at the base of the nose. The bullets ranged upward, showing that the weapon was held considerably lower than the man's head when it was fired. One of the missiles came through just under the scalp and when extracted was found to be a .38 calibre soft nose bullet, evidently from a revolver. That the weapon was a revolver and not an automatic pistol is indicated by the fact that no empty shell were found in the vicinity, such as would have been ejected and flung on the ground from an automatic pistol.

As stated in the news, Thursday, none of Mr. Coward's possessions were disturbed. His watch and chain were in his pockets together with $110 in bills, and a cheque for $400.

Inspector Brankley said that all the evidence showed that the assassin must have been sitting in the automobile alongside Mr. Coward when the attack was perpetrated. The machine is a left hand drive and the wounds being on the right side of the dead man's head indicated that they were fired by a person sitting next to him.

Mr. Coward had left the Peerless Carbon coal mine, of which he was the new manager and part owner, at 7 o'clock in the evening. He bade a number of men employed at the mine "good night" as he drove away by himself, and that was the last seen of him alive.

When the body was discovered sitting in the automobile at the cross roads, about a mile from town, by his wife and George Dustin, who had gone out to search for him, the car was partially concealed in a small coulee through which the road runs at this point. There was no brush or bush of any kind in the vicinity, but owing to the dip in the road into the gully the particular spot offered effectual concealment for the commission of such a crime.

Just before Bert Stringer and G. G. Jewel, partners with the late Mr. Coward in the Peerless Carbon coal mine left for Carbon Friday morning. Mr. Stringer informed the Herald that they had found what they thought might be a new clue and they were motoring to Carbon to make a thorough investigation.

"What is your theory as to the murder?" Mr. Stringer was asked.

"I do not believe it was committed by foreigners or by others working around the Carbon mines. I believe it was due to 'higher-ups'."

"What do you mean by 'higher-ups'?" The Herald asked.

I" mean that the crime was committed by a person or by persons higher up than foreigners—by a person or persons of a better class.

Mr. Stringer did not feel at liberty to go into details until he had prosecuted the inquiries he had in mind.

"Did the murderer have an auto?"

"That we cannot say. It is a point we are trying to get light on, but, so far, we have not been able to determine whether he had a car or whether he was on foot, or whether he was in Mr. Coward's auto. We have very little to go on as a matter of fact.

"We do know that the murder was committed about 7:30 in the evening, for Mr. Coward left John Gallagher, another of the directors at the mine at 7 o'clock and he had only a mile and a half to go to reach his home in Carbon. In fact the lights of his car were seen by Mrs. Coward, who was watching from a window for him as he was later than usual. Mrs. Coward saw that the lights were remaining stationary and after several anxious hours she called on George Duncan, a neighbor and an employee of the mine, to go with her to see if they could locate her husband. They found the car with the lights still on and Mr. Coward's dead body reclining in the front seat. The police were immediately informed but definite clues could not be picked up. It was a complete mystery.

"We cannot understand why the deadly attack should have been made on Mr. Coward but we are determined to make every effort to discover the assassin. Mr. Coward had no enemies that we knew and the whole affair is inexplicable to us."

Mr. Stringer stated that Mr. Coward's body had been brought to Calgary but that funeral arrangements would not be made until word had ben received from his father at Brantford, Ontario.

Mr. Coward had taken charge of the Peerless mine several weeks ago, Mr. Stringer added, and, the first shipment of coal from it was to have been made Saturday, October 1. The Peerless mine was a subsidary company of the Carbon Fuel and Power Company.—Calgary Herald.

MURDER CHARGE LAID AGAINST JOHN GALLAHER

CARBON, OCT. 6. — From the strength of the evidence adduced at the inquest into the death of John G. Coward mine operator, formerly of Brantford, Ont. held here today a charge of murder has been laid against John Gallagher another mine operator of this district.

"The evidence of several witnesses was taken during the morning session. Chief among these was "Teddy" Bolan, a miner who lives at the Gallagher mine. This witness stated that Gallagher was in Coward's car about seven p.m. on September 28, when it is alleged Coward was shot to death on the trail within half a mile of the Bolan shack."

AMERICAN CONSULAR SERVICE, FERNIE, B.C.

Oct. 3rd, 1921.

The American Consulate at Fernie is advised that Europeans who have resided in Canada for at least one year immediately preceeding application for admission to the United States are not subject to the Act of Congress of June 6th, 1921, entitled, "An Act to Limit the Immigration of Aliens into the United States," and may be admitted though the quota of their country for that year has been exhausted. They can, however, unless British subjects, only be admitted to the United States only upon a passport issued by the appropriate officer and visaed by the American Consul. To secure his visa the applicant must appear personally before the Consul.

BIG WATER WHEELS ARRIVE

Sunday brought the second Water Wheel of the British Columbia & Alberta Power Co., Ltd., into Fernie. The first having arrived during the middle of the preceeding week; this machinery having completed successfully 95 per cent of its journey to the company's plant at Bull River, where it will be used to harness the water at Bull River Falls, and make this power, which has been wasted for centuries, available from Cranbrook to Bellevue.

These wheels are of such size that the largest casting weighs 15 tons, and must be moved 7 miles from the station at Bull River over mountain roads on building mover's trucks.

This is but one indication of the approaching completion of the company's undertaking. Work at Bull River is being driven at top speed. Pumps are being driven at Bull River night and day to keep the water clear for the two gasoline concrete mixers which are pouring the concrete for the company's power house and dam. A steam driven derrick moves stone at the dam. The 7 foot diameter pipe line, into which about two-thirds of Bull River at low water will be turned, will soon be stretching itself like a mammoth snake at 200 feet per day between the dam and power house.

On the 125 miles of transmission line, work is also being driven ahead rapidly. Poles are being set at the rate of four miles per day, and the rest of the work is progressing so rapidly that it is expected by the company that the line will be 75 per cent complete by the 15th of November.

By the above it may be seen that the British Columbia & Alberta Pow-Co., Ltd., is one of the largest employers of men in this locality, there being 110 men employed on the transmission line alone.

All the way from Cranbrook to Bellevue the rapid approach of the power which has so often been promised but until this time has been wasted, is being watched with the greatest interest. The time may easily be forseen when the coal mines and other big industries of the Pass will no longer be marked by a forest of smoke stacks, but rather will be seen electric sub-stations, and the noise of rushing steam will be replaced by the quiet hum of electric motors.

CONSERVATIVES ELECT OFFICERS

A very enthusiastic gathering of local supporters of the National Liberal Conservative Party took place in Victoria Hall last evening.

Sherwood Herchmer occupied the chair and spoke for about fifteen minutes defining the political situation as it stands throughout the Dominion today.

The following officers were then elected:

Hon. Pres.: Hon. Arthur Meighen.
Hon. Vice Pres: Hon. W.J. Bowser
President: D J. Harvie.
Vice President: Dr. J. E. Gee.
Sec.-Treas.: D. F. Markland

Executive: T. Prentice, M. Tully, Robt. Johnstone, J. R. Wallace, J. Aeillo, H. Wilkes, S. Herchmer, A. B. Trites, D, Nicoletti, Geo Cody, S. Graham, P. Carosella, G. F. Johnson, Chas. Sanderson, J. F. Spalding, T. Kennedy, J. H. Marshall, W. W. Brown, G. G. Moffatt, John McAlpine, A. C. Liphardt and A. T. Hamilton.

The following delegates were then elected to attend the nominating convention to be held at Invermere on Monday next: J. McAlpine, Robt, Johnstone, A. B. Trites, S. Herchmer, Jas. Corbett, J. R. Wallace, Dr. Gee, S. Graham, T. Prentice, J. Letcher, H. Brown and Mrs. S. Herchmer.

EDUCATIONAL MEETING

Few enterprises can exceed in educational value for those who have left school, union for the study of subjects of common interest. It was in this way that the modern University began in the middle ages. Lectures, discussions, debates and papers on subjects of interest occupied the students time. There is a great need for a similar institution in Fernie. Therefore a meeting to discuss plans for the formation of a society with the proposed name, Fernie Educational and Social Union will be held on Monday evening. Oct. 17, at 8 o'clock in the Council Chambers. Let everyone interested attend this meeting.

BIG CAST IN NEW STEWART FILM

Anita Stewart the inimitable heads the list of players who appear in "Plaything of Destiy" the Assosiated First National Pictures attraction which is coming to the Orpheum Theatre, Wednesday and Thursday next.

Herbert Rawlinson, Walter McGrail Grace Morse and William V. Mong are a few of the best-known players having supporting parts in the production and in addition the star competes for first admiration with little Richard Headrick, the three-year old boy, who made such a pleasing impression as the crippled child in "The Woman in His House."

"Playthings of Destiny" should be one of the most entertaining pictures which that theatre has shown this season. The story upon which it is founded "The Tornado," by Jane Murfin, is as dramatic as anything that has been written in the last decade.

The name of Paul Anthony Kelly as the scenario writer is a guarantee that the preparation of the story for picturization has ben done in a masterly way, and with Edwin Carewe directing the result is a foregone conclusion.

FOOTBALL

BLAIRMORE vs. FERNIE

Blairmore met the Fernie boys at the north end grounds on Sunday last, in the semi-finals of the Crahan Cup. The visitors were fortunate to win the toss and even greatly favored by the wind and the sun. After ten minutes play, both sides playing a strong game, Blairmore scored, through a bluder on the home backs, the shot giving the goal-keeper no chance at all. During the rest of the half the game was evenly contested, although the Fernie boye missed some good chances to tie up with their opponents.

The second half commenced with re-arranging their players, and with the advantage of the wind pressed the visitors right up to the finish, although they were unable to score. About 15 minutes before finish the home boys succeeded in putting one in the net, but the referee gave a foul and consequently the goal was disallowed. The visitors played a very good defence although they repeatedly kicked out to save when being strenusously pressed.

The Fernie boys were lacking in good organization, and whilst individuals were playing a very good game, their play in general was short of real enthusiasm.

Blairmore and Coleman meet at Hillcrest on Saturday to play off in the final of the Cup.

Coal Creek are due in Corbin, but they are trying to arrange the game probability Corbin will accept their invitation.

The League Secretary, A. J. Carter, is leaving tonight for Hillcrest with the Crahan Cup. Fernie boys hope to see it back again next season.

SCALLOP BEDS MAY EXTEND TO THE COAST OF GASPE.

While intense interest is being taken in a survey of the scallop beds about the shores of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, which is in progress this season under the direction of Andrew Halkett, Naturalist of the Fisheries Department, word comes of evidence of this valuable fishery may extend to the shores of Gaspe Peninsula.

A fishery officer who recently visited Gaspe found a considerable number of live scallops washed ashore at Corner-on-the-Beach. He discovered that the natives of the place have often found scallops washed ashore, but had never identified them as such nor been aware of their commercial value.

It is of interest to note that the scallop catch last year, amounting to 8,131 gallons, was disposed of for $28,848. This branch of the fishing industry is exceedingly remunerative and there is always a ready demand for the commodity. The Gaspe coast has for years been specializing largely in dried fish and the discovery of the scallops there should make it worth while for fishermen to look into the possibilities of this sideline.

A RED CROSS APPEAL FOR PEACE

In virtue of a higher law and duty, and of principles above the level of human passions, the helping hand of the Red Cross was stretched forth to all victims throughout the ordeal of the Great War.

Today, the Red Cross owes it to itself and to all its workers to proclaim as an ideal and a practical intention, a struggle against the horrors of war, an attempt by world-wide help and unselfishness definitely to abolish war.

The mere continuation of Red Cross activity in time of peace will no longer suffice. It is the wish of the Red Cross to work in the interest of peace.

Therefore, the Red Cross calls upon all whole-hearted citizens, irrespective of nationality, religious belief, profession, or social rank, to join, as far as lies in their power in a systematic campaign against that spirit of war, which is a constant menace to the world's peace.

During five years, millions of men were killed or mutilated. Today thousands of ex-soldiers or prisoners at last set free bear indelible marks of bodily and mental suffering. All of them believed that the generations to come would reap the fruits of the great ordeal in a new international life, which would be more brotherly, franker and more full.

Instead, disorder and uncertainty, distrust and greed, hatred and the threat of fresh quarrels are re-appearing throughout the world. The spirit of war, unconquered, reigns supreme. Its sinister influence is evident. It inspires lines of policy and press campaigns, which lead public opinion astray and embitters the economic competition among nations.

During the terrible years of the recent war, superhuman efforts were required of the different nations. In order to inspire such sacrifices, a supreme reward was promised—namely, the annihilation of this same spirit of war, which is a peril as old as the world and a constant menace to mankind.

Thus the generation yet unborn would have been delivered from the scourage at the price of the suffering which the war entailed. This hope sustained nations and armies.

Have they hoped in vain?

Have millions of lives and the wealth of nations been sacrificed in vain?

At the suggestion of Senator Ciraolo, chairman of the Italian Red Cross, the tenth International Red Cross Conference, which met at Geneva on April 1st, 1921, voted the following resolution:

"The International Committee of the Red Cross and the League of Red Cross Societies shall address an appeal to all nation, exhorting them to combat the spirit of war, which dominates the world."

These two organizations call therefore on nations and individuals to fight with all means in their power this maleficent spirit. May statesmen, writers, school and University capital and labor remember that it is their duty, in the interest of mankind, to help peace conquer the earth. Above all, children should be brought up in this fundamental belief.

It is essential that the human mind should once more be open to the broad lines of an internationalism, which, while allowing the citizen to love his town and the patriot his country, teaches all men to respect the existence and the rights of their fellows, by bringing into the daily the individual light of a justice, which is to be in all the world for all the time.

This true internationalism cannot be attained without the active and intimate co-operation of governments, parliaments, voluntary organizations, the press, the clergy, and above all, national Red Cross Societies. To the union of these forces must be added a supreme factor: the power of individual conviction. Every man, as far as lies in his power, must contribute to make peace permanent in the world.

The individual must no longer see the world in the light of his own selfishness, anger, fear, and human passion, but in a spirit of concord and mutual aid.

Thus only can a better future be prepared.

Faithful to the ideal which inspired its founders, and which it has ever served, the Red Cross hereby declares before the world, that its work does not end with war. The Red Cross appeals to the heart of all mankind, that each individual may find in himself the needful strength and determination to make and keep universal peace.

Veteran of Civil War Still Hale and Hearty

GEORGE D. SHAW, Springfield, Mass.

"To say that I feel twenty-five years younger, twenty-five years healthier and twenty-five years stronger express what Tanlac has done for me better than any other way I can put it," said George D. Shaw, veteran of the Civil War, who now lives at 321 Walnut Street Springfield, Mass.

"I am now seventy-eight years old and I don't hesitate to say I have never known medicine to equal Tanlac. For fifteen years I was subject to attacks of indigestion that were so bad at times I would have to lay up for a week or two. For a long time I lived on crackers and milk alone as nothing else agreed with me.

"When I started on Tanlac I weighed only one hundred and seventeen pounds and my days were thought to be numbered. I've been so wonderfuly built up, I now weigh one hundred and forty-three pounds and my stomach is as sound as a dollar. In fact, I believe I could eat the old army rations again without it hurting me in the least.

"I never miss a chance of saying a good word for Tanlac and I would like to urge the boys of the 'Sixties' who are not feeling right to give it a trial, for I am sure it would put them in line again just as it did me. For a man of my age to have no physical ailment, to be well and strong and enjoy life as he did twenty-five years ago, is certainly something to be thankful for and there is nothing too good I can say for Tanlac."

OLD ENGLISH ESTATES BROKEN UP BY TAXES

The auctioneer's hammer is rattling ominously in England. The decentralization of large ownerships accelerated on both sides of the Atlantic since the war is appearing now in the break-up of ancient estates.

Heavily increased taxation on land accompanied by costs of upkeep far in excess of increases in returns from rentals makes the holding of large tracts of land not only an unprofitable but also a losing proposition. In 1920 one firm of auctioneers alone sold 349,695 acres of country property. This year thousands of acres of old estates are being sold weekly.

All England has just been startled by the anouncement that the Duke of Portland made in an address to his tenants to the effect that his family can hardly hope to continue even another generation the possession of his famous country seat, Weibeck Abbey. This ancient estate, dating from 1154, is especially known for its great amount of underground passages and rooms. What seemed likely to necessitate the break-up of his estate, the duke said, was the high death duty, known in America as the inheritance tax. This, in England, for estates valued at more than $10,000,000, is 40 per cent.

The Duke of Portland is only one of many. The Duke of Bedford recently made public the statistics of the taxes and charitable gifts, which were practically, if not actually, obligatory, the estates actually lost some $25,000 in 1920. The Duke of Bedford has recently been selling much of his town and country property. The Duke of Devonshire recently sold Devonshire House, in the very fashionable Park Lane, London. The old historic house, which to Englishmen seems like one of the bridges back over the centuries, will probably be torn down to make way for a hotel.

Even by that strong labor organ, the Daily Herald, the break-up of the old estates in the present manner is deplored. "That estates are rapidly changing hands brings no relief." it says, "to the people of the country. The abolition of the old landlord only means the entry of a new one, often quite lacking the tory tradition of patriarchial benevolence, which, degrading though it was, served better than the mere commercial doctrine of grab."

PART OF CANADA GETS NO FISH

Canada is the best market for our sea fish proucts. Uniten States had been second best but it is problematical whether it will figure as prominently in the future in view of the Fordney Tariff measure and other equal depressing influences. Canadian fish production must find another outlet, if the United States proves too great, and the most logical market to develop is right here at home.

During the 1920 it is estimated that not more than 40,000,000 pounds of fresh seafish were moved to the interior. It is doubtful if the entire consumption of fresh fish, including both sea and freshwater, amounted to more than 60,000,000 pounds. When it is considered that the total catch of fish approximates 1,000,000,00 lbs each year it will be realized how comparatively small is the amount of it used in the fresh state.

Our system of fish distribution is just in process of development. It is not a great many years ago that fresh fish from the Atlantic first began to find a place on the fish dealers' slabs in Ontario, and the development of the trade from the Pacific coast has been even of more recent date. The growth of the business in fresh sea fish has been free and has followed the course of least resistance. There are three ditributing centres of the first magnitude viz., Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg with other less important stations such as Edmonton, Calgary and Quebec. Territory in close communication with Montreal, Toronto and Winnipeg or accessible to a supply direct from the coast are tolerably well supplied with sea fish. The rest of the country has little opportunity to benefit by our copious supplies.

Of the 60,000,000 pounds of fish consumed in Canada probably four-fifths of it is available to less than a quarter of the population. An expansion of the local market, therefore, must mean an increase in the territory and population served. Of course a general readjustment of fish traffic cannot be brought about evernight, but any organized development of the future must have consideration for the whole population.

The weakness of the distributing system in the United States, which is much like our own, has lead to the formation of a company to supply individual purchasers from the coast by parcel post, special containers being provided to preserve the commodity in transit. The theory of the scheme is perfect but under present conditions its practicability is doubtful. The idea is there, however,—to make a fish supply accessible to more people.

The Fisheries Department is securing a census for the purpsse of ascertaining accurately the amount of fish being consumed in different centres throughout the country. This will provide definite information as to what sections are receiving inadequate supplies. It is proposed to have charts, embodying this data, furnished to the wholesale trade along with suggestions for a more systematic distribution.

In developing Canadian literature it is planned to hold a Canadian Authors' Week soon. B.C. authors will be featured in the displays of the book stores of this province.

Learn How to Dance

Pro. Cuddeford is in Fernie and will instruct the latest Ball Room Dances now the rage of the fashionable city of New York.

Pro. Cuddeford says: "If you can walk you can dance." He guarantees to make anyone, no matter who, a graceful and polished dancer in eight half hour lessons. If you already have a knowledge of dancing, then four half hour lessons are sufficient.

DANCE THE LATEST DANCES AND DANCE THEM WELL

Dancing is the most graceful of all arts. It lends grace to the carriage and polish to your bearing and makes you feel easily at home no matter what company you may be in. It gives dignity to youth and youth to age. Everyone should learn how to dance.

"HE DOESN'T DANCE!"

To dance is to get much of the real pleasure out of life. Everywhere you go, be it private or public function, dancing is quite likely to be part of the evening's entertainment. To participate to the full extent of these festivities, one must dance. Not to dance is to place one at a decided disadvantage. The woman becomes a wallflower and the man becomes bored and dissatisfied with himself.

Perhaps you are not a finished dancer. You do the regulation waltz—perhaps the one step and the fox trot—this is "so so.." Learn to do them well. Be conspicuous by being the most graceful dancer on the floor.

Hon. Dr. King and J. Buchan, M. P. P. for Columbia, were in the City on Tuesday on a wild quest for a candidate to contest this constituency in the Liberal interest at the coming Dominion Election. The Hon. Doctor seem to be very much worried about this constituency. At the last Dominion election he moved heaven and earth until he finally got Bert Beattie in the field to act as goat for the occasion. This time he had hopes of securing Mr. A. I. Fisher, but that gentleman refused the honor. His only remaining hope seems to be Joe Jackson, of Cranbrok. The Liberal convention was called for the 5th, but owing to the scarcity of material for a candidate, they have postponed it for a week in the hope that some dark horse will materialize before that date. Randolph Bruce of Columbia has offered to run as an Independent Liberal Candidate or an Independent Labor but the Liberals are not very partial to that brand of candidate.

SLEEPING OUTDOORS

Sleep is good, but no one knows how utterly good it can be who has not slept outdoors.

There is something about a room, any room, even in palaces, and there is something about a house that spoils and smothers sleep, and it is only when you can set your face against the sky, and your lungs against the exhaustless air, that your soul really dips into the infinite and comes back to life in the morning with its last corner fresh and garnished.

Leonard Fleming, a South African farmer, tells of his best bedroom at home, and why he prefers it to all the luxurious couchings of civilization.

"My best bedroom," he says, "is up on my highest hill. I can climb to the top—carrying a blanket, a pillow and a great coat—in fifteen minutes.

"On grass and little bushes, which I pull and spread out, I put my coat, my pillow, against a rough boulder, and I lie down with the warm scent of earth and veldt grass about me. And over me and on every side, hanging like rich curtains far away, the blue-black sky, splashed with gorgeous stars.

"The silence is wonderful — complete absolute stillness—save for the regular breathing of my heart and the intake and release of my breath.

"I am on the top of all the world, lying on my back, with only stars and sky pouring through my eyes deep into my body and soul. And I go to sleep, very, very happy, feeling that all the exquisite beauty of the cooling night around me has made me just a little part of it all—a little human atom for a while in complete harmony with the infinite Scheme of Things.

"And then comes the most wonderful moment of all.

"It is the moment of the dawn wind which passes across the earth as regular as clockwork every day half an hour before dawn.

"It is a soft, faint little wind that rustles the leave and grasses and ripple still water—the first sound in all those silent hours—a fresh, cool, very gentle wind that lasts but a few seconds.

"It is the wind that wakes the world—the wind that whispers of the coming day—and it passes beyond as swiftly and as suddenly as it came.

"Out of the silence a distant sheep bleats, a bird sings, then two birds, then hundreds. The east is bright gold, the western hills are flushed and then the day and the day's work."

Of all the strange and curious superstitions that have attacked men's minds, perhaps the most remarkable is the notion that the night air is injurious.

All over Europe people shut themselves up in tight rooms to sleep. In America this custom is not so general, but we are not wholly guiltless.

It is a matter of habit. One used to sleeping in a close room catches cold if he sleeps out in the woods, and a trapper accustomed to sleeping in the open catches cold if he has to lie all night (he could not sleep) on a soft bed in a room with one window open only two inches.

Try it outdoors and stick to it long enough to get the habit, and you will discover many of nature's delightful secrets, as Leonard Fleming found about the mothering, adoptive silence of the infinite, and about the sky and delicate dawn wind that awakens the world.

WILL TARIFF DRIVE CANADIAN FISH OUT OF THE U.S. MARKET?

While all Canadian commerce with the United States will undoubtedly be deeply affected by the stringent provisions of the Fordney measure, there is no industry more seriously hampered, apparently, than fishing. Nothing will ilustrate the situation more strikingly than our statistics of exports of fish and fish products, which, for the year 1921, show that approximately one-half, in value, of all exported commodities in this department went to the United States, despite the fact that trade was carried on in seventy different countries.

And this alone is not the only difficulty the industry has to contend with to maintain her fish trade in the United States market. For the past three years Canadian fishing vessels have enjoyed equal rights with American vesels in United States ports and the same courtesy was accorded our neighbors in Canadian ports. Now the American Government has recinded this privilege so that Canadian fishermen are no longer able to sail direct from the banks and dispose of their fares in the American markets.

The two crises developing at the same time confront the industry with a serious problem. There is some suggestion that privileges extended to American vessels in our ports should likewise be rescinded, but in many quarters the wisdom of this is doubted. However that does not effect the situation as to Canada's position in the United States market in the future. There still remains the fact that last year half our foreign trade was with the United States, and the uncertainty as to whether we shall be able to hold any considerable portion of it in future.

The value of our exports of fish and fish products in 1920 was approximately $33,600,000 of which nearly $16,000,000 went to our southern neighbor. To put the same quantity and variety of fish into the American market, following the application of the Fordney measure, will mean an added cost of approximately $2,350,000, and the question arises whether, with this added burden, Canadian producers can meet the competition of producers within the United States.

There is no question of exchange to be taken into consideration, which operates very favorably toward Canada. Furthermore the modus vivendi of 1918 has been in existence only three years, so that it does not seem an impossibility to revert to conditions prior to its inception. Nor does it seem impossible to export to the United States in the face of the tariff. The Payne-Aldrich measure, superseded in 1913 by the Underwood Act, imposed a duty on fish and its products, but still the American market was being steadily developed.

WARNING, CANNED SALMON NOT BEING PROPERLY LABELLED

It has been brought to the attention of the Department of Marine and Fisheries that canned salmon packed in Alaska and known as "Alaska Red" has been imported and sold in Canada under the name of "sockeye" without any indication as to where the fish was packed or the particular kind or variety of fish contained in the can. This constitutes a violation of Section 12H of the Meat and Canned Foods Act.

Importers and those who deal in such fish are, therefore, advised to see to it that the label on each can shows distinctly that the fish was packed in Alaska — the particular place in that territory need not be shown; and that it also shows distinctly the designation of "Alaska Red Salmon," whether the name "Sockeye" is used or not. Without such marks and designations cans of Alaska Red Salmon found to be on sale in Canada will be liable to seizure and forfeiture.

It is likely that the Government will ask the Legislature to sanction the turning over of the income tax to the municipalities, and at the same time abolish the tax exemptions, making all wageearners liable for payment. It is also suggested that the Government will make a per capita grant on the basis of the number of children attending municipal schools instead of assisting the schools by the payment of $40.00 a teacher.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

—by—

DAVID WARWICK

The present-day development of British Columbia had its beginnings in Oriental interest in the skins of the Sea-Otter.

The caravels of the peaceful Columbus were followed to the new world by others bearing men of different stamp—able Spaniards, restless of mind, bent on subduing the residents of the newly-found lands and diverting the riches of the continent to the coffers of Spain. Early in the sixteenth century nationals of that European race had established severeignty over the Pacific Coast line from what is now Oregon to Cape Horn. Cortes conquered Mexico in 1521; Pizaro, Chili and Peru in 1535. The former, about the time his adventurous compatriot was subduing the Peruvians and Chilians, had three ports, an arsenal and a shipyard on the Mexican Pacific coast, was, in person, exploring what is now lower California, which name, was, in fact, conferred by the Spaniards. In 1543 Ferills attained to the neighborhood of the 43rd degree of latitude. About thirty years later. Elizabth of England, whose destiny it was to reduce Spain's maritime prowess, began to be interested in these overseas activities of the Spaniards. Her investigator was the famous Francis Drake, who, it will be remembered, was not too scrupulous as to the rights of Spaniards no matter where such Spaniard might happen to be.

This intrepid English sailorman sailed up the west coast of America some forty-three years after Jacques Cartier made his memorable voyage up the St. Lawerence to the site of present-day Quebec. The northern limit of his voyage has been stated variously. Some thought he went as far as the 48th degree; some that the 43rd degree was his limitation. Anyway the cold and fog diverted his mind from any further attempt to locate a north eastern passage back to the Atlantic. He turned back, made a landing at a "fair and good bay" some distance north of San Francisco of today. There he remained some five weeks, and, before lifting anchor for the return to the Old Country, he set up a post with his name and the date thereon and an English sixpence buried beneath it. On this post he set forth the declaration that the country had been taken possession of in the name of Elizabeth of England, and named it "New Albion."

Drake probably took this action in case the Queen of England might take an interest in the matter. Evidently, however, she did not, or perhaps her royal attention was diverted elsewhere, for the records of our western coast contain no more mention of any important visits by English sailors for almost a hundred and fifty years. During that long period, the power of Spain on the coast was of the "blanket" order—intended to cover all the lands along the Pacific from frozen Arctic to tempestuous Cape Horn.

In 1728, Vitus Bering, the Russian, sailed through the strait that connects Pacific and Arctic waters between Asia and America. This marked the first real shifting of the balance of power in the Pacific. For thirteen years, until 1741, when he was wrecked on Bering Island, this Russian pressed forward with his explorations for his Government. He perished there, but his work and his record remained, and soon fur traders from his country were actively engaged in the buying up of furs for resale in Europe and China. The brilliance of the star of Spain was beginning to fade. The traditional control on the western coast which that country had exercised for so long was endangered by the Russians from the north, and by the rapid growth of English power throughout the world. In 1776, Captain James Cook set out from England on his third and last voyage around the world, arriving off our northwest coast two years later. This famous circumnavigator had been commissioned by the British Government to examine the North American Pacific coast from about 45 degrees north latitude to the Arctic Ocean for alleged large inland openings inward to the eastward. Because of the bad weather prevailing in March of that year; passed, unnoticed, the strait named Juan de Fuca and continued up the coast of Vancouver Island, establishing himself at Nootka Sound. Captain Cook discovered Prince William's sound and Cook's Inlet, and entered the Arctic through Bering strait. Considering the northeast pasage as impracticable he returned southward on his homeward voyage, touched the Hawaiian Islands and met death there as a result of an altercation with the natives of those Islands which he named Sandwich. But his expedition returned to England and his record remained.

Again the anxious Spaniards returned to the northwestern coast and an expedition under Captain Quadra advanced the Spanish claims to the 58th parallel.

The records of Captain Cook were published in 1784, five years after his tragic and untimely death in the South Seas. The report contained a description of the sea-otter, the skin of which was said by him to be the equal of the common otter. The sea-otter was abundantly in evidence all along the coast, and adventurous spirits were not long in responding to the lure of the easy money to be secured from their skins. At that time, the East India Company had a monopoly of the trade in the Chinese Empire, where these sea-otter pelts had a ready sale. They were soon in the new field. Success led to emulation in other quarters, and, it was not long before expeditions were fitted out in Marseilles, Boston and Bombay, to mention but a few points, to engage in the new opportunity. This sort of activity inevitably led to further exploration. The Queen Charlotte Islands were discovered. So was a large portion of the mainland. American, as well as British vessels were familiar sights around Vancouver Island. Trading was profitable and was briskly carried on.

This sort of thing of course, could not prevail for long without some sort of conflict developing with the Spaniards, who, it will be recalled, asserted sovereignty over all the coastal waters of the Pacific side of the Americas and Mexico. Soon they came to Nootka Sound, which was the chief centre of activity of the fur trade, and, seizing some British vessels, projected the Nootka Sound affair into the international politics of that day. England demanded satisfaction. Spain paid an idemnity, and restored British rights and property. But before this settlement was effected, or rather while Captains Vancouver and Quadra of the British and Spanish Governments respectively, were waiting for an agreement to be reached, the former carried out a three-year exploration of the waters surrounding the Island. Doubtless in graceful recognition of his work, the Island was named after him. In later years, so was the city of Vancouver, and there was, and is another thriving town in the American state of Washington bearing the name of his well-known navigator. And his statue may be noted by the observant on the dame of the legislative buildings at Victoria. England made substantial gains, as far as the control of the coastal waters were concerned at the Nootka Convention. Spain recognized the English right of trade and navigation on the north Pacific coast, and abandoned claim to a monopoly of the north Pacific. England agreed not to found any trading stations within 30 miles of a Spanish post. Captains Quadra and Vancouver worked out the details. By the Treaty of Madrid, Spain recognized Nootka as an English post.

So it was that Vancouver Island became British. The mainland was nominally Spanish, but the Napoleonic wars and the movement for freedom in the American colonies kept Spain fully occupied and prevented any worthlike attempt to colonize the continental tract. In due course, the Republic of Mexico replaced the Spanish authority to the south. The Republic was not interested beyond California. The way was open for complete British occupation, especially since Canada had been ceded to the British Crown. And it was not long before that occupation became a fact

With the beginning of the nineteenth century the adventurous, if monopolistic arm of the North West Fur Trading Company, and of the Hudson's Bay Company reached across the Rocky Mountains and seized upon the rich fur areas of the coast. Sir Alexander Mackenzie, an employee of the former concern (which was later absorbed by its greater rival) was the first of the fur-trading explorers to make his way to the ocean by the overland route through British territory. Mackenzie came out where Bella Bella now stands. The Canadian company established itself firmly in coastal territory without too strict regard for boundaries. It was not long however, until the Americans, with the pioneer Astor in the van, were at the coast with the idea of setting up a trading monopoly similar to that enjoyed in British areas by the competing company. Astor's headquarters was named after himself — Astoria. When war broke out between United States and Britain, the Canadian company seized Astoria and held it until after peace was made in 1818. David Thompson's great journey down the Columbia River was based upon an attempt to forstall Astor, and it is said, that, had not a mutiny occurred, Britain would have had a strong claim upon a much larger share of the Pacific coast country than we as Canadians have today. The Hudson's Bay Company set up its headquarters at Fort Vancouver an the Columbia River in 1825. But the Americans were aggresive, and by 1843 their activities had become so pronounced that the company shifted its base to Fort Victoria, on the Island of Vancouver.

The H.B.C., at that time, held the entire island under charter from the Crown for colonization purposes. It has been said that Gladstone took issue with the British Government of that day concerning the making of this grant to the great fur-trading concern but was silenced with the reply that the land was thereby held to England in that settlement by alien squatters was rendered impossible. By that as it may, there was little evidence of real colonizing activity, and it was said that the Company had not any real intention of becoming active in that direction and so making the finding of game more difficult to their hunters, for by that time the sea-otter had been exterminated and the animals of the forest were the source of their prosperity. Victoria prospered and soon was the dominant centre of trade in the north Pacific. The Americans pressed for the control of the coast as far as east right to Alaska, and the 'fifty-four-forty or fight" slogan was born. England sent a fleet around to keep a watchful eye upon the further development of that idea. But there grew in England at that time, an idea that the country was merely a sea of mountains and in due course the boundary line was settled at the 49th degree as it stands today. History records that the Hudson's Bay Company left some of its posts in American territory as a result of that settlement and withdrew within a newly-defined British area.

For Every Milk Purpose—Carnation

because it is doubly rich

USE Carnation wherever you use ordinary milk. But remember to dilute with an equal amount of water. This restores the natural volume and content of whole milk, and is necessary because one tall can of Carnation is twice as rich as one quart of ordinary milk. Carnation contains a minimum of 7.8% butterfat; whole milk and sterilized canned milk contain an average of only 3.5% to 4% butterfat. That is double richness. It is more economical than ordinary milk—no waste. Ask your grocer for a price on a dozen cans, and try this pure milk for a week.

Send for Carnation Cook Book containing 100 practical tested recipes. Carnation Milk Products Co., Ltd., 134 Abbott St., Vancouver, B. C.

Try This Recipe

FOR THE DAINTIEST TEA BISCUITS—CARNATION

One quart flour, 1 level teaspoonful salt, 2 heaping teaspoonfuls baking powder, 1 large tablespoonful of butter or lard, 6 tablespoonfuls Carnation Milk, 7 tablespoonfuls water, or enough to make soft dough. Sift flour, baking powder and salt into a bowl. Rub in with the hands the butter or lard until well mixed. Add Carnation Milk and water. Roll out about half an inch thick, cut and bake in a quick oven for 15 minutes. The secret of biscuit making is to have the ingredients cold, the mixture put together rapidly, and the oven the right temperature when biscuits are put in.

HAPPY IS THE BOY WITH A HOBBY

One family, not wealthy either, fitted up a gymnasium in the attic to keep the boys at home—and went without new parlor furniture.

Many wise parents have introduced dark rooms for photography, laboratory rooms for chemistry, work rooms for carpentry, 'bug rooms' for natural history, even mushrooms in the cellar and so on through the whole fad chapter; and it works splendidly.

What if accidents do happen? One boy blew out the kitchen window with his home-made gunpowder and located a new sort of torpedo on the sore spot of the forcepump, just when the servant girl was ready to be frightened nearly to hysterics; and electrified all the door knobs that happened to be metal and shocked his father into mysterious chuckles and affectionate-near-profanity. Never mind. Nobody cared. It helped to save the boy. Explosions were less harmful than drunks and a broken window was more easily mended than a ruined boy. The same boy soon made his own telescope, and was the first to discover the arrival of the sun spots and informed the city of 40,000 people all about them in an original article in the local paper. Keep your eye on boys like that. They may need watching, but they'll bear watching.

THE UNIVERSITY OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

Vancouver, Canada,
August 24th, 1921.

The Editor, Free Press,
Fernie, B.C.

Sir:

The University of British Columbia is preparing for pjublication a War Book which will contain a brief summary of the war record of every member of the University, of McGill University College, and of Vancouver College, who enlisted for service in Canada and overseas.

Considerable difficulty is being experienced in getting in touch with many of the former students, as well as the present undergraduates who are away from their homes for the summer. May we through your columns, ask all present and former students of these institutions who have received forms from the University to return them as soon as possible; and all those who have had military service, but who have not received forms, to write for them at their earliest possible convenience. The information given by some of the students two years ago has been found to be insufficient in almost every case.

Former students who have not seen service will assist the work of the committee greatly if they will write the University to that effect. This will save us the time and the expense of securing their present address and circularizing them.

Communications should be addressed to the Editor, Roll of Service, The Unuiversity of British Columbia, Vancouver.

Yours very truly,
H. T. J. Coleman,
Acting-President

British Columbia spruce is said to be meeting with greater popularity than ever in various parts of the world, more especially to the south where its lightness is regarded very favorably by nearly all builders.

Every year sees the market on the Canadian prairies for British Columbia fruit growing larger. Recently it was reported that one of the largest orchards at Kamloops had shipped ever 17,000 boxes of crab-apples, the consignment going to Winnipeg, Brandon, Port Arthur and other centres.

DR. BONNELL THEIR CHOICE

(Special to the Fernie Free Press)

The nominating convention of the National Liberal Conservative Association, which was held at Invermere, on Monday of this week was in every respect a model one. Prefect weather and beautiful surroundings seem to have shed their influence over any trouble which may have been anticipated at a gathering of complete strangers congregated from every part of this huge constituency having varied opinions as to the fitness of possible candidates, but all of one mind, to support the man who should become the choice of the elected delegates, as a follower of the Right Honorable Arthur Meighen, the premier of the Dominion. Once it got down to business, the convention did not take long in settling the question and in one ballot, chose the standard-bearer, Dr. Saul Bonnell, the present member for the constituency. With the true sporting spirit spirit, which characterizes the man, Mr. Elmore L. Staples, the other possible member-elect, whose name had come up for a ballot, cinched all differences, when once the balllot was announced, by moving the nomination should be made unanimous.

The gathering was held in the ball room of the Hotel Invermere, which had been specially arranged for the occasion. Nearly the full quota of forty-five delegates was present there being but few proxies and then only from the outlaying parts. This clearly evidenced the interest which is being taken in the result. The number of lady delegates showed that a new power had risen. Another very gratifying feature was the number of men, who but a few years ago, had donned the kakhi to fight for King and Empire, and also the important supporters of labor from the mining and industrial fields to the south. The delegates all occupied a special space kept for their convenience while the balance of the room was comfortably filled with members of the great party, who though supporters, did not have the necessary credentials to qualify them as voters, but were intensely interested as spectators in all proceedings.

The guiding hand in controlling the meeting fell to that able veteran of politics, Mr. A. M. Chisholm, of Windermere, who as temporary chairman opened the meeting and was later appointed permanently in the chair.

The delegates present in person or by proxy, were from:

Fernie Riding: Archie K. Leitch, Jaffray; M. D. McLean, T. H. Cox, R. Winstanley, Natal; William Shad, L. Renwick, Bull River; William Atree, Al. Doyle, Fort Steele; S. Eholt, Baynes; A. M. Beatty, Waldo; Wm. McKay and L. K. S. Herchmer, Fernie.

Cranbrook Riding: A. Higgins, W. S. Green, Kimberley; Mesdames Claire J. Staples, Sadie J. McFarlane, Ethel Norgrove, Winnifred Patton, Adelaide Smith, Messrs. Simon Taylor, F. H. Dezall, F. A. Williams, E. L. Staples, and Dr. J. W. Rutledge, all of Cranbrook; Benjamin [illegible], Wahk; Ed. Covell, Kingsgate; William Barclay, Wardner.

Columbia Riding: R. Scott, L. Owen, Field; H. W. Conover, Casteldale; G. D. Warner, H. G. Parson, H. G. Lockwood, Capt. Bert Blyth, James Henderson, Jr., William Wenman Golden; Ernest Cobb, Brisco; Frank Richardson, Athalmer; Arthur Taylor, Wilmer; Basil G. Hamilton, Invermere; A. M. Chisholm, Windermere; James Lambert of surrounding district.

On the call for nominations, Dr. Saul Bonnell was nominated by L. K. S. Herchmer, of Fernie, and seconded by M. D. McLean, of Natal. Mr. McLean occupies the honorable position of vice president of that part, of a thriving G.W.V.A., and is also prominent in labor circles. Mr. Elmore L. Staples, of Wycliffe, was nominated by Archie K. Leitch, a fellow lumber manufacturer, of Jaffray, and the seconder was Dr. J. W. Rutledge, of Cranbrook. Each nomination was followed by neat and complimentary speeches by the mover and seconder and was received with loud applause and prolonged cheers. The ballots, which on counting were found to be close in number with a preponderance in favor of Dr. Bonnell, which was afterwards, on motion of Mr. Elmore Staples, turned into a unanimous nomination in favor of his competitor.

After the results had been announced, the meeting was addressed in straightforward fighting language by both the nominees. The whole proceedings were brought to a close by the singing of God Save the King, and cheers with tigers from lusty throats for Dr. Bonnell and Elmore L. Staples. Light refreshments, and a vote of thanks to the members of the local association, brought procedings for that part to a happy ending.

The general business of the convention being over, steps were taken for the formation of an Association for the Federal Riding of East Kootenay of the National Liberal and Conservative party to carry on the good work so auspiciously commenced. The officers for the first term were appointed, being Honorary President, The Right Hon. Arthur Meighen; President, A. M. Chisholm, of Windermere; Vice Presidents, Captain Bert Blyth of Golden, for Columbia Riding; Dr. J. W. Rutledge, for Cranbrook Riding; A. B. Trites, for Fernie Riding; with L. K. S. Herchmer, of Fernie, as Secretary Treasurer. These members are to appoint an Executive Committee of three additional members.

HON. ARTHUR MEIGHEN
Prime Minister of Canada

R. E. BEATTIE NOMINATED

R. E. Beattie, of Cranbrok, B. C., was tendered the Liberal nomination at a party convention held in Cranbrook on the 12th instant. His was the only name to be brought up, which makes the same line up of candidates as in 1917 when Dr. Bonnell secured a substantial majority, unless other candidates, Labor and Independennt enter the field.

Mr. Beattie was nominated by A. E. Fisher, Fernie and F. Cleland of Invermere.

Twenty delegates from each of the three provincial ridings included in the Dominion Riding of East Kootenay were present.

Officers of the Association were elected as follows:

Hon. Pres.; Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King.

Hon. Vice-Pres.; Hon. Dr. King.

President, C. D. McNabb, Waldo.

Executive consisting of four members of each riding, who will appoint a Sec.-Treas. The Fernie representatives on the Executive are:

J. R. Nolan, Flagstone; W. W. Douglas, Bull River; R. L. Beech, Natal and Mrs. William Marshall, Fernie.

ANNUAL GOLF TOURNAMENT

The Annual tournament of the Kootenay and Southern Alberta Golf Assiciation took place at Cranbrook, last Saturday under perfect weather conditions and the playing condition of the course was magnificient both as to green and fairways. About one hundred golfers took part in the tournament with a good representation from Fernie and Waldo.

A very pleasing feature of this tournament was that it brought out the finest standard of golf that was ever played in this district and all previous records for the Cranbrook course were smashed. Mr. Alan Graham, of Cranbrook, made a new record for the course by going round in 37 and his play throughout the tournament was practically faultless. Mrs. J. S. Irvine, of Fernie, created a new record for ladies, by going around in 50, which is very creditable considering that this was the first time she had played around the course.

The Men's Championship was won by Mr. Alan Graham, and the Ladies' Championship was won by Mrs. T. Lawes, of Fernie. This was the first appearance of Mrs. Lawes on the Cranbrook course and as she only commenced golf this season, the Fernie Golf Club should feel proud in having such members as Mrs. T. Lawes, who won the Championship, and Mrs. J. S. Irvine, in breaking all previous records for ladies. Charlie McNabb and Hales Ross, of Waldo, and George Hoggarth, of Cranbrook, were working hard to attain honors in this tournament and it was observed that with a little more experience in the game. we are sure to hear from these good sports.

There was an excellent committee in charge of the clubhouse and splendid meals were served to the players during the tournament. At a meeting of the Association held at the home of Mr. Alan Graham, where a dance was also held for members and visitors, Mr. Chester Staples, of Cranbrook, was elected as President for the ensuing year and Mr. Sherwood Herchmer, of Fernie, as Secretary. The executive committee is to be appointed by the different clubs belonging to the Association. The date and place of next year's tournament is to be fixed by the executive.

This Association is going to be most valuable in raising the standard of golf in this district and in the tournaments to be held at different points, the golfers throughout the district, will have the opportunity of meeting together in a most enjoyable holiday.

NEW TOURIST ASSOCIATION

By J. Fred Spalding

As a result of a trip I made recently to Coleman, Blairmore and Waterton Park, the two former have definitely promised to join the Association and the latter expect to do so. We now have the following Boards of Trade which will control it:- Lethbridge, Cardston Pincher,Creek, Blairmore, Coleman, Fernie, Cranbrook, Nelson, Trail and Grand Forks. There is little doubt in my mind that Rossland, Windermere, Macleod, Calgary and Banff will be joining up within the next week or two.

I am leaving tonight (Thursday), for Calgary and Banff in company with the President, Mr. A. G. Baalim, of Lethbridge, to interview the Boards of Trade of those places, as neither of them quite realize the importance of their taking part, though they are quite in sympathy with the movement. A personal visit to them will clear up whatever matters they were in doubt about, and though they may not be prepared to subscribe the full amount they were assessed, there is little doubt about their coming through with enough to entitle them to membership.

An endeavor is being made to obtain financial assistance from the Governments of B.C. and Alberta and also from the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. Ltd., from each of whom we believe something will be forthcoming.

Each of the Boards who are members are rustling around now for the best pictures they can obtain for their representation in the booklet, and judging from those I have already seen, we shall put out a splendidly illustrated one. Fernie's showing will not be the poorest either, I have already taken a lot of entirely new scenes, and they will convince anyone that our scenery is hard to beat.

This co-operation is what has been needed for many years, and if it had been put into force three or four years ago, the number of tourists would have been infinitely greater than it has been the last two years. Next year will doubtless show a very great increase, and if all the tourists who have come through here the last two years think the same about it as the writer of the following letter, there will be.

Palo Alto, California,
Oct. 10th, 1921.

Mr. J. F. Spalding, Fernie, B.C.

Dear Sir:-

My family and I are home all safe and well. We all join in thanking the people of Fernie for making our stay there so pleasant. Please thank Mr. and Mrs. Henderson and the Provincial Police's wife who came with Mrs. Henderson to the camp ground and made our stay so pleasant. Keep a share of our thanks for yourself also. We went from Fernie to Calgary, Banff, Lake Louise, then back to Glacier Park, Lake Tahoe and home. We may tour Canada again some time. If so we will sure stop at Fernie. If at any time you or any of your friends come our way, we will do what we can for you. Mrs. Strickler kept a diary of our trip and we have began already to live it over again. We drove 5600 miles and our worst roads were in Nevada. You have surely done your part to boost Fernie. With best regards.

yours, Alva Strickler,

TUXIS BOYS AND TRAIL RANGERS

BY Firelighter

CHANGES AMONG "BOYS' WORK" MEN

During the summer a number of our active men in Boys' Work have made changes in their positions and will be meeting new groups of boys in new committees.

Mr. E. W. Petley, who served the Lethbridge Association as Boys' Work Secretary and touched the whole community, has given up his position in order to study for the minstry of the Methodist Church. We wish him every success. He has been succeeded by another energetic chap, Mr. Edwin E. Rogers, of Delbourne, Alta. Mr. Rogers is the first student to take the two year course in Boys' Work in the Department of Social Service of the University of Toronto and began his active service the first of this month.

Glenn Wray of Stratford has taken a long jump westward and becomes Boys' Work Secretary in Calagary. During the Y.M.C.A. school at Couchiching, Glen drifted in for a few minutes and out again. They tell us that his trip east was for the purpose of attaching unto himself a partner in his life work.

Mr. E.C. Millard has resigned as Boys' Work Secretary in Brandon and his successor has not yet been named.

Chas. F. Plewman, who has been Boys' Work Secretary at the Vaughan St. Y.M.C.A., Winnipeg, for the last two sessions, has done an exceptional piece of work and the first of September began his new duties as the Secretary of the Ontario Boys' Work Board. "Charlie" comes to his new big undertaking well-equipped in personality, in experience, in outlook and in ability to give leadership, and with him devoting all his time to cultivating the Ontario field, which is so rich in boy life, we believe that great things are going to result.

To succeed Plewman in Winnipeg, Nelson McEwan, formerly of St. John, has taken also a long hike to the west where he served for a time as assistant Boys' Work Secretary.

Herb Morton, formerly assistant Secretary in St. John, has been promoted to take Mr. McEwan's place.

Wilfred Buckley, a brother of Lou so well-known in the Maratime provinces, has become Boys' Work Secretary in Halifax Y.M.C.A.

Boys' Work in Galt, Ontario, has owed much during recent years to the leadership of E. C. Cameron, Boys' Work Secretary of the Y.C.M.A. Mr. Cameron has recently begun work in the Central Y.M.C.A. in Toronto, as Boys' Work Secretary. He has been succeeded at Galt by Mr. Hartley Fowler.

Our old friend Angus Buchannan, Belleville, has recently moved from there to become Boys' Work Secretary in Brantford.

Early in the summer J. T. Hauch of Kitchener was made Boys' Work Secretary in Stratford, Ontario, where he followed Glenn Wray.

During the present week the Boys' Work Board is holding its annual meeting at Lake Couchiching and the clans are meeting from the east and from the west for hearty fellowship, for careful review of the work for the past year and to plan for the year to come. A report of the annual meeting will be given in this column within a few weeks.

—Firelighter.

The Baptist Beavers Trail Rangers climbed Mount Fernie last Saturday afternoon and secured some very interesting fossils on the peak. The B. B.O.C. Tuxis Boys recently held their annual election of officers and the following were elected:

The square meets every Sunday afternoon at 2:30 and Wednesday evening at 7:30.

One of the best ways that we know of to find out what users of Pacific Milk actually think is from their letters to us.

It is really surprising how many say one of the reasons they like Pacific Milk better than any other is because they know it is the only milk put up in British Columbia and they believe in home industry, first.

GREAT BRITAIN AND HER UNEMPLOYMENT

Britain has a habit of solving her troubles in the full blaze of public criticism. She is not imbued with any false optimism, or afraid that the ventilation of her grievances will make the task of settling them more onerous. She is now faced with the unemployment problem, mainly brought about by the recent great coal strike and its disastrous effects on the industrial life of the country. Britain has 1,500,000 unemployed. The United States has upwards of 6,000,000, yet in the case of the latter country we hear nothing of cabinet meetings to discuss the situation nor is the press filled with articles and discussions on the problem. The situation in Britain is not nearly so acute as it is in the United States, although in that regard in the latter country there seems to be a conspiracy of silence. Britain's way is the best. It is only by full and free discussion and laying bare of all the difficulties which accompany any conditions of unemployment that a solution of this vexed juestion can be reached.

The British Government in now making efforts to give an impetus to industrial activities so that employment may be found for those out of work. The first step has been taken in the departure made from the policy of free trade by the imposition of protective duties which will promote the sale at home of the products of Britain's key industries. This step, which amounts to a revolution in the economic policy of the country, seems to have been brought about with the tacit consent of the nation, which realizes that there must be some protection afforded so as to enable British goods to compete with those imported from other countries where wages are lower and the hours of production longer. In addition, the Government is considering other methods for promoting an industrial revival and relieving the strain of unemployment. A proposal has been put forward to subsidize certain industries so as to give them the opportunity of carrying on until economic conditions become more stable. The Government has realized that mere doles are not, and never can be, a solution of the unemployment problem, but that the provision of work is the only panacea.

The greatest need in the economic world today is what Sir William Noble describes as a process of informing and educating the public mind as to the nature of the economic laws, which, like gravitation, operate inexorably the world over. That too, is a duty, which Mr. Frank Hodges, a Labor leader, realizes, in urging that Labor itself should sek, without passion or heat, to know the economic truth. It is the world facts of economics that should be known and the plea for publicity in all matters affecting these is well timed. Employers and business men and Labor and Governments should be all seeking to present the facts to the public, facts which Sir William Noble reiterates, "shape and rule the destinies of business just as surely and ruthlessly as the climate governs the harvest." On these grounds the full and open discussion now taking place in Great Britain on the unemplo-ment question is the best way of finding the solution, and the United States, with the problem so aggravated in its midst, might well take a leaf out of the book of the Old Land from which its strength and virility sprung. —Victoria Colonist.

GREAT BRITAIN GIVES UP FREE TRADE

At last England, free trade England, has come to protection. Beginning October 1st customs duties equal to one-third the value of many imported goods will be levied under the new British act safeguarding industries. These duties will be applied to 6000 individual articles, so Great Britain has come over to the protective idea in a thorough and comprehensive manner.

Evidently, British statesmen, including those who were life-long adherents of the free trade doctrine, became so convinced that this action was imperative. British industries were menaced by German industries. The German workmen are willing to labor for a long day at very low wages. The British wage earners, strongly organized into unions, are demanding good wages and easy working conditions. German labor is paid in a cheap and depreciated currency, while the British standard of money, has been but slightly depreciated.

Ruinous German competition is already an established fact, and other manufacturing countries of Europe, as they reestablish their war-shattered industries, will be driven by necessity to force their manufactures into any country that will accept them. As their currencies are also depreciated, they will be able to hire cheap labor.

Surely this lesson will not be lost upon the wage earners of the United States. If they are to have employment and properity they must accept two conditions: A protective tariff and readjusted wages and warking conditions that will put them measurably upon the same level that America's agriculture is now upon. Free trade, or even low protection, coupled with war-time wages and easy working conditions, would depress the industries of this country. We have distressing unemployment now, but it would be multiplied many fold if the country permitted its markets to be invaded by the cheap wage products of Europe and Asia, while at the same time labor organizations made an impossible demand for war-time wages and easy working conditions.

The war brought terrific destruction. The world is now entering upon reconstruction. Necessity is a pityless master, and necessity is driving the German industries to carry on with a long working day and exceedingly low wage.

There is no option, in this business. American industry and American wage earners are in competition with the world, and we muct make the best of it. Any attempt to defy world conditions and carry on our industries on an impossible basis could only augment the distress and penalty that later would have to be paid.—Spokesman Review.

Learn How to Dance

Pro. Cuddeford is in Fernie and will instruct the latest Ball Room Dances now the rage of the fashionable city of New York.

Pro. Cuddeford says: "If you can walk you can dance." He guarantees to make anyone, no matter who, a graceful and polished dancer in eight half hour lessons. If you already have a knowledge of dancing, then four half hour lessons are sufficient.

DANCE THE LATEST DANCES AND DANCE THEM WELL

Dancing is the most graceful of all arts. It lends grace to the carriage and polish to your bearing and makes you feel easily at home no matter what company you may be in. It gives dignity to youth and youth to age. Everyone should learn how to dance.

"HE DOESN'T DANCE!"

To dance is to get much of the real pleasure out of life. Everywhere you go, be it private or public function, dancing is quite likely to be part of the evening's entertainment. To participate to the full extent of these festivities, one must dance. Not to dance is to place one at a decided disadvantage. The woman becomes a wallflower and the man becomes bored and dissatisfied with himself.

Perhaps you are not a finished dancer. You do the regulation waltz—perhaps the one step and the fox trot—this is "so so.." Learn to do them well. Be conspicuous by being the most graceful dancer on the floor.

CITY COUNCIL MEETING

The City Councillors at their first regular meeting for two weeks met last night, acting Mayor Irvine presiding in the absence of His Worship Mayor Henderson. The minutes of the previous regular meeting were adopted as read.

Mr. H. A. Harrison appeared before the council on behalf of his father, "Dad" who had a grievance that on receiving his cheque the first of the month, he claimed his rate of pay had ben reduced 50c per day. This was the first intimation of a wage cut going into effect and Mr. Harrison desired to know whether the reduction had been made in accordance with the sanction of the council as a body or by some individual member. Some of the aldermen recollected that three or four months ago an informal decision had ben reached to put a 50c. per day cut into effect. At that time Mr. Harrison had been paid on the basis of $3.50 per day. When the decrease was suggested, City Engineer McCallum was not sure whether it included "Dad's" rate so he remained on at the old rate until July 31st, when from information furnished by the Mayor, the City Engineer was given to understand this rate was also subject to the cut. Accordingly the rate for August and September was $3.00 and "Dad" had not complained until he received his second cheque on the reduced basis.

A communication was received from L. S. Bean, tendering his resignation as an alderman. This was tabled until next meeting.

A file of correspondence relating to Fire Department cost of administration in cities corresponding in size to this city was read and laid over until another meeting for consideration.

The City Clerk announced that the list of delinquents for scavenging rates had been reduced to one-half the original number since it had been learned the City would take steps to collect when arrears occurred.

Three Tax Sale Property By-Laws were put through.

Mr. Downing, engineer, representing the Fire Underwriters, was present and advised the council that, that association had decided to regrade all the cities in the province and his mission here at this time was with the view of making a thorough inspection and upon the report he would make would be based the regrading of the insurance rates in Fernie. Mr. Downing went into the matter very thoroughly, he pointed out that the present first class fire limits in this city had a good effect in keeping the rates down, but if, as it had been suggested, these limits should be reduced and frame structures permitted to be constructed at the rear of the present more substantially built ones, undoubtedly the rates would be higher. As far as the inspection had gone, Mr. Downing could not say what would be the result of the re-rating. The exisiting rate had been fixed no doubt when the pipe lines were new and the water pressure accordingly higher; at that time also, there were two paid men in the hall.

He commended the council upon having enacted progressive by-laws governing fire prevention, fire escapes, electric wiring, etc., in which cases the fire chief is named as the inspector and warden. However, such ordinances were useless unless enforced. A permanent record of all inspections made by the fire chief should be kept and moreover, the fire chief should satisfy the council and board he was competent to fulfill these duties. Any wide-awake fire chief today studied fire prevention as a science and devoted his energies towards reducing the opportunities for fires to start rather than fighting fires after they did start. "Frankly," said Mr. Downing, "the chief should not be tied down too much, but should have time to go around town making inspections."

Mr. Downing stated that within the next two months his report would be submitted, a copy of which would be received by the council. He most emphatically condemned the open incinerators in use at the rear of some of the business premises. A static test of the water pressure down town yesterday showed 47½ pounds, which was low. This might be accounted for by leaks in the mains, or through the accumulation of silt in the low places in the pipe line, forming obstruction and on account of there being no blow-off valves placed at low spots in the line, it would be difficult to remove such obstructions. Or another cause might be attributed to washing water, by consumers.

The meeting adjourned at 9:30 p.m.

Tom Graves and party are duck hunting on the prairie.

A quiet wedding took place last Saturday, when Mr. Louis Beale and Miss Annie Eastwood, both well-known Fernie young people were united in marriage. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Burns.

Mrs. W. C. Liphardt, who for the past three or four years has resided with her son, Mr. A. C. Liphardt, of Fernie, died early on Thursday morning after a short illness. Mr. Liphardt left with the body on the evening train for their old home in Guelph, Ont., where the funeral will take place. Deceased, and her husband, who died a few years ago, were among the early settlers in Waterloo County, Ontario. She leaves three sons to mourn her death, Albert, of Fernie, Herbert, of Vancouver and William, of Calgary.

Four cars took the twenty-five local representatives of the Liberal Conservative party to the Invermere Convention on Monday evening. Fernie City had appointed some ten delegates, but owing to the large representation from other parts of the local district, the city delegation was cut down to one representative. All those who attended speak in glowing terms of the splendid time they had, and are very enthusiastic about the scenic grandeur of the Columbia Valley. The party had a three day trip, leaving on Sunday and returning on Tuesday night.

Chas. Cottrell, of Vancouver, Asst. General Superintenedent of the Pacific Division of the C.P.R., was in the city yesterday for a short time. Charlie at one time was a popular operator at the Fernie station. That was about twenty years ago.

Two minor auto accidents occured in the city on Tuesday of this week, one being a collision between two cars driven by Thomas Minton and William Marshall respectively. The accident occured at the corner of Victoria Avenue and Gemmill St., both cars being badly damaged. The other happened in the north end of the city, when a bolt in the stering mechanism of a car driven by J. V. Rewers, snapped resulting in both front tires flying off and causing the car nose to dive in the gutter. Practically no damage was sustained, but one of the tires continued its journey along the thoroughfare for over one hundred yards before it came to rest.

PROSPEROUS FARMER'S WIFE NEARLY STARVED

Declaring she was actually starving to keep from awful misery, Mrs. Amy Peterson, wife of a prosperous farmer of Lakevill, Mass., gave out a remarkable statement recently, in connection with her relief through the use of Tanlac.

"Sometime I wonder how I lived through it all," she said. "I would have attacks of acute indigestion nearly every time I ate anything. Those terrible cramping pains and the distress from gas and bloating were almost unbearable and I just thought there was no hope for me.

"But now I'm eating anything and I feel as strong and as well as I ever felt in my life. I've gained back all the weight I lost and six pounds besides and I know from experience what Tanlac will do. It's the best medicine in the world."

LOCATE KEY TO BIG CACHE

Somewhere in the Province of Alberta lives an elderly woman who holds the secret of where nuggets and gold-dust, valued at $85,000, were hidden almost half a century ago by a party of panic-striken miners during their mad flight from the arrows and scalping knives of Indians on the war path.

The woman is Mrs. Eliza Turtle, a daughter of the long-vanished frontier and one of the ill-fated party, which in those rough days of the sixties was harried across the Great West by the hostile Indians and forced to abondon both saddles and other effects, as well as the treasure, in a desperate effort to save their lives.

Since then, and for many years, she has spent much time in the vicinity of what is now Qunicy, Washington, but what was then a stretch of dangerous wild land, in a vain effort to recover this unchartered wealth, so desperately cached away. She always maintained that if she could discover where the saddles were hidden she would be able to walk directly to the spot where the gold was cached.

For many years a systematic search was conducted to recover this frontier wealth, but always in vain, and at length people came to look upon Mrs. Turtle's efforts as something as foolish as chasing the proverbial "will-o'-the-wisp." But now further subtantiation has been given the story A few days ago, while out trapping coyotes, two hunters in fixing their concealed traps, unearthed the cached saddles, together with some papers, which, although terribly ravaged by the process of time, could be deciphered, and these gave ample proof to every word of Mrs. Turtle's hair-raising stories of the early frontier days and their trials and perils.

It appears that the party of prospectors, with which Mrs. Turtle journeyed in her early girlhood, had prospected up into the British Columbia mining district and on the banks of the Columbia River had dug from out the earth and washed from out the river a fortune in gold. They were freighting their treasure homeward when ovetaken by a tribe of Indians which had been trailing them through its land for some days, and the prospectors were so outnumbered by their foes that no avenue of escape was open to them, save that of instant flight. In the rush that followed everything was abandoned.

By an ill freak of fate Mrs. Turtle was often within a few feet of the cached saddles in her numerous searches for the treasure, but never could locate it. Now after she has been missing for many years, having picked up and left for Alberta in an effort to retrieve her fortunes, the saddles are found. But Mrs. Turtle is lost. Yet $85,000 is awaiting her upon her return.

COMING TO THE ISIS THEATRE

"The Country God Forgot" is to be the feature attraction at the Isis Theatre on Friday and Saturday, October 21 and 22, two shows each night at 7 and 9, with no advance in prices.

This is a story of the western wastes and a man's love for a woman, and was directed by Marshall Neilan, who is probably one of the greatest directors of today. Mr. Neilan has just scored two distinct triumphs in his latest productions, "The River's End," and "Don't Ever Marry," and in "The Country That God Forgot," he brings forth some of his best work.

In this picture he has assembled a prominent cast which includes Tom Santchi, famous for his portrayals in "The Spoilers." Mr. Santchi plays the leading role in this production in his usual virile manner.

Mary Charleson, former leading lady for Henry B. Walthall and other prominent stars, and George Fawcett, the former Griffith player are other principles in the cast. The remaining supporting members are Charles Gerrard, Will Machin and Victoria Forde.

"The country That God Forgot" is a drama of exceptional interest and a story which will appeal to all.

No wonder that gun fighting adds to the dramatic thrills of "A Daughter of The Law," the Universal photo-drama which is to be shown at this Theatre on Friday and Saturday, October 14 and 15. Wadsworth Camp, who wrote the story, was a First Lieutenant of the 305th Field Artillery and got excellent target practice at Vosges and Oise-Aisne. The speedy Universal action-drama features Carmel Meyers in a vigorous story of the New York underworld and will be largely attended by playgoers who like fast action that leads to a thundering climax.

A Belgian war dog named Gaston plays an important role in "Flame of Youth," the latest William Fox production starring Shirley Mason, which is coming for Monday and Tuesday. He is a great Dane, and was brought to California by an American who picked him up in France. His job on the batlefield was to locate wounded men and lead stretcher bearers to them, and he is said to have performed heroic service in this line.

LILA LEE, REID'S NEW LEADING WOMAN

One of the most charming figures in the new Paramount picture, "The Charm Schooll" starring Wallace Reid, which will be shown at the Orpheum Theatre, tonight and tomorrow, is Lila Lee, who plays the leading feminine role opposite Mr. Reid.

Miss Lee will be remembered as having played with Mr .Reid in "Hawthorne of the U. S. A." Since her remarkable work in such famous pictures as C. B. De Mille's "Male and Female" in which she played the little scullery maid, and later in William De Mille's production "The Prince Chap," the popularity of the little actress has increased by leaps and bounds.

In this picture, she is the principle charmer of the charm school and is the other party to the romance which blossoms when Wallace Reid, as Austin Bevans, inherits a Girls' School from his aunt and converts it into an institution where young ladies are taught how to be charming, graceful and lovely.

The supporting cast includes many popular players and fifty beautiful young girls who appear as the pupils of the young ladies' school. C. E. Schoenbaum did the camera work.

Some idea of the large and realistic scale upon which Jack London's famous story, "The Sea Wolf," has been made into a motion picture may be gathered fram the fact that Producer George Melford hired a ferry-boat and bought a big schooner outright in order to stage the collision between the two crafts in San Francisco Bay. The schooner was completely demolished in the crash. The company which made the film spent a month along the San Francisco water-front making the exteriors.

However, not all the episodes were "shot" so near the shore, as the players made frequent trips out through the Golden Gate into the open sea. A memorable day which they spent some fifty miles from shore during a sevree gale in a not too seaworthy fishing boat while the camera registered the destruction being wrought all around them by the wind and storm will live long in the minds of Noah Berry, who plays "Wolf Larsen," Mabel Julienne Scott, Tom Forman, and the other members of the cast. But Director Melford expressed the convictions of all when he declared, "I want no mill-pond 'Wolf'."

And so "The Sea Wolf," which will be the attraction at the Orpheum Theatre, Friday and Saturday, October 21 and 22, is declared to be a production that would delight the sea-loving heart of Jack London himself, were he living. Noah Berry is in every respect the brute-philosopher, hero-villain "Wolf" The film, which is a Paramount Artcraft, is striking in the extreme.

More than 4,300 building permits, of which approximately 4,000 were for new homes were taken out in Greater Vancouver since January 1st. The total value so far is more than $1,000,000 in excess of last year's aggregate. It is more than double the total for the twelve months of 1919, seven times that of 1918, and fifteen times that of 1917. Does this look as if times were to be hard in B.C.

Answer was recently made to an enquiry as to the posibilities for trade between this country and Arizona, that in that state they gave preference to goods of their own production. If British Columbia would follow this example there would be no unemployment.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

—by—

Just as the star of Spain diminished as the British constellation grew in brilliance, so did any dreams the directors of the Company may have entertainted as to the future of the coast country fade with the rise to prominence of the gold seeker in the affairs of the British coastal region. The hunters of the precious metal, almost in a day—so great was the force of the rush of the prospectors—swept away the nearly regal sovereignty of the traders in furs. New Caledonia, as the mainland was called, was erected into a Crown colony and later, union was arranged with the Crown colony of Vancouver Island. The rights of the Hudson's Bay Company were purchased, confederation with the Canadian provinces in the east brought about, which was followed in due course, by the construction of the first overland railway from the far east in the Dominion. The three great factors in the early development of the coast country, — the search for Northwest Passage, the fur trade, and the gold rush—had run their course and were closed chapters. British Columbia had ben born. The great resources of a vast area in fisheries, forests, mines and fertile valleylands were to be administered by men elected by the people for the purpose. But historians will never forget the part the old fur-trading companies played in the retention of New Caledonia and of Vancouver Island to British Rule.

The union with other Canadian provinces took place in 1871, and, in that year, the census could credit the Canadian lands to the west of the Rockies with but 36,247 people. Ten years later there was quite an addition to the rolls, the total being 49,459. Between 1881 and 1891 the first railway through from the east was constructed to the coast, and the usual result occured. The census men, in the latter year found that the population at and about the coast had just about doubled and gave the province credit for 98,173 people. Almost a similar record was made during the ten years that followed, for the total census of 1901 showed an expansion of the population to the figure of 178,657. By 1911 the citizens of the province were more than double the number of 1901, for there were 392,-480 persons claiming residence in British Columbia. These figures mean that since 1881 there has been a practical doubling of the population in the province each decade until 1911. The figures of the 1921 census enumerators have not been given to the public, but it safe to assume the increase will be substantial, for the second period in this century has been by no means the least in point of expansion at the Canadian western coast.

It is a pleasant task, also, to be able to chronicle the great extent of the expansion in production in British Columbia. Its forests are easily greatest in Canada and among the largest in the world, and the lumbering industry has been systematically organized to cut, mill, and market the valued product, for the splendid quality of the coast woods has created a demand in many countries. The mineral resuorces are large and are varied, and while much wealth has been won from these sources, the prospectors have scarcely scratched the tremendous areas which are likely to yield deposits rich in value to the miners of the future. The agricultural industry has shown a rapid and satisfactory growth. The fisheries of the northern Pacific waters are among the greatest in the world. The resources in water power are all that might be expected in a vast region dominated by mighty mountains as British Columbia is. It will be interesting to treat these resources a little more in detail.

Mining is easily the most romantic of the productive activities in the province. This may be because of the tremendous impetus it gained there at the time of the gold rush, when the mainland was known as New Caledonia and was the sacred preserve of the fur-traders. Be that as it may, British Columbia is probably, per capita, the richest mineral division in the Dominion, which is saying a great deal for Canada is among the favoured nations where economical minerals are concerned. The provincial figures show that from 1852 to 1918 the total value of the mineral production of British Columbia was $637,353,581, distributed as follows: placer gold, $75,436,103; lode gold, $97,121,786; silver, $46,889,631; lead, $42,294,251; copper, $145,741,069; zinc, $13,278,058; coal and coke, $187,-147,652; building stone, bricks and so on, $28,843,272; miscellaneous minerals, $651,759. Mining is speculative and so, romantic and interesting.

One can always see the forests, and seeing, accept the fact of their existence as a commonplace. Not so in British Columbia. There the timberlands, even according to the most conservative estimates by experts', contain close to 250 billion feet of merchantable wood. This is about one-quarter of the total timber resources of Canada. In pioneering days in Ontario, the land was the important thing, and the timber that graced it almost a nuisance. The obstructing trees were cleared off that the land might be suitably cropped. An occassional wood lot is all that remains of a one time great forest. That in the older-settled portions of the province. In the central and northern sections of Ontario, a great deal of timber remained, and, because the market was good, this had, up to a few years ago, sufficed to maintain Ontario, from a production and value standpoint, as the chief lumbering province in the Dominion. The figures issued by the federal authorities on lumbering for 1918—the most recent—show that the values of production in lumber, shingle sand lath, in the coast province, now exceed those of Ontario. The pulp and paper industry still enables the old province by the Great Lakes to maintain the lead. But the pulp and paper industry at the coast is growing and it can be but a matter of a few years until the figures of revenues from timber in British Columbia will be far and away above those from any other Canadian province. This condition is, indeed, accentuated by the abundance of wood suitable for building and the easy with which house of log construction are built by the settlers. British Columbia, has had to look to the prairies, and to foreign countries to absorb the surplus production of her forests. Gratifying progress has been made in these markets. The construction of the two lines of Canadian National Railways through the Yellowhead Pass to the Pacific coast has afforded readier access to the expanding portion of the Canadian parairie west. And now the ships of the fleet of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine are a big factor in the marketing of the products abroad. In no other part of Canada can such great trees be seen. We have some beautiful, systematical old elms in the Ottawa valley and in other section of the eastern portion of the Dominion. We have, also, splendid examples of the maple and oak. But nowhere else in this country can we find the Douglas fir (named after David Douglas, explorer, 1825-30) reaching a height of 300 feet and attaining a circumference at the base of betwen 30 and 50 feet. Not all of them, of course, grow to that great size, and, as a matter of fact, lumbermen prefer the trees of about 150 feet in height and from 5 to 6 feet in diameter, but the variety is to be found all the way along the coast from the International boundary to the Skeena river and inland to the eastern foothills of the Rocky Mountains. In addition to the Douglas Fir are the hemlock, black spruce, balsam, yellow "cedar" and white pine of the British Columbian forests.

It is probable that at present the annual cut in the province does not total much greater than the annual new growth. This province will not, of course, be so always. In fact it may not be long continued, with favorable market conditions. But nature co-operates most admirably. The waters immediately off the coast are fed from the Arctic and are very cold. Off beyond, the warm Japanese current sweeps. The combination produces abundant moisture which is caught up by the prevailing west winds and carried inshore. The high mountains of the Coast Range catch a lot of this rainfall, the Selkirks act as the boudary for some of that which passes above the Coast Range, and the Rockies stop most of the rest. British Columbia, is, therefore abundantly blessed with rainfall, especially at the coast and at the north, and the aid to vegetation is enormous. There are possibilities from reforestation in British Columbia, acordingly, sufficiently obvious to warrant the hope that the forests of British Columbia shall never fail. What the value of all this timber of the future will be is beyond computation. I would be difficult to even measure by dollars the worth of the timber standing today.

This mention of the moisture conditions west of the Rockies leads naturally to a consideration of the situation as regards argriculture. This industry has been transitional there. Time was when the limitation of communications in the interior to roads, trails and watercourses made the ranch having live stock as its product the only feasible form of activity along that line. Accordingly the inland country with its natural bunch grass became set off with great ranches, the owners of which lead an easy kind of life, driving the products to the nearest shipping point. When setlers did go in on the land, the inclination appears to have been to take things as easy as possible until the creation of additional communications increased the value of the holding by making the market sure. When that time arrived, the certainty of fruit as a crop made the cutting up of the big ranches into small fruit farms an inevitable result. This was a good thing for the owners of the big holdings, for the real estate men, and other intermediaries, and for the province, in that the resultant intensive cultivation increased the output from the land, the population, and the returns. The first big experiment along this line, probably, was that of the purchase of the Coldstream Ranch by Lord Aberdeen, and the planting of it to fruit trees. This was near Vernon. Lord Aberdeen was not enamored of the results and concluded he had made a bad bargain. But a decade later new management and new methods altered things and success was the result. It is a mistake to believe that the Okanagon country alone is suitable for this practice. Fruit growing possibilities are, according to authorities, wherever irrigation is possible, and shipping facilities are available. A majority of the interior ranches have been subdivided and the table lands and the side-hills, formed from volcanic ash and covered with its bunch grass has been demonstrated to be superior from the fruit-growing point of view even to the rich valley lands.

There are some portions of British Columbia where the climate is so mild that grapes and peaches may be grown on the sunny sides of the houses as in the Old Land over the sea. The apples of the coast are sought after in many markets. The production in small fruits is prolific. So, from any angle, the future of British Columbia from a fruit-growing point of view is extraordinarily bright. It is believed at "the coast" that in time the value of the fruit produced annually will equal, if it will not exceed, the value of the annual outturn from any other resource. The truck farms are mostly in the hands of the Chinese, are close to the large centres, and produce wonderful crops. The alien from the Celestial Republic is a wonder where intensive cultivation is concerned. He is a hard worker, prompt with deliveries and can live more cheaply than can his white-skinned competitor. The Chinese and Japanese constitute a problem at the coast that seems difficult of solution, a problem that will probably be discussed in some detail, when the statesmen of the western hemisphere and those from the eastern, gather at Washington this fall to discusss armament matters. There is no doubt it can and will be solved in Canada, with justice to all parties concerned.

Cereals are not extensively grown in British Columbia but potatoes are a staple crop and we are becoming reconciled to the idea that splendid tubers are produced in abundance in the coast province. Those who have persisted in the opinion that the product of New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and of New Ontario could not be excelled in Canada, may yet have to modify that assertion, if the reports from the coast are true.

These facts, as set down, seem to cover fairly well the extent of the agricultural industry at the coast but they may have inadequately expressed the revenue possibilities. In that connection it should be borne in mind that while British Columbia is a big province, only about one-twentyfifth of its area is suitable for agriculture at all. The valleys where most of the mixed farming is carried on are widely separated. The communications by rail and water comprise as yet not much more than a skeleton of what they will be when the development indicated here has been accomplished. Fruit and specialty-farming will probably be the chief lines followed, and, from these the rewards would appear to be limited only by the capacity of production and the industry of the workers on its fertile acres. There are many worse places to be than one of those little farms tucked away in a valley sheltered from the bleak north winds, where there is precious little frost; where the days are warm and the nights cool, and the fertility of the soil all that could possibly be desired.

No Waste with Carnation

CARNATION, is the milk of double richness, because it contains a minimum of 7.8% butterfat; whole milk and sterilized canned milk contain an average of only 3.5% to 4% butterfat. It is more economical than ordinary milk and is best by cooking test and there is no waste. It keeps indefinitely in the hermetically sealed and sterilized can, and you can keep an extra supply always on hand. And even after the can is opened Carnation will keep for several days in a cool, dry place. You use the amount you want—no more, no less. Buy a dozen cans. Give it a fair trial. Your grocer sells two sizes—the "tall" and "baby" cans.

Recipe

KEEP CARNATION FOR WHIPPING

Place a can of Carnation Milk in water and heat to boiling. Remove promptly and thoroughly chill by placing can on ice or in cold water. When cool, open can and pour milk into chilled crock placed in another crock filled with cracked ice. After milk has become thoroughly chilled add little lemon juice and whip in regular way with ordinary egg beater for about five minutes. Sweeten and flavor if desired. Keep on ice until served. Best results will be obtained if above is followed.

FARQUHARSON WINS CASE

The case of A. J. Farquharson vs Great Northern Railway, was heard before the Supreme Court of Canada, this week and Messrs Lawe & Fisher, solicitors for the plaintiff, Farquharson were notified that the decision won by them before the B.C. Court of Appeal, last spring, increasing the the judgment for damages allowed by the Trial Judge, from $8,500 to over $14,000, was sustained without the respondent being called upon to submit argument.

The history of this action, that two years ago Farquharson, who then operated a post and pole business on the branch of the Great Northern Railway, running through this section, located about eight miles west of this city. On October 7th, 1919, a fire started on the right-of-way which the company admitted was caused by one of their locomotives. This fire got beyond control, spreading to the limits on which Farquharson was operating, where it destroyed considerable post timber and also wiped out a large stock of posts and poles piled at his spur ready for shipment. A large amount of logging equipment was destroyed as well. Farquharson brought action against the G.N.R. for loss of manufactured timber and equipment and also in the name of Lawe & Farquharson, as joint owners of the property for the merchantable timber destroyed. The plaintiff, Farquharson, was awarded $5,000.00 damages and Lawe & Farquharson, $3,500, by Mr. Justice Morrison, before whom the trial was heard. The plaintiffs appealed on the ground the damages awarded were inadequate, and the Court of Appeal doubled those originally allowed Farquharson.

The G.N. thereupon carried the case to the Supreme Court of Canada with the result that the Appeal was promptly dismissed and the B. C. Court of Appeal award stands. Mr. F. C. Lawe, of the firm of Lawe & Fisher, solicitors for the plaintiffs-respondents attended at Ottawa before the Supreme Court of Canada.

FERNIE WALLOPED IN GRAND CENTRAL CUP GAME

On Sunday last, at Michel, Michel defeated Fernie by the score of 6-0, going into the second round of the Grand Central Cup games. Fernie had a strong lineup but were unfortunate to have both outside wings injured near the start of the game, one bing unable to continue. Travis, Michel's captain scored the first goal on a pretty pass from Brain. Fowler scored the second goal. The first half ended with the score 2-0, with Sawyer, the Fernie goalie, playing a wonderful game, saving his team time after time, but the second half proved too much for him, H. Travis scoring two more and Fowler adding two, making the total of 6 to 0. Mr. Jackson of Coleman, referred.

Michel's committee did not act but Mr. Robert Bainer, mine superintendent, got the boys together and they picked their own line-up, marked the grounds and made their own tags, harmony being restored, and the result of the game shows Michel still has a tetam worth boosting.

C.P.R. TRAIN WRECKED

About three o'clock this morning a C.P.R. freight train drawn by two engines struck a fall of rock in a tunnel near Leanchoil on the main line between Field and Golden. Both engines were oil burners and when the collision occurred the oil tanks exploded and burst into flames, causing the death of two engineers and two firemen.

All the transcontinental passenger trains are being diverted from the main line at Golden to the Kootenay Central and Crow's Nest lines until the wreckage has been cleared and the tunnel repaired. Two of these trains are expected to pass through Fernie this evening.

RED CROSS TAG DAY

The I.O.D.E. will undertake a membership enrollment drive for the Red Cross, and will hold a tag day for their benefit on Saturday, Oct. 22.

A proclamation commending said membership enrollment campaign and asking the citizens of Canada to give it their sympathetic support was issued in June in accordance with Article xxv. of the Covenant of the League of Nations, which provides that:

The members of the League agree to encourage and promote the establishment and co-operation of duly authorized voluntary National Red Cross organizations, having as purposes the improvement of health, the prevention of disease and the mitigation of suffering throughout the world.

If the World War had done nothing else, it had revealed the deplorable physical condition of the people everywhere. In Great Britain, out of 2,425,184 men examined in 1917-18, only three in nine were found to be fit and healthy. Canada, with all her advantages of open spaces and outdoor life, made but little better showing, for not more than one-half of the men examined were fit for full service in the field. Since this was the condition of men at the age when they should be the strongest, the condition of the women and children could not be satisfactory.

The advance made in the years before the war in the fight against disease was being lost and many dread diseases were again on the increase. The nations had lost millions of their youngest, strongest and best men, so with the conclusion of hostilities statesmen began to study the conditions of their respective countries.

As Lloyd George said: "You cannot maintain an A1 Empire with a C3 population. You cannot bring up healthy people in unhealthy homes." With the knowledge of the great part played by the Red Cross during the war as an auxiliary to the government, it was believed in as an organization which could help the governments immensely in the efforts which they must make for the improvement of health and the prevention of disease. In consequence the League of Red Cross Societies followed and Canada as a signatory to the Peace Treaty claimed a place in that organization and has pledged herself to carry out the peace time programme endorsed by the Red Cross Societies of the World, its purpose being to relieve the misery caused by disease and calamity.

In assuming the new obligations the Red Cross is not relieved of its old obligation to the sick and wounded in time of war. Under its new regime it will not only fit itself to be an effective ally to public health authorities in times of peace, but through continuous work will increase its facilities for service in times of war.

Health problems cannot be solved by doctors alone, not by governments alone; but the hearty volunteer co-operation of the people thmeselves must be enlisted.

The outline of the principal service to be undertaken in British Columbia this year is as follows:

(a) Completion of war work.
(b) Extension of rural nursing service.
(c) Administration and supervision of health centres maintained entirely or partly by the Society.
(d) Organization of local and Junior Red Cross branches.
(e) Health work in the schools.
(f) Establishment of a nursing service for coastal lighthouses.
(g) Establishment of disaster relief depots throughout the province.

The completion of war work covers an immense field. A convalescent camp was maintained at Boundary Bay and over 200 men were guests at the camp during the summer of 1920. Invalided soldiers in the hospitals were kept supplied with many comforts and every conceivable necessity was presented to the hospitals, from shaving materials to furniture, and the Society intends to carry out this invaluable service as long as necessary.

It is co-operating with the Soldiers Settlement Board, particularly by rendering assistance to soldier settlers and their families suffering from illness, disease or accident.

An important part of the work of the Red Cross in newly settled areas is that of giving careful attention to the nursing service, which is available to settlers, with a view to helping to put nursing and medical service within their reach, and where, in co-operation with other agencies, every effort will be made to increase the supply of trained and semi-trained nurses; also to provide such instruction as will render First Aid more generally known in the home.

The rural nursing service in British Columbia placed eight qualified nurses in as many districts of the province. These nurses are spreading the doctrine of good health and sanitation. More nurses are to be placed in the field this year, and new health centres will be opened.

The need for emergency relief depots is only too apparent. Epidemics, land slides, forest fires and other calamaties are always ready to overwhelm some unfortunate community and the Red Cross will be on hand to render assistance.

Health work in the schools and the organization of Junior Red Cross branches are closely allied. Accordingly there was embodied in the constitution of the League of Red Cross Societies a resolution that the National Red Cross Society should organize the youth of the country for Red Cross service.

Surveys and inspection of children in the schools of Canada have shown that 75 per cent of all the children have some minor or serious defect. A large proportion of these defects can be remedied if treated in time.

In addition to the benefits from the physical examinations and medical inspection, a great deal of good can be accomplished by interesting them in doing the things which promote health and not doing the things which injure health. The formation of proper health habits during school life is one of the essential means of improving the health of the nation.

Dr. Emmet Holt has said that "It is a part of the nation's duty to teach health as thoroughly as it teaches reading and writing. Education without health is well nigh useless, and education gained at the expense of health is wasted."

The world wide objects, remember, endorsed by the League of Nations itself and by the League of Red Cross Societies, are splendid objects:

To help the boys who suffered so much in 1914-18; to make the nation, young and old, a nation of the strong and robust; to deal with emergency and disaster; to work for the improvement of health, the prevention of disease, and the mitigation of suffering.

Will you not do your bit in this war, as you did during the Great War? It is for the sick, the children, and the boys—the wounded boys, remember.

We have witnessed a nation organized for war; we require a nation organized for the purpose of national health. If you have no time to be a worker you can at least be a supporter of the great cause.

ELECTION PROCLAMATION

Invermere, B.C., Oct. 18.—A proclamation for the election of a member for the House of Commons for the riding of East Kootenay in the coming election was issued today by Basil G. Hamilton, returning officer, and has been forwarded to the postmasters throughout the district and other parties as called for under the Election Act. This proclamation sets out that a nomination will take place in the court house in the city of Cranbrook between the hours of 12 o'clock noon and 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the 22nd day of November, 1921, and that the voting will take place at the different polling divisions on the 6th day of December, 1921. The cities of Cranbrook and Fernie, coming under the head of urban divisions, are entitled to a poll for every 300 voters. The various officers have not yet been appointed with the exception of the Election Clerk, who is Frank Richardson, of Athalmere.

Cranbrook, Waldo, Golden and Field in addition to the ordinary polls, will be entitled to advance polls especially set for the purpose of allowing railway employees, sailors, commercial travellers or any other person whose legitimate occupation is that of travelling, to poll their votes at a time convenient to themselves after the persons have been duly registered.

The undertaking of appointing the different officers for each polling booth is being rapidly proceeded with. It is well to note that the time used universally under the Act is what is known as Standard Time, applicable to the whole riding.

Registration in the urban divisions will extend from the 31st day of October, 1921, to the 5th day of November, 1921, both inclusive, commencing at 9 o'clock in the morning and remaining open until 9 o'clock in the evening, with two hours allowed the registrar for his lunch and supper.

TO SELL BEER BY THE GLASS

Victoria, Oct. 17.—Outline of the proposed beer legislation of the Oliver government was made today when it was stated at the government buildings that one of the first acts of the session to open shortly will be the bringing down of a measure providing for sale of beer by retail in any city or municipality under a system of local option.

Under the plan now being drafted by the Attorney General any town or village may vote upon the beer question following a petition of the ratepayers.

If local option carries in any community then the sale of beer may be permitted by the glass.

Six months of the Moderation Act has proved to the government that there is a public demand for beer by retail. Purchase of bottles of strong liquor by men and women who would have been satisfied with beer has not made for temperance.

The local option legislation providing for the retailing of beer has, therefore, met with the sanction of the members of the board and officials, and in his work the Attorney General is having the co-operation of the officials who are now piling up revenue for the province out of the government controlled liquor business.

During the past few months strong pressure has been brought upon the government to permit the retailing of beer.

While the jitney bar men, put out of business last summer, were the first to protest, the plea for beer has come chiefly from country districts and small towns where hotelkeepers claimed severe handicaps owing to refusal of the government to allow them to sell over the bar.

Following representations from members of the Moderation League executive, boards of trade and the Tourist Hotelmen's Protective Association, which includes most of the rural hotelkeepers of British Columbia, the Plebiscite Act was decided upon.

"THE SEA WOLF"

The attraction at the Orpheum for Friday and Saturday will be the Paramount Artcraft screen version of Jack London's famous novel "The Sea Wolf." The picture is declared to be in several respects out of the ordinary. Striking sea scenes, including a collision between a ferryboat and a schooner filmed on the very locale of the story—San Francisco Bay — are among the features.

But the chief interest is in the story. The central figure is the brutal sea captain, "Wolf" Larsen, a peculiar mixture of villain and hero, philosopher and near-animal. The plot centres around this terror of the deep and the adventures which befell a beautiful girl and her young idler admirer when they are involved in a collision and, rescued by Wolf, are kept by him aboard his vessel.

Noah Beery gives a notable performance as "Wolf." Tom Forman is the rescued youth who becomes a cabin boy and Mabel Julienne Scott is the girl.

PHONE LINE EXTENDED

Invermere, B.C., Oct. 19.—One of the public works of the Dominion of Canada in this part which has received the hearty and untiring support of Dr. Saul Bonnell, M.P., for the riding, has been the much needed extension of the telephone system owned and controlled by the Department of Public Works. For many years the line has been operating between here and Golden, and was in a most indifferent state until the subject was taken up with the department and the member by the Windermere District Board of Trade. It was always found that these two worked in perfect unison and harmony and with the combined push, conditions on this important public service have been improved from year to year until now there is a thoroughly good exchange established here with linemen working in and out of it looking after the whole system from Golden on the north to a distance of now 40 miles south of here. Thirty-four miles of the line in the last direction marks the direct result of the untiring efforts of Dr. Bonnell, the last 16 of which have just been completed and opened up for communication. This now leaves but a small gap between this terminal and the trunk lines connecting us with the great outside telephonic world and making communication easy with such points as Vancouver, Calgary, Fernie, Cranbrook and points along the Crow's Nest Pass branch, with which places the trade relationships of the East Kootenay are bound up and daily becoming stronger. The line also parallels the main trunk automobile road known as the Blue Line, or the Banff-California route through the valleys of the Columbia-Kootenay rivers.

MAY DEVELOP IRON DEPOSITS

Creston, Oct. 17.—A. G. Langley of Revelstoke, the provincial government mineral inspector, paid Creston an official visit the latter part of the week, and in company with G. A. M. Young had a look over the group of 40 claims which the C.P.R. is largely interested in at Iron Mountain, and on which considerable initial development work has been done, and the analysis of the ore showing it to be a very high grade hematite. Mr. Langley had no hesitation in saying the property was the most likely looking iron deposit he had seen in the province, and his report following that of mining engineers who had previously examined the property will likely lead to development on a much more pretentious scale. A few months ago the company secured the right to take water from the Goat river sufficient for mining operations on a large scale. The British Columbia Iron Co., Ltd., which also has quite a number of claims in the same area is likely to bring in a diamond drill in the spring to thoroughly determine the extent of the ore body in their holdings.

The National Crisis

"My appeal is to the whole people; to every man and woman who wants to do right by this country; to everyone who breathes the spirit of our fathers who founded this British Dominion."
—ARTHUR MEIGHEN

THE Election to be held December 6th will be the most momentous in Canadian history; for as men and women vote will depend the economic stability, the political stability and, indeed, the national stability of this country.

Today we find group striving against group, class against class, the industrial and financial structure of the country assailed by false and unsound doctrines and theories, while our great neighbour to the south has adopted a trade exclusion policy directed against Canada's vast agricultural interests.

The currencies of nearly every country in the world are depreciated. The Canadian dollar in the United States is subject to a heavy discount causing a loss of over one hundred million dollars in exchange annually.

Europe is overwhelmed with war debts—unemployment is acute — and the restoration to pre-war conditions is slow.

While Canada is in a much more favorable condition than many countries, yet there is evidence of stagnation, instability, unemployment and lack of confidence.

Taxes are heavy because of the country's efforts in the Great War, but have become burdensome on account of the misconceived policies and blunders of Governments that directed Canada's affairs prior to 1911.

These conditions are largely the direct aftermath of the war, but they must be dealt with fearlessly and constructively. This is no time to consider experimental changes, or the theories of visionaries.

This is no time for Crerar and his Free Trade policy.

It is the time to cling to orderly, stable Government in the interest of all the people; to be guided by the experience of the past, proceeding upon lines that have been proven sound.

It is the time to place the destinies of Canada again in the hands of a Government led by a sane, courageous Canadian who has safely brought the country through the trying years of reconstruction, and upon whom we can rely to retain and initiate policies in the interest, not of a group or class but of all the people.

It is the time to support Arthur Meighen and his Candidates.

Meighen will lead us through

RUSSIA

[illegible] P. Jennings has changed his mind regarding Soviet Russia. [illegible] Jennings is an American business man, a manufacturer and previously favored trade with the Bolsheviki. He even went out of his way to defend the so-called Russian Ambassador, Ludwig Martens. Mr. Jennings, who was president of the American Commercial Association to Promote Trade with Russia, journeyed to that country for the specific purpose of closing contracts for the sale of printing machinery—a very useful thing in these days of flat money. Six months he spent cooling his heels in Moscow, and this is his summary in his own words:

"They are the most dishonorable discourteous, unappreciative and the most contemptible and unsatisfactory people to deal with in a business way that the business world has ever had anything to do with.

"The statements made by enemies that the Soviets have no sense of honesty, fairness, equity or gratitude seem to be up to the present time substantiated by my own experience and that of others of our association who had business dealings with the Soviet Bureau in New York.

"The Soviet government set out to destroy capitalism and replace it with communism. They have been very efficient in the destructive part of the job, but almost totally inefficient on the constructive part of their program.

"In my opinion there is absolutely no hope for the revival of Russian industry by individual capitalist initiative. There is too much of the feudal brigand still in the Russian character for any capitalist who knows to take chances."

So much for Mr. Jennings and his experiences.

I will now turn to a couple of Russians who did me the honor of calling a few days ago. Both were intelligent men, one a mechanical engineer, who in the old and better days had charge of an automobile factory in Moscow. His tale was one that would literally make your hair curl. Of the Bolshevist army, made up of the dregs of Europe, convicts, Chinese brigands, the scum of the earth. Directed for the most part by former New York "East Siders"—the lowest type of immigrant that was ever allowed to land on American soil. Innocent people shot down by the hundreds without trial, on the mere suspicion that they did not sympathize with the Soviet. Outrages, starvation and robberies, not to speak of incompetency, was the burden of his story.

An interesting phase of the situation, according to the engineer, was the difficulty of getting the truth before the real Russians in both the United States and Canada. The faction against them was more powerful than the average citizen imagines. These "East Siders" and their friends were able to break up meetings attended by Russians, while the newspapers were for the most part dumb as to the real situation. — Saturday Night.

A WORD OR TWO ON FISHERMAN'S LUCK

By Ernest J. Farmer

Many people class anglers with golfers as votaries of St. Ananias. They do this through ignorance. They have not had the experience of the strange things that are in the water and sometimes comes out. Thus when a sober and reputable citizen gives an accurate and dealed account of some creature he has caught or narrowly missed catching, instead of being grateful for the information they are skeptical. The man who has had fishing experience is wiser. He believes, as he hopes to be believed.

I have myself landed some odd things. In Lake Joseph I have caught pickerel (dore) without a particle of yellow on them. I have caught a lake trout with a smaller trout nearly a foot long in its stomach. In Smoke Lake, Algonquin Park, I brought up from fifty feet depth a stone the like of which I have never seen elsewhere. It weighed about a pound, was rounded in shape and so full of pores it looked like a sponge. I have always regretted not having kept it and shown it to some geologist.

I have seen two rock bass of about five ounces each, caught at the same time on the same hook. The hook came through the upper lip of the first fish, entered the mouth of the other and was embedded in his upper lip. The lad who caught the two told me he had seen two half-pound black bass caught together in the same way.

A gentleman whom I know very well caught a five-foot eel while fishing for bass. There were three ladies with him at the time: his wife, her sister and he rmother. The eel slipped off the hook as soon as he got in the boat, and started for the other end. Yes, the ladies screamed. Yes, they stood on the seats. No, they did not upset the boat. The man passed them successfully, cornered the eel under the end seat and slew it there.

It is brought as a reproach against fishermen, that many of their most wonderful tales are of fish that got away, and so cannot be weighed and measured. Well, why not? It is reasonable to suppose that a large and able-dobied fish is better able to get away than a weakly undersized one. I am pretty sure the biggest fish I ever hooked got away. I did not see the creature, but I was using a fish of a pound weight for bait.

BRITISH COLUMBIA OWN MILK

Mrs. S. P. Crandall says that for a few cents spent on a tin of Pacific Milk one buys not only a deliciuos fresh cream flavor, but a cake-making material which in all her experience has never once caused failure. She says she is one who "encourages home industry" and that is something we all should do.

Mrs. C. adds that Pacific Milk is one B.C. product that she finds superior to anything put up in the East.

REMARKABLE CHANGE IN THIS MAN'S FAMILY

"I gained 12 pounds, my wife gained 26 pounds and my daughter is gaining day by day taking Tanlac. It's the biggest surprise of our lives and all our friends and neighbors are talking about it. This medicine has made a wonderful change in every one of us. Before I got Tanlac, I could hardly drag one foot after the other. I had indigestion perfectly awful. In fact we were all regular dyspeptics. We all swear by Tanlac now at our house. It ought to be in every home. It's the world's greatest family medicine."

The above statement was made by George L. Tessy, a well-known and highly respected machinist, living at 83 Downing St., Buffalo, N.Y.

THE CHARIVARI

The shooting during a charivari at Stouffville has led a contemporary to remark that the barbarous custom of inflicting noisy serenades upon the newly married could hardly be matched outside the cannibal islands. As a matter of fact, however, the "shivaree" as it is often inaccurately called, is an importation from that land of gallant manners—France. There, from very early times, it was a regular accompaniment of most weddings. And, though made, by the council of Tours, an offence punishable by excommunication it has still persisted. It was brought to this continent by the French of Canada and Louisiana.

The charivari (katenmusik or caterwauling as it is called in Germany) is by no means unknown to England, but there its early use was confined larkely to the punishment of husbands who had been cruel to their wives. In the north it was called "riding the stang" (pole); in the south "rough music." It was inflicted especially upon wife-beaters. The crowds gathered with pots and pans and other instruments of noise-producing, and hooted the guilty party unmercifully. It was not he, however, but a herald who "rode the rail." It was the custom to have the herald borne on a pole to announce the husband's offence, or sometimes a chair fastened between two poles. And there was, for such occasions, a rhyme of the following nature in the "ran-tan-tan" of which the whole party joined loudly:

"Ran tan tan, ran tan tan,
To the sound of this pan.
This is to give notice that——
Has beaten his good wo-man.
For what for why?
'Cause she ate when she was hungry
And drank when she was dry.
Hurrah—hurrah for this good woman.

"He beat her, he beat her, he beat her indeed,
For spending a penny when she had need.
He beat her black, he beat her blue.
Ran tan tan, ran tan tan,
We'll send him there on this old frying pan.

Sometimes there was an effigy of the wife-beater ridden backward upon an ass. Various ingenious methods of humiliating him were devised. And if mob law is ever justified there may have been some justification for the performance. At any rate, sundry wife-beaters are said to have been cured of it. But the French custom of "applying" the charivari indiscriminately, or to cast ridicule upon a supposedly ill-assorted couple, is an unfortunate importation, and should be discouraged in Canada whereever found.

Punch calls itself the "London Charviari" because of its satire. But satire should be markedly absent from matriomonial events; especially such satire as finds expression in the beating of old pans.

Gold production this year in British Columbia has been much higher than last year.

The order of the "Shorn Lambs" held a parade in Washington the other day. A number of former Demorcrat office holders were noticed in the ranks.

Declaring that it is one of the few exclusive privileges left a down-trodden sex, a Cincinnati court ruled that a man has the right to put his feet on the desk.

Chicago aldermen pay periodical visits to British Columbia to investigate the "cost of living." Strange that these pilgramages should have started after this province established Government Liquor Stores.

LET B.C. FLOURISH BY HER INDUSTRIES

It is proposed to hold a "cheer-up week" throughout British Columbia during the month of November. The idea is to acquaint the different sections of the province with what development is going on in the province, and thus overcome the pessimism that threatens to bring about greater unemployment than conditions justify during the winter.

Learn How to Dance

Pro. Cuddeford is in Fernie and will instruct the latest Ball Room Dances now the rage of the fashionable city of New York.

Pro. Cuddeford says: "If you can walk you can dance." He guarantees to make anyone, no matter who, a graceful and polished dancer in eight half hour lessons. If you already have a knowledge of dancing, then four half hour lessons are sufficient.

DANCE THE LATEST DANCES AND DANCE THEM WELL

Dancing is the most graceful of all arts. It lends grace to the carriage and polish to your bearing and makes you feel easily at home no matter what company you may be in. It gives dignity to youth and youth to age. Everyone should learn how to dance.

"HE DOESN'T DANCE!"

To dance is to get much of the real pleasure out of life. Everywhere you go, be it private or public function, dancing is quite likely to be part of the evening's entertainment. To participate to the full extent of these festivities, one must dance. Not to dance is to place one at a decided disadvantage. The woman becomes a wallflower and the man becomes bored and dissatisfied with himself.

Perhaps you are not a finished dancer. You do the regulation waltz—perhaps the one step and the fox trot—this is "so so.." Learn to do them well. Be conspicuous by being the most graceful dancer on the floor.

Under the Dominion Elections Act a registrar of voters will be appointed for the city of Fernie, who will sit one week commencing Oct. 31. All those who are not on the list should see that they register at the earliest possible moment. Stanley Norton will likely be appointed as registrar for the city of Fernie.

"Teddy" Mills, a well known citizen of Fernie for many years, died at the home of Wm. Marshall, Fernie Annex, yesterday afternoon. Deceased, who was 62 years of age, had been in ill health for several months. He was born at Bond St., Coventry, England, on the 5th of March, 1860, and came to Canada in 1906.

An Alberta driver let his car back over the Elko hill on Sunday, smashing it all to pieces. He had just made the first curve on low, when his car stalled and he got out to block the wheel. As he stepped away the car came out of gear and backed over the hill, landing down on the railroad some hundred feet below.

Fred Spalding returned from Calgary and Banff last Sunday, where he and Mr. Baalim, of Lethbridge, had been to interview the Boards of Trade on the business of the new Tourist Association. He reports good meetings at both places and expects they will join up. He left on Wednesday afternoon in his car for Nelson, Trail and Rossland to get the necessary pictures and data of those places for the new booklet.

"THROUGH THE BACK DOOR"

Because a servant loved her and because her stepfather made her mother leave her in Belgium, little Jean Bodamere faced the problem of winning recognition from the mother who thought her dead. She came to America an immigrant when the World War broke out with only a note and a passport with which to make her identity known. Her mother lived in a palace on Long Island. The child came to it in a delivery wagon. Of course, the mother did not recognize her, and circumstances conspired to prevent her telling who she really was. In order to gain entrance to the home that was rightfully hers she had to enter it through the back door as a servant. The trials and tribulations she encountered, the heartaches and the plot she found all combine to make a fascinating and gripping drama. And the climax that made possible the mother love this little child hungered for will tug hard at the heartstrings of all those who see it. "Through the Back Door" will show Mary Pickford at her best—a child role with all the pathos, all the comedy and all the little whimisical touches that have made her famous.

Do not miss this picture when it comes to the Isis next Wednesday and Thursday.

Chicago butchers complain that their customers insist on buying nothing but the choice cuts. Restaurant patrons wonder where all the tough steaks and chops come from.

It may be just as well that there are no women members of the disarmament conference. There are no mirrors in the conference room and the delegates can not tell whether their agendas are on straight.

JACKIE COOGAN IN "PECK'S BAD BOY"

Fernie Boy Scouts will present "Peck's Bad Boy" at the Orpheum next Wednesday and Thursday.

The production recently was given its premier presentation on Broadway, where it achieved a sensational success at the Strand theatre. The reviews of the New York critics hail it as one the the best screen comedies of the year.

In "Peck's Bad Boy" Jackie is said to have even surpassed his notable achievement in Charlie Chaplin's "The Kid."

The story is adapted from the immensely popular books of the late Governor George Peck. The subtitles were written by Irvin S. Cobb, famous humorist.

Supporting Jackie in "Peck's Bad Boy" are Doris May, Wheeler Oakman, James Corrigan, Lillian Leighton, Raymond Hatton, Charles Hatton and Baby Gloria Wood.

This is a great mistake, because here is the proof that constipation can be cured and the bowels made to act regularly and naturally.

YARMOUTH, N.S.

"For years, I was troubled with Constipation, and had to take laxatives and purgatives all the time. If I neglected to take these, the bowels would refuse to do their work.

About two years ago, a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives", which I did. The first box helped me so much that I obtained further supplies of the remedy and continued the treatment. After using about eight boxes, my bowels were able to perform their particular function without aid.

The relief in my case has been lasting, as up to date, I have never had any further trouble. I can recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to all suffering as I did and I am sure they will derive equal benefit".

A. W. FRANKLIN.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c., or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

LIFE INSURANCE AT ACTUAL COST

THE MUTUAL OF CANADA is so organized that it is actually selling life insurance at cost—the only old line company incorporated in the Dominion operating on that principle. Shareholders do not figure in the Mutual Life. There are no "middlemen." All surplus is credited solely to the policy-holders and is used for their exclusive benefit. These profits may be drawn in cash; they may be used to reduce the premiums or employed to purchase increased insurance. In any case the result is to reduce the insurance to a net cost basis. There are many other advantages in the Mutual system. Before placing your insurance get in touih with a "Mutual" agent—he will give you all details.

Editor Sullivan of the Cranbrook Courier expresses surprise and chagrin that Dr. Bonnell, M.P., should have received the support of ten delegates from the Columbia district in the recent convention. It is little wonder that he and his bunch of Liberal manipulators should be surprised. MR. CRERAR'S SPEECH

T. A. Crerar, who, unlike Dr Michael Clark, submits to the yoke of the ex-Populist Mr. Wood, and who is the ostensible leader of the Farmer group in the present campaign, has broken his silence by a speech at Brandon. To those who were awaiting his pronouncement in the hope that it would clarify obscurities and doubts about the agrarian program, and give his followers a basis upon which to fight, the speech must have came as a distinct disappointment. For Mr. Crerar had no new message for his friends. His speech, in fact, was little more than one of the warmed-over political menus which, in parliament and on the platform, he has been placing before the public during the past three years.

He complains that we are not trading enough with the United States. It is a curious complaint. It is curious, because last year we traded with the United States to the extent of buying nearly a billion dollars worth of American goods; and we are still buying from them at the rate of two and a quarter millions a day. True, we are not selling them as much; but whose fault is that? Whose fault is it if the United States, buying only half as much from us now as we are buying from them, decide that they should buy even less, and put up tariff bars agains us that will reduce the sale to them by one hundred and fifty millons each year? Whose fault is it? We accept—in part, at least—the Wilson-Underwood Tariff. We shaped our policy accordingly. We were willing to have more trade. And what happened? Simply this: That just as soon as Uncle Sam found the arrangement was not working the way he would have liked, he broke it off and put up his tariff bars higher than before. Mr. Crerar knows this. He knows that our trade with the United States is lop-sided. He knows that under the Fordney Tariff it will become more lop-sided. He sees the state of exchange. Yet his proposal—bred, we fear, in the mind of the ex-Missourian, Mr. Wood—is—what? It is that we should throw down our own tariff and let in more American goods.

Mr. Crerar says the government has no railway policy. Well, let us see. The government took over the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk. They did this while Mr. Crerar was in the ministry, and with his support. Today they are trying to repair the railway mistakes of the past. They are operating the roads with the aid of the biggest men they can find, men, for example, like Mr. Flavelle; trying to have them conducted efficiently, honestly, and without the curse of partisan interference. Mr. Crerar has supported this. He has spoken for it and voted for it in the house; his platform has a nationalization plank. What then, is his complaint? What has the government done that it ought not to have done? What has it not done that it ought to do? Mr. Crerar does not say.

* * *

He says we must economize. He is right. But has the government been profligate in expenditure? The increase in the cost of civil government, having regard to increased prices and salaries, has been practically nil. We are spending less for defence than any self-governing nation on the face of the earth. Public works have been practically at a standstill. According to the Farmers we are spending too little on agriculture. Where, then, shall we begin to economize? We must pay the interest on the national debt. We must pay railway deficits. We cannot cut the pensions of our soldiers. Will Mr. Crerar please take last year's financial statement and tell us where he would save? And, incidentally, does he think that those two strange planks in his platform—nationalization of the C.P.R. and nationalization of all mines — would help much toward economy?

* * *

He says that this is a government of Big Business. It is a familiar cry. It has been the stock-in-trade of every demagogue since the beginning of parliamentary government; yet what is there in it? Was Mr. Meighen the friend of Big Business when in the teeth of Montreal financial mandarins and with Mr. Crerar's aid he took over the railways? Was he a friend of Big Business when he imposed a Business Profits Tax more severe than was ever attempted in England? Was he a friend of Big Business when on top of the Business Profits Tax he imposed a corporation tax? Is he a friend of Big Business today, when he maintains an income tax on wealth higher than similar taxation in either England or the United States?

Mr. Crerar should not talk too glibly about Big Business. Does he forget his recent and present alliance with the Winnipeg Wheat Exchange and the grain kings to block an enquiry into those who are "farming the farmer" in the west? Does he forget the thirty-two lawyers which he and his Big Business friends employed a few months ago to fight to keep on the lid? We are not, says Mr. Crerar, appealing to a class. If that be true, then will he be good enough to answer two questions:

1. How is it that in Alberta none but an actual farmer may be a candidate of the party?

2. Why is it that the party has no candidates in the cities; that it is appealing to farmer ridings alone?

No, Mr. Crerar, this speech will not do. The people are weary of mere scolding, of a maximum of criticism with a minimum of fact. They are weary of demagogues marshalling unrest to further political ends. What they demand is something real, something constructive, something true. In your case they would like you to answer plainly this question: If the Farmer platform were put into effect thus cutting off one hundred millions of customs duties, where would you get the revenue we need? — Ottawa Journal.

The Moderation League's attitude on the public demand for

BEER BY THE GLASS

THE Moderation League has been asked to endorse several petitions which are at present being circulated asking for the sale of beer by the glass.

The consensus of opinion of the League, taken from its organizations throughout the province, has been and is in favor of the sale of beer by the glass under reasonable restrictions as being conducive to moderation. Prior to the passage of the present Act the League forwarded to the Legislature a resolution asking:

> "That the commission be given power to provide for the serving of beer by the glass during limited hours in approved establishments where meals are served. Such privilege to be subject to cancellation in any locality at the discretion of the commission. No beer to be sold over a bar."

Since the passage of the Act public opinion has strongly substantiated the League's resolution, and it has been suggested that the League should urge the matter on the members of the Legislature at the present session.

This the executive of the League is prepared to do. It invites the co-operation of all in favor of a moderate law and holds itself ready to assist in the presentation to the Government of petitions and the resolutions of organizations which have the above object in view.

All Communications should be addressed to the Secretary.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

—by—

There remains now only consideration of the fisheries among the natural resources of the coast province. These are admittedly great and widely known—witness the canned salmon, on sale in nearly every corner of the globe where the grocer distributes wares. Off the coast of British Columbia a submarine plateau extends for a considerable distance. The water covering is not very deep and would appear to be of the cool character one would expect from origin in the Arctic. This area of the sea is a natural breeding ground for fishes of many varities from the whale to the herring. But the great fisheries of the coast are essentially the salmon, the halibut and the herring. Their importance would be of about the order given. The salmon, born in British Columbia fresh water, find their way to the sea, returning when four years of age to deposit spawn and die. The fishers seek them on the way in to spawn and succeed in catching them in great numbers. Then they are cooked, and canned and marketed. Their quality is such that the pack in no other country can successfully compete at the price. The salmon is a source of considerable revenue to the national lines. The ships of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine will carry great shipments of it abroad as the years go by.

Prince Rupert, the northern terminus of the C.N.R. in British Columbia, is the strategical centre of the halibut fisheries, as well as being an important point in connection in the handling of the salmon pack. Time was, when the Americans, fishing for halibut in northern British Columbian waters, had to return to an American port down south with the catch Now, with our transcontinental line at the coast so close to the actual fishing grounds, the productiveness of a voyage is wonderfully increased. The waters are prolific. It is said, (no invidious comparison intended) that a fisherman may catch in half an hour's line fishing in these northern, western waters, the equivalent of what would result from eight hours of trawling in North Atlantic waters. It is natural that Prince Rupert should be in the way of handling a lot of halibut as time goes by. Already the handling of fish, freshly-caught, in carloads is a feature of Canadian National operation from that point. The management is seeing to it that the supply of cars is all that might be expected, and that policy will mean a big impetus to the fisheries and a large revenue-producing traffic to lines in northern British Columbia.

Now, what of British Columbia as a manufacturing province? The federal computators credit the province in 1917 with 1772 establishments, employing 40,098 persons, and having a value of products of $171,425,616 and classified the province as fourth among the provinces of the Dominion. Only Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia exceeding the coast province, in that census taking. These industries will be, in the nature of things, developments of the three main divisions of the natural resources of the province and that they are already so extensive is a tribute to the indutry of British Columbians who have decided they will not be merely hewers of wood and drawers of water where those great resuorces are concerned. Of course there will be wants in centres as large as are Vancouver, Victoria, New Westminster and other British Columbia points in the light industry line that will be met by manufacturers at the coast. And the chances are that with coal in abundance, and iron ore in prospect in quantity, a steel industry of magnitude may develop down by the Pacific. But apart from any such contingency, the greater utilization of the natural resources will make the coast province one of the great industrial provinces of the Dominion.

That consideration of the cities, the scenery, the railways and the ports of British Columbia has been left to the close of this article is not due to any lack of appreciation, but to the fact that they are already well known. The cities of Victoria and Nanaimo on the Island, and New Westminster on the mainland were founded quite a long time ago, as touched before, but Vancouver, Nelson, Revelstoke, Prince Rupert and many other points familiarly known to Canadians are not much older than the average middle-aged Canadian of today. They have grown up with the present generation and their aspirations and achievements are likewise known throughout the Dominion. Scenery, not the ordinary pastoral sort, but the grand, inspiring views inseparable with mountains, rushing waters, and the sea, is a commonplace in British Columbia. Its ports—Vancouver, Victoria, Prince Rupert—are directly in the line of development, and it seems certain that Vancouver at least will be one of the world's greatest shipping centres within the next quarter of a century. A greater utilization of the Panama Canal, and a more general development of the idea that grain can go through that tropical waterway between the oceans, in bulk, without heating, will assuredly "make" Vancouver.

Of the railways, more might be said than we have spaces for here. But they have been so much before the public one way or another during the last few years that any detailed mention might well be superfluous now. It is not as simple a matter as it might appear to plan and construct railways in British Columbia. The Canadian Pacific was sent through the Kicking Horse Pass to the Pacific, primarily, because a railway was a condition of confederation with the people at the coast. Its grade are heavy but the mileage is less than it would have been had an "easier" route been followed. When the late "Jim" Hill sensed the possibilities of the Canadian coast province he sent his lines into that province from the south. By the time the C.N.R. was ready to construct through to the coast from Edmonton, all the facts of construction were available to its engineers. The easy, but longer route, was adopted, to the satisfaction of the provincial government equally with the directorate of the railway. It meant that other great valleys would be opened up and that development would be rapid in the contigious territory. So with the G. T.P., the "prairie" base was Edmonton, the pass, the Yellowhead, while the upper Fraser and Skeena River Valleys were opened as another great rail route, and also the Bulkley Valley, which is one of the finest mixed farming regions in nothern British Columbia, with the possible exception of the portion of the Peace River Valley lying within the province. The construction of that line was of significance in connection with the development of the lumbering and fishing industries of the northern portion of the province, and the nucleus of a great port is already in existence at Prince Rupert. There was, in addition, a close relation between the construction of these continental lines, and the expansion of lines on Vancouver Island. When the agreement was entered into between the province and the builders of the Canadian Northern line, it was stipulated that construction should be carried out on the Island, the original line also became active, with the result that the lines now under construction will furnish excellent communications there, from southern to northern extremity. Coal, lumber and fruits are the chief commodities to be handled.

Apart from these main lines, and the extensions planned from them, there is also one that was designed to open up the Fraser watershed where not served with other lines. This road is now the property of the province. Among other things it supplants the picturesque old Cariboo Road as a transportation route, just as the line of the Canadian National Railways to the north supplanted the paddle-wheel steamers of the Skeena. Ambitious plans were made in connection with the building of the Pacific Great Eastern, and it is quite a possible that as the development of the province proceeds those plans will be worked through to completion.

Altogether, British Columbia is an interesting subject. In other issues it will be possible to treat in detail some of the conditions only generalized upon in this.

An average daily increased consumption of but $25.00 by each community in B.C. of the products of this province, would take care of the unemployed in the province this coming winter.

Carrying the Made-in-B.C. gospel to the various points on Vancouver Island, a party of Vancouver and Victoria manufacturers will visit the important centres on the Island some time this month, making an auto tour and holding meetings at the various places.

With the mining, lumbering and other basic industries along the coast resuming operations, the coal mines on Vancouver Island employing more men than this time last year, and the big fruit crops of the upper and the grain crops of the prairies being harvested, British Columbia business men are regarding the coming winter with more optimistic outlook than they have revealed for some time.

ULTIMATUM TO OFFICIALS

Blairmore, Oct. 17.—The officers of the U.M.W. of A. have until Nov. 21 to call a district meeting to elect new officers or they will be recalled. This was decided at the protest meeting held here on Saturday night at which fifteen locals in District 18 were represented.

It transpires that only 781 votes were cast, which were good, in the recent election, out of a membership of about 2800. The only local along the Crow's Nest line which voted was Bellevue, and only 10 votes of theirs were good out of 400 members. Fernie, the largest local in the district, with 900 members, did not vote. Coal Creek, Michel, Coleman, Blairmore and Hillcrest locals did not vote either. It was most likely on account of members having to sign their names on the ballots, that none of these locals voted. Out of the 781 good votes, Lethbridge local cast 623. The president of Lethbridge local stated that 651 ballots were cast at Lethbridge, 28 were spoiled, which left 623, and so far as he knew that local had only 625 members. He could not see how it happened and could offer no explanation.

It also transpired that the president, vice-president and secretary were elected by acclamation as all the candidates withdrew at the last minute, leaving the field clear to one candidate in each of the above positions. The sub-district member who would represent the 2800 members in District 18, was elected on one vote, it being the only ballot marked for him.

Some members had the impression that there would be some excitement at Saturday's meeting, but all was very orderly and businesslike, with only one resolution, that being that the officers of the district are requested to call a district convention on or before Nov. 21, and failing to do so there will be a recall of all officers elected recently.

THE CHIEF ISSUE

The Premier of Canada and the senior leader of the Opposition were in New Brunswick last week. Speaking in different places the same day both discussed the tariff, but while Mr. Meighen said that the tariff was the main issue in the elections, Mr. King held that it was not. Mr. King has given almost as much time as Mr. Meighen to a discussion of the tariff, but while the premier explains what the tariff should be and do, Mr. King's time is mostly expended in disputing whether the tariff is an essential issue. It is suggested that if the leader of the Opposition does not consider the tariff an issue he should leave it alone, and that if he does consider it important he should state clearly his views and intentions thereon.

But if the tariff is not the chief issue before the people we may expect Mr. King to tell the country soon what is the most important issue. Mr. King has mentioned one. He has declared that the people must decide whether the government should be autocratic or responsible to the people. But the constitution seems to have settled this. Mr. Meighen is himself appealing to the people. There is no question that the government of Canada will be responsible to the parliament about to be elected, as ministers were responsible to the last parliament.

It is open to Mr. King to charge the present government, or the Borden ministry with mismanagement or dishonesty. He is free to attack the war policy of the late government as it is violently attacked in Quebec. He can make these the principal issues of the campaign by bringing forward specific charges and supporting them with facts and records.

It is also open to Mr. King to show that he is a more capable leader than Mr. Meighen, better qualified for the premiership and able to form from his own party a stronger and better administration. That would be a direct and important issue and a live one, for it would refer to the future as well as the past.

Though Mr. Meighen considers the tariff to be the main issue, he will be obliged to discuss also these other issues if they are presented by Mr. Mackenzie King as of greater importance.

You can safely bring your children to the Isis. tf

FREIGHT DISCRIMINATION

The people of British Columbia are not now asking for a general reduction in railway freight rates. That would be a question affecting all Canadians the same way. They are making an appeal for justice on a simpler and more direct issue. They ask that an end should be made of the discrimination in freight rates against this province. They propose to show the commission that there is no justification for the higher charge on traffic in British Columbia. If there was ever a time when these surtaxes on British Columbia traffic were justified by the higher cost of doing business in this district they hold that the time has passed.

It is the duty of the commission to deal with conditions as they are, not as they once were. It will not do to lay a special burden upon the business of this province, or to allow one to remain that has been borne too long. Producers and traders in the distributing centres, farmers and fruitgrowers on the land, lumbermen, mining men, fishermen, and fish dealers, and all consumers are interested in this enquiry. It can not be to the permanent advantage of the railways to maintain a system of discrimination. Their income can be best increased or maintained by a fair and equal charge applicable to all the provinces. Whether that charge should be lower than it is now is another question. But it should bear on all alike, and give all provinces an equal chance to do business.

BREWERS SEEK CHANGE IN LIQUOR LAWS

VICTORIA, Oct. 22.—British Columbia brewers this morning laid their cards on the Government table at a meeting with the executive and pleaded for the enactment of new legislation that would permit the sale of beer by the glass. The interests were represented by A. B. Macdonald, K.C.

"We have nothing to conceal" said Mr. Macdonald, who admitted that the men whom he represented sought for similar legislation to that prevailing in Quebec.

If followed to a letter this would create a policy whereby hotels, restaurants, steamboats, dining cars, clubs and grocery stores would be enabled to deal in the amber fluid under government permit.

The question of sale of beer at fairs, summer resorts, racetracks, or the use of it at banquets or other gatherings would be left to the discretion of the commissioners in charge of the liquor business.

"The brewers in British Columbia have an investment here of at least $5,000,000," he said, "and it is unnecessary to add that this is a very great asset to the province.

"Prior to June 15, 1921, breweries had been selling beer to the wholesalers at $20 a barrel; since that time there has been a $3 tax eliminated, which would make the price now, if similar conditions prevailed, $17 a barrel. The breweries, however, are selling their products to the government at $14 a barrel, but despite that fact their business has fallen off 80 per cent. That is to say, these men are doing only 20 per cent of the business that they did prior to the passage of the Moderation Act.

"Unless some change is made in the methods of distribution every brewer in the province will go bankrupt.

"There is at least $500,000 going out of the province every month to foreign markets for the purchase of hard liquors. The brewers that are here this morning have all their interests in the province, employ our labor, and use the products grown here, and are therefore entitled to some consideration," he said.

"As the situation is now, all the vendors' stores are cluttered with beer, although they are selling a comparatively small amount. Eighty per cent of the space therein is given over to beer stocks.

The handling of it runs into a large amount of money.

"Should you allow the breweries to sell to permit-holders who in turn would retail the commodity, your vendors' store overheads would be decreased at least 50 per cent; the government would derive a much greater revenue than it is doing at present and there would be more temperance in vogue than under prevailing conditions.

"It is harder to obtain a common plebian drink today than it is to get hard liquor! the result is that the consumption of hard liquor is greater than it should be. We suggest that the government have a complete check on all places operating under a permit and have the right to audit the books of the breweries at such periods as they might elect. Breaches of the law to result in any penalty that might be deemed proper and the co-operation of all to really support temperance.

"The licensing of clubs, with proper regulations, would be infinitely better than the way they are now running," continued Mr. Macdonald. From a copy of portions of the Quebec Act submitted it is suggested that the tariff retailers would have to pay would be as follows:

	Cities	Towns	Rural
Restaurants	$300	$300	Nil
Diningcars	$100	$100	$100
Steamboats	$100	$100	$100
Clubs	$400	$400	Nil

Hotels—Over 75,000 population, $600; under 75,000 population $300.

Sam Prenter, Vanvouver, pointed out that under existing conditions a man often enters a vendor's store, orders a dozen bottles of beer, and finding it too heavy to carry changes his mind. He then orders a "crock," sticks it in his pocket and walks off.

"Chief Anderson of the Vancouver police, has told me that one of the great problems that his department now has to deal with is the settling of domestic troubles, which result from liquor being carried into the home," he said. Mr. Anscombe, Victoria, arose to make a notation that on a basis of 5 per cent tax on the total sales the revenue to the government would be $250 000.

"You don't think we'd let you off that easily, do you?" queried Attorney General Farris. Premier John Oliver, in replying to the delegation, recalled the fact that when the government was faced with the necessity of drawing up a liquor act that they deemed it advisable to leave it to the Legislative Assembly, as the members, coming as they would be, right from the people, and with the views of their electors in mind, would be better able to cope with the situation.

"The question was thrashed out very fully at that time," said the Premier, "and I do not know if there are any of the members who have changed their minds since. I have attempted to keep this thing from becoming a matter of party politics. The government, in my opinion, will have to be guided in a very great measure by the wishes of the legislature."

The Premier's reply settled the conference and the meeting adjourned.

There is little doubt but that the thing will be brought up on the floor of the house, but just who will be sponsor for the bill is as yet only problematical.

The feeling on the inside is that the government does not wish to take responsibility for the measure, while not voicing any serious objections to make it more or less of a party issue.

"DON'T WANT A RED"

A convention of the Labor party was called in Fernie for Sunday last but for some reason failed to nominate a candidate, the meeting adjourning until next Sunday. In the evening Phil. Christophers, M.P.P., and John Turner, addressed an audience of about a hundred in the Grand Theatre.

There seems to be a vast difference of opinion between the Labor leaders in the Cranbrook end of the district and Fernie district. The Cranbrook railway men want a straight labor man, not a red from Fernie or Michel, as they term them. A meeting was held in that city on Saturday and the chairman in his opening remarks stated it was his desire to see formed an organization based on constitutional lines with the "Old Flag" as its symbol. There was no "Red or Bolshevist" ideas about it, and he knew from the expression and feelings he had met with other men that they were fully in accord with him. Mr. Hendersons shows the audience that the National Labor Party had a splendid program and was of the opinion that a labor candidate had a splendid chance in this election to carry the riding. He told a story of how the politicians do in Cranbrook. "I heard a story on the street the other day," he said. "A lady asked if Dr. King was running for the federal election and on being told that he was not, she replied, I thought he must be as he stopped me three times today and shook hands."

"TEH GOLDEN SNARE"

Heralded as one of the most picturesque and compelling versions of any James Oliver Curwood story yet filmed, "The Golden Snare," produced under the direction of David Hartford, comes to the Orpheum theatre next week for an engagement of two days, commencing on Wednesday, Nov. 2.

Lewis S. Stone, who has distinguished himself in other Curwood pictures, notably "The River's End" and "Nomads of the North," is the featured player in "The Golden Snare," in which he is again seen in his familiar and popular role of a member of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police. Ruth Renick has the leading feminine part and others in the cast are Wallace Beery, Melbourne MacDowell, Wellington Playter, Francis MacDonald and Baby Esther Scott.

"The Golden Snare" is an absorbing story of mystery, adventure and romance of the north. It deals with the lone search of Sergeant Philip Raine of the R. N. W. M. P. for Bram Johnson, the madman of the Aractic barrens. Raine finds Johnson, and also Celie, a beautiful elf of that wilderness, the mystery of whose presence is not cleared up until Bram, his reason returned, sacrifices his own life to save her from the hands of a white outcast and his band of Esquimaux followers.

The Rebekah dance on Tuesday evening was a huge success. The supper set complained a little because the program contained a number of the old time dances with which [illegible]

FERNIE TO ROSSLAND

(By Fred Spalding)

This is one of the most beautiful trips I have ever made. Leaving Fernie last Wednesday afternoon we reached Cranbrook after disputing the right of way with a Cole Eight about a mile this side of Elko on about the narrowest piece of road on that run. Honors were about divided; no serious damage was done, but how it was avoided is a mystery as we were both going about 20 miles an hour and met going round a curve.

We stayed over night at Cranbrook and left on Thursday for a leisurely drive to Kuskanook. The road as far as Yahk is wonderfully improved to what it was when I was over it in June, and can be classed as good now. From Yahk to within a mile of Kitchener is about the same. The mile this side and the two miles the other side of Kitchener are bad. The rest of the way to Kuskanook is quite good, especially from Creston on. This section of the road is high up on the hillside and the views looking over the Kootenay Flats and to Kootenay Lake are very fine indeed.

There is a very good wharf at Kuskanook and the facilities for driving on to the boat are very convenient. There is no one in charge of the wharf and one has to do their own signalling for the boat. The arrangements for this however are crude. There is a semaphore so placed that the dolphin of the wharf comes between the range of vision between the boat and it, and unless the weather is very clear the captain of the boat cannot see it. One of the ranchers there advised me to build a fire on the beach as a signal, as the captain had told him that was the only thing he could see. The arrangements for unloading at Nelson are not so handy. At high water they are all right, but at this time of the year there is a slope of about 35 or 40 per cent from the boat to the dock, and as this has to be taken from a standing start the dock hands have to help out by towing one up.

I have been in Nelson pretty often but this occasion is the only one in which I can say that I have really seen the town, and I now quite understand why the people who live there are so enthusiastic about it.

The thirty mile drive from Nelson to Castlegar, to my mind surpasses in beauty any other run of the same length in the whole of British Columbia. You are high up on the hillside looking along the Kootenay river the whole way. At Castlegar in one direction you see the confluence of the Kootenay and Columbia Rivers, and in the opposite direction get a fine view of the Arrow Lakes in the distance.

From Castlegar to Trail you are along the Columbia river the whole way, and this is almost as beautiful. The grades are a little heavier and the road narrower, but the surface is good.

I believe I was one of the first, if not the first, to drive from Trail to Nelson. This was seven years ago, and then it was practically risking ones life to do it. In those days it was only by the wildest stretch of imagination that one could designate it as a road. Now it is more like a boulevard and the man who has made it so is Wm. Ramsay, our former city engineer.

Roughly speaking the driving distance from here to Trail is 200 miles. With the exception of the three miles by Kitchener it is a splendid road all the way. This three miles Ramsay has promised he will have regraded and surfaced in the spring. The Crestonites say that when he promises them anything they consider it done.

In future we are going to direct all travel to Spokane through by Port Hill instead of Kingsgate. It is a far better road, the distance is very little further, and there are farms wih telephone connections every mile of the way between there and Bonners Ferry. The other way it is a vile road running through a wilderness all the way. In the case of a breakdown one would have an awful time getting help.

"HEARTS OF YOUTH"

Ishmael,, the name of the hero in the production "Hearts of Youth" in which the Fox star, Harold Goodwin, is to open at the Isis on Monday and Tuesday, is found in the Bible as a Hebrew name meaning "God Hears."

Ishmael in Biblical history, was the son of Abraham by his Egyptian slave. Through the jealousy of Abraham's wife Sarah, the mother and son were driven away, and they wandered in the district south of Beersheba and Kadesh.

The significance of the name, as possessed by the central figure of the Fox film, will be apparent to any one witnessing this fine photoplay.

BIG STRIKE CALLED OFF

Chicago, Oct. 27.—The rail strike scheduled for Oct. 30 was averted tonight when leaders of the switchmen, conductors, engineers and firemen at a joint meeting adopted resolutions withdrawing authorization of a walk out and officials of the railroad telegraphers organization announced they would take similar action.

CRITICAL STAGE IN THE IRISH QUESTION

London, Oct. 27. — Announcement by Lloyd George today that next Monday had been allocated by the government for a discussion in the commons of the pending motion of Unionist members censuring the government for conducting the present Irish negotiations, was taken as bringing the Irish issue to another critical stage.

CITY COUNCIL

Last evening the regular meeting of the city council was held with all members present. The minutes of the preceding meeting were adopted as read.

The Coal Co. submitted an account of $380.05 for repairs and renewals to power house spur during 1919. As the details of this account were something beyond the knowledge of the present council, a committee comprised of Aldermen Douglas and Corrie were requested to consult with the Company and report back to the council.

Three tax sale property bylaws were finally passed and adopted, while two others of similar nature received their three formal readings.

The council then informally discussed various civic questions, the principal topics being the waterworks system and also comparative data compiled from information received from a number of towns and cities similarly situated to Fernie with regard to the cost of fire department maintenance. Ald Corrie took this data under advisement and altogether it will be considered by the fire, water and light committee, who no doubt will bring in certain recommendations in that connection.

RED-BLOODED TIMBER STORY

"The Rider of the King Log," a big special feature, will be shown at the Isis next Wednesday and Thursday at regular prices.

A visualization by Holman Day of his own novel, this is the most authoritative picture of the North Woods, and the romance of the great logging industry, ever made. There the Timber Barons of Wall Street tried to have their way with a rugged son of the forest—old XK., the rider of the king log. When he died, his daughter took up the battle that was waged with the mighty forces of Nature as its weapons.

It is a genuine picture, made by a genuine man, with two thousand genuine lumberjacks. It is right there with a score of punches and a "knock out."

BOWSER CHARGES AND P. G. E. ARE STIRRING 'EM UP

(Special to the Miner)

VICTORIA, B C., Oct. 21.—While the entire program of the Government has been to rush things through and submerge every charge under cover of press of time, it is likely that the Legislature will be in session until Christmas pursuing investigation of the Liquor Act on motion of Hon. W. J. Bowser, leader of the Opposition, and of the P. G. E., on motion of William K. Esling, member for Rossland.

Mr. Esling spoke for over an hour this afternoon. He showed the government had increased the public debt from $20,000,00 to $65,000,000 in five years; that the borrowings for the last six months amounted to $15,000,000 on which interest alone saddles a per capita debt of $16.00 per year, in addition to the $100.00 per capita debt now in force.

To meet this, the Government, after levying every conceivable tax, is going to levy a one per cent. income tax on the earnings of every man and woman in the province without any exemptions. To that, a miner earning $100.00 per month, must pay $12.00 per year.

The Rossland member branded this as iniquitous and outrageous and denounced the Government policy on top of this of increasing all general taxes for 1922, and thereafter a full one per cent.

Mr. Esling also dwelt on the P. G. E. and the financial report of the railroad, which will be brought down for the first time in three years.

He branded the report as mere camouflage, in concealing over $1,000,000 worth of equipment and challenged Premier Oliver or his ministers to refute his charge. He showed that Foley, Welch and Stewart agreed to complete the road to Prince George for $6,000,000, and that the provincial oficials had also estimated that it could be finished for this sum, while it cost the government $16,000,000 to date.

Mr. Esling said the Northern Construction Company's accounts had never been audited and this company was the funnel into which public funds were poured. He said the Premier would not ask for more funds to carry on the work because he knew it meant defeat, and that unless the railway borrowed money illegally and without authority of the Legislature, work would have to cease.

As the matter stands, it is thought that Premier Oliver cannot possibly get the support of his followers for an additional loan.

Mr. Esling claims that the outrageous payments to the Northern Construction Company would build two universities.—Rossland Miner.

COMING TO THE ISIS

CALLS CHRISTOPHER A THIEF, SUIT FOR $5000 INSTITUTED

As an aftermath of the election in the Rocky Mountain constituency in the recent provincial contest, an action for slander has been filed by P. M. Christopher, the sitting member, against Francis Lote, a miner, claiming damages in the sum of $5000. The slander is alleged to have been uttered by the defendant on July 14th last when, at a public meeting held at Hillcrest, he did falsely and maliciously speak and publish of the plaintiff to Joseph Stobbs and others assembled the following words in their presence: "The third party, Mr. Christopher, was a thief and had used the funds of the widows and orphans of the Hillcrest disaster, and was a disruptionist."

The plaintiff claims that in consequence of the said slander he had lost the respect and the confidence of his fellow constituents and fellow associates, and has been held up to ridicule and contempt by his associates and constituents, and, in addition, lost a great many votes at the last provincial election in the Rock Mountain constituency which he would otherwise have received but for the uttering of the said slander at the said public assembly. The damages claimed are special $2000, general $3000, totalling $5000. The claim has been filed at the court house in the city by I. Ostlund, K. C., acting for the plaintiff.— Lethbridge Herald.

The American troops on the Rhine border have initiated the Germans into the mysteries of "African golf." If the Germans are bound to shoot, a Texas paper thinks is it better for them to shoot craps than Krupps.

The venerable old Turk, said to be 146, who was married for the fourth time in Constantinople the other day to a girl of 25 showed mature judgment in having some one to care for him when he grows old.

MEMBER FOR FORT GEORGE EXPOSTULATES

VICTORIA, Oct. 24.—Criticism of government policy was voiced in the legislature this afternoon by H. G. Perry, Liberal member for Fort George, in the course of his speech in the debate on the address.

Mr. Perry urged completion of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway to Prince George, "no matter what it costs," and its projection into the Peace River country. He suggested that the government abandon the exploration of the Pouce Coupe oil country and throw open to the public the development of the district. Dealing with the Question of roads in his constituency, Mr. Perry said that the people of the north country were wondering why the government could not increase road expenditure when it could afford to pay $150,000 for a liquor warehouse in Vancouver.

The Fort George member said that the people expected reduction of taxation in this province. He urged that in any readjustment that might be made the people with small incomes be given first consideration. An economy committee to "pare down expenses," he though was needed in British Columbia.

Mr. Perry declared in his speech yesterday that the entire upper country is convinced that in the operations concerning beaver there is every suggestion of graft. The opposition forces were clearly delighted with the Fort George member's expose.

"I recommend," he said, "that the game board be abolished. It is serving no purpose and occasioning great expense. Let a committee of the house manage these matters and make regulations and also let us have a better and higher type of employees. I want to tell the premier that the time has arrived when a certain type of officials must get out and give way to men who can adequately administer the law.

"I don't believe the people of the province want to change the government at present, but I do think that they do want to see certain changes in departments and unless this is done the government cannot survive."

In both government and opposition circles the feeling aroused by Mr. Perry's speech appears to indicate the dismissal of Mr. Baker. In addition to this it is probable that a demand for a select committee will be asked this week by Mr. Bowser in addition to the probe into the liquor board's administration.

Political "blocs" in Washington are being denounced as blockheads for blocading urgent legislation.

The Vital Issue

"What we have to decide is this—Are we going to continue the protective system of this country or are we not? That is the question and that is the whole question. And the great, big, necessary thing is that every voter in this country from the Yukon to Halifax knows that this is the question he or she is deciding when he or she votes in this great contest."

—ARTHUR MEIGHEN

THE vital issue in the coming election—in fact, the only issue—is the Tariff, and to every clear thinking Canadian it should be readily apparent that a Protective Fiscal Policy is absolutely essential to stability, progress and development.

Every important country in the world upholds Protection as an essential economic principle. Even Great Britain—so long the stronghold of Free Trade—has now adopted laws that constitute Protection of the most effective kind. In fact, the present policy among most nations is towards raising their tariff walls, not lowering them. In the face of these facts it would be suicidal for Canada to do exactly the reverse and discard the fiscal system which has been responsible for its progress during the past forty-three years.

Free Trade would mean death to Canadian Industry. It would also result in the immediate closing down of Canadian plants of foreign firms, with consequent additional unemployment. There are to-day 650 American factories alone in Canada. Similar proposed ventures would be abandoned. New capital would refuse to come to a Country lacking adequate protection and present industrial enterprise would be promptly strangled by foreign competition.

The preservation of the home market by a Reasonable Protective Tariff is vital to both city dweller and agrarian alike—now as never before. More capital is urgently needed for the development of Canada's enormous resources, which will result in a lessening of unemployment and an increased population. More work and more workers will produce an enlarged home market for products of both city and farm, and the exodus of Canadian men and women—and the dollars they earn—will be precluded.

The United States has slammed her trade door in the face of Canadian farmers by adopting the Fordney Bill, and the farmer is consequently now even more dependent upon the home market than in the past.

Yet Crerar asks you to destroy that home market by voting for Free Trade.

King's policy—if he has one—will result in the destruction of the Tariff.

Meighen stands four square for Reasonable Protection—Protection for all the people—and asks for an overwhelming mandate to give both industry and agriculture that assurance which will spell prosperity for all. Individual prosperity depends upon National prosperity. Your personal interests and Canada's very existence hang upon your vote.

THE FERNIE BUSINESS COLLEGE

FERNIE, B.C.

THE "BIG BUSINESS" CRY

In his Brandon speech, Hon. T. A. Crerar, the Farmer's leader rang the changes on the phrase "Big Business" as though it were something of Satanic significance. He charged that "big business" was on the side of the government, as though that circumstance constituted a complete condemnation of the Meighen administration. Already that section of the press which is sympathetic to the so-called "Progressive" party is printing the sinster accusation in black type and trying to persuade the public to be engaged in "big business" or have aught to do with anybody associated therewith is to be a worse offender than Fatty Arbuckle. Before the end of the campaign spell-binders all over Canada will have uttered the phrase in lowered and sepulchral tones indicating their utter horror and repulsion at the thought that "big business" should be tolerated in Canada. "Small Business' is to be the slogan of the "Progressives."

Now in the name of common sense, what is so hideous about "big business" that politicians and journalists should bleat with fear at the very thought of it. Where would Canada have been, and especially where would the farmer have been, without "big business?" How would any young and sparsely populated country get along without it? Hon. Mr. Crerar is a native of Ontario. His ancestors were pioneers who came to that province in the early 'forties. Some of them knew what it was to swing a bag of wheat over their shoulders and walk twenty miles to have it ground. What pulled them out of the rut of hardship and unnecessary exertion that marked the life of the pioneers, but "big business?" "Big business" arrived in Canada and built railroads, they gave the farmer the first essential of prosperity and progress, transportation facilities. Mr. Crerar's earlier ancestors in Canada, probably reaped their crops with the scythe and threshed them with flails. "Big business" started implement industries that enabled the farmer to vastly increase his production, and decrease the volume of his manual labor. The ancestors of Mr. Crerar unquestionably parted with the products of the farm for prices which seem beggarly and incredible to-day. "Big business provided the marketing facilities which immeasurably increased the farmer's earnings. "Big business" built the railroads which prompted Mr. Crerar's parents to go to Manitoba and built up the basis of their eminent son's prosperity. Mr. Crerar has himself seen the west grow with the active co-operation of "big business." His children have seen "big business" at work providing motor cars to travel on prairie highways that but a comparatively short time ago knew no vehicle but the ox-cart. "Big business" has strung telegraph and telephone wires in remote wildernesses. It has in a manifold way added to the comfort of the farmer's life to a degree that would seemed increbible to Mr. Crerar's ancestors when they came to Canada eighty years ago. There is no doubt much still to be done, but only "big business" can do it. Why rail at "big business?" Canada would still be for the most part a wilderness and the prairie sacred to buffalo and gopher, without it.

And now we come to think of it, Mr. Crerar is pretty deep in "big business" himself. He was long manager of the Manitoba Grain Growers; and is head of the United Grain Growers Limtied, one of the biggest corporations in Canada, which claims corporate privileges in so great a degree that it holds its proceedings to be sarosant and beyond scope of legal investigation. The United Farmers of Ontario have also been in "big business" for a long time, and last December proudly boasted of one of the most signal privileges of "big business,"—a large overdraft at the bank. If the truth were known Mr. Crerar no more desires to abolish his own special lines of "big business," and rturn to the old system of "small business" than he desires defeat. But if he can win votes by deluding the ignorant with an outcry against "big business" he is seemingly willing to do so. The groans of Sergeant Buzfuz over "Chops and tomato sauce" were not more ridiculous than such a plaint from the President of the United Grain Growers. — Saturday Nigth.

W. R. DOBBIE, OLD TIMER OF PINCHER CREEK, PASSES AWAY

W. R. Dobbie, an old-timer of the Pincher Creek district and well known in this city, died Saturday morning and was buried Sunday, his funeral being one of the largest in the history of that town. The Masonic lodge had charge of the burial, a number of Masons and old-timers attending.

Mr. Dobbie came west from the eastern townships in 1887, and worked for the McLaren Lumber company. Later he farmed on a large scale and operated the Arlington hotel, which is the headquarters of the old-timers, stockmen and farmers of the foothills country. He was 58 years of age. He was at one time mayor of Pincher Creek.

Mr. Dobbie leaves a widow, five daughters and two sons. All reside in Pincher Creek. His daughters are Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Kelly, Mrs. Synder, Mrs. De Buc, Mrs. Tucker and Miss Marian Dobbie He was a Mason and an Oddfellow, members of both lodges attending the funeral in a body.

The pall bearers were all pioneers of the Pincher Creek district and old friends of the deceased: Harry Hyde, John Herron, Fred Pelletier, Dick Harris, A. R. Dempster and Charley Kettles.—Lethbridge Herald.

"Ned" Sheppard, one of the brightest young newspapermen who ever sat in an editorial chair in British Columbia, has pased away. At the age of 24 he was managing editor of a Vancouver daily. He left the position to serve overseas, where he contracted tuberculosis. He died at Kamloops.

"THE SHARK MASTER"

Much of the action of "The Shark Master," which will be shown at the Isis this Friday and Saturday, takes place on the mysterious island of Amanu, in the Southern Pacific. It is a place of primitive people and outlandish customs. Savages, weird rites, and sacrificial orgies! Can you picture the awful dance of the head-hunters, of the Voodoo fanatics?

Then there is the beautiful Flame Flower, a white queen in a land of mystery and enchantment. She knew no law save the dictates of her own heart. This modern Eve is wonderfully portrayed by pretty May Collins. Even in the simple South Sea garment she wears, she looks every inch a queen.

Learn How to Dance

Pro. Cuddeford is in Fernie and will instruct the latest Ball Room Dances now the rage of the fashionable city of New York.

Pro. Cuddeford says: "If you can walk you can dance." He guarantees to make anyone, no matter who, a graceful and polished dancer in eight half hour lessons. If you already have a knowledge of dancing, then four half hour lessons are sufficient.

DANCE THE LATEST DANCES AND DANCE THEM WELL

Dancing is the most graceful of all arts. It lends grace to the carriage and polish to your bearing and makes you feel easily at home no matter what company you may be in. It gives dignity to youth and youth to age. Everyone should learn how to dance.

"HE DOESN'T DANCE!"

To dance is to get much of the real pleasure out of life. Everywhere you go, be it private or public function, dancing is quite likely to be part of the evening's entertainment. To participate to the full extent of these festivities, one must dance. Not to dance is to place one at a decided disadvantage. The woman becomes a wallflower and the man becomes bored and dissatisfied with himself.

Perhaps you are not a finished dancer. You do the regulation waltz—perhaps the one step and the fox trot—this is "so so.." Learn to do them well. Be conspicuous by being the most graceful dancer on the floor.

ENROLL NOW

Don't miss this opportunity. My entire time is devoted to individual or class instruction, privately.

"HEARTS OF YOUTH"

You are probably familiar with the fame of Mrs. D. E. N. Southworth as a novelist. And if you are not, your mother is. Among the most famous of Mrs. Southworth's novels was "Ishmael," a tale of mystery and long-delayed vengeance on which Wiliam Fox has based a photoplay entitled "Hearts of Youth."

A couple of men from the prairie were in the city this week looking for an opening to start a bakery. Fernie has already a couple of bakers who seem to be able to supply the present demand for bread, and any further additions along this line at present would seem to be excess baggage for the city to carry.

This week's program at the Isis promises to be the most satisfying of any that has yet been shown. Friday and Saturday, "The Shark Master"; Monday and Tuesday, "Hearts of Youth"; and Wednesday and Thursday, the big special production, "The Rider of King Log," at the regular price of admission.

The city voters list will close on Monday. Be sure your name is registered. The Dominion list will open for registration the same day and will be open for one week. Do not overlook your opportunity. If you did not vote at the last provincial election it will be necessary for you to register again.

Mr. and Mrs. James Lyne, of Fernie, were the guests of honor at a party given by their three sons in Michel yesterday, the occasion being the celebration of their golden wedding. Mr. and Mrs. Lyne were married fifty years ago, on the 27th of October, 1871, in Lisjeard, Cornwall, England. At the party the happy old couple were presented with a purse of gold.

Dr. Corsan returned on Tuesday from Vancouver, where his son, Thomas, was recently operated on in a Vancouver hospital. A large piece of shrapnel was removed from one of his legs. Tom was laid up in England for ever a year with a wound he received in the Great War and he apparently fully recovered, but recently it began to trouble him again and another operation was necessary.

The first big meeting to be held in Fernie in the present election campaign will take place on Thursday, Nov. 3, when M. A. Macdonald, M.P.P., and General Odlum, both of Vancouver, will address the electors on behalf of R. E. Beattie, the Liberal candidate. The itinerary mapped out by the speakers include: Golden, Monday, Oct. 31; Invermere, Tuesday, Nov. 1; Fernie, Thursday, Nov. 3; Nelson, Friday, Nov. 4; Trail, Saturday, Nov. 5.

The Fernie Motor Car Co. Ltd., has acquired the two lots to the north of their present building and are having plans prepared for a 60x90 foot brick building and concrete garage. The building will be thoroughly up to date and will have show rooms for new cars, offices and a tourist rest room with all modern conveniences. The whole plant will be steam heated and the new building will be exclusively for storage and washing purposes as the workshop will remain in the present building.

The work which the Canadian Pacific construction department is now undertaking at Kootenay Landing is giving work to train crews and others who might otherwise expect to be on short time at present, though traffic on the Crow branch is now reported to be considerably brisker than a short time ago. Many of the men now at work on the Kootenay Landing fill are from Cranbrook. The curves in the track in the vicinity of Canyon are being reduced to provide the material for the filling at Kootenay Landing, where the long trestle is being replaced with an earthen embankment. Recently there was a mishap at the Landing in connection with the work, when some cars loaded with earth got going down the grade leading to the car-barge slip, and went over the end of the lake. —Cranbrook Herald.

The following resolution has been received by the local Board of Trade asking for their endorsation: Fernie Board of Trade: Vancouver board of trade strongly urges you to vigorously oppose provincial government one per cent personal property tax for the reason that it is an iniquitious and extremely dangerous and detrimental form of legislation. Proposal is to levy tax on all merchandise, retail and wholesale, on all stocks and raw materials in manufacturers' plants and products and stocks in transit, and on personal securities, such as bonds, etc. Suggest you immediately call emergency meeting of your board to consider same and wire premier and your representative in house, also this board of trade. Quick action absolutely essential. — Vancouver Board of Trade.

The regular meeting of the W. A. G.W.V.A. will be held on Tuesday evening at 8 p.m. Business: Arrangements for dance on Nov. 7, poppies, etc.

Rev. Dr. Robertson, returned missionary, gave a very interesting illustrated lecture on China and Korea in the United Church on Friday evening last.

Tom Manning, aged 10 years, of Coal Creek, was admitted to the Fernie hospital on Sunday as a result of an accident sustained through the explosion of a detonator cap.

The general meeting of the G. W. V. A. will be held on Sunday at 2.30 p.m., to hear the report of the delegate to the convention at Port Arthur. An invitation is extended to all ex-service men.

Mr. B. A. Moorhouse, engineer and surveyor, of Cranbrook, has a survey party working in the vicinity of Flagtone to Waldo where several places are being surveyed and connections made across the Kootenay River. Mr. Moorhouse states that the work will last three weeks.

J. W. Skilling, of Fernie, has been appointed registrar to prepare the list of voters for the Fernie city polling division and will be at the Fernie Free Press office commencing Monday, Oct. 31, from 9 o'clock in the morning until 9 p.m., with an intermission from 1 o'clock until 2. The last day for registering will be Nov. 5. This leaves only one week for you to get on the list. Do not overlook the opportunity if you are not on the present provincial list.

Next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock the Fernie Social and Educational Club will meet at Ingram's hall to organize. Harold Anderson and Principal Sheffield of the Fernie Public schools, will furnish the entertainment, Mr. Anderson playing as pianoforte solo the beautiful "Negro Melodies" from Opus 59 of S. Coleridge-Taylor, and Mr. Sheffield presenting a lecture on "Poetry of the Romantic Revival." The need of such an organization as the Fernie Social and Educational Club is greatly felt here, where young men and women can gather to hear lectures on all subjects of interest, have debates on topics of the day, and enjoy from time to time social evenings, such as dancing, etc. A welcome is extended to everyone for Tuesday evening, free of charge.

On Sunday last the Woldo Golf Club were hosts, when a tournament was held, and aided by ideal weather the entertainment was very enjoyable. In addition to the members of the home club who turned out in full strength, four automobile loads of Fernie golfers and a similar number from Cranbrook attended, while surrounding communities nearer Waldo were represented as well. The competitions were four in number: Lowest gross score, ladies and gentlemen; and best lady and gent net score after deduction of handicap. A. Watson, of this city, carried off the lowest gross with a score of 81 for 18 holes, but the awards in the other events have so far not been reported, as the committee had to communicate with clubs represented by visiting players in order to secure the official handicap allowances.

MISSING—John Galbraith Smith, age 23 (formerly of Chicago, Ill.), height 5 ft. 4 in., black hair, ruddy complexion, blue eyes, has tatoo of Scotch thistle on forearm; was a returned man, having served with the 48th Canadian Highlanders. Wounded with machine gun bullet in left elbow. Any news will be greatly appreciated by his mother, Mrs. S. Smith, 649 Howe St., Vancouver, B.C.

A. M. Matthews, an expert violinist, of Vancouver, will arrive on Tuesday morning to join the musical department of the Isis theatre.

The annual meeting of the local Boy Scouts organization will be held this evening. Parents and their friends are invited.

Dr. Rutledge, of Cranbrook, is in the city today. He says that everything is looking very bright in that city for the candidature of Dr. Bonnell.

Geo. F. Stevenson, formerly manager of the Cranbrook Jobbers, but now with the head office of the Western Grocers at Winnipeg, is spending a few days in the city on company business.—Cranbrook Herald

R. Kirkpatrick's Ford collided with Perry Bros. Chevrolet yesterday near the King Edward. Both cars were badly damaged. The accident was caused by one of the cars turning the corner on the wrong side of the silent policeman.

The Cranbrook Courier says: A. K. Leitch, the Jaffray lumberman, was in the city this week on business. Mr. Leitch was the single exception in the fifteen Fernie riding delegates to the Unionist convention at Invermere who stood out for Mr. Elmore Staples, of Wycliffe, being endorsed as the candidate of Premier Meighen.

Editor Lawson, late of the Calgary Searchlight and 38 other mushroom publications, is out with a new one called the Wedge, published in Edmonton. Lawson has a wonderful imagination and were it not for his utter disregard for the truth in every shape and form, might have amounted to something.

Mr. Charles Steel of this city has decided that some of the 9,211,295 automobiles in America need his personal attention so he has gone to the National Automotive School in Los Angeles, California, where he will take up an extensive course of training in automobile mechanics and ignition. He expects to return home within three or four months a full fledged mechanic.

Cranbrook Herald: Dr. S. Bonnell, M.P., arrived in the city from Fernie last week-end and spent a little time in drawing up some preliminary organization plans for his campaign. His cause is becoming stronger in this district every day, especially when it is shown that most of the stories used as propaganda against him prove on investigation to be nothing but canards. Nothing better illustrates the folly of passing on gossip and hearsay and mere word of mouth, without stopping to investigate. Little things get exaggerated beyond all recognition when taken up by those who are not at all scrupulous as to how their idle talk may react.

SIX FATALITIES IN TUNNEL WRECK

GOLDEN, B.C., Oct. 22.—With the death in a hospital here of Engineer O. Peterson, of Revelstoke, and discovery of the body of another hobo amid the wreckage, the fatalities resulting from the tunnel disaster at palliser, near here, have risen to six.

At the inquest held by Coroner Stevenson, surviving members of the train crew said they were not travelling more than twelve miles an hour at the time of the accident, as a "slow order" had been given for this tunnel.

W. Miller, bridge and building master, testified that no watchman had been placed on the tunnel, because, in his opinion, there had been no danger of a cave-in.

Joseph Peressini, foreman of the gang which had been re-concreting the tunnel, told of finishing work for the day at 4:30 p.m. on Thursday. He considered the job perfectly safe at the time he left it. Members of the pusher engine crew believed it would have been almost impossible for the engineer on the leading locomotive to observe any obstruction, owing to the curve in the tunnel and also because escaping steam would enshroud the engine.

"That Palmer Dean came to his death on October 20, through the engine of a freight train running into a cave-in, in tunnel No. 21.45, about half a mile east of Palliser on the Canadian Pacific Railway. And it is the opinion of this jury that when a tunnel is being repaired a watchman should be stationed at the tunnel so that warning could be given to approaching trains."

Robert Watson, the tramp who survived, is still in the hospital suffering from burns but will revover.

BURY VICTIMS OF TUNNEL DISASTER

REVELSTOKE, Oct. 24.—The funerals of the four enginemen who lost their lives in the Palliser tunnel disaster last Thursday night were conducted here on Sunday and Monday.

A public serivce was held in the Masonic hall for Engineer Oscar Peterson and Fireman Roxborough Richmond at 2:30 Sunday, which was largely attended. At 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon the service was held for Fireman George Goodwin under the auspices of the Orange Lodge. Engineer Parmer Dean's funeral took place at 1:30 this afternoon from his late residence.

"BABE" RUTH LOST SOME REAL MONEY

Babe Ruth! Much has been written about him and there is much yet to write. But of all the stories of Ruth it strikes me that the most interesting developed this fall when the Yankees and the Indians were in a death grapple for the American League flag. Babe was puting forth his greatest efforts and 99 out of every 100 fans thought the Bambino was doing the superhuman because it meant world's series coin. That was far from the truth. The Babe was doing it because he wanted the glory of the world's series and he wanted his club mates, and his employers and the fans of New York to enjoy the same glory.

When Babe entered the Cleveland series and the two teams were in a deadlock for top honors the Babe realized full well that if his team won and eventually advanced to the world's series he would lose $50,000 in cold coin. That represented the difference in world's series money and what the Babe already had been offered for his post-season services.

You see, there is a rule in organized baseball that the members of a club participating in a world's series are barred from exhibitions, barnstorming trips, etc., during the period between seasons. That hit the Babe smack between the eyes. He had $25,000 worth of engagements with semi-pro clubs in the East alone. Then there is a trip to Cuba and a demand for his services in the winter League on the Pacific Coast.

Participation in the 1921 world's series meant probably as much as $4,000 or $5,000.

That was the situation that Ruth faced. He knew and realized better than anyone else what it meant for New York to win.

Did he let up in his stick work? He did not. His heavy hitting was a feature of the Cleveland series.

The Babe is no quitter. He never quits. He always has given them the best he had. And he already is predicting that he'll set a new home run record for 1922. And when his present contract with the Yankees expires he probably will be offered a much larger figure.

THE REAL MEANING OF WELL BRED FOWL

By John H. Robinson

Standard-bred means—bred to conform to that description of an established breed commonly accepted as authoritative. In this original and broad view the term is applied to poultry more than to other kinds of live stock, because all poultry standards in America are issued by the same general organization—the American Poultry Association—and the standing of a breed with the public depends upon its recognition by that association.

Purebred means — of an established breed without any mixture of foreign blood—that is, blood of stock not of that breed. The terms full-blooded and blooded are popular synonyms for purebred, but are rarely used by those acquainted with the technical language of the subject of breeding.

Thoroughbred means — well bred, that is, bred for improvement in one or more points, but not necessarily in accordance with the specifications of a common standard either of quality or production.

Comparison of the three terms shows that Standard-bred is the most comprehensive, really including the other two. Purity of blood is of little value without standard quality of a high order. The cull of an established breed has no value beyond its value for the production of market eggs and for meat.

Thoroughbred poultry that is not fully standard-bred, is mostly the laying strains of various breeds, and stock bred for its products without attention to preservation of standard type and to refinements of color patterns and of superficial characters. Strictly speaking, such stocks are thoroughbred—not standard-bred. The same is true of exhibition stock in which the breeder systematically departs in any degree from commonly accepted interpretations of the authorized standard.

Much of what is commonly called "utility" stock is simply standard-bred stock of a utility grade—that is, suitable for egg and meat production only.

Crossbred means — produced from parents of different breeds, The offsprings of such unions are half-breeds.

A grade animal or fowl, is an individual of crossbred origin, which has more than half the blood of one of the two parent races. Such an individual is called a grade of the bred predominating in its ancestry.

A scrub is a plainly inferior speciman of live stock of any kind.

The terms mongrel, scrub and cull are commonly used as synonymous. Precision in language would demand that they be applied with due consideration for the difference of meaning. There is, however, no practical object in a careful use of words referring to stock of the lowest value.

Sportsmen have discovered that although ducks frequent marshes they do not feed on marshmallows.

UNCLE SAM LOOKS AFTER HIMSELF

Mr. Crerar is stating that trade with the United States should be our first objective. Quite right. But suppose the other fellow will not trade with you. This is a concrete fact, and not an abstract proposition. I note that manufacturers of milk products are being forced into receiver's hands owing to the cutting off of the United States market, the emergency tarff bill being the cause. And let me say from first hand information that the average American business man is not worrying a bit, about our health or our trade. He is looking strictly after himself, hogging the home market and trying to get a toe hold on foreign business at the same time. He has not yet learned that if he is to sell he must buy, and methinks it is going to take a long time before he realizes that fundamental.

Uncle Sam is an insular person, wrapped up within himself. He does not know much about us nor of Europe, and cares less. The average American trades back and forth among the various States and has but seldom to enter the foreign market to supply his needs. He makes or grows nearly every thing he uses. I though me that the emergency tariff bill would be a general subject for discussion among American business men, but not so. In a week's journey I found not a man who knew as much about its details as does a junior Canadan reporter. He cared nothing about it. It simply did not interest him. Though he was all ears when the Japs were mentioned.

Do not let us flatter ourselves over much. We are not as well known as we sometimes think we are. Here is an instance:

Introduced as a Canadian to the general manager of a large Pennsylvania silk mill, he asked how great a population we had, suggesting the fgure as two millions. When told over eight millions. "Oh, as large as New York City."

Did he sell goods to Canada? Oh, no, it was too far away. He had no interest in extending his business to foreign countries. He was quite content to trade exclusively at home.

This is the typical attitude of the average American, particularly when one gets a few hundred miles south of the International Boundary. How then, in the name of common sense does Mr. Crerar or any other man expect to interest these people in our trade and our affairs? We would fare better by going farther.

As an indication of how this so called emergency tariff bill is putting a crimp in Canadian exports to the United States it would be well to study our trade returns for the first three months that this bill was in force, that is to say June first to August thirty-first. For that three month period last year we exported to the United States goods to the value of $142,120,000. This year in the corresponding three months our exports to that country were $67,382,000, a decrease for the period of $74,738,000. As these statistics are based upon dollar value rather than quantty, and as values have declined, they are perhaps not so serious as they look at first sight, but none the less it is a feather that shows which way the wind blows.

It is also interesting to note that our imports from the United States have also taken a decided tumble, having declined from $216,000,000 for the same three months period last year to $132,000,000 this year.—Saturday night.

In a single day recently more than 90,000 tons of shipping took place in the Port of Vancouver. The export trade in B.C. is increasing, but at home people still give preference to goods imported from a distance.

It is intended to add another tax on the shoulders of the people of B.C., and in addition, to remove exemptions on income taxes. The easiest way to lighten the burden of taxation is to develop the industries of the country. B.C. products pay B.C. workesr and B.C taxes

THE RAINBOW RANCH

It is the product of the Rainbow Ranch, located in the Roosville Valley. This ranch comprises 1000 acres. It is all irrigated and its fruit ranks high with that from many of the better known fruit growing districts of British Columbia.

Vegetables of all kinds thrive there including musk and water melons. Some of the latter this season have been well over 15 lbs. in weight.

The load shown in the picture contains 150 boxes of apples and a ton and a quarter of potatoes, all of which were disposed of at good prices almost immediately it reached town. It was brought in by truck by way of experiment, and demonstrated that fruit can be delivered from Roosville in this way considerably cheaper than by rail from Creston.

The Rainbow Ranch demonstrates what can be done with irrigation in the Roosville Valley, and if a comprehensive scheme of irrigation is ever put in there, and also in the Waldo and Baynes districts, the whole country south of Fernie will become wonderfully productive.

WHITE SPRUCE REFUTES CHARGES

(Cranbrook Courier)

Editor Cranbrook Courier.

Dear Sir:—

Enclosed find copies of telegrams sent and received in connection with our securing base ball players for the baseball tournament held at Fernie, September 5th and 6th, also affidavit of John L. Donaldson, C.P. Telegraph operator at Fernie

These we believe will be sufficient to clear us of the charges made by you in your recent issue of the Courier

You no doubt realize that the charges made by you, in view of the fact that you had no reliable information upon which to base them, are of a very serious nature, and we shall expect the publishing of this letter, together with our telegrams, the affidavit and your apology to us be given a prominent place in the next issue of your paper, also a request to all other papers who were kind (?) enough to publish your first article to see that this is given consideration by them.

In future, we would suggest that you have more consideration for the feelings of other people and that you publish no accusations unless you know them to be true.

Yours very truly,
White Spruce Base Ball Club,
W. J. Thomas.

"PASSING THRU"

"Passing Thru," the latest Thos. H. Ince-Paramount comedy, starring Douglas McLean, which comes to the Orpheum theatre on Saturday, is the humorous tale of a young man whose willingness to asume the troubles of others involves him in serious difficulties.

Billy Barton, the leading character portrayed by Mr. McLean, first draws a sentence to the penitentiary through having asumed the blame for a bank theft of which he was entirely innocent. Before he is placed behind the bars, however, he makes his escape in a spectacular train wreck and seeks refuge in the village of Culverton. Here, befriending a lazy mule being beaten by her master gets him into more difficulties, and his misfortunes continue to pile up until the final scenes of the story when a deluge of good luck more than evens the score.

"Passing Thru" was directed by William A. Seiter, under the persontl supervision of Thos. H. Ince. Bert Cann photographed the production.

LIBERALS HOLD BIG MEETING

The first political gun in the federal campaign for East Kootenay was fired last night in the Grand theatre, when R. E. Beattie, Liberal candidate, made his first appearance here, supported by M. A. Macdonald, K.C., ex-attorney general for this province, and candidate for the federal seat of Burrard, and Brigadier-General V. D. Odlum, Liberal standardbearer for South Vancouver. A. I. Fisher occupied the chair. The meeting was well attended and every speaker was accorded most attentive hearing. Peculiarly for gatherings of this kind in Fernie, there was absolutely no interruptions. Numerous questions were asked at the close of speeches but otherwise those who had addressed meetings here in the past expressed amazement at the orderly conduct of the audience.

Mr. Beattie said he had accepted the nomination against his personal wishes on account of recent ill health, but urgent appeals from friends throughout the entire riding, and the fact that the Liberal nominating convention was unanimously in favor of giving him the honor to contest the seat in the interests of that party, had induced him to accept. His opponents in the field, Dr. Bonnell, government, and Scott McDonald, labor-farmer, he regarded as friends, but politically they disagreed. He could hardly criticize Dr. Bonnell because during the four years he had been at Ottawa he had spoken on the floor of the house but once briefly on a question of health, but while there were many other really important matters taken up of great interest to his constituents, the Doctor remained silent. To put it briefly, he said the Doctor had done nothing. Scott McDonald he had known for 22 years, and a "harder-shelled Conservative" he did not know until he very recently blossomed forth a "labor-farmer" candidate. The only reason Mr. Beattie could give for the change of front was that the quasi labor-farmer candidate was really out in the interests of the government candidate. Dealing with the tariff suestion, Mr. Beattie said the Liberals nor the farmers had never been free traders. He, as a Liberal, would stand for a reduction in the tariff so that the farmers would benefit, but did not believe in the tariff of the Meighen government, which was devised solely for the benefit of the factories. In this district today not a sawmill is operating because there is no market for the lumber among the prairie farmers. He proposed increased immigration of the right kind, when industrial development would follow and the burden of taxation be reduced.

M. A. Macdonald, K.C., devoted over an hour on different public issues. The issue in this campaign was not the tariff entirely but the government railway policy was of greater importance. Canada today had acquired some 22,000 miles of railway. The people of Canada were obliged to pay one hundred and forty million dollars annually to meet the fixed charges and meet operating deficit. There were collected from customs last year one hundred and sixty-

FERNIE EDUCATIONAL AND SOCIAL CLUB

On Tuesday last Ingram's Hall was well filled for the first meeting of the Fernie Educational and Social Club.

The program was opened by H. Anderson, who captivated his hearers with some very fine selections of negro melodies. The speaker of the evening was Principal Sheffield of the Public Schools. Poetry is a subject for which the average man has little time, but the speaker unlocked the doors of this treasure vault and gave his hearers a glimpse of a few of the many jewels stored there. He traced the development of English poetry from the Elizabethean age down to the time of Wordsworth, and showed how the prevailing ideas and customs of the people were reflected in the poetical works of each period.

At the close of Mr. Sheffield's talk the meeting was thrown open for discussion and it was unanimously decided to continue these programmes. The following officers were then elected:

Hon. President—Dr. Garner.
President—M. E. Groat.
Vice-President—Miss S. Hardie.
Sec.-Treas.—N. Goligthly.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Nov. 18.

WHAT PREMIER MEIGHEN STANDS FOR

"I stand for unity in Canada, for solidarity of conditions and freedom of enterprise within our own borders. The lesson for Canada and the free peoples of the British Empire is to avoid the pitfalls of all the nations which have preceded it and sunk into oblivion, and of those as well that are writhing in chaos and suffering. I shall strive with all my power for national unity, embracing all races, languages and creeds. I shall fight with all my energy for national solidarity, for moderation of thought and action, for orderly progress, for maintenance of law and order, and for policies which have brought us to where we stand."

"My aim and object will be to hold the balance fairly and firmly among all classes, and to see, as far as this is possible, that the maximum of profitable labor may be given to all our people, and that they may be encouraged in the idea which I consider the foundation stone of national success, that intelligent effort shall always be suitably rewarded, that the men and women of this country may rise in stature and improve their minds and their material condition according to the measure of their endeavours. These I conceive to be the highest aims of statesmanship."

MEIGHEN AS SEEN BY THE BRITISH PRESS

"Mr. Arthur Meighen, Prime Minister of Canada will be much in the public eye during the next month. He holds strong views and is not afraid to express them. He has enthusiasm, eloquence, virility and vivacity. He will be the youngest member of the Imperial Conference—he is just 47—but he is experienced in the art of moulding men to his way of thinking.

"He may prove a difficult element in the Imperial Conference. He is an Imperialist, but he is a Canadian first. He realizes the importance of doing nothing that will stir up ill-will in America, and his vote on some issues concerning the Pacific will be guided largely by that consideration." —From the "Dail Mail" London, Eng.

"General Smuts has been a power for good. It is now an open secret that but for Mr. Meighen's courageous stand on Canada's behalf, after a heated discussion concerning the renewal of the Japanese Treaty, the Washington Conference might never have been called under such propitious stars as now. Mr. Meighen's wisdom has been warmly praised on the other side of the Atlantic."—From the "Evening News," London.

"Mr. Lloyd George often says that in his experience of the House of Commons the late Mr. Joseph Chamberlain and Sir Edward (now Lord) Carson were the two men who could most surely and swiftly fasten on the weakness in an argument. I am told Mr. Meighen, Canada's Prime Minister, has the same gift." —From the "Daily Mirror," London.

"Though the Canadian Prime Minister spoke but a few words he made a great impression on his colleagues. Those who have come into personal contact with Mr. Meighen assure me that he has a great career before him not in Canada but in Imper-

NO ROOM FOR IDLE MEN HERE

Last Saturday noon, acting on a telegraphed complaint of a train conductor in charge of a westbound freight that a large number of men were stealing a ride, the Mounted Police, assisted by the local members of the provincial force and the city police, searched the train on arrival and arrested 23 men, all of whom were lodged in the city gaol. Lately this practice of stealing rides has become chronic and on account of the large number surreptitously boarding westbound freight on the Crow, trainmen are powerless to handle the stuation. The incident on Saturday is the first occasion on which wholesale arrests have been made. The men taken into custody all claim they were seeking work in this section and they are but few of the thousands of unemployed that abound on the prairies. They came here because advised, even by officials, that work is plentiful in the mines of Fernie and Blairmore, and consequently they rush in this direction. This information is erroneous. While the mines in the Crow's Nest Pass are operating quite regularly, employers find little difficulty in securing the class of labor suitable for mine work, but the average laborer is hopeless when put to work underground. This condition applies also to the lumbering industry in the mountain section. In many instances lumber companies are opening logging camps on a limited scale for winter operations but they have not room for any gigantic influx of labor.

Of the 23 arrested here, $10 would cover the total amount of cash possessed by the band. Twelve of them were British subjects, mostly returned men, some only having arrived in Canada during September from the old country, and their small savings have been exhausted travelling around seeking employment. These men were placed at work in a local lumber camp by the federal employment bureau but the remaining 11 are United States citizens and will be deported. Civic officials are desirous of giving whatever relief is possible in connection with unemployment but equally anxious that full publicity be given that work is not at all plentiful in this section, and those journeying thither run danger of increased hardships through severe climatic conditions which are certain to exist almost any time now.

GOT CRERAR'S GOAT

It is said that a questioner in the audience at Woodstock, Ont., put Hon. T. A. Crerar "out of his stride" by a very simple question. The tenor of the "progressive" leader's speeches has been that Canadian industry is shrinking and that Canada is being depopulated through a rush to the United States, of whose prosperity he paints a glowing picture.

"Is the success of the United States due to free trade?" asked a listener.

Now it must be confessed that that was a very mean way in which to prick the bubble of a popular orator, and no wonder it left Mr. Crerar fanning the air for a moment or two. But he got himself together sufficiently to reply:

"It is true that the United States is the greatest single free trade area in the world. We have in the United States a country that produces every variety of product."

A quick enough reply so far as it went; but another heckler cut in: "That is what we want to encourage in Canada and it can only be done by a protective tariff."

At this point Mr. Crerar said he did not wish to be drawn into an argument; but he added that before many years the United States would repent and get back to lower tariffs.

SPEAK WELL OF FERNIE

(By J. Fred Spalding)

The wonderful weather we are having is certainly being taken advantage of by motorists. They are still coming through on their way to the coast and California points chiefly, but there are others just taking vacation trips. This week I have directed no less than eleven cars to Nelson and the Okanagan.

Camping is practically over and we are closing up the camp site this week. This has been the best advertisement Fernie could possibly have had. The last people to register there wrote: Oct. 29—Our party of three from Gull Lake, Sask., had the benefit of the camping ground of the City of Fernie. Our greatest pleasure is to find spruce trees and water, instead of thistles and dust. Best thanks and be sure that we will certainly advertise the hospitality of the Board of Trade of Fernie.—V. M. Vasseur, P. Longueval, E. Jensen.

On the 27th, Mr. C. Aggett, of Youngstown, Alta., on the way to Long Beach, Calif., wrote: "I must say that I have travelled the Western part of Canada more or less and as for a camping ground for the benefit of the public, this caps them all. Grounds with trees, a house to move in, fitted up with stoves, light and water, everything to make one feel at home. Congratulations to the citizens and the Board of Trade. The only thing I suggest is to advertise it in some of our larger cities and let the tourist know what they will find when they reach Fernie, B.C."

On Oct. 8, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Nesbitt, of Oliver, B.C., wrote: "This note of appreciation should have been made on Sept. 5, when we had the pleasure of stopping here while en route from coast to Calgary. How-

ANNUAL REPORT BOY SCOUTS

The annual meeting of the Fernie Boy Scouts' Association was held in the City Hall last Friday evening.

A very representative group of citizens were present, who were keenly interested in the various reports.

Scoutmaster, G. C. Evans, sent in the following report of the first year's progress of the Boy Scout movement in Fernie, which had been of such value to boys.

Scoutmaster's Annual Report

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen. It affords me great pleasure to present this, the first annual Scoutmaster's report of the work and activities of the Fernie Boy Scouts.

I do not think that it would be out of place to consider just for a minute before going into the actual report, what justification there really is for carrying on boys work on an extensive scale such as the Boy Scout movement has developed in Fernie. I that it has been said that while our work is commendable and all that, yet there isn't an adequate return for the money invested. Good and well. Let us look into the needs, investments and returns.

In the first place, is there a person here tonight who can tell me just how much there is invested in the Boyhood of Fernie, outside of our schools and Sunday schools. I think you will agree with me that it is a most lamentable, insignificant pittance; one that is hardly in keeping with the reputation that Fernie has earned for itself as an up to date, progressive and well ordered city. I believe all here tonight will agree that the Boyhood of Canada is the greatest national asset, yet our policy seems to be to let the boy take care of himself, if he slips or falls by the wayside, why that is all right, have not we money invested in reformatories, truant officers, schools of correction and the like for just such cases? Yet did you ever consider just what is behind most of such cases or by what process did the once innocent little chap grow into a so-called incorrigible, and after having analysed this and found the cause, go further and ask yourselves what are you doing and how much have you invested to combat this.

The average boy's week of 168 hours is pretty much taken up as follows: in school 40 hours, asleep 70 hours, eating 8 hours and playing 50 hours. We are all pretty well satisfied on the first three counts, that is, school, sleeping and eating, but what about the other 50 hours per week, a period greater than his school hours?

Here is where the Boy Scout movement comes into its own. A movement that has as fundamental principles such as Character Building; that is a sense of honor and fair play, steadfastness and pluck, self-reliance and cheery unselfishness, etc. Handicraft and Skill; through hobbies which keep a boy interested and usefully occupied. Physical Development and Health Knowledge, Helpfulness to others and a sense of duty to the community. Surely an active application of principles such as these during that fifty hours a week, will bring a big return on the money invested in promoting such a movement, which will satisfy even the

"A man of clear thinking and businesslike habits, he goes directly to the heart of the subject he tackles. His words ring true and he inspires confidence."—From "Pall Mall and Globe," London.

"Mr. Lloyd George has been captivated by the cultured personality of Mr. Arthur Meighen, the Prime Ministre of Canada.

"Reserved and reticent, nothing pleasing him more than a quiet retreat where books are to be found. Mr. Meighen yet addresses himself to public questions with something of an Imperial mind. His speeches in the conference of the Empire's Prime Ministers have been notable for their grasp of the main issues and their breadth of outlook. He has a thorough knowledge of British Parliamentary history, and one of his early addresses when he was making his debut in the public life of Canada was an analysis of the life character of the younger Pitt."—From "The Evening Telegraph and Post," Dundee.

"Mr. Meighen, the Canadian Premier, volunteered, I understand, to serve in the Boer War, but was rejected. He might have been a soldier fighting for dear life against the forces of General Smuts.

"Today each of them a Prime Minister, they meet around a table in the Cabinet Room at No. 10 Downing St., and admire each other's qualities of statesmanship."—From "The Star," London.

"Mr. Meighen is a remarkably young man to hold such a post, having climbed rapidly up to it by ability and force of character; and his youth should imply that for very many years ahead he will occupy, whether in or out of office, a leading place among the Empire's leading statesmen."—From "The Daily Chronicle," London

Mr. Meighen has won both the liking and respect of his fellow Premiers from Overseas, to all of whom he was previously unknown. He is a clever and very studious man, who speaks little, but always as a master of his subject. I am told that our own Prime Minister is greatly struck with him and that General Smuts is equally charmed."—From "The Yorkshire Herald."

"When the Canadian Prime Minister received yesterday the freedom of the City of London he interpreted that gift as a compliment to the Dominion from which he comes. He may be well asured that it was to the man who is the first citizen of Canada as well as to his office that the citizens of London were glad to do honor.

"They (Londoners) can well understand how power came into the hands of Mr. Meighen, and they have heard without surprise that whatever may be the future vicissitudes of politics and parties in the Dominion there is no dispute as to the confidence which his fellow-citizens have placed in the man who is now their Prime Minister.

"He has the good fortune to represent a country which at this anxious time enjoys a larger measure of content and prosperity than any other state in the world save one or two.

"Mr. Meighen assured us that the Canadians, as they prize the advantages of unity in the British Dominions in North America, have learnt to prize the unity of the Empire, and they are convinced that upon its maintenance depends the hope of evolving 'that greater league on the success of which the future of the world depends.'

"Such is the message of the Prime Minister of Canada; and if we may echo his words, not only the Dominions overseas but every British citizen must hope and pray that his anticipation will be fulfilled."—From "The Daily Telegraph," London.

"His keen and burnished intellect, straight and swift as an arrow in its piercing to the crux and core of a problem, reveals a Canada which is bringing her best brains to bear upon the problems of a war-enfeebled world

"There is a severity of seriousness about him. Before he crossed over from Canada and during his crossing he received countless invitations to attend this function and that during his sojourn in Britain. He refused to be feted. 'I need all my powers,' he said, 'for the immence task of the Conference itself. I can best serve my country by giving my whole strength to that work.' He preferred to sacrifice a festal popularity rather than dissipate his energies.

"His heart is as large and generous as his brain. He is an outstanding personality at the Round Table of Prime Ministers."—From "The Yorkshire Evening News."

"Mr. Meighen is the authentic line of the Canadian Premiers who like Sir Wilfred Laurier and Sir Robert Borden, have united a sincere devotion of the Ideas of British unity with a firm insistence on the right of the Dominions to develop on their own and diverse lines.

"As time goes on and the nature of the discussion at this year's Imperial Conference become more fully known, the importance of the part played by Mr. Meighen will be estimated more and more highly.

"Since the first step towards solving the problems of the Empire is to recognize courageously the difficulties they present and the many different aspects under which they show themselves, we owe a debt of gratitude to Mr. Meighen, and, without prejudice to the domestic politics of Canada, we hope that this will not be the last Imperial Conference in which he will take part."—From the "Manchester Guardian."

"Mr. Meighen's great attribute lies in an intellect of remarkable swiftness, his capacity for the massing of details and facts, and his uncanny divining of the weak points in the argument against him.

"To sum up, he is a fine friendly type of serious British manhood, intensley human and possessing faults like all of us. He has come to talk business and not waste time with the empty verbosity of old-world diplomacy.

"Intellectual, capable and straight, Canada has sent one of the best of her sons to represent her in the Council of Nations. That he is representing her well there is no doubt."—From "The Glosgow Evening Citizen."

"Meighen, as they say with us, is a man of reticence. He does not like, nor does he seek, the glare of the public light, the blaze the beats upon the heights of office. But he's in downright earnest. His motives are good, his principles brave, and his banners unstained. Canada sends you in Meighen a cultured citizen. He will grace your imperial counsels." it was an American visitor to our shores who spoke. He was interested in what I may call the conclave of Prime Ministers in London. It is the Empire in conference. My friend is a student of Canada, his country's neighbor on the north, and he admires the culture and the courage of the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, the Premier. I liked his chivalrous compliment.

It is well that we should know our distinguished guests. We cannot call them visitors in the usual meaning of the word. They are ourselves They are England facing and solving problems in the wider England beyond the seas. They are you and me, a little exalted, perhaps, but with like passions and purposes, inheritors of the same spirit and history. They warm their souls at the same altar-fires. And among the Prime Ministers of Greater Britain, Mr. Meighen takes noble place. I think it was Professor Skelton who said of him, on his being chosen and called to the highest office in Ottawa; "Our politics cannot be what reckless critics say when character and capacity find such quick and emphatic recognition." And so it is.—From the "Pall Mall and Globe," London, England.

His stay in this country has not been a long one, and his time has necessarily been fully occupied with affairs of the state. But he will take back with him to the Dominion the deep respect of all with whom he has come in contact, both now and during his previous stay in 1917, Even before he came amongst us he was assured of a warm welcome here on account of the part which he played in Canadian politics during the war, and for his known devotinon to the idea's and well-being of the Empire.

The speech that he made at the unveiling of the Great War Cross in the Thelus cemetery was a fine tribute to the fallen, expressed with the simple eloquence and delicate choice of words of which Mr. Meighen is a consumate master. It showed too, a deep realization of the spiritual and idealistic aims with which Canada and for his known devotion to the family of British Nations took their stand side of France and Belgium.

When he leaves these shores the country wil say au revoir to him as a faithful and upright son of the Empire, who stood by our side in the time of trouble, and leave us, as he came amongst us, with good will in his heart."—From the 'London Times.'

"Described by Sir Wilfred Laurier as 'the ablest mind that the Canadian Conservative party has produced,' Mr. Meighen, who represents Canada at the conference of Prime Ministers, has achieved the summit of political eminence in his country by the sheer force of his intellect.

"A Canadian publicist said not long ago that Meighen was a mathematician in politics. To those who have watched the new premier, the remark explains a good deal of his character. For to Meighen, politics is something to be taken seriously, to be worked out almost upon a mathematical basis, with sentiment and emotion and everything else that is even remotely hostile to cold reason ruthlessly ruled out.

"Mr. Meighen possesses an amazing capacity for sizing up a situation quickly and diagnosing it accurately. The attitude he will adopt on the many problems to come before the gathering remains to be seen, but one thing at least is already clear: He will stand for the traditional policy of Canadian statesmen since Confederation, namely that Canada must continue an integral part of the British Empire, but with the largest possible measure of freedom which such a position can permit."—From "The People," London.

"I suffered for ten years from nervous indigestion. I had no appetite and always felt miserable. I was in such a serious condition I thought my time for this world was getting short. My food didn't seem to nourish me at all and I only weighed 85 pounds.

" After taking Tanlac, I now weigh 108 and am gaining every day. Oh! there is such a wonderful change now. Tanlac relieved my troubles so quickly it surprised me. My appetite is splendid. I have plenty of strength and feel better than I have in years. I wouldn't take one thousand dollars for what Tanlac did for me."

STUDYING AT HOME

I wonder why, when a certain class enters High School, you can be certain that part of them will pass all their examinations, some of them will fail in a few, and others will fail in nearly all. I can give one reason for this.

Out of all the High Schol student in the State of Iowa at one time there was a certain number who did less than four hours a week home study and some of these did none; of this group fifty-six out of every hundred failed on one examination or more. there was another group who studied from five to eight hours at home each week, which s an average of about one hour per day, and forty-five out of every hundred of these failed on at least one paper. Another group studied from thirteen to sixteen hours per week and only seventeen per cent of these had even one failure and of those who studied from seventeen to twenty hours a week there were no failures even once.

Dr. W. B. Forbush has given us some suggestions about how to make home study profitable, he suggests:

1. That a pupil should choose a time when he feels best fitted for work and make that his regular time for home study. Some do this in the afternoon others in the evening.

2. In choosing the study period, do not let the week-end alter the regularity of your plan. Because there is no school on Saturday or Sunday, many students do no studying after school on Friday, thinking that among the many hours before Monday morning a convenient hour for study will appear.

3. Choose a secluded place for to study.

4. Place yourself in your study where you will not see attractive pictures, books, or playthings.

5. Set your task definitely before you. See clearly what you have to do in justice to yourself and your work.

6. Go about your work in the most direct way. Have all your books, papers, and implements right at hand.

7. Whenever you have something new to master, muster up all that you already know that is in any way connected with it and use it to help understand and explain the new matter.

8. "When you get through pumping, let go the handle." Study while you study, and play while you play. If you have done your best during the fair time that each subject is worth, then exercise, play, and comradeship will put you in better condition to meet the next day's test than if you become jaded in pondering over what you do not understand.

The Hallowe'en dance given by the High School puipls on Friday last proved to be a huge success.

Tomorrow (Saturday) is the last day for registering your vote for the Dominion election. The Free Press office will be open until 9 p.m., so get busy.

The regular monthly meeting and sewing meeting of the Ladies Aid will be held at the home of Mrs. Corrie on Monday evening, Nov. 7, at 8 o'clock.

Armistice Day and Thanksgiving Day will be celebrated on Monday, Nov. 7. The G.W.V.A. will hold their annual dance in Victoria Hall that evening.

How about hockey this winter? How about an organization meeting? The boys better hurry as all other towns are already organized and patiently awaiting the season.

Don't forget the Ladies Guild Thanksgiving Sale of Home Cooking to be held in the basement of Christ Church on Saturday, Nov. 5, from 3.30 to 6. Afternoon tea will be served.

The Ordine Indipendente Figli D'Italia held their annual B.C. and Alberta convention in Fernie this week. There were 22 delegates present, representing nine different lodges. This order has recently broken away from the international organization and is now a distinctly Canadian institution. The business of the convention consisted of drafting a constitution for the new organization.

There will be a special practice next Thursday night at 8 o'clock for all sisters of Esther Rebekah Lodge.

The masquerade dance on Tuesday night was a success in every way, being largely attended, over 200 costumes being in evidence. Following are the prize winners: Best dressed, Miss Gilkin, Mr. Piola. Hungarians: best represented. Miss L. Enright, Mr. (Happy) Doglotti. Newlyweds; comic, Miss Hooker, J. Wilson, Maggie and Jiggs.

W. D. S. Rorison, organizer for the Boy Scout movement in B.C., was in town this week on a tour of inspection. He visited the Free Press office and spoke very highly of the local Scout corps. He said Fernie was to be congratulated on the flourishing condition of the local camp. Even Vancouver, with its 1500 Scouts, had no unit that could compare with Fernie for general efficiency and that Scoutmaster Evans certainly deserves all the support which the citizens of Fernie can give him.

A tournament of 18 holes, medal play, for men, and 9 holes, medal play, for ladies, will be held over the Fernie golf course on Monday, Nov. 7. Prizes will be given for the low net score both for ladies and men. All those who desire to take part in this tournament should be down at the Club House not later than 9.20 a.m., so that the necessary draw can be made. There will be an entry fee of fifty cents for each player taking part in the tournament. In the afternoon a number of friendly games will be arranged amongst the members.

"Motor," which is the leading motoring magazine in the States, published monthly, has been running a camera contest during the summer of pictures applicable to motoring, open to anyone. The November issue, just out, contains a picture of the Lizard Range, sent in by Fred Spalding, which won second prize. This will be good publicity for Fernie, because under the picture appears: "This is a part of The Lizard Range in the Canadian Rockies, close to Fernie, British Columbia. There are nearly 1000 miles of such scenery and roads in this part of the country."

ever, we enjoyed your camp to the extent of planning our trip back so we could again spend a night here. It is by far the best tourist camp met with on our trip. Many thanks."

J. Jones, of Frisco, wrote: "Fernie is fine, but the beer is better." He evidently arrived thirsty.

As a fitting wind up, I received this letter from the Swift Current Board of Trade Thursday morning: Secy. Board of Trade, Fernie:

Dear Sir—A number of our citizens have suggested to this Board of Trade the desirability of providing in Swift Current a Free Camping Ground for tourists. such ground to be organiz- along similar lines to the one already established in your town.

These citizens speak in highly complimentary terms of the conveniences enjoyed by them in this connection when stopping over in Fernie during an auto trip to British Columbia last summer and are very enthusiastic over the proposal to have their city provide similar conveniences for the benefit of tourists passing thru Swift Current next summer.

It would assist us very materially if you would be kind enough to give us the benefit of your experiences with regard to your own Camping Ground, explaining the method adopted to bring it into being, the cost and how it was met, what facilities are provided and the fees charged, and any other information you may think would be of assistance to us in formulating our plans.

Thanking you in anticipation of this favor and assuring you of our readinees to reciprocate whenever in our power to do so, I am,

Your very truly,

J. C. Bellinger, Sec.

Here's some good news for our motorists. Mr. Haines, our road superintendent, told me yesterday that he had resurfaced the road between Michel and Crow's Nest and it is now in perfect shape. It is the intention of his department to widen out that narrow stretch going into Crow's Nest first thing in the spring. Other work planned for next year, if sufficient funds are available, will put our local roads in great shape.

I finally started in taking "Fruit-a-tives" and continued the treatment regularly as I found myself getting better. After using eight boxes of "Fruit-a-tives" (which cost only $4.) I am completely well without a trace of Rheumatism."

LIFE INSURANCE AT ACTUAL COST

THE MUTUAL OF CANADA is so organized that it is actually selling life insurance at cost—the only old line company incorporated in the Dominion operating on that principle. Shareholders do not figure in the Mutual Life. There are no "middlemen." All surplus is credited solely to the policy-holders and is used for their exclusive benefit. These profits may be drawn in cash; they may be used to reduce the premiums or employed to purchase increased insurance. In any case the result is to reduce the insurance to a net cost basis. There are many other advantages in the Mutual system. Before placing your insurance get in touih with a "Mutual" agent—he will give you all details.

Geo. Hoggarth motored in to Fernie on Thursday. He brought the big guns of the Liberal party here for the evening meeting. George was happy by the time he arrived, but he said it was necessary to be in that condition to listen to the hot air they peddled.

Scott McDonald, a C.P.R. bridge boss, was the nominee elected at the local convention in Fernie last Sunday to contest the riding of East Kootenay. There were thirty delegates present from all parts of the riding representing loggers, metal miners, coal miners and returned men. Two names were placed in nomination, Henry Beard, of Michel, and S. McDonald, Cranbrook, the latter being elected by the narrow margin of one.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Digby received word this week that their son-in-law, Archie Matheson, with his wife and children, had escaped with their lives in the great flood at Britannia Beach. Mrs. Matheson and the children were only rescued by the heroic efforts of a Chinaman. Their house was completely wrecked. The Vancouver Sun shows a picture of the dilapidated building and says that three women were imprisoned in the building, which was swept blocks from its place and dumped over, only the roof remaining whole. The three women were taken out only slightly injured. In the wreckage of the home could be seen the piano, electric stove and other household goods.

Will the party who removed the two sand boxes from the golf course this week kindly replace same without delay. If this is a Hallowe'en prank it is hoped that the boys will be manly enough to restore the boxes. If, however, this is deliberate mischief, the parties will be very severely dealt with if the Golf Club ever find those responsible for the removal of their property, and it is probable that a reward will be offered by the club, as the destruction of the club's property is not going to be tolerated, and any parties found destroying or attempting to destroy any of the sand boxes or seats or any other club property will be most severely dealt with.

COMING TO THE ORPHEUM

"THEIR NAME LIVETH FOR EVERMORE"

As each successive anniversary of Armistice Day has passed, the sentiment has been expressed among the people of the Allied nations that there should be some tangible evidence of the reverence in their hearts for the heroic dead who made peace possible. The children of the devastated areas of France gave the nucleus of an idea which is rapidly gaining recognition, when they gathered the red poppies, which grow in profusion in Flanders and Northern France, and decorated the graves of the fallen heroes, near their homes. The suggestion from childish hands was seized upon by the French Children's League, which hes been endeavoring to formulate plans in order to provide for the thousands of orphan children in their country. They placed the women and children of the war area at work making silk replicas of the poppy, with the idea in mind that they could be sold and the proceeds devoted to this pressing need.

On Armistice Day every patriotic and remembering Canadian will buy and wear a poppy, and the double purpose of honoring our fallen and at the same time relieve distress among the destitute women and children of France and Belgium, will be served.

In Flanders Fields where poppies blow
Between the crosses, row and row, which mark our place,
And in the sky the larks still bravely singing fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead, short days ago we lived,
Felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
Loved and were loved, and now, we lie, In Flanders Fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe,
To you from falling hands we throw the torch
Be yours to hold it high—If ye break faith with us, who lie,

Provided proper freight adjustments can be secured, and the discriminatory freight rates against British Columbia be removed, great stimulus will be given to production in this province, it was declared before the Railway Commissioners last week.

MAYOR DISNEY OF COLEMAN PASSES

COLEMAN, Nov. 1.—Edmund Disney, mayor of Coleman passed away on Sunday, Oct. 30, at the residence of his brother and sisters in Wimbleton, London, Eng. Mr. and Mrs. Disney and daughter Elsa, have been visiting for the past six months in England. The trip was taken largely because of the indifferent health of Mr. Disney, hoping that his native air might revive him.

Mr. Disney was a man honored and respected by all. He has been an alderman for many years and last year the citizens showed their confidence in him by electing him to the highest honor—mayor of Coleman.

Mr. Disney was a real pioneer. He came to this country thirty-five years ago. For a while he and his family lived at the coast. Then he took up ranching in the Grand Forks district. When the Crow's Nest opened up Mr. Disney was early on the ground and located in Coleman. He set up in business for himself as carpenter and most of the buildings in Coleman were built under his supervision. Latterly the firm has been known as Disney and Johnson.

Mr. Disney was a loyal churchman having been associated with Saint Albian's congregation from the very first. He was a past master of the Masonic order in Coleman and took a great interest in Summit Lodge.

Now let us take a glance over what has actually been accomplished by the Boy Scout movement in Fernie since its inception barely a short year ago: We have a membership at the present of about sixty-three boys and about seven officers and instructors. To this number must be added the boys who have moved away from Fernie or going to out-of-town schools and thus forced to sever their connection with our Troop. We have representatives from our troop now residing at Toronto, Vancouver, Kelowna, New Westminster and other places. Taking these boys into consideration who have in one way or another been forced to leave the movement, close to one hundred boys have come under the influence of the Boy Scout movement in Fernie.

It was October 30th, 1920, that I first met with twelve boys to talk over the possibility of starting a Boy Scout troop in Fernie. We had at that time a couple of rooms in the Liphardt Block and a week later we had twenty-four boys and from that date to the present time we have had all the boys, and in fact, more than we can comfortably handle. I might say that of those original twelve boys, we have eleven, the twelfth having moved to Vancouver with his parents. Equipment was gradually obtained bit by bit until today I am safe in saying that we are one of the best if not the best equipped Scout Troop in the Province of British Columbia. The rooms in the Liphardt Block had to be vacated within a month of taking possession as they were altogether too small and we were fortunate in securing the present quarters. The present rooms while wholly inadequate for the size of the Troop, nevertheless are fitted up to come as near as possible to meet our requirements. One room has been fitted up as our club room, and is used as a reading and recreation room and 'headquarters.' Another room is equipped as a kitchen, a third is well equipped carpenter shop, complete with tools, bench, etc., while the fourth room is known as the 'muster' room. The caretaking and cleaning, etc., is properly looked after by the boys themselves, a different patrol being on duty each week, and, while the rooms might not pass muster before a committee of fastedionos housekeepers, yet they are looked after in a manner which reflects great credit on the boys. The Troop property is taken care of by a Troop Quartermaster and two assistants whose duty it is to carefully keep track of all property, to issue it out when required and see that it is returned in the same condition as when issued. In so far as possible the affairs of the Troop are conducted by what is known as a Court of Honor composed of Patrol Leaders and Seconds under the supervision of the Scoutmaster. This Court of Honor has its own committees such as a Social Committee, Visiting and Sick Committee and Sports Committee, and I might say that anyone who has not seen this Court of Honor functioning would be greatly surprised at the businesslike manner in which all business and probelms are tackled by the boys.

Ambulance, 7; Miner, 3; Cyclist, 15; Public Health, 5; Healthyman, 9; Bugler, 1; Pathfinder, 5; Starman, 1; Musician, 5; Signaller, 6; Missioner, 1; Printer, 1—Total 59.

In addition to this there have been about 50 Second Class badges awarded, 2 First Class and 2 All-Round cords. This, of course, only gives an idea of what has been accomplished by the way of badges and shows that the holder of these badges has become specially proficient in the subject indicated by the badge but does not indicate what has been absorbed by the boys along lines for which badges cannot be granted. It must also be remembered in considering the work of the Troop as guaged by the number of proficiency badges, that a Scout cannot try for a proficiency badge until he has first become a Tenderfoot and then a Second Class Scout, and, be it remembered, all our boys were green and we had to start at the bottom of the ladder and work up. However, let us also remember that our foundation has been built upon a Rock and not upon Sand.

Besides the foregoing we have also been busy along lines such as carpentering, field telegraphy, cooking, signalling, first aid, map drawing and reading, boxing, wrestling, fostering of hobbies and outdoor sport, etc.

On July 1st we made our first public appearance taking part in the Dominion Day parade. I think it is sufficient to say that we were awarded the 1st prize for the best representative turn-out as well as a special award of $25.00. Since then we have turned out for one or two other events including Commemoration Day, and the boys have well earned the praise that has been heard on every hand.

The Fernie Boy Scout Baseball team is another outcome of our Troop and it has earned an enviable reputation for itself throughout the Crow's Nest Pass. There is no other team in this district of boys of the same age as our Scout team, all the others being our superior in weight and age, but, I am glad to say, not in ability to play baseball. We have wound up the season with more wins to our credit than losses.

I now wish to briefly report on our Summer Camp, held at Morrissey from July 11th to 23rd. I do not think that I am exaggerating when I say that this was the biggest undertaking in the history of Fernie by its citizens for the boys. I had 53 boys under canvas for two glorious weeks. The financing of this camp was undertaken by our local association and cost in the neighborhood of $800. Truly a very large sum, but an investment that will bring returns that it would be impossible to measure by mere dollars and cents. The camp was under strict discipline at all times but this did not detract one iota from the Scout's happiness and joy. We were fortunate in having ideal weather and I do not know of a place more suitable for a Scout camp than the one chosen. No accidents of any kind marred our camp and no serious breaches of discipline were known. It would be impossible for me to give your a detailed account of the boy's activities, but they included, fishing, swimming, baseball, football, signalling, target practice, field telegraphy, nature study, road building, pioneering, woodcraft, games, etc. We were extremely fortunate in securing from the Military authorities at Victoria, a number of bell tents, sufficient to meet all requirements. In addition to these, we had the use of the Morrissey school for our kitchen, dining-room and stores. We detailed seven boys to a tent, each being in charge of a Patrol Leader. The tents were daily inspected by myself and I cannot too highly of the neatness and cleanliness of each tent. In closing the subject of camp I just wish to say that all Scouts of Fernie are eagerly loking forward to the 1922 camp.

In addition to the activities already mentioned, the Boy Scouts of Fernie have on several occasions assisted in helping local organizations and bodies who have been engaged in work for the benefit of the community.

One of the most gratifying features of the camp was, that when we returned to Fernie we discontinued our meeting for the month of August, opening again on September 2nd, and instead of any visible slackening off in attendance we not only have every one of our pre-camp boys, but we have increased our roll considerable since, and are now running again at 100% pressure.

This report would not be complete without a word or two as to our plans for the future and our requirements. The first and most pressing question at the present time is that of accommodation. As already stated, we are too crowded and cramped in our present quarters to do the work the justice that it deserves. I am making this by way of suggestion and I sincerely trust that the Association will take this matter up. We are hoping to be in a position to fit up an electrical workshop before long. This is one subject in which a large number of boys are interested and indeed some are carrying on experiments at the present time, a natural outcome of this would also be wireless telegraphy. Several boys are interested and we have a competent instructor in sight both for the electrical workshop as well as for the wireless. Then again, we intend to take steps to build up our library for I am afraid that it is little more than a library in name only at the present time. We do not need story books and fiction as much as hand books and text books and references for our various activities. Then again we would like to make our club-room just a little bit more comfortable and cozy than it is at the present time. The formation of a band is another matter that is very much to the front as well as further equipment for a gymnasium. I do not think it would be advisable at the present to enumerate any more of our plans and needs otherwise we may be accused of being too ambitious.

Another matter I would like to bring before this Association is the matter of the work among the boys of Fernie who are too young to join the Scouts. This is provided for in the Scout organization in what is known as the Wolf Cub movement. This is for boys between the ages of eight and twelve and is practically the same work as engaged in by the Scouts but is somewhat more modified and adapted for the younger boys. I know this matter has been under consideration by this body for some time but I would like to see an extra effort made to get this movement under way.

Now I have reached that part of my report, which, gives me more pleasure than any other part of it, and that is, to thank all those who have so kindly come forward and helped to make the Boy Scout movement the great success in Fernie that it is. First and foremost I would like to take this opportunity to thank the Officers of the Troop, Messrs. Donaldson, Carsley and Jocobsen, who, as Assistant Scoutmasters, have done much for the success of the Troop.

Messrs. Hamer, Williams, Lewis, Kerr and Currie, who, as instructors in various branches of the work, have given their time and services for the benefit of the boys and whose only reward for this is the knowledge that they have actively helped in a good cause. It has not only been a pleasure but a privilege to work with such men who have given not only of their talent but also of their time most unstintingly, and my only regret is that there are not more men of such calibre who will come forward and help.

I also wish to thank you, Mr. Chairman, the Association and the Board of Examiners, for the valuable assistance you have rendered. At all times you have been ready with your advice and assistance to help over the difficult places and back me up in anything that was required for the boys. I know that the future of the Boy Scout movement has nothing to worry about here in Fernie while you continue to watch over it and assist it in the manner you have done during the first year of its existance. Perhaps no other outside body has befriended the Boy Scouts of Fernie quite as much as the I.O.D.E. It was this body that so nobly came forward at the very commencement of our activities in Fernie, and indeed, a good many times since, and helped us financially and morally to get under way, and I can assure the I.O.D.E. that with our thanks goes our appreciation and gratitude.

In conclusion, I want also to thank the parents and citizens of Fernie who at various tomes assisted the Boy Scouts in a hundred and one ways and my most sincere wish is, that you yourselves will see the fruits that you have so kindly helped us to sow.

Geo. C. Evans,
Scoutmaster.

The Man of the Hour

In this hour of Canada's most acute national crisis, the country's greatest need is leadership—not class leadership, not sectional leadership, but NATIONAL leadership. A pilot must be chosen possessing the necessary courage, foresight, breadth of vision and determination to lead the nation safely out of the existing economic uncertainty.

Born on a farm near St. Mary's, Ontario, Arthur Meighen is a true son of the people, a toiler who has fought his way to eminence by sheer ability, and force of intellect. Entered Parliament in 1908; appointed Solicitor General in 1914; Minister of the Interior in 1917; and Prime Minister in 1920.

At the Imperial Conference he was acclaimed by the Press of Great Britain as a great statesman, as a strong, virile, vigorous personality—alert in mind, keen and far-seeing in judgment, and with a fearless determination to stand for the right.

Professor A. D. Skelton of Queen's University, and biographer of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, wrote of the present Prime Minister:—"He has already given proof of high administrative capacity. His personal integrity is beyond question."

Of himself Arthur Meighen said to his constituents the other day:—"You know where I stood on this issue in 1908, in 1911, and as in 1911 I stand today."

three million, which left but a small amount when the railway burden was paid. All the revenue derived from income tax and business profits tax combined were some fifty millions short of relieving the burden from government railways. The government, he said, had refused to give parliament information relative to government railway contracts for purchases, and criticized the dual position of the directors of the Canadian National Railways occupied by being interested in large commercial concerns supplying the railways of the government. An example, he said, was that eleven million dollars worth of business had been given to companies with whom one of the directors, Col. Cantley, was actively interested. He dealt with the Board of Commerce and the famous order regarding the restriction of wholsalers from purchasing sugar from any other than Canadian refineries, at a price of 21 cents per pound, when it could be purchased across the line from 11 to 14 cents per pound.

Mr. Macdonald, dealing with questions more pertinent to this province touched upon the Pacific and Great Eastern railawy, our own government railway. This was a burden to the people of the province but this could be remedied and put upon a paying basis if it were linked up with the National railways. He believed if the Liberal government is returned to power this could be accomplished, but unless this is done there appears to be no future for the P. G. & E. The Meighen government does not favor this although they have acquired similar lines in the Maritime provinces, where supporters of the government urged this policy for their own security. The Oriental question was very earnestly taken up by this speaker. He urged the total exclusion of orientals from this country. Despite the endeavors to attain this the people of this province had to fight a hard battle to get easterners educated as to the dangers from this source. Even an alarming increase in the numbers of the yellow race in this province was recorded by B. C. born. Not including immigration this increased from one Japanese born in every 252 births in the province in 1910, to one in every 17 in 1920; while for the first six months in 1921 the rate was 1 in 13. Over 90 per cent of garden produce in this province is grown by Chinese. 1445 Chinese merchants entered free of head tax last year.

Brig.-General Odlum, who was the concluding speaker, was given a warm reception and splendid hearing. He went into the question of re-establishment, pensions and land settlement. Parliament had been very liberal in appropriating vast sums of money for these purposes. Despite this, everywhere both the public and men were dissatisfied, and this was justified because the reason was solely due to bad administration. In all these departments cumbersome machinery was furnished at tremendous cost to handle them. and in this manner the original subsidies were reduced to such an extent that when they came down to those who should receive the benefit little remained. Under the land sttlement policy no attempt had been made to put new land under cultivation, but the government purchased existing farms and these were mostly of the class that were for sale on account of the fact that they were not sufficiently productive for their former owners. Endless red tape, inflexibility of method to apply the system that would meet with satisfaction to respective districts, and forcing the application of eastern standards to conditions in B.C., undoubtedly made the land policy here a fairlur. Civil re-estblishment had so far been totally inadequate in giving satisfaction to the returned men. Comparing the railway policy of the Meighen administration with that of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, General Odlum declared there was no parallel. That advocated by Sir Wilfried Laurier was with the view of opening up the country and preparing for increased immigration, while that of the present government was solely to relieve certain monied interests from huge losses, and this at the expense of the people of Canada.

LOST IN WILDS FOR THREE DAYS

A near tragic end of a hunting party which started from this city last Saturday was only averted by the pluck and perseverance of the members of the party in keeping going without food or nourishment for three days, when late Thursday afternoon they reached the upper camps of the White Spruce Lumber Co, where they were revived and rested.

Saturday afternoon about 5.30 Melvin Commons, J. Hardy and H. Cartledge, three young lads who reside here ,started on a hunting expedition in the region behind the Three Sisters, a sanctuary for big game. They were provisioned for two days and intended to return Monday night. However, upon reaching the objective hunting ground severe snow storms were encountered and in attempting to work their way out they lost the trail. The result was that they wandered aimlessly for miles in the desolate wilds, from Monday until five o'clock Thursday afternoon, when they finally located a logging camp in the Hartley Creek valley of the White Spruce Lumber Co. The provisions of the party became exhausted on Monday, and from that time until reaching the camp were practically without food, and unable even to comfort themselves from the warmth of a camp fire. The boys, however, although physically exhausted and famished, soon recovered when fed, rested and reclothed, and later returned to their homes but little the worse for their harrowing expereiences.

SHORT SESSION CITY COUNCIL

At the council meeting last evening there was the usual perfect attendance of members.

There were but four formal motions, passing and adopting tax sale property sale bylaws. There were no delegations present, nor any matters arising from correspondence, so the work for the meeting was very light.

The committee instructed to interview the Coal Co. with regard to an old account owing by the city for repairs to the power house spur, reported that General Manager Wilson had advised the committee that they would reduce this account over $100, and the balance would just about cover the cost of the material. The city was advised that in future charges of this nature would be based on cost of material only, the company being prepared to assume the cost of labor for installing or making repairs to the spur. The amended account was ordered paid.

The matter of ownership of the District Ledger building was brought up for discussion with a view to correcting a false impression which has been given credence recently since the Boy Scouts Association were reported to be seeking to purchase this property. The impression that the city had acquired this property by tax sale is incorrect. The Ledger property was included in the 1920 tax sale but was bid in on an application signed by Matthew Tully, Chas. F. Hesketh and Wm. Hunter, the consideration being $742.46, plus 1921 taxes. The property was not redeemed by the original owners before Sept. 30, 1921, therefore the property automatically became registered in the names of the three men mentioned, and a deed to them has been issued. Messrs. Tully, Hesketh and Hunter are therefore the sole owners. So far as city records go the United Mine Workers of America, who originally bought the lot and construced the present building, have not a one cent equity. As far as these records are concerned, the miners' rights were forfeited when on Sept. 30 last the individual purchasers were allowed to secure the property in their own right exclusively.

Creston Review: Creston Valley grows the best Cox Orange apples produced anywhere in Canada or any of the British dominions overseas, and the second best dessert apples grown anywhere in the whole of the British Empire also come from the Creston Valley. And in Snows and McIntosh Reds the Creston Valley takes third place in all the overseas units of the Empire. This is the satisfactory intelligence cabled Creston on Tuesday from London, England where the awards in the big British apple show at the Crystal Palace were announced Monday.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

The G.W.V.A. of this city have established the custom of holding a Memorial Service on Armistice Day. The service today was held in the Orpheum theatre, kindly placed at the Veterans' disposal by Mr. Johnston. At 10.45 a.m. the procession left the G.W.V.A. club rooms and proceeded to the place of worship. K. Bryant, assisted by Rev. Hamilton Brown, had charge of the service. At two minutes to eleven the lights went out and the audience arose and stood in silence for the allotted time. The service began with the singing of "O Canada," which was followed by prayer and an address by Rev. Mr. Brown. The speaker took for his text the following well known New Testament passage: "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth," and went on to show that the great sin of the age is materialism. This was followed by the well known hymn, "Abide With Me," after which the chairman called upon Rev. Father Kennedy, who paid a glowing tribute to those fallen in battle. The next speaker was Rev. W. F. Burns, who drew useful lessons from the war and who made a plea for a larger dedication of life to the unfinished task. Rev. H. R. Roper followed with an eloquent address in which he contrasted the lives of two well known men, Nero and the Apostle Paul. Prayer and Benediction was followed by the National Anthem.

The well selected hymns were sung in a spirit of adoration and worship. Fred Bass presided at the piano. The programme was well carried out. A spirit of harmony and good will prevailed and all in attendance agreed that it was a most helpful service.

Cranbrook Courier: Last week brief mention was made of the lamented death of Mrs. E. Bigattini, a valued citizen of Cranbrook for several years. Deceased was in her 27th year and was a naitve of Milano, Italy. She is survived by a sorrowing husband and two small children, a boy and a girl, aged five and six years respectively. Deceased underwent an operation last month at Spokane for gallstones and was advised that nohting further could be done for her. She returned to Cranbrook and went into St. Eugene hospital, where she died two weeks after being admitted. The funeral, which was held Saturday afternoon from St. Mary's church, was attended by a large number of Italians from Michel, Hillcrest, Fernie, Bellevue and other points. St. Mary's church was crowded with sympathizing friends to pay their last respects. Rev. Father Murphy officiated. The pallbearers were A. Bartoluss, A. Biscaro, L. Bertoia, A. Demontti, L. Severin and R. Lozza, of Hillcrest. Floral offerings included a cross, crown and crest ,from Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Marapodi, of this city; and a cross from Lozza and Basso, of Fernie. At the graveside I. Casola, of Fernie, paid tribute to the many good qualities of deceased and expressel the sympthy of his fellow countrymen with the bereaved husband and children.

There are going to be some fine farms between Fernie and the White Spruce next spring. Fall plowing and cleaning is very much in evidence these days.

STABBED ON MAIN STREET

In connection with the stabbing affair Sunday night, in which William Corrigan received a wound which has placed him in the hospital for some days and only miraculously missed peneterating vital organs, the police are having great difficulty in sifting the matter to its source. Either unintentionally or by design, the numerous participants and eyewitnesses to the mix-up, are amazingly uncertain as to what actually happened or as to the identification of who wielded the murderous weapon. The vague details of the facts so far as ascertained are, that shortly after midnight, when the repair gang from the mines were returning homeward and while on Victoria avenue near the Waldorf hotel, G. Cazearin, an Italian, had his lunch pail kicked out of his hand by someone. It is alleged that an altercation then ensued between Catsarin and Corrigan, the victim of the knife. Then followed a street fight in which Caesarin, Corrigan, another Italian by the name of Mercine, and a man known as "Onychuk" and others who were English speaking, were mixed up. An information and complaint, however, has been laid charging Caesarin, Mercine and "Onychuk" with assault occasioning actual bodily harm. The two first named have been arrested and are in custody at the city gaol, but "Onychuk" has not been apprthended, although the police state he is still in the city, and they expect to take him in before Saturday morning, when the preliminary hearing opens.

CURLERS HOLD ANNUAL MEET.

The annual meeting of the Fernie Curling Club was held this week and between thirty and forty followers of the roarin' game attended, and the enthusiasm displayed assures a very successful season for 1921-22. The officers elected for the ensuing term are:

President—Guy Johnstan.
First Vice—G. G. Henderson.
Second Vice—Harry Douglas.
Sec.-Treas.—Wm. Gates.

Executive Committee: S. Herchmer, F. C. Lawe, Thomas Prentice, A. C. Liphardt, Jos. Austin, and A. Corrie.

The membership fee was fixed at $15.00, this to include locker fee. The fee for lady curlers is $5.00 for the season. With regard to membership, the executive committee will handle this. A suggestion was advanced that the number permitted to join the club be limited to 100. The selection of skips was left to the executive; also the engaging of the ice maker and the appointment of an ice committee. Messrs. A. Black and M. Whitelaw were appointed auditors for 1921-22.

Georges Carpentier is reported to be negotiating for the coontrol of a Paris theatre. He ought to be at home in the box office.

When the matter of passing a "blue sky" law was brought up in the Iowa Legislature one of the members, who was an old poker player, moved that the sky to be the limit.

HIGH WAGES AND INDUSTRY

The Toronto Saturday Night says:-

The President of the British Empire Steel Corporation, a holding company which includes among its properties the Dominion Coal Company and the Dominion Steel Company, announces that the miners in the employ of the Coal Company can no longer hope to retain the wage which has latterly been paid; and if this is insisted upon the mines will have to be shut down and the closing down of the works of the Dominion Steel Company, the coal company supplying the fuel, will follow in due course. This is serious business, and should not be dealt with hastily neither on the part of the management nor the men. Surely in the light of what happened in the British Isles, Canadian miners are not going to cut off their noses to spite their faces as did their conferers in England, Scotland and Wales.

Never in its industrial history has Great Britain received so great a blow as that given by British miners. And even now with the strike many months away her manufacturing businesses are staggering along more dead than alive. As for the present position of the miners themselves in Britain the following paragraph from a recent English periodical is enlightening:

"Everybody will be glad to learn that the miners of Lanarkshire are evincing a desire that is most creditable to them to improve the enconomic situation. They have approached the colliery owners with the proposition that they would rather accept a lower wage than that the pits should be put under reduced running, and in some cases the men have offered to take ten shillings per shift instead of the fourteen and sixpence they are getting. That is a recognition on their part of the very rigorous conditions that have to be met. Either the cost of obtaining coal must be lowered or the price cannot go down, and if the latter course were to be followed, there would be little hope of removing the stagnation into which the iron and other industries are falling. The miner sees that the issue in the long run is whether he should accept less wages than he is getting just now or do without wages altogether."

Whether or not the present wage scale of Nova Scotia miners is justified, and whether operations can be carried on successfully under the present scale should not be hard to determine. In the United States the market for soft coal has had the bottom knocked out of it and many mines are closing down for the lack of orders. Where mines are operating they are selling their product for a fraction of what they were obtaining two years or so ago. Under such circumstances is is not at all likely that the former high wage will hold, and indeed in many instances reductions have already been in order.

This month on a date already appointed the Nova Scotia miners' representatives are to meet the mine operators with the idea of effecting a new working agreement. In this connection President Baxter, of the Nova Scotia branch of the United Mine Workers of America, states that they will enter the conference with a strong determination to resist any tendency toward reductions. No one can blame the gentleman for expressing such sentiments, but at the same time a grain of reason as to world conditions must in due course be considered.

It is said to be a custom in Japan when a baby is born, to plant a tree in its honor. Should this precedent be followed in Quebec there would be no occasion to worry about forest conservation.

PETER LUND TELLS EARLY EXPERIENCE

At the Lethbridge Rotary Club on Monday evening, Peter Lund gave a talk on his early experience in the Crow's Nest Pass, which is very interesting:

He told how as a boy of eight he was transplanted from the Scandinavian peninsula to the United States and his folks farmed in Dakota about 100 miles south of Winnipeg. Necessity soon enabled him to learn English and later he left home to take part in the gold rush to the Blackhill country, but found about 10,000 before him and little to do but to walk back home. He sub-contracted for the Northern Pacific line which was being built at that time to Bismark, N.D., and found himself at the end of this small venture with shovels, cooking utensils, etc., to which he added a span of mules, and went into railroad contracting in a bigger way. When the Crow's Nest Pass railroad was under construction he went to Nelson and took a contract for a portion of the road to Kootenay Landing. Then the C.P.R. wanted railroad ties and announced a large contract, and this contract was the means of his getting into the lumber business. He signed up a contract for half a million railroad ties and opened an office in Cranbrook. The timber in those days belonged to the C.P.R. or the government, so it mattered little where you went for your supply. The ties were all hand-axed, and Pete instanced the price then of 18c to 20c, as compared with 75c to 80c now. This contract gave employment to from 300 to 400 men, and after it was through he decided to stay with the lumber business. With a partner he started out to build a sawmill and get timber leases to guarantee a supply of material for the mill. He got a lease of 50,000 acres and after getting cruisers' reports decided the mill he had planned was not large enough. Then he got another lease of 60,000 acres and the site of the mill requirements again expanded. Finally he had 158 square miles of timber, and the third time he planned his mill on a larger scale, and it was built accordingly. His main camp was at Wardner. The mill as finally built cost $350,000, and other equipment cost another $100,000. The hall for the men's recreation room was used as a church on Sundays and for dances as well as a library during the week. Lumber men then came from all parts to B.C. Other large mills were built and the limited demand created difficulties in disposing of the produce. He tried large volume production and one year cut 40,000,000 feet at a cost of $700,000.

Pete then told of how he almost lost all his logs one spring through exceptionally high water; of the details of constructing lumber camps and of how easy it was to lose money in the business. One company wrote off $200,000 last year. Standing timber can be bought as cheaply today as 10 or 20 years ago, but the cost of production has gone up tremendously.

Pete's talk, which it was easy to see came as a result of experience and first hand knowledge, was much appreciated.—Lethbridge Herald.

FARMERS AND INCOME TAX

The Canadian Farmer may have a lot of things to complain of, but, paying the income tax is not one of them. Out of a total of $46,381,000 collected by the Federal authorities for the 1920-21, the agrarians contributed $611,735. The farmers who paid numbered 16,625 out of the total for the entire country of 194,257 persons assessed.

The very small amounts paid by the farmers of Ontario and Quebec passes all understanding when one considers the importance of the farming industry in the two most populated Provinces of the Dominion. For instance, the agrarians of Quebec taxed, numbered 214 and they paid a total of $18,000. In Ontario the farmers taxed numbered 1,870, and they paid a total of $40,000. On the other hand British Columbia, with a total population not much greater than the City of Toronto had 698 agrarians who paid income taxes to the tune of $104,000. In Alberta, 1,864 farmers paid $127,000. In Saskatchewan, 5,496 farmers paid $165,000 worth while 6,403 Manitoba farmers paid $145,000. In the three Maritime Provinces 120 farmers paid a grand total of $9,081, this being the low water mark of the Dominion so far as collecting income tax from the tillers of the soil is concerned.

Under the circumstances one might be forgiven for casting doubt upon the methods pursued by our income tax gatherers.—Saturday Night.

Monday is known in the Buffalo Police Court as "Volstead day," it being devoted to disposing of booze and bootlegging cases.

QUARTER CENTURY SEARCH REWARDED

Mrs. Ida Pickett, 274 South Division St., Buffalo, N.Y., says:

"Twenty-five years is a long time to keep looking for something without finding it, and it's no wonder I almost lost hope. But I finally found what I was hunting for—a medicine to relieve me of an awful case of indigestion.

"Tanlac rewarded my long search for relief, and I now enjoy better health than I have in thirty years."

Many people on the verge of despair have taken Tanlac and recovered.

COAL AND THE TARIFF

A convincing argument in favor of protection, and even protection in this particular case higher than exists, is built up by the Nanaimo Herald in an article dealing with the coal industry. This industry on Vancouver Island has suffered during recent years from the competition of fuel oil. Had this competition been allowed to go on unchecked it would have very seriously interfered with a great local industry, and probably half the mines on the Island would have been forced to shut down. The Government, however, imposed a duty on imported fuel oil, and this had a steadying effect, but not altogether the most desirable effect, for a higher tariff still would lead to immediate development of the coal industry and the opening up of new mines.

The Herald points out that British Columbia now imports from the United States fuel oil valued at $12,000,000 yearly. Owing to the adverse rate of exchange the people of this Province pay a premium of ten per cent or more on their money for the privilege of buying this fuel oil. A heavier tariff would lead to a wider use of coal, would mean a substantial increase to the wage roll on this Island and the consequent circulation of more money at home. Vancouver Island, because of its dependence on the coal industry, is practically interested in this tariff question, for there can hardly be a doubt that a reduction in the tariff, such as is advocated by both the Liberals and Farmers, would spell ruin to the development work which is being carried on in the coal areas. A stated case always carries conviction and there are sound and legitimate arguments why British Columbia should use products of its own mines for the benefits of its own people. The importation of fuel oil is on the increase and the coal industry suffers, which shows that the existing tariff is not high enough. It shows also that any reduction in that tariff would assuredly increase unemployment on Vancouver Island.—Victoria Colonist.

LOSING SUPPORT OF EASTERN PRESS

Further proof of the demoralization of the Liberal Party in Ontario and the West is to be found in the meagre support accorded Hon. W. L. MacKenzie-King, by long established and influential Liberal journals in Ontario and the Western provinces. Sir Wilfred Laurier's success in these provinces was due, in a great measure, to the powerful and devoted support of the Liberal Press. This is, to a marked degree, withdrawn from the present Liberal leader.

The Toronto Globe, for seventy-five years the greatest advocate of Liberalism in Canada, is today without a party or leader. The Globe criticizes the Meighen administration, but has never endorsed the leadership of Mr. King nor suggested that he be Prime Minister.

The Kingston British Whig, the oldest and one of the most respected Liberal journals in Ontario, has definitely repudiated Mr. King. When the elections were announced the Whig declared its position at once and gave these reasons for the repudiation of Mr. King: "About all there is left of the old Liberal Party today is a solid Quebec and a fair representation in the Maratime provinces. In Ontario, the party is shot to pieces, while it will scarcely be able to count a follower from west of the Great Lakes after the coming elections. The British Whig does not believe it will ever get anywhere under the leadership of Mr. King. His political record is against him, and his declarations of policy are too nebulous and shifting." In a recent issue the Whig declares: " Mr. King has only the remnant of a party to lead, for the Liberal party in this country, or at least the larger section of it is with the Union Government in the whole hearted prosecution of the war—a good many old time Liberals in Ontario have no love for him."

The Brantford Expositor, another influential Liberal daily owned and edited by T. H. Preston, for many years Liberal member of the Ontario legislature, in the following announcement definitely breaks with the MacKenzie-King Liberals: "The Brantford Expositor for the first time in its history seems destined to occupy an entirely independent position in a political general election. The position has not been arrived at because the Expositor has no opposition in this newspaper field, nor is it due to the fact that in principle it is any less Liberal today than it has been in the past. It has been compelled, by reason of the shape that the present contest has asumed and by the fact that while Liberal in its sympathies this paper does not feel called upon to blindly follow its party when the latter adopts a course which it cannot conscientiously follow."

Another important Liberal daily, the Woodstock Sentinel Review is not advocating the cause of Hon. Mr. King. The Hamilton Herald, the most important independent daily in Ontario, and for many years friendly to the Liberals in supporting the government. In the Federal Capital the MacKenzie King Liberals have no press support. Other Liberal journals, daily and weekly, have broken with the Liberal party or the faction led by Mr. King, until he is receiving only substantial support from one Liberal journal, the London Advertiser, and of this support the Brantford Expositor, (formerly Liberal) says, "Our contemporary evidently has little faith in the sincerity of the party which it so ardently supports."

There could be no truer index of the futility of the Liberals under Mr. King than the attitude of the Liberal press in Ontario. In a province that has over one third the Federal representation the Liberal leader has been repudiated by practically all the important Liberal journals.

Nor is his position on the prairie much beter. The greatest journal of the West, the Winnipeg Frees Press, has gone to the Agrarians. Another great paper, the Winnipeg Tribune, independent Liberal, is supporting the government. In Manitoba Mr. King has no press support. He is little better off in the other provinces. The defection of Liberal press is even less in comparison than the defection of prominent Liberals in these provinces.

COMMUNICATION

Editor, Fernie Free Press.
Dear Sir:-

Would you kindly publish the following true statement of facts in your valuable paper so that returned men may know of the raw deal metted out to men who left for overseas to fight in the Great War.

I am a settler residing in the Elk Valley and have lived there with my family for a period of fifteen years less the time spent overseas in France.

When I came back I expected that the Provincial (Liberal) Government would at least show me some respect so I applied this year for one of the jobs that was vacant in the Valley.

Bridge work. Fire Warden. Game Warden. Notwithstanding the fact that I obtained the very best of reference from the Forest Ranger, Mr. Geo. Schupe, I was not only turned down with the bridge work, but was sidetracked on the Fire Warden and Game Warden jobs.

Forest Branch
March 22nd, 1921.

To Whom It May Concern:
Dear Sir:

This is to certify that Jesse Mansfield worked under me as Fire Patrolman in the Flathead District the summer of 1920 and I found him sober, honest and faithful in the performance of his duties and think that he would make a very capable man for the position he is applying for (Game Warden) and I would be pleased to forward any other information that may be required.

Yours truly,
Geo. F. Schupe,
Forest Ranger.

We will now see what happens when the Liberal machine is set in motion.

Forest Branch
Cranbrook, B. C.
June 8th, 1921.

J. Mansfield, Esq.,
Natal, B. C.
Dear Sir:-

Ranger George Schupe of Fernie has forwarded me your letter of June 4th regarding employment for the coming summer. I do not think we will require your service this year.

Your truly,
Norman Moore,
District Forester.

The bridge work having been denied me and as seen by the above correspondence I was not wanted on the Forest Department, there was now only one more job left, namely, the job of Game Warden. What happened I have conclusive proof that this job was given to a man who never applied for it.

I have no ill-feeling for the man that got the job, but I do think this work an injustice when a man who staked everything he possessed should be turned down in preference for a man who did not render his services during the war.

In conclusion I would say that anyone may put this question to the Liberal bunch during the coming election and I will vouch for the correctness of my statement.

(Signed) J. Mansfield.

RICHES

"If I had loads of money existence would be sunny" the poor fish sadly moans; "I'm certainly disgusted with being always busted, when other men have bones. The rich man has no sorrow; if he should try to borrow a grief'twould be in vain; for money is the basis of all the joy that chases around this mundane plane." But when a man has riches his wails, in dismal pitches, assail the gates of morn; of all men who have anguish, of all who wilt and languish, he seems the most forlorn. All kinds of grafers fret him, the tax collectors get him, and leave him sick and sore; his pet investments fizzle, his tears fall in a drizzle, and life becomes a bore. The people tire and irk him, because they try to work him, and rend him from his kale; he has no friends to cherish, all of his affections perish, and all his longings fail. Of all the idle dreamers, and all the ruthless schemers, he is the proper prey; the robbers make him tremle, and gold brick men assemble round him on his way. The hates of men revolt him, the eyes of envy jolt him, and everywhere he wends he meets the whining needy, the covetous and greedy, but seldom meets with friends. And when we envy riches, while digging useful ditches or sawing helpful wood, our taste must be lamented; so let us be contented, and labor and be good.

A fat man who wrote a dairy paper to find out on which side of a cow he should sit to milk was informed that there are no "left-handed" cows and milking must be done from the right side. With a cow right is right and left is wrong. It is also learned that the rarest thing to be found on the farm is a left-handed farmer, although most of the prosperous ones are "forehanded."

SCENE FROM "NO WOMAN KNOWS" - A UNIVERSAL JEWEL PICTURE

AT THE ISIS—WEDNEDAY AND THURSDAY, NOV. 16 and 17

Character Actress in Strong Role

When "No Woman Knows," which will be shown at the Isis theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, Nov. 16 and 17, was being cast, the long list of names in the casting director's office was carefully scanned, in order to provide the proper small-town types for the picture. As a result of this, one is introduced into the very midst of home-life with all the interesting and human touches that lend atmasphere to the proper presentation of "Fanny Herself," the Edna Ferber story which has been adapted to the screen as "No Woman Knows."

The leader of the government is to be opposed in Portage la Prairie by a candidate named Leader. Election day will decide who is in the lead.

FILMED IN THE TROPICS

Inasmuch as much of the story of "The Woman God Changed" has to do with a tropical island, the company playing the various roles in this splendid Paramount-Cosmopolitan picture which will be displayed at the Orpheum theatre Friday and Saturday this week, was carried to the Bahama Islands, off the coast of Florida, on a specially chartered steamer where for two weeks Seena Owen and E. K. Lincoln, who are seen as castaways on an island were kept busy by Director Robert G. Vignola, his cameramen and assistants. The burning and sinking of a steamship following an explosion of ammunition, was faithfully pictured and the casualty (in the picture only) proved quite exciting. Other scenes, notably a remarkable cloud effect, were "shot" with excellent results. "The Woman God Changed" is a beautiful photoplay and fully up to the high standard set by Paramount.

Bow-legged and knock-kneed men will read with alarm the announcement of the National Clothiers' Association that knickerbockers will be worn next season. Sport shoes, black stockings and a blue sport coat are to be worn with the high-water nether garment, producing a short snappy effect.

BRILLIANT TITLES IN PHOTOPLAY

Subtitles of epigrammatic brilliance are taken for granted in a Cecil B. DeMille production following the high mark set by the subtitles in "Why Change Your Wife?" "Something to Think About" and "Forbidden Fruit." However, "The Affairs of Anatol," the latest production of the famous producer, which will be the feature at the Orpheum next Wednesday and Thursday, is said to excel all previous efforts in this respect.

Jeanie Macpherson author of the story—suggested by Arthur Schnitzler's play of the same name—is responsible for these subtitles and to her goes the credit for their scintilating phraseology, thought and wit.

"The Affairs of Anatol" is a searching analysis of the matrimonial and divorce problem handled with the mastery which is Cecil B. DeMille's chief distinction. He has developed a powerful story that deals in real truths, is is said, and to this he has added a sympathetic comedy note that serves to relieve the serious vein of the story without in anyway detracting from the power or vividness of the central theme. Wallace Reid and Gloria Swanson head an all-star cast in this picture.

The effort of these subtitles is materially increased by the symbolic art work which decorates the subtitles. This art work is from the brush of Paul Iribe, the famous French artist and designer, who is now serving as art director for Cecil B. DeMille's productions. His color on the screen is secured by the quadri-color process which is the exclusive property of Paramount Pictures and which has been developed under the direction of Loren Taylor.

Women of Canada

"I ask from all the people of Canada an earnest review of the real issue before Canada to-day. I ask from men and women a calm, thoughtful consideration of serious public questions; and, so far as I am concerned myself, I ask not favors but fairness."—ARTHUR MEIGHEN.

WOMEN OF CANADA, the coming General Election will be one of the most momentous in Canadian history, and Arthur Meighen asks YOU to give the issue fair, unbiassed consideration.

Women and men alike are called upon to decide whether political, industrial and economic stability is to be replaced by class rule, political and industrial chaos and possible economic bankruptcy.

The facts are clear, and every Canadian woman will do her own thinking. She will not be misled by others. She will not blindly follow family political precedent, neither will she be carried away by the false theories or empty "isms" of theorists and extremists. Every woman will arrive at a personal decision by the application of practical common sense.

The present Canadian Tariff, so far as it affects the necessaries of life, is a very moderate one. It is simply a tariff maintained to keep Canadian factories in Canada, employing a steadily increasing volume of Canadian labor and developing Canadian resources.

Meighen stands firm for the continuance of a reasonable tariff. It is now even more imperative than in the past. All other important countries are retaining or increasing their tariffs in order that they may hold their home markets for their own people.

Under Crerar's Free Trade policy Canada would be swamped with foreign goods, principally from the United States, Canadian industry would be ruined, thousands of men and women would be out of work with all the hardships to themselves and their children that must result. The farmer's great home market would be seriously affected, taxes would be increased, and Canadian working men would have to go to the United States for employment.

While King's Tariff policy is wobbly it nevertheless tends toward the destruction of the Tariff and would bring with it practically the same results.

MEIGHEN'S POLICY EVERYBODY KNOWS. It is the only means whereby confidence may be maintained and employment given to all classes of the people.

The foregoing is a plain statement of logical conclusions arrived at from the facts. Think the matter over carefully "without favor but with fairness".

Make your own decision, stand by it unmoved and be sure to exercise your vote.

TREASURE DISCOVERY

Italy has gone the greatest treasure hunt of all times. Not only her people, but the government has started digging for gold and silver and precious stones, and all because a monk in far away Jerusalem had a vision which he imparted to a visiting Italian woman. And she in turn told the government officials in her native city, with the result that what is thought to be a treasure vault, 30 feet long and 20 feet wide, has been uncovered. Furthermore, a bowl of wonderful workmanship, ancient Roman coins and other antiques have been found near the vault, lending color to the story told by the monk.

The widow, Maria Benincasa, deeply religious, decided to visit the Holy Land after the death of her husband. She lived in Bisceglia, a small fortified seaport on the southeastern coast of Italy, between Trani and Bari, the latter the capital of the province of that name.

In Jerusalem she gave money to charity, and while thus engaged came across Father Benvenuto, a Franciscan friar. Italy was his native land, and he grew much interested and asked many questions. The Widow Benincasa told him of their country's financial plight—of the poverty of the people— of the hard time since the burden of tremendous war taxes.

Father Benvenuto promised to pray for help. That night he read his breviary far into the night. With a final prayer he lay down to rest. He dreamt — confused at first. Then a clearly cut figure came across his subconscious vision—grim of visage and stern.

"I am the spirit of Hannibal, the conqueror," the vision seemed to say. "I devastated Rome and laid her waste. I massacred her people and looted her riches. And I sleep uneasy."

Father Benvenuto began to pray aloud.

"I seek to make atonement," interrupted the spirit. "Rome can regain her riches if she will but search."

The monk was now fully awake—wide awake—anxious to hear.

"Let them look on the highlands behind Bisceglia, where the Romans of other days buried their treasure to cheat my legions of their due."

And with that, the vision faded and Father Benvenuto rubbed his eyes and pinched himself. Yes, he was awake—there was no doubt of that. Puzzled he sat and awaited daylight. He sent for his countrywoman and told her of the night's weird happening.

"It is the Will of God!" exclaimed the woman. Then she started on her homeward journey, fully determined to impart her knowledge to the authorities. But in Bisceglia none would take her seriously.

But Signora Benincasa was persistent. She went to Bari and laid her story before the authorities there, but they, too, would have none of her. Not a bit discouraged, she packed her grip and went straight to Rome. She was shunted from one official to the other. And to every one she told her strange story. Of course, none believed.

Then one day last month she ran across an official who was willing to take a long chance. He interested the Minister of Public Works, with the result that the Widow Benincasa received an audience.

When she had told her story, the minister gave her permission to dig for Hannibal's treasure—at her own expense. So the Signora Benincasa went home, hired a score of men and started her treasure hunt. After a fortnight's vain search, one of the diggers unearthed a Roman coin of the time of Scipio Africanus, the Roman general who defeated Hannibal and drove him back to Carthage.

Instantly the Widow Benincasa's stock soared high. Volunteers came in swarms and half the town was turned upside down. Every garden was uprooted; only the cemetery was saved from the artificia earthquake. Then another digger found a bowl of wonderful workmanship.

The Government in Rome was appraised and sent a squad of military to Bisceglia to guard the treasure. An official took charge of the excavations. Military engineers plotted out the ground and systematic search was begun. But for days the earth yielded nothing. Down—ten feet—fifteen—twenty—they dug. And then, one day the pick of one of the workers was broken short by compact with stone. The earth was shovelled away and there lay revealed a huge, massive slab of marble, 30 by 20 feet, bearing on its surface an engraved snake—the emblem of ancient Rome.

That night Signora Benincasa could scarcely sleep. She was too happy for words. It was not that the treasure had evidently been located, but that she had been vindicated in the eyes of her neighbors—of Bisceglia—of all Italy. And then she fell into a fitful sleep and dreamed.

"You will find 150 vases of silver," intoned the vision, "twenty of them fil'ed with gold, 31 with silver. One large vase will be filled with priceless pearls and the others with rich jewels."

With that the vision faded, and Signora Benincasa jumped out of bed and rushed to the home of Captain Montedoro, to whom she imparted her dream. This time there was no suspicion of doubt. The Captain jotted down the figures and in the morning ordered his men to redouble their efforts.

But try as they would, the huge slab covering the vault could not be budged. Evidently it had been cemented to the walls of the vault. So the engineers built derricks and used every means at their disposal to raise the stone. Again they failed. They thought of blasting, but feared to injure the priceless contents of the vault. So they dug alongside the walls, uncovering masonry of tremendous thickness. Steel drills broke when attempt was made to hew holes into the side of the walls.

At this writing the engineers are awaiting the arrival of American pneumatic rock drills. With them they hope to open up the vault and unearth the treasure hidden from Hannibal 2139 years ago.

Hannibal was a general of Carthage, a city on the northern shore of Africa, founded about 900 B.C. by Canaanites. The city was destroyed in 146 B.C. by the Romans, rebuilt and finally razed in 706 A.D. by the Caliph Abdul Melek, an Arab invader.

It was in the spring of 218 B.C. that Hannibal began his invasion of Rome and his historic feat of crossing the Alps. Carthage in those days was the rival to Rome in commerce and culture. Bisceglia was one of the most important of the Roman seaports, whence came galleys rowed by slaves—ships laden with gold and spices and precious stuffs. Scipio, the elder, was in control of the armies of Rome.

Hannibal had gathered 90,000 foot soldiers, 12,000 horsemen and 37 elephants. With this army he crossed into Gaul—now France—and, crossing the Rhone River, advanced to Valenco on the Iser and prepared for his passage across the Alps.

It required fifteen days of hard work, with the aid of the powerful elephants — which struck terror into the hearts of the inhabitants who had never before seen such huge beasts—to get to Mont du Chat and to Chevelu Pass. From there the road led along the valley of the Iser to Little St. Bernard Pass, through which the invaders entered Roman territory.

Hannibal and the Romans warred until 187 B.C., when the Carthagenians were driven into the sea and Hannibal, forced to flee, swallowed poison contained in a ring he had worn, and thus ended his life.

LIFT YOUR CORNS OFF WITH FINGERS

Tells how to loosen a tender corn or callus so it lifts out without pain.

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told by a Cincinnati authority to use a drug called freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn or callus the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, lifts off with the fingers.

Freezone dries the moment it is applied, and simply shrivels the corn or callus without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but will positively rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or hardened callus. If your druggist hasn't any freezone he can get it at any wholesale drug house for you.

NOTICE BEING SENT TO PARENTS OF PUPILS

The following circular is being sent to the homes of the larger pupils of the Central School this week:

Office of the Principal.

To the Parents—

The schools are for your children! A school should not only impart information to puipls, but should also train them in habits of punctuality, regularity, orderliness, discipline, politeness and honesty. In order to accomplish these aims, the teachers must have the help and co-operation of the parents. Parents can help in the following ways:

1. Keep the children home from school as little as possible. One day's schooling is worth at least Five Dollars to your boy or girl.

2. See that the children do not run the streets in the evening.

3. See that the children study at home at least five evenings each week for a fixed period, beginning, say, at seven o'clock.

N.B.—Third reader pupils should study at least one hour in the evening, and fourth reader pupils should study at least an hour and a half.

There is home study or home work for every night. This is not always written work, but may be lessons to recite in class the next day. If a child says that he has no lessons, please call at the school and find the reason.

4. See that children cultivate the habit of reading good books.

If a report card shows C or D, that means that the pupil has fallen below the standard of the class. We shall be pleased to consult with you to secure improvement.

Faithfully,
P. H. Sheffield, Principal.

ANGLO-SAXON UNION URGED BY LEACOCK.

OXFORD, Eng.—Dr. Stephen Leacock, head of the Department of Political Economy in McGill University at Montreal, Quebec, told the members of the British-American Union in an address here today that the British and American peoples should have a better knowledge of each other, maintain more sympathetic personal relations, if a British-American union, without pledge or compact, is to become a fact.

He declared that the time for a "parliament of man" and "federation of the world" was not yet. "The League of Nations, though it may contain within it the seeds of future concord, cannot serve as yet as a shield against aggression and injustice." he affirmed. "The principal hope of the world is to be sought in the continued friendship of Britain and America.

"The vast communities of peoples gathered under the British flag and American flag represents an organization of power easily superior to any force that could conceivably be brought against it. Where these two nations lead, the world must follow. Peace and war lie in their hands.

"On the other hand, disagreement between Britain and America spells ruin—not only for themselves but for the world. So great is the power of each that war between them would mean nothing but mutual destruction. Neither could conquer; both must fall.

"The efforts of every honest citizen should be bent towards the maintenance of peaceful relations and mutual understanding. There is no question here of union in the narrower sense, of federation in its organic form. A century and a half ago it might have been. But the page is written and cannot be blotted out.

"But for the more real form of union there is still ample need and opportunity."

CRAZY COMMUNIST DEMONSTRATIONS IN PARIS

French, Italian and British communists have worked up a ridiculous hysteria over the trail of two fellow communists in Massachusetts for the crime of holding up and murdering a paymaster and his assistant. They are making crazy demonstrations in Paris and London, and the usual accompaniment of these radical outbursts is seen in a number of bomb outrages.

The United States is a land of more than 100,000,000 people, with courts of justice in 48 states and more than 3,000 counties. That the European communists are making so much ado over this single case is conclusive proof that communism has no foundation for its protests against American justice. They are staging a silly performance when they "implore the president of the United States to realize that innumerable hearts throughout the world await with anguish the pardon of Sacco and Vanzetti, and hope passionately that great America will do this, which all humanity will applaud."

Why this tragic furor over the orderly trial of two men whose case even now is before the higher courts on appeal, and not the slightest concern over the thousands up on thousands of helpless victims who have been cruelly massacred by the communists in soviet Russia?

Demonstrations of this kind need occasion no surprise. Communism is a crazy, impossible dream and inevitably draws as its followers erratic men of unbalanced mind and flightly temperament. This whole communist performance is foolish and seems to be directed against America chiefly because the stability and excellence of American institutions fill the heart of the average communist with hate and envy.—Spokesman Review.

TOMMY UPHILL AMUSES HOUSE

"We heard the Leader of the Opposition talk yesterday about 'kitties,' the member for Alberni the other day referred to 'shooting craps', the member of Fort George say there was bootlegging in beaver skins and people were doing everything that is vile and the Attorney-General yesterday calling people liars and blasphemers," said Tom Uphill in his speech in the debate in the Legislature yesterday.

"If the people in my constituency knew that I was mixed up with such a bunch they would be asking me to come back to Fernie," he went on, bringing the House down in roars of laughter.

Mr. Uphill said he had sympathy for the Premier after listening with regret to members of the Government party criticize acts of the Government.

"It is painful to hear members so disloyal as those I have heard since I have been in this House," he said. "Consequently I will not be as critical as I would have otherwise been."

He declared that there was no excuse for B. C. not trying to grapple with the unemployment situation even in only some small measure, although employment conditions were worse in most other countries. He said that under the present system there will always be unemployment as it is beneficial for corporations to have surplus labor.

"But," he added, "it is the duty of the state to see that no one in the state goes hunrgy."

Mr. Uphill regretted that there was no mention in the Lieutenant-Governor's speech of amendments to the Coal Mines Regulations Act. He came out for the payment of men taking up mine rescue work as is done in England where they get £2 a day. He asked whether members of the House would like to go through what these men go through without receiveing remuneration. He said that as they have to be prepared to go through hell in case there is a mine disaster and during their trainig, have to risk all sorts of dangers, it is not unreasonable that they should ask for fifty cents an hour, although he thought they were entitled to $1 an hour. Men taking this training, he thought, should also be insured for $5,000 for the benefit of their families.

Referring to checkweighmen in the mines, he said he was disappointed to discover that corporations have been able to dictate the appointment of these officials.

The labor members in the House, he said, intended to bring in amendments to the Mines Regulations Act later on.

As for the Workmen's Compensation Act, he declared that the compensation for men temporarily disabled was inadequate and that widows and orphans coming under it should be paid as much as they would be under the Canadian Pensions Act. He declared that the maximum of $40 a month for a woman left with a family no matter how large was ridiculously inadequate.

The Mothers' Pension Act he called a skeleton "because there are only certain individuals who can come within the scope of the act."

Mr. Uphill dealt in detail with the road situation in his part of the Province declaring that the Government does not spend money there commensurate with the revenue it gets from that district. He declared that such a policy was dishonest, although he hoped for an improvement.

"We find that this Province is said to be in such a deplorable condition that we have to hit a man for one per cent. of his income," he went on. "No taxes should be placed on any man's earnings except on above what it cost him to live. At present the man with a large family you hit worse than anyone else. To the person with a large family you give no encouragement. It would be more honorable to employ a Jesse James to go around with a gat and gun to get in money than to tax a man one per cent. in this way.

"If the Government is making a lot of money out of the Moderation Act, why not go into other business, such as the butcher, grocery or dry-goods businesses and then perhaps we can eliminate this proposed taxation.

"I believe in giving credit and honor where credit and honor is due. This Government is a good business Government. Business is always judged by the results obtained. Any Government that can buy an article for $14 and sell it for $24 without any expenses is a good business Government. That is what is being done with beer."

Premier Meighen's Address Before The Trades and Labor Congress

This congress represents organized labor—not all, but a large portion of organized labor in Canada. As I understand the position, it stands in the same relation to organized labor in Canada as the American Federation of Labor stands to organized labor in the United States. Labor organizations as a national institution have existed as going concerns for about seventy years on this continent. In all that time, their aims and their activities have altrered some, but on the whole they have altered very little. their principles were summarized in 1881 at the first convention of the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor of the United States and Canada which met in Pittsburg in that year. They were stated as follows:—

"Legal incorporation, prohibition of child labor under fourteen years uniform apprentice laws, a national eight-hour law, prison labor reform, abolition of the truck system, mechanics' lien, abolition of conspiracy laws as applied to labor organizations, a national bureau of labor statistics, a protective tariff, an anti-contract immigration law, all trades and labor organizations to secure proper representation in all law-making bodies by means of the ballot."

The consistency of purpose with which organized labor has adhered to almost all these objects is one of the secrets of its power. When Samuel Gompers was first elected President of the American Federation of Labor in 1886 that body had about 150,000 members. He is President still and its membership is over 3,000,000.

To put the central purpose of these great organizations in a word it is this: to raise the status of the worker. That the status of the worker has been in these years improved there is. I think, no doubt; his means of education, his chance of recreation, the safety of his craft, the regularity of his employment, the general standard of his living, all things are better, though there is much yet to be done.

In this work the labor organizations of the world have undoubtedly played their part. I think most of you will admit that at times labor organizations make mistakes—let that be granted, but the best and strongest of them have not made very great mistakes and they have managed to get a lot done and a lot that is worth while. It would have been better for the world, in my opinion, better for the laboring class and better for every class if attention had been given sooner to helping the lot of the low-waged toiler; there was more to be done for him by concerted action, more to be done by the state than people thought there was. That was true of every country in the world!

What is the best way to make further progress? It is by steady determined movement along lines that have brought results in the past—by exposing the facts and educating public opinion, by loyalty to your organizations, subordinated to that higher loyalty to country which alone gives your organizations respect and power; by studying the advances made in other countries in order to keep abreats or better than abreast at home, by regard for the rights of others, by fulfilment of contracts, by dependance on the ballot, by seeking success only through the power of public approval. These are the methods and the only methods that have in the past brought advance without reaction. I believe they are principles upon which the Trades and Labor Congress has relied and intends to rely.

You tell me: "Yes, we have been working along these lines for years and we have accomplished much, but after all our progress has been slow." You say there is a wide spread still between the wealth of the few and the wealth of the many. I admit you are correct. But, in coming to conclusions on this subject, there are some very vital facts to be kept in mind.

GAMBLERS ARE FINED

On receiving information on Tuesday evening that a dishonest gambling game was being operated on the premises of the Royal Hotel here, the city police carried out a raid and succeeded in gathering in five Russians who were playing cards. These parties appeared before Major G. G. Moffatt, J.P., who is acting for Police Magistrate Whimster at present absent from the city. All were found guilty of a charge laid under the criminal code and fined as follows: William Pilukowk, who was the man behind the box running the game, drew $50 fine and costs; each of the four remaining, John Gawruluk, Andrew Aydnski, Jim Radea and John Slemko, contributed $15 and costs.

CUTER THAN EVER

BEER VOTE NON-PARTISAN

VANCOUVER, Nov. 14.—Receiving a deputation from the Liberty British Columbia, Premier Oliver told the delegates today that full opportunity would be given to introduce a beer clause into the amendments of the Liquor Control Act this session. Members would be released from party pledges to vote as they desired individually he promised. He would not, in answer to a qestion state what form the amendment would take.

The deputation urged that much secret drinking was going on, and the only way to stop it was legalize malt liquor to open sale. Petitions from many service and public organizations were presented in favor of the objects of the deputation.

"THE CHILD THOU GAVEST ME"

Starting tonight (Friday) for a run of two days, the feature at the Orpheum will be "The Child Thou Gavest Me," a first National attraction produced by John M. Stahl, one of the foremost directors in the country.

The story is a highly dramatic one ,with terrific suspense throughout. Unlike the usual picture, which ends with the ringing of the wedding bells, "The Child Thou Gavest Me" begins with the wedding, and the nuptials as portrayed in the picture are mangnificently elaborate.

Following the ceremony, the man hurries up to the room of his bride, supremely happy as a bridegroom should be. He opens the door—and stands petrified with amazement, for the bride, still wearing her veil and gown, is clasping a little boy to her breast.

"I thought he was dead," sobbed the girl, too happy to try to shield her secret any longer, even from her husband.

Then began a search, desperate and unflinching for one whom the husband had sworn to kill. He suspects every man ,including his best friend, whom he shoots. Then he discovers his error. The man he is seeking is the last one on earth that he would have suspected. But he does not kill him—for sufficient reasons.

The story of "The Child Thou Gavest Me" was written by Perry N. Vekroff.

ORGANIZE HOCKEY CLUB

At a meeting held on Sunday vening last in the Fernie Cigar Store, the Fernie Hockey Club reorganized for the coming season. Quite a number of enthusiasts were present, R. P. Colton occupying the chair. The meeting opened promptly at 7.30, and after hearty support being given to the idea of hockey for everybody, the following officers were elected:

President—Dr. Asselstine.
Vice-Pres.—Hartley P. Wilson.
Sec.-Treas.—J. R. McLeod.
Manager—Joe Connell

The secretary was instructed to get in touch with neighboring towns with a view of forming a league. Cranbrook and Baynes have already organized and would like to join a league, and with definite arrangements with the rink management this project will be carried out.

Communications have been received from Blairmore to go down there and participate in the opening of their new rink some time during the first week in December.

There are in the neighborhood of thirty in town who wish to play hockey, and endeavors will be made to form a mercantile league; also the players from the representative Fernie team to be picked from the participating teams.

THE LATEST DISPATCHES

London, Nov. 18.—The overwhelming majority given in favor of the government's Irish policy at the Unionist conference in Liverpool yesterday is looked upon as creating a better atmosphere for the continuance of the peace negotiations for some time, although the possibility of the resignation of Lloyd George, or indeed, the entire coalition government, is not ignored. The morning newspapers say regarding this contingency that this is neither imminent or inevitable.

London, Nov. 18.—The admiralty today announced that it had ordered the cessation of all work on the four battleships of the Hood type. Offcials explained that the practical effect of the admiralty order would be absolute cessation of all warship work pending the outcome of the Washington conference.

New York, Nov. 17.—A restless cargo was towed into this port today. Two hundred thousand eels, destined for the smokehouse, the brine barrel and the frying pan, arrived in five tub barges. They were trapped a month ago in the St. Lawrence river. The slippery creatures are valued at $100,000.

London, Nov. 17. — The Bombay correspondent of the London Times says the Non-Cooperationists had made the utmost efforts to render the boycott of the Prince of Wales visit effective, but the only result was an overwhelming and tumultuous reception.

Uashington, Nov. 17.—With the approach of the close of the extra session of congress the movement to defer tariff legislation for another year has become stronger than ever. Some of the more prominent senate leaders are predicting that tariff revision will be forced over until 1923.

ARREST MAN WANTED FOR ROBBERY AND FORGERY

VICTORIA, Nov. 14.—Pasco Pascovitch, arrested here some days ago on a warrant charging him with forgery to the extent of $600 on D. Moysink, of Blairmore, Alta., was taken under escort to that place today. Pascovitch is also wanted in connection with a case of fobbery with violence, it is stated.

HE COULDN'T ASK ANYTHING BETTER

"Didn't Take Me Long To See Tanlac Was What I Needed," Says Winnipeg Man.

"I'm one man that will always believe in Tanlac for it has certainly proved its worth in my case," said J. C. Erin, 688 Sargent Ave., Winnipeg, Man.

"I was in a bad fix, in fact was in such a shape that every now and then I had to give up and lay off from work and rest. My stomach and kidneys were all out of order and I was all the time having headaches that nearly drove me frantic. I could hardly eat a thing but what it would sour and gas would form and cause such an awful pressure against my heart that I became alarmed for fear I had heart trouble.

"My back ached and pained me a lot and my nerves were so shattered that many a time I would lie awake nearly all night long rolling and tossing. I went down in weight and got so weak it took all the nerve and will power I had to keep going.

"Well, it didn't take me long to see that Tanlac was just what I needed and by the time I finished my second bottle my appetite was so big I could hardly get enough to eat. I have taken five bootles now and I don't believe there was ever a day in my life when I felt better. I have picked up in weight, feel strong and healthy and couldn't ask for Tanlac to do any more for me than it has."

BEAUTY PRIZE WINNER MAKES SCREEN DEBUT

One of the five girls whom Paul Heeleu, the famous French artist, selected as the most beautiful in America, appears in D. W. Griffith's newest dramatic comedy, "Dream Street," to be shown at the Isis theatre beginning Wednesday.

She is Katherine Ardell, 18 years old, of Irish parentage, and declared by Helleu to be the most perfect expression of Irish beauty that the world today can produce.

In form and face, she is described as perfect. Her hair is dark, her eyes a wise glorious blue, her features even and free from sharpness, her body slender with girlhood curves.

Helleu came to America last winter to paint the five most beautiful girls here for the purpose of hanging the painting in the National Gallery of France, that the French might appreciate the distinctive beauty that America produces in womanhood. Miss Ardell is 17 years old.

She was selected by Mr. Griffiths to play an important part in "Dream Street" as a girl whose face expresses noble and pure beauty associated with the good things of the spirit as well as the flesh. She appears in the scenes with Tyrone Power, the famous Shakespearean actor, who makes a memorable performance of the part of the Sayer of Good Thoughts.

Which?

Crerar The head of a great trading organization which unites its trading with its politics—a political theorist—has lost control of the political movement he started and is being driven into impossible positions by class rule extremists. He is under the domination of Wood, the political boss of Alberta. He would give effect to Free Trade, thus destroying Canada's industrial and economic structure.

A Vote for Crerar is a Vote for Chaos

King So evasive that nobody knows where he actually stands on the great issues of the day. Fits his policy to suit his audiences. Talks Free Trade to the West and Protection to the East. Specializes in high-sounding phraseology. His party is pledged to a large measure of Free Trade, but fails to suggest new methods of obtaining necessary National Revenues.

FERNIE, B.C.

HIDDEN VILLAGE IN OLD LONDON

"Is London the most mysterious of the world's great capitals?" asks a correspondent. "A few days ago I passed a door set in a long, high wall in Western London by which I have walked frequently for the last 20 years. The door was open, and I looked through it into agarden some hundred yards long and thickly set with grey statues—a garden the existence of which I not even suspected.

"I pointed out to a friend who had lived in the neighborhood a long time a thin vertical slit in a blank wall near this secret garden, and asked him if he knew what it was. He did not know, and when I told him that it was a little door specially built through which the artist, Sir. E. Burne-Jones, used to pass out his large pictures, he was amazed."

London is full of these strange surprises. How many Londoners know that behind St. George's Hospital lies a hidden village which has merely been surrounded by the grey wave of London and has been forgotten? How many Londoners have looked through a tall gate in Melbury Road, West Kensington, W., and seen a wide country view of rolling meadow and leafy lane?

..t one-tenth of h mil ions wl ass the grim grey building of th ank of England eve y week know hat behind those owning, soot va s is a cool quiet garden with a uge green tree in it.

London is a city of shut mysterious doors behind which may lie anything.

A reporter went in search of th forgotten hamlet which has been surrounded by the great grey wave o London. He walked up Knights-bridge from Hyde Park Corner and turned to the left up Old Barrackyard. He was immediately rewarded by finding an old posting inn, which was clearly built in the days of Queen Anne or George I. This inn gathered round i two streets of small houses, whose date is about 1790. These street seem curiously out of place as the magnificent mansions of Belgravia amid which they lie, are quite twice as high and probably 50 years later in date.

The two streets stretch from Knightsbridge to Wilton Crescent and now accomodate the horses and motor cars of the district.

Judging by the debates on Church union which took place recently in the higher courts of the Anglican Church, that church is standing just about where every church concerned stood more or less recently. In the first flutter caused by seriously thinking of union, we realize how dear to us are some of the rituals or traditions or forms of our own particular denomination. Can we give them up? That is the whole problem in a nutshell. And until all denominations approach the question willing to sacrifice some of the things, the loss of which will wring the heart, there can be no union. That such a time will come no one doubts. And there are few people who under-estimate the fact the members of every denomination have their own struggle before they can see that the essentials alone really matter.

A British Columbia merchant the other day complained that business prospects were bad. He feared an era of unemployment. A friend asked him what he was doing towards the prosperity of the province and Canada, and pointed out to him that his shoes were made in New England, that he was wearing hose knit in New York, his suit was tailored in England, his necktie imported from Chicago, his shirt came from across the line, his hat was made in the United States, and his handkerchief was the product of Japan. These articles of clothing represented $44.25 in wages paid to workers living outside of the Province.

Gus Bergstrom, a Swede lumberjack from the White Spruce Lumber Co., died in the Fernie hospital this morning.

All persons who wish to curl this season and who have not already been canvassed, should hand in their names to Secretary W. H. Gates on or before Monday afternoon next.

The drawing for Mrs. Reccot's hand crochet bedspread will take place on Saturday, Nov. 26, at the Orpheum theatre, instead of Dec. 15, as shown on tickets. The bedspread will be on display in Mrs. Todd's window.

The twelve year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Polak, of the Fernie Annex, died on the 16th inst., from an attack of scarlet fever. The funeral took place on the 17th inst., the Rev. Brown officiating.

Wm. Bird, manager of the Home Bank at Blairmore, was in town yesterday. The bank has purchased the Oldland residence at Elko and are moving it to Blairmore for the accommodation of Mr. Bird.

Harold White came in from the Bull River power camp on Tuesday. He says work is proceeding very satisfactorily. Several car loads of transformers for the company arrived at the camp this week and are being unloaded.

The United Church Ladies Aid bazaar will be held in the basement of the church on Saturday, Nov. 19, commencing at 2 p.m. Afternoon tea will be served. There will be booths for fancy work, aprons, candy; home cooking and food tables, not forgetting the fish pond for the children.

The Daughters of the Empire report that 170 members have joined the Red Cross, with six more books to be reported on. In view of the disaster at Brittania Beach, it is hoped that others will come forward and join up. The tag day receipts amounted to $158.80. The Order wishes to thank everybody who aided in making the day a success, especially Mrs. Workman, of Coal Creek, who has obtained 60 members.

The question of appointing a new magistrate for the city will come up very shortly. It has been suggested that Mayor Henderson handle the job in future. This city can hardly expect to command the services of a mayor of the ability of Mr. Henderson without some remuneration, and if the two jobs were amalgamated it would ensure the city having an executive officer of approved ability and at the same time have a good magistrate.

At the last session of the B. C. Legislature a new amendment to the Women's Pension Act cut off 173 women from the list and reduced the pensions of 71. Those cut off were widows residing in the province when the Act came into force, but whose husbands died outside of the province. Why the government should discriminate against these widows, who need the money just as much as the others, is hard to understand. Three widows in this immediate neighborhood were cut off the list.

You will miss something good if you don't go to the Isis. tf

SO MANY PEOPLE ARE NERVOUS

"Fruit-a-tives" the Greatest of all Nerve Remedies

This Fruit Medicine Restores Health

The increase in the number of persons suffering from Nervousness is world-wide; due, in a measure, to the reaction following the war. Sleeplessness, Headaches, Mental Depression, Rheumatism, Nervous Dyspepsia, Bad Heart Action, are the results of a disturbed condition of the Nervous System.

The nerves and the blood are so intimately, so vitally, connected that the condition of one is bound to affect the condition of the other. If the blood is laden with impurities, it is impossible to have strong, steady nerves.

The first essential in treating nervous troubles is to purify and enrich the blood. This, "FRUIT-A-TIVES" will do.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" stimulates the bowels, kidneys and skin and purifies the blood. "Fruit-a-tives" improves appetite and digestion and insures food being properly digested, thus enabling the blood to carry wholesome nourishment to build up the body, particularly the nerves.

Men and women who take "Fruit-a-tives" for some form of nervousness—because they cannot eat or sleep or work or enjoy life—say that this fruit medicine is simply marvellous in its action.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa Ont.

The wife, the husband and the mutual friend! You've seen such characters in other stories—but never before in one so amazing as this! A wife goes into marriage with a lie on her lips; a husband who finds that lie and waits; a friend who had loved the woman once—still loved her, some said—and tried to bring happiness to a home bereft of it. They, and the child, sweep to a climax of drama, surprise and absolute amazement.

"LYING LIPS"

With House Peters and Florence Vidor

Oh, the Light That Lies, in Woman's Eyes—and Lies, Lies, and Lies! Through the ages, from days primitive to days modern, from the quaint, quiet lassies of the Colonial fireside to the dazzling elite of the 1921 ballroom, the light that lies, in woman's eyes, has showered its mystery-rays into the very heart of mankind.

Happiness, Sorrow, Success, Failure—even the tolerance or intolerance of a nation itself—bow before the light that lies, in woman's eyes, and lies, and lies, and lies.

Then speak the lips, and in the reckoning which follows, there is revealed a mighty drama of Life and Love; a story of one woman and two men, trapped in the net of circumstances, forever struggling for the right to rule their souls.

LIFE INSURANCE AT ACTUAL COST

THE MUTUAL OF CANADA is so organized that it is actually selling life insurance at cost—the only old line company incorporated in the Dominion operating on that principle. Shareholders do not figure in the Mutual Life. There are no "middlemen." All surplus is credited solely to the policy-holders and is used for their exclusive benefit. These profits may be drawn in cash; they may be used to reduce the premiums or employed to purchase increased insurance. In any case the result is to reduce the insurance to a net cost basis. There are many other advantages in the Mutual system. Before placing your insurance get in touih with a "Mutual" agent—he will give you all detai's.

LOCAL AND GENERAL

Keith Whimster, of Penticton, is spending a few days in the city.

Fernie is getting its first cold snap of the season. The prairie has had cold weather for two or three weeks.

See A. J. Moffatt if your name is not on the Dominion Voters List. He will put you on.

Don't forget the United Church Ladies Aid Bazaar, Nov. 19, in the basement of the church.

There will be a meeting of the Ladies Hockey Club at 7 o'clock this evening in the Henderson block.

Car loads of whiskey arriving in town from Montreal are each provided with a couple of Dominion policemen while in transit.

Don't forget the whist drive and dance at the Catholic Hall tonight (Friday). Cards 9 to 10. Refreshments. Dancing 11 to 1.

Dr. Bonnell addressed meetings at Crow's Nest, Corbin and Michel this week. He will speak at Coal Creek this evening.

Esther Rebekah Lodge will be at home to all Rebekahs and their husbands, and Odd Fellows and their wives, on Thursday evening, Nov. 24, at 8 o'clock.

Why worry cooking when you can have a chicken dinner at the Northern Hotel on Sunday evening for $1.00 a plate. Four-piece orchestra in attendance.

Dr. Shearer, of the Lord's Day Alliance, gave a very interesting lecture on Moral Reform in the United Church on Wednesday. Mayor Henderson was present getting pointers on how they run "Toronto the Good."

Geo. Jewell, of Caithness, was in town on Wednesday. George has just returned from Drumheller, where he was looking after the affairs of his brother-in-law, John Coward, who was recently murdered near that town.

The teachers and pupils of the Public Schools are busy at recesses, noons and after school hours preparing for the school concert which is to be held in December. From the numbers chosen it is already apparent that this year's concert will be even better than that of last year.

Word has just been received from the Department of Education that the schools will close on Friday, Dec. 16, for the Christmas holidays. As New Year's Day falls on Sunday, Monday Jan. 2 will be observed as a school holiday, and the schools will reopen on Tuesday, Jan. 3.

Lectures have been given this week to the Senior and Intermediate pupils of the Central School, on the "Use and Care of the Teeth," by Doctors Gee and Pickering. By placards and models these lectures were made interesting, as well as instructive, and it is quite likely that the city's stock of toothbrushes will be sold out in short order.

The Girls Hockey Club, of more properly speaking the "Swastika" Club, entertained at a dance given in Victoria Hall on Tuesday evening. Over a hundred couples attended and the hockey girls proved that they are adepts in the capacity of hosts as well as they are when taking part in Canada's national winter sport. The affair in addition to being an enjoyable socal function, was also a financial success.

The management of the Isis theatre begs to inform the many friends and patrons who have made reservations to see "The Conflict," the great Priscilla Dean, Bull River picture, that the dates have been definitely set for a four day run, starting Wednesday, Nov. 30, to Dec. 3. As the seating capacity is limited, those who wish to see this wonderful photoplay will do well to be on time and secure their seats. Seats will be reserved for out of town patrons if notified in time.

The second meeting of the Fernie Educational and Social Club will be held at Ingram's Hall Friday evening (tonight) at 8 o'clock sharp. Mrs. N. E. Suddaby, contralto, will sing four songs by four well known modern composers, after which Mr. Harries will deliver a lecture on "Symbolism in Art." Mr. Harries, who is a student of psychology and the author of several books, should prove an interesting lecturer and it is hoped a large and enthusiastic audience will be in attendance to enjoy a truly intellectual evening, and keep the newly organized club on its feet. No admission fee charged.

PREMIER MEIGHEN'S ADDRESS

I am going to recite some of these facts and ask you to ponder over them. I am going to ask you to regard yourselves as in positions of responsibility, as indeed in the ultimate, all the people of this country are, and to realize that responsibility. I want you to give to undoubted facts the serious reflection they deserve.

In the first place, we could never, as a nation, hold up our end or hold any place at all in the world today, except the reliance upon individual energy, individual effort and individual reward. If there is any in this country who ever relied upon any communistic system as possible or practicable or even thinkable in competition with countries that hold fast to the energising principles of individual endeavor, they must surely have had their theories rudely shattered by recent experiments in Europe. Where the so-called theory of production for use has been put into practice in substitution for production for profit it has resulted practically in no production at all and has ended in chaos and starvation.

Secondly, there is a wide disparity between the industry and ability and especially between the good judgment of individuals—a disparity which no legislation can remove. There are unfortunately, also varying currents of fortune which legislation at best can only partially control.

Thirdly, the intervening territory between rich and poor is covered in this young country with a multitude that comprises the great majority of our people. Nowhere in the world is there so large a proportion of those who are neither rich nor poor as there is in Canada; those who stand on the happiest ground of all, the middle ground of moderate means and comfort. To increase that proportion should be the aim of the government.

Lastly, Canada is only one nation out of many; it is a young and relatively small nation struggling to make its place in a throng of competing countries. We must make our place and hold our place in the world's industrial progress, if we intend to maintain a good average prosperity among our people, to sustain our credit and pay our debts. I am in complete sympathy with you that no place in the world's industrial competition must be secured at the price of injustice to wage earners, and on the other hand wage earners must also agree that any disability placed upon Canadian industries as compared with industries in other countries, and particularly in the United States, would react first and most severely upon the wage earners of Canada themselves.

If I were speaking in the presence of emplayers, I would emphasize the increasing need of regard for the condition of the workers and their fair remuneration. Speaking, as I am now, before representatives of labor, I want to appeal strongly for consideration on your part of the indispensable requirement of Canadian employers not to be placed at a disadvantage with the employers of other countries with whom they are in competition. The way to get better conditions all around is for this country to work in co-operation with other countries of the world, and this course Canada has pursued; indeed, in this direction Canada has led the way. I will refer to that subject later on.

You ask me now what has the Government done to show its good faith with labor. I will go over some things that we have accomplished and I will have to do it rapidly, as only a few minutes of my time remain. It has taken from the ranks or organized labor a Vice-President of one of its largest organizations and has given him Cabinet rank. Never has a Labor Minister in Canada been accorded a more generous confidence from his colleagues and a freer hand in the administration of labor problems than has Senator Gideon Robertson. There is no Department that requires ability of a higher type. A practical labor man, for the first time in our history, has been in charge, and after two years' trial I believe the almost universal feeling of Canada is that he has discharged his task with admirable fairness and with extraordinary capacity. He has done honor to the ranks from which he came and has compelled the confidence of men and women of every class.

Senator Robertson's policy has been to work in co-operation with responsible labor organizations and with organizations of employers as well. The Government, on his advice, has had labor definitely represented on no less than sixteen boards or commissions performing public service. This was done at the request of organized labor and on the whole, it has produced good results. Growing out of a conference with Employees and Employers in 1918 a scheme of technical education was evolved and ten million dollars was appropriated to be spread over the succeeding ten years, for the better training, and this big undertaking so long looked forward to by Canadian workmen is administered by the Department of Labor.

As a result of this conference, the Government decided in 1918 that the time had come when the system of private employment agencies should give place to a Government system operatiing on a much wider interprovincial scale and without expense or imposition upon those seeking employment. Legislation was introduced and passed enabling the Labor Department to establish employment agencies throughout the Dominion in co-operation with the provinces. These offices were at once installed and the result that has attended the work has been pronounced and creditable. Between the first of March, 1919, and the first of August, 1920, 551,817 men and women were placed in employment through the Government offices and all without charge to them. This is at the rate of almost 1,200 per day and surely this is an achievement whose practical value both to the workman and to the country is at least worth recording. Because the system is Canadianwide it takes care of demands for labor in one province that can be supplied in another. Without the Government offices this could not very well be done and much lack of employment as well as lack of labor resulted. Twenty-three thousand skilled workmen have been in this way transferred from one province to another and consequent unemployment has been avoided. The policy thus established has been requested by labor itself and has been of undoubted value to labor, and I sincerely hope will continue to be of service to all.

I want to mention another fact: At the conference out of which the League of Nations was constituted the Canadian representation included a representative of labor. The Secretary of this Congress went as Adviser to the Prime Minister, and it is no information to this audience when I say that mainly through the efforts of the Canadian Prime Minister, assisted materially by Mr. Draper, the Labor Conventions were finally inserted in the proceedings of that Conference and a real and useful step was taken toward the recognition by the great nations of the world of what is now called the "Magna Charta" of Labor. To the terms of that Labor Convention this Government and the other Governments joining in the convention are bound. You know what those terms are. You know they are cardinal principles of organized labor. The only way in which advance can be made toward their adoption is by the concurrent progress of great industrial nations along the lines set down. A first and a big step was taken when those Labor Conventions were agreed to, and the duty of Canada as the duty of all concurring countries is to seek to make practical progress toward putting into effect its terms by co-operation with the other countries concerned. In this way, real progress can be made and I know no other way in which it can be made.

One more word and I am done. No Government can bring about equality or uniformity of wealth without bringing disaster to all, but the aim of the Government should be to bring about equality of opportunity. By the principle of equality of opportunity the present Government will steadfastly abide. Every citizen who has the energy and ambition should have a chance to earn and receive adequate compensation for services rendered. Do not forget as well that after compensation exceeds the value of service rendered, stagnation of industry and unemployment are bound to follow.

Credit is the basis of industry and commerce and the credit of a country and of its industries is maintained in proportion to the security of property which is the reward of industry. Capital we need in Canada and the more capital we have invested here the more plentiful employment will be and capital will come if we have comparative industrial peace and progress. The co-operation of workmen is therefore vitally important to themselves and to the nation.

Workmen who are anxious to advance their own interests cannot afford to ally themselves either industrially or politically with those forces which seek to introduce into Canada policies and ideas that have brought destruction, misery and death wherever they have prevailed. The Government of this country has steadfastly set its face and will steadfastly set its face against those influences abroad in this and other lands that aim to destroy respect for constituted lawful authority, civil and religious liberty, property rights and family relations. The Government of Canada does not intend that labor organizations conducted sanely and reasonably will command and receive the respect of the public. The Government's duty is to protect the whole community against dictation from any section whether of employers or employees.

I hope and believe that the established policy of the Trades Unions affiliated with the Trades Congress of Canada is in keeping with these views, and I say to you: Guard and honor the integrity of your organizations, win by merit the respect of public opinion and you cannot fail of reward.

CAMPAIGN INFLUENCES

The Federal campaign is waxing hotter in Ontario and the other Eastern Provinces although its breath has only just touched British Columbia and the Prairies. The political recriminations being indulged in, usually the ebulition of superheated enthusiasm, are being bandied to and fro, but the main thing is that in every political speech the chief theme is the tariff, and more and more it is becoming the central and the only national issue of the campaign. Mr. McKenzie King, who has made overtures to the Farmers to join their political fortunes with those of the Liberals, has shown a tendency to lose sight of his plea where his own immediate interests are concerned. Speaking in North York, the constituency for which he is running, he describes one of his opponents, the Farmers' candidate, as standing for class government. Moreover, he went further and said the Farmers' movement was not in the real interests of the farmers themselves. At the same time Mr. Crerar, speaking in New Brunswick, disclaims the reports of an alliance between himself and Mr. King, and characterizes them as a tissue of misstatements. Whatever truth there may be in the possibility of a combination between the Farmers and the Liberals, all the public are aware of is that their policies tend towards a common end, one instalment of which is a reciprocity pact with the United States.

Mr. T. A. Crerar has been busy denying that his followers are disloyal though none of his opponents have made the statement. What has been said is that a great number of them, being former American citizens, very naturally have their thoughts directed towards the United States in matters of trade and believe that the fiscal policy of this country should be closely interwoven with that of the country which gave them birth, or asylum, during many years. It is not disloyal for any immigrant to this Dominion to love the country of his birth better than that of his adoption, and so long as he obeys the laws and respects the institutions of the country in which he lives he is a good citizen. It would be a sorry commentary on human nature if mere change of enviornment destroyed a sense of patriotism. Mr. Meighen, in saying that the soil from which many of the Prairie dwellers sprung is not as truly Canadian as that which many other throughout the country can claim, merely enunciated an obvious truth, and one which explains, in a measure the enthusiasm of the Farmers' Party for reciprocity with the United States and finally the extension of that privileges of free trade to that country.

It is for the people of Canada as a whole to say what will be their future fiscal policy. In reaching a decision they should not be dictated to by any class, and they should regard the matter purely from the standpoint of what is for the ultimate good of Canada, irrespective of the fortunes of political parties. Above all, the Dominion must maintain her economic independence. This she cannot keep by truckling to the domination of American trade, and that domination is certain if Canadian markets are to be thrown wide open to the enterprise, ingenuity and mass production of the factories of the United States. It was a knowledge of the danger which threatened that led the people to defeat the Reciprocity Treaty of 1911. The Americans at this moment are making no overtures for reciprocity with this country. On the contrary, they are erecting higher and higher barriers against our products, to prove, as it were, that a nation of over one hundred millions capable of productive effort greater than the world has ever known, is pledged irrevocably to the protective principle. Because of her small population and the embryonic condition of so many of her industries, Canada cannot expect to obtain a quid pro quo in any trade agreement with the United States. Mr. Crerar, if he is a student of political economy, knows this full well, and Mr. Mackenzie King, who has lived and labored in the industrial life of the United States, knows it better still. Mr. Crerar is dominated by and is fighting for the views which prevail among a powerful section of his followers and which may be summed up in the desire for closer trade relations with America. On the other hand, Mr. Mackenzie King has had to accept the issue of the campaign as dictated by the Farmers and willingly accepted by Premier Meighen. For that reason the Liberals are opposing the protective principle but they have yet to say in detail what they would do if returned to power.—Colonist.

APPEAL TO OPINION

VICTORIA, Nov. 14.— (Canadian Press.)—Having come to the conclusion that it is "utterly useless" to negotiate with the Oliver Government on taxation and finance problems, the Union of B. C. Municipalities must now "appeal to popular opinion," Jack Loutet, president of the union, announced on Saturday.

"We have negotiated for years with the government for aid for the municipalities of this province and then we get the schemes outlined in the budget speech of Friday," said Mr. Loutet.

"This has convinced us that it is utterly useless to deal with the government further and we must devise some other method of solving our problems. We have got to appeal to popular opinion, but we have not developed our plans yet."

Asked if it were true that municipal leaders were considering the formation of a new political party in British Columbia to secure more generous treatment for the cities and towns of the province, Mr. Loutet replied:

"I would not like to say now, I will say, however, that supporters of the present government in the Union of Municipalities are prepared to abandon the government. Some of them swear they will never vote Liberal again, although they have done so for forty years. A meeting of the union executive will be held in the near future to consider the whole situation which has arisen as a result of the proposals outlined in the budget speech yesterday. The most hopeful phase of the whole situation is that there is absolutely no dissension among the members of the union. All members of the executive present endorsed the statement we laid before the municipal committee of the House last night. However, no further action will be taken on these questions until the union executive can get together."

Following the dramatic break with the Provincial Government last night heads of the union returned to their homes in various parts of the province. They will not return to negotiate with the government or with the present session. Disgusted with the municipal proposals of the budget they will let events take their course until they can hold a meeting shortly.

"We consider the relief offered us hardly worth while especially for a session which was called to give the municipalities relief," Mayor J. J. Johnston of New Westminster, a prominent member of the union executive, stated.

"I think the statement laid before the municipal committee by the union executive Friday night was quite in order," added Mayor Johnston.

Mayor R. J. Porter, of Victoria, a member of the executive, stated:

"We are not given in the budget what we were led to expect we would get. We have tried our utmost to get relief and we were very hopeful that we had made some progress. I am satisfied now that our efforts have been next to futile. We have not been treated as we should have been. Demands upon our revenues are made more exacting—principally as regards schools and hospitals—all the time, and yet we get no assistance to help us bear these added burdens."

As a result of applying a match to set off a dynamite cap which he had come across in a lumber pile on Monday, Bennett, the 9 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Harrison, of Creston, will lose the sight of one eye suffer a facial disfigurement and possibly lose the sight of the second optic. The little fellow came across the cap while playing around the ranch and with disastrous innocency applied a lighted match to see what the effect would be. Dr. Henderson rendered all possible first aid and the little fellow, accompanied by his father, left on the noon train the same day for Spokane, where he is receiving specialist treatment, and the latest word received is that there is good hope of saving the sight of the left eye. Mr. and Mrs. Harrison only became residents of the valley about a year ago coming from Cypress River, Man., and purchasing the old Adam ranch about a mile and a half from town.

ARRANGING FOR NEW POWER

The regular council meeting last night, for special reasons, commenced at 6.30 instead of 8 p.m. All members present except Ald Irvine.

The BC. Fire Underwriters Association wrote stating that the re-grading of rates for this city was under way but that information was required by the Board as to the method of enforcement of bylaws governing fire protection and fire prevention by the city. A request was also made for a statement of the fire losses in this city for the past five years. In this connection the following report was presented to the council:

1918	$5,860
1920	$30

A resolution was received from the Victoria city council requesting that this city unite with all other municipalities so inclined throughout the province in an effort to coerce the provincial government to comply with certain demands made upon it by the Union of B.C. Municipalities, whereby added financial grants for cities would be obtained, or failing, to combine in such a manner as to force the provincial government to resign. The unanimous expression of opinion of the Fernie city council was that this was a matter beyond the rights of those in charge of the administration of civic affairs, when they propose to amalgamate to seek the defeat or overthrow higher forms of constituted authority. It was admitted that organization of this nature was quite proper and necessary along certain well defined lines with which Fernie had always willingly supported, but when certain municipalities had during a period of frenzied extrvagance depleted sources of revenue and burdened themselves with huge financial obligations that were difficult to meet, there is scant justice now that pressure brought to bear in endeavoring to divert the responsib lity for past follies upon the government.

The city clerk was authorized to notify the Victoria council that they could not concede to their request.

The Mayor suggested that the city should subscribe to the relief of the citizens of Brittania Beach, and a motion was passed authorizing the opening of a public subscription list and heading it with a donation of $100. The citizens and public in general are invited to contribute to this worthy cause and the list will be available at the Home Bank, to which all payments should be made.

The engineer of the B.C. and Alberta Power Co. has notified the Mayor that power will be available in all probability by Jan. 1, 1922, but in any event not later than Feb. 1. Instructions were issued for making arrangements for alterations of motors and wiring in order to be ready for the new service. Some plan will be adopted by the council at a later time which will have for its purpose the nducing of consumers to increase the quantity of power used. One possible method will be the supplying of electrical appliances just sufficiently above cost to cover handling. The matter of rate adjustment when the new power is available will undoubtedly be a substantial reduction over present rates.

A FATAL ACCIDENT

A fatal accident has been reported in No 2 Mine, Coal Creek, with John Woodnorth, an old time West Fernie resident, the victim. The accident is said to have occurred shortly before three o'clock in the main tunnel. Woodnorth was coming off shift and travelling in the main tunnel outward when the air locomotive hauling a trip of loaded cars ran him down killing him instantly. No further particulars of the accident are available but Cororner Duthie has ordered an inquest to be held. This will be convened some time early next week. So far as can be learned at this time deceased is survived by a wife, who resides in West Fernie.

MRS. TRITES ENTERTAINS

About sixty members of the I.O.D.E. and others were entertained at the tea hour yesterday by the Regent, Mrs. A. B. Trites, in her beautiful home. The object of the tea was to increase the number of subscribers to "Echoes," the organ of the Society. The I.O.D.E. are endeavoring by a nation-wide campaign lasting a week to place the Canadian magazine in as many homes as possible. It will in future be more of a family periodical dealing with subjects of particular interest to Canadians.

A short musical program was rendered by Mr. Bass and Mr. Matthews followed by solos by Mrs. T. Lawes and Mrs. N. E. Suddaby. This was much enjoyed by all. Mrs. Cummings then read a paper on Canadian Writers, sketching in a very interesting manner the growth of Canadian literature from early days down to our own times. It made one realize how both in prose and poetry Canadian thought is being ably expressed today, and she ended with the plea for a wider knowledge of Canadian writers by the reading public of her own people. Tea followed and a social hour was enjoyed by all. At the conclusion they all voted Mrs. Trites a right jolly good fellow for her ever ready and generous hospitality. All left with the feeling of having spent not only a most pleasant but profitable afternoon

If any I.O.D.E. members or others wish to subscribe to "Echoes" or renew their subscription they can do so by sending fifty cents to Mrs. A. I. Fisher, Echoes Secretary, before next Monday. What could be more acceptable than a subscription to "Echoes" as a Christmas present to some friend?

TOM UPHILL WAS NOT THERE

By a vote of 22 to 20—the closest squeak the government has yet had —R. H. Pooley's motion for an investigation into the Game Act administration under the Attorney General and Dr. A. R. Baker, was converted into a royal commission.

Opposition and independent members charged that the move initiated by Premier Oliver and Attorney-General Farris was designed to thwart the enquiry. The opposition declared that they would have nothing to do with a royal commission in view of the type of commissioners appointed to investigate the sewage board charges, a $175 a month clerk in the premier's office.

Two Liberal members voted against the government, H. G. Perry and David Whiteside. All the independents and Labor men in the house except Thos. Menzies, voted against the Farris manoeuvre.

Tom Uphill, who spoke against the amendment emanating from the government members was sent for by Farris after the whips had checked up the probable division, and was seen in consultation with the minister five minutes before the division. He put on his hat and left the building, thus avoiding the division.

Under the auspices of the G.W.V.A. and Ladies Auxiliary a social evening was held in Hawthorne Hall last Friday. A splendid programme interspersed with dancing, was carried out. Dr. Corsan, in a neat speech, made the presentation of a Past President's badge to Mrs. G. G. Moffatt, late President of the Ladies Auxiliary; and W. R. Wilson made a similar presentation on behalf of the G. W.V.A., to H. A. Bryant, and paid a glowing tribute to the work af the Fernie branch in their endeavor to better conditions for the returned men. The recipients responded suitably. The committee desire to thank all who assisted in any way towards the evening's enjoyment.

BONNELL MEET AT CRANBROOK

The Hon. H. H. Stevens, of Vancouver, Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Dominion government, will address a public meeting in Cranbrook on Monday evening, Nov. 28, at 8 o'clock. All those from East of Cranbrook who attend the meeting will be able to return the same night as train arrangements have been made for a late train going east.

Mr. Stevens is one of the most brilliant speakers in British Columbia.

MUST PAY LIQUOR TAX

An imporatnt judgment on the Liquor Contro Act has been rendered by Mr. Justice Clement, who decided liquor imported into British Columbia by private consumers was subject to the provincial tax.

The matter came before the court as a test case in which Jas. S. Little sought a declaration that he was not obliged to pay all demanded by the Liquor Control Board. That amount was the tax which the board assessed upon a case of whisky purchased by Mr. Little in Calgary. The plaintiff asked the court to rule that Section 55 of the provincial statute, authorizing the collection of the tax, was ultra vires of the legislature.

The defendant was the Attorney General for B.C.

In substance Mr. Justice Clement decided the tax in juestion was a direct tax and consequently came within the ambit of the province. He further expressed the opinion that Section 55 was not intended by the legislature to interfere with the free passage of products from one province to another and did not conflict with Section 121 of the B.N.A. Act.

The decision means that people who order their liquor from Calgary or elsewhere instead of buying from the government must pay a tax equal to the amount of profit which would have accrued to the government plus 10 per cent

At Bozeman, Mont., a drunken driver was convicted of reckless driving, having run into two machines before he was arrested. He was fined $25 and sentenced to 60 days in jail, but the jail sentence was remitted by the justice with the proviso that he shall not drive a car for one year. Better still it would have been if the justice had reqhired the 60 days in jail, as well as depriving the convicted driver of the privilege of running a car for a year. It should be apparent to anyone with an ordinary knowledge of human nature that the dangerous evil of reckless driving, some times by intoxicated men and at others by drivers not intoxicated, can be effectively broken up by the vigorous enforcement of the law. Jail sentences, coupled with suspension of license, will do the wholesome business. It is difficult to understand the shrinking attitude that refuses to apply law in all its severity, particularly to drunken drivers. They are as much a menace to the public as a rabid dog, or a desperado running amuck with a revolver, and are deserving of no more tolerance than is given to any other menace to the public safety of life and limb. Probably 90 per cent of the fatal automobile accidents are preventable and will be prevented when reckless drivers understand that the law is after them with a resolute and righteous purpose.—Spokesman.

Germany is said to be threatened with a tobacco famine. Fritz may survive this hardship but depriveing him of his stein of beer would be fatal.

GAMES AND SPORTS AMONG THE ANCIENTS

I was watching a football match some little while back, and, though I am no footballer. having but a very meagre knowledge of the game, yet there was something so exhiliarating in the struggles of the players that I could not help feeling intensely interested, almost excited, as they swayed this way and that, or charged upon each other like wild men in their determination to win the goal. I protest it was like the "wind of the heath" to a jaded spirit.

I thought as I looked at the players what a natural thing it was for mankind to seek enjoyment of a physical nature; how it had always been so in all ages and countries and would probably continue till time should be no more. Now games were, no doubt, instituted at first to keep alive the military spirit n the men of the nation.. They were not founded as a means of amusement solely, but the founders had a far wider, nobler end in view, for not only would particular games be indulged in, but those taking part in them would have to practice great self-denial, temperance, moral force; while habits of agility, promptness of action, instant decision in initiative, would be inculcated, the manhood of the nation would thus be more hardy, brave and warlike.

The Jews do not appear to have looked upon games with much favor. though in their great festivals of the Passover, Feast of Weeks, and the Feast of Tabernacles, certain games were indulged in. All their games were of a military nature, the idea being to make the Jewish manhood hardy warriors. They practiced with bow and arrow, slings, at stone or weight lifting, war dances, running and so forth.

Jonathan said to David on a memorable occasion: "I will shoot three arrows on the side thereof, as though I shot at a mark." Which shows that the Jews of that time had marks to shoot at. They were expert slingers also, for in Judges, 20th, we read: "There were seven hundred chosen men, left-handed; every one could sling stones at an hairbreadth and not miss." David was clever with this weapon, as his encounter with Goliath of Gath shows.

In common with most people of antiquity, and savages of today, they had their war dances. Abner said to Joab: "Let the young men now arise and play before us." This was a war dance, but not so innocent as one might think. Abner had a real fight in view, in which the young men of each army were to take part, in similar manner to the gladiators of the Roman arena.

They also went in for weight lifting competitions, which Jerome, an early Christian father, saw in his day. These weights were heavy stones alluded to in Zachariah, 12, 3: "And in that day will I make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all people. All that burden themselves with it shall be cut in pieces."

These were apparently the only public games indulged in by the Jews until Jason, the high priest, built a Grecian gymnasium in Jerusalem in 187 B.C., for the purpose of training the Jewish youth in Grecian games. Though a few joined in the games, the majority of the Jews did not approve of them and they died out for a time. Herod tried to revive them, building a theatre at Jerusalem, while on the plain adjacent he erected a fine amphitheatre, in which every fifth year, wrestling, chariot racing, wild beast fights with each other and with criminals, were gone through. However, he only succeeded in offending the greater part of the Jewish people. A religious feeling was at the bottom of the repugnance.

The Greeks had four great festivals or games, Olympian, Pythian, Nemean and Isthmian. Everyone taking part in them had to go through a most severe training. A special gymnasium was set apart for this purpose and the training lasted ten months. The exercises grew more severe as the even drew nigh. No one, be his position ever so high, could take part in them until he first went through ths training.

It is wonderfully modern, the description of these games or trials of skill, when placed alongside the newspaper reports of many of our own sports; for running, wrestling, boxing, assaults-at-arms and many other events were regular features.

Leaping was popular, only it was at times performed with weights on head and shoulders. Running, however, was held in the greatest esteem by the Greeks, for it was of extreme importance in their style of warfare. Quick in offence, rapid in retreat, was the maxim of the Greek warrior; therefore the youth was specially trained in running.

I once saw a fine piece of antique Greek sculpture, representing a Spartan runner who was expiring in the moment of victory. He had distanced all his rivals and reached the winning post only to die from the severity of his exertions. The sculptor has immortalized a real incident which he himself witnessed.

Girls were also trained to run, and they made good runners. A Grecian story tells of one At alanta, whose father had promised her in marriage with his kingdom after his death to the youth who could beat her at runnng, for none were as fleet of foot as she. Her name was proverbial.

Many tried to win the coveted prize but failed, losing their prize with their lives. At last Meilanion, a young Greek, her cousin, won the maiden though he used cunning when he found that skill and endurance could not avail. He took with him into the race three golden apples which Venus had given him for the purpose, and as they ran round the course together the maiden forged ahead, so he let fall an apple. As she stopped to pick it up he gained a little. She caught him up again, so he dropped another and another. Thus it was he won the race and his bride. Hardly fair, was it? But, as they said ,"All's fair in love and war."

Among the Greeks Achillies rejoiced in the nick-name "Swift footed," reminding one of Jonathan, whom David called "Swift as the Eagle," for his speed. The running ground was 125 paces in length, which competitors often ran over and back again twice. This course was sometimes lengthened to suit special circumstances, while sometimes those who ran would do so in heavy armor to show their strength and endurance. Certainly these contests were always severe, testing to the utmost the strength and endurance of those who contested. It was a glorious sight then, as it is now, to see a body of athletes putting every ounce of strength into their final effort to reach the goal, the watchers meanwhile being strung to the highest pitch of excitement as they rushed by.

The Greeks also were exceedingly expert with the dart or javelin, which was in reality a shart spear. You are no doubt acquainted with the assegais used with such terrible effect by the Zulus in their last war with us. These are really javelins. The Greeks threw them by hand in the same way as the Zulus threw theirs; but if more power was wanted they used a leather thong which was tied round the middle of the weapon.

Wrestling was in great esteem amongst these people. The English have also relished the art. A few years ago there was a revival of it. You could scarcely pick up a newspaper without seeing some account of a wrestling match. But the Greeks wrestled differently to ourselves. The Greek had to throw his adversary either by swinging him round or tripping him up, and then to keep him down. Theseus developed wrestlng into a fine art. The joints and limbs of the wrestlers were well rubbed with oil to make them supple. The one who threw his man three times gained the victory.

The game of quoits, or discus throwing, was also played by them, a game much in vogue in the rural districts of England today, only the Grecian quoit was a flat circular disc, originally of stone, but later made of lead, brass, iron or wood. Some were swung by a leather strap passing through a hole in the centre. The English quoits are thrown at a mark in the centre of a circle at a distance of 18 yards. The quoit is 8½ inches in diameter, with a 2½ inch hole in the centre, and weighs from 7 to 9 pounds, and though not requiring the strength necessary for the Grecian game, needs some skill.

Then boxing was another game much in vogue among these people. At first the naked fist was used, but later thongs of leather were bound round their wrists and extending in some cases to their shoulders. Sometimes pieces of lead were attached to these thongs, called cestus, and the blows given to each other must have been terrible.

The Romans were by far the cruellest in their sports. Though modelled for the most part on the Grecian games, other and far more brutal features were added. In some instances wild beasts fought each other in the arena. All kinds of animals were collected the world over for the purpose. Bears, lions, tigers, boars, bulls, elephants, etc., fought for their lives, tearing each other to pieces, infuriated by the people, who threw darts at them from their seats. Sometimes wretched men and women would fight for their lives with beasts of prey. Again, men colled gladiators—splendid specimens of manhood, specially trained—fought each other to the death. It is said that Trajan celebrated one of his victories over the Dacians by the display of 10,000 gladiators, who fought with sword and spear in the Roman amphitheatre for the amusement of the populace.

There was a great difference in the award made to the ancient athlete and to ours. The athlete of those days fought for the honor alone before a grand and imposing concourse of spectators, his neighbors and friends. Some who witnessed his efforts had themselves competed for the prize and won it. The crown of leaves awarded them had a value great and rare above all money value, while the honor it brought was enough. The winners in the Olympic games were held in the greatest esteem ,their statues were placed in the grove sacred to Jupiter. Triumphal chariots brought them home. The walls of the city in which they lived were broken to let them pass through, for the citizens said they wanted no walls to defend them while the city contained such men. Not only so, but the place they belonged to, with the parents that gave them birth, were enobled by them, and their victories sung by the greatest poets of the time.

EMPLOYMENT SERVICE COUNCIL RECOMMENDATION

The Employment Service Council of Canada has at various times made suggestions with regard to the unemployment problem, and your attention is invited to the recommendation given below. It will be remembered that the Employment Service Council of Canada is an advisory body, represtative of employers, employees, farmers, the returned soldiers, the provincial governments, the Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, and the Dominion Department of Labor. Employers are represented by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, the Canadian Lumbermen's Association, the Association of Canadian Building and Construction Industries ,and the Railway Association of Canada. The employees' representatives were nominated by the Trades and Labor Congress and the Canadian Railway Brotherhoods. The farmer members of the Council were named by the Canadian Council of Agriculture and the returned soldier representative by the Great War Veterans Association. The Council is charged with the duty of recommending to the Minister of Labor ways of preventing unemployment and of improving the administration of the Employment Service of Canada. At its last meeting, held in September, the Council passed the following resolution:

Whereas the importation of foreign goods which could have been produced in Canada has been in part responsible for the present unemployment problem, and

Whereas a continuation of the purchase of imported goods will tend to accentuate the problem, and

Whereas the purchase of Made--in-Canada goods will furnish work to Canadian artisans, thereby assuring improved working conditions, lessening unemployment and keeping Canadian money in circulation in the Dominion.

Therefore, the Employment Servce Council of Canada recommends to the purchasing public the desirability , when prices are fair, of demanding goods produced in Canada, and with the object of giving the widest possible publicity to this recommendation, instruct its secretary to correspond with the press of Canada requesting the insertion of editorial and news items dealing with this phase of the stuation.

This recommendation has been brought to the attention of the Min ister of Labor and has received his approval.

Apart from adopting distinctive colors the American custom of featuring party emblems in a political campaign has not been followed in Canada. The Republican "elephant" and Democrat "donkey" have long distinguished the two great parties across the border. As a challenge to all comers looking for a fight it would be hard to surpass the emblem recently adopted by a New York State convention. It consists of a pair of boxing gloves crossed and held in position by a dagger.

Our Introduction!

WE are Pleased to Announce that we are going to Open up a New Bakery in Fernie in a Few Weeks Time. The Store and Bakeshop will be located in the Harper Block, and under the management of Mr. Kuzma, who has been in this Business in Lethbridge.

Mr. Kuzma has had experience with many good bakers in Canada, especially with Mr. Kirkby, who was awarded, in the old country, the Gold Cup International Championship for Home Made Bread; Silver Championship for Bread; 68 Gold, Silver, and Bronze Medals and other First Awards for excellence in quality of Pastry.

OUR MOTTO:

"Better Values - Better Goods"

Soliciting Your Patronage, We beg to introduce ourselves as

THE CROW'S NEST BAKERY Co.

WATCH FOR OPENING DATE

Crab in Oyster Shell.

A perfectly formed hardshell crab about the size of the end of a person's thumb was once found in an oyster shell. The crab had evidently been swallowed by the oyster, but presumably the crab proved too much for the oyster, as there was no oyster in the shell when it was opened.

Peru Sparsely Populated.

A territory on the Pacific ocean approximately 1,400 miles in length and 700 miles in width is occupied by Peru. The territory extends over 679,600 square miles, with a population that is estimated at 4,500,000, or, approximately, 6.6 to the square mile.

For the Typist.

Instead of adjusting the operator's chair to the height of the table on which a typewriter is placed, a typist may now have an adjustable table. The top of the new stand may be raised or lowered like the top of a piano stool.

To Soften Paint Brushes.

If paint brushes have been allowed to get dry and hard, they can be softened in the following manner: Heat some vinegar to boiling point and allow the brushes to simmer in it for about ten minutes. Then wash them well in strong soapsuds.

Improved Propellers.

A new propeller for either water or air has blades with spiral-like curves at one point and concave at the other, carrying the water or air their full length and overcoming the gyroscopic effect of ordinary propellers.

Rat Ravages on Crops.

There are about 750 forms of rodents inhabiting the United States, and the annual loss they cause in food and feed crops is estimated at $50,000,000.—Indianapolis News.

"Poor man! She makes him shake in his shoes so much he wears out his socks in no time."—Boston Transcript.

So They Couldn't Get Away.

It has been said that the average size of pastoral holdings in the northern territory of Australia is 275,000 acres.

BETTER HERDS

Pacific Milk, as you know, is the only milk put up in this province and we feel that it is in no small measure due to the strategic locations of our factories that so many fine herds are being developed between Chilliwack and the Delta.

The high quality of Pacific Milk has made it the biggest milkman in the West.

PRISCILLA DEAN DID RIDE THE LOGS

To set at rest the talk of those irresponsibles who stated that Priscilla Dean had a substitute for the log-riding scene in "Conflict," I beg to correct this error by the following letters.

J. C. Orner, Manager Isis.

Calgary, Nov. 23, 1921.

J.C. Orner, Manager Isis, Fernie:

Dear Mr. Orner—It has come to my attention that certain reports are being made that it was not Miss Dean who rode the logs in "Conflict."

According to advice I have received from our Home Office and to the best of my knowledge, also from a certain letter received from John A. Eckets & Co., Insurance Agents, 90 John St., New York, a copy of which I am herewith enclosing, it was Miss Dean who rode the logs.

Yours very truly,

Gentlemen—Our attention has been directed to the log jam scene featuring Priscilla Dean in "Conflict." We are compelled to advise you that if she is subjected to any such similar risks as occurred in the taking of this picture, your insurance covering her will be suspended during that time.

No insurance company can be expected to assume such extra hazardous risks. Will you please acknowledge receipt of this letter and advise prior to any similar undertakings.

MUTUAL LIFE OF CANADA

NEW CHILD'S ENDOWMENT

Under plan "B" if the parent dies, premiums cease, and the Policy becomes paid up for the full sum assured, payable at the end of the Endowment term if the child is then living. The parent or guardian is the Assured and the child is referred to as the Endowed. The Endowed is therefore protected for the full amount of the Endowment whether the assured lives or dies.

If the Endowed dies during the term leaving the Assured surviving, the Company will return all premiums with compound interest at three and a half per cent per annum; and the Policy then terminates. If, however, the Endowed survives the Assured but dies during the Endowment term, the Policy will be payable at maturity to the estate of the Assured.

The Policy is issued with profits and dividends may be taken on any of the regular plans.—See Local Agent for Terms.

A general meeting of the G.W.V.A. will be held on Sunday afternoon at 2.30. As business of vital importance will be transacted it is essential that all members attend.

The Ladies Guild of Christ Church will hold their Annual Christmas Sale on Wednesday, Dec. 14, beginning at 3o'clock. Dancing from 10 to 1. Bass' orchestra.

The insurance companies have paid out in Fernie $28,023 in the last five years. In that time they have collected here nearly $200,000 in premiums. They cannot have very much kick coming on that basis.

The ladies of the I.O.D.E. are giving a social for the Boy Scouts in the Scout Hall on Satuday evening, Nov. 26. All Boy Scouts are requested to be at the Scout Hall promptly at six o'clock that evening.

There are a lot of business houses in Fernie, including the Free Press, who do not seem to devote enough time and energy towards keeping the sidewalks in front of their business places clean.

TheLoyal Order of Moose will hold the first of their series of monthly dances in Hawthorne Hall on Monday. Dancing from 9.30 p.m. Bass' orchestra. Refreshments. Admission $1.00 per couple. Patrons are assured of a good time.

The piano recital given by the pupils of Miss West, assisted by H. V. Anderson, last night in the United Church, was largely attended. A splendid program was given. Special amusement and entertainment was afforded by the performance of the Unique Orchestra, which was much appreciated by the audience. During the evening Mrs. H. J. Johnson as local representative of the McGill Conservatorium of Music, presented the certificates obtained by the successful pupils at their last examination. Great credit is due Miss West for the able manner in which she conducted the recital and to the training of her pupils.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. J. Polak wish to express their thanks to those who sent floral offerings, Miss H. M. Herkins, Miss Herkins' class, Mrs. Tony Dutka, Mrs. John Kobus, J. Goralski, M. Katchman; and to the friends who attended the funeral of their daughter.

All those interested in the forming of the Ladies' Curling Club are asked to meet at the home of Mrs. Liphardt on Saturday evening at 7.30. New members specially invited to attend or send in their names.

His Honor Judge Thompson will be in Fernie on Monday and will sit at the court house at 10 a.m. in order to give certificates to those women of foreign birth who are entitled to vote.

There is little chance of Tom Uphill being on hand if it comes to a vote to defeat the government. He would be the best standpatter the government would have if he thought there was any chance of their having to appeal to the country again.

The Britannia Beach sufferers are asking for relief. In view of the generous donations to Fernie during 1902 and 1908, when we were looking for help, the $100 donated by the city at last night's meeting would seem to be very meagre. Let the citizens get busy and make up a substantial amount for this worthy cause.

BURNS TELLS OF WIFE'S TROUBLES

Says Tanlac Proved To Be Just What She Needed—Health Is Splendid Now

"My wife is certainly well pleased with Tanlac, and it's the main thing she talks about since it restored her health," said M. Burns, of Saint Rose, Man., an employee of the Canadian National Railway.

"My wife had been in poor health for three years and she seemed to be getting worse rapidly. She had stomach trouble and indigestion and had to be particular about everything she ate. At times she complained of awful pains in her stomach and gas would form and bring on more distress. She was all the time having headaches, at night could not get much sleep and became so weak she could hardly do the housework.

"Finally, as nothing she tried seemed to help her, I got her some Tanlac, and it proved to be just the thing she needed. She is looking fine now and says she feels as well and strong as she ever did in her life. Her appetite has returned and she can eat anything without it hurting her. She sleeps fine and her health is as good as it used to be years ago."

CRIMINAL COURT PUBLICITY

It is a maxim of British justice that it should be dispensed openly. The average court, criminal or civil, is open to the public, except in cases in which the evidence is too shocking or too salacious for a public hearing. judges or magistrates can, in such cases, order the court room cleared of all but those necessary for a continuance of the trial. But freedom is often abused by the public, and prisoners should have more protection than they have from the idly curious, and the "gloaters" who take joy out of other people's distress.

An Australian daily newspaper contained recently a description of an audience that crowded into a court for a criminal trial in one of the Australian cities:

"Loose, slack mouths and lips thick and shapeless; terrible mouths, like the mouths of frogs. Eyes that are furtive, bleary eyes; small, round, pig-like yes that twinkle and gleam; eyes that stare dully like glass marbles; and eyes whose lids are almost fallen, so that they seem, though are not, asleep. Faces whose whole expression seems to gloat; faces with as much expression as a blob of putty; faces that are merely brutal or frightened; amorphous faces; wicked faces like old scars. Heads that are too small and heads that are misshapen—but, indeed, they are nearly all misshapen. You would think that a cargo of the Creator's first experiments had broken loose."

How true this description is of a large number of individuals who frequent Canadan criminal courts. Often, it is true, the courts see well-dressed, refined young women in the back benches. They are "seeing life." Themselves far removed, by some father's care, from sordid surroundings, and miserable associations, they descend, or condescend to look at the troubles of others as revealed in the courts and have a good giggle. Their shallowness is equalled by their gossipy inquisitiveness. Almost alongside them are tobacco-spitting, unshaven loafers drawn to the court to get what thrills they can out of the sufferings of some poor girl, or father or mother. The prisoners and their relatives may be entirely respectable people, for many offences in the eyes of the law are not moral offences, or indicative, in the least, of low character. Yet they have to be exposed to the "gloaters" who ought to be out washing dishes or breaking stone.

5 BIG THRILLS

NEVER BEFORE SCREENED

The great Dam Explosion that turns the course of a whole Oregon river—

A DRAMA so powerful, so rich with suspense that it might have been written by Edgar Allen Poe. A picture that holds you breathless thru scenes even greater than "Way Down East." Staged in wondrous outdoor settings of supreme scenic grandeur. Don't miss it!

The great battle of the rival logging camps

A rushing, roaring sweep of resistless waters released from bondage—a mighty torrent of timber crushing grinding all before it—logs bumping, splintering in the snarling waters—sweeping all before its relentless path. Such is one of the big thrills in "Conflict."

The most gripping, soul-searing moment ever filmed. Terrific in its intensity, the mighty log jam, the blowing up of the dam, and the smashing torrent of felled forest is the mightiest spectacle of the camera's art.

In all its splendor, in all its ruthless glory, "Conflict," Priscilla Dean's wonderful new picture, vividly records the actual dynamiting of a huge dam, and the breaking loose of hundreds of thousands of the prisoned logs.

SAYS the "New York World": "The picture industry possesses far too few Priscilla Deans to allow this charming young brunette to take such chances with her life as those shown in 'CONFLICT.' For ten breathless minutes last night we prayed the dear girl would come out of the log jam intact—and she did! We do not wonder that her insurance company warned her against repeating such risks."

PRISCILLA DEAN

If you want to have the big shivery thrill of your life, see the great dam explosion that sets free a raging river of logs and starts daring Priscilla Dean on a wild ride against death that takes her to the very brink of the falls. Says the N. Y. World: "We do not wonder that her insurance company warned her against such risks."

Says the New York Evening Mail: "Mystery, drama, adventure and one of the most thrilling passages ever seen on the screen, all are found in "Conflict!" The scene in which Priscilla Dean rescues her lover from death is a raging torrent on the brink of a waterfall is a marvel. The famous ice-scene in "Way Down East" scarcely equals it."

Unconscious—at the mercy of a raging river of logs

"Conflict," the sensational Red Book serial by Clarence Budington Kelland, is a mystery-drama, the rugged mountain country of British Columbia as its locale.

"Conflict" is the story of a fight—the battle of two indomitable wills—the struggle for the mastery of the logging industry.

The beauty of the photography and the magnificent scenery of the Canadian North Woods country is unsurpassed.

Thousands upon thousands of huge logs whirling through the dynamited dam were caught by the six cameramen who risked their lives to obtain this remarkable film.

"Conflict" surpasses even "Reputation"—Priscilla Dean's most recent Universal-Jewel success—in its intensity and dramatic force.

LABOR UNIONS LOSING PRESTIGE

Members of Labor unions ofter wonder nowadays why unionism ha: lost so much prestige with the public. A few years ago 99 per cent of the community looked with a favorable eye on unionism. It was recognized that by increasing the prosperity of the working man, the general prosperity of the community at large had been raised. Among the employing classes a remarkable change of feeling had manifested itself. The sons of manufacturers who had taken an uncompromising attitude toward the demands of Labor in a bygone generation, showed themselves tolerant and willing to co-operate in all measures to insure good conditions for the working man and his family. Then unionism lost its head; the more arrogant and short-sighted elements in the ranks of Labor got control; the idea that every man who worked for wages was a "slave" was inculcated; but worse than that, unionism tried the wild and wasteful policy of interfering with the laws of supply and demand; of regulating production, so as to create "more jobs" for the adult generation; while making it more and more difficult for the rising generaton or the new-comer to earn an honest livelihood. A hundred rules for the artificial restriction of industry were invented which employer and employee were expected to regard as sacred. The result has been a strong reaction of feeling which permeates every section of the community.

Another factor which is tending to make unionism fall by the weight of its own arrogance is the manner in which it has been extended to embrace many fields, which do not come under the head of strictly mechanical labor and where the modern union principle which strives to promote a uniformity of reward is absurd. A example is the Musicians' Union. One might imagine that the musical calling would be the last in which international laws would be strained in order to harass and vex the employer and the public. Yet several instances have occurred in Canada of late which show the amazing lengths to which unionism is prepared to go. There was the case of the English conductor of the revue "Hullo Canada," whom Joseph Webber of New York, as head of the Musicians Union, an international body, tried to have kept off the soil of the North American continent. Mr. Webber's excuse was that he wanted to preserve the "jobs" of Canadian musicians. When he saw that it was likely to result in an international dispute, he had the wisdom to withdraw from the position and left the matter in the hands of Canadian unions. Some of them decided to boycott the Englishman, by threatening to call strikes in theatres in which he was to appear, but publicity brought them to a better state of mind. There is no doubt that if they had not feared public opinion they would have carried on the boycott.

At the present time there is a case before the United States immigration authortities which illustrates another phase of tyranny. The conductor of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra engaged a gifted Winnipeg vilolinist who held a union card for his forces. It was good business for the orchestra plays profitable engagements in Winnipeg annually; but the Musicians Union intervened, and induced the United States immigration authorities to keep the violinst out of the country as a contract laborer. This, apparently, is their estimate of any musician's status.

In Toronto recently the well-known actor Vaughn Glaser, rented a large vaudeville theatre with a view to giving dramatic performances. Inasmuch as this theatre possesses a fine organ; he proposes to employ an organist to give solos between the acts, instead of the wretched orchestral numbers ordinarily heard in Canadian theatres. It was not a case of dismissing anyone, for the theatre in question had been closed. When the project became known the musicians union announced a ruling that a theatre of that size must employ seven musicians whether it needed them or not. It would permit the performance of organ solos provided six other musicians were paid salaries to twiddle their thumbs or turn the music; which in fact is all that a good many members of the union should be permitted to do, judging by their performances. There is perhaps no union in which money is more frequently exacted on false pretences. Here was Mr. Webber's theory that the mission of the union is to provide "jobs" in its fullest capacity. The organist himself could not appear because he is also an orchestral leader and knew that he would be blacklisted if he accepted the engagement. Such instances could be multiplied all over this continent. Is it any wonder that the whole modern theory of unionism has lost the respect and support of the public?—Saturday Night.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

City and Farm

Dependent upon the Home Market

Protection Vital to Both

THE HOME MARKET is in the cities and towns where the workers earn money with which to buy and where The Farmer sends his produce to be sold.

Both City and Farm are dependent upon THE HOME MARKET—the City worker for the purchase of Life's necessaries, the Farmer for the sale of his produce.

It is evident then that the Farmer's primary interest is in plenty of employment at good wages for those in the towns and cities, which enables his customers to buy what he offers for sale. In fact, the Canadian Farmer is at present relying upon his HOME MARKET for the sale of about 80 per cent of all he produces, at least in Eastern Canada.

THEN if the Farmer with the money he receives from the sale of his produce buys the manufactured products of the towns and cities of Canada he is helping to keep in employment his customers who in turn will use the money they earn to purchase from him.---And so the circle continues.

The Free Trade fallacies of CRERAR and KING would quickly flood this country with boots, shoes, clothes, furniture and other necessaries of life made in the United States and other Countries. Our factories would have to close, thousands upon thousands of Canadian men and women in the cities and towns being thrown out of employment.

The Farmer's customers would be driven to the United States for employment, and The Farmer would lose his great HOME MARKET.

The Canadian farmer cannot hope to make up for this loss by selling his goods in the United States, for the farmers of that country have already objected to competition from this side of the line. In fact the Fordney Bill practically shuts out Canadian farm products from the American market—and the Fordney Bill is the outcome of the United States farmers' demand for protection.

The only possible advantage to the Farmer under Free Trade would be the free entry of the foreign-made agricultural implements. This is not an important item, as the duty paid on agricultural implements imported into Canada in 1919 represented ONLY ABOUT 89 CENTS PER HUNDRED ACRE FARM.

NOW— is the HOME MARKET not of vital importance to city and farm alike

Meighen's Reasonable Protective Tariff assures the maintenance of THAT MARKET

GOLFERS—MALE AND FEMALE

There is still a broad span of golfing country between the best of the males and the best of the females in competitive play.

Miss Leitch recently proved that at Pelham, when she turned in an 83 against Jim Barnes, and yet found herself nine down at match play, and no less than 15 strokes away at medal play.

It might be argued, of course, that a 68 over Pelham was an abnormal pace. That is true. But it is still proof as to how far a star male golfer can lead a female opponent when the latter is playing around her top speed.

Not that 83 won't stop any number of males, even among those ranked well out of the duffer class.

But against the best that a male can do it is well away.

She would have her 79's and occasionally her 76's. But there would also be her occasional 86's and 88's.

Yet George Duncan and Abe Mitchell averaged around 72 over an almost endless string of courses which gives them something like a 10-stroke margin in medal play over the best women golfers.

Wherein does the main advantage lie? In comparing, for one example, Jim Barnes and Miss Leitch, we find the advantage is a general one in every department of the game.

He is longer from the tee and straighter. He is better with the long irons and the mashie shots. He is better just off the green and a surer, much better putter.

His main advantage rests in the more consistent use of every club in the bag. Probably there is less advantage off the tee than anywhere eles, as Miss Leitch is a long hitter, who is generally down the course.

The fact that Barnes can get from 40 to 45 yards more is vast assistance, but not a crushing factor.

The fact that after getting this advantage he can continue to pile up other adavantages gives him the distinct superiority shown in comparative scores.

Among the better players from both sexes is the man or the woman in golf the more consistent?

Neither can claim any golden respects in this field. Leading males have shown us how wide their range can be. Jock Hutchinson at St. Andrews, and Jock Hutchinson at Inwood, in the P.G.A. championship were two entirely different golfers.

Even Barnes and Hagen, two of the steadiest golfers, have shown how impossible it is for anyone to keep on even pace in golf all year. This is especially true if one happens to get going at a fast clip earlier in the season. Playing well, there is a tendency to play too much golf and so come upon the staleness that wrecks high and low alike.

In an amateur championship a man may fail to qualify one year and win the main crown a year later. Guilford did this.

Or he may win the crown and later fail to qualify, as Herron did.

So one would have innumerable examples to show that the male was no more consistent on the golf course than the female. One plays about as close to an average score as the other.

It is the lure of golf that helps make the game so hard to play. Barnes, Hagen, Hutchison, Duncan, Mitchell, Kirkwood and others all played far more competitive games this past season than their nervous system could stand. And a stale star isn't as good as some average player who happens to be at his best. Stillness affects the short game, where greater concentration is required above everything else. A golfer may be stale and still his tee shots effectively. But he can't keep his short approaches and his putting work up to standard form when his keen touch is broken by the lack of interest that follows too much play.

If Barnes had faced Miss Leitch just after he had finished some hard tournament, her 83 (which included two 7's), with six bisques would have been good enough to get her by. But following his rest after the last Western trip, Barnes came back and broke course records at Arcola and Pelham. Conceding Miss Leitch a 9-stroke or a six-bisque advantage would ordinarly bring her in a winner over any leading amateur, with only one or two exceptions. We doubt very much that there are three amateurs in the country who could give Miss Leitch this start and have any hope of winning majority of matches. For they would need something around 72 or 73 to barely drift by, and these scores are not made easy too often under pressure of a hard match.

Cincinnati man tells how to shrivel up corns or calluses so they lift off with fingers.

Ouch ! ? ! ? ! ! This kind of rough talk will be heard less here in town if people troubled with corns will follow the simple advice of this Cincinnati authority, who claims that a few drops of a drug called freezone when applied to a tender, aching corn or hardened callus stops soreness at once, and soon the corn or callus dries up and lifts right off without pain.

He says freezone dries immediately and never inflames or even irritates the surrounding skin. A small bottle of freezone will cost very little at any drug store, but will positively remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Millions of American women will welcome this announcement since the inauguration of the high heels. If your druggist doesn't have freezone, tell him to order a small bottle for you.

A RECORD HEN

"Lady Dot," a White Wyandotte pullet, leg band No. D. 3, at the Dominion Exeprimental Station, Invermere, B.C., completed her yearly record on Oct. 31, producing 325 eggs during the preceding 365 days. She was hatched on March 25, 1920, and commenced to lay in October. She was placed in a permanent laying house and trap-nested from November 1st. The following is her monthly egg production for the year:

November	27
December	27
January	27
February	27
March	29
April	25
May	27
June	29
July	29
August	31
September	30
October	17
Total	325

During the four winter months "Lady Dot" produced 108 eggs, which is more than many pullets do in a year. Commencing on May 18, and continuing until Oct. 17, a period of 153 days, she produced 150 eggs. "Lady Dot" did not go broody during the year, but commenced to moult on Oct. 11, and quit laying on the 17th. We have not a trap-nest record of her eggs prior to November 1st, 1920, otherwise her yearly record would have been more. As an individual she is, if anything, small for the breed but she is the most active bird in the flock.

All stock is trap-nested at the Experimenal Station, and from our best layers we make up our breeding pens for the coming year. These are nested with males whose dams have also been high producers. In season we try as far as possible to supply the demand for cockerels and hatching eggs.

If you have not the latest bulletins and circulars, or if you require any information or advice, write R. G. Newton, Supt. Experimental Station, Invermere, B.C.

DR. BONNELL AT THE GRAND

Dr. Bonnell, Government condidate made his campaign debut before the home audience last night, when he spoke for over an hour and a half, presenting earnestly and intelligently the policies of the National Liberal Conservative Party under the leadership of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

The Doctor at the outset said he desired to contradict the erraneous rumors and statements spread broadcast that he and his party were responsible for the third candidate in this constituency at this time. Dr. Bonnell positively denied this allegation and declared that until Wednesday, Nov. 30, he had never seen Scott MacDonald nor had he known of him until he heard his name after the Labor nominating convention. He added that this candidate called himself Farmer-Labor representative — Farmer first—but up to the time he was speaking he had never heard the name of one delegate to that convention, so whether farmers or labor predominated he did not know.

He referred to the Oriental question, to which M. A. Macdonald, when stumping in behalf of the Liberal candidate, had devoted so much time. In discussing this Mr. Macdonald, the Doctor said, had been very unfair. To no one, said Dr. Bonnell, will I take a back seat on the stand of a total exclusion of Orientals from this country. The unfairness of M. A. Macdonald's allusion to this was that when the Anglo-Japanese Alliance was entered into in 1904, when the Liberal government was in power at Ottawa, the Imperial government sent a confidential text of that treaty requesting that the Canadian government make suggestions to revise it in accordance with the interests of this country. New Zealand and Australia received similar requests. The answers from these colonies had been such that since that time not a Jap had been allowed to land on their shores. Canada, by the answer of its government that the alliance was all right as it stood, was responsible for the present deplorable condition that existed right here in this province. Premier Meighen at the Imperial conference urged the abrogation of the alliance. McKenzie King, the leader of the Liberal party, when questioned as to his stand on this question, Dr. Bonnell said, was that "This is not the time to disucss the question."

The opponents of the government are bewailing and decrying the administration's railway policy. The Canadian National Railways are real live legacies bequeathed by the Laurier regime. Under proper business management these are improving but while the Liberals are so vehement in their criticisms of this and other government policies, they do not advance one constructive policy. Every idea emanating from their leaders and supporters is a destructive one.

The Doctor then devoted some time to Mr. Beattie's attacks upon himself. He said from reports of Mr. Beattie's utterances, platform and private, that if his government were elected to power the constituents would receive much greater consideration and benefits than Bonnell had effected. Public appointments and construction of public works would go to his supporters. Dr. Bonnell said all this sounded very nice but he would not advocate the undertaking of constructing buildings or other public works in his or any constituency until the returned men and their dependents had been amply provided for. If the electors wanted a representative who would defeat that deserving cause by neglecting to fight for the rights of those who had given their all in time of dire necessity, he did not want their vote. Send a man like Beattie, who wants to spend money recklessly for the sole purpose of coming back at the time of the next election and telling you about it.

Continuing as to Mr. Beattie's lack of knowledge of public affairs, the Doctor cited a statement reported to him as having been made from the platform at Flagstone. The statement credited to Mr. Beattie was that had his government had anything to do with building the Grand Trunk Pacific and Canadian Northern, they never would have been constructed to parallel each other. Everyone knew these roads were built under the Laurier regime and it was exasperating to learn that the Liberal candidate was so totally ignorant of real historic facts. All doubt as to Mr. Beattie's having made this statement had been dispelled when Dr. Bonnell, when addressing a meeting recently at Elko, had noticed R. J. Nolan in the audience. In response to inquiry Mr. Nolan had acknowledged being present at Mr. Beattie's meeting at Flagstone. The Doctor had asked him to make open denial if his report of Mr. Beattie's remarks were not true or substantially true in this regard, but so far Mr. Nolan has remained silent.

Referring to Scott MacDonald, the speaker said this candidate did have the courage to read the platform upon which he sought election, but this was not the case with the Liberal candidate. Dealing with the plank in the platform of the Farmer-Labor candidate which advocates an eight-hour work day, the Doctor criticized this as an anomaly and on that principle the farmer movement and the labor movement were diametrically opposed. Another paint in this platform which the Doctor attacked was that which would restrict immigration for three years except farm laborers. Would not a better policy be to encourage healthy immigration and increase the population of the country?

The government had undertaken a better housing scheme and this would be proceeded with. The only objection voiced against this scheme had been that municipalities were allowed to direct matters. The returned soldiers desired it should be administered by the Re-establishment or Land Settlement Board and this the government was willing to do.

Taking up the tariff question, the Doctor said Mr. Beattie would tell the electors he was no more a free-trader than Bonnell. This gentleman had told the people in 1917 that he was in favor of conscription but nevertheless he had been the official standard-bearer of the party that was fighting conscription tooth and nail. "The Leader of the Liberal party today, Hon. McKenzie King, did anyone ever hear of him in Canada the first year of the war?" said Dr. Bonnell. "He went over to the United States to do it, I think—Wall Street. Nobody expected him to shoulder a musket and go to France, but they had the right to expect, as a man who had always had the ambition to succeed the Rt. Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that he would have at least played the part of a great statesman when Canada was fighting with her back to the wall. The part he played was to come back to Canada in 1917 to fight conscription and endeavor to make this government go back on its solemn pledge to the empire that it would send over the necessary relief due from it."

The tariff policies of the National-Liberal Conservative party and that of the Liberal party were analyzed and compared by the speaker. Our present industrial progress had been built up through the protective tariff but with the advent of free trade industrial activities in Canada would be reduced to naught. Our factories would be forced to close down and 700,000 Canadian workingmen obliged to seek fields of employment elsewhere. On the other hand, based upup a sound fiscal policy such as the government under the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen advanced, industrial life in Canada would be given an impetus. Instead of hearing talk about unemployment the industries of Canada could provide jobs for three times the number of men out of jobs today. As an illustration of what transpires when the tariff barrier is lowered, Dr. Bonnell referred to the manufacture of binder twine in Canada. In 1896 there were some 23 factores producing this commodity. At that time it was being marketed for 7c per lb. At the instance of certain parties the government had placed binder twine on the free list. By 1914, nineteen of the original 23 factories had gone into liquidation, three had burned up, while the remainder had been barely able to eke out an existence. The American maunfacturers had been given free access to this market and as soon as competition stopped through the wrecking of the Canadian manufacturers and they gained the monopoly, the price had gone up so that in 1914 it was 21c per lb., while today it cost farmers in this riding 33c. Another example of what protection will do was that of the tinplate industry in the United States. When the American government placed a duty on manufacturers of tin it totally excluded those articles from Wales, where the U.S. had previously obtained the major portion of their supply. Innumerable other comparisons could also be presented.

This government had been accused of extravagance and the Liberals gleefully pointed to the amount of the national debt as verification of this. The Doctor said in our own province when the Liberal party took office the national debt was some seventeen millions; it was now $48,000 000 nearly three times what it was when they began to administer the provincial affairs. The Dominion National Debt in 1914 was $333,000,000; it was now $2,333,000,000; but the two billions by which it was increased was identically equal to the amount expended for war purposes. The net national debt remained the same despite the fact that costs of administration had increased tremendously—the salaries of civil servants alone accounting for an added annual expenditure of $9,000,000.

The Vancouver Sun was quoted — this article was before the Sun had been read out of the party as a bunch of grafters—to the effect that an organization meeting would be held in Vancouver and that in the event of a change of government in the federal house, among other things some 3000 Liberal appointments for federal positions in this province were points of interest. That was the kind of "pap" the Liberals were handing out, despite the truth of the situation in respect to the appointment of all civil servants being governed by a non-partisan commission, and through this body alone. The Civil Service Commission advertised vacancies and received applications therefor. These appointments were competitive in that the ability of the applicant regardless of political stripe was the predominating factor. If a private member, or even a minister of the Crown, seeking his own confidential secretary, recommended any particular person, that would be deadly to the particular applicant mentioned. The Commission would forthwith reject such recommendation as an attempt to promote patronage. Virtually the same procedure applied in connection with contracts for public works; they were now awarded to the lowest bidder irrespective of political inclinations.

Dr. Bonnell produced a communication he had received which was more or less a bitter attack upon the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. "The work of the Royal Northwest Mounted Police has been recorded in the history of Canada and what they have accomplished in the west has brought enconiums that today there is no more manly uniform worn, and 99 times out of every 100 the man wearing that uniform is a manly man." (Applause). "That is the kind of rotten stuff sent out to try and influence your vote," heatedly said the Doctor. "What kind of material do they think people are made of when they appeal to you with mis-statements such as this and that published by the Cranbrook Courier in this form —23 unemployed men, the best part returned soldiers, arrested at Fernie by the Mounted Police." The reference to the 23 men was an incident where on complaint of a C.P.R. train crew, 23 men stealing sides were arrested here, of whom six were returned men for whom jobs had been secured, while fourteen of the 23 were not British subjects, who drifted in here from a foreign country. They had been taken into custody and were now awaiting deportation.

The Liberals and other opponents of the government had raised a hue and cry that wealth had not been conscripted. Reference was made to the business profits tax whereby through a graduated scale covering all profits over 7 per cent, a substantial proportion had been taken over by the government.

In conclusion the Doctor appealed to the women as well as the male voters to earnestly consider the platforms for which the respective candidates stood, and having satisfied themselves which was the better one for the country as a whole to mark their ballot accordingly. Forget that they knew the candidates personally but exercise their franchise in the common interest of further prosperity and progress for Canada.

WOODNORTH INQUEST

The inquest touching the death of John Woodnorth, who was instantly killed last Friday afternoon at the mouth of No. 2 mine, Coal Creek, was held on Monday evening last before Coroner Duthie. Carmichael Nay, overman of the mine, was an eyewitness to the accident. He saw Woodnorth when he emerged from the mine and immediately following him a trip of loads. Scenting danger from the apparent fact that Woodnorth did not hear the oncoming trip, he had shouted a warning to him. Deceased upon being warned seemed to become confused or possibly thought that the usual practice in handling these cars would be followed, namely, that they would stop immediately the first car came out of the tunnel mouth and did not at once jump to the side. McNay then went to his assistance and just as he grabbed for the man to pull him clear he was caught by the foot and the trip caught him. McNay still endeavored to check the forward movement of the cars and not knowing at the time they were runaway cars signalled frantically for the motorman to stop. Ordinarily the air locomotive engineer while at the inside end of the trip could plainly see and hear signals of this kind. The cars did not stop until Woodnorth had been dragged underneath for some 40 feet. Life was extinct when he was released.

Examined as to the possibility of future accidents of this nature, where miners have to travel in and out via the main haulage roadway, Overman McNay said it would necessitate driving a new tunnel some 3500 feet to provide a travelling way, but that the practice is that the men shall wait inside until after the motor has left with the last trip before the shift comes off duty. A red light is placed on the first car of the trip and they are shoved outward. If by chance men are in the haulage way they are supposed to step into man-holes already provided and allow the trip to pass. Despite these regulations more or less frequently men in their haste to get out early will at their own risk take chances of beating out ahead of the trip.

Motorman Herbert Lanfear testified that the fatal trip was no different from the ordinary. He had at no time been travelling at a high speed nor had he jerked up the trip to check it. He had not been aware until coming to the mouth of the mine that seven cars had run away. The snapping of the stationary pin, which holds a three link coupling permanently on one end of the car, was the cause of these cars running away. These pins are made from 1¼ in. Swedish iron and have breaking strain of about 19 tons. The dead weight of the seven cars would be about four tons, while the rolling stress would not be nearly so great. All these coupings had been inspected before the trip left the inside and the cars securely fastened together. The broken pin, however, was said to show evidence of crystalization.

The verdict of the jury was that death was caused through the accidental runaway of a trip of cars, but an important rider was added to this recommending that an investigation be held by the proper authorities whereby ways and means might be devised for the better protection of the men going in and coming out of No. 2 mine.

The jury was composed of John Wood, Jr., foreman; Chas. Ferriman, W. J. Watmaugh, G. B. Fairbairn, G. Taynton and J. H. Wood.

PUBLIS MUST PREPARE MAIL MATTER CAREFULLY

With the Christmas season at hand bringing immense quantities of mail to be dealt with, it will be necessary that the public adopt more careful methods in the preparation of its mail matter, if the daily average of misdirected mail is not to amount to an overwhelming figure. In this connection the following points to be observed are pointed out:

Address plainly and fully.
Place name and address of sender on all mail matter.
Carefully pack and wrap all articles sent by parcel post, but do not seal parcels as sealed parcels are subject to letter rate of postage.
Mail Christmas parcels early.

Miss Jessie Punch, late of Fernie, died in Vancouver, following an operation, on Sunday, Nov. 27.

8-HOUR DAY BILL BEATEN

VICTORIA, Nov. 25.—The bill to limit the hours of labor to eight in any one day in certain industries in British Columbia, as introduced by Major R. J. Burde, Independent member for Alberni, was defeated in the Legislature Thursday afternoon by a vote of 24 to 15.

David Whiteside, member for New Westminster, who moved the adjournment of the debate last Thursday, while sympathizing with labor, did not think it expendient to pass the bill at the present time. He expressed the opinion that many Orientals were employed in the lumber mills of British Columbia, where they might be replaced by white men, and he thought the business men should waken up to their responsibilities in this matter.

The attorney-general objected very strenuously to the statements of business men that provincial legislation had interfered with their business.

Against—Oliver, Farris, King, K.C. Macdonald, Yorkston, Paterson, Pattullo, Hart, Barrow, Whiteside, Bowser, Ramsay, Hunter, W.A. McKenzie, Lister, Pooley, Clearihue, A. McDonald, Catherwood and Pearson.

After the vote on Maj. Burde's bill was taken, the House disposed of similar measures, passed last session, to become effective when the other provinces of Canada acted in a similar manner.

There was a determined stand upon the part of the Labor and Independent members of the House to have an expression of opinion from the Legislature regarding their views on similar measures passed last year. These included acts relating to the employment of women at night, maternity protection and the employment of children.

At the last meeting of the Legislature these acts were passed, with the understanding that they would not become law until the other provinces acted accordingly. In each case a division was taken and the measure defeated.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith was not present, the Speaker explaining that she was ill, having paired with Mr. Schofield. Major Burde, the sponser of the eight-hour bill, wondered why the "lady member for the Islands was also absent."

Mr. Whiteside said he had interviewed a large number of employers during the week-end in New Westminster, and he had come to the conclusion that the passing of the act at the present time would mean the curtailment of production. Increased costs of operation and the export tariffs were sufficient to hold off the passage of the act.

He inferred that British Columbia played but a small part in the trade of the world, and therefore the export trade which the province possessed must be carefully fostered. He referred particularly to the export trade in pulp and paper, and said that nothing should be done which would curtail exports in that direction.

The New Westminster member was not altogether in favor of showing partiality to white labor. He instanced cases where mills had lost large sums during the past year through inefficient labor, and only two plants out of thirteen had shown a profit.

John McRae, Conservative member for Yale, said that as an employer he had never worked his men more than eight hours per day. He had always been willing to put his hand in his pocket and share up with his employees.

F. A. Pauline, Liberal member for Saanich, opposed the bill on the ground that sufficient time had not elapsed since last session to see whether or not the other sections of Canada passed similar legislation. Maj. Burde said if they waited that long the act would be passed on the other side of the Jordan.

The next speaker was the minister of labor, Hon. J. W. deB. Farris, who explained that as he represented a large constituency like Vancouver it was difficult for him to oppose the bill. He did not oppose the principle of the measure, but he thought it advisable to wait until the rest of Canada was in accord.

The minister explained that British Columbia had been the first of the provinces to follow the suggestions of the Versailles conference with regard to universal eight-hour legislation. If this province led the way, he added, it was no reason that it should be handicapped. When the rest of Canada passed an eight-hour bill it would be found that British Columbia would be in line.

Hon. Mr. Farris claimed that the passage of the eight-hour law would dislocate business at the present time. He asserted that federal politics were involved in the issue and it would be well to wait until such time as national conditions were stabilized. He said he had always been a free-trader.

Tom Uphill, Labor member for Fernie, declared that the government and opposition members always lined up together on an issue such as this is as they are in league with the large corporations.

R. H. Neelands, Labor member for South Vancouver, said that members acted "like a bunch of typical employers receiving a labor delegation." He added, that although Washington had an eight-hour day, the state was not handicapped in the lumber market.

THE LEAGUE MUST STAY

There is no disposition among the convenanting states to scrap the League of Nations in favor of any vague transitory association that President Harding may propose. Under the lead of one president the nations formed a league which the United States Senate afterwards rejected. They are not likely to tempt that fate again, unless they are offered something more promising than the suggested association. The Hague tribunal of international justice has already been connected with the League of Nations. The League is doing business. As Mr. Balfour says it has already done good service. It can exist in harmony with Washington conferences though if the United States had joined the League a Washington conference would have been unnecessary. The members of the League are not troubled with a divided will. They do not have to fight out at home the question how they can busy themselves in the promotion of peace and justice among the nations and at the same time remain isolated.

A vacant stare from the coal bin does not add to the enjoyment of these frosty November mornings.

The political campaign may be warming up in other parts of the Dominion but it is a frost in the Yukon.

Marshal Foch is said to have been impressed with the youthful appearance of American crowds. They have a "freshness" all their own.

Austria celebrated the third anniversary of the establishment of a republic last week. Owing to unavoidably detained the members of the Hapsburg family were unable to be present.

Grass must be growing again on the front lawn of President Harding's Ohio home, where Republican hosts trod a few months ago. At the recent municipal election Marion went Democratic.

-o-

After an Alberta candidate had delivered a red hot speech the hall caught fire and was completely destroyed. Some blame the speaker, others an overheated stove.

-o-

There is one town in the Dominion where campaign meetings are banned. On account of an outbreak of smallpox in Yorkton, Sask., all public meetings are prohibited.

Ontario and Manitoba are experimenting with beaver farming, an industrious industry that has been known to make the fur fly in other parts of the Dominion.

-o-

Charged with spending too much of their time attending late night dances Winnipeg girls who live in flats explain that their home quarters are so cold that they have to take the exercise to keep from freezing.

Just as a campaign speaker in Quebec was showing how the political chickens of the opposition party were coming home to roost the defunct body of an old hen was thrown through the window.

-o-

A campaign meeting in Saskatchewan was stampeded when the weight of snow caved in the roof of the hall. The incident is regarded as an omen of what will happen the candidate on December 6.

-o-

In a few days the delegates to the Washington conference will gather around another board—the Thanksgiving table. After a feast of reason a feed of turkey with cranberry sauce mince and pumpkin pie ought to make for peace and harmony.

-o-

As a protest against the alleged "coffin trust" and elaborate and expensive funerals the members of a U. F. A. local have adopted a resolution to be buried on their own farms in home-made wooden boxes. A clause to this effect will be inserted in their wills.

-o-

The Washington conference lacks many of the spectacular features of the national party conventions. So far no "cheer leader" has started an hour and forty minute hurrah. and Mr. Balfour and Premier Briand have refrained from leading their following in a banner-waving "snake dance" around the hall.

BEATS ANYTHING HE'S EVER SEEN

Winnipeg Man Says The Way Tanlac Restored Him Was The Biggest Surprise of His Life.

"The way Tanlac has helped me is one of the greatest surprises of my life," said Theo L. Baker, 405 Qu'Appelle Ave., Winnipeg, Man.

"My health was bad for two years. I had a terrible case of stomach trouble and could hardly eat and diest anything. My food hurt me so bad I often thought I just could not stand it, and nearly all the time I was in misery and distress on account of gas on my stomach which bloated me up as tight as a drum. I was nervous and restless at night, and always seemed to be tired and worn out.

"Well, I was getting pretty weak when I got Tanlac, but it wasn't long until I was feeling better. Six bottles of Tanlac have made me feel like a brand new man. My stomach is in the best of shape, nothing I eat hurts me and I've gained several pounds in weight. All my lost strength has returned, I sleep like a log and feel good all the time. Tanlac is certainly the best medicine I ever saw or heard of."

BRITISH SELF-DENIAL

The more one considers the United States schedule of armament limitation the more impressive becomes the acceptance of the programme by Great Britain. Lord Beatty, now in Canada, seems to have consented to the 5-5-3 plan. Yet he points out that Britain has been fortified and sustained by sea power, and that at any time in the late war she could have been starved in two months if she had lost command of the ocean. The United States has no such dependance on the control of the sea. She could live in comfort for years on her own products if she was entirely isolated. Her oversea domains are insignificant compared with the British Empire abroad. Yet Britain consents to abrogate her own traditional position of chief naval power and agree to naval equality with the United States. This consent could not have been given without the firm conviction that the United States will never be a hostile country.

All Moose members, their wives and families, are invited to attend the installation ceremony of the officers of the Ladies Chapter L.O.O.M., commencing at 7 p.m. on Thursday, Dec. 8. Ladies will please bring refreshments for social afterwards.

Bill Robsan's fine hand is making its appearance in his usual unscrupulous way through the columns of The Wedge. Rejected by the Labor element, he is now the hireling of the Beattie interests and devotes his time to thinking up some underhand method of discrediting Dr. Bonnell.

Geo. Winters at Bonnell's meeting on Thursday night, was very indignant about the appointment of Harmer to the Senate. As George is a dyed-in-the-wool Grit, we don't see why he should worry about it. Harmer was always a Liberal and was appointed at the suggestion of the late Hon. A. L. Sifton, also a Grit.

James McNicholas, fire chief, is back from Kamloops, where he accompanied one of his men, who was ill, to the sanitorium. During his stay in Kamloops, the Chief saw Sam Marks and several other old timers from Fernie, at the Old Man's Home, all of whom wished to be remembered to Fernie friends.

Dr. Bonnell has had a strenuous week of campaign. On Monday he spoke at Cranbrook, on Tuesday at Jaffray, Waldo, Baynes and Elko; on Wednesday at Natal; and last night in Fernie. Coming home from Elko on Tuesday night his car became stalled and he was compelled to walk eight or nine miles through a foot of slush and snow.

Spalding's Studio is making a splendid showing of enlarged views of our local scenery and some main line beauty spots, which can be had framed or unframed. The people of Fernie can do a lot towards boosting our town by sending these away as Christmas Gifts. They are the finest pictures ever put on sale in Fernie without a doubt.

BRONCHIAL ASTHMA

MRS. PENNINGTON

NEW ROCKLAND, P.Q.

"In 1919, I was taken with Bronchial Asthma and no one knows what I suffered with it during the winter. I began having Choking Spells—gasping for breath and could not speak. I would have one of these bad spells in the evening, one during the night, and one in the morning. The doctor said he could do nothing for me.

"In the spring of 1920, I started taking "Fruit-a-tives" and in a few days, the choking spells stopped, and I have had none since May 7th, 1920. I have so wanted to tell other sufferers who have the same trouble about "Fruit-a-tives" for I know how they must suffer.

Some thought the Asthma would come back on me as winter came on but it has not, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives" Mrs. J. M. PENNINGTON.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

LOSS OF PROTECTION WOULD BE FATAL TO KOOTENAY

Everyone in Kootenay depends, directly or indirectly, upon the maintenance and development of the three great basic industries—mining, lumbering and agriculture. Upon these industries are founded all other industries and all business in the two ridings.

If these industries were destroyed through the carrying into effect of proposals for the reduction, and in some cases, abolition of the tariff, everyone in Kootenay would suffer.

No matter what the prairies may want, no matter what class candidates of various groups may propose, the tariff is a vital fact which strikes home to everyone of us who makes a living in the district and desires to remain here.

There is only one party in the Dominion election whose policy calls for the maintenance of the policy of protection, and the extension of that policy where necessary to develop new industries. That is the Meighen government party, whose candidate in East Kootenay is Dr. Bonnell and in West Kootenay, Dr. W. O. Rose. —Nelson News

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all our many friends for their expressions of sympathy; also all who sent flowers; and Dr. Garner for his kindness, during our sad bereavement.

NEW CHILD'S ENDOWMENT

Under plan "B" if the parent dies, premiums cease, and the Policy becomes paid up for the full sum assured, payable at the end of the Endowment term if the child is then living. The parent or guardian is the Assured and the child is referred to as the Endowed. The Endowed is therefore protected for the full amount of the Endowment whether the assured lives or dies.

If the Endowed dies during the term leaving the Assured surviving, the Company will return all premiums with compound interest at three and a half per cent per annum; and the Policy then terminates. If, however, the Endowed survives the Assured but dies during the Endowment term, the Policy will be payable at maturity to the estate of the Assured.

The Policy is issued with profits and dividends may be taken on any of the regular plans.—See Local Agent for Terms.

The G.W.V.A. Band will be out soliciting financial support on Dec. 26. It is to be hoped the residents will render due appreciation for services given during the summer months.

Theodore Stokely, of Michel, locally known as "Huckleberry Finn," fell from a sleigh in Natal last Saturday and broke his leg. On Sept. 8 he had his leg fractured in No. 3 mine. It was successfully treated by Dr. Graham. Stokely is now an inmate of Dr. Weldon's nursing home in Natal.

Old friends at Hosmer and Fernie will learn with regret of the death of Beattie Mills at Trail on Wednesday of last week from an attack of pneumonia. Mr. Mills left Hosmer about eight years ago and has been one of the leading citizens of Trail ever since. He was prominent in sporting circles and a pillar in the Presbyterian church. Deceased leaves a widow and four children, besides his parents and sister, all residents of Trail.

A. I. Fisher, J. G. Turgeon and R. E. Beattie have been travelling the East Kootenay field during the past week. A. I. came in from the west last evening but did not put in an appearance at Dr. Bonnell's meeting. The other two went on to Michel. Mr. Turgeon is being advertised in Fernie as the Hon. Ex-Attorney General for Saskatchewan. We don't know whether this is a mistake or whether he is trying to steal the honors conferred upon his brother, who is now a supreme court judge. J. G. Turgeon is only a defeated member of the late Alberta legislature.

The B.C. Legislature passed an Act for the testing of eyes, demanding a specified course of study and a provincial examination, which gives the degree of registered optometrist. The examination took place Nov. 16 and 17. Cyril Glover took this course and passed the examination with honors, and is the only registered optician in East and West Kootenay. A. C. Liphardt is fitting up an up to date optical parlor, having all the latest instruments for testing of eyes and also installing a complete grinding outfit, with Mr. Glover in charge. He will be in a position to give the people of Fernie and district the best of satisfaction in the testing of sight and all broken lenses will be duplicated and ground on the premises.

On account of election day on Tuesday, the 6th, the Ladies Benevolent Society will postpone their annual meeting until Tuesday, the 13th, which will be held at the home of Mrs. Fisher at 3.30 p.m.

The funeral of the late John Woodnorth, of West Fernie, who was killed at Coal Creek on Friday last, took place on Tuesday from the United Church and was very largely attended.

The annual Christmas Tree for the children of members of the G.W.V.A. and Ladies Auxiliary will be held on Monday, Dec. 26, in the Hawthorne Hall, from 5 p.m. Arrangements are under way for a social evening afterward.

One of the kiddies in the public school pulled a good one the other day. The question was asked: What city is the capital of Japan. The answer came promptly: Tokio. The next question was: Who is the prime minister? No answer forthcoming, the teacher prompting suggested that he had recently been stabbed in the back. Little Douglas Lowe was on his feet in a minute shouting, "Please, teacher, Billy Corrigan."

Slimy "Bill," cartoonist and general mud-slinger for Beattie, is working over time these days in an effort to spread enough filth to besmirch Dr. Bonnell. The Liberals must have settled that $600 bill he had against them for his dirty work in the 1916 election. A party that stoops to the level of hiring such creatures must be desperate indeed.

WINTER EGG PRODUCTION

If satisfactory profits are to be obtained from the keeping of hens, it is necessary that eggs be produced during the season of scarcity and high prices.

Eggs laid in November and December will usually fetch from two to three times the price of eggs laid in April and May. Poultrymen should, therefore, put forth every effort towards the production of Winter eggs. Success depends, very largely, upon the care and feed the flock is given. There are other feeds besides grain and water commonly fed that are essential if heavy Winter production is to be expected. The most important of these are the green feeds and the animal feeds, and it cannot be too strongly emphasized that these are absolutely necessary to high production. Green feed may be supplied in the form of mangels, or vegetable parings, while animal feed may be given in the form of milk, green cut bones beef scraps or digestive tankage.

Morning, a light feed of scratch grain scattered in the litter. Noon a moist mash may be given in which is mixed table scraps or green cut bone. Night, A full feed of scratch grain.

In addition to the forementioned a constant supply of grit oyster shell, charcoal and fresh water should be kept before the flock at all times also a dry mash. This mash may be made up of different ingredients, but one that will give good results is bran, middlings, corn meal, ground oats and meat meal equal parts. If milk is available or green cut bone is being used, the percentage of meat meal may be reduced. Feed the whole grain sparingly so as to get the flock to consume a large proportion of mash, as it is always noticeable that the consumption of mash is greater when production is at its highest.—Experimental Farm Notes.

P. G. E. CONSULTATION

It is a good idea for the Provincial Government to take counsel with railway authorities of wide reputation and experience in respect to the Pacific Great Eastern, which has become a rather large problem for this province. There is no benefit in pointing out that this consultation was due a long time ago. The past cannot be recalled. The question is whether in the existing circumstances there is any way out except to go on adding to a burden of debt already hard to carry, with the prospect of an additional burden of operating expenses. It was never the intention of the province to own and operate this railway as an isolated enterprise. It was intended to belong to one of the larger systems, and if the railway is ever worked to full advantage it must be in some such relation.

The federal government is already assailed by both oppositions because it has taken over railways in distress in which the Dominion had large financial investments. That does not encourage further undertakings of the kind in respect to railways which the Dominion has not guaranteed. But it will be worth while to hear what railway authortities have to say about the matter. The discussion would include the Peace River country, toward which the provincial railway is directed. The wealth of that district is now recognized and the federal ownership of a large part of the area is part of the case. We shall probably know a good deal more in a year or two than we do now about the resources of that part of the province. But enough is known to give some basis for the discussion of means of access.—Province.

THE HORSE

By Walt Mason

Sometimes when viewing motor cars, and marking how they slay my friends, I sadly say, "I'll thank my stars if this wild drama ever ends! 'Twould be a blessed thing, indeed, if men these motors would eschew, and go back to the faithful steed that hauled our fathers fro and to." And then dead horses I recall, the grand old steeds I used to drive; and, counting up their failings all, I'm rather glad they don't survive. Old Dobbin sleeps where clinging vines their soft and slumbrous shade produce; he'd get his tail across the lines, and then he'd kick the dashboard loose. For good old dappled Prince I sigh, his pedigree was long and rich; at every little thing he'd shy, and dump the buggy in the ditch. And Baro, the Arab, lies beneath a granite boulder, gray and big; she'd get the bit firm in her teeth, and run away, and smash the rig. And faithful Nemo used to walk along the highway, white and straight; and he would hump himself and balk if I'd suggest a smarter gait. And when I think of all the nags I used to drive in other days, the spavined plugs, the equine hags, the blacks, the chestnuts and the bays; I think perhaps I am at fault to wish them back upon the scene, and to my flivver's seat I vault, and burn three quarts of gasoline.

LOCOMOTIVE OF THE NORTH

By ROBERT HODGES

The northern dog is generally considered the horse of the north country Although much depended on in the northern Canadian wilderness, where they are of great use, they are one of the least-known animals which the overage person meets with. Without them transportation would be much retarded in the Arctic and semi-Arctic regions, where they are practically the only form of travel, outside of human locomotion, during the winter months, when snow is in abundance.

Northern dogs are usually considered as huskies. All dogs of the north are so-called, but it stands to reason that one species cannot include such a wide variety as hounds, Newfoundlands, collies and everything else.

The genuine husky dog comes from the Mackenzie River section and is named Malamute after a tribe of Indians living near the mouth of the river. Lest I should make a scientific error, I shall explain the Indian word. The Standard Dictionary spells it "Malemuit," and give Malemute as an alternative spelling or variant. It has also been spelled in the following ways by different writers: Mahlemoot, Mahlemutes, Mahlemuts, Malegmjuti, Maleigmjuten, Malemioutte, Malemukes, Malemut, Malemutes, Maliegmut, Malimuit, Malimuten, Malimyut, Mamelut. German writers used the spelling ending in "en." This name is applied to all dogs originating in this section, whether or not they are huskies.

These dogs are very large, savage, and rough, the strain being kept up by breeding with the large northern wolf. The male dogs are from around the Yukon River, at least two thousand miles distant from the huskies named after the Indian tribe of Malemute.

Eskimo dogs are about half the size of the husky, rather stocky in build and slightly heavier than the English pointer. They have oblique eyes, elongated muzzle and a long, bushy tail, which is frequently curved tightly over the back, which gives them a wolfish and sneaky appearance. The color is usually a deep dun, obscurely barred and patched with a darker color. These dogs have, to some extent, become mixed in recent years.

The husky is a cross between a dog and a wolf. This cross may be a half-breed wolf, or may have only a trace of the wolf blood. Usually they have very much the appearance of a wolf, even if they are nearly all dog. The weight and color varies a great deal according to the breed of dog that is introduced. Grey is, however, the predominating color—from a light to a dark grey. The weight of the ordinary dog is from seventy to eighty pounds when in good working condition.

Compared to other animals of their size there is nothing to equal them in strength. Jack London, in one of his books on the north, relates of a dog moving a sleigh weighing over 1,200 pounds—a fair load for a horse. This occured during the gold rush of 1898. Again, thirteen huskies drew a mounted police whale-boat weighing over 5,500 pounds with the sleigh, across a fairly rough country, a distance of four miles, without stopping. Estimate the weights drawn with the weights of the dogs and then try and get something to compare with it.

These dogs have a mean disposition, and this is largely accounted for by the treatment they receive. This is especially true of dogs belonging to the Indians. It has been said that an indian can ride a horse a hundred miles after a white man has left it for all in, and this is equally true of the dog. They try to get the greatest amount of work out of the animal on the smallest amount of food possible. The white man invariably treats his dogs much better. I have seen them knocked down with a huge club on the slightest provocation; the Indian seems to consider it the proper thing to do.

During the winter months, which in the north is from October to April, they are constantly in service, making long, hard trips. When Summer comes they are turned loose to shift for themselves, kicked around and generally much abused. It is then no wonder that they are of a theiving disposition; all wild life has to live and these dogs believe in taking what they want. Their thieving nature, combined with their highly developed cunning hereditary from generations of wolfish ancestors, makes it necesseary to keep everything of an edible nature out of their reach; they will steal anything that has the slightest odor of food, including an old, greasy dish-rag.

When working they are fed once a day usually after supper, and are then given a place to lie down. They are then ready and contented for the next day's work. The allowance for the day is usually a pound of corn meal and one-quarter pound of tallow made into a mush. Sometimes they are fed on fish, depending on what food happens to be most plentiful.

These dogs like people, have different dispositions. Some are very easy to work while others are lazy. A friend of the writer's owned the fastest dog team for miles around his district. They were black and white, part husky and part wolf, and came from Lake Winnipeg. While they were very affectionate and would guard children as well as any watch dog they were not to be trusted around stock. Having been raised in the wilds, the only large animals they had ever seen were wild so they were quite ready to tackle domesticated stock.

As a rule they are used only during the winter months, but on a trip into the north some time ago I was fortunate enough to secure a photo of a novel use for them during the Summer months. Six dogs were hitched to a one-horse plow, and considering that the land had never previously been worked and consequently was very hard, the results they accomplished was wonderful.

A dog harness is very simple, consisting of a collar, a pair of traces attached to the collar, and an adjustable band, similar to a horse's belly-band, which goes around the body to hold up the traces. The traces of the dog nearest the sled are fastened to the sled, and those of the next dog are fastened to the one immediately behind and so on, right through. A breast collar is sometimes used, but the dogs can pull a bigger load easier when real collars are used. When much travelling is done on the ice or hard, crusted snow, the dogs are often shod with moccasins of moose, deer ,or caribou hide to keep the feet from becoming sore. On trap lines where trails are usually soft, flat bottom sleds are used and for these the trails must be broken with snowshoes. The Indians, on their trap lines usually break out the trail the previous day or have the squaws walk ahead of the sled and break trail.

Driving is done by the voice, the lead dog being trained for this. Instead of urging this team with the civilized exclamation of "Get up, Dobbin," as one speaks to a horse, the driver of a dog team exclaims: "Mush Damn You; Mush Oma." It is more emphatic whether or not it is efficacious.

And these faithful servants of the north are appreciated to the extent of being worked to death. By the Eskimos they are often eaten. If they are lazy and consequently fat they are voted "just excellent," while if they are thin they are "just dogs."—Toronto World.

AN UNKNOWN WARRIOR

The suggestion originally advanced by the Halifax Herald that Canada, on her own national behalf, just as Britain has done for the Empire, should bury an unknown warrior with fitting ceremonies on Canadian soil, has been adopted by the Government.

This method of perpetuating the memory of the sacrifice of the war will elicit the sympathy of all who fought and survived, of all who gave their dear ones to the embrace of the battlefields, and of every red-blooded Canadian who wants to see his country's honor symbolized in a manner which cannot fail to appeal to the popular imagination. We have no Westminster Abbey, but where Canada's Unknown Soldier will lie buried will be our Valhalla, will be consecrated ground, and a reminder to future generations of patriotic devotion in a time of crisis. The ceremonies which Britain, France and the United States have performed in turn are symbolical of the apotheosis of courage and sacrifice. These are national attributes which Canada does well to build some monument to so that it may remain an inspiration to the ages yet to come.—Colonist.

THE COLONY SCHEME

The future welfare of men suffering from pulmonary troubles developed while serving with the Canadian forces presents a problem which must be dealt with in such a manner that all parts of Canada will be served to the fullest possible extent. It can only be solved by men who have made the subject of tubercular and allied diseases a study. It is impossible to deal parochially or even provincially with a problem of national moment and anything done in one province must be possible in other provinces.

A movement which has been on foot in Kamloops for some years looking to the establishment of a colony for tubercular patients who no longer require treatment in a sanatoria is a movement in the right direction but such a movement should not be allowed to block any move which has for its object the wellbeing of men who are suffering from disabilities incurred overseas. — Kamloops Sentinel.

What Is To Be Canada's Destiny?

Shall it be that through the destruction of the Tariff as proposed by both Crerar and King, the development of Canada is to come under the domination of the United States, to be followed by gradual financial domination and as a consequence, political domination?

—OR—

Is Canada's destiny to be that of a great free nation within the British Empire group of Nations, developing her boundless resources of mine, river, water power, forest, and cultivating her millions upon millions of acres of arable land? Is her development to surpass that of any other nation?

Shall her manufacturing industries develop her minerals and raw materials into implements and goods for the benefit and comfort of her people and for foreign trade?

Shall she become a self-contained nation within the Empire, her great railways interchanging, the products of factory and farm among her own people, and her ships sailing every sea?

Shall she maintain her integrity within the Empire and protect her farms and factories against unfair competition from foreign countries?

IF THIS IS TO BE CANADA'S DESTINY THEN CANADA NEEDS MEIGHEN.

On December 6th, Canada should once again protect her farms, her factories and her workmen against the unsound theory of Free Trade, and should hold fast to her reasonable Protective Tariff, her national entity and her British connection.

On December 6th Canada should declare with no uncertain voice that she will not tolerate the false trade theories of visionaries and group leaders which tend toward her economic destruction, toward the separation of her people and the weakening of the ties that bind Canada to the British Empire.

On December 6th Canada should demonstrate unmistakably to the outside world her fixed determination to keep Canada for the Canadians.

On December 6th Canada's destiny is at stake.

HON. H. H. STEVENS LAUDE DR. BONNELL

CRANBROOK, Nov. 28.—Speaking for the first time in eastern British Columbia since his appointment as minister of trade and commerce, Hon. H. H. Stevens tonight in the Auditorium theatre, placed the major issues of the Dominion campaign before the electors of Cranbrook with such force and precision that the probable verdict of this community seemed to be clearly foreshadowed in the ringing cheers that followed his allusion to the broad guage and four square premier who is now the head of the nation's government.

Dr. Saul Bonnell, late member and present candidate, was coupled in the cheering and the earlier portion of the evening was devoted to his own riding speech.

Dealing Partly with the tariff and partly with the affairs of East Kootenay riding, J. W. Rutledge, president of the National Liberal and Conservative Association, presided and the Cranbrook orchestra provided agreeable diversion at breaks between the speeches.

Mr. Stevens, after a reference to Dr. Bonnell's unremitting work in the committees of the house, and his constant furtherance of the interests of his province, pluged at once into the discusion of what he declared was the main issue of the day, however much members of the two oppositions might now dispute it, the question of maintaining the fiscal system under which the country's present life had been built up. Whatever opposition speakers might now say, and however much they might hedge, their platforms specifically challenged protection. So those Liberals who disavowed their platform, and argued that protection was in no danger from the Liberals inasmuch as Laurier retained protection for 15 years, he pointed out that at the end of that time. Sir Wilfred departed from it, introducing reciprocity. Now again under Mackenzie King the Liberal platform pledged substantial tariff reductions and reintroduction of reciprocity.

WOULD BAR THE ORIENTAL

"Upon the subject of immigration we have reached the following conclusion: That the immigration of the Oriental into this country should, for the present, be prohibited because of the economic unrest and the condition of unemployment. Training in Canadian literature, ideals and institutions should be given to all aliens within our borders. The question of courses in Canadianization has been taken up with the Provincial Government, urging it to request the federal authorities to take action calling a conference to discuss the whole question We also urge that foreign colonies should not be permitted to grow up in our Canadian democracy."

This is but one of the features of a lengthy report submitted at the recent annual meeting of the Social Service Council of British Columbia by its Secretary, Rev. N. A. Harkness. The report. which covers the wide field of the council's activities, deals at length with the organization of local councils throughout the province, particularly on Vancouver Island, the Lower Mainland and the Okanagan.— Province.

CITY COUNCIL HOLDS SESSION

The council met in regular session last night with all members present except Ald. Corrie.

The only correspondence of material importance requiring attention was a communication from the B.C. Fire Underwriters Association, wherein they congratulated this city's showing in the matter of fire losses for the past five years. Undoubtedly this will have some favorable bearing in connection with the regrading of the insurance rates for this municipality which are being investigated at the present time. The underwriters, however, have asked for more specific details with regard to the enforcement of bylaws having as their purpose the prevention and protection from fire. One flagrant breach was mentioned in regard to the metal rubbish burners at the rear of various business places, and in fact sometimes open fires of this nature are permitted, both of which practices are very objectionable to the underwriters. They will have the assurance of the council that in future the use of all burners will be prohibited. The chief of police will accordingly instruct merchants to this effect and persistence in their use will leave the offenders open to prosecution. The council will also conform in regard to other requests or suggestions made by the underwriters and will heartily co-operate with the view to not having any increase in the insurance rates put in effect on the regrading.

The formal motions with regard to municipal elections were passed. The city clerk, A. J. Moffatt, was regularly appointed returning officer and will receive nominations for mayor, aldermen, school trustees and police commissioner on Monday, Jan. 9th, 1922, between the hours of one to three local time, and polling day if any, will be the following Thursday, Jan. 12, between the hours of 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. local time.

J. D. QUAIL CROSSES DIVIDE

The sudden death of J. D. Quail, the pioneer hardware merchant of Fernie, has cast a gloom over the whole community, where he was loved and respected by all who knew him. The sad event took place on Wednesday of this week. Deceased had been hard at work for Dr. Bonnell all election day, but about five o'clock was seized by a paralytic stroke. He went right to bed and never spoke again, passing away on the following evening about 9 o'clock.

Mr. Quail came to Fernie about 23 years ago from Macleod, and by hard work built up one of the best hardware stores in the west. He was a man of sterling integrity and worth, and his death is a distinct loss to the city. Deceased, who was 62 years of age, leaves a widow and five sons and daughters to mourn his death.

The time of the funeral has not been announced as the family are widely scattered. Wilson is attending college in Washington, George is at McGill and Mrs. Burland in Vancouver. Mrs. Quail and family have the sincere sympathy of a host of friends.

FERNIE EDUCATIONAL AND SOCIAL CLUB

The meetings of this club are increasing in interest and popularity. Owing to our inability to secure a permanent meeting place we are unable to announce the program far in advance. However, we thank the public for their indulgence and patronage and hope that they will continue to help us by their presence and talent as in the past. Remember, the meeting on Monday night next in Ingram's Hall at which Mrs. Cummings will speak on "Canadian Authors," and Mr. Watson, violinist, will play.

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—With a clear majority over the combined strength of the Conservatives and Progressives, the Liberal party, under Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, will form the new government, while the former administration will be reduced to the position of the third party in the House of Commons, a position formerly occupied by the Progressives, who now assume the place of the official opposition. The strength shown by the Liberals, especially in Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and New Brunswick is the outstanding feature of the fight, while the clean sweep in Quebec constitutes a record, even for that traditionally Liberal province.

Toronto, Dec. 7.—Ontario contributed its measure of surprise in yesterday's general election by the manner in which the province, regarded as the bulwark of the protectionist cause in the Dominion, broke away from all former traditions and elected forty-four members as against thirty-eight pledged supporters of the policy of the government.

Contrary to expectations the Liberals made greater inroads against the government's strength in Ontario than the Progressives, electing 24 members, while the Progressives elected 20. The Progressives confidently expected to elect twice that number and as their organization work was perfect they philosophically accept the verdict as an indication that in the older province of Ontario the majority of the people are not as readily disposed to adopt their principles and forsake those of the old line parties, as they are in the prairie provinces where the movement had its birth.

In practically every Ontario division where the Progressives elected their candidate, three-cornered contests occurred, enabling the Progressive to slip in by a small majority over the straight Liberal or straight Conservative candidate. There were only two exceptions, South Waterloo, where with no Liberal running, Wm. Elliott, Progressive, defeated F. S. Scott, the sitting Conservative member, and South Grey, where Miss E. G. McPhail, Progressive, defeated R. G. Ball, Conservative member, and W. Hastie, Liberal, and won the distinction of being the first woman to be elected to a seat in the Canadian Commons.

While the Liberals are well satisfied with the results their party attained in Ontario, the defeat of Fred F. Pardee by D. V. Leseuer, Conservative, in West Lambton, and Duncan Ross by Drummond, in West Middlesex, is keenly felt.

In our own East Kootenay, Dr. Bonnell, the sitting member, went down to defeat by a margin of 212 in favor of Mr. Beattie, but in his own home town and the coal towns, in which he is well known, the Doctor has every reason to be proud of the hearty support given him. He carried the coal district, comprising Fernie, West Fernie, Corbin, Michel, New Michel, Coal Creek and Morrissey by 414 majority over Beattie and 498 over the Labor candidate. He went out of Fernie District with 363 majority over his nearest opponent but a long campaign of criticism and abuse carried on by Conservatives in Cranbrook city in an endeavor to secure the nomination for a Cranbrook man, had got in its deadly work and when the election approached, while most of their leaders supported Bonnell, they could not get their friends to do so and the result was that he only received 292 votes out of 1276 in a town which has always been considered Conservative.

The campaign outside of the town of Fernie, where Wm. Robson seemed to be in charge of the Liberal dirty work, was clean and above board by all parties.

CASES IN THE COUNTY COURT

Judge Thompson held county court Thursday and Friday of this week, the most of the time being occupied in hearing a liquor appeal from Michel, where J. Ungra was convicted in the lower court, of having liquor for sale and sentenced to six months imprisonment. The appeal was not decided, His Honor taking an application by the counsel for the appellant that the Crown had not placed sufficient onus on the accused for him to go into the witness stand in his own defence.

The facts in the case as presented by the Crown were that Ungra brought in some four or five barrels of beer in his name, and at the suggestion of some four of his friends ordered four barrels to come forward in their names. He received money from each of them and in due course delivered to each a barrel of Fernie beer. When the search was made of his premises a quantity of liquor but no beer was found. The liquor was seized. Argument for defence so far submitted is that accused was merely the agent for his friends and in no way a party to a sale.

Decision will be rendered on Jan. 10, and meanwhile accused is out on $1000 bail.

The appeal of Way Kee, a celestial, under the Narcotic Drugs Act, found guilty last summer and fined $400, was allowed. This appeal was adjourned over two months ago in order that for the Crown to locate the Chinese informant, who immediately disappeared after informing the Mounted Police that opium would be found in accused's room at the Central Hotel, where he was employed as a cook. Vigorous search for this informant failed to locate him. His Honor in allowing the appeal and quashing the conviction remarked that the facts smirked very much of being a "frame-up."

CANADA'S NEW COAT OF ARMS

Every home in Canada, every Candian school boy and girl should know the new Canadian Coat of Arms. It is a most beautiful plate and should occupy a prominent place in all true Canadian homes. The people of Canada are indebited to the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal for reproducing the new Coat of Arms in all its true heraldic colors and presenting a copy, 14x17 inches, to all readers of the great paper.

The Family Herald and Weekly Star is Canada's greatest family and farm paper and is known throughout the whole Dominion. It is wonderful value and provides every member of the family with clean, wholesome, instructive reading. It is a great money saver for the farmers of Canada and repays the subscription price one hundred fold each year. Canada is proud of her big weekly. It has no superior the world over and is improving year after year. It cost only two dollars a year and each reader for 1922 will receive free a copy of the "Coat of Arms."

THIEVING MOTORISTS?

A small minority—almost a negligible one numerically, has from time to time threatened the good name of motorists at large who are decent, courteous law-abiding citizens. Sometimes this noisome minority offends by road hogging, sometimes by inebriate driving, sometimes by reckless speeding, sometimes—but why go on for their sins of omission and commission are as multitudinous as the little grains of sand that make the wonderous land to which they are a plague and desecration. It seems that this despisable "small minority" has developed the petty pilfering of apples and other fruit from orchards and gardens into wholesale robbery of of farm produce accompanied by much destruction. The leading editorial in the current issue of the Canadian Horticulturist under the caption "Protection Against Fruit Thieving Motorists" deals with the subject as follows:

The formation of a vigilance committee among the growers of the Niagara District to protect orchards and vineyards from thieving motorists, as reported considered recently, might prove the long-needed and much-needed course of action. A few years ago the practice of passers by helping themselves to fruit was considered, annoying and destructive as it was, merely as petty pilfering; today, so brazenly is it done and so serious the situation, such a petty term as pilfering is entirely inadequate. Thieving, or stealing, impure and simple, is the proper designation, and as such the practice must be dealt with. If the laws against thievery are not enforced to meet this situation, which supposition is partly borne out by the constant increase of participants in the crime, something else must be done. The fruit growers cannot continue losing thousands of dollars annually through thievery. There must be protection of some sort.

That the practice is not confined to the Niagara District of Ontario but is universal wherever motorists pass through orchard and garden section of America is shown by editorials recently in various farm and horticultural periodicals of the United States. "Wisconsin Horticulture," published by the Wisconsin Horticultural Society, refers to a classification for thieves:—

"The superlative kind belong," it says, "the highly resepectable" who own automobiles, either in fee simple or mortgaged; the kind that raids gardens and orchards, committing petty and grand larceny—clever (?) people from the city, always, who would not dare steal from a neighbor's garden, who go out into the country and return with wild flowers and plants dup from the roadside or from private property, who brazenly enter gardens and gather vegetables of any and of every kind, and who enter orchards or front yards where fruit trees are growing and not only steal the fruit but damage the trees .... Quite often the male thief remains in the car while the females of the species do the raiding. Being too much of a coward to venture out himself, he hides behind women's skirts, or so much as are left of them.

"There may be some who read this who will doubt that such things are possible, that people who pose as respectable at home, who ride in automobiles, actually do such things. For answer, ask any farmer or gardener in this or any other state..... Such things have happened hundreds of times and the contemptible practice is increasing. It is a serious matter, not only from the standpoint of financial loss to the farmers, fruit growers and gardeners, and the growing disregard for property rights, but the bitter feeling engendered. Farmers feel, and rightly, that they are held in contempt by city people, that their rights are not worth consideration. The most regretable part of the whole dirty business is that the thieves are generally ones who want to be considered respectable at home."

Scene from "THE LITTLE FOOL"

"Wisconsin Horticulture" advises to invoke the law, "if you can catch the thieves" and suggests thereafter publicity through publishing the names of the offenders. It tells its readers to secure the license numbers of the automobiles, swear out warrants and appear against the thieves. The individual grower cannot spend all his time watching his crops, but he has a telephone and every automobile has a license number. If the thieves get away before the license number is secured, the grower might telephone down the line to friends and have them spot the car. "Be sure of your facts," the Wisconsin paper warns, "Be sure of the license number, the number and sex of the thieves and as full a description of them as possible then write or wire same to the paper for publication."

As a matter in the fruit-growing public interest. The Canadian Horticulturist likewise is prepared to aid in seeing what publicity will do towards preventing thieving in the Niagara District — publicity through its own columns, through province-wide papers and through the local papers of the thieves' home towns. It may be too late this season to catch many, if any, of the rogues, but there is another year for thieving coming.

Invoking the law and giving publicity certainly would help to check the evil. And there are other ways, The "Rural New Yorker" suggests that punishment at least deserving, but you must first catch your thief. A vigilance committee of growers in the Niagara District would soon find a way to handle the situation. In the manner that the city man is permitted by law to protect his property against burglars so may the fruit grower protect his property against thieves. — Toronto Sunday World.

AMERICAN CONSULAR SERVICE, FERNIE, B.C.

Passports issued in Europe to enable travellers to visit Canada only, are ineffective to enable the traveller to enter the United States. Before such passports are presented to the American Consul for visa they should first be forwarded to a Consul in Canada of the government by which the passport was issued, to be by him endorsed as valid to enable the holder to proceed to the United States. Not until the passport has been so endorsed should the holder visit the American Consulate for visa.

On the other hand, where the passport does not expressly limit the bearer to any specified country, no endorsement is necessary and the passport, if unexpired may be at once taken to the American Consul for visa.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society will be held on Monday evening, Dec. 12, at 7.30 in the basement of the church. At 8.15, Rev. Lee, of Cranbrook, will give a lecture illustrated with slides, of Indian mission work in B.C., which will be held in the auditorium of the church.

There is just a possibility that Fernie district may have another election shortly. Should M. A. Macdonald, the defeated candidate in Burrard, be given a portfolio in the King government, there are just three Liberal seats to pick from, Westminster, Skeena and East Kootenay, and as Bert Beattie is not in the best of health he might be induced to withdraw in favor of Macdonald. If this happens it might be a good scheme to invite Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, who also lost his seat, to enter the contest against him.

If there was one thing that the vote in the late election proved, it was the high respect in which Dr. Bonnell is held among the miners of the district. He polled over 400 majority over Beattie and nearly 500 over MacDonald in the coal mining towns. In West Fernie, that scarlet stronghold, he had 47 majority over Beattie and 27 over MacDonald. Wm. Robson's hard work to discredit the Doctor among the miners proved absolutely useless.

The Spokane Chronicle cays: Desertion and nonsupport are the grounds for divorce alleged in a complaint filed today in the superior court by Emily B. Lantz against Paul Lantz. The complaint charges that the defendant abandoned his wife in March. 1920, and since that time has failed to contribute to the support of her and their 18-month old child. Mrs. Lantz alleges that she does not know the present whereabouts of her husband and has not heard from him since he deserted her. She asks for the custody of the child. BEER CLAUSE DEFEATED

VICTORIA, Dec. 3.—The much-argued, die-hard beer clause, which has been before the Legislature for the past week, was finally laid to rest—completely interred—on Friday night at 11:45 o'clock.

There will be no provision for the sale of beer by the glass until at least another session of the Legislature has been held. After struggling for several days, exponents of the open sale of beer had to admit defeat, the last fight against a beer clause being won by its opponents when the Ian Mackenzie resolution, asking for the sale of beer in clubs, was defeated.

The government refused to take a chance on the official introduction of a straight beer clause, after Mr. Speaker Manson ruled out of order the first Mackenzie resolution two days ago. This asked that a referendum be taken on the beer question, and after the resolution had carried it was declared out of order. Just previous to the ruling an amendment submitted by Thomas Uphill, labor member for Fernie, and asking for the open sale of beer, was defeated.

After the Mackenzie amendment had carried it appeared as though the people of British Columbia would be called upon to declare whether or not they wanted beer sold in hotels and eating places. The dramatic action of the Speaker caused no little consternation, but after the interest waned slightly it was felt that farewell had been said to beer for another year at least, that is, in so far as its open sale was concerned.

However, like the proverbial cat with the nine lives, the issue would not down, and when Attorney-General Farris moved amendments to the Liquor Control Act Friday night, the fight was on again. He introduced an amendment to "tighten" the existing act as it relates to the handling of beer in clubs. He explained that the present act forbids the sale of beer by anyone but a government vendor, but owing to certain court decisions he was afraid that there might arise a general practice in clubs of selling beer and even whisky to members.

"What effect will your amendment have upon members using lockers in clubs?" asked Thomas Pearson.

"None," was the answer.

"Nothing of the kind," retorted the minister.

"We have an act which forbids the sale of any intoxicating beverage by anyone except government vendor, but a situation might arise where selling might take place in clubs and the amendment proposed is for the purpose of obviating this," he said.

Considerable discussion arose, some fearing that a "joker" was concealed in the amendment.

Mr. Bowser spoke on the wording of the act, which decreed that beer under 1% alcoholic content was not "liquor." This might still be near-beer and sold under some other name, he suggested.

The minister explained that men had been sent to jail for selling beer and it was claimed that the act was not clear. He wished to avoid anything like this in the future.

Thomas Uphill said he was afraid there was a plot on foot to 'railroad' men to prison. He spoke of the referendum taken overseas on the liquor question and said that many men and women had not had a chance to express their opinion. He was surprised at the meekness of the returned men and he urged the introduction of a "real" beer clause.

The Attorney-General strenuously objected to the suggestion that anything was "being put over." Everyone knew, he explained, that he had openly advocated the free use of beer as a deterrent to the excessive drinking of hard liquor. He prophesied that the time would come yet when every member would see the wisdom of providing for the open sale of beer.

"I do not want to send men to jail for breaking the law," he continued, "and in spite of political effect I am taking this method of tightening up the act."

Capt. Ian Mackenzie made another appeal for beer. He said he had no use for members of the House who were afraid to express themselves truly on the issue. He said the returned men wanted beer, at least 90 per cent. of them did.

"Many of these men are mained, and they have little left but the opportunity to get together and talk of their overseas experiences. To do that over a glass of beer is what they want, and I despise a man who will not take a fair stand on this question. Party ties must be forgotten, and I will vote against this or any other government before I will see this issue settled unfairly," he warned.

Capt. Mackenzie claimed that there were 15,000 returned men in British Colubia demanding beer. He was going to see that they got it, if it lay within his power. He said he had drawn up the platform of the Moderation League and he was not going to be a party to a move which would take away the British right to drink a glass of beer at will.

Attorney-General Farris said his proposed amendment was not against beer for the vetreans and he suggested Capt. Mackenzie to submit an amendment to give beer to all, and he, the minister would put up both hands to vote for it.

Mr. Bowser said it was plain the attorney-general did not intend to prevent the sale of beer in clubs. He said there were many spurious clubs in the province, some could be joined for ten cents and some entered without any charge. In many of these places, he said, things were running wide open and whisky was being sold in the guise of near-beer, although there was a law prohibiting the sale of the latter.

Thomas Uphill claimed that 90 per cent. of the people were breaking the law today. He urged the House again to bring down beer clause and if the members would not do this they might as well be "dead-heads" since they were not earning their indemnities.

E. C. Henniger, Liberal member for Grand Forks, doubted that more than 10 per cent of the returned men and working men wanted beer. He wondered whether any petitions asking for beer had been received from these men's wives and sisters.

"The wives and sisters in our district want beer because they are a very sober class of people," Mr. Uphill retorted.

Premier Oliver attempted to bring the question to a head by declaring that the House was not discussing whether people wanted beer or not.

Mr. Jackson said the members had received no warning that the important subject of beer was about to crop up, and he urged that the consideration of the matter be deferred so that the House could give it close examination.

Asked by G. H. Hanes, independent member for North Vancouver, whether he favored Mr. Farris' amendments, Premier Oliver, after recalling in detail the beer debates of last session, admitted that he did not see very clearly what the effects of the amendment would be.

"My legal acumen is not functioning very well tonight," he added.

"If my friend from North Vancouver is any wiser I am very glad," he remarked amid laughter.

After verbal discussion the Farris Amendment was rejected by a verbal vote.

As soon as the Mackenzie amendment was brought before the House, Kenneth Duncan, Independent member for Cowichan, objected that it was out of order as it affected the revenue of the crown. If clubs were to sell beer they must purchase it from the government, he pointed out. This sale consequently affected the crown's revenue.

Chairman J. B. Clearihue, Liberal member for Victoria, ruled that Mr. Duncan's point was not well taken, and at the request of the latter referred the question to Mr. Speaker.

Mr. Speaker asked the advice of the House. Hon. Mr. Farris declared that the Mackenzie amendment did not affect the crown's revenues because the government would make its profit on beer either through its sale or through the tax on its importation before it was disposed of by the soldier clubs.

The purpose of the amendment is to encourage the consumption of beer; the revenues of the province will thus be swelled as they undoubtedly are affected," Mr. Duncan insisted.

Premier Oliver could not see how the amendment affected the revenue of the crown. He feared that under the Mackenzie plan beer would be given to others besides club members.

"It is a question for the House," Mr. Speaker stated. "All I can do is advise. It is very doubtful whether the point of order is well taken. I don't think the revenue of the crown is involved. Incidental affecting of the revenue is not sufficient. It must be something which substantially affects the revenue to be out of order," he explained, as he asked the vote on the question. The House, as stated, decided that the Mackenzie amendment was out of order.

In dealing with other amendments to the Liquor Control Act, a great deal of discussion arose.

Thomas Menzies wished to have the law changed so that single permits might be more readily obtained. He said a person could get a $5-permit by writing, but not a single-purchase one.

Thomas Uphill supported this request.

Premier Oliver said he thought the act was clear enough in this connection, and the Liquor Control Board could provide for the easier securing of single permits in isolated districts.

The bill was then reported complete and the last had been heard of beer on the floor of the House—until next session.

WHY IT IS GOOD

QUITE often we are asked why Pacific Milk has a flavor so much like fresh sweet cream.

PARTLY, it is because of our improved processes, but much is due to the milk itself which comes from the famous dairy herds of the Fraser valley.

THE quality of Pacific Milk remains high, because the dairying standards are high, and under no conditions would we try to change this quality.

Took "Redmac," The Great Tonic

GAINS 22 POUNDS

A Montreal Man's Amazing Experience

Mr. Tremblay, of Montreal, says, since taking Redmac, the Great Herbal Tonic, he has gained 22 pounds. I feel and people say, I look 30 years younger. I had been suffering from a run-down condition, nervousness, loss of strength, poor appetite and thinness; today I feel hungry, sleep well, nervousness has disappeared and hard work never bothers me. Redmac was a God-send to me. The reason REDMAC brings such wonderful results is because it feeds run-down glands the cause of many run-down conditions, by supplying them with the extracts of Certain Herbs and Roots and Tropical plants, the glands are made strong and healthy—just like re-charging a storage battery.

If weak, pale, thin, or run down, try REDMAC, the King of Tonics. This remarkable medicine brings results quickly. It has helped thousands to regain youthful health and strength. Try a bottle: a large generous bottle can be procured from your druggist at a reasonable price. If you have Indigestion or Stomach trouble, if you feel all out of sorts, REDMAC will put you on your feet in a short time.

Sold by one druggist in each town. Suddaby's Drug and Book Store is the local agent.

Mills' New Building

THE BIRDS WILL SING TO KARL

History is constantly repeating itself. Take the cases of Napoleon 1st and present Austrian Karl. In 1815 Napoleon, who had been exiled to Elba, broke bounds, tried to regain the empire he had abdicated, surrendered himself after Waterloo, and, placed aboard a British warship, was deported to an island of the South Atlantic Ocean for life. In 1921 Karl of Austria jumped his quarters in Switzerland, tried to get back the empire he had vacated, surrendered himself, and, placed aboard a British warship, has just been deported for life to an island of the North Atlantic.

But there the similie ends. Napoleon, though a tyrant, was a genius and a master of men. Karl is a respectable nonentity. Napoleon's fall was abysmal—from the heights to the depths. Karl's is negligible.

More than 4,000 miles from France, 1,200 miles from the nearest point on the west African coast, even today St. Helena—"forever fixed in the solitary sea"—is one of the world's most isolated spots. Think what it must have been in the days preceding the steamship and the cable, and how a man of Napoleon's calibre must have suffered there.

In sharp contrast to the conditions of the Great Corsican's exile is that of Karl's at Madeira. Whereas St. Helena is even rarely visited by travellers, Madeira is a favorite resort. Madeira has a population of some 175,000 souls, compared to St. Helena's 3,500, and an area of 314 square miles in place of the 47 square miles of that "lonely rock" far to its south. Madeira is in the world, on the travel routes, and only 535 miles from Lisbon—a day's run in a fast steamer. Both St. Helena and Madeira are mountainous islands, but the latter, well cultivated, presents an infinitely more agreeable appearance than did Napoleon's place of banishment. Madeira is not only a pleasure, but a famous health resort, and the homeless Hapsburg may count himself in luck, especially when he thinks of his two former brother emporers tipped from their thones in Europe—Wilhelm in damp Holland and Nicholas lying murdered in his grave.

Though but 10 degrees north of the tropic line, Madeira has an everage annual temprature of only 65 degrees Farenheit. Pleasant sea breezes temper the climate. Thunderstorms are rare and scarcely ever violent. Song birds, including the green canary, parent of the domesticated yellow bird, are so plentiful that Toronto visitors to the main island or its neighbors in the archipeligo describe the place as glorious with voices of the feathered singers. No mammals are native to the island, although a number have been introduced. A turtle inferior to that of the West Indies is made into soup, and no less than 250 species of marine fishes have been taken in the sea surrounding Madeira. Sharks are very numerous, which will make swimming a recreation which the exiled Austrians will have to indulge with discrimination.

If Karl turns to bug collecting as an anoydine for his loss of empire, Madeira affords great scope. No less than 695 species of beetles exist there to delight the entomogist. Some 12 species of butterflies belong to the European type, and upwards of 100 mouths have been collected, mostly European in genera. If the Hapsburg's taste descend to such things as bristle-footed worms for his collection, he would find no less than 200 species along the coast. The vegetation of the Madeiras is strongly South European in character, many of the plants have been introduced by the Portugese since their discovery of the islands 500 years ago. Moss and fern abound, and a connection has been establised between the Madeiras and South America by discovery of six ferns peculiar to South America.

Madeira wine, so popular a century ago, is vinted from the blood of the grapes grown on the islands. It is a heavy wine which, amber-colored and containing from 16 to 21 per cent. of alcohol, approximates our Niagara Catawba in strength and hue, but differs from it in being drier and incomparably better in flavor and general make-up. Grapes were introduced in 1420, and there is no sign of prohibition. European fruits and vegetables flourish and many subtropical ones, and the principle exports of the islands are: wine, sugar, embroidery, vegetables, fruit and wicker goods.

The inhabitants are of Portugese descent, with probably some admixture of Moorish blood among the poorer section. A number of British people reside at Madeira in addition to the transient population. The Madeiras, of course, belong to Portugal, which since she became a republic dispossessed the great landlords who formerly owned the farms of Madeira — probably compensated them for their lands, and made everything free to the small peasant farmers, who must laboriously irrigate in this dry climate to coax verdue from the dusty but fertile soil.

Portugal maintains a good garrison in the Madeira's, and, a Karl's appointed jailer will have to keep a sharp eye on her charge—Portugal, which, a republic now, has one of the last Eruopean emporers as her prisoner. Napoleon was lodged in the gloomy mansion house of "Longwood" at St. Helena, but Karl and his family will occupy a far more comfortable abode in the Madeiras.

It is proposed that the British public pay $100,000 a year for the keep of Charles and his family "in the style to which they have been accustomed." A large portion of the British public in naturally indignant at the suggestion of this further burden on their bowed backs. If the exiles have not saved sufficient of the once colossal Hapsburg fortunes to keep them, why shouldn't the Austrians and Hungarians foot the bill for Karl's board? It has been suggested that Karl might indeed do some work towards his own support. What? Perhaps he might write for the papers. In the meantinme the otherwise archdukes and archduchesses who call Karl and Zita "Father" and "Mother," must prepare to go into the world later, and take their places as common folks. Near as Madeira is to civilization, there seems little chance of an attempt to rescue Karl. Even his own people seem to have had quite enough of the regime of that ancient dynasty, whose action following the murder of one of its princes plunged the world into war.

MARSHALL NEILAN WILL PRESENT INNOVATION

Marshall Neilan's latest First National feature, "Bits of Life," which comes to the Orpheum Theatre, Friday and Saturday of this week, is another innovation in motion picture production.

Offering as it does four seperate and distinct stories, "Bits of Life" presents the short story magazine idea on the screen in a manner never before attempted. Each story has a different type of plot, the first episode disclosing a satire, the second a comedy-drama, the third a melodrama and the fourth a farce which is expected to send the patrons away with a laugh. In selecting his four stories, Mr. Neilan drew from the works of writers who were prominently identified with the respective type of plot they offer in this picture.

The entire production was staged under Mr. Neilan's personal direction. The contributing authors are Hugh Wiley, Walter Trumbull, Thomas McMorrow, and Marshall Neilan.

LIVED YEARS ON BREAD AND MILK

For More Than Decade Malady Of Alabama Woman Was Continually Sapping Her Strength

Mrs. H. P. Barnett, of Republic, a suburb of Birmingham, Ala., gives the facts of her remarkable experience with Tanlac as follows:

"During the past fourteen years I have spent more than one thousand dollars trying to get rid of a complaint that was gradually sapping my strength, but until I got hold of Tanlac nothing helped me. For the past four years I have lived almost entirely on bread and milk, and finally even that went against me.

"Before I had finished the first bottle of Tanlac I got so I could eat anything, and I certainly bless the day I first got this medicine for I believe it has added years to my life. The people in my neighborhod were so surprised at the change in me that fourteen of them, by actual count, are now taking Tanlac."

"THE LITTLE FOOL" A GREAT PICTURE

The coming of a Jack London picture is always an event far out of the ordinary, which is why the announcement that "The Little Fool," Metro release of a C. E. Shurtleff, Inc., all-star production is coming to the Orpheum theatre on Monday for a run of two days, gives pleasant anticipation.

"The Little Fool" is a screen adaptation from Jack London's "The Little Lady of the Big House." It is the fourth Metro release of Jack London's famous pictures, the others being "Burning Daylight," "The Mutiny of the Elsinore," and "The Star Rover."

The story deals with Paula, a fascinating creature who attracts all the men invited to the palatial home of her husband, "Dick" Forrest. The husband knows of her weakness for moonshine society, but pays little attention to it. Then enters the third party. Evan Graham, an old chum, falls desperately in love and is loved in return. Dick gives his wife the choice of leaving him. A limousine speeds down the driveway, and the husband surrenders himself to despair. The working out of the situation is masterly.

FERNIE NEEDS NEW SCHOOL

How much longer are our adult citizens and parents going to continue to ignore the ever pressing problem of providing ample educational facilities for our men and women of tomorrow?

A few years ago this question was earnestly put forward by the school board in an appeal for the support of a money by-law to provide a high school building in this city. The extreme necessity for supplying additional school room was at that time very clearly explained to the ratepayers, but all arguments advanced in favor of then temporarily solving the problem by building a high school fell deaf upon the ears and the by-law failed to carry. The process of reasoning by which the majority of ratepayers reached their conclusion and defeated that endeavor to improve our educational facilities could not have been broad. It could only have been a hasty view from the monetary sense, while even that branch could not have been analyzed.

The passing of the high school by-law in 1919 would not have made the taxes of today noticeably higher, but that amount of time would have been gained by numerous children who today have been and still are being retarded in the advance of their studies through sheer force of the circumstances, instituting the unquestionably distasteful method in vogue in the primary grades of our public schools today—the so-called "double-shift" system.

We are rapidly verging upon a critical condition due to failure to provide sufficient schools to meet the ever increasing number of pupils enrolled. The four school bulidings in this city are adequate to comfortably accommodate 800 pupils. The total enrollment today is 881. There are now 67 applications for pupils to enter school at the beginning of the next term. Does not this palpable congestion clamor for relief? The only solution therefore is another school must be provided and the sooner this is done the quicker will the eventual crisis be averted.

Viewing the question in a dispassionate manner wlil reveal that this sionate manner will reveal that this financial burden. It is quite true the city will be required to borrow a fairly large sum of money for the construction of a suitable building, but the government is obliged to share a substantial portion of this expenditure. The money is borrowed for a long term, consequently the repayment of the loan is made in easy stages. The maintenance cost will be only in proportion to the normal increase in the number of pupils which would have to be taken care of in any event. It should also be borne in mind that the maintenance cost of an additional permanent public school will not be as large as will be the case in providing rentable quarters as may be available.

And while dealing with this phase it is very significant to note that the Hon. Premier when discussing the matter of aid to municipalities, intimated that as the government had pledged a percentage of the profits accruing from the operation of the Government Control Board, he would suggest the ratio of distribution on the basis of school population as being equitable. If this method were followed Fernie will be in the gratifying position to receive its just quota. Our sister city, Cranbrook, on this basis estimates the sum of $10,000 will be its share. This calculation being correct, Fernie, as it has a much greater school population, could expect to receive a much larger appropriation. Whatever may be the final accounting it is quite safe to assume this city will receive additional income for educational purposes and it must be obvious this will have the effect of relieving taxation.

The 1922 school board should make a concerted effort to rectify the existing inadequacy by submitting a feasible scheme. The school board has struggled valiantly during recent years to make the best of a discouraging proposition. They have accomplished wonderful results with the able assistance of the teaching staff, in the face of most trying conditions. The calibre of citizenship comprising this body administering educational affairs has been all that could be desired and it should remain so. But being human, naturally there are limits to their ability and endurance. In order that we fulfill our duty as self-respecting citizens, we must assume our just share of responsibility. This can be done very easily if the board upon submitting a sound and economical proposal to alleviate this dire necessity, receive your cordial and substantial co-operation.

Whether it be an entirely new school or additions to the present central school is immaterial. So long as it is going to provide comfortable and healthy quarters where our future manhood and womanhood will receive their basic learning in what is essential. To this aim and object lend your wholehearted support. Let it not be neglected any longer—childhood years soon pass. Those years are the vital ones in preparing for the time when they take up where we leave off. Without education they are incompetent to continue in the march of progress. Even though we are but a small community, let us not hamper our sons and daughters through failing to supply the proper training in their infancy.

THE PUBLIC SCHOOL CONCERT

The Grand Teatre was thronged last night to hear the concert given by the children of Fernie Public Schools, and judging by the applause and appreciation on the part of the audience, the concert was an artistic success. The numbers were all rendered in very good manner and it is difficult to select any part to praise unless all are praised.

The main number on the program was the operetta "The Fairy Shoemaker," and this difficult cantata, usually given by an adult cast, was very well handled by the pupils. The costuming of all the numbers was very excellent. The solo dance by Althea Schagel, and the dance by Doris Thomas and Ruth Corklin were particularly effective, and were heartily encored. Mike Rizzuto's role of the "Fairy Shoemaker" showed that he has considerable talent in this line. Few, if any, more spectacular sights have been seen in Fernie than the Colonial Minuet, done in costume by sixteen of the larger pupils.

The Mother Goose number was a constant string of surprises for the audience. The Old Woman of the Shoe with all her children, Simple Simon, Little Miss Muffet, Old King Cole, and others were all present and all gave keen enjoyment to the spectators, who for the time were children again themselves.

All the other numbers brought credit to those taking part and to the teachers who trained them. There is in a school concert an opportunity of seeing a great many children on the stage and talent is discovered where no one would have expected to find it. The value in training children to appear before an audience in this way is invaluable. Moreover, the proceeds are to be spent on books and equipment for the school so that Fernie is in every way richer for the entertainment.

The address of Sherwood Herchmer on the question of providing school accommodation, given between numbers of the program, was very timely, and called the attention of the people of the city to the necessity of bestirring themselves to build more school rooms.

The staff of the Public Schools wish to take this opportunity of thanking all those people who so kindly extended aid to them in their work of costuming the children for last night's concert: Mrs. Connick, Mrs. Crossman and Mrs. Thomas particularly for their work in making up costumes; Mr. Cuddeford for his his many suggestions and help; D. G. Harvie and the Misses Schagel for helping prepare the children for the stage at night; and all those firms in the city who by their courteous treatment and support have made the concert and its success possible.

TALK PREMIER OLIVER FOR FEDERAL CABINET

Vancouver, Dec. 14.—The Vancouver Province publishes a rumor from Prince Rupert that Fer Stork, member-elect for parliament for Skeena riding, is prepared to resign his seeat in favor of Hon. John Oliver, provincial premier and that Col. C. W. Peck, V.C., defeated candidate, would not contest the return of Mr. Oliver as prospective cabinet minister in British Columbia.

The Family Theatre is the Isis. tf

BEATTIE FOR THE CABINET

With the advent of Kootenay East nto the Liberal column, supporting the new federal administration under the leadership of Hon. Mackenzie King, and with the comparatively small government representation in the western provinces, speculation is somewhat rife as to who shall be their representatives in the new cabinet Robert Ethelbert Beattie by a substantial majority has been elected to represent this constituency and the electors thereby declared their confidence in his ability

From various responsible sources in the interior, claim for his recognition as cabinet timber has already been laid To this we add our sincere endorsement Mr Beattie, while a druggist by profession, came into this district in the pioneer days. Mining was then as it is now one of our principal and most permanent industries. Not content with a standing still and eking out an existence as a mere tradesman, Mr. Beattie was ambitious and he associated himself in various mining ventures, and took an active part in the management of different enterprises, with a considerable degree of success. He not only understands the conditions which confront the industry locally, but has made a general study of them throughout the province. The portfolio of Minister of Mines is one that should be administered by a man haveing some practical knowledge of mining and its allied industries. Mr. Beattie has the initial abilty to assume these duties, consequently the electors and all responsible organizations and bodies within this and neighboring localities should not be disillusioned or deceived from asserting that this honor is due the regularly nominated representative of the people and due him alone.

Already the bewailing cry emanates from the coast—more appropriately the recent stamping ground of that discredited aspirant for political honors, M. A. Macdonald, that this seat should be tendered him as he is ably qualified as cabinet material. We hesitate to suggest that the responsible thinking people of East Kootenay would for one moment accept such a compromise. M. A. Macdonald was a resident in this district at one time. He was not content to remain steadfast with it, and sought newer fields. He left it because he believed it could no longer serve his purpose. He did for a time make rapid progress in public life but his brilliant career ended abruptly with the exposure of his implication in corrupt practices. He fell headlong from the slender pedestal of glamouring fame that supported him when his integrity and honesty were found wanting.

East Kootenay will not be so gullible as to receive such a man as their representative, let alone as a minister of the Crown. The suggestion is odious, and any attempt to perpetrate this indignity upon us or to sacrifice the people of Kootenay East for the sake of a discarded political parasite should be vigorously opposed. We have sufficient confidence in Mr. Beattie and his faithful followers that they will effectively resent any attempts to influence his recession from his rightful position in which he is now placed. We believe there is ample justice in the claim for the cabinet appointment for Kootenay East, and that Mr. Beattie is the logical choice. If he conscientiously stands on these rights he will have almost unanimous support from the constituents, at any rate the overwhelming majority. On the other hand any tactics savoring of manipulation or duplicity will be equally as forcibly opposed.

NELSON LIBERALS SUPPORT BEATTIE

At a meeting of the Nelson Liberal association last night, held in the Elks' hall, a committee was instructed to send a night letter to Hon. Mackenzie King, drawing attention to R. E. Beattie, Liberal member-elect for East Kootenay, as a cabinet possibility, and also pointing out that British Columbia is the logical province to furnish the minister of mines.

The vacancy in the provincial riding of Nelson was also the subject of a long discussion, and the meeting was of the opinion that it would be proper to advise the Oliver government to bring on a byelection at as early a date as the government might think fit.

Margaret lived with her mother and elder sister at 571 Homer St., and attended St. Ann's Academy. She came to Vancouver three years ago from Fernie, B. C. Mrs. Knowles, mother of the child, was unaware of her daughter's death until she returned home two hours after the accident.

MRS. PENNINGTON
NEW ROCKLAND, P.Q.

"In 1919, I was taken with Bronchial Asthma and no one knows what I suffered with it during the winter. I began having Choking Spells—gasping for breath and could not speak. I would have one of these bad spells in the evening, one during the night, and one in the morning. The doctor said he could do nothing for me.

"In the spring of 1920, I started taking "Fruit-a-tives" and in a few days, the choking spells stopped, and I have had none since May 7th, 1920. I have so wanted to tell other sufferers who have the same trouble about "Fruit-a-tives" for I know how they must suffer.

Some thought the Asthma would come back on me as winter came on but it has not, thanks to "Fruit-a-tives" Mrs. J. M. PENNINGTON.

"THUNDERCLAP" PICTURE SUPREME

A woman paralized sits in a chair, unable to move while those she loves are theatened with danger, and a great drama moves around her. Helpless she watches and only with her eyes does she give indication that she knows what is going on. This is a big emotional moment in "Thunderclap" shown at the Isis Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, December 20 and 21.

Unless the girl marries the man he has picked for her, the gambler is doomed to die at a certain hour. With his pistol on her mother, he tries to force the girl to consent. But fate steps in at the door and saves her. That is the big dramatic moment in the most heart filling drama ever written.

Romance of youth, cynicism of age, tingle of the turf, and glamor of love permeate in "Thunderclap," the most elaborate racing drama ever flashed on the screen — a drama that brings the spectators to the edge of their seats.

Mary Carr, as the mother, is the actress whose "Ma Benton" in "Over the Hill" will go down in screen history as a classic interpretation of the greatest mother roles ever staged.

NEW CAMADIAN CUNARD SERVICE

The Cunard Line service to Canada, which came to an end during the war through the fact that all of its vessels on this route were sunk while on war service by enemy submarines, will be resumed by a new fleet of palatial oil-burners which will begin weekly sailings on May 6th of next year.

The new ships range in size from 13,000 tons to 16,700 tons and all are over 500 feet long. They are: the "Tyrrhenia" of 16,700 tons, a sister ship to the new "Cameronia" and with accommodations for 600 cabin and 1200 third class passengers; the "Antonia," "Andania" and "Ausonia," each of 14,000 tons, and with accommodation for 500 cabin and 1200 third class passengers; and the 13 000 ton "Albania," with accommodation for 500 cabin passengers. Later this fleet will be augmented by the "Asconia," "Alaunia" and "Aurania," each of 14,000 tons and with accommodations for 500 cabin and 1200 third class passengers. The average speed of these steamers will be 16 knots. It will be noticed that the names of all these ships with the exception of the "Tyrrhenia" begin and end with the letter "A;" thus they will be known to fame as the "A" ships.

There will be virtually three lines in the new service—one from Montreal direct to Liverpool; one from Montreal direct to London; and one from Montreal to Plymouth, Cherbourg and London. Thus the next fleet will take care of the trade of both northern and southern England as well as cater to continental business. Meanwhile, to take care of the Canadian traffic during the coming winter several of the large steamers of the New York service will make regular calls at Halifax.

The forthcoming resumption of the direct Cunard Canadian service to Quebec and Montreal recalls the fact that the company's association with Canada dates back to its inauguration. On her first sailing from Liverpool in 1840, the "Britannia" called at Halifax, and for nineteen years this call, both eastbound and westbound, was a regular feature of the company's Atlantic service. In 1859, however, the Halifax call was discontinued, and was not resumed for over half a century. In 1911, the Cunard Company purchased three passenger steamers, and ran them between London, Southampton and Canada. These vesels were the Ascania, the Ausonia and the Albania.

One of the features of the company's Canadian service was that all ships were designed to carry two classes of passengers only—cabin and third class, an inovation which is being maintained in the resumed service. The great success of the company's Canadian service was also shown by the necessity for rapid extension, and two new steamers, the Andania and the Alaunia, were launched during the early part of 1913. These ships had each a tonnage of 13,300, and were 540 feet in length. Their passenger accommodation was notably in advance of previous ships.

Further, to assist Canadian travellers, for all westbound sailings during 1913, personally conducted parties and special women's parties were arranged. In these, the service of experienced conductors were placed gratuitously at the disposal of passengers. In addition, an employment bureau was established at Toronto, and this office, being in close touch with the labor situation in Canada, the Cunard officials who met the steamers at Quebec were able to give valuable assistance to those who required situations.

The success of these new vessels wes indisputable, and in designing the new ships the company have had the advantage of experience already gained in addition to developments that have taken place in marine architecture and engineering during the period since 1914. In developing this class of vessel they prove their intention of catering for this travellers who require a high degree of comfort at a moderate cost. Unfortunately, the outbreak of the war in 1914 put an end, for a time, to developments, and unluckily, also, every ship in the Canadian service was sank while on war service.

It is generally agreed that the resumption of the Cunard's Canadian service will meet with a warm welcome. It will be conducted by a fleet second only to the Cunard Line's service to New York.

"THE GREATEST LOVE" AT THE ORPHEUM

VERA GORDON in "THE GREATEST LOVE" Select Picture

"The Greatest Love" the latest Select Pictures production which comes to the Orpheum theatre next Wednesday and Thursday is said to give a realistic representation of the hardships, joys and sorrows of life as lived in the slums of a large city. In the latter part of the picture is given a glimpse behind the scenes of a musical comedy performance, and danger and disgrace are seen to over take their victims when all seems to be prosperous and successful. Mother love triumphs where the money of friends and the learning of counsel have failed, and the unexpected climax is said to be both artistic and novel.

As Mrs. Lantini, the mother of the little family whose fortunes form the background of the story, Vera Gordon plays a role similar to that which made her name a household word in "Humoresque." With her in the cast are Sally Crute, Wm. H. Tooker, Fannie Shelton, and Jessie Simpson Bobby Connelly and Dot Williams take the children's roles.

ELSIE FERGUSON IN "FOOTLIGHTS"

No fewer than 39 gowns are worn by Miss Elsie Ferguson, who takes the part of an American girl, impersonating a Russian actress in "Footlights," which comes to the Orpheum theatre this Friday and Saturday. Dainty morning dresses, luxuriant gowns for afternoon and evening, filmy negligees and daring sport costumes constitute her wardrobe in this splendid production.

Miss Ferguson, who has been termed the most beautifully dressed woman on the screen, considers this one of the most delightful roles of her career. "The gowns have helped me in my interpretation," Miss Ferguson said, "just as they helped Lizzie Parsons to lose her identity in Lisa Parsinova. My only regret is that the audiences will not have an opportunity to see the exquisite coloring of the gowns."

As Lisa Parsinova, Miss Ferguson wears the creations of the most prominent modistes of Paris and America. Every one of the 39 changes from the silver cloth and pearl evening dress, to the velvet bathing suit, are original in design and unique in treatment.

You will miss something good if you don't go to the Isis. tf

AUSTRALIAN CAVALRY HORSE

A recent publication entitled "The Dessert Mounted Corps," by Lieutenant-Colonel R. M. P. Preston, of the British Army, give an account of the cavalry operations in Palestine and Syria in 1917 and 1918. Although the Great War figures in the mind of the public as a matter of trench warfare, it included one of the most brilliant cavalry campaigns in military history. It was to a mounted corps, comprising some 25,000 horsemen, that success of the British campaign in Asia Minor was chiefly due. Col. Preston, who was chief of staff to General Chauvel, in command of the corps, was the official historian of the campaign. His accounts of the careful preperations leading up to the final dash up the coast and the encircling movement which outflanked the Turkish and German armies, makes one of the most exciting and illuminating narratives in the history of equestrian warfare. There could be no better test of the cavalry horse. He adds:—

"The majority of the horses in the corps were Walers and there is no doubt that these hardy Australian horses make the finest cavalry mounts in the world. For many years past the Australians have been buying up the well-bred failures of the English turf, and buying them cheap, not for racing purposes, but to breed saddle horses for up-country stations. As a result of this policy, they have now got types of compact, well built saddle and harness horses that no other part of the world can show. Rather on the light side, according to our ideas, but hard as nails, and with beautiful, clean legs and feet, their record in this being far above the cavalry horse of any other nation. The Australians themselves can never understand our partiality for the half-bred, weight-carrying hunter, which looks to them like a cart horse. Their contention has always been that good blood will carry more weight than big bone, and the experience of this war has converted the writer, for one, entirely to their point of view.

"It must be remembered that the Australian countryman are bigger, heavier men than their English brothers. They formed just half the corps, and it is probably that they averaged not far short of twelve stone each, stripped. To this weight must be added another nine and a half stone, for saddle, ammunition, sword, rifle, clothes and accoutrements so that each horse carried a weight of over twenty-one stone, all day and every day for seventeen days, on less than half the normal ration of forage, and with only one drink in every thirty-six hours!"

CHARLIE CHAPLIN IN
"THE IDLE CLASS"
ORPHEUM THEATRE
WED. & THUR., DEC. 21-22

Your collection doesn't seem complete." said the visitor to the Natural History Rooms.

"What do you mean, sir?"

"I don't see here that most baleful of all insects, the one that brings disappointment, spoils pleasure, causes divorce, decieves the credulous, frustrates hope and leaves the fondest expectations unfilled—I refer to the fly in the ointment."

EXPLANATION RE LEDGER BUILDING

Dear Sir—I notice in the last issue of your paper a statement that Matthew Tully had signed his interest in the above building to the Miners Union. This is not the case. On Sept. 30, 1920, M. Tully, Wm. Hunter and myself paid the taxes and costs on the lots occupied by the Ledger building, with a check from the Fernie Literary and Athletic Association, and stamped with the official club stamp. As the property was not redeemed by Sept. 30, 1921, the title was made out in the names of M. Tully, Wm. Hunter and C. F. Hesketh, on Nov. 28. I signed the transfer of the property to the officials of the Fernie Literary and Athletic Association, not the Miners Union, and the transfer had been signed previously by M. Tully and Wm. Hunter to above club. You will notice in your advertising columns that the building is up for sale, applications to be made to J. Clark, Sec. of the Fernie Literary & Athletic Association.

Thanking you for this insertion.

Yours very truly,
Charles F. Hesketh.

OBITUARY

Early this month the death of B. W. Murray, aged 87 years, was recorded in Toronto. He was the father of A. C. Murray, a well known resident of Elk Prairie. Born in Aberdeen, Scotland, in 1834, deceased when a young lad emigrated to Canada, where he entered the service of the Bank of British North America. He advanced through the various departments to the position of inspector, which he held for a number of years. He subsequently was appointed accountant of the Supreme Court of Judicature of the province of Ontario, in which position he served for 47 years or until three years ago, when he was made consulting or advisory accountant.

In 1860 he married Julia Henry, daughter of Alexander Henry, a noted explorer and author of early Canadian history. From this union two children were born—A. C. Murray, and Mrs. Dr. F. S. Keele, of Portage la Prairie, and they alone survive.

During his life deceased was an active Conservative in politics and an ardent member of the Episcopal Church. He was also author of "Murray's Interest Tables," a reliable mathematical work extensively used by banks and financial institutions. This work occupied over ten years in the course of its compilation.

DICKENS USED TO DODGE UNWANTED GUESTS

Still very much alive, Charles Dickens' office boy and junior clerk, Caleb Jackson, who worked in the office of "All the Year Round" when the author of "The Christmas Carol" was one of the most visited men in England, may be seen and interviewed at the quiet home in Breage, Cornwall, where Mr. Jackson, now 66 years old, lives and reads with unceasing admiration, the works of the great author he knew personally.

He who once used to be "Caleb, the office boy," relates that Dickens had a regular day, once a week, when he came to the office in London of "All the Year Round." The forenoon on such occasions, was quiet; but from midday there was a continual stream of callers to see him. Mr Jackson's method of receiving them was to take their cards and assure them, with as innocent an air as possible, "I'll see if Mr. Dickens is in."

"Then," says Mr. Jackson, "I ran up the lead-covered stairs, found if Mr. Dickens' decision was "to see or not to see," and then asked, or did not ask—as the case might be—the visitor to 'step this way.' "

Mr. Jackson implies that some visitors were very persistent in their determination to see Boz, when he goes on to point out that the building had three exits, "which, on more than one occasion, Mr. Dickens found very useful."

It was at the end of March, 1850, that Dickens commenced the new twopenny weekly called "Household Words" (afterwards "All The Year Round"), which, he planned, should be a direct means of communication between himself and his readers, and, in addition, a means of collecting around him and encouraging the talent of the younger generation.

"Bleak House" was Dickens first story to appear in "Household Words" Another famous novel to be printed in the new twopenny weekly was "Little Dorrit," and the "Tale of Two Cities" was published in it after its change of name to "All the Year Round."

Tom Uphill, M.P.P., is going around town these days with a grouch. He claims that Billy Robson has been putting something over on him, by trying to connect the Labor candidate with the Conservative party. He is looking for somebody to pull a libel suit on. Lawson and Bill are worried.

There is little stir in municipal politics yet, although we understand Tom Uphill, M.P.P., has been approached by certain parties in regard to standing against Mayor Henderson. The general opinion, however, seems to be that Mayor Henderson if he will stand again, should be elected by acclamation, as he has given the city good government.

Geo. Mead, late of the Imperial Bank staff here, but recently with the bank at Greig, Sask., has severed his connection with that concern and will take over the management of his mother's fruit ranch at Creston. ROAST BEEF OF OLD ENGLAND

Roast beef, properly cooked, brown on the outside, rare on the inside, rich with juice, is a dish worth eating, especially at Christmas. But all too often it is spoiled in the cooking by leaving it in the oven too long, so that it becomes dry.

A rib roast can be cooked with the bones left in, or it can be boned and rolled. The rolled roast is usually a better size for the apartment oven and is easier to carve. The bones should always be sent home with the rolled roast, and they can go into the soup pot.

Wipe the meat, rub it with salt and pepper, and dredge it with flour. Place it in a pan in a very hot oven. This will sear the roast quickly and hold the juices in. After the flour is browned reduce the heat and baste every ten minutes with the drippings in the pan. Allow twelve to fifteen minutes to ecah pound of beef, depending upon how rare you want your meat. A well-roasted piece of beef will be plump and juicy. If too low a temprature is used. it will cook too long and the raost will shrink and look dry.

A good roast can be spoiled by being accompanied by lumpy or grey gravy. Gravy should be brown and velvety in texture, and it should be well seasoned.

When the meat is done remove it to a platter and place where it will keep hot while the gravy is being made. Leave four tablespoonfuls of fat in the roasting pan, add four tablespoonfuls of flour and cook until browned. Add gradually one and one-half cups of boiling water, cook five minutes, season with salt and pepper, and then strain if necessary. An onion browned in the fat before adding the flour gives a delicious flavor.

Yorkshire pudding. which is often served with roast beef. is prepared by mixing one cup of flour and one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, with one cup of milk and two well-beaten eggs. Grease a baking pan well with drippings from the roast; pour in the mixture. having it about one-half-inch in depth. Bake twenty minutes in a hot oven, basting, after it has risen with drippings from the roasting meat. Cut in square and serve on the dinner plate with the roast beef.

SHE CAN HARDLY REALIZE CHANGE

Popular Business Woman Says She Never Dreamed Tanlac Could Do So Much For Her.

"I am only too glad to praise Tanlac, for it has done for me what I never dreamed possible, and I now feel so well I can hardly realize that only a short time ago I was in such a miserable condition," said Miss Alythe Perth, 351 Carlton St., a popular young Winnipeg business woman, conducting a public stenographic office.

"Just abuot three years ago I had a nervous breakdown which kept me in bed for several weeks and left me in such an awful state of health I had but scant hope of ever getting better. I was so nervous I trembled all over. couldn't sleep, and even after I went back to the office, I seemed to have no strength at all and only through sheer force of will power was I able to attend to my duties. My strength soon became disordered, and indigestion caused me the most frightful pains, bloating and shortness of breath. My kindneys also bothered me and I had a pain across the small of my back that made life positively miserable.

"Well, despite the fact that I was trying one medicine after another, I found I was going down hill rapidly. But after taking only two bottles of Tanlac I could see it was doing me a world of good. and seven bottles have relieved me of all my ailments and now my health is just fine. My whole system seems to be in the best of condition, and I eat, sleep, work and enjoy life better than for years. Tanlac is simply grand."

Mrs. Doolittle—I'm afraid I've missed my career. I consulted a psychoanalyst today and he said I had an art complex.

MINERS TAKE 25 P.C. CUT IN DRUMHELLER

Calgary, Dec. 21.—Miners at the Collie Mine, Drumheller, a property which went under the name of the Drumheller Land Co., Ltd., went back to work on Wednesday morning at wages reduced by 25 per cent. This was the word received at the office of Walter Robl, of Calgary, who is the agent for this coal. It is confirmed by the U.M.W. of A. office in Calgary. Secretary Robt. Peacock of the U.M.W. of A. asserted emphatically on Wednesday morning. In confirming the news that the men were back at work, that this does not necessarily mean an acceptance of the 25 per cent reduction. "This has been forced on the men by the management," he said. "They are not out on strike now, but they will be." He repeated that the fact that the men at Collie Mine were back at work did not mean any weakening on the part of the miners' organization.

COUNCIL HOLD SHORT SESSION

The semi-final meeting of the present city council was held last night with all the remaining members present.

The only business of importance was in connection with the conversion of the present electric plant and lines in order to connect up with the hydro-power when it is available, and also for the provision of an auxiliary plant should any interruptions occur following the change-over to the new system. Tenders covering this work were submitted by the Canadian General Electric Co. and the Canadian Westinghouse Co., but as some further explanatory information was required in connection with that received from the Westinghouse Co. the matter will not be closed until some time next week. Messrs. Trousdale and Turnbull, representing the General Electric, were present and proffered such information as requested by the council relating to their tender.

R. Billsborough and D. F. Markland of the Fernie Branch of the G. W.V.A., attended and stated they had been delegated by that organization to make an appeal to the council for the customary grant which they had received during the past few years. It was unanimously agreed that the usual amount of $100 be granted.

The meeting then adjourned with the understanding that a special meeting would be called next week to conclude the power plant contract when all details are laid before the council.

Dorothy Dalton is back again in the role of the daughter of the great Canadian Northwest, a similar character to that in which she made such a success in "The Flame of the Yukon" several years ago. It was in such a role as she has in "The Idol of the North," J. Clarkson Miller's story, which will be seen at the Orpheum theatre, that Miss Dalton gained her reputation as a screen star.

Miss Dalton plays Colette Brissac, daughter of a French-Canadian miner, who fled to the wilderness to escape arrest for having killed a man. She is left without father and mother in a mining town built up over night and obtains a position in the Aurora Borealis, a saloon and dance hall of the town. She soon becomes one of the biggest drawing cards of the saloon and plays unmercifully with the miners, "trimming" them for all they are worth, but still remaining the most desired of all the girls.

In the dance hall she meets Martin Bates, a young engineer who has come from New York after a series of financial difficulties, and who fast becomes a worthless drunkard. In order to get even with the way she has treated them the miners force her to marry Bates. After the first shock Colette decides to make the best of it and determines to make a man of him.. After many incidents of dramatic interest she succeeds not only in regenerating Bates but also in winning his love. Orpheum, Friday and Saturday, Dec. 23 and 24.

B.C. ATTORNEY GENERAL QUITS

Victoria, Dec. 21.—Indicating that his course of action has been dictated by personal reasons, the Hon. J. W. deB. Farris, attorney general for the province of British Columbia, has resigned his portfolio in the Oliver cabinet. The information was conveyed to Premier Oliver this morning in a wire from Ottawa, where Mr. Farris has been active during the last few days in the exchequer court of Canada.

THAT KERR HOLD-UP CASE

Inspector Dunwoody and W. Spiller, chief of provincial police, arrived home on Thursday morning from Kalispell, in charge of three prisoners, Dave Gorrie, J. Henderson and H. Robinson, extradited from the United States on charges arising out of the hold-up and robbery of Wm. Kerr, at his ranch in Dorr during September last, when a large quantity of liquor was stolen. The prisoners were apprehended by the United States authorities a few days after the robbery was reported but the delay in bringing them back to Canada has been occasioned by their vigorous fight against extradition. The evidence adduced by the prosecution, however, before a judge of the circuit court, was sufficiently strong to warrant recommendation to the Secretary of State for the States that they be returned to Canada to stand trial for the charges preferred against them.

HOLY FAMILY SCHOOL CONCERT

Last Monday night a numerous and interested audience attended the concert given by the pupils of the Holy Family School, all present taking a lively interest in the carefully selected programme. The chairman, Rev. Father Kennedy, in his opening address, pointed out in a most convincing manner the necessity for the parochial school, and showed clearly the beneficial effect of instruction given in a religious atmosphere. No less an authority than Sir Arthur Balfour has expressed the opinion that "Our schools will eventually be so conducted as to secure to every child the kind of religious instruction that his parents desire him to receive." Moreover, as far as Fernie is concerned, the Holy Family school is taking care of the education of some seventy children, thereby being of material assistance in relieving the congestion of the public schools.

The programme, as published in the last issue of the Fernie Free Press, was carried through by the pupils of the school in a most cretitable manner. The children showed careful preparation and took their parts very gracefully and cleverly.

The hall had been tastefully decorated for the occasion by the following ladies: Mesdames Connick, Klauer, Mangan, McGill and Turner, to whom Miss M. Doyle and Miss A. Walsh who were in charge of the concert tender their sincere thanks.

WITH NEW DEVICES MINERS ARE SAFER

Ever since the invention of the miners' safety lamp, by Humphry Davy, Great Britain has devoted keen attention to the subject of safety devices in mines. Experiments recently conducted by the British Scientific and Industrial Research Department have resulted in the design of two new types of rescue apparatus which are proving most successful. Both types of apparatus are what is known as "regenerative," that is to say, the air expelled by the lungs is purified supplied with oxygen. and returned to the lungs. When a man wears this apparatus he is able to enter smoke or poisonous atmosphere without suffering ill effects. The apparatus and the lungs really form a closed circuit, and the lungs serve as a pump to circulate the air round that circuit. In one type of apparatus the oxygen is supplied from liquid air, and in the other it is obtained from a solution of compressed gas. Both are designed to enable the wearer to undertake continuous heavy exertion for at least two hours. As a matter of experience, they can satisfy all the breathing needs of the wearer for three hours.

REVISING THE LATIN VERSION OF BIBLE

It is announced that the first volume of the revised Vulgate version of the Bible will be ready at the end of the present year. Members of the Benedictine Order have the stupendous work in charge, but it is understood that it will not be, when completed, a popular version of the Bible for general use, but a critical or standard version, the ultimate authority for editions of the Bible are used by the Roman Catholic Church.

The commission of the revision of the Vulgate was named by Pope Pius X in 1910, and the present Pope made it an independent society of the church. The Abbot Gasquet, superior of the English Province of the Benedictine Order, is head of the commission.

The Vulgate is not the oldest of Bible versions but is the one which, through the Latin Church, made the Bible familiar in Europe, and its name, Vulgate means that it was the popular or common version. It dates from near the year 400, and its production was the work of St. Jerome.

"A tall, guant, vinegar-faced woman walked into Wawa station one day, and said to the ticket agent:

"Gimme a ticket for Chester Heights."

"Single" said the agent.

The woman's eyes flashed steely sparks.

"None o' your darn business," she hissed. "Gosh knows, though, I might have married a dozen times over if I'd been willin' to grubstake some shiftless, putty-faced monkey like yourself."

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

WINDSOR BRIDGE TO HAVE RECORD SPAN

At last the dream of a quarter of a century—the great Detroit-Windsor bridge—is on the sure road to realization. Actual preliminary work will be commenced in a few days. Charles E. Fowler is chairman and chief engineer of the board of consulting engineers.

The American company, which is co-operating with a Canadian one in furthering the project, has reached an agreement with the Michigan Public Utilities Commission as to the amount of stock to be issued and the method of sale. Already a contract has been made with a Canadian brokerage firm to sell the issue.

When asked for details regarding the construction, Mr. Fowler said:

"The total weight of the bridge and approaches is 107,000 tons, and the cost at present prices is well inside the estimates made in 1919.

"The span, as fixed, is 1802 feet over the river and it will carry a load of 36,000 pounds per foot of length. The weight of the main span is 37,700 pounds per foot, and the span will be the longest and heaviest in the world.

"There will be eight parallel wire cables to carry the highway and railway decks. Two cables will be 18 inches in diameter, and six will be 21 inches in diameter, with a total of 59.280 wires of No. 6 guage, supporting a pull of 146 000,000 pounds. The highway deck will be 97 feet wide, with two trolley tracks, two sidewalks, and two roadways that will carry six lanes of traffic or a capacity of 30,000,000 automobiles per year. The lower deck will have four railway tracks to carry electrically operated trains, and a 20-foot space for public utilities such as wires and pipes.

"The towers of the bridge will rise to a height of 380 feet above the water These towers will be about 150 feet higher than any other structure in this vicinity.

"The longest of the three East River bridges at New York city is the Williamsburg bridge, which has a span of 1600 feet. The longest span in the world is the great Quebec cantilever of 1800 feet span, while the greatest bridge in the world is that across the Firth of Forth in Scotland, which has two cantilever spans of 1710 feet each.

"The construction of the Detroit River bridge will occupy about four years, but it is expected that highway traffic can be provided for in less time by placing four of the eight cables at first, and only that portion of the steelwork necessary for carrying highway deck. The other four cables can then be added, as well as the balance of the steelwork, without interfering with the traffic of automobiles, auto-trucks, and street cars over the upper or highway deck."

FEDERAL CONSIDERATION

When there is a new Government in power in Ottawa the Liberal Government of this province will have another opportunity to take up the plea for better Federal consideration. Again and again Premier Oliver has blamed the complexion of the Government at Ottawa, for a number of matters in which he claimed British Columbia could not secure recognition. He blamed that Government for the duties imposed on liquors and said these duties constituted the reason why the Provincial Government is charging such heavy prices for liquors in its stores. The Provincial Government can again take up with Ottawa the contention that the right to the income tax should belong to the Province alone, and that the Dominion should cease to collect it here. A third matter of the greatest importance is the possibility of getting the new Government at Ottawa to take over the Pacific Great Eastern Railway by making it part of the national system.

In all these three contentions this newspaper is heartily in sympathy with whatever steps Premier Oliver and his colleagues may take to presuade Ottawa to realize the viewpoints of British Columbia. Each of the proposals would inure to the benefit of this province. They should all be advanced at the earliest possible moment so that no time may be lost. In the matter of reduced duties on liquors such a plea would undoubtedly have the sympathy of the Quebec members, and Premier Oliver could ask the French-Canadian Province to join him in representations to the new Ottawa Government. That is one feature of tariff revision in which Quebec and British Columbia are a unit. The people of British Columbia will expect the Provincial Government to follow up its intentions in securing more favorable treatment, especially since one of the arguments advanced by Premier Oliver in the late campaign was that a Liberal Government in the Dominion would be more sympathetic towards the repuests of this Province, because there is a Liberal Government here.—Colonist.

MOON NO ROAD HOG, SAYS KEW SCIENTIST

All's well with the moon.

The world can continue without qualms to revolve on its axis as before.

The suggestion that the Queen of the Heavens is a kind of celestial road hog is gently but firmly denied by the superintendent of the Kew Observatory.

"I am not aware," said Dr. C. Chree, " of any abnormal happenings in connection with the moon during recent times. The fact that the moon is off its course and ahead of time can hardly be attributed to extra speed. It merely shows that modern observations are more accurate than those of our predecessors. Any suggestion of unknown forces tugging the moon is just a confession that even now astronomers are not word-perfect in the causes of things. This is a scare and no more.

"It is true that the Nautical Almanac, on whose figures all other almanacs rely, will have to be revised in view of the observations made during the recent eclipse.

"That is because those figures worked out years in advance, when our knowledge of the heavens was smaller, are now found in the light of later knowledge to be based originally on inaccurate and insufficient knowledge. It is not the moon which has changed; it is our knowledge of the moon has changed.

MINE BOSS SAYS HE WAS HELPLESS

Arizona Man Was Simply Down and Out and Couldn't Even Move Himself—Feels Fine Now

"I was down and out nearly all the time with rheumatism and finally got to where I couldn't move, even to feed myself. My wife thought I would never get well again and she knew my condition better than anyone else.

"I was absolutely helpless when my wife started giving me Tanlac and in four days I ate a hearty meal for the first time in many months. Tanlac put me on my feet and I'm back on the job working hard and feeling just fine. I have gained eight pounds in weight too."

EDITORIAL NOTES

On October 19th Last, President Harding of the United States delivered a remarkable address on the subject of Education at the College of William and Mary at Williamsburg, Va., in it he said: "It is no exaggeration to say that the Nation confronts an educational crisis. From every corner of the land, from country, town and city comes the same report that the housing accommodations for our public schools is inadequate; that tens of thousands of pupils have no place for their studies; that teachers can not be enlisted in sufficient numbers, and that school revenues are insufficient.

Let me hasten to add that this is not a condition which leads to pessimism or misgivings. I would not wish it to be otherwise. If we ever "catch up" in provision of educational facilities, it will mean to me, not that our problem is solved, but that we have our first real occasion for concern. For no people ever approached the lavishness with which Americans have given to support education; nowhere has it been so easy for the poor man or woman to gain its richest privilege. Yet the more generously we provide today, the greater is our deficiency tomorrow; and I am glad it is thus. So far as the eagerness for education outruns our provision for it, there will be assurance that we are going ahead, not backward. I am glad, though we have billions of investment in our educational plant, there are yet more people seeking education, and more demands for educated people than can be cared for.

So long as I find that the proportion of public revenue properly devoted to education is increasing, I desire to be counted among those in public life ready and anxious to struggle with the problem of raising the necessary revenues."

THE ISIS THEATRE EXTENDS GOOD WISHES

To our many patrons we extend our heartiest and best wishes for a very Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

In appreciation of the splendid patronage extended to us by the public, we wish to assure them that we are doing our very best to further deserve their favor by showing the very best pictures combined with the best music at all times. And here we beg to call your further attention, that every Wednesday and Thursday we are showing extra special features such as are shown in the largest houses only in other cities, and in most cases before being shown there. Don't miss these or you will miss a treat.

—Management of the Isis.

PICK IS GENEROUS

Blairmore, Dec. 16.—In a spirit of Christmas charity, which means much more than empty words of greeting and good wishes, Emilio Picarriello, pioneer of Crow's Nest Pass and a member of the town council here, has advertised extensively throughout the Pass that any needy family in the entire district, may call upon him for an order for 100 pounds of No. 1 flour and a box of 20 pounds of maccaroni as a Christmas gift. He has a full car of flour and a half car load of maccaroni, which he expects to give away during the holiday season. Last year he gave away several thousand pounds of flour to needy families here.

"BOB HAMPTON OF PLACER"

"Bob Hampton of Placer," the greatest, most fascinating and stirring motion picture ever made by that master director, Marshall Neilan, will be the attraction at the Orpheum theatre next week. Strong though this statement may be, it is nevertheless the finest motion picture ever made by anyone. "Bob Hampton of Placer" is adapted from the Randall Parrish story of the same name. It presents on the screen an absorbing story of romance and adventure in the thrilling days of American frontier history, and as a gripping climax General Custer's famous last stand against Sitting Bull and his Indian hordes is reproduced. The ride of the Ku Klux Klan in D. W. Griffith's masterful production, "The Birth of a Nation," carries no greater thrill than the savage charge of the Sioux against Custer and his gallant little band in "Bob Hampton of Placer." And back of it all is a charming love story and a raguish waif who will make you laugh and perhaps shed a tear. A splendid cast has been chosen by Marshall Neilan to interpret "Bob Hampton of Placer," which is a First National attraction. David Kirkwood has the title role. Featured players are Wesley Barry, Marjorie Daw, Pat O'Malley, Noah Beery and Dwight Crittenden, who portrays General Custer. You simply can't afford to miss this production. Orpheum theatre. Wednesday and Thursday, Dec. 28 and 29.

"I am in my 78th year. About 25 years ago, I began to have trouble with my Stomach. One doctor said I had Cancer; another said, Ulcer of the Stomach; another, Gall Stones; others, Ulcers of the Liver and Inflammation of the Gall Bladder.

Three years ago, I consulted one of the best specialists in Montreal. He said I must go to the hospital, have an Ulcer cut out of my stomach and gall stones removed. I was then 74 years old. I said "NO."

Then, I began to take "Fruit-a-tives". I found they helped me a lot, and I still take them occasionally, and I am so much better that my old friends often ask me what I have done to myself to look so well. I am gaining in weight and enjoying life very much"

MARINE LIFE IS NOT WELL KNOWN

A couple of years ago a volcano in Mount Mauna Los, Hawaii, was in violent eruption, and the molten lava poured down the mountain side into the water, It proved fatal to many species of sea dwellers and they floated to the surface. People of the neighborhood detected several strangly-shaped species among the fishes, and forwarded them to Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor emeritus of Leland Stanford Junior University, California, who is an expert on things piscatorial, with the result that six new species were discovered—an important contribution to this branch of natural science. The failure of the natives to make a report of their find, or their absolute ignorance, would have meant the sacrificing of this valuable knowledge.

There is no portion of the globe about which we know so little as that beneath the water's surface. Marine life offers a practically virgin territory for scientific exploration. It is entirely too vast to be left to the handful of scientists in the world specially equipped for this study. But efforts to enlist the co-operation of the public in marine life investigations have not produced very satisfactory results—at least, in so far as experiments in Canada go.

NEW CHILD'S ENDOWMENT

Under plan "B" if the parent dies, premiums cease, and the Policy becomes paid up for the full sum assured, payable at the end of the Endowment term if the child is then living. The parent or guardian is the Assured and the child is referred to as the Endowed. The Endowed is therefore protected for the full amount of the Endowment whether the assured lives or dies.

If the Endowed dies during the term leaving the Assured surviving, the Company will return all premiums with compound interest at three and a half per cent per annum; and the Policy then terminates. If, however, the Endowed survives the Assured but dies during the Endowment term, the Policy will be payable at maturity to the estate of the Assured.

The Policy is issued with profits and dividends may be taken on any of the regular plans.—See Local Agent for Terms.

SONG-WRITERS OF OLD POVERTY STRICKEN

John Howard Payne, author of "Home Sweet Home," did not get the $125 promised him for this song of which more than 100,000 copies were sold within eighteen months.

Dr. Thomas Dunn English never got a penny out of "Ben Bolt," written in 1842, although a Cincinnati publisher made tens of thousands.

Thomas Haynes Bayly, who wrote "Long, Long Ago," just about 100 years ago, sold the verse for $1.50 to a country newspaper, and others took the profit of the song.

Samuel Woodworth, author of "The Old Oaken Bucket," lived a hand-to-mouth existence all his days. He never received a penny royalty from the publishers.

Consider how different the protection afforded by copyright laws of this day to any poet, song or scenario writer, whose idea happens to be developed into a big seller, or a big screen hit.

A couple of Yale University students wrote "The Long, Long Trail" for a fraternity high jinx. The great war came on, and the author of the music happened to be in London. He doctored the tune a little to give it a marching swing, and offered it on a royalty basis. The two young men netted profits well into five figures.

The author of "Keep The Home Fires Burning" was a struggling young widow, with infant children to support. She, too, had the protection of the modern copyright laws, and shared the big profits.

Recently the heirs of the author of "The Sweet Bye and Bye" recovered a sum upwards of $70,000 from a publishing house the case having hung fire in the federal courts for many years.

There is not the shadow of a doubt but that if the originator of an idea can offer good proof of its origin, he can recover from any person who has either stolen it, or tried to avoid payment for its use.

There are no John Howard Paynes wandering homeless and poverty-stricken today, not unless they are so stupid they cannot take advantage of the full protection that is theirs.

Manners in "Whiskers Era" Had To Be Duly Prescribed

Back in the '80s—that period of social and industrial beginnings when men still rejoiced in whiskers and stovepipe hats and their mates in basques and bustles and polonaises, and folks of consequence rode in phaetons, surreys and broughams—there was a certain book to be found in every well regulated household of the west. It occupied a place of honor on the marble topped parlor centretable or upon a convenient shelf in company with the family Bible, the photograph album and the glass case of waxed fruits.

The book was referred to colloquially as "Hills Manuel," though it bore a more pretentious title—"Hill's Manuel of Social and Business Forms, a Guide to correct writing, with Approved methods of Speaking and Acting in the Various Relations of Life."

"Hill's Manuel" was probably the most comprehensive compendium of general knowledge and concrete advice that was ever compended. It was easily the best.

In matters of table manners and the etiquette of the home circle, Hill was especially felicitious and no doubt many of the general customs that prevail in the refined homes of today may be traced back to Hill's sage admonitions. Here are some points he emphasized under the head of "Errors to Be Avoided."

Never soil the tablecloth if it is possible to avoid it.

Never ust anything but fork or spoon in feeding yourself.

Never encourage a dog or cat to play with you at the table.

Never pick your teeth or put your hand in your mouth while eating.

Never come to the table in your shirt sleeves, with dirty hands or dishevelled hair.

Never wipe your hands upon the tablecloth or clean them in your mouth; use the napkin.

Never allow butter, soup or other food to remain on your whiskers.

Never make a display when removing hair, insects or other diagreeable things from your food. Place them quietly under the edge of your plate.

Never scratch your head at the table.

Never hesitate to take the last piece of cake or bread. There are probably more.

USE "DIAMOND DYES"

Dye right! Don't risk your material. Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can diamond-dye a new, rich color into old garment, draperies, coverings, everything, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.

HOCKEY RULES

As Adopted by the Pacific Coast Hockey Association

Composition of Team

Sec.1—A team shall be composed of seven players, who shall be bona fide members of the club they represent. Each player shall wear a number one the back of his sweater which number he shall retain while he is under contract with respective club.

Commencement of a Game and Definition of a Face

Sec. 2—The game shall be commenced and renewed by a face in the centre of the rink. The home club shall have the privilege of choosing the goals to defend at the start of the game. The puck shall be faced by being placed on the ice between the sticks of two opponents or by the referee dropping the puck on the ice between the sticks of the players facing, and the referee giving signal to play.

Time of Match and How Won

Sec. 3—Three twenty minutes of actual play, with an intermission of ten minutes between each period, will be the time allowed for matches. A match shall be decided by the the team scoring the greatest number of goals during the sixty minutes. In case of a tie after playing the specified sixty minutes, after ten minutes' rest play will continue until one side scores a goal, without change of goals, it being understood that any extra time played shall be considered part of the match, and all unexpired penalties shall remain in force. Goals shall be changed after each twenty minutes.

Change of Players

Sec. 4—Players may be changed at any time during the match by the captain or manager of the club, and said substitute may be placed on the ice and the original player removed without interruption of the match. The substitute shall not get on the ice until the original player is wholly off the ice or within three feet of the players' bench.

Referee and Judge of Play

Sec. 5—There shall be a referee for each match. The duties of the referee are to impose the rules, adjudicate upon disputes or case unprovided for by rules, supervise or remove umpires or timekeepers, assist the official scorer in recording names of players scoring goals or assisting in scoring goals, as provided for under scoring rules. The puck shall be considered in play until the referee stops the game, which he may do at any time by sounding the whistle. His decision shall be final on all matters of judgment and there shall be no appeal by any players. Captains may appeal on a question of proper interpretation of the playing rules. The referee may have an assistant to aid him in enforcing rules and imposing penalties, but his decision shall always be subject to reversal by the referee. The assistant shall be called the judge of play.

Injury to Players

Sec. 6—In the event of players being injured or compelled to leave the ice during a match, the referee may order the play to be continued immediately without the teams leaving the ice, a substitute taking the injured player's position on the team. Should a goalkeeper be injured he shall be allowed ten minutes to recuperate or a substitute shall be provided.

Offside Play

Sec 7—Each rink shall divide the ice surface into three equal sections by drawing a blue colored line, six inches or more in width, across the ice and up the side fences at right angles to the length of the ice. This division will make one centre section and two end sections. All players shall be considered on side in the centre section. When a player passes the puck in either of the end sections, anyone of the same side who at such moment of passing is nearer the opponents' goal line is out of play and shall not touch the puck himself or prevent another player from doing so until the puck has been played, with the one exception as provided for in Sec. 13. No player shall take the puck offside in the centre section if it has been played by one of his own side from the end section. In a play that originates in the centre section and the puck strikes the side fences in the centre section and then goes over into either of the end sections, every player shall be considered on side unless the player crosses the opponents' sectional line ahead of the play. The referee shall stop the play and face the puck wherever an offside originates.

Kicking and Holding Puck

Sec. 8—There shall be no kicking of the puck in the end sections. Kicking the puck is permissible in the centre section. No player except the goalkeeper shall hold the puck in his hand or carry it with the body or uniform. The referee shall order a face wherever the infringement occurred.

Loafing Offside

Sec. 9—No player shall be allowed to loaf beyond the centre section, and any player who crosses the opponents' sectional line ahead of the play shall be considered offside and the referee shall order a face on the line.

Foul Play

Sec. 10—Any of the folowing offences shall be considered foul play and the referee shall impose penalties as hereunder specified:

Major Fouls—Ten minutes' minimum penalty with substitute allowed after three minutes, or five minutes without substitute.

(a) Deliberately disabling an opponent by hitting, hooking or cross-checking with the stick.

(c) Kicking an opponent with skate.

(e) Abusive or profane language to officials, players or spectators.

If any of the above fouls are committed the referee may impose, in addition to the above penalty, a fine not exceeding $25.

Minor Fouls—Three to five minutes' penalty, no substitute.

(a) Deliberatly cross-checking an opponent.

(c) Deliberately charging an opponent.

(d) Deliberately delaying game.

(f) Offside interference.

No player while offside shall interfere or obstruct an opponent by skating in front of player in possession of the puck or obstruct in any way whatever. For violation of this rule the referee shall warn the offending player twice, and for every repitition of the offence shall penalize him 3 minutes.

Should major fouls or accidents occur after all the players of a club have participated in a match the opposing club must drop one of their players to equalize.

While imposing penalty the referee may or may not stop the game.

There shall be no face within 10 feet of goal for any reason, and when puck is being faced, no player shall be allowed within 5 feet of players facing.

Fair Bodycheck

A fair bodycheck shall be when a player bodies an opponent with the hip or side of the body when standing still or skating at a slow rate of speed; if, however, the player is skating fast or uses his knees, elbow or shoulders, it will be considered charging and penalized accordingly.

There will be no bodycheck within 10 feet of the boards. Penalty 3 to 5 minutes.

When the teams are playing seven-a-side and a player receives a minor or major penalty there shall be no substitute allowed, but if a second player on the same side receives a minor penalty he may be replaced by a substitute. If the second player receives a major penalty three minutes must elapse before a substitute goes on. The same for for consequent minors and majors.

Face Of Puck After Being Out of Bounds

Sec. 11—When the puck goes off the ice or a foul occurs behind the goals, it shall be taken by the referee to 5 yards from the goal on a line with the goal posts. When the puck goes over the side fences it shall be faced at least 10 feet from the fence.

Goals—How Scored

Sec. 12—A goal shall be scored when the puck shall have passed between the goal posts from in front, and below an imaginary line across the top of posts, but not when kicked or thrown in.

A goal is placed in the middle of each goal line, composed of official nets supported by two upright posts 4 feet in height, placed 6 feet apart and at least 5 feet from the end of the ice. The goal posts shall be firmly fixed. In the event of a goal pos being displaced or broken, the referee shall blow his whistle and the game shall not proceed until the posts or net is repaired. After a goal has been scored the puck shall be faced in the centre of the ice.

Goalkeeper

Sec. 13—The goalkeeper may pass the puck to any player on his side and same shall not be called offside. He may, during play, lie, kneel or sit upon the ice. He may catch puck and hold same for not longer than 3 seconds. He may drop puck on the ice but not throw it more than 10 feet or carry it with his body or uniform pads more than 10 feet. If the puck is held longer than 3 seconds the referee shall order a face 10 feet from the goals on the goal line.

Dimensions of Stick

Sec. 14—Hockey stick shall not be more than 3½ inches at any part, and shall consist entirely of wood, with tape binding permisible.

Dimensions of Puck

Sec. 15—The puck must be made of vulcanized rubber, 1 inch thick all through and 3 inches in diameter.

Umpires

Sec. 16—In each city the manager of the home club shall appoint two official umpires who will, if possible act for all games in that city. The referee alone shall have the power to replace an umpire and only for cause.

Umpires' Decisions

Sec. 17—All questions as to goals shall be settled by the umpires and their decisions shall always be subject to reversal by the referee, and his decision shall be final.

Timekeeper

Sec. 18—The president of the association shall appoint an official timekeeper in each city, whose duty it will be to keep proper time of actual play and time of penalties. The visiting club shall have the right to place a man alongside the official timekeeper to act as a check, but he shall have no official standing but may report to the manager of the visiting team any alleged mistakes, which the latter may forward to the president of the association, who, if he sees fit, may replace any official timekeeper with a new appointment; however, it is distinctly understood that any disputes over time shall not constitute a valid reason for protesting any game that the acting official timekeeper has made his decision on.

Official Scorer

Sec. 19—The president of the league shall appoint an official scorer in each city, whose duty it will be to keep a record of the goals scored, by whom, the assists and penalties of each league match played in that city. Along with this record he shall forward to the president the list of players, officials, etc., for that match as given to him by the referee.

Rinks and Dressing Rooms

Sec. 20—Each rink shall provide a seperate dressing room for the exclusive use of the referee and judge of play. The timekeepers shall ring a gong at the expiration of each period and for the start of the second and third periods after the 10 minutes' intermission has expired; this will be the signal for the players to resume play.

After the signal has been given the referee shall skate on the ice and shall start play at the end of 2 minutes whether the teams are at full strength or not.

THE PICK OF THE PICTURES

A TWO-FISTED FRONTIER GAMBLER—AND A FRECKLE-FACED KID—

That's Bob Hampton of Placer, the man who was "always searchin' fer someone," and Buddy, the boy scout, who roamed the West with him. Inseparable pals. But the pair became a trio when Bob snatched a timid white-girl from the Indians, and came mighty close to the "someone he was always searchin' fer." But Buddy sure did hate that dame!

Unparalleled scenic splendor!

MEDIAEVAL CHURCH FOR CONCERT HALL

Richard Wagner memoralized the Church of St. Catherine in his "Meistersinger von Nurnberg." It is in this church that the master singers delighted their congregations from 1620 until 1763. when it was decided that art was hardly in keeping with the spirit of a house dedicated to divine worship. A few years later the consistory of Nuremberg also decided to discontinue holding services in St. Catherine's. Nuremberg was then one of the wealthiest cities in Germany, so that the erection of a more modern building was pretty largely a matter of time only. St. Catherine's was consequently deserted, until the tourist wave hit in, when it was opened to the curious for thirty pfennings. During the war it was used as a storage room for grain. Having come to a full appreciation of its historical value and seeing that it shows no signs of falling down—it was built at the beginning of the fourteenth century—the city of Nuremberg has appropriated 565,000 marks to have it renovated and converted into an auditorium for concerts and a city museum. for which purpose it will be opened this Fall. The Philarmonic gave a trial concert in it recently and found that its acoustic properties are excelled by no other building in Germany.

Alf Dragon's cigar store, barber shop and pool room was again burglarized last week and the usual gold pieces from the punch board together with the change left in the till taken. Entrance was effected through a transom over a door at the rear of the premises.

COAL CREEK NOTES

The season of goodwill and cheer commenced in this camp on Thursday, Dec. 22, when the children of the camp assembled at the Club Hall to receive their annual presents at the hands of St. Nicholas. The room was suitably decorated for the occasion. The committee in charge were kept busy handing out the toys and goodies. Santa Claus fell by the wayside and was unable to be present.

In furtherance of the spirit of goodwill, a grand social dance was held in the Club Hall on Friday evening, which was free to all residents of the camp and members and families residing in Fernie. The terpschicorean music was all that could be desired and the eats were up to the usual standard. A regular humdinger was the unanimous verdict.

In spite of the trade depression prevailing up here, the two Johnnies of famous Scotch houses, were much in evidence during the Christmas festivities.

Harry Cartmell arrved back from Spokane on Wednesday, where he had been spending Christmas. Some burg! some time! was his reply to questions.

A grand social dance was held in the Club Hall last nght as a commencement of the New Year festivities. There is also a New Year tournament of games staged for Club members. New Year's eve will be celebrated by a banquet for the members of the Club.

FLEISHMAN CUP STAYS HERE

Two rinks from Cranbrook invaded the city on Wednesday evening with the avowed purpose of lifting the Fleishman Cup, which has remained in the possession of Fernie for the past two years. The challenging rinks were skipped by Geo. Hogarth and W. A. Cameron, while the defenders were S. Herchmer and M. A. Kastner. The games were colsely contested up to the last, when Kastner managed to secure a lead over Hogarth, which was the deciding factor in having the cup remain here. The final scores were: Herchmer 10, Cameron 10; Kastner 15, Hogarth 9; total, Fernie 25, Cranbrook 19. The other visiting curlers were McPherson, Little McKinnon, Martin, Wallinger and Gilroy. The Fernie rinks were Herchmer, Harvey Brown, Corrie and A. Watson; Kastner, Baldrey, George Winters and A. Black.

CITY COUNCIL LET CONTRACTS

A special meeting of the city council was held last night, when the tenders for material and apparatus required in connection with the electric power conversion were further considered. INTERESTING CALCULATIONS ON EDUCATION

Some very interesting calculations showing the value of education have recently been made public by the publishers of the "Book of Knowledge."

Out of five million men in Canada and the United States who never attended school only 31 attained distinction. Of thirty-three million who had a public school education 808 attained distinction. Of one million who had a high school education 1245 attained distinction. Of one million who attended college, 12,317 attained distinction.

The child with no schooling has one chance in 150,000 of performing distinguished service; with elementary education he has four times the chance, with high school education he has 87 times the chance and with a college education he has 800 times the chance.

"Every day spent in school pays the child nine dollars. Here is proof: Uneducated workers earn on the average of $750 per year for forty years, a total of $30 000. High school graduates earn on the average $1250 per year for forty years, a total of $50,000. This education requires 12 years of school of 180 days each, a total of 2160 days at school. If 2160 days at school add $20,000 to the income for life, then each day at school adds $9.02. The child that stays out of school to earn $9 less per day is losing money, not making it."

The local staff of the Kootenay Telephone Lines wish to thank all those who sent Christmas remembrances.

DETECTED BY WOMAN

Nick Ungarian, a notorious gunman, wanted in Lethbridge for attempted murder on Monday of this week, while escaping through Fernie district to the American line, made a very serious mistake when he called at the home of Constable Brown at Waldo late on Tuesday night looking for a place to sleep. The sharp eyes of Mrs. Brown, from the description supplied the police, at once detected the gunman, and after she had directed him to the bunk house informed her husband. Chief Spiller of Fernie, was wired for and in the early hours of the morning they secured their man, and he has been sent back to Lethbridge for trial.

The Lethbridge Herald of yesterday says:

Fernie, B.C., Dec. 29.—Nick Ungarian, the notorious gunman who escaped from Lethbridge early this week, after a gun fight with police officers of that city, was arrested by Chief of Provincial Police Spiller of Fernie, and Constable Brown of Waldo, this forenoon. No details of the arrest have yet been received but it is expected that Ungarian will be brought to this city this evening or tomorrow morning. The arrest is the result of the greatest vigilance on the part of the B.C. provincial police, Mounted and city police, who have kept a close watch on all trains and roads leading into the United States. Waldo is situated some 30 miles southwest of Fernie, close to the Montana border.

DAMAGE SUIT IN COUNTY COURT

In the county court this week the case of J. Wilson vs. A. H. Wiper was heard. This is an action for damages arisng out of a motor car accident which occurred the night of Nov. 14 last in the Annex Extension on the turn off Chipman Avenue to Fairy Creek bridge. According to the plaintiff he was travelling at a moderate speed outward shortly after 7 p.m. on the evening in question and just when making the turn he suddenly saw a Ford car without lights within five or six feet. He had not time to avoid a collision and a smash-up followed, resulting in repairs to his bg car to the amount of $350, with accompanying depreciation in its value of $500, for which he is suing to recover. The defendant counterclams for damages to his car to the extent of $150 and other damages. He denies that the lights on his car were not burning and claims that owing to careless driving on the part of Wilson and not keeping to his proper side of the road when making the turn the accident occurred.

His Honor Judge Thompson reserved judgment.

INVERMERE LOOKS UP

INVERMERE, B. C., Dec 29—Agricultural interests in this vicinity and in fact throughout the whole of the northern part of East Kootenay, of which this is the centre, seems to be taking on a new lease of life. This has been stimulated by the appointment of the District Agriculturist, Mr. Hay, of Cranbrook, and the motion recently passed at a union meeting of agriculturists in that city, asking for the establishment of a model dairy on the Dominion Government Experimental Station here.

The potato growers association was greatly encouraged by a recent visit paid the members by Mr. Tice, the Provincial Government's specialist on the growth of potatoes, who came in, accompanied by Mr. Hay. Together they held a joint meeting at which the results of the association's efforts of the year just closed were reviewed and an outline of what should be done for the future. As yet, there is a comparatively virgin field in here in the matter of growing of certified potatoes, but from the quality of the tuber grown and the comparative freedom of the district from disease, it looks as though this would now develop into one of the leading agricultural industries. The ground seems especially adapted for the production of large crops of first class potatoes, and all that is required is to get a start with the right character of seed and then co-operate to grow the plant to advantage and have the tubers themselves duly classified. This is all being taken to heart and every step in the way of carrying through of the ideas which Mr. Tice included is being carefully followed.

Then there is the dairying question. The air is full of the certainity of a dairy or creamery being established either here or up Golden way to look after the output of the ever increasing standard herds of milk cows which are being established. Around here they are of the Holstein type, while up towards Golden, under the able direction of Mr. Lawerence Mitchell, it is the Ayshire breed which is being fostered. It make no difference in the aggregate, but the feeling is growing, that the establishment of a model dairy or creamery has to come in the very near future or else the dairying business is going to receive a severe check. The establishment of a model dairy on the Experimental Station here would at least give the industry a better footing and would not necessitate the immediate expenditure of such a large sum of money as would that of the establishment of a creamery. The creamery people are waiting for the herds to be established while the agriculturists are waiting for the creamery, this creates a sort of a deadlock. It is generally conceded, however, that this year will in all probability see the settlement of the difference.

In the matter of agriculture interests for the district of East Kootenay as a whole a very interesting pamphlet has just made its appearance, being the report issued by the Department of Agriculture for the Dominion on the Experimental Station here. The contents are from the pen of Mr. R. Gladwyn Newton, B. S.A., the superintendent, and are most interesting and lucid in their utterances. Copies of this may be obained by application by post card or otherwise to Mr. Newton, and one should be in the hands of every farmer or producer in the district.

The one regrettable feature, and it is a feature regrettable in all the reports of the Government, is that though it deals with the experiences of the farm up to the close of the fiscal year on March 31st, 1921, yet now it is only available. This at the time when the readers would be even more interested in hearing the results for 1921. The main heads dealt with in the report are live stock, bees, poultry. field husbandry, forage crops, horticulture.

In dealing with the results of the potato experiments most wonderful figures are revealed. The report goes on to say that special care was taken to plant tubers showing viforous sprouting tendencies. The fields were irrigated. Planting was done on May 21st and the crop harvested on the 20th of September. No disease was discovered outside of common scab. As this seems to be a feature more or less common to land impregnated with alkali, it is suggested that a scab-resisting varicatyax, such as Cambridge Russet, should be grown. The tabulation of the yields shows that from Gold Coin, Lethbridge, Alberta, seed, 44 tons, 1183 pounds were grown to the acre of which 96 per cent. was marketable. The Cambridge Russet produced 51 tons to the acre with 90 per cent. marketable. The highest average for field peas over a period of five years was taken by the Prussian Blue with 49 bushels 44 pounds. Straight alfalfa crops produced 4.5 tons to the acre on an average of three years, while alfalfa-timothy during the same period produced 5.34 tons.

As a further aid to agriculture, there will this year for the first time be held here a University Extension Course of three days duration, commencing on or about the first of February. This will be carried on in the ball room of the Invermere Hotel and will be instructive and of general interest. The full programme covering this course is not yet available, but any applications received for same will be dealt with when they arrive. Mr. T. G. Turner, of Invermere, is acting as Secretary for the committee in charge.

ROBERT PEACOCK SECRETARY AGAIN OF MINERS UNION

Lethbridge Herald: Robert Peacock of this city was re-elected secretary of District 18 of the U.M.W. of A. by a plurality of 518 over the total number of votes cast for his opponents. The votes were counted in the headquarters of the district in the presence of several scrutineers and it was soon apparent that Peacock was the favorite.

The vote stood:

R. Peacock, Lethbridge	1368
F. Wheatley, Bankhead	436
W. Bond, Wayne	211
H. Brown, Drumheller	203

It will be recalled that two months ago Mr. Peacock resigned to test the feeling of the miners on the subject of the previous election of officers, a matter that had been under question. His re-election is evidence enough that he holds the confidence of his fellow workers still.

Mr. Peacock's resignation was to have become effective December 1, but he consented to carry on his work as secretary until the ballots had been counted.

In the Lethbridge camp there is general pleasure at the splendid victory achieved by Mr. Peacock, who was the undivided choice. The vote here was strong for Peacock.

WIRELESS TELEPHONES

Wirless Telephones As Fire Fighting Equipment Save B.C. Forests

It has been truly said that where there is no progress there is a backward tendency. This applies to modern methods of fighting fires in cities, which have shown such a hugh improvement in equipment and methods used, and this is no less true of Forest Fire fighting.

In cities, however, communication with the fire supression force is rapid and accurate, and it is this factor which bears such a large part in keeping down fire loss; by quick knowledge of an outbreak and quicker action. But Forests are far from towns and cities, as well as the usual commercial methods of communication, that of the telephone and telegraph or even roads. This feature is still further accentuated where the forests adjoin a coast line of approximately 12,000 miles, such as that of British Columbia, with its sparsely settled inlets from 20 to 70 miles in length; isolated logging camps scattered along the shores, and out of touch with the world except for the irregular visits of the camp tug boat, or occasionally of some coasting steamer.

With inlets of such length to cover, when a Forest Ranger starts to inspect the camps situated along these inlets on his launch; (a vessel capable of travelling at about eight miles an hour), it means that he would be out of touch with his headquarters for a week, or possibly two. It also means that he could not be reached in time to direct him to make certain inspections or give him other information until he returned to his headquarters, or could not be informed of the fact that he was needed because of a forest fire.

Conversely, he could not communicate with his headquarters, requesting help in the way of men and tools; so that the initial action, which is all important in the case of fire, could not be taken or become really effecive.

To overcome this handicap of communication, advantage was taken of advancing science in the form of the Wireless Telephone and three Land Stations and five launches were equipped with wireless telephone sets, which allowed communication with the District Supervisors headquarters being effective within a radius of 40 to 50 miles, and the whole in touch with the District Office in Vancouver, and it is now no uncommon occurence for a Ranger to receive a message within the space of a couple of hours that would, with the existing methods of communication, have taken a week or more.

From May to September 1st, 1921, a total of 3,074 messages were received at and from the different wireless sets, and 3,115 messages were transmitted, containing a total of 21,606 words. These figures convey some idea of the use to which these instruments are utilized, and approximately 90 per cent. of these messages were in reference to matters of Forest Protection.

The days of the foot patrolmen and the horse are nearly gone; new methods and ways were as necessary as the problem of protecting the forests from fire became more complex each year; and each year sees the adopting of modern scientific methods to combat Forest fires, of which the wireless telephone is but one, though a most important and necessary, link in the chain.

NEW WAGE AGREEMENT IN U.S. COAL MINES

New York, Dec. 24.—Though the coal industry of the United States is in process of readjustment and wage controversies may slow up future production, advices received here from various centres in Pennsylvania indicate that there is but little possibility of an anthracite coal shortage. Heavy coal stocks have been piled up by many companies at the present high cost of production and these are moving slowly under the market conditions prevailing now. It is reported there is a growing tendency of buyers to hold off in expectation of freight reductions and lower mine prices to follow lower wages. and the industry is stagnant as the year ends.

Production of anthracite in the United States in the first 11 months of this year was 81,295,000 tons as compared with 80 641,000 tons in the same period of 1920 and 79,970,000 tons the year before. The output of bituminous coal, however, has been considerably under that of last year.

Wage contracts with both anthracite and bituminous coal miners expire April 1 and new agreements will have to be negotiated. Representatives of the miners will begin conferences with the operators in February and it is considered unlikely that an agreement will be reached. The question will be carried to a board which President Harding is said to plan similar to the U.S. labor board, but there is a possibility of a strike.

FELT LIKE AN IRON BAND AROUND HEAD

Everybody will read with interest the statement of Miss M. E. Woodford, 1808 Filmore St., Lynchburg, Va., who says:

"I don't believe anybody ever suffered from headaches like I did. The pains felt like an iron band was being drawn around my head and my temples would throb until I was driven almost distracted. I shudder when I think of those awful headaches. I had no appetite either.

"I owe Tanlac an everlasting debt of gratitude for entirely ridding me of those terrible headaches. my stomach has been toned up too ,and everything I eat agrees with me now. Tanlac certainly brought me health and happiness."

FLAVOR IS NATURE'S

The pure sweet cream flavor of Pacific Milk is due to two factors; primarily it is the natural flavor which this wonderful dairying country gives to milk.

But it is also through an improved process that this flavor is retained. You never find a can of Pacific Milk which tastes of the tin.

NORMA TALMADGE IN "THE PASSION FLOWER," ORPHEUM, MON. & TUES.

In "The Passion Flower" Norma Talmadge will be seen at the Orpheum Theatre, Monday and Tuesday, January 2nd and 3rd in what is declared to be the most interesting starring vehicle that has yet been given her. The story is the work of Jacinto Benavente, who is acclaimed as the greatest living dramatist of Spain today. "The Passion Flower" was tremendously popular in New York last season with Nance O'Neil in the role of "Raimunda," the mother. Norma Talmadge, however, will be seen as "Acacia," the daughter, in the picture version. She is said to have created one of the finest roles of her screen career. 'The Passion Flower" is a tale of Spanish peasant life, in which love, hatred, jealousy and tragedy figure. It offers Norma Talmadge her long-awaited first opportunity to play in a spanish role. Herbert Brenon is the director of this ambitious photodrama in which Courtney Foote and Harrison Ford appear as Miss Talmadge's leading men. Others in the cast include Eulalie Jensen, Charles Stevenson, Alice May, Robert Agnew, Natalie Talmadge and Robert Payton Gibb. Many of the exterior scenes for "The Passion Flower" were filmed by Miss Talmadge in Florida.

WIT AND WISDOM

Employees of the beer dispensaries say they are not doing a tap.

The beer situation now appears to be in the same position as the late German navy at Heligoland—bottled up.

The naval ratio 5-5-3 sounds like a telephone number, while 10-10-7 suggests an automobile license tag.

As limitation is the order of the day it is proposed to extend it to include beer bottles.

The boy who when asked what he wanted Santa Claus to bring him, replied: "Everything" summed up juvenile desire in a word.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

NEW CHILD'S ENDOWMENT

Under plan "B" if the parent dies, premiums cease, and the Policy becomes paid up for the full sum assured, payable at the end of the Endowment term if the child is then living. The parent or guardian is the Assured and the child is referred to as the Endowed. The Endowed is therefore protected for the full amount of the Endowment whether the assured lives or dies.

If the Endowed dies during the term leaving the Assured surviving, the Company will return all premiums with compound interest at three and a half per cent per annum; and the Policy then terminates. If, however, the Endowed survives the Assured but dies during the Endowment term, the Policy will be payable at maturity to the estate of the Assured.

The Policy is issued with profits and dividends may be taken on any of the regular plans.—See Local Agent for Terms.

There seems to be a screw loose in our telephone service. Ever since the installation of the new cable line the service has been poor to say the least.

Christmas passed off very quietly in Fernie and with the exception of the curling match there was little excitement.

The President vs. Vice President curling match on Christmas Day resulted in a win for the former by a margin of 12 points.

Why worry cooking, when you can have a first class New Year's Dinner on Sunday, Jan. 1, from 5.30 to 8 p.m. at the Northern Hotel, with four-piece orchestra in attendance.

A meeting of the Old Timers Association will be held in the Council Chamber on Wednesday, Jan. 4. Business of importance. All members are requested to attend.

The I.O.O.F. will hold a joint installation of the officers of Mount Fernie and Esther Rebekah Lodges in Ingram's Hall on Wednesday, January 4th, at 9 p.m., followed by a social evening, to which, husbands, wives or intimate friends of members of the respective lodges are cordially invited to attend.

Late guesses at Dominion cabinet construction placed Hon. Dr. King, of Cranbrook, in the lineup, but in the final appointment he was evidently overlooked. Senator Bostock, who has been appointed Minister of Public Works, will be the only representative from this province at present. The Senator, however, who formerly was member for Kootenay, is a good man and in his particular position should be able to do a lot for the Province of British Columbia.

The Hawthorne Hall was crowded with smiling faces on Monday evening last on the occasion of the G.W.V.A. annual Christmas Tree for members' children. Great credit reflects upon H. K. Bryant for the successful time enjoyed by all. The G. W. V. A. band rendered selections during the evening. The tit-bit of the evening was when, to the skirl of the pipes manipulated by Tom Hardy, little Miss McDougall, of Vancouver, entered the hall clad in Highland costume and entertained with Scotch dances. The committee in charge tender ther thanks to the Ladies Auxiliary for assistance and providing refreshments; D. Black and the I.O.D.E. for cheques; the band for services rendered, and all who assisted in giving the kiddies a good time.

You can safely bring your children to the Isis.

The officers and members of the G.W.V.A. are to be complimented on the good work achieved during the past year. They have given out from their own funds over $400 in relief to returned men who have arrived in town in search of work. They also administered free of charge the Federal relief grant of $760. The claims of widows, pensioners and others have also been taken up, which work would have fallen on the city authorities otherwise. They have also financed the band, which has played an important part in the social welfare of the city.

SUITS CALLED FOR AND DELIVERED

THE DAY OF JUDGMENT

Following is an address delivered by Mr. L. F. Zink in Victoria Hall some time ago before an appreciative audience. He said:

"A period of six thousand years have intervened since the first Judgment Day, when all were sentenced to die. But now another day has been appointed, as it is written, 'God commandeth all men everywhere to repent (reform) because He hath appointed a day to judge the world in righteousness by that man whom He hath ordained.' Acts 17 : 30-31. A judge is one who hears, tries, determines, delivers. A very vague and indefinite idea prevails in regard to the day of judgment. The vew generally entertained is that Christ will come to earth seated upon a great white throne, and that He will summon saint and sinner before Him to be judged, amidst convulsions of nature, rending rocks, literally expecting the Lord to come and the earth to quake and mountains to their centre shake, and to have their sins rehearsed (all mankind in 24 hours), and to only return to an eternal and merciless doom, and that the saints may witness this and return to their abode happy.

"Since the first judgment day God has dealt with Abel, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, then the Jewish nation, and no other. In the meantime 'God has taken out a house of servants and a house of sons to assist in the judgment day. But mankind are not on trial now; only Christians, who have passed from death unto life. The world was judged in Adam and all lost life; death passed upon all; "death reigned." By man came death; by man came also the resurrection from the dead.' I Cor. 15 : 21-22. By one man's disobedience sentence came upon all to condemnation, even so by the righteousness of one the free gift came unto all men unto a justification of life.

"St. Paul shows that all are dying without any fault of their own, 'not willingly, but by reason of Him who hath subjected the same in hope that the creation shall be delivered,' from this dying condition. People died from Adam to Moses who did not sin after the similitude of Adam's transgression. His sin was wilful but man dies now on account of Adam's transgression. This is why a righteous acquittal has been provided through aur Saviour, and to be applied in the great judgment day.

"Notice the benefits accruing to the world through the ransom for all.

" Christ died for all original sin and all that proceeds from it. The fathers have eaten the sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge. But they will not say that proverb in that day, for if any man dies he must die for his own sin but not for the sin of another. Now all die for Adam's sin, 'not willingly.' Then what are the benefits derived from Christ's death? The benefits of Christs death will be made coextensive with the curse, for as many as lost life through Adam shall have life privileges restored to them. The redemption through Jesus, our Lord, will be as far reaching in its blessed results as the fall of Adam in its blight and ruin. If all suffered on account of Adam, will not the same all be set free on account of the last Adam who purchased for all—life privileges? This is really St. Paul's logic in Romans 5:18-19; if all shared in his condemnation so all will share in the deliverance. Romans 8:20-23. The whole creation shall be delivered from the first death, first condemnation, first hell, for there are two hells —hades and gehenna.

"The first death came upon all men independent of their individual will but the second death (the lost condition)—second hell—will reach no one independent of their individual will, for the emancipation proclamation is written in His own blood and the special day for its anouncement is the great judgment day, their trial day. Christians, who have passed from death unto life are on trial now. And in proportion to the light each one receives they are either building character or destroying character, thus making their eternal prospects better or worse for that great day 'Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap.' If they wade deep in the mire they will awaken in the resurrection day deep in the mire. And even now they may, if not seared in their consciences as with a hot iron, may extricate themselves and be thus the better prepared to make progress on the highway then. God promises He will not quench the smoking flax, nor break a bruised reed'; if only a spark of God's likeness remains He will kindle the desire in the great regeneration day, the world's new birth day.

"But some will say, if I had known this I would not have waded so deep with so-called society in the mire. If the world knew their accountability there would be a reformation in a few weeks all over the land. Whittier, the poet, has said of those who do not reform now:

" 'O, power to do; O, baffled will, he who may strive
May yet fulfil the harder task of sitting still.'

" 'O, let the nations be glad and sing (not singe) for joy, for thou shalt judge the people righteously, and govern the nations upon earth.' Psalm 67:4. Jesus has said, let the dead bury the dead. 'And if one man die for all, then we're all dead.' (Legally dead—sentenced.) Will God judge dead people who are already sentenced? No. 'He is God of the living only.' Christians have life now, and are on trial, but sinners are dead. Our law here would not judge a man for a second offense if he already had been sentenced to die. Thus Jesus shows in John 3:17-19, he came not to judge the world but to save them. He saved the world from the first condemnation by His death on the cross—not with dimes nor nickles, but with the precious blood of Jesus, not with gold nor silver, no, no. That the world might be saved, might have life, he explains that they were 'condemned already,' six thousand years ago, but that he has secured a trial for them in that day. Many talk about the terror of the judgment day.

"They portray it as without any light, without any love, without any life. He is the light that lighteth every man that cometh into the world. And millions died from Adam until Jesus came; yes millions died since He came, that never heard of the only name. Are they not lost? No, saved from the first condemnation to a trial for life in the world's judgment day when they will sing for joy. The first death ends the first life, but the second death ends the second life which our Lord provided through the ransom 'once for all.' God sent not His Son to judge the world; it had already been judged. All were sentenced in Adam, and the penalty for which they were perishing was death. When a man is dead he would be always dead unless the penalty was nulified. 'He tasted death for every man.'

"The purchase of God's love, then is to nullify death and destroy the works of the devil. Thou turnest man to destruction and sayest, return,' not to heaven, for they were never there. On that account 'the great enslaver, sin, will be shorn of its power, and the prison house of death will be opened and a release presented to every prisoner signed in the precious blood of Jesus,' and this applies to our soldier boys, too. But, 'God commands all men everywhere to repent (reform) because he hath appointed a day in which He will judge the world in righteousness.' See the accountability here? But reform is not conversion; some turn one-eighth of the way around and think they are converted. No, that is only the 'sawdust trail.' and poor foundation. 'Godly sorrow worketh repentance.' Repent and be converted means to turn all the way around, then go in the opposite way. Christians do that. Reform is less, but very good, good to the world's judgment day, but Christians are being tried now and not in that day.

"But why reform? To have something to your credit in the judgment day. Don't come back a pauper in character, when life is only beginning then. This is dying now; it will be living then. Whosoever gives even a cup of water in the name of a disciple now shall not lose his reward. We spend our years as a tale that is told; God keeps our record. You have your record on your brain like the phonograph. After a person has died, yet the voice is recorded. Now, if a man nearly dead can make a phonograph and retain the voice, what can God do? A man that died with an oath half finished on his lips will return, and will finish the oath. so perfect will God have him return with the same convolutions of the brain.

"Each person returning from the dead returns under the effects of the fall, but will not return under the original condemnation for our Lord purchased freedom for the slaves. And at that time it will be more tolerable for Sodom than for those more enlightened in this age. Yes, the Queen of Sheba, all Ethiopian, shall rise (not come down) and condemn you, for she came a long way to hear the wisdom of Solomon, and behold a greater than Solomon has been here. The men of Nineveh shall rise up in the judgment against you, because they repented in sackcloth, and ashes at the preaching of Jonah, and behold a greater than Jonah has been here. (Matt. 11: 22-24, and 12 : 41-42.) This shows responsibility, and no second chance either for Sodom for they never had one.

"God commandeth all men everywhere to reform, because He hath appointed a day in which He will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom He hath ordained. Acts 17 : 30-31.

" 'Let the heavens rejoice and let the earth be glad, let the fields be joyful before the Lord, for He cometh to judge the earth.' Psalm 96 : 10-13."

NEED BETTER IMMIGRANTS

A great many people are of the opinion that one of our missions in life is to 'Canadianize' a host of Continental Europeans.. As I take it Canada is a nation—a nation of English and French speaking peoples—and not a foreign missionery society. Such being the case immigration from down and out bedraggled Europe should cease, at least for the time being, and one is glad to see that the Canadian immigration authorities are of like mind. In a recent interview in the London "Times" Mr. W. E. Black, of the Canadian Department of Immigration and Colonization, said:

"We want the British blood and tongue in Canada, and we are going to get if we can. We are going to concentrate on the United Kingdom; what we need now is British yeast to leaven the lump."

Mr. Black goes on to state that what his department is anxious to see is a large influx of sound British agriculturists, men and women who have lived under the British flag and have some understanding of and respect for our principles and government. This programme is a portion at least of Mr. Black's present visit to Britain and it is to be hoped that he will be successful.

During the recent political campaign all parties felt compelled to appeal to the foreign voter in his native language. This was particularly true of foreigners who have settled in the Western Provinces and who on general principles decline to learn either English or French, and who forbid their children the public school.

Week after week sedition and treason are preached in Canadian churches theatres and public halls frequented by polyglot Europeans who have been allowed to enter this country, and who now that they are here would make a Russian hell of it. An Ottawa lady writing pleads that "Satudray Night" ' help the good work along, for a greater and broader Canada. by which she means help these malcontents into the country in place of kicking them out.

If this lady and others knew what was going on about them they would likely be less earnest in their desire to make Canada a "melting pot." Would it surprise these people to know that right under their noses, in some of our larger cities, in both Eastern and Western Canada, Ukranians (Little Russians) have been giving a series of dramatic entertainments, the purpot of which is to inflame the people, "overthrow the Bourgeoisie" and establish a Soviet?

To most people, as they calmly go about their business or their pleasures such details may sound like a bad dream, but these statements are none the less true. The documents are before me as I write, but for obvious reasons, the details cannot be made public at this time.—Saturday Night.

POLITICAL REGENERATION

While we have hardly been more than lukewarm in our admiration for the Hon. J. W. DeB. Farris as a politician, we are bound to admit that by resigning he has not only performed a great public service but he has also pointed the way to a greatly necessary and long overdue political regeneration.

Both Provincial political parties suffer from unsatisfactory leadership.

Conservative usefulness is strangled under the leadership of Hon. W. J. Bowser, K. C. The public have emphatically refused to entrust Mr. Bowser with power, yet he hangs to nominal leadership, and the Conservative party instead of being a constructive Provincial force, operates only as a political machine to get Mr. Bowser back into power. The one great reason for Liberal success in the last Provincial elections was the belief of the electors that to turn the Farris-Oliver combine out and put Mr. Bowser and associates in, would be merely to exchange one set of political misfortune for another.

While the Conservatives should choose a new leader, the Liberals must choose one, or have the party disrupted on account of the absolute withdrawal of public confidence from Hon. Mr. Oliver.

No man without the colossal egotism of John Oliver would have permitted this truth to become so generally discussed without voluntarily resigning and thereby preserve personal and party dignity. His leadership has been disastrous in every particular and to an appalling extent. The financial position of the Province has been allowed to drift into a crisis, while millions of dollars have been spent without contract, without audit, and without any hope of recovery.

Provincial Liberals have either to part with John Oliver now, or go down with him to political destruction.—Vancouver Sun.

BENEVOLENT SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the Ladies Benevolent Society was held at the home of Mrs. Fisher on Tuesday, Dec. 13. The President, Mrs. Herchmer, in the chair.

There were nine meetings held during the year, the President, Mrs. Herchmer presiding at all meetings.

Our society being affiliated with the Women's Council, four delegates were appointed to represent us.

Considerable aid was given in trying to secure Mothers' Compensaton in a couple of cases, one being successful; the other could not be naturalized.

Destitute families were assisted chiefly where illness prevailed, and several visits were made by the investigating committee.

Government aid, with the help of Mr. Stenson, was procured for some families living outside the city limits.

The Children's Aid Society of Vancouver, wrote asking our assistance and as there were Fernie children in this Home, the Society made a donation of $25.00, which was greatly appreciated.

The matter of sanitorium accommodation at Kamloops for tubercul patients was taken up, with the result that a petition was presented to the provincial government, signed by representatives of the different organizations of the city of Fernie bringing to the notice of the government the inadequate accommodation at Kamloops, and requesting that some provision be made at this end of the province for tubercular patients. This matter came up before the provincial house, and we understand the government advocated further accommodation at Kamloops.

The preliminary trial of Dave Gorrie, Jack Robinson and J. Henderson charged with the theft of liquor belonging to Wm. Kerr, at Dorr, has been under way for the past four days. The case was adjourned this afternoon until Monday, when it is expected the Crown will have submitted all the evidence it proposes to adduce at this time.

PRESENTATION AT G.W.V.A

The members of the local G.W.V.A assembled at a banquet in the Club rooms on Monday night for the purpose of presenting a token of esteem and appreciation to H. A. Bryant and D. F. Markland, President and Sec.-Treas., respectively. The inner man being well catered to by a staff of willing stewards under the dircetion of F. Yearby. R. Billsborough occupied the chair, and in a few well chosen words, commented on the purpose of the assembly, and called upon Dr. Corsan to make the presentation. The Dr. eulogized the work of the President and Secretary, and on behalf of the members, presented Pres. Bryant with a gold signet ring with the G W.V.A. Badge inset, and the Secretary with a gold watch suitably inscribed. The recipents suitably responded, after which a splendid programme of elocution, recounteur and vocal selections was enjoyed by all. Members from Coal Creek contributed largely to the mirth, Tom Morrison manipulated the music box in a creditable manner. The singing of "Auld Lang Syne" brought to a close another happy night in the annals of the Fernie G.W.V.A.

RECORD OF 1921 COUNCIL

On the public platform in January, 1920, G. G. Henderson, then a candidate in the mayoraity contest for the first time, made the statement that the affairs of the city had in the past five or six years been conducted in an altogether too indifferent, haphazard and expensive manner. Judging by the following figures and reports for 1921 as received from the City Treasurer and City Engineer, it would appear that Mr. Henderson's contention at that time has been fully borne out.

During the past year the public works department of the city council spent $10,092, for which there was plowed brought up to grade and rolled to a hard surface 4240 lineal feet of roadway. 2720 lineal feet of roadway was gravelled and rolled to a hard surface, of which 1680 feet was surfaced with crushed rock. There were 2760 feet of roadway 30 feet wide, and 720 lineal feet 48 feet wide macadamized with crushed rock. 7210 feet of road was repaired and a coating of cinders laid down. A total of three and a half miles of street was improved, of which one mile was finished with crushed rock. In addition to the foregoing, all bad places and mud holes in every part of the city were repaired and filled with cinders and gravel. There were constructed 29 rock drains to take care of surface water, for which 63 loads of rock was furnished. 5150 feet of old wood sidewalk was taken up and replaced with cinder walks, and an additional 1560 lineal feet of cinder walk put down where there was formerly no walk of any kind. There were 15 old worn out wooden crossings pulled up and rebuilt with rock and cinders, and six others done away with by street improvements. The remaining wooden sidewalks were kept more or less in repair with lumber taken from the sidewalks replaced by cinder walks. There were 450 lineal feet of 12 foot cement walk and 478 lineal feet of 6 foot cement walk constructed during the year, for which the city furnished the necesary sand and gravel. A cement culvert was constructed in Block 54 to replace the old wooden bridge.

Under the direction of the health deparement, the city was gone over eleven times during the year, when all rubbish and garbage was hauled away. No exact record was kept of the stuff thus removed, but over 1700 yards was taken from streets and lanes. During the year there were 84 calls for the ambulance.

In the waterworks department there were 295 applications for water service attended to, and 27 new boxes put in. The new gasoline pump purchased in 1920 for this department again proved of great convenience, and enabled workmen to make repairs much quicker and at a great deal less expense. The large reservoir on the hill east of the city is at all times filled and held in reserve for fire purposes, which had not been the case for several years prior to 1920.

Ten tons of hay were harvested in the city park during the past summer.

As the Municipal Clauses Act prevents a city treasurer closing his books before Dec. 31, it has been found impossible to get full details in all departments, but the following will suffice to clearly demonstrate to the ratepayers the vast improvement in civic fnances during the past two years.

On Dec. 31, 1919, the city had a current account overdraft of $30,000. Despite the fact that during the past year the council bought and paid for two high class trucks and a two-yard dump wagon at a cost of nearly $8000, on Dec. 31, 1921, the city had a current account credit balance of $47,270 in cash in the bank, a difference of $77,270 over 1919.

In 1919 the city paid $3 156 in interest on current account overdraft whereas in 1921 the bank paid the city $1500.

In 1919 the city council spent $1255 on sidewalks, for which sum they built 370 feet of cinder walk and repaired old board walks. In 1921 the city council spent $1500 on sidewalks, for which sum they built 671 feet of cinder walk .repaired old board walks and furnished sand and gravel for 450 lineal feet of 12-foot cement walk and 478 lineal feet of 6-ft. cement walk. From this it will be seen that the taxpayers received about twenty times as much for their money in 1921 as they did in 1919.

The upkeep of the fire department for 1921 amounted to $5240, or $1100 less than in 1919. This saving was accomplished largely owing to the fire horses having been replaced by a motor truck, and other economies.

The net surplus in the electric light department for 1921 will be somewhat less than in 1920 owing to the advance in the price of coal, the difference in this item being over $2000. The surplus for 1921 will be about $4000, whereas in 1920 it was $4,365, and in 1919, $3,932.

The surplus in the waterwork department for 1921 is $9 095, an advance of $535 over 1920, and $3,432 over 1919.

The total revenue for 1921 was $110,919..84, and the expenditure for the same period $91,640.61, leaving a general surplus of $19,640.23, and a sinking fund surplus of $5000, despite the fact that the council of 1919 used for general purposes the then total sinking fund surplus of $5,385, being the accumulation of several years.

The above resume of the business of the city for 1921 certainly shows what a good live mayor and council can do in a year, and warrants the electors of Fernie in returning these men to office for 1922. In face of such a record any opposition would seem to be ridiculous.

DR. KING FOR THE CABINET

Dr. J. H. King, minister of public works in the British Columbia cabinet, and R. E. Beattie, Liberal member-elect for East Kootenay in the federal parliament, visited Fernie on Tuesday, and a meeting of prominent Liberals was held It appears that the Hon. Dr. King has been offered the portfolio of public works in the federal cabinet by the Hon. MacKenzie King, and Dr. King wished to ascertain the views of Mr. Beattie and his supporters in East Kootenay riding regarding the possibility of Mr. Beattie resigning in his favor.

The meeting here did not commit itself in any way but left the decision to a meeting which was to be held in Cranbrook later in the day.

Dr. King, Mr. Beattie and several prominent Liberals journeyed to Cranbrook for this meeting.

In an interview with some of the Fernie delegates they stated that although the meeting was not unanimous in favor of Mr. Beattie resigning his seat in favor of Dr. King, an official statement had been issued, the text of which reads:

After an informal meeting of the Liberal supporters held in Cranbrook last night, R. E. Beattie, member-elec, for East Kootenay, offered to resign with a view to opening the seat in this constituency for Hon. Dr. King, who has been offered the portfolio of public works in the federal cabinet by Hon. MacKenzie King.

"The acceptance of Mr. Beattie's resignation was left in abeyance in order that the situation may be thoroughly considered in the different parts of the riding."

CLERGY AS AGITATORS

Dr. Hensley Henson, the Bishop of Durham, addressing the Durham Diocesan Conference recently referred to labour questions and declared that great harm was at present being done by the reckless denunciation of the existing social order, often by men who had no special knowledge either of history, of society, or of the present situation. Hypnotised by their own enthusiasm they allowed themselves to use language not only altogether excessive, but also highly inflammable.

Some of the clergy were great offenders in that respect. Having created or stimulated popular discontent by rhetorical exaggeration they pointed to discontent as sufficient proof of the existence of social oppression. They were immersed in a fallacy.

There was much food for thought in the notorious fact that critics of existing society, so far from being able to count upon popular discontent were compelled to organize an elaborate system of defamatory propaganda in order to induce the multitude to believe themselves oppressed.

Exaggeration was a besetting sin of enthusiasts. No new system would succeed if it were not honestly worked. If industrialism was swept away and some form of socialism established the success of the new order, as of the old, would have to turn on the willingness of the people honestly to work it. Reckless denunciation created a listless disaffected temper farthest removed from the spirit of good citizenship.—Saturday Night.

CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE

This week saw the City Hockey League get away to a flying start, when three games were staged in the Skating arena before very enthusiastic crowds. Ideal weather prevailed and the ice for all three games was in excellent shape. The enthusiasm of the fans, and the spirited combat of the teams indicate that the season just opened will be a very interesting one from every angle. The crowds, gradually growing larger as the schedule proceeds, are behind their favorites, giving them their support as only a fan can while a game is in progress, with hearty applause on every occasion while the players fast getting into condition after the holiday festivities, are putting forth their every effort to merit the support shown so far.

NORTHERN HOTEL WINS OPENER FROM COAL CO.

On Monday night, the Northerns and Coal Co. pryed the lid off, and gave the fans all they desired in the line of hockey. After forty-five minutes of play, the Northerns emerged victorious by the score of 6 to 3.

The game was fast for a holiday affair, and clean up to the closing stages, when a couple of players entered the lightweight precincts—we wonder how long it will be before participants will discover that such tactics are more displeasing than approved by the spectators.

The Coal Co. opened up in the scoring column shortly after play began, but it was not long before the Northerns equalled up. Enthused by this, the Northerns pressed hard the rest of the first period and soon ran their score up to five. The second period started with the Coal Co. determined to even up if possible and some hard back-checking ensued, this period ended without any further scoring by either side. In the third, the Northern added another and the Coal Co. two.

The teams were fairly even matched and only the work of the Northern goalie kept the score from being larger than it was against them. During the game very little rough work was in evidence, only two players decorating the penalty box.

Coal Co.—Goal R. Colton; Defence, E. Colton and Baker; Rover, K. Colton; Centre, B. Wilson; R. Wing, Sofko; L. Wing, Dickenson; Spare Citra.

Referee—T. Wilson.

WEST FERNIE "BLUEBIRDS" TAKE INITIAL GAME

On Tuesday night, the "Bluebirds" and Ingram's "150's" played off the postponed game of Dec. 29th, and in a free scoring bee, the better balanced team from across the river won out by the score of 11 to 9.

The game was far faster than the Monday game, and consequently far from being as clean. The determination of one team to maintain the lead and the other team to overcome the handicap was the cause of the large score, as at no time was the Bluebirds, although getting away to a four goal lead, safe enough to figure they had the game on ice.

The work of Costa in goal for the winners was the outstanding feature of the game, being incessantly bombarded, he was kept busy turning aside wicked shots, while Glover netting six goals for the winners proved he needs watching on the forward line. For the losers, Dicken, in his usual flashy manner, also garnering in six goals,, played a stellar game and with Scotty Wilson, worked hard to pull the game out of the fire.

The game was hard fought and consequently far from being clean. No less than 12 players making a visit to the timekeeper during the game. A little more strictness on the part of the referee, in the remaining games; of enforcing the tripping and body-checking rules, in the opening stages of the game will help a lot in keeping the game freer from this unnecessary roughness.

The crowd despite the lateness of the hour, stayed till the bell rang for the call of time; and voiced their opinion, that the dirty tactics would not be mised if omitted and team met team on the merits of their skill.

Bluebirds — Goal, Costa; Defence, Shand, R. Commons; Rover, Taylor; Centre, J. Thomson; R. Wing, Cairns; L. Wing, Glover.

Referee—A. Walde.

COAL CO. TEAM TAKES POSSESSION OF CELLAR

For the second time this week the Coal Co. met defeat, this tim eat the hands of Ingram's 150 team, who after their loss of Tuesday's game, started with a determination to wipe out their loss, and coming from behind nosed out their opponents by the score of 6-4.

The Coal Co., prompted by a defeat also, opened up and in the frst minute of play scored; the 150 soon equalled up, only to see the C.C. forge ahead once more. Before this period ended the 150 agan equalled and added another, giving them the lead, which, although threatened, was never overcome. In the second period each team secured two each, while in the third the 150 notched the only tally.

The game was by far the cleanest of the three. Hard checking caused some spills, but no so disastrous as in other games. The crowd, large at the start, gradually diminished, as the hour that these games finish is rather late, and want to know why the games cannot be played earlier.

On Monday night next the Northern and West Fernie Bluebirds clash, and the winner will head the league. The game will start at 6.30. On Thursday the Bluebirds will meet the Coal Co.

The following is the remaing games of the schedule to be played. Monday night games are played from 6:30 to 7:30 and Thursday night games after skating from 10 to 11 o'clock.

THOUGHT HE HAD HEART TROUBLE

Railroad Man Says He Was Nearly Down and Out When He Began Taking Tanlac.

"It is all due to Tanlac that I am able to be on the job today, for I was just about down and out when I began taking it," said Harold Blanchard, a trainman on the Canadian National Railway, residing at 330 Donald St., Winnipeg Man.

"On returning from France, after three years service over there, I was so run down and weak I could hardly work. My appetite was gone and my stomach in such a bad condition that what little I did eat seemed to do me harm instead of good. After eating I would bloat terrbly and my heart would beat like a hammer against my chest. This palpitation was so bad at times I began to think I had something serious the matter with my heart. My kidneys had also bothered me for several years and there was a severe pain in the small of my back.

"My sleep at night did me little good, for I would wake up at all hours and then get up feeling as tired as if I hadn't gone to bed at all. In fact I felt miserable all the time. One day I happened to hear a man telling how much Tanlac had helped him so I began taking it and the results have been nothing less than remarkable. To put it all in a nut-shell. I am now as strong and well as I ever was in my life and I consider Tanlac well worth recommending to everybody."

TO TRY FOR BIG WAGE CUT

In view of the present situation in the Drumhellar Valley, the Herald on Thursday interviewed O. E. S. Whiteside, of Coleman, Alberta, as to the present attitude and policy of the Western Canada Coal Operators' Association, of which he is president.

"A considerable number of mines in the association are at the present time idle," he said. "The balance are running half time, and a large portion of the tonnage being shipped is at an actual loss to the operator, a loss which cannot be increased, and which cannot be absorbed for long. We have an agreement with the men which does not expire until March 31st, and until that time, there is little likelihood of any further change favorable to the consumer."

"Does that mean that there will be no change in wages for the time being?"

"Yes; and it is only fair to the public to explain why.

"Our agreements in the past have followed more or less closely those in the central competitive field in the United States, where the workmen belong to the same organization we have here. The United Mine workers of America, after considerable negotiation between the companies and the men, and an enquiry by a presidential coal commission, made a new agreement to run for two years, and granting increases of approximately 27 per cent. based on the findings of the commission. The maintenance of a more or less balanced scale between the two fields has been recognized in the past as a desirable thing, and an agreement followed for a like term in this district, granting similar increases. Notwithstanding these contracts entered into in good faith by both parties and made here, as on the other side, with the assistance of the government, further demands were made in October, 1920, for increases of from 20 to 25 per cent. in the day wage rates. Naturally these demands were opposed, but for various reasons including the disturbed conditions in both countries at that time, the companies in both fields were ultimately obliged to concede them. These agreements do not expire until March 31 1922, and under the circumstances we cannot look for a reduction in wages until then."

"Has any attempt been made in this district to secure reductions?"

"Not by this association. We have watched the trend of events elsewhere and we feel that the interests of the public and industry would be conserved in the long run by carrying out the agreement to its logical conclusion. In some districts in the United States, the attention of the officials of the United Mine Workers of America was drawn to the fact that men were losing work and the companies losing business by competition with other districts, where the expiry of agreements or other conditons had permitted wage readjustmens modifying the cost of operation. The officials replied with a public announcement that where agreements existed, no change would be considered or permitted until they expired. In this district, where non-association mines have endeavored eo secure decreases, the United Mine Workers have made it quite clear that they follow the policy of their international and oppose any reductions at the present time. In the state of Washington, where an agreement existed as to rates of wages but not as to time a state commission found that it was impossible for the domestic mines to continue operating under the scale in existence, and recommended a reduction of from 30 to 50 per cent. The operators attempted to open their mines on that recommendation but were opposed by the union, and most of the mines have been idle all summer."

"In other states where the expiry of agreements, or other conditions permitted a reconsideration of the wage scale on its merits, marked reductions have been made, with the result that these mines have secured a large part of the business of their competitors, who are still running under old agreements and whose mines are in some cases closed down and in others running on half time. We have been seriously affected by the same competition in the Winnipeg field, where we are also meeting the competition of mines in our own territory, who are not covered by our agreement, who are paying about $4.50 as compared to our $6.85 for eight hours, work for unskilled labor, and a similar comparison with our skilled labor rates, which run as high as $9.50.

"On Vancouver Island, a new agreement was made on November 1st, reducing wages 94 cents a day with provisions for further reduction as a cost of living commission may determine from time to time. Their wages in that field are now from 27 per cent. to 30 per cent. below ours. In Nova Scotia they are negotiating for a reduced scale now.

"In Great Britain miners' wages have been reduced from time to time until they are at the present time between 8s. and 10s. as compared with 21|6 last February, or in Canadian currency at par between $1.45 and $2.43 as compared with $5.25 per day."

"Has your association formulated any policy for the spring?"

"It is public knowledge that in this country, as well as in Great Britain and the States, considerable reductions have been made effective in many lines of industry, including coal mining as I have already mentioned and metalliferous mining, lumbering railways, iron and steel trades, pulp mills, textile works and government work. These reductions run as high as 50 per cent. and it is obvious that very material reductions must be made in the coal industry in this field if we are to hold our business and continue our mines in operation.

"We have been and are being severely criticized by the public and by our customers for conditions over which at present we have no control, but which we are in good faith bound by. The industry has suffered far more than the consumer. Our tonnage this year is some 700,000 tons below the same period last year. A large part of that has been lost through inability to meet prices. I have explained why we can not do so now but there is no justification if, when the agreement expires in the spring, we do not take the necessary steps to re-establish the industry in the confidence of the public and the trade. The reductions in wages will not benefit us, except in more continuous operations and increased tonnage. The direct benefit in reduced prices will go to the consumer."

"Then I take it that owing to your agreement and to conditions which have arisen elsewhere, where agreement changes have been sought, your association does not contemplate any change until next spring?"

"That is the situation! Coal at the present time is unquestionably high and not only our own industry, but all those in which coal enters as a factor of cost must suffer and depression continue until a proper relationship of value is re-established. — Lethbridge Herald.

MUTUAL LIFE OF CANADA

NEW CHILD'S ENDOWMENT

Under plan "B" if the parent dies, premiums cease, and the Policy becomes paid up for the full sum assured, payable at the end of the Endowment term if the child is then living. The parent or guardian is the Assured and the child is referred to as the Endowed. The Endowed is therefore protected for the full amount of the Endowment whether the assured lives or dies.

If the Endowed dies during the term leaving the Assured surviving, the Company will return all premiums with compound interest at three and a half per cent per annum; and the Policy then terminates. If, however, the Endowed survives the Assured but dies during the Endowment term, the Policy will be payable at maturity to the estate of the Assured.

The Policy is issued with profits and dividends may be taken on any of the regular plans.—See Local Agent for Terms.

There is a rumor current that Fernie will soon have a larger dance hall. The present hall seems to be inadequate to handle such large crowds as attended the New Year's dance.

The largest crowd that ever attended a dance in Fernie was present at the I.O.D.E. ball on New Year's night. The gross receipts amounted to about $500.

The story of Lenine, the Dictator of Russia, living in the height of luxury, midst all the suffering in that unhappy country, should put an end to all the fine dreams of Bolshevism, Communism and Socialism.

NEW RULES OF TAXATION

Issue of the first tax notices for 1921 from the provincial taxation branch calls attention to the fact that at the recent session of the Provincial Legislature some important alterations in the previous statutory provisions governing taxation were made which taxpayers should note. The real property tax for this year is due and payable on February 15 next, and if unpaid by April 30 next, a levy of one per cent. per month will be made as penalty. Under the previous provisions of the Taxation Act these real property taxes were not due and payable until June 30th, and if paid on or before that date a ten per cent. discount was allowed. This discount has now been wiped out, and a penalty as above for non-payment by April 30 has been substituted.

At a recent session of the Legislature all the clauses dealing with income and personal property taxes were taken from the Taxation Act and incorporated in a seperate measure. Under this new act no definite due date is fixed as the limit beyond which the one per cent. per month penalty will be levied. The usual tax notices will be sent out to the taxpayer for them to make their income or personal property returns. When these returns are made the customary assessment notices will be issued and the tax will then be forthwith due and unless paid within two calendar months the tax will be deemed to be delinquent and the penalty of one per cent. per month will become operative, and for each month's delinquency a further one per cent. charge will be made. So far no income tax or personal property tax notices have been issued. The previous ten per cent. discount is eliminated. In this connection firms an corporations which are annually required to make a return of salaries paid to employees must make their returns to the department not later than February 28.

A change was also made at the recent session to the scale of taxation on incomes. The previous scale was deemed to work a hardship upon those receiving larger incomes in that a taxpayer under that scale, might, by drawing one dollar more than the maximum amount for his class, have to pay in taxation two or three hundred dollars more in taxes. Now the scale is graduated by the $1000 up to $10,500. The scale of taxation on incomes is now as follows:

One per cent. on all incomes up to $2500 instead of one per cent. up to $2000 as hitherto. On higher incomes the scale is as follows:

Over —	and not more than —	per cent.
$2500	$3500	2
3500	4500	3
4500	5500	4
5500	6500	6
6500	7500	7
7500	8500	8
8599	9500	9
9500	10500	10
10500	19500	12½

Over $25,700, 10 per cent.

The exemptions this year will be $2000 for a married individual and $1000 for a single taxpayer, with an additional exemption to the married taxpayer of $200 for each dependent within the meaning of this act. Life insurance premiums will again be exempt provided they do not amount to more than one-sixth of the gross income.

COMPLETELY FREE OF CONSTIPATION

Tried for Years to Find Relief

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" GAVE IT

Chronic Constipation or insufficient action of the bowels, is one of the great causes of disease. Some authorities even claim that Constipation cannot be permanently corrected. This is a great mistake, because here is the proof that constipation can be cured and the bowels made to act regularly and naturally.

YARMOUTH, N.S.

"For years, I was troubled with Constipation, and had to take laxatives and purgatives all the time. If I neglected to take these, the bowels would refuse to do their work.

About two years ago, a friend advised me to try "Fruit-a-tives", which I did. The first box helped me so much that I obtained further supplies of the remedy and continued the treatment. After using about eight boxes, my bowels were able to perform their particular function without aid.

The relief in my case has been lasting, as up to date, I have never had any further trouble. I can recommend "Fruit-a-tives" to all suffering as I did and I am sure they will derive equal benefit".

A. W. FRANKLIN.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c., or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

Now that we are in the New Year, it is a good time to consder the 'Made-in-B.C.' idea with more seriousness than ever, because our citizens are entitled to employment, and it is only by everyone individually and collectively backing this idea that will bring about right conditions.

THE "MAPLE LEAFS" COMING

The interest of the Canadian theatregoers in the work of their own people is fast becoming a matter of record. The accomplishments of our own soldier-boys are such as to leave no posible room for doubt as to their reception. Next Friday, Jan. 13th, the "Maple Leafs," who were the official entertainment corps of the Fourth Division at the front in France, will occupy the stage at the Grand theatre in a repitition of the identical entertainment with which they cheered in many lonely and godforsaken hours the rare leisure of their comrades.

Nobody can turn to these boys and say they did not do their share at the front. Every one of them more than did his bit. After the declaration of the Armistice, they played for a while in Brussels in aid of the destitute Belgains. and then they went to London, where for two years they were the most popular drawing card in the British metropolis. Then they came back to their own country, where they have been playing ever since.

Next week will be the second occasion on which the "Maple Leafs" have appeared here.

The repertoire of the "Maple Leafs" leave little, if anything, to be desired. It consists of skirts, scenes, character-sketches, dances single and concerted musical numbers, and specialties. Variety is its keynote, and novelty is its guarantee.

Harry Ashton is the leading "lady," and reports indicate that as a female impersonator of the most distinguished type he is without a superior on our stage. Jack Kelley is, the papers declare, just the most fascinating little soubrette on earth, while as for Hughit Williamson, the laurels of Theda Bara are in danger every time he appears on the stage.

Then there is Ben Allen, whose blackface comedy is undoubtedly unique, and who is specially featured with the "Maple Leafs." He has a new monologue. new jokes. new stories. and new everything.

Bob Anderson. Morley Plunkett, Jack Challes and Jimmie Graham, all experts entertainers, are among others who work hard and most effectively to keep the pot boiling.

The mounting and staging have not been left to the imaginaton. On the other hand, elaborate setings, gorgeous colors, and brialliant costumes have been provided and in other directions nothing has been left undone to ensure thae the "Maple Leafs" shall leave their mark upon the memories of local theatregoers.

D. W. GRIFFITH'S "THE LOVE FLOWER" AT THE ORPHEUM MONDAY & TUESDAY NEXT

The master screen craftsman, David Wark Griffith, producer of the screen's greatest sensations, creator of the most advanced innovations in motion picture productions, finder and developer of the world's greatest screen stars, has produced another wonderful production, "The Love Flower," which is being heralded everywhere as a creation of exquisite beauty, haunting charm and spirited drama.

Words of the most superlative degree and descriptions of the most laudatory nature have not been found to express in adequate terms this wonderful picture play of love and adventure such as only a Griffith, a master, may reveal in all its beauty, strength and excitement. Critics have pronounced it one of the most remarkable productions that has ever come from this master hand, and fans everywhere have reveled in its beauty and excitement and heralded it as a production comparable only with the most wonderful that has come to the screen in the past few years.

Its theme, primarily, is of unusual interest, interwoven with side lights of intricate complicatons that add materially to its action, its heart interest, its suspense and its ultimate justification, for it is an unusual dramatic story of the wonderful love of a daughter for her heart-broken father, who being hounded to the very end of the world, dares to plan the undoing of the man who is desirous of bringing ultimate disgrace upon the very light of her heart and soul and happiness to her every thought.

Not one woman in ten thousand would do what this daughter dared to do to save her father. Not one person of her sex in many times that number would have clung to the heart strings of her parents, through their many trials and tribulations, with every atom of the strength of her frail body, as did this girl of nature, this child of all that was good and true and wholesome. Gratitude is the rosemary of the heart but greater love has no one than they that would willingly give their life to save another. Yet this girl, without the knowledge of her father, plotted to give away all that was near and dear to her, even to the extent of her own life, to save for him a few more happy days on earth.

AGNES AYRES, STAR, IS FEATURED IN "THE SHEIK"

Agnes Ayres, talented and beautiful, who won stardom by her artistic work in Cecil B. De Mille's Paramount production "Forbidden Fruit," is featured with the brilliant young screen player, Rudolph Valentino, in George Melford's big Paramount production of "The Sheik," which comes to the Orpheum Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

Miss Ayres has the effective role of Diana Mayo a headstrong but brave and spirited English girl who encounters the Sheik in the desert and learns finally to love him after a somewhat harrowing experience and complete subjugation to his indominable will. He is a veritable master of men—and women. None can stand against his power which in his empire of sand is almost invincible.

Wild riding and fighting, gripping scenes in desert sandstorms, action piled on action—such are the ingredients of this photoplay by Monte M. Katterjohn, adapted from E. M. Hull's novel. And Miss Ayres has a role that is difficult, filled with hard work and tense acting, to which she does, it is said, full justice.

ORANGE GRAND LODGE AND IRISH FREE STATE

The pronunciamento of the Orange Grand Lodge of Ireland declaring that if an Irish Free State is established "Loyalists" will be compelled to defend their lives and liberties by force, and advocating force on the ground that it is the only argument to which Great Britain will listen does not, it is hoped, represent the best minds of Ulster Protestantism. In fact there is proof that it does not. The Orange hero is Gen. Sir Hubert Gough, and on the same day that the pronunciamento was issued, General Gough had the honor of proposing the very first toast drunk to the success of the Irish Free State. If the peace settlement is good enough for this brave, though somewhat reckless, soldier,—the man who threatened to resign his post as commander of Curragh camp, rather than accept orders for the enforcement of Mr. Asquith's home rule bill, — then it should be good enough for the average Ulster man. Long since another very eminent Ulster leader. Sir James Campbell became converted to the belief that the old conditions of continuous disturbances in Ireland could only be ended by a larger measure of self government and by the burying of religious feuds which have no meaning in the twentieth century.

A "loyalty" which threatens force, whenever it cannot get its own way, is so dislike loyalty that most of us cannot tell the difference. The recklessness with which Irishmen north and south have entertained the idea of bloodshed as a means of settling religious and political differences has rendered that race fantastic in the eyes of other people; and one reason why the vast majority of intelligent people approve the Irish peace settlement is because it recognizes a higher principle than force in the affairs of the human race. The "liberties" the Grand Lodge talks about are supposedly religious liberties; and what man who is not an unreasoning frantic for an instant believes that these would be endangered in the Irish Free State. Anyway the religious sentiment which tolerates force as a means of gaining its end comes from predition and is alien to the Christian spirit.—Saturday Night.

Book that amazed and thrilled the country—Now Year's Greatest Screen Sensation

The Book is the year's sensation!

You'll never forget the picture!

From the novel by Edith M. Hull

Scenario by Monte M. Katterjohn

SEE the heroine, diguised, invade the Bedouins' secret slave rites
SEE the Sheik's vengeance, the storm in the desert, a proud woman's heart surrendered.
SEE matchless scenes of gorgeous color, and wild free life, and love. In the year's supreme screen thrill.

A flaming romance of desert love! Flinging away the trappings of civilization! Leaving the "lady" only a woman, the "gentleman" only a man.

The tale of a lawless Arab Chief who loved an English beauty — and took her! Stormed her caravan—carried her off to his tent — lost her—fought for her—mastered her—won her, heart and soul!

A romance all colored with barbaric splendor. Swift and free as a galloping Bedouin. Racing through scenes that thrill with their beauty and daring.

Owing to the length of the production, and the intense interest in the story, the management request patrons to endeavor to be seated at the very commencement of the play.

Evening performance starts sharp at 7.30—One Show Only Each Night.

DE VALERA HAS QUIT

Dublin, Jan. 6.—President DeValera and his cabinet resigned office this morning after fruitless attempts had been made by the Dail Eireann members to find a formula acceptable to all parties on the peace pact with England. It was announced by Dail members that an attempt will now be made to wind up the debate on the treaty and take a vote tomorrow. It is likely a new Irish cabinet will be formed.

COAL CREEK NOTES

The banquet held in the Club rooms on New Year's Eve, reminded one of the "good old days." Jack McAlpine filled the bill as chairman in creditable manner. A willing band of stewards catered to the requirements of the inner man. After the vocal organs had been well oiled. there was no lack of would-be Carusoes, several members residing n Fernie contributed to the vocal part of the proceedings. Tommy Morrison manipulated the ivories in his own inimitable style.

The old year was closed and the new year ushered in by the tooting of the siren at the power house and the ringing of the bell at the R. C. Church.

Mr. and Mrs. C. McNay entertained a large number of friends at their home on Coyote St. on New year's night.

Miss Nora Johnstone is leaving camp to take up her studies at St. Joseph Convent School at Nelson.

Rev. Father Anthony spent New Year's Eve as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Caufield.

We are asked to announce the regular meeting of the Ladies Auxillary G.W.V.A. will be held on Tuesday evening at 7:30. As important business in connection with the forthcoming visit of the "Maple Leafs" to the Grand Theatre will be transacted, the President requests all members to attend.

The Women of Mooseheart Legion will hold their regular meeting in the Hawthorne Hall on Thursday next at 7:30. Initiation of new members, refreshments. Local members please govern themselves accordingly.

XMAS WEDDING IN CRANBROOK

Ault—Spence

A wedding ceremony of interest to a large circle of friends was performed Saturday, Dec. 24th. at 3 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Spence, when their only daughter Gladys Laura became the bride of Mr. J. Merle Ault, formerly of Cranbrook and Wycliffe, but now with the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company of Fernie

The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. T. Tapscot, pastor of the Cranbrook Baptist church, in the presence of fifty invited guests. Promptly at the appointed hour to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Miss D. Greaves the bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her father, and took her place beside her husband-to-be. She was becomingly attired in a travelling suit of toupe and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. Mrs. R. E. Sang was matron of honor. Mr. Russel Colton. of Fernie, performed the duties of best man.

The groom's gift to the bride was a silver tea set, to the matron of honor a china cup and saucer and to the best man, a gold stick pin.

The ceremony was followed by the serving of a buffet lunch, when congratulations were heartily extended to the newly married young couple.

Wedding presents, both costly and numerous, testifying to the popularity of the contracting parties were received from a host of friends from many points in East Kootenay.

Both bride and groom are exceedingly popular in Cranbrook. The bride has for the past three years been employed on the staff of the Canadian Pacific Railway Freight department and is popular with the younger set. She was a member of the girls' club, the G.B.C-X.Y.Z., and has been active in all its varied undertakings. The groom is well known n sporting circles. being for years a member of the famous Wycliffe baseball team. He recently accepted a position on the office staff of the coal company at Fernie.—Cranbrook Courier.

The regular monthly meeting of the Ladies Benevolent Society will be held at the home of Mrs. Heaphy on Tuesday, Jan. 10, at 3.30 p.m.

FULL CITIZENS TICKET ELECTED

Yesterday the Citizens' Committee ticket in the municipal field, which has for the past two years supported G. G. Henderson as mayor, carried off all the honors in a most decisive manner by electing a solid six on the aldermanic slate and H. D. Wilson as police commissioner.

Monday last when nominations were received in addition to papers placing Mayor Henderson in the field for re-election, Edward Marsham tendered these as well. However, Mr. Marsham is and has been a paid employee of this city, being employed as fireman at the municipal power plant, and as it is very specifically laid down in both the Municipal Clauses Act and Election Act that anyone receiving salary, wages or other emoluments from a municipality is disqualified from holding any elective office. Returning Officer Moffatt accordingly followed the only course which appeared open to him to do and was obliged to reject Mr. Marsham's nomination. It was intimated to Mr. Marsham, to whom all legal authority available was submitted, that he might obviate the necessity for this action by voluntarily withdrawing from the mayoralty field This he did not feel disposed to do, with the result that the returning officer had to assume the full responsibility for the rejection. Some of Mr. Marsham's supporters apparently did not take at all kindly to this procedure and appealed to the Department of the Attorney General and also enlisted Vancouver counsel. with a view to reversing the above decision. The Attorney General's department replied to the effect that it had no jurisdiction in municipal matters of this nature. The legal opinion, however, received, according to announcement from one of Vancouver's leading counsel, appears to have been more favorable to the wishes of the dissatisfied parties, as the text of it given to the public is: "In my opinion this man is not a salaried official and decision does not rest with the returning officer in any case. Should proceed to election and validity tested subsequently if desired." That is as far as developments in this particular case have gone. Mayor Henderson has been officially declared re-elected by acclamation for the year 1922, which will be his third consecutive term as chief magistrate, and as the aldermanic candidates from whom Mr. Marsham might have expected full support went down in hopeless defeat at the polls yesterday, it is almost a safe conjecture that there will be no legal aftermath to re-open the mayoralty election.

WOMEN MAY USURP MAYORALTY TROUSERS

Men, beware!

The women are going to dethrone you. They are going to seize the reins of government of this city and are going to run it to suit themselves.

They have organized cleverly and are now in a position where they can enforce their desires.

Hereafter the men will have little to say about anything. The orders are going to be issued by the women, and the men will have to obey, for the gentle sex is determined to have the whiphand.

The sun of male domination is setting. Hereafter they will have to cook the meals, wash the dishes and take care of the babies for the wives have determined that they will be emancipated from the slavery to which they have submitted for these many centuries.

The women are going to wear the trousers.

If you are curious as to the manner in which they are going to do this you will have to see Constance Talmadge in "Woman's Place," a First National attraction. which will be the feature at the Orpheum theatre today (Friday) and Saturday.

This Emerson-Loos picture shows how the women determined to assert their rights, to settle once and for all what is woman's place, and what happened to their efforts.

PRISONERS SENT UP FOR TRIAL

David Gorrie, Jack Robinson alias Jack Hanson, and Charles Henderson were on Wednesday committed for trial by Magistrate Stenson on charges of burglary, robbery with violence and theft. This case arises out of alleged hold-up of Wm. Kerr at his ranch near Dorr, 40 miles south of this city and within 12 miles of the international boundary, on Sept. 14 last, when liquors to the value of $8000 were reported to have been stolen. The three accused were arrested near Kalispell, Montana, a few days following the hold-up and charged with the above offences. They fought extradition but subsequently were turned over to the Canadian authorities and brought back here late in December. Counsel made application for bail for accused Gorrie and Robinson before Judge Thompson, but he adjourned same until Jan. 26. On this date accused will elect whether they will choose a speedy trial or wait for jury trial at the spring assizes in June.

FINAL MEETING OF OLD COUNCIL

The final meeting of the 1921 council was held on Tuesday evening. The minutes of the two preceding meeting were adopted as read.

A letter was received from the Kootenay Telephone Lines definitely arranging the charges with reference to the Isolation Hospital, which were accepted as satisfactory to the council.

The balance of the material required for the power conversion, amounting to $1051, was ordered from the Canadian General Electric Co. The contract for altering the position of the present switchboard and installing of apparatus required at the power house was let to the General Engineers, Ltd., the consideration being $764.53.

The Fire Chief's annual report was submitted. During 1921 the department responded to 16 alarms, two of which were beyond the city limits.

Carelessness—5.

Unknown—1.

On the building affected by above $39,300 insurance was carried, with $18,700 on contents, and on which the amount of insurance paid was $1682. on buildings and $2773 on contents. These figures indicate in these particular cases that over $53,000 insurance was carried over actual losses.

The report of the city engineer, the particulars of which were published last week, was read and accepted.

The annual report of Chief Lawson covering the police department, is a most interesting and comprehensive document and will be published next week.

DECISION IN LIQUOR CASE

Judge Thompson on Wednesday handed down his decision in the appeal from a conviction under the Government Control Act in re Rex ex rel J. Ungara vs. J. R. Stenson et al. Ungara was convicted before the magistrate last fall of having liquors in his possession for the purpose of sale and sentenced to six months imprisonment. The evidence on the appeal was heard before Judge Thompson in December, when the Crown submitted in evidence liquors valued at between $700 and $800, seized by Constable Hilton when accused's premises were searched. No beer was found upon the search being made, the above being spiritous liquors chiefly whiskies. The evidence adduced, however, was that with four respective parties, Ungara had either at their request or upon the suggestion of himself, undertaken to procure and deliver to each a barrel of Fernie beer. He accepted the money from these parties and subsequently the beer arrived by freight addressed to the respective parties from whom he, Ungara, had accepted the purchase money, and he personally had delivered it to their residences. The Crown contended all these transactions constituted direct sales on the part of Ungara and asked for conviction. The defence argued that a prima facie case had not been established or in any event the fullest extent to which the accused could be considered implicated in the matter was that he was merely acting as agent for the various parties who had received the beer and that did not make him guilty of making sales. The court held that the onus was upon accused to prove "no sale" or that the liquor in his possession was not kept for the purpose of sale. Defendant's counsel, following a long adjournment of the case, decided that he would not call any evidence and rested the case. The court then sustained the conviction but under a comparatively recent decision in the B.C. courts, which held that while this statute prescribed imprisonment in event of guilt being found, it was discretionary with the court to impose a fine in lieu thereof, and in view of this His Honor altered the sentence of six months to a fine of $75 or in default two months. Application was made on behalf of the defence for the return of the liquor produced in court in respect of which it was in no way connected with the present offence. This was opposed by the Crown, in view of further charges being preferred in connection therewith, and the matter was set over until Jan. 26, when final disposition will be made.

CABINET DEBATES TRANSFER OF KING

Victoria, Jan. 10.—A meeting of provincial cabinet members was held here today to discuss the proposed resignation of Hon. J. H. King and his entry into Dominion politics as minister of public works at Ottawa. At the conclusion of the meeting Premier Oliver said there would be no statement today as to Dr. King.

Dr. King told his colleagues that he had been offered the office of minister of public works by Premier Mackenzie King and that there would be no difficulty in finding a seat, as an understanding had been arrived at regarding the East Kootenay riding.

Victoria, Jan . 11.—Following a conference here today of members of the provincial cabinet, Hon. J. H. King indicated that there would be no obstacle in the way of his withdrawal from the B.C. government and accepting the office of minister of public works at Ottawa.

After the cabinet meeting the premier said there would be nothing to announce about Dr. King for some time. This was taken to mean that members of the government prefer to place the whole political situation before the conference of Liberal members here on Jan. 23 and let them decide unhampered by any preliminary announcement by members of the government.

MOSES—CROCKER

A Calgary paper has the following reference to the marriage of George Moses and Miss Crocker, of Fernie:

At the Agency, Macleod, Alberta, on New Year's night at 8 o'clock Miss Nellie F. Crocker, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. A M. Crocker of Stewlocke. Nova Scotia. was united in marriage to Geo. F. Moses, formerly of Devonshire, England, now of Fernie, B.C. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. M. S. Middleton, of St. Paul's church, Macleod at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Arthur, only intimate friends being present. The bride entered the drawing room on the arm of her brother, C. A. Arthur, while Mr. McKinley and Miss Ramage sang "The Voice That Breathed O'er Eden." She was becomingly gowned in a henna broadcloth suit trimmed with grey squirrel, with hat to match and carried a bouquet of white carnations Her only ornament was a diamond and platinum pendant, gift of the bridegroom. The bridesmaid, Miss Helen Dewar, was gowned in blue taffeta and carried a bouquet of red carnations. The bridegroom's gift to the bridesmaid was an amethyst pendant. The rooms were decorated in keeping with the Christmas season, the ceremony taking place under the arch decorated with evergreens and flowers. Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served. During the evening Mr. Faunt, Mr. Middleton and Mr. Moses sang suitable solos. The young couple left on the 1 a.m. train for Calgary and other points. They will make their home in Fernie, B.C.

ST. JOHN AMBULANCE

A meeting of the above Association was held in the Mine Rescue Station on Sunday last, with about 30 members present. C. Stubbs occupied the chair, and after dealing with the correspondence, the following officers were elected for the term:

President—C. Stubbs.
Vice-President—W. E. Carsley.
Secretary—Wm. Green.
Asst. Sec.—A. Hilton.
Executive Committee— M. Hilton, E. Ward, W. A. Brown, J. P. Bushel, J. Mutter, Mrs. E. Larner.

R. Strachan presented the medallions and label earned at the 1921 examinations, as follows:

Label—W. E. Carsley.

Before making the presentation Mr. Strachan made a short address on the work accomplished during 1921, touching on the comptitions held at Michel and Blairmore, and also on the International First Aid meet held at St. Louis.

A short discussion took place on the subject of mixed classes, some of the members explaining that it was expensive on account of the small number of ladies who attended during the last two or three years, but the secretary was finally instructed to write the Provincial Association for permission to have these classes.

It was decided to puchase six collapsible stretchers. No funds being on hand for this purpose, R. Strachan generously offered to be responsible for one, and suggested that the executive committee should be able to find ways and means of getting the others.

Lectures—Each Sunday, commencing Jan. 15, at 2 p.m.

Practices — Each Thursday commencing Jan. 19, at 7.30 p.m.

Lectures will continue for 6 weeks; practices until examinations are held at the close of the course.

For first year students, attendance at five lectures is essential to qualifying for the St. John's Certificate.

Only one course is given each year and all persons desirous of obtaining a knowledge of First Aid methods are cordially invited to attend this course.

TWO TRAPPERS FROST-BITTEN

(Special to the Free Press

Invermere, B.C., Jan 2nd.—Right now at this time of writing there is being fought out to a finish one of those grim tragedies which so often comes into the life of a trapper of those whose calling takes them into the wildernesses of the forest. One man is lying at Canal Flats with his feet frozen while his companion is by himself, dead or alive in a cabin up Findlay creek, thirty miles away from the nearest settlement. If he is dead, all is peace with him, but if he still lives, for which every hope is expressed, he is suffering the torments of the damned, for when his companion left him for help he was frozen from toes well up towards his hips. Rescuers are now on the way to him, but it will not be until tonight that they reach the lonely cabin in the wilderness. This is a few words tells the tale of the tragedy of Findlay Creek trappers.

Early last fall two men, Walter Hickey, a teamster, and Robert Scott, camp cook, joined together to trap for the winter season up on of the branches of Findlay Creek near to its upper waters. They carried their arrangements to completion and in the early fall moved in for the winter. Up to the present this winter has been an early and severe one, standing out prominently in the meteorological records as one that is cold. This coupled with the misfortune of going through the ice is what has brought disaster to these two men.

Findlay Creek is one of the chief tributaries of the Kootenay River after it once enters the Columbia and Kootenay River valleys. It is a large stream and has many far reaching branches. These take their rise in the high unpeopled valleys of the Purcell range of what is incorrectly spoken of as the Selkirks. Findlay Creek enters the Kootenay river about fifty miles to the south of this place or about sixteen miles below Canal Flats, which is the nearest settlement and the first place with telegraphic communication with the outside world. It lies on the little plain which seperates the waters of the Kootenay river from those of the Columbia and consists of a post office, a section house and a box car station on the Lake Windermere branch of the C. P. R. Outside of this settlement there are but two ranches in the neighborhood and neither of them was close to the scene of the tragedy. All the valley of Findlay Creek is the habitat of fur-bearing animals.

Many miles beyond the furthest up habitation the trappers had their headquarters cabin. It was during the early part of last week, while on the creek that they both slipped into the ice cold water which was flowing down from the nearby glaciers. The weather at this time is reported to have been thirty-five below zero. This cold was so intense as to make it difficult if not impossible to make a fire with which to dry out, but whatever the reason according to the reports which have filtered in, they did not have one, and their clothes stiffening on them with the frost, acted as conductors to their persons, with the result that they had not travelled far before both were freezing. Hickey got into the worst conditon and Scott, like a true companion help him along the ten or more weary miles which lay before them before they would reach their headquarters cabin. By this time the frost bites had become very serious and it is reported that Hickey's mind was suffering from the effects of the pain to such an extent as to cloud the brain. By the time they reached the cabin Scott found that Hickey was pretty well frozen up to the thighs while his own feet were in the same condition. Beyond building a fire and and providing for further fuel and creature comforts for the sufferer, there was nothing firther that Scott could do other than go in search of help. The nearest was at Canal Flats, 30 miles away, and it took him two days in his crippled condition to cover the distance. He reported the case to Game Warden Hardwick Grainger, who immediately set in motion for the relief of Hickey. He secured the services of Oscar Ecstrom as guide and helper. Ecstrum has for several years traped in that locality and knows the country like a book. At the earliest possible moment the start was made with supplies and restoratives. The journey was over rough up-hill country and on snow shoes. It is so rugged and rough in its character that well seasoned, strong and husky, as both these rescuers are it will probably take them two full days to reach the cabin where Hickey lies suffering. If all is well there, the preparation and the return journey will probably use up as much time again so it will probably be well on to Thursday before the end is known.

From what can be gathered from here it is hard to come to a correct conclusion as to what may have happened to Hickey in the interval. It is alleged that Scott, cannot give a very clear and comprehensive account by reason of his own sufferings. It is just possible he may not be alive when the rescue party reach the cabin but every hope is held out.

As for Scott he is now at the section house at Canal Flats and up to the time of writing has refused to leave there to have his injuries dressed until he receives word of the fate of his companion when he will be brought to the General hospital here for attention.

Hickey has lived here for many years, having been a freighter for Messrs. Burns and Jordan in the construction of the railway. When the world war broke out in 1914 he joined up, enlisting either at Cranbrook or at Calgary.

It is not an uncommon thing for the trappers to be caught in this way. Two are now missing from the neighborhood of Golden, and another one from Kimberley. These occurances bring to mind similar ones of years back and one old timer has just related to your correspondent how a young man named McVittie many years ago went through the waters of the Kootenay River. How he did not receive prompt attention and when he reached a settlement his toes were beyond recall. There was no medical attention hardy so after giving such assistance as the slender supply of carbolic acid on hand afforded, they sharpened up a pair of blacksmith's nippers and with the forceful tool cut off the blackened toes, bundled the victim up, freighted him 100 miles to Golden from where he was taken to Calgary where one foot had to be amputated and the toes cut off the other. The patient survived.

LATER

Invermere B.C., Jan. 5—In regard to the story of the two trappers up Findlay Creek which was recently sent in from outlying parts, it now develops that the case, though bad, is not as bad as first reported over the long distance.

While the occurance might have ended tragically, yet owing to the good work of Game Warden Grainger and the happening of milder weather, Walter Hickey has been brought into town and is now at the district hospital receiving the best of care and attention from the skilled staff and Dr. E.E. Coy, the district surgeon. Scott, the other man, is so far recovered as to be able to move about and is almost out of medical care.

PROGRESSIVE IMMIGRATION

W. J. Black, Deputy Minister of Immigration, has been in Britain on business relating to British government projects for engaging in a gigantic settlement scheme in the Canadian West. The basis of the scheme is the taking over of large blocks of land, twenty-four miles square, and putting on them British agriculturists who will act as instructors for a number of British people wanting to migrate to Canada.

A constructive immigration policy is one of the biggest problems confronting Canada. What Canada needs more than anything else is more settlement of her idle lands close to the railways, creating traffic, opening up new business, and producing wealth. The British government knows that a great exodus from Britain is the best way of meeting the unemployment problems but it wants its citizens to stay within the Empire. Canada cannot assimilate urban workers at present, and British farmers without capital cannot get started successfully in Canada farming. The compromise method, therefore, is to have a British government settlement scheme that will train British people in Canadian ways, and enable them to go out to farming opportunities of their own laer on.

A new setler is said to be worth $700 a year to the railways. If Canada had a few hundred thousand of them, our National Railway deficit would be reduced, our government Merchant Marine would have double business, our urban industries would benefit, and markets for agricultural products would improve. Premier Meighen recognized keenly the need for constructive work of this nature, and the appointment of Mr. Black to the position of Deputy Minister of Immigration indicated a special effort to tackle the difficult problem. Mr. Black's work as chairman of the Soldier Settlement Board has made him an expert in land settlement projects.

It is gratifying to know that the Washington conference mustered up courage to muster out mustard gas.

REDS TOOK ALL HE HAD

Moscow, Dec. 16.—Russia is no place to spend a holiday, according to Serge Solovieff, formerly a business man of New York city and Syracuse, N.Y., and later a corporal in the United States 16th field artillery, who recently arrived here on his way home, full of troubles and minus his clothes and $100 in cash taken from him at the frontier between Soviet Russia and the Far Eastern republic.

Mr. Solovieff related that after 16 years in New York he had accumulater some money and thought he could afford a holiday and improve his health.

Last June he left Seattle for Japan and then, as he speaks Russian, decided to wander through Siberia. Then he continued west, thinking to visit Moscow. But at the frontier he was stopped by the "cheka" as is familiarly termed the active police, his papers, money and clothes taken from him and he was told these would be held in safe keeping, as "everything was free in soviet Russia," and plenty of new clothes and money could be had for the asking.

After a fruitless visit to the "cheko" headquarters, where he heard light conversation about how one-third of his fellow passengers had just been shot by mistake pending a closer examination of their papers, he got aboard a departing train and reached Samara.

There he saw some Americans from the American relief administration, who gave him work at the rate of 75 cents a week, some food and clothes, and later he came in to Moscow, where he was able to get papers to take him to Riga, outside of Russia where everything and everybody is free.

The Railways of Canada Draw to Your Attention the

NEW RAILWAY RATES!

FOR PASSENGERS

The advance on sleeping and parlor car tickets authorized in 1920 has been cut in half—the advance made on ordinary fares at that time having been completely taken off many months ago.

FOR SHIPPERS

The percentage of advance granted to the Railways in 1920 has been reduced ten points. In addition to a five point drop at the first of the year.

These changes became effective December 1st.

Your cost of Living

YOUR cost of living should be directly affected. If it is not it is because (1) as the railways have pointed out before, the actual money paid for their services is an almost negligible factor in making prices, and because (2) even the huge sum now cut out of the railways' revenues and amounting to approximately—annually—becomes a very small fraction of a cent when split up among the billions upon billions of small and large articles which constitute the freight traffic of Canada during a year. And because

$25,000,000.00 *

(3) the Court which has the power to control railway rates is not able to direct who is or is not to get the benefit of reductions. In other words, whether these savings in railway charges are passed on to you—or whether they are absorbed in marketing, cannot be controlled either by the railways or the public.

BUT this fact remains: a very great sum of money—enough to build every year a small city, or a Quebec Bridge, or four hundred and fifty of the newest and most powerful locomotives—is now removed from the revenues of the Canadian Railways and should be reflected, at least to some extent, in the family budgets of all Canadians !

WHETHER your railways can continue to function without the revenue thus lost to them, is an experimental problem facing the various managements. It depends largely on whether traffic keeps up or falls off—and whether costs rise or decline. But the managements are attempting the problem cheerfully and with determination to keep Canada's railway service the cheapest, mile for mile, and among the most efficient in the world!

MISS PENELOPE DAVIES IN CALIFORNIA

Mrs. Jean Anderson Brown, formerly of Fernie, sends us a clipping from the Stockton (Cal.) Record containing the following notice of the appearance of Miss Penelope Davies in that city:

Henry Souvaine and Miss Penelope Davies, the brilliant American artists, were enthusiastically greeted in a special appearance at Central Methodist church by an audience of several hundred music lovers. Both the wonderful display of talent by Mr. Souvaine at the piano and the singing by Miss Davies in her beautiful mezzo-soprano voice were received with loud and prolonged applause.

By means of the Ampico player-piano attachment "Polonaise in A Flat" (Chopin) was played by Leopold Godowsky, and "Polka" (Rachmaninoff) was played by Sergei Rachmaninoff.

Miss Davies was first to appear on the program, singing the following songs in French: "I wept, Beloved I Dreamed" (Hue); "The Dream" (Greig); and "Carnaval" (Fourdrain). Mr. Souvaine then played "Etude in Major" (Chopin); a prelude in C flat minor and another in "E" sharp minor, both by Chopin, and "Waltz in E Minor" (Chopin).

An old negro "spiritual" entitled "The Ole Arks A-mov in'" sung by Miss Davies was a pleasant surprise to the audience since it was not announced on the program. Her singing of "Oh That We Two Were Maying" (Nevin) and Tolstoi's "Goodbye" in English were enthusiastically encored.

Before playing his original composition, "The Mood of the Mandarin," Mr. Souvaine told the story of the musical setting of it saying that it expressed first the extreme joy of a Chinese mandarin who in his exultation dances beside a winding stream and then suddenly his mood changes to melancholy, for no apparent reason only to change back again.

"Country Garden" (Grainger) was delightfully played by Mr. Souvaine, and although this was the last number on the program he very graciously responded to the insistent applause, giving two additional charming pieces including "Pret de la Mer" which was especially well received.

Tonight at the auditorium these gifted musicians who have already won the hearts of many Stocktonians will give another splendid program which was given in Portland recently before an audience of 4000 people.

THE PROPER COURSE

(Cranbrok Herald)

The people of East Kootenay in general, of whatever political faith, will commend the decision arrived at this week by the Liberal party leaders, not to sanction the member-elect stepping down to make room for a cabinet aspirant. If Hon. Mackenzie King wanted to include a B.C. member of the house of commons in his cabinet, there was one elected in this riding that many believe could have filled the requirements with credit, and just as ably as anyone else, in the B.C. government or out of it. The spectacle of a minister of the crown, a member of the provincial government, putting himself in the position of trying to get the laurels bestowed on one man transferred to himself does not add dignity to his own position. There is no wonder that the impression is growing that all is not well at Victoria. What has given rise to all the restlessness there? Premier Oliver already has a number of by-elections to face which will be extremely critical for him, and why should members of the cabinet be willing to aggravate the situation still more? There must be a reason, which will likely become apparent after the big Liberal party gathering at the coast this month.

Here's how the situation appears to a prominent Toronto daily. Probably this represents an extreme view in some respects but it indicates how an episode such as this tends to react to the detriment of the B.C. government.

"Hon. J. H. King, of British Columbia, of whom excellent reports are heard on all sides, would have been in the cabinet, if one or two difficulties could have been surmounted. Firstly, the Oliver government, of which he is a member, is in dire straits, and the wires have brought plaintive wails entreating him to stay in the local cabinet and not force a dangerous by-election. Then the newly elected Liberal members in British Columbia have shown no desperate anxiety to resign and make room for Dr. King, and want definite guarantees of adequate compensation for their sacrifices. Dr. King has gone home with the purpose of removing these obstacles to his migration to the federal sphere and if he succeeds he will, as the Premier's statement foreshadows, replace Senator Bostock as minister of public works. Both from a political and administrative point of view Dr. King will be a real acquisition to the cabinet, and is infinitely perferable to two other aspirants."

The fact remains that Mr. Beattie's position in this riding, though he has not yet attained the dignity some wouuld like to see conferred on him, is stronger than if he had lent himself to any such proposals as it would seem were on foot this week.

The results of the civic elections yesterday are a sure indication that the ratepayers of the town want the city's business handled by business men. The electors of the city spoke in no uncertain tone.

The regular monthly meeting of the I.O.D.E. will be held in the city council chamber, Saturday, Jan. 14, at 3.30. All members are requested to attend as nomination of officers will take place. Fees are due and payable to the treasurer, Mrs. Graham.

The Cranbrook curlers made another effort to capture the Fleishman Cup on Wednesday of this week, but were as usual unsuccessful. Cameron and Hodgson were the Cranbrook skips and the former was defeated by Kastner by a margin of one and the latter by Herchmer by two. The Cranbrook curlers are certainly persistent.

Up to the present only four rinks have been arranged to go to the District Bonspiel at Lethbridge, which opens on Monday next, viz: M. A. Kastner, skip, W. Baldrey, W. Gates, and A. Walde; A. C. Liphardt, skip, D. G. Harvie, H. J. Johnson and J. McLaren; S. Herchmer, skip, A. Corrie, A. Watson and J. Wilson; E. K. Stewart, skip, G. G. Henderson, Dr. Pickering and W. J. Dunwoody.

The statement has been made and published that if the Hon. Dr. King is appointed Minister of Public Works for the Dominion and Mr. Beattie resigns to give him a seat in this constituency, that there will be no Conservative opposition. There is absolutely no authority for this statement, as until a meeting of the executive of the entire district is called it is impossible to say what action will be taken. Many feel that Hon. Dr. King would be an easy man to defeat, but on the other hand there is a feeling by some that now the government is defeated it might be just as well for the riding to be represented by a cabinet minister.

A runaway accident occurred on Howland Avenue yesterday when a team belonging to W. A. Ingram, driven by H. McLaughlin, became startled from some unknown cause and bolted. The two-seated sleigh was crashed into an obstruction, violently throwing the four occupants therefrom and causing painful injuries. The party, including Mr. McLaughlin, Mrs. W. A. Ingram, Mrs. E. Cassan, of Lumsden, Sask., aunt of Mrs. Ingram, and Mrs. E. Lamb, of this city, were out for a pleasure drive. The two first mentioned escaped with nothing worse than a severe shaking up. Mrs. Cassan, however, sustained a compound fracture of one of her limbs and a broken ankle. Mrs. Lamb received severe bruising about the limbs and body. The vehicle was completely demolished but the animals were later captured none the worse for their mad dash.

PROVINCIAL POLITICS

There is one vacancy at present in the Provincial Cabinet, due to the resignation of Mrs. Ralph Smith, and two others are looming up, one through the approaching retirement from the Government of Attorney-General Farris and the other through the forthcoming appointment of Dr. J. H. King to a portfolio in the ministry of Premier King at Ottawa. Mr. Farris relinquishes his portfolio at the end of the present month, and Dr. King's new appointment will take place shortly after the opening of the Federal parliament. In the meantime, there are two Provincial by-elections pending in British Columbia, one in Nelson and the other for one of the Vancouver seats. The outlook is that with the appointment of new cabinet ministers to succeed J. W. deB. Farris and Dr. King there will be in all four, or possibly even five, by-elections to take place and there may be more if Premier Oliver seizes upon the opportunity which offers of reconstructing or reorganizing his cabinet.

The Liberal party is holding a provincial convention during the present month, at which matters of policy will be discussed, and these will bear largely on the by-election situation and the steps to be taken either provincially or through the assistance of the federal government, to reinstate provincial Liberalism in popular favor. It may be taken for granted at once that there will be no announcement of the dates of any by-elections prior to Premier Oliver's visit to Ottawa next month. It is his purpose while there to take up with the federal government the question of the future of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway in the hope of securing federal assistance towards that project. Of the new cabinet appointments, that of Attorney-General will, in every liklihood, be made within a month's time, though the by-election it will involve will be postponed. In connection with cabinet reconstruction, it is apparent that one question to be discussed will be that of the expediency of precipitating a provincial election in preference to holding a series of by-elections.

The provincial situation that has developed is causing a good deal of searching of hearts in the ranks of provincial Liberalism. Under any circumstances that may arise it is certain that the popularity of the government will be tested during the course of the present year, for, because ministers will be involved, by-elections will have to be held before the next autumn session of the legislature. The situation has already been canvassed, but there will be many more lengthy discussions before any announcement of official policy may be expected, and if we are not mistaken, the course of events will depend very much on the co-operation which the province may expect from the Dominion government. New provincial taxation and increasing expenditures have created considerable uneasiness among the people of British Columbia. In order that this feeling may be allayed, by means of an expression of public opinion on the policies involved, it is in the interest of the province's development that there should be no undue delay in a decision on the political course which the government proposes to follow.—Colonist.

	Tonnage	Value
Coal sold as coal	668 693	$4 179 331
Coal, under boilers	64,339	336,394
Coal for coke	97,354	.....
Total produced	830,446	.....
Coke produced	66,372	663,720
Total value coal and products		$5 229,445

Only exceeded by the previous year's figures and that only by a nominal margin the coal output of the Kootenay in 1921 was the second largest in recent years. The 830 446 tons estimated production of the Crows' Nest Pass Coal Co. and the Corbin Coal & Coke Co., for 1921 compares with 847,389 tons in 1920, 558,806 tons in 1919, 732,864 tons in 1918, and 551,751 tons in 1917.

As the prices of coal and coke have not changed very materially during the year the total value of the product is not very different from that of last year. Steam coal at the pithead is about $6 a ton, but on the other hand coal for domestic consumption has actually appreciated. Coke is worth about $10 compared with about $9 as the 1920 average.

Figured in this way, the value of the coal sold as coal, the coal consumed at the collieries, and the coke produced, during 1921, works out at a figure of $5 229 445.

The Corbin company did not live up to the record output made last year, the largest in its history but on the other hand the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. considerably increased its tonnage of coal raised.

GAINS REPORTED BY BUSINESS MAN

Resident of Salt Lake City Adds Ten Pounds While Wife Gains 28 Pounds in Weight

John J. Perry, 370 Quince St., well-known Salt Lake City, Utah business man, in reporting remarkable gains in weight both by himself and his wife, says:

"My wife gained twenty-eight pounds and I gained ten in a few weeks by taking Tanlac. The change in Mrs. Perry is all the more remarkable, as she had been going down hill steadily for four or five years. She got no nourishment from her food and I don't believe she averaged three hours sleep out of every twenty-four.

"While my condition was not as serious as hers I had been under the weather for some time had no appetite and was bothered a good deal by indigestion. Tanlac has certainly proved all and more than is claimed for it with us."

RESOLUTION OF THE I.B.S.A.

The International Bible Students Association, in convention assembled at Washington, D.C., begs leave most respectively to memorialize the International Arm Conference now assembled at Washington, D.C., as follows:

As Christians earnestly striving to follow the teachings of Christ Jesus our Lord and his Apostles, we hold:

That was is a relic of barbarism, destructive of good morals and a reproach to Christian peoples;

That the principles taught by the Lord Jesus Christ preclude consecrated Christians from engaging in war, bloodshed or violence in any form;

That no nation can be said to be truly Christian which fails to adhere to those principles taught by the Lord and his Apostles;

That the ruling of governing factors of the nations commonly called "Christendom" are now and for some time have been, to wit, Financial Princes, otherwise termed Controllers of Commerce, Statesmen or Political Leaders, who formulate laws, and Clergymen and other Ecclesiastical Teachers, the last named, both Catholic and Protestant, having contrary to the Word of God joined hands with the two first-mentioned factors (which three component parts here mentioned we for convenience and identification designate "The Ruling Powers");

That the delegates and representatives of The Ruling Powers now assembled in international conference at Washington for the purpose of the limitation of armaments, and insofar as possible for the establishment of conditions of peace and prosperity among the people, have before them a laudoble objective.

But we may be pardoned for humbly suggesting that the end desired cannot be attained by a partial or even complete disarmament of the nations. Reformation of men or nations will not result from the destruction of arms, but genuine reformation of men will leadautomatically to the complete destruction of all instruments of war and all forms of violence. While war is terrible beyond description of human phrose, yet it is not the worst thing to be feared.

Bolshevism, as a great menacing monster, s knocking at the door of every nation, and the destruction of all law and order is threatened. To prevent such terrible disaster and to save the people from indescribable suffering is the tremendous problem, which, we submit, resuires more than human wisdom. We therefore suggest that the heeding of Divine wisdom and the adoption of the Divine remedy as prescribed by God's holy Word is vitally essential at this time.

The kingdom of Christ, the Messiah, for which he taught his disciples to pray, is at hand. This is evidenced by the World War, famine, pestilence, social upheaval, distress of nations with perplexity, etc., all of which constitute the fulfillment of prophesies made by Jesus himself relating to the present time. Within a short time his kingdom will be fully and completely established and the old order of things completely gone. To that kingdom all earthly powers must be subject either willingly or unwillingly. The trouble upon the nations beginning in 1914 is but the expression of God's vengeance against all unrighteous systems in the earth.

The holy prophets of Jehovah indicate how that the kingdom of Christ the Messiah may be established without great suffering to humanity provided that the Div ne way be adopted. You will pardon us, therefore, for calling your attention to those Divine prophesies long ago recorded, which in substance indcate what the proper course is, to wit:

1) Let the Financial Princes, the Controllers of Commerce cease profiteering, cease exploiting and deceiving the people by systematic propaganda, and be content with a reasonable income sufficient to insure their own maintenance and support; let them use their power for the general welfare of the people to the end that the idle may be employed, the hungry fed, and each man be afforded an opportunity to provide himself and loved ones the things decent and honest in the sight of God and men.

(2) Let the Statesmen or Politicians cease to act as instruments of selfish powers and selfish interests and henceforth honestly and impartially represent and safeguard the interests and general welfare of all the people.

(3) Let the Clergymen and other Religious Teachers, who claim to be ministers of God's Word and there-e the nobles among the people, divce themselves completely from commercial and political affiliations, return to their first love, recognize God's Word as truth, honestly and faithfully teach the people the principles taught by Jesus and the Apostles, and thereby prepare the people to receive the kingdom of Christ, the Messiah, who alone can and will establish peace on earth and good will toward men.

Let the Ruling Factors by example as well as by word thus lead the people in the right way and prove that they are real friends of the people; let all the people heed the words of God refrain from violence of every kind or form, seek meekness and righteousness and the occasion for armament and war will cease. These things done, the kingdom of Christ, the Messiah, will be established on earth without suffering.

We shall be pardoned for saying that the prophecies clearly indicate that if the divinely prescribed remedy be ignored, this being the day of God's vengeance, as declared by his prophets of old, his wrath will be visited upon every government and system of Christendom; and both Jesus and the prophets declare that such shall be "a time of trouble such as the warld has never known," at which time shall "Michael (the Messiah) stand up, the great prince that standeth up for the children of thy people." This standing up of Michael will effect the deliverance of mankind from all forms of oppression and will mark the beginning of righteousness on earth. The result will be God's will done on earth as it is done in heaven, for which Jesus taught Christians to pray.

Great responsibility rests upon the Ruling Factors of the nations of the earth now in the hour of dire distress and perplexity; and we shall be pardoned for requesting such to give earnest consideration to the Word of God, having in mind that "blessed is that nation whose God is Jehovah."

Resolved that a copy of this memorial be delivered to the Honorable Charles Evans Hughes Chairman of the International Arms Congress now in session at Washington, D.C.; that copies be furnished to each delegate or representative of the nations attending said conference; that a copy be delivered to the President of the United States, and copies to the members of Congress and to the public press.

Upon motion duly put the above resolution was unanimously adopted.

A writer in a financial paper calls upon Europe to pool its floating debt. Water for the pool could easily be obtained by wringing out the stock.

INDIANAPOLIS TO GOVERN

"The mines in Alberta coal fields will be governed wholly by the recommendations of the wage convention which will be held in Indianapolis next month," said Frank Wheatley, president of the Alberta Federation of Labor." Mr. Wheatley is himself a miner at Bankhead.

Continuing, Mr. Whateley said that District 18 will have representatives at this international gathering when the whole question of wages will be gone into. Rest assured, said the federation head, the miners will not be unfair, but they ask that the operators will also be fair. Mr. Wheatley repeated that the new agreement in March will be negotiated on the basis growing out of the Indianapolis conference.

"Yes, the company is putting non-union men to work at the Callie mine as strike breakers. This is regrettable," said Mr. Wheatley.

The Drumheller strike is now in its third week with no prospects of settlement. The miners are determined to resist any cut in the wage scale, and in this they are backed up by the U.M.W.A. Provisions have been shipped into the field to take care of the miners and their families. Pickets accost strike breakers and have succeeded in persuading some to give up work. Other strike breakers are sleeping in the mine quarters, while others are driven to and from work in closed cars. A.P.P. and R.C.M.P. officers are maintaining order.

PLACE IN LEGEND AND HISTORY OF QUEEN OF SHEBA

The great part the Queen of Sheba played in the life of King Solomon is not only a matter of historical record, but also of Oriental legend, according to Virginia Tracy, author of the story on which "Queen of Sheba," the William Fox picture spectacle, which will be shown at the Isis Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday.

Throughout the East a hundred legends and traditions, mostly unwritten, keep alive the memory of the great queen who came from the south and won Solomon's heart. Her fame in Asia is beyond that of Cleopatra and that of Helen of Troy, in spite of the fact that Cleopatra had Shakespeare and Helen had Homer to sing their praises, while Sheba's love never until now has been immortalized in the written word.

Yet for proof of her strong influence on King Solomon, and, through him, probably on the whole course of history, one must turn to the Songs of Solomon, which, according to commentators, contains many passages which can refer only to the Queen of Sheba.

It is also undoubtedly true that the Songs of Solomon were written soon after the visit of the Queen of Sheba to Solomon's kingdom. Dazzled by her beauty and the magnificence of her retinue, Solomon descended from his throne to greet the Queen, who had journeyed over the desert to gaze upon his glory and hear his wisdom. And not for the first time in history wisdom and power bowed low and humbled itself before beauty.

REAL THRILLS IN "QUEEN OF SHEBA" CHARIOT RACES

The big surprise in "Queen of Sheba," which will be shown at the Isis Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, is the chariot race. It is so exciting that hundreds of people have asked how it was made. J. Gordon Edwards, who directed the filming of the story for William Fox, answers the question as follows:

"There is no secret about it. You can't keep a motion picture set containing 5000 people and covering 150 acres a secret. We simply built the arena, put on the races and photographed them from every angle we could think of. Two of the chariots overturned, giving Jimmy Murphy, a driver, the narrowest escape of his career. Tom Mix, the cowboy star, did some thrilling riding for us by way of what he called 'whooping it up,' and Betty Blythe and Nell Craig driving a chariot apiece, proved that they were as skilled and as daring horeswomen as ever I'd seen in my life. That's about all I can say."

ONCE MANAGER PASSES AWAY

Nelson, B.C., Jan. 9.—One of the foremost figures in the development of the West Kootenay passed from the stage yesterday morning when James Johnstone, the pioneer rancher of the district, died at his ranch across the lake. When attending a meeting of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' Association, of which he was at the time president, four years ago this month at coast, Mr. Johnstone was seized with a paralytic stroke and was from that time an invalid up to his death.

Born in Aberdeen, Scotland, 59 years ago, Mr. Johnstone was educated at Kings College, Aberdeen and Aberdeen university. His father was Rev. Jas. Johnstone, who was a Presbyterian minister at Belhelvie, in Aberdeenshire for 50 years, and who lived six years here, and his mother was before her marriage Miss Helen Lumsden of Aberdeen, daughter of Colonel Thos. Lumsden and sister of Sir Peter Lumsden and Sir Harry Lumsden. all three soldiers being of the Indian army.

Coming to Canada at the age of 18, Mr. Johnstone located in British Columbia 22 years ago, taking charge of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co, at Fernie, as general manager. After he was a year in that office it was divided and he was elected to develop the sales end, moving his headquarters to Nelson, where he was in closer contact with the smelters and mines requiring coal and coke. He rented the tract across the lake that is now one of the finest ranches of the Kootenay, for residence purposes, and discovering by accident isolated apple trees overwhelmed in the thicket of brush, he established that he was on the site of an early orchard, which later it was found had been planted by a Frenchman, a Mr. Siccot, commissary of the Silver King mine. This fired his ambition to prove the lake region was adapted for agriculture and he bought the tract, retired from business and commenced the business of pioneering in horticulture. At that time the only known ranch in the district was what was known as the wine ranch, where wine was made from berries and disposed of to customers.

Mr. Johnstone not only put the West Kootenay on the map as a fruit growing territory, but he added to its fame by winning medals in different parts of the world. He shipped to the Vancouver fair the first boxed apples that left the Kootenay, finding out how to arrange the pack from illustrations in a magazine from across the line. At a show in London in the earlier days he won three meuals for firsts a gold, a silver and a bronze. He kept up this record as the years went on and at the world's exposition in San Francisco in 1915 took a gold and silver medal. He also took prizes at the Spokane apple show and elsewhere. He was also one of the pioneers in the small fruits and devoted endless effort to building up a shipping trade in strawberries and cherries. He was also indefatigable in courting and winning publicity for the products of the Kootenay in every field, and he sold to Earl Grey, then governor general, the well known Earl Grey ranch at Boswell. For two years Mr. Johnstone's ranch won the $800 silver cup which Sir Thomas Shaughnessy gave at his suggestion.

Among other offices that Mr. Johnstone held at various periods was the presidency of the Nelson Agricultural and Industrial association, the presidency of the Kootenay Fruit Growers' union, the presidency of the British Columbia Fruit Growers' association for several years. a directorship in the Nelson Street Railway company, a directorship in the Farmers' exchange at the coast, a directorship in the Hunter V. mine at Ymir, a seat on the city council for two terms and other public offices. He was also a tower of strength to the board of trade for the whole period of his public career here and was a prominent member of the western irrigation congress. He had the distinction of introducing the telephone across the lake, having the first line. a cable being laid across to accommodate him.

He is survived by his second wife, Mrs. Virginia Johnstone and by two sons and two daughters, Miss Katherine who is training at the Kootenay Lake General Hospital; Harry Johnstone, who is a rancher at Boswell; Miss Ella, who is residing at home; and Thomas, who left about two months ago for Detroit.

MANY SOLDIERS IN "SHEBA" WERE IN WORLD WAR

An interesting fact about the big William Fox production "Queen of Sheba," which will be shown at the Isis on Wednesday and Thursday, Jan. 18 and 19, is the large number of World War veterans taking part in the great spectacle.

It requires but a cursory glance at the gigantic combat scenes of "Queen of Sheba" to become convinced that the military personnel of this production learned their soldiery in places other than picture lots. Their school was the war torn fields of Europe and this fact enables them to render so good an account of themselves in scenes that require unusual military snap and despatch.

Playing an envoy from King Armud to Vashti in "Queen of Sheba," is Taylor E. Duncan, formerly a captain of coast artillery, composed entirely of motion picture men—actors, writers, mechanics, etc.

The company, the 17th. was formed in Hollywood in 1916 when the Mexican situation was acute. In July, 1917, the company joined the federal service for the war with Germany and was stationed at Fort McArthur, Calif., where it was rated a crack outfit. So efficient was the company that in December, 1917, there remained only two men who had not been promoted; and those two were on extra duty.

Captain Duncan, whose ancestors had been in every war since the Revolution prior to the Spanish-American War, is a veteran of 1898 and saw service also in the Philippines. He was one of the founders of the Hollywood Post of the American Legion, composed almost entirely of men identified with the motion picture industry.

Another war veteran playing in "Queen of Sheba" is Capt. Alfred T. Slaten Coast Artillery Corps, now a lieutenant of detectives of the Los Angeles Police Force. Capt. Slaten was in charge of the criminal investigation bureau of the Provost Marshal General's office in Paris during the Great War. His duties took him to Spain, Switzerland, Italy and Belgium. He assumes the part of a Sheban commander in the picture.

HARRY BENTLEY PASSES AWAY

Lethbridge's pioneer merchant, whose tent erected on the present townsite of Lethbridge, in August, 1885, had much to do with settling the place where this city was to be built, answered the call to the Great Beyond on Saturday evening shortly after 8 o'clock, after an illness of about two weeks' duration. The late Mr. Bentley was in his 71st year and right up to within a couple of weeks of his death had enjoyed wonderful health. He was an outstanding figure among the old-timers and was widely known all through the west, particularly in Alberta, where his connections with railway construction and lumbering in the early days had brought him in contact with the makers of the west.

Pioneer of pioneers of the city of Lethbridge, the late Mr. Bentley had a hand in most of the first things which went to lay the foundation of the city, and his passing will mark the loss of the city's first merchant, one of the first mayors, one of the first presidents of the board of trade and a general leader in community affairs of the early days.

Born at London, Ont., on April 5, 1851 son of the late Robert Bentley, of Metcalfe and Strathroy, the late Mr. Bentley first saw the west in 1879, coming as far as Rapid City, Man. Later he returned to Ontario. In the early eighties however, the lure of the west again brought him this time into the Territories. He was engaged in business with the late Messrs. Tweed && Ewart, of Medicine Hat, and when the C. P. R. was being built he was in the mountains ahead of the steel. During the year when Donald, B.C., was a flourishing contracting town, he ran a store there, remaining until the construction on the east linked up with the Onderdonk contract on the west.

When coal was discovered at Lethbridge he determined to throw in his lot with the new town, and opened up the first store in a tent in the place, in June, 1885, freighting in all his goods and supplies from Medicine Hat, the nearest railway point, set up a general store, first in a tent, and in the fall of that year a frame building was erected to house the enterprise. This was the first general store in Lethbridge on the present townsite, the coal company keeping a small store for their own employees on the river bottom. Later the Bentley Co., into which the business was incorporated, built a brick block on 5th Street South and it was continued until less than ten years ago. The store is now occupied by the Consumers' Hardware Co.

Mr. Bentley's connection with the store was severed in the late nineties, when he went to Fernie, B.C., to engage in lumbering, he having acquired a very valuable timber limit near that town. However, a series of bush fires and depression in the lumber business made this a disastrous venture. Following this, Mr. Bentley went to Daysland, Alta., where he engaged for a short time in the mercantile business, leaving it later to go to Toronto. Returning to Lethbridge he was for a time police magistrate and then for a time with the staff of Campbell, Wilson & Horne. Later he became connected with the civil service in the customs department, and was a member of the customs staff here until his death.

The late Mr. Bentley was active in municipal affairs in the early days of Lethbridge. In the years 1892, 1893, 1896 and 1898 he was mayor of Lethbridge, the only man prior to the present incumbent, Mayor Hardie, who held the mayoralty for four years, and each time he was elected by acclamation. In the board of trade circles he played an important part. He was president of the board of trade for several years, almost a continuous member till he left to go to Fernie, and in his position he helped lay the railway and irrigation foundation of Southern Alberta and Lethbridge. He was also instrumental in founding the first electric light company in Lethbridge and was its president.

As a racounteur Mr. Bentley was without a peer. Nothing pleased him better than to recount the stories of the struggles of the old days when Lethbridge was but a spot on the map and the rancher was the most important personage. As was natural, Mr. Bentley was active in the formation of the Old Timers Association here a afew years ago, and only a month ago was re-elected president of the body.

The late Mr. Bentley was twice married his first wife being Josephine Auld, of Strathroy, who had two children ,Miss Bentley of Strathroy, and Fred, who died young. In 1886 he married Margaret Lettice West, of Orangeville, Ont., who with their three daughters, Mrs. R. J. Dinning, Mrs. S. C. Robson and Miss Lettice Bentley, all resident in Lethbridge survive him. He was an Anglican in religion and a Conservative in politics.

COMMUNICATION

Editor Fernie Free Press:

Sir—In view of the fact that we seem likely to have a bye-election in this electoral district before very long, may I publicly express the hope that the Registrar responsible for the voters' lists will this time pay special attention to this polling division (Baynes and Waldo). I am informed, on good authority, that several names appeared on one list which, to put it mildly, had no business to be there. Now, genuine mistakes of this sort may and do occasionally occur, and no one is much the worse, but a man who votes, knowing himself to be unqualified, or a man who induces other to vote, knowing them to be unqualified is guilty of an illegal act, of such a peculiarly dishonorable and contemptible nature, that it is surely the duty of every one of us to assist not only in trying to prevent it by every possible means, but also in exposing it whenever and wherever committed.

John Barnard.

Baynes Lake, East Kootenay, Jan. 16th, 1922.

R. E. BEATTIE TO RESIGN

The Liberal executive for the federal riding of Kootenay East met at Cranbrook on Wednesday afternoon to consider the question of the resignation of R. E. Beattie, Liberal member-elect for this riding. It was stated that Mr. Beattie had suffered a physical breakdown following the strenuous political campaign which he entered upon only on the insistence of his friends and supporters although at that time he was suffering from ill health. He is forced to undergo treatment which will even necessitate his absence from business.

After some discussion the meeting decided to accept Mr. Beattie's resignation and notification of this action has been sent to the Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King and of the necessity for a federal bye-election here.

The East Kootenay Liberals will hold their nominating convention shortly to select their candidates for this election and it was then intimated that the Hon. J. H. King, at present minister of public works in the British Columbia cabinet, will in all probability be offered the nomination, thereby making it possible for the portfolio of public works in the federal cabinet to be held by the member for Kootenay East.

Vancouver, Jan. 19. — Hon. J. H. King, provincial minister of public works, who is here today from Victoria, announced that he is leaving for Ottawa within the next three days to be sworn in as minister of public works for the Dominion.

Ottawa, Jan. 19.—The retirement of R. E. Beattie, M.P.-elect for East Kootenay, will open a constituency for Hon. J. H. King who is slated for the portfolio of public works in the federal government. It is pointed out here, however, that the only way in which Mr. Beattie can, at this juncture, render the constituency vacant is by accepting a place of profit under the crown. This course was followed by A. C. Casselman, member-elect for Grenville, to make way for the candidature of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen. Otherwise, Mr. Beattie will have to wait until after the opening of parliament and a speaker is chosen before he can tender his resignation.

THE SPIEL AT LETHBRIDGE

The latest news from Lethbridge is that A. C. Liphardt up to last evening was leading the Fernie curlers and was well up in the aggregate, having won seven games out of nine. They were in the eights in the Walker, the Macleod and the Grand Challenge.

Yesterday Kastner gave the Stewart boys of Macleod a bad beating, 13 to 0, in the 10th end. He also made Simpson, of Lethbridge, quit in the 10th with a score of 9 to 0.

(Lethbridge Herald)

The Curlers' fears as to postponement were set at rest when the weather man turned on the cold air and things tightened up all over Southern Alberta.

The big spiel is under way with an entry list of 34 rinks, 24 of which are from outside the city. It will last for the balance of the week with a break on Thursday evening for the annual meeting, which will be held at 7.30 p.m. at the Chinook Club, and followed by the annual banquet at 8.30 p.m. in the Masonic Hall.

The curlers are using nine sheets of ice, five in the curling rink and four in the skating rink. The first draw commenced at 9 a.m. Monday morning and was mostly local rinks that were drawn against each other.

Cranbrook — Wonderful Augmentation Bill Cameron, Frank McPherson, E. H. McPhee.

Stavely—Mr. Ritchie.

Taber—Jack Ross, Tom Patterson.

Coaldale—Campbell Aird.

REMARKS

Pool Rooms

There are eight pool rooms operating in the city, these premises are visited at intervals very few complaints have been received, and are conducted in an orderly manner.

Theatres

We have two Cinematographs and one Theatre; viz, the Orpheum, Isis and Grand, no complaints have been received and are conducted with great credit to the owners of same.

Hotels

There are twelve licensed Hotels in the City of various classes. In consequence of the Government Liquor Act coming into operation on the 12th day of June, 1921, all bars in the City closed their doors at midnight of the 14th of June, 1921, and have remained closed. Four Hotel proprietors have been convicted under the Government Liquor Act.

Sanitation

Regarding the scavenging system on operation in the City, from the appearance of the yards, lanes and streets, I have no hesitation in saying that Fernie is the cleanest City in the Province.

Milk

We have fourteen milk vendors in the City, during the course of the year, the premises of same have been inspected by Dr. Corsan, M.H.O. and the writer, the stables and surroundings found to be clean and sanitary. Forty-one samples of milk has been taken by the police from the different milk vendors of the City and handed to Dr. Corsan, M.H.O., for testing.

Pound

No convictions have been entered under this By-Law and very few complaints have been received from citizens. I therefore take it, that the increase in the pound fees, has made the owners of stock more careful.

One hundred and Eighteen Dog Licenses has been issued and 12 dogs destroyed. Fifty-eight head of cattle and horses have been impounded.

Fees collected, 1921, $653.50
Fees collected, 1920, $688.00

School Act

A considerable number of irregular attendance reports have been investigated. I am glad to say that only one conviction has been entered.

Motor Vehicle Act

Very few accidents have been reported in the City limits, which is satisfactory. During the year silent policemen have been placed at many of the intersections, which compells the drivers of cars to slow up and take a correct turn, thereby avoiding accidents, several drivers have been before the court for speeding.

Five permits have been issued by the writer to juveniles to operate cars, one permit cancelled. In view of the criticism which the police receive in this line, no more permits will be issued or renewed by this department without the recommendation of the Motor Vehicle Association.

Complaints

Many minor complaints have been received and investigated, which resulted in several prosecutions; others arranged to the satisfaction of all concerned without inconveniencing citizens further.

City Prisoners

During the twelve months in question, 169 prisoners have been received, of these, 32 have served out their sentence in the City Goal.

In the summer months my prisoners have been responsible to the Works and Property Department for the making of roads and sidewalks, but no allowance has been made to my department. I think at least the Works Department should be held responsible for the keep of the prisoners during the time they work on the streets; for your information, the City of Vernon allows the Police Department $1.50 per man per day for work done by the prisoners. I earnestly request that this system be followed by the City of Fernie.

Crime

No serious crime has occured during the year, the offences with which the Department has had to deal, have for the most part been of the minor sort.

R.C.M. Police and B.C. Prov. Police

During the period in question 54 prisoners have been received from the R.C.M.P. and 32 from the B. C Provincial Police. Costs of keep of same, $617.00.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to Inspector Jungett of the R.C.M.P. and Inspector Dunwoody of the B. C Provincial Police and members of the respective forces, for the valuable assistance and courteous treatment received at all times.

In conclusion, I desire to thank your Honourable Board for the assistance rendered to me during the year in the work of the Department, and the many kindnesses and courtesies shown to me at all times.

Wishing you the Compliments of the Season,

I have the Honour to be,
Sirs,
Your Obedient Servant,
S. O. Lawson,
Chief of Police.

LEMONS WHITEN AND BEAUTIFY THE SKIN

At the cost of a small jar of ordinary cold cream one can prepare a full quarter pint of the most wonderful lemon skin softener and complexion beautifier, by squeezing the juice of two fresh lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white. Care should be taken to strain the juice through a fine cloth so no lemon pulp gets in, then this lotion will keep fresh for months. Every woman knows that lemon juice is used to bleach and remove such blemishes as freckles, sallowness and tan and is the ideal skin softener, whitener and beautifier.

Just try it! Get three ounces of orchard white at any drug store and two lemons from the grocer and make up a quarter pint of this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion and massage it daily into the face, neck, arms and hands. It is marvelous to smoothen rough, red hands.

KOOTENAY 100 YEARS AGO

David Thompson was born on April 30, 1770, in St. John the Evangilist Parish, Westminster, England, of David and Ann his wife; of Welch extraction (his speech proclaimed that origin). When the boy was 2, his father died, indigent, and young David was placed in a 'charity' school—now a girl's school, and still under the Abbey's shadow, the "Grey Coat School" of Queen Anne's foundation, "to educate poor children in the principles of piety and virtue, and thereby lay foundation for a sober and Christian life." That training marked Thompson's whole career; even in the most dissolute period of fur-trade. Entering when 7, at 14 he was apprenticed for seven years to the Hudson's Bay Company, which paid a £5 fee for him. Thompson was an apt scholar and studious; as he had no home to go to, his holidays were chiefly spent in the Abbey (Westminster), particularly the Henry VII. Chapel. His favorite books were; Tales of the Genii Persian and Arabian Tales, Robinson Crusoe and Gulliver's Travels.

He arrived at Churchill, Hudson's Bay, in September, 1784. When 15, he was sent on a foot journey of 150 miles — rough tuteage — to York. When 16, he helped build 'Manchester House' (Now Birling on the C.N.R.), then the most remote Hudson's Bay post. Next, with others, he scouted the Blackfoot and Piegan country, wintering (near where Calgary is now), with the Piegans. Next year was divided, first amongst the Crees and Assiniboines (near the site of Prince Albert) and later at Cumberland House. Here he pursued his studies (having broken his right leg) in astronomy navigation and physics, and the following spring surveyed the Saskatchewan and Hayes Rivers to York, 750 miles. He wintered again at Cumberland, studying, and then next year went back to York to help rebuild it. The following years, 1792-3-4-5, he travelled all over the prairies between Hudson's Bay and the Rockies, and on May 23, 1797, left the Hudson's Bay Company employ. His note-book reads:

"This day left the services of the Hudson's Bay Company and entered that of the Merchants from Canada (the North West Company). May God Almighty prosper me." He had been with the Hudson's Bay Company thirteen years; had surveyed 9000 miles of its territory; checked by observation for 3500 miles, and had received (for the last three years) £60 per year; then probably the highest sum paid for any one of his age.

Thompson was welcomed by the Nor'-Westers, as boundary matters and the competition of the Hudson's Bay Company made the services of a man of science valuable. His first commisson was to define the 49th parallel to the mountains; to visit the Missouri head; to search for fossils; and determine positions of the N.W. Co. posts. It was to his liking; and he makes this note:

"How very differennt; the liberal and public spirit of this N. W. Co., of merchants from Canada, from the mean self sh policy of the H. B. Co., styled 'Honorable,' and who at little expense might have had the northern part of this continent surveyed to the Pacific Ocean, and greatly extended their trading posts. Whatever they have done, the British Government has obliged them to do."

This commissions occupied ten months, in which he covered 4000 miles of survey—including the north and south shores of Lake Superior from Duluth to Fort William; Rainy, Red, Winnipeg, Swan, Assiniboine and Souris river systems; and the Mississippi and Missouri heads.

Then he went on to Lake La Biche, and in 1799, to survey the Athabasca River system. On his way to Grand Portage, (which was removed to Fort William in 1801, after Thompson had found it to be in United States territory) Thompson stopped at Ile a la Crosse where the Frobishers, in 1775-6 had found the Indians playing Canada's national game, and married a half-breed Cree girl of 14 in Catherine Small, daughter of Patrick Small of Glengary, who was North-West Company agent there from 1786-7. With this wife he lived devotedly until his death and by her he had seven sons and six daughters.

Thompson wintered (1799-1800) at Fort George, on the Saskatchewan and there, with precious drawing paper, began his mapping of the Canada of his time and knowledge. In the spring of 1800 he went to new Rocky Mountain House where he stayed 2 years, exploring the eastern Rockies, spurs and passes from the Bow in the south, to the Saskatchewan in the north, and learning all he could of native manners and traditions. It was then (1800) that he first met Indians from west of the mountains (Kootenays), and he sent two men, LaGassi and Le Blanc, back with them to promote trade and reconnoitre routes. These two men were, therefore, the first whites to cross to Upper Columbia waters (Duncan McGillivary crossed in 1800, between the North Brazeua branch and Athabasca rivers). From the Rockies, in 1804, Thompson was ordered back to Churchill, and that year his name first appears as a N. W. Company partner.

In 1805 (the year Simon Fraser was sent across) the N.W. Company, having decided to enter the country west of the mountains, called Thompson to council, and late the following year (Fraser having tarried in New Caledonia, as he called Northern B.C.) he was ordered to get ready.

Great and secret preparations were made (Jaco Finlay having been quietly sent over to blaze the trail), lest the Hudson's Bay Company should precede them, and by spring 1807, the great adventure was begun. Its object was simply to open trade with the over-mountain natives (previous efforts on account of Peigan enmity and native fear, having been futile) and to find, by a pass south of the Peace (that of Mackenzie and Fraser) another route to the desired country of the Columbia.

He crossed by (now) Howse Pass (called such after Joseph Howse, a Hudson's Bay Company clerk, who followed Thompson's trail two years later), came down the blaeberry, and reached the Columbia, near where (now) is Moberley station, on the Canadian Pacific railway main line on June 30 1807. He ascended it to its source and that autumn built "Kootenai House" (about one mile northwest of Athalmer where the Columbia leaves Lake Windermere, and just north of Toby Creek, but a quarter-mile distant from that creek's mouth. (Lat. 50 degrees, 32 ft. 15 in., N., Long. 115 degrees, 51 ft. 40 in., W.)

Wintering there, he next year crossed Canal Flat (McGillivary Portage), to the Kootenay River (McGillivary's River) (called by the natives the 'Flat Bow'), throughout its course into Kootenay ('Flat Bow') Lake. On April 24 he passed the 'Torrent' (St. Mary's River—the 'Grand Quete' of Governor Simpson); and on the 27th passed 'Fine Meadown' (Tobacco River), in Montana. By May 6, he reached Kootenay Falls (between Libby and Troy on the G.N.R.) and where later in the year his lieutenant, Finan McDonald erected 'Flathead House' Portaging the falls, he struck the well-defined Indian trail (from Jennings Mont., to Bonners Ferry, Idaho), and at the latter place fell in and traded with the "Flatheads." On the 14th he reached Flat Bow (Kootenay Lake) and from Kootenay Landing returned to Bonners, where he took horse and then by the Moyie ('McDonald's' after Finan of the name) River, up what is now the C.P.R. Crow line, reaching the Kootenay near Fort Steele. This is the Simpson route of 1841; and that of the U.S. prospectors 1863-4, which running from Bonners Ferry Idaho, over Service Berry Hill to the Moyie valley (Curzon on the Crow line), past Cranbrook to Fort Steele, went on across the Kootenay to the 'diggings' at Wild Horse. Wild Horse, Thompson called "Skirmish Brook," and the Sheep, "Lussier;" and the mountain opposite his Kootenay House where he arrived on June 5, he called Mt. Nelson (locally Mt. Hammond).

From a trip over the Rockies by Howse Pass he returned on October 31 to Columbia; and sent McDonald south to establish 'Flathead House,' while with James McMillan (who built Fort Langley, 1827) and Jaco Finlay, he traded and hunted and wintered at his beloved Kootenay House.

A word or two about Finan McDonald and Jaco Finlay, Thompson's trusties and scouts. Wherever McDonald's name appears 1807 to 1826, it is invariably as advance agent developing routes and depots. It was he who opened "Flathead" (1808), and "Spokane" 1810-11) "Houses," held the 'Saleesh' at Pend d'Oreille for Thompson, and led him up-river to Revelstoke, B. C., on the return from the Astoria trip. He intermarried with the Kootenays (one of the very few whites allowed so to do), and his blood is said to run in some prominent Montana families. He last appears July 1826, asking permission to cross the Rockies, the first time in nineteen years of wilderness life.

Jaco Finlay (Jacques Raphael) half-breed, established trade for Thompson in West Montana, and Jocko Creek, Missoula County still carries his memory.

James McMillan spent twenty-one years in the Columbia country, and contributed much to the geographical and ethnological knowledge of the Spokane Flathead and Kootenay districts.

The new American silver dollar is announced to make its appearance this week. Thousands are prepared to extend it the right hand of fellowship.

A Review of the Banking Year

Sir John Aird, General Manager of The Canadian Bank of Commerce, addresses the Shareholders at the Annual Meeting of the Bank

THE contraction in business, to which I referred when addressing you a year ago, has continued unabated down to the present time; indeed it is increased in severity throughout the greater part of the year just closed. It has been a time of testing for the financial policies of all business, and particularly of banks, searching out the weak spots and revealing the true outcome of plans adopted under much brighter auspices. It has been a source of much gratification to us to find that policies adopted by this bank after full consideration, with a view of warding off the evil effects of just such a period as the present, have proved as efficacious as we had hoped, enabling us to view the present with equanimity and to look forward to the future with confidence.

A Satisfactory Showing

The net profits of the Bank during the year amounted to $3,116,136, or about $190,000 less than a year ago. Considering the difficulties with which the situation has been beset, and the steady shrinkage in the volume of all business resulting in our case in a smaller amount of loans on which to earn a profit, we venture to think that you will regard this as a satisfactory showing. We have been able to provide out of it the regular dividend of twelve per cent. and a bonus of one per cent. paid last December. We have set aside $325,000 for the very heavy burden of taxation levied by the various Governments under whose rule we transact business, $500,000 for Bank Premises Account, $178,379 for the Officers' Pension Fund, and finally carry forward into next year's accounts at the credit of Profit and Loss, a balance of $1,946,745, or $162,766 more than a year ago. The writing off of $500,000 from Bank Premises Account is in pursuance of our expressed policy of carrying our premises on our books at approximately 50 per cent. of their cost. We referred last year to having been able to acquire premises for several of our branches in the West Indies and South America on favourable terms and the purchase price of these is reflected in this year's statement, accounting for the principal part of the increase in the item of Bank Premises in our balance sheet.

Influence of Lower Prices

The decrease of somewhat over 7 million dollars in notes of the bank in circulation, which now amounts to $23,477,574, is, of course, the direct result of lower prices for commodities and of the contraction in the volume of general business. Owing to lower prices a much smaller amount of money is required to handle a given quantity of goods than a year ago. The same influences had their effects on deposits, which now stand at $353,155,200 of which about 245 millions bear interest, the balance of 99 million being non-interest-bearing. I have already mentioned the decrease in the Bank's loans, which is a natural accompainment of the decrease in deposits and circulation. The item of Bill's Payable shows an increase, standing now at $2,758,126, or somewhat more than double the figures of a year ago. This reflects the return of more normal conditions in the principal money centres abroad, and is also in a measure a tribute to the standing of this Bank in the foreign exchange markets. Acceptance under Letters of Credit show a large decrease, owing to the inactivity of foreign trade at the present time.

Strong Reserves

Cash on hand and in the Central Gold Reserves, that is, the Bank's holdings of gold and silver coin and Dominion notes, stands at $65,162,871, and represents an increase in proportion to our present liabilities by way of deposits and note issue, from 15.9 per cent. to 17.3 per cent. There has been a similar increase in the proportion between "quick assets" and these liabilities, from 48 per cent. a year ago, to 49 per cent. at the close of November last. We have thought it well to maintain ample reserves at all times under present unsettled conditions. There are several important changes in the items comprised in the term "quick assets." Thus, the amount of cheques on other banks held at the end of November shows a large decrease as compared with the figures of the previous year. The reasons for this are, of course, the general inactivity of business and lower prices.

Government Securities

There have been some considerable changes in the government securities we hold. During the year the British Government continued to reduce its indebtedness to the Canadian Banks by payment of their short term securities which the latter hold, and we took the opportunity of investing a corresponding sum, at the favourable rates which prevailed in the bond market, in the securities issued by our various provincial governments. During the year we paid off all our borrowings from the Dominion Government under the Finance Act. Loans and Discounts in Canada, other than call and short loans amounted to $206,588,328, and those elsewhere to $23,334,479. We still hold an outstanding position in the first of these two items, which represents roughly the measure of service rendered to the commercial and industrial business of Canada, and to its agricultural interests. There has been an increase in Overdue Debts, but it is small when compared with the total volume of our business and when the conditions that prevailed are taken into consideration. We have provided amply for all possible loss, and believe the figures at which this asset stands in our books to be undoubtedly conservative.

Sound Commercial Loans

Our total assets show a decrease of between 10 and 11 per cent. as compared with the figures of a year ago, which is more than accounted for by the decrease in commodity prices. At the end of November, 1920, the total assets of the Bank stood at $380,760,000, and at the end of August last, seven months later, they had been reduced to $378,814,000, that is by about $102,000,000, or over 21 per cent. This was not caused by any set policy of contraction or enforced liquidation, but simply by the natural orderly and voluntary payment of debts by our customers in the face of the depressed business situation. Naturally, it effected our earning power for the time being and has resulted in lower profits for the year, but we look upon it as most striking evidence as to the soundness of our commercial loans and as to the liquid position of our other assets. It shows, too, that the business of the bank is well diversified and not bound up with the fortunes of any one industry. You will have noticed however from the balance sheet in your hands that the total assets of the Bank as at November 30th last amounted to over $428,000,000. This increase is owing largely to our activities in connection with the movement of the crop last autumn.

Careful Administration

I should like to lay frankly before the shareholders the precautions with which we have surrounded the administration of the trust committed to our care, of which that part which bears the ultimate risk is the money which you as shareholders have invested in the business. I wish to say emphatically that the safety of your investment does not depend upon my own unaided judgment, nor upon that of any other single officer of this institute. We have departments at Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver, Sherbrooke and Halifax, for the purpose of supervising the loans of the Bank. These departments are headed by senior officers of proved judgment and experience in lending money, and they are assisted in their work by some of the best and brightest of the younger men on our staff, specially selected for the purpose. The training these men receive in these departments in the handling of credits is looked upon as offering the best opportunity this Bank can give for future promotion and usefulness. Under the personal guidance and oversight of the head of the department they check and scrutinize the judgment excercised by the various local managers in making loans. In addition, all loans or credits over a certain sum have to be passed upon by the Credit Department at Head Office and by your Board of Directors. Every year a statement signed by three of the senior officers of the Head Office in charge of credits is submitted to the Board, certifying that every credit which should come before the Board has been submitted to it.

Ample Provision

The procedure I have described is that which applies to all the current and active business of the Bank. The comparatively small number of accounts in connection with which there are slow or dragging advances, are subject to the additional test of an annual review by the Superintendents and the Chief Inspector. This takes place in the autumn of each year, and whenever in the judgment of these officers there is doubt as to the ultimate collection of the face amount of any debt, full provision for the estimated loss is made, either by writing down the debt in the books or by setting aside ample provision for it in a contingent account. The same procedure is applied to all miscellaneous assets of the Bank, such as bonds and stocks held as investments, or other items which have come into its possession for debts incurred to it. The provision which is thus made for bad debts is so ample that every year a certain amount is recovered from previously written off our books, and we have a special organization in the Head Office to look after these written-off debts and to see that nothing is left undone which is necessary to protect the Bank's interest in them. I should like to repeat what I drew attention to at the beginning of my address today, that the policies deliberately adopted by this Bank to govern its methods of lending money, with a view of protecting it from bad debts, especially under such adverse circumstances as we have passed through during the past year, have proved most effectual, so that the ratio of bad debts to total loans over a series of years show a marked decrease.

A Thorough Audit

As to the auditors' certificate, the auditors whom you elect each year are chartered accountants belonging to well known firms of established reputation. They are voted each year at these annual meetings a considerable sum for their services, namely $20,000, and undoubtedly they put forth their best endeavors in the discharge of their duties. They visit a number of the principal offices of the Bank, and in addition to verifying the accuracy of the records, and the physical existence of the cash and securities held as investments or as collateral for loans, they carefully examine the annual review of all slow or dragging loans and investments of which I have spoken, and for their own satisfaction are placed in possession of the evidence upon which our estimates of the value of such security is based. If this does not satisfy them they are at liberty to make such independent investigations as their judgment may dictate. In our opinion their work is well and thoroughly done.

A Difficult Year

In conclusion, I may say that the year through which we have just passed was undoubtedly a difficult one. Irregularities here and there in the progress of deflation show that the process is not yet fully completed. The burden of taxation is a heavy one, made unduly so by inequitable distribution. It would be well if our Governments would direct taxation more at what people are spending and less at what they are saving. It must be remembered that high municipal taxes are one of the influences that keep up rents and retail prices just as taxes on profits keep up the prices of manufactured goods. The lack of capital accumulations and the high level of wages also function in the matter of taxes on employment, tending to increase the unemployment which has been so prevalent. In these and other ways the return of prosperity is being held back.

Improving Prospect

Yet the position has undoubtedly improved in many respects. The doubt as to the future so widespread a year ago has largely disappeared. The stocks of goods produced at a high cost have been steadily reduced by consumption, even if often disposed of at a loss. The problem of production at lower costs, which for a time seemed so baffling, appears now in a fair way to be solved. The soil and other natural resources of Canada are as ready as ever to respond to the efforts of her people. If business seems at present to be more or less in a condition of suspended animation, any change which takes place must surely be for the better, and at any moment it may wake to new life and prosperity. Granted a favourable harvest in the coming year, we may confidently look for a steady return to more normal conditions.

Scenes of surpassing novelty crowd the action of "A Virgin of Paradise," many of them taking place aboard an old-fashioned sailing ship. The ship scenes, together with the island jungle scenes, never fail to evoke the whole-hearted admiration of audiences when the picture was shown in New York. A particularly thrilling and unusual situation develops when the girl gets aboard the ship, and the manner of her arrival carries with it every ounce of surprise possible to pack into a picture situation. She is carried back to civilization in a suit of clothes lent her by a kind-hearted sailor.

EDITORIAL

A few short weeks ago a Dominion election was held and R. E. Beattie of Cranbrook was declared elected to represent the district of East Kootenay in the House of Commons. Mr. Beattie has resigned his seat. He evidently did not appreciate the honor which the electors of this riding conferred upon him. The Hon. Dr. King, Minister of Public Works in the moribund Grit government at Victoria, has cast longing eyes on this seat, and in spite of the protests from his party friends, from one end of the riding to the other, has forced Beattie's resignation and intends to run here as Minister of Public Works in Ottawa. A greater piece of political chicanery was never pulled off. Had Mr. Beattie been offered a portfolio we venture to say he would have had the endorsation of all parties in East Kootenay. Dr. King is anxious to desert the sinking ship of state in Victoria and find a soft bed for himself. Dr. King's record as Minister of Public Works at Victoria is not one which would lead the electorate to believe that he could successfully handle the largest spending department of the government at Ottawa.

Our men in public life are exactly what we make them. We do not believe the electorate will endorse the high-handed manner in which Dr King has tried to force himself upon them, nor will they approve of the principle of barter and sale of their franchise, nor will they endorse the principle which his friends are advocating, namely purchasing the support of the electors of this district by promising to spend the public money in this district if he should be sent to Ottawa as Minister of Public Works.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS

Up in Prince Rupert our old friend Fred Stork seems to be on nettles. A dispatch from there dated Jan. 17 states: The lead of Fred Stork, Liberal, in Skeena, over Col. Cy Peck, independent has been reduced from 34 to 24 as the result of the first day's recount of ballots before Judge Young. Twenty-nine ballots made out on unauthorized forms at Premier mine were thrown out. There was also a slight reduction in Stork's majority at Smithers poll. In the supreme court Martin O'Reilly, understood to be a supporter of Mr. Stork, has filed a petition protesting the recent federal election for Skeena on grounds that the election was not carried out in compliance with the rules of the Dominion act. It is alleged that at Premier mine but 50 ballots were available, but that 79 voters had applied for ballots and that when the 50 were exhausted the deputy returning officer had manufactured more ballots in an attempt to enable the qualified ones to vote. There are other allegations that ballots had not been provided at several polling places. It is understood that the petition is filed to become effective in case the recount goes against the member-elect.

The funeral of the late Harry Bentley took place at Lethbridge on Tuesday, and all the Fernie curlers at the bonspiel attended. The Lethbridge Herald has the following notice: At the funeral of the late Harry Bentley, as he was known to all the pall bearers were old friends with whom he was intimately associated. They were Hugh Macbeth, C. B. Bowman, George Stacey, Albert Ives, Supt. Pennefather and N. T. MacLeod. The Old Timers were present in mass to pay their last respects and honor to one who was held in esteem in their ranks. The bonspiel, which is now going on, was abandoned for the afternoon, with the curlers in the city and from outside taking part in the funeral procession as it left the house for the service which was held in St. Augustin's. Among the telegrams of sympathy at the death of Harry Bentley, received since his passing, is one from Dr. F. H. Mewburn, of the University of Alberta, Edmonton, who was also a pioneer of the city. The telegram was received last night by Secretary James Rose of the Old Timers Association. It reads as follows: "Regret exceedingly that I am unable to be with you tomorrow to pay my respects to a dear friend, a man who has been a true friend to Lethbridge, the south country and its inhabitants from the earliest days."

AMERICAN CONSULAR SERVICE

Preliminary communications with the American Consul at Fernie relative to passport matters should be by night lettergram or, preferably, by mail. It is seldom possible for the Consul to give the applicant a satisfactory opinion on the strength of a long-distance telephone message or a short day telegram. Parties will consequently save time, money and annoyance to themselves, as a rule, by writing or communicating by a full night lettergram.

You can safely bring your children to the Isis.

KATHERINE MacDONALD STARS IN "HER SOCIAL VALUE"

The feature at the Orpheum theatre Friday and Saturday will be "Her Social Value," a First National attraction, in which the "American Beauty," Miss Katherine MacDonald, appears.

Miss MacDonlad in this picture portrays a type of character which has seldom been seen on the screen —that of a shopgirl in a large department store. She presides over the glove counter and in a novel manner makes the acquaintance of a society man.

The salesgirl, Marion Hoyte, has finer instincts that the other members of her family, who are contented with the lowly station in life; so when the society man, James Lodge, proposes marriage, she accepts and they are wed.

But complications ensue, and although they love each other, they become divorced. Then one day there is an accident, and the girl and her husband find themselves reunited in an extraordinary original manner in a Western mining camp far from the drawing rooms in which they have moved.

The cast supporting Miss MacDonald is an exceptionally capable one, including such well known players as Roy Stewart, Bertram Grassby, Betty Ross Clarke, Winter Hall, Joseph Girard, Lilian Rich, Vincent Hamilton, Helen Raymond, Violet Phillips and little one year old Arthur Gibson.

Fernie citizens will learn with deep regret of the death of Dr. Simmons, who about two years ago sold out his dental practice in Fernie to Dr. Pickering, after a residence here of nearly five years. Death came very suddenly, while he was travelling on a boat from Anyox to Ocean Falls. The doctor for many years had been a victim of heart trouble and nearly died from an attack while residing in Fernie. Deceased leaves a wife and a son, who is a dentist in Vancouver, to mourn his death.

Donaldson, formerly professor at St. Chats College, Regina, will preach at Christ Church on Sunday at 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. Mr. Donaldson's father, Canon Donaldson, of Peterboro Cathedral, is very well known in labor circles. At St. Mark's church, Leicester, where he worked for 21 years, he identified himself with the best interests of the working classes and was privileged to know such outstanding figures in the labor world as the late Keir Hardie. In the days of the unemployment crisis of 1905 Canon Donaldson led a march of the unemployed to London. Canon Donaldson preached before the King at Sandringham in 1918.

Some discussion took place at the meeting as to the new agreement to be signed with District 18, U.M.W. of A., at the expiry of the present agreement on March 31. It was pointed out that the cost of living is now 40 per cent above pre-war cost, while the claim was made that wages are 130 per cent higher. There is talk that the operators will ask for a cut of about 50 per cent. It is understood the miners are satisfied they will have to take a wage reduction, but they have no expectation of going anywhere near 50 per cent.

HOCKEY

FERNIE WINS OPENER FROM BAYNES SEPTETTE

The initial game of the friendly inter-city hockey games was played on the local arena here on Wednesday evening, when a picked team from Waldo and Baynes provided the opposition to a picked team from the Fernie City League, the latter wining by a score of six goals to four.

Fernie somewhat underestimated their opponents at the beginning of the game and Sharp and Muldon notched a couple of goals for the boys from the south before Fernie awoke to the fact that they had opponents worthy of their best. These reverses livened the game for the fans and it was not long before, following a nice combination run by the Fernie forwards, Dicken reduced Waldo's lead. From the face off, Fernie again raided the Waldo goal but McKay foiled their efforts to score. The puck was kept well into the Waldo territory during the balance of the and just before the bell, B. Wilson equalized with a shot that gave McKay no chance. Waldo 2 Fernie 2.

The second period opened with Fernie early in on McKay, raining shot after shot on him but the goal tender was playing a wonderful game. Fernie's persistency was not to be denied however, and Dicken caught a nice pass from Glover and slammed the puck into the net, putting Fernie in the lead; a few minutes later Sofko netted for Fernie's fourth goal. Waldo were seldom dangerous and except for a few individual raids by Wilde and Sharp, the Fernie defence were rarely troubled. Fernie continued to press and Dicken added a fifth for the locals. The bell found Waldo striving hard to penetrate the Fernie defence. Waldo 2 Fernie 5.

Waldo opened up the third period with determined raids on McLeod but without success. End to end play followed. Muldoon tried a long shot from centre ice and caught McLeod napping, the puck landing in the net. Following this goal the pace was fast and furious, Waldo exerting every ounce to overcome Fernie's lead and were rewarded when Ayres beat McLeod with a nice shot. From the face off, Dicken captured the puck and skated through the entire Waldo team, McKay came out to meet him and Dicken slipped the puck past him into the corner of the net, making his fourth goal of the game. Final score Waldo 4 Fernie 6.

The game was exceptionaaly clean and fast throughout, not one deliberate foul could be pointed out against either team and the fans were well satisfied on the class of hockey put up and are eagerly looking forward to more frequent inter-city games.

The team is indebted to Mr. W. A. Ingram for the use of the sweaters supplied the team bearing the name "150" in the City League. The officials desire to thank Mr. Ingram for courtesies, also the others who have outfitted teams, and extended the use of same for the Fernie team when called for.

NORTHERNS DROP TWO—ON WAY TO THE CELLAR

The Northern Hotel aggregation of puck-chasers received a set-back in their aspiration for League leaders, entering this week with one win and nary a lose, they ran into a double defeat. On Monday night, losing out to the 150 by the score of 4 to 2, and to the Bluebirds last evening by the score of 9 to 3.

The Monday night game was a thriller from the word go, and not until the last few minutes of play were the winners proclaimed. With the score standing two all at the end of the first period both teams tightened up, and although they worked hard to break the tie the score still remained two all to within ten minutes of the finish, when the 150 added the extra two, which proved sufficient to win. The Hotel lads pressed hard during the closing stages of the game but were unable to garner in the necessary tallies to pull the game out of the fire.

The game was one of the fastest and hardest fought so far in the league fixtures and kept the large crowd of fans intensely interested until the call of time. Hard checking was eminent throughout the game and was instrumental in several of the boys visiting the penalty timekeeper.

Last evening the Bluebirds avenged themselves for their defeat of last week at the hands of the Coal Co., by meting out the second defeat to the Northerns by the score of 9 to 2. The West Fernie representatives had things pretty much their own way netting the rubber for the count of six in the first period, securing two more in the second and one in the third, before the Northerns woke up and got their two tallies. The game, far from begin clean and a good game from the spectators point of view, seemed to be right place, in the minds of the players for the settlement of the many "between game arguments" and kept the referee busy ordering them to the penalty box.

The goalies of both teams were incessantly bombarded; Costa playing his usual stellar game, saving his team time after time, while the play on mid-ice was exceedingly strenuous judging from the scars and bruises received by many of the players.

This game completes the first half of the schedule every team having met the others once. On Monday night the 150 and the Coal Co. play and on Thursday the Northern and 150.

The League Standing:	Won	Lost
150	2	1
Bluebirds	2	1
Northern	1	2

DEMMANS GETS A REAL SURPRISE

"I've Been Thankful a Thousand Times That I Tried Tanlac," Says Winnipeg Man.

"I was never so surprised at anything in my life as I was at the relief I got from my first bottle of Tanlac, and five bottles of the medicine have made me perfectly well and strong again." said Joseph Demmans, a well known college student, rooming at 91 Juno St., Winnipeg, Man.

"About a year ago I caught an awful cold which stayed with me all the winter and kept me feeling far from up to the mark. This last spring I managed to get rid of the cold but my system had become badly disordered. I had such awful pains and cramps in my stomach that I just dreaded to eat for even the lightest kind of food disagred with me, and I bloated with gas and suffered misery. I had no energy for my studies and I felt weak and worn out all the time.

"I read so much about Tanlac that I bought a bottle one Saturday afternoon, and I have been thankful a thousand times that I did, for the medicine has rid me of the indigestion and put me in the very best of health. I eat hearty and enjoy my meals now and have gained several pounds in weight too. I have plenty of strength and energy and feel good all the time. Tanlac has been worth so much to me that I'm only too glad to recommend it."

LABOR'S PARLIAMENT

President Wheatley of the Alberta Federation of Labor, which is holding its ninth annual convention in Lethbridge, in addressing the delegates at the opening on Monday, made an appeal for moderation and counselled against radical resolutions. If this spirit prevails in the deliberations of the convention much that will make for good will be accomplished, and Labor will draw to it that public sympathy which in all movements make for success. Labor, it cannot be denied, has suffered from the extremists in its ranks, and thereby has been saddled with a reputation which taking the whole bulk of Labor, it has not earned. Labor looks for justice. It is this which, it is urged, leavens the demands of Labor. In looking for justice to ieself it is only fair and right that the aims of Labor should be tempered by justice all round and not merely confined to what is looked on as justice to Labor. This, it can be said, is conveyed in President Wheatley's words. and they augur well.

Labor seeks for beneficial legislation. This Labor is fully entitled to, and in this spirit behind the demand is that which will count. To prevent unjust and arrogant demands in the way of adjustment of wages being enforced by employers to which Mr. Wheatley alluded, is Labor's prerogative, and where these are displayed Labor has a right to exert itself. But while setting itself to fight arrogance and unjust demands on the part of employers of Labor it will behoove Labor to be careful lest it brings this accusation against itself. In this matter sweet reason should be the dominant note, and in the measure it prevails so will Labor gain in its endeavors to right itself.

In our economic field Labor has a giant's strength. In this it assumes an immense responsibility. How that strength is to be exercised is a public concern. Will it be wisely or arrogently used? That rests with Labor in the way it regards public estimation.

In the contentment and well-being of Labor rest economic peace and stability. All things which make for this will be ungrudgingly allowed Labor. Labor demands fair play, and in the spirit of fair play, in which its demands are made, they will be estimated. Labor organizations have achieved much in ameliorating conditions under which Labor has undoubtedly suffered. The evolution of Labor, however, cannot be said to be yet complete. That evolution can be only arrived at by sane and reasonable methods. On the stability of the economic fabric Labor greatly depends. It should be its first business to strengthen and not weaken that fabric. In the social and economic world Labor has a great part to play. If reason and moderation are to be the guiding instincts there will be nothing to fear from Labor. This spirit, we may hope, will manifest itself in the deliberations of the present convention.—Lethbridge Herald.

AT THE ISIS—WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY, JAN. 25 and 26.

A GENERAL SALES TAX

A general sales tax of 1 per cent. to be levied for the payment of Canada's war debt, is strongly advocated by Sir Edmund Walker in his presidental address before the annual meeting of the shareholders of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. The present system of taxation, say Sir Edmund, "weighs heavily upon the spirit of enterprise in the country. The high surtaxs on incomes are just as unfair and are precisely in the same class as excess profits tax now done away with except for the trail of financial troubles left behind and the sense of unfair treatment in the minds of those who were forced to pay it." Too often the tax cannot be paid out of incomes and the money must be found by borrowing. On the other hand, if the war debt is to be paid, and "if as Canadians we purpose to be fair to each other and to work together for the national good as well as for our own, we shall soon again achieve the success in material things which has happily distinguished our past. The tide which has been ebbing will soon turn, and the many nations with troubles infinitely greater than our own will one by one rediscover the road to progress, the basis of which will be the power to buy food and other supplies from nations like ourselves." Meanwhile it is imperative for the economic safety of the world that nations should make their budgets balance. In Europe Great Britain and Denmark are the only countries which have so far accomplished this: The stoppage of further isues of first money and arrangements for the amortization of national debts are matters which require to be dealt with as soon as possible, and the world is looking forward to the international economic conference which will deal with these matters.

It must be borne in mind that the buying power of a nation depends in the final analysis upon its exports and it is in this connection that Sir Edmund sounds a warning note with regard to the large volume of imports which were in so marked a degree an evidence of Canada's extravagance during 1920, and to which he referred in his last annual address. Speaking of the trade figures for the fiscal year ending March 1921, he says: "Of the great total of imports valued at a billion and a quarter dollars we should make a very large proportion ourselves, and if we are to prosper and pay our debts abroad we must plan to do so in future. Any other course will be ruinous to Canada." There is, however, a sign of improvement in this conection in the conversion of an nufavorable balance of 80 millions for the twelve month ending September 1920 into a favorable balance of 85 million dollars in the succeeding twelve months. Sir Edmund referred to the great decrease in the prices of Canada's agricultural products and consequently in her buying power, and to the unfavorable effect of the Fordney tariff especially upon the export of Canadian live stock. "If the Fordney tariff remains in force," he says "our power to buy from the United States will be curtailed accordingly, and we must in self-protection, put every possible obstacle in the way of our people buying from that country the commodities for which we are thus rendered unable to pay." He also referred to the determination of the British Parliament to maintain the embargo against Canadian live cattle.

The process of deflation is still in evidence but "in the case of many commodities," he says "we may safely hope that we have seen the bottom of the decline and have begun the upward climb to better conditions. In the case of others we cannot yet be sure, and doubtless, between the final judgment of one branch of manufacturing and that of another there may be an interval of time not easy to explain. In the meantime, incidents which seem unfavorable should not unduly depress us, provided they are a natural outcome of the deflation through which we are to clarify the outlook of the business world before starting our next period of prosperity.'

Sir John Aird in his address as General Manager emphasized the favorable showing which the Canadian Bank of Commerce has made as a result of its policy of careful investment and the manner in which it had protected the interests of its shareholders by making its assets as liquid as possible, and by ensuring that its commercial loans were of a sound character. The derease in these loans during the past year was an evidence however, of the willingness of the business public of Canada to pay its debts. The decrease, says Sir John, "was not caused by any set policy of contraction or enforced liquidation, but simply by the natural, orderly and voluntary payment of debts by our customers in the face of the depressed business situation. Naturally it affected our earning power for the time being, and has resulted in lower profits for the year, but we look upon it as most striking evidence as to the soundness of our commercial loans and as to the liquid position of our other assets. It shows, too, that the business of the Bank is well diversified and not bound up with the fortunes of any, one industry." He outlined the method by which credits were granted and pointed out that the Canadian Bank of Commerce is not a one man institution. Its departments at Toronto, Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver, Sherbrooke and Halifax were established for the purpose of supervising these loans and all loans or credits over a certain sum have to be passed upon by the credit department at Head Office and by the Board of Directors. Every care is taken that the auditors of the accounts should have access to all the necessary records, and they are in a position to know the real value of the Bank's assets.

Sir John traced the course of New York and sterling exchange during 1921, and attributed the fall in the New York premium on sterling to the decrease in the gross value of Great Britain's imports and the payment of part of her indebtedness to the United States. The recent improvement in the exchange value in New York of the Canadian dollar was due largely, he said, to a long series of sales of bonds of Canadian provinces and municipalities in the New York market, but he pointed out that these borrowings would increase the amount of Canada's yearly interest charge. Sir John Aird concluded by stating his belief that if a favorable harvest was reaped this year, Canada could confidently look forward to a steady return to normal conditions.

"HUMORESQUE"
A PHOTOPLAY Featuring
Alma Rubens

THE sordid clatter of the New York Ghetto. ....A little lad there, hugging an old violin..... A mother, her soul aflame, watching, giving, dreaming, as the hard years pass.....A radiant girl, waiting.

At last, fame! Wealth! The applause of countless, crowding thousands for "the master of them all." One night, a gala free concert to his own of the great East Side.

"Humoresque!" they cried. And he played it in farewell—played it with breaking heart—then smiling, flung his career and his wondrous art away.

Some called him "Fool!" Not all. You'll know why when you see the end.

THE song of a mother's heart made visible; the dream of a mother's life come true. A melody of love and tears and laughter, played silently on the screen Directed by Frank Borzage. Scenario by Frances Marion

Inter-City of Inter-Club—Prizes: 4 Miniature Cups and trophy of International Coal and Coke Co., Coleman. One rink from each club. This competition was instituted last year and it was expected to be a playdown of the rinks from each club to be in attendance at the spiel.

The feature of the 7 a.m. draw on Thursday morning was the fact that every rink was in play at the hour and three of them had started at 6.45.

There were two 13 enders in this draw also, Ross of Taber winning one and Patterson of Taber being the victim in the other.

Jack Ross came back in the 9.30 a.m. draw with another 13 ender against Reid of Bow Island.

But Chester Dick for Reid won out by a spectacular last rock; a 50-50 for Jack on 13 enders for the morning.

Another outstanding feature of the bonspiel was the 7 ender scored by Kirkham against Stewart in the 9.30 draw. But it wasn't enough, the Stewart brothers winning by a splendid draw game intermixed with an occasional fast one. Orville Stewart pulled a particularly fine shot in the 10th end, taking out three of Kirkham's shot rocks and laying two for himself on the head.

The Stewart rink of Macleod and Jas. Aird of Lethbridge still remain but with one loss.

Simpson fell to Kastner, who apparently is the local man's hoodoo. Kastner giving him the only two defeats he has suffered.

Bow Island just got organized and ice built within the last 3 months. They only had nine men who had curled before and with a membership of 48 will be heard from in earnest in the spiels to come.

Liphardt, who has been going strong, lost to his club mate, Herchmer, last night.

Wyatt from Claresholm is a new comer to this spiel and is going good also. He suffered his second defeat on the 7 o'clock draw this morning.

The Moores-Beck rink are also hitting a good pace when one remembers that Coleman has only been in the game for two years. It shows that they are fast getting finished players.

Bill Cameron, of Cranbrook, has had a little tough going.

The Walker Trophy is in its last year. Fernie has won it three times, Lethbridge three, Macleod one. Taber twice; so if Fernie or Lethbridge annex it, it will remain their property. Taber has a chance to make it a three-cornered tie.

"HUMORESQUE" FILM OF INTENSE APPEAL TO BE SHOWN HERE

Fannie Hurst's most appealing story, "Humoresque," has been transferred to the screen and will be the feature attraction at the Orpheum theatre next Wednesday and Thursday. The intensely human atmosphere of the novel is said to have been incorporated into the picture with singular success.

The story centres around Leon Kantor, a boy of the Ghetto, who shows an intense love for music. His mother, who has always wanted a musician-son, is delighted and on his seventh birthday buys him a violin. Leon's playmate is pretty Gina Ginsberg. Fifteen years later Leon is a recognized genius. On the night of his triumph at a big concert given for his people of the Ghetto, he enlists. Leon returns from France with a shattered shoulder and it is said that he will never be able to play the violin again. Leon's music is his all. He becomes morose and discouraged. Before the war he had become engaged to Gina. Now he wishes to release her from marrying him — a cripple. But in a very wonderful way he is restored to full strength and, to the joy of his mother and Gina, turns toward new conquests in the realm of music.

OLD TIMERS HOLD BANQUET

The first annual banquet of the Fernie Old Timers Association held on Wednesday evening of this week at the Northern Hotel, will long be remembered by those present as one of the most enjoyable and interesting events that has occurred in the district. It was unique in that it was the first affair of this kind that has been attempted in East Kootenay. There were nearly sixty persons present, half of whom had been here before the railroad reached Fernie and one or two since the early seventies.

The large table which accommodated sixty persons, was replete with every good thing that could be desired, and would have made a beautiful color picture for a photographer.

Shortly after nine o'clock, Dr. Bonnell, the president of the Association, and toastmaster for the evening, called the waiting crowd to "come and get it" and there was no hesitancy upon the part of the Old Timers to get busy.

Among those present were Dr. Bonnell; F. Brand, U.S. Consul; H. A. Wilkes, Jos. Murphy, Wm. Reynolds, W. W. Brown, A. Klauer, R. McLeod, Jas. Graves, M. McLeod, Jas. Falconer, D. Nicoletti, H. Brown, Martin Robichaud, Jas. Johnston, R. Duthie, P. Carosella, H. Dunlap, J. Dufour, J. Mitchell, O. Erickson, J. Brown, Ed. Robb, M. A. Kastner, A. Mott, L. Foisy, A. Fenwick of Ft. Steele, J. H. Bricker of Vancouver, Mayor Henderson, H. J. Johnson, E. Duthie, Geo. Cody, Jr., Geo. Cody, Sr., I. E. Covert, C. J. Digby, Arthur Williams, J. L. Gates, John Todhunter, Vic Lalonde, Geo. Lake, J. Mangan, S. Graham, John Kobus, W. Eschwig, J. R. Wallace, G. Charlton of Calgary, A. Watson, L. Carosella, S. Herchmer, T. Uphill, M.P.P., J. Falvo, E. K. Stewart, J. Fink of Cranbrook, Jas. McLean, M. A. Berigan, W. Owen, J. Shingara, J. Anglobinco and C. M. Walde, all of whom, with the exception of six or seven invited guests, belonged to the Association.

Dr. Bonnell in opening the programme spoke of the pleasure it gave to congregate with old tried and true friends of over twenty years' standing, men who had come here in construction days and who had pinned their faith to the district and had made good. He told some of his own experiences in construction times, of the first bucking broncho he had attempted to ride, presented by the famous M. J. Haney, the engineer in charge of construction. He told of his first meeting with Dr. King, on his way into the country. It was at Cokato, and they journeyed on to Wardner together. Dr. King was wearing a pair of borrowed riding breeches which came about 4 inches above his knees, leaving them bare. When they got to Wardner he refused to go into the town until he could rustle a pair of pants, which he finally did from Jake Fink. They put up at Wm. Eschwig's hotel at Wardner.

After the toast to the King had been drank, Thos. Uphill, M. P. P., was called upon to respond to the toast "The Province of British Columbia." Mr. Uphill said that it had not been his privlege to be one of the old tmers of this district, but from his experiences in the South African war he could easily understand the hardships and troubles of the early pioneers. Twenty-two years ago tonight they had been ordered to retreat from Spion Kop without provisions for a day's march.

Mr. Uphill spoke of the wonderful resources of this province and the mighty future which seemed to await it. He told of a number of humorous incidents which arose from his experience as member for this district, chief among which was the time he broke into society at Victoria, when he attended a ball given by the Lieutenant Governor

Mayor G. G. Henderson and Ald. Robichaud responded to the toast "The City of Fernie." The Mayor stated that he had come into the district first by way of Jennings, Mont., before the steel was completed and he had staked his faith on the town of Fernie and notwithstanding explosions, strikes, fires & floods that faith had been justified. Today the assessed value of property of Fernie amounted to $2,500,000, and the public utilities owned and operated by the city represented a cash investment of some $440,000. It was a great pleasure to meet the old faces of 20 years ago. Many a young man then now had grown grey, but there was real pleasure in growing old together and talking over and living again the days of long ago.

Ald. Robichaud related his first venture into the Pass, when he brought a hundred and fifty jailbirds, horse thieves, etc., into the construction camps from Montreal.

U. S. Consul F. Brand responded to the toast "Our American Cousins." He spoke of the long boundary line existing between Canada and the United States with never a gun or fort on all its length. He said that when he was in the Philippines he had often noticed that the men of mixed blood always showed the dominating influence of the Spanish blood, and in the United States the Anglo-Saxon strain predominated. No matter how many millions of Europe were poured into his country it did not seem to affect the strong

GALLAGHER FOUND GUILTY

(Calgary Herald)

After deliberating five hours, the jury in the Coward murder case, found John Galagher guilty of murder in the first degree shortly past 16 o'clock Saturday night, and he was immediately sentenced to be hanged on April 15, by Mr. Justice Simmons, in the Following words:

"John Francis Gallagher, this court does sentence you to be hanged by the neck until you are dead on April 15, 1922. May the Lord have mercy on your soul."

Immediate steps are being taken to appeal the decision to the appellate division of the supreme court, on the grounds of "improper admission of evidence and mis-direction of the jury by the judge," states Macleod Sinclair, who conducted Mr. Gallagher's defense.

Gallagher stood up and received his sentence without the least display of emotion or excitement; and when asked by the judge, after the jury had pronounced its judgment:

"Have you any reason to give why you should not be sentenced?"

He replied:

"I have nothing to say, your worship."

And then, when the judge delivered the death sentence, he received it without any change of expression or color, standing steadily on his feet and looking the judge straight in the eye. A large crowd of people had waited in the court room and in the corridors all during the five intervening hours to hear the verdict, and these people were visiby more excited than the principal in the case. They gave vent to their feelings by a hub-bub of excited murmur, following the above two deliverances.

One of the peculiarities of the trial is the fact that the defense produced no witnesses whatsoever, nor did the accused take the stand. The first word spoken by the accused was the above negative after sentence had been pronounced.

The crown's evidence in the trial, which constituted the whole of the evidence produced, was completed at 11:30 o'clock Saturday morning, when A. A. McGillivray turned to address the jury. Mr. McGillivray was very fair in his remarks upon the circumstances of the murder and the evidence produced by the crown. The address of the counsel for the defense followed, after which the charging of the jury by Mr. Justice Simmons ensued.

ACTION NEVER LAGS FUN FAST AND FURIOUS

This picture will please any audience, especially those who have read Mark Twain's famous story—and who has not? For the many many incongruities—when, for instance, "The Yankee," surrounded by armored knights and ladies, costumed in the period of King Arthur's court, talks about Yale locks "tin-Lizzies" and time clocks—there is always a hearty laugh. Great care has been taken in staging the production and the minutest details have been followed. The action never lags, and the fun is fast and furious. There is not the least doubt that in "A Connecticut Yankee at King Arthur's Court," the Fox Film Corporation have a great box office atraction that will appeal to exhibitors all over the country.

Harry C. Meyers as "The Yankee" is screamingly funny. He does not overact the part. Eevery one in the cast is uniformly good. Seldom has a cast of players been assembled that just suits as this one does each respective part. The picture will be shown at the Isis Theatre, Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 30 and 31.

FIRST MEETING OF NEW COUNCIL

The opening meeting of the 1922 council was held last night, upon which occasion all members were in attendance.

A deputation representing the Fernie Branch of the G.W.V.A. and the unemployed in this district waited upon the council. They laid before the city council certain data pertaining to the condition in this city and immediate vicinity respecting unemployment and urged the council to exert itself in every possible way to relieve the situation, both by undertaking civic work and also using its influence with the provincial government to commence contemplated public works in the district. The deputation was comprised of H. A. Bryant, H. Wheeler, R. Billsborough, D. F. Markland and T. Uphill, all of whom spoke on the matter. Subsequently the council unanimously passed a resolution requesting the provincial government to proceed with the road work at Crow's Nest and the Hosmer bridge and such other public works as are feasible with a view to relieving distress throughout the district caused by unemployment.

Formal motions for the appointment of the following standing committees of the council for the year 1922 were passed:

Finance Committee — Aldermen Irvine and Douglas.

Public Works — Aldermen Robichaud and Graham.

Fire, Water and Light—Aldermen Corrie and Aiello.

Park—Aldermen Graham and Robichaud.

Assessment—Aldermen Irvine and Corrie.

Health and Relief — Aldermen Douglas and Graham.

Court of Revision re Assessment—The Whole Council.

Court of Revision Voters' List — Aldermen Corrie and Irvine.

Ald. J. S. Irvine will be acting mayor throughout the year in case of absence from the city or illness preventing His Worship from acting in person. The regular meetings will, as in the past, be the 2nd and 4th Thursdays.

A rebate of 50c will be allowed all owners of dogs who pay these taxes before April 30.

A communication from the Local Council of Women was received and acknowledgement thereof ordered.

The financial statement as prepared by the Auditor, together with his report, was presented, and gratification was expressed by all members at the improved financial status of the city. The report was adopted as read and the recommendations contained therein referred to the finance committee for consideration.

The proposed amending of the Shops Closing By-law was briefly considered and a proper draft of this will be submitted at the next meeting.

COAL CREEK NOTES

The Bachelor Boys of this camp held a grand social dance up here on Friday last. The ladies of the camp provided the "eats," which were up to the usual standard.

The death of Mrs. Samuel Morgan of this camp took place in the Fernie hospital on Saturday last, after a long illness. The residents extend their sympathy to the husband and three children left to mourn.

A large number of residents attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Morgan on Tuesday. The Coal Co. kindly placed a special train at the disposal of the relatives and friends.

Mrs. M. Hugall and Mrs. Morrison, who have been spending a few months in the old land, are expected back shortly.

The entertainers of this camp have banded themselves together in what will be known in the future as "The Coal Creek Minstrel Troup." Preparations are under way for their initial appearance in the very near future.

Samuel Morgan and family desire to publicly thank the Loyal Order of Moose, Ladies of Mooseheart Legion, G.W.V.A. of Fernie, and the residents of the camp for their sympathy and floral tributes extended in their recent bereavement.

BEATTIE GIVES OUT INTERVIEW

VICTORIA, Jan. 22 — Declaring that Hon. J. H. King, newly appointed minister of public works in the federal government, was the only minister in whose favor he would resign his seat in East Kootenay, R. E. Beattie, who won that constituency by a substantial majority on December 6, issued a statement today in Victoria to the effect that he thought he was serving the best interests of his supporters by giving way to the new minister who had been chosen by the premier, Hon. Mackenzie King, to administer what is perhaps the most important spending department in the Dominion government.

"I was greatly honored by the electors of East Kootenay when they returned me by a substantial majority," said Mr. Beattie today, "but in consideration of the work done in British Columbia by Hon. Dr. King during the past five years and his selection by Premier King, I feel that I am best serving the interests of my constituency and Canada as a whole by relinquishing my seat in favor of Dr. King.

"Hon. Dr. King is the only man in the west for whom I would take this step," said Mr. Beattie. "For 25 years we pioneered in southeastern British Columbia, and much as I should like to go to Ottawa, I feel that there is something greater than my personal interests, therefore, I have decided to retire in favor of Dr. King. He knows conditions in the west better than any one else, he has been personally interested in the development of the lumbering, coal mining and quartz mining industries in western Canada, and has become an authority upon highway extension. The system of good roads in British Columbia is largely due to the activity of Hon. Dr. King, and good roads are necessary to the development of my constituency.

"I have been placed in a rather embarrassing position and it has been difficult for me to make a decision" said Mr. Beattie, "but I feel that I have acted in the best interests of those who supported me."

Mr. Beattie left for Cranbrook on the night boat from Victoria, while Hon. Dr. King will leave for Ottawa via Cranbrook on Wednesday. He will be in the federal capital for a few days only, and will then return to this province for the purpose of cleaning up the unfinished work of his department here.

There seems little doubt but that the new minister of public works will be returned by acclamation, as has been the case with all the 14 ministers of the Mackenzie King cabinet. While there is an element in East Kootenay more or less inclined to oppose the minister, still it is scarcely to be expected that a precedent will be established in regard to this seat.

FRANCE SEEMS TO BE OVER-CAUTIOUS

The objections raised in France to every project that is made looking toward international peace, indicates that a large mass of French public opinion is imbued with the idea that brought Germany to ruin;—namely that their country should be the dictator of Europe and have their finger in the pie everywhere else in the world. Thus France insisted on being let in on the agreements with regard to the Pacific ocean where her interests are almost nil; and Japan, the United States and the British Empire which had very vital things at stake, did not say her nay. But when it comes to European questions France, if not through her government, through her press, talks as though she were the only nation whose opinion or interests were worthy of the smallest consideration.

The objections raised to the Anglo-French pact negotiated between President Briand and Mr. Lloyd George, represents a colossal national egotism. Great Britain pledged herself to come to the aid of France in case she were the victim of unprovoked attack. It would seem to most people a very generous proposal, because the direct advantage was all on the side of France .Britain's advantage was merely the indirect one of securing an arrangement that would make for the preservation of peace. But the objection is raised that any agreement which permits Great Britain the right of independent judgment is inadequate. It is held that she should bind herself to automatically come to the aid of France in the event of war, without considering the causes. Otherwise it is argued the pact is as much a guarantee for Germany as it is for France.

There can be only one deduction from these arguments and it is this: France wants to be free to disturb the peace of Europe as much as she wishes, and to be able to rely on British assistance right or wrong. Of course it would be quite nonsensical for Great Britain to make such a pledge, because she could never carry it out. Wars are made by peoples, not by governments; and the British people would be no more willing to assist France to make wanton war on Germany than they were willing to assist Germany to make unprovoked war against France; and it is the people who pay the piper and call the dance.

Surely France does not desire to take the place of the late lamented Balkan States as the cockpit of Europe. Anyone who knows anything of the devastated areas would suppose that France, of all nations, would most desire that war be banished from the face of the earth forever. But apparently there are a great many people in France possessed of the same mentality as their former lords, the Bourbons,—who learned nothing and forgot nothing.—Saturday Night.

TO EXPLORE LITTLE KNOWN ARCHIPELAGO

SYDNEY—One of the least known of the many archipelagos which dot Australia's 10,000 miles of coast-line is to be expored by scientific expedition sent out by Mr. H. L. White of Scone, New South Wales, in conjunction with the Australia Museum Sydney. This is the Recherche Archipelago, off the southern coast of Western Australia, a labyrinth of islands, rocks and reefs extending nearly 200 miles from east to west. Ornithology is the primary object of the expedition, which will be headed by Mr. Basset Hull. About 1840 the islands were temporarily occupied by French and American whalers whaling off this desoate coast, but with the decline of whaling the islands ceased to be visited and only one or two men have been there during the last 50 years. The most up-to-date description available is that, dated 1802, by Matthew Flinders, who records many strange facts about the islands.

Garnets were found on Mondrain Island and a rose-colored salt lake. Seals abounded, and on the larger islands there were small kangaroos (probobly wallabies). Some of the seals are described as having reddish fur. There were also great numbers of small blue pengiun.

On one island Flinders found some huge nests made of sticks but placed on the ground. Around them were pellets like those disgorged by owls but larger, containing the hair of seals and of land animals, the "feathers" of pengiun, and the bones of birds and small quadrupeds.

Flinders conjectured that these might be the nests of enormous owls but thought they were more likely the nests of eagles, which, in places where there are no trees large enough for them, have been known to nest on the ground.

PRAYING FOR AN ACTOR

It is so seldom that anyone ever prays for the success of an actor that the following exhortation by the pastor of the First Baptist Church of Syracuse N.Y., which was later printed on the bulletin of that tabernacle, has attracted much attention:

"Our Father, we thank Thee for Frank McGlynn. We thank Thee for the courage of soul with which he left the quiet safety of a comfortable position, and sallied forth to play Abraham Lincoln for the sake of the mission of the part. We thank Thee for the gifts of beauty which he brought to Syracuse last week. Wilt Thou grant that some day these praying lips may be counted as worthy to preach as surely, as movingly, as tenderly, as he preached last week through the lines of his play, Wilt Thou grant that some day this congregation may go from this place as tearful, as glad, as high-hearted, as soul-inspiring as his audience went from his gaudy playhouse during those wonderful days? Meanwhile, forgive the man or the institution which blackens the stage with scornful words, and has no eyes for the sheer and mighty beauty of true drama. We pray Thee for Thy blessing upon Frank McGlynn tonight wherever he is. And for all men and women who, like him, strive in the face of sneers and rebuke and neglect to keep the wonder of the play-world clean and true. Help us to say 'Yes' to the fine things enthusiastically as we say 'No' to the unworthy things. In the name of Jesus. Amen."

Since the theatre today need all the prayers that may be uttered on its behalf, anything in the way of intercession for it is welcome. Nevertheless though Mr. McGlynn's heart must have been warmed by such a tribute, his sense of justice and his sense of humor must have been dismayed by certain false premises on which the prayer seems to be based. First, he did not write "Lincoln." Second, he did not hazard "thte quiet safety of a comfortable position" by undertaking the title role; it was his first real chance in a quarter of a century of conscientious effort, during which managers made him play melodramatic villians. Third, in playing Lincoln he has not incurred "Sneers and rebuke and neglect," but a crown of permanent fame which will endure in the annals of the stage long after his death. In addressing the Almighty, it is just as well to get one's facts right!—Saturday Night.

FERNIE GIRLS SPRINGS SURPRISE

LADIES FROM B. C. WHITEWASH CALGARY REGENTS 4-0 IN CARNIVAL GAME HERE

(Calgary Herald)

Playing superior hockey in every department, the Fernie ladies drubbed the Calgary Regents at the Arena, on Saturday afternoon, by a score of 4 to 0. The game was witnessed by more than 1,000 fans, the largest crowd to witness a ladies' game this season. After the start of the second period, over two-thirds of the spectators were pulling for the Swastikas, but this is no doubt attributed to the fact that the Regents resorted to rough play on more than one occasion. The ladies must remember that although the hockey dished up by them in the past has been appreciated, the fans will not tolerate any rough stuff, and besides it will not get them anywhere, except the cooler. The Fernie ladies played clean hockey all the way and deserved the win.

Although they appeared somewhat nervous in the opening spasm, the Swastikas started out with a vengeance in the second period to clean up on the Calgarians. But the green and white brigade's defence was all there, Edna Bishop cleared without any difficulty. Miss Wood, the Fernie custodian, was merely an onlooker in this period, as she had but one shot to turn aside.

With all their nervousness gone, the B. C. fair ones stepped right out and after an exciting scrimmage in front of the goal somebody slammed in a sizzler, and Miss Bishop was a very surprised young lady as she pried the rubber loose from the netting. Not content with this, the Swastikas pushed in another, making the count two nothing. The Calgary outfit tried desperately to tally, but the Fernie ladies were all defence when necessary and the period ended without further scoring.

The Regents came back strong, but the visitors did not seem to notice it at all, and calmly proceeded to register two more counters before the gong. The Regents rallied again and again, but Miss Wood was a stonewall in the nets, and the fair ones were forced to finish the game without scoring.

Despite the one-sided score, the game was a thriller all the way through. The Regent forward line was working fairly well together, until the Fernie defense was reached, and then Miss Schagel or Miss Henderson would muss things up, and when they failed, Miss Wood ruined all their chances. It would be hard to pick out the Swastikas' stars, because they are all stars. The entire team works well and shows steady and careful training.

On the forward line, Miss Fenwick and Miss Miles seemed the most persistent. On the defense Miss Schagel worked consistently. This fast-travelling brunette received more hard bumps than any other player on the ice, but she always came up smiling. Her crowning achievement was her spectacular end to end rush in the third period when, after some brilliant stick-handling, she sent in a hot one that Miss Bishop never saw.

For the Regents, Ursula McLatchie was the outstanding performer, with her hook check and end to end rushes. In the final session, she was sent into the forward line, in an attempt to save her team-mates from a whitewashing, but without avail.

SUPERIORITY IN SPEED WINS FOR COAL CO.

In the city league fixture of Monday night, the wearers of the red and white, treated the initial appearance of the new 150 sweaters in a league game with contempt, skating rings around them at all stages of the game, and metted out the first blank to any team, decisively defeating them by the score of 5 to 0.

B. Wilson, with his rushes and clever stick-handling proved to be the down fall of the 150. The speed and back-checking of his teammates were too much for the grey and green to even secure a careful placed shot, in goal for the winners, Pep had his optics on the rubber all the time and refused to grant them a lone tally.

The 150, play as hard as they were able failed time and time again to penetrate the dangerous area and were sent back with the first goose egg chalked up against a team up to the present. The Coal Co. secured 2 goals in the first period, another in the second and added two more in the third, playing a three man defense and making sure that their opponents would not score. For the losers McGonigal in goal played well and through his good work the count was kept as low as it was, while the forwards playing their usual game were fustrated at every opportunity to get tallies.

The game was up to the usual, as far as hard checking is concerned some of which overstepped the mark what one might call clean, however, this method of play will only be stopped when some one gets hurt and be put out of the game. The referee should pay more attention to these minor (accidental) offences as they virtually lead up to the more secious ones if not checked.

NORTHERN TURN TABLES ON THE W.F. BLUEBIRDS

After their trouncing of last week, at the hands of the Bluebirds, the Northern Hotel came back strong and turned the tables on the over-confident team from across the river by the score of 5 to 2. Their win upsetting the dope sheet and tieing up the league race making 2 wins and 2 setbacks for each team in the league race.

The hotel lads were all go and zip, carrying the battle into their opponents goal mouth all the time and bringing Costa to his knees several times in effort to save. while their own goalie was very rarely tested after the close of the first period. It looked as if the Bluebirds were go-to duplicate their feat of last week, when by persistent pressing they secured the first goal of the game and after the face-off kept up the pressing and keeping the Northern defense busy to stay off another long string of goals. It was not long before the tide was turned and the score evened up. Before the close of the first period the Northerns secured another, putting them in the lead.

The second oponed with the Bluebirds trying to even up and were rewarded when they secured the only counter in this period. From then on they were outclassed at all stages of the play and after the start of the third period when the Northerns got their other three, were merely fighting to stay off an overwhelming score.

As the city league games progress their is no difference in the style of play, and like the previous game of this week. these games could be made cleaner by heavier penalties handed out to players for second offenses of the same nature, as it is things are let go until they grow too big to be handled.

Statistics show that for the firs six months of 1921 31,885 births wer registered in Paris, as compared wit 24.300 and 27 906 in the correspondin periods of 1913 and 1920 respectivel The marriages celebrated in Par during the first half of 1921 number ed 26.282. The total for the whol of 1913 was 31 916 and for the whol of 1920, 53 829.

FERNIE TAKES SECOND GAME

On Sunday last the fans of Waldo and Baynes had the pleasure of witnessing their first game of hockey with an outside team as opponents when Fernie, again through the kindness of Mr. Ingram, wearing the 150 uniform, invaded their territory and romped home with the big end of a 4 to 3 score.

The game was everything that one could wish for as a hockey match, being filled with tense moments all the way through for the fans and nifty combination and team play by the respective contestants, these coupled with the numerous individual rushes by the players of both aggregations made it spectacular from the drop of the puck till the call of time.

As the score indicates, the game was fairly even. The home boys, more used to the exceptionally hard ice, were able to set the pace in the opening stages, but it was not long before Fernie lads began to find their feet and Dicken notched the first tally of the game for Fernie. The next few minutes saw Baynes pressing hard and were soon rewarded when Muldoon evened the count. The fast travelling point man for the home boys gave the fans many thrills and finnaly netted the rubber just before the period closed after one of his rushes, with a hot one from a scrimmage after the Fernie defense though they had him stopped again. The period ended with both teams striving hard to do further scoring, but found that both the goalies were always on the job.

The second period opened with Fernie showing that they were getting more used to the ice and after several minutes of end to end team and individual rushes been broken up by the defenses of the respective teams, Kirkpatrick penetrated far enough to get a clear shot and beat McKay with a high one, tieing up the score. Spurred on by this it was not long before T. Wilson added the third and fourth for the Fernie boys. Brownie Sharp, after numerous tries, finally evaded the defense and secured the third and last goal of the game for the Baynes aggregation.

The second period ended without any further score and the whole of the third was likewise. It was in this last period that the defensive abilities of both teams showed up, and seemingly possible goals by each team were either fustrated by the defense or else speared by both Costa and McKay every time they were tested.

The game was exceptionally clean and fought out on the merits of skill. Any penalties handed out were for minor offenses, of the accidental sort. Rough, mean tactics were conspicuous by their absence, and the players of both teams are to be complimented on the sportsmanlike manner under which the game was played.

The Baynes Lake boys deserve credit for their spirit along the line of providing winter sport, their outdoor rink, being worthy of a community with a much larger population, while the ice, much harder than the Fernie boys are used to, is the result of careful and patient labor.

Anglo-Saxon strain. In the schools they always spoke of Britain as the mother country and the old land.

J. H. Bricker, oldtime Fernieite, but now of Vancouver, told of the real joy it gave him to be present. He had remained over in the city two or three days in order to attend and meet the faces of the early days once more. He told of his first trip through the Pass ahead of the steel. They arrived at the old cow town of Macleod late one evening and the best accommodation to be obtained was sleeping space on the barroom floor. A man named Evans ran the hotel, and late that night a bunch of six or seven roughs, who had failed to get accommodation broke into the hotel and were mobbing the proprietor, when "Big Jim," the late Major McDonnell, arrived on the scene and immediately started something. When he had finished there was not a roughneck left on his feet. From Macleod he had driven through to Crow's Nest with Ernie and True Tuttle. From there he journeyed on as far as Fort Steele, sometimes on foot and sometimes on horseback. After spending a little time at Steele and Wardner he returned to Cokato late one night and was practically lost when he ran into the late Wm. Fernie, who was camped on the side of the mountain. This was his first meeting with the father of our town. He told of opening a store at Bull Head, with H. J. Johnson, a short time after, and later moving to Cokato and then to Old Town, Fernie. He told of many of the old characters of that time who have since passed away, of the gamblers, bootleggers and others who supplied the picturesque side of the early days. He remembered one bootlegger at Cokato named "Jack the Ripper," who was a wonderful man to swear, every other word being an oath. Some years later when the country became civilized, he met this gentleman again under peculiar circumstances. Joe had gone east to get married and he and Mrs. Bricker were coming back. At Sudbury, while they were out for a walk, whom should they meet but "Jack the Ripper," who stopped dead with the remark, "I am a son of ——— Where in hell did you come from?" Mrs. Bricker was very much shocked and wanted to know if that was the kind of friends he had out in Fernie. However, many of these friends had been rough diamonds with hearts of real gold, who would do any mortal thing to help a man who was in real trouble. He told of the mounted police service in those early days and of the trying times they had following construction and their fight to maintain law and order. At one camp he remembered a mounted police sergeant in a fight with six or seven thugs who were out to kill him, but the sergeant was a trained boxer and soon gave them the worst of it. Mr. Bricker congratulated the citizens of the town on the growth and prosperity of the city and thanked those present for the opportunity they had given him to say a few words of bygone days.

The toast "The Pioneers" was responded to by Arthur Fenwick of Fort Steele, who, as the toastmaster said, "was here even before the Indians." Mr. Fenwick said he first arrived in Yale, as this district was then called, before the steel of the main line of the C.P.R. had reached Calgary. He came in by way of Bonners Ferry and was the first man to run a steamboat on the Kootenay River. It was a small affair and had to be transported overland some 15 miles to the Kootenay River. He told of the early history of bootlegging in East Kootenay. The booze was brought in from Bonners Ferry and shipped as far north as Golden, where the construction of the C. P. R. was under way. On one occasion his own pack horses had been stolen by bootleggers and were only recovered after a hard chase. However, he confiscated the liquor to help pay for his trouble. The bootlegger though was not to be denied. He filled the empty kegs with water and sold it for $25 a gallon in Golden. At that time there were only twelve white men in this district and in all Yale there were only 32 votes. It was an easy matter to conduct an election in those days if a man was a good traveller.

Some years later he joined Wm. Fernie in a prospecting trip through this district looking for coal. They were working up on the headwaters of Martin Creek one day when he remarked to Mr. Fernie that if there was coal to be found in this district it would be just as easy to locate it lower down, and sure enough it was not long after that, while watering their horses about four miles up Coal Creek, that they came upon the seams which made the Crow's Nest district famous and put Fernie on the map. He had made his first real money out of Fernie coal, clearing some $50,000 when the property was taken over by the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. But this was not accomplished in a minute. It had taken years of hard work and struggle to keep things going. They had tried year after year to interest capital in building a railroad and finally decided to build a road themselves. Preliminary surveys and right of way construction from the west had already been under way for some time when the C.P.R. decided to put through the Crow's Nest branch and their troubles were over. Since that time Mr. Fenwick had visited many lands, including South Africa, Egypt, India, Australia and New Zealand, but always came back to East Kootenay, which he believes is the fairest and most beautiful spot in the world. He extended a hearty invitation to the Fernie Old Timers to make a picnic and visit his ranch near Fort Steele.

J. Fink, of Cranbrook, responded to a toast "The Ladies." He said while not a member of the Fernie Old Timers, he was pleased to be present. He had arrived in Wardner from Jennings, Mont., in 1897, and his wife and daughter were among the first white ladies to arrive.

In calling upon S. Herchmer to reply to the toast "The Past, Present and Future," the toastmaster touched feelingly upon the recent deaths of such old timers as Wm. Fernie, J. D. Quail, Harry Bentley, John Barnett and J. J. Cameron.

Mr. Herchmer spoke briefly. He said he had hardly been in Fernie the required time to belong to the Association, but he was one of half a dozen present who had been born in the west and therefore was an old-timer in every sense. He touched on the prosperity of the present and the glowing future ahead of this district.

The program was interspersed with musical selections by A. Watson, Wesley Owen, A. Klauer, D. Nicoletti, Fred Bass and Piper Hardie. The banquet was brought to a close with the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

SO MANY PEOPLE ARE NERVOUS

"Fruit-a-tives" the Greatest of all Nerve Remedies

This Fruit Medicine Restores Health

The increase in the number of persons suffering from Nervousness is world-wide; due, in a measure, to the reaction following the war. Sleeplessness, Headaches, Mental Depression, Rheumatism, Nervous Dyspepsia, Bad Heart Action, are the results of a disturbed condition of the Nervous System.

The nerves and the blood are so intimately, so vitally, connected that the condition of one is bound to affect the condition of the other. If the blood is laden with impurities, it is impossible to have strong, steady nerves.

The first essential in treating nervous troubles is to purify and enrich the blood. This, "FRUIT-A-TIVES" will do.

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" stimulates the bowels, kidneys and skin and purifies the blood. "Fruit-a-tives" improves appetite and digestion and insures food being properly digested, thus enabling the blood to carry wholesome nourishment to build up the body, particularly the nerves.

Men and women who take "Fruit-a-tives" for some form of nervousness—because they cannot eat or sleep or work or enjoy life—say that this fruit medicine is simply marvellous in its action.

50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa Ont.

YOU CANNOT PUT TOO MUCH CREAM on the plate if it's our ice cream. For each teaspoonful tempts to another and the temptation continues until the plate is empty, no matter how much it contained. Parents who intend to start children to school for the first time this term should bring their children to the office of the Central School on Wednesday at one o'clock, or make arrangements with the principal before that day for their admittance. West Fernie beginners will be admitted at West Fernie school on Wednesday morning, in Mrs. Elley's division.

The half-yearly grading is in progress at the city public schools. Second Reader classes have been given some written tests, but the First Reader and Primer classes are being promoted on the recommendation of their teachers. The rearrangement of classes will be made next Wednesday morning. About 25 beginners will be admitted at the Central School on Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

The new stereopticon, purchased by the Public School with funds raised at the school concert, has arrived. A selection of lantern slides is now being made by a committee of teachers, and it is expected that the stereopticon will be operating as a piece of regular equipment in Nature Study and Georgraphy classes before the end of February. The rest of the school concert funds are being spent for class libraries. Nearly a hundred books suitable for school use were purchased in the city, and the others are being procured by mail. In all about three hundred books are being procured for the nucleus of these libraries.

That the Fernie Educational and Social Club is filling the place for which it was intended is the opinion of the many people who have attended the meetings. The educational evenings have been interesting and successful and the social programs worthy of greater patronage. Plan then to be at the next meeting on Feb. 6. If each one who was present at the last meeting brings a friend there will be well over a hundred in attendance, and the program will well—make you sit up and take notice.

J. P. Fink, of Cranbrook, was in the city on Wednesday night on business.

In the case of Rex vs. Dave Gorrie, Jack Robinson alias Jack Hanson, and Charles Henderson, charged with burglary, robbery and theft, the accused this morning elected to be tried by judge and jury and their trial will accordingly not come up until the Spring Assizes. Application for bail was made on behalf of the three accused by S. Herchmer, counsel. Bail was refused Henderson and Robinson, but Gorrie will be allowed out on his own recognizance of $5000 and two sureties of $4000 and $1000 respectively.

Once more the death cell at the provincial jail here is being occupied, and once more the death watch has been established. John Gallagher, sentenced by Mr. Justice Simmons to hang on April 15th for the murder last fall near Carbon, Alta., of John Coward, has been sent to the Lethbridge jail to await the extreme penalty. This probably means that the hanging will take place at the jail, which will make the fourth at that institution since it opened ten years ago. Whether the sheriff here or the sheriff at Calgary will be required to take charge of the execution has not been definitely settled. Tom Bassoff, bandit-murderer, was the last man to pay the penalty with his life at the jail.—Lethbridge Herald.

Aird Rink Big Winner

The bonspiel of the Crow's Nest branch of the Royal Caledonian Society for the season 1921-1922 is now history. Pulling off over 200 games of curling on five sheets of ice within a week was some task and to Wallace Clark of Lethbridge, much credit is due for the excellent manner in which he handled the draws. There was no kicking, but much comment on just how it was possible to keep the ice filled all the time. The caretakers never lost a minute and so it was done. When one remembers that there were over 15 thriteen end games to delay and hold up the ice one begins to realize the task that confronted "Wally' Cark in his efforts to keep things moving.

It was a case of very much Aird—Stewart—Liphardt in the finals. Jas. Aird of Lethbridge, being in three finas; Stewart of Macleod and Liphardt of Fernie being in two each, and McNabb, Cameron and Snyder in one each.

The most coveted cup for this year was the Walker, which was won by A. C. Liphardt by steady careful curling which has marked his progress through the 'spiel. It was the last year for the Walker and Fernie retains it with 4 wins out of 10 against three for Lethbridge.

Aird was down against the Stewart brothers twice in the Trites-Wood and Grand Challenge finals. If these games had been played it would have meant 3 games, three of them finals for Mr. Aird's rink Saturday. That means 16 hours on the ice, so the rinks interested decided to toss a coin, Stewart taking the Grand Challenge and Aird the Trites-Wood.

The Synder rink, father and son, from the Carmangay club aso made a remarkably creditable showing winning the Magrath and being in the jewellery in other events. The Carmangay club are to be congratulated on this splendid showing. Carmangay has been a big booster and supporter of the "Spiel" for over six years, They assist in providing the prizes in the Trites-Wood and always have two or three rinks at every annual.

Lethbridge wins two firsts and the aggregate.

Macleod wins one.

SECRET OF HUNS' GIANT GUNS

Though the main secret of the German guns which bombarded Paris was soon known to British artillerists, the gun and its history long remained a mystery to the public. Commander Kinzel, of the German navy, who took part in the design, construction and tests of the gun, has now made public an account of his experiences with it.

The gun, he says, was a naval gun, in that it was invented and served by naval personnel. It was designed to fire 75 miles. For a long time the designers were at a loss, but ultimately they seem to have overcome all ballistic difficulties and the gun was built. The charge, ordinarily one-third the weight of the projectile, was twice as heavy. The length of the chamber was monstrous. At an angle of 45 degrees the barrel towered over houses, trees and roofs. It needed some courage to shoot with a thing like "a stick of gigantic asparagus." But the material stood it.

Commander Kinzel gives an interesting account of the testing; no artillery trial ground, he says, was large enough. In conjunction with the ministry of marine the decision was reached to fire the gun from land at about the approximate distance from the sea the shell was calculated to carry. Batteries on the shore were warned, the ground divided into observation areas and two seaplanes were sent out to sea to watch for the shell. It was estimated that it would expode at 110 kilometers (69 miles) from the gun.

At 3:15 one afternoon the seaplanes were warned by wireless. "Attention; shell fire." Three minutes was the time estimated for the shell to reach the marked area. Then came a ring on the telephone at the central station: "Reports of explosion heard." It was found on inquiry that the shell had fallen at 95 kilometers (59 mi.) from the gun, and 1,400 yards inland. It had hit a cowshed, but there were no casualties.

The pieces were collected and examined. They showed that the shell had been to an altitude of 40 kilometers. The dstance, however, was short of that for whch the gun was designed, and there followed new consultations, calculations and designs. Finally, a few weeks later, they were in a position to bombard Paris.

Two guns were made and a third put in hand. Commander Kinzel gives some details of the two when they had been brought into position in a wood behind Laon, in March, 1918. The nearest enemy lines were 12 kilometers (7½ miles) away. Paris was 120 kilometers (80 miles) distant. The crew were naval gunners. Special dugouts had to be made for the cartridges and shells, and special smoke apparatus for concealment, since at 45 degrees the barrel overshot the forest. The shells, he says, looked modest side by side with the cartridges, which were three and four times as long as the shells and the length of two grown men. That the gun could not lay Paris in ruins was plain; this was a "moral" gun. On March 23, at 7:15 a.m., they opened fire, and then continued every quarter of an hour, later speeding the rounds. At two o'clock the sun came through, and they ceased for the day so as not to give away the position, as French observation baloons were seaching the district. They fired for three days before they got the first news of where their shells had fallen. Within thirty hours French artillery had located and shelled them, but they continued to fire. Neither gun was hit.

The guns, however, had a life of less than one hundred shots before the ignition chamber was so damaged that further firing was impossible. The old barrel was returned to the factory, a new one being ready. The battery lost seven killed and seventeen wounded.—Toronto News.

WINNIPEG WOMAN HAD LOST HEART

"I have taken seven bottles of Tanlac and am now feeling like a new woman," said Mrs. C. Grasser, 394 Kennedy St., Winnipeg, Man.

"Three years ago my stomach got out of order and troubled me ever since. I was informed that I had a chronic case of indigestion, and was treated for that, but kept getting worse. I reached the point where I had no appetite and simply dreaded to eat on account of the miseries I suffered afterwards. There was a lump-like feeling in the pit of my stomach and often I became so nauseated I could scarcely retain anything. My left side hurt me so I couldn't lie on it and it was a struggle for me to breathe. I simply felt like I was going to smother. I also suffered with sick headache just about all the time and was so nervous and restless I hardly slept a wink.

"I had just about reached the point where I though I was never going to get better when I read about Tanlac and decided to give it a trial. I did not see much improvement until I had finished my third bottle, but after that I got well rapidly. I am now enjoying the best of health and am glad to add my voice to all the others who are praising Tanlac."

NORTHERNS RELEGATED TO THE CELLAR

Taking the lesson from the Coal Co., the 150 blanked the Northern Hotel last evening in a league fixture by the score of 6 to 0. Rooters for the respective teams were out in full force with all the noise making apparatus they could commander and kept the rafters ringing all the time.

It was a case of too much defence speed, and Dicken for the Hotel lads, this diminutive forward, who has over 25 goals this season to his credit, garnered in five golas and assisted for the sixth. Despite this one-sided score, the fans had thrills aplenty, and only the inability of the Northerns to penetrate the defence of the 150, who had to turn them back all during the game, kept the cooks from entering the scoring column. After the second period the play was very much in the 150 territory with the exception of rushes by Dicken and Wilson, which nearly always ended with another goal. McLeod in goal for the losers surprised the fans by stopping an occasional shot, while McGonigal was rarely severely tested, his defence men acting as forward custodians. This win put the 150 in front to await the winner of the next game, which will again make a tie. The Monday night game will be postponed if arrangements can be made with Taber, who want to play here on Tuesday, Jan. 31. In that event, Monday will be turned over for a senior work-out.

Norma Talmadge Has Star Support in Her New Play

One of the most notable casts ever assembled in a motion picture production supports Norma Talmadge in "The Wonderful Thing," which will be the attraction at the Orpheum theatre, Friday & Saturday. With the single exception of Mrs. Lydig Hoyt who makes her first professional appearance in the production, the principals are all players who are widely known to motion picture audiences.

Mrs. Hoyt has long enjoyed a splendid reputation as an actress, but her appearances have been confined to amatuer theatricals in New York and Newport society. Mrs. Hoyt is one of the leaders of eastern society and recently decided to organize her own motion picture producing company to escape from the ennui which society routine engendered. Her ability as an actress was the only consideration which won her the opportunity of acquiring motion picture experience. She is cast in the role of Catherine Mannerby Truesdale, the leader of the opposition to the acceptance of Jacqueline Boggs (played by Miss Talmadge) as a member of the highly aristocratic English family of which she is a member.

Harrison Ford plays the role of Donald Mannerby, the young Englishman who marries Jacqueline for her money and then learns to love her. Howard Truesdale is the American Hog King whose millions make his daughter attractive to Donald. Robert Agnew is Laurence Mannerby, the weaker young brother, who gets into the scrape which makes money essential to Donald. Ethel Fleming is Dulcie Mannerby Fosdick, who knows Jacqueline for what she is, and loves her. The stern, proud English mother, Lady Sophia Alexandria Mannerby, is played by Mable Bert. Fanny Burke is cast as a rich comedy role with a strong flavor of pathos because it is so human, as Angelica Mannerby, who has patiently waited fifteen years for the return of her lover with whom she has quarrelled. Charles Craig is her lover, who comes back and Walter McEwan is the villain in the role of "Smooth Bill' Carser.

AUDITOR'S REPORT

To His Worship, the Mayor, and Aldermen,
Corporation of the Ciity of Fernie
British Columbia.

Gentlemen:

I beg to report that I have examined the books and vouchers of the City of Fernie for the year ending December 31st, 1921.

The balance sheets referred to in this report are signed by me, and in my opinion, properly drawn up so as to exhibit truly and correctly the state of affairs of the Corporation as at December 31st. 1921 as shown by the books of the Corporation.

I found the books and vouchers in perfect order, and all disbursements made in accordance with Municipal Law.

The finances of the Corporation again show an improvement. At the close of 1920 there was a credit balance in the Bank of $14,716.33, and at December 31st, 1921, the Corporation has a credit balance of $39,032.02, made up as follows:

General	$12,866.99
Savings	25,352.62
Pay-Roll	812.41

All payments were made into Sinking Fund and there is a surplus of $4,982.23 in said rund.

Taxes in arrears December 31st 1920. were $14,690.12, and in 1921, $4,982.23 in said fund.

The school department kept within its estimate and has a surplus of $4,377.74 to be applied for relief of taxation in 1922.

All City General departments were within their estimates and with the exception of Public Works, were practically the same as for 1920. Public Works expenditures were $4,735.08 more than in 1920, but this is accounted for by large amount spent for improvements on streets and sidewalks.

The Revenue and Expenditure Statements show a surplus of revenue over expenditure of $14,870.15, after providing for a further reduction of $5,000.00 in over-expenditure on Debenture Construction Account. There is still a further $10,000.00 to be provided for in this account and I would recommend that this be charged to surplus without making any additional levy in 1922.

The Electric Light and Waterworks Departments both show a handsome surplus amounting to $5,149.34 and $9,431.77 respectively, after providing for all fixed charges.

Annex Sewer Debentures, dated May 1917, to the amount of $14,000.00 are still unsold and I would recommend that these be cancelled if you do not intend going ahead with the construction of this work.

There are $6,808.68, unexpired Electric Light Debenture funds, and I would recommend that this be taken out of the Debenture Funds Account and Deposited into General Bank Account as electric meters to the value of $8,520.65 have been paid for out of Depreciation Reserves. By doing this you would have the net balance paid for meters from the Depreciation Reserves Account, $1711.97, and this, I would further recommend, should be transferred to General Surplus and then proper depreciation reserves be set up against these items, and in future renewals to be purchased out of General Revenue.

Annex Sidewalk Debentures amounting to $4,634.39 were redeemed during 1921. As the above item is carried on the books as an asset, and is of very doubtful value, I would recommend that same be written off.

The actual cash received during 1921 was $188,361.84, while disbursements were $164 009,78, leaving a net balance of receipts over disbursements of $24,312.06.

In conclusion I wish to thank those officials whom the performance of my duties brought me in contact, for their assistance and courtesy on all occasions.

Respectfully submitted,
G. F. Johnson, Auditor.

LABOR COST & COAL OUTPUT

(Calgary Herald, Jan. 30)

American coal is driving the Crow's Nest product steadily out of the market, according to operators of that district, who assert that unreasonable labor prices are the cause of it. A similar condition extends all the way down to Manitoba said J. M. Mackie, president of the Hillcrest Collieries, operating a mine near Hillcrest, Alta., in the Crow's Nest Pass. Mr. Mackie passed through Calgary at the week end on a visit of inspection to the western property.

The Hillcrest mine has a capacity of from 350,000 to 400,000 tons per year, most of this coal, a steam product, being supplied to railway and commercial companies. All the mines in the Crow's Nest district, however, have been working half time on account of the growing invasion of the cheaper American coal.

Speaking of the effects of high labor prices on Canadian coal output Mr. Mackie said:

"How many farmers in this province are paying, or would consider paying 82¼ cents per hour for unskilled labor? Yet every householder who buys coal is contributing to the payment of this wage to unskilled labor employed above ground in the mining camps and a correspondingly high wage to the men employed under ground.

"As an example of how the unreasonable demands of labor are narrowing Alberta's coal markets, it is only necessary to cite an instance which occurred some months ago, when we were given an opportunity to supply coal in Manitoba, the only stipulation being that we meet the price on American coal. We submitted the proposition to our men, advising them of the opportunity to obtain additional employment if they would agree to a small reduction in wages. This proposition was voted down, some of the men stating quite openly that they were satisifed to work three days a week on the present wage scale.

"If the coal industry of Alberta is to yield the returns it should to the vast and varying interests in this province, labor will require to look facts in the face, grapple with actual problems and demonstrate its ability to manage its affairs along sound business lines. Labor has been grossly mismanaged in Alberta coal fields, largely because the better element stand aloof and allows the agitators to sway the foreign masses in the camps.

"The true interests of our coal companies are never in opposition of labor, and it is to be hoped that the operators and miners will permit this idea to predominate their thoughts in their negotiations this spring, with the result that wider markets and steadier work will prevail in our coal industry in future.

"Alberta's vast coal deposits are famous the world over but it is impossible that the benefits which should accrue to the people of this province from these coal deposits can be realized until labor joins whole-heartedly in the solution of the problems involved in broader markets for the output of the mines."

PUBLIC LIBRARY HOLD MEETING

The Annual Meeting of the Fernie Library Association, Inc., was held in the Council Chamber on Monday, January 9th, at 8 p.m.

The following were elected for the year 1922.

President; Dr. E. L. Garner.
Board; A. Corrie; H. E. Douglas; N F. Brand; A. Cummings; P. H. Sheffield.
Secretary; Arthur J. Moffatt.
Treasurer; D. G. Harvie.

The annual subscription was reduced for juveniles up to the age of 16 to $1.00 while the adult subscription remains at $2.00.

Secretary's Report for 1921

The expenses of the first year have been somewhat heavy as bookcases and other equipment were necessary but the society is now in such a position that no further expenditure of any serious amount need be incurred for some time to come for equipment. All money received can now be used for the purchase of books and for running expenses.

There have been purchased during the years, 90 volumes, largely Canadian authors and there have been presented 184 volumes. 1000 volumes have been borrowed from the Provincial Government of which 500 have returned. The average number of books exchanged per hight was 35. The Library was open 100 times making 3500 exchanges, an average of 38 per member.

Of this number, quite two-thirds would be light fiction, the remaining one- third being divided between Reference Standard and Juvenile works.

There is no doubt that we ought to have a much larger membership than 91, probably 200 would be nearer the correct figure for a City the size of Fernie. The Board would welcome suggestions leading towards increased membership.

As will be seen from the following statements, the total disbursements were $524.29 and the Revenue was $500.45 leaving a deficit of $23.84 with which arrears of Librarians salary of $55.00 makes a total deficit of $78.84 for the year.

The estimate of requirements for for the year 1922, which is probably rather underestimated, is:

SMITH DECLARES HE WAS ALARMED

Sudden Turn For the Worst Served As Warning To This Winnipeg Man

"My advice to anybody with stomach trouble is to take Tanlac. I have tried dieting, medicine and everything else but Tanlac is the only thing that ever helped me," said A. W. Smith, a well-known tailor, residing at 371 Arlington St., Winnipeg, Man.

"I had a chronic case of stomach trouble that had been giving me constant bother for two years or more. I had to be particular about what I ate and there were many things I couldn't touch. At times I turned almost deathly sick and would have the worst sort of pains in my stomach. I was subject to awful headaches that made me nervous and restless and I got to where I would lie awake in bed for hours hardly able to get any sleep at all. A few weeks ago I took a turn for the worse and that scared me and I took it as a warning.

"So I started on Tanlac as I had heard a lot about it and had been thinking of trying it. And it just hit the spot and I felt an immediate relief. I stuck right with Tanlac then and now I can't tell I ever had stomach trouble. My appetite is first class and nothing I eat hurts me. The fact is: I feel great and consider Tanlac in a class all by itself."

New Tourist Association Hold Interesting Meeting

The Tourist Association of Southeastern British Columbia and Southern Alberta, which was formed by the Boards of Trade of Nelson, Cranbrook, Fernie and Lethbridge, last August, held a meeting of its directors in Fernie on Wednesday evening Jan. 25, and the following morning. The meeting was held to receive the report of Commissioner J. Fred Spalding of the result of his organization campaign and his proposals in respect to the booklets to be issued by the Association.

The delegates present were: E. F. Gigot of Nelson, J. P. Fink of Cranbrook, E. K. Stewart of Fernie, D. Duff of Lethbridge, Bryom Harmon of Banff, and E. Bossenberry of Pincher Creek.

The President, Mr. A. G. Baalim, of Lethbridge, was prevented from being present through sickness, and by unanimous choice, J. P. Fink of Cranbrook presided.

The minutes of the meeting in August were read and adopted. These gave in full the objects for which the Assocation aimed, and in brief these are: To show the motoring public of Canada and the United States what splendid facilities for enjoyable touring are to be found in Southern Alberta and Southeastern British Columbia both in the way of splendid roads and wonderful scenery. The enticements for vacationists other than motorists, such as hunters, anglers and mountaineers and the opportunities for investors and settlers.

Mr. Spalding's report stated that the Boards of Trade which had definitely joined the Association and accepted responsibilities for their assessed membership fee are: Grand Forks, Trail, Nelson, Cranbrook and Fernie, in B. C., and Lethbridge, Banff, Cardston and Pincher Creek in Alberta.

The funds which will be available from this membership being sufficient to warrant the carrying out of the greater part of his program, Mr. Spalding recommended that the meeting authorize immediate proceeding with them if approved of. This course was sanctioned by motion, and he then gave in detail what these plans consisted of, which are: The publication of a 32-page booklet similar in style and dimensions to the one issued by the Associated Boards of S. E. B. C. last year. There will be 22 pages of scenic illustrations, a two-page map of the principal highways leading to these parts, a detail map (one page) of these parts and the balance to be descriptive matter. He recommended that 15,000 of these constitute the first issue, 10,000 of which should be sent to individuals throughout Canada and the States 2,000 sent out in parcels containing from 6 to 50 to the leading Tourist Bureaus and Automobile clubs in Canada and the States. Each Board of Trade being a member should receive a limited supply for their local requirements and the balance retained at the head office for distribution to enquirers by mail.

This plan met with general approval and the necessary motion authorizing him to go ahead, was passed.

Estimates for the printing from four firms were then read and discussed, and Mr. Spalding recommended that the tender of the Western Printing and Litho Co., Ltd., of Calgary, be accepted, not only on account of it's being the lowest, but because that firm had given such good satisfaction with the two previous booklets they had printed for the Associated Boards. Their tender for the complete job, including 12,000 suitable envelopes, was $1,508.80. The motion to accept this was duly carried and Mr. Spalding was given authority to place the order with that firm at once.

Consideration was then given to the total cost including mailing of the booklets, which he estimated would amount to $2,150 approximately. This amount was rather more than it was expected that it would be, and when deducted from the total funds in sight, as pointed out by Mr. Duff, would leave a balance quite insufficient to pay the Commissioner anything like an adequate remuneration for his services. He went on to say that they all realized that the work would be very heavy and take up practically his whole time, and that as the success of the Association depended entirely upon his management, he for one felt that further effort should be made to increase the funds, perhaps by an additional assessment on the members, to enable proper salary to be paid. Mr. Harmon fully agreed to this but thought it might be difficult to get the Boards which had already made their appropriation for this purpose to obtain an additional amount this year. He asked Mr. Spalding what he thought about it himself, and he replied that what he desired more than anything else was to get the Association off to a good start, as he felt sure that if its first year proved as successful as he hoped that it would, it would be bound to increase its membership and scope, end eventually become one of the most influential associations of it's kind in the country, and with that as an incentive, he was perpared to grow with it and would accept whatever salary the funds in sight would justify being paid, but with the understanding that it was not to be the basis upon which to fix next year's remuneration if his services were retained. With that understanding embodied in it, a motion was passed that he should be paid $150 a month, monthly, just as long as there were funds available. He expressed himself as satisfied with this arrangement. He then went on to state that he still had hopes of inducing Calgary, Blairmore, Coleman, Creston and Trail to join this year, and that the publicity department of the C. P. R. had included in their appropriations the sum of $750 as a cash donation to the Association, but as their appropriations committee did not meet until some time this month, he had not heard if it had been passed. On hearing this, Mr. Harmon said that he knew Mr. J. M. Gibbon, the general publicity agent, and felt quite sure that we should receive this donation, as he knew that his department, rarely had their apropriations turned down.

There was another suggestion for raising additional funds which Mr. Spalding requested authority to put into force. This is a Card which will contain lists of the hotels and garages recommended for the patronage of tourists by the Association. A charge of from $10 to $25 will be made for inclusion, to the hotels and garages, and there was no doubt that there would be quite a rush to get on the list which will be sent out with replies to enquiries together with the literature, and also given to tourists calling at the information bureaus. He suggested 15,000 of these be authorized, which was done by regular motion.

As there was still the reading of the text contents of the booklet to be heard, and the time being close to midnight, the meeting was adjourned until the following morning at nine o'clock.

For a wonder a Fernie meeting was convened almost on time, as it was only five minutes past the hour set when proceedings were under way on Thursday morning and Mr. Spalding's description of a tour through these parts being intently listened to. It was rather amusing to watch the delegates whilst this was going on, the way each would perk up as his own particular section was being described, indicated that they were right onto their job and that they did not intend to let any essential feature be left out. Very few alterations were necessary, however, but at the end of the reading there was considerable discussion in respect to the towns whose Boards of Trade had not joined the Association, only receiving very brief mention. Mr. Spalding stated that he had received instructions at the meetng in August that he was to confine his efforts solely on behalf of the members, and that he had simply carried out those instructions by practically ingoring non-members.

The opinion of the meeting, however, was that the main objects of the Association were to entice tourists and settlers, and the only way to do it was by giving an accurate description of the whole territory, and whether the delinquent Boards joined or not, the entire territory should be properly described. Therefore a motion was carried instructing Mr. Spalding to include descriptions of Rossland, Creston and Calgary, as if they were members, and inform them of the reason for doing so, and leave it to their sense of justice in the hope that they would take their part with the others in sharing the expense of boosting the whole.

There was then a short discussion on road matters, and according to the information given by some of those present, the year of 1922 will see a very great improvement in the roads, especially in the province of Alberta. The Banff-Windermere road came in for its share in the discussion and reliable information was to hand that most likely this road would be through some time this fall. The general consensus of opinion of all the delegates was that the west was particularly fortunate in having a western man in the Federal Government holding down the office of Minister of Public Works. This road is still far from completed, and as it's completion will mean more to the Minister's home town probably than to any other, it is only natural to expect that he will use every effort to hurry it to completion.

A few minor matters were left to the discretion of the treasurer and commissioner and with mutual expressions of satisfaction and optimistic views respecting the future of the Association, one of the most important meetings held in Fernie for a considerable time came to a close.

TABER WINS AND TIES

Taber Invades and Takes First Game By Score of 6 to 3—Second Game Ends in 7 All Tie

The first interprovincial hockey game of the season was played here on Tuesday night, when the Taber Crow's Nest League team opposed the local sextette and resulted in a win for the Taber Chefs by a score of six goals to three. The game was remarkably clean, only one penalty being handed out during the entire game. The Fernie lads appeared in the Northern Hotel uniform through the kindness of Mrs. Barrett and wish to thank her for the interest taken in the winter sport this year.

The first period opened with a rush by the Taber forwards but Kirkpatrick busted up the raid, back came Towell and beat Costa for the opening goal one minute from the start. This somewhat nettled Fernie and Storie was called upon to ward off a succession of hot ones.

End to end play followed and 'Wireless' Scott notched a second for Taber with a shot from close range. Fernie's presistency was not to be denied however and B. Wilson tore up the ice and netted for Fernie's first. Four minutes later, following a nice combination run, Douglas snapped up a pass from Wainman and slammed the puck into the net. The bell found Fernie pressing hard but Storie proving his mettle in the nets. Fernie 1 Taber 3.

Fernie opened the second period with a raid on Storie and just as Glover was about to shoot Carleton upset him and was sent to the cooler for three minutes For the next few minutes Fernie were still aggressors but failed to find the nets. Taber then took on a spurt and kept the puck well down and were rewarded when Scott again netted. From the face-off Taber came down the ice with pretty combination work and Towell scored his second goal. Fernie seemed to be geting a grip on the six-man game and settled down to more systematic work, and kept the Taber defense humping. Dicken broke away, carrying the puck behind the goal and using one of the Taber men as a cushion rebounded the puck in the nets. Just before the bell rang for the end of the period, Towell came through the Fernie defense and scored his third, making Taber's sixth. Fernie 2 Taber 6.

The final period was practically all Fernie, Costa not being called upon to defend his citadel more than half a dozen times during the entire twenty minutes. Eight minutes from the start Kirkpatrick grabbed the rubber from behind the Fernie goal and tore up the ice and beat Storie with a high fast shot from the blue line. This ended the scoring of the period. Costa had a couple of anxious moments, being called upon to save and clear in the very teeth of the raiders. Fer- was now outskating the visitors and how Storie managed to hold his goal from further downfall still remains a mystery. Final Score, Fernie 2, Taber 6.

The line-up:

Taber	Position	Fernie
Storie	goal	Costa
Carleton	defense	Kirkpatrick
Wainman	defense	Commons
W. Scott	forward	Glover
Douglas	forward	Dicken
Towell	forward	B. Wilson

Taber again provided the opposition to the Fernie hockey artists at the local arena on Wednesday afternoon. Fernie with the exception of B. Wilson at centre turned out a completely changed line up and came within a second of defeating the prairie boys, J. Scott, of Taber, tying the score just a second before the bell went for the end of the third period. Ten minutes overtime was played but both teams scored two goals each and the game was abandoned with the score standing seven goals each. Taber were unable to finish the game owing to an unfortunate accident to Carleton, one of their defence men, who while endeavoring to stop B. Wilson from shooting, skated across the ice and just reached Wilson as he shot. Wilson not noticing the player did not check his stick and Carleton received the full force of the swing in the face.

Fernie started right out in the first period and before Taber had time to realize it, they found themselves up against a three goal lead and Fernie still going strong. Taber then put on a spurt but Murray and his two supporters in front of him were equal to all occasions and the period finished with the score Fernie 3, Taber 0.

Taber opened the scoring in the second period following a nice run five minutes from the start. This started the Fernie forwards up the ice and they once more assumed their three goal lead, T. Wilson catching a rebound and batting into the net. Not content with this Fernie came back a few minutes later and Cairns added another, finishing the score for the second period. Taber 1, Fernie 5.

Taber seemed to take a new lease on life when they opened the third period and reduced Fernie's lead to one goal in the first ten minutes Fernie confined themselves to a defensive game during the latter part of the game and it was only in the last second that J. Scott came through in an individual rush and beat Murray for the tying goal. Fernie 5, Taber 5.

In the first five minutes overtime Taber got away with a rush and added two goals in the same number of minutes. From the second face off B. Wilson got the puck and waded through the Taber defence and beat Storie easily. Fernie 6, Taber 7.

Fernie were early in on Storie in the second five minutes overtime and Cairns tried a shot from the blue line which found the net, and the score was again tied. Both teams played hard to break the tie but the bell found the score still standing Fernie 7, Taber 7.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE BRINGS STAGE PLAY TO SCREEN

When "Wedding Bells," Constance Talmadge's latest starring vehicle through Associated National Pictures, Inc., is flashed on the screen next Monday and Tuesday at the Orpheum Theatre, local motion picture fans will have the opportunity of seeing pretty Constance in a feature which is one of the happiest combinations of story, star, cast, and direction which it has been their pleasure to see in a long while.

"Wedding Bells" was one of the hits of the Broadway stage, and its popularity throughout the country gives good evidence that it will receive a splendid reception by screen fans. All of the sparkle and charm of Salisbury Field's original production have been preserved by Zelda Crosby who adapted this play for the screen and by Chet Withey who directed the picture.

The story is set in Palm Beach and New York City and involves the caprices of a young man and a younger girl who has a will of her own. As Rosalie Wayne, Miss Talmadge falls in love with a rich young, handsome New Yorker who happens to be summering at the same Palm Beach hotel where she resides. Their introduction is brought about as a result of a poodle dog and what follows is just about as strange and humorous.

American Consular Service

The Fernie Free Press,
Fernie, B. C.
Mr. Editor:

I have just received from the bureau of plant industry at Washington a communication in response to an inquiry as to the economic value of a certain tissue mailed to the government, which I think will prove of general interest to the people of this valley. The tissue referred to is that obtained from the butts of dead larch trees. The communication referred to reads in part as follows:

"The tissue is the vegetative part of a fungus, and in larch is usually produced by either the chalky quinine fungus (Fomes officinalis), or the sulphur fungus (Polyporus sulphureus). The action of the fungus on the heart-wood of the tree causes decay which shrinks in its final stages, leaving cracks or checks in the rotted wod. The fungus may continue to vegetate, and fills up the narrow clefts with a dense felty layer very much like chamois, and may sometimes be peeled from the decayed wood in large sheets. The development of this material may occur at any part of the living tree, but is usually found in largest quantities in the base. Owing to the inability of the fungus to rapidly break down the pitch-infiltrated wood of large windshaken larches, the radial and concentric checks are not infrequently filled with the vegetative part of the invading fungus without a pronounced decay of the wood except at the point of entrance. The development of the vegetative fungus in the narrow checks often result in sheet of "felt" of great beauty and of considerable practical use. Thickness of the clefts in the wood determine the thickness of the sheets. Absence of light in the clefts is responsible for the white color of the sheets which may asume brownish or yellowish tints with age or when exposed.

"It is doubtful if the material can can be obtained in sufficient quantity to be of much commercial value. It is a good material for many purposes and should be of considerable value when used as a vellum in the bookbinders' art. The manufacturer of caps, gloves, coverings for tables. etc. from thin sheets cut from the fruiting bodies of certain fungi (which are also common to the Northwest) is an old art in Europe.

"There are occasional references in the literature to the ocurance of these felt masses in trees, but only from the standpoint of rot diagnosis in forestry work."

Respectfully yours,
Norton F. Brand,
American Consul.

OTTAWA, Jan. 26. — (Canadian Press)—The Dominion bureau of statistics yesterday issued, subject to correction, the population of the Province of British Columbia by electoral districts and by cities, as shown by returns of the sixth census, 1921.

The increase in British Columbia's population as shown will also mean increased representation from that province in the House of Commons following the next redistribution.

At present British Columbia sends thirteen members to the House of Commons. Its population of 523,369 will entitle it to fifteen members, an increase of two over the present representation.

The figures for cities place Vancouver's population at 116,700, a growth of 16,299; Victoria, 38,182, growth of 7022; New Westminster, 14,440, a growth of 1241.

A GOOD INCREASE

Exactly one-third has been added to the population of the Province in the last ten years. This is not unsatisfactory when it is considered that for more than half the period immigration was practically discontinued. Alberta and probably Saskatchewan have made somewhat larger gains than British Columbia Manitoba somewhat less.

The province gains two members of Parliament. This means that the percentage of increase has been so much greater than that of Quebec Saskatchewan is yet to be reported. Then we shall have the full returns, which will call for about ten additional representatives from Western Canada.

The 130,889 added to the population are well distributed. Over 42,000 are in Greater Vancouver, The municipal city has increased only a little over 16,000, the centre electoral division gaining only a few hundreds. The urban community has found its growth in the municipalities of South Vancouver and Point Grey, with some overflow into Burnaby and North and West Vancouver. Gain in South Vancouver municipality is almost exactly the same numerically as that of Vancouver city. The population of South Vancouver has more than doubled. That of Point Grey municipality has more than trebled. The three municipalities have a population of 161,536. Municipalities north of the Inlet have nearly doubled their population, which now exceeds 13 000 The neighboring electoral district of New Westminster shows an increase of 16 495, or some 56 per cent.

But the growth is not confined to the lower mainland. Only one electoral district out of thirteen fails to show an increase. In a mining country it is inevitable that certain camps shall be deserted. There are a few decreases from this cause, but in several districts mining has given place to fruitgrowing or some other form of agriculture. The gain of Victoria municipality is relatively a little more than that of Vancouver, and the increase of the population of Vancouver Island must be about 40 per cent. The growth of the province during the decade is not so large as was expected before the war and it is larger than most people expected during the war and in the first year of peace. — Vancouver Province.

TEMPERANCE ACT IS FARCE

The Ontario Temeperance Act from a practical point of view is not worth the paper it is printed on. At least that has been the effect in our larger centres of population, no matter what can be said of the result in the country districts. Lets us look around and size up the situation. Crime is rampant, and so is drunkeness. Our court records prove that. Drug 'hounds' are everywhere, and so are bootleggers. Private stills and home breweries have sprung up on every side. A little experimenting has proved that just as good beer can be made at home as ever came out of a brewery, and it has this much in its favor, it is far cheaper. Bootleg whiskey, largely the product of private stills, and a good deal of it raw deadly stuff, can be had for the asking.

But there is worse to tell. Our younger element, both girls and boys, young men and young women in what we call the higher walks of life are fast becoming debauched. "Something on the hip," of which both sexes partake has become the regular thing at both public and private social functions. And girls, whose mothers never dreamed of partaking of liquors of high alcoholic content, now carry their own silver flasks and drink their whiskey "neat."

The administration of the Act so far as the Board of License Commissioners and the physicians' prescriptions go is a public scandal. The Board has latterly ruled that the right to issue prescriptions by doctors be limited to fifty per month. Which means that the raw young doctor with no practice to speak of is placed in the same category as the physician of large practice. Latterly the Board of License Commissioners has placed some scores of Ontario physicians on the "Indian list." That is to say given orders that the prescriptions given their patients shall not be filled from Government stores. Among these "suspended" doctors are many who are absolutely above suspicion. They have overrun the limits of their fifty prescriptions per month by reason of the size of their practice and for various other causes, such, for instance, as the character of the practice, the poor usually being without and the rich with a cellar full, and not in need of relying on Government vendors.

Betty Compson in the Paramount Picture

COMING TO THE ORPHEUM

"There may be," said Attorney General Raney, "a better way of regulating the prescribing of liquor," and suggests that the doctors themselves take over the administration. There is a better way, but not that way, for the doctors of Ontario have no thought of becoming responsible for the absurdities of the Ontario Temperance Act. And they are already on record to that effect.

The waste basket is the place for the Ontario Temperance Act. So far as our cities go the thing is a failure, and it is doubtful if the country districts are any better off than when under the Scott Act. It should be torn up and a new start made on reasonable, sane lines. The O.T.A. has done nothing better than open up new industries in the way of illicit stills and illicit liquor trading. It has turned the medical profession into a group of bar tenders.—Saturday Night.

Anxious to reach New York post haste, a Montreal man engaged a taxi to make the trip. The weary hands on the mileage meter registered 500 miles and the fare $453.75.

BOLSHEVISTS WHO BOMBED WALL STREET

Recent Revalations point to a very close conection between the anarchists who bombed Wall Street, New York, last year and the Bolshevists of Russia, It will be remembered that for a long period this bombing, which resulted in loss of life and great property damage was a complete mystery. Later on, however, W. J. Burns, who is now head of the United States Secret Service, got at least a hint as to who the conspirators were. One Wolf Lindenfield, who evidently knows more about it than has been made public, was sent to Russia and Poland by Burns with the idea of uncovering the plot. Months went by and Lindenfield and his movements remained unknown to the United States authorities. Finally Burns sent out another man who not only discovered Wolf Lingenfield, but also unearthed the fact that he was hand in glove with the Russian Bolshevists, and that his record was well known in Poland. Lindenfield was arrested in Warsaw, and in time it is expected that he will be shipped back to the United States.

It is interesting to note that Lindenfield, who is known in private life as Vladimir Onorff, spent, according to the press cables, six weeks in Moscow in conference with the leaders of the Third Internationale, and he has stated that both Trotsky and Lenine approved of the mehtods which had been pursued in New York by the terrorists and moreover expressed regret that the explosion had not been more successful, success being measured evidently by the number of people killed and buildings wrecked.

And these are the people we would take to our bosoms, and for whom funds are now being collected right under our noses.—Saturday Night.

Russian delegates to the Genoa conference may be preceded by special trains loaded with sufficient currency to defray ther hotel bills.

How to keep Bread Fresher

YOUR bread can't keep "fresh"—even for a day—in a stale bread box.

A tablespoonful of Gold Dust to a gallon of hot water takes wonderful care of Bread Boxes because Gold Dust dissolves every particle of grease in nooks and crannies. Now, scald with hot water and air thoroughly.

With this simple Gold Dust recipe you never need worry about stale or "mouldy" bread boxes.

Busy housekeepers know there is only one Gold Dust. They always look for the Gold Dust Twins on the package.

$80,000,000 ORE IN SIGHT

The Victoria Colonist of Jan. 28 says:

Writing to a friend in this city under date of Jan. 15, Wm. Forrest, of Stewart, formerly of this city, says:

"The Premier tramline, the second longest in America, is working better than expected. They can haul one hundred tons to the bunkers at the wharf in 12 hours, which is about two hours quicker than expected. The buckets are going and coming every day with full loads, so it is expected a large steamer load will be going out every week. Last month they struck the large body of ore at No. 4 tunnel, so they have now, according to calculations, over eighty million dollars worth of ore in sight, with values increasing. Letters have been received here from New York stating that a number of mining men are coming to look over the ground this coming summer. The worst of it is the most of them want developed properties. How the devil can a poor prospector show tonnage when it takes him hustling all winter to make enough to buy his powder and beans and bacon. Here we cannot even get powder to buy when we want it. Taking my privilege as a J. P., I gave a local merchant permission to keep about ten cases in a special room for the benefit of prospectors. According to a Dominion order in council, a magistrate can give such a permit to keep high explosives. The police at once jumped the storekeeper, and wrote down to Victoria to know what they should do. The reply came back to give the storekeeper 24 hours to have it removed. When they went to serve notice they found he had sold it all, the prospectors being glad to get a chance to buy it.

"I should think that a Dominion Act or order in council should overrule a provincial one. A mining company may have 800 cases of high explosives stored in their wharf shed for about three months and nothing said about it. If the government want to help the prospector as they make out they do, they cannot do better than give him a chance to buy powder when he wants it, especially in a rich camp such as this will eventually become.

"We have nearly five feet of packed snow on the level. Fine, clear, frosty weather at present."

(Nelson News, Jan. 30.)

Victoria, Jan. 29.—Striking of a large new body of ore in the famous Premier mine, at Stewart, has increased the value of the property to $80 000,000 according to a message received here from Stewart.

Officials at the department of mines expressed surprise at the estimate. It has been known officially for some time that the company had $40 000,000 actually in sight before undertaking recent expenditures.

The Guggenheims, President W. R Wilson of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., A. B. Trites and R. W. Wood, control the mine, which is now believed to be the richest silver and gold mine in North America.

FORESTS AND FIRESIDES

There was, at one time, a widely distributed poster in British Columbia, which stated baldly that the Forest Dollar was British Columbia's payroll.

It was noticed at the time, but times were prosperous, and it is doubtful if the real significance of the idea was fully realized. But when the lumber trade is slack and mills and camps are shut down business depression becomes evident on all sides, and all trades are forced to share in the consequent loss of business.

The grocery, hardware, wire, rope and boiler machinery houses are but a few of the business lines that are hit, and this of course is reflected on the men employed, for whom there is no work and thus no pay check.

The logger walks disconsolately and aimlessly around the cities and towns of which he is not a part, the screaming saws of the mills are silent, and empty railroad cars stand idle in the terminals, and tug boats no longer wend their way fussily through harbors congested with shipping, and the many bottoms which usually carry the lumber of British Columbia to the Seven Seas lie at anchor, the only movement being that occasioned by the tides.

Imagine so far as concerns the tremendous lumber industry, this condition made permanent. What is there to take its place? There is no other natural resources in this large province that could hope to compete with lumber as a means of so widely distributing the payroll which accompanies an active lumber industry, but each and every year sees the needless destruction of millions of green timber which should have provided a livelihood for the logger and mill hand, simply because of a certain apathetic and careless section of the public which finds its way into the woods is careless with fire.

If at such times as this, the lesson is forced upon us as to the results which follow in the wake of a temporarily depressed lumber market imagine what would be the result of a complete cessation, for a long period of years, of the lumber industry.

Let this lesson sink in, and then realize that every forest fire brings this province a step nearer to the stagnacy so far as affects the marketing of British Columbia's most important crop, that of her Green Forests.

EXCELLENT CAST IN "HER MAD BARGAIN"

Louis B. Mayer assembled an excellent cast to support Anita Stewart in "Her Mad Bargain," the star's new vehicle for the First National, which is to be shown at the Orpheum theatre Wednesday and Thursday. Heading the list as leading man is Walter McGrail, who played a similar role with Miss Stewart in her last two pictures, "Playthings of Destiny" and "The Invisible Fear." The balance of the cast contains Arthur Edmund Carew, Gertrude Astor, Helen Raymond, Adele Farrington and Ernest Butterworth.

"Her Mad Bargain" tells the story of a girl who is forced by circumstances to leave the secure, comfortable plane of fashionable society and struggle for her very existence in the open mart of the world. As Alice Lambert, the soul of refinement and a person woefully unprepared for commercial strife, Anita Stewart battles life courageously in her attempts to achieve success without sacrificing her ideals. One of the most sympathetic roles of her career, the part is peculiarly suited to her rare talent of impersonation and is just the type of character in which the public likes best to see her.

PEDDLED NARCOTICS AND GOT SEVEN YEARS

Napoleon Hendershott, of Spokane, convicted of peddling narcotics, was sentenced Saturday by Judge Rudkin to serve seven years in the federal penitentiary at McNeill's Island. A few more such sentences and the narcotic game will die a natural death. Bootleggers will soon be receiving the same kind of medicine at the hands of the courts and then the prohibition enforcement matter will have been accomplished. Until the courts recognize the fact that extreme measures are the only solution, the narcotic peddler and the bootlegger will be with us. A ten year sentence for each conviction under these acts would solve the problem in ninety days.

Owing to the illness of the mayor and one or two of the aldermen there was no council meeting last evening.

We have not noticed any visits lately from Cranbrook curlers looking for the Fleishman Cup. His Honor Judge Thompson says that if someone does not make a move soon he will undertake to bring it back to Cranbrook himself.

COMMUNICATION

Cranbrook, B.C., Feb. 2, 1922.
Editor Daily News, Nelson, B.C.

Dear Sir—May I correct some errors in a letter signed by "Interested" in your issue of Jan. 26th.

There was never any pressure brought to bear on me to resign in favor of M. A. Macdonald either by him or any other person, and any intimation to the contrary is not justified in the slightest degree.

The above also applies to the Hon. Dr. J. H. King. My sole reason for stepping aside for Dr. King is because I know with the Doctor holding the important portfolio of Minister of Public Works, he can do more for East Kootenay and British Columbia than any private member could ever hope to. As a born Canadian who believes in and loves his country, it is a very small sacrifice to make for the benefit of the Province and Dominion.

I thank "Interested" for the many kind sentiments expressed in the letter, but feel sure after getting the facts, he or she will change their mind. There is no machine politics in the matter either directly or indirectly. Yours truly,

R. E. Beattie.

OLD TIMER PASSES AWAY

Mike Sorkie of Hosmer, hotel proprietor, one of the pioneers of the district, died at the family home on Monday of this week, the immediate cause of death being atributed to Bright's Disease. Deceased was 42 years of age and is survived by his wife and family of small children. He came into this section with his brother John some 22 years ago as a settler and eventually located in Hosmer when that town sprang into existence in 1906, and was engaged in the hotel business there ever since, even surviving the disaster when that town was abandoned in 1913, when the mining industrry was completely shut down. Mr. Sorkie was a member of the Fernie Old Timers Association and also the local council of the Knights of Columbus. The remains were brought to this city for burial, the funeral being held from the Holy Family Church on Friday.

FIND BODY IN FREIGHT CAR

The American customs officials at Gateway, Mont., made a gruesome discovery, when the body of a newborn baby was found in an empty freight car attached to an outbound train. The authorities here were notified and investigation disclosed was found had left Fernie that morning, it had only arrived here from that while the car in which the body the American side the day previous and was returned empty on account of being in "bad order." The body was wrapped in a towel bearing the letters "U.S.N." and a portion of a Spokane Chronicle of date Jan. 30.

COAL CREEK NOTES

The "Bachelor Boys" held another social dance in the Club Hall on Friday last, which was up to the usual standard.

The ravages of King Flu and the visitation of the stork around here is keeping our doctor busy these days.

Mrs. Reid, of this camp, desires to thank the Ladies Chapter, Loyal Order of Moose, also the I.O.D.E., for visitations and kindness shown during her stay in the Fernie hospital.

There will be a full dress rehearsal of the Coal Creek Minstrels on Sunday afternoon. Members will please govern themselves accordingly.

A wave of prosperity seems to have struck the camp. The mines here have worked every day this week.

One was reminded of the year 1911 by the blizzard which swept the camp on Thursday afternoon.

All roads lead to the Club Hall on Tuesday next, when the Coal Creek Minstrels will appear in a splendid program of songs, choruses and sketches. The entire proceeds are to be devoted to needy cases in the camp. There will be a dance after the show. Tickets for concert and dance $1.00. Concert only 50c. The following well known entertainers will appear: H. Parks, F. Ettasuom, E. Mahxol W. Yretalf, G. Gnemmelp, S. Yllan, R. Gnuoy, H. Sivad assisted by a beauty chorus.

CAPE BRETON MINERS BACK AT WORK

Sydney, N.S., Feb. 7.—After nine weeks of enforced idleness, one thousand Cape Breton miners went back to work today through the opening of numbers5 and 10 colleries at Reserve and No. 1 at Caledonia. Earlier reports that all temporarily closed colleries of the British Empire Steel corporation would resume work this week are not to be realized, but if the coal situation continues to improve, it will not be long before the entire force of 8000 miners are back on the job.

A large number of machinists also resumed work at Glace Bay today. There are still several thousands of unemployed men in this district.

WHAT IS THE BIGGEST BLOT ON THE LIFE OF TODAY

If you were asked "What is the biggest blot on our American life of today," what would you answer be?

In a vague sort of way you have always told yourself that you knew but the chances are that you have never given the subject serious thought.

In recent years calamity and turmoil have been hovering about this world of ours. The great world war, prohibition, high prices on absolute necessities of life, money shortage and other events have filled the daily newspapers of the country for some time.

Back of all this, there is some foundation of events. Each incident has had its effect on the other. There has been a "BLOT" on the universe in this generation—the one that you and I, all of us, live in. What is it? "What is the biggest BLOT on our American life of today?"

"The Blot,' which will be shown at the Isis theatre next Wednesday and Thursday, will answer this question.

Do not forget the social in the Catholic Hall tonight (Friday). Cards 9 to 10.30. Dancing 11 to 1 o'clock. Refreshments. Admission 50c.

FRED STORK WILL TAKE DEPUTATION TO OTTAWA

Prince Rupert, Feb. 6.—Fred Stork, M.P. for Skeena, has left for Ottawa via Smithers and Vanderhoof, at which latter point he will be joined by several other prominent citizens of the north country. They will accompany him to Ottawa to present the interests of this constituency for the consideration of the new federal administration

The party will comprise Mr. Stork, Hon. T. D. Pattullo, Hon. A. M. Manson, of the provincial cabinet; M. P. McCaffery, Olaf Hansen, F. G. Dawsan and T. Jefferson. Mr. Jefferson is interested in the projected railway line to the Telkawa coal fields.

A FUGITIVE FROM JUSTICE

J. Cillissimo, of this city, is a fugitive from justice in consequence of a complant having been laid that he did assault and cause actual bodily harm to one fellow countryman while at a friendly gathering at the residence of Tony Carollo last Tuesday evening. According to report the trouble apparently arose from a friendly scuffle but ended with Collissimo drawing a knife and using it upon one of those present, inflicting wounds in the shoulder and abdomen. Collissimo has a record with the police authorities from an incident that occurred over two years ago, when he used a knife, was found guilty and sentenced to two years, but sentence on that occasion was suspended, and had he served his time it would have expired during July last. Collissimo is believed to be still in the city but is being sheltered by friends.

CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE

The standing to date:

	Played	Won	Lost
Coal Co.	5	3	2
Bluebirds	5	3	2
One-Five-O	6	3	3
Northern	6	2	4

Two more games were played this week. On Monday the Bluebirds defeated the 150 by the score of 4 to 1, and on Thursday the Coal Co. romped home with the long end of a 7-3 score gainst the Northern cellar champions.

Next Monday will see the two leaders battle to break the tie and incidentally assume the leadership. It ought to be a humdinger.

SKETCH OF NEW POPE

Pope Pius XI, previously Cardinal Achille Ratti, archbishop of Milan, was for several years papal nuncio in Poland where his discharge of important ecclesiastical functions, when the Polish question became acute, earned for him the esteem of Benedict XV and the gratitude of Vatican authorities. It was because of this service that the red hat was conferred upon him on June 16, 1921, when a similar honor was bestowed on Cardinal Laurenti.

The new pope was born in Desio, Italy, on March 31, 1857. For many years he was librarian of the Ambrosian library and archies at Milan. Later he became librarian of the Vatican. In this position he remained until the new republic of Poland established official diplomatic relations with the Vatican at which time he was appointed archbishop and was assigned to Poland as the representative of the holy see.

That country was then torn with the estrangements from religion brought about by the communistic propaganda from soviet Russia, and Ratti conteracted the spread of radicalism. He also won the esteem of Polish Catholics by his efforts in behalf of destitute children orphaned during the war.

As the archbishop of Milan he presided over one of the most important archdioceses in Italy. The city being a great industrial centre, one of its main requirements is that the cardinal shall possess a thorough knowledge of political and social problems. He is big physically and is reported to have liberal tendencies.

A SOCIAL DISEASE

Tuberculosis is a disesase about which there may be always something new to learn in the matter of treatment. With the advance of civilization there is no decline in the incidence of the plague, whch is present in every country, and which it is only too greatly to be feared, is on the increase. Tubercle is generally regarded as the result of a constitutional morbid state, either hereditary or acquired, and while the deposit may be determined by several causes, such as mal-assimilation, bad diet, or deficient ventilation, the latter is believed by many who have given the subject much attention to be the great source of the evil. Some doctors believe that re-breathed aid induces tubercle, and that no other known cause induces it. From the beginning of the time since anything like systematic attempts were made to combat the disease, the fresh-air treatment has been insisted upon, and that is why, everywhere, more and more, sanitaria are being established in the effort to reduce the heavy death rate from tuberculosis.

Dr. Muthu, the medical superintendent of the Mendip Hills Sanitarium, who has devoted his life to the study and care of tuberculosis, has just made public some new ideas and a new angle of vision on its problems and treatment. He believes it is more a social than a specific disease. He considers it is due less to infection than to an insufficiency of fresh air, good food, decent housing and restful surroundings. Those who have followed statistics of the incidence of the disease have ascertained that it increases in times of war, excessive taxation, trade depression and unemployment; whereas it declines in times of peace, reduced taxation, trade prosperity and a higher standard of livnig. Dr. Muthu maintains that poverty and bad housing, worry and anxiety, cause diseased conditions and microbes, and he urges people, where they can avoid it, not to live on vitamineless foods such as white bread, margarine, tea and tinned foods.

Of all the discoveries that have been made in connection with the disease, and they are pitifully few, it has been found that the open-air treatment is the only remedy that has stood the test of time in the arrest of tuberculosis. Dr. Muthu maintains that tuberculosis is more a social, political and international than a medical problem, and that its prevention will ultimately depend upon the abolition of war the promotion of peace, the revival of trade and industry, and the improvement of the social and economic condition of the people. In Central Europe at the present time there are thousands upon thousands of children and adults who have fallen victims to rickets and tuberculosis due to chronic starvation, all brought about by the Great War. This in Dr. Muthu's opinion, shows the close connection between economic factors and tuberculosis. The conditions are teaching the Germans, among others, that the disease can be better controlled by feeding than by any attempt to prevent infection.

Dr. Muthu strongly advocates sanitarium treatment to combat the disease. That is the conclusion reached by most doctors, but not yet sufficiently appreciated by governments, who have it in their power to do much to alleviate the spread of the disease. In this province there has been something in the nature of a campaign to show the people what are the best methods for combatting the spread of tuberculosis. To the credit of the medical profession, this campaign has been directed along the lines of urging more and more facilities for open-air treatment under restful conditions. It cannot be said, as yet, that our government has been deeply impressed with the arguments put forward, as there is little being done in British Columbia in a practical way that has not been done for several years apast. This propaganda to combat tuberculosis should be intensified. It is well worth while in the face of statistics of the disease as it affects British Columbia and Canada as a whole. Every agency for social betterment should be brought to bear on the campaign to induce an extension of the present canitarium treatment.—Colonist.

Some batting!

The fans still make that remark about Harry Heilman's mark of .394 which he hung up while copping the American League batting championship last season in spite of Babe Ruth and Manager Ty Cobb.

And it was some batting feat. Few fans realize that his average has been eclipsed only four times since the American League was born. And it took three of the greatest batters in the game to hang up better averages. No flash-in-the-pans turned the trick.

Nap Lajoie was the first. "The King" hit .405 in 1901, and that mark stood until Ty Cobb stepped forth in 1911 and wrote a .420 mark on top of the list. The next year he rang up .412. It took nine years for another gent to exceed Heilman's mark. Sisler, in 1920, produced another good argument to substantiate the belief that he is one of the gamest stars, by leading the league with a .407 average.

A woman lecturer in the East is giving lectures on "Canada's Untamed Citizens." An explanation of what makes them wild would be interesting.

Back to the "mountain"! Vancouver, with a population of 116,700, does not need a shoehorn to put on its hat, for Hamilton can go two or three thousand better than that, says the Spectator.

SYNOPSIS OF LAND ACT AMENDMENTS

Minimum price of first-class land reduced to $5 an acre; second-class to $2.50 an acre.

Pre-emption now confined to surveyed lands only.

Records will be granted covering only land suitable for agricultural purposes and which is non-timber land.

Partnership pre-emptions abolished, but parties of not more than four may arrange for adjacent pre-emptions with joint residences, but each making necessary improvements on respective claims.

Pre-emptors must occupy claims for five years and make improvements to value of $10 per acre, including clearing and cultivation of at least 5 acres before receiving Crown Grant.

Where pre-emptor in occupation no less than 3 years, and has made proportionate improvements, he may, because of ill-health, or other causes, be granted intermediate certificate of improvement and transfer his claim.

Records without permanent residence may be issued, provided applicant makes improvements to extent of $300 per annum and records same each year. Failure to make improvements or record same will operate as forfeiture. Title cannot be obtained in less than 5 years, and improvements of $10.00 per acre, including 5 acres cleared and cultivated, and residence of at least 2 years are required.

Pre-emptor holding Crown Grant may record another pre-emption, if he requires land in conjunction with his farm, without actual occupation, provided statutory improvements made and residence maintained on Crown granted land.

Unsurveyed areas, not exceeding 20 acres, may be leased as homesites; title to be obtained after fulfilling residental and improvement conditions.

For grazing and industrial purposes areas exceeding 640 acres may be leased by one person or company.

Mill, factory or industrial sites on timber land not exceeding 40 acres may be purchased; conditions include payment of stumpage.

Natural hay meadows inaccessible by existing roads may be purchased conditional upon construction of a road to them. Rebate of one-half of cost of road, not exceeding half of purchase price, is made.

PRE-EMPTORS' FREE GRANT ACT

The scope of this Act is enlarged to include all persons joining and serving with his Majesty's Forces. The time within which the heirs or devisees of a diseased pre-emptor may apply for title under this Act is extended from for one year from the death of such person, as formerly, until one year after the conclusion of the present war. This privilege is also made retroactive.

No fees relating to pre-emptions are due or payable by soldiers on pre-emptions recorded after June 26, 1918. Taxes are remitted for five years.

Provisions for return of moneys accrued, due and been paid since August 4, 1914, on account of payments, fees or taxes on soldiers' pre-emptions.

Interest on agreements to purchase town or city lots held by members of Allied Forces, or dependants, acquired direct or indirect, remitted from enlistment to March 31, 1920.

SUB-PURCHASERS OF CROWN LANDS

Provision made for issuance of Crown grants to sub-purchasers of Crown Lands, acquiring rights from purchasers who failed to complete purchase, involving fofeiture, on fulfillment of conditions of purchase, interest and taxes. Where sub-purchasers do not claim whole of original parcel, purchase price due and taxes may be distributed proportionately over whole area. Applications must be made by May 1, 1920.

GRAZING

Grazing Act, 1919, for systematic development of livestock industry provides for grazing districts and range administration under Commissioner. Annual grazing permits issued based on numbers ranged; priority for established owners. Stock-owners may form Associations for range management. Free, or partially free, permits for settlers, campers or travellers, up to ten head.

REDMAC

Redmac has become a household name—you cannot go out to spend the evening without hearing the name Redmac. People of society and those of humble life are today placed on the same plane, they are both human, both subject to the ills of life, Redmac heals them alike, and at the same price. No man or woman is too poor or too wealthy for Redmac.

Lethbridge Herald: The report that the Canadian Pacific Railway had made application to the railway commission for the removal of the daylight train to the Crow's Nest Pass is true, the contention being that it is not paying. There is no foundation for the rumor that the daily service to Cardston will be reduced. This is one of the best paying branch lines in the division.

COOKING WITH ONE EGG

It is not necessary to use so many eggs with Pacific Milk in baking, because the milk seems to give a very fine grain and mixture. Here is Mrs. H. Jones' cake made with one egg and Pacific Milk, which is very good, indeed.

Take one cup of sugar, one-half cup of water, one-half cup of Pacific Milk, one and one-half teaspoonfuls baking powder, two cups of flour, one-half cup butter, flavor to taste.

Mix and bake in the usual manner for cakes.

A FINE CONTRIBUTION

After Lord Atholstan had offered $100 000 reward to the discoverer of a cure for cancer, a prize of $50,000 was added by an English donor. Along with hearty commendation by British medical men came two reservations. Some believed that the rewards would never be earned, since the quest must be long and expensive, with the prospect of failure. Others were more hopeful, but said that the investigators needed support and assistance while they pursued their enquiry more than they did a reward at the end.

In response to such criticism the English donor changed his offer to $50,000 reward for a cure to an annual payment to competent men conducting research. Lord Atholstan has risen still more generously to the occasion. Allowing his offer of a reward to stand, he contributes a second sum of $100 000 to the expenses of conducting research work into the nature, cause and cure of cancer. These contributions will be sure to stimulate the practical study of the one disease among civilized people which has become more prevalent and more destructive in this generation.

Many doctors and several institutions have been making a study of cancer, especially with respect to radium cures. Others might now be engaged in such researches if they could afford the time and outlay required. This splendid donation of Lord Atholstan and Sir William Venio will make it possible for some brilliant and patient investigators to take up this research who could not have done so at their own expense.

His Honor Judge Thompson held the regular monthly session of the county court on Thursday, when three petitions for naturalization heard and a number of chamber applications.

Amendments to the provncial Game act declaring an open season for the hunting, trapping, taking and killing of beaver in certain specified districts of the province, which became effective on Feb. 2, do not apply to Kootenay. There are rumors of various trappers preparing to go out after beaver in this district. These men are probably under the delusion that the open season extends to this district. But it does not. Only in certain specified sections in northern British Columba, in another strip lying between the Grand Trunk and the C.P.R. main lines, and in the municipality of Richmond have the restrictions on beaver been removed.

The Calgary Herald says: Calgary will have the pleasure of viewing another spirited hockey game on local ice Feb. 18, a a week from Saturday, when the Fernie girls will come here to meet the Byngs. Although the Byngs have been somewhat isolated by the other two local ladies' team, they have proven their worth, having beaten the Amazons of Vancouver, who carried off the Banff carnival hockey championship. Some misunderstanding among the officials forced the Byngs out of the series at Banff and consequently their win over the coast ladies went for naught. The Fernie ladies trounced the Calgary Regents in a game here during the Calgary carnival and they gave a splendid exhibition in that fixture so the game with the Byngs should be the best ladies' hockey attraction of the season. The following will play with the Byngs on Feb. 18: Isabel Duncan, Helen Doll, Winnie Lea, Mae Ure, Marion Duncan, Helen Tees, Annie Sosgrove and Fi. Michell.

NO PLACE FOR DEGENERATES

Moral degenerates and "hop-heads" have no place in the unemployment relief provided by the generosity of Vancouver taxpayers.

Swift, sure and decisive action must be taken to purge Hastings Park Relief Camp of such characters.

In the case of foreigners, each man found guilty of immorality or drug-taking should be immediately deported. There is no place in Canada for depraved weaklings.

British subjects convicted of such acts should be immediately turned over to the medical authorities for treatment. Where the surgeon's knife is necessary the surgeon's knife should be used without compunction.

There is little hope in this generation for these people. They are a menace to their fellow-beings wherever they may go. Moral degenerates and drug fiends blame their shortcomings on their habits. The fact is that if they had not been moral weaklings in the first place they would not have taken to habits of degeneracy or dope.

The moral healthy man needs no stimulation to give him a physical "kick." He need not fill his veins with some devilish concoction to extract joy from life.

To the decent man, the world is a place of enchantment. To the busy, productive brain dull facts and prosaic incidents become illuminated with the rose-glow of healthy imagination.

The degenerate and the "hop-head" lack imagination, they lack health, ambition and the mental energy that makes the world go 'round. They have not one single attribute of manhood.

Common humanity demnds that such cases be taken care of. But it is foolish to waste hugs sums of money on their "cure." Most of them are hopeless.

If money is to be spent it should be turned towards placing such people where they will not contaminate society. It should be spent in speeding up education so that weakness, mental, sexual and physical, might be eradicated, while there is still a chance for the victim.

But for the idle, shiftless loafers who accept the bounty of the city and show their gratitude by shooting their arms full of poison or by practising immorality, Vancouver has no money nor sympathy to spare.

It is time to bend all our energies towards the salvation of the coming generation and turn these adult wascrels out of the country or into institutions where they can work some of the evil out of their systems by the sweat of their brows. — Vancouver World.

MRS. PENNINGTON

NEW ROCKLAND, P.Q.

"In 1919, I was taken with Bronchial Asthma and no one knows what I suffered with it during the winter. I began having Choking Spells—gasping for breath and could not speak. "In the spring of 1920, I started taking "Fruit-a-tives" and in a few days, the choking spells stopped, and I have had none since May 7th, 1920. I have so wanted to tell other sufferers who have the same trouble about "Fruit-a-tives" for I know how they must suffer.

Mayor Henderson is frequently in receipt of letters from people who, owing to their more or less personal connection with and interest in the matters referred to, do not feel justified in signing their names. While as a general thing anonymous letters are not very desirable, His Worship recognizes the fact that there may be occasions when it would be extremely awkward for the writers to be mixed up in the affairs complained of, and wishes it understood that if citizens have occasion for complaint if they will go to him freely and place their views before him the matters complained of will receive careful attention. With reference to statements made in the last part of a letter received by him under date of Feb. 7, if the writer will furnish the names of those making this statement, he will consider it as absolutely confidential and will in no way make the source of his information known.

Nelson News: After an unbroken series of victories in the East Kootenay Hockey League, the Sullivan Mine Camp six met their Waterloo when they clashed with the Nelson Seniors here last night at the rink. They lost by a score of 6—3. A crowd of between 400 and 500 fans witnessed the battle, which in point of real hockey excitement ranked second to no match of the season. The game was unmarred by any unsportmanlike tactics, there being only three or four minor penalties, although Referee Bishop passed nothing up.

Four young lads of the Fernie Annex and West Fernie are in custody today in the city gaol, three of whom are facing the serious charge of burglary and one with receiving and having stolen goods in his possession. The specific charge is that on the night of Feb. 7 the warehouse of the Workingmen's Co-operative store, situated in the Fernie Annex, was entered and a quantity of empty bottles stolen. So frequent had this petty thieving become that a watchman was on duty in the warehouse but he was unable to capture the three lads at the time although he was able to identify htem. The preliminary hearing will be before Magistrate Henderson next week.

There was a general alarm turned in during the early hours of Thursday morning for peace officers when the report reached the city police station that there had been a shooting affray in Fernie Annex Extension, which resulted in officers from the city force, provincial and Mounted Police hurrying to the scene of the alleged crime. However, upon arrival at the residence in question it was found that nothing more serious had transpired than the breaking of a window, and while a thorough search of the premises was made no trace of any firearms was found. It subseqently appeared that the cause of the commotion was due to the inability of the lady of the house to speak English coherently, as after having had some slight trouble in the household with the husband, at which time the window was broken, she fled and reported to the first one she met: "Bang! bang! bang! man dead!" By the time this report reached the police it was a "shooting scrape."

OUR FIRST LADY M.P.

Canada has been the second of all the crowds of electors, to send a woman to a real parliament. One or two have been elected to provincial legislatures, so often contemptuously defined as glorified county councils, but the motherland alone was ahead of us in elevating a mere womanto a true and bona fide federal house. The first lady to violate, or consecreate, the parliamentary precincts known for centuries to men alone, was Lady Astor, the American born, American divorced, American re-married and enriched, who was elected to the mother of parliaments by ancient Plymouth after a contest of great picturesqueness and vigor, conducted on her part with a piquance and originality which must have been refreshing to the maritime constituents whom her husband, now promoted to the lords, had represented for a term of years.

A second lady has, since Lady's Astor's election, been chosen to keep her company in that imperial house; wherefore it falls out that Miss Agnes McPhail, just elected as the representative for South Grey in the Canadian parliament, is third in that line of women parliamentarians whose future length and strength no one can forecast with confidence. Miss McPhail has been elected as a Progressive; and if her photograph flashed upon the screen on election night be faithful and true, her whole nature is worthy of the name so happily chosen by the party whose most distinguished representative she has certainly become. Strong, intellectual, shrewd, aggressive, her spectacled face shows her to be. One is not surprised to learn that Miss McPhail, who was born within her own constituency and whose father is one of the most prosperous and popular citizens of North Grey, has for some years been a teacher and trainer of youth, a sphere now to be renounced for one much wider and more influential. She is—and doubtless she would, like any other woman wish this to receive wide and impressive circulation—much younger than the art of the photographer would lead one to believe, for she has only just left the twenties well behind.

It is significant of much that Miss McPhail has been chosen at the hands of a class of people traditionally Conservative in their ways and prejudices, quite unlike the heterogeneous mass, largely composed of stevedores sailors, and other jaunty spirits who were so large a factor in the election of Lady Astor. The people of North Grey are many of them staid old Scotch Presbyterians, who still "take their stand" upon St. Paul's interdict upon woman preachers and are inclined to regard with misgiving all modes and manners that lack the endorsation of generations past. And, to make the case more remarkable still, Miss McPhail is an avowed devotee of a religious body whose name is decidedly unfamiliar, to say the least to the grave Kirk members who have contributed to her notable achievement. This is as honorable to the breadth of mind of her constituents as it is complimentary to her own ability and worth.

Miss McPhail's career at Ottawa will be followed with deep and nation-wide interest; which career, it is to be hoped, will be of longer duration and greater satisfaction than that of the one solitary lady who was elected to a seat in Washington and who at the earliest opportunity was delicately restored by her constituents to that "home" which the world has so long been told is the fit and exclusive sphere for women. This lady pioneer in our federal house is acknowledged to be a speaker of distinct ability and possessed of great clarity of mind and force of character. After all, when one recalls that for sixty years we gloried in a woman's rule of the whole British Empire, it does seem absurd to cherish any doubt as to the possibility of a woman discharging this relatively lesser duty with propriety and profit. —Saturday Night.

ONTARIO HAS 45 P.C. OF CARS

As yet complete registration returns for the past year are not available. At the end of October there were registered in Canada, according to provincial returns, 469,310 motor vehicles; an increase of 60 311 during the first ten months of the year. The 1920 increase was 85,639. Ontario's increase in the first ten months of 1921 was 30,000 against 46,600 in 1920. Quebec while making a far poorer showing absolutely than Ontario, as well as in proportion to population, relative to the preceding year, showed a gain in increment of approximately 40 per cent, with an increase of 14,807. The Western provinces' annual increase sagged badly, Alberta making the poorest showing with a nominal increase of 250 motor vehicles. Ontario it will be observed from the following table boasts roughly 45 per cent of motor vehicles in the Dominion, with a little better than a third of Canada's total population. The figures quoted above and in the table are exclusive of the motor cars and trucks in the extra-provincial parts of the Dominion, such as the Yukon, North West Territories, Ungava, Labrador and Newfoundland:

	1921.
Ontario	206,900
Saskatchewan	62,958
Quebec	59.707
Manitoba	40,430
Alberta	38,750
British Columbia	31 000
Nova Scotia	14 250
New Brunswick	13,564
Psince Edward Island	1,751
Total	469.310

It is interesting to note that Ontario bought half the cars purchased in the Dominion last year.

THE PROGRESS AGAINST CANCER

Many readers are desirous of further information, such as should be common knowledge, on the subject of cancer, writes the Medical Correspondent of the London "Observer."

First, beyond all question, is the capital fact that, in its early stages, malignant disease is eminently curable and is very often cured. The issue lies less with the surgeon than with the patient, who very rarely comes in time. In recent articles I have been quoting the evidence against that large field of present-day surgery which is concerned with so-called surgical tuberculosis. The case against surgery, then, early or late, is that we have something immeasurably better in every way—the light of day, with healing in its wings. In the case of cancer, we may soon have something better than surgery; indeed already we have certain agents which are better in certain cases. But, at this hour, the surgeon can save in many instances, if only we would invoke his aid soon enough.

It is a consequence of the present sociological relation of the medical profession to the rest of the community that it is so difficult to get certain things done, which are plain and ample and urgently required. No No practising surgeon, for instance, can write to this journal and tell its readers if they will bring to him certain suspicious lumps or ulcers he can save them in many cases. The great surgical bodies in this country might have acted, but they have not. Everyone is afraid of the subject. Some time ago a book was published of an admirable kind, calculated to save hosts of lives. The publishers were afraid to use the word cancer in the title of it, and so its purport and utility were veiled under the title, "The Control of a Scourge." Lately this book for which I was editorially responsible, was named here. Many readers have been informed, by the publishers, Messrs. Methuen, owing to a misunderstanding of some kind, that it is out of print, which is not the case. The author is Mr. C. P. Childe, F.R.C.S., and he must have reaped a very poor reward indeed hitherto for his courage and labor. But the book is to be had, and I am unacquainted with any other similar book, or pamphlet or publication of any health society, the Ministry of Health, or anyone else in this country, where the death rate from cancer is so appalling, and the general temper of opinion so depressed, that we are practicaly putting up no fight at all against the disease.

For certain superficial cancers, radium and the Rontgen rays have now definitely replaced the knife. Recently I referred to the new developments of Rontgen ray therapeutics in Germany. The general argument is simplicity itself. The beta rays of radium and also the Rontgen rays, certainly have a selective action against the malignant cell. When that cell is on the surface, as in rodent ulcer, our problem solves itself. When that cell is deeply placed, like those of the internal secondary growths of the more notorious forms of cancer, the selective radiations do not reach in sufficient intensity. Then let us increase their intensity. In so doing, we are apt to do serious injury to the normal tissues nearer the surface. Then let us try to distinguish between the soft rays, which do that harm, and the hard rays, which, penetrating instead of being arrested, do not; and let us try to construct apparatus which will yield hard rays of very high intensity with a minimum of the soft rays which, in our usual apparatus, are simultaneously emitted. At this the Germans have worked in the thorough scientific style at which idleness and contempt of knowledge, camouflaged as "patriotism," customarily sneer in our country; and the results being obtained are unprecedented. It is very good news that at the Cancer Hospital hard X rays of extreme penetration are now to be available.

Space fails me for the discussion of prevention. One note, sufficiently memorable, must suffice. Cancer of the tongue most commonly occurs in persons who (a) have had syphilis, (b) are smokers. It is otherwise very rare. It has, therefore, hitherto been common among men and rare among women. Sir D'Arcy Power, a distinguished surgeon, has recently observed that, since 1914, young women are allowing themselves to be infected with syphilis and are smoking, much more than formerly; and he thus predicts, as a result of the Great War, a marked increase in the number of cases of cancer of the tongue amongst women about the year 1950.

That is too dreadful a note on which to end. I doubt not that, long before 1950, we shall have conquered cancer altogether.

There are no strings attached to the resignations of the German hangmen.

POTTER'S FIELD

(By Walt Mason)

Oh, here are rows and rows of graves, the cheapest graves you ever saw; the beds of futile, foolish knaves who thought that they could beat the law. When they are planted no one sighs, no hymne are sung, no prayers are said; no mourners bend with weeping eyes above the couches of these dead. From workhouse wards and jails they come in wagons destitute of plumes, from every corner of the slum, to sleep in bargain counter tombs. The sextons shovel in the clay, and from the boneyard then withdraw; this is the end of those who say that they can surely beat the law. The criminal may think at times that he is not a total loss, and he may plan all sorts of crimes and seem to put the same across; but Justice eyes him every day, and always keeps him in her mind; and though he lopes along his way, the law is never far behind. Few criminals live out their days in comfort such as good men know, who walk in sane and godly ways, observing statutes as they go. Few crooks pass out on beds of ease, with high-priced docs and nurses near; they render up their final wheeze behind a wall, beneath a pier. In some dark jail their doom is sealed, with no one near to heave a weep, and then they reach the Potter's Field where cheaper grades of dead men sleep.

The Arbuckle trial has now reached the third episode.

How Many Objects in This Picture Begin With the Letter "P"?

The above picture contains a number of objects beginning with the letter "P." Just take a good look at the picture—there are all sorts of things that begin with the letter "P"—like pipe, pick, pump, etc. Nothing is hidden; you don't have to turn the picture upside down or at an angle. Make a list of all the objects in the picture, the names of which begin with the letter "P." Have the whole family join in—see who can find the most. Fifteen Cash Prizes will be awarded for the fifteen best lists of words submitted. The answer having the largest and nearest correct list of visible objects shown in this picture starting with the letter "P" will be awarded First Prize; second best, Second Prize, etc.

Young and Old Join in the Fun

The Vancouver Daily World announces today a most interesting and amusing Puzzle Game—a puzzle that is different and a game in which all can participate—from the tiniest child to great grandfather. It really is not a puzzle at all, for all the objects have been made perfectly plain, with no attempt to disguise or hide them. None are so small but that the poorest eyesight can see them; it is a test of skill. Your ability to find "P-Words" determines the prize you win. Right after supper this evening gather all the members of your family together; give each of them a pencil and a sheet of paper—see who can find the most "P-Words." You will be surprised how large a list of words you can get after a few minutes study. Sit down now and try—then send in your answer and try for one of the big prizes.

Costs Nothing to Try

It costs nothing to take part, and you do not have to send in a single subscription to win a prize. If your answer is awarded First Prize by the Judges you will win $30, but if you would like to win more than $30, we are making Special Cash Prize offers during this big Advertising and Booster Campaign whereby you can win bigger Cash Prizes by sending in one or two subscriptions to The Vancouver Daily World.

You Can Win $1000

If your answer to the "P-Word" Picture Puzzle wins First Prize and you have sent in no subscriptions to the Vancouver Daily World, you will win $30.

However, if your answer wins First Prize and you have sent in one 6-months subscription to the Vancouver Daily World (either new or renewal), YOU WILL WIN $350, in place of $30.

Or, if your answer is awarded First Prize by the Judges and you have sent in TWO 6-months or ONE yearly subscription to the Vancouver Daily World (either new or renewal), YOU WILL RECEIVE $1000 instead of $30.

How's that for a liberal offer? But look. We will give extra amounts on all prizes in the same manner if your answer is qualified by TWO 6-months or one yearly subscription (either new or renewal), and you are awarded Second Prize, you will receive $500, and so on down. (See third column in the list of prizes.)

It takes but TWO 6-months or ONE yearly subscription (either new or renewal) to qualify for the big $1000 prize. ABSOLUTELY. Two six-months or ONE yearly is the maximum. Your own subscription will count and we will accept subscriptions to start at any future date.

When I wrote my first Epistle, I presented it and my picture to the tten editor to be printed on bills, so that editor informed me it would be more dexterous to put my work in the paper and so I did, and my writing and picture have not been excluded by any compulsion. I write you the true words of the Lord tho Imay be scoffed by the world. A wealthy lady who arrived to me and said: Sam, I did read all of your writing and prophecy and if it be of reality you ought to know that the world will greatly scoff you as it did scoff other prophets and did also scoff Jesus the Son of God, and can we marvel at the scoffers of the world when we see the population of Lucifer on earth, as Jesus chose twelve and one were a devil—see St. John, Chapter 6, verse 70. If one out of every twelve be advil, figur it up, and as the world's population is 1,424,000,000, there would be at least 100,000,000 devils, the population of Lucifer on earth, and not only his great population, tho his potency Lucifer were exalted in potency and in savants, so he were not superiared only by the logos of God. So I have only time to write to those who have obtained it os we see the millenium day is symbolical to us plural in recent days. The true work of God is a challenge to the world. What a solemn challenge is this what book a divine book would dare speak such a challenge if a book has been written by man, it is at the mercy of men. Men can go through it, riddle it, sift it, and leave it behind them worn out but the Bible, a book dropped from heaven, is God breathed. It swells, it dilates with the bodying fullness of God. God hos written it and none can exhause it. Apply your misroscopes, apply your telescopes to the material of Scripture. Latest views of evolutionists. Professor Japp, a distinguished biologist, expressed as his latest conclusion that the decided difference betweenorganic and inorganic molecules precludes the possibility of the spontaneous evolution of life and Herbert Spencer in Nature, Oct. 20th, discussing the same question declared as his latest opinion that life is incomprehensible, and that if a man did die ungodly and were saved ultimately and could live his days over again in this world, we marvel if he did die godly the next time when we see the compulsion of the Prodigal son over there in a far country, not only to eat the husks, tho compelled to eat the husks with pain until he obtained that faith, I will arise and go to my father—see St. Luke, chapter 15, verses 16 and 17. And no man is free only him who is free from sin Will not every mankind be free from sin when I make all things new—see Revelations, chapter 21, verse 5. It is much better for mankind to die in the faith of Jesus so as to preclude being compulsed to the faith of Jesus over there beyond death. And at that that time I inquired of God to know right to the dot if there were a God in the heaven or not, and apparently God did talk to me from heaven in my sleep, and Jesus did talk to me also from heaven tho when I felt in heaven to find the Holy Ghost come down in Canada and did descend through the arbour and did rest upon the high part of the pulpit and symbolised many items as the sermons obtained, and the verily Word obtained from the pulpit is reality and a holy and divine teacher as if to say for God's sake don't disturb the preacher.

is Yeast valuable for the relief of digestive disturbances, malnutrition, skin eruptions, etc? Because Yeast contains VITAMINES, which modern scientific investigation.. has proven are essential to good health and body development.

VITAMINES occur in many food substances, but not in sufficient quantities to be effective in relieving disease, hence

NYAL VITAMINE TABLETS

POWER RATE IS DISCUSSED

The regular meeting of the city council was held last evening with all the members present.

A long discussion took place on the propesed new power rate. Some of the aldermen were of the opinion that the rate should be cut down to the very minimum, while others, including Mayor Henderson, seemed to think that it would be just as well to go slow in the matter. They thought that a fair rate should be charged and after the new power was established for a time the city would be in a better position to know where it was getting off. It would be much easier to cut the rate than raise it after it was once set. No action was taken in the matter.

The school estimates, amounting to $37,000 for the year, were accepted.

It is proposed to introduce a by-law at an early date to raise $32,000 for additions to the Central School. The by-law will have to be voted on by the ratepayers.

The auditor made several recommendations which were accepted.

A number of accounts were passed and the meeting adjourned.

FARMERS ORGANIZE

The farmers of the immediate vicinity and district from Hosmer to Morrissey held another meeting in the council chamber on Tuesday, Feb. 7, and definitely organized themselves into an Institute on similar lines as the Institutes at such places as Creston and in the Okanagan. Thirty-seven attended and after communications were read from the Registrar of Companies, explaining that directors would have to be elected before granting the charter, the following five were elected as directors for the ensuing year: President, W. M. Dicken; Vice-President, D. O. Bricker; Wm. Murdoch; A. J. Bryant; M. McLeod, Sec.-Trea.

This organization is formed for the purpose of bettering conditions, such as general knowledge of farming by proven test of the government experimental farms, by having their lecturers here, and the securing of their tests, etc.; the purchase of seed, feed, pedigreed stock, powder, etc.; and the possibility of better marketing. With these subjects in view general discussion was entered into till a late hour. During the course of the evening the matter of taxes and noxious weeds were referred to; also that of holding an exhibition here next fall.

Judging by the enthusiasm shown and the large attendance at the meetings held so far, the organization will be an asset to the district as well as to the members themselves. Institutes of this kind have the endorsement and hearty support of the government, arranging tours for lecturers; freely giving out any new and important findings of their experimental farms and granting financial support for the holding of exhibitions, etc. With this hearty support and the shoulder of everyone to the wheel ,the Fernie Farmers Institute, which will be among the largest, having a membership in the neighborhood of fifty, should exceed expectations. The Supt. of Institutes is planning a tour and this newly born organization is endeavoring, if not too late, to be included in such tour. Watch for the dates.

Adjournment was taken at eleven o'clock after two hours of hearty discussion on all subjects essential to farming and farmers in general, and everybody went home well satisfied and more enthusiastic than when they came.

AGAINST A LIQUOR STORE FOR CRESTON

Creston, Feb. 14.—Those opposed to the opening of the liquor store by the government at Creston were busy last week circulating petitions in every pont in the valley, and meeting with hearty response. While a canvas of the business section shows a preponderance of "wets," in the country the "drys" are much to the fore. In the referendum as to government control in October, 1920, the valley voted "wet" by a small majority—five of the eight polling places indicating a desire for government control.

The official who was here a few days ago investigating the situation strongly recommended to the authorities that a store be opened.

JUNIOD I.O.D.E. REORGANIZED

The Junior Chapter of the I.O.D.E. has been reorganized with the assistance of Mrs. A. B. Trites, Mrs. S. Bonnell and Mrs. E. K. Stewart. At an organization meeting, held at the home of Miss Marion Corsan, the following officers were elected for the present year:

Hon. Regent—Mrs. S. Bonnell.
Regent—Mrs. E. K. Stewart.
Vice-Regent—Miss Marion Corsan.
Secretary—Miss Norma Douglas.
Treasurer—Miss Nellie Mills.
"Echoes" Secretary—Miss Dorothy Corrie.
Standard Bearer—Miss Dolly Graham.

CALGARY GIRLS BEAT FERNIE

The Regents, ladies hockey team, of Calgary, secured revenge for the drubbing administered to them by the Fernie Swastikas at Calgary recently by defeating the local sextette here on Wednesday afternoon by a score of one goal to nothing. The game was keenly contested throughout and a tie would have been a more representative tally on the run of play. The goal was the result of a scrimmage for the puck on the Fernie blue line. Three players hit the puck at the same time and the puck bounced into the air and landed in the Fernie net. Nearly a thousand spectators witnessed the game, probably the largest crowd witnessing a hockey match here this season.

The first period opened with a combined rush by the Regents but Miss Schagel broke up the raid and carried the puck well down into the Regent territory and slipped the puck to Miss Fenwick, whose shot was easily disposed of by Miss Bishop. End to end play followed, both teams working hard to open the scoring, but the defence on both sides was very effective, the goal tenders being rarely called upon to demonstrate their ability. The period finished without a score being registered.

Miss Dragon replaced Miss Miles for the second period. Fernie got away with a nice combination rush and Miss Bishop was kept busy for a few minutes. Miss Brewster relieved the pressure and went down the ice at great speed, sending in a high one from well out, but Miss Wood brought off a brilliant save. Miss Biggs secured the rebound and went off up the ice but was crowded to the boards before getting a chance to shoot. Back came the Regents, but Miss Schagel hook checked the puck from Miss McLatchie and made a spectacular individual rush through the Regents but her parting shot missed the goal. Fernie continued the pressure and just as Miss Fenwick broke through and had nobody to beat but the goaltender, the bell went for the end of the period.

The pace was evidently telling on the ladies and the third period was somewhat slow during the first few minutes, and confined mostly to centre ice. Miss Henderson robbed Mrs. Brownlee of the puck close in on the Fernie goal and went down the ice but was brought up against the boards. The puck went out to centre ice and a scrimmage followed. Miss Pue slashed at the puck and it rose spinning in the air and before anyone realized the danger the puck was in the net. Fernie played hard after this unlucky reverse and Miss Bishop had a warm time, Miss Ross giving her three hot ones to stop inside of a minute. The period ended with Fernie struggling hard to penetrate the Regents' six man defence.

CARL LAEMMALE GETS SILVER CUP

New York, Feb. 11.—Carl Laemmale, president of Universal Film Manufacturing Co., was presented with a silver loving cup, by Dr. Ernest L. Crandall, of the department of education, in appreciation of the special performances Universal has given of its educational serials, such as "Winners of the West." The cup was bought by school teachers and pupils.

HON. DR. KING TO BE OPPOSED

The date for the byelection for this district has been set for March 14, nominations taking place on Feb. 28.

The Conservatives in the district have made no move yet to select a candidate to oppose Hon. Dr. King, but the Farmer-Labor party have been very active and it is reported on good authority that Thomas H. Brondson, a C.P.R. railroad man and Great War Veteran, of Cranbrook, will be the choice of that party.

Mr. Brondson, who was a prominent supporter of Scott McDonald in the last election, is at present visiting different parts of the constituency. He spent several days in Fernie and Michel this week looking into the political situation.

KING LIKELY TO MEET OPPOSITION

Cranbrook, Feb. 14.—Present indications are that there will be at least one candidate put in the field against Dr. J. H. King, when he comes back to the East Kootenay riding for endorsation to the portfolio of public works at Ottawa. The Progressives, or Farmer-Labor party, held a very enthusiastic meeting on Saturday night at the G.W.V.A. hall, and the decision was reached, that so far as the Cranbrook section of the party was concerned, a candidate ought to be placed in the field under the banner of the party against Dr. King. The main portion of the Farmer-Labor organization for the riding has been located at Cranbrook, so that it is expected that the other portions of the riding will also fall in line. Who the candidate might be has not yet been indicated, but when it is considered that at the last federal election in December the Progressive candidate, W. Scott Macdonald, polled the largest individual vote in Cranbrook out of the three who were in the running, it will be seen that the entrance of the party into the contest is something that will have to be taken seriously by Dr. King, and his supporters. What the Conservatives will do has not yet been finally decided, but a meeting will be held this week, it is understood. It is not likely, however, that with a Progressive definitely out in the field, as now seems probable, there will be any Conservative candidate put up, as this would mean a duplication of the situation at the last contest, when the Liberals won the seat through a split opposition vote.

Reorganization of the Farmer-Labor organization took place at the meeting on Saturday evening, and the officers elected were as follows: President, Ald. J. H. Cameron; vice-president, James Lunn; secretary, T. H. Bronsden; treasurer, W. Henderson.

The meeting was a very well attended one, and it was close upon midnight before the session came to an end.

CITY HOCKEY LEAGUE

BLUEBIRDS WIN FINAL —COAL COMPANY PROTEST

On Monday night the Bluebirds emerged victorious in the final scheduuled game of the city hockey league against the Coal Co., after both teams had been tied for first place. At the end of the regular playing time the score stood 3 all, and mainly through the demand of the large crowd to see a settlement the ice management was besieged for and granted extra time to finish the game. After five minutes each way the Bluebirds registered twice to the Coal Co. one and gave them the game by the score of 5 to 4.

The game was one of the fastest and cleanest that has taken place throughout the schedule. This was no doubt attributed to the desire of the respective teams wanting to win and to do this could not afford having their players decorating the penalty box. Any roughness was nipped in the bud and after the first few offences were penalized the referee had very little trouble from this source.

It is regrettable that a play should arise in this deciding game that would cause argument. The second goal of the Bluebirds, when the puck went under the side bar and bounded out and lay in the goal mouth and was quickly pushed back in, was hotly contested by the Coal Co., and as there is no rule governing an incident of this kind, except that of having the goals flat on the ice, the referee's decision of allowing the goal was questioned at the time. The Coal Co. claimed the puck was out of play and consequently lodged a protest, which was dealt with by the league executive and sustained on the grounds that the game be replayed.

The Bluebirds being lucky enough to have an advisor in the offing, promptly appealed the decision on the grounds of unconstitutional and biased, which will be dealt with at the forthcoming executive meeting to be held on Sunday night at 9 o'clock in the Fernie Cigar Store.

COAL CREEK NOTES

Mrs. W. Horner was removed to the Fernie hospital on Monday morning for treatment.

The many friends of Joe Worthington will be pleased to learn that he is progressing very favorably after undergoing an operation in the Fernie hospital.

Born—On Saturday, Feb. 11, to Mr. and Mrs. Jack Worthington, a daughter.

We are asked to announce that on Thursday evening next, Feb. 23, the Ladies Chapter, Loyal Order of Moose, are holding an "At Home" in Hawthorne's Hall. A special invitation is given to Moose members and their wives. To start at 7 p.m. sharp. Ladies are requested to bring refreshments. Local members please govern themselves accordingly.

The patrons of the show given up here on Tuesday last by the local Minstrels received value for their money. The quips and antics of the corner men kept the audience in laughter. The laughing son rendered by A. Loxham infected the audience. The fine intonation of S. McNally in "My Fiddle" was indeed a revelation. The feminine "charms" and "wiles," as portrayed by the female impersonators, Messrs. Young and Puckey, caused many a flutter in the breasts of the young fellows, the make-up being all that could be desired, which reflects great credit on Mrs. John Caufield in her capacity as dresser. Space forbids us mentioning all the artists, the highest appreciation being received in the requests from the audience for another show in the near future. Messrs. Morrison, Kelly and Worthington provided the music. There was a dance held afterward, which was up to the usual high standard of the dances held up here.

IRELAND'S TROUBLES

The kidnapping and unrest in Northern Ireland tend to show that the agencies of Mr. de Valera are active, and that already he is striving to make the task of the new Provisional Government a difficult one. He has planned a republican demonstration in Dublin to be held next Sunday. His statement in connection with this event shows the policy he has in view, and that he has already proved himself a source of embarrassment to Irish peace is quite obvious from the happenings in Ulster. Probably his main idea is to prevent the recall of the British troops from the country, as he believes that their continued presence will forward the cause of republicanism. His latest pronouncement shows conclusively his statement that he was out of politics was merely a blind.

Sunday's demonstration and its effects will show the strength of the following of Mr. de Valera in the Irish capital. It will also illustrate the strength of the Provisional Government whose duty it will be to keep the peace. The latest trend of events proves fairly conclusively that whatever may be the attitude of Ulster towards the Irish Free State that part of Ireland which is known as Unionist is not the aggressor in the latest outrages. The course being pursued there by the republican supporters is arousing the ire of the Irish Unionists. It is highly regrettable this should be the case, but in the present instance they have the authority and the power to protect themselves, and if the necessity for widespread resistance should arise the support of the military will be unecessary. The outrages which are reported from day to day are not confined to Ulster, but are happening elsewhere as well, and they are violations of the law which it should lie within the power of the Irish Government to check.

The task of the Provisional Government is a perplexing one, and the soner an election can be held in Ireland to ascertain the state of public opinion the better for all concerned. Mr. de Valera is playing on the passions of the people. His resentment over his loss of the leading position in Irish affairs has outraged his vanity, and he is determined to create trouble. If he is willing to adopt constitutional means alone in his present agitation he will shortly have the recourse of a general election. That he will not restrict himself to such means is evident from the present list of outrages and the purposes of the demonstration on Sunday. The Provisional Government in Ireland is is a strong enough position to prevent any overt acts. It has control of the so-called republican army, and could put an end to all outrages, with the knowledge it possesses of the country. It has both the power and the authority to prevent any demonstration being held for republican purposes, and it will be judged by its attitude in opposing the propaganda of Mr. de Valera, and safeguarding Ulster against the aggression to which that part of Ireland is now being subjected.—Colonist.

TY COBB AND BABE RUTH

Past masters of the festive art
Of starting up a rally,
Or craving in a pitcher's heart
While carving out a tally,
With all the records jotted down,
Which of you two deserve the glory?

Star scholars in the School of Swat
Wherever records mingle
They hammer home runs from the lot
Nor scorn the lowly single.
If I was questioned under oath
I'd say—"There's fame enough for both."

Rival High Spots

Cobb—Batting average of .371 for seventeen years.

Ruth—Broke home run record three years in succession.

A Few Comparisons

Ruth is far and away the most spectacular ball player that ever lived.

Cobb is the most durable champion of all time.

Ruth is the greatest drawing card. His feat of smashing the home run record by wide margins for three years is one of the most astonishing of all baseball feats.

But Cobb's record of leading his league twelve out of thirteen consecutive years is equally astonishing.

The great Wagner led his league but eight times in twenty years.

The brilliant Lajoie led his league but four times in twenty years.

Cobb, from 1907 to 1920, led the league twelve times. And in 1921, his seventeenth campaign, he finished with .390, only a hit or two from the top.

Durable Champion

Cobb's greatest year has been put down as 1911, when he made 245 hits, scored 148 runs, stole 83 bases and batted .420.

But we should say his greatest test year was 1921—last season.

He was then harrased by the cares of management through a season of trouble and worry.

But in spite of this he batted .390. In his seventeenth season he batted ninteen points higher than his grand average for seventeen years.

So the wonder of Cobb becomes a matter of both quality and quantity, combinations that rarely exist.

* * *

The records set by Ty and the "Babe" are far beyond all other figures.

Ruth is the more spectacular of the two, due to his greatness in a department that always brings the big thrill and calls upon the loudest cheer.

BRICKLEY GETS REAL SURPRISE

Winnipeg Man Takes Tanlac To See Result — Three Years' Trouble Quickly Ended

"To be frank about it, I didn't believe half I was reading about Tanlac, but just to satisfy myself I tried the medicine, and now here I am ready to speak for myself and tell of my experience," said William Brickly, 331 Beverly St., Winnipeg, Man.

" My trouble all started three years ago with indigestion and I went down hill until I had a nervous breakdown. I was in bed for several weeks and my stomach was left in worse condition than ever. I fell off in weight and could not eat enough to get my strength back. The pains in my stomach were awful and gas would form and fill me all up until I felt perfectly miserable. My nerves were all undone, I slept poorly and was restless all the time and easily excited. I felt worn out from morning till night.

"Well, I'm a great believer in Tanlac now. I took it with a doubting mind but that didn't seem to make any difference, for I commenced to pick up right off and it wasn't long until I felt good all over. Eat, why, I eat three good square meals every day now, sleep fine and have picked up in weight. My nerves are as steady as a die and my work comes easier. When I bought Tanlac I certainly bought health."

COMPANY SENT TO ALASKA FOR NEW REX BEACH PRODUCTION

In the interest of absolute faithfulness to every detail of "The Iron Trail," as written by Rex Beach, a company was sent to Alaska to "shoot" many of the biggest scenes in the forthcoming United Artists production that will be seen at the Isis Theatre beginning Fep. 22 and 23.

"The Iron Trail" is a story of the adventurous times in the building of a railroad through the heart of the Alaskan gold fields and during the action of the play suspense and heart interest run hand in hand with the natural wildness, bitterness and appalling grandeur of the northland.

There are hand to hand fights in which a thousand men participate, there is the virgin wilderness to be cut through, formidable glaciers blocking the way, women to be protected against the elements and sheltered against the primitiveness of the country where law and order is a matter of might and personal combats of brain and muscle while the great work of laying "The Iron Trail" goes on.

Of all the great Rex Beach novels "The Iron Trail" is considered one of the most dramatic. It is a red-blooded story of real men and women and an inspiration that stirs the best elements in the human heart.

The centre of disturbance in the British Empire has now shifted from the Liffey to the Ganges.

IN INTEREST OF AMATEURISM

Sporting Editor:—
Sir:

With the development of sport in the interior cities of B.C., there comes the question of competition between teams from these cities and those of the Coast, either as exhibitors or for Provincial championships. It is well known that there is some semi-professionalism in these Interior towns and this prevents competition since the Coast teams are amateur. It would seem that an attempt should now be made to organize Local Boards of the Amateur Uuion in all the centres of population in the Province. This letter is written in the hope that, through your outside circulation, some useful information may reach public spirited citizens in outlying cities.

We consder it to be fully proved that semi-profesionalism is wholly demoralizing to the boys of any town and to community spirit in general, even though it may create spasmodic enthusiasm and rivalries. In some sports in some countries semi-professionalism is allowed, that is, amateurs are allowed to compete with and against professionals without losing their amateur standing; in others, one who so competes is himself considered a professional and cannot be re-instated. The Amateur Athletic Union of Canada has adopted an intermediate definition which applies to all athletic sports in Canada except Cricket, Golf and Indoor Bowling. The definition is as follows:—

"An amateur is one who has never:

1. Entered or competed in any athletic competition for a staked bet, moneys, private or public, or gate receipts.
2. Taught or assisted in the pursuit of any athletic exercise or sport as a means of livelihood.
3. Received any bonus or payment in lieu of loss of time while playing as a member of any club or engaged in any athletic sport or exercise, or any consideration whatever, for any services as an athlete, except actual travelling or hotel expenses.
4. Sold or pledged his prizes.
5. Promoted an athletic competition for personal gain.

NOTE—An athlete guilty of any of the above offences can never be reinstated.

(B)
