The Attorney-General moved the second reading of the act for improving the practice of conveyancing and amending the law of property. The motion carried.

Next came the bill respecting criminal justice accounts payable by the Province, and a bill respecting the estates of deceased persons, which were read a second time.

A bill to facilitate the quieting of titles was advanced a stage. During the debate on this bill the Government was strongly urged to further extend the Torrens system of land transfer to the whole Province, and even to make its operation compulsory, but the legal members of the House held that compulsion was out of the question.

After recess the House went into committee on the audit resolutions of the Treasurer, which were put through.

The next business in committee was Mr. Fraser's bill to further amend the assessment act, to render unquestionable the right of certain wage earners to vote. Several clauses were adopted and the bill was reported.

The House then resumed in Committee of Supply and passed several items including Agriculture $88,325, Bureau of Statistics $13,400, Agricultural College and Experimental Farm $31,180.

Hon. A. M. Ross, replying to a question, said that the creamery at the Model Farm was paying its way, while at the same time they were able to pay high prices to farmers for cream. These items were also passed: Maintenance and repair of Government and Departmental buildings $56,760,000, Government House $7,500, and works for relieving settlers in new districts $69,014.00.

The House adjourned at 11 o'clock.

Council Proceedings.

To the Editor of the Mercury:

SIR,—The letter of "An Elector of St. George's Ward" calls for a reply.

It is insinuated that I procured an appointment on the Finance Committee for the purpose of improperly dealing with the debentures lately issued. These debentures were tendered for by twelve different persons. The figures ranged from par or 100 to 119.60. Acting under instructions from a Toronto broker I put in a formal tender at the latter figure. The tenders came before the Finance Committee, who reported at the Council meeting on the 1st instant, recommending acceptance of the 119.60 tender. This report was adopted at the same meeting. The making out of the debentures and transferring them is merely a formal matter done by the Mayor and Treasurer.

My appointment on the Finance Committee was made by the Council at its meeting on the 1st instant, and I had no opportunity to act on it until after the debentures were delivered and the money received for them.

Your correspondent remarks that the position of an Alderman of, and a contractor with, the city is a dual one which no man should accept. This I agree with, if he has a beneficial interest in the contract. And on looking at the books which have come under my notice, I observe several cheques, during the last month, payable to Aldermen for drugs, clothing, &c., obtained by and on the credit of the city. I shall feel it my duty to say to them that "An Elector of St. George's Ward" thinks that no man with a due regard to his position as an Alderman should occupy the dual position of a contractor and an Alderman.

"Elector" says the various wards are jealous of the representation awarded them in the Finance Committee, and St. Andrew's now has two members, and St. George's none, although the latter pays one-third of the taxes. I dispute the statement that the ratepayers are jealous. Those who are jealous are several Aldermen who have not been able to procure positions in the Council to their liking, and "An Elector" I believe to be one of them. Every member of the committee pays taxes for property in St. George's Ward, and surely they are sufficiently interested to see that it gets fair play.

Yours, &c., W. H. CUTTEN.

BEAUTIFUL specimens of crayon work are on exhibition in Mr. Smith's Drug store window, executed by E. D. Clark, an artist of this City. One is of the late Col. Parties desiring first class work, should call at Mr. Clark's studio, corner of Elora road and Tiffany street, City. d2

BEATRICE LODGE.—The members of the Beatrice Rebekah Degree Lodge held their second meeting last night in the Oddfellows' hall. Nearly all the members were present. Four new members were initiated and received the degree of Rebekah. The new by-laws of the lodge were gone through and approved of. It was also decided that a badge be procured and officers' regalia. A committee was then appointed to make arrangements for an entertainment to be held on the 26th of April, which date is the anniversary of the order.

REMINISCENCE OF AN OLD TRAGEDY.—The Hamilton Times says:—Another of the old residents of Brant County has passed away in the person of Mrs. Sarah Robinson, who died at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. John R. Cumin, near Mt. Pleasant, on Tuesday last. She was 82 years of age, and was born in that neighborhood. Her death was caused by slipping on the ice and breaking her hip bone, causing her death within three days. She was the widow of a farmer living on the Kerr tract, whom old residents will remember as having been murdered in 1853, while returning home from Mt. Pleasant. He was stabbed with some sharp instrument, and no valuables being taken from his person it was evident the object of the murder was not robbery.

A CANADIAN IN CHICAGO—The Chicago Canadian-American says:—"Is this the Canadian headquarters?" asked Mr. F. F. Beck, of Sioux City, Iowa, as he opened the door and stepped into the Canadian-American office one day last week. Being assured that he was in the right place he took the easy chair and told of his connection with the "Maple Leaf." Mr. Beck is a Wellington County gentleman, and was reared on his father's farm near Elora, Ont. Having learned the carpenter trade eighteen years ago, he started West and settled in Sioux City, Iowa, and with its growth and prosperity Mr. Beck has kept pace. The city contains some 25,000 inhabitants, and some of the most prominent buildings erected there are the work of this gentleman. He is a nephew of the present Speaker in the Ontario House and was on his way to Canada to spend a few weeks with his friends. Mr. Beck is a large property owner in Sioux City.

SUCCESSFUL STUDENTS.—The annual examination of the students of the Royal College of Dental Surgeons, which has been in progress since Tuesday last, in Toronto, was completed at an early hour Friday. Among those who passed their final examination and received certificates are mentioned the names of A. M. Clark and J. Stirton, of Guelph. Both of these young men have been made honorary graduates. A. M. Clark is a son of Mr. Donald Clark, of Puslinch, who has been under articles for the past three years with Mr. W. M. Foster, dentist, of this city, and he has done credit to himself and his instructor. The same may be said of James D. Stirton, who was articled for two years with Mr. Read, dentist, of Fergus. The latter is a son of Mr. Joseph Stirton, of this city, and has bought the dentistry owned by Mr. C. B. Hayes.

HIGHLY BRED SHORTHORN CATTLE.—Mr. John Meyer, of Waterloo Township, recently sold to Mr. Isaac Reist, of the same place, the highly bred yearling shorthorn bull "Telluvia Duke 8th," 67812, (Vol. 27, A. H. B.), for $175. The animal referred to contains an infusion of Bates blood, such as ranks him among the best of this the best class of shorthorns; and his pedigree traces through some twenty crosses, to no less a celebrity than the illustrious and beautiful "Lady Maynard" of Collings fame. The animal himself is a beautiful dark roan of great substance and promise. In his purchase, Mr. Reist, who is one of those who has happily learned to consider "the best the cheapest," has added to his herd an animal that will doubtless prove of no little value, though the price paid must, even in dull times, be considered a sacrifice.

LAST night an entertainment was held in School Section No. 5, Nassagaweya. There was a large number present, among whom were several from Guelph, Rockwood, Eramosa, and other surrounding places. All seemed to thoroughly enjoy themselves. The programme was principally made up of vocal and instrumental music, and was well rendered.

A SPILL OUT.—Last night, about eleven o'clock, a sleigh load of people from the City, who had been paying a social visit to friends in Eramosa, met with a mishap at McCann's hotel, on the Eramosa Road. On going to turn the corner on their way to Guelph the driver went a little too far forward and ran the conveyance into a culvert, upsetting the party, numbering about nine. One of the ladies, Miss Whalen, received a bad cut on the face and had one of her arms dislocated at the shoulder. Miss F. O'Boyle was also slightly hurt. The other members of the party escaped unhurt.

UNCLE JOSH.—Last night the Baird Comedy Company put on the boards to a well filled house the well known play of Uncle Josh. Mr. R. H. Baird feels at home in the character of Uncle Josh, and personified it to perfection. Mrs. Baird as Mamie Harvey, another of the leading characters, also performed well, and so did Mr. Barry Harvey as John Martin, Lewis Barnes as Bill Johnston, and Edward Houston as the Dude. The play was witnessed with evident satisfaction, and it seems that the company are becoming more popular the longer they stay. The matinee this afternoon was also largely attended. The play to-night is "Ben Bolt."

Nominations

The nominations for the vacancy in St. Patrick's Ward caused by the resignation of Ald. Wells, and the vacancy in St. John's Ward by the death of Ald. Hall, took place to-day. There was little outside interest manifested in them, although perhaps there may have been some private wirepulling. Mr. B. Fairley acted at the City Hall as Returning Officer for St. Patrick's Ward, and Mr. Wm. M. Mann at Hearn's store for St. John's Ward. The following are the nominations:

ST. PATRICK'S WARD.

Wm. Hortop, nominated by F. J. Chadwick, seconded by Patrick Downie.

George Sleeman, nominated by William Slater, seconded by Chas. Davidson.

Geo. W. Stull, nominated by William Michie, seconded by Francis Law.

ST. JOHN'S WARD.

Chas. Walker, nominated by John Roberts, seconded by James Mays.

Curling.

Yesterday three rinks of the Granite Curling Club arrived by the half-past eleven train, to play the annual return match with the Guelph club. Play was commenced shortly after one o'clock, and continued until nearly five, the Toronto men returning by the 5:15 train. The game throughout was one of the best that has been played on the Guelph rink this season, and was witnessed by a number of curlers and admirers of the game. On account of the Toronto players being a man short, A. Bruce, of the Guelph club, filled his place. Although he did all he could to defeat the home club they succeeded in winning the game by 14 shots. The ice was in good condition and admitted of fine play. The Granites were escorted to the station by a number of the Guelph men. The following is the score:

Guelph Scientific Society.

The public meeting called for the formation of a Guelph Scientific Society, on Thursday evening, was very well attended and a good start made in this commendable and important enterprise. A committee previously appointed had prepared a constitution and list of proposed council members for approval and this meeting immediately proceeded to consider the constitution clause by clause. A comprehensive and complete one has been adopted. The object of the Society is explained as "The advancement of Scientific knowledge, special attention being given to our own neighborhood." The meetings are to be held on the second Tuesday in each month, and the membership fee is one dollar for gentlemen and fifty cents for ladies. A council to direct the officers of the Society was elected, the following being members: Revs. Dr. Torrance, D. McGregor, and Archdeacon Dixon, Messrs. James Goldie, J. Hoyes Panton, R. Gausby, Prof. James, J. W. Clarke, D. McCrae, Arch. Gilchrist, Prof. Hunt, W. Tytler, R. L. Torrance, and Prof. Mills. This Council meets this evening in the Free Library for the election of officers, to make arrangements as to place of meeting, and to transact any other immediate business necessary. There are already a considerable number on the membership roll of the Society and it is hoped that all interested in any branch of scientific research or study will connect themselves with it. Very interesting addresses and papers are promised at the various meetings, and we are fortunate in having in our midst parties capable of and willing to assist in every way, amongst whom might be mentioned Professors Brown, Panton and James, of the O. A. C.; James Goldie, Archdeacon Dixon and many others. Field excursions will also probably form an important and attractive branch of the work during the summer months, members thus being encouraged to interest themselves in the collection of botanical and other specimens.

A PAINFUL DEATH.

Col. Dyde Dies While Testifying in Favour of His Son.

MONTREAL, March 5.—When the Dyde forgery case was resumed in the court of Queen's bench this morning, Col. Dyde, father of the accused, being called to testify for the defence, dropped dead on entering the witness box. The greatest consternation reigned in the court. The deceased was removed to the grand jury room. The cause of death is supposed to be heart disease, aggravated by anxiety and worry, at the exceedingly painful situation in which his son is placed, although the general feeling is that the latter is innocent of the charges laid against him. Col. Dyde was over ninety years of age and was said to have been born in one of Admiral Nelson's ships during a battle at sea. Two years ago he was appointed A. D. C. to the Queen.

A gentleman who was in court gives the following account of the sad affair:—Col. Dyde was giving strong evidence in favour of his son, and in answer to a question was saying: "My son, the defendant—I beg pardon, your honor, the prisoner at the bar—" Here his voice failed him; an ashy paleness spread over his face, his body became rigid, and he fell backwards. About six feet behind the witness box is the wall, and the Colonel, being an unusually tall man, struck his head against it, and his body was thrown to one side by the shock. The blow was not sufficient to cause death, but on lifting the body life was found to be extinct. Judge Ramsay, who presided in court, made a touching address on the painful incident, referring to the services the deceased had rendered to his country. He then adjourned the court out of respect to the memory of the deceased. The prisoner witnessed the whole affair without betraying the slightest agitation.

In the afternoon Judge Ramsay in his charge said there was no charge of forgery, but there could be no doubt as to the prisoner having uttered the notes. He then told the jury that no sensible man could believe other than that the prisoner was guilty.

On the jury coming into court at 9:30 they were unable to agree and were locked up for the night.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Toronto, March 5.

The Treasurer's bill respecting the Agricultural College was put through the Committee once more, for the purpose of increasing the number of the members of the Advisory Board to seven.

Mr. Meredith asked if the Attorney General had heard anything of an extraordinary case at Port Arthur, where a magistrate had committed his wife to jail for an assault upon himself. Mr. Mowat promised to institute an enquiry.

Mr. Meredith brought up the claim of Darius Hutchinson for compensation for lands lost to him in the county of Kent, owing to an erroneous survey made many years ago. The error was made by the Crown Lands' Department, which had power to rectify it by a just and equitable allowance to the sufferer.

The Commissioner said that his hon. friend had fairly stated the case, and he regretted that the courts had deemed it necessary to find against Hutchinson. The error dated back to the beginning of the century and inflicted a hardship. The law on the subject was conflicting, but if it were possible for the Government, or for Parliament, to make compensation it would be made.

The second reading of Mr. French's bill to amend the county courts act was moved. He proposed to extend the jurisdiction of the county judges in civic actions.

The Attorney General said that reflection upon this subject had convinced him of the error of the views which he had at one time held upon it, inasmuch as he could find no practical purpose that would be served by such an extension. He moved the three months' hoist. A vote was taken at 6.10, with the result that the bill was defeated by 38 to 25.

A man named James Sheady was fatally injured in a prize fight near Fayetteville, Va.

Over 1,400 Chinamen left San Francisco for home on the steamer on Thursday. Many others desired to go, but could not obtain accommodation.

Dun & Co. report a total of 246 failures throughout the country during the past week, a decrease of two compared with the week previous. Thirty-nine of the number were Canadian, five more than the preceding week.

Myrtle Grant, formerly a school teacher resident in Toronto, was fatally stabbed in a house of ill-fame at Omaha, Thursday night.

For years John B. Gough supported the widow and family of Mr. Stratton, the man who found him drunk in the streets of Worcester, Mass., and induced him to sign the pledge.

Thos. Christie, aged 21, and Horatio King, aged 20, clerks in the First National Bank, Bradford, Pa., have been arrested on a charge of embezzling $60,000, most of which was lost in oil speculations. R. H. Huntly, an oil broker, was also arrested.

Chas. C. Marple, of Gloucester, Mass., on Thursday night shot his daughter whom he mistook for a burglar.

Foreign.

Lord Salisbury has gone to Cannes for his health.

The Greek Government has bought two steamers at Glasgow for naval purposes.

It is authoritatively denied that Mr. Gladstone has either directly or indirectly consulted Mr. Parnell on the subject of Home Rule.

Cholera has been discovered at Venice on board of a Greek frigantine, which has been ordered to quarantine.

At a Cabinet Council in Athens it was decided to summon classes of the reserves, comprising men of 28 and 29 years of age.

The Limerick Grand Jury, by a vote of 18 to 3, passed resolutions of confidence in Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Parnell.

Servia has formally notified the Porte of her intention to disarm.

Prince Alexander has ordered the demobilization of the Bulgarian army.

Frank Food, an American, has created a sensation by filing a claim to the property in Ireland known as the Kilkenny estates. Wm. Flood has been in possession of the estates for twenty-seven years. The Yank claims to be a lineal descendant the celebrated Henry Flood. He also sues for $500,000, the profits, as he terms it.

The Evening Mercury

SATURDAY EVE'G MARCH 6, 1886.

ANY person owning property in Canada but resident outside of the Dominion can vote, provided he is a British subject and is on the voters' list. Also a tenant can vote in respect of the same property for which a landlord votes.

IT is almost certain that the next general election for the Ontario Legislature will be held on the assessment rolls now being prepared; therefore every wage-earner, householder and landholder's son—in fact everybody entitled to a vote—should make it his especial duty to see that his name is placed on the list.

MESSRS. BEAUDET and Chinic, of Quebec, received the modest sum of $32,507.62 for cartridges supplied to the troops during the first four months of the Northwest rebellion. Mr. Beaudet ran recently in the Conservative interest in Lotbiniere, but was defeated. Mr. Beaudet was well paid to sacrifice himself on the Tory shrine.

MONTREAL Herald:—As nearly everybody knows, the Mowat Government, as far as administration goes, is the best managed of all the Local Governments in the Dominion. If other Provincial Governments could show as good a record in this respect, some of them would enjoy more of popular confidence than they do at present.

NEW YORK Herald:—What is wanted is a general reciprocity with Canada. Will the Boston fish dealers and the New England fish consumers, in whose interest they speak, agree to that? If not, if they only want cheap fish for themselves, but oppose cheap lumber and other products for others, then they have properly no standing in court.

BROCKVILLE Recorder:—The Hamilton Spectator pronounces the Ontario Agricultural College a good thing theoretically but a bad thing practically on account of the expense. We venture to say the Spectator will be found vigorously supporting the proposition of the Ottawa Government to establish a similar institution for the Dominion.

MR. LANDRY, Montmagny, has given notice (no doubt with connivance and sanction of the Government) that he will bring up the following motion:—"Resolved, That this House feels it its duty to express its deep regret that the sentence of death passed upon Louis Riel, convicted of high treason, was allowed to be carried into execution." Of this motion more anon.

THEY have high license with a vengeance in Decatur, Ill., beating the rates established in this Province all hollow. Liquor sellers must pay $500 a year, and there is a heavy penalty if cards, dice or dominoes are played at the drinking places. No screens are allowed in saloons or bar-rooms, and there can be no paint, lettering or curtains to obstruct the windows.

A PARLIAMENTARY paper, respecting the crops of 1885, shows that for quantity the year was favorable in Britain. In England the average wheat crop was 31 bushels per acre, equal to 9 per cent above the ordinary standard, and in Scotland it was 34 bushels per acre. Midlothian was the premier county of the whole kingdom for wheat, the yield per acre touching 40 bushels. The oat crop was very deficient and in the county of Shetland it is reported to be a total failure. In the Scotch counties, oats have produced about four bushels per acre below an average year.

A GOOD many of the cablegrams anent the feeling in Britain against Home Rule must be taken with a grain of salt. For instance the other day it was stated that the Welsh Liberals were about to protest against Home Rule, but the fact that Flintshire, a Welsh county, on Tuesday returned a supporter of Mr. Gladstone by over 1,500 majority, does not look as if the people of Wales were opposed to Home Rule in Ireland. Another evidence that these anti-Irish statements are in many cases only canards is drawn from the fact that Mr. Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, was re-lected for Newcastle-on-Tyne by a majority which increased from 629 at the general election to 2,661 at the bye-election.

THERE used to be a great flourish of trumpets on the part of Conservatives, whenever they spoke about Manitoba and the Northwest, in reference to the rapid advance of settlement as a result of the Dominion Government's vigorous policy. Two or three years ago Reformers dare not venture to call in question a single action of the Government in regard to that country. They were promptly interrupted by indignant Tories who could see no wrong in anything which their friends in power at Ottawa were doing. Many of them have no doubt had their eyes opened since then by the rebellion which they justly attribute to gross and wilful maladministration. This system of persistent mismanagement has had its effects, and instead of emigration to the Northwest increasing it has steadily decreased, until last year it was reduced to 7,240 for Manitoba and the Territories. With such facts as these staring them in the face, all honest men of whatever party should demand a change of administration such as will ensure better things in the future.

Retrospective.

FEBRUARY 27th, 1886.

It is just one year since the opening of my new business at 27 Lower Wyndham Street was announced. The retrospect is a pleasant one. The motto was and has been "Never fear to do right." The policy of the business was to sell good, reliable goods at a fair moderate profit, to sell strictly for cash to always pay and demand one hundred cents for every dollar, to offer customers our best efforts without boring them to buy, to make it a pleasure to call at our store, to eschew all bombast and exaggeration, to keep a sharp look out for advantages to our customers, to unite their interests with our own, to strictly mind our own business, to win the confidence of all our Patrons. Under the blessings of a kind Providence, the year just closed has been a most prosperous and satisfactory one. Our name and reputation have been established, our sales were 50 per cent more than our highest anticipations, and the result of the year's business very encouraging and satisfactory. Our hearty thanks are tendered to our many patrons.

PROSPECTIVE.

The same principles, riper experience, wider facilities, stronger efforts, increased confidence in the intelligence and discrimination of the public, determination and ability to meet the keenest legitimate competition, goods that will bear inspection and comparison and steady persevering effort, will be at the command of our patrons, and we have no fear that though the most strenuous efforts, legitimate and otherwise, will in the future as they have in the past be buzzing on every hand, the business at No. 27 will not only maintain but greatly strengthen the leading position which it has taken.

CHAPTER XV.

NEARING THE BRINK.

Percival went with them to the carriage. He had handed Mrs. Lafone to her place and turned to Alice, when she put her hand, into his, and said rather hurriedly,

"Percival, I want to tell you how shocked I am about this. I did not care very much for Helen; we were not sisters you know; and when we lived at home together we could not help a certain feeling of rivalry; we neither did the other justice. But since her marriage, when all that was done away with, I grew to understand and like her better, and I am truly sorry for you."

The words seemed almost forced from her by a sense of justice and sympathy. Percival paid little heed to them at the time, but later he remembered them, and, knowing nothing of what passed between Helen and Alice, he felt that after all the latter was better than he had supposed. The little details of the carefully prepared speech were all lost upon him; he heard nothing but the general sense of it; he only felt that in his hour of trouble Alice had come to him and given him her sympathy, frankly acknowledging that she had not done Helen justice.

Alice was very silent as she and her mother drove home; at last, when they had nearly reached The Thwaite, she said,—

"Do you really want me to marry, mamma?"

"Certainly; what a strange question to ask just now. Of course every mother wishes to see her daughters happily married; but what put such an idea into your head to-day of all days?"

"This is what put it into my head. If you want me to get married, have Percival at the house as often as you can."

"Percival! Good gracious, child, what do you mean?"

"I should have thought my meaning had been plain enough. If I do not marry Percival I shall never marry at all."

"I am more shocked than I can say. Is this the result of your visit to Brantwood?"

"Not at all; it is simply the result of my knowing Percival, and if Helen had not——. No: I won't say anything about Helen now; but things might have been different—and Percival is free now."

"I don't like to hear you talking in that way," said Mrs. Lafone, really shocked and uneasy. "I could have cried this afternoon when I saw Percival. I never saw such a change. He must have been very fond indeed of Helen, and it seems sacriliege to talk as you are doing. Besides that," drawing herself up a little, "it is not becoming. If you have any such wishes, please keep them to yourself."

"Just as you like," said Alice, shrugging her shoulders; "only I thought you wanted me to get married, so I felt I had better tell you of the only match which will suit me. I have told you, and you can do as you like about it."

The carriage stopped in front of the house as she spoke, and she threw the rug off her knees and prepared to get out.

A man is not allowed to nurse his grief like a woman. If he has any standing at all he is sure to have a hundred calls upon his time and attention which must be met. The world goes on as if nothing had happened, and he must perforce keep his place in it. Perhaps it is as well. A week after the day when Percival came home to find Helen's note he was going about his usual business in the usual way. Brantwood had resumed its usual aspect; the inds had been drawn up, and well-trained servants kept the rooms in very much the same condition as before. Flowers still stood about in tables and shelves; all the mere outward signs of care and thought were there, but the spirit which had animated and pervaded the whole was gone. The small, slight figure no longer moved with free, graceful step, quickening into a run if there were any need for haste, from one room to another.

The change in Percival was startling. He went about his business as usual, and those appointed to carry out his instructions all said that his head was as clear as it had ever been. But, whereas formerly he had a word and a smile for all who crossed his path, he now never opened his lips except when it was necessary, and he did not look as if he would ever smile again. Those streaks of grey in his hair spoke loudly. He had not said much when one of his labourers had roughly tried to express sympathy; he had merely wrung the man's hand in silence and walked away, but no one had misunderstood the silence.

He now kept very much to himself; he had almost given up visiting. A cigar and a game of billiards with one or other of the men who in kindness of heart pressed their hospitality upon him, was the extent to which he went. The only house at which he was often seen was The Thwaite, and it was natural enough that he should go there. People gossiped of course; what is too trifling or too awful to set people's tongues wagging; but the general impression was that Mr. Moore would never get over his wife's death.

It was true that he went a great deal to The Twaite, though hardly from choice; rather because he was so constantly asked to go, and believing that it was all done in good-will and from simple friendliness, he considered it his duty to go, and after all it was less trouble to go than to be continually pressed for a reason for not going.

As we know, he was asked for a purpose. Time had dimmed Mrs. Lafone's sense of the impropriety and unreasonableness of Alice's remarks. She did earnestly desire to see her daughter married, and if at last she was pleased to prefer one man to all the others there was no harm in giving that man every chance of preferring her. She understood her daughter's character better perhaps than any one else, and she knew what happened when Alice was thwarted in any one of her plans and wishes. Percival was also a thoroughly desirable son-in-law. After a time she saw no reason why she should not do all she could to further Alice's future.

So Percival visited steadily at The Thwaite, and the only person whose presence there gave him any pleasure was Alice. She was changed; as he grew accustomed to his new life and began to notice other people, it dawned upon him gradually that Alice was changed. He could not tell where the change lay; he was only conscious of a feeling that she was better to get on with than before. Though she had none of the qualities which were necessary to attract him, he had a kind of brotherly regard for her, and he felt she was improving, without troubling about the cause of the improvement. He never had felt much interest in the people at The Thwaite, so he did not display any great excitement when Alice told him one day that her sister Gertrude was engaged.

"Indeed!" he said, rather indifferently. To whom?"

"To Frank Harvey. I must say I am rather surprised."

"Why, is there anything wrong with him? I think I have seen him here once or twice, and I remember thinking him rather a decent kind of fellow."

Alice could not help laughing.

"Once or twice, Percival! Gertrude would be angry, indeed, if she thought you supposed her capable of getting engaged to a man who had been here once or twice."

Percival said nothing. The thought which was vaguely present in his mind was that he had never supposed Gertrude to be capable of anything, because he never thought of her. Alice went on—

"He has been here continually for the last six months, and now I suppose he will be here more than ever. What surprises me is that Gertrude should take the first who comes in that way. She is very pretty and is sure to have plenty of other offers. Frank Harvey is so very common-place."

"I suppose she likes him," was Percival's unsympathetic reply.

"I suppose so, and then he is rich. Gertrude will have everything in that way that she can wish for. It is very fortunate for a girl when she can be content with that and want for nothing else. I wish I could."

The last words were spoken in a lower tone and with more bitterness than was generally observable in Alice's voice.

RAISE THE STANDARD HIGH.

The Dry Goods Trade is never elevated by one firm trying to hurt the reputation of another, neither will it raise the firm who tries it in the estimation of the public.

We do not propose to lower the standard of a

Respectable and Highly Thought of Business by any such Nonsense,

But on the other hand if there is anything we can do that will tend to elevate the Dry Goods Trade and those connected with us it will be done.

If other merchants in the city have found their trade in advance of last year (and with less salesmen required), we are glad to hear of it, and it speaks well for Guelph and we only hope they will still continue to prosper. As for us

WE ARE SATISFIED.

We are pleased with our business, our city and the people we have met with since coming to Guelph.

It is just a little over one month since we bought the

Very Respectable and Highly Thought of Business of Messrs. John Hogg & Son.,

and we have been told by those who know, that our sales for the month of February are in advance of the same month last year and we propose by attending

Strictly to our own Business

and by placing before the public

Good Honest Reliable Goods,

and at prices that will cause the people to know (without us having to tell them) that we are

Men of Experience in the Dry Goods Trade knowing Where to buy, How to buy and having the Bullion to Buy with.

Large quantities of goods are coming to hand every week from England, Ireland, Scotland and the United States; also from the different parts of Canada, which we are marking at a very low price and passing into stock.

We expect a large Spring Trade and are preparing for same.

We have retained all the old hands and they will be pleased to see their old friends.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, March 5.

Sir Hector Langevin presented the report of the Postmaster-General.

Bills were introduced by Mr. Beaty respecting the Northwest Central Railway Company; by Mr. Ward to incorporate the Midland Bank of Canada, and by Mr. Mulock to amend the animals' contagious diseases act.

Mr. Blake asked how many Halfbreeds were committed for trial in connection with the Northwest rebellion? How many were tried? How many were convicted? How many Indians were committed for trial in the same connection? How many were tried? How many were convicted? How many whites were committed for trial in the same connection? How many were tried? How many convicted, and what are their names?

Minister Thompson said that the information was not ready for bringing down, as it had to be verified. He suggested, however, that it would be better to move for it as a motion, as there were so many details.

Mr. Blake immediately remarked that, after the example set by Mr. Thomas White in answering the long and involved question put by Mr. Wallace (York) in regard to the timber berths in the disputed territory, the principle laid down by the Government last year had been departed from. (Laughter).

Mr. Blake put a series of questions respecting Senator O'Donohoe's call to the Cabinet.

Sir John Macdonald asked to allow the question to stand for a week or so, that he might refresh his recollection. (Laughter).

Mr. Blake: "If the hon. gentleman fails in doing so I shall have to ask the party." (Cheers).

Sir John—"Perhaps the hon. gentleman has done so already."

Mr. Blake (laughing)—"No, no."

Mr. McLelan, in reply to questions, stated that the net increase of the public debt from March the 1st last year to March 1st this year was $15,882,422 and the gross increase was $34,983,770.

Mr. Thompson (Antigonish), in reply to Mr. Amyot, said the authority upon which Mr. Justice Richardson stated in pronouncing sentence upon Louis Riel that he could not give him hope that Her Majesty would exercise mercy in his behalf, was in accordance with the usual course of judges' sentencing prisoners when they believed it was one wherein the executive clemency ought not to be exercised. He further said that the date of the order-in-council ordering the execution of Riel was November 18, 1885, and that the third respite was to allow the receipt here in Ottawa of the medical report.

Mr. Thompson, in replying to Mr. Edgar, said that the Government did not intend to introduce bankruptcy legislation or to ask the appointment of a committee to deal with the subject. Any private member could bring in a bill.

Sir John Macdonald, replying to Mr. Mills, said the Government was considering the propriety of introducing legislation dealing with the Ontario boundary question.

The House then went on to notices of motion, but Mr. Landry's motion, pretending to censure the Government for the execution of Louis Riel, was allowed to stand until Tuesday next at the Government's request.

Two motions from Mr. Amyot requesting information respecting the trial of Riel were carried.

A number of other motions and returns were carried and the House adjourned at 4 o'clock.

Dominion Alliance.

OTTAWA, March 5.—The Dominion Alliance to-day passed a resolution instructing J. J. McLaren to prepare a set of forms for the guidance of Justices of the Peace in Scott Act counties, as well as a list of convictions for contravention of the same Act. A resolution was passed endorsing the action of the Convention at Toronto last September, calling upon temperance people to only vote for and support candidates favourable to prohibitory legislation. A resolution was also passed urging the Government not to issue wine and beer licenses in Scott Act counties.

-LION-

STOCK TAKING COMPLETED.

We find we have a little lot of remnants amounting in all to the sum of

These must be cleared out within two weeks to make room for New Goods arriving daily.

NOW

In the lull which usually follows Stock taking before the heaviest of the Spring work begins when we will have less time for such a review, we would like to place before our patrons and the public generally the state of our business, and explain why we claim to sell so much cheaper than others.

Our business for the past year has been eminently satisfactory, we having done the largest Cash business which has been done in the Lion for the last six years. Now this in ordinary times would be very encouraging, but in hard times like the present, we consider it most satisfactory and indicative of a reign of prosperity for the Lion much beyond what it has had in the past. Of course we have not had as much opposition, our friend, Mr. Hogg not having applied himself so closely to business as in former years, but this would not explain entirely the great increase in our trade. The reasons are many. We will state a few:

Our Goods are all fresh and new.

Our Prices are Low.

Our Goods are all marked in plain figures.

We have only one price for all.

We handle the Goods the public want, and at prices to suit them.

NO WONDER WE SELL CHEAP.

It is no wonder we sell cheap, as we are almost under no expense. Our Discounts more than pay our salaries, and as we pay no rent, the two principal items of expense are taken out.

NOW LADIES

We astonished you with the variety and cheapness of our stock last Spring, but we expect to surprise you even more this Spring. We have now a resident buyer in Glasgow, who is always on hand to secure any novelties or cheap lines that are thrown on the British Market, so that we will always be a little ahead of others, both in style and value.

SEVERE SENTENCE.

The Socialist Leaders get Various Terms of Penal Servitude.

LONDON, March 5.—The eight men who had been convicted for taking part in the recent Trafalgar Square and Hyde Park riots were to-day sentenced at the Middlesex sessions. All were condemned to penal servitude for periods ranging from one to five years. The judge justified the sentences by denouncing the so-called popular demonstrations of workingmen. "It is well known," said His Honor, "that these demonstrations naturally tend to tumult and disorder."

The Socialist convention has convened a monster meeting in the city of Manchester for Sunday next. The object of the meeting is to formulate a demand that the Government procure work for the unemployed.

The Baseball League.

The Toronto World says:—The hatchet has apparently been buried. At least ehere were no signs of warfare at or after the meeting of the Canadian Baseball League in the Rossin House last night. There was no quorum at the meeting, Messrs. McCann (London), George Sleeman (Guelph), and Frank Nelson, secretary, being the sole representatives. Consequently no business was done, except that Mr. Sleeman gave notice to the secretary that the ban against F. J. O'Neil, of last year's Primroses had been withdrawn. The secretary stated that he had received the resignation from the league of the Hamilton Clippers, and that he had received bonds in $250 from the London and Guelph clubs. After the attempt at a meeting Messrs. Sleeman (Guelph), Hamburger and Bennett (Toronto), McCann (London), and Sterling and Stroud (Clippers), were found in close community. Mr. Sleeman regretted the present position of attairs, but gave hopes that everything might be satisfactorily settled. He said London and Guelph would be satisfied if the International League clubs, individually, would give them an opportunity to play games whenever convenient. Toronto and Hamilton were willing, and would place their grounds at the disposal of London and Guelph. It was impossible to say much until after the Internationals had arranged their schedule, but he thought the reduced number of games that would have to be played by Guelph would prove satisfactory. Thus the hatchet was buried. Toronto and Hamilton in their own interests would do their best to foster the game both in London and Guelph, and the International League clubs will probably keep the teams of those cities busy. In course of time there appears every probability that London and Guelph will become members of the International League. Messrs. Sleeman and McCann are both gentlemen who are not daunted by trifles and they are sufficiently public spirited to keep their teams together and play any nine coming along, knowing that they can pretty well hold heir own, or at least make a decent representation against the best of them.

Insurance Companies.

The report of the Inspector of Insurance gives very full details of the operations of the Insurance Companies of all classes doing business in the Province. It shows that the total assets of the joint stock fire companies on Dec. 31st, 1884, were $197,622.64 their total liabilities, $7,958,495; total income for the year, $101,816.55; and total expenditure, $83,875.73. There are only two companies of this class. There are six mixed mutual and cash system companies. The total amount at risk in these companies on Dec. 31, 1884, was $21,237,715.22. Their total income for the year was $212,364.53, and their total expenditure $185,988.18. There are fifty-six purely mutual companies doing business in the Province, with total assets of $1,974,269.30, and liabilities of $63,238,154.83. Their total income for 1884 was $196,664.67, and their total expenditure $175,981.19. There are sixty-two mutual companies of all classes. The gross amount at risk on the mutual plan is $73,887,655.66. The premium notes unassessed amount to $2,172,378.92. The surplus of general assets over liabilities is $2,370,762. The new business taken during 1884 amounted to $24,049,867.50. The premium notes taken during the year amount to $900,648.85. There were 622 fires during the year. The total amount of losses paid reached the sum of $201,341.90. The report also includes the amendments to the Insurance Act passed during the session of 1885.

McGregor's Speedy Cure.

When we say McGregor's Speedy Cure is the only perfect cure for dyspepsia, liver complaints, indigestion and impure blood, we are telling plain facts, of which hundreds upon hundreds can testify who have been restored to perfect health by its use. DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, March 5.

Sir Hector Langevin presented the report of the Postmaster-General.

Bills were introduced by Mr. Beaty respecting the Northwest Central Railway Company; by Mr. Ward to incorporate the Midland Bank of Canada, and by Mr. Mulock to amend the animals' contagious diseases act.

Mr. Blake asked how many Halfbreeds were committed for trial in connection with the Northwest rebellion? How many were tried? How many were convicted? How many Indians were committed for trial in the same connection? How many were tried? How many were convicted? How many whites were committed for trial in the same connection? How many were tried? How many convicted, and what are their names?

Minister Thompson said that the information was not ready for bringing down, as it had to be verified. He suggested, however, that it would be better to move for it as a motion, as there were so many details.

Mr. Blake immediately remarked that, after the example set by Mr. Thomas White in answering the long and involved question put by Mr. Wallace (York) in regard to the timber berths in the disputed territory, the principle laid down by the Government last year had been departed from. (Laughter).

Mr. Blake put a series of questions respecting Senator O'Donohoe's call to the Cabinet.

Sir John Macdonald asked to allow the question to stand for a week or so, that he might refresh his recollection. (Laughter).

Mr. Blake: "If the hon. gentleman fails in doing so I shall have to ask the party." (Cheers).

Sir John—"Perhaps the hon. gentleman has done so already."

Mr. Blake (laughing)—"No, no."

Mr. McLelan, in reply to questions, stated that the net increase of the public debt from March the 1st last year to March 1st this year was $15,882,422 and the gross increase was $34,983,770.

Mr. Thompson (Antigonish), in reply to Mr. Amyot, said the authority upon which Mr. Justice Richardson stated in pronouncing sentence upon Louis Riel that he could not give him hope that Her Majesty would exercise mercy in his behalf, was in accordance with the usual course of judges' sentencing prisoners when they believed it was one wherein the executive clemency ought not to be exercised. He further said that the date of the order-in-council ordering the execution of Riel was November 18, 1885, and that the third respite was to allow the receipt here in Ottawa of the medical report.

Mr. Thompson, in replying to Mr. Edgar, said that the Government did not intend to introduce bankruptcy legislation or to ask the appointment of a committee to deal with the subject. Any private member could bring in a bill.

Sir John Macdonald, replying to Mr. Mills, said the Government was considering the propriety of introducing legislation dealing with the Ontario boundary question.

The House then went on to notices of motion, but Mr. Landry's motion, pretending to censure the Government for the execution of Louis Riel, was allowed to stand until Tuesday next at the Government's request.

Two motions from Mr. Amyot requesting information respecting the trial of Riel were carried.

A number of other motions and returns were carried and the House adjourned at 4 o'clock.

Mineral Poison.

Nothing but pure extracts from plants and roots are used in preparing McGregor's Lung Compound, the modern and now popular remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis, croup, asthma, and all affections of the throat, lungs and chest. All mineral poisons and dangerous substances avoided, which renders it safe for children or adults. Sold at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at Thomas S. Petrie's Drug Store

Dominion Alliance.

OTTAWA, March 5.—The Dominion Alliance to-day passed a resolution instructing J. J. McLaren to prepare a set of forms for the guidance of Justices of the Peace in Scott Act counties, as well as a list of convictions for contravention of the same Act. A resolution was passed endorsing the action of the Convention at Toronto last September, calling upon temperance people to only vote for and support candidates favourable to prohibitory legislation. A resolution was also passed urging the Government not to issue wine and beer licenses in Scott Act counties.

STOCK TAKING COMPLETED.

We find we have a little lot of remnants amounting in all to the sum of $2,263.41.

These must be cleared out within two weeks to make room for New Goods arriving daily.

NOW

In the lull which usually follows Stock taking before the heaviest of the Spring work begins when we will have less time for such a review, we would like to place before our patrons and the public generally the state of our business, and explain why we claim to sell so much cheaper than others.

Our business for the past year has been eminently satisfactory, we having done the largest Cash business which has been done in the Lion for the last six years. Now this in ordinary times would be very encouraging, but in hard times like the present, we consider it most satisfactory and indicative of a reign of prosperity for the Lion much beyond what it has had in the past. Of course we have not had as much opposition, our friend, Mr. Hogg not having applied himself so closely to business as in former years, but this would not explain entirely the great increase in our trade. The reasons are many. We will state a few:

Our Goods are all fresh and new.
Our Prices are Low.
Our Goods are all marked in plain figures.
We have only one price for all.
We handle the Goods the public want, and at prices to suit them.

NO WONDER WE SELL CHEAP.

It is no wonder we sell cheap, as we are almost under no expense. Our Discounts more than pay our salaries, and as we pay no rent, the two principal items of expense are taken out.

NOW LADIES

We astonished you with the variety and cheapness of our stock last Spring, but we expect to surprise you even more this Spring. We have now a resident buyer in Glasgow, who is always on hand to secure any novelties or cheap lines that are thrown on the British Market, so that we will always be a little ahead of others, both in style and value.

SEVERE SENTENCE.

The Socialist Leaders get Various Terms of Penal Servitude.

LONDON, March 5.—The eight men who had been convicted for taking part in the recent Trafalgar Square and Hyde Park riots were to-day sentenced at the Middlesex sessions. All were condemned to penal servitude for periods ranging from one to five years. The judge justified the sentences by denouncing the so-called popular demonstrations of workingmen. "It is well known," said His Honor, "that these demonstrations naturally tend to tumult and disorder."

The Socialist convention has convened a monster meeting in the city of Manchester for Sunday next. The object of the meeting is to formulate a demand that the Government procure work for the unemployed.

SOME purists object to the use of the word "render," as often applied to the delivery of a song by an artist upon the stage; but we are inclined to think such use legitimate, inasmuch as we find in the dictionary a secondary meaning to be, "to inflict."

COLD WATER FEEDS.—Cold water suppers are coming into general use, and should in every way be encouraged. The Masonic supper in Mitchell, and the Warden's banquet in Stratford, at both of which there were no kinds of liquors, not even the accustomed "plum pudding" and "brandy sauce," were a success in every respect, and far more enjoyable than if the "cup that cheers" had been on the tables.

DYING CONSOLATION.—The following ought to be embalmed among the curiosities of literature: The editor of Harper's Monthly recently received a letter from a woman who wrote that she was dying, that her physician had warned her that she could not possibly live to read the conclusion of Mr. Howell's "Indian Summer," now running in Harper's, and that she would greatly like to read the advance sheet in order that she might die happy.

AN ENTERTAINING DEBATE. — Resolved, "That Love is a stronger passion than Hatred" is the subject of a somewhat sentimental debate, which is exciting a good deal of interest throughout the city. It is to be given in the basement of Chalmers' Church on Monday evening next, under the auspices of the Literary Association of that church. A select programme of music has also been prepared and a very enjoyable evening may be anticipated.

GOT HIS EYE-TEETH CUT.—Not long ago a farmer saw an advertisement offering for 25 cents to send a receipt to prevent wells and cisterns from freezing in cold weather. He sent his money and received the following answer: "Take your well and cistern in cold weather and keep it by the fire." He says he might have known there was some trap, but he thinks the 25 cents well expended. He intends to subscribe for the MERCURY and keep better informed.

MRS. WHITEHEAD IN BRANTFORD.—At the Dufferin Rifles concert, held in Brantford recently, the Telegram has the following complimentary notice in reference to Mrs. Whitehead, of this city:—Mrs. Whitehead, of Guelph, who made her debut before a Brantford audience, is deserving of the highest enconiums. Her voice showed excellent cultivation and is of remarkable sweetness and power. Her hearers cannot fail but to be charmed at the splendid executive ability she displays, and last evening in the numbers rendered she was enthusiastically applauded.

PRESENTATION.—On Friday evening the employes of Worswick's engine works surprised Mr. H. Welsh, who has resigned his post as bookkeeper, by coming to his house on Glasgow street in a body, and presenting him with a handsome easy chair and a well filled purse, accompanied by a suitable address expressive of their regret at losing Mr. Welsh, and of his genial and courteous disposition towards all. The address was read by Mr. Alex. Moore, and the presentation made Messrs. Tawse and Ed. Hornbostel. Mr. Welsh replied in a happy manner, after which the visitors took free license of the house and enjoyed themselves greatly for a time. Mr. Harry Tawse took a prominent part in contributing to the impromptu programme.

GUELPH HOSPITALS.—The report of the Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities upon the Hospitals of the Province is to hand. A full report of what was done by the General Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital was published in the proceedings of the Wellington County Council, so that it is not necessary to repeat the statistics. In reference to the General Hospital Dr. W. T. O'Reilly, Inspector, has the following: A very great and much needed improvement has been effected in this building by the construction of new closets and bath rooms. A large balcony in front of the Hospital was in course of erection. It will be found very valuable for the use of convalescent patients. Reporting on St. Joseph' Hospital he says: The Hospital was found to be in its usual satisfactory condition of cleanliness and order. I was glad to learn that in anticipation of the smallpox epidemic which has threatened the Province, a smallpox hospital, isolated from all other buildings, was in course of erection.

POLICE COURT.—Wm. Carter (not the Alderman) was charged before the Police Magistrate this morning for disorderly conduct in Soper's Hotel on Saturday. He was fined $1 and costs. Wright Cartledge and Matthew Hudson, for disorderly conduct in Hogan's Hotel, also appeared. Cartledge was fined $1 and costs and Hudson $1, without costs. Jas. Kirkland was charged for assaulting his son, aged about 20 years, with a hammer. The prosecutor not being able to appear the case was enlarged for one week. Mrs. Casteliana Kirkpatrick was sent to the Asylum in Hamilton by Chief Randall this morning. It has been evident that she has been deranged for some time. This action was taken partly on the information of several parties in the neighbourhood where she lived, who considered her dangerous.

THE Erin Advocate understands that Mr. Robert Wood, Postmaster of Erin, has been called upon by the Postmaster-General to make good over $300 of the P. O. money stolen by burglars a year ago last June. This, together with the loss of the firm and repairing safe amounts to a total loss to the firm of R. & J. Wood of over $550.

JOHN B. GOUGH.—The Sovereign Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars has decided that Sunday, the 11th of April, be set apart for memorial services on the death of Mr. John B. Gough. Each lodge is requested to at once arrange for a memorial service on that day, and to drape its charter in mourning for thirty days from that date.

PETRIE VS. THE GUELPH LUMBER CO.—A telegram has been received from Ottawa stating that the Supreme Court has to-day given judgment in favour of the Respondents and has dismissed the appeals in all the cases of Petrie, Inglis and Stewart vs. The Guelph Lumber Co., with costs. The judgments rendered previously are thus confirmed and all the costs are payable by Messrs. Petrie, Inglis & Hunter, and Stewart.

BASE BALL. — Notwithstanding the threatened cessation of the Toronto and Hamilton baseball clubs from the Canadian League, Mr. George Sleeman has not been deterred from securing a first-class team for the coming season, and lovers of the game in Guelph may rely on having a good nine placed in the field. The team will be composed as follows: Frank Sheibeck and Stellberger, pitchers, formerly of the Sanduskys; James A. Thyne, Lowell, Mass., and A. Dillon, catchers; J. W. Miller, Sandusky, 1st base; Daniel Mulholland, Sandusky, 3rd base; Ali. Buckenberger, Sandusky, 2nd base; Wm. George, Bellaire, short stop; Owen Williams, Bellaire, left field; Chas. Campau, late of London and Toledo, centre field. One of the pitchers will alternate between the right and pitcher.

SLEIGH SMASHED BY A TRAIN.—The News-Record says; Mr. John Brownlee, of West Garafraxa, was in Fergus on Monday last to get some chopping done at the mill, and, meeting in with numerous acquaintances, appears to have taken too much to drink, because on his way home at night he seems to have left the road and got on to the Credit Valley Railway track. Not only that, but he seems further, when at or near Mr. James Milne's farm, to have unhitched his horses from the sleigh and left it standing in a cattle guard on the track. The result was that when the early morning train went out it struck the sleigh, which was carried along on the pilot in front of the engine for over half a mile. No damage was done to the train, but it might very readily have been thrown from the track. The sleigh, it is needless to say, was badly smashed.

MASSIE V. TORONTO PRINTING COMPANY.—The libel case of Warden Massie against the Irish Canadian came up in Toronto on Saturday for judgment before the Common Pleas. The jury, it will be remembered, at the last assizes before Judge Rose, returned a verdict for the plaintiff for $8,000, which was moved against in term by Mr. John O'Donohoe, Q.C. The court has given what may be called a judgment of compromise, and directs as follows:—If Mr. Massie will consent to reduce his verdict to $1,000, which the defendants are to pay in cash before the first of April, then the case is to be concluded. If Mr. Massie will not so consent, then there is to be a new trial, or in the further event of Mr. Massie's consent and the defendants' default in payment before the first of April, then the $8,000 verdict will stand. Mr. Justice Rose acceded to the reduction of the verdict, but dissented to the view as to a new trial. Mr. W. Nesbitt appeared for the plaintiff.

THE 24TH OF MAY.—The 24th of May will be celebrated this year on a grander scale than for many years heretofore. Captain Clarke has been training the children in the Central School in calesthenics for this object. They will assemble at the Central School and be marched to the exhibition grounds, headed by the City Band where a competition in drill will take place, after which athletic sports will be indulged in and valuable prizes given to the successful competitor. One of the chief attractions will be a handsome banner presented by Col. Macdonald. Other individual prizes will be given. In the evening a grand concert will take place in the Skating Rink at which 220 of the pupils will take part, assisted by some well known vocal talent in and outside the city, among whom will appear the names of Mrs. Whitehead, the Misses Stevenson, Guelph; Mr. Schuch, Toronto; Mr. Ramsay, Toronto, and others. Captain Clarke intends the proceeds of both these entertainments to go towards the establishment of a gymnasium in the Collegiate Institute. The object is a laudable one and should receive every support. One thing is sure, if previous entertainments under the conductorship of the Captain Clarke is any criterion, we are sure that it will be successs.

MR. EVAN MACDONALD'S condition yesterday became worse, and he now lies in a critical condition.

LOSS BY FIRE.—Mr. Robert Cochrane, of Kansas City, formerly a cattle buyer and butcher in Guelph, had the misfortune to have his slaughter house and stables totally destroyed by fire last week. The loss will amount to about $900. There was no insurance. Mr. Cochrane, with his characteristic energy, at once commenced to rebuild, and has the new premises almost completed.

T. were organized in the county of Wellington: Erin Star Lodge No. 45, at Erin, with 20 charter members; Hillsburg Lodge No. 53, at Hillsburg, with 15 charter members, and Winfield Lodge No. 206, at Winfield, with 16 charter members. The following new lodge deputies have been appointed: R. Wood, Erin; Wm. Rodwell, Hillsburg, and John Stickney, Winfield.

CANNIBALISM IN FREELTON.—On February 9th, Patrick Gavin and James Sullivan, residents of Freelton, had a little difficulty in which Sullivan got his face badly chewed by Gavin, so that he had to have his lip sewed up, and was in a very bad condition for some days. On Saturday last the parties were tried before the Hamilton police magistrate, when Gavin was fined $25 and $8.45 costs, and the case against Sullivan was dismissed with $8.55 costs, so that Gavin had to pay $42 for his display of cannibalism. Served him right.

BEN BOLT.—This play was produced at the City Hall by the Baird Comedy Co. on Saturday evening before a crowded house, and the old hall had to be opened. Mr. Baird as "Reuben Rags" and Barry Harvey as "Ben Bolt" sharing the honors of the evening. Specialties were introduced by Mr. Barnes and Simons and Mr. Livingston. The performance concluded with the laughable farce "The Three O'clock Men" by Baird and Harvey, who sent all home convulsed with laughter. To-night will be produced "Lost in London" and the farce of "Paddy's Blunders." On Thursday evening a benefit will be given to the popular manager of the company, Mr. Baird, which will no doubt be responded to by the pleasure going people of the city.

1st Vice-President, Prof. J. Hoyes Panton.
2nd Vice-President, Archdeacon Dixon.
Corresponding Secretary, R. Gausby.
Recording Secretary, R. L. Torrance.
Treasurer, D. McCrae.

It was moved by Rev. D. MsGregor, seconded Mr. R. Gausby, that the Council request Prof. Panton to take up a class in botany and that this matter be brought before the different Young Peoples Association of the various churches. Carried.

It was also decided to at once secure rooms suitable for the work of the Society and if possible to have them convenient to the Free Library which would be very valuable to members for reference and study.

The next meeting of the Society will be held on Tuesday, 16th March, when an inaugural address will be delivered by the President, and to which all are cordially invited. The place of meeting will be hereafter announced and in the meantime all parties desiring to join the Society should make their wish known to some member of the Council. It is hoped that a great many will take advantage of this opportunity to study and become familiar with the different branches of science which will be taken up, and in which all should take an interest, especially as connected with our immediate surroundings, and it is principally with these that the Society will at first deal.

Dominion Alliance.

OTTAWA, March 5.—The Dominion Alliance concluded its session here to-day. This morning the Council considered the report of the Legislative Committee, which was adopted.

A discussion took place upon the best manner of enforcing the provisions of the Scott Act in counties where it is in force.

Mr. J. J. McLaren, Q.C., expressed the belief that the Act, if properly tested, could pay for its own enforcement.

Mr. S. A. Fisher, M.P., endorsed the statements of Mr. McLaren, and said that in the past, appeals had been usually made in order to secure delay.

Mr. McCraney, M.P., and Mr. Jamieson, M.P., spoke of liquor selling by druggists and prescriptions by medical men as very unsatisfactory. Mr. Robertson, M.P., proposed that the matter be peremptorily referred to the Legislative Committee without further consideration. The motion was adopted after a brief discussion. Speaking for Nova Scotia, Mr. Robertson declared that the Provincial License Law in vogue there was equal, if not superior to the Scott Act, as it now stood.

The Committee on Recommendations suggested the following and invited more:—

1. A recommendation referring to a difficulty arising in Perth. The Act provided that the Act should be deposited in the Registry Office. Perth had two Registry Offices.

2. That British Columbia be brought under the Act.

3. An Act to render the Scott Act applicable to districts which are not counties.

4. That the words "such sale" be added to an amendment accepted by both the Senate and Commons last year.

5. In Section 100 the words used were, "penalty for a first offence shall be not less than fifty dollars." The Committee suggested an amendment fixing an amount for each offence.

9. That section 107 be amended to permit the enforcement of the penalties under the Act.

At the afternoon session Rev. W. Scott presented the report of the Committee on Resolutions. They were:—(1) With regard to the past year; (2) the co-operation of Sons of Temperance and kindred objects; (3) Women's Christian Temperance Union; (4) Christian pulpits and platforms; (5) thanks to the Senate for past favours; (6) to reform the Senate so as to bring it into harmony with the moral sensibility of the country, or to abolish it.

The first five were passed without a division.

On the sixth being proposed, Mr. Jamieson, M.P., defended the resolution.

Senator Vidal made a lengthy and eloquent apology for the existence of the Upper House.

The Rev. D. V. Lucas gave a lecture on the iniquitous method of selecting the members of the Senate, and the bad composition of the present Chamber.

The Evening Mercury

MONDAY EVE'G MARCH 8, 1886.

Ontario's Northwest.

The Tories used to say the disputed territory was not worth fighting for, but a different story was told by Mr. Conmee, the member for West Algoma, in the Legislature last week. When Hon. Mr. Pardee had introduced his bill proposing free land grants to actual settlers in the Rainy River District Mr. Conmee took occasion to point out not only that the country was rich in minerals, some of which are now being worked, and that it comprised vast timber limits, but also that there are from three to four million acres of good land, capable of being brought under cultivation. This statement he was able to vouch for, as the result of personal investigation. This is a matter of great importance to Ontario and will be welcome news to young farmers in this Province who are looking about for a location. As the Hamilton Times says:—"If Mr. Conmee is correct, and the land is as good as he says it is, there will be ample room in Ontario for all our surplus population for many a year to come. Supposing the lesser quantity mentioned by the member for West Algoma to be correct, the Rainy River district contains as much good land as is to be found in the group of counties made up of Lincoln, Wentworth, Halton, Peel, York, Ontario, Durham, Northumberland and Prince Edward." The people of this Province have to thank Sir John A. Macdonald that this territory was not opened up before. Had he confirmed the award of the Boundary Arbitrators in 1878 settlement might have been going on for the past seven years, and the material wealth of the Province thereby greatly enhanced. Even up to the present the Dominion authorities have continued to harass the settlers with their timber agents who should never have been allowed to enter the territory. But Mr. Meredith, if there is any sincerity about him ought now to take some steps to compel his Ottawa chief to agree to the question being settled once and for all, and thus secure justice to the settlers already located and encourage others to join them. Although the preliminary expenditure in opening up the country will probably be large, the Government will have the support of the people in their policy, and henceforth we may expect the territory to develop rapidly under the very liberal terms which are now offered to settlers.

THE total amount of money paid out by the Government so far in connection with the Northwest rebellion is nearly $2,300,000.

THE interests of the workingmen are not being neglected by the Ontario Legislature, as is shown in the introduction of the bill providing for compensation in case of injury while at work. The Mowat Government recognizes that a workingman's interests are of quite as much importance as his employer's and legislate accordingly.

TO REMOVE all doubt as to the exemption of young men enfranchised under the Ontario Act as wage-earners from liability for municipal income tax, the Ontario Government has introduced a bill making specific provision to that effect. Young men need not therefore hesitate in having their names placed upon the municipal assessment list.

THE total population of the three North West Territories of Assiniboia, Alberta and Saskatchewan, is shown to be 48,300, of which only 28,344 are whites, 20,170 Indians, and 4,848 half-breeds. The proportion of whites is lamentably small, and demonstrates how disastrous has been the present Government's policy in thwarting the settlement of that great country.

TORONTO Week:—Thanks are due to Mr. Blake, we must say, for taking Sir John Macdonald to task for the flummery which he talks in England, and which puts truth-loving and really loyal Canadians to shame. Do the English really believe that we have an army of forty thousand men, perfectly organized and ready to take the field in their service, that we are building a navy for them, and that we are burning to shed our blood in Soudan and Afghan wars? Apparently they do, since they gave Sir John Macdonald the Grand Cross of the Bath.

THE London Advertiser cleverly trips up those Tory papers which have been contrasting the Liberal method of appointing sessional clerks with that of their opponents. It points out that, while the Liberals contended that no more sessional clerks should be appointed than was deemed absolutely necessary by the Clerk of the House, Macdonald filled the offices with Tory newspaper correspondents, who had absolutely nothing to do. Something like 100 extra clerks were employed when the Clerk of the House asked for twelve. These parties were not employed because there was any official duty required of them; they were employed simply on behalf of the journals which they represented, and they were paid out of the public treasury, just as King Dodds was paid. Mr. Dodds was employed as a Tory spouter; he went to Ottawa on Friday; he was appointed an extra sessional clerk; as he came late in the session his appointment was ante-dated 40 days. He was paid $160, and left on Monday morning, having spent three days in the capital! But Mr. Dodds had done outside election work for the Tory leaders, and he had to be recouped at the expense of the taxpayers. No wonder that the Dominion public debt has been increased by many millions every year since 1878.

IT is announced from Ottawa that tenders have at length been asked by the Department of Marine and Fisheries with the object of securing six fleet schooners to act off the coast of the Maritime Provinces as marine police in protecting the fisheries. If, instead of surrendering the fisheries of the Dominion to the United States a year ago, Sir John Macdonald had taken the steps he now proposes, the question might have been nearing a settlement by this time. The capitulation of last year made the United States fishermen and their supporters in Congress believe that Canadians were not in earnest in their determination to protect what rightfully belongs to them, and the consequence is the collapse of the negotiations.

Crown Lands Report.

The report of the Commissioner of Crown Lands shows that during 1885 there was sold of Crown Lands 99,918 acres. The sales amounted to $89,017, and the collections to $85,286. There was sold of Clergy Lands, 1,270 acres, the sales amounting to $1,452 and the collections to $9,403. There was also sold of Common School Lands 65 acres, and of Grammar School Lands 1,572 acres. The accruals for timber dues, ground rents, &c., during the year amounted to $657,298, and the total collections on account of timber dues, ground rent, and bonuses to $604,339. The total collections of the Department during the year were $736 865, and the gross disbursements, $242,787. Under the head of Wood and Forests, the Commissioner says:—The sawn lumber trade of 1885 has been an improvement on that of the preceding year, and those whose individual interests render them watchful of prospects ahead are sanguine as to the market lumber of 1886. It is hoped that expectations will be realized. There are two notable features in the lumber business of the past season—one is a large increase in exportation to Europe, South America, etc., of sawn lumber, inch and inch and a quarter stuff in the rough, as well as planed lumber, doors, windows, etc.; the other is the falling off in the production of square pine timber. Both circumstances are in the direction of observations on manufactured lumber and square and waney pine timber in my report of 1879, in which I called attention to a shipment of pine boards direct from the saw mill at Ottawa by rail to Quebec, thence to Glasgow, Scotland. This at the time was looked upon as a pioneer transaction." Details are given in reference to the sale of timber in October last. It is explained that since the sale of berths in 1872 till recently the risk of loss to the revenue from trespass on the limits offered for sale last October had been slight, owing to the limited extent of lumbering in the district, but for some time prior to the sale more active operations had commenced, with every indication that they would become more and more extensive; in consequence the unlicensed areas become much more exposed, not only to trespass (especially where the boundaries of adjoining limits have not been defined on the ground), but also to largely increased danger from fires from circumjacent works. The detection or prevention of trespass, when the extent of country is taken into account, would call for serious expenditure. Under the circumstances it was considered in the public interest that the scattered berths should be placed under timber license, when the ordinary arrangements for wood ranging would suffice for the supervision of operations, and the risk of loss by forest fires materially lessened through the vigilance exercised by licenses. From May 1 to October 1 thirty-seven men were engaged in preventing and suppressing bush fires, and at the close of the season the licensees expressed their great satisfaction at the benefits resulting from the experiment, and urged its continuance and extension. The total cost of the service for 1885 was $7,911, of which sum one-half has been refunded by the licensees, leaving the net cost of this service to the Department to be $3,955.50. There were 1,236 locations made during the year on 176,351 acres of land, and 5,998 acres of land were sold to 149 locatees. During the same period 563 lots, located in former years were resumed for non-performance of the settlement duties, and 581 patents issued to free grant locatees. During the year Crown surveys were made as follows: The Townships of Bower, Clara and Freswick, in the District of Nipissing, were sub-divided into farm lots of 100 acres each; the residues of the Townships of North Algona and Fraser, in the County of Renfrew, into farm lots of one hundred acres each; the Townships of Blezard Lorrain and Olrig, in the District of Nipissing, and the Townships of Cartier, Cascaden, Dowling, Gould, Hart, Levack and Trill, in the District of Algoma, and the Townships of Gillies, Lybster and O'Connor, in the District of Thunder Bay, into lots of three hundred and twenty acres each. A meridian line extending forty-two miles, in the District of Nipissing, was run and a verification survey of the Township of Kennebec has been partly performed. Seven municipal surveys were confirmed, and eight instructions for the same issued during the year. Patents were issued for nine thousand and twenty-three acres of land for mining purposes, principally near White Fish Lake and Rabbit Mountain, in the District of Thunder Bay. The total expenditure on Colonization Roads during the year amounted to $121,435.32.

BEAUTIFUL specimens of crayon work are on exhibition in Mr. Smith's Drug store window, executed by E. D. Clark, an artist of this City. One is of the late Col. Williams, of military fame, the other of the late Mr. Barber, President of the Peterboro & Belleville Railroad. Parties desiring first class work, should call at Mr. Clark's studio, corner of Elora road and Tiffany street, City. d2

How the Money Goes.

An Ottawa despatch says: The following is a statement of the number of employees in the several Public Departments at Ottawa:

Departments.	No of Employees in 1883.	No of Employees in 1878.
Governor-General's Office...	8	9
Privy Council Office.....	26	13
Department of Justice.....	21	13
Militia Department...	34	32
Secretary of State's Depart.	59	35

Department of Indian Affairs	41	none.
Auditor-General's Office.....	23	none.

Department of Customs.....	33	28
Depart of Inland Revenue...	33	28
Public Works Department...	151	32

Post Office Department.....	192	111
Department of Agriculture...	59	41
Marine and Fisheries Dept...	46	29
Receiver-General's Office.....	abolished	16
Total.....	1,069	504

The above includes salaried extra clerks, but does not include the best of men and women who have become attached to the various departments during recent years as copyists, temporary sessional writers, etc., nor those whose names appear as recipients of pay for extra work. The salaries of the greater number of the employees of the Interior Department are charged to Dominion Lands, and a large number of employees in Sir Hector Langevin's department have their salaries charged to special public works. Thus a large portion of the money voted by Parliament apparently for Public buildings, piers, harbors, etc., is used up in paying extra clerks in Ottawa. The total amount paid to extra clerks in the Interior Department last year was $64,289. The amount paid to such employees in the Public Works Department was $52,404.

Retrospective.

FEBRUARY 27th, 1886.

It is just one year since the opening of my new business at 27 Lower Wyndham Street was announced. The retrospect is a pleasant one. The motto was and has been "Never fear to do right." The policy of the business was to sell good, reliable goods at a fair moderate profit, to sell strictly for cash to always pay and demand one hundred cents for every dollar, to offer customers our best efforts without boring them to buy, to make it a pleasure to call at our store, to eschew all bombast and exaggeration, to keep a sharp look out for advantages to our customers, to unite their interests with our own, to strictly mind our own business, to win the confidence of all our Patrons. Under the blessings of a kind Providence, the year just closed has been a most prosperous and satisfactory one. Our name and reputation have been established, our sales were 50 per cent more than our highest anticipations, and the result of the year's business very encouraging and satisfactory. Our hearty thanks are tendered to our many patrons.

PROSPECTIVE.

The same principles, riper experience, wider facilities, stronger efforts, increased confidence in the intelligence and discrimination of the public, determination and ability to meet the keenest legitimate competition, goods that will bear inspection and comparison and steady persevering effort, will be at the command of our patrons, and we have no fear that though the most strenuous efforts, legitimate and otherwise, will in the future as they have in the past be buzzing on every hand, the business at No. 27 will not only maintain but greatly strengthen the leading position which it has taken.

CHAPTER XV.

NEARING THE BRINK.

Percival raised his eyebrows as he spoke.

"I should say few girls have had more offers than you; it seems a pity that not one of these men should have offered you a little common-sense."

"I do not want common sense, I think I have enough. What I want in my husband is sympathy, fellow feeling, power to understand my character. I don't believe that one out of all the men who have asked me to marry them had even the faintest idea of what kind of woman I really am. The life I have led has not been conducive to candour. In society women have to stifle their real nature and behave like all the rest of the world. Individuality must be crushed out, and uniformity is the order of the day. They say society could not exist if it were not so. I am not sure that the world could not get on very well without society, what do you think?"

Again bitterness was noticeable in her tone, but Percival merely said,

"My opinion on the matter cannot be of much value, as I know very little about society. But it seems hard when one of society's greatest ornaments turns round and abuses the institution to which in great measure it owes its success. Is there no feeling among the members of society that they ought to stand by what Onida would call their order."

"Ah!" she exclaimed, almost passionately, and flinging away the flowers with which she had been trifling. "It is always the same. You never have believed that I was anything better than a frivolous flirt."

Percival's impulse to smile at her words was checked by the tone in which they were spoken. She did for some reason seem really unhappy and weary of her present mode of life. Nevertheless as he was not greatly interested in the matter, he answered rather indifferently.

"Nay, now you exaggerate. A woman may enjoy herself in society without being what you describe. I have certainly always supposed you enjoyed your life. Why should you not? As I believe I said to you once before, we must take the bitter with the sweet. You had more admiration than any other woman of your years. If it sometimes palls, you must remember that your weariness comes from a surfeit, not a want, of what most women prize above everything else."

He spoke indifferently and gravely. It might be that his tone was colder than he knew. To Alice every word seemed like drop of icy water upon her burning heart. She felt as though he had expressed contempt for her. She almost hated him and his cool, calm eyes, which could rest upon her beauty without the quickening of one single pulse.

"You wrong me!" she cried. "You think too meanly of me."

"Excuse me," he said, now beginning to feel a little annoyed. "I do not judge you at all. Our paths lie in very different directions. I have neither the right nor the knowledge to judge you; for, as I said before, I know very little of the life you lead."

He did not notice how her face changed as he spoke. At first she went very white, and her hand was tightly clenched in the folds of her dress. As he went on however, her colour returned, and the clasp of her hand relaxed; she seemed to see a loophole in what he said.

"Pardon me," she said, more gently when he had finished. "I forget what I am saying sometimes. But in one thing I think you are wrong. You said you had no right to judge me; in a way I think you have. You are not my brother nor even my brother-in-law; but you are the man with whom I am most intimate. You must see that papa knows very little of my life; beyond paying my bills I do not think he troubles about me at all; and a girl is always better off if she has a man to give her a word of advice now and then.

She had spoken in a lower tone than usual, half hesitatingly, and with her eye fixed upon her lap. At the last word she raised them, and looked straight into Percival's eyes.

"Am I to understand from that," he asked, truly puzzled, "that you are in some difficulty in which you want my assistance? I am at your service, of course; but don't you think——"

He paused from some unwillingness to go on.

"What do I think? Why do you not finish?" she asked, in almost breathless eagerness.

"Do you not think your mother could advise you better?"

He had no intention of speaking harshly; the very absence on his side of all tender feeling made him desirous and capable of speaking impartially. She did not apparently see his manner in that light. When he had finished speaking, almost before the last words were out of his mouth she had risen from her seat, her cheeks crimson, her eyes filled with a light which had assuredly never been called there by him before.

"Thank you," she said, speaking in a low voice which trembled either with anger or distress. "You have shown me what you think of me; it is certainly unnecessary to go further into the subject. If you spoken out your real meaning at first we might have been spared a long conversation, which I daresay has bored you, and which I have carried on in a very different tone from what I should have taken if I had known what you thought. How dare you?" she went on, her voice changing to one of unmistakable anger, "how dare you speak to me in that way? You presume strangely upon your position here and adopt a very unwarrantable tone to a girl who speaks frankly to you. I suppose you thought I was behaving in an unmaidenly way in speaking to you of my own thoughts and feelings at all. Perhaps you thought I wanted to force upon you the part of adviser; if you had any such idea do not be afraid that I shall ever transgress again. You might have shown your meaning with more delicacy perhaps, but no doubt a manly frankness is your ideal.'

She was gone, leaving Percival looking after her and wondering if she were in her right mind.

"What, in the name of heaven, is the matter with the girl?" were his unspoken reflections. "Is she mad? She must be mad. Ever since I knew her she has been harping on and off upon her unhappiness and the disadvantages under which she has labored, and now out of a few simple words about Gertrude's engagement she makes a regular quarrel. She is in a fearful rage about something, but it is absurd to suppose there was anything in what I said to justify that torrent of wrath. She must have been angry about something else to begin with, and made my words an excuse for letting it out. The best thing I could do, I am sure, would be to let her alone and let her come round in her own way, and I am sure I shall not be allowed to do that. We shall have to go through a form of making it up just to satisfy her; it is perfectly absurd. There is something wrong I am sure. Perhaps all these suitors are the wrong ones, and the right one does not come forward as he ought. I hope not, for that would make a deuce of a mess, and she is the kind of woman who ought to get married. What an awful old maid she would make! What a contrast to Helen, who would have made the sweetest little maiden lady in the world." He smiled to himself at the thought—he generally did smile when he thought of his wife, though the smile very often ended in a nervous contraction of the eyebrows and sometimes a hardly noticeable shudder.

Meanwhile Alice walked swiftly upstairs to her room without meeting anybody. She locked the door and began to pace up and down like an animal confined in a cage. She was still trembling, and her heart was beating violently with excitement, though her anger, such as it was, had vanished. She was angry with Percival, though not exactly for the reason she had given him to suppose; that had been acted, and very cleverly acted. She was annoyed about two things. First, because Percival had previously turned the conversation in quite a different direction from that which she had in her own mind arranged that it should take, and secondly because he would not see what she so ardently desired to make clear to him, namely, that in grace, beauty, and general desirableness she was far superior to Helen. He would not see; he remained stupidly sunk in mental contemplation of his wife's charm. She knew that in his own mind he compared every woman he met to Helen; and what had Helen been? Nothing more than an ordinary bright, cheerful girl, with perhaps rather more than the average amount of intelligence. She herself laid claim to longings and aspirations above those of the common run of people; she was dissatisfied with her brilliant lot; she exacted more from her lovers than they had to give. All these things she had poured into Percival's ears, and he would have nothing to say to her; he handled her doubts and wishes in the most commonplace way, and clung stupidly to the idea that Helen had been a pearl among women. She almost hated him one moment, only to feel the next that she was hopelessly in love with him, and that her love threatened to master her. So far Percival had no suspicion of the truth, but when the time came when she would lose all control over herself? She shivered at the thought, half with fear, half with another feeling, which was more like triumph.

"I cannot go on like this forever; as long as I can hide it I will, but I know the time will come when I can hide it no longer, and then he must marry me or—"

What she would do if Percival did not marry her she did not say; perhaps she had not made up her mind.

RAISE THE STANDARD HIGH.

The Dry Goods Trade is never elevated by one firm trying to hurt the reputation of another, neither will it raise the firm who tries it in the estimation of the public.

We do not propose to lower the standard of a

Respectable and Highly Thought of Business by any such Nonsense,

But on the other hand if there is anything we can do that will tend to elevate the Dry Goods Trade and those connected with us it will be done.

If other merchants in the city have found their trade in advance of last year (and with less salesmen required), we are glad to hear of it, and it speaks well for Guelph and we only hope they will still continue to prosper. As for us

WE ARE SATISFIED.

We are pleased with our business, our city and the people we have met with since coming to Guelph.

It is just a little over one month since we bought the

Very Respectable and Highly Thought of Business of Messrs. John Hogg & Son.,

and we have been told by those who know, that our sales for the month of February are in advance of the same month last year and we propose by attending

Strictly to our own Business

and by placing before the public

Good Honest Reliable Goods,

and at prices that will cause the people to know (without us having to tell them) that we are

Men of Experience in the Dry Goods Trade knowing Where to buy, How to buy and having the Bullion to Buy with.

Large quantities of goods are coming to hand every week from England, Ireland, Scotland and the United States; also from the different parts of Canada, which we are marking at a very low price and passing into stock.

We expect a large Spring Trade and are preparing for same.

We have retained all the old hands and they will be pleased to see their old friends.

NOTICE:

Royal Manufacturing Co.

THE undersigned having gone into partnership under the name and style as above, for the purpose of manufacturing the following articles, beg to solicit a share of public patronage.

The Royal Combination Family and Laundry Mangle is the most perfect, simple and easy running machine ever introduced for family and laundry use. It can mangle all kinds of goods from the most delicate to the heaviest, and is the only machine of its kind that can give satisfaction in wringing heavy bed quilts, carpets &c. It occupies very little room, the machine with attachments of clothes horse, clothes basket, (if desired) taking up only 26 inches. The B. B. burglar proof sash lock is a convenient and safe attachment for any window and makes a useful ornament. The new step ladder we are manufacturing is light, easily handled and perfectly safe, and our tack pullers will be found very handy in taking up carpets, and work well. We intend to manufacture other articles when patents are secured. We are also prepared to do all kinds of jobbing, repairing and carpentering, and all kinds of ordered work will be done on the shortest notice. Pattern model making, mill wrighting, in which we guarantee satisfaction, will also form a branch of our business. Saws sharpened and set, lance tooth saws receiving special attention. A MONSTER STRIKE.

Nine Thousand Men on Gould's Railway Quit Work.

ST. LOUIS, March 7.—All the Knights of Labor at this place to the number of 400 employed on the Gould system of railways struck this morning.

It is stated that the action of the Texas Pacific officials in discharging a foreman of the shops at Marshall, Mo., for actively engaging in and organizing a Knights of Labor assembly at that place was the cause of the present trouble. The Knights of Labor there objected to this action and refused to work for the company, which as positively refused to reinstate the foreman. Matters remained in this state for some time, each remaining firm in their intention to defeat the other. To-day a general strike upon the entire system was ordered by the central committee of the Knights of Labor. The order applies to shop men only and does not affect in the least the trainsmen.

The running force of the Gould system, including shopmen, trackmen and trainmen, is 13,000. Of these 9,000 are claimed to be Knights of Labor, but up to this afternoon only those employed in the machine shops had struck. It is estimated that at the present time from 2,500 to 3,000 men have gone out, but it is thought probable that if the managers do not accede promptly to the demands of the strikers all the remaining Knights on the system will be ordered out.

One year ago there was an agreement made between the Knights and the managers of the system that no man should be discharged without due notice and investigation. This contract, the Knights contend, has been violated by the discharge of C. A. Hall, a foreman in the Texas Pacific shops at Marshall. The Texas Pacific railway is one of five roads in the States of Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana, which comprise the southwestern Gould system. When the local strike in Texas failed of the desired result the executive board of the Knights of the southwestern system, in session at Marshall, asked an adjustment of the trouble by the reinstatement of Hall and some others who were subsequently discharged. With this request the board gave notice that a refusal to comply would be followed by a strike on the Gould system. The railroad has failed to do as desired, and to-day the executive board gave the word for a general strike of shopmen.

A Palestine, Tex., despatch says:—"Two hundred and fifty employees in the shops of the International and Great Northern Railway quit work this morning. The strike was inaugurated to sustain the Knights on the Texas Pacific.

McGregor's Speedy Cure.

When we say McGregor's Speedy Cure is the only perfect cure for dyspepsia, liver complaints, indigestion and impure blood, we are telling plain facts, of which hundreds upon hundreds can testify who have been restored to perfect health by its use. We would therefore advise you strongly if you are a subject of any of the above troubles to give McGregor's Speedy Cure a trial and be convinced. It is sold in 50c. and $1.00 bottles at Thomas S. Petrie's Drug Store.

Robbed by Masked Men.

PETROLIA, March 5.—A daring robbery was committed between Oil Springs and Oil City last night. Between 8 and 9 o'clock Mr. D. J. Vrooman, of Strathroy, selling goods for Geo. T. Cosgrove & Co., of Toronto, was walking on the M. C. R. track from Oil Springs to Oil City, and about half way was met by three masked men. One of them advanced towards him and covered him with a revolver, requesting him to put up his hands or he would shoot him. Of course he complied, and the other two went through his pockets. They got $165 in cash, six or seven silver watches, and some plated cutlery.

Mineral Poison.

Nothing but pure extracts from plants and roots are used in preparing McGregor's Lung Compound, the modern and most popular remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis, croup, asthma, and all affections of the throat, lungs and chest. All mineral poisons and dangerous substances avoided, which renders it safe for children or adults. Sold at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at Thomas S. Petrie's Drug Store

Destitution in Newfoundland.

A Halifax, N. S., despatch says:—The steamer Newfoundland, from St. John's, Nfld., which arrived on Thursday night, reports passing a field of ice 35 miles broad off the Mizzen Bank. She brings advices that the destitution among the fishermen of Conception Bay (including Harbor Grace, the scene of the Orange-Catholic riots,) has come to a crisis. Hundreds of families are completely destitute and starving. On Tuesday 400 men surrounded the residence of Judge Bennett and demanded bread. He telegraphed the Government and supplied each family with flour and molasses. From present appearances one-third of the population of this extensive district will have to be supported by the Government until the fishing season opens.

-LION-

STOCK TAKING COMPLETED.

We find we have a little lot of remnants amounting in all to the sum of $2,263.41.

These must be cleared out within two weeks to make room for New Goods arriving daily.

NOW

In the lull which usually follows Stock taking before the heaviest of the Spring work begins when we will have less time for such a review, we would like to place before our patrons and the public generally the state of our business, and explain why we claim to sell so much cheaper than others.

Our business for the past year has been eminently satisfactory, we having done the largest Cash business which has been done in the Lion for the last six years. Now this in ordinary times would be very encouraging, but in hard times like the present, we consider it most satisfactory and indicative of a reign of prosperity for the Lion much beyond what it has had in the past. Of course we have not had as much opposition, our friend, Mr. Hogg not having applied himself so closely to business as in former years, but this would not explain entirely the great increase in our trade. The reasons are many. We will state a few:

Our Goods are all fresh and new.
Our Prices are Low.
Our Goods are all marked in plain figures.
We have only one price for all.
We handle the Goods the public want, and at prices to suit them.

NO WONDER WE SELL CHEAP.

It is no wonder we sell cheap, as we are almost under no expense. Our Discounts more than pay our salaries, and as we pay no rent, the two principal items of expense are taken out.

NOW LADIES

We astonished you with the variety and cheapness of our stock last Spring, but we expect to surprise you even more this Spring. We have now a resident buyer in Glasgow, who is always on hand to secure any novelties or cheap lines that are thrown on the British Market, so that we will always be a little ahead of others, both in style and value.

THE FRANCHISE ACT.

The Qualifications of Voters—The Process of Registration Explained.

The time having arrived for the preparation of the voters' lists under the new Dominion Franchise Act, an appeal is made to the Liberals of Wellington to have their names enrolled as voters without delay. To assist in so doing a short summary of the qualification of voters and of the process for securing registration is given.

QUALIFICATION.

To entitle a person to be put on the list he must be—

(1) 21 years of age.

(2) A British subject by birth or naturalization.

(3) Owner of real property of value:
In a city, $300.
In a town, $200.
In a county, $150.

(4) Or tenant of real property under ease at a rental of
$2 per month.
$6 per quarter.
$12 per half year.
$20 per year.

Provided that the tenant has been in possession for one year before 1st January 1886, and shall have paid one year's rent before final revision.

If the rent is yearly it will be sufficient if $20 of last year's rent shall have been paid before final revision.

Change of tenancy without intermission will not destroy the vote if aggregate of tenancies would give vote.

The assessor should be instructed state in the assessment roll the rent payable by each person assessed as tenant. If, however, this is not done, each tenant is prima facie entitled to be registered as a voter if the property is assessed at the following values:—
In cities at $300.
In towns at $200.
In counties at $150.
In counties outside of villages the rent may be payable either in money or in money's worth.

(5) Or a bona fide occupant for one year before 1st January, 1886, and enjoying the revenues and profits for his own or his wife's use of real property of the following values:
In cities, $300.
In towns, $200.
In counties, $150.
The occupancy may be under license of occupation from the crown or from any person or corporation.

(6) Or by income without any other qualification.

A person may be registered as an income voter, if he derives an income from his earnings, trade or profession, or from some investment in Canada of $300 a year, for one year before 1st January, 1886.

In counties the earnings may be either in money or money's worth.

(7) Sons of owners of real property are qualified—

(a) Where the father is living and a son or sons living with him continuously for one year before 1st January, 1886, and the property is sufficient in value according to the above figures, if divided between them to give them all votes. If not sufficient to qualify all the sons and the father, then the father and only so many sons as the property will qualify can be enrolled, and in such case the eldest son will be preferred, and then the next elder, and so on.

(b) When the father is dead, and would, if living, be qualified, residence with the mother will suffice, and as many sons as the property will qualify may be registered, with preference to the eldest and elder sons, as in the last case.

Occasional absence from home of a son—not more than six months in the year—will not disqualify, and all time spent at school or college in Canada will be counted as if spent at home.

Son of an owner includes grandson, step-son and son-in-law, and all these may be registered as voters on the property if of sufficient value. The provision as to sons of owners applies to the counties as well as towns and cities in cases other than those of farmers' sons.

(8) Farmers' sons—The same provisions substantially apply to farmers' sons, as stated in the last paragraph in respect of sons of owners in cities and towns.

A farm is to be not less than 20 acres of land.

(9) Fishermen and owners of real property and boats, nets, fishing gear and tackle of aggregate value of $150.

Income voters register where they reside at time of registration—all others where property is situate. If in more than one polling division in the same electoral district the voter may register in either.

All names entered in the last revised voters' lists under the old law, will be entered in the new lists by the revising barrister.

Every person not on the assessment roll desiring to have his name on the list must at once send to the revising barrister an application in writing to be put on the list, giving his name, residence and the property or other qualification in respect of which he applies to be put on.

This application must be accompanied by a declaration which is to be made and signed before a commissioner for taking affidavits, a notary or justice of the peace, showing the grounds of the applicants claim to be put on the list.

Substantially the voters are those who can qualify as owners, tenants, occupants, income voters, sons of owners and farmers' sons.

See that the application shows as correctly and fully as possible the qualification.

Make the declaration before a commissioner, notary or justice of the peace. It is convenient to have it attached to the application on the same sheet.

In case of an absent person, let some one else having a knowledge of the qualification make the application and declaration.

When one cannot find a justice or other person before whom the declaration can be taken let the application alone be sent in, with an explanation of the reason, and it would be well in such case to have the truth of the facts in the application certified on the back of it by one, or if possible, two other persons.

The application and declaration must be sent at once to the Revising barrister of the district.

URGENCY OF THE MATTER.

No name not on the last voters' list or assessment roll will be placed on the preliminary voters' list, unless on application and declaration as above.

In case of any difficulty or doubt, application should be made at once for advice to some of the Liberal friends in the neighborhood.

CHAPTER XV.

NEARING THE BRINK.

Percival raised his eyebrows as he spoke.

"I should say few girls have had more offers than you; it seems a pity that not one of these men should have offered you a little common-sense."

"I do not want common sense, I think I have enough. What I want in my husband is sympathy, fellow feeling, power to understand my character. I don't believe that one out of all the men who have asked me to marry them had even the faintest idea of what kind of woman I really am. The life I have led has not been conducive to candour. In society women have to stifle their real nature and behave like all the rest of the world. Individuality must be crushed out, and uniformity is the order of the day. They say society could not exist if it were not so. I am not sure that the world could not get on very well without society, what do you think?"

Again bitterness was noticeable in her tone, but Percival merely said,

"My opinion on the matter cannot be of much value, as I know very little about society. But it seems hard when one of society's greatest ornaments turns round and abuses the institution to which in great measure it owes its success. Is there no feeling among the members of society that they ought to stand by what Onida would call their order."

"Ah!" she exclaimed, almost passionately, and flinging away the flowers with which she had been trifling. "It is always the same. You never have believed that I was anything better than a frivolous flirt."

Percival's impulse to smile at her words was checked by the tone in which they were spoken. She did for some reason seem really unhappy and weary of her present mode of life. Nevertheless as he was not greatly interested in the matter, he answered rather indifferently.

"Nay, now you exaggerate. A woman may enjoy herself in society without being what you describe. I have certainly always supposed you enjoyed your life. Why should you not? As I believe I said to you once before, we must take the bitter with the sweet. You had more admiration than any other woman of your years. If it sometimes palls, you must remember that your weariness comes from a surfeit, not a want, of what most women prize above everything else."

He spoke indifferently and gravely. It might be that his tone was colder than he knew. To Alice every word seemed like drop of icy water upon her burning heart. She felt as though he had expressed contempt for her. She almost hated him and his cool, calm eyes, which could rest upon her beauty without the quickening of one single pulse.

"You wrong me!" she cried. "You think too meanly of me."

"Excuse me," he said, now beginning to feel a little annoyed. "I do not judge you at all. Our paths lie in very different directions. I have neither the right nor the knowledge to judge you; for, as I said before, I know very little of the life you lead."

He did not notice how her face changed as he spoke. At first she went very white, and her hand was tightly clenched in the folds of her dress. As he went on however, her colour returned, and the clasp of her hand relaxed; she seemed to see a loophole in what he said.

"Pardon me," she said, more gently when he had finished. "I forget what I am saying sometimes. But in one thing I think you are wrong. You said you had no right to judge me; in a way I think you have. You are not my brother nor even my brother-in-law; but you are the man with whom I am most intimate. You must see that papa knows very little of my life; beyond paying my bills I do not think he troubles about me at all; and a girl is always better off if she has a man to give her a word of advice now and then."

She had spoken in a lower tone than usual, half hesitatingly, and with her eye fixed upon her lap. At the last word she raised them, and looked straight into Percival's eyes.

"Am I to understand from that," he asked, truly puzzled, "that you are in some difficulty in which you want my assistance? I am at your service, of course; but don't you think——"

He paused from some unwillingness to go on.

"What do I think? Why do you not finish?" she asked, in almost breathless eagerness.

"Do you not think your mother could advise you better?"

He had no intention of speaking harshly; the very absence on his side of all tender feeling made him desirous and capable of speaking impartially. She did not apparently see his manner in that light. When he had finished speaking, almost before the last words were out of his mouth she had risen from her seat, her cheeks crimson, her eyes filled with a light which had assuredly never been called there by him before.

"Thank you," she said, speaking in a low voice which trembled either with anger or distress. "You have shown me what you think of me; it is certainly unnecessary to go further into the subject. If you spoken out your real meaning at first we might have been spared a long conversation, which I daresay has bored you, and which I have carried on in a very different tone from what I should have taken if I had known what you thought. How dare you?" she went on, her voice changing to one of unmistakable anger, "how dare you speak to me in that way? You presume strangely upon your position here and adopt a very unwarrantable tone to a girl who speaks frankly to you. I suppose you thought I was behaving in an unmaidenly way in speaking to you of my own thoughts and feelings at all. Perhaps you thought I wanted to force upon you the part of adviser; if you had any such idea do not be afraid that I shall ever transgress again. You might have shown your meaning with more delicacy perhaps, but no doubt a manly frankness is your ideal.'

She was gone, leaving Percival looking after her and wondering if she were in her right mind.

"What, in the name of heaven, is the matter with the girl?" were his unspoken reflections. "Is she mad? She must be mad. Ever since I knew her she has been harping on and off upon her unhappiness and the disadvantages under which she has labored, and now out of a few simple words about Gertrude's engagement she makes a regular quarrel. She is in a fearful rage about something, but it is absurd to suppose there was anything in what I said to justify that torrent of wrath. She must have been angry about something else to begin with, and made my words an excuse for letting it out. The best thing I could do, I am sure, would be to let her alone and let her come round in her own way, and I am sure I shall not be allowed to do that. We shall have to go through a form of making it up just to satisfy her; it is perfectly absurd. There is something wrong I am sure. Perhaps all these suitors are the wrong ones, and the right one does not come forward as he ought. I hope not, for that would make a deuce of a mess, and she is the kind of woman who ought to get married. What an awful old maid she would make! What a contrast to Helen, who would have made the sweetest little maiden lady in the world." He smiled to himself at the thought—he generally did smile when he thought of his wife, though the smile very often ended in a nervous contraction of the eyebrows and sometimes a hardly noticeable shudder.

Meanwhile Alice walked swiftly upstairs to her room without meeting anybody. She locked the door and began to pace up and down like an animal confined in a cage. She was still trembling, and her heart was beating violently with excitement, though her anger, such as it was, had vanished. She was angry with Percival, though not exactly for the reason she had given him to suppose; that had been acted, and very cleverly acted. She was annoyed about two things. First, because Percival had previously turned the conversation in quite a different direction from that which she had in her own mind arranged that it should take, and secondly because he would not see what she so ardently desired to make clear to him, namely, that in grace, beauty, and general desirableness she was far superior to Helen. He would not see; he remained stupidly sunk in mental contemplation of his wife's charm. She knew that in his own mind he compared every woman he met to Helen; and what had Helen been? Nothing more than an ordinary bright, cheerful girl, with perhaps rather more than the average amount of intelligence. She herself laid claim to longings and aspirations above those of the common run of people; she was dissatisfied with her brilliant lot; she exacted more from her lovers than they had to give. All these things she had poured into Percival's ears, and he would have nothing to say to her; he handled her doubts and wishes in the most commonplace way, and clung stupidly to the idea that Helen had been a pearl among women. She almost hated him one moment, only to feel the next that she was hopelessly in love with him, and that her love threatened to master her. So far Percival had no suspicion of the truth, but when the time came when she would lose all control over herself? She shivered at the thought, half with fear, half with another feeling, which was more like triumph.

"I cannot go on like this forever; as long as I can hide it I will, but I know the time will come when I can hide it no longer, and then he must marry me or—"

What she would do if Percival did not marry her she did not say; perhaps she had not made up her mind.

RAISE THE STANDARD HIGH.

The Dry Goods Trade is never elevated by one firm trying to hurt the reputation of another, neither will it raise the firm who tries it in the estimation of the public.

We do not propose to lower the standard of a

But on the other hand if there is anything we can do that will tend to elevate the Dry Goods Trade and those connected with us it will be done.

A MONSTER STRIKE.

Nine Thousand Men on Gould's Railway Quit Work.

ST. LOUIS, March 7.—All the Knights of Labor at this place to the number of 400 employed on the Gould system of railways struck this morning.

It is stated that the action of the Texas Pacific officials in discharging a foreman of the shops at Marshall, Mo., for actively engaging in and organizing a Knights of Labor assembly at that place was the cause of the present trouble. The Knights of Labor there objected to this action and refused to work for the company, which as positively refused to reinstate the foreman. Matters remained in this state for some time, each remaining firm in their intention to defeat the other. To-day a general strike upon the entire system was ordered by the central committee of the Knights of Labor. The order applies to shop men only and does not affect in the least the trainsmen.

The running force of the Gould system, including shopmen, trackmen and trainmen, is 13,000. Of these 9,000 are claimed to be Knights of Labor, but up to this afternoon only those employed in the machine shops had struck. It is estimated that at the present time from 2,500 to 3,000 men have gone out, but it is thought probable that if the managers do not accede promptly to the demands of the strikers all the remaining Knights on the system will be ordered out.

One year ago there was an agreement made between the Knights and the managers of the system that no man should be discharged without due notice and investigation. This contract, the Knights contend, has been violated by the discharge of C. A. Hall, a foreman in the Texas Pacific shops at Marshall. The Texas Pacific railway is one of five roads in the States of Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana, which comprise the southwestern Gould system. When the local strike in Texas failed of the desired result the executive board of the Knights of the southwestern system, in session at Marshall, asked an adjustment of the trouble by the reinstatement of Hall and some others who were subsequently discharged. With this request the board gave notice that a refusal to comply would be followed by a strike on the Gould system. The railroad has failed to do as desired, and to-day the executive board gave the word for a general strike of shopmen.

A Palestine, Tex., despatch says:—"Two hundred and fifty employees in the shops of the International and Great Northern Railway quit work this morning. The strike was inaugurated to sustain the Knights on the Texas Pacific.

McGregor's Speedy Cure.

When we say McGregor's Speedy Cure is the only perfect cure for dyspepsia, liver complaints, indigestion and impure blood, we are telling plain facts, of which hundreds upon hundreds can testify who have been restored to perfect health by its use. Petrie's Drug Store.

Robbed by Masked Men.

PETROLIA, March 5.—A daring robbery was committed between Oil Springs and Oil City last night. Between 8 and 9 o'clock Mr. D. J. Vrooman, of Strathroy, selling goods for Geo. T. Cosgrove & Co., of Toronto, was walking on the M. C. R. track from Oil Springs to Oil City, and about half way was met by three masked men. One of them advanced towards him and covered him with a revolver, requesting him to put up his hands or he would shoot him. Of course he complied, and the other two went through his pockets. They got $165 in cash, six or seven silver watches, and some plated cutlery.

Mineral Poison.

Nothing but pure extracts from plants and roots are used in preparing McGregor's Lung Compound, the modern and most popular remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis, croup, asthma, and all affections of the throat, lungs and chest. All mineral poisons and dangerous substances avoided, which renders it safe for children or adults. Sold at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at Thomas S. Petrie's Drug Store

Destitution in Newfoundland.

A Halifax, N. S., despatch says:—The steamer Newfoundland, from St. John's, Nfld., which arrived on Thursday night, reports passing a field of ice 35 miles broad off the Mizzen Bank. She brings advices that the destitution among the fishermen of Conception Bay (including Harbor Grace, the scene of the Orange-Catholic riots,) has come to a crisis. Hundreds of families are completely destitute and starving. On Tuesday 400 men surrounded the residence of Judge Bennett and demanded bread. He telegraphed the Government and supplied each family with flour and molasses. From present appearances one-third of the population of this extensive district will have to be supported by the Government until the fishing season opens.

THE REV. GEO. H. THAYER, of Bourbon, Ind., says: "Both myself and wife owe our lives to SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE."

A nephew of Ole Bull is professor in the University of Wisconsin.

THE GOLDEN -LION-

STOCK TAKING COMPLETED.

We find we have a little lot of remnants amounting in all to the sum of $2,263.41.

These must be cleared out within two weeks to make room for New Goods arriving daily.

NOW

In the lull which usually follows Stock taking before the heaviest of the Spring work begins when we will have less time for such a review, we would like to place before our patrons and the public generally the state of our business, and explain why we claim to sell so much cheaper than others.

Our business for the past year has been eminently satisfactory, we having done the largest Cash business which has been done in the Lion for the last six years. Now this in ordinary times would be very encouraging, but in hard times like the present, we consider it most satisfactory and indicative of a reign of prosperity for the Lion much beyond what it has had in the past. Of course we have not had as much opposition, our friend, Mr. Hogg not having applied himself so closely to business as in former years, but this would not explain entirely the great increase in our trade. The reasons are many. We will state a few:

Our Goods are all fresh and new.
Our Prices are Low.
Our Goods are all marked in plain figures.
We have only one price for all.
We handle the Goods the public want, and at prices to suit them.

NO WONDER WE SELL CHEAP.

It is no wonder we sell cheap, as we are almost under no expense. Our Discounts more than pay our salaries, and as we pay no rent, the two principal items of expense are taken out.

NOW LADIES

We astonished you with the variety and cheapness of our stock last Spring, but we expect to surprise you even more this Spring. We have now a resident buyer in Glasgow, who is always on hand to secure any novelties or cheap lines that are thrown on the British Market, so that we will always be a little ahead of others, both in style and value.

THE FRANCHISE ACT.

The Qualifications of Voters—The Process of Registration Explained.

The time having arrived for the preparation of the voters' lists under the new Dominion Franchise Act, an appeal is made to the Liberals of Wellington to have their names enrolled as voters without delay. To assist in so doing a short summary of the qualification of voters and of the process for securing registration s given.

QUALIFICATION.

To entitle a person to be put on the list he must be—

(1) 21 years of age.

(2) A British subject by birth or naturalization.

(3) Owner of real property of value:
In a city, $300.
In a town, $200.
In a county, $150.

(4) Or tenant of real property under ease at a rental of
$2 per month.
$6 per quarter.
$12 per half year.
$20 per year.

Provided that the tenant has been in possession for one year before 1st January 1886, and shall have paid one year's rent before final revision.

If the rent is yearly it will be sufficient if $20 of last year's rent shall have been paid before final revision.

Change of tenancy without intermission will not destroy the vote if aggregate of tenancies would give vote.

The assessor should be instructed state in the assessment roll the rent payable by each person assessed as tenant. If, however, this is not done, each tenant is prima facie entitled to be registered as a voter if the property is assessed at the following values:—
In cities at $300.
In towns at $200.
In counties at $150.

In counties outside of villages the rent may be payable either in money or in money's worth.

(5) Or a bona fide occupant for one year before 1st January, 1886, and enjoying the revenues and profits for his own or his wife's use of real property of the following values:
In cities, $300.
In towns, $200.
In counties, $150.

The occupancy may be under license of occupation from the crown or from any person or corporation.

(6) Or by income without any other qualification.

A person may be registered as an income voter, if he derives an income from his earnings, trade or profession, or from some investment in Canada of $300 a year, for one year before 1st January, 1886.

In counties the earnings may be either in money or money's worth.

(7) Sons of owners of real property are qualified—

(a) Where the father is living and a son or sons living with him continuously for one year before 1st January, 1886, and the property is sufficient in value according to the above figures, if divided between them to give them all votes. If not sufficient to qualify all the sons and the father, then the father and only so many sons as the property will qualify can be enrolled, and in such case the eldest son will be preferred, and then the next elder, and so on.

(b) When the father is dead, and would, if living, be qualified, residence with the mother will suffice, and as many sons as the property will qualify may be registered, with preference to the eldest and elder sons, as in the last case.

Occasional absence from home of a son—not more than six months in the year—will not disqualify, and all time spent at school or college in Canada will be counted as if spent at home.

Son of an owner includes grandson, step-son and son-in-law, and all these may be registered as voters on the property if of sufficient value. The provision as to sons of owners applies to the counties as well as towns and cities in cases other than those of farmers' sons.

(8) Farmers' sons—The same provisions substantially apply to farmers' sons, as stated in the last paragraph in respect of sons of owners in cities and towns.

A farm is to be not less than 20 acres of land.

(9) Fishermen and owners of real property and boats, nets, fishing gear and tackle of aggregate value of $150.

Income voters register where they reside at time of registration—all others where property is situate. If in more than one polling division in the same electoral district the voter may register in either.

All names entered in the last revised voters' lists under the old law, will be entered in the new lists by the revising barrister.

Every person not on the assessment roll desiring to have his name on the list must at once send to the revising barrister an application in writing to be put on the list, giving his name, residence and the property or other qualification in respect of which he applies to be put on.

This application must be accompanied by a declaration which is to be made and signed before a commissioner for taking affidavits, a notary or justice of the peace, showing the grounds of the applicants claim to be put on the list.

Substantially the voters are those who can qualify as owners, tenants, occupants, income voters, sons of owners and farmers' sons.

See that the application shows as correctly and fully as possible the qualification.

Make the declaration before a commissioner, notary or justice of the peace. It is convenient to have it attached to the application on the same sheet.

In case of an absent person, let some one else having a knowledge of the qualification make the application and declaration.

When one cannot find a justice or other person before whom the declaration can be taken let the application alone be sent in, with an explanation of the reason, and it would be well in such case to have the truth of the facts in the application certified on the back of it by one, or if possible, two other persons.

The application and declaration must be sent at once to the Revising barrister of the district.

URGENCY OF THE MATTER.

No name not on the last voters' list or assessment roll will be placed on the preliminary voters' list, unless on application and declaration as above.

In case of any difficulty or doubt, application should be made at once for advice to some of the Liberal friends in the neighborhood.

Toronto Loyalists.

An Excited Meeting Protests Against Home Rule.

TORONTO, March 8.—An excited crowd gathered to-night in Temperance Hall, on the occasion of the public meeting called to express sympathy with the Loyalists in Ireland. Shortly before eight o'clock the Chairman, Warren Kennedy, opened the proceedings, and from the moment he began to speak until the close of the meeting every speaker was subjected to a constant flow of interruptions.

Prof. Goldwin Smith was the first speaker. He moved the following resolution: "Resolved, That as citizens of the British Empire we feel a deep interest in its unity and greatness, and hereby enter our earnest protest against any measure which would dissolve or weaken the union between Great Britain and Ireland. Professor Clark, of Trinity College, seconded the resolution. The Chairman rose to put the resolution to the meeting, when Philip S. Thompson, member of the League, rose in the body of the hall and said: "Mr. Chairman, I have an amendment to move." Amidst the wildest uproar he made his way to the platform. When he got there an angry crowd gathered round him, some with uplifted sticks, and for 10 minutes the scene on the platform and in the hall was indescribable. Finally Thompson was pushed to the rear of the platform and hidden from view till quiet was restored. The resolution was then put to the meeting and carried amidst great uproar.

Rev. Dr. Wild and Dr. Potts also addressed the meeting, each moving resolutions expressing loyalty to the British Government and opposition to Home Rule, which were carried.

The final resolution was one appointing a committee to obtain subscriptions to assist Loyalists, and amidst great cheering it was announced that Prof. Goldwin Smith had given a cheque for $500 for that purpose.

STRIKES IN THE STATES.

Railway Men, Miners and Carpenters Quitting Work.

CHICAGO, March 8.—The executive committee of the state assembly of the Knights of Labor on Saturday adopted a memorial to Congress asking that liberal appropriations of surplus revenues be made for the construction of public works. It is said the Knights of Labor number 850,000 in the United States and Canada.

DECATUR, Ill., March 8.—The action of the Knights of Labour in this section in forming a new political party is attracting much attention. They declare in their platform: "We have formed a national political party, to be known as the United Labor party of America, for the purpose of organizing and directing the great political power of the industrial masses. As a political organization we will cast our ballots for no one who will not pledge himself to stand firmly by our principles."

ST. LOUIS, March 8.—The strike of part of the Knights of Labor on the Gould Southwestern system of railways on Saturday was followed yesterday at various points along the lines by a general suspension of work of all the Knights employed in operating the railroads, until the number reached between 8,000 and 10,000. The strikers exercise great care that delays of mails shall not be attributed to them. They have appointed delegates from their number to prepare the mail cars for their trips, switch them into position and attach them to engines. This precaution makes it impossible for the United States Government to prefer charges against them for delaying the mails, and thus the Government can find no pretext for interference unless violence is resorted to. Not a freight car has been moved since Saturday night. Chairman Powderley is expected here. The Knights feel confident his efforts will result in settlement of the difficulties.

The fight is now based on the demand by the Knights of Labor that that organization shall be recognized by the railway officials; all other grievances have been practically settled.

MINERS AND CARPENTERS STRIKE.

NEW YORK, March 8.—Four thousand members of the United Order of American Joiners and Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners stopped work today. The journeymen complain of low wages; 600 shops are affected by this movement. At noon 86 bosses had agreed to the demands as presented.

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 8.—An extensive strike of coal miners of Federation No. 3, comprising the soft coal district of the east, was inaugurated to-day. In the district there are 20,000 miners.

Local News

MR. FRANK O'HOLERAN on Friday had his arm knocked out of joint by a telephone pole falling on him.

MRS. J. WILCOX sent to-day to Captain Clarke, 25 cans of canned apples to be distributed amongst the poor of the city. This gift will no doubt be duly appreciated by the deserving poor.

THE following appointment has been made in the 30th Wellington Battalion of Rifles:—Lieutenant and Adjutant George Davis Porter, V. B., to have the rank of Captain, from 22nd June, 1885.

THE forty days of the penitential season of Lent will begin to-morrow, Ash Wednesday. This forty days' fast was instituted in commemoration of the fast of Christ in the desert before His crucifixion, and is of great antiquity.

THE members of the School Board are anxious to know when the annual curling match between that body and the Council is to come off. The Board cheerfully accepted the challenge of the Council last year to a game of cricket, and they think the Council should come to time in the curling match.

DUBLIN STREET CHURCH.—The Official Board of the Dublin Street Methodist Church met last evening. The financial statement showed that the receipts were in excess of the disbursements. A cordial and unanimous invitation was extended to the Rev. Dr. Griffin and the Rev. J. H. Carson to remain another year, to which both consented, subject to the action of the conference.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT.—A singular accident happened at Orangeville on Friday. While an engine was standing on a siding south of Orangeville on the Grey & Bruce track an engine with a number of loaded cars from Owen Sound, which had started on the grade above Orangeville, came thundering down, all efforts to stop her being unavailing. It appears that the train hands were obliged to cut the train to get up the steep grade near Orangeville junction, and as it was necessary to leave a large part of the crew to protect the remainder of the train, there were not sufficient men left to hold the train under control in coming down the steep grade of 1 in 50, which follows immediately after the up grade. The engines were badly damaged, and the cars piled one on another in such a way as to cause the line to be blocked for a long time. Fortunately no one was hurt, and the damage simply that to the rolling stock, which is somewhat heavy.

LOST IN LONDON.—The second week's performance of the Baird troupe opened with the sensational drama "Lost in London," to a crowded house. The characters were well taken throughout, especially that of "Job Armroyd" by Barry Harvey. His Lancashire dialect was immense. The comicalities of Mr. Baird were well received and kept the audience in good humor. Edwin Houghton as Gilbert Featherston played heavy villain to perfection. Mrs. Baird as Nellie Armroyd did justice to the piece and Gracie Perrell kept up her reputation. The Irish specialties of W. Simmons "convulsed the house" to such an extent that he had to reappear. This evening the New Kathleen, companion play to Kerry Gow will be given, concluding with a laughable farce and specialties. On Thursday evening a benefit will be tendered Mr. Baird when "Nip and Tuck" will be the piece performed.

THE BEN WYVIS TROPHY.—The Brantford Telegram of Saturday has the following:—"A meeting was held yesterday at the office of Mr. Roberts in regard to the contest for the Ben Wyvis curling challenge cup. Messrs. Robertson and J. S. Hamilton, representing the trustees of the cup, Messrs. Cleghorn and Bishop the Victoria Curling Rink. The Ben Wyvis trophy, a magnificent cup, standing about eighteen inches in height and splendidly embossed, was given by D. G. Hoss, Esq., of the Ben Wyvis distillery, Scotland, to be competed for by the eight oldest curling clubs in Ontario, which are as follows: The Fergus club, established in 1834; Scarborough, 1838; Paris, 1833; Guelph Union, 1838; Elora, 1847; Galt, 1838; Toronto, 1837; West Flamboro', 1835. The trustees of the cup are Alderman David Walker, Toronto; A. Robertson, manager Brantford Branch of the Bank of British North America, and J. S. Hamilton, of the firm of J. S. Hamilton & Co., of this city. The cup itself is very handsome and cost £30 sterling. The trophy will be competed for at the Victoria Rink, Brantford, on Tuesday, the 16th of March." So far the Guelph Club has had no intimation of the match, and, at anyrate, the time seems to be unfavorable for curling.

CONVICTED FOR HORSE STEALING.—Thos. McAvoy, Palmerston, was brought up pursuant to adjournment before His Honor Judge Drew, this morning, on a charge of horse stealing (the particulars of which have already appeared) from Wm. G. Lawrence, Minto, on the 1st February and was found guilty. Sentence was reserved until Friday next. Mr. A. M. Clarke, of Palmerston, who appeared for the prisoner, urged that the offence was really committed, if at all, in the County of Grey, where the animal appeared to have been sold, but the Judge held that the theft occurred in Palmerston, where the animal had been taken from the owner. The Crown observed that the prisoner could have been tried either in Grey or Wellington, the Statute covering cases where parties take property from one county to another, as in this case. It will be recollected that Richard Nesbitt, who appears to be the principal culprit, and was once before found guilty of horse stealing, was sentenced last week for his complicity in the crime. A third confederate is still at large, and supposed to be in the United States. Judge Drew appears to be determined that this class of young gentry shall not amuse themselves in this fashion without being called to severe account. The owner did not recover his animal for some days, and only after great trouble and expense discovered that these youths took the animal, driving it many miles by night and day, finally selling the beast, worth at least $100, and getting only $15 in cash and the promise of $15 more, from a convenient tavern keeper, at Williamsford, named Elisha Hambery. Without questioning his astuteness or honesty too closely, some people think it somewhat strange that this transaction with three strange youths occurred as it did, and more especially in view of the fact that the animal remained a very short time in his possession, and said to have been sold again to some convenient neighbouring purchaser. Mr. Peterson for the Crown, and Mr. Clarke for the prisoner.

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The School Trustee and Aldermanic Elections to be the Same Day.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was held on Monday evening. Present, Mr. E. Newton in the chair, Messrs. Knowles, Myers, Murton, Bruce, Skinner, Fairbank, Cottis, Stewart, Burgess, Mitchell, Spragge, and Dr. McGuire.

The Secretary stated that Dr. McGuire had been elected by the Council in the place of the late Mr. John Hall.

Moved by Mr. Fairbank, seconded by Mr. Skinner, that the name of Dr. McGuire be added to all the committees the late Mr. Hall was on.

A discussion, somewhat out of order, arose on a verbal motion of Mr. Cottis, seconded by Mr. Knowles, that the contract account for coal of Messrs. Kloepfer & Richardson be paid. Messrs. McGuire, Skinner and Fairbank opposed the motion on the ground that according to a resolution of the Board it had not been referred to the proper committee to report on, and then referred to the Finance Committee, the latter member holding that the Board had no right to pass an account in this manner.

Messrs. Cottis, Murton, Knowles, Bruce and others held that the account was a contract one and the vouchers had been certified to, consequently the Board had power to pass the account.

After considerable wrangling, the following motion was put before the chair:

Moved by Mr. Chas. Cottis, seconded by Mr. W. S. G. Knowles, that the account of Kloepfer & Richardson be referred to Property Committee, and on being approved by the Finance Committee, the same be paid.

Dr. McGuire and others objected to the words "on being approved by the Finance Committee."

Mr. Cottis changed the word "approved" to the words "reported correct," at the same time mentioning that he saw little difference in the two terms. This change met with approval by those objecting, and the motion was carried.

A communication from Mr. Tytler, Principal, showed that the number enrolled at the Collegiate Institute during the month was 126; average attendance—boys, 109; girls, 82; total, 191. Received.

Mr. Mitchell, Chairman of the Finance Committee, presented an account from R. Ewing, $8, for cabs employed by the Board at Ald. Hall's funeral, and on motion of himself and Mr. Bruce it was ordered to be paid.

Several accounts were read and referred to the proper committees.

Moved by Mr. Murton, seconded by Mr. Mitchell, that the Secretary of this Board be instructed to apply to the City Council for $3,500 in advance of the appropriation for the current year. Carried.

Moved by G. H. Skinner, seconded by W. J. Fairbank, that in conformity with section 104, chap. 49, of the school law, the secretary be instructed to advise the City Clerk that this Board desires to take advantage of the said law to hold the election of Trustees for 1887 and 1888 by ballot, and at the same time and place as the municipal elections and that he, the City Clerk, be requested to make the necessary arrangements for holding said election as provided for by the Act.

Mr. Murton thought that this motion was taking the bull by the horns. At this stage of the year it was hardly worth while of putting the resolution.

Mr. Skinner remarked that he believed the sense of the community was in favor of this change being made. It would cause less expense and create more interest in the election of trustees. Toronto had adopted this system, and he thought what was good for Toronto would be good for Guelph. The matter had been so fully ventilated at the Board on a former occasion that it was not necessary to enter into further particulars.

Mr. Murton remarked that whatever Toronto chose to do had nothing to do with this Board. He was in favor of anything that would increase an interest in education, but as he had remarked before he thought this was taking the bull by the horns.

Mr. Cottis was not opposed to the resolution, but thought it should be left over until a full meeting of the Board.

Mr. Fairbank was in favor of putting the resolution now. He considered there was as full a meeting to night as there was last year when the motion to have a separate election from the municipal elections was passed.

After some further discussion the motion was carried.

Mr. Skinner drew the attention of the Board to the uncomfortable condition of the West Ward School, caused by drafts from windows, &c.

Moved by Mr. Cottis, seconded by Mr. Murton, that the Sites and Buildings Committee be requested to examine the various schools, and report to this Board the advisability of providing storm windows or other means of warming the same. Carried.

Mr. Torrance presented his report for February, showing that 1,350 pupils were enrolled, a decrease of 4, compared with the corresponding month of last year—an increase of 11 girls, but a decrease of 15 boys. The roll average to each teacher was 52, general average, 41; daily average, 53 1-120.

Mr. Fairbank was on the point of moving a resolution regarding the salary of one of the teachers, when Mr. Murton, seconded by Mr. Bruce, moved an adjournment and several members left their seats, not leaving enough for a quorum.

Mr. Fairbank remarked that the members should stay and finish their business.

Mr. Bruce replied that had it not been for a lot of tomfoolery and useless talk the business could have been concluded long ago. He did not come here to listen to speeches about nothing, as he had something else to do, but to transact business; he remained longer than he intended, and he had another important meeting to attend to.

Mr. Fairbank thought the language used by the member was uncalled for. He would call a meeting of the Board to finish the work, as the resolution he was about to make was an important one.

After some more wrangling the Board adjourned for want of a quorum.

During the evening the members of Sites and Buildings Committee met, and on motion of Mr. Myers, seconded by Mr. Stewart, Mr. A. Bruce was appointed chairman in room of Mr. Hall, deceased.

SHILOH'S VITALIZER is what you need for Constipation, Loss of Appetite, Dizziness, and all symptoms of dyspepsia. Price 10 and 75 cents per bottle. Sold by A. B. Petrie.

License Commissioners.

The newly appointed License Commissioners for South Wellington, who are the same as last year, met on Monday for reorganization. Present—Messrs. Kennedy, Murphy and Fairbank.

Moved by Mr. Kennedy, seconded by Mr. Murphy, that Mr. Fairbank be chairman for the present year. Carried.

A communication was read from Mr. Jonathan Kelly, asking to be appointed an assistant inspector should one be required. Received.

Moved by Mr. Murphy, seconded by Mr. Kennedy, that the petition of Mr. Kelly be laid over for consideration. Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

MR. GEO. W. CARTER, son of Mr. Geo. H. Carter, sr., Guelph Township, was kicked by a horse on Sunday, having his nose broken, and his face otherwise disfigured.

AN aged gypsy of the gentler sex whose home is in New Jersey, predicts that Mr. Thomas A. Edison will soon astonish the world with inventions so important that all his previous triumphs will look puerile. She founds her prophesy upon the fact that the accomplished young heiress, Miss Mina Miller, of Akron, Ohio, whom he has made his bride, is the seventh child of her mother.

DUBLIN STREET CHURCH SUNDAY SCHOOL.—The Board of Teachers and Officers of the Sunday School of the above church held a meeting last night, at which there was a good attendance present. Rev. J. H. Carson occupied the chair. This meeting of the Board was called chiefly to complete arrangements for the coming anniversary. Committees presented reports which were received and adopted, and everything, it is said, bids fair for a successful and profitable time on the 11th and 12th April. Rev. Mr. Briggs, of the Wesleyan Book Room, Toronto, is to preach the anniversary sermons and the musical entertainment on the following evening is to be of rare excellence. Later announcements will be given.

The Election in St John's Ward.

To the Editor of the Mercury:

SIR,—As present indications point to a lively contest for the vacant seat in St. John's Ward, perhaps you will allow an old resident of the city to offer an opinion as to the respective claims and qualifications of the two gentlemen who are in the field. Both have been residents here for many years. Mr. Raymond is well known here and throughout the Dominion as one of our successful manufacturers, who has carried on a large business here for nearly a quarter of a century, and who has done more perhaps than any other man in the city to build up its manufacturing interests.

It is admitted by everybody that the future growth and prosperity of this city must depend on its becoming a manufacturing centre. This being the case it is very desirable that we should have the manufacturing interest well represented in the Council. I believe I am correct in saying that at the present time there is only one representative of that interest on the board. The electors of St. John's Ward now have an opportunity of electing a gentleman who is in every way well qualified to represent that interest. In view of the agitation now going on for increased railway communication, and being himself a large shipper, as well as one of the chief promoters of the scheme, and a provisional director of the company, his advice and influence would be of great assistance in getting the work under way. True some of his oppenents are raising the cry that his time is so fully occupied with his own business that he cannot devote the time necessary to look after the interests of the City, but those who know Mr. Raymond best will admit that he is not the man to neglect anything which he undertakes to do.

His opponent is also an old resident of this city, well known to many of the present generation as having been at one time a successful school teacher. He is now known as a land and loan agent, a business which certainly does not employ many mechanics or workingmen of any sort, nor does it add much to the business of the merchants of this city. Nevertheless it is a business which is at present very well represented at the Council board. It may be claimed by some that Mr. Walker has had some experience in the Council, but Mr. Raymond has also had the same experience, although not quite so recently. He was also at one time an active member of the School Board.

Such being the case I believe the electors of St. John's will consult the best interests of the Ward, as well as of the entire City, by returning as their representative a gentleman who is so largely interested in the welfare of the City as Mr. Charles Raymond.

Yours &c.,
ELECTOR.

Guelph, March 9, 1886.

Council Proceedings.

To the Editor of the MERCURY:

SIR,—Mr. W. H. Cutten's letter in your issue of Saturday calls for a brief reply from me. I am not the writer of the letter signed "An Elector of St. George's Ward;" therefore the only part of Mr. Cutten's letter which is directed against me is where he refers to having seen "cheques payable to Aldermen for drugs, &c." Of course this is intended for me, and to this charge I most emphatically deny having sold the corporation a dollar's worth of "drugs" since I have been honoured with a seat at the Board. For years previous to entering the Council I used to supply three of the committees with the goods necessary for their different departments, but as soon as elected I at once stopped supplying any goods whatever, being very particular that I should not be chargeable with being benefitted to the extent of one cent.

No doubt Mr. Cutten has been misled by seeing an order calling for four dollars. This was for vaccine matter—not drugs—which I procured for the chairman of the Board of Health and has really nothing to do with the Council. This explanation, I think, will satisfy any candid person that I have no contract with the city.

Yours truly,
W. G. SMITH.

The City Council and the Consolidated By-laws.

To the Editor of the MERCURY:—

SIR,—For years the by-laws of the city were in a state of utter chaos. The police magistrate and the various city officials were often greatly perplexed to know just exactly what by-laws or portions of by-laws were in force and what were absolete. Last year the City Council manfully attacked this mass of confusion and for a period of six months worked faithfully and earnestly to get matters in shape. Special meetings were held and Colonel Macdonald, chairman of the By-law Committee, devoted a great deal of his valuable time to the work of consolidation, which was completed only at the last meeting of the old Council. The present Council seems determined to turn the by-laws all topsy-turvy again, and have been very hasty in undoing what was previously done at the expense of so much time and labour, and the probabilities are that the old state of chaos will before long reign supreme again. Would it not have been vastly better to have given the consolidated by-laws a fair trial before repealing any portion of them? There are always people who kick under any circumstances, and changes of any kind are for a time at least awkward. If an experience of, say, six months demonstrated the fact that certain clauses of the by-laws had better be repealed or amended, a change might then be warrantable. As it is the Council appears somewhat precipitate in its action.

Death in a Mine.

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., March 8.—Shortly after noon a series of explosions took place in the Uniondale mine at Dunbar, four miles from here, by which two men were killed and twelve others received injuries which will prove fatal in at least four cases. The cause of explosion was fire damp. There were 23 in the pit. In a few minutes an opening was made and several rushed forward to enter the mine but were repelled by a volume of flame. It took several minutes for the smoke and fire to clear away, and the rescuers were compelled to wait. The cries of pain and the moans of the injured were pitiable. They were lying in every direction buried under masses of debris. Several of them were horribly burned. Their sufferings were terrible.

The Evening Mercury

TUESDAY EVE'G MARCH 9, 1886.

FROM the report of the Provincial Secretary of Ontario on the working of the License Act, it appears that there was a decrease in the number of licenses issued last year, as compared with the preceding year, of 115 taverns, 106 shop, 3 wholesale, and 7 vessel, or 236 in all. The revenue derived by the Province from licenses and fines during the last 3 years was: 1882-3, $93,523.28; 1883-4, $93,225.70; 1884-5, $192,867.02. As the Government propose to increase the amount of the license fees, and intend to appropriate the increase to Provincial purposes, a large increase in the license revenue next year may be looked for.

MR. THOMPSON, the new Minister of Justice, made his maiden speech the other day in the House of Commons in introducing a bill for the transfer of land in the Northwest, and made rather a favorable impression on the members. He is a small man and has a pleasant face, and those who have had business to do with him report that he is very courteous and affable. His voice is clear and pleasant; he ennunciates well, and as he speaks very deliberately one can follow him with the greatest ease. He promises to be a fairly useful member of the Government, not only in regard to the amount of work in him, but also from his ability to take his own share in the debates.

Mr. Edgar has introduced in the House of Commons a bill which is of special interest to employees generally. Its principal object is to give such a preferential claim for their wages upon insolvent estates. Under what was known as the "Abbott Insolvency Law" employees were so protected, but since it was repealed the law has provided no protection for employees of joint stock and other companies for the collection of their wages. The consequence is that great injustice has been done to this class of wage-earners and large sums have gone to the general benefit of insolvent estates which should have been paid over to employees. No one will deny that they are least able to sustain losses of this kind, and that their wages should be a first claim on the estate where employed. During the depression which has now lasted some years there are no doubt hundreds of cases of hardship which have been experienced by working men arising out of this defect in the law. This bill is now introduced to remedy this defect, and as a tardy act of justice in the interest of the working man we should think it will receive the all but unanimous support of members of Parliament.

One of the bills introduced by the new Minister of Justice on Tuesday was for the adoption of the Torrens system of the transfer of land in the Northwest. This bill was introduced last session in the Senate, but owing to the time being taken up with the Franchise Bill, nothing was done with it. The bill is framed pretty much like the one passed by the Ontario Legislature last session, and which is now in force in Toronto as an experimental measure. A similar measure has been in force in the several Australian colonies and has given great satisfaction, the chief recommendations being security of title, cheapness, and ease of transfer, obviating the inconveniences and difficulties experienced in the older provinces. The application of the system to the older provinces might be attended with trouble, but in the Northwest there are few if any complications. The people there who have taken out patents of land are close to the root of the titles, and very little difficulty will be experienced so far as concerns the land already parted with by the Crown. Upon present holders of land it will not be incumbent to adopt the Torrens system, but after the passage of the Act it will be compulsory to secure lands under the system of registration. The system of survey adopted in the Northwest will greatly facilitate the adoption of the new system.

The other day in the House of Commons, in answer to questions put by Mr. Wallace, of York, the Minister of the Interior stated that the number of applications made for licenses to cut timber within the "disputed territory" in Ontario since 1882 was 308; that the number of Orders-in-Council passed granting such licenses was 116; that only four licenses for a term of 21 years and 23 yearly licenses had been granted; that the amount paid for ground rent of timber limits was $18,263.35; that the amount received by the department from leases for 21 years was $27,520.86, and that the holders of yearly licenses had cut no timber as far as the Department was aware and had paid no dues; that only three firms have now authority to cut timber, in each case 21 years leases; that since 1872 the number of permits given to settlers to cut timber was 63; that the amount received by the Government on such permits was $27,416.-32; that at the present time no persons are authorized to cut timber in the "disputed territory." Under the regulations all permits expire on the 1st of May next succeeding the issue of them, and as no permits have been issued since 1884, there have been none in force since the 1st of May, 1885; and that no money has been refunded to persons who have paid money to the Department for timber licenses or permits, but who have cut no timber under such licenses or permits.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, March 8.

Mr. Charlton introduced a bill entitled an act to provide for the punishment of seduction and to afford protection to women and girls. The bill was read a first time.

Mr. Edgar introduced a bill to amend the Supreme Court and Exchequer Act. He explained that the object was to allow the constitutionality of Provincial acts to be tested and decided upon motion of the Provincial authorities themselves, by permission of the Governor-General in Council. The bill was read a first time.

Mr. Baker (Victoria, B.C.) introduced a bill respecting the rate of interest in British Columbia. He explained that there is at present no rate of interest fixed by law in the Province and that the savings bank would be established at important points in Manitoba as necessity requires.

In reply to Mr. Lister, Hon. Mackenzie Bowell said that charges had been made against the British American Bank Note Company for smuggling into Canada engravings, vignettes and other works of art from the United States without paying duty, and also for having entered importations of a like kind under their proper value. Such charges had been investigated in the ordinary manner by Government officials. The practices complained of had been carried on at two periods: First, prior to 1875, and second, up to January 1, 1886. The total value of such importations was $13,570 and the value during the last three years was $899. The amount found due by the company for unpaid duties was $588, and no less sum was accepted by the Government in settlement. The total amount recovered from the company was $1,190, being the amount of unpaid duties plus 50 per cent. additional and $308 expenses.

Mr. Weldon asked what were the earnings and working expenses of the Intercolonial railway for each month from July 1, 1885, to February 1, 1886.

Hon. Mr. Pope said the hon. member should give notice of motion for such information.

Mr. Desaulniers (Maskinonge) asked whether the Government had made enquiry with a view to ascertaining the intention of the jury in the case of Louis Riel in recommending the prisoner to the mercy of the court.

Minister of Justice Thompson replied that there was no means by which the Government could ascertain the intention of the jury except by enquiry from individual members of the jury, and that was not deemed constitutional.

Mr. Desaulniers enquired whether the Government received any communication, letter or other document from one or more of the jurors in the case of Louis Riel, informing them that the intention of the jury in recommending the said Louis Riel to the mercy of the court was to exempt the prisoner from the death penalty, and if any such information reached the Government, what juror or jurors furnished the same.

Mr. Thompson replied that no such communication was received by the Government as far as he was aware. If the papers contained any such they would be brought down.

Sir John Macdonald asked that the consideration of the resolution of Mr. Landry (Montmagny) expressing regret that the sentence of death was carried into execution in the case of Louis Riel, be postponed until Thursday next, when it would be made the first order of the day, and the discussion would be continued de die in diem until concluded. This was regarded by the opinion of such importance that they would not proceed with the estimates or the budget until they know how they stand on this motion.

Mr. Laurier moved for copies of all orders in council passed for the granting of a subsidy authorized by Acts 47, Victoria, chapter 8, and 48, 49 Victoria, chapter 58, (for a shortest and best practicable route.) The motion was adopted.

Mr. Weldon obtained an order of the House for a return of the expenditure made by the St. John Bridge and Railway Extension Company on their railway and bridge connecting the Intercolonial and New Brunswick Railway.

The House adjourned at 4:45.

Retrospective.

FEBRUARY 27th, 1886.

It is just one year since the opening of my new business at 27 Lower Wyndham Street was announced. The retrospect is a pleasant one. The motto was and has been "Never fear to do right." The policy of the business was to sell good, reliable goods at a fair moderate profit, to sell strictly for cash to always pay and demand one hundred cents for every dollar, to offer customers our best efforts without boring them to buy, to make it a pleasure to call at our store, to eschew all bombast and exaggeration, to keep a sharp look out for advantages to our customers, to unite their interests with our own, to strictly mind our own business, to win the confidence of all our Patrons. Under the blessings of a kind Providence, the year just closed has been a most prosperous and satisfactory one. Our name and reputation have been established, our sales were 50 per cent more than our highest anticipations, and the result of the year's business very encouraging and satisfactory. Our hearty thanks are tendered to our many patrons.

PROSPECTIVE.

The same principles, riper experience, wider facilities, stronger efforts, increased confidence in the intelligence and discrimination of the public, determination and ability to meet the keenest legitimate competition, goods that will bear inspection and comparison and steady persevering effort, will be at the command of our patrons, and we have no fear that though the most strenuous efforts, legitimate and otherwise, will in the future as they have in the past be buzzing on every hand, the business at No. 27 will not only maintain but greatly strengthen the leading position which it has taken.

CHAPTER XVI.

DARK SAYINGS.

As the time went on everybody began to notice the change in Alice Lafone. It came so gradually that no one could say exactly when it had begun, but a few months after Helen's death it was plain to everyone that a change was there. She, whose majestic figure had excited admiration or envious ridicule, became almost painfully thin. She was nervous and unsettled, and her large eyes seemed to have grown larger. She had never been sweet tempered, in her best and most lovable days she had been wont to take offence at trifles, and to consider any attempt to prefer another to herself as a direct and studied insult. Now her temper was was painfully and alarmingly uncertain. Were the words and manner of the person who addressed her never so ingrating, the speaker could never feel sure that his meaning would not be twisted into some impossible shape in order to give Miss Lafone reason for considering herself injured. She appeared to be burning with fever; her colour had faded, with the exception of a red spot, brighter than usual, in the middle of each cheek. In spite of the change she did not lose her beauty; she was too young, and it was too well founded in purely formed features and grace of outline to disappear under a first failure of health. Some people thought her improved, but they were few. In her present condition only one person had any influence over her; for him alone would she put some restraint upon herself and try to govern her unfortunate disposition. The one person was, of course, Percival. At a very early stage in Alice's malady it had been discovered that he had the power of soothing her in a degree possessed by no one else. For him she would smooth away the fold between her eyes, and in his presence she could sit in apparent contentment for an indefinite time. No one knew that sometimes the effort to do this, to make him see that he was the one person for whom she cared sufficiently to try to hide her weakness from him, was almost beyond her power to make. If she loved Percival so that her love was wearing her away, she was also at times sorely angry with him for his blind stupidity. Why would he not see, and spare her the humiliation which she felt that, sooner or later, she would have to undergo? Why did it never occur to him that when a woman refuses all her lovers one after the other, and acknowledges one man alone as her superior, bending her will to his, there must be something more than friendship in her heart? He saw and thought nothing; he remained absorbed in Helen's memory, apparently unconcious that the world contained any other woman. When she thought of her stupidity she felt for the moment as if she hated him, only directly afterwards to be as firmly convinced of the contrary. Her love for him was such as she had never imagined herself capable of feeling. She had said sometimes, in reply to reproaches about the indifference with which she received and rejected an offer, that it was useless to expect from her what was not in her; she never could love any man better than she loved herself. She now found that she had been mistaken; she could utterly forget herself in her love for Percival. Had she not to a certain extent already done so? Her feeling seemed to have grown strong enough to destroy her self-respect. She knew that people were beginning to whisper about her changed appearance, and to couple it with the fact that Percival came so often to the Thwaite; yet the knowledge was powerless to rouse her. She knew that when people said so much they would ere long say more; yet she could not help herself—had no strength to make the necessary effort to silence people's tongues. She was drifting in a rudderless boat along a deep and dangerous stream, and she had no idea what would become of her, only a dim feeling that the end must soon come.

Sometimes she wondered whether Percival heard anything of what was said. Probably not; gossip and scandal did not seem to penetrate to Brantwood. The doors were closed to anything of that kind and Percival spent the greatest part of his time behind those closed doors. She felt that she must know. It would be a dangerous question to ask, especially if he did know; but she could not bear the uncertainty, and one day Percival himself opened the way to the question she wanted to ask.

It was spring again, and everything seemed to have wakened to new life. Even Percival, blighted and crippled though his life must henceforth be, was not proof against this universal spirit of joy. There was plenty of work to be done; he felt his strength and made up his mind to use it.

On this particular day he was at the Thwaite. It was the end of April and singularly warm and summer-like. At Osmotherly the warm weather came early in the year, and many of the trees were well advanced; over the oldest and least susceptible of all a soft green was creeping; the birds were singing, and the garden was full of flowers.

Percival and Alice were in the garden. A rug was spread upon the grass, and on the rug were low wicker chairs and a little wicker table, covered with work materials, embroidery silks, finnikin scissors and thimble, together with the open volume, of a novel.

Watch the Assessment Rolls

Last session the Local Legislature passed a Franchise Act which widely extended the Franchise and which gives votes to a large number who never had the right to vote before. The Provincial Voters' Lists are entirely based upon the Assessment Rolls. Unless a man's name appears upon the Assessment Roll, it will not appear on the Voters' Lists. Therefore it is of the greatest importance that every man to whom a vote is given by this new Franchise Act should be assessed. Particularly notice the law as it applies to three classes, namely: Wage earners, householders, landholders' sons.

As to wage-earners the Franchise Act provides that:—

"Every male person upon the last revised assessment roll as a wage-earner who resides at the time of the election in the local municipality in which he tenders his vote and has resided there continuously since the completion of the last revised assessment roll of the municipality, and who has, during the twelve months next prior to being so entered, derived or earned wages or income from some trade, occupation, calling, office or profession of not less than two hundred and fifty dollars shall be entitled to vote."

And it further provides that:—

"The fair value of the board or lodging received by such person in townships as part of his wages shall be considered or included as part of the $250."

The amount for which the wage earner is assessed is not taxable. His name is placed upon the assessment roll for the sole purpose of giving him a vote. The wage-earner must take an affirmation in form provided by Statute, and the assessor is compelled by law to have these forms printed (at the expense of the municipality), and to take them with him when engaged in his work of assessing. Every Householder in each Township municipality has a vote. This opens the door for many new voters. Every Landholder's Son also votes, and the word "son" includes "stepson," "grandson," and "son-in-law," and the word "landholder" includes "tenants," so that the sons of Tenants may vote. Formerly the right of farmers' sons to vote was governed by the amount for which the father was assessed, and it still is so in the Dominion Franchise. By the Ontario Act of last session, however, where the parent is assessed either as owner or tenant in cities or towns for $400, and in villages and townships for $200, all the sons who are twenty-one years of age, and who have resided with their parents for the past twelve months, are entitled to be placed upon the Assessment Roll as landholder's sons. The expression "landholder's son" also in its meaning a step-son, grandson, or son-in-law, who may have so resided with the assessed landholder. Six months temporary absence during the year does not prevent the name from being entered. It is very desirable that every one entitled to vote should have his name entered on the Assessment Rolls in the first instance, and not trust to an appeal afterwards which will involve considerable trouble. Organize active Committees in every Polling Sub-division, so that the Assessment Roll of this year will contain the name of every Liberal in the Riding and thus be made as perfect as possible.

Rest assured that defeat or victory hinges on vigilance in attending to the Assessment Rolls and Voters' Lists. A few days active work now on the part of local committees and the battle is half won. All the friends of good government in Ontario should render assistance in this all important matter.

It must be remembered that the steps to be taken to have the names of voters placed on the Voters' Lists for Provincial Elections is different from those to be taken under the Dominion Franchise Act. For the Provincial elections applications must be made to the Clerk of the Municipality immediately.

The Last Year, 1885.

After the above year is ended there need be no person suffering from rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache, headache lumbago, or any acute pain, if they only purchase a bottle of Fluid Lightning, as it cures instantly. ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

TORONTO, March 8.

Mr. McKim's bill to consolidate the debenture debt of Mount Forest, and Mr. McGhee's to do the same for Orangeville, were reported by Committee of the Whole.

Mr. McIntyre asked for the information concerning the title to the Government House property.

The Attorney-General said that in 1877 an order-in-council was made by the Federal Government to transfer this land and other properties to the Provincial Government for the use of said Government and the Legislature, to be disposed of only on condition that an equivalent substitute as a residence be provided.

In reply to Mr. Ermatinger it was stated that the Government intended to amend the Creditor's Relief Act.

Upon the second reading of Mr. French's bill to amend the Surrogate Court Act, the Attorney-General said it was very defective. He thought there was no demand for the change proposed, changes which would eat up small estates in costs, and moved the three months' hoist, which was carried by a vote of 38 to 31.

The House adjourned at 5:35.

The London and Northwestern Railway Company has discharged 1,000 navvies, nearly all of whom are Irishmen.

The Committee of the French Academy of Sciences has drawn up definite proposals for a Pasteur Institute in Paris, to be open to the world, and supported by international donations.

Reports from the stock growing sections of Texas show great activity in the cattle industry. Preparations for the spring drive are complete. Several herds will be started up trail within the next ten days. The drive for 1886 will reach about 300,000 head.

The warehouses and dock of the Monarch steamship line at Jersey City, together with a large quantity of European freight, were destroyed by fire Monday morning. The steamships Egyptian Monarch and Lydian Monarch were also badly damaged.

A band of thirty Apaches ten days ago attacked a party of travellers fifteen miles southwest of Nocosaia Sonara, Mexico, killing one Mexican and one American. STOCK TAKING COMPLETED.

NOW

In the lull which usually follows Stock taking before the heaviest of the Spring work begins when we will have less time for such a review, we would like to place before our patrons and the public generally the state of our business, and explain why we claim to sell so much cheaper than others.

Our business for the past year has been eminently satisfactory, we having done the largest Cash business which has been done in the Lion for the last six years. Now this in ordinary times would be very encouraging, but in hard times like the present, we consider it most satisfactory and indicative of a reign of prosperity for the Lion much beyond what it has had in the past. Of course we have not had as much opposition, our friend, Mr. Hogg not having applied himself so closely to business as in former years, but this would not explain entirely the great increase in our trade. The reasons are many. We will state a few:

Our Goods are all fresh and new.

Our Prices are Low.

Our Goods are all marked in plain figures.

We have only one price for all.

We handle the Goods the public want, and at prices to suit them.

NO WONDER WE SELL CHEAP.

It is no wonder we sell cheap, as we are almost under no expense. Our Discounts more than pay our salaries, and as we pay no rent, the two principal items of expense are taken out.

NOW LADIES

We astonished you with the variety and cheapness of our stock last Spring, but we expect to surprise you even more this Spring. We have now a resident buyer in Glasgow, who is always on hand to secure any novelties or cheap lines that are thrown on the British Market, so that we will always be a little ahead of others, both in style and value.

Our Trade in Animals and Agricultural Products.

From the Trade and Navigation Report for the past year just issued, we find that the greatest exports were under the head of "Animals and their products." A very considerable change has taken place in the proportion of each class of exports to the whole exports since Confederation. In 1868 the proportions were: Agricultural products to domestic exports, 26.59 per cent.; animals and their products, 14.24 per cent.; forest products 37.28 per cent.; fisheries, 6.93 per cent.; products of the mines, 2.98 per cent.; manufactures and miscellaneous making up the remainder. In 1882 the proportions were: Agricultural products, 35.61; animals and products 21.72; forest products, 26.57; fisheries, 8.17; and products of the mine, 3.42 per cent. In 1885 the proportions were: Agricultural products, 25.08; animals and their products, 32.02; products of the forest, 26.52; fisheries, 10.06, and products of the mine, 4.60 per cent.

The development of the exports of animals and their products is very marked. Of cheese, Canada, in 1868, exported 1,577,072 pounds, and in 1885 79,655,267 pounds, valued at $8,265,240. The latest returns for the United States (1884) show that their export of cheese was 11,663,713 pounds. Canada in fact stands at the head of cheese exporting countries.

Of the export of Canadian cheese in 1885 78,841,460 pounds were sent to Great Britain. Of eggs Canada exported 11,542,703 dozens, chiefly to the United States.

The growth of the cattle trade may be gleaned from the following table:

	No. Horned Cattle.	No. Sheep.	No. Swine.
1877	25,357	141,187	3,886
1881	62,277	354,155	2,819
1882	62,106	311,669	3,263
1883	66,396	308,474	3,858
1884	89,263	304,403	3,883
1885	143,003	335,043	1,652

Taking into consideration the fall in prices experienced during the whole of the year 1885, the exports of last year more than maintained their former record. Judging by quantities exported Canada sent out a larger amount of her products than in previous years.

The imports have however decreased, even when due allowance is made for the reduction in prices which ruled throughout the world.

Postmaster General's Report.

The annual return of the Postmaster-General was laid on the table of the House on Friday. It is noticed that the number of offices in operation last year was 7,084 with 50,462 miles of post route for which the annual mail travel was computed to be 22,173,455. These figures show that compared with 1884, 274 new post offices were established last year and 3,330 miles of new post routes organized for mail service. The additional mail travel on these routes was at the rate of 1,287,139 miles per annum. The number of post offices in 1885 was 7,084, as against 5,773 for 1880. The postal revenue for the year was $2,400,062, of which $2,325,489 was derived from the sale of postage stamps. As compared with the previous year this was an increase of $69,320. The expenditure on 30th June last was $3,007,882, as compared with the previous year, there was an increase of $166,494. This expenditure was caused by the general growth of the postal service. It is estimated that 3,000,000 registered letters passed through the mail. The transactions in the Savings bank show an increase from 8 to 10 per cent. No losses by fraud. The dead letter office, judging from the number of letters it received, continues to be of service.

THE FRANCHISE ACT.

The Qualifications of Voters—The Process of Registration Explained.

The time having arrived for the preparation of the voters' lists under the new Dominion Franchise Act, an appeal is made to the Liberals of Wellington to have their names enrolled as voters without delay. To assist in so doing a short summary of the qualification of voters and of the process for securing registration s given.

QUALIFICATION.

To entitle a person to be put on the list he must be—

(1) 21 years of age.

(2) A British subject by birth or naturalization.

(3) Owner of real property of value
In a city, $300.
In a town, $200.
In a county, $150.

(4) Or tenant of real property under ease at a rental of
$2 per month.
$6 per quarter.
$12 per half year.
$20 per year.

Provided that the tenant has been in possession for one year before 1st January 1886, and shall have paid one year's rent before final revision.

If the rent is yearly it will be sufficient if $20 of last year's rent shall have been paid before final revision.

Change of tenancy without intermission will not destroy the vote if aggregate of tenancies would give vote.

The assessor should be instructed state in the assessment roll the rent payable by each person assessed as tenant. If, however, this is not done, each tenant is prima facie entitled to be registered as a voter if the property is assessed at the following values:—

In cities at $300.
In towns at $200.
In counties at $150.

In counties outside of villages the rent may be payable either in money or in money's worth.

(5) Or a bona fide occupant for one year before 1st January, 1886, and enjoying the revenues and profits for his own or his wife's use of real property of the following values:

In cities, $300.
In towns, $200.
In counties, $150.

The occupancy may be under license of occupation from the crown or from any person or corporation.

(6) Or by income without any other qualification.

A person may be registered as an income voter, if he derives an income from his earnings, trade or profession, or from some investment in Canada of $300 a year, for one year before 1st January, 1886.

In counties the earnings may be either in money or money's worth.

(7) Sons of owners of real property are qualified—

(a) Where the father is living and a son or sons living with him continuously for one year before 1st January, 1886, and the property is sufficient in value according to the above figures, if divided between them to give them all votes. If not sufficient to qualify all the sons and the father, then the father and only so many sons as the property will qualify can be enrolled, and in such case the eldest son will be preferred, and then the next elder, and so on.

(b) When the father is dead, and would, if living, be qualified, residence with the mother will suffice, and as many sons as the property will qualify may be registered, with preference to the eldest and elder sons, as in the last case.

Occasional absence from home of a son—not more than six months in the year—will not disqualify, and all time spent at school or college in Canada will be counted as if spent at home.

Son of an owner includes grandson, step-son and son-in-law, and all these may be registered as voters on the property if of sufficient value. The provision as to sons of owners applies to the counties as well as towns and cities in cases other than those of farmers' sons.

(8) Farmers' sons—The same provisions substantially apply to farmers' sons, as stated in the last paragraph in respect of sons of owners in cities and towns.

A farm is to be not less than 20 acres of land.

(9) Fishermen and owners of real property and boats, nets, fishing gear and tackle of aggregate value of $150.

Income voters register where they reside at time of registration—all others where property is situate. If in more than one polling division in the same electoral district the voter may register in either.

All names entered in the last revised voters' lists under the old law, will be entered in the new lists by the revising barrister.

Every person not on the assessment roll desiring to have his name on the list must at once send to the revising barrister an application in writing to be put on the list, giving his name, residence and the property or other qualification in respect of which he applies to be put on.

This application must be accompanied by a declaration which is to be made and signed before a commissioner for taking affidavits, a notary or justice of the peace, showing the grounds of the applicants claim to be put on the list.

Substantially the voters are those who can qualify as owners, tenants, occupants, income voters, sons of owners and farmers' sons.

See that the application shows as correctly and fully as possible the qualification.

Make the declaration before a commissioner, notary or justice of the peace. It is convenient to have it attached to the application on the same sheet.

In case of an absent person, let some one else having a knowledge of the qualification make the application and declaration.

When one cannot find a justice or other person before whom the declaration can be taken let the application alone be sent in, with an explanation of the reason, and it would be well in such case to have the truth of the facts in the application certified on the back of it by one, or if possible, two other persons.

The application and declaration must be sent at once to the Revising barrister of the district.

URGENCY OF THE MATTER.

No name not on the last voters' list or assessment roll will be placed on the preliminary voters' list, unless on application and declaration as above.

In case of any difficulty or doubt, application should be made at once for advice to some of the Liberal friends in the neighborhood.

McGregor's Speedy Cure.

When we say McGregor's Speedy Cure is the only perfect cure for dyspepsia, liver complaints, indigestion and impure blood, we are telling plain facts, of which hundreds upon hundreds can testify who have been restored to perfect health by its use. We would therefore advise you strongly if you are a subject of any of the above troubles to give McGregor's Speedy Cure a trial and be convinced. It is sold in 50c. and $1.00 bottles at Thomas S. Petrie's Drug Store.

By the bursting of her boiler the English tug Rifleman and her crew of six were blown to atoms. The cylinder of the engine struck a passing Italian ship a quarter of a mile away and killed the pilot.

The Toronto Street Railway Men Go Out on Strike

ON ACCOUNT OF LONG HOURS AND SMALL PAY.

(Special to the Mercury.)

TORONTO, Ont., March 10.—The street railway employees held a meeting last night and formed themselves into a branch of the Knights of Labor. They have been complaining for some time against long hours and small pay, and have several times discussed the advisability of forming a union. They have always been, however, frustrated by the company, who sometime ago made their employers sign, on pain of dismissal, a document binding themselves not to join a secret organization, while in their service. The officials got wind of the proposed meeting last night and hinted to the men that the Company would not permit them to continue work if they took the action contemplated, and sure enough when three hundred of them presented themselves for duty at the usual hour this morning their names were rubbed off the duty board. There is great excitement at the stables and the whole of night duty police have been sent for to preserve order, but their services are not needed, as nothing disorderly has occurred. The men shortly afterwards proceeded to the headquarters of the Knights of Labor. Very few cars are running this morning, but the number is being gradually increased. Hon. Frank Smith, President of the Company, in an interview said the question involved is that of men belonging to the Union. No Union men can remain in the employ of the Company, and he would die first before allowing them.

Marybourough Correspondence.

FIRE.—A farmer living on a rented farm near the village of Moorefield, on the tenth line of Maryboro, left his lantern burning in the stable while gone to church last Sunday evening. Meanwhile the lantern had exploded and the barn was soon in flames. As he had no children at home, and the neighbors at some distance, none of his cattle or implements were saved. He had seventeen head of cattle burned. The insurance on cattle and the contents of barn is $1,200, which will nearly cover loss of property.

CONCERT.—The temperance people of Harmony lodge on the burroway line which was organized a short time ago by the Mount Forest lodge, held a concert in the Methodist church last Thursday evening. The entertainment consisted chiefly of recitations, dialogues, vocal and instrumental music. The Rothsay lodge did not turn out to the concert as was expected. Their attractions were likely drawn elsewhere. The people that were there enjoyed the entertainment much.

COLLISION. — Some boys of Rothsay were sleighriding down the hill towards the mill last Friday evening, and came in contact with the Salvation Army as they came marching along, knocking several of them down, but doing no serious damage to the marchers.

LECTURE.—F. S. Spence delivered his lecture on "Matrimony" a short time ago in this village. The temperance people had him engaged to give this lecture two weeks before this time, on the night of their soiree, but he failed to make his appearance. He afterwards gave a suitable apology for the disappointment, and showed it by giving them a free lecture at a later date. We are certain in saying that none went away unbenefitted by his jovial and eloquent lecture.

SPECIAL SERVICES.—The Rev. A. M. McColough has started revival services in the Methodist church of this place. He expects to have a band of workers to his assistance before long.

BUILDING.—Two brick buildings are going to be erected this ic coming summer in this village, respectively by Joshua Gregory, the mill owner, and Henry Heseltine.

PERSONALS.—W. E. Oxby is to start for Iowa Wednesday. He is a carpenter by trade, and has been working for F. Beck in Sioux City, for the last two years. J. A. McLachlan, a carpenter of Galt, has been spending a few days with his friends in Maryboro.

THE many friends of Mr. Thomas A. Anderson of the editoral staff of the MERCURY, will learn with regret that he died this afternoon. He will be buried in the Union Cemetery to-merrow at half-past three.

THE "Sneezing song," words by W. H. Thurston, and music by Charles M. Ryan, Toronto, is one of the latest publications by Imrie & Graham, 26 and 28, Colborne street, Toronto. Both music and words are good and the song no doubt will be popular.

"FROST BITES" are ugly things; a nose or an ear swollen to twice its usual size is no more beautiful than it is comfortable. After trying many "cures" we come back and award the palm to Perry Davis' Pain Killer, "the old reliable," which affords relief quicker than any other thing we know of.

THE Rev. Dr. Torrance received yesterday a postal card from Fergus stating that the Rev. Dr. Smellie was very much worse, inflammation having set in. This news will be learned with regret by the many friends of the Doctor in Guelph. It will be remembered that a short time ago Mr. Smellie accidentally spilled a can of boiling water on his foot and was severely scalded.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.—On the 17th of March a dramatic entertainment, by the Guelph Catholic Union, under the patronage of the League of the Cross, will be given in the City Hall, in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital. The play will be Woodward's Temperance drama, entitled "The Social Glass." In mentioning this play the Frankfort Crescent says:—It is better than "Ten Nights in a Bar-room," and the temperance people everywhere cannot do better than encourage the production of this play.

THE BAIRD COMPANY.—The New Kathleen was well put on the stage last evening by the Baird Comedy troupe, and was received by the large audience with evident appreciation. Baird as Terence O'Moore, and Billy Buttoncup was the attraction of the evening. He is a whole show in himself. This evening, by request, the great moral drama of "Ten Nights in a Bar-room" will be given. To-morrow evening the laughable comedy of "Nip and Tuck" will be given for Mr. Baird's benefit, and it is to be hoped the beneficiary will be given a crowded house, as he richly deserves it at the hands of the pleasure loving portion of the community, for catering to their amusement at cheap prices.

NEW TRIAL OF "SHYLOCK."—It is understood the Knox Church Literary Association are preparing for their next public meeting somewhat of a novelty. This consists in the trying afresh of the astute Jew in Shakspere's "Merchant of Venice." It has been discovered that grevious injustice was done "Shylock" in "Portius'" sentence, that in fact new evidence can be brought forward to prove "Shylock" not such a bad fellow after all. A new trial has been moved for and granted, and a nineteenth century jury are to be asked to give their opinion on the subject. Mr. Peterson has kindly consented to act as Judge. Mr. G. W. Field and Mr. Williamson appear for the State of Venice, to prosecute "Shylock" and the redoubtable culprit will be defended by Mr. John A. Mowat and Mr. George Walker. Such a programme as this cannot be too highly commended. Besides affording amusement to the bystanders it will bring those interested into that closer study of the great English classics and that more intimate knowledge of the leading authors without which, perhaps, there can be no true refinement in our midst. When the trial comes on there will likely be a crowded court house.

DEATH OF AN AGED RESIDENT OF KINGSTON.—Mr. Masson, father of Mrs. Wardrope, of this city, died at Kingston on Friday morning at the advanced age of 95 years, and his remains were taken to Ottawa and buried on Saturday. Of this venerable gentleman the Kingston Whig says:—"The death is announced of a very old Kingstonian, one well in the nineties, Mr. Masson, father of Mrs. Macalister, wife of Alex. Macalister, surveyor of customs. The deceased came to Kingston in 1816, and has heretofore been identified with Kingston for a period almost patriarchal. For six years he was engaged in Government service on Lake Erie, and then settled down in Kingston at blacksmithing, being a model workman. Later he became a proprietor of the Kingston foundry, in partnership with the late Joseph Thirkell, and for many years conducted the business vigorously. Twelve years ago he moved to Ottawa to live with his son-in-law, Thomas McKay, miller, and his death occurred here during one of his periodical visits to his daughter. In youth and middle age he was a splendid specimen of Scottish physique and manhood, and vigor of constituion and careful living extended his life to an uncommon age, and gave him much strength for the enjoyment of later years. He was for a long period a faithful member and elder og St. Andrew's church."

The Brunswick cotton mill at Mosaly, England, has been burned. The loss is estimated at £60,000.

REMEMBER the conversazione in the Congregational Church to-morrow night. The programme is an unusually attractive one.

LAST night three sleigh loads of members of the Guelph Catholic Union went to Downey's School House to give an entertainment. The School House was crowded and the affair altogether was pleasing and atttractive.

THE deputation appointed by the City, Council, consisting of His Worship the Mayor, Ald. Hewer and Chadwick, left for Toronto to-day to wait on the Agriculture and Arts Association in connection with procuring the Provincial Exhibition for Guelph next year.

AN OUTSIDE OPINION.—Bishop Baldwin, of Huron diocese was in the city to-day on his way to Walkerton. While awaiting railway connection His Lordship took a stroll through the city and remarked to a reporter that he was greatly pleased with the substantial appearance of Guelph, and the many beautiful stone churches and other public buildings. "When I lived in Berlin some 20 years ago," said the Bishop, "Guelph was not half what it is in looks to-day, but nevertheless it was a thriving place. In those days farmers from twenty, thirty and probably forty miles around went to Guelph to market their produce. Judging from the substantial appearance of your town—which by the way I think is now a city—I should say that it gives an evidence of the character of the people."

FUNERAL OF MR. EVAN MCDONALD.—The funeral of the late Evan McDonald took place from his former residence this afternoon at half-past two o'clock, and was very largely attended. Noticeable in the large cortege was the presence of many of the old residents of this section. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Wardrope, of Chalmers' church, (Presbyterian) of which the deceased was a faithful, diligent and consistent member from the time of its organization up to his death. He was nearly all the time on the board of management, and took a lively interest in the affairs and prosperity of the congregation. The Rev. Dr. Torrance, an old and highly esteemed friend of the family, also took part in these last rites. Before and after the services at the house an opportunity was given to the numerous friends of the deceased to have a last look at the well-known face, which appeared very peaceful and as natural as when in life. The remains were enclosed in a handsome rosewood casket with silver mountings, the plate bearing the inscription "Evan McDonald, died March 8th, aged 68 years." The deceased objected to any unnecessary display in connection with funerals, but he was an admirer of nature, and would, if alive, have appreciated the floral offerings to any friend, which were sent as a last tribute of respect to one who was generally esteemed and respected. Noticeable among these mementos was an anchor from the Guelph Snow Shoe and Toboggan Club, composed of lilies, hyacinths, carnations with a Calla lily in the centre, and bearing the letters, in blue immortelles, "G. S. S. & T. C." The coffin was borne to the hearse by the following pall-bearers: Robert Forbes, John Thompson, David Stirton, James McIntosh, Wm. Hunter, and Geo. Murton. The cortege then proceeded to the Union Cemetery, where a prayer was offered up at the grave, and the remains consigned to their last resting place, to mingle with the dust of five generations of the family buried there. There were over a hundred and ten conveyances in the procession, and it took over ten minutes for the cortege to pass the corner of Market Square and Wyndham street.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Toronto, March 9.

Mr. Merrick moved in amendment to the Treasurers's bill respecting the Agricultural College that admission thereto be free, subject to the necessary qualifications.

The Treasurer thought that, as an experiment, the bill went far enough by giving to each county council the right to nominate a student. The amendment would involve a loss of revenue which the Government were not prepared to sustain.

Mr. Carnegie said that the amount involved was only $4000.

The Commissioner of Public Works charged the Opposition with systematic attempts to outbid the Government by always trying to go a little further on every possible occasion. He also poked fun at the misuse of the word "applications" for "applicants" in the amendment.

Mr. Creighton said the Opposition had as much right to propose alleged reforms as the Government. That the former were prepared to go faster and further than the latter was to the former's credit.

Mr. Preston moved that the bill go to Committee of the Whole.

Both amendments were defeated, and after it had been explained that in the case of united counties there would be a right of nomination for each county the bill stood to enable its author to make clear the duration of the Advisory Board's tenure of office.

Mr. Fraser's bill to enable one municipality to enter another for the purpose of removing obstructions to natural drainage had its origin in litigation between certain townships in Leeds and Grenville, and was opposed by Mr. French as a private scheme urged by a member of the Government. The mover of the bill argued that all private interests would or could be conserved and protected under the proposed Act. His position, he said, was supported by the council of the united counties.

The bill was read a second time.

The Commissioner of Crown Lands moved the second reading of his bill to amend the Mining Act, the purpose of which was to raise the price of mining lands from $1 to $2 per acre.

The Attorney-General's bill respecting the provisional County of Haliburton was read a second time, as was also the Treasurer's bill to amend the Act respecting the taxation of patented lands in Algoma—in the direction of reduction.

The Provincial Secretary's bill respecting liquor licenses was considered in Committee of the whole. Its provisions have already been stated in these columns. Mr. Hardy was unable to define the power under this bill of License Inspectors to enter premises in Scott Act Counties. The subject was involved in some doubt, and he would look into it. Mr. Drury thought that the duty of the Province to enforce the Scott Act was clear. Mr. Hardy said the machinery was one thing and the legal power conferred on such machinery was another.

After recess Messrs. Hardy and Carnegie had a breeze with regard to the number of licenses issued in Peterboro', Hamilton, Ottawa, St. Catharines and elsewhere in excess of the legal limitation based upon the census. The Provincial Secretary promised to make inquiry as to the cause and character of these alleged excesses.

Mr. Conmee moved that Port Arthur be permitted to have more than the number of hotels prescribed by the Act in proportion to the population, as that town is exceptionally situated as the head of steamboat navigation and an important C. P. R. railway station. This clause carried.

The bill was reported with verbal amendments.

The House again went into Committee on the Attorney-General's bill for improving the practice of conveyancing and amending the law of property, which was reported. The same gentleman's bill respecting the estates of deceased persons was also put through Committee of the Whole.

The House adjourned at 11:10.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, March 9.

After routine to day Sir Hector Langevin moved that when the House adjourned it should stand adjourned until Thursday next (to-morrow being Ash Wednesday.) Carried.

Sir Hector Langevin presented a copy of the reports of the medical men appointed by the Government to examine into the mental condition of Louis Riel after his conviction.

Mr. Cameron (Huron) introduced a bill to amend the law of evidence in criminal cases. The bill was read a first time.

Mr. Blake called the attention of the Government to the fact that though Thursday next had been named for the discussion of Mr. Landry's motion respecting the execution of Riel, the Government had not brought down papers pertaining to his trial, etc., while, by allowing the motions for them to pass, it had admitted its obligations to bring them down. The same was true of the papers respecting the general Northwest troubles.

The Government made no answer.

The House adjourned at 3.35 p. m. till Thursday.

A Fire in Forest.

FOREST, Ont., March 9.—Last night a fire was discovered in Jones' frame block on King street, at the rear of the shop occupied by W. C. Dillon. It was thought to be extinguished, but about 11:30 o'clock the flames broke out again, and the block was destroyed, including all the buildings between the Franklin House and the O'Neil House. By the efforts of the citizens these hotels were saved, and the fire kept from extending to the buildings on the south side of the street. T. Jones' loss on the building will be about $4,000, insured; O'Neil's loss on building will be about $800, insured; John N. McKenzie's general stock, partly burned, the balance badly damaged by removal, insured for $3,600; W. C. Dillon's grocery stock, mostly removed, insured for $3,000; Frank Anderson, book store, stock nearly all burned, insured for $300; Charles Robinson, billiard room, tables saved, insured for $600; others damaged by removal, loss covered by insurance.

Council Proceedings.

To the Editor of the Mercury:

SIR,—I would not have troubled you further in reference to the proceedings of our august representatives, but so little interest is shown generally in the management of corporation affairs, that I believe a small portion of your columns may be usefully devoted thereto.

I am glad to see Alderman Cutten admits that my letter of the 4th calls for a reply, and only wish he had been more explicit in his attempted defence.

I may premise that I am not an Alderman, as Mr. Cutten supposes, and that I know nothing more of the Council proceedings than what your columns afford. Therein I read that the Finance Committee reported the tender of the Guelph Banking Company, which it recommended to be accepted, and that the report was adopted. The same evening it was urged, and by a vote of 8 to 7 it was agreed to, that this vacancy in the committee should be filled. If there was such urgency therefor as described by Ald. Coffee, and it had nothing to do with the transfer of debentures, perhaps Ald. Cutten would tell your readers what the important business was and relieve him openly of any unjust surmises in that respect.

The worthy Alderman admits my statement, that the dual position he occupies as an Alderman and contractor "is one which no one should accept," but gratifies his admission with a proviso, "if he has a beneficial interest in the contract." The beneficial part, the profit or loss question, the law makes no reference to and therefore the Alderman admits his false and illegal position. And here the special pleading of the lawyer intrudes in his letters trying to lead the reader to suppose that in his case law and public opinion should exempt him where others would be condemned, and endeavours to draw attention from his $10,000 contract by referring to some of his colleagues at the Council Board committing a similar wrong in supplying the corporation with drugs, clothing, &c. We sometimes read of delinquents drawing a red-herring across the track to destroy the scent; and Ald. Cutten is trying that dodge, but it will not work. Sometimes we hear of school boys wrangling, and when one is convicted of falsehood he attempts to justify himself by calling out, "you're another." If other aldermen do wrong that neither justifies nor palliates a similar offence on the part of others; it simply proves that human nature is the same now as it was eighteen hundred years ago, when the offender was addressed as a hypocrite, and told first to cast out the beam in his own eye.

Mr. Cutten ends by claiming that there is nothing unfair in the unequal representation of the Wards on the Finance Committee, because every member of it pays taxes for the omitted Ward of St. George, and that "they are sufficiently interested to see it gets fair play." Such a statement simply proves that he cannot see that any higher motives should govern our aldermen in the performance of their duties than self-interest, and thereby publicly proclaims his own moral disqualification for the office he holds.

Yours,

AN ELECTOR OF ST. GEORGE'S WARD.

Church Disestablishment.

LONDON, March 9.—In the House of Commons this evening Mr. Dillwyon (Liberal) moved to disestablish the Church of Wales.

Mr. Grey (Liberal) moved to reform instead of to disestabliah the Church of Wales.

Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt contended that the question of disestablishment of the Welsh and English Churches were involved and inseparable.

Mr. Grey's amendment was first adopted by a vote of 241 to 229, and then as a substitute for Mr. Dillwyon's motion was rejected by a vote of 346 to 49. In the first division the minority consisted of Liberals and Parnellites. In the second division the Parnellites left the House in a body. Messrs. Gladstone, Chamberlain, Morley and Trevelyan abstained from voting altogether.

The Toronto Street Railway Men Go Out on Strike

ON ACCOUNT OF LONG HOURS AND SMALL PAY.

(Special to the Mercury.)

TORONTO, Ont., March 10.—The street railway employees held a meeting last night and formed themselves into a branch of the Knights of Labor. They have been complaining for some time against long hours and small pay, and have several times discussed the advisability of forming a union. They have always been, however, frustrated by the company, who sometime ago made their employers sign, on pain of dismissal, a document binding themselves not to join a secret organization, while in their service. The officials got wind of the proposed meeting last night and hinted to the men that the Company would not permit them to continue work if they took the action contemplated, and sure enough when three hundred of them presented themselves for duty at the usual hour this morning their names were rubbed off the duty board. There is great excitement at the stables and the whole of night duty police have been sent for to preserve order, but their services are not needed, as nothing disorderly has occurred. The men shortly afterwards proceeded to the headquarters of the Knights of Labor. Very few cars are running this morning, but the number is being gradually increased. Hon. Frank Smith, President of the Company, in an interview said the question involved is that of men belonging to the Union. No Union men can remain in the employ of the Company, and he would die first before allowing them.

Maryborough Correspondence.

FIRE.—A farmer living on a rented farm near the village of Moorefield, on the tenth line of Maryboro, left his lantern burning in the stable while gone to church last Sunday evening. Meanwhile the lantern had exploded and the barn was soon in flames. As he had no children at home, and the neighbors at some distance, none of his cattle or implements were saved. He had seventeen head of cattle burned. The insurance on cattle and the contents of barn is $1,200, which will nearly cover loss of property.

CONCERT.—The temperance people of Harmony lodge on the burroway line which was organized a short time ago by the Mount Forest lodge, held a concert in the Methodist church last Thursday evening. The entertainment consisted chiefly of recitations, dialogues, vocal and instrumental music. The Rothsay lodge did not turn out to the concert as was expected. Their attractions were likely drawn elsewhere. The people that were there enjoyed the entertainment much.

COLLISION.—Some boys of Rothsay were sleighriding down the hill towards the mill last Friday evening, and came in contact with the Salvation Army as they came marching along, knocking several of them down, but doing no serious damage to the marchers.

LECTURE.—F. S. Spence delivered his lecture on "Matrimony" a short time ago in this village. The temperance people had him engaged to give this lecture two weeks before this time, on the night of their soiree, but he failed to make his appearance. He afterwards gave a suitable apology for the disappointment, and showed it by giving them a free lecture at a later date. We are certain in saying that none went away unbenefitted by his jovial and eloquent lecture.

SPECIAL SERVICES.—The Rev. A. M. McColough has started revival services in the Methodist church of this place. He expects to have a band of workers to his assistance before long.

BUILDING.—Two brick buildings are going to be erected this ieoming summer in this village, respectively by Joshua Gregory, the mill owner, and Henry Heseltine.

PERSONALS.—W. E. Oxby is to start for Iowa Wednesday. He is a carpenter by trade, and has been working for F. Beck in Sioux City, for the last two years. J. A. McLachlan, a carpenter of Galt, has been spending a few days with his friends in Maryboro.

THE "Sneezing song," words by W. H. Thurston, and music by Charles M. Ryan, Toronto, is one of the latest publications by Imrie & Graham, 26 and 28, Colborne street, Toronto. Both music and words are good and the song no doubt will be popular.

"FROST BITES" are ugly things; a nose or an ear swollen to twice its usual size is no more beautiful than it is comfortable. After trying many "cures" we come back and award the palm to Perry Davis' Pain Killer, "the old reliable," which affords relief quicker than any other thing we know of.

THE Rev. Dr. Torrance received yesterday a postal card from Fergus stating that the Rev. Dr. Smellie was very much worse, inflammation having set in. This news will be learned with regret by the many friends of the Doctor in Guelph. It will be remembered that a short time ago Mr. Smellie accidentally spilled a can of boiling water on his foot and was severely scalded.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.—On the 17th of March a dramatic entertainment, by the Guelph Catholic Union, under the patronage of the League of the Cross, will be given in the City Hall, in aid of St. Joseph's Hospital. The play will be Woodward's Temperance drama, entitled "The Social Glass." In mentioning this play the Frankfort Crescent says:—It is better than "Ten Nights in a Bar-room," and the temperance people everywhere cannot do better than encourage the production of this play.

THE BAIRD COMPANY.—The New Kathleen was well put on the stage last evening by the Baird Comedy troupe, and was received by the large audience with evident appreciation. Baird as Terence O'Moore, and Billy Buttoncup was the attraction of the evening. He is a whole show in himself. This evening, by request, the great moral drama of "Ten Nights in a Bar-room" will be given. To-morrow evening the laughable comedy of "Nip and Tuck" will be given for Mr. Baird's benefit, and it is to be hoped the beneficiary will be given a crowded house, as he richly deserves it at the hands of the pleasure loving portion of the community, for catering to their amusement at cheap prices.

NEW TRIAL OF "SHYLOCK."—It is understood the Knox Church Literary Association are preparing for their next public meeting somewhat of a novelty. This consists in the trying afresh of the astute Jew in Shakspere's "Merchant of Venice." It has been discovered that grevious injustice was done "Shylock" in "Portius'" sentence, that in fact new evidence can be brought forward to prove "Shylock" not such a bad fellow after all. A new trial has been moved for and granted, and a nineteenth century jury are to be asked to give their opinion on the subject. Mr. Peterson has kindly consented to act as Judge. Mr. G. W. Field and Mr. Williamson appear for the State of Venice, to prosecute "Shylock" and the redoubtable culprit will be defended by Mr. John A. Mowat and Mr. George Walker. Such a programme as this cannot be too highly commended. Besides affording amusement to the bystanders it will bring those interested into that closer study of the great English classics and that more intimate knowledge of the leading authors without which, perhaps, there can be no true refinement in our midst. When the trial comes on there will likely be a crowded court house.

DEATH OF AN AGED RESIDENT OF KINGSTON.—Mr. Masson, father of Mrs. Wardrope, of this city, died at Kingston on Friday morning at the advanced age of 95 years, and his remains were taken to Ottawa and buried on Saturday. Of this venerable gentleman the Kingston Whig says:—"The death is announced of a very old Kingstonian, one well in the nineties, Mr. Masson, father of Mrs. Macalister, wife of Alex. Macalister, surveyor of customs. The deceased came to Kingston in 1816, and has heretofore been identified with Kingston for a period almost patriarchal. For six years he was engaged in Government service on Lake Erie, and then settled down in Kingston at blacksmithing, being a model workman. Later he became a proprietor of the Kingston foundry, in partnership with the late Joseph Thirkell, and for many years conducted the business vigorously. Twelve years ago he moved to Ottawa to live with his son-in-law, Thomas McKay, miller, and his death occurred here during one of his periodical visits to his daughter. In youth and middle age he was a splendid specimen of Scottish physique and manhood, and vigor of constitution and careful living extended his life to an uncommon age, and gave him much strength for the enjoyment of later years. He was for a long period a faithful member and elder og St. Andrew's church."

The Brunswick cotton mill at Mossly, England, has been burned. The loss is estimated at £60,000.

REMEMBER the conversazione in the Congregational Church to-morrow night. The programme is an unusually attractive one.

LAST night three sleigh loads of members of the Guelph Catholic Union went to Downey's School House to give an entertainment. The School House was crowded and the affair altogether was pleasing and atttractive.

THE deputation appointed by the City Council, consisting of His Worship the Mayor, Ald. Hewer and Chadwick, left for Toronto to-day to wait on the Agricultural and Arts Association in connection with procuring the Provincial Exhibition for Guelph next year.

AN OUTSIDE OPINION.—Bishop Baldwin, of Huron diocese was in the city to-day on his way to Walkerton. While awaiting railway connection His Lordship took a stroll through the city and remarked to a reporter that he was greatly pleased with the substantial appearance of Guelph, and the many beautiful stone churches and other public buildings. "When I lived in Berlin some 20 years ago," said the Bishop, "Guelph was not half what it is in looks to-day, but nevertheless it was a thriving place. In those days farmers from twenty, thirty and probably forty miles around went to Guelph to market their produce. Judging from the substantial appearance of your town—which by the way I think is now a city—I should say that it gives an evidence of the character of the people."

FUNERAL OF MR. EVAN MCDONALD.—The funeral of the late Evan McDonald took place from his former residence this afternoon at half-past two o'clock, and was very largely attended. Noticeable in the large cortege was the presence of many of the old residents of this section. The funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Wardrope, of Chalmers' church, (Presbyterian) of which the deceased was a faithful, diligent and consistent member from the time of its organization up to his death. He was nearly all the time on the board of management, and took a lively interest in the affairs and prosperity of the congregation. The Rev. Dr. Torrance, an old and highly esteemed friend of the family, also took part in these last rites. Before and after the services at the house an opportunity was given to the numerous friends of the deceased to have a last look at the well-known face, which appeared very peaceful and as natural as when in life. The remains were enclosed in a handsome rosewood casket with silver mountings, the plate bearing the inscription "Evan McDonald, died March 8th, aged 68 years." The deceased objected to any unnecessary display in connection with funerals, but he was an admirer of nature, and would, if alive, have appreciated the floral offerings to any friend, which were sent as a last tribute of respect to one who was generally esteemed and respected. Noticeable among these mementos was an anchor from the Guelph Snow Shoe and Toboggan Club, composed of lilies, hyacinths, carnations with a Calla lily in the centre, and bearing the letters, in blue immortelles, "G. S. S. & T. C." The coffin was borne to the hearse by the following pall-bearers: Robert Forbes, John Thompson, David Stirton, James McIntosh, Wm. Hunter, and Geo. Murton. The cortege then proceeded to the Union Cemetery, where a prayer was offered up at the grave, and the remains consigned to their last resting place, to mingle with the dust of five generations of the family buried there. There were over a hundred and ten conveyances in the procession, and it took over ten minutes for the cortege to pass the corner of Market Square and Wyndham street.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Toronto, March 9.

Mr. Merrick moved in amendment to the Treasurers's bill respecting the Agricultural College that admission thereto be free, subject to the necessary qualifications.

The Treasurer thought that, as an experiment, the bill went far enough by giving to each county council the right to nominate a student. The amendment would involve a loss of revenue which the Government were not prepared to sustain.

Mr. Carnegie said that the amount involved was only $4000.

The Commissioner of Public Works charged the Opposition with systematic attempts to outbid the Government by always trying to go a little further on every possible occasion. He also poked fun at the misuse of the word "applications" for "applicants" in the amendment.

Mr. Creighton said the Opposition had as much right to propose alleged reforms as the Government. That the former were prepared to go faster and further than the latter was to the former's credit.

Mr. Preston moved that the bill go to Committee of the Whole.

Both amendments were defeated, and after it had been explained that in the case of united counties there would be a right of nomination for each county the bill stood to enable its author to make clear the duration of the Advisory Board's tenure of office.

Mr. Fraser's bill to enable one municipality to enter another for the purpose of removing obstructions to natural drainage had its origin in litigation between certain townships in Leeds and Grenville, and was opposed by Mr. French as a private scheme urged by a member of the Government. The mover of the bill argued that all private interests would or could be conserved and protected under the proposed Act. His position, he said, was supported by the council of the united counties.

The bill was read a second time.

The Commissioner of Crown Lands moved the second reading of his bill to amend the Mining Act, the purpose of which was to raise the price of mining lands from $1 to $2 per acre.

The Attorney-General's bill respecting the provisional County of Haliburton was read a second time, as was also the Treasurer's bill to amend the Act respecting the taxation of patented lands in Algoma—in the direction of reduction.

The Provincial Secretary's bill respecting liquor licenses was considered in Committee of the whole. Its provisions have already been stated in these columns. Mr. Hardy was unable to define the power under this bill of License Inspectors to enter premises in Scott Act Counties. The subject was involved in some doubt, and he would look into it. Mr. Drury thought that the duty of the Province to enforce the Scott Act was clear. Mr. Hardy said the machinery was one thing and the legal power conferred on such machinery was another.

After recess Messrs. Hardy and Carnegie had a breeze with regard to the number of licenses issued in Peterboro', Hamilton, Ottawa, St. Catharines and elsewhere in excess of the legal limitation based upon the census. The Provincial Secretary promised to make inquiry as to the cause and character of these alleged excesses.

Mr. Conmee moved that Port Arthur be permitted to have more than the number of hotels prescribed by the Act in proportion to the population, as that town is exceptionally situated as the head of steamboat navigation and an important C. P. R. railway station. This clause carried.

The bill was reported with verbal amendments.

The House again went into Committee on the Attorney-General's bill for improving the practice of conveyancing and amending the law of property, which was reported. The same gentleman's bill respecting the estates of deceased persons was also put through Committee of the Whole.

The House adjourned at 11:10.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, March 9.

After routine to day Sir Hector Langevin moved that when the House adjourned it should stand adjourned until Thursday next (to-morrow being Ash Wednesday.) Carried.

Sir Hector Langevin presented a copy of the reports of the medical men appointed by the Government to examine into the mental condition of Louis Riel after his conviction.

Mr. Cameron (Huron) introduced a bill to amend the law of evidence in criminal cases. The bill was read a first time.

Mr. Blake called the attention of the Government to the fact that though Thursday next had been named for the discussion of Mr. Landry's motion respecting the execution of Riel, the Government had not brought down papers pertaining to his trial, etc., while, by allowing the motions for them to pass, it had admitted its obligations to bring them down. The same was true of the papers respecting the general Northwest troubles.

The Government made no answer.

The House adjourned at 3.35 p. m. till Thursday.

A Fire in Forest.

FOREST, Ont., March 9.—Last night a fire was discovered in Jones' frame block on King street, at the rear of the shop occupied by W. C. Dillon. It was thought to be extinguished, but about 11:30 o'clock the flames broke out again, and the block was destroyed, including all the buildings between the Franklin House and the O'Neil House. By the efforts of the citizens these hotels were saved, and the fire kept from extending to the buildings on the south side of the street. T. Jones' loss on the building will be about $4,000, insured; O'Neil's loss on building will be about $800, insured; John N. McKenzie's general stock, partly burned, the balance badly damaged by removal, insured for $3,600; W. C. Dillon's grocery stock, mostly removed, insured for $3,000; Frank Anderson, book store, stock nearly all burned, insured for $300; Charles Robinson, billiard room, tables saved, insured for $600; others damaged by removal, loss covered by insurance.

Council Proceedings.

To the Editor of the Mercury:

SIR,—I would not have troubled you further in reference to the proceedings of our august representatives, but so little interest is shown generally in the management of corporation affairs, that I believe a small portion of your columns may be usefully devoted thereto.

I am glad to see Alderman Cutten admits that my letter of the 4th calls for a reply, and only wish he had been more explicit in his attempted defence.

I may premise that I am not an Alderman, as Mr. Cutten supposes, and that I know nothing more of the Council proceedings than what your columns afford. Therein I read that the Finance Committee reported the tender of the Guelph Banking Company, which it recommended to be accepted, and that the report was adopted. The same evening it was urged, and by a vote of 8 to 7 it was agreed to, that this vacancy in the committee should be filled. If there was such urgency therefor as described by Ald. Coffee, and it had nothing to do with the transfer of debentures, perhaps Ald. Cutten would tell your readers what the important business was and relieve him openly of any unjust surmises in that respect.

The worthy Alderman admits my statement, that the dual position he occupies as an Alderman and contractor "is one which no one should accept," but gratifies his admission with a proviso, "if he has a beneficial interest in the contract." The beneficial part, the profit or loss question, the law makes no reference to and therefore the Alderman admits his false and illegal position. And here the special pleading of the lawyer intrudes in his letters trying to lead the reader to suppose that in his case law and public opinion should exempt him where others would be condemned, and endeavours to draw attention from his $10,000 contract by referring to some of his colleagues at the Council Board committing a similar wrong in supplying the corporation with drugs, clothing, &c. We sometimes read of delinquents drawing a red-herring across the track to destroy the scent; and Ald. Cutten is trying that dodge, but it will not work. Sometimes we hear of school boys wrangling, and when one is convicted of falsehood he attempts to justify himself by calling out, "you're another." If other aldermen do wrong that neither justifies nor palliates a similar offence on the part of others; it simply proves that human nature is the same now as it was eighteen hundred years ago, when the offender was addressed as a hypocrite, and told first to cast out the beam in his own eye.

Mr. Cutten ends by claiming that there is nothing unfair in the unequal representation of the Wards on the Finance Committee, because every member of it pays taxes for the omitted Ward of St. George, and that "they are sufficiently interested to see it gets fair play." Such a statement simply proves that he cannot see that any higher motives should govern our aldermen in the performance of their duties than self-interest, and thereby publicly proclaims his own moral disqualification for the office he holds.

Yoars,

AN ELECTOR OF ST. GEORGE'S WARD.

Church Disestablishment.

LONDON, March 9.—In the House of Commons this evening Mr. Dillwyon (Liberal) moved to disestablish the Church of Wales.

Mr. Grey (Liberal) moved to reform instead of to disestablish the Church of Wales.

Sir Wm. Vernon Harcourt contended that the question of disestablishment of the Welsh and English Churches were involved and inseparable.

Mr. Grey's amendment was first adopted by a vote of 241 to 229, and then as a substitute for Mr. Dillwyon's motion was rejected by a vote of 346 to 49. In the first division the minority consisted of Liberals and Parnellites. In the second division the Parnellites left the House in a body. Messrs. Gladstone, Chamberlain, Morley and Trevelyan abstained from voting altogether.

All such being in the city should call on Mr. Hugh McMillian, over the Federal Bank, who will see that the application is filled up and the proper declaration made. By so doing an important step will be taken towards obtaining the franchise. It should be especially noted that being thus placed on the Dominion voters' list does not make a man subject to income tax.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G MAR. 10, 1886.

The Population of the Northwest

Our readers may remember that during the last session of Parliament an act was passed for taking the population in the Northwest Territories. These census returns have recently been completed and were laid before Parliament last week. We find from them that in the District of Assiniboia, the number of males were 13,324, the number of females 8,759; total population 22,083. In the District of Saskatchewan the number of males were 5,447, the number of females 5,299; total population 10,746. In the District of Alberta the number of males were 8,342, the number of females 7,191, total population 15,533. Adding the numbers in these three districts together, it will be seen that the total population is 48,362. According to origins the people are classified as follows:—23,344 whites, 4,848 half breeds, and 20,170 Indians. If we add to this the population in Manitoba, which is said to be about 120,000, we have a grand total of close on a 170,000 people in the Prairie Province and in the three Territories.

When we consider that Manitoba has been open for settlement for nearly sixteen years, that it had a fair start in respect to population when Canada obtained possession of the country from the Hudson Bay Co., and that the fertile portions of the Territories have been open for settlement for at least five years, this population is far short of what we had good reason to expect, and far short of what it would have been had the policy of the Government been at all favourable to settlers. But we all know in Canada, and it has been well known for a long time in Britain and on the continent of Europe, that settlers looking for free grants of land in our Northwest Territories are not treated fairly. In the first place the Pacific Railway Co. were allowed to choose their lands where they liked, and for a long time, they refused to sell any alongside the railway. Then the Government land regulations were in every way unfriendly to the settler. Immense tracts were sold to speculators, who refused to sell unless at a great profit. The Government too in withholding every alternate section for a time often deprived the settler of his choice of a lot, and this policy also greatly retarded the close settlement of the public lands. Some of the conditions of settlement were also unfair, not to say harsh. All these annoyances and obstructions met the settler on his arrival in the country. Disgusted with his treatment, and disappointed in realizing his hopes and expectations, he commonly shook the dust off his feet, crossed the border into Dakota, took up land under the more favorable regulations of the United States Government, and became a valuable addition to the population of that country.

It is in this way that the United States have benefited so largely by the influx of immigrants from the old country, but more especially by the influx of settlers from the older Provinces of Canada, who were deterred from settling in our own Territories by the unjust land laws of our Government, or who after they had arrived in the Northwest were practically driven out of the country because they could not get land where they wanted it. To add to all these hindrances came the rebellion of last spring, which frightened settlers from coming in, especially those from Europe. Our hopes of the early and quick settlement of the Northwest have thus been rudely dispelled. We hold the present Government largely responsible for this. Its policy throughout has been wholly inimical to the settler and in favor of the speculator and the land grabber, and to-day we are reaping the fruits of it in a small and scattered population in the Territories, which from present appearances will increase as slowly in the future as it has done in the past.

SUPREME COURT.

The End of Three Protracted Law Suits.

The three cases of Petrie, Ingles and Stewart, plaintiffs, against The Guelph Lumber Company and Messers. McLean, Guthrie, Hogg and Ferguson defendants, have resulted as our readers are aware from first to last in favor of the defendants. The first action was brought in January 1880. The claims set up by the plaintiffs were that they had been induced to subscribe for stock amounting in all to $6000, in the Company by a prospectus which contained misrepresentations, and they sought to recover this amount with interest. The defendants denied the charge and the actions came to trial in November 1881 before Mr. Justice Ferguson in Toronto and after a protracted investigation extending over fourteen days the Judge rendered his decision in all the cases in favor of defendants and dismissed the actions with costs. The plaintiffs then appealed to the Court of Appeals for Ontario and that court in January 1885 unanimously sustained the judgment of Mr. Justice Ferguson and dismissed the appeals in all the cases with costs. The Judges of the Court of Appeal who rendered this judgment were Chief Justice Hagarty, and Justices Burton, Patterson and Osler. Messrs. Petrie, Inglis and Stewart next appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada at Ottawa. and that court consisting of Sir William Ritchie, Chief Justice, and Judges Fournier, Taschereau and Gwynne on Monday last unanimously decided to uphold the previous decisions in favor of the defendants, and also dismissed the appeals in all the cases with costs. The costs therefore in all the Courts fall upon Messrs. Petrie, Inglis and Stewart. There can be no further appeal in these cases and the litigation is thus at an end.

CAMPBELL'S

is effective in small doses, acts without griping, does not occasion nausea, and will not create irritation and congestion as do many of the usual cathartics administered in the form of Pills, &c.

Ladies and Children having the most sensitive stomachs take this medicine without trouble or complaint.

CAMPBELL'S CATHARTIC COMPOUND is especially adapted for the cure of LIVER COMPLAINTS AND BILIOUS DISORDERS. FOR ACID STOMACH AND LOSS OF APPETITE. FOR SICK HEADACHE AND DYSPEPSIA. FOR CONSTIPATION OR COSTIVENESS. FOR ALL COMPLAINTS ARISING FROM A DISORDERED STATE OF THE STOMACH.

This medicine being in liquid form, the dose can be easily regulated to meet the requirements of different persons, thus making it equally well adapted to the use of the little child as to the adult. Put up in three ounce bottles, and sold by all dealers in family medicines.

Price Retail, 25 Cents.

CAMPBELL'S

TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

Sold by all Dealers in Family Medicines.

Price, $1 per Bottle, or Six Bottles for $5.

THE RAILWAY STRIKES.

Five Thousand Non-Striking Employees Affected.

ST. LOUIS, March 9.—The managers of the Missouri Pacific railway offices in this city to-day notified their clerks that they had decided to relieve them from duty indefinitely. This action has been taken to curtail expenses during the strike. The order affects sixty telegraph operators and 200 office clerks. The Iron Mountain road has taken the same step as Little Rock.

ST. LOUIS, MO., March 9.—It is said that for the first time in the history of railroad strikes the employees not interested in the cause are affected by the action of a portion of employees in separate and distinct departments. This morning an order was issued by H. M. Hoxie, first vice-president of the Missouri Pacific road, to the heads of all departments of the road to at once dispense with the service of every clerk, telegraph operator, conductor, and in fact every employee not positively necessary to the company in its present crippled condition. This means that over 100 telegraph operators, 1,500 freight house hands, 800 clerks, 150 crossing watchmen, 100 to 150 firemen, and many other employees on the Missouri Pacific are let out for the time being. It is quietly understood that the engineers will receive at least half pay, and that the firemen who are not in the strike will be treated likewise. The conductors will receive pay only when they run, and this is equal to suspending nearly 400 freight conductors and others necessary to the running of local and through freights. All told it is stated that nearly 5,000 persons not interested in the present strike will suffer the loss of their salaries until the Knights return to work.

Retrospective.

FEBRUARY 27th, 1886.

It is just one year since the opening of my new business at 27 Lower Wyndham Street was announced. The retrospect is a pleasant one. The motto was and has been "Never fear to do right." The policy of the business was to sell good, reliable goods at a fair moderate profit, to sell strictly for cash to always pay and demand one hundred cents for every dollar, to offer customers our best efforts without boring them to buy, to make it a pleasure to call at our store, to eschew all bombast and exaggeration, to keep a sharp look out for advantages to our customers, to unite their interests with our own, to strictly mind our own business, to win the confidence of all our Patrons. Under the blessings of a kind Providence, the year just closed has been a most prosperous and satisfactory one. Our name and reputation have been established, our sales were 50 per cent more than our highest anticipations, and the result of the year's business very encouraging and satisfactory. Our hearty thanks are tendered to our many patrons.

PROSPECTIVE.

The same principles, riper experience, wider facilities, stronger efforts, increased confidence in the intelligence and discrimination of the public, determination and ability to meet the keenest legitimate competition, goods that will bear inspection and comparison and steady persevering effort, will be at the command of our patrons, and we have no fear that though the most strenuous efforts, legitimate and otherwise, will in the future as they have in the past be buzzing on every hand, the business at No. 27 will not only maintain but greatly strengthen the leading position which it has taken.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

OTTAWA, March 8.

Parliament has not yet seriously settled down to work. The Government so far have only introduced two bills, and these have not yet been printed. Most of the committees have been organized and will likely set to work this week. There was no speaking of any importance last week, except on the motion made by Mr. Casey for the production of any instructions sent by the Government to Revising Officers. This gave rise to two or three spirited speeches by the mover, Mr. M. C. Cameron and others on the Opposition side, in which the inconsistencies and unworkable nature of the Franchise Act were clearly pointed out. It was also pointed out what different and contradictory constructions were put on the Act by different Revising Officers, and how some of these rejected applications to be put on the voters' list because of some trivial informality or technical error in making out the application. Its cumbrous and unjust provisions were again clearly pointed out, as they repeatedly were last session, and not a single member of the Government or a supporter of it rose to defend it. The fact is only one Conservative spoke—Mr. Dundas—and he complained that quite a number of applications by Conservative voters were thrown out by his Revising Officer. This may be true, but we are afraid it will be found that with the great majority of Revising Officers the objections to voters' applications will refer to Liberals and not to Conservatives.

Speaking of this Act as a whole, I would say that the conscensus of opinion among members is much more strongly in opposition to it even than it was last session. This is easily accounted for when we remember its provisions are now being brought into operation, and people find out how much trouble and expense it entails in carrying the Act into effect.

Mr. Landry's motion condemning the Government in executing Riel promises to be the great subject of discussion this week. There is no doubt he has brought it up with the connivance of, and under the direction of, the Government. He is one of those convenient, subservient tools who will do any amount of dirty work for his masters, and I have no doubt he was chosen for this job because no other French supporter of the Government could be found mean enough, and so lost to all sense of honor, as to be made the catspaw of the Government. Should the motion go to a vote without any qualifying amendment, there is little doubt it will cause a strange division among parties. Some of the Western Liberals will most likely vote for the motion because they conscientiously believe that the Government was right in allowing the law to take its course. But this will not in any sense commit them to an approval of the Government's course in connection with the Northwest rebellion, and they will be ready on this or on any other occasion to vote for a resolution expressing the severest condemnation of the Government in their whole policy respecting this Northwest trouble. If Sir John, therefore, by this catch motion thinks he will make capital out of the vote of the Liberals who may feel that Riel's execution was justifiable, he is very much mistaken, for on every other part of the Government policy they are a unit in their severe condemnation of him and his colleagues. It is, however, impossible at this writing to say what shape the debate will take, or what other motions or amendments on the subject may be moved. This afternoon when Landry's motion was reached Sir John Macdonald asked that it be made the first order of the day for Thursday, and that the discussion upon it be continued day by day till the motion be disposed of. He added that the Government would not present any budget or estimates until they knew how they stood with the House on this question. The Government by this dodge are endeavoring to frighten nervous supporters and get them into line by the threat that if there is an adverse vote an immediate dissolution and a general election will take place. We shall soon see, for the Government must shortly show their hand.

The member for Centre Wellington turned up last week. It is not known whether he or General Middleton have yet met, but it is said that he has a crow to pluck with Dr. Orton about the claim that he is the real hero of the Batoche fight, in advising the General to advance instead of retreat at the critical moment. It is said the General is very much annoyed at Orton's vapourings, and that he may bring it before Parliament in some shape or another. Meanwhile the Dr. threatens to revive some of his old schemes for making farmers rich, and has given notice that he will bring in a bill to establish a farmer's bank. You see the Doctor is always posing as the farmer's friend, and this latest piece of buncombe is designed as a sop to that class, or rather to those of the class who cannot see through the Doctor's humbugging design.

The citizens of Ottawa are just now being astonished at the wonderful display of beef exhibited by Hanrahan Bros., who at the last Guelph Christmas show bought from H. & I. Groff their celebrated steer "Ranger," which they slaughtered the other day. "Ranger" weighed 2,350 lbs., and the meat is a marvel of richness and fatness. Some of the finest cuts have been sold as high as 50 cents a pound. This animal, with the one which Satchell Bros. killed last Christmas, and which was bought from Walter West at the Guelph Christmas show, have given the people of Ottawa a pretty good idea of the splendid animals that are yearly fattened by the farmers and breeders about Guelph.

People writing to members during the sitting of Parliament should bear in mind that all letters and parcels to members go free of postage.

BAND STRIKE.—For some years past our brass band have been receiving $50 a year from the corporation. They this year asked to have the grant doubled. The Council do not feel disposed to give any increase, and in consequence the band boys have "stacked" the instruments belonging to the town in the Clerk's office. Unless the town fathers take possession of the brass themselves and learn to toot we are not likely to have much music this summer.

FORESTERS' SERMON.—Rev Mr McCosh, of Wingham, delivered a sermon on Sunday afternoon last, in the Town Hall here, referring particularly to the Order of Foresters. The brotherhood turned out in full force, as did also citizens generally, the hall being so crowded that numbers failed to gain admittance. The rev. gentleman occupied the pulpit in St. George's Church morning and evening.

A BREEZE.—The calm and unanimous manner in which our town fathers usually transact the business before the Board was somewhat changed on Friday night last. During the discussion relative to licensing the roller rink several members took a part, and that they had blood in their eye could be easily observed. Even the two distinguished gentlemen occupying chairs, one at each end of the table, clearly made it known that they cannot always govern their tempers. Spectators heartily enjoyed the proceedings.

FOR DAKOTA.—Mr H. H. Stiles, Minto, has sold his farm to Mr. Hugh Shannon, and intends soon removing to Dakota, preferring that State to our own Northwest Territories in the condition they now are, through the recklessness of the Ottawa authorities. Mr. Stiles has been a resident of Minto for a number of years past.

SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL.—A social, in connection with Knox Church here, was held in Sinclair's school house, Minto, on Friday evening last. Quite a number from town drove out. The proceeds amounted to $55.

ENTERTAINMENTS.—A concert in connection with St. George's Church will be held in the Town Hall to-morrow evening. A concert is being held this evening in the Methodist Church. A coloured family named Ball from St. Catharines are to take a leading part in the affair.

DOBSON'S LOGS.—People living near the river are looking for a lively time when a brake up takes place. as Mr Dobson has over 3,000 logs lying on the ice some three or four miles above the town and when they come they will likely clear away all obstructions.

Elora Correspondence.

CHANGE.—Mr Somer's left Elora on Wednesday last, and Mr Auger has disposed of his business and will soon follow. Both were good citizens, but they are replaced by gentlemen, who, no doubt, will be heartily welcomed by the people of Elora. Mr. Wells, military tailor, from Guelph, will occupy the blank in the sartorial line; while Mr Hugh Clark, of Salem, makes an admirable successor to Mr Auger. Mr Springer occupies Mr Somer's dwelling, and Mr P. J. Beatty has rented the shop which will be used for agricultural implements.

ENJOYING.—Mr Robert Hunter, of Pilkington, after visiting his friends here, started for his home in Dakota to be time for spring operations. Mr Hunter says that for about two hundred miles in Northern Dakota you appear to be passing through a long Canadian settlement, and that faces from Ontario are as common there as those of the ordinary American citizens.—Miss Coxhead, milliner and dressmaker, who has been in business here for some time, is about to take up her home in Detroit, where she will find a more extensive field of operations, and meet with higher appreciation of her abilities as a modiste.—A youthful pair, finding the course of love running roughly, as it sometimes does, and a stern parent standing at the door of the temple of Hymen, and threatening Cupid's votaries, with a forty below zero freeze, left Elora for parts unknown last week, and succeeded in getting the knot properly tied. Sim's son feels as happy as a spring lamb in May.

WEDDING BELLS.—There was a ripple on the placid surface of daily life in the City of Peace, on Thursday last, when Mr G. W. Fields, formerly of Elora, and now of Guelph, one of the most promising of the rising practitioners at the Bar in Wellington, became united in holy bonds to Lizzie, second daughter of Mrs Sem Wissler. The happy pair have the hearty good wishes of everybody in Elora and Salem.

OPEN MEETING.—On Friday evening last the members of the Elora Literary Society gave, what has been oddly enough termed by somebody or other, at some time or other, an open meeting. All the seats were filled. The programme was one of the ordinary character, supplemented by an exciting debate in which the supporters of Republicanism successfully squelched the defenders of monarchy. The music and recitations swere of a creditable character, and evinced careful training on the part of all concerned. Another entertainment will be given about Easter.

CONCERT.—On Tuesday evening next, Miss Jennie Watson, Mr Hardy and others will give one of their Scotch entertainments in the drill shed here, when a large turn-out is a certainity.

ACCIDENT.—On Thursday last, Mr Charles Anderson, while working in Kane's saw mill, lost his balance in handling a plank and came in contact with a circular saw. His left hand was nearly severed from his arm at the wrist, and it is feared that amputation will be necessary, while one of the fingers of the right hand was cut off. It is hoped that he will ultimately recover the use of his right hand. The unfortunate sufferer, under the skilful care of Dr. Savage, is doing as well as could be expected.

A SCENE.—On Thursday of last week a corpse was brought from the township of Peel for interment in the Elora cemetery, and a clergyman was in attendance to perform the ceremonies at the grave. The funeral party arrived there, when two of the daughters of the deceased asked that the lid of the coffin should be removed, so that they might look upon the features of their mother. There had, unfortunately, been family quarrels of a more than usually bitter character, and the brother became incensed and declared that as his sisters had not seen his mother while recently living, he would not permit them to look upon her when dead. An unseemly altercation ensued, but all attempts to gratify the wishes of the daughters were resisted by the brother, and nothing short of an appeal to force seemed likely to be of avail. The minister, disheartened at the display of such unchristian conduct, left the ground, and the corpse was interred without the reading of those solemn words of hope, which consign the dust to dust and ashes to ashes. For the credit of our community it is fervently hoped that such a scene may never be again witnessed in our pretty little city of the dead.

INSTANTANEOUS PHOTOGRAPHY.—Mr. John Connors, of Elora, has recently obtained one of the most remarkable effects in photography yet produced in Ontario. When the iron work of the new Irvine bridge was so far erected that a flooring could be laid, it was resolved to throw the woodwork of the old bridge into the deep gorge of the Irvine river. Mr. Connors, who is an enthusiast in the prosecution of his art, placed his camera in such position that the falling timbers would enter its field and used plates of the highest sensitive quality. Geo. Gray, standing upon the pier, permitted a large stone to fall at the moment when the timners were hurled into the chasm. Mr Connors watched his opportunity, closed the shutter of the camera as the timber passed the field, and secured a magnificent photograph, which gives not only the timbers as clearly as if perfectly stationary, but the stone dropped by young Gray, with its shadow upon the pier prominently marked. It is safe to say that a finer piece of instantaneous work never left the studio of any of our Canadian photographic artists. Mr Connor also secured a good picture of the recent railway wreck on the G. T. R., near Elora, which will doubtless be in great demand.

REFORM MEETING.—The Elora Liberal Association met on Friday evening and carefully examined the Dominion List of Voters, as prepared by the Revising Barrister. They find that but very few additions have been made to it, and that it will be necessary for new electors claiming votes to attend to the matter at once. Parties desirous of having their names placed on the list will oblige by communicating with Mr Frank Clark, Elora.

LECTURE.—On Sunday evening next, 14th inst, the Rev Hugh Rose will deliver his second lecture in Knox Church, Elora, on "Historic Confirmations of Scripture."

SHIPMENT.—Yesterday Mr J D Wallace, of Dakota, shipped a car load of horses from the Grand Trunk station here. These animals were all purchased in the county of Wellington, and, it is needless to say, were first class in every respect.

STOCK TAKING COMPLETED.

We find we have a little lot of remnants amounting in all to the sum of These must be cleared out within two weeks to make room for New Goods arriving daily.

NOW

In the lull which usually follows Stock taking before the heaviest of the Spring work begins when we will have less time for such a review, we would like to place before our patrons and the public generally the state of our business, and explain why we claim to sell so much cheaper than others.

Our business for the past year has been eminently satisfactory, we having done the largest Cash business which has been done in the Lion for the last six years. Now this in ordinary times would be very encouraging, but in hard times like the present, we consider it most satisfactory and indicative of a reign of prosperity for the Lion much beyond what it has had in the past. Of course we have not had as much opposition, our friend, Mr. Hogg not having applied himself so closely to business as in former years, but this would not explain entirely the great increase in our trade. The reasons are many. We will state a few:

Our Goods are all fresh and new.
Our Prices are Low.
Our Goods are all marked in plain figures.
We have only one price for all.
We handle the Goods the public want, and at prices to suit them.

NO WONDER WE SELL CHEAP.

It is no wonder we sell cheap, as we are almost under no expense. Our Discounts more than pay our salaries, and as we pay no rent, the two principal items of expense are taken out.

NOW LADIES

We astonished you with the variety and cheapness of our stock last Spring, but we expect to surprise you even more this Spring. We have now a resident buyer in Glasgow, who is always on hand to secure any novelties or cheap lines that are thrown on the British Market, so that we will always be a little ahead of others, both in style and value.

Entertainment in Nassagaweya.

The entertainment given in S. S. No. 5, Nassagaweya, on Friday evening was a great success. The evening being fine the school house was filled to the doors. The programme was long, but well carried through. The Fletcher family sang "Drifting with the Tide," in the first part and in the second part, "The merriest girl that's out," and as an encore sang especially well "Rock of Ages." Mr R. Brown, of Campbellville, fairly took the house by storm with his "Pee pee Show," an excellent comic song, and afterwards delighted the audience with "Miss Fogarty's Christmas Cake." He is a host in himself. Mr. Ed. Strange sang very nicely "Moonlight on Killarney" "Susan Jane," and "I will be true to thee." Mrs Hamilton sang "Ask me again and I will not say no," and secured an encore. Again she sang "Boston Fire," and in reply to an encore sang "The Bridge." This lady has an excellent voice, and displays a great taste in her singing, as in her selections, and is very little behind many of the star singers of the day. Jno Strachan sang "Jim Fisk." Two dialogues by Messrs McGregor, Marks and Norrish, and Messrs Gordon and Anderson, were well given. Mr Jno McGregor and Mr John Strachan recited the combat between "Fitzjames" and "Rodeck Dhu." Mr Brough recited William Tell's speech on "Liberty" and "Our Folks" very feelingly. The best piece of this part of the programme was a comedy entitled "Once too many for him." Messrs Brough and Stewart, and Misses Tovell, Stewart and Royce, formed the company. Where these parts were so well sustained all through it would be invidious to particularize, but Mr Brough, who had the heavy part, acted so well as to cause especially favorable comments. Mr D. Milne then favored the audience with a short, though fine magic lantern exhibition. Mr George Thomas filled the chair in a very satisfactory manner. God save the Queen brought to a close an unusually successful entertainment, the finances amounting to near $45.

Mineral Poison.

Nothing but pure extracts from plants and roots are used in preparing McGregor's Lung Compound, the modern and now popular remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis, croup, asthma, and all affections of the throat, lungs and chest. All mineral poisons and dangerous substances avoided, which renders it safe for children or adults. Sold at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at Thomas S. Petrie's Drug Store

Temperance.

To the Editor of the MERCURY:

SIR,—I ask permission to supplement your report of the late Temperance Convention in Fergus, especially as your report was so unusually meagre.

The letter of invitation by the Executive was headed "Important," and the design expressed in bringing the temperance people together was to make arrangements for the successful enforcement of the Scott Act after May first next.

Well, quite a number accepted the invitation, came together and in due time got down to deliberation.

The Executive brought in a report in which were embodied a number of suggestions, the principal of which were thorough local organization; the employment of a competent person to lecture and organize; a detective force under the Executive, and working in harmony with the inspectors; and lastly, the raising of a fund of not less than $1,000 for the current year. This report being received and the suggestions taken up seriatum only the first was adopted, that of local organization. No lecturer or organizer was to be employed, the detective business was to be done by local men simply for the love of the thing, and the request for $1,000 was quickly changed to $500.

The Secretary, seeing, I suppose, the impossibility of doing anything effectively on such a basis, at once tendered his resignation, whereupon this magnanimous Convention voted $200 to the office and requested him earnestly to continue to fill it.

They then proceeded to find fault with our present Inspectors and resolved to demand at least 2 changes, whereby men more alive to the duties of the office shall be appointed, and with this transaction the members separated.

Now, Mr Editor, I was there not as a speaker nor as an indifferent spectator. I listened well. I saw everything. Some really good things were said and done; but on the whole I was not impressed at all favorably. The vast majority seemed wholly unprepared for any sacrifice necessary in enforcing the temperance law! This was evident by the applause that was given the speakers whose object was to show how the work could be done by voluntary effort, and hence without necessary outlay, as well as by the resolution to raise the paltry sum of five hundred dollars for the whole county.

And of this small sum how much will come into the treasury? Judging from past experience not more than $350. Out of this the General Secretary gets $200, thus leaving a balance of $150 to carry on for 12 months, over the large area of Wellington, a struggle with a traffic in which are engaged men considerable in numbers, in wealth, and thoroughly united in the policy of resistance.

Why, sir, very soon after the morning of the first of May a case of suspected violation of the Act will come before the courts, a competent lawyer must be engaged to assist the prosecution. That case, it is safe to say, will be appealed. Money is required again to sustain the appeal. Meantime cases come on thick and fast, Legal and other expenses will be required in each case if any thing practical is to come out of the contention. How far will $150 go in this path?

However, the liquor traffic in Wellington is not likely to be prosecuted in such a vigorous fashion. They will be left almost entirely to the mercies, always tender, of the public officials, and the Scott Act will be once more a failure by the niggardliness of temperance men in this county. Fortunately they are not so every where, as witness Leeds and Grenville raising $1300 this year for the enforcement of the law.

Yours very truly
A FRIEND OF TEMPERANCE.

THE FRANCHISE ACT.

The Qualifications of Voters—The Process of Registration Explained.

The time having arrived for the preparation of the voters' lists under the new Dominion Franchise Act, an appeal is made to the Liberals of Wellington to have their names enrolled as voters without delay. To assist in so doing a short summary of the qualification of voters and of the process for securing registration s given.

QUALIFICATION.

To entitle a person to be put on the list he must be—

(1) 21 years of age.

(2) A British subject by birth or naturalization.

(3) Owner of real property of value
In a city, $300.
In a town, $200.
In a county, $150.

(4) Or tenant of real property under ease at a rental of
$2 per month.
$6 per quarter.
$12 per half year.
$20 per year.

Provided that the tenant has been in possession for one year before 1st January 1886, and shall have paid one year's rent before final revision.

If the rent is yearly it will be sufficient if $20 of last year's rent shall have been paid before final revision.

Change of tenancy without intermission will not destroy the vote if aggregate of tenancies would give vote.

The assessor should be instructed state in the assessment roll the rent payable by each person assessed as tenant. If, however, this is not done, each tenant is prima facie entitled to be registered as a voter if the property is assessed at the following values:—

In cities at $300.
In towns at $200.
In counties at $150.

In counties outside of villages the rent may be payable either in money or in money's worth.

(5) Or a bona fide occupant for one year before 1st January, 1886, and enjoying the revenues and profits for his own or his wife's use of real property of the following values:

In cities, $300.
In towns, $200.
In counties, $150.

The occupancy may be under license of occupation from the crown or from any person or corporation.

(6) Or by income without any other qualification.

A person may be registered as an income voter, if he derives an income from his earnings, trade or profession, or from some investment in Canada of $300 a year, for one year before 1st January, 1886.

In counties the earnings may be either in money or money's worth.

(7) Sons of owners of real property are qualified—

(a) Where the father is living and a son or sons living with him continuously for one year before 1st January, 1886, and the property is sufficient in value according to the above figures, if divided between them to give them all votes. If not sufficient to qualify all the sons and the father, then the father and only so many sons as the property will qualify can be enrolled, and in such case the eldest son will be preferred, and then the next elder, and so on.

(b) When the father is dead, and would, if living, be qualified, residence with the mother will suffice, and as many sons as the property will qualify may be registered, with preference to the eldest and elder sons, as in the last case.

Occasional absence from home of a son—not more than six months in the year—will not disqualify, and all time spent at school or college in Canada will be counted as if spent at home.

Son of an owner includes grandson, step-son and son-in-law, and all these may be registered as voters on the property if of sufficient value. The provision as to sons of owners applies to the counties as well as towns and cities in cases other than those of farmers' sons.

(8) Farmers' sons—The same provisions substantially apply to farmers' sons, as stated in the last paragraph in respect of sons of owners in cities and towns.

A farm is to be not less than 20 acres of land.

(9) Fishermen and owners of real property and boats, nets, fishing gear and tackle of aggregate value of $150.

Income voters register where they reside at time of registration—all others where property is situate. If in more than one polling division in the same electoral district the voter may register in either.

All names entered in the last revised voters' lists under the old law, will be entered in the new lists by the revising barrister.

Every person not on the assessment roll desiring to have his name on the list must at once send to the revising barrister an application in writing to be put on the list, giving his name, residence and the property or other qualification in respect of which he applies to be put on.

This application must be accompanied by a declaration which is to be made and signed before a commissioner for taking affidavits, a notary or justice of the peace, showing the grounds of the applicants claim to be put on the list.

Substantially the voters are those who can qualify as owners, tenants, occupants, income voters, sons of owners and farmers' sons.

See that the application shows as correctly and fully as possible the qualification.

Make the declaration before a commissioner, notary or justice of the peace. It is convenient to have it attached to the application on the same sheet.

In case of an absent person, let some one else having a knowledge of the qualification make the application and declaration.

When one cannot find a justice or other person before whom the declaration can be taken let the application alone be sent in with an explanation of the reason, and it would be well in such case to have the truth of the facts in the application certified on the back of it by one, or if possible, two other persons.

The application and declaration must be sent at once to the Revising barrister of the district.

URGENCY OF THE MATTER.

No name not on the last voters' list or assessment roll will be placed on the preliminary voters' list, unless on application and declaration as above.

In case of any difficulty or doubt, application should be made at once for advice to some of the Liberal friends in the neighborhood.

Local News.

TO-NIGHT.—Young Ladies' Conversazione, in the Congregational church.

JOE O'DONNELL was before the Police Magistrate this morning and was sentenced to six months for vagrancy.

A SPECIAL meeting of the City Council is called to-night to consider a by-law for granting a bonus to Burr Bros.

MR. ALEX. BROWN, Galt, shipped to-day a car load of sheep and lambs, purchased in this neighborhood, for the Buffalo market.

DAN RICE, the one-time famous Shakespearian circus clown, is lecturing in Texas and is said to receive $500 a week for his oratorical ground and lofty tumbling.

MR. R. F. MATTHEWS, of the butcher firm of Jones & Matthews, has left for Collingwood to wind up his former business there, and will be absent for about a couple of weeks.

THE sultry sun of summer is approaching, and makes quite an impression on old Jack Frost. This morning the streets were a sheet of ice, and in the afternoon they are a sheet of water.

MR. ROBT. MITCHELL, grocer, has the sidewalk in front of his store somewhat obstructed by a shipment of pails for the maple sugar season. He received to-day a car load of these and other wooden ware.

MR. SAMUEL J. LAUGHLIN, designer in Bell's organ factory, has just completed a new and beautiful design of a double bank case with high pipe top. It is a magnificent piece of workmanship, and is certainly a credit to the designer.

Now comes the Minneapolis Tribune with an account of the cure of an inordinate appetite for tobacco in all its forms through a toboggan accident. This coming in the wake of a recent alleged cure of deafness through the same means will stimulate some one to establish a "toboggan cure" next winter.

SAYS an exchange: "Little Willie Buchanan, a drummer boy of the 90th, gets $500 from the Government. Willie was at Batoche." This is the same Willie Buchanan of whom Mr. Thomas Laidlaw, of Guelph, sang so touchingly about in the Glasgow Herald of a few weeks ago, and which appeared in last week's MERCURY.

A FUNNY case was tried at the Division Court in Paris the other day. A young lady with very pronounced blonde hair went to a barber to have it cut. He clipped it close. She had formerly been nicknamed "Red Head," and on the change her friends (or enemies) called her "Bald Head." She in consequence sued the barber. The jury awarded $5.

ALL WOOL AND A YARD WIDE.—Mr. Robertson, of Hamilton, has made application to the Minister of Inland Revenue on behalf of the fancy goods trade, asking that it should be made a penalty to have goods marked higher than their true weight or measurement. Complaint is made that manufacturers, presumably in collusion with wholesalers, put up 12 ounces of yarn as one pound, 75 yards of braid as 100 yards, and also cheat in the quantity of threads and other commodities. When the small dealers retail these goods they come out short.

A PECULIAR ACCIDENT.—A peculiar accident, which the attending physician says he has never seen paralleled in the course of his long practice, occurred in St. Thomas the other day. Wm. Wright was working in the Michigan Central shops, when a piece of wood flying from a neighboring circular saw struck him in the face, and a piece two and a half inches long buried itself between the eye and the socket. The piece was as thick as a man's thumb, and was completely hidden from sight. When it was removed, Mr. Wright found that he could still see out of the injured eye, and it is possible that the sight will not be lost.

TEN NIGHTS IN A BAR-ROOM.—Last evening the great moral temperance drama of "Ten Nights in a Bar-room" was given by the Baird troupe to a good house, and gave general satisfaction to all who witnessed it. The "Joe Morgan" of Barry Harvey, and the "Harvey Green" of Edwin Houghton were good. Miss Perrell as "Mary Morgan" excellently rendered, the part, Mr. Livingstone as "Sample Switchell" kept the audience in good humor. This evening Mr. Baird is tendered a benefit in which the serio-comic comedy of "Nip and Tuck" will be given. Give him a bumper house.

THE PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.—As was stated yesterday His Worship the Mayor, Ald. Hewer and Chadwick went to Toronto yesterday as a deputation from the City Council to endeavour to get the Provincial Exhibition for Guelph for this year. It will be seen from a despatch in another column that they succeeded in doing so, but at the same time having a hard fight against Ottawa. The terms are mentioned as satisfactory, and there is no doubt but that every effort will be put forth by citizens and others to make the exhibition a success. It was decided to hold the show September 20 and week following.

GOING TO THE PORTAGE.—Mr. Jas. Glennie, a well known breeder in this section, leaves on Tuesday for Portage la Prairie where he intends to go into farming. He will take with him a car load of stock and implements composed principally of a binder, mower, seeder and other implements purchased from Mr. Boothroyd, implement agent of this city, and a waggon, sleighs, harrows, &c., from the well known establishment of Mr. Chas. Thain, together with a pure bred Clydesdale mare, and a thoroughbred Shorthorn cow purchased at Mr. James Cowan's sale, also a span of matched black Percherons, and a Hereford cow and bull belonging to himself.

LITERARY NOTE FROM THE CENTURY CO.—The naval duel between the "Kearsarge" and the "Alabama" will be the war feature of the April Century. There will be three papers, profusely illustrated,—the first, "Life on the 'Alabama,'" written by one of the crew of the famous cruiser, containing the author's opinion of his officers and shipmates, an account of the two years' cruise, etc.; another paper is by the first officer of the "Alabama," Lieut. Kell; and a third is contributed by the surgeon of the "Kearsarge," Dr. Browne. The story of the "Monitor" and "Merrimac" fight, written by participants, was one of the most popular war features of the Century, and it is thought that these narratives will be found fully as interesting.

THE Rev. W. J. Pigott, of Acton, writes to say that our Rockwood correspondent was misinformed when he stated last week that he (Mr. Pigott) had resigned the charge of St. John's Church Rockwood.

LAST night McCutcheon and Brandon, of Guelph, and Moke of Waterloo, competed in Waterloo for a silver medal. McCutcheon came in first and Brandon a good second. The distance was two miles, and was done in six minutes and forty-seven seconds.

MESSRS. R. B. ORME and R. H. Morgan' of London Township, are in Guelph today with the object of purchasing Shorthorn bulls to improve the breed in Middlesex. They are inspecting the stock at the Ontario Agricultural College this afternoon.

MUNICIPAL.—To-morrow the elections for Aldermen to fill the place of Ald. Wells, resigned, for St. Patrick's Ward, and Ald. Hall, deceased, for St. John's Ward, will take place. Ex-Ald. Walker has filed his resignation with the City Clerk for St. John's Ward, consequently Mr. Chas. Raymond will be elected by acclamation. The contest in St. Patrick's Ward will rest between ex-Ald. Stull and ex-Ald. Hortop. The polling places will be as usual.

Death of Mr. Thos. A. Anderson.

Within the past few weeks death has been very busy in our midst, and one by one well known faces have been removed. The MERCURY office especially has to mourn to-day the loss of Mr. Thos. A. Anderson, who, since January of last year, was in the editorial department of the paper. Mr. Anderson was never of a robust constitution, and shortly before coming to Guelph he contracted a severe cold, the effects of which finally proved fatal, consumption having set in. He made a hard struggle with this relentless foe, and it was thought for a time that he would finally succeed, but since the setting in of the winter it became evident to his friends, who could no longer hide from themselves the fact, that he was gradually sinking, and his life was drawing near a close. It was a surprise to everyone with what persistency he fought against the disease which was slowly but surely sapping his life away. This can only be accounted for by his great will power, which seemed to conquer the affliction of the body, and he never succumbed until three weeks ago on Sunday, when he was subjected to a severe attack of hemorrhage of the lungs. On the Saturday previous he appeared to be in his usual good spirits, and being a practical printer, set up a few lines of type for amusement, to "keep his hand in shape," as he remarked. After the attack of hemorrhage above mentioned had spent itself, greatly weakening the patient, he recovered somewhat, and it was thought that he might rally for a time, but it was only for a time. He lingered on until half past one o'clock yesterday afternoon when he breathed his last, bearing his suffering with great fortitude.

Mr. Anderson was a writer of ability, and was also a poet of some note. He was born at Portsoy, Banffshire, Scotland, in 1849, and consequently was thirty-seven years of age at the time of his death. He first learned the printing business with his father, Mr. Thomas Anderson, now in Ottawa, who at one time published the Banffshire Reporter. At the age of 21 he started a job office in Turiff, which he carried on for four years, during which period he married Miss McLean, of the town of Inverness. He then sold out and immigrated to Ottawa, where he was employed on the staff of the Ottawa Free Press, and afterwards served a term on the Hansard, making his stay in Ottawa about two years in all. From thence he went to Prescott, and published for two years the Plaindealer. After that he removed to Strathroy, and went into partnership with Mr. Dingman. He remained there for about six months, when he purchased the Forest Free Press, which he conducted for four or five years. After selling this paper, he bought the Chatham Tribune, which he carried on for about six months. He was then appointed to a position on the Mail and on resigning this position he came to the MERCURY office. In all these places Mr. Anderson was held in the highest esteem. The deceased was of a genial disposition, and had it not been for his sickness which prevented his going out he would have no doubt become popular in social circles, yet nevertheless he endeared himself while here to many friends. He leaves a widow to mourn his loss, who has the sincere sympathy of many friends in Guelph in this dark hour of her bereavement.

Canada's First Cardinal.

QUEBEC, March 10.—The news of Mgr. Taschereau's elevation to the purple is confirmed, and is the subject of much rejoicing among his clergy and people here. His installation, however, will not take place until the June consistory, when a special Nuncio, a Nuncio Secretary, and a Guard Noble will be sent from Rome to Canada to bring the biretta, which will probably be delivered to the new Cardinal by Lieut.-Governor Masson as the highest Catholic civil dignitary in the Province.

THE RAILWAY STRIKE.

The Missouri Pacific Will Fight the Knights.

ST. LOUIS, March 10.—Superintendent Kerrigan, of the Missouri Pacific railway, has issued an order, expelling from the Pacific yards all Knights of Labor. The order states that the names of the Knights have been stricken from the rolls of the company. It is generally believed that the company are now employing new men to take the places of the strikers.

A Fort Worth, Tex., despatch says:—"The first trouble here between the Knights and non-Knights of Labor occurred this morning when the new men employed by the railway to run its engines were attacked while performing their duty and forced to vacate their cabs. The strikers then "killed" the engines. Quiet now prevails, but it is thought this is the beginning of serious trouble."

AGRICULTURE AND ARTS.

Forty-first Annual Meeting of the Ontario Association.

GUELPH CHOSEN FOR THIS YEAR'S PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.

TORONTO, March 10.—The forty-first annual meeting of the Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario was convened in Toronto to-day. Henry Parker, of Woodstock, was elected President, and J. C. Snell, Edmonton, Vice-President.

The Secretary's report gives the following information:—At the exhibition held in London last September, there were 11,662 entries. $18,953.25 was paid for premiums. The receipts from all sources outside of the grants was $15,229. Of this amount $9,569 was taken at the turnstiles. The report complained of the rain, which seemed to constitute itself a special feature of Provincial exhibitions. It also complained of the meanness of some of the citizens of London in getting up a deputation to wait upon the Commissioner to have the grant divided up among other associations, after the Ontario Agriculture and Arts Association had given them the best show they ever had.

It was decided to hold the next show September 20 and the week following, the choice of place being left over.

Dissatisfaction was expressed by the members of the board with the way in which the Provincial Exhibition was treated. Mr. Rykert, M. P., held that they had a right to hold their exhibition on the present industrial grounds in this city. They had a lien of $4,000 on the ground. Messrs. Rykert, Morgan, Wade and the President were appointed to look into the matter.

A discussion took place on the relative merits of oleomargarine and butter.

This motion by Mr. Legge was carried:

That Messrs. Legge, Morgan, Moore and Reid be a committee to memorialize the Dominion Government, asking them to pass a stringent law to prevent the importation, manufacture and sale, excepting under its true name, any article or product in imitation of natural butter or cheese, manufactured out of animals fat or vegetable oils, commonly known as oleomargarine, and that it be illegal to offer the same for sale except under its true name, and that the name of the article be stamped on each package, and that a high protective duty be placed on the importation or manufacture of the same.

The Council adjourned until this forenoon.

(Special to the Mercury.)

TORONTO, March 11.

The Provincial Exhibition goes to Guelph this year. Ottawa fought hard for it. The terms are satisfactory.

Militia and Defence.

The report of the Minister of Militia has been submitted to Parliament.

The militia expenditure for the year was $1,008,640. The expenditure for pensions was $23,216, distributed among 550 pensioners. The militia revenue for the year was $18,943. There is an apparent falling off in the numbers of the militia force in camps of instruction, but this is explained by the fact that the corps on service in the Northwest were exempt from the performance of the usual annual training in camp. The Deputy Minister says that, judging from the numerous requests from the different parts of the Dominion for permission to form new corps, the militia system is as popular as ever.

The reports appended to the general report indicate that the time has come when in order to procure a proper equipment for our Engineer Corps some additional expenditure will be needed. Special regulations will have to be made to provide for their pay and training and for engineer works. The development of the cavalry force will also soon call for additional expenditure in providing for special inspection. Our schools have done good work during the year, an increasing number of officers and non-commissioned officers attached for instruction having been educated in their military duties. The reports on the Royal Military College are very satisfactory, and the comparison of the school with institutions in other countries is very flattering to the Dominion. The Deputy Minister reports that henceforth all the clothing required for the militia can be manufactured in the Dominion. In fact all our requirements for equipment, armament only excepted, can now be met from the resources of our own country.

The report of the general officer commanding the militia is an elaborate one. He recommends the formation of one or two corps of mounted infantry for Manitoba and the Northwest; that all officers of the permanent militia force should rank senior to other militia officers of their own rank, in accordance with Imperial regulations on that point; that all the old knapsacks be withdrawn and the valise equipment alone be used; that brown leather belts be gradually substituted for the present buff belts; and a fatigue cap of the pattern worn by officers for active service, and a light patrol jacket such as was sent to the Northwest by the ladies of Quebec and Ontario, be added. He also urges "the strong necessity that in my opinion exists of reducing the strength of the force, and of drilling each rural regiment every year." "This," he says, "can be more easily done now, as there are regiments and corps which, from various reasons, it is not advisable to keep on the strength, and I am convinced that the money saved by this reduction will be much more profitably employed in drilling the other regiments every year, and in increasing the strength of the permanent corps, even more than I have already recommended in a former part of this report."

From the reports of the Adjutant-General it appears that the total established strength is 37,350. Of these 18,070 were authorized to perform annual drill, and 17,020 did perform it. The cavalry number, including the Royal Military College and schools, 1,987; the artillery, 3,782; the engineers, 243, and the infantry, 36,914, making a total, including 860 in the Military College and schools, of 37,350.

Among the veterans of 1812-15 there are 62 who are 90 years of age; 51, 91 years old; 36, 92 years; 17, 93 years; 23, 94 years; 15, 95 years; 5, 96 years; 6, 97 years; 8, 98 years; 4, 99 years; 2, 100 years; and 1, 101 years old.

THE VOTERS LIST.

Every property owner, property owner or farmer's son, tenant, occupant, or person earning $300 a year, who has resided in his municipality for twelve months from the 1st of January 1885, who is a Liberal in politics, whose name is not on the Revising Officer's preliminary list, and who has not yet made application to have his name added to it, should see and have this done before the 18th inst. All such being in the city should call on Mr. Hugh McMillan, over the Federal Bank, who will see that the application is filled up and the proper declaration made. By so doing an important step will be taken towards obtaining the franchise. It should be especially noted that being thus placed on the Dominion voters list does not make a man subject to income tax.

The Evening Mercury

THURSDAY EVE'G MAR. 11, 1886.

It is quite clear from the debate in the British House of Commons that Sir John Macdonald asked the British Government to issue the rebellion medals. Wonder if he asked for the honor of knighthood when that was conferred upon himself.

From the report of inland revenue it is learned that last year the excise duties in Canada were higher than ever before. On spirits alone they amounted to $4,281,027, and on tobacco to $1,500,000. Ontario contributed about $4,000,000, out of a total of $7,000,000.

Though the bear crop in New Brunswick is decreasing, the Province still finds it necessary to offer a bounty for the extermination of the animals. In 1884, 1,096 bears were slaughtered; but last year the Province was only called on to pay for 720. The sum thus disbursed amounted to $1,498.

That the climate of Canada conduces to longevity is proven by the list of the veterans of the war of 1812-15 who still survive. The annual report of the Minister of Militia tells us that there are at present 62 of these warriors who are 90 years of age; 31, 91 years old; 36, 92 years; 17, 93 years; 23, 94 years; 15, 95 years; 5, 96 years; 6, 97 years; 8, 98 years; 4, 99 years; 2, 100 years, and 1, 101 years old.

The Attorney General has a bill before the Legislature making numerous amendments in the law of property and providing for important changes in the practice of conveyancing. Among other amendments, words of limitation are declared unnecessary in conveyances of real estate, and it is provided that freehold land or a thing in action may be conveyed by a person to himself jointly with another person, by the like means by which it might be conveyed by him to another person; and may in like manner be conveyed by a husband to his wife and by a wife to her husband, alone or jointly with another person.

It appears from a parliamentary paper recently brought down in the British House of Commons that the amount contributed by each of the three Kingdoms to the revenue of the United Kingdom in the year 1884, was —England, £58,350,000; Scotland, £6,000,000; Ireland, £6,650,000. The population of Scotland at that time was about a million less than that of Ireland. Some Scotch papers are complaining that while the people of Scotland contribute a net sum of 36s. 5d. per head towards the taxation of the nation, Ireland only contributes 11s. 5d., while the amount spent in Ireland out of the Imperial Treasury, on local expenditure in the year named, was £3,700,000, only £900,000 was spent in Scotland.

The Special Committee of the Legislature to which Mr. Ermatinger's bill was referred has decided to recommend to the House the extension of the hours of polling in cities and towns an hour. If this proposal is adopted the polls will in future either open at 8 a. m. instead of 9 o'clock, or close an hour later, viz., at 6 p. m., instead of 5 o'clock, as formerly. Mr. Ermatinger's bill proposed much longer hours in order to give mechanics and others employed by the day an opportunity of voting either before or after working hours. But the one hour extension will lessen the likelihood of crowding the polls, and if the law is strictly adhered to of having a limited number of voters in each division all who are not free to record their votes during working hours can easily be accommodated at noon.

A comparative statement of the exports and imports of the Dominion for seven months ending 31st January, 1886, laid before Parliament, shows a decline of $5,204,097 in exports compared with the same months of the preceding year. In exports of fish and fish products there was a decline of nearly a million dollars in 1886; in lumber a reduction of nearly a quarter of a million; in animals and their products a decline of three million dollars, while exports of manufactures show a decline of $406,000. The statement of imports shows a decrease $4,445,123, in seven months ending 31st January, while the customs revenue was $721,328 less than in the same months of the previous year. The average rate of duty imposed on imports, dutiable and free, in 1885-86 was 19 per cent., compared with 18 per cent. in corresponding months of 1884-85. Total imports for seven months ending January, 1886, $56,733,344; do. for seven months ending January, 1885, $61,178,467. Revenue on 31st January, 1886, $10,759,481; do. at same date 1885, $11,480,810.

A London correspondent writes:—The Prince of Wales is nothing if not cute. How many times has he not, by sheer tact, come victoriously out of positions the most perplexing? And how quick he always shows himself in grasping the situation and turning it to the best advantage. For instance, he has only this week, by a simple act, entirely won over the great city magnates in favor of the Colonial Exhibition. He was careful in the first instance, to see that the Lord Mayor figured well as the commissioner, and working through this medium he has induced the corporation to resolve unanimously upon a guarantee of £10,000 to the expenses of the exhibition, in view of the visit to London of many distinguished colonists, and also to "recognize the occasion in some way," to be decided upon by a ward committee specially appointed for the purpose. In calling upon the corporation for its assistance the Prince expresses his every confidence that the display will result in more firmly cementing the ties existing between the mother country and the other parts of the Empire.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Toronto, March 10.

Hon. Mr. Fraser said he proposed to make his statement regarding the Parliament buildings in a few days.

Mr. Waters asked for a return showing the cost to property owners who have put their properties under the Land Titles Act.

The motion stood at the request of the Attorney General.

Mr. Harcourt moved an address to the Lieutenant Governor, praying him to require from the Senate of the Western University a full account of the property and income of that institution. The motion carried.

Mr. Monk moved for a report of the Commission appointed in 1880 to inquire into a deficit in the returns of the Carlton License Inspector. The inspector made the deficit good, but the Government had charged the county with most of the costs of the inquiry, although they were incurred by the default of the Government's officer. The deficit amounted to $251, and the costs to $180. The Provincial Secretary said that the difficulty arose between the inspector and township of Nepean. The costs had been charged upon the general license fund. This motion carried.

Mr. Balfour moved for a return giving the names and salaries of the officers of Toronto University; also the number of students, their sex and lines of study.

Mr. Meredith moved for a return of all Orders-in-Council relating to last October's sale of timber limits, the amounts since paid in by purchasers, and cognate details.

Mr. Pardee said it would not be in the public interest to state the upset prices and other private transactions of the Department in its endeavor to conserve the financial interests of the Province. The motion carried after it had been verbally amended so as to eliminate the references to the reserved prices.

Mr. Harcourt moved the second reading of his bill respecting covenants in short forms. Carried.

The bill of Mr. Gibson, of Hamilton, to confirm certain conveyances made by married women, Mr. Waters' bill to make clear the responsibility of counties for boundary line bridges, Mr. Gibson's (Hamilton) bill to amend the Division Courts Act by further regulating the issuance of garnishee summonses, were read a second time.

Mr. Ermatinger's bill to amend the law of descent of lands, which proposed to do away with the technical distinctions between real estate and personal property, was withdrawn, owing to the Government's opposition to it.

After recess private bills were taken up, and the following, among others, were put through committee: To incorporate the Ontario & Rainy River Railway; respecting the Irondale, Bancroft & Ottawa Railway; to incorporate the Richmond Hill Junction Railway.

The bill respecting the St. Catharines and Niagara Central Railway was read a second time.

Mr. McIntyre moved his bill to amend the Act respecting assignments for the benefit of creditors. Mr. Meredith protested against the last named bill as designed in the interest of the Sheriffs to whom it provided that all assignments must be made. The Attorney-General concurred entirely with the leader of the Opposition, which settled the matter, and the bill was withdrawn.

Mr. Monk's bill to extend the Land Titles Act—the Torren's system—to the County of Carleton was objected to by the Premier upon the ground that it was premature—that Toronto and York should have more experience of the system before it was applied elsewhere. The bill was withdrawn.

Mr. Wood moved the second reading of the bill to prevent minors frequenting billiard rooms.

Mr. Hardy said that they could not legislate morality into and fun out of the boys of this country, who are men at 18 or 19 years of age, and he thought it monstrous to provide corporal punishment for young men of that age who visit a billiard room or bowling alley.

The general drift of the debate was to the effect that the principle of the bill was good, but that the age limit was too high, and the provision for corporal punishment impracticable. The bill was read a second time and referred to a special committee.

Mr. Gibson's (Hamilton) bill respecting building societies was read a second time, as was also Mr. Bishop's bill to regulate the width of sleighs for use on public highways.

Mr. Badgerow's proposition to amend the Act for the protection of game and fur bearing animals was the source of a good many puns and jokes, but was allowed to go through on its second reading to a special committee.

Mr. Harcourt moved to amend the Act respecting benevolent societies. Carried.

The House adjourned at 1.50.

At Wednesday's session of the Supreme Council of Royal Templars of Temperance, now holding its annual meeting in Buffalo, the Supreme Council degree was conferred on the first lady delegate in the history of the body. The order numbers a total of 16,047 members.

STREET CAR STRIKERS.

Three Hundred Drivers and Conductors in Toronto Quit Work.

Toronto, March 10.—Some months ago a movement was set on foot to form a union among the car company employees. The company after consideration decided that they would employ no active union man. They supplemented their decision by obtaining from numbers of their men signatures to an agreement not to organise. The spirit of union, however, marched on. On Sunday last a meeting was held in the Knights of Labor sanctum in the Arcade to make preliminary arrangements for forming an assembly. At midnight Tuesday, another meeting was held and arrangements completed. Yesterday morning twenty-five men, who the company had ascertained to be identified with the movement, received their quit papers. This was at 5 o'clock, when the men assembled to take out their cars. Other unionists on hearing of their friends' discharge did not ask to take out their cars, and between 150 and 200 men knocked off work.

A meeting of stable men was held in the morning and they cast in their lot with the outdoor workers. At 7.45 a non-union driver took a Queen street car from the stables, and escorted by three policemen, drove it along the route. At noon, according to Superintendent Franklin, there were 28 cars on the route. Eighty men were working, forty inside and forty on the cars. Of these the majority were stable men or green hands.

At 2.30 the trouble commenced. Immense crowds gathered on Yonge street below Adelaide, and intercepted two North Toronto cars, whose drivers had all down Yonge street run a gauntlet of such contumelious epithets as "scabs" and "rats." A crowd of sympathizing coal cart drivers materially assisted in maintaining the blockade by slowing up and refusing to move on. The car horses were unhitched and driven to the stables. One of the cars was lifted from the rails and placed at right angles to the tracks. They were finally placed on the tracks and taken down to the stables. This scene was repeated at King and Yonge streets on the arrival of each car. A force of 20 policemen were stationed here. While all this was going on in the streets, a protracted and enthusiastic meeting was in progress in the hall in the Arcade. A. F. Jury, D. J. O'Donoghue and other notabilities in labor circles were present.

The street car company intends running their cars to-day provided they are sufficiently protected. They persist in saying they will not recognize the Knights of Labor. The Knights demand recognition.

Distress in Ireland

London, March 10.—The Government has placed a gunboat at the service of Mr. Tuke in his work of relieving the distress among the inhabitants of the islands along the western Irish coast. Indescribable distress has been developed among the people inhabiting the Arran isles, off Galway, who besides having hardly anything but moss and sea grass to eat, are without fire and often without clothing and shelter. It is not rare to find girls of 17 and 18 years of age kept in enforced hiding during the day time because bereft of every thread of clothing, long ago bartered away for seed potatoes or roots with which to feed the smaller children. It is feared that unless prompt relief measures are inaugurated, scores of these people will die of starvation.

Retrospective.

February 27th, 1886.

It is just one year since the opening of my new business at 27 Lower Wyndham Street was announced. The retrospect is a pleasant one. The motto was and has been "Never fear to do right." The policy of the business was to sell good, reliable goods at a fair moderate profit, to sell strictly for cash to always pay and demand one hundred cents for every dollar, to offer customers our best efforts without boring them to buy, to make it a pleasure to call at our store, to eschew all bombast and exaggeration, to keep a sharp look out for advantages to our customers, to unite their interests with our own, to strictly mind our own business, to win the confidence of all our Patrons. Under the blessings of a kind Providence, the year just closed has been a most prosperous and satisfactory one. Our name and reputation have been established, our sales were 50 per cent more than our highest anticipations, and the result of the year's business very encouraging and satisfactory. Our hearty thanks are tendered to our many patrons.

PROSPECTIVE.

The same principles, riper experience, wider facilities, stronger efforts, increased confidence in the intelligence and discrimination of the public, determination and ability to meet the keenest legitimate competition, goods that will bear inspection and comparison and steady persevering effort, will be at the command of our patrons, and we have no fear that though the most strenuous efforts, legitimate and otherwise, will in the future as they have in the past be buzzing on every hand, the business at No. 27 will not only maintain but greatly strengthen the leading position which it has taken.

RAISE THE STANDARD HIGH.

The Dry Goods Trade is never elevated by one firm trying to hurt the reputation of another, neither will it raise the firm who tries it in the estimation of the public.

We do not propose to lower the standard of a

Respectable and Highly Thought of Business by any such Nonsense,

But on the other hand if there is anything we can do that will tend to elevate the Dry Goods Trade and those connected with us it will be done.

If other merchants in the city have found their trade in advance of last year (and with less salesmen required), we are glad to hear of it, and it speaks well for Guelph and we only hope they will still continue to prosper. As for us

WE ARE SATISFIED.

We are pleased with our business, our city and the people we have met with since coming to Guelph.

It is just a little over one month since we bought the

Very Respectable and Highly Thought of Business of Messrs. John Hogg & Son.,

and we have been told by those who know, that our sales for the month of February are in advance of the same month last year and we propose by attending

Strictly to our own Business

and by placing before the public

Good Honest Reliable Goods,

and at prices that will cause the people to know (without us having to tell them) that we are

Men of Experience in the Dry Goods Trade knowing Where to buy, How to buy and having the Bullion to Buy with.

Large quantities of goods are coming to hand every week from England, Ireland, Scotland and the United States; also from the different parts of Canada, which we are marking at a very low price and passing into stock.

We expect a large Spring Trade and are preparing for same.

We have retained all the old hands and they will be pleased to see their old friends.

CHAPTER XVI.

DARK SAYINGS.

Alice had a bit of work in her hand, but she was doing nothing. She sat leaning back in her chair, her hands lying rather limp ly upon her knees. Her eyes were bent upon the ground,and the point of her slender, embroidered slipper fidgeted about one particular spot in the design of the rug. She looked gloomy and unhappy; there was a listless weariness in her whole attitude and expression; her voice seemed changed as she said—

"I am sure mamma has been putting these ideas into your mind."

"Why do you suppose they should not originate with me?"

"Partly because I do not think men are naturally observant in such matters, and also because you do not care whether I live or die."

Percival seldom talked seriously to Alice, so now, without noticing what she said, he replied—"Do no die now, just when the summer is coming. It is a bad time to choose; put it off a little, until next winter at any rate."

"You speak very comfortably," showing both in voice and manner that his words had offended her. "No doubt you have never been unhappy in your life."

He again passed by her words, merely saying—

"But what can possibly make you unhappy, if I may be allowed to ask?"

Her eyes flashed, and she absolutely set her teeth with anger. She fought against it for a moment, and then, unable altogether to control herself, flung away the work she had held in her hand.

"What is the matter?" asked Percival, looking up in amazement.

The little outburst had relieved her; her voice was calm, though not steady, as she replied,

"I ran the needle into my finger just underneath the nail; nothing is so painful."

He said nothing for a moment, then went on—

"Are you not going to tell me why you are unhappy?"

"No," her voice suddenly taking a hard tone. "If you cannot find out for yourself, I will not tell you."

"At least give me a clue."

"I have given you a hundred, if you only chose to see them," she said bitterly.

"I am afraid I am very blind."

"You are, very blind."

He said no more. It was evident that Alice was in a very bad temper; for the present even his influence over her was gone. He was utterly in the dark as regarded the meaning of her last words, and he did not know what to say to conciliate her. He thought he would wait for her to speak first. He had not to wait long. In a few moments her frown was smoothed away, and her lips parted in a half-smile, as she said—

"Now you are angry with me, and perhaps you have a right to be; but if you have ever suffered from unstrung nerves you will know how little it takes to irritate a person in that condition. I must ask your indulgence on the ground that I am not well. But I was very rude."

"Not at all; please do not say any more about it."

"You are more patient with me than any one else, and, of course, I abuse your patience. It is always so."

"You will make me feel ashamed if you say anything more," he said, feeling a slight degree of alarm at this sudden appeal. "If you really do not feel well, Miss Lafone, I would suggest that you go away from home for a time."

He always called her "Miss Lafone." Since Helen's death she had made such a point of always addressing him as "Mr. Moore" that he did not feel justified in calling her anything else.

"Do you suppose it would do me any good to go away?" she asked, and she spoke in the same listless voice in which she had begun the conversation.

"Possibly; and in no case could it do you any harm. Spring is always a trying time, particularly, I think, when one spends it in the place where one has been all through the winter. You might go away for a while to brace yourself up for your London season. I suppose you will spend the summer in London, as usual."

"I do not know," she answered rather pettishly. "Why should I go to London? I am tired of London."

"In that case," was his reply, given with aggravating common sense, "do not go there this year."

"I must go somewhere, I should die of dullness if I stayed in the country."

"It is a pity you have no settled occupation. You would not then find any place dull."

"Perhaps you would advise me to go out as a governess or a lady help. I suppose if I did that I should have settled occupation?"

There was a disagreeable sneer in her voice. She was in one of her least amiable moods, and she did not care if he saw it.

"You might do worse. I imagine that a governess enjoys her periodical holiday far more than you do your constant round of pleasure-seeking."

"Seeking only? Then you don't think I succeed in finding it?"

"You don't certainly give me that impression just now."

He was both bored and annoyed, and his annoyance was perceptible in his voice. Alice knew she was displeasing him, and with a perverse twist of the lips she went from bad to worse.

"I really believe you are in earnest. Imagine me a governess! I fancy few women would care to have me in their house. There are not many people who can support unfavorable comparisons with equanimity."

She laughed almost insolently as she spoke, and Percival was too much annoyed to speak. After a momentary silence he stretched out his hand for the book on the table, and removing the little ivory marker from the top of the page, said,

"I will read to you if you like while you work."

She laughed again, still the same disagreeable laugh, as she replied,

"I thank you, but I am not going to work, and if you were to read a page of that book I think I should tear it to pieces with irritation, it is so utterly idiotic."

He closed the book and put it on the table again without speaking. She went on—

"I know quite well why you offered to read; you disapproved strongly of what I said just now, and you wanted to let me know it. But we have wandered very far from the point; you recommended me to go away, and I almost think I shall follow your advice. I would go certainly if——"

She paused. If only, she might have said, "if you will go too;" but she concluded abruptly, "if I could."

"I really do not see what is to prevent you."

"With whom could I go? not by myself; and to go with mamma alone would be no change at all. It would be worse than staying at home."

Percival said nothing, and she went on impatiently—

"There, now, I have shocked you again! How prim you are, and you know all the time that it is the truth. I see mamma every day, and you must be aware that she is not a very suitable companion for anyone who wants change and cheerful society. I hate people who always think no one should make disparaging remarks about her relations. If we could make up a party; but," after a pause, as he made no reply, "I am tired to death of all the people I know; it would be only a change of dulness to go with any of them." She spoke fretfully, and beat her foot upon the ground as she spoke. Percival still said nothing. "After all," she went on, "why should I go away? Dr. Smith says there is nothing the matter with me, but I know better. Have you any idea what it is?"

All the irritation had vanished from both voice and manner. She spoke quite quietly and seriously, and raised her eyes to Percival's face as she spoke.

Though her manner was calm, her heart was beating so as almost to take away her breath. She had made up her mind that it would be best to speak as though she attached no particular importance to his reply, but when it came to the point, the consciousness weighed too heavily upon her, and before Percival replied, her eyes had sunk to the ground.

He did not keep her waiting, his words followed promptly and directly on her own.

"I have a theory of my own certainly, but I do not suppose it would interest you to hear it."

"Yes it would,very much; your theories I have noticed have generally something in them."

There was a litte curl at the corner of his lip as he replied—

"My theory is that your state of health is the natural result of the life you have been leading. You have had all you wanted, far more than you either wanted or needed—beauty, wealth, position, and popularity. For a time you found it all very delightful, but you have naturally grown tired of it. If you really want my advice and are supposed to follow it, it is this, marry, say a poor, hard working man, a clergyman if you like, as whose wife you would have plenty to do, something to think about that would be worth thinking about. Or you should find some employment, say hospital work, which would keep you constantly occupied. At the end of each day you would feel honestly tired and satisfied that you had earned the bread you had eaten. I do not think that anything but work will cure you, and those are the only kinds of work which I see open to you—the care and responsibility of your own household, or working for the good of others."

When he had finished speaking he was obliged to bite his lip to hide a smile at the expression which his words had called up on her face. She seemed struck dumb with amazement; she was literally unable speak. Twice she began, and the words died away upon her lips.

LARGE FIRE IN MONTREAL.

Several Thousand Dollars Worth of Property Destroyed.

MONTREAL, March 10.—The largest fire in Montreal since the one in St. Dezier street about two months ago occurred at 4 p. m. to-day. It originated at 171 and 181 Commissioner street on premises occupied by Soune & Leroy, who occupy the upper stories, and E. Lichtenheim the ground floor. In the former a quantity of grain bags were stered, and in the latter a large supply of inflammable waste material. The fire spread with alarming rapidity, reaching back to St. Paul street which runs parallel with Commissioner street. The premises of Park Bros. & Co., Diamond steel works, Bacon Bros., manufacturers' agents, and the New Rockland Slate Co., extending from 338 to 348 St. Paul street, were soon a mass of flames. Thence the fire spread across to the china and earthenware warehouse of J. L. Cassidy & Co., 341 St. Paul street. A stream of water was poured along the front of the building and the fire put out. P.M. Galarneau's store, 350 St. Paul street, a little to the west of Bacon Bros., next caught, every flat catching fire, but fortunately this, too, was extinguished before much damage was done. The fire then spread east to the premises of Compagnie Centrale de New York, 336 St. Paul street, occupying the top flat, the lower flat being occupied by Mongenais, Boivin & Co., wholesale dealers in liquors and groceries. E. Racine & Co.'s wholesale dry goods store to the west was next taken hold of by the flames. One of the firemen, Guardian Fred. Haynes, of No. 3 station, is missing. He was working in a cellar on Commissioner street when last seen, and it is almost certain that he is killed. The buildings destroyed were owned by Geo. Burland, bought by him about a year ago for $15,000, and were the subject of the celebrated lawsuit, Judah vs. Kelby. The buildings are fully insured in the Royal Canadian Insurance Company. Three buildings to the east of this bought by ex-Ald. Genereaux for $22,000 from the heirs of the Carruthers estate and for which he was offered some time ago $30,000, were seriously damaged and are fully insured in the London, Liverpool and Globe. Two of these buildings were occupied by Mongenais, Boivin & Co. Their excise stores in rear of the office were totally destroyed. There was not much in stock, there being only ten or twelve barrels of high wines and some cigars and tobacco. Their estimated loss is between $40,000 and $50,000, fully insured in the Phœnix and North British and Mercantile Insurance Companies. Park Bros.' loss is $10,000 and Bacon Bros., $10,000. Racine & Co.'s stock, worth $100,000 and damaged by smoke and water $20,000. Insured in the Commercial, Citizens' and Royal. Lichtenheim's loss was about $10,000, insured in the Citizens'. Thibaudeau's stock was worth $350,000, damaged to about $40,000; insurance spread over nearly every company in the city. The New Rockland State Company's loss is $5,000 and Galarneaux & Co $50,000, fully insured. The girls in Lichtenheim's had to run for their lives when the fire broke out, leaving their cloaks, etc., behind them. Two firemen are badly hurt.

-LION-

STOCK TAKING COMPLETED.

We find we have a little lot of remnants amounting in all to the sum of $2,263.41.
These must be cleared out within two weeks to make room for New Goods arriving daily.
NOW
In the lull which usually follows Stock taking before the heaviest of the Spring work begins when we will have less time for such a review, we would like to place before our patrons and the public generally the state of our business, and explain why we claim to sell so much cheaper than others.

Our business for the past year has been eminently satisfactory, we having done the largest Cash business which has been done in the Lion for the last six years. Now this in ordinary times would be very encouraging, but in hard times like the present, we consider it most satisfactory and indicative of a reign of prosperity for the Lion much beyond what it has had in the past. Of course we have not had as much opposition, our friend, Mr. Hogg not having applied himself so closely to business as in former years, but this would not explain entirely the great increase in our trade. The reasons are many. We will state a few:

Our Goods are all fresh and new.
Our Prices are Low.
Our Goods are all marked in plain figures.
We have only one price for all.
We handle the Goods the public want, and at prices to suit them.

It is no wonder we sell cheap, as we are almost under no expense. Our Discounts more than pay our salaries, and as we pay no rent, the two principal items of expense are taken out.

We astonished you with the variety and cheapness of our stock last Spring, but we expect to surprise you even more this Spring. Hespeler Correspondence.

RESUMING HIS LABORS.—For the past few weeks the Rev Mr Mills has been performing a portion of circuit's pastoral work. It was with no small degree of pleasure and gratification that a large congregation in the Methodist Church here heard the Rev gentleman deliver a splendid discourse on Sabbath evening last. The character of the discourse was such as to give evidence of his being quite himself again, a fact we are sure will convey pleasure to all his acquaintances.

BLUE RIBBON MEETING.—Rev Mr Wagner of the Evangelical Church here delivered an excellent address to a large audience of the B B Society on Sabbath evening last. A portion of the address was a brief and very interesting outline of the history of the late celebrated temperance orator, John B Gough. He gave, too, in unvarnished sentiment, his opinion of the merits of billiard saloons.

THE ENTERTAINMENT OF THE SEASON.—The Royal Templars of Temperance purpose holding a grand anniversary entertainment in Glick's Hall on the evening of Tuesday the 23rd inst. Vocal and instrumental talent from various points are to assemble with the best local talent here and contribute to a well selected programme, the playing of which we are sure will not fail to entertain. A tea will be served about half-past six. As well as music, there will be some excellent selections in the line of readings and recitations.

OPTICS.—There is now a splendid variety of optical instruments in Pringle's jewelry store.

KNIGHTS OF LABOR.—A community of the Knights of Labor is, we believe, being organized here.

Hesppeler, March 10th, 1886.

Fergus Correspondence.

CURLING.—Our men and boys did some big work last week in the way of throwing "stanes." Sixteen of them, a mixture of young and old, drove to play Berlin and Waterloo. Waterloo would not go to Berlin and Berlin could only raise two rinks, and some of our boys were afraid the sport was gone. Berlin, however, was most obliging, and the stones and men were again loaded and all drove to Waterloo, where a good day's playing was put in. The result of the day gave Fergus 65 shots over two rinks from Berlin and two from Waterloo, Mr Reid's rink winning by 23 shots, Mr Michie's by 14, Wm Hughes by 17, and the boys by 10 over their respective opponents. They had a jolly good time, were well treated by the curlers of the German towns, and our own men speak highly of the German curlers. The drive to and from Berlin was most enjoyable, and the 23 or 24 miles each way of driving were put in by songs, stories, etc., and all came home sober. Lager does not hurt our men.

On Thursday T. J. Hamilton, of Fergus, skipped a rink against Mr. McLean, of Elora, in the latter place. Hamilton won by nine shots.—This afternoon Mr D Foote, of Elora, brought three of Elora's best rink players over to play Mr Michie's rink. This is an annual match between these two skips. Mr. Foote succeeded better in defeating the County Council on the bridge question than he did when he tackled our reliables. The match to-day was a victory for Mr Michie's rink by a score of 21 to 2.—The curlers meet to-morrow night to decide on what action is to be taken regarding the Benwyvis Cup, presented by this brewery firm in Scotland. This cup is valued at £30, and is to be competed for by the eight oldest clubs in Ontario. In age we are at the top of the lot. Unfortunately age does not always win, and Fergus may—it is barely possible—not win.

CHURCHES.—Rev. T. L. Wilkinson, formerly of the Fergus Methodist church, preached in Rev Mr Mullen's pulpit Sunday evening last. The church was well filled, and those present had a good sermon if they were paying attention and not sleeping. Rev Mr Middlemiss preached in Melville church Sunday morning, and Rev Mr Davidson, of Alma, in the evening. Rev Mr Dickson, from Galt, was in town to-day. He is assisting in the special services going on in connection with St. Andrew's church.

LECTURE.—Rev Mr Wilkinson gave an interesting and instructive address on the "The Church of the Future," in the Methodist church last evening. Considering other things the number present was large. He purposes lecturing in the drill shed on Thursday night of this week, and again next week.

FREE SHOW.—The C P R are running cars with products of Manitoba and the Northwest along their line. The car remains over at Fergus on Friday, 12th inst., when all so desiring will have an opportunity of examining its contents without charge.

COURT.—To-morrow our Division Court sits. We believe there is one jury case coming up. The jurors are of course wishing they were not summoned.

ROLLERS.—The roller rink has quite an attraction for to-night. Prof. Foster, from the other side, a fancy and trick skater, will perform. There is something at this rink every week, and sometimes twice a week.

EASTER FAIR.—Preparations are being made for the Easter Fat Cattle Fair. We believe it will be the same week as Guelph and Elora, and the day previous, probably about the 13th of April.

ICE.—Many of our farmers have ice houses now. These cold places are not left solely under control of butchers and ice creamers of towns and villages. Several in the county are now busily engaged harvesting the fruits of Jack Frost's late operations on the waters of our rivers. The ice blocks are good and thick. Jack has done his work well.

CREDIT.—We congratulate our active Grand Trunk Railway Agent, Mr McCuan, on the success attendant upon his efforts to prevent the single fares to Guelph on Saturday. We believe the Grand Trunk, by his representations, has decided to stop this unfair practice, and Fergus merchants owe Mr. McCuan more than thanks for his exertions on their behalf.

CONCERT.—The concert given here by Miss Watson and Mr Hardy, along with assistants, last night, was certainly a variety. The singing of Miss Watson is still very good. She has a very powerful voice. Mr Hardy is a comic, but the little boys and girls in the dance gave the most satisfaction to the audience. The house was a fair one, but not a large one. The bagpipes were good and made the dance so much better.

THE ARMY.—Gen Atherton is still holding the fort on the 4th of Garafraxa. He purposes having a tea meeting soon. The Army in Fergus is quiet.

TROUBLE AHEAD.—Mr Brownlee is likely to get into trouble with the C P R. He drove his sleigh on their track and left it. The obstruction caused some damage.

BRITISH LANDLORDS.

A Few of the Lords Who Own a Portion of the Earth.

The following table showing the extent of land held by a few British landlords will be interesting. Five men, the Dukes of Argyll, Athol, Sutherland, Buccleuch and Marquis of Breadalbane, claims to own one-fourth of all the lands in Scotland, the acreage of which country is twenty millions English acres.

The Duke of Devonshire, besides his other vast estates in England and Ireland, claims to own 96,000 acres in the County of Derby alone.

The Duke of Richmond, with estates scattered broadcast in other places through England, has 40,000 acres at Goodwood and 300,000 acres at Gordon Castle. His castle park in Sussex is fifteen miles in circumference.

The high road proceeds twenty-three miles through the estates of the Duke of Cleveland.

The Marquis of Breadalbane rides out of his house one hundred miles in a straight line on land which he calls his property.

The Duke of Sutherland owns nearly an entire county stretching from sea to sea.

The Earl of Derby draws two hundred thousand pounds (a million of dollars) every year from his estate in Lancashire.

The Duke of Northumberland invests eighty thousand pounds almost every year in purchasing up lands adjoining his already enormous estates.

The Marquis of Bute has two million pounds accumulated from lands especially from surburban lands and docks around Cardiff, in Wales.

The Duke of Westminster enjoys one million sterling a year from lands near London.

The Duke of Norfolk has a rent-roll of one thousand pounds a day from his land near Sheffield.

The Earl of Lonsdale lately died, leaving to "heirs" one million pounds sterling in money securities, and £160,800 ($800,000) a year rent income from land.

The Marquis of Hertford died the other day, leaving to Sir R. Wallace half a million in cash, bonds accummulated, and sixty thousand pounds a year rents from his Irish estates.

The Marquis of Clanicarde, who recently died, left behind cash assets amounting to £180,000 ($900,000,) and a rent income from his Irish estate amounting to twenty-eight thousand pounds a year. The Irish "tenants" in that part of Ireland are little better than starving. We hear now of famine breaking out again in the Connemara and Achill district.

The Earl of Breadalbane owns 458,358 acres; Duke of Sutherland, 1,176,574; Duke of Buccleuch, 432,347; Earl of Seafield, 305,690; Duke of Richmond 269,268; Earl of Fife, 252,815; Duke of Athol, 194,475; Duke of Argyll, 174,114; Duchess of Sutherland, 149,879; Earl of Dalhouse, 138,021; Duke of Montrose, 103,760; Marquis of Bute, 98,270; Duke of Portland, 105,456; Duke of Hamilton, 147,941

One hundred and fifty persons own half of England. Two-thirds of England, say thirty million acres, are owned by less than ten thousands persons. Seventy-five persons own the half of Scotland, say ten million acres. Two-thirds Ireland, say thirteen million acres are held by about two thousand landlords.

Young Man.

If you are 21 years of age,
If you own property worth $300,
If you are the son, step-son, grandson, or son-in-law of a person (male or female) who owns property worth $600,
If you are tenant of a room or house for which you pay a rental of $2 a month,
Or, if you earn or receive $6 a week of wages or income,
Go to Mr. Hugh McMillan, Secretary of the Reform Association, at his rooms, Fedral Bank Block, and you will be assisted in taking the proper steps to have your name enrolled. Don't delay.

McGregor's Speedy Cure.

When we say McGregor's Speedy Cure is the only perfect cure for dyspepsa, liver complaints, indigestion and impure blood, we are telling plain facts, of which hundreds upon hundreds can testify who have been restored to perfect health by its use. We would therefore advise you strongly if you are a subject of any of the above troubles to give McGregor's Speedy Cure a trial and be convinced. It is sold in 50c. and $1.00 bottles at Thomas S. Petrie's Drug Store.

A Scotchman and his wife of the name of Garrick separated 25 years ago. Garrick went to Australia, where he made a snug little fortune. Mrs. Garrick came to Canada and, believing her husband dead, married one Nicholson, who died six years ago. Last week Mr. and Mrs. Garrick were reunited in Hamilton, the Rev. Mr. Scoular performing the marriage ceremony.

THE REV. GEO. H. THAYER, of Bourbon, Ind., says: "Both myself and wife owe our lives to SHILOH'S CONSUMPTION CURE."

Shepherd, Morse & Co., of Burlington, Vt., are making large contracts for lumber with the Chaudiere mills. Mill men, in view of the expected removal of American duty, have already closed with Messrs. Hurdman and also with an Arnprior firm for a large quantity.

The residents of Moosejaw, N. W. T., have petitioned the Government for money for public improvements in that place, as owing to the town site being owned exclusively by the Government, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Northwest Land Company, the corporation cannot collect revenue for the purpose mentioned.

WHY WILL YOU cough when Shiloh's Cure will give immediate relief. Price 25 cts. 50 cts., and $1. For sale by A. B. Petrie.

COFFEE. Social in the B. M. E. Church on Tuesday.

THE Prince of Wales has in contemplation a visit to Canada and the United States.

THOS. MCAVOY, Palmerston, recently convicted or horse stealing, was sentenced by Judge Drew this morning to one month in jail.

THE "Social Glass" will be put on the boards by the members of the Guelph Catholic Union in the City Hall on St. Patrick's Day.

THE ELECTION.—The election for Alderman in St. Patrick's Ward, between ex-Aldermen Stull and Hortop, is creating little interest to-day. At noon there were only some forty votes polled at the City Hall, and probably not over a dozen at the East Ward school.

MR. JOHN SCOTT, of Galt, horse dealer, met with a serious loss the other day. He purchased a young horse from Mr. Maurice O'Connor, for which he paid $250. On taking the animal away it reared up and fell on its back, striking its head against a snag and was instantly killed.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—Brakeman J. Reinhart, aged 38 years, was killed while coupling cars at Galt this afternoon. The deceased was formerly baggage man on the Dutch mail and was well known along the line. His brother is section foreman on the G. Trunk at Breslau, and he was a cousin of Mr. Chris. Reinhart, hotelkeeper of this city. He leaves a wife and three children.

AMUSEMENTS.—The Baird Opera Company last night performed the amusing play of "Nip and Tuck." It was Mr. Baird's benefit night and there was a good house. All the characters sustained their parts well, and Mr. Baird in the various characters he assumed excelled himself. To-morrow afternoon a matinee will be given.

TO-MORROW and the two days following the Salvation Army will celebrate their second anniversary in Guelph Staff Cap. Margetts, A. D. C., assisted by Special Capt. McHardy, will lead. Saved drunkard's demonstration will be the chief feature on Saturday night. The anniversary meetings will be held on Sunday, and the jubilee on Monday night.

POLICE COURT.—Ephraim Clarke was up this morning on a charge of being disorderly in Soper's Hotel on Saturday afternoon. After hearing witnesses for prosecution, His Worship dismissed the case without costs. Chief Randall prosecuted, and Mr. G. W. Field defended Clarke. The case of Albert Mayer, for larceny of money from a boarding house, will come up this afternoon.

NARROW ESCAPE.—John Evans, [Arke'], went out shooting squirrels last week with an ancient gun. He got four squirrels hedged in one tree and fired, killing three. He deliberately loaded his gun and aimed for the other squirrel. The result this time was altogether different. Instead of the squirrel being hurt, it was John. The barrel broke about two feet from the stock, peppering his face with powder. The lock was blown off and discovered about 40 yards from where the piece was discharged, so says John. He apparently had a narrow escape from more serious injuries.

FUNERAL OF THOMAS A. ANDERSON.—The funeral of the late Thomas A. Anderson, of this office, took place yesterday afternoon. The Rev. Dr. Wardrope read a portion of scripture and gave a short and consoling address, after which the Rev. Dr. Torrance offered up a fervent prayer. When all who desired had taken a last look at the remains they were borne to the hearse by the following pall-bearers:—Messrs. Thomas Laidlaw, John A. Davidson, Wm. Stewart, Wm. Patterson, Wm. Burgess, and George Holmwood. After the coffin had been lowered in the grave the Rev. Dr. Wardrope offered a short prayer.

WAS IT SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION?—The other day a young man who works in one of the manufacturing establishments of this city was considerably surprised, while proceeding down Wyndham street, to find in one of his pockets some explosive substance resembling dynamite. It appears that some of his comrades had put a lot of matches and fire-crackers in his pocket, and by some means the matches had become ignited and of course communicated with the crackers, which went through their usual fantastic tricks until the pockets presented the appearance of an empty magazine. Had the affair occurred at any other place than on Wyndham street the young man would have enjoyed the joke much better. Oh, how he wished that he had a hand grenade in his pocket.

BASEBALL.—The Mail of to-day has the following:—Jas. H. Hewer, the brilliant infielder of last season's Maple Leafs, has been overlooked by the Canadian managers so far. His average on third last season was 950, and batting over 200. A player of his ability and good habits would add strength to any of the teams.——It is laughable to hear people talk of Oswego, Binghamton, and Utica collapsing before the season is over. They will never go to the wall as long as Hamilton and Toronto can give them $100 per game——Six of the Maple Leaf players have reported in Detroit, and are practising daily in the armoury there. They are eagerly waiting for spring and a chance to have a go at the other Canadian clubs. Dillon, the Guelph catcher, is also hard at it getting into condition for the season's work. His work as receiver will surprise his friends this year.

Presentation.

Last night Mr. Robert H. Baird, of the Baird Comedy Company was presented in Soper's hotel by a number of the pleasure loving people of the city, with a handsome gold headed ebony walking cane, purchased from the jewellery establishment of Mr. B. Savage. Mr. Joseph Soper made the presentation and the following address was read:—

To Robert H. Baird, Esq.

DEAR SIR,—Permit us, a few of your many Guelph friends to congratulate you on the success of your dramatic engagement in this city. The performances given by your excellent company have been highly appreciated, and we hope the financial result and the knowledge that you have given every satisfaction will be to you on all sufficient reward. Were it not that we are cognizant of your innate modesty we would be disposed to pay a high compliment to you personally for the enjoyment which your wholesome and refreshing comedy acting has afforded us. But we know the warm approval which has been shown you by the large and intelligent audiences is to you a more flattering recognition of your merits than any words on our part could possibly be. Please accept from us this cane as a souvenir of your visit to the Royal city, and, may we in conclusion, express the hope that you may long remain the people's popular comedian and continue to give excellent entertainments at the people's popular prices.

EXPERIMENTAL UNION.

Eighth Annual Convention at the Agricultural College.

The eighth annual convention of the Ontario Agricultural and Experimental Union was opened yesterday (Thursday) afternoon in the lecture room of the Agricultural College. There was a good attendance of ex-students, students and others. The chair was occupied by Mr. J. S. Campbell, of Simcoe, and Mr. J. P. Anderson, of Puslinch, acted as secretary. A large number of members from a distance were present, the attendance on the whole being about equal to that of former years.

After the roll had been called and the minutes of the previous meeting read and confirmed, the treasurer, Mr. R. A. Ramsay, presented his annual report, which showed a creditable balance in the treasury, and the finances of the society to be in a healthy condition. The retiring President having briefly reviewed the workings and object of the society, the following gentlemen were appointed a committee to nominate the officers for the ensuing year:—Messrs. Ramsay, Shuttleworth, Wark, Campbell, and J. Anderson, the committee to report at 8:30 Friday morning. The chairman then called upon Mr. P. A. Carpenter, gold medalist of 1884, who read a paper on 'Studying.' The essay was a very creditable production, and displayed a thorough knowledge of the pernicious effect of 'cramming.' The essayist deprecated this as a growing evil in every educational institution, tending to give students a very superficial knowledge of various subjects without the advantage of a thorough comprehension of any particular branch. The discussion on the essay was at times very spirited, and was taken part in by several of the members, all, however, acknowledging that Mr. Carpenter's effort had been exceedingly instructive.

Mr. J. B. Muir, medalist, then read a lengthy and carefully prepared essay on the above subject. He plainly depicted the great damage which was yearly being done to the country by the wholesale destruction of forests, and strongly advocated the planting out of young trees by the farmers. He also made reference to the best kind and size of trees to plant, and touched upon several other points of interest, which repeatedly drew forth expressions of approval from the audience. The discussion which followed was very interesting, and much valuable information was tendered by those members present who had profited by years of experience, and were, therefore, in a position to give their opinion in the matter. President Mills closed the discussion by highly complimenting Mr. Muir upon the able manner in which he had handled the subject.

The convention then adjourned until 8:30 Friday morning, Prof. Brown promising the members that in the meantime he would show them a grove of chesnut trees which had been planted on the farm and were thriving splendidly.

In the evening, on the invitation of President Brown, the visitors and members sat down to an oyster supper in the large dining room of the College.

The Conversazione in the Congregational Church.

The lecture room of the Congregational church was comfortably filled last evening, the occasion being a conversazione and entertainment given solely by the young ladies of the church. It appears that the young men of the same church about two months ago undertook the task of preparing an evening's enjoyment, which was tolerably successful, and so the entertainment last night was got up as an innocent rival of its predecessor. Entering the lecture room a very pretty scene presented itself. Messrs. Ryan & Berkinshaw kindly placed at the committee's disposal an unlimited supply of bunting, and several ladies of the congregation loaned any quantity of plants and flowers, and the taste displayed in arranging these was decidedly creditable. "The flag that's braved a thousand years," loaned by W. Bell & Co., covered the bareness of the wall at the back of the "chairman ess" and made her ladyship have the appearance of a genuine Britannia clothed in authority.

Previous to the commencement of the programme no one present could not help enjoying the pleasing innovation placed before them of spending a "half hour at home," looking over illustrated papers, books, etc., and enjoying a chat with the friend next to them, for all inclined to be friendly, none more so than the ladies of the reception committee, who did their best to make everything pass off pleasantly. A cheering indication of the good feeling that exists between the Speedside and Guelph people was the fact that several members of the church choir there and others drove into the city a distance of ten and twelve miles to be present last evening, a fact which was acknowledged by a most hearty vote of thanks by the Guelph people. About nine o'clock, Miss Sarah L. McLaren, chairwoman, announced that they were ready to begin with the programme, which consisted of instrumental selections by the Misses Parker, Ruth Spragge, Skinner and McLaren; readings by Miss Clarke and Miss Freissenger; songs by Miss Selina Borthwick, Miss Lettie Parker and Miss Gausby; a dialogue by Misses Clarke and Bliss, and a vocal trio by Misses Borthwick and E. Gausby. Just before the "good night" piece was sung, which was decidedly the feature of the evening, Messrs. Howell and McRoberts on behalf of the young men moved a vote of thanks to the ladies for their most successful evening. Votes of thanks were also tendered by Rev. Mr. McGregor to the lady who acted as conductor, and the friends separated. A most liberal supply of cake, coffee, and afterwards some delicious oranges were served out, which were most heartily enjoyed. Rev. Mr. McGregor and congregation may well feel proud over the success of the young ladies entertainment last evening, and when next a similar entertainment is to take place all who patronize them may know what to expect.

CITY COUNCIL.

By-Law for a $2,000 Bonus to Burr Bros.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.

A special meeting of the City Council was held on Thusday evening for the purpose of considering a by-law to be put before the people to grant a bonus to Burr Bros. to establish a chair factory in the city. There were present:—Mayor Stevenson in the chair, Ald. Chadwick, Keough, Bruce, Maddock, Cutten, Hewer, Smith, Husband, Jos. Carter, Read, Hamilton, Skinner, Coffee, Wm. Carter.

The Mayor stated the object of the meeting.

Ald. Cutten said there were two ways of doing the thing. One would be by passing a by-law, and the other by allowing exemption from taxation for a number of years equal to the amount proposed to be granted.

Ald. Hamilton asked if the Burr Bros. would accept the grant.

Ald. Cutten said that Mr. Burr was present at the Committee meeting, and they were not then decided what they would do.

His Worship remarked that there was no resolution before the chair, but as this was a special meeting he would allow some extra license.

Mr. M. Burr arrived at this juncture and on motion of Ald. Hewer the Council adjourned for ten minutes to allow the Finance Committee to consult with Mr. Burr.

Council resumed.

Moved by Ald. Cutten, seconded by Ald. Maddock, that it be in order for this Council that a by-law be introduced and read a first and second time and afterwards submitted to the ratepayers in such form as the City Solicitor and the Council may determine, to grant a bonus of $2,000 to Burr Bros. in aid of a new proposed manufacturing establishment with exemption from taxation thereon and free water rates upon condition that if the by-law is carried that Burr Bros. will proceed at once to complete their new proposed factory within six months from this date, and in default thereof that they will pay the city the expense of advertising and taking the vote on the by-law, and that they will refund to the city the said $2,000 in case they at any time fail to keep the conditions of the by-law.

Ald. Keough said that there were certain rumours afloat that the intention of the Burr Bros. was to remove the machinery from the old factory into the new, thus to exempt the old machinery from taxation, and also that there would be an exchange of hands, the old shop to be used as a store room. He thought that it would be well that this should be explained by Mr. Burr and thoroughly understood, as it might injure the interest of the Burr Bros. when the vote was being taken on the by-law.

Mr. Burr remarked that Ald. Keough was partly right and partly wrong. It was the intention to move some of the machinery from the old shop for the new cabinet shop, but it would be replaced by other machinery.

Ald. Keough—Is it the intention to remove the hands from the old shop to the new?

Mr. Burr—Some of the hands would be removed from the old to the new factory, and replaced. He expected to employ between 50 and 60 extra men, not including those who were now engaged. Instead of reducing the capacity of the old factory it was the intention to increase it, by building a new addition and putting in new machinery.

Ald. Skinner asked Mr. Burr if it was not a fact that about four fifths of the machinery in the present factory was exempt from taxes.

Mr. Burr—Yes.

Ald. Skinner—Then even if the whole machinery was removed there would only be a fifth that was liable for taxation, and that would be of little importance. He was aware that it was the intention of the firm to replace the old machinery with new.

Ald. Chadwick submitted that it was illegal to bring up a by-law at a special meeting of the Council, as it would vitiate the by-law.

Ald. Cutten would like to have the rule of the Council to the contrary pointed out.

Ald. Chadwick had seen in the law reports a case to that effect, where a number of the members were absent, and there were three absent to-night. At a regular meeting it would be different, because every member was expected to be present. He held that a by-law granting money could not be passed at a special meeting.

Ald. Lamprey remarked that there was only Ald. Hearn absent, the other two empty chairs would not be filled till after the election.

Ald. Smith saw nothing to prevent the first and second reading of the by-law. He did not wish to do anything illegal. The by-law could be read to night, and in the meantime the opinion of the City Solicitor could be obtained. If it was found not to be legal, then the by-law could be read a first and second time at the regular meeting.

Ald. Bruce said that for the matter of three or four days it would make little difference and rather than do anything illegal it would be better to wait.

Ald. Lamprey remarked that the matter of three or four days meant a week's delay, which would be of importance, as the Burr Bros. desired to get to work as soon as possible.

Ald. Smith asked if a by-law had ever been passed before at any special meeting of the Council.

The Mayor and the Clerk were appealed to, neither of whom remembered such a proceeding.

Ald. Husband and Read were in favor of giving the by-law its first and second reading.

The motion was then put and carried.

Moved by Ald. Skinner, seconded by Ald. W. Carter, that the Council go into Committee of the Whole on the by-law, and that it be read a first and second time. Carried.

Ald. J. Carter took the chair. The by-law was read a first and second time. The date mentioned for the taking of the vote is Tuesday, the 6th of April. The returning officers and polling sub-divisions are the same as in municipal elections. It was also agreed that the by-law be advertised once a week for three successive weeks in the Herald.

Ald. Keough drew attention to the fact that the Shedden and Herdrie Co. (draymen) were not on the assessment roll, and he did not see why they should not be taxed.

The Mayor stated to the Ald. that he had no objection to his mentioning it but it could not be discussed to-night.

THE PROVINCIAL.

Ald. Chadwick said if the Council desired he would give a short account of what their committee had done in Toronto towards bringing the Provincial here for this year. On the first day they had interviewed the members of the Agricultural and Arts Association, and had a pressing invitation to attend their meeting, and the result was that a deputation of the Council of the Association came and interviewed them, when a bargain was struck not outside the limits proposed by the Council, and he thought to the advantage of the City. The City will give the Association the use of the present buildings, and will supply them with lumber for all new buildings which are to be erected by them, the City retaining the lumber afterwards. There were writings on this agreement. He thought the Committee had done a good day's work for the City. The Ald. then suggested that the Mayor and Ald. Hewer say something about the deputation.

Ald. Hewer said that any buildings for special exhibits which might be erected would have to be done by the Association. We would have to fix up the old sheds and furnish lumber for the new; take city water to the buildings, which had been done already. About all the cost that the city would have to pay was the interest on the lumber. The lumber, with the exception of a few boxes for stalls, could be used for sidewalks. The bargain he considered was a very satisfactory one.

Ald. Hearn here took his seat, having just arrived from Toronto.

Ald. Chadwick remarked that Ottawa and Kingston tried hard to secure the Exhibition and offered the Association all the buildings they required, and far better terms than Guelph was prepared to do.

The Mayor endorsed all that had been said by the two other members of the deputation.

Ald. Bruce and Carter congratulated the deputation on their success.

Ald. Hewer remarked that the Arts Association were desirous of holding their Fat Stock Show here. This was a thing the Council had nothing to do with. There was a feeling among the members of the Fat Stock Club that they would be better without it. He had promised to see about the matter.

The suggestion by Ald. Bruce that when the Provincial comes here the business should be kept as much as possible in the hands of the Council was unanimously approved of.

The Council then adjourned.

THE VOTERS LIST.

Every property owner, property owner or farmer's son, tenant, occupant, or person earning $300 a year, who has resided in his municipality for twelve months from the 1st of January 1885, who is a Liberal in politics, whose name is not on the Revising Officer's preliminary list, and who has not yet made application to have his name added to it, should see and have this done before the 18th inst. All such being in the city should call on Mr. Hugh McMillan, over the Federal Bank, who will see that the application is filled up and the proper declaration made. By so doing an important step will be taken towards obtaining the franchise. It should be especially noted that being thus placed on the Dominion voters list does not make a man subject to income tax.

The Evening Mercury

FRIDAY EVE'G MARCH 12, 1886.

The Riel Case Again.

Mr. Landry's motion condemning the Government for the execution of Louis Riel is likely to cause a long and spirited debate in the House of Commons, in which not only the execution of the chief actor in the rebellion will form the subject of angry discussion, but in which also all the circumstances connected with that rebellion, and the Government's culpability therewith, will engage a large share of attention by the speakers on both sides, We have already said that Mr. Landry has been put up to make this motion by the Government, and they are forcing on the discussion before the documents asked for bearing on the cause have been brought down. These papers, as Mr. Blake observed in his speech at London, are necessary before members and the people generally can come to any right and just conclusion in regard to the case. But the Government will not consent to wait until these are produced and published. It would seem as if they were afraid that these would prejudice their case, and they, therefore, seek to obtain a hasty and snatch verdict before full information can be obtained. We have no doubt that if these documents would aid the Government in this matter they would have been forthcoming before now. Parliament has, therefore, a motion presented to it without the necessary information on which members can come to a proper and deliberate conclusion. This motion, too, it must be remembered, is brought forward with the consent and knowledge of the Government, though in the hands of a private member, who is without question acting as their agent and tool in this matter. A pretty good idea of Mr. Landry's standing and character may be formed by the following truthful picture of him as drawn by the Ottawa Free Press :—

"The motion itself is presented by a man well known to be the most frivolous and frolicksome member of Parliament, and one whose freaks and antics in the House resemble more the course and procedure of an over-grown school boy during the few moments the pedagogue's back may be turned, than those of a sedate representative. The member for Montmagny, is not the man likely of his own initiative, to ever submit any grave problem to Parliament for solution; and even the other day, when asking Parliament to permit this motion to stand, he forgot the gravity of the subject it proposed to discuss, and laughed as if the whole affair was a huge joke. Mr. Landry would be more at home, throwing paper balls across the floor of the house, in making idiotic noises, or in otherwise degrading the decorum with which the session of Parliament should always be associated, than in discussing a grave question like this. It is not to such a man—one who regards a Parliamentary session as a sort of low comedy instead of a serious proceeding—one who acts as if he did not believe in the seriousness of political administration and legislation—that the Independent Bleus would entrust the presentment of such an important issue to Parliament. No! They repudiate his acting for them, and though approving naturally of the motion as far as it goes, yet they regard it as untimely."

The report of the Medical Commission, which was sent to Regina to enquire into the mental condition of Riel, was laid before the House of Commons on Tuesday. The report of the senior surgeon is dated November the 6th, and those of the other two surgeons November the 8th.

Dr. A. Jukes, senior surgeon, writes as follows:—"Mr. Riel has been under my care medically, as surgeon of this force, for upwards of five months since his arrival here as prisoner. During that time I visited him with few exceptions every day; have studied him closely and conversed with him long and frequently. I have personally a strong aversion to punishment by death. I believe, that failing to establish his insanity his death is near at hand, and after a careful and continuous examination of him under varying circumstances from day to day I cannot escape the conviction that except upon purely religious questions relating to what may be called Divine mysteries he was when entrusted to my care and still continues to be sane and accountable for his actions. Under these circumstances my duty, although a painful one, is clear, and my opinion hastily formed is equally so, viz: that Riel's peculiar views upon religious subjects which so strongly impress the ignorant and unreflecting with the idea of his madness cannot be rightly regarded as interfering with or obscuring in the slightest degree his clear perception of duty in rendering his judgment less sound in the affairs of every day life. I therefore record my opinion that with the reservation above made Riel is a sane, clear headed and accountable being before God and man."

Dr. Valade, one of the commissioners, corroborates the above. He says that with the exception of his view on political and religious subjects, "I believe Riel to be sane, and can distinguish right from wrong."

Dr. M. Lavalle says: "I am of opinion that though holding peculiar views as to religion and general government Riel is an accountable being, and capable of distinguishing right from wrong."

In answer to questions put the other day in the House of Commons in reference to the trials growing out of the recent rebellion in the Northwest, the Minister of Justice stated that in all 46 Halfbreeds, 81 Indians and 2 whites were committed for trial in connection with the Northwest rebellion. Of Halfbreeds, 18 were tried for treason-felony, one for high treason and one for murder, 11 were were discharged on their own recognizance for $400 each to appear and receive sentence when called for, eight were discharged to appear and take their trial when called for, one Adolph Nolin, charged with treason-felony, was discharged by order of General Middleton, and two others who were held for trial and would have been tried in the courts during the present month, were discharged on proceedings being discontinued by his own direction. Four others were discharged at Battleford, one having been a cripple. Of the Indians, 44 were convicted of various crimes, nearly all for treason-felony. One, however, was for manslaughter, 3 for arson, 5 for horse stealing, 1 for cow stealing, and 1 for breaking jail. The others were convicted of treason-felony, that is to say, 10 were discharged on promising to come up for trial when required. In the case of one Indian charged with treason-felony there was no evidence against this man at the time of the trial but he was committed at Regina for further inquiry on the part of the Indian Department, and he has since probably been discharged. Three Indians were acquitted. The remainder of the Indians were discharged at Battleford. Two were charged with stealing, but he was not prepared to say by whose order or on what authority directly. Of the whites, two prisoners, Wm. H. Jackson, accused of treason-felony, were acquitted on the ground of insanity, and Thomas Scott, accused of treason-felony, was acquitted.

In the British House of Commons recently, Mr. Mitchell Henry brought up the question of the accommodation of members with seats. Although the House is composed of 632 members, there are not seats for more than 400 members, and the result is great inconvenience on a day when important business is up for consideration.

The agitation caused by the deficiency in the Dominion revenue, has induced payments of duty on teas, that article being the one most likely to be taxed to make up present and prospective deficiencies. And the Montreal Journal of Commerce now says:—"Apart from tea duty the Dominion treasury must have benefited considerably by the duty scare of the past few months. Two liquor firms in the West are reported to have recently made disbursements, aggregating $285,000, and large quantities of tobacco, molasses, coffee, spirits, etc., have been taken out of bond all over the country, so that any increased duty would not materially improve the revenues for probably nine months, or more. A number of rumors have of courre been in existence concerning the alleged intentions of the Executive, and one which has obtained considerable currency is, that ten per cent ad valorem will be imposed on everything now dutiable, with specific duties on goods at present admitted free."

Department of Railways and Canals.

The annual report of the Minister of Railways and Canals was brought down on Monday. It shows that the annual payments to the Canadian Pacific Railway Company were under the contract of $25,000,000; amount paid up to the end of 30th June, 1883, $7,553,076; during 1883-84, $7,254,208, and during 1884-85, $6,862,201. The amount paid from the end of the fiscal year 1884-85 to 31st December, 1885, was $2,895,427, leaving a balance in the hands of the Government on the 31st of December of $455,087. On the loan account there was still a balance in the hands of the Government on 31st December, 1885, of $849,300. The total mileage of Government railways in operation was 1,185. The gross earnings of the Intercolonial were $2,368,153; and the works of expense were $2,441,477, or an excess of expenditure over the earnings of $73,324. The gross earnings over that of the previous year show an increase of $14,506. The canal tolls, including everything, amounted to $338,035. When completed, the Tay Canal will be made a branch of the Rideau Canal. The gross earnings of the Canadian Pacific in 1884 amounted to $5,750,521, as against $8,348,500 for 1885, and the gross expenditure was $4,558,630 for 1884, and $5,124,400 for 1885.

Distress in Labrador.

MONTREAL, March 11.—Advices from Labrador say that below Esquimaux Point to Blanc Sablon the people are starving. They killed in January 500 dogs and ate dog meat every day to save their lives, and several are already starving. Last Fall, late in November, Newfoundland sent a ship with a load of provisions to aid the people, and in a great storm she was lost and never heard of. The Bishop from Esquimaux Point has written to the Government to send him provisions by first navigation, because there is going to be starvation this spring. At Pentecost many families are begging and nothing can be done for them. There are no more provisions here. At Point des Monts no more flour is for sale.

The fire was first discovered in the engine house, and had gained such a hold before it was discovered that nothing could be done to save the building.

Retrospective.

FEBRUARY 27th, 1886

It is just one year since the opening of my new business at 27 Lower Wyndham Street was announced. The retrospectis a pleasant one. The motto was and has been "Never fear to do right." The policy of the business was to sell good, reliable goods at a fair moderate profit, to sell strictly for cash to always pay and demand one hundred cents for every dollar, to offer customers our best efforts without boring them to buy, to make it a pleasure to call at our store, to eschew all bombast and exaggeration, to keep a sharp look out for advantages to our customers, to unite their interests with our own, to strictly mind our own business, to win the confidence of all our Patrons. Under the blessings of a kind Providence, the year just closed has been a most prosperous and satisfactory one. Our name and reputation have been established, our sales were 50 per cent more than our highest anticipations, and the result of the year's business very encouraging and satisfactory. Our hearty thanks are tendered to our many patrons.

PROSPECTIVE.

The same principles, riper experience, wider facilities, stronger efforts, increased confidence in the intelligence and discrimination of the public, determination and ability to meet the keenest legitimate competition, goods that will bear inspection and comparison and steady persevering effort, will be at the command of our patrons, and we have no fear that though the most strenuous efforts, legitimate and otherwise, will in the future as they have in the past be buzzing on every hand, the business at No. 27 will not only maintain but greatly strengthen the leading position which it has taken.

New Goods to hand thus far.

Cases of Dress Goods and Silks.
Cases of Prints and Satteens.
Cases of Cottons.
Cases of Shirtings.
Cases of Tweeds.
Cases of Hosiery and Gloves.
Cases of Embroidery.
Cases of Lace Goods.
Cases of Fancy Goods.

Come and see. You are cordially welcomed.

E. R. Bollert,

27 Lower Wyndham Street, Guelph, Ontario.

RAISE THE STANDARD HIGH.

The Dry Goods Trade is never elevated by one firm trying to hurt the reputation of another, neither will it raise the firm who tries it in the estimation of the public.

We do not propose to lower the standard of a

Respectable and Highly Thought of Business by any such Nonsense,

But on the other hand if there is anything we can do that will tend to elevate the Dry Goods Trade and those connected with us it will be done.

If other merchants in the city have found their trade in advance of last year (and with less salesmen required), we are glad to hear of it, and it speaks well for Guelph and we only hope they will still continue to prosper. As for us

WE ARE SATISFIED.

We are pleased with our business, our city and the people we have met with since coming to Guelph.

It is just a little over one month since we bought the

Very Respectable and Highly Thought of Business of Messrs. John Hogg & Son.,

and we have been told by those who know, that our sales for the month of February are in advance of the same month last year and we propose by attending

Strictly to our own Business

and by placing before the public

Good Honest Reliable Goods,

and at prices that will cause the people to know (without us having to tell them) that we are

Men of Experience in the Dry Goods Trade knowing Where to buy, How to buy and having the Bullion to Buy with.

Large quantities of goods are coming to hand every week from England, Ireland, Scotland and the United States; also from the different parts of Canada, which we are marking at a very low price and passing into stock.

We expect a large Spring Trade and are preparing for same.

We have retained all the old hands and they will be pleased to see their old friends.

CHAPTER XVI.

DARK SAYINGS.

Her surprise was so great that he felt compelled to say something.

"I knew you would think me a brute," he said, half-resignedly.

As he spoke again she too seemed to find words.

"What made you speak like that? You advise me to marry—me?"

She spoke almost breathlessly, and he was surprised to find how she had seized upon that particular point of his lecture.

"Why not!" he asked. "Is it not your intention to marry sometime?"

She saw his surprise, and that she had gone rather too far, so she went on hastily—

"You advice me to marry a poor clergyman? Honestly, Mr. Moore, did you know what you were saying? I—I think you must be out of your mind."

His surprise was now equal to what her's had been. He looked at her for a moment, and then said—

"Why?"

Rage, disappointment and bitterness filled her heart. She could have wept with mortification, and she was hardly conscious of what she said. Seeing the surprise in his face, however, she clasped her hands together in her lap so tightly that her rings cut into her flesh, and by an extraordinary effort she regained her self-control sufficiently to say—

"I can imagine no one less suited for such a position than I and really," with a half laugh, "if I were disposed to follow hard-working men. I don't know how I should find one, unless I advertised, and your advice, there would still be great difficulties in the way. My life has not led me to make the acquaintance of poor, then I might not like those who applied. You forget," she concluded, speaking rather slowly, "I could not marry a man unless I loved him. That is what has always stood in my way."

"I do not see why such a man as I have described should not win your love as well as any other."

"Perhaps I have no love to win," she replied, apparently on the impulse of the moment.

He raised his eyebrows slightly as he said—

"In that case, of course, there is nothing more to be said. But if you mean—"

"I mean nothing," she interrupted hastily, and coloring rather deeply as she spoke. "You always want to dive below people's words and to find hidden meanings in them," she finished rather impatiently.

Percival was too surprised to be able to speak at once, and before he did so, she went on—

"I do not see why I should not be allowed a slip of the tongue as well as other people."

"Certainly not," said Percival, in amazement.

"There is no occasion to immediately attribute sinister motives to me."

"I really must be allowed to protest that I am innocent of attributing any motives at all."

"You say so now, but I know you thought I meant that I was in love with somebody else."

"My dear Miss Lafone, you are crediting, or rather discrediting, me with ideas which never entered my mind."

"Of course you will not own that it was so."

"No one would twist your words into such a sense, and I assure——"

"Please say no more about it. It is very annoying to me to have the subject persisted in in this way. This is not the first time I have noticed your fondness for continuing a conversation which has lost all interest for other people."

She spoke almost haughtily, and as she finished she took up her work again and applied herself to it in earnest. Percival sat silent, chiefly because he was too vexed to speak. He hoped she would soon go into the house and give him an opportunity of leaving her; but she sat still, with apparently no intention of moving, and in perfect silence. The situation was fast becoming ridiculous, when Gertrude appeared upon the scene, attended by Frank Hervey.

She must have seen them from a distance and been struck by their attitude, for she began to speak as soon as she came within speaking distance.

"Have you quarrelled?" she asked, demurely, yet with a spark of merriment in her eyes.

Gertrude Lafone was a very pretty girl, like Alice, only smaller and slighter. Percival liked her the best of the two girls at The Thwaite. He now rose and offered her his chair, which, however, she declined, and as no one spoke she went on—

"Tell us if it is a real quarrel, because if it is Frank and I will take a lesson. We have never quarrelled yet, and I have an idea that we should not know how to begin."

"Your sister and I are not on quarrelling terms," said Percival, as Alice remained silent.

Gertrude opened her eyes.

"Not yet? How much longer are you going on before you are? If you were not quarrelling I guess—literally I guess, no connection with the American form—that you have been given her good advice, a very thankless task, as I can tell you from experience. Alice hates good advice."

Still no word from Alice. She sat with her eyes fixed upon her work and her lips slightly compressed. Percival was standing up twisting about the chair upon which he had been sitting before Gertrude joined them, and saying nothing, chiefly because he had nothing to say.

"I must say," went on Gertrude, who was rather a tease and fond of making Alice the subject of her fun, "that I think good advice would be of immense benefit to her. I have often administered it myself, but, truth compels me to say, without any good result. In this case we may hope for more success; if anyone in the world can persuade her to do what she dislikes, it is you."

She was looking alternately at Alice and Percival as she spoke, but chiefly at Percival, and so she did not see the cloud gathering on her sister's face. She had hardly finished when Miss Lafone rose up, laid her work upon the table, and turning to her said—

"You are both vulgar and impertinent, Gertrude. The most charitable thing I can do will be to go away, and so put it out of your power to commit yourself further."

Having spoken, she turned away and walked towards the house, leaving one person who was very much relieved, and two who were very angry.

"How dare she!" cried Gertrude and Frank in a breath, and Percival, feeling under no necessity to stay and explain Alice's daring, walked away, leaving them to pour the expression of their outraged feelings into one another's ears.

He was glad to get away, for he felt honestly bewildered. The more he thought over Alice's strange utterances of the afternoon, the less could he understand them. Of only one thing did he feel sure, and that was that at last she was in love with some one, but with whom he could not tell. He passed in mental review all their mutual acquaintances, but could not find any one who seemed to be the right man. At last, after thinking about it nearly all the way home, he gave it up in despair, thinking—

"I suppose we shall know sometime upon whom her choice has fallen. I hope there is nothing queer about it."

Alice meanwhile sat in her room plunged in despair. All she did seemed of no avail, and she bowed her head upon her hands saying in a whisper—

"He will drive me to it, he will drive me to it."

"Why?"

Rage, disappointment and bitterness filled her heart. She could have wept with mortification, and she was hardly conscious of what she said. Seeing the surprise in his face, however, she clasped her hands together in her lap so tightly that her rings cut into her flesh, and by an extraordinary effort she regained her self-control sufficiently to say—

"I can imagine no one less suited for such a position than I and really," with a half laugh, "if I were disposed to follow hard-working men. I don't know how I should find one, unless I advertised, and your advice, there would still be great difficulties in the way. My life has not led me to make the acquaintance of poor, then I might not like those who applied. You forget," she concluded, speaking rather slowly, "I could not marry a man unless I loved him. That is what has always stood in my way."

"I do not see why such a man as I have described should not win your love as well as any other."

"Perhaps I have no love to win," she replied, apparently on the impulse of the moment.

He raised his eyebrows slightly as he said—

"In that case, of course, there is nothing more to be said. But if you mean—"

"I mean nothing," she interrupted hastily, and coloring rather deeply as she spoke. "You always want to dive below people's words and to find hidden meanings in them," she finished rather impatiently.

Percival was too surprised to be able to speak at once, and before he did so, she went on—

"I do not see why I should not be allowed a slip of the tongue as well as other people."

"Certainly not," said Percival, in amazement.

"There is no occasion to immediately attribute sinister motives to me."

"I really must be allowed to protest that I am innocent of attributing any motives at all."

"You say so now, but I know you thought I meant that I was in love with somebody else."

"My dear Miss Lafone, you are crediting, or rather discrediting, me with ideas which never entered my mind."

"Of course you will not own that it was so."

"No one would twist your words into such a sense, and I assure——"

"Please say no more about it. It is very annoying to me to have the subject persisted in in this way. This is not the first time I have noticed your fondness for continuing a conversation which has lost all interest for other people."

She spoke almost haughtily, and as she finished she took up her work again and applied herself to it in earnest. Percival sat silent, chiefly because he was too vexed to speak. He hoped she would soon go into the house and give him an opportunity of leaving her; but she sat still, with apparently no intention of moving, and in perfect silence. The situation was fast becoming ridiculous, when Gertrude appeared upon the scene, attended by Frank Hervey.

She must have seen them from a distance and been struck by their attitude, for she began to speak as soon as she came within speaking distance.

"Have you quarrelled?" she asked, demurely, yet with a spark of merriment in her eyes.

Gertrude Lafone was a very pretty girl, like Alice, only smaller and slighter. Percival liked her the best of the two girls at The Thwaite. He now rose and offered her his chair, which, however, she declined, and as no one spoke she went on—

"Tell us if it is g real quarrel, because if it is Frank and I will take a lesson. We have never quarrelled yet, and I have an idea that we should not know how to begin."

"Your sister and I are not on quarrelling terms," said Percival, as Alice remained silent.

Gertrude opened her eyes.

"Not yet? How much longer are you going on before you are? If you were not quarrelling I guess—literally I guess, no connection with the American form—that you have been given her good advice, a very thankless task, as I can tell you from experience. Alice hates good advice."

Still no word from Alice. She sat with her eyes fixed upon her work and her lips slightly compressed. Percival was standing up twisting about the chair upon which he had been sitting before Gertrude joined them, and saying nothing, chiefly because he had nothing to say.

"I must say," went on Gertrude, who was rather a tease and fond of making Alice the subject of her fun, "that I think good advice would be of immense benefit to her. I have often administered it myself, but, truth compels me to say, without any good result. In this case we may hope for more success; if anyone in the world can persuade her to do what she dislikes, it is you."

She was looking alternately at Alice and Percival as she spoke, but chiefly at Percival, and so she did not see the cloud gathering on her sister's face. She had hardly finished when Miss Lafone rose up, laid her work upon the table, and turning to her said—

"You are both vulgar and impertinent, Gertrude. The most charitable thing I can do will be to go away, and so put it out of your power to commit yourself further."

Having spoken, she turned away and walked towards the house, leaving one person who was very much relieved, and two who were very angry.

"How dare she!" cried Gertrude and Frank in a breath, and Percival, feeling under no necessity to stay and explain Alice's daring, walked away, leaving them to pour the expression of their outraged feelings into one another's ears.

He was glad to get away, for he felt honestly bewildered. The more he thought over Alice's strange utterances of the afternoon, the less could he understand them. Of only one thing did he feel sure, and that was that at last she was in love with some one, but with whom he could not tell. He passed in mental review all their mutual acquaintances, but could not find any one who seemed to be the right man. At last, after thinking about it nearly all the way home, he gave it up in despair, thinking—

"I suppose we shall know sometime upon whom her choice has fallen. I hope there is nothing queer about it."

Alice meanwhile sat in her room plunged in despair. All she did seemed of no avail, and she bowed her head upon her hands saying in a whisper—

"He will drive me to it, he will drive me to it."

Dominion Parliament.

Ottawa, March 11.

A number of motions for returns were passed.

Mr. Robertson (Hastings) introduced an act to amend the criminal law so as to make the punishment of burglary more severe. He proposed to give a life sentence in desperate cases.

Mr. Dalton McCarthy proposed in his bill amending the Dominion Elections' Act to change the hours of polling from 9 to 5, to from 9 to 8. It was read a first time.

Mr. Landry then made his motion, "That this House feels it its duty to express its deep regret that the sentence of death passed upon Louis Riel, convicted of high treason, was allowed to be carried into execution." He delivered his remarks from French manuscript. He was so careful to say nothing but what was strictly in accordance with the "little stratagem" that he read straight through from manuscript. The only fresh argument in his address of an hour was the partizan character of at least one of the members of the medical commission—Dr. Jukes, of the Northwest police, who had gone through the campaign and was therefore liable to be strongly prejudiced. Mr. Labrosse seconded the resolution.

Sir Hector Langevin next spoke. He first rebuked those former friends of the Government, now its enemies, who had discussed the question in violent language at church doors and public places in Quebec instead of waiting till the House met. He and his French Canadian colleagues in the Cabinet had been stigmatized as traitors to the country and their nationality, but whatever was their opinion of them he could thank God that they (the Ministers) were not traitors in the eyes of the majesty of the law, and not only the majority of their fellow countrymen but the country at large felt that they had done their duty to the Queen and the Dominion. He intended to explain what they as responsible Cabinet officers did and their reasons for doing it. Last session they had heard from day to day what took place in the Northwest. Not content with calling the halfbreeds to arms against the Crown, Riel had brought the Indians out, and not only were peaceable settlers murdered, but two priests, who had never done anything but good to the rebels, had also been killed. Volunteers were at once sent to put down the rebellion, and the Government could have had ten times as many if they wanted. Among them were two French Canadian regiments, both commanded by members of the House. (The speaker referred to Messrs. Ouimet and Amyot.) What did they go up there for but to suppress the outbreak and kill the rebels? Sir Hector congratulated the mover of the resolution on the moderate tone of his speech, coming as it did from one formerly a friend but now on the other side. This reference was guyed by the Opposition, who believe Landry has an understanding with the Government on the matter. The speaker denied Landry's assertion that Gen. Middleton promised Riel that his crime would be overlooked. He went on to say that Riel's trial for high treason was before a properly constituted tribunal, and just and impartial. The jury's verdict of guilty was coupled with a recommendation to mercy, but they knew perfectly well that the recommendation would not prevent the sentence of death being carried out. If they thought he was insane their verdict would undoubtedly have been for acquittal. The speaker then referred to the subsequent efforts of Riel's counsel to have the verdict set aside. Their sole argument was that their client was insane, not that the trial had been unfair or hurried. At the instance of the Government a Medical Commission had enquired into the case and unanimously agreed as to Riel's sanity. "Although," said Sir Hector in conclusion, "there is French blood in my veins and I represent the old population of Quebec, it was my duty as a Minister of the Crown to uphold the law and let justice take its course. Therefore in order that there be no side issue on this question and that it come on a square vote I move, seconded by Sir Adolphe Caron, the previous question."

The effect of this motion is to shut out all amendments. A straight vote will now have to be taken on Mr. Landry's resolution.

Mr. Amyot was the next speaker and he left no doubt as to his sincerity in condemning the Government as Mr. Landy did. No mere party tie, he said in closing, would make him a slave of the gentlemen who had so shamefully betrayed their trust. Why did not Ministers do something for the halfbreeds in Manitoba and the Northwest? They had been cruel to Riel and cruel to the halfbreeds. That was passed now, but he implored them to at last exercise some clemency towards the latter. He closed a speech of three hours and twenty minutes with the following reasons for supporting Mr Landry's motion:

1. Because, the treatment of the halfbreeds has been most unfair and unjust. The alleged settlement of the claims, in vain asked for many years, has been delayed for seven years, and has resulted in a sham, or rather a spoliation, by means of scrip. We have virtually gratuitously given to strangers over 2,000 farms belonging to the halfbreeds.

2. The insurrection was provoked by the culpable neglect of the duty of the Ministry. It was not due to the halfbreeds, but to the white speculators, in whose hands the halfbreeds have been mere instruments.

3. The insurrection would have been avoided if our troops had not fired first; or if the halfbreeds had been approached by friendly messengers.

4. Riel gave himself up under the promise that he would be protected until the Government should have decided his case, and not the courts.

5. He was tried for high treason and punished for murder.

6. He was refused necessary delays and the means of procuring necessary witnesses.

7. He was recommended by the jury to the clemency of the court.

8. He was most cruelly respited.

9. The Government withheld important documents concerning his case.

10. The Government failed to procure competent translators.

11. The trial took place far from the place of the offence, before a jury of six men of different creed and race, the crown eliminating the only juryman of his creed. Such a law should have been changed at the past session.

12. Riel's madness, upon which the Ministers themselves appeared to be doubtful, seems abundantly proved, and is evident from his doings and sayings, from his past admitted madness, from the absurdity of the rebellion itself, and even from the report of the Medical Commission.

13. Riel was recommended to mercy, and it must have been on account of the doubts entertained as to to his sanity.

14. The voice of the people praying for clemency should have been preferred to the voice of those asking for blood.

15. The order for hanging seems to be the result of a cool calculation of the political influence and results it would have on the political opinion of the country.

16. Riel was tried for a political offence, and civilized nations no more hang for such offences.

A motion by Mr. Royal to adjourn the debate was carried.

The House adjourned at 11:05.

THE GOLDEN

-LION-

STOCK TAKING COMPLETED.

We find we have a little lot of remnants amounting in all to the sum of

$2,263.41

These must be cleared out within two weeks to make room for New Goods arriving daily.

NOW

In the lull which usually follows Stock taking before the heaviest of the Spring work begins when we will have less time for such a review, we would like to place before our patrons and the public generally the state of our business, and explain why we claim to sell so much cheaper than others.

Our business for the past year has been eminently satisfactory, we having done the largest Cash business which has been done in the Lion for the last six years. Now this in ordinary times would be very encouraging, but in hard times like the present, we consider it most satisfactory and indicative of a reign of prosperity for the Lion much beyond what it has had in the past. Of course we have not had as much opposition, our friend, Mr. Hogg not having applied himself so closely to business as in former years, but this would not explain entirely the great increase in our trade. The reasons are many. We will state a few:

Our Goods are all fresh and new.

Our Prices are Low.

Our Goods are all marked in plain figures.

We have only one price for all.

We handle the Goods the public want, and at prices to suit them.

NO WONDER WE SELL CHEAP.

It is no wonder we sell cheap, as we are almost under no expense. Our Discounts more than pay our salaries, and as we pay no rent, the two principal items of expense are taken out.

NOW LADIES

We astonished you with the variety and cheapness of our stock last Spring, but we expect to surprise you even more this Spring. We have now a resident buyer in Glasgow, who is always on hand to secure any novelties or cheap lines that are thrown on the British Market, so that we will always be a little ahead of others, both in style and value.

THE TORONTO STRIKE.

Mayor Howland Advises the Men and Holds the Company Responsible.

Great Excitement To-Day.

TORONTO, March 11.—The situation in the Street Railway difficulty remains unchanged to-day. Both sides are determined to prolong the struggle, and each is confident of gaining the victory. At present the company assert positively that no union man shall be on its pay list, while the men rest secure in the assurance of promised assistance from other bodies of organized labor to continue the fight until the company will be compelled to haul down its flag of opposition to unionism. Last night it was reported that the company intended to put out a car the first thing this morning. In consequence of that rumour the streets presented an animated appearance, as hundreds of citizens turned out to watch the progress of events. It was quite 8 o'clock, however, when a solitary car was launched on Yonge street. It was hailed with groans, while the "scabs" who manned it came in for a liberal share of epithets from the crowds which had collected at the different street corners along the line. Later on it was turned stable-wards. A Queen street car was sent out subsequently. No interference was offered until the down trip, when the horses were unhitched and sent galloping towards the stables. The car was next turned across the tract at right angles with the rails. Subsequently it was righted and pushed to the corner of King street, where another mob seized it. Similar tactics were here observed, until a strong guard of police rescued it from the crowd and escorted it to the stables.

About 10 o'clock a delegation of the men waited on the Mayor. Mr. A. F. Jury acted as their spokesman. It was an appeal for justice which His Worship acknowledged and promised to comply with if possible. He plainly said that the company's side did not have his sympathy, but he advised a peaceful way out of the difficulty.

The Mayor wrote to Hon. Frank Smith, President of the company, denying all responsibility on behalf of the city in regard to damage to street car property or loss of time in running the cars, and notifying him that he will hold the company to strict accountability for violation of their agreement requiring them to run their cars for 14 hours per day in winter, and at intervals of not over 30 minutes; also for any injury that may be inflicted on any citizen or policeman by reason of disturbances out of their action towards their employes, and for any injury to property belonging to the city or citizens arising from the same cause. The Mayor gives his reasons for doing so, among them being that the company, by their own act, produced this trouble by deliberately locking out a large body of men simply for exercising a legal liberty in joining a lawful body or society. The Mayor demands that the company shall at once restore to the city the order which existed and to its citizens the conveniences they have a right to as they existed before the company's action disturbed them.

The Police Commissioners (Judge McDougall, Police Magistrate Denison and Mayor Howland) met in the afternoon and decided that the street car company should be protected in running its cars. Mr Smith has accordingly instructed the Superintendent to act under direction of the Commissioners.

(Special to the Mercury.)

TORONTO, Ont., March 12.—Some of the most exciting scenes ever witnessed on Toronto streets occurred this morning. It having become generally known that the police would endeavor to run cars, the unruly element began to gather around the street car stables and along King and Yonge streets. Nothing unusual transpired till shortly after nine o'clock, when a squad of police made their appearance at the stables. They were greeted with hooting and yelling. In a few minutes afterwards coal carts, expresses and railway lorries in large numbers gathered along the track, their intention evidently being to block the progress of the cars. Squads of police had been placed at the various street intersections along the route to be taken. About a quarter past nine a car made its appearance, driven by an old employee of the company and manned by about a dozen policemen. This was the signal for an immense uproar. Every conceivable means were adopted to obstruct the progress of the car, which slowly made its away along Front street. Coal carts and expresses blocked the track and their drivers pretended to use every effort to get their horses to move. This continued till the Custom House was reached where a railway lorry laden with goods was standing directly across the track. The policemen jumped off the car and tried to urge the horses of the lorry forward. While doing this the crowd saw their advantage and several sprang forward, unhitched the horses from the car and sent them off on the gallop to the stables amidst tremendous cheering. The policemen had no help for it, but to return to the stables.

During the excitement a young man named Harry McKnight received a severe blow on the head from a policeman's baton, making the blood flow freely. Reinforcements of policemen were called out and shortly after ten another car was started. A dozen policemen again boarded it and mounted policemen rode in front and rear. The crowd immediately began to rush on to the car so as to unhook the harness, but the policemen showed they meant business by using their batons vigorously. This had a deterrent effect, and no further trouble was experienced till King street was reached. Here a dozen coal carts blocked the way for a time, but they were at last compelled to move off the track. Opposite the Globe office a determined rush was made by the crowd and a free fight ensued. The police used their batons with telling effect, several of the crowd getting their heads badly damaged. The crowd retaliated by throwing bricks and mud. The names of those in the crowd injured cannot yet be ascertained. Sergeant Somerville was knocked over by an express wagon, which ran over both his legs. Fortunately the wagon was empty and he is not seriously injured. Sergeant Williamson was wounded in the head by a blow from a brick, but not seriously. Three ringleaders were arrested, their names being William Hunt, Edwin Morgan and Eugene Moran. The police forced back the crowd and the car proceeded on its journey along King and up Yonge streets. The crowd followed, yelling and hooting and throwing bricks at the occupants of the car, but no further attempt was made to unhitch the horses. Peaceable citizens are talking of preferring a request that the militia be called out to disperse the mob. It is not the strikers who compose the rowdy element, but the worst class in the city composed of thieves, loafers and general toughs. Cars will be run so long as the police will protect them. No passenger can be found bold enough to attempt the trip.

At two o'clock this afternoon a few cars are running on both the Queen and Yonge street routes, each manned by three or four policemen. For the present, law has triumphed over rowdyism.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Toronto, March 11.

The Provincial Treasurer's bill respecting the Agricultural College was recommitted to Committee of the Whole, to insert a clause which fixed the official tenure of the members of the Advisory Board, three of them to hold office for two years and the others for one year.

The Attorney-General's bill for the quieting of titles where the Lands Titles Act is not in force and to amend the act respecting the provisional County of Hriburton were put through committee of the whole. The latter bill does away with the office of stipendiary magistrate in that county.

A lengthy debate occurred upon the Minister of Education's bill respecting Mechanics' Institutes and Art Schools, which makes a change in proportion and distribution of the Government grant to those institutions. It also reduces the amount of the grant. The bill was read a second time.

This was followed by the second reading of the Treasurer's bill to consolidate the Agricultural and Arts Act, which was advanced a stage, and the Speaker left the chair.

After recess the House went into supply. The items $18,000 for immigration, $103,630.72 for hospitals and charities and for public buildings were passed.

The House adourned at 11:30.

Stratford Chancery Sittings.

DICKSON v. MONTEITH.—Action to establish the will of the late James Dickson, of Hollin, Maryborough. Our readers may remember that at the last sittings of the County Court at Guelph an action was tried of Monteith v. Dickson, for the purpose of proving this same will. The trial here lasted some four or five days and resulted in a judgment being entered (upon certain answers given by the jury) against the will, finding not only that the will had not been duly executed but that it had not been proved that at the time the testator was of sound mind. Soon after this trial one of the nephews of the deceased, to whom the testator by his will left one of his farms, being dissatisfied with the result of the trial at Guelph entered an action in the Court of Chancery to have the will established. This nephew was not a party to the Guelph suit and therefore did not consider himself bound by the result of it. All parties interested in the estate were brought before the Court in the Chancery suit, the trial of which was commenced at Stratford before Mr. Justice Proudfoot, on Tuesday last. This trial was finished Thursday afternoon and resulted in judgment for the plaintiff with costs, thus establishing the will as having been duly executed and also establishing that at the time the testator was of sound mind. His Lordship, Mr. Justice Proudfoot, in rendering judgment said that he had no doubt upon either point and was perfectly satisfied that the will had been duly executed and that the testator was of sound mind. Mr. Idington, Q. C., for the plaintiff; Mr. Jacob, for the defendant.

Watson, editor of the Sun, read a very interesting paper on "Farmers and poultry keeping." An excellent paper on the benefits to be derived by a course at the Ontario Agricultural College was given by Mr. G. C. Ramsay, O. A. C., Medalist, and another on seeding of grains and grasses was read by Mr. John Ramsay, Eden Mills. Lively and practical discussions followed each paper, many of the farmers of the county engaging therein. The evening session took the form of a general entertainment and was a complete success.

EXHIBITS FROM THE NORTHWEST.—To day the Canadian Pacific Railway car, showing exhibits from the "Great Lone Land" arrived in Guelph from Fergus and was shunted on to the siding between Huskisson street and the passenger station. This car is making a tour through Western Ontario, stopping at the principal places in order to give the people an opportunity of seeing samples of products of Canada's Great Northwest. The exhibits are under the care of Mr. E. A. Bailey, formerly of Woodstock, Ont., but now of Brandon, and Mr. S. A. Belford, of Moosemin, N. W. T. The car is in charge of Mr. L. O. Armstrong, and is most handsomely designed, and is loaded with some of the choicest samples of grain, vegetables, roots, grasses, and other products. There are 53 different kinds of grasses on exhibition, some of which measure about five feet in height. The stated yield of some of the above mentioned articles is enormous. The yield of one kind of potatoes was given as 700 bushels to the acre. The stool of a grain of oats was exhibited which would measure about 5 or 6 inches in circumference, one stalk of which yielded 6,000 grains. Crowds of people thronged the car all the time it was on exhibition and we doubt not but thousands more would have paid it a visit had the time not been so limited. Samples of grain were given to numbers of the visitors, and a great quantity of emigration literature was handed out. The car will be run up to the freight shed at five o'clock to-night, and on Monday will proceed to Paris. The car will stop at Elora next week. All who visited the car to-day seemed to be astonished with the products exhibited. The specimens of copper, and silver ore, are worthy of note.

THE Baird Comedy Company performed "Uncle Josh" last night to a good audience. The matinee this afternoon was well attended.

SERVICES were held in the various Presbyterian churches yesterday, preparatory to the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper being held to-morrow.

THIS morning's market was well attended by both buyers and sellers, and a good trade in farm produce was done. Prices were unchanged. In seed the following quotations are given: Timothy seed per bushel, $2.75 to $3.25; clover seed, $7.75 to $8.

ST. PATRICK'S NIGHT.—On Wednesday evening next the League of the Cross and Catholic Union will hold their annual entertainment. "The Social Glass," a very fine emotional temperance drama, will be put on the boards. The play is highly spoken of by all who have seen it produced, and a large audience will no doubt witness its first production in this city. The plan of the hall will be open at Pringle's on Monday.

ELECTION FOR ALDERMAN.—The election for Alderman in St. Patrick's Ward, to fill the place of Ald. Wells, resigned, who has removed to Elora, took place yesterday. There was little interest manifested in it, as will be seen by the vote below:—Polling subdivision No. 1, City Hall, B. Fairley, returning officer, Hortop 56, Stull 19; polling subdivision No. 2, D. Kribs, returning officer, Hortop 32, Stull 12, giving a majority of 57 for Mr. Hortop. There was no election in St. John's Ward, Mr. Walker having resigned, in consequence of which Mr. Chas. Raymond, the other candidate, will be declared elected.

SAWMILL BURNT.—About two o'clock on Friday morning the sawmill of Mr. Nicholas Lynett, on lot 29, con. 6, Eramosa, at Shiloh, was discovered to be on fire. The flames were first observed in the south corner of the building where the engine room was placed, but the fire spread so rapidly that the neighbors found it impossible to save any of the contents of the building. The mill was completely refitted a short time ago and a chopper put in, so that Mr. Lynett's loss is very heavy, being about $3,000, on which there is no insurance. The cause of the fire cannot be ascertained, but it probably started in the engine room. Quite a number of farmers had their chopping burnt. It is understood that Mr. Lynett will rebuild.

The New Chair Factory.

The Burr Bros. write to day, stating that what Mr. M. Burr said in reply to Ald. Keough's questions at the special meeting of the Council to grant a bonus to that firm, was not fully explained. The letter says: "What we said was that we propose to build a new factory, 168x50 feet, four floors, engine house, &c., and to remove our present machinery into one-half of it, and as the one-half would be considerably larger than our present factory, we should add several new machines, so it would increase our present facilities to quite an extent; and the other half of the building we should use as a chair factory, and it would be filled up with all new machines, so that in cabinet work we should employ more help, but the chair shop would require all additional help; also that we were going to put in new engine and boilers to furnish the power, the engine to be of 125 horse-power."

Report of the Minister of the Interior.

The annual report of the Minister of the Interior was laid on the table of the House of Commons on Monday. After mentioning the change in the department reference is made to the death of Mr. Aquila Walsh, Commissioner of Dominion lands. The report says that the outbreak in the Northwest had the effect of checking the tide of immigration into that country. The sales during the last two years were: Homesteads for 1884, 533,280 acres, and for 1885, 249,532 acres. The pre-emptions sold for 1884 were 364,060 acres, and for 1885, 106,213. The sales were 213,172 for 1884, and 126,049 for 1885. The general business of the department still keeps up. The number of letters received in the department were 27,660 compared with 27,525 for the preceding year and the number sent 33,884 compared with 33,500 for the preceding year. This does not include the geological survey. The financial transactions of the department were for 1884-85, homesteads and preemptions fees, $42,745; ordinary sales, cash, $198,759; and scrip, $45,875. The sales to colonization companies were $1,214 making in all a total of $288,494. Reference is made to Mr. Lang's conduct, but the Deputy Minister does not think it judicious to give an explicit view, seeing that the investigation into the affair is not yet completed. The total number of claims disposed of during Mr. Lang's tenure of office was 3,258. All the 1,400,000 acres of land in the province of Manitoba, which were reserved under the Manitoba Act for distribution to the children of the half-breed heads of families, resident in that province at the date of transfer, 1870, has been allotted. Since the completion of this, a large number of other claims came forward. Altogether, since this allotment some 439 claims have been received by the department. The net amount of sales, leases and dues from timber, mineral and grazing lands for the year was $84,955, as compared with $104,616 for the previous year. The department has ceased to debit the Canadian Pacific with the dues for timber cut by them for construction purposes. Therefore the decrease in receipts from this branch is $19,661. It is said that the cattle industry is making satisfactory progress. The revenue of the department from every source during the year amounted to $420,072, a decrease as compared with the previous year of $368,064. From the report of the halfbreed commission it appears that 1,710 certificates for money scrip and 232 certificates for land scrip were issued, making in all a total of 1,942 claims recommended by the commission. Of 250 claimants in the halfbreed district entitled to land or scrip only two took land.

DOMININON PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, March 12.

Mr. Royal (Provencher) resumed the debate on Mr. Landry's motion. He supported the Government. Going back to the organization of Manitoba, he said that settlers and halfbreeds were found living under a Government crude it is true, but possessing the elements of constitutional rule. But since, these halfbreeds had been worse treated by the Dominion than the Indians were. The Opposition cried "Hear, hear," whereupon the speaker squared himself by saying that they had not been treated worse by any Government than they had by the predecessor of the present one. He held the white settlers responsible for the rebellion. Speaking of Riel's trial, he said it may be argued that these proceedings were fair, but the speaker thought the Crown officers should have been more wise, liberal and just in their prosecution, and while he held this view of the trial, he did not blame the movement that took place in Quebec before and after Riel's execution. It was nothing but an exaggeration of a noble and high sentiment, but he denounced in no measured terms the political attempt made by certain persons for political purposes.

Mr. Gigault (Rouville) did not approve of the rebellion, but the grievances of the halfbreeds were sufficient to justify the Government in extending mercy to the leader of these people. He condemned the execution of Riel for these reasons:

1. Because the insurrection was provoked by the bad administration of affairs in the Nor hwest.

2. Because Riel was irresponsible for the crime for which he was convicted.

3. Because the ministers did not take into account the jury's recommendation of mercy and other extenuating circumstances.

The speaker quoted the Mail's acknowledgment of the grievances in support of his first point and denounced the Government in not having done its duty by the Metis. His argument on the insanity point was that the medical commission contained a member who was prejudiced against the prisoner, and that according to the highest medical authorities he showed every symptom of a monomaniac. On the third point he quoted Sir Vernon Harcourt to the effect that where a jury made a recommendation to mercy in a capital offence it was invariably the custom that the sentence of the court should not be carried out. A lesser penalty would have had a better effect. History would say that it was the mismanagement of Northwest affairs that brought Riel to the scaffold.

Mr. Wallace (West York) next took the floor and supported the Government on the motion.

Mr. M. C. Cameron was the first to take the floor for the Liberal party. When Mr. Wallace said they were afraid to vote for the motion he would find himself a false prophet as far as he (Mr. Cameron) was concerned, which was an indirect way of saying he would vote for it. This discussion involved an arraignment of the Government for high crimes. It involved their existence in this Parliament and their defeat in the next election, and yet they withheld documents of vital interest in the case. (Hear, hear.) The Minister of Public Works had said they had nothing to conceal, but they had and did conceal evidence of their own criminality. They were playing, as they always did, with loaded dice. These gallant and chivalrous French gentlemen that we have heard so much about—why, what did they do now, move the previous question to their motion? ("Hear, hear," from the Oppositionists), thereby shutting the Opposition out from making any amendment. Mr. Royal's argument that the preceding Administration had neglected the halfbreeds was no excuse for the seven years' neglect of the existing Government, which were only aroused from their slumbers by the firing at Duck Lake. (Groans from Ministerialists.)

Mr. Cameron proceeded to discuss the fairness of Riel's trial. He said the sanctiest possible measure of justice was meted out to him. There was no preliminary trial, no grand jury, the usual safeguards in criminal cases. Up till July 21, Riel did not know what he would be tried for. His counsel asked for an adjournment of a month to bring in witnesses and obtain evidence. Crown counsel opposed it, without doubt under instructions from the Government. Why were not the papers found in Riel's house produced? They were said to be treasonable, but Riel was not afraid to produce them. Perhaps they implicated some friends of hon. gentlemen. Their conduct was wholly unwarrantable in the face of the affidavits. Every obstruction was thrown in the way of the defence. (Hear.) The rebellion was provoked by the maladministration of the Government, and while as a matter of law Riel was wrong in resorting to arms, documents which would have mitigated the severity of the sentence could have been produced. On two grounds the Crown should have stepped in between the prisoner and the scaffold. First, on the ground that the Administration provoked the outbreak, and second, on the ground of Riel's irresponsibility.

Mr. Cameron continued to argue the insanity plea. He contended that when a man committed an offence while laboring under a delusion the law did not hold him responsible therefor. Riel suffered not only from one but from two delusions. Even if Riel was sane at the time of his execution, but troubled with hallucinations when he committed the crime he was accused of, he should not be held responsible for his actions. As an instance of his delusion, Mr. Cameron read a report of the interview in which Riel represented himself as an instrument in the hands of God: "He was to be governor-prince of the Northwest territories." Either Riel was a great actor or insane on religion and politics. He believed him to have been the latter. The Government would not be justified in hanging a dog, much less a man, under the circumstances. It was only a week before Nov. 16 that the Government appointed a commission to examine Riel. Not only were the commissioners incompetent, and all employees of the Government, but the Cabinet actually and finally decided that he should go to the scaffold before they received their report. Why did they decide to hang him? Because they were pressed to do so by that power which has kept them in office so many years. Right Hon. Brother Sir John Macdonald was forced to do it by the order to which he belongs. The Orange Sentinel demanded his death in no uncertain words:—"The blood of martyred Scott cries aloud for vengeance." Orange Lodge 884, Merriton, passed a resolution that its members, as electors, would oppose any Government which did not carry out the sentence, and this, continued the speaker, was sent to Brother Macdonald. The speaker read resolutions to the same effect passed by lodges 693, 1305, 1457, 1499, 300, 80, 425, 1528, all of which no doubt found their way to Sir John's hands. On Dec. 3rd, Lodge 1222 passed a motion congratulating the Government on the tragedy. On the day of execution the First Minister received more than one telegram from masters of Orange lodges to this effect; "Well done thou good and faithful servant; we will vote for thee for evermore." He dared the Government to deny this.

Mr. Cameron concluded: "In view of the fact that Riel's sanity was in doubt and the disregard of the Government of the plainest principles of common justice to give every person the benefit of the doubt, the evidence in this case and the facts I have submitted to you amply justify the conclusion I have come to—that the Government of this country deserve condemnation at the hands of the people of this country. I say, moreover, that for two months this Government have literally trafficed in the destiny of a fellow mortal. I say that during all the time from his conviction to his execution this Government were balancing in the scales the problem of a human life. I say that during all that period this Government were throwing political dice on the living body of Louis Riel, fixing his fate as Orange or Bleu might prevail. I say that Louis Riel was not executed to vindicate the majesty of the law and satisfy outraged justice. I say he was executed because there was a power, a pressure that was perfectly irresistible, that the motives by which the present corrupt incompetent, imbecile Government was actuated and moved when a human life was concerned, deserve the condemnation of this House, as I believe they will receive the condemnation of the people of this country." (Cheers.)

The House adjourned at 11:20, Mr. Curran having the floor.

Women's Christian Temperance Union.

There was a good attendance of members at the regular business meeting of the Union on Wednesday last. Encouraging reports were received from Superintendents of the different departments of work. Cottage meetings have been regularly sustained, though not to the same extent as formerly, owing partly to the removal and illness of some of the workers, and also to the fact that churches and other organizations are engaging more largely in such work. The Jail Committee reported visiting regularly and reading to and conversing with the prisoners whenever practicable. The pleasing fact was noted that the number of prisoners confined in the jail has been much smaller of late than usual, there having been only 55 committals for the last six months, and among them not one woman; 880 pages of temperance literature has been distributed and a large supply which is now on hand will soon be put in circulation. The work among the colored people which was taken up last summer has been carried on with very gratifying results. Several of the ladies teach regularly in the Sunday School, and a Christmas Tree to which they treated the pupils was highly appreciated. They also, by the kindness of members of the Y. M. C. A. and others, keep the pulpit supplied in the absence of the pastor. Arrangements were concluded for holding Gospel Temperance Meetings. The use of the Paisley Street Methodist Church having been kindly granted for the purpose, it was decided that meetings be held there every Sunday afternoon, to commence at 4:15, the service to consist of short addresses and appropriate music, and the first one to be on next Sabbath, March 14. A Committee was also appointed to arrange for calling a meeting of young ladies for the purpose of forming a Y. W. C. T. U.

DR. D. J. KERGAN.—The general practitioner often fails to cope successfully with diseases which are chronic of their nature simply because his experience has always been confined to the treatment of acute troubles. Hence the necessity of calling upon physicians and surgeons who devote themselves entirely to the treatment of chronic, obscure and lingering complaints. In those cases, however, it is always advisable to call on the best, such for instance as Dr. J. D. Kergan and the staff of surgeons composing his International Medical Council, members of which are to be in Guelph at the Wellington Hotel, Saturday and Monday, March 20 and 22, and at the American Hotel, Berlin, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 23 and 24.

Now melts the snow that so long has
Adorned fir-tree and larch.
Time telephones to Boreas
And orders "Forward March!".

But gentle spring is not yet here,
For March brings windy woes
That chill each creature far and near,
And see it blows—it snows.

THE VOTERS LIST.

Every property owner, property owner or farmer's son, tenant, occupant, or person earning $300 a year, who has resided in his municipality for twelve months from the 1st of January 1885, who is a Liberal in politics, whose name is not on the Revising Officer's preliminary list, and who has not yet made application to have his name added to it, should see and have this done before the 18th inst. All such being in the city should call on Mr. Hugh McMillan, over the Federal Bank, who will see that the application is filled up and the proper declaration made. By so doing an important step will be taken towards obtaining the franchise. It should be especially noted that being thus placed on the Dominion voters' list does not make a man subject to income tax.

The Canadian Pacific Railway.

According to recent despatches from London, it seems that the application of the Canadian Pacific Railway Co., to get a subsidy from the Imperial Government for a steamship line from British Columbia to China and Australia is likely to bear some fruit. The matter was brought under the notice of the House of Lords by Lord Harrowby on Monday night. In referring to the completion and early opening of the Pacific Railway to British Columbia, His Lordship referred to the Importance to the Empire of this Canadian line, which opened up a new route to the East and to Australia and New Zealand, thus placing the Empire independent of the Suez Canal. He appealed in eloquent terms to the Imperial Government to grant a liberal subsidy, by which a line of steamers could be established and run in connection with the railway, starting from Victoria and sailing to Japan, China and Australia. Passengers and goods by this route from these places could reach Britain and vice versa in shorter time than by any other one, the total distance by land and water from Victoria to Liverpool being about a thousand miles shorter than by any of the American routes. Lord Granville in reply to Lord Harrowby, after referring to the completion of the great enterprise in Canada, expressed himself favorable to granting the application for the subsidy asked. But as other departments of the Government have to be consulted in this matter, (mentioned favorably by the Minister of the previous Government, recommending that the subsidy be granted) he stated that his first act on assuming office was to remit the matter to the Treasury committee whose province it was to deal with it. When that committee reported, the Government would decide, and Parliament would be asked to take immediate action, which would doubtless have a favorable result. We also notice that steps are being taken by some parties in British Columbia to secure a share of the coast and through trade of the Pacific slope for the Canadian Pacific Railway. It is stated a company is being organized to start a line of steamers to run from Victoria, calling at the principal ports in Oregon, California, Mexico, and Central America. This line will run in connection with the railway, and will no doubt bring a large accession of travel and traffic to it. If these enterprises are entered into, liberally supported and well managed, they will help largely to develop the traffic between the East and West over our great Canadian trans-continental railway.

The official report of the collision on the railway between Monte Carlo and Mentone on Wednesday places the number of killed at four, and the injured at twenty-three.

Retrospective.

FEBRUARY 27th, 1886

It is just one year since the opening of my new business at 27 Lower Wyndham Street was announced. The retrospectis a pleasant one. The motto was and has been "Never fear to do right." The policy of the business was to sell good, reliable goods at a fair moderate profit, to sell strictly for cash to always pay and demand one hundred cents for every dollar, to offer customers our best efforts without boring them to buy, to make it a pleasure to call at our store, to eschew all bombast and exaggeration, to keep a sharp look out for advantages to our customers, to unite their interests with our own, to strictly mind our own business, to win the confidence of all our Patrons. Under the blessings of a kind Providence, the year just closed has been a most prosperous and satisfactory one. Our name and reputation have been established, our sales were 50 per cent more than our highest anticipations, and the result of the year's business very encouraging and satisfactory. Our hearty thanks are tendered to our many patrons.

PROSPECTIVE.

The same principles, riper experience, wider facilities, stronger efforts, increased confidence in the intelligence and discrimination of the public, determination and ability to meet the keenest legitimate competition, goods that will bear inspection and comparison and steady persevering effort, will be at the command of our patrons, and we have no fear that though the most strenuous efforts, legitimate and otherwise, will in the future as they have in the past be buzzing on every hand, the business at No. 27 will not only maintain but greatly strengthen the leading position which it has taken.

Toronto's Street Car Railway Men Return to Work on the Old Terms.

TORONTO, March 13.—Yesterday morning Ald. Walker, Frakland and Pepler waited on Hon. Frank Smith and Ald. Hastings and Hunter on the men. Mr. Smith, after hearing the gentlemen's views, told them what he had said all along, that he would take back the men if they would return on the old lines. The three Aldermen then waited on a deputation of the men and communicated Mr. Smith's proposal. The offer was accepted. Other Aldermen who had been unofficially discussing the matter in civic halls all day were then assembled and proceeded in a body to Mr. Smith's warehouse. After definitely ascertaining the capacity in which these gentlemen appeared, Mr. Smith said: "Gentlemen, I will tell Mr. Fraklin to-night to start work in the morning as if nothing had happened. I have all along been willing for the men to come back on the old understanding. I do not want you to strain a point to accommodate me. I want simple justice. I have endeavored to provide the public with a service effective in all respects. If I find a man in my employ who acts against the public welfare he must go. Had I known when I was about to enter upon this work what I know now, I would have kept out of it. I have been purposely misrepresented in the campaign. The story of the employing of the French Canadians was fabricated to raise religious feeling against me. Eighty per cent. of the men in my employ now are Protestants. Gentlemen, I thank you. The men shall come back on the same understanding as before." So virtually ended Toronto's street car strike.

The Monte Carlo station master, who was partly to blame for the recent fatality on the railway between Monte Carlo and Mentone, was arrested near Nice and committed suicide shortly after being taken into custody.

LEADING BOOT & SHOE STORE

Annual Stock Taking Sale

FOR 12 DAYS ONLY.

Having completed our annual stock-taking, we have determined to commence on the 15th inst. a Clearing out Sale of last Season's Goods at nominal prices.

We do not believe in the old exploded dodge of making our customers believe that we are selling goods below cost price, or that we are giving goods away for nothing. WE CONDUCT OUR BUSINESS TO MAKE MONEY; our THEORY AND PRACTICE is that small profits yield large sales, and give us continual customers.

Experienced buyers are not slow in finding out the best place to purchase, and no amount of windy advertisements and newspaper puffing, will induce them to purchase unless the goods are of sterling quality, fashionable and cheap.

We solicit this class of buyers. Call and see what we mean by a clearing sale. To continue twelve days—from the 15th to the 27th.

CHAPTER XVII.

THE MYSTERY EXPLAINED.

Alice continued to fade. Her parents, who had at first viewed the change in her with easy philosophy, were now seriously alarmed and ready to do anything the doctor recommended. But here they met with opposition from the patient. Dr. Smith advised change, and ordered her to go away. Alice obstinately refused to stir from home. She ate scarcely anything, but if pressed by her mother to take more food she generally pushed her plate away and refused to have anything at all; frequently she would leave the table if any remark was made on her small appetite. She never opened her lips except to utter some bitter, rancorous speech, and she usually maintained a haughty silence when addressed by anyone. Her feverish activity had deserted her. She spent most of her time sitting idle and silent, apparently lost in thought, or brooding over some idea, though what it might be nobody succeeded in discovering.

"It is impossible to do anything with her," said Mrs. Lafone one day to Percival, "and I confess I am at my wit's end. I wish with all my heart that she would get married."

"I do not see much chance of that happening," said Percival quietly. "You told me the other day that she would not allow any mention of such a thing, and in her present state it would require a bold man to take her for his wife."

"That is true," said Mrs. Lafone, sighing. "Though I am her mother, I must own she is at present unbearable, and makes the whole house uncomfortable. When she is in there is no peace for any one."

Percival said nothing. He was proud of his post as general confidant of the household. To him Alice sneered at her mother, and Mrs. Lafone made admissions about her daughter which he knew she would never have made to anyone else.

"It is most unfortunate," he said at last, seeing that some reply was expected from him. "Cannot you account for it in any way?"

Mrs. Lafone did not answer at once. A suspicion was beginning to rise in her mind that she could account for it. She had soon forgotten what Alice had said on the way home from their visit of condolence to Percival. It was only when her daughter had been ailing for some time, and she had begun to search in earnest for the cause of the change, that she had recollected what had passed between them on their drive home from Brantwood. It made her a little uneasy at first. No one who knew Alice could be ignorant of her unbridled temper, and her impatience of any resistance to her wishes. Later she grew reconciled to the idea, and began to wish that Percival would turn his thoughts to Alice. Though she had been glad at Helen's marriage, she had felt provoked that Percival had chosen her rather than Alice; but now his path was clear before him, and still he did not take a single step along it. He seemed just as much at a loss to account for Alice's illness as everyone else was or professed to be. For a moment a wild idea entered Mrs. Lafone's mind, but she dismissed it as impracticable, and instead replied to his question—

"I can only suppose she is fretting about something, though what it is I am at a loss to imagine. She will tell me nothing, and I cannot find out that she is more frank with any one else."

For a moment Percival too had a wild idea. Should he—ought he—to tell Mrs. Lafone what Alice had said to him only a short time before, with his own theory as to its meaning? He hesitated; it might do good, it might give them a clue, and on the other hand it might do harm. If Alice did not choose to speak more plainly nothing would force her to do so, and she might and probably would consider his speaking on the matter at all as a breach of confidence, to be punished by total silence on her part for the future. He felt very impatient with Mr. Lafone, who allowed himself to be absorbed in local politics instead of giving his time and attention to the affairs of his own family. But he decided not to tell Mrs. Lafone what her daughter had said to him, so all his answer to the note of interrogation in her voice was—

"If she does not feel inclined to speak I am sure we cannot make her do so. I cannot help thinking the best thing will be to let her alone; she will come round by herself. It evidently annoys her to be troubled with remarks on her appearance."

This was a cheerful common sense answer certainly, but it was not quite what Mrs. Lafone had wished, and she spoke rather coldly—

"Its very easy to say 'leave her alone' Percival; but you are not a mother, and you cannot see into a mother's heart or guess what she feels when she sees her child in such a state as Alice is in now."

"Percival murmured some words which Mrs. Lafone was pleased to accept as an apology, and to which she replied graciously—

"Do not say anything, Percival; it is not to be expected you can feel any very deep interest in Alice. She has no claim upon your sympathy as she would have if she were one of your relations, and I must confess that just at present she is her own enemy, poor girl."

They parted immediately after this, and Percival went home wishing with all his heart that he had nothing to do with Alice Lafone and her mysterious malady.

RAISE THE STANDARD HIGH.

The Dry Goods Trade is never elevated by one firm trying to hurt the reputation of another, neither will it raise the firm who tries it in the estimation of the public.

We do not propose to lower the standard of a

Respectable and Highly Thought of Business by any such Nonsense,

But on the other hand if there is anything we can do that will tend to elevate the Dry Goods Trade and those connected with us it will be done.

If other merchants in the city have found their trade in advance of last year (and with less salesmen required), we are glad to hear of it, and it speaks well for Guelph and we only hope they will still continue to prosper. As for us

WE ARE SATISFIED.

We are pleased with our business, our city and the people we have met with since coming to Guelph.

It is just a little over one month since we bought the

Very Respectable and Highly Thought of Business of Messrs. John Hogg & Son.,

and we have been told by those who know, that our sales for the month of February are in advance of the same month last year and we propose by attending

Strictly to our own Business

and by placing before the public

Good Honest Reliable Goods,

and at prices that will cause the people to know (without us having to tell them) that we are

Men of Experience in the Dry Goods Trade knowing Where to buy, How to buy and having the Bullion to Buy with.

Large quantities of goods are coming to hand every week from England, Ireland, Scotland and the United States; also from the different parts of Canada, which we are marking at a very low price and passing into stock.

We expec a large Spring Trade and are preparing for same.

We have retained all the old hands and they will be pleased to see their old friends.

STOCK TAKING COMPLETED.

NOW

In the lull which usually follows Stock taking before the heaviest of the Spring work begins when we will have less time for such a review, we would like to place before our patrons and the public generally the state of our business, and explain why we claim to sell so much cheaper than others.

Our business for the past year has been eminently satisfactory, we having done the largest Cash business which has been done in the Lion for the last six years. Now this in ordinary times would be very encouraging, but in hard times like the present, we consider it most satisfactory and indicative of a reign of prosperity for the Lion much beyond what it has had in the past. Of course we have not had as much opposition, our friend, Mr. Hogg not having applied himself so closely to business as in former years, but this would not explain entirely the great increase in our trade. The reasons are many. We will state a few:

Our Goods are all fresh and new.

Our Prices are Low.

Our Goods are all marked in plain figures.

We have only one price for all.

We handle the Goods the public want, and at prices to suit them.

NO WONDER WE SELL CHEAP.

It is no wonder we sell cheap, as we are almost under no expense. Our Discounts more than pay our salaries, and as we pay no rent, the two principal items of expense are taken out.

NOW LADIES

We astonished you with the variety and cheapness of our stock last Spring, but we expect to surprise you even more this Spring. We have now a resident buyer in Glasgow, who is always on hand to secure any novelties or cheap lines that are thrown on the British Market, so that we will always be a little ahead of others, both in style and value.

BUTTER MAKING.

Mr. A. E. Wark read a paper on butter making." He stated how the shallow setting was being supplanted by deep setting or centrifugal, comparing the various prices for butter. The advantages and disadvantages considered, he thought the cream gathering system was the better and would be so for some time to come.

Mr. Ramsay spoke of the excellency of the Danish butter made by the centrifugal system. He suggested that we were not so well informed in the manufacture, or for some other reason we were at a disadvantage in competing with this article.

Cleanliness was spoken of as a very important factory in butter making.

It was considered that a very important step in the right direction would be that store keepers should not handle butter at all. They were always losning on it, and could pay no more for poor than good, and there was no inducement held out for making a better article. Everything taken into consideration there should be no difficulty in inducing storekeepers to do this. Many agreed in the direction that buttter loses more of its texture in the centrifugal system, the butter being more greasey. They were not so sure as to whether it injured its keeping qualities.

A paper was read by T. Raynor, "Rose Hall," upon "Two years at the O. A. C." The weak and strong points of the Co lege were mentioned, the benefit in every way derived by agricultural education or education of any kind to the farmer being pointed out.

W. H. Owen stated that one reason the College was in so bad repute was that even the agricultural press which pretended to present the interests of the farmer, were throwing slurs upon the College an i Farm, and not doing this in a proper manner.

He thought there should be only one head. There was too much work for certain men, labor was not properly divided, The farm foreman should be made directly responsible to the Government. His impression was that Prof. Brown had too much to do.

Mr. R. W. Madge agreed with the last speaker as to outside. As to inside he thought some of the subjects of study should be made optional. He thought it was not politics alone, it was because the interest of the farmers had not been sufficiently awakened as to agricultural knowledge.

Mr. Edgar Sterge found that on account of the previous education of many farmers they were not able to keep up, and for such provision should be made. The College was for farmers' sons and provision should be made for them.

Mr. C. A. Zavitz stated he found the regular course an excellent one. But many farmers' sons, of whom he was one, found they were not in a position to keep up in all the subjects. Farmers should try and fit their sons more before coming here for a higher course. He thought the idea of having the lectures in veterinary and some other subjects printed and fly leaves put in for notes was an excellent one. Lectures should be given oftener on the field, tool and implement room, garden, and so on.

Mr. J. T. Poe thought the root of all the trouble was that the College was not of a sufficiently technical nature. The College was giving too much of a general education. The present system developed men good for parliament and taking their part in life generally, but only as a minor part of its work teaching men to be farmers. As to numbers of lectures agriculture had only a fourth place. He would propose that instead of the proposed system of free tuition, which he does think much of done as proposed, he would return fees or have none the second year if the student passed a certain standard in his former examinations. This would make them work harder.

AFTERNOON.

A. E. Shuttleworth, Mount Albert, thought the Agricultural College should be a professional institution. One class came having an insufficient general education. Another class had that and wanted to learn more of practical agriculture. He condemned a special course, until after the general had been completed. He would not advise any one coming here until eighteen years of age. He would change a few grammar schools into agricultural schools. He advised students to put in one year on the farm before coming to the Ontario Agricultural College. It is impossible to turn out over 100 students on one farm as practical workmen. 100 acres of the farm should be set apart as an instruction plot with necessary implements, and three teams and instructors. The second year students could manage the farm work, the second year and be paid for it. The 400 acre farm should be made to pay. Study in summer should be made as light as possible to give students more time to observe everything

The late letter in the Mail was read and as there was no name given to the letter, no attention was be paid to it.

Mr. Sleightholm thought 4 weeks holidays at Xmas was too much; that was the time a farmer's son could best devote to study. He thought the Farmers' Institutes an excellent thing, but they should not take the Professors so much from the students at that time. Farm instruction and farming should not be mixed up, the two should be kept separate. A farm cannot be a model, experimental and a farm for instruction in one. The model farm should be made to pay and the experimental department separate, and the instruction also separate.

President Mills stated as far as he was concerned, he did not feel he should say much upon the subject. He was willing to serve the college and hence the farmers and country in any way in his power.

Prof. Brown stated that there is no known case of any agricultural college attempting to try so educate 100 young men every year and turn them out in shape to manage a farm, and these colleges were surprised that they were still at it. The students were evidently dissatisfied but the problem had as yet been solved by no agricultural college.

Rev. W. F. Clarke stated the institution from the commencement might be compared to a child which had to go through the whooping cough, scarlet fever &c., before it grew to maturity.

John Hobson, Guelph, thought farmers were too conservative in their ways and their idea that practical agriculture could be best taught at home was a mistaken one. He thought that this institution would compare very favourably with others of the same nature. The discussions had been of an open and manly nature. Farmers had not sufficient ambition to rise in their profession. He stated that so soon as farmers were more generally in a position educationally to manage the affairs of the land, more would be asked to do so.

Mr. Morgan thought that agriculture should be taught in more of the schools.

The following motion was carried:—That it be suggested (1) That the special class be recognized and the course of study extended, including live stock, agriculture, agricultural chemistry, veterinary science, arboriculture, entomology. (2) That all their time be as fully occupied as in the regular class and that in every respect the class be considered of equal importance with the regular class. that the course extend over two winters, and that the members of the special class be allowed, if desiring, to join the regular class in the intervening season again. It is respectfully suggested that the lectures on veterinary science as now given at the O. A. C. be printed and bound in book or pamphlet form, and that one copy be supplied to each and every student. That the student pay cost price for such book in pamphlet and that it be printed not later than October 1, 1886.

A paper was read by Mr. Madge upon "Stock raising." He pointed out the importance of looking closely to points and individual weaknesses and powers.

The discussion was animated. Mr. R. F. Holtermann and others spoke.

A resolution expressing condolence for the loss by death of Dr. Hare to the Union and country was passed.

The Union adjourned.

ANNUAL ENTERTAINMENT.

The annual entertainment was held in the evening in the dining room of the College, which was crowded to the door. The room was tastefully decorated with bunting and evergreens, and everything was done that could be thought of for the comfort and amusement of the guests.

Shortly after half-past seven President Mills opened the meeting with a short address, welcoming the audience, and regretting that there was no place in the College sufficient to accommodate an audience on a occasion like the present. He hoped that the Government would see their way to make arrangements for a larger hall. He then introduced the programme, which is as follows:—

Trio, Overture "Don Juan de Mozart" ..... Misses Brown and Miss Saunders.
Recitation, "The Deluge" ..... E Sturge.
Song, "Death of Nelson" ..... R. Brown.
Reading, "Bashful Young Men" ..... A H Broome.
Instrumental, violin obligato ..... Miss A. Thompson.
Song and chorus, "There she blows" ..... Students.
Humorous recitation, "Here she goes and there she goes" ..... C H Zavitz.
Dialogue—law suit—"Goody Grim v. Lapstone" Messrs Madge, Poe, Donald and Smithers.
Overture, 1st and 2nd violin, viola and piano, "Lustpiel" by Kelar Bela ..... The Misses Bucham.
Illustrated Tale ..... W J Gilbert.
Song and chorus, "I guess you have all been there" ..... Students.
Piano solo, "Auklange aus Schouland" ..... Miss J Erskine Brown.
Reading ..... Donaldson
Song, "Pilgrim Fathers" ..... Miss Brown.
Recitation, "Anthony and Cleopatra" ..... A J R Kennedy.

COMEDIETTA—"I've Written to Browne." Scene—Mrs Walsingham's Country House.

Mr Peregrine Dotts ..... J W Patterson
Mr Otway Sheridan Browne ..... J Hirsch
William (a gardener) ..... B E Paterson
Mrs Walsingham (a pretty widow) ..... S Calvert
Laura (her sister) ..... A B Caswell

God Save the Queen.

The programme, although altogether too long—being after eleven o'clock before it was finished—was well rendered on the whole, and apparently met with the approval of the audience. Several performers received an encore. Among the pieces deserving special note may be mentioned the song by Miss Brown, the Irish songs by Mr. Morgan, who was not down on the programme; the violin performances by the Misses Bucham and Miss Thompson, the selection of Scottish airs on the piano by Miss J. Brown, the overture by the Misses Brown and Saunders, and the chorus by the students.

Farm Laborers' Wages.

To the Editor of the Mercury:

I would like to call the attention of farmers at this season of the year to the question of wages to be paid to hired men for next season.

It is usual for farmers about this time of the year to engage what help they require to work on their farm during the spring, summer and autumn months, and as a rule they hire the men for seven months from the 1st of April.

For the past 4 or 5 years men's wages have been very high, and I think this year farmers should not pay as high wages as they have for the past few years paid.

Wages should be reduced at least $4 or $5 per month for the ensuing season. I should think that $14 per month, for 7 months from 1st of April next, would be a reasonable wage to pay men, considering the low prices which the farmers get for everything that they sell. Then the man's board is worth $13 per month, so that he will actually be be getting $27 per month if paid at the rate of $14, and his board and $27 per month can be easily reckoned and found in 7 months to amount to $189.

Very few farmers at present can afford to pay more than $14 per month and board, and it would be better for some farmers to seed their farms down in pasture or hay than pay the high wages that have been paid for the past few years.

In my opinion the farmers are themselves to blame for paying such high wages, and I would ask them to consider at this season of the year the propriety of giving no more than $14 per month and board to any man for the 7 months from 1st April next. I consider that the prospects for this next season do not warrant us in paying a higher wage than this.

A Smuggling Teacher.

BRAMPTON, March 13.—An important customs seizure was made here yesterday by Chief Constable John Hurst and R. P. Campbell, collector of this port. A school teacher, of Churchville, named A. McPhail, has for a number of years been peddling jewellery among his country friends, after school hours and during his holidays, and it is said that his sales have been exceptionally large. Chief Hurst, a few weeks ago, got wind of his frequent trips to Buffalo, and thought it worth looking into, and after three weeks of patient and quiet work sprung the mine. McPhail was arrested and brought before the customs authorities in Toronto, and his goods, amounting to nearly $1,000, confiscated.

COUNCIL to-night.

THE Elmira monthly fair on Monday, the 8th, was largely attended.

BARON ROTHSCHILD has surprised Londoners by pinning on the blue ribbon of total abstinence.

THE report that Mr. John Williams, of the Clark House, Erin, was about to take the Wellington Hotel in Fergus, is unfounded.

REVIVAL services will be held every evening this week in the 2nd Methodist Church, excepting this evening. Large congregations attend nightly.

THE seats for the "Social Glass," to be given on St. Patrick's Night, in the City Hall, under the patronage of the League of the Cross, are being rapidly taken up at Pringle's jewelery store.

YESTERDAY the communion of the Lord's Supper was held in all the Presbyterian Churches in the City. This Sacrament was participated in by a large number of communicants in these churches.

THE Erin March cattle fair was one of the best held for some time, both as regards the number of cattle, their quality, the attendance of buyers, the prices offered, and the throng of visitors. Some three carloads were purchased by buyers at from 3 to 3¾c per lb.

THE Elora Lacrosse Club re-organized Thursday night with 64 members on the list. The following officers were elected for the present year:—President, Robert Chinneck; Vice-President, Henry Clarke; Captain, W. H. Gordon; Sec. A. J. MacDonald; Treas., John Drew. Executive Committee—Jas. McCabe, John Bain and E. Sheppard.

THE Fergus Advocate says:—There was a report here on Monday that a detective was in town hunting evidence in connection with a divorce case in Uncle Sam's domains. Among a certain class of individuals "mum" is the word at present. We wouldn't like to see any of our so-called aristocratic individuals walked off to give evidence in a divorce case; but you can't sometimes most generally always tell how things of such a nature are going to proceed.

O. A. C. CREAMERY.—The Mount Forest Index says: We are pleased to note that Mr. James W. Robertson, who has done so much during the past few years to encourage the manufacturing of cheese in this section of the country, has received the appointment of superintendent of dairying interest, at the Agricultural College, Guelph. Mr. Robertson's duties will be to give instruction in the College, and also to deliver lectures on the same subject throughout the Province. We consider this a very excellent appointment. Mr. R. removes to Guelph at an early date.

PAY UP.—The date of the end of the word is fixed for this present year of 1886. There is an ancient prediction repeated by Nostradamus in his "Centuries," which says that when St. George shall crucify the Lord, when St. Mark shall raise Him, and St. John shall assist at His ascension, the end shall come. This year it happens that Good Friday falls on St. George's day, and Holy Thursday (ascension day) will be also the feast of Saint John the Baptist—if you owe for the MERCURY which has supplied you with all the news, it will pay you to call and settle up all arrears and show a clean sheet when the end does come.

THE BATTERIES.—Lieut.-Col. W. H. Cotton Inspector of Artillery, reports the following concerning "A" and "B" Batteries in the report of Militia and Defence, just issued:—Lieut.-Col. A. H. MacDonald commanding:—The two Batteries composing this Brigade, together with the London Field Battery, were in camp at London. Nos. 1 and 2 Batteries, under command of Majors Nicol and Hood respectively, still mantain their efficiency, and were turned out in a soldierly manner. The N. C. O's. were all well up in their work. Having had an opportunity of staying in Camp I was enabled to judge of the good discipline and management of the Field Artillery Camp. No. 2 Battery is still armed with obsolete and unserviceable guns and carriages. This Battery is otherwise so efficient it is hoped that before another year they may be better equipped.

TO TEST CATTLE EXPORTING.—The Globe says: Ald. G. F. Frankland has associated himself with Mr. John Dunn, the President of the Dominion Cattle Dealers' Association, with the object of thoroughly testing the exporting cattle trade between Canada and Great Britain. Ald. Frankland states that it is believed on all hands that this year will be the crucial year in respect to the exportation in cattle, and that the numbers bought in Canada and the sales made in Great Britain will be a fair representation of the trade for the next fifteen years. It is well understood that there is great depression on both sides. Cereals were never cheaper, cattle were never more plentiful on both sides of the Atlantic; but at the same time, 25 per cent of what they use has to come from foreign countries. It is very necessary for the interests of Canadian agriculture that Canada should keep to the front. America is trying all that she possibly can to fill every department that requires animal food in Great Britain.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES.—The sermons in connection with the fiftieth anniversary of the Norfolk street Methodist Church were preached yesterday morning and evening to large congregations by Rev. Dr. Carman, General Superintendant of the Methodist Church. The discourse of the morning was a plain practical exposition of the doctrine of Christian Holiness, the lessons read, Psalm XV. and Romans XII. being the groundwork of his remarks. The preacher took up one by one some of the misconceptions current regarding this state of grace, and exemplified his points very clearly. In the evening the Rev. Dr. gave an eloquent resume of the various phases of the Church, the family and the state, the three great institutions recognized in the Word of God, and the duties a true citizen owed to each, especially to the former. His text was from I Tim. III., 45. At both services the pastor on behalf of the trustees asked from the congregation a contrabution of three thousand dollars to liquidate the floating debt of the church with the gratifying result that the collections morning and evening for this object amounted to about three thousand five hundred dollars. This evening the annual social gathering of the church will be held at which Rev. Dr. Carman will deliver his celebrated lecture "Trade and Get Rich" and an enjoyable evening may be expected.

A REVIVAL of a fashion of 100 years ago appears in the hand bags of melon seeds and steel beads, which is the popular handiwork of such young women as were forehanded enough to gather cantalope seeds last summer. NO GO ON TURNIPS.—The New York Wall Street News says: A Wellington County, Ontario, man sold out his farm, disposed of all his stock, and let it be known that he was going to New York to become a Wall street speculator. He was absent only a month, and returned and made an offer for the old place. When his neighbors asked him what was the matter with Wall street, he replied. "It's greatly exaggerated. I went in there willing to put up $8,600 on turnips, and I'll be hanged if I could get a whack at anybody, or if anybody would take a whack at me. Those chaps never dare tackle an honest vegetable.

AN OLD CANADIAN.—The birth of the first white child in Norfolk county took place in Walsingham in 1796. He is still living at St. Williams, Major Daniel McCall. His grandfather, Donald McCall, belonged to the celebrated 42nd Highland Regiment and assisted in the capture of Louisburgh, C.B.; also in the capture of Quebec under Wolfe. His father, Duncan McCall, was elected to the Upper Canada Parliament in 1824, and was re-elected in 1828 and in 1832, and died in 1833 while attending the House in York (now Toronto). The Major himself served in 1812 and 1837. Though 90 years old, he is hale and active, and his aged wife likewise.

SINGULAR THRESHING MACHINE ACCIDENT.—The Galt Reporter has the following: A singular accident occurred to the engine of a threshing machine, owned by Walter Henderson, in Beverly last week. While at work and everything going smoothly, the large belt of the thresher came off, and the engine, released from the load, started off at great speed. Mr. Henderson ran to turn off steam, but before he could do so, the "governor" belt also came off. Then the engine fairly ran away, until a terrific speed was reached, when its parts broke and collapsed, the whole machinery flying in all directions, large pieces of the fly-wheel and other heavy parts being thrown immense distances. Although the men engaged at the work, were all round, yet they escaped without injury, though in several cases parts of the machinery whizzed past them like cannon balls. One of the men had put up a board to keep the wind off him, when a piece struck the board behind which he was standing and broke it through, but then its force was spent and he escaped. The boiler was uninjured, very fortunately, but the engine is a total wreck and will cause Mr. Henderson serious loss.

DUBLIN STREET CHURCH.—Specially interesting services were held in the above church yesterday, at which large congregations attended. In the morning Rev. Dr. Griffin occupied the pulpit. In the afternoon a mass meeting of the Sunday School children of the church and the Bible classes was held, attended by a large number of the parents and friends of the congregation. Rev. G. F. Salton, of Goderich, addressed the younger children more particularly, in an especially pleasing manner, taking for his subject "Be." The little people appeared more than delighted at the unique address, and another visit from the rev. gentleman will be looked for with interest. In the evening a reception service was held, Rev. Mr. Salton preaching from Matt. 5, 16. After the sermon over fifty adults and young persons were received into the Church on trial. The candidates were invited to the front and given a few earnest words of counsel and advice by Rev. Dr. Griffin. Rev. W. F. Clarke, of Speedside, who came to witness the ceremony, at the request of the Rev. Dr. gave an address of a few minutes' duration, which was attentively listened to. The choral portion of the services throughout the day were led by the well trained choir of the Church, and the organist as a fitting finale performed "Onward Christian Soldiers" at the close of the evening service, the large congregation slowly retiring.

THE Guelph Snow Shoe and Toboggan Club are to give an entertainment in the City Hall, on the 23rd of this month. The evening will be chiefly taken up by Prof Vallance who is too well known to Guelph audiences to need any recommendation here. As the club believe in popular prices they have set the price of tickets at twenty-five cents and they can be reserved at Pringle's without extra charge on and after Friday next the 19th inst. d1

THE Rev. W. S. Ball was in the city to-day on his way to Duff's church, Puslinch, to deliver his well known lecture "The men of the war, and how they fought." Mr. Ball during his short stay in the city received a warm hand shake from many of his old friends.

OFFICIAL RETURNS.—At noon to day, City Clerk Mitchell, in the presence of the requisite witnesses made his returns for the election in St. Patrick's Ward as furnished him by the returning officers. Polling sub-division No. 1, Hortop 56, Stull 19; sub-division No. 2, Hortop 32, Stull 19, giving a majority of 57 for Hortop, the same as published on Saturday. Charles Raymond was declared elected for St. John's Ward.

FUNERAL.—The funeral of Martin Cantwell, Puslinch, a member of the League of the Cross, was largely attended yesterday. The members of the League turned out to about the number of 150 and met the funeral procession on the Waterloo Avenue, and preceded the hearse to the R. C. church where the usual funeral services were conducted by the Rev. Father Plant. The members of the League wore their badges and shoulder crapes. Father Plant conducted the services at the grave.

UPSET.—H. Elmslie, grain dealer had rather an unpleasant experience on Saturday afternoon. When passing over the railway crossing at Gordon street, one of the runners of the sleigh caught on the rails, upsetting the vehicle and throwing Mr. Elmslie from his seat. Mr. Elmslie escaped with a few scratches, but not so with the five dozen of eggs which he had in the sleigh. These were distributed in such a manner on the street as not only to preclude the utility of the eggs but to seriously damage the other articles in the sleigh which seemed to commingle with them.

CHALMERS' CHURCH.—Last evening the Rev. Dr. Wardrope, pastor of Chalmers' Church, preached an able sermon from the text in Hebrews, xiii chap and latter clause of the 5th verse:—"For he hath said, I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee." During his discourse the Rev. Doctor feelingly referred to the fact that within the past four months eleven had been removed from the congregation by death, five of whom were communicants. Two had been called away from among them within the last week, one of them, Mr. Evan McDonald, who had been connected with the church in various capacities since its organization. He died in the sure and certain hope of a glorious resurrection. He also referred to the death of Mr. Thomas A. Anderson, late of the MERCURY, who, although not so well known, had won for himself many warm friends during his short stay, and had also his hope well founded for eternity.

Mr. Cowan appeared for the prosecution and Mr. John L. Murphy for the defence. His Worship reserved decision until to-morrow, but at the same time delivered a severe stricture to hotel keepers who would furnish liquors to parties whom they knew to be addicted to drink, and especially after they had received notice not to do so. James Kirkland, for assaulting his son with a hammer while under the influence of liquor, also received a severe reprimand. The Evening Mercury

MONDAY EVE'G MARCH 15, 1886.

The Government and Riel's Execution.

Mr. Massue, the Government whip for Quebec, has given notice that he intends to resign his position. This is another evidence of the disaffection of the Bleus. How far it has spread remains to be seen when the vote on Landry's motion, regretting the execution of Riel, is taken. But it is clear even now that some of the ablest of the Government's old friends and supporters from Quebec have left them, and it is extremely doubtful if they will ever return to their allegiance to the present Administration. It was clear from Mr. Amyot's speech on Thursday night that he at least will no longer be its friend and apologist. This speech from his stand-point was an able one in justification of the position taken by him and his friends, condemning the Government for the execution of Riel. He attacked the Government, but especially Langevin and Caron, with withering sarcasm, and denounced them in language which cannot be forgotten or forgiven by these gentlemen or their colleagues. The Government in its effort to stifle discussion and narrow the question down to a direct vote on the naked motion offered by Mr. Landry, resorted to a very uncommon and characteristically cowardly action. Sir Hector Langevin at the conclusion of his speech in defence of the Government's action in allowing Riel to be executed, moved "the previous question." This shuts off the moving of any other motion or amendment to that moved by Mr. Landry, and if the Government chose it could also choke off the debate on this motion and force the vote to be taken on it at any time. Such a motion as that moved by Sir Hector is very rarely resorted to in our Parliament, though it is common enough in the United States Congress, and is generally employed there to put an end to useless discussion and force the House to a vote. In the debate on the motion now before the House speakers labor under the great disadvantage of being without the necessary papers relating to Riel's execution, which have been moved for but which the Government have not brought down. In fact no document of any importance has yet been laid on the table except the report of the surgeons on Riel's mental condition. Yet in the face of this the Government have forced on the debate without giving members a chance to peruse important documents, which might throw much light on the case, which might perhaps enable members to come to a different conclusion with respect to it, some of whom without these will, no doubt, be obliged conscientiously to adhere to their opinion already formed, that it was right in allowing the law to take its course in the execution of Riel.

We noticed the other day a paragraph among the despatches from the old country, that a hundred boys, gathered off the streets in some of the cities in Scotland, were to be shipped to Canada next month. We think it is about time this description of immigrants should be put a stop to. Our own juvenile population is large enough at present for all our requirements, and indeed it is often a matter of anxiety with parents to find suitable employment or suitable positions in trades and other callings for their boys. The characters of these waifs who are from time to time shipped over to Canada from the over-crowded cities at home are for the most part bad, and unfortunately as a rule they do not improve much even under the better influences of the families among whom they are located here. The object of the promoters of such a class of immigration, both male and female, in bringing them to Canada is no doubt good and praiseworthy, but on the whole the benefits we derive from their presence in this country are very questionable. But our Government through its High Commissioner in London continues to encourage the people engaged in it just as it keeps on encouraging assisted passages to this country of mechanics and others who are not wanted here at present, and who crowd out our own people in the labor market, thereby depriving them of work and forcing them to seek it in the States.

The Literary and Historical Society of Sioux city, Iowa, have marked their appreciation of the Hon. Alexander Mackenzie's attainments, and his services to his country, by making him an honorary member of their Society.

The Hudson Bay Route.

Mr. Hugh Sutherland, one of the Manitoba members, and chief promoter of the projected railway from that Province to Hudson Bay, left Ottawa the other day en route for England. His mission is to enlist British capitalists and procure money enough with which to make at least a fair start in the construction of the road. It seems that the people in Manitoba, but especially in Winnipeg, have set their hearts on this project as an outlet for the produce of that Province and of the whole of the Northwest. They argue that it will have many advantages over any other route to Britain or the continent of Europe. This is undoubtedly true as regards distance, but in other respects we cannot well see where the other advantages come in. The railway if ever built will traverse a region uncultivated, and which is altogether unsuited for cultivation both on account of the nature of the soil and the rigour of the climate. Such being the case it would never obtain any local traffic or travel, but must depend entirely on what it could secure in Manitoba and the country west of that Province. Even if this were secured, it would have to trust to the dangerous and uncertain navigation of Hudson Bay and Hudson Straits, which as we shall see is at the best uncertain and perilous, and very limited as regards time.

We have full confirmation of this in the report of Lieut. Gordon, commander of the "Alert," which was engaged in the Hudson Bay expedition of last year, undertaken by the Dominion Government. The object of the expedition, which was first undertaken in 1884, and renewed in 1885, was to ascertain the character of the navigation in Hudson Straits and Hudson Bay, and how long it was practicable, for without such an outlet the construction of the railway in question would be entirely useless. We find Lieut. Gordon's report in that of the Department of Marine, just issued. It is by no means of an encouraging nature. The "Alert" sailed from Halifax on the 27th of May, and after passing the Straits of Belle Isle encountered a great deal of ice on the Labrador Coast. This impeded the ship's progress more or less until it reached Resolution Island, in the entrance to the straits, when through an ice jam one of the ship's stem plates was broken, which obliged them to go back to St. John's, Newfoundland, to re-fit. On the 27th July they made a fresh start, and on the 2nd August again reached the entrance to the Straits. From this time up to the 31st, when the "Alert" reached Churchill harbour on the west of Hudson Bay, and some miles north of York Factory, they encountered a great deal of drift ice and almost continuous bad weather, so much so that on some days it was impossible for them to communicate with the shore. On the morning of the 7th September the "Alert" sailed from Churchill, and fine weather was experienced while sailing across the Bay. So soon, however, as they got into the Straits again they met with field ice and quite a number of ice bergs. Before they got out of the Straits on the 25th they encountered continuous heavy gales accompanied by blinding snow. From that date till the 12th of October, when they reached St. John's, Newfoundland, they had a succession of storms and heavy seas. Lieut. Gordon thus sums up his observations, which it will be seen are not at all of a cheering character as far as establishing the practicability of a good and safe route is concerned:

"The reports go to show that the ice set fast in the western end of the Straits during the last week of October, 1884, and that for all practical purposes of navigation the Straits remained closed at this point till the early part of June in the present year. In June a good deal of open water was seen at different times, but the pack would close up again, and remain in that condition for several days at a time. From a consideration of these reports, I am of opinion that it might have been possible to pass through the Straits during the early part of this July. The same date of closing, as shown by the observations last year, would give a season of navigation rather less than four months for the individual season. It should, however, be stated that the movements of the ice this spring were evidently much later than those of last spring, for in the month of August this year we met with vast quantities of heavy ice, and in the same month last year comparatively little was seen. On the Labrador Coast and at Churchill the report was the same—that the ice was unusually late in leaving this year. I was informed by a captain who had made a number of voyages through Hudson's Straits, that he had seen the Straits clear of ice in June, but that it was a rare occurrence. The fact, however, that the Straits have been clear at this time, shows that there is a great variability in the dates of the opening of navigation.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

A Good thing.

Dr. Adam Miller, Chicago, Ill., says: "It is one of the very few really valuable preparations now offered to the afflicted. In a practice of thirty-five years, I have found a few good things, and this is one of them."

The annual report of the Peel Cheese and Butter Company shows the total amount of milk received to be 1,154,985 lbs; cheese manufactured 110,365 lbs.; average lb milk to lb cheese 10 46 lbs., average price per lb realized for cheese sold during the year 7 55 cents; amount received for cheese during the year $8,730 72. Mr. White was elected President for the current year.

A NASAL INJECTOR free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. For sale by A. B. Petrie.

Inland Revenue.

A glance at the annual report of the Minister of Inland revenue shows that the accrued revenue for 1885 was $6,917,535, as against $6,141,750 for 1884, or exhibiting an accrued revenue of $775,885 in excess of that of the previous year. This increase has arisen from excise and law stamps, while a decrease is noticeable under the heads public works and culling timber. The chief increase under the head of excise occurs in respect to spirits. The spirits manufactured during the year were 3,579,332 proof gallons, as against a production during the preceding year of 4,207,576 proof gallons. The quantity taken for consumption was, however, in excess of that taken in 1884, being 4,274,722 proof gallons as against 3,608,021 for 1884. This excess of withdrawals is said to be due to the conviction that the rebellion in the Northwest would demand additional taxation and that spirits and tobaccoes being luxuries would be the first to submit to the impost. It is worthy of notice that while the consumption of alcohol exceeds three quaters of a million per annum, this is barely one-third the amount consumed in Europe.

There is a falling in the quantity of malt manufactured from 55,447,616 lbs to 49,517,992. The consumption, however, increased from 37,207,120 in '84 to 47,005,917 in 1885.

The quantity of Canadian roll tobacco which paid duty last year was 340,873; duty, $7,367.48, against 232,923 pounds and $5,128.84 duty in 1883 84.

The number of packages of Canadian petroleum inspected during the year is 189,842, and the fees collected thereon $18,352·32. The number of packages of imported petroleum inspected by officers of this department is 31,512 and the fees collected thereon $9,167.95

Retrospective.

FEBRUARY 27th, 1886

It is just one year since the opening of my new business at 27 Lower Wyndham Street was announced. The retrospect is a pleasant one. The motto was and has been "Never fear to do right." The policy of the business was to sell good, reliable goods at a fair moderate profit, to sell strictly for cash to always pay and demand one hundred cents for every dollar, to offer customers our best efforts without boring them to buy, to make it a pleasure to call at our store, to eschew all bombast and exaggeration, to keep a sharp look out for advantages to our customers, to unite their interests with our own, to strictly mind our own business, to win the confidence of all our Patrons. Under the blessings of a kind Providence, the year just closed has been a most prosperous and satisfactory one. Our name and reputation have been established, our sales were 50 per cent more than our highest anticipations, and the result of the year's business very encouraging and satisfactory. Our hearty thanks are tendered to our many patrons.

PROSPECTIVE.

The same principles, riper experience, wider facilities, stronger efforts, increased confidence in the intelligence and discrimination of the public, determination and ability to meet the keenest legitimate competition, goods that will bear inspection and comparison and steady persevering effort, will be at the command of our patrons, and we have no fear that though the most strenuous efforts, legitimate and otherwise, will in the future as they have in the past be buzzing on every hand, the business at No. 27 will not only maintain but greatly strengthen the leading position which it has taken.

CHAPTER XVII.

THE MYSTERY EXPLAINED.

Business took him from home on the following day, and he was absent a week. When he returned he met two or three people he knew at the Osmotherly Station. He exchanged a few words with them, and it was not till he was sitting alone after dinner that he was struck with the recollection of anything different from usual in their manner. But on reflection he did remember one or two little things—glances which had been exchanged after he had spoken, and something in their manner which was not to be defined, but which had certainly existed.

The following day he received a note from Alice. It came by post with other letters, and as he looked at the address before opening the envelope he supposed casually that it was an invitation. What he read was as follows:—

"Dear Mr. Moore,—Circumstances have made it necessary for me to speak to you and at once. I should prefer that our meeting did not take place here; so should be glad if you would meet me on the Fell at noon. If by any chance you cannot come let me know before eleven o'clock. What I have to tell you will surprise you, I know, but I beg you will not think harshly of me.—Believe me, yours very truly,

"ALICE LAFONE."

Twice over Percival read the note, and after each reading he shook his head completely puzzled. What she wanted he could not tell, unless it was something connected with the mysterious lover whom he believed to exist in the background. When he had finished his breakfast he gathered all his letters together and went into the library, where he sat down and wrote the following:—

"Dear Miss Lafone,—It can only give me pleasure to do anything for you, and I will meet you on the Fell at the time you name.—Believe me, yours sincerely,

"PERCIVAL MOORE."

He sent this off to The Thwaite at once, and then sat whistling softly, and wondering what he should do until the time came for going to the Fell. This appointment with Alice broke into his morning, and prevented him spending it as he had originally intended. He tried not to think of Alice, for he felt convinced it was hopeless seeking further meaning of her note before he had seen herself; but she occupied his thoughts in a persistent way, and he was glad when it was time to turn his steps towards the Fell. He knew he ran no danger of meeting Alice, he approached the place from quite a different direction from that in which she must come, and so he walked slowly along, not knowing what to expect.

He was first on the Fell; on all the wide expanse there was no human figure except his own, and he leaned against the cairn of grey stones at the top and looked out over the bay, while he could not help thinking of the summer evening on which he had come there with Dr. Hazlitt and Helen joined them. This thought gave rise to so many reflections that the time slipped by, and he seemed scarcely to have been there five minutes when he saw a woman coming slowly along the road leading up from the valley, the road which passed through the high-lying fields and the fir plantation. He saw at once it was Alice, and he began to feel a little curious as to what he was going to hear. He felt certain she was going to ask him to do something for her, and while he was ready to place himself at her service, he hoped it would not be anything very extraordinary.

He would soon know. Alice had reached the place where he stood, and stood opposite to him silent, after having uttered a brief "Good morning," without making any attempt to shake hands.

He had not seen her for a week, and he was shocked at the further change these few days had wrought in her. She was the shadow of her former self; a shadow in whose eyes burned a consuming fire, and whose cheeks were red with fever. Her eyes did not meet his, but wandered over the country, the bay, Brantwood, and the old church in the valley on the other side of the hill. Her hot thin hands were clasped tightly together, and her lips were not quite steady. She was evidently going to take some step which appeared to her desperate, and she was very nervous about it. She did not speak, and Percival thought it was possibly because she could not, so feeling really sorry for her, he thought to smooth her way by saying,

"I hope I can be of some use to you. Do not hesitate to ask me whatever you want. I am at your service."

"You mean that? You really and honestly mean that?" she asked in an eager, unsteady voice, while she raised her eyes to his for a moment, only to lower them again before he could look into them.

"Certainly."

"If you will only say it when I have told you all," she said in a low, brooding voice, and rather to herself than him.

"Before you speak, sit down. This rock will make a not uncomfortable seat, and I am sure you are not fit to stand."

"How do you think I am looking?" she asked, twisting her fingers nervously together; "better or worse than when you went away?"

"Much worse," he answered decidedly. "If I had known how ill you were, I should have insisted upon seeing you at The Thwaite, or some place nearer home. You are in no state to take such a long walk, and one all the way up hill."

"It does not matter, it has done me good for a moment," she said, "and I could not possibly have seen you at home. But you are quite right. I am worse, much worse. My strength is going, I can scarcely drag myself about. Do you know why it is? Have you any idea what has happened since you went away?"

"I know nothing."

"You came back yesterday, did you not? Have you seen any one you knew since then?"

"I saw some people at the station yesterday," he replied, utterly at a loss to guess where all these questions were leading.

"And—and—did they say nothing? Did they behave quite as usual?"

The recollection of the little difference in manner which he had noticed came into his mind, but he said—

"Why should they not behave as usual?"

She had seated herself upon the stone he had pointed out to her, and now leaned back against some other rocks, as though powerless to sit upright.

RAISE THE STANDARD HIGH.

The Dry Goods Trade is never elevated by one firm trying to hurt the reputation of another, neither will it raise the firm who tries it in the estimation of the public.

We do not propose to lower the standard of a

Respectable and Highly Thought of Business by any such Nonsense,

But on the other hand if there is anything we can do that will tend to elevate the Dry Goods Trade and those connected with us it will be done.

If other merchants in the city have found their trade in advance of last year (and with less salesmen required), we are glad to hear of it, and it speaks well for Guelph and we only hope they will still continue to prosper. As for us

WE ARE SATISFIED.

We are pleased with our business, our city and the people we have met with since coming to Guelph.

It is just a little over one month since we bought the

Very Respectable and Highly Thought of Business of Messrs. John Hogg & Son.,

and we have been told by those who know, that our sales for the month of February are in advance of the same month last year and we propose by attending

Strictly to our own Business

and by placing before the public

Good Honest Reliable Goods,

and at prices that will cause the people to know (without us having to tell them) that we are

Men of Experience in the Dry Goods Trade knowing Where to buy, How to buy and having the Bullion to Buy with.

Large quantities of goods are coming to hand every week from England, Ireland, Scotland and the United States; also from the different parts of Canada, which we are marking at a very low price and passing into stock.

We expect a large Spring Trade and are preparing for same.

We have retained all the old hands and they will be pleased to see their old friends.

STEAMSHIP SUNK.

The Cunard Liner "Oregon" Collides with a Steamer and Goes Down.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The magnificent steamer "Oregon," of Cunard line, lies at the bottom of the Atlantic within a few miles of Sandy Hook, having been sunk about four o'clock this morning while making for this city by an unknown deeply-laden three masted schooner. It is not clear how the collision occurred. Captain Cottier, of the "Oregon" had gone below, leaving the first officer in charge of the bridge. Suddenly a shadow loomed up in the darkness and before those on board the steamer were able to distinguish what the object was the crash came. The unknown steamer struck the "Oregon" in the side and stove a hole in her side. The shock of the collision awoke the sleeping passengers and a scene of wild confusion followed. A hasty examination was made and it was found that the steamer was rapidly filling with water. Captain Cottier and those of the crew who had retired were hastily summoned to the deck, and when the serious nature of the collision became known the officers explained the situation to the terror-stricken passengers, and the work of lowering the steamer's boats was soon under way. Pilot boat No.11 and the schooner "Fannie A. Gorham," bound from Jacksonville for Boston, were in the immediate vicinity, and drew near the sinking steamer to render what assistance they could. When it became known on board that no immediate danger was to be feared the alarm of the passengers was allayed, and they quietly awaited the lowering of the steamer's boats. This having been accomplished with some difficulty, the ladies were first got in the boats and transferred to pilot boat No. 11 and the schooner "Gorham." Owing to the excellent discipline of the crew and the coolness of the officers of the "Oregon" the work of transferring the 185 first cabin, 66 second cabin and 389 steerage passengers was accomplished without a single casualty. The 205 souls belonging to the crew were then transferred to the vessels above mentioned. About noon the steamship "Fulda" was sighted bearing towards Sandy Hook. Signals were displayed and the attention of those on board the "Fulda" having been arrested she changed her course and bore down upon the sinking steamer. The work of retransferring the passengers and crew of the "Oregon" to the "Fulda" was proceeded with, and this having been safely accomplished, the "Fulda" steamed for New York arriving at the bar at 6.25 p. m.

An examination of the "Oregon" showed that she had two holes in her port side below the water line as if the schooner had rebounded from the first blow and then struck the steamer a second time. All efforts to stop the leaks were unavailing and the great steamer began to settle in the water. It was evident that the "Oregon" would keep afloat for some hours, but that it woule be impossible to bring her to port. The work of ferrying its passengers to the waiting schooner and pilot boat was begun at once the captain leaving the ship last.

It was eight hours from the time of the collision to the time when the captain of the "Oregon" reached the deck of the pilot boat. The "Oregon" had settled low in the water and soon after the captain had gained the pilot boat he saw his magnificent craft go down.

BLOODY ROBBERY.

An Express Messenger Murdered and Thousands of Dollars Stolen.

JOLIET, Ill., March 13.—Daring and bloody express robberies occurred on the Chicago & Rock Island west bound express last night between this place and Morris. Shortly after the train which leaves here at 12.45 a. m. had left this city the baggageman heard a rap at the baggage car door. He opened it and was met by masked robbers, who covered him with revolvers and demanded the key of the express car. The key was given up. One robber held a revolver on the baggageman through a transom in the roof of the car, while his confederates turned their attention to the express car. It is thought that they tapped on the express car door and informed the messenger (H. S. Nichols) that the baggageman wanted to get in. At any rate, the express car door was opened and the desperadoes entered. Being confronted by the murderous villains, the messenger fought for his life and the property in his trust. The interior of the car shows that he fought the robbers from one end of the car to the other, but at last the murderous blows they raised on his head with an iron poker forced him to succumb and he was left dead in the car. The robbers rifled his pockets of the keys to the safe, which they robbed of all its contents, variously estimated at from $25,000 to $100,000. Cheques and valuable packages not containing money they left scattered about the floor. Nothing was known of the occurrence until the train reached Morris, where the local express messenger rapped on the express car door, but as the summons was not answered he thought the train messenger was asleep. Upon the door of the car being opened the horrible evidence of a desperate struggle and the dead body of Messenger Nichols were discovered. In one hand that was clutched the dead hero had a lock of dark-colored hair that he must have torn from the head of one of his assailants. A large force of officers and men from this place and Morris are now scouring the country. It is thought the guilty men will be captured, in which event they will probably be lynched. The dead messenger was married and lived in Chicago. He had been in the service of the U. S. Express Company about ten years, and was one of their most trusted employees.

Rev. Mr. Carson on the Indian Voters.

The Woodstock Sentinel-Review announces that Rev. W. W. Carson, (not of Guelph), who, by the way, avows himself a born Tory, in the course of eis able and interesting sermon in that town on Sabbath evening last, "made use of an illustration that shed a flood of light upon the qualifications of Indian voters under the Dominion Franchise Act. Mr. Carson related an interview he had with an Indian a few days previously. This Indian he described as a Christian, a converted and educated man. But his ideas upon civil duties were those of his race. In conversation this noble red convert said, "Indian have vote now! How much will Indian get for vote?" This naturally shocked a clergyman and Conservative. Mr. C. endeavoured to explain that it would be sinful to sell a vote. "Ugh!" said the Indian. "Can't sell vote, can't eat vote, no' put vote in pocket? Vote no good. Indian don't want vote!" As the speaker remarked, the Indian's mind was a complete blank upon the duties of citizenship. If this is the case with an educated and Christian Indian, what must be the condition of the semi-savages upon whom Sir John has conferred the franchise!"

Fire at St. Catharines.

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., March 14.—The third story of a large block on St. Paul street was burnt out this afternoon. Coy Bros., hardware merchants lose $4000, covered by insurance, and B. C. Fairfield, bookseller, about the same amount, partly covered by insurance. S. Neelon, M.P.P., is owner of the building.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

TORONTO, March 12th.

A number of private bills received their third reading.

In answer to questions by members, the Government stated that it was not the intention to introduce a provision for the filing or registration of hire receipts and receipt notes; that it was the intention to publish a fifth reader for public schools after the holidays; that the balance due on the 31st December last for timber dues and ground rent was $277,968.

A number of motions for returns were passed.

After recess several bills were advanced a stage, and upon one of these, to amend the Registry Act, Mr. Meredith made a lengthy speech, in which he advocated the appointment of registrars by County Councils, as the immediate and local representatives of the people.

The Attorney-General said that Mr. Meredith was a Tory, that the Tories abused their patronage and power at Ottawa, and therefore the bill must not pass.

Mr. Carnegie stirred up the Peterboro' registrarship and the way in which the Wellington registrarship was kept open for a then member of the house—Mr. Massie.

Mr. Rose (Middlesex) made a speech in which he rallied the Government forces and made them laugh at the leader of the Opposition, whom he accused of a "momentary spasm of morality."

Mr. Young followed in the same strain. So did several other members. When the members were called in the bill was defeated by a vote of 38 to 19.

The House adjourned at 11.30.

A Horrible Fate.

The death of the unfortunate man De Witt, who lost his life at the American Falls a week ago last Sunday, and whose corpse was only discovered on Friday last, would seem to have been one of the most terrible that the human mind can conceive. A gentleman from Niagara Falls says from the appearance of the body it is judged with good reason that the man was never in the water at all, but had slipped down the ice mound and landed in a crevice or icy hole with but little injury. His hat had been lost in the descent, and he had tied his handkerchief over his head. The corpse lies on its back, with hands in the pockets of the overcoat. The snow is firmly packed into a path where the unfortunate victim had walked backwards and forwards, until death came to his relief. Such a fate presents to the imagination the climax of horror. With the roar of the cataract deafening any shout that he could make, death was a welcome release from his awful prison house. Men are busy blasting, and it is expected they will soon be able to reach the body.

Telegraphing from a Train.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Thomas A. Edison has tried an application for a patent for his invention of telegraphing from a moving train. Last October Lucius J. Phelps, of New York, obtained from the patent office, and without any newspaper notoriety, a patent for telegraphing from a train by induction. His method is not quite the same as Edison's, for the latter telegraphs from the roof of the car to the wires on a pole, while Phelps proposes to lay wire on the track between two rails and telegraph from the bottom of the car. The principle, however, is the same, and is broadly covered by Mr. Phelps' patent.

Protecting the Fisheries.

ST. John, N. B., March 13.—Advices from Ottawa state that Capt. R. N. Scott has been put in command of all vessels which are engaged in the protection of Canadian fisheries. The Captain states that he is fitting out the steamer Lansdowne. She is to carry two six-pounders and is expected to sail from this port next Monday, with the captain on board. He claims that he is simply going to look over the fisheries. It is no secret here that he is going gunning for Americans who are trespassing on Canadian fisheries. It is his intention to enforce the provisions of the treaty of 1813.

THE FRANCHISE ACT.

The Qualifications of Voters—The Process of Registration Explained.

The time having arrived for the preparation of the voters' lists under the new Dominion Franchise Act, an appeal is made to the Liberals of Wellington to have their names enrolled as voters without delay. To assist in so doing a short summary of the qualification of voters and of the process for securing registration s given.

QUALIFICATION.

To entitle a person to be put on the list he must be—

(1) 21 years of age.

(2) A British subject by birth or naturalization.

(3) Owner of real property of value
In a city, $300.
In a town, $200.
In a county, $150.

(4) Or tenant of real property under ease at a rental of
$2 per month.
$6 per quarter.
$12 per half year.
$20 per year.

Provided that the tenant has been in possession for one year before 1st January 1886, and shall have paid one year's rent before final revision.

If the rent is yearly it will be sufficient if $20 of last year's rent shall have been paid before final revision.

Change of tenancy without intermission will not destroy the vote if aggregate of tenancies would give vote.

The assessor should be instructed state in the assessment roll the rent payable by each person assessed as tenant. If, however, this is not done, each tenant is prima facie entitled to be registered as a voter if the property is assessed at the following values:—
In cities at $300.
In towns at $200.
In counties at $150.

In counties outside of villages the rent may be payable either in money or in money's worth.

(5) Or a bona fide occupant for one year before 1st January, 1886, and enjoying the revenues and profits for his own or his wife's use of real property of the following values:
In cities, $300.
In towns, $200.
In counties, $150.

The occupancy may be under license of occupation from the crown or from any person or corporation.

(6) Or by income withoqt any other qualification.

A person may be registered as an income voter, if he derives an income from his earnings, trade or profession, or from some investment in Canada of $300 a year, for one year before 1st January, 1886.

In counties the earnings may be either in money or money's worth.

(7) Sons of owners of real property are qualified—

(a) Where the father is living and a son or sons living with him continuously for one year before 1st January, 1886, and the property is sufficient in value according to the above figures, if divided between them to give them all votes. If not sufficient to qualify all the sons and the father, then the father and only so many sons as the property will qualify can be enrolled, and in such case the eldest son will be preferred, and then the next elder, and so on.

(b) When the father is dead, and would, if living, be qualified, residence with the mother will suffice, and as many sons as the property will qualify may be registered, with preference to the eldest and elder sons, as in the last case.

Occasional absence from home of a son—not more than six months in the year—will not disqualify, and all time spent at school or college in Canada will be counted as if spent at home.

Son of an owner includes grandson, step-son and son-in-law, and all these may be registered as voters on the property if of sufficient value. The provision as to sons of owners applies to the counties as well as towns and cities in cases other than those of farmers' sons.

(8) Farmers' sons—The same provisions substantially apply to farmers' sons, as stated in the last paragraph in respect of sons of owners in cities and towns.

A farm is to be not less than 20 acres of land.

(9) Fishermen and owners of real property and boats, nets, fishing gear and tackle of aggregate value of $150.

Income voters register where they reside at time of registration—all others where property is situate. If in more than one polling division in the same electoral district the voter may register in either.

All names entered in the last revised voters' lists under the old law, will be entered in the new lists by the revising barrister.

Every person not on the assessment roll desiring to have his name on the list must at once send to the revising barrister an application in writing to be put on the list, giving his name, residence and the property or other qualification in respect of which he applies to be put on.

This application must be accompanied by a declaration which is to be made and signed before a commissioner for taking affidavits, a notary or justice of the peace, showing the grounds of the applicants claim to be put on the list.

Substantially the voters are those who can qualify as owners, tenants, occupants, income voters, sons of owners and farmers' sons.

See that the application shows as correctly and fully as possible the qualification.

Make the declaration before a commissioner, notary or justice of the peace. It is convenient to have it attached to the application on the same sheet.

In case of an absent person, let some one else having a knowledge of the qualification make the application and declaration.

When one cannot find a justice or other person before whom the declaration can be taken let the application alone be sent in, with an explanation of the reason, and it would be well in such case to have the truth of the facts in the application certified on the back of it by one, or if possible, two other persons.

The application and declaration must be sent at once to the Revising barrister of the district.

URGENCY OF THE MATTER.

No name not on the last voters' list or assessment roll will be placed on the preliminary voters' list, unless on application and declaration as above.

In case of any difficulty or doubt, application should be made at once for advice to some of the Liberal friends in the neighborhood.

Local News.

MR. ROBERT MCKIM, M.P.P., was in the city last night.

THE "New Trial of Shylock" will take place in the basement of Knox Church tonight.

RELIEVING OFFICER CAPTAIN CLARKE had no less than 33 applications for wood today from the poor of the city.

A MEETING of the Provisional Directors of the Guelph Junction Railway will be held in the City Hall to-night, at 7:30 p.m., for conference with the Committee of the Board of Trade.

C. W. LEE, a bucket shop broker, of Toronto, was arrested for embezzlement on a train at Niagara Falls while on his way to Uncle Sam's domains with $1,100 in his possession.

GUELPH SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY.—Mr. James Goldie is to deliver an inaugural address in connection with the above society this Tuesday evening, at eight o'clock in the old City Hall. It is hoped that the officers will receive every encouragement in the good work they have in hand, and that there will be a large attendance.

INCIPIENT FIRE. — Shortly after eight o'clock last evening an alarm of fire was sounded, and the fire department was soon on the spot. Happily their services were not needed. The fire was in the house of Mr. Hollingshead, on Norfolk street, and was caused by a stick of wood igniting from the oven. No damage worth mentioning was done.

FOR THE NORTHWEST.—Mr. Jas. Glennie and family, Guelph Township, left to-day for Portage la Prairie. He took with him a grandson of Mr. Robt. Coulson, of Guelph, to be delivered to his parents in Virden. The removal of Mr. Glennie from this section will be regretted by many, as he was well known and was a sheep breeder of considerable note. He takes with him a car load of stock and implements.

AT a meeting held in Stratford on the 12th inst., the Stratford baseball club was organized with the following officers:—President, H. A. Jamieson; Vice-President, E. K. Barnsdale; Sec.-treas., J. H. Dutton. A resolution favoring the entrance of the club into the Western Amateur League was carried unanimously. Any communications in reference to this league will be attended to if addressed to the Secretary.

THE MEN OF THE WAR.—Rev. W. S. Ball delivered his celebrated lecture in Duff's church, East Puslinch, on Monday evening, 15th inst., on "The Men of the War, and how they Fought." There was a large attendance, considering the state of the roads and weather. The lecturer graphically described the appearance of the country on the site of the rebellion, showing the disadvantage at which our soldiers had to fight, the appearance, work and bravery of the different regiments, scouts, etc; the hardships and privations they had to endure, in short, paying a high compliment to the conduct of our Canadian soldiers for their endurance and bravery. The lecture, which was listened to with the closest attention, was humorous and instructive throughout, and was altogether an intellectual treat.

SALVATION ARMY.—The 25th Guelph corps of the Salvation Army of Canada, held their Jubilee last night in commemoration of their 2nd anniversary in this city. About a quarter to 8 o'clock the corps turned out in full force and paraded the streets with their brass band in front, arriving at the barracks shortly after 8 o'clock. The services were opened by prayer and a selection of popular choruses led by Capt. Margetts, A.D.C., who gave a brief experience afterwards. Special Capt. McHardy, late of the MERCURY, also gave an interesting experience since he left here to go in the work. Testimonies were given by Capts. Barber, of Acton; Orchard, Elora; Call, Preston; Cadet McLellan, Preston; Capt. Bryce, Galt. Songs were sung by Capt. Margetts, A.D.C., Capt. Bryce, Cadet McLellan, and others of the Guelph corps. There was a good audience, and all seemed to have enjoyed the meeting well, which broke up about half-past ten o'clock.

COL. MACDONALD, and other officers of of the Field Artillery leave for Ottawa this afternoon to attend the meeting of the Dominion Artillery Association.

RAILWAY MATTERS.—The following gentlemen left this morning to meet Mr. Van Horne upon business in connection with with the Guelph Junction Railway: The Mayor. Ald. Chadwick, chairman of the Railway Committee, Ald. Husband, W. Bell, chairman of the Provisional Board of Directors, D. McCrae, J. McCrea, J. C. Jones, Henry Hatch, and one or two other members of the Board of Trade.

DISMISSED.—P. M. Saunders to-day gave judgment in the case against John Coughlin, hotel keeper, charged with selling liquor to a party who had been in the habit of drinking to excess after notice had been given not to do so. The defence set up by Mr. John L. Murphy was that no proof of the service of notice on the licensee had been shown or that the notice came to his knowledge. This not having been shown Mr. Murphy held that the Magistrate was obliged to sustain the objection. The Magistrate entertained the objection and dismissed the case.

THE BEN WYVIS CUP.—A rink of the Guelph Curlers left this morning for Brantford to take part with the other older clubs in the Province in the competition for the Ben Wyvis Cup, valued at £30, and presented by the proprietor of the Ben Wyvis distillery. The day is a bad one for curling, as the ice will undoubtedly be "drug." There is no doubt that the Guelph men will give a good account of themselves, even should they fail to bring home the cup. The following are the names of the Guelph rink:—Hugh Turner, Jas. Emslie, A. Robertson, A. Congalton, skip. It is understood that Fergus will also compete.

SURPRISE AND PRESENTATION. — The Mount Victory (Ohio) Observer of Feb. 25th contains the following, which refers to a cousin of Ald. Carter: "Last Tuesday being Rev. Daniel Carter's thirty-fifth birthday, about eighty of his parishioners from different parts of his charge went to the parsonage as a "surprise" party, taking with them a good supply of eatables with which the tables were loaded, the larder replenished and a feast of good things was heartily enjoyed. After dinner was over and the company were seated for a social chat, J. C. Marshall arose and in a spicy little speech presented the pastor with a fine gold watch as a gift from his friends on this charge. Thos. L. Ballinger followed with some appropriate remarks to which Bro. Carter feelingly responded with many thanks. Mrs. Carter also received some nice presents. After some time spent in social conversation the company separated, all feeling that it was good to be there."

TO-MORROW EVENING'S ENTERTAINMENT. —The sale of seats at Pringle's for "The Social Glass," in the City Hall, on Wednesday evening next, has been phenomenal. The plan opened Monday and the rapidity with which the choice sections were secured was unprecedented. There are still many good seats and it behooves those desirous of securing a good place to go at once and obtain it. Of the play little can be added to what already has been said. It has been pronounced by ministers of the Gospel to be as convincing and impressive a temperance lecture as could be delivered. It sparkles with a rich vein of humor and if the amateurs who produce it do as well as expected, the audience who greet them will enjoy a rich treat.

Tea Meeting and Lecture.

The annual tea meeting of the Norfolk street Methodist Church was held on Monday evening. From six to eight o'clock the ladies of the church ably sustained their part of the evening's entertainment, and the tea provided received ample justice from the members of the congregation and the many outside friends who were present to congratulate them on the result of the Sunday offerings. Up to eight o'clock the social element reigned and at that hour an adjournment was made to the body of the church, where the Secretary of the Trustee Board, Mr. P. de Carteret, presented the annual report, showing receipts for the year of $1,112.35 and expenditure, interest $897, repairs, &c., $100, and paid on principal $100 leaving a balance of $15.35. The collection of Sunday ($3,487) would however pay off the floating debt of $3400, and leave the interest charges for the coming year $670, when ten years ago they were $1,860.

The speaker of the evening, Rev. Dr. Cameron, was then introduced, and for nearly two hours held the close attention of his audience while he explained and enforced the subject matter of his lecture, "Trade and Get Rich." The Creator had designed that every man should be rich. Men separate what God united. God gave men different gifts which used rightly would have effected the result for which they were intended, but which, used wrongly, have entailed misery and poverty on the world. Man was the only one of God's creatures with the faculty of trade or exchange, and the solid fundamental ground of trade is rendering a square, fair, honest equivalent in every transaction, a quid pro quo. If a man steals, gambles, or wildly speculates, there is loss to one; in a fair exchange, whether of food, clothing, implements of industry, machinery, labor, whether of hand or head, there is gain to both. Any employment has no right on this earth unless it renders an equivalent, unless it increases the common stock of wealth. The farmer and the mechanic contribute to the material wealth of the country, and just as surely does the doctor, the teacher, the minister contribute to its intellectual and moral wealth. Capital and capitalists are a necessity. A nation cannot be supported without capital, but capital should be properly used. No man should have property in another; some things a man possesses, his influence, his principles, which are not merchantable commodities. There is a right in property. God trusts one man with land and capital as a means to help his brother man and he is held accountable for his stewardship. Men of wealth should teach their children how to use wealth. Some have possession of one kind and some of another, as Vanderbilt and Wesley, the former in bonds, stocks, etc., the latter in character. Which contributed most to the world's good? Men will be judged not by how much they have made but by how they have made it.

On motion of President Mills, seconded by Rev. Dr. Griffin, a cordial vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer. The music rendered by the choir of the church in the anniversary services was fully in keeping with the high standard of excellence so long maintained, and contributed in no inconsiderable degree to the enjoyment of the gathering.

Presentation.

Last evening the choir of St. Andrew's Church assembled at the residence of Mr. John S. Rodgerson, on Arthur street. The object was to bid farewell to Mr. Robert Brydon, a member of the choir, who is to leave Guelph to-morrow on a few months' visit to his parents in Scotland. Mr. Brydon has been four years in Guelph and neighborhood, and during his stay has sustained a good name as will be seen from the following address.—

Mr. R. Brydon.

DEAR SIR.—We the members of St. Andrew's Church choir, learning that it is your intention to visit your native land, across the briny deep, and feeling how much we are indebted to you for the valuable assistance you have always so willingly lent us, not only with your gift of song, but in generally guarding the interests of our choir, wish to say to you, that we shall with great pleasure look for your speedy and safe return to our midst. And while bidding you "God speed," we would ask you to accept the accompanying gift, as a slight mark of our esteem; and the sincere wish of one and all of us, that you may spend a happy and pleasant time at your "Ain fireside.

Signed on behalf of the choir.

Mr. Brydon was presented with a handsome dressing case. Mr. S. C. Strachan read the address and Mrs. Hill made the presentation.

A very pleasant social time was afterwards spent with Mr. Rodgerson and members of his household.

Chalmers' Church Y. P. A.

A large audience gathered last evening in Chalmers' Church at the closing open meeting of the above Association. An interesting and attractive programme had been prepared, and promptly at eight o'clock Mr. W. Tyler took the chair and after a few opening remarks called on Mrs Hill for a piano solo. This was rendered in her usually good style, and was followed by a vocal selection by Miss Patterson, which was rapturously received and encored. Miss Brown then gave a reading, "Darkness," which showed signs of considerable ability, and Miss Grant's instrumental selection was excellently given, calling forth an encore, which was responded to. After a short interval the chairman introduced the leading and most prominent part of the programme, being the debate on the subject, "Resolved, that love is a stronger passion than hatred." Messrs. W. H. Wardrope and J. R. Kennedy taking the affirmative and Messrs. R. L. Torrance and Hugh Guthrie the negative. Very interesting, instructive and amusing addresses were given by all, and on the chairman calling for a vote, it was found difficult to come to a decision, the majority preferring not to decide in either way. By an actual count of upraised hands the majority was decided in favour of the negative. A song by Mr. Maitland followed, and after an excellent rendering of an instrumental selection by Miss Brown, the meeting was closed by the singing of God Save the Queen, all parting well satisfied with their evening's entertainment.

The Lost "Oregon."

HOBOKEN, N.J., March 15.—The rescued passengers and crew of the ill-fated steamer "Oregon" were landed at Hoboken, N. J., by the steamer "Falda" to-day. The majority of the passengers attribute the disaster to negligence on the part of the officers at the time of the collision. The "Oregon" lies upright in ninety feet of water, and the possibility of raising her is being considered. The vessel is valued at $1,250,000, and her freight at $250,000. Nothing has been seen or heard of the schooner that struck the "Oregon," the general belief being that she went down immediately after with all on board.

The Express Robbery.

CHICAGO, March 14.—Andrew Watts, baggagemaster, who was on the train when Expressman Nichols was robbed and murdered, has been placed under arrest on suspicion of being implicated in the crime. Two men suspected of being implicated are also under arrest at Joliet.

Two men have been sentenced to one year in the Central Prison, one to nine months in the same institution, and a fourth to three months in gaol, the first two for stealing goods from G. T. R. cars at Belleville, and the latter two for receiving the same. Three others of the gang have been discharged.

Five Owen Sound hotel keepers were fined $150 on Saturday for selling liquor in prohibited hours. Two other cases of the same kind were adjourned.

Miss L. Chapman, of the Ottawa Arts School, has this year carried off the gold medal for the best work of industrial and antique design in the Province.

Constable Thompson, of the Northwest Mounted Police, stole a watch and $138 from Sergeant Farrell at Winnipeg, and then deserted. He has been arrested.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

TORONTO, March 15.

A number of private bills were advanced a stage.

Mr. O'Connor moved for a return of the boards of arbitrators formed under the act to facilitate the adjustment of disputes between masters and workmen. He said that the parties interested in the act had never availed themselves of it. If this law did not work, it ought to be made workable.

The Attorney-General and Mr. Ermatinger joined in saying that while strikes were evils, they were sometimes necessary to the protection of the workingman's rights. The motion was then withdrawn at the request of the Attorney-General.

Mr. Ermatinger thought it was so near the end of the session that it was useless for him to do more than draw attention to his motion respecting the law of newspaper libel, which he withdrew.

After recess Mr. Phelp's bill to modify the assessment of steamboats and other vessels was moved to a second reading. It was claimed that such property was simultaneous y assessed in more than one locality, and that therefore it ought to be exempted from the ordinary municipal rates. Read and referred.

Mr. Clancy's bill to amend the act against noxious weeds was read a second time.

Orders in council in reference to the Toronto home for aged women, home for the friendless, Belleville, home for the friendless, Chatham, Stratford hospital Brantford, widow's home, Brantford, St. Joseph hospital, Port Artur, and house of providence, Toronto, were ratified.

The House went into committee upon the Treasurer's resolutions regarding the taxation of patented lands in Algoma, which were fully discussed some weeks ago. The resolutions were reported.

In committee upon the Treasurer's resolutions respecting the Upper Canada land improvement fund, Mr. Creighton objected that the municipalities having claims upon the fund, for whom the Government were merely the agents, were not receiving what was coming to them under these resolutions. Instead of $93,000 as proposed, they were entitled to $162,000. The former amount could only be accepted as a payment on account.

The Treasurer said that they were still in doubt as to whether the Federal Government would allow the Province compound interest or not, but whatever was allowed the municipalities would receive every cent coming to them on account of this fund. Mr. Blythe complained of the treatment which the townships in South Grey had received from the Government in this connection.

The resolution passed and the House adjourned.

It is hoped that the officers will receive every encouragement in the good work they have in hand, and that there will be a large attendance.

INCIPIENT FIRE.—Shortly after eight o'clock last evening an alarm of fire was sounded, and the fire department was soon on the spot. Happily their services were not needed. The fire was in the house of Mr. Hollingshead, on Norfolk street, and was caused by a stick of wood igniting from the oven. No damage worth mentioning was done.

There was a large attendance, considering the state of the roads and weather. The lecturer graphically described the appearance of the country on the site of the rebellion, showing the disadvantage at which our soldiers had to fight, the appearance, work and bravery of the different regiments, scouts, etc; the hardships and privations they had to endure, in short, paying a high compliment to the conduct of our Canadian soldiers for their endurance and bravery. The lecture, which was listened to with the closest attention, was humorous and instructive throughout, and was altogether an intellectual treat.

SALVATION ARMY.—The 25th Guelph corps of the Salvation Army of Canada, held their Jubilee last night in commemoration of their 2nd anniversary in this city. About a quarter to 8 o'clock the corps turned out in full force and paraded the streets with their brass band in front, arriving at the barracks shortly after 8 o'clock. The services were opened by prayer and a selection of popular choruses led by Capt. Margetts, A.D.C., who gave a brief experience afterwards. Special Capt. McHardy, late of the MERCURY, also gave an interesting experience since he left here to go in the work. Testimonies were given by Capts. Barber, of Acton; Orchard, Elora; Call, Preston; Cadet McLellan, Preston; Capt. Bryce, Galt. Songs were sung by Capt. Margetts, A.D.C., Capt. Bryce, Cadet McLellan, and others of the Guelph corps. There was a good audience, and all seemed to have enjoyed the meeting well, which broke up about half-past ten o'clock.

DISMISSED.—P. M. Saunders to-day gave judgment in the case against John Coughlin, hotel keeper, charged with selling liquor to a party who had been in the habit of drinking to excess after notice had been given not to do so. The defence set up by Mr. John L. Murphy was that no proof of the service of notice on the licensee had been shown or that the notice came to his knowledge. This not having been shown Mr. Murphy held that the Magistrate was obliged to sustain the objection. The Magistrate entertained the objection and dismissed the case.

THE BEN WYVIS CUP.—A rink of the Guelph Curlers left this morning for Brantford to take part with the other older clubs in the Province in the competition for the Ben Wyvis Cup, valued at £30, and presented by the proprietor of the Ben Wyvis distillery. The day is a bad one for curling, as the ice will undoubtedly be "drug." There is no doubt that the Guelph men will give a good account of themselves, even should they fail to bring home the cup. The following are the names of the Guelph rink:—Hugh Turner, Jas. Emslie, A. Robertson, A. Congalton, skip. It is understood that Fergus will also compete.

SURPRISE AND PRESENTATION.—The Mount Victory (Ohio) Observer of Feb. 25th contains the following, which refers to a cousin of Ald. Carter: "Last Tuesday being Rev. Daniel Carter's thirty-fifth birthday, about eighty of his parishioners from different parts of his charge went to the parsonage as a "surprise" party, taking with them a good supply of eatables with which the tables were loaded, the larder replenished and a feast of good things was heartily enjoyed. After dinner was over and the company were seated for a social chat, J. C. Marshall arose and in a spicy little speech presented the pastor with a fine gold watch as a gift from his friends on this charge. Thos. L. Ballinger followed with some appropriate remarks to which Bro. Carter feelingly responded with many thanks. Mrs. Carter also received some nice presents. After some time spent in social conversation the company separated, all feeling that it was good to be there."

TO-MORROW EVENING'S ENTERTAINMENT.—The sale of seats at Pringle's for "The Social Glass," in the City Hall, on Wednesday evening next, has been phenomenal. The plan opened Monday and the rapidity with which the choice sections were secured was unprecedented. There are still many good seats and it behooves those desirous of securing a good place to go at once and obtain it. Of the play little can be added to what already has been said. It has been pronounced by ministers of the Gospel to be as convincing and impressive a temperance lecture as could be delivered. It sparkles with a rich vein of humor and if the amateurs who produce it do as well as expected, the audience who greet them will enjoy a rich treat.

Tea Meeting and Lecture.

The annual tea meeting of the Norfolk street Methodist Church was held on Monday evening. From six to eight o'clock the ladies of the church ably sustained their part of the evening's entertainment, and the tea provided received ample justice from the members of the congregation and the many outside friends who were present to congratulate them on the result of the Sunday offerings. Up to eight o'clock the social element reigned and at that hour an adjournment was made to the body of the church, where the Secretary of the Trustee Board, Mr. P. de Carteret, presented the annual report, showing receipts for the year of $1,112.33 and expenditure, interest $897, repairs, &c., $100, and paid on principal $100 leaving a balance of $15.33. The collection of Sunday ($3,487) would however pay off the floating debt of $3400, and leave the interest charges for the coming year $670, when ten years ago they were $1,860.

The speaker of the evening, Rev. Dr. Carman, was then introduced, and for nearly two hours held the close attention of his audience while he explained and enforced the subject matter of his lecture, "Trade and Get Rich." The Creator had designed that every man should be rich. Men separate what God united. God gave men different gifts which used rightly would have effected the result for which they were intended, but which, used wrongly, have entailed misery and poverty on the world. Man was the only one of God's creatures with the faculty of trade or exchange, and the solid fundamental ground of trade is rendering a square, fair, honest equivalent in every transaction, a quid pro quo. If a man steals, gambles, or wildly speculates, there is loss to one; in a fair exchange, whether of food, clothing, implements of industry, machinery, labor, whether of hand or head, there is gain to both. Any employment has no right on this earth unless it renders an equivalent, unless it increases the common stock of wealth. The farmer and the mechanic contribute to the material wealth of the country, and just as surely does the doctor, the teacher, the minister contribute to its intellectual and moral wealth. Capital and capitalists are a necessity. A nation cannot be supported without capital, but capital should be properly used. No man should have property in another; some things a man possesses, his influence, his principles, which are not merchantable commodities. There is a right in property. God trusts one man with land and capital as a means to help his brother man and he is held accountable for his stewardship. Men of wealth should teach their children how to use wealth. Some have possession of one kind and some of another, as Vanderbilt and Wesley, the former in bonds, stocks, etc., the latter in character. Which contributed most to the world's good? Men will be judged not by how much they have made but by how they have made it.

On motion of President Mills, seconded by Rev. Dr. Griffin, a cordial vote of thanks was tendered the lecturer. The music rendered by the choir of the church in the anniversary services was fully in keeping with the high standard of excellence so long maintained, and contributed in no inconsiderable degree to the enjoyment of the gathering.

Presentation.

Last evening the choir of St. Andrew's Church assembled at the residence of Mr. John S. Rodgerson, on Arthur street. The object was to bid farewell to Mr. Robert Brydon, a member of the choir, who is to leave Guelph to-morrow on a few months' visit to his parents in Scotland. Mr. Brydon has been four years in Guelph and neighborhood, and during his stay has sustained a good name as will be seen from the following address:—

Mr. R. Brydon.

DEAR SIR,—We the members of St. Andrew's Church choir, learning that it is your intention to visit your native land, across the briny deep, and feeling how much we are indebted to you for the valuable assistance you have always so willingly lent us, not only with your gift of song, but in generally guarding the interests of our choir, wish to say to you, that we shall with great pleasure look for your speedy and safe return to our midst. And while bidding you "God speed," we would ask you to accept the accompanying gift, as a slight mark of our esteem; and the sincere wish of one and all of us, that you may spend a happy and pleasant time at your "Ain fireside.

Signed on behalf of the choir.

Mr. Brydon was presented with a handsome dressing case. Mr. S. C. Strachan read the address and Mrs. Hill made the presentation.

A very pleasant social time was afterwards spent with Mr. Rodgerson and members of his household.

Chalmers' Church Y. P. A.

A large audience gathered last evening in Chalmers' Church at the closing open meeting of the above Association. An interesting and attractive programme had been prepared, and promptly at eight o'clock Mr. W. Tyller took the chair and after a few opening remarks called on Mrs Hill for a piano solo. This was rendered in her usually good style, and was followed by a vocal selection by Miss Patterson, which was rapturously received and encored. Miss Brown then gave a reading, "Darkness," which showed signs of considerable ability, and Miss Grant's instrumental selection was excellently given, calling forth an encore, which was responded to. After a short interval the chairman introduced the leading and most prominent part of the programme, being the debate on the subject, "Resolved, that love is a stronger passion than hatred," Messrs. W. H. Wardrops and J. R. Kennedy taking the affirmative and Messrs. R. L. Torrance and Hugh Guthrie the negative. Very interesting, instructive and amusing addresses were given by all, and on the chairman calling for a vote, it was found difficult to come to a decision, the majority preferring not to decide in either way. By an actual count of upraised hands the majority was decided in favour of the negative. A song by Mr. Maitland followed, and after an excellent rendering of an instrumental selection by Miss Brown, the meeting was closed by the singing of God Save the Queen, all parting well satisfied with their evening's entertainment.

The Lost "Oregon."

HOBOKEN, N.J., March 15.—The rescued passengers and crew of the ill-fated steamer "Oregon" were landed at Hoboken, N. J., by the steamer "Fulda" to-day. The majority of the passengers attribute the disaster to negligence on the part of the officers at the time of the collision. The "Oregon" lies upright in ninety feet of water, and the possibility of raising her is being considered. The vessel is valued at $1,250,000, and her freight at $250,000. Nothing has been seen or heard of the schooner that struck the "Oregon," the general belief being that she went down immediately after with all on board.

The Express Robbery.

CHICAGO, March 14.—Andrew Watts, baggagemaster, who was on the train when Expressman Nichols was robbed and murdered, has been placed under arrest on suspicion of being implicated in the crime. Two men suspected of being implicated are also under arrest at Joliet.

Two men have been sentenced to one year in the Central Prison, one to nine months in the same institution, and a fourth to three months in gaol, the first two for stealing goods from G. T. R. cars at Belleville, and the latter two for receiving the same. Three others of the gang have been discharged.

Five Owen Sound hotel keepers were fined $150 on Saturday for selling liquor in prohibited hours. Two other cases of the same kind were adjourned.

Miss L. Chapman, of the Ottawa Arts School, has this year carried off the gold medal for the best work of industrial and antique design in the Province.

Constable Thompson, of the Northwest Mounted Police, stole a watch and $138 from Sergeant Farrell at Winnipeg, and then deserted. He has been arrested.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

TORONTO, March 15.

A number of private bills were advanced a stage.

Mr. O'Connor moved for a return of the boards of arbitrators formed under the act to facilitate the adjustment of disputes between masters and workmen. He said that the parties interested in the act had never availed themselves of it. If this law did not work, it ought to be made workable.

The Attorney-General and Mr. Ermatinger joined in saying that while strikes were evils, they were sometimes necessary to the protection of the workingman's rights. The motion was then withdrawn at the request of the Attorney-General.

Mr. Ermatinger thought it was so near the end of the session that it was useless for him to do more than draw attention to his motion respecting the law of newspaper libel, which he withdrew.

After recess Mr. Phelp's bill to modify the assessment of steamboats and other vessels was moved to a second reading. It was claimed that such property was simultaneously assessed in more than one locality, and that therefore it ought to be exempted from the ordinary municipal rates. Read and referred.

Mr. Clancy's bill to amend the act against noxious weeds was read a second time.

Orders in council in reference to the Toronto home for aged women, home for the friendless, Belleville, home for the friendless, Chatham, Stratford hospital Brantford, widow's home, Brantford, St. Joseph hospital, Port Artur, and house of providence, Toronto, were ratified.

The House went into committee upon the Treasurer's resolutions regarding the taxation of patented lands in Algoma, which were fully discussed some weeks ago. The resolutions were reported.

In committee upon the Treasurer's resolutions respecting the Upper Canada land improvement fund, Mr. Creighton objected that the municipalities having claims upon the fund, for whom the Government were merely the agents, were not receiving what was coming to them under these resolutions. Instead of $93,000 as proposed, they were entitled to $162,000. The former amount could only be accepted as a payment on account.

The Treasurer said that they were still in doubt as to whether the Federal Government would allow the Province compound interest or not, but whatever was allowed the municipalities would receive every cent coming to them on account of this fund. Mr. Blythe complained of the treatment which the townships in South Grey had received from the Government in this connection.

The resolution passed and the House adjourned.

THE VOTERS LIST.

Every property owner, property owner or farmer's son, tenant, occupant, or person earning $300 a year, who has resided in his municipality for twelve months from the 1st of January 1885, who is a Liberal in politics, whose name is not on the Revising Officer's preliminary list, and who has not yet made application to have his name added to it, should see and have this done before the 18th inst. All such being in the city should call on Mr. Hugh McMillan, over the Federal Bank, who will see that the application is filled up and the proper declaration made. By so doing an important step will be taken towards obtaining the franchise. It should be especially noted that being thus placed on the Dominion voters' list does not make a man subject to income tax.

The Evening Mercury

TUESDAY EVE'G MARCH 16, 1886.

An Epidemic of Strikes.

The past twelve months has been a remarkable period for epidemics. The continent of Europe has suffered the scourge of cholera and part of our own has felt the ravages of smallpox, not to mention other diseases which flesh is heir to that have made their appearance everywhere. But at the present time the civilized world is experiencing something new in the way of epidemics, although the trouble itself is almost as old as Adam. This is the epidemic of strikes.

A few weeks ago the disease broke out among the miners of Decazeville, in France; then we had threatening demonstrations by workingmen at London, Manchester and Glasgow; crossing the Atlantic the fever has taken hold of the street railway men of New York, Cincinnati and Toronto; while ten thousand of the miners of Pennsylvania, more than that number of the railway men of Missouri, and hundreds of factory hands in different parts of the United States have refused to submit to the terms of their employers, and to the loss of both their employers and themselves have left off work. So far as the street railway men are concerned the difficulty has been settled and they have returned to their duties. The others are still on strike.

It is the old story of the disagreement between capital and labor, only it is forced upon public attention with unusual prominence in consequence of its widespread repetition. The cause is the same as ever—a greater supply of labor than there is demand for. Employers are not doing the trade which they consider warrants them increasing wages, and if their employees are not satisfied they consider that they can easily replace them by others who will be. At least the cases seem to be in the minority where strikes have been inaugurated for other reasons, such as the maintenance of a principle.

To fight against the overpowering influence of capital, combination is resorted to. The spirit of organization is abroad among those who work for a day's wages more than it ever was before. Trades unions and Knights of Labor assemblies exist everywhere and are steadily extending their jurisdiction and influence. No doubt, they have done much to ameliorate the condition of the working man. Where capital is in the hands of unjust and unreasonable men they have in different cases succeeded in obtaining a fair day's wages for a fair day's work. But they hold a power which they are apt to abuse just as much as the Hon. Frank Smith abused his power when he interfered with the liberty of his employees in telling them that they must not form a union even after working hours. Of course Mr. Smith and every other employer of labour who objects to unionism, has a strong argument in saying that he is not going to be dictated to, that he shall not be told by those who work for him how his business is to be managed. He provides the capital and therefore has the advantage.

It is a vexed question, and one which will have to be faced and grappled with universally before many years have passed. One thing is certain, that the common resort nowadays to strikes is a great evil. It results in serious loss to both employers and employed, as well as to the public at large. The suggestion has been made, and in some cases carried into effect, that all questions at issue should be referred to competent and impartial courts of arbitration, which would avoid these strikes and in the great majority of cases result in satisfactory settlements.

THE announcement is made in a number of places affected by the Saturday excursions to Guelph that the cheap fare tickets on that day have been called in by the Grand Trunk authorities. This is no doubt done with the view of misleading people and preventing them from patronizing our Guelph merchants. However that may be there is no truth in the statement. On the contrary the excursions have proved so popular that the Guelph agent of the Grand Trunk, Mr. Johnston, has been obliged to apply for an additional car from the north, and also from the east on the Saturday morning trains in order to meet the extra demand for accommodation.

THE Winnipeg Sun is to be revived as a strictly independent paper. It will be under the management of Mr. T. H. Preston, who is one of the ablest newspaper men in the Dominion, and the company will embrace in its number Mr. Goldwin Smith, whose contributions alone will give it a prominent standing. The Sun was formerly one of the brightest and most enterprising journals to be found anywhere, and its revival will be welcomed as the return to life of an old friend.

THE City Council has acted wisely and promptly in adopting the recommendation from the Board of Trade that Guelph in future shall have two market days. Hereafter Wednesday will be a market day as well as Saturday. The naming of Wednesday and Saturday specially as market days does not preclude farmers from bringing in their produce for sale on any other day of the week, but it calls public attention to the fact that on the two days mentioned good markets may be expected. Farmers can now bring in what articles they have to dispose of on Wednesday knowing that our citizens will look for a large market and that they will turn out to buy accordingly. The move, if taken advantage of, as it doubtless will be, will result in an appreciable increase of business in the city.

DOMININON PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, March 15.

In the Commons to-day a number of Private Bills were advanced a stage.

Several questions relating to the Riel case, the Canada Pacific Railway, and other subjects were answered.

The Minister of Justice handed in a return of 292 pages containing copies of all documents forming a record in the Riel trial, besides the evidence and a full report of the proceedings.

Secretary Chapleau presented a return of the amount paid P. M. Barker, of Orangeville, as returning officer in the vote on the Scott Act in Dufferin. On general account he claimed $954, and got $65. On voters' lists and certificates he claimed $65, and was allowed $37. On certificates of custodians he claimed $15, and was allowed $15. On deputies' accounts he claimed $355, and was allowed $265.

Then came up the burning question. The keynote of the talk was the answer of the Minister of Justice to these questions put by Col. Amyot.

1. When were the reports of Drs. Valade and Lavelle received by the Government?

2. Were the medical reports of Drs. Lavelle and Valade, which are brought down, made by telegraph or by letter?

3. Were there any reports, telegrams or letters as to the mental condition of Louis Riel sent to the Government by either Dr. Valade or Dr. Lavelle other than those already brought down, and, if so, will they be laid before the House?

Mr. Thompson answered that the reports arrived a day or two before November 12, when the Cabinet Council decided to hang Riel. These reports came by telegraph in advance of the letters, but corresponded with the latter. It was not the intention of the Government to lay the telegrams before the House. They were in cipher and had been returned to their authors after the preparation of the formal and official documents submitted to Parliament.

The oppositionists caught on to the confession that the cipher despatches had been returned with vociferous "hear, hears," and it was the subject of a short but short debate.

A motion, of which no notice had been given, was moved by Sir Hector Langevin to continue the debate on the Riel question, but was ruled out of order by the Speaker. On the first motion being moved, however, Sir Hector Langevin moved in amendment to proceed with the Riel debate. Strong protests were made by Messrs. Blake, Mills, Casey, Laurier, and Mitchell, on the ground that it was unfair for the Government to proceed with the question before the information necessary to a decision was before the House. Sir Hector Langevin's motion was carried by 105 to 61.

This was the first division of the session and was as follows:

Nays—61.

The debate was proceeded with, Messrs. Curran and Wood (Brockville) opposing the resolution, and Messrs. Coursol and Langelier supporting it. Mr. Rykert moved the adjournment of the debate, and the House adjourned at 12 20 a. m.

WORK DONE

NORFOLK!

A peculiar announcement was made from the pulpit of Dublin Street Methodist Church a few Sundays ago. It caused many to shake their heads. It was considered almost audacious. "A cash collection of $3,000 will be asked for in two weeks from to-day!" Well everybody knows the result, over $500 in excess of the amount asked for was contributed. And now, Norfolk Street Church has just achieved a similar result. Think of it! "Hard times" is the general cry, and yet two only moderately wealthy churches are enabled to contribute within the course of a month over $7,000 in solid cash to wipe out certain liabilities.

Now, what does this show. 1st—That practical Christianity is not at all a thing of the past. 2nd—That "where there's a will there's a way," and that the most difficult tasks may be accomplished by clear heads, warm hearts and hands. 3rd—That churches as well as individuals are becoming more and more alive to the beauties of getting and keeping out of debt. The principle of "Cash down," "pay as you go," is growing. People believe in it. They daily see its benefits.

In the business world, the live, keen, close selling, no credit houses are the successful ones, and the old fogy ideas of big prices, long credits, heavy interest, duns and law suits are being driven to the wall.

At No. 27 we are making a grand display of New Staple and Fancy Dry Goods for the Spring. The store has undergone a thorough renovation making everything as bright and clean as a new dollar, and with the new blending of shades of the piles upon piles of new goods, customers find it a very attractive place. We invite all to visit us. We shall keep the public posted as to details from week to week, and promise that no more attractive Dry Goods Store is found either in or outside of Guelph and as we give no credit, make no bad debts, customers are assured of getting goods Cheap for Cash.

LEADING BOOT & SHOE STORE

Annual Stock Taking Sale

FOR 12 DAYS ONLY.

Having completed our annual stock-taking, we commenced on the 15th inst. a Clearing out Sale of last Season's Goods at nominal prices.

We do not believe in the old exploded dodge of making our customers believe that we are selling goods below cost price, or that we are giving goods away for nothing. WE CONDUCT OUR BUSINESS TO MAKE MONEY; our THEORY AND PRACTICE are that small profits yield large sales, and give us contented customers.

Experienced buyers are not slow in finding out the best place to purchase, and no amount of windy advertisements and newspaper puffing, will induce them to purchase unless the goods are of sterling quality, fashionable and cheap.

We solicit this class of buyers. Call and see what we mean by a clearing sale. To continue twelve days—from the 15th to the 27th.

CHAPTER XVII.

THE MYSTERY EXPLAINED.

At his answer to her question she made an impatient gesture and interrupted him feverishly—

"They were not the same, I know. You might as well have confessed it at once. You see for yourself that I am worse since you went away. People had said things before, but I think they dared not say much, because you were here. When you went away they said what they liked, and ——. Do not look at me, for heaven's sake, do not look at me while I am speaking," she broke off to say passionately, "and sooner or later it must have got to your ears. I preferred that you should hear it from myself. They say I am ill because——. Cannot you guess what they say?" she finished, bowing her head and hiding it in her hands.

There was perfect silence. Percival stood looking down upon her bent figure with a curious expression on his face. He did guess what people were saying, but further than that he did not guess, and his idea was to console and strengthen Alice. He wanted to show her that such things, though terrible ordeals for a woman to go through, may yet be endured in a way that shall silence the scandalous tongue.

"I am deeply grieved," he began, that you should have had to bear such annoyance. Believe me, you shall hear no more such reports. Do not distress yourself," he went on as she made no motion to raise her head or change her attitude. "I will take the matter into my own hands and you shall hear no more— —"

He got no further; the last words died on his lips. She rose from her seat with such a look on her face as he never in his life forgot. For a moment he thought she was going out of her mind; her face was convulsed, and she struggled vainly to speak. At last she threw out her hands with a gesture of passionate fierceness, and she pressed her foot upon the ground, as she cried, in a voice which had lost all likeness to her own—

"Oh, heavens, how you talk! You blind, dense man! Do you not see that it is true?"

She was looking at him now; her eyes looked straight into his own, and they were blazing with anger and another feeling which made his own heart beat fast with excitement. Never had her beauty been so striking, so magnificent as at this moment. She stood for a moment, and then as he did not speak her face changed again, and she hid it in her hands, cowering and shivering as she whispered—

"Oh, why did I speak? Why did I speak? I shall die with shame."

She would have fallen, but Percival's arm upheld her, and his voice said in her ear—

"You need not feel ashamed if you will let me be your husband."

She drew a long sigh as he spoke, and her head fell back upon his shoulder. The strain had been too great—she fainted when it was so suddenly relaxed.

Percival looked at her with a feeling of utter helplessness. He did not at that moment realize what he had done, and his heart was touched by the sight of the beautiful pale face which bore such evident signs of suffering and struggle. Even as he looked at her, Alice opened her eyes, and a moment later made an effort to raise herself.

"Do not move till you feel fit," he said gently.

"Thank you," she replied, in a low, subdued voice. "I am better now. I shall be able to walk directly."

She seated herself again on the stone from which she had just risen, and again closed her eyes. When she opened them, she found his fixed upon her face. A faint colour came into her cheeks, and she moved restlessly as she said in a voice of pain—

"Ah, you despise me. I see it in your face."

"Do not think so," he replied. "I assure you you are mistaken."

"You may say so, but you have the right to despise me, I know. If you only knew," she went on, her voice sinking again and becoming full of weariness, "what I have gone through. I cannot tell you how I have suffered. I knew what people were saying, yet I had not the strength to fight it down. This last week while you have been away, has been like a nightmare," she finished, shuddering.

"Do not speak of it; do not think of it, if it is distressing you."

"Do you suppose I should think of it if it did not distress me? I thought I should die; I feared to go out of my mind."

She paused abruptly, passing her hand over her forehead as though trying to clear away some distressing thought.

"I beg of you not to say any more, Alice," he said earnestly.

She went on as though he had not spoken.

"Then, last night the thought came to me to see you and speak to you, and I wrote straight off for fear my resolution should falter. I did not intend to say to you what I did. I do not know what I intended to say, but, having said it, if you had not acted as you did I should have gone away and killed myself."

Percival almost replied—"I could not have acted otherwise," but instead he said—

"Do not torture yourself in this way; try to forget the past."

"That will not be easy, for after all you do not love me."

"I cannot love you," was his answer. "All the love I was capable of feeling has been given to another woman. But if you will have my name and my consideration, I will make your happiness my first object, and do my best to prevent your ever regretting your marriage."

He spoke slowly and gravely, without any enthusiasm, but with a good deal of determination.

"That is the chief thing," she said when he had finished; "that people shall not talk. You do not know what it is for a woman when people toss her name about in connection with that of some man she knows. She feels like a hunted hare; she can do nothing but look on and pretend she does not mind it. People call that 'living it down.' Sometimes she dies under it. I do not know what they call that."

Again she closed her eyes and leaned back her head. She spoke in a low, spiritless voice, and seemed quite exhausted. Percival hardly knew her, she was so changed. The relief of certainty was so great after the awful suspense she had been in that she was only half-conscious—she could just now think nor feel clearly. Percival felt as if he were in a dream, but he began to be uneasy about Alice, and he wanted to get her home. He said, therefore—

"Will you try to walk home? I think you will feel better there."

"You will not leave me?" grasping his hand as she spoke.

"Certainly not. I will take you home and speak to your father."

"Thank you," rising as she spoke and letting him put her hand upon his arm. "You are very good," she went on softly after they had gone on a little way. "The only one of all the men I know who has acted as a woman likes a man to act—who has helped me in my trouble. The others all forsook me and fled, swelled the reports against me, and showed their real nature. Men are not chivalrous in these days."

Percival was silent, and neither spoke until they had got to the bottom of the hill and gone some way along the road.

RAISE THE STANDARD HIGH.

The Dry Goods Trade is never elevated by one firm trying to hurt the reputation of another, neither will it raise the firm who tries it in the estimation of the public.

We do not propose to lower the standard of a

Respectable and Highly Thought of Business by any such Nonsense,

But on the other hand if there is anything we can do that will tend to elevate the Dry Goods Trade and those connected with us it will be done.

If other merchants in the city have found their trade in advance of last year (and with less salesmen required), we are glad to hear of it, and it speaks well for Guelph and we only hope they will still continue to prosper. As for us

WE ARE SATISFIED.

We are pleased with our business, our city and the people we have met with since coming to Guelph.

It is just a little over one month since we bought the

Very Respectable and Highly Thought of Business of Messrs. John Hogg & Son.,

and we have been told by those who know, that our sales for the month of February are in advance of the same month last year and we propose by attending

Strictly to our own Business

and by placing before the public

Good Honest Reliable Goods,

and at prices that will cause the people to know (without us having to tell them) that we are

Men of Experience in the Dry Goods Trade knowing Where to buy, How to buy and having the Bullion to Buy with.

Large quantities of goods are coming to hand every week from England, Ireland, Scotland and the United States; also from the different parts of Canada, which we are marking at a very low price and passing into stock.

We expect a large Spring Trade and are preparing for same.

We have retained all the old hands and they will be pleased to see their old friends.

CITY COUNCIL.

Wednesday Proclaimed An Extra Market Day.

AN INTERESTING SESSION,

At Which Business of Considerable Importance is Transacted.

The regular meeting of the City Council was held on Monday evening. Present, the Mayor in the chair, Ald. Lamprey, Bruce, Maddock, Cutten, Smith, Hearn, Raymond, Hewer, Jos. Carter, Read, Hamilton, Husband, Skinner, Hortop, Wm. Carter, Keough, Chadwick.

The Clerk informed the Council that since the last meeting two Aldermen had been elected, one in St. Patrick's Ward, the other in St. John's. Mr. Wm. Hortop was elected for the former and Mr. Chas. Raymond for the latter. Both gentlemen had filed their certificates and taken their declarations of office.

The Mayor in a few words welcomed the new members and expressed the wish that their connection with the Council would be pleasant and satisfactory.

COMMUNICATIONS

From Wm. Fletcher, Nassagaweya, claiming $25 for damages to a horse falling through a Water Works trench on Douglas street. Referred.

From Mr. Jones, Secretary of the Board of Trade, in reference to Wednesday being proclaimed by the Council as a special market day, and showing the reason why.

From James Taylor asking for the City Hall on the 21st of September and 4 days following. Referred.

From M. H. Scott asking for a refund of $4.30 on income tax.

From Wm. Kennedy, complaining that he could not secure dates for the City Hall on September 21st, and four days following because the Hall had been rented for one week during the holding of the exhibition in Guelph. This the petitioner claimed to be unfair.

From W. H. Ziegler, asking for a refund of $5.24 having been doubly taxed for a lot on Liverpool street. Referred.

From John Harris, Secretary of the Separate School Board, asking for $1,000 in advance of the appropriation.

From Dr. Torrance, Secretary of the Board of Education, asking for $3,500—$2,500 for the Public Schools and $1,000 for the Collegiate Institute—in advance of the appropriation.

RENTING OF THE CITY HALL.

After some discussion in reference to the renting of the City Hall it was Moved by Ald. W. Carter, seconded by Ald. Hortop, that the petition of Wm. Kennedy be granted.

Moved in amendment by Ald Chadwick, seconded by Ald. Lamprey, that the applications for renting the City Hall on the occasion of the Provincial Exhibition be referred to the Market House Committee. Carried.

EDUCATIONAL,

Moved by Ald. Cutten, seconded by Ald. Bruce, that the sum of $3,500 be placed to the credit of the Board of Education in advance of the appropriation for the current year. Carried.

Moved by Ald. Keough, seconded by Ald. Bruce, that the petition of the Board of Separate School Trustees asking that $1,000 be placed to their credit to meet current expenses in advance of their appropriation be granted.—Carried.

THE EXTRA MARKET DAY.

Moved by Ald. Smith, seconded by Ald. Hearn, that the request from the Board of Trade in regard to the appointing of every Wednesday a special market day as well as Saturday be granted.

Messrs. Jones and McElderry were allowed a hearing to explain the views of the Board of Trade.

Mr. Jones in his remarks stated that although every day was a market day, at the same time the farming public are not sure that they can dispose of a large quantity of different kinds of produce on any day in the week unless it is on Saturday. Should the Council grant this extra market day it was the intention of the Board of Trade to advertise the fact by circular, sending one to every farmer in the County, and at the same time mentioning the good qualities and advantages of the Guelph market. In creating an extra market day it would encourage a great many farmers who could not come into the city on account of bad weather on Saturday, to remain over until Wednesday, when they could have an equally ready sale and as good a market. He also spoke of the loss of trade to the city caused by a wet or disagreeable Saturday, when farmers could not come in, thus diverting the trade to other channels, and consequently the city lost thereby. He thought the extra market day would be a great advantage to the city.

Mr. McElderry stated that the Board of Trade had decided that it would be advisable to appoint an extra market day, and leave it to the good sense of the Council whether they thought it was necessary to do so or not. If Saturday happened to be a wet or disagreeable day, as they were all aware, farmers would not come into the city, and rather than do so, would go to the nearest place to purchase their necessaries, although they might have to pay considerably higher for them. An extra market day would obviate this to a great extent. Then again on Saturdays in summer, when the weather was fine, the retailers found it more than they could do in many instances to serve the customers, often having to work nearly until twelve o'clock. By making Wednesday an extra market day it would relieve the retailer to a certain extent from the rush of Saturday, and give the farmers an opportunity of bringing in their produce and other commodities on Wednesday the same as on Saturday, and would also give them the opportunity of buying their goods cheaper than if they were compelled to buy them elsewhere.

The motion was carried.

THE PROVINCIAL.

Moved by Ald. Lamprey, seconded by Ald. Hearn, that the agreement entered into between the Special Committee and the Agriculture and Arts Association for the holding of the Provincial Exhibition be confirmed.

Ald. Cutten objected to the confirmation of this agreement until after the Committee should report with an estimate of the liability to be incurred.

Some discussion ensued in reference to the agreement, after which the motion was unanimously carried, on the understanding that the Committee would report as suggested by Ald. Cutten.

FINANCE.

Ald. Cutten, reported, recommending payment of these accounts. The Mail $15; Hart & Co., $16.93; T. J. Day, $1. We recommend that James Gibson's dog tax, $1.10, be refunded. As the Municipal Act requires that any aid to charitable institutions shall be by by-law, therefore the Finance Committee to whom petitions in aid of the General Hospital and St. Joseph's Hospital and House of Providence were referred, recommend that a by-law be introduced in order that the Council may have an opportunity to grant such aid to said institutions as may seem proper. The Finance Committee in conjunction with the City Solicitor on the 3rd inst., had an interview with Burr Bros., with reference to the aid asked by them for their new proposed factory. The Solicitor suggested that an amendment to the Municipal Act might possibly be procured to enable the Council to vote a bonus to the extent of $2,000, without the assent of the ratepayers and so avoid the expense of a vote on the question. The Mayor and chairman of this committee interviewed Mr. Fraser, one of the members of the Government at Toronto, and he declined to recommend such an amendment. The committee, thereupon recommended the submission of a by-law to the ratepayers. This by-law after having been read a first and second time at a special meeting of the City Council called for the purpose and held on the 11th inst., being duly advertized. The time for the return of the collector's roll having expired on the 14th Dec., and no return having been made the committee recommend that at the next meeting of this Council the collector do make a return showing the amount of taxes collected by him, the amount still in arrears with the amount unpaid set opposite the names of each. The committee recommend that the City Solicitor be required to render a statement to the City Clerk of his proceedings on the $600 agreement in favor of the city signed by John Hewer and others, showing the amount collected, costs incurred, and proceedings being taken on this.

Ald. Chadwick said that he thought the report should state that there had been a new chairman appointed.

WATER WORKS.

Ald. Bruce, chairman, reported recommending the payment of the following accounts:—D. Scroggie, $1.80; John M. Bond & Co., $9.45; Robt. Mitchell, $1.50; I. J. Allan, $7.89. Your Committee recommend that Sweetnam & Hazelton be paid $70 for damages done in their factory by water from water works. We would also recommend that the firemen at the pumping house be relieved of duty on Sunday and that a competent man be employed for Sunday alone. The amount of money paid out to the end of February was $558.23. By Treasurer's books there has been collected up to the 28th of Feb., $1,623.90. Adopted.

RELIEF.

Ald. W. G. Smith reported: Your Relief Committee having carefully examined the following and found them correct, would recommend payment: McCandless & McQueen, $2.50; John Laing, 20 cords of wood, $77.50; James McCuen, 20 cords of wood, $80; D. Scroggie, $5; Sisters of St. Joseph's (of two poor people) $25.98; W. S. G. Knowles, $4.75; Geo. Murton, $3.25; P. Anderson, $3.75; Robert Mitchell, $5.50—$208.23. Your Committee during the past month dispensed relief as follows: Orders for goods, $30.81; wood, 18½ cords, $73; delivery of wood, $14.60; Mrs. Miller's monthly allowance, $4; railway passes, $12; funeral expenses of poor, $10; Mrs. Stanlers, assisted passage to England, $20; total, $164.41. The financial standing of the committee showed a balance to credit of $31.12, from a grant of $500 at the first of the year. Adopted.

RAILWAYS.

Ald. Chadwick, Chairman, reported that the Committee had secured copies of the plans and reports of P. L. S. Davis upon the Guelph Junction Railway, and that having received a telegram from Mr. Whyte, Superintendent, that Mr. Van Horne was in Toronto and would be happy to meet the Railway Committee, they recommend the Mayor, the Chairman, Ald. Chadwick, and Ald. Husband proceed to Toronto to-morrow to meet him. Adopted.

PAUPER IMMIGRATION.

Ald. Hewer, Chairman, reported: The Special Committee appointed to draft a memorial to the Dominion and Provincial Governments against pauper immigration beg leave to report that they have drafted a memorial to both Governments, and have forwarded the same, signed by His Worship the Mayor and the City Clerk. Adopted.

OTHER MATTERS.

Moved by Ald. Read, seconded by Ald. J. Carter, that Ald. Raymond be placed on all the committees of which the late Ald. Hall was a member.

The Mayor ruled this resolution out of order as it placed six members on the Finance Committee when only five could legally be on.

Moved by Ald. Bruce, seconded by Ald. Maddock, that Ald. Cutten's resignation as a member of the Hospital Committee be accepted and that Ald. Raymond be placed thereon instead.

Ald. Raymond remarked that he had no desire to be on the Finance Committee, but at the same time he did not wish to be shelved on to a small and unimportant committee, as it was not doing justice to himself nor the Ward which he represented.

Ald. Bruce said that he was honest in moving the resolution and had no intention of its being construed in this manner. He thought the Hospital Committee was an important one.

Ald. Maddock remarked that Ald. Read and Smith must have felt sore over this matter in some way or other.

Ald. Smith, in reply, held that it was unjust to the representative and St. John's Ward to appoint a member on the Finance Committee or any other committee, until after the election, and especially when it placed one member of the Council on no less than four committees, leaving only one committee for the representative of St. John's Ward to fill. The matter appeared to have been sprung on the Council for a purpose. He saw no necessity for filling up the vacancy so soon. Then again to offer the member for St. John's Ward a position on a minor committee was a slight and injustice which he strongly resented.

Ald. Hewer and Chadwick were of the same opinion as Ald. Smith, and spoke pretty much to the same effect.

The resolution was then carried.

Moved by Ald. Smith, seconded by Ald. W. Carter, that the sum of $300 be placed to the credit of the Relief Committee to meet current expenses. Carried.

Moved by Ald. Cutten, seconded by Ald. Maddock, that the Local Board of Trade for the City of Guelph, shall consist of the the Mayor, Dr. Keating, Dr. Howitt, Dr. Nunan, Ald. Hewer, Robert Melvin, H. Murton, Adam Robertson and Dennis Coffee. Carried.

Moved by Wm. Carter, seconded by Ald. Coffee, that Ald. Hortop be a member of the Board of Works, Market and Public Buildings and Parks and Shade Trees Committees in place of Ald. Wells resigned. Carried.

Moved by Ald Coffee, seconded by Ald. W. Carter, that the By-law Committee be instructed to bring in a by-law making the by-laws and regulations on Wednesday respecting the control of the market the same as on Saturday. Carried.

Ald. Hewer remarked that the city exhibit for the Colonial would have to be shipped on Saturday, the 20th, and that it was intended to have it on exhibition in the City Hall on the Thursday and Friday previous.

The Council then adjourned.

Royal Manufacturing Co.

THE undersigned having gone into partnership under the name and style as above, for the purpose of manufacturing the following articles, beg to solicit a share of public patronage.

The Royal Combination Family and Laundry Mangle is the most perfect, simple and easy running machine ever introduced for family and laundry use. It can mangle all kinds of goods from the most delicate to the heaviest, and is the only machine of its kind that can give satisfaction in wringing heavy bed quilts, carpets &c. It occupies very little room, the machine with attachments of clothes horse, clothes basket, (if desired) taking up only 28 inches. The R. B. burglar proof sash lock is a convenient and safe attachment for any window and makes a useful ornament. The new step ladder we are manufacturing is light, easily handled and perfect'y safe, and our tack pullers will be found very handy in taking up carpets, and work well. We intend to manufacture other articles when patents are secured. We are also prepared to do all kinds of jobbing, repairing and carpentering, and all kinds of ordered work will be done on the shortest notice. Pattern model making, mill wrighting, in which we guarantee satisfaction, will also form a branch of our business. Saws sharpened and set, lance tooth saws receiving special attention. None but the best mechanics employed.

Respectfully yours,

AGENTS WANTED.

THE FRANCHISE ACT.

The Qualifications of Voters—The Process of Registration Explained.

The time having arrived for the preparation of the voters' lists under the new Dominion Franchise Act, an appeal is made to the Liberals of Wellington to have their names enrolled as voters without delay. To assist in so doing a short summary of the qualification of voters and of the process for securing registration s given.

QUALIFICATION.

To entitle a person to be put on the list he must be—

(1) 21 years of age.

(2) A British subject by birth or naturalization.

(3) Owner of real property of value
In a city, $300.
In a town, $200.
In a county, $150.

(4) Or tenant of real property under ease at a rental of
$2 per month.
$6 per quarter.
$12 per half year.
$20 per year.

Provided that the tenant has been in possession for one year before 1st January 1886, and shall have paid one year's rent before final revision.

If the rent is yearly it will be sufficient if $20 of last year's rent shall have been paid before final revision.

Change of tenancy without intermission will not destroy the vote if aggregate of tenancies would give vote.

The assessor should be instructed state in the assessment roll the rent payable by each person assessed as tenant. If, however, this is not done, each tenant is prima facie entitled to be registered as a voter if the property is assessed at the following values:—
In cities at $300.
In towns at $200.
In counties at $150.

In counties outside of villages the rent may be payable either in money or in money's worth.

(5) Or a bona fide occupant for one year before 1st January, 1886, and enjoying the revenues and profits for his own or his wife's use of real property of the following values:
In cities, $300.
In towns, $200.
In counties, $150.

The occupancy may be under license of occupation from the crown or from any person or corporation.

(6) Or by income without any other qualification.

A person may be registered as an income voter, if he derives an income from his earnings, trade or profession, or from some investment in Canada of $300 a year, for one year before 1st January, 1886.

In counties the earnings may be either in money or money's worth.

(7) Sons of owners of real property are qualified—

(a) Where the father is living and a son or sons living with him continuously for one year before 1st January, 1886, and the property is sufficient in value according to the above figures, if divided between them to give them all votes. If not sufficient to qualify all the sons and the father, then the father and only so many sons as the property will qualify can be enrolled, and in such case the eldest son will be preferred, and then the next elder, and so on.

(b) When the father is dead, and would, if living, be qualified, residence with the mother will suffice, and as many sons as the property will qualify may be registered, with preference to the eldest and elder sons, as in the last case.

Occasional absence from home of a son—not more than six months in the year—will not disqualify, and all time spent at school or college in Canada will be counted as if spent at home.

Son of an owner includes grandson, step-son and son-in-law, and all these may be registered as voters on the property if of sufficient value. The provision as to sons of owners applies to the counties as well as towns and cities in cases other than those of farmers' sons.

(8) Farmers' sons—The same provisions substantially apply to farmers' sons, as stated in the last paragraph in respect of sons of owners in cities and towns.

A farm is to be not less than 20 acres of land.

(9) Fishermen and owners of real property and boats, nets, fishing gear and tackle of aggregate value of $150.

Income voters register where they reside at time of registration—all others where property is situate. If in more than one polling division in the same electoral district the voter may register in either.

All names entered in the last revised voters' lists under the old law, will be entered in the new lists by the revising barrister.

Every person not on the assessment roll desiring to have his name on the list must at once send to the revising barrister an application in writing to be put on the list, giving his name, residence and the property or other qualification in respect of which he applies to be put on.

This application must be accompanied by a declaration which is to be made and signed before a commissioner for taking affidavits, a notary or justice of the peace, showing the grounds of the applicants claim to be put on the list.

Substantially the voters are those who can qualify as owners, tenants, occupants, income voters, sons of owners and farmers' sons.

See that the application shows as correctly and fully as possible the qualification.

Make the declaration before a commissioner, notary or justice of the peace. It is convenient to have it attached to the application on the same sheet.

In case of an absent person, let some one else having a knowledge of the qualification make the application and declaration.

When one cannot find a justice or other person before whom the declaration can be taken let the application alone be sent in, with an explanation of the reason, and it would be well in such case to have the truth of the facts in the application certified on the back of it by one, or if possible, two other persons.

The application and declaration must be sent at once to the Revising barrister of the district.

URGENCY OF THE MATTER.

No name not on the last voters' list or assessment roll will be placed on the preliminary voters' list, unless on application and declaration as above.

In case of any difficulty or doubt, application should be made at once for advice to some of the Liberal friends in the neighborhood.

Dominion Parliament.

Ottawa, March 16.

The debate on Riel's execution was continued to-day, Mr. Rykert being the first speaker. He held the floor for nearly four hours, quoting copiously from his well-known scrap book, making insinuations for which he was called by the Speaker to order more than once, losing his temper and throwing out a challenge to Hon. Mr. Mills to fight. In his first words he made a slip that caused a great laugh on the Liberal side. He said he rose to discuss the motion of censure on the Government "for the murder of Louis Riel." Mr. Bechard followed. He was the first Rouge to speak and made an able speech against the Government. Mr. Lauier rose next and held the House for two hours and quarter. His speech was ahead of anything that has been delivered on the question. It was pitched in a lofty key and delivered in the finest style of oratory, with a grace and eloquence that commanded the closest attention of the House. He sat down at 12.35 to applause by both sides. Congratulations were showered upon him.

Sir Adolphe Caron moved the adjournment of the debate. The House adjourned at 12.35.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY.—To-day is the "17th of Ireland," and many a warm and leal hearted Irishman could be seen on the streets wearing a sprig of the "dear little Shamrock of Ireland" or his emerald ribbon, in remembrance of the land that gave him or his ancestors birth. The only secular commemoration of the day will be the entertainment in the City Hall to-night.

SOCIAL IN THE B. M. E. CHURCH.—Last night there was more than an average attendance at the above entertainment. The singing was good. Miss Miller performed with her accustomed ability at the organ. Rev. Wm. Savage delivered an address upon the "Utility and Dignity of Labor" and the Rev. gentleman entered fully into the discussion of this subject so important at the present day. Everything passed off pleasantly.

VESTRY MEETING.—At a meeting of St. George's Church Vestry last night, the following resolutions were unanimously carried in reference to the Rev. Mr. E. A. Irving, who is about to sever his connection as curate of St. George's here, having been appointed to the charge in Dundas:—Moved by Mr. Elliott, seconded by Mr. Bond, "With feelings of deep regret at the severance of the connection of the Rev. E. A. Irving with this congregation as assistant minister, the consent of the vestry is given to his leaving this parish at the time mentioned in the letter—Easter Monday. The faithful and untiring efforts in the discharge of his duties as a minister have endeared him to the congregation and makes the parting severely felt, but we trust that in the higher sphere of duty in the church to which he has been called his labors will be blessed, and that the change, though our loss, will be his gain.

DROWNED.—The Grand Rapids Evening Leader, of the 13th March, contains an account by drowning of Robt. Fyfe, an eleven year old son of Mr. Richard Fyfe, formerly of Guelph, in the canal there while watching fishermen. The Leader says: In company with two or three other lads Robert was watching some fishermen raise their nets at the locks in the canal dam. He lost his footing and fell between the timbers into the stream. The little fellow swam heroically for several rods and made cries to the fishermen to aid him. The men pushed several planks out into the stream, but to no purpose, and the current being swift the lad could not reach them, and soon sank from sight. Several men with boats and poles at once instituted a search to recover the body, which was recovered about noon sixty feet from where the boy was last seen alive.

Guelph Scientific Association.

The inaugural meeting of this society was held on Tuesday evening in the old City Hall, and was attended by a large number of the members and others interested in the work of the Association. The President, Mr. James Goldie, occupied the chair, and opened the proceedings by an address in which he explained the aims and objects of the Society, and pointed out the great advantages that must result from the study of science to all the members, and especially to the young. He alluded to the widespread and prevailing ignorance on scientific subjects among all classes, and mentioned some amusing instances of this want of knowledge in regard to the commonest facts of nature. The study of botany, or entomology or geology, could not but prove both interesting and instructive to those who studied any of them practically, and would prove a source of happiness to them during their whole lives.

Prof. Panton next addressed the meeting. The founder of the Association, he said, had properly formed it on a comprehensive plan so as to include all branches of science. It might be that, as the work progressed, some enthusiasm might be developed in a particular line, and then it would be possible to limit it to a greater extent than at present, but, at the outset, its aims must be general. One point that was to be kept in view was to make the work as local as possible, to encourage, to the greatest possible extent, the study of the various branches of the Natural History of our own city and county. While the Association would be glad at times to avail themselves of the services of lecturers in various scientific subjects, they were not at all bound to provide any regular course of lectures, or any definite number at stated times. The Professor briefly alluded to the various subjects of study that might be pursued. In regard to geology he pointed out that we had a whole formation of strata named from our own city, and that in the vicinity of Galt, Elora, Fergus and other places, as well as in our own quarries, we had ample opportunities for the practical study of fossils. He mentioned as an example of what may be done by one man, the excellent museum in Elora, and the high honor that had been paid to its founder, Mr. D. Boyle, whose name is now so well known to geologists. In zoology, in entomology, in ornithology and in botany, there was a wide field for study and observation.

Archdeacon Dixon was the next speaker. He pointed out the great work that still lay before scientific men in reconciling what at first glance appeared to be a want of harmony between science and revelation, and gave some striking examples of recent discoveries that had solved difficulties which had long puzzled students of Scripture.

Mr. W. Tytler and President Mills made a few remarks, and Mr. R. Gausby gave some personal experience of his own in connection with scientific study in England. He said a great deal had been heard of what we may do for science, but there was another side to the question. We must learn what science can do for us. Habits of observation are taught to the young which are invaluable, and which make life happier and better, and lead them away from frivolous and more than useless amusements.

He was followed by Prof. Brown in a few remarks, recommending full discussion and questioning on all papers read, as the only method by which these could be made productive of the greatest good.

Prof. James next spoke. He showed that science was not something away above us, but that science was nearly truth, that scientific observation was nearly accurate observation. He mentioned as a useful branch of chemical study, the whole question of food and cookery, which was at present attracting so much attention, and promised to give a paper on this subject at some future time.

A few remarks of a practical nature were made by Rev. Mr. McGregor and Mr. Gilchrist, and this very pleasant and successful meeting was closed by a few words from the President.

It may be stated that the class in botany in connection with the Association, was commenced on Tuesday under the instruction of Prof. Panton, with an attendance of about thirty members.

A Couple of Fires.

ACTON, Ont., March 16.—A fire last night totally destroyed the large building known as the plow factory, owned by W. H. Story & Sons and occupied by Thomas Ebbage as a pump factory and carpenter shop. Mr. Ebbage loses all his tools and some machinery lately put in. The building was insured for $1200

TEESWATER, Ont., March 16.—Early this morning Little's flour mill was burned to the ground, and nothing was saved. A firebug is blamed, sufficient snow having fallen during the night and the tracks of a horse and cutter were traced from the mill through the village. Loss $6,500, insurance $5000.

GUELPH JUNCTION RAILWAY.—Last night a joint meeting of the Provisional Directors of the Guelph Junction railway, members of the Railway Committee and the Board of Trade, was held in the City Hall. There were present the Mayor, Messrs. Bell, Guthrie, Chase, C. Davidson, Thomas Gowdy, John Harris, Brill, Bond, Colonel Higinbotham, Jones and Ald. Raymond, W. Carter, Bruce, Chadwick, Skinner, Husband. Mr. Wm. Bell was appointed chairman, and Mr. Jones secretary. Mr. Bell an taking the chair briefly recounted the interview between the delegation sent from Guelph that morning (Tuesday) to interview Mr. Van Horne in reference to the proposed Guelph Junction Railway. The terms, with the exception of an assurance, are the same as heretofore offered. Guelph will have to build the railway — finding rails and everything else, and the Company will run it, although 40 per cent. of the gross receipts go to the city. A general talk then ensued on railway matters, when the same ground as heretofore on the same question was pretty much traversed. It was intimated that Mr. Van. Horne would likely be in Guelph inside of a week, and look over the proposed routes.

Cyclopedia of Universal History.

We have had the privilege of examining Dr. John Ridpath's Cyclopedia of Universal History, which is being brought to the attention of some of our leading citizens by Mr. E. P. Balch, of the Publishing House of Balch Brothers, 10½ Adelaide street East, Toronto.

This is a valuable and comprehensive historical work, presenting in a condensed but graphic style an account of the principal events in the history of human race, from the beginning of civilization to the present time, taken from the most authentic sources. The work is complete in three imperial octavo volumes, making 2,346 double column pages. Dr. Ridpath, the author, is Professor of History in Depauw University, Indiana. He is the author of a history of the United States, which has had a very wide circulation. His natural gifts, as well as his training and special historical studies, eminently qualify him for writing a history of this kind. Accordingly, we find that the work presents evidence of careful study of the best historical authorities, a power of grasping and grouping events, an impartial presentation of facts, a keen appreciation of character, and a vigorous and lucid style which arrests and retains the attention of the reader.

Many of the brief biographical sketches of eminent men and women are vivid and picturesque pen portraits, concise and yet eloquent and attractive; and all through the work the succession of events described moves on in a way that produces a sense of animated action. Though concise, in comparison with full and elaborate histories of particular countries, yet the student who masters the contents of these three splendid volumes will be well furnished with historical knowledge. Vol. I. covers Ancient History; Vol. II. is occupied with Mediæval Times; Vol. III, with Modern History.

The work is beautifully printed on fine paper, and handsomely bound in several styles. It is profusely illustrated with maps, charts, sketches, portraits and diagrams, which add greatly to its attractiveness. There are over 1,200 engravings. The ancient and modern maps are well executed and valuable; and the third volume is specially rich in striking portraits of the most prominent personages in history. This is an interesting feature of the work. The chronological charts carefully prepared by Dr. Ridpath will be found a valuable aid to the student. There are also special historic maps, showing boundaries at former times, and thus enabling the careful student to more fully understand the import of the historic narrative. There is a full index and table of contents, which make it very convenient for reference. The author declares that his motive in preparing this elaborate work was "a desire to bring within the reach of the average reader a concise and accurate summary of the principal events in the career of the human race." The object has been successfully achieved in this "CYCLOPEDIA OF UNIVERSAL HISTORY."

THE BEN WYVIS CUP.—In the first competition for the Ben Wyvis cup in Brantford yesterday Guelph was pitted against Scarboro', and won by a score of 29 to 8. Galt and Guelph then played off, Guelph losing. The final match took place to-day between Galt and Elora.

CHECKERS.—Mr. Roach, of Wingham, has been in the city for a few days and appears to be a checker player of merit, having defeated every one who played with him so far. There is to be a tournament to-night when it is expected that some of Guelph's best checker players will be to the front.

KNOX CHURCH.—The Young People's Association of Knox Church have every reason to be satisfied with the result of their open meeting last evening. A large crowd assembled in the basement to hear Shylock answer for his deeds before a nineteenth century jury. After a short programme of readings and music, Mr. Peterson robed in his official gown ascended the Bench and ordered the prisoner to be brought in. Shylock appeared when a jury was summoned and Mr. G. W. Field opened the case for the State of Venice. Mr. John A. Mowat replied in a speech bristling with argument and eloquence. Mr. H. Williamson and George Walker acted as junior counsel for the prosecution and State of Venice respectively. All wore gowns and white neck ties. The judge summed up the case and the jury retired for a short time but being unable to agree were discharged and the prisoner remanded. Great laughter was occasionally caused by the technale objections of counsel and the challenges of the jurors. A vote of thanks to Mr. Peters n brought the meeting to a close.

Elora Corresbondence.

SAD DEATH.—A few months ago a young man came to Elora in the employ of the American Express Co. and acted as messenger on the C. P. R. He was a genial, warm hearted young man, and soon became a general favorite. Unfortunately he acquired a love of liquor, which proved his ruin and brought him to an early grave. About New Year's a lady, to whom he was engaged and about to be married, visited Elora, found him in an intoxicated condition, and broke off the engagement. This seemed to render him reckless and he resorted more than ever to drink. Last week he suffered from an attack of delirium tremens for a few days and on Friday was a corpse. On Saturday his remains were carried to the home of his grieving friends. It is useless to give names, for they would add nothing to the force of this fresh illustration of the fact that strong drink biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.

ENTERTAINMENT.—An entertainment of a highly attractive character will be given in the Drill Shed, Elora, on the evening of Tuesday, 23rd inst., when the two-act melodrama, entitled "Among the Breakers" will be presented. The performers are ladies and gentlemen from Guelph and Galt, and lately rendered the above play before a large and critical audience in the Royal City in such a manner as to call forth the warmest approval. The proceeds of the entertainment will be devoted to the furnishing of the new R. C. Church here. There has been a dearth of theatrical representations in our village this season, and the comingevent should be regarded as a treat by all lovers of the drama. The price of admission, twenty-five cents, with no reserved seats, places the play within the reach of all. An orchestra will be in attendance.

SUCCESSFUL SALE.—Mr. Jos. Heffernan, the ambitious young auctioneer from Lower Nichol, conducted an auction sale at the farm of Mr. Wm. Bailey, near Alma, on Friday of last week, in a manner which secured high bids for the large stock offered. The attendance was good, and while good prices were realized, everyone received excellent value for his money.

NEW BARNS.—There will be two large barns erected in the neighbourhood of Thorpville during the coming summer. One of these will be on the farm of Mr. James Wright, Pilkington, and the other will be built by Mr. Thomas Finnegan, Nichol. Both gentlemen are busily engaged in collecting material for the completion of their undertaking.

ENCOURAGING.—The annual examination of the Bethany school, section No. 5, Pilkington, will be held in the school house on Friday, the 19th inst. So well pleased are the trustees with the condition of the school, under the excellent management of Mr. Forster, that they have invested thirty dollars in prizes, which will be distributed amongst the scholars at the close of Friday's proceedings. It is hoped that there will be a good turnout of parents and friends of education.

EARLY CHICKENS.—A lady in Pilkington set a hen about a month ago, and despite the occasional severity of the weather, succeeded in having a portion of the setting hatched out. Is this an indication of an early spring, or of extra faithfulness on the part of the presiding Biddy?

CEDAR BIRDS.—Large flocks of these beautiful birds have been noticed in this vicinity during the past few days. They are industriously feeding upon the fruit which is still left on the mountain ash trees. The birds appear to be in good condition, but are unusually early in their appearance in this region. This looks like mild weather, and March may go out in its present lamb-like mood.

COMING.—R. Baird, the popular comedian, is at present making a tour of this section of Ontario, accompanied by a strong theatrical troupe. His plan is to spend several nights in each place visited and to offer attractive plays each evening at the low price of ten cents. It is expected that he will reach Elora early in April, when all can afford to spend at least one night with Baird.

LECTURE.—Rev. Father Lennan, who is in charge of the R. C. Mission here, during the absence of the regular pastor, will deliver a lecture in Drayton on the evening of Wednesday next, St. Patrick's Day.

Elora, March 16, 1886.

Fergus Correspondence.

CURLING.—This game still holds a chief place in village sports. On Saturday last the Tory party had the cheek to challenge the Reform to a contest on the ice. The result was a decided victory for Blake, and John A may see in this as a sure omen that his time has come, and if his will is already made he has the warning in time to get it completed. Neither or the political parties was strongly represented on Saturday, but the skips and some of the men on both sides were good and true. Mr. Donaldson one Reform skip, beat his Conservative opponent, Mr. Grieve, by one shot. Mr. Michie, the other Reform skip, and better and defeated Mr Anderson by 10 shots. Yesterday Mr Michie again defeated his Conservative opponent, Mr Anderson. So the colors are safe on ice. Our curlers were to have played in Brantford to-day, T Hughes to be skip, for the Ben Wyvis cup. M Hughes could not get away and he did not know till too late to allow others to be chosen. It is unfortunate as Fergus would likely have been a cup more in value. We are sorry Guelph was afraid to come up and play Fergus the annual match, as it was its duty to do. It was more than could be expected, however, that even Guelph curlers would do their friendly duty in the face of almost certain defeat by our home men. The game will now be lost for this season. Some of our Fergus men who never curl are anxious to play against our best curlers for oysters, the curlers to beat by some 22 shots in a regular game or pay the oysters, if they beat by more than the non-curlers treat. Both sides are afraid to play or pay.

GUN.—We are now having a gun club organized. A trap and balls are to be procured and when our members have a little practice they will be ready to defeat any place in the country smaller than Metz, Aboyne first.

LACROSSE.—The boys are talking of organizing for the season. A meeting will be held probably Thursday evening. Now is the time to make arrangements for the Queen's Birthday. If there is anything to be made let the village or some club or society take hold of it and do it up well.

SUPPER.—St Patrick's memory is to be honored in Fergus by a grand supper at the Dominion Hotel to-morrow evening. Invitations are out and can be accepted by purchasing a dollar ticket to the spread. Speeches, songs, etc., will follow the refreshment and no doubt refreshments, wet and dry, will follow some of the songs. A glorious night for Ould Ireland is expected. There will no doubt be a grand supper.

HUNT.—A big fox hunt last Thursday. Did not hear how many got brushes, but from the number of dead shots hunting hens will now be safe from foxes.

CONVENTION.—Quite a large number of bee fanciers attended the Convention here yesterday. An Association was formed and honey will probably rise.

HAY.—During the past week and more an enormous amount of hay has been coming in. Mr. Black has his packing house filled and has a very large stack made outside. The hay is coming from all directions. The price is about eight dollars per ton.

PERSONAL.—We have much pleasure in congratulating J. D. Stirton, formerly dental surgeon with Mr. Reid here, on his success at college. He has passed through with the highest honors. Guelph is also to be congratulated on getting in Mr Stirton a first-class citizen and dental practitioner. With his usual energy he has not dilly-dallied in getting to duty. We understand he is already doing a good business, having bought out Mr Hayes. We wish him every success and hope to see him here often.

MANITOBA.—The C. P. R. exhibition car, with exhibits of grain, etc, from our Northwest Provinces, was here as advertised on Friday last. Many from the village and country visited it during the afternoon and all were pleased with the various samples of grain, grass, potatoes, &c. Potatoes and grasses were very good and the samples of wheat and other grains also. Samples of wheat were given to those desiring such. The exhibit was a success.

LECTURES.—Rev. Mr. Wilkinson's lectures in the hall last night and to-night were most numerously attended, the hall being crowded. Mr. Sims, from Brantford, spoke in opposition to him, and on behalf of the Plymouth Brethren whose doctrines Mr. Wilkinson assails. We cannot give a report of the different arguments. We are inclined to think Mr. Wilkinson's arguments are stronger than those of Mr. Sims, but we are of the opinion that little will be gained by the discussion, and only a few will receive much information. The meetings are to be continued during the week.

RELIGIOUS SERVICE.—Prof. Gregg, of Toronto, conducted service in Melville church on Sunday last. His sermons were much admired, both morning and evening. Dr. Smellie is still unable to preach owing to his injury, but we understand he is progressing favorably towards recovery.

SLEIGHING.—Sleighing is still fairly good. The snow every night keeps it up.

Fergus, March 16, 1886.

THE VOTERS LIST.

Every property owner, property owner or farmer's son, tenant, occupant, or person earning $300 a year, who has resided in his municipality for twelve months from the 1st of January 1885, who is a Liberal in politics, whose name is not on the Revising Officer's preliminary list, and who has not yet made application to have his name added to it, should see and have this done before the 18th inst. All such being in the city should call on Mr. Hugh McMillan, over the Federal Bank, who will see that the application is filled up and the proper declaration made. By so doing an important step will be taken towards obtaining the franchise. It should be especially noted that being thus placed on the Dominion voters' list does not make a man subject to income tax.

The Government's Unfair Tactics.

Whatever the opinion of people may be with regard to Mr. Landry's motion about Riel's execution, we think that all fair minded men will agree with us when we say that Parliament should have every available scrap of information in the possession of the Government which could throw any light on the subject. But this is just what the Government has refused to produce. These papers were moved for at the earliest period after the session began. Day after day passed and they were not forthcoming. Then Mr. Landry brought up his motion and the Government determined to push on the debate and have it kept up every day a vote was reached. This, too, in the face of the fact that with the exception of the Doctor's report on Riel's mental condition, not a scrap of other information relating to his case had been brought down by the Government. Nay more, on the first day of the debate Sir Hector Langevin moved the previous question, thus preventing any amendments being moved. The House is thus obliged to debate the question on the one motion.

The Government, however, had omitted to get a motion passed for the debate to be continued day by day, and on Monday Sir Hector Langevin (the Premier being unwell) moved that after the questions of which members had given notice were put the House should proceed with the debate and continue it till finished. Mr. Blake objected, and again remonstrated with the Government for not bringing down the papers, and for pressing the House to come to a decision without the necessary evidence. Sir Hector's motion being clearly out of order—as no notice of it had been given—it was ruled out. But no sooner were the questions on the paper put and answered, and the regular notices of motion which had been given by private members were being taken up, than Sir Hector again moved his amendment to the first one, that Mr. Landry's motion be the first order of the day. This again called forth a sharp rebuke from the leader of the Opposition, who pointed out that only a few minutes before the Minister of Justice confessed that a number of the papers asked for were still in the department and were being got ready; also that other papers had been telegraphed for to Regina and were now on their way to Ottawa. Another remarkable confession was made by the Minister of Justice only a few minutes before this, when in answer to questions put by Mr. Amyot, he confessed that the report of the Medical Commission on the mental condition of Riel was sent from Regina by telegraph to the Government in advance of the report as written out and submitted to the Government. These telegrams were sent in cipher, and on the receipt of the letters from the Doctors these cipher telegrams were returned to them. It was also confessed that before the Government had received these written reports Riel's execution had taken place! Such a confession cannot but startle the country, and raise a suspicion in the minds of men that all was not straight and above board. To say the least, this information exhibits a most extraordinary way the Government had of doing their business. No doubt this and other equally strange actions throughout this case have to a considerable extent raised the suspicion, and it may be the confirmed opinion in the minds of some, that Riel was not justly dealt with.

But be that as it may, there is no doubt whatever that the Government in hurrying on the debate as it has done before the papers asked for are laid before the House, have acted most unfairly. In fact they are seeking to force a verdict before the evidence is laid before the jury. When charged with this manifest injustice they had nothing to say in extenuation, or in defence of their course. Even the Minister of Justice, though he made the open confession that some of the papers were not ready and that others were on their way from Regina, had not the manliness to say that the debate should be delayed till these papers were produced. Minister of Justice indeed! Why, the name is a mismomer. The Opposition had a right to ask for this delay, and any Government imbued with a sense of fair play and anxious to give Parliament and the country all information on the subject, would have granted it. But our precious Government simply instructed the Speaker to "call in the members," and they carried Sir Hector's motion by their usual pliant majority, less six courageous French Canadian members, who have become utterly disgusted with the Government in the way they are dealing with this case, and who voted with the Opposition.

PETITIONS signed by over 11,000 women have been received in favour of Mr. Charlton's bill making seduction a criminal offence.

MR. M. C. CAMERON, West Huron, is in receipt of a large batch of letters from electors in his constituency, Protestants and Catholics alike, congratulating him on his speech on the Riel case, renewing their confidence in him and pledging their support to re-elect him.

THE Educational Bill passed a few days ago by the United States Senate provides for the appropriation of $77,000,000 in aid of common schools in the States, Territories, the District of Columbia, and Alaska in eight years, as follows: In the first year $7,000,000; second year, $10,000,000; third year, $15,000,000; fourth year, $13,000,000; fifth year $11,000,000; sixth year, $9,000,000; seventh year, $7,000,000; eighth year, $5,000,000. It also appropriates $2,000,000 to aid in the erection of school houses. The money is given to the several States and Territories in that proportion which the whole number of persons in each who, being of the age of 10 years and over, cannot write bears to the whole number of such persons in the United States," according to the census of 1880, until the census figures of 1890 shall be obtained, and then according to the latter figures. In States having separate schools for white and coloured children the money shall be paid out in support of such white and coloured children between 10 and 21 years old in such proportion as they bear to each other by the census.

Legalized Aggression.

To the Editor of the MERCURY:—

SIR,—Not long since your Hespeler correspondent referred to two unfortunate vendors of tea who had been mulcted to the amount of fifty dollars for the dreadful crime of violating an iniquitous by-law. It would be interesting to know what the penalty might have been had the same parties stolen a few pounds of adulterated tea. As generally understood, the primary out of Government is the protection of life and property; but here is a case in which the State becomes the aggressor, and actually commits a two-fold robbery upon those whom it ought to protect. Had these parties been way-laid by some evil disposed person and forcibly relieved of fifty dollars, the State would have been only too anxious to punish the aggressor, who deprived his victims of what rightfully belonged to them. When the State indulges in the luxury of bare-faced robbery everybody is mute. To perform such work individuals called magistrates are appointed, men who distinguish themselves on such occasions by an inordinate lack of conscience, for without this enviable qualification robbery of such a character would soon become unpopular. The State instructs these agents or instruments to commit the robbery, and then in order that they may be paid for such despicable business, an additional robbery must be inflicted.

It is evident that not a few Acts are passed which legalize evils infinitely greater than the imaginary ones they propose to remedy. Though some of them apply to only a comparative few of our population, yet the spirit that pervades them is essentially tyrannical. The MERCURY appears to endorse Mr Broadhurst's statement, that the "object of Liberalism is to remove all obstacles erected by man to prevent all having equal opportunities." To this every true Liberal will assent, but in doing so he must unhesitatingly condemn every despotic by-law and other laws that "prevent all having equal opportunities."

Much of our Liberalism is not only taking on a Tory dress, but it is actually imbibing a large portion of the Tory spirit. On political philosophy we have no higher living authority than Herbert Spencer, and he observes that true "Liberalism asserts the freedom of the individual as opposed to State coercion (Toryism). It affirms that each shall enjoy all those means of happiness which his actions carried on without aggression on others have brought him. In enforcing the mutual limitations of individuals, government fulfils its main function. Subordination of minority to majority is legitimate as implying only such a trenching on the freedom and property of each as is requisite for the better protection of his freedom and property. Beyond this such subordination is not legitimate as implying a greater aggression upon the individual than is requisite for protecting him."

When Solon, the eminent Athenian Legislator, was asked what State was most civilized: "that," replied the Sage "in which the citizens having themselves received no provocation pursue with as much warmth the reparation of an injury done to another as if they had personally received it." We may be upon the high-road to this most civilized state, but it must be confessed that if we are making long strides, very little of the journey has yet been accomplished,

The Salvation Army in Elora.

The following communication has been sent from Elora in reference to the Salvation Army in that place:

To the Editor of the MERCURY:

DEAR SIR,—Elora has been well supplied with entertainments this winter, in the shape of concerts, tea-meetings, etc. Last night the Salvation Army enlivened our streets with a large procession headed by a danger signal, banner, drums, tambourines and triangle, together with singing of their favourite choruses, drawing a large crowd to view them as they passed. The occasion was the farewell of Staff Capt. Glover, D. O., and his special, Capt. Van Allen, heads of the Palmerston Division, Elora being transferred to the Galt Division. They held a grand jubilee and half-night of prayer in the drill shed. Staff Capt. Glover being a favorite here, there was a fair audience, which seemed to appreciate the singing of Cadet Taylor, of Drayton, and Capt. Cowan, of the Royal City. The speaking was good, and the meeting wound up very happily. About mid-night the soldiers and officers met for a half night of prayer, and separated towards morning, with great rejoicing. It is the wish of almost every one that the Salvation Army be a success, as the other army has withdrawn from Elora, the place being too small for both to succeed. More power to them, say we.

THE Banff hot springs at the foot of the Canadian Rockies have been taken over by the Dominion Government as a part of a national park. The original discoverers sold their claims to another person who made an entry to that effect which was accepted by the Dominion land agency at Calgary. Persons acting as they say in good faith under that transfer, have expended money in improving those springs and their surroundings, and they are now desirous that the Government having taken over the springs should reimburse the cost of the improvements.

A CALL TO A PASTOR.—On the 1st inst a meeting of St. Andrew's church, Thamesford, took place, to consider the call to their pastor, the Rev. J. Cameron, from the congregation of North Bruce and to frame answers to reasons of translation, sent by the North Bruce congregation. The congregation that assembled at Thamesford on that occasion was the largest, the most hearty and the most unanimous for many years. Five delegates were appointed to go to the Presbytery to oppose the translation of Mr. Cameron. Also one months' vacation every summer was granted to their Pastor. The call from North Bruce was declined since.

Well Done Norfolk!

A peculiar announcement was made from the pulpit of Dublin Street Methodist Church a few Sundays ago. It caused many to shake their heads. It was considered almost audacious. "A cash collection of $3,000 will be asked for in two weeks from to-day!" Well everybody knows the result, over $500 in excess of the amount asked for was contributed. And now, Norfolk Street Church has just achieved a similar result. Think of it! "Hard times" is the general cry, and yet two only moderately wealthy churches are enabled to contribute within the course of a month over $7,000 in solid cah wipe out certain liabilities.

Now, what does this show. 1st—That practical Christianity is not at all a thing of the past. 2nd—That "where there's a will there's a way," and that the most difficult tasks may be accomplished by clear heads, warm hearts and strong hands. 3rd—That churches as well as individuals are becoming more and more alive to the beauties of getting and keeping out of debt. The principle of "Cash down," "pay as you go," is growing. People believe in it. They daily see its benefits.

In the business world, the live, keen, close selling, no credit houses are the successful ones, and the old fogy ideas of big prices, long credits, heavy interest, duns and law suits are being driven to the wall.

At No. 27 we are making a grand display of New Staple and Fancy Dry Goods for the Spring. The store has undergone a thorough renovation making everything as bright and clean as a new dollar, and with the new blending of shades of the piles upon piles of new goods, customers find it a very attractive place. We invite all to visit us. We shall keep the public posted as to details from week to week, and promise that no more attractive Dry Goods Store is found either in or outside of Guelph and as we give no credit, make no bad debts, customers are assured of getting goods Cheap for Cash.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

March 15, 1886.

The debate on Mr. Landry's motion on the execution of Riel is the all engrossing subject of conversation, as it is the only matter of discussion at present in the House of Commons.

Two days have already been taken up with the debate, and it is likely it may occupy two or three more before a vote is reached. As the Opposition do not regard it as a party question, it is likely enough we may see members on that side of the House express contrary views on it and discuss it from different standpoints, just as they will no doubt be divided on it when it comes to a vote. After the mover of the resolution had opened the debate in a pretended spirit of indignant sincerity, he was followed by Sir Hector Langevin, who praised Landry's moderation just as if the part that he had to play, and the kind of language he had to use, had not been chalked out for him by the Government. It was rather startling to see Sir Hector thrust into the position of defender of Riel's execution when we reflect that he was the first one who held out the hope to his countrymen of Riel obtaining a reprieve, and advised them to get up petitions for that purpose. No doubt this was his hope and expectation at the time when Riel was condemned. But he and his French colleagues were overborne in the Cabinet, and now as by the irony of fate, in order that he may keep his seat in the Cabinet, he has to defend Riel's execution and is put forward by the Premier to perform this unpalatable task. It is in the last degree humiliating to do this kind of work, but then Sir John has accustomed his colleagues to it, and though they may make wry faces they invariably submit. This is why we find Sir Hector condoning and defending an act which his countrymen almost to a man condemn.

Sir Hector's speech was about as good a defence of the action of the Government as could be made. He is but a poor speaker at the best, and has never cultivated those graces of language which some of the French members are masters of, and which they freely use in their speeches. He was followed by Mr. Amyot, an old time, staunch, hot-headed, and thorough paced Bleu. He is one of the ring-leaders among the rebellious Frenchmen, and being a man of stern resolve and great ability, his defection is felt to be serious as he has much influence with his countrymen. His language was often bitter and sarcastic, especially when attacking Langevin and Caron. As might be expected from the attitude of the French on this question the view that he took of it was somewhat narrow and one-sided, in which nationality and sectarianism have a controlling influence. Riel's alleged insanity was one of his chief arguments, and the composition of the jury that tried Riel, their recommendation to mercy and other matters connected with the trial, were brought up in support of his position. As a rousing appeal to the patriotism and passions of his countrymen it must be considered a powerful and effective speech.

Mr. Royal, the French Canadian member from Manitoba, attempted to reply to Mr. Amyot, but his speech was a decided failure. He was the trusted friend of Riel after the trouble in 1870, and it is said before he would undertake the defence of the Government on this occasion, he had to be promised the Lieut.-Governorship of Manitoba. He did little for the promise for his speech rather hurt than helped the Government.

Mr. Gigault, another French Canadian who has deserted the Government, next took up the cudgels on behalf of his disaffected countrymen. He is a quiet, earnest, and honest man, and is quite independent in the expression of his views whether on this or any other question. He made a better speech than Mr. Amyot. It was not so impassioned, but his arguments were better arranged and his reasoning was more effective. His English was very good—better in fact than Mr. Amyot's.

To vary the programme, we had next Mr. Wallace, member for one of the York Ridings, who holds some high office in the Orange Order. As might be expected his speech was strongly tinged with the color of his Order. He made a very poor figure of himself at the outset by reading as genuine some bogus telegrams which were said to have passed between Blake and Edgar at the time of Riel's execution. The House never attaches any importance to what a man will say who resorts to such a despicable mode of injuring an opponent, and so Wallace's special pleadings fell flat on the ears of members. The Orange advocate made but a poor figure in presenting his case as compared with the Frenchmen in the way they presented theirs.

Mr. M. C. Cameron, of West Huron, whose reputation as the champion assailant of the Government has spread as wide as the Dominion, followed Mr. Wallace, and with all a lawyer's skill argued that the Government had done wrong in executing Riel. He objected to the way in which the trial was conducted; he urged that Riel had not proper time for his trial; he questioned the ability of Riel's counsel; he made the most of the insanity plea and the jury's recommendation to mercy; and putting all these together he argued that he should not have been hanged. He took the ground that such hanging was a political act, done at the instance and under the threats of the Orangemen who were determined, if possible, to have his life, for the murder of Scott. In order to prove this he quoted a number of resolutions passed by Orange Lodges, in which the life of Riel was demanded, and he also referred to congratulatory despatches which had been sent to Sir John Macdonald by prominent members of the Order after the execution. In producing these Mr Cameron falsified the statement made by Mr. Wallace that scarcely any Orange Lodges meddled in this matter at all, or passed any resolutions demanding Riel's life. Mr. Cameron made a powerful speech from his standpoint, and the bombshells he threw in among the Orangemen made them very savage and angry.

Still further to vary the programme Mr. Curran, the Irish Roman Catholic member for one of the Montreal divisions, was next put forward by the Government to plead their cause. He moved the adjournment of the debate on Friday night, which gave him the floor at the opening of the House to-day after routine business. It must in justice be said that Mr. Curran made a good speech in support of the Government's course and the best defence of it that has as yet been heard on the floor of the House. But in the latter part of it he got on to the old subject of Orange and Green, and indulged in a good deal of fustian on that old but perennial question which forms the ground for so many speeches by the class of politicians to which Mr. Curran belongs.

Sir John Macdonald has been unwell since Thursday, and has not been in the House since that day. He is suffering from cold, but it is said that his stomach is affected, for ever since his serious illness years ago this organ is very susceptible to any outward influences such as a cold.

RAISE THE STANDARD HIGH.

The Dry Goods Trade is never elevated by one firm trying to hurt the reputation of another, neither will it raise the firm who tries it in the estimation of the public.

We do not propose to lower the standard of a

Respectable and Highly Thought of Business by any such Nonsense,

But on the other hand if there is anything we can do that will tend to elevate the Dry Goods Trade and those connected with us it will be done.

If other merchants in the city have found their trade in advance of last year (and with less salesmen required), we are glad to hear of it, and it speaks well for Guelph and we only hope they will still continue to prosper. As for us

WE ARE SATISFIED.

We are pleased with our business, our city and the people we have met with since coming to Guelph.

It is just a little over one month since we bought the

Very Respectable and Highly Thought of Business of Messrs. John Hogg & Son.,

and we have been told by those who know, that our sales for the month of February are in advance of the same month last year and we propose by attending

Strictly to our own Business

and by placing before the public

Good Honest Reliable Goods,

and at prices that will cause the people to know (without us having to tell them) that we are

Men of Experience in the Dry Goods Trade knowing Where to buy, How to buy and having the Bullion to Buy with.

Large quantities of goods are coming to hand every week from England, Ireland, Scotland and the United States; also from the different parts of Canada, which we are marking at a very low price and passing into stock.

We expect a large Spring Trade and are preparing for same.

We have retained all the old hands and they will be pleased to see their old friends.

Meeting of Presbytery.

The Presbytery of Guelph held its usual bi-monthly meeting on the 16th March in Chalmers' Church, Guelph. The attendance was large both of Ministers and Representative Elders. After making up the roll, and reading and sustaining the minutes of last meeting, reasons were assigned for the absence of Dr. Smellie, when it was moved and unanimously agreed "That the Presbytery express its deep sympathy with the Rev. Dr. Smellie under the dispensation of Divine Providence that has laid him aside for a time from the active discharge of pastoral work:—its trust and belief that he is realizing the sustaining and comforting presence of the Master whom he has so long served under all the the affliction he has been called to bear; and its earnest prayer that he may be speedily restored to such a measure of bodily health and vigor as will enable him to resume active service among the people of his charge to whom he has been spared to minister for so many years in holy things. In consequence of the state of Dr. Smellie's health it was resolved to postpone the celebration of his jubilee as a minister of the Gospel till the 13th of April, and the Committee in charge of the arrangements were authorized to postpone the services still further if necessary Session Records were called for and produced and Committees appointed to examine them with instructions to report as the first business in the afternoon. A report was presented from the Finance Committee, showing the amount in the hands of the Presbytery Treasurer, and giving the names of congregations in arrears to the Ordinary Fund. The Clerk reported the amounts he had received for Synod Fund, Commissioner's expenses, and Assembly Expense Fund, with the names of congregations that had not yet sent in their contributions, when he was instructed to communicate with all in arrear to these funds and to the Presbytery Fund and request that payment be made at an early date. A report was read from the Committee appointed to visit Hawksville and Linwood with the view of ascertaining if they could not raise more towards the salary of their pastor, and the same was received, and the diligence of the Committee approved. Aid receiving congregations were instructed to furnish the usual reports for the Augmentation Committee. An application was submitted from Hawkesville and Linwood for a removal of the grant for the ensuing year and the Clerk was authorized to forward the same to the proper quarter with the recommendation of the Presbytery that it be complied with. It was stated that the congregation of West Puslinch would be entirely self-supporting after the year closing with the present month. The Presbytery agreed to put upon record its recognition of the desirableness of having a fourth chair erected in Knox College, Toronto, as soon as circumstances will warrant but that in the meantime two lectureships be instituted. According to its custom the Presbytery proceeded to the appointment of Commissioners to the General Assembly when it was moved and unanimously agreed "That all delegates to the General Assembly be appointed this year by rotation with the exception of Mr. J. K. Smith." In carrying out this resolution the following Commissioners were appointed, Messrs. Angus MacKay, Hugh Rose, A. Blair, R. Torrance, James Middlemiss, and W. Millican, in order of rotation, and Mr. J. K. Smith by selection, as he had been previously nominated as a fit and proper person for the Moderatorship of the Assembly, Ministers; and Messrs. S. Hodgskin, C. Davidson, J. Cadwell, D. McMurchy, Colin McPhail, J. Mc. Lean, and Wm. McCormick, Ruling Elders, The Committee appointed to make arrangements for the suitable observance of Dr. Smellie's Jubilee gave in their report embracing the draft of an address to be read on the occasion. The report was received, the draft approved and the Committee continued. It was then agreed that the Presbytery hold an adjourned meeting in Melville Church, Fergus, on the 13th April, instead of the 30th inst. as formerly determined, at which the Jubilee services shall be conducted. The first report was read from the Presbytery's Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, stating among other things what had been done since its organization in May 1885, the number of auxiliary societies that had been formed in the bounds, and the amount collected, when it was agreed that the report be received, that satisfaction be expressed at the institution of the Society and the success that has followed its operations hitherto, and the hope that the blessing of God may rest upon it more and more, and that, in all our congregations, an active interest may be manifested in the welfare of the Society and in the work in which it is engaged. The Clerk was instructed to send a copy of this resolution to the Secretary. The Committee on Church Property in Puslinch gave in their report which was approved, and the Committee was continued to carry out the object of their appointment till a final settlement shall be reached. The Committee to confer with the two congregations at Belwood for the purpose of bringing them together, if practicable, reported, and were thanked for their diligence. Parties present from the 2nd Church were heard. After serious and careful deliberation it was agreed that the Committee be continued under its former instructions, with the addition of the names of Messrs Scott and Dow, and that these two with the Convener be requested to wait upon the Session and Managers of St. John's Church and ascertain if they were willing to allow the Second Church the use of their building on Sabbath afternoons for public worship, at such an hour as may be found suitable to all parties. The petition for permission to build was allowed to lie on the table in the meantime. Mr. Hamilton stated the steps that had been taken towards the election and ordination of elders at Elmira. A request was read from Mr. James Bryant, formerly a minister in these bounds, but now settled at Bradford, asking the Presbytery to apply to the General Assembly for its sanction to his labouring as an evangelist, it being understood that his pastoral relation to his congregation would be dissolved, but his name allowed to remain on the Presbytery roll. It was concluded that the Presbytery of Barrie was the proper one to make the application, as Mr. Bryant resides in its bounds, and in the event of their doing so commissioners from this Presbytery would as individuals cordially concur in it. The Clerk was authorized to procure the services of Mr. Campbell for the Second Church, Garafraxa, and connected station, during the summer. In reply to a card from the Secretary of the H. M. Committee the Clerk was instructed to report that there were no mission fields in these bounds left without the stated supply of ordinances during the two last winters. An adjourned meeting was appointed to be held in Knox Church, Galt, on Tuesday, the 4th of May, at 3 o'clock p.m. The next regular meeting was appointed to be held in Chalmers' Church, Guelph, on the third Tuesday of May, at 10 o'clock forenoon. The roll having been called and marked the proceedings were closed with the benediction.

TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

AGENTS WANTED.

THE FRANCHISE ACT.

The Qualifications of Voters—The Process of Registration Explained.

The time having arrived for the preparation of the voters' lists under the new Dominion Franchise Act, an appeal is made to the Liberals of Wellington to have their names enrolled as voters without delay. To assist in so doing a short summary of the qualification of voters and of the process for securing registration s given.

QUALIFICATION.

To entitle a person to be put on the list he must be—

(1) 21 years of age.

(2) A British subject by birth or naturalization.

(3) Owner of real property of value
In a city, $300.
In a town, $200.
In a county, $150.

(4) Or tenant of real property under ease at a rental of
$2 per month.
$6 per quarter.
$12 per half year.
$20 per year.

Provided that the tenant has been in possession for one year before 1st January 1886, and shall have paid one year's rent before final revision.

If the rent is yearly it will be sufficient if $20 of last year's rent shall have been paid before final revision.

Change of tenancy without intermission will not destroy the vote if aggregate of tenancies would give vote.

The assessor should be instructed state in the assessment roll the rent payable by each person assessed as tenant. If, however, this is not done, each tenant is prima facie entitled to be registered as a voter if the property is assessed at the following values:—

In cities at $300.
In towns at $200.
In counties at $150.

In counties outside of villages the rent may be payable either in money or in money's worth.

(5) Or a bona fide occupant for one year before 1st January, 1886, and enjoying the revenues and profits for his own or his wife's use of real property of the following values:

In cities, $300.
In towns, $200.
In counties, $150.

The occupancy may be under license of occupation from the crown or from any person or corporation.

(6) Or by income without any other qualification.

A person may be registered as an income voter, if he derives an income from his earnings, trade or profession, or from some investment in Canada of $300 a year, for one year before 1st January, 1886.

In counties the earnings may be either in money or money's worth.

(7) Sons of owners of real property are qualified—

(a) Where the father is living and a son or sons living with him continuously for one year before 1st January, 1886, and the property is sufficient in value according to the above figures, if divided between them to give them all votes. If not sufficient to qualify all the sons and the father, then the father and only so many sons as the property will qualify can be enrolled, and in such case the eldest son will be preferred, and thep the next elder, and so on.

(b) When the father is dead, and would, if living, be qualified, residence with the mother will suffice, and as many sons as the property will qualify may be registered, with preference to the eldest and elder sons, as in the last case.

Occasional absence from home of a son—not more than six months in the year—will not disqualify, and all time spent at school or college in Canada will be counted as if spent at home.

Son of an owner includes grandson, step-son and son-in-law, and all these may be registered as voters on the property if of sufficient value. The provision as to sons of owners applies to the counties as well as towns and cities in cases other than those of farmers' sons.

(8) Farmers' sons—The same provisions substantially apply to farmers' sons, as stated in the last paragraph in respect of sons of owners in cities and towns.

A farm is to be not less than 20 acres of land.

(9) Fishermen and owners of real property and boats, nets, fishing gear and tackle of aggregate value of $150.

Income voters register where they reside at time of registration—all others where property is situate. If in more than one polling division in the same electoral district the voter may register in either.

All names entered in the last revised voters' lists under the old law, will be entered in the new lists by the revising barrister.

Every person not on the assessment roll desiring to have his name on the list must at once send to the revising barrister an application in writing to be put on the list, giving his name, residence and the property or other qualification in respect of which he applies to be put on.

This application must be accompanied by a declaration which is to be made and signed before a commissioner for taking affidavits, a notary or justice of the peace, showing the grounds of the applicants claim to be put on the list.

Substantially the voters are those who can qualify as owners, tenants, occupants, income voters, sons of owners and farmers' sons.

See that the application shows as correctly and fully as possible the qualification.

Make the declaration before a commissioner, notary or justice of the peace. It is convenient to have it attached to the application on the same sheet.

In case of an absent person, let some one else having a knowledge of the qualification make the application and declaration.

When one cannot find a justice or other person before whom the declaration can be taken let the application alone be sent in, with an explanation of the reason, and it would be well in such case to have the truth of the facts in the application certified on the back of it by one, or if possible, two other persons.

The application and declaration must be sent at once to the Revising barrister of the district.

URGENCY OF THE MATTER.

No name not on the last voters' list or assessment roll will be placed on the preliminary voters' list, unless on application and declaration as above.

In case of any difficulty or doubt, application should be made at once for advice to some of the Liberal friends in the neighborhood.

Loss of the "Oregon."

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—The loss of the Cunard steamship, "Oregon," the quickest and probably newest of the Atlantic fleet, is a matter of general interest. Thirty to forty years ago an Atlantic voyage was a novelty which few enjoyed—having once reached Canada ninety-nine out of every hundred staid here—but times are changed and wonderful facilities are now afforded for visiting the old land, which are likely to be increased the coming summer and availed of to an extent never previously thought of. The Indian and Colonial Exhibition will induce many, even old people, to leave this locality who a few years ago did not hope to cross the Atlantic again, whilst the Canadian born will have desires created and commendable ambition met, that could not be looked for even a year or two ago, by the special facilities and low Atlantic fares of this coming summer. But just when arrangements were being discussed and party trips getting into shape, the public sentiment has been shocked by the loss of the ship referred to. It is generally felt that those who go down to the sea in ships incur more than ordinary risk, but I am inclined to think that in proportion to numbers there is less loss of life amongst travellers on the ocean than on the railways, though when a fatal accident does occur on the water it is on a more extensive scale.

In justice to all concerned—the ship owners, the officers in command, and the public—a most thorough investigation of all the circumstances attending the loss of the "Oregon" should be instituted, and conducted in such a manner as to secure public confidence. Justice to the other steamship lines demands it, interest in the success of the London Exhibition calls for it, and future protection of the travelling public is at stake. I make no reference to the rumors or suggestions made, but with thousands of other Canadians pray, that a prompt and thorough overhauling of all the circumstances attending the loss will be made.

I sat down merely to write, that quite a number of journals are under a misapprehension in saying that the Cunard line in all their lengthened experience never lost a vessel or a life, but was carried on by an interest in this subject. I may now state, that the "Columbia," one of this line, was lost on Sable Island many years ago, and quite a number of officers and sailors have lost their lives, whilst in the Cunard service, but I believe that no passenger was ever lost through the wreck or mismanagement of their ships, and their fast course is deserving of all praise. Yet, other lines may be as safe, and otherwise satisfactory to the voyager, though not as fast sailers.

Yours,
AN OBSERVER.

Geological Wonders.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

An animated discussion took place the other evening over Prof. Panton's wonderful geological discoveries in the North-West. A church in course of erection in Winnipeg was discovered to be one mass of petrifactions. Among the stones there and at the quarry were found traces of coral, cuttle fish and turtle. How did these occupants of a tropical climate get there? And how can the presence of petrified moss thirty feet high in coral, be explained? Will Prof. Panton (to whom, by the way, "The Scientific Society" is much indebted for assistance in organization and promised help) give his ideas the first opportunity, and oblige,

Yours truly,
A CURIOUS ONE.

THE SOCIAL GLASS.

One of the Best Amateur Performances Ever Given in the City.

Yesterday was St. Patrick's day. Although there was no public demonstration in commemoration thereof, yet many an Irishman and descendants of Irishmen, who cherish a warm spot in their hearts for the Emerald Isle, could have been seen wearing a sprig of the "dear little Shamrock" or a ribbon of green in honour of Ireland and her Patron Saint. In the evening, however, a dramatic entertainment, given by purely local talent, was held in the City Hall. The play given was T. Trask Woodward's well known drama, "The Social Glass," performed under the patronage of the League of the Cross by members of the Guelph Catholic Union in aid of the Sisters of St. Joseph. Before eight o'clock the City Hall was crowded and it was found necessary to open the old hall, which later on was also nearly filled. The object of the entertainment and the day on which it was held had no doubt a great deal to do with the large gathering, but nevertheless the manner in which the drama was put on the boards, merited a large audience, and it is no flattery to those who took part in the play to state that the acting as a whole was the best ever given in Guelph by amateurs, and was also the most popular and successful celebration of St. Patrick's Day ever held here.

Shortly after eight o'clock the curtain rose to strains of lively music, the scene presented being Thornley's sitting room. The arrangements were well made, and showed a side table containing different kinds of liquors, a card table and other appropriate furnishings. Mr. John Sheahan personified Charles Thornley, and represented the genial, warm-hearted and social disposition of that character in this act remarkably well indeed. "Eva," his newly wedded wife (Miss Polly Downey) took her part in this scene as in others with apparent appreciation by the large audience. She is possessed of a fine voice and knows how to use it with effect. She well played the part of the long suffering, affectionate and loving wife. Then enters Bob Brittle (Mr. J. P. Downey) a stage-struck would-be author and actor. Mr. Downey had one of the hardest characters to sustain and he did it with credit, often illiciting bursts of merry laughter. Nettie Nettleby, Miss Julia Doran, a young lady who always had a knack of having something to say to make folks happy, played the saucy piquant Nettie Nettleby to a dot. John A. Gallagher as Dr. Starr, Philip Purcell, as James Hollins and Thos. P. Heffernan, as Harold Farley maintained their parts with credit. Act two showed Farley's bar-room. The fittings of the bar-room are worthy of note, representing a bar-room to its minor details. Mr. E. J. O'Brien was the proprietor of the Rising Sun Hotel, and he made a tip-top one. He took the part of the genial and obliging landlord, as long as the cash was forthcoming, to perfection, and afterwards the hotel keeper, crazed with drink and on the verge of delirium tremens. Space does not permit of particularizing many of the note-worthy points during the various acts, yet a few of these cannot be passed over. The scene in the third act, where Eva intercedes with James Hollins on her husband's behalf was most affecting. Miss Downey played her part with considerable dramatic ability, and won for herself the good opinion of all present. She also took the character of Mrs. Farley, and she and Mr. O'Brien acted the murder and suicide part very well indeed. Mr. O'Brien performed the frantic, half-crazed Farley most admirably and surprised every body. John Sheahan in the character of the lost and degraded Charley Thornley, all in poverty and rags, was very well done; in fact, it was a little overdone. The piece was a difficult one and Mr. Sheahan has to be congratulated on the way he did it.

The saucy and vivacious "Nettie Nettleby, Miss Doran, had a leading part throughout, and she upheld it better perhaps than many professionals. As an evidence of this she was presented with two boquets during the evening

Mr. J. P. Downey was the comic character and from first to last carried it out with considerable ability. During the changing of the scenes Mr. J. A. Gallagher was called on for a song—a local composition. It met with such approval that he was rapturously encored.

Thos. Heffernan, in the character of the venerable temperance advocate, was well got up and performed his part well.

Mr. P. Purcell had to take the unpopular part of the villain James Hollis. He interpreted the character of the cool, cunning designing scoundrel in a manner which met with approbation, even although the sentiments expressed in his lines were revolting. A Mikado chorus, sung by several young ladies, under the direction of Miss Doran, opened the last scene "The Happy Home." It was very pretty, and was well rendered.

The Society's orchestra, numbering about a dozen, discoursed music during the evening.

The play on the whole was pleasing and well produced, and it was the opinion of many that they had often paid twice the amount to witness a professional entertainment of less merit.

Political parties in Canada and the United States admit that to "the victors belong the spoils"—that offices are properly given to the supporters of the party in power—and that the only point to be considered in the distribution of patronage is the fitness of the applicant for the position sought, and his fealty to the Government. Nobody is disposed to quarrel with a rule, which, in the main has worked well enough to warrant its continuance. It is better, all other things being equal, to confer favors ~~upon friends~~ than opponents, and politicians at least do not object to a system which has served a fair purpose for a long time. But it looks like a serious exception to, if not entirely subversive of, this wholesome rule when the exercise of e office dispensing power is made to inure to the advantage of one important section of a party, and to the disadvantage of another—then it becomes an instrument for the snubbing of an obedient, loyal, and yet despised minority of those supporting a Government—and when a portion of the tried adherents of the powers that be are purposly passed over and markedly ostracised because of their possession of a religious creed varying from that of that bulk of the political party to which they are attached.

An illustration of this has just occurred in Wellington in the appointment made to the post office at Arthur, rendered vacant by the death of Mrs. Small. In North Wellington, as in the Centre, for Dominion purposes, the Roman Catholics hold the balance of power. If undivided to any great extent, they determine the result of a contest, and for some time have carried both constituencies in the Conservative interests. At the last general election, it is true, Mr. Josias Burr Plumb, coming into the fight at the last hour, was defeated. A defection in the Conservative ranks was fatal to his prospects of success, and a Reform resident of the constituency was elected by a narrow majority—so narrow that hopes were entertained that he would be counted out. But the old leaders of the Catholic Conservative contingent were as true as of yore, battled hard to secure to the Tory candidate a victory, and spared neither time nor exertions in helping him in his struggle for a seat in the Commons. They failed, simply because numerous Conservatives, disgusted at the incorporation of the Township of Wallace, from Perth, with North Wellington for the most obvious gerrymandering purposes, recorded their ballots on the Reform side, or entirely abstained from voting. When the vacancy at Arthur occurred two respectable Catholic Conservatives—men who, for years, had borne the brunt of the fight in behalf of Conservative principles in North Wellington—ventured to ask for the position. Not a single Catholic in the Riding, if we except Mr McManus, Returning Officer at last election, had ever received recognition from the Tory authorities at Ottawa. They felt that now when they had two qualified candidates for the office—one, especially well qualified—their turn had come. They asked, through the leading men of their contingent of the party, through others fully able to speak out confidently as to the peculiar fitness of the more prominent of the two, and by a reference to the fact that the Catholic vote had given the Riding, again and again, to the Conservative side, that justice shall at last be done. But it was a case of begging for bread and receiving a stone. Senator Plumb wielded the patronage, and disliked a Catholic. It couldn't be; it shouldn't be; and it wasn't. Mr. Calvin Green, a decent man in his way, took the prize, and the old time hewers of party wood, and drawers of party water, were told to bide their time, to "hope on, hope ever," and grin satisfaction at the shadow of a promise, while the substantial reality was thrown into the lap of Senator Plumb's lucky nominee. 'Tis none of our funeral, probably, but locking at these facts we have little wonder that the Irish Canadian, reviewing them in its last week's issue, said: "How can that (Conservative) party have the conscience to come again before their Catholic supporters, whom, through their representatives of the Plumb stripe, they have treated so shabbily and unjustly, and ask them to aid once more in carrying the Conservative standard to victory? Doubtless the Conservative party will venture that far at the next electoral struggle, but as they have deserved nothing at the hands of our compatriots, so shall they receive nothing, except it be their opposition at the polls."

MR. DALTON MCCARTHY, M. P., explained his railway bill to the Toronto Board of Trade on Monday. Its object is to secure the indiscriminate rate of freightage, and the appointment of three commissioners to arbitrate in all railway matters. A resolution was passed expressing general approval of the purport and intention of the bill, and instructing the Council of the Board to petition Parliament in favour of its passage. Canada has 10,000 miles of railroad. The amount of freight carried by the different lines in this country during the past year was 13,000,000 tons.

THE largest convention of East Huron Reformers which ever took place was held at Brussels on Monday, when Dr. Macdonald was chosen as the Liberal standard bearer for the next Dominion election.

THE Winnipeg Free Press says:—"It is reported that French capitalists are ready, on sufficient evidence of the practicability of the route, to furnish all necessary capital for the construction of the Hudson's Bay Railway. It is to be hoped that the report is true."

THE steamship "Oregon" was one of the most magnificent boats on the Atlantic and on account of her speed was known as the greyhound of the ocean. It is a great pity that she has lost, but there is ample cause to rejoice that not one of the eight hundred and forty-five passengers found a watery grave.

THE London Advertiser gives currency to the report that the Hon. Senator Allan has been promised the Governorship of Ontario. Mr. Allan's place in the Senate will be taken by Hon. Mr. Carling, who will still continue to hold a seat in the Cabinet. This arrangement may not come into effect for some time, however.

NOVA SCOTIA fishermen are turning their eyes British Columbia-wards where there are fisheries excelling in wealth those of the Atlantic coast. An exodus to the Pacific coast is among the probabilities of the future. The Government, so the Montreal Gazette says, has promised to aid any fishermen who desire to take up their residence on the other side of the continent.

THE gradual recovery of Mr. Gillesby, Collector of Customs at Dundas, will be a source of regret to twenty-four loyal Conservatives in that town who concluded that he might die and with indecent haste sent in their applications for his position. We do not know Mr. Gillesby, but all the same we hope he may live long to discharge the duties of his office, if it only be that he may defeat the wishes of the clamorers who are so eagerly waiting to fill his shoes.

MR. GLADSTONE has more scruples about dumping the pauper population of Great Britain on the colonies than has Canada's High Commissioner, Sir Charles Tupper, who recently attended a meeting held in London which favoured this course. In the Imperial Parliament on Monday Mr. Gladstone stated that the Government had decided to decline to appoint a special commission to inquire into the advisability of transferring the surplus population of Great Britain to the colonies.

THE young Reformers of Quebec Province are bestirring themselves with a due sense of the responsibility which rests upon them now that so many young men enjoy the franchise. They are to hold a great convention in Montreal this spring sometime with a view of bringing representatives together from all parts of the Dominion. We have no doubt the affair will be a huge success, as it will possess a deep interest for Reformers all over Canada, and the central situation of Montreal will ensure a good representation from all the older Provinces and likely some delegates from Manitoba and the Northwest.

Well Done Norfolk!

A peculiar announcement was made from the pulpit of Dublin Street Methodist Church a few Sundays ago. It caused many to shake their heads. It was considered almost audacious. "A cash collection of $3,000 will be asked for in two weeks from to-day!" Well everybody knows the result, over $500 in excess of the amount asked for was contributed. And now, Norfolk Street Church has just achieved a similar result. Think of it! "Hard times" is the general cry, and yet two only moderately wealthy churches are enabled to contribute within the course of a month over $7,000 in solid ca wipe out certain liabilities.

Now, what does this show. 1st—That practical Christianity is not at all a thing of the past. 2nd—That "where there's a will there's a way," and that the most difficult tasks may be accomplished by clear heads, warm hearts and strong hands. 3rd—That churches as well as individuals are becoming more and more alive to the beauties of getting and keeping out of debt. The principle of "Cash down," "pay as you go," is growing. People believe in it. They daily see its benefits.

Annual Stock Taking Sale

FOR 12 DAYS ONLY.

Having completed our annual stock-taking, we commenced on the 15th inst. a Clearing out Sale of last Season's Goods at nominal prices.

We do not believe in the old exploded dodge of making our customers believe that we are selling goods below cost price, or that we are giving goods away for nothing. WE CONDUCT OUR BUSINESS TO MAKE MONEY; our THEORY AND PRACTICE are that small profits yield large sales, and give us contented customers.

Experienced buyers are not slow in finding out the best place to purchase, and no amount of windy advertisements and newspaper puffing, will induce them to purchase unless the goods are of sterling quality, fashionable and cheap.

We solicit this class of buyers. Call and see what we mean by a clearing sale. To continue twelve days—from the 15 th to the 27th.

CHAPTER XVII.

THE MYSTERY EXPLAINED.

Going through the village, they met several people they knew, and Percival felt Alice's hand tremble on his arm and was conscious of a half movement to withdraw it. But he covered it with his own, saying—

"Courage, Alice, they will soon know."

When they reached The Thwaite Alice left him a little abruptly, saying—

"I expect you will find papa in the library. I am going to my room, and shall be there if you want me."

Percival did not give himself time to think. He went straight on and knocked at the study door, hoping fervently that Mr. Lafone would be there and that this ordeal would not be postponed.

He was within, and Percival entered and disclosed his errand.

They had rather a long talk, but fortunately it did not occur to Mr. Lafone to ask many questions which Percival found any difficulty in answering. He did recall to his son-in-law's memory that on a previous occasion he had suggested that Alice was the more suitable wife for him, and he added some rather severe remarks on the advisability of men knowing their own minds before they went in search of wives. Percival heard him in silence and as soon as possible made his escape.

It appeared that he was expected to spend the rest of the day at The Thwaite, so he stayed, and only at nightfall turned his steps homewards.

The night wind blew fresh and cool, and he took off his hat and let it blow into his face and ruffle his hair. He wanted very much to be alone. He could as yet hardly realize his position. How was it possible that he had left home in the morning faithful to Helen, and returned in the evening engaged to Alice? It could not be possible; he had to recall one or two very striking proofs of the truth before he could believe it. That was the meaning of it all; of Alice's illness and her frequent fits of irritation with himself. When he thought over everything he felt his head swim. He felt neither glad nor elated at the thought that Alice Lafone, who had refused men of far higher social position than himself, should finally come and offer herself to him. For in reality it came to that. If she had not asked him to marry her she had made it impossible for him to do otherwise than ask her to marry him. He could have done nothing else, he told himself. She had thrown herself upon his mercy; he was in honour bound to respect her appeal, since she was free to do so. He did not expect any pleasure from his marriage; but he had ceased to look upon pleasure as an ingredient in his life. He would at any rate be doing a man's work in protecting a woman, standing between her and slanderous tongues, and hiding her weakness with his strength. His thoughts went back to his interview with Alice, and he caught himself instituting a comparison between her conduct and what he imagined Helen would have done had fate ordained that she should love him without her love being returned. He would cure himself of that, he resolved; no woman would bear comparison with Helen, Alice perhaps least of all. It was not fair to compare anyone with her, and he was determined that come what might he would be just to Alice. She had been placed in a very difficult position, and she had taken her own way out of it. If he would have chosen, or if he had any reason for supposing that a certain woman he had once known would have chosen another way, that he told himself argued nothing in their favour or Alice's disfavour. It was merely a matter of training and character; because Alice's character contained a preponderance of one quality, and his, or that of another hypothetical person, of another, was no reason for feeling that they were better than Alice. So he argued as he swung along the road to Brantwood, his hat in his hand and his face uplifted to the caress of the soft night air. Apparently he succeeded in persuading himself of what he wished, for his face was brighter when he reached home than it had been when he set out.

The wedding took place at the end of the summer, as soon as Alice had sufficiently regained her former appearance. Helen's wedding had been quiet, Alice's was gay. She wore a dress that was a marvel of beauty and costliness, and looked wonderfully lovely. Percival was grave and very quiet, but the perfection of attentive politeness. They went abroad for their honeymoon, and were not to come home for a few months.

Dominion Rifle Association.

OTTAWA, March 17.—The annual meeting of the Dominion Rifle Association opened at noon to-day, Lieut.-Col. Kirkpatrick presiding, and a large number of members being in attendance. His Excellency the Governor-General was present, and in delivering his opening speech referred to the fact that while the value of the prizes had increased from $4,000 in 1879 to $6,000 in 1885, the number of competitors had only increased from 250 to 300. He regretted that the number of annual subscribers had fallen to 101, and called attention to the fact that the liberal support of the Government warranted more encouragment. His Excellency announced his intention of continuing his annual donation of $500.

Major-Gen. Middleton said for the work they had to perform he preferred the Canadian volunteers to any regular troops in the world.

The officers for last year were nearly all re-elected. A resolution was passed urging upon the Government that a better rifle than the Snider be provided. A letter from the British Columbia Association stated that the Province wished to send a team to Ottawa next fall.

At the Council meeting this afternoon, Monday, August 30, was fixed upon as the date for the commencement of the annual matches. The committee were empowered to prepare a prize list not exceeding $6,000 in cash. The Saskatchewan Rifle Association was affiliated as a Provincial Association.

The Executive Committee met after the Council adjourned, and besides preparing a programme for next matches agreed to the abolition of sighting shots, the introduction of a 200 yards standing match into the grand aggregate, and the abolition of the rule restricting competitors from going to Wimbledon more than twice in five years.

In no part of the southern hemisphere is population increasing so rapidly as in Sydney. In 1870 the population of the city and its suburbs was about 140,000, at the close of 1885 it was estimated at 290,000, having more than doubled in fifteen years.

RAISE THE STANDARD HIGH.

The Dry Goods Trade is never elevated by one firm trying to hurt the reputation of another, neither will it raise the firm who tries it in the estimation of the public.

We do not propose to lower the standard of a

Respectable and Highly Thought of Business by any such Nonsense,

But on the other hand if there is anything we can do that will tend to elevate the Dry Goods Trade and those connected with us it will be done.

If other merchants in the city have found their trade in advance of last year (and with less salesmen required), we are glad to hear of it, and it speaks well for Guelph and we only hope they will still continue to prosper. As for us

WE ARE SATISFIED.

DOMININON PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, March 17.

Several Private Bills received their first reading, and questions were answered relating to the Northwest and other subjects. In amendment to Mr. Amyot's motion for some papers in relation to the Riel case, Sir H. Langevin moved to proceed with the debate on the motion of censure of the Government for hanging Riel. Mr. Edgar moved to add words to the original motion declaring that it was the duty of the Government to bring down the papers showing the state of the Northwest before, during, and after the Rebellion. This was ruled out of order, and a lively debate took place on Sir H. Langevin's motion, in which Mr. Blake led, arguing strongly against forcing on the decision while the evidence was refused. Messrs. White (Cardwell), Cameron (Huron), Desjardines and Amyot also took part in the debate, when Sir H. Langevin's motion was carried by 116 to 75, ten Bleus voting with the Opposition. The debate on the Riel case was resumed by Sir A. Caron, and the House adjourned at six o'clock in honor of St. Patrick's Day.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

TORONTO, March 16th.

Mr. Mowat's omnibus bill was considered and passed.

The transfer of the Provincial printing from the Grip company to Warwick & Sons was ratified by a vote of the House, without opposition.

The Minister of Education and the Leader of the Opposition had their usual altercation with regard to mechanics' institutes. The order passed and the Speaker left the chair.

A special committee heard the views of members of sportsmen's delegations from Toronto, Hamilton, London, Barrie and other places on proposed amendments to to the game laws. It was decided to abolish spring shooting.

Mr. Graham moved that the game law be not amended this season.

A division resulted in a tie, and the bill goes to the Committee again.

In the evening the House spent most of its time in Committee of the Whole, when several bills were advanced a stage.

An adjournment was made about 10 o'clock.

Toronto, March 27.

Several bills received a third reading and passed, among them that respecting the Agricultural College. Hon. Mr. Pardee explained an increase in the appropriation for colonization roads from $102,000 last year to $129,000.

At the evening session the House went into concurrence on the report of the Committee on estimates and passed a large number.

The House adjourned at 10.40.

His 62nd Birthday.

The Galt Weekly Gazette, Sacramento, California, has the following in reference to Mr. John McFarlane, brother of Mr. Duncan McFarlane, Puslinch. The extract will explain itself:—

John McFarlane was the recipient of a very well managed surprise party at his comfortable home on Thursday afternoon last. The occasion was the sixty-second anniversary of the gentleman's birthday, and his friends had determined that he should not forget it. A merry assemblage of Mac's. intimate friends—ladies predominating—took possession of the house, and after details were completed, Mr. McFarlane was informed that his presence was required in the front parlor. His appearance was hailed with delight by a room full of ladies and enough gentlemen to witness what followed. On behalf of the friends assembled, and a few who were unavoidably absent, Mr. J. J. Campbell presented a very beautiful and elaborately worked fire-screen to Mr. McFarlane, asking him to accept it as a slight token of the esteem in which he is held by them. In accepting the gift the gentleman responded in fitting terms. Then followed the presentation of a handsome buggy robe by Dr. Harvey, on behalf of Mrs. Dr. Harvey, who was unavoidably absent in San Francisco. The robe was beautiful, to say the least, and the neat monogram, "J. McF.," tastily worked thereon added much to its beauty. Mr. McFarlane received this gift gracefully, remarking that it was nice enough for a table cover, and too good for the purpose intended. A book mark was received from Miss Genevieve Harvey, with the motto, "Anniversary Birthday Greeting, 1886," printed thereon by the young lady, and also a placque from the same source bearing the following: "Wishing you a happy Birthday and Many Returns." As the ladies had the entire management of this pleasant affair, the next order of business was an adjournment to the dining room, where a splendid dinner was served. Mr. McFarlane graced the head of the table with Dr. Harvey opposite. The ladies and two or three gentlemen took positions at either side, and a very pleasant hour was spent around the well laden table.

The affair was a complete surprise to Mac., as on that morning he went to Sacramento, intending to go to San Francisco, and it was only through strategy that he was persuaded to return home at noon when leaving on the morning train.

Mr. McFarlane is a gentleman noted for his generosity. In every public enterprise calculated to benefit the people of Galt he takes an active part. While he extends a helping hand to deserving charities, he does not care to have such acts paraded before the public. In short, Mr. McFarlane belongs to the people of Galt; his time is greatly devoted in assisting worthy objects, and he is loved, honored, and respected by all.

THE CENTURY.—Two suggestive articles appear in the April Century are "Strikes, Boycotts and Arbitrations," by George Gunton; "Lowell, and an editorial on The Bartholdi Memorial,—"Who shall make the Monument?" "What kind of a Structure?" "The Question of Style," etc. The issue of the new life of Longfellow adds timeliness to a paper by Mrs. James T. Fields, on "Glimpses of Longfellow in Social Life," which is to appear in the same number, accompanying a new portrait of the poet, engraved from an ambrotype taken in 1848.

HARPER'S.—Harper's Magazine for April is as novel and fresh as the spring-time. Three new and important serial stories are begun. One of these, "Their Pilgrimage," which opens the number, is a story of American life and character as seen at our summer resorts, written by Charles Dudley Warner, and brilliantly illustrated by Charles S. Reinhart. The first part is in Mr. Warner's best style, and has for its background Fortress Monroe, Cape May and Atlantic City. "Springhaven" is the title of a new novel by R. D. Blackmore. It is a picture of rural English life in the days of Admiral Nelson, and the stirring events of those days are certain, in Blackmore's narrative, to develop interesting characters and to reawaken in the author's countrymen the old English spirit manifested at Trafalgar. Mr. Blackmore's novel is illustrated by Frederick Barnard and Alfred Parsons. One of Mr. Parson's drawings, "The fair Vale of Springhaven," is the frontispiece to the number. There is also the beginning of a new novel by Mrs. Craik, the author of "John Halifax, Gentleman." It is entitled "King Arthur, Not a Love Story." Its interest is based upon maternal instinct, and it will reach every mother's heart in America and England. This novel will be published in three parts. The first part occupies twenty-seven pages of the Magazine. The other serials are continued, and the number in all the other departments is up to the usual standard of excellence and beautifully illustrated.

Labour Notes.

All the men in Andrew Irwin's cooper shop at Blenheim went out on strike on Tuesday against a reduction of one cent a barrel.

The difficulty between the Oshawa Malleable Iron Company and their moulders has been amicably settled and the strike is ended.

The Cobourg carter strike has been settled by the farmers who were engaged to complete the contract of the shipment of grain from McDonald & Co's store house, complying with the two by-laws and procuring a carters' license.

Vice-President Potter, of the Burlington and Missouri railway was telegraphed to by the striking Knights that the Knights on his road would strike if they did not stop doing business with the Missouri Pacific. Mr. Potter's reply was "strike."

Eight hundred track builders on the new Chicago, Burlington and Northern railway have struck. They compelled the engineers and firemen of the construction trains to leave their cabs. The company is paying off the strikers, and they are drinking heavily and are all armed with clubs.

The Missouri Pacific Railway Company has filed a petition in suit against 104 members of the Knights of Labor organization, alleging that the men named, with about 100 more, had conspired together and were acting in concert to prevent the running of trains and the proper working of the railway shops and that by their interference, trespassing, etc., the company had been damaged in the sum of $100,000. An injunction was granted against the men and writs are being served by the sheriff.

Jay Gould says the strike on the Missouri Pacific and other railroads was a complete surprise because: First, they had acceded to all demands which had been made upon them by the employees, and were supposed to be working in harmony with them; second, the present strike was made upon an issue with which they had nothing to do, and which they could not possibly arbitrate or control. "The present strike," said Mr. Gould, "originated in the discharge of an employee named Hall on the Texas Pacific, which road is in the hands of the United States court. We have no more right to attempt to control the workings of that system than the workingmen themselves, and would be as completely incompetent to do so as any other outsider.

THE COMING CONCERT.—The concert by the Royal Templars of Temperance to be held in Glick's hall, on Tuesday evening the 23rd inst., promises to be the entertainment of the season. The arrangement of a first class programme is well under way, and a most interesting and enjoyable time may be looked forward to, and "a good house," as the Templars are now a popular and influential body in the place.

WINTER DISAPPEARING.—During the past few days the sun's heat has been playing havoc with the sleighing on our principal streets. Until the suburbs are reached the sleighing is comparatively good, but then comes the "tug of war" for faithful, and in some instances apparently unfaithful teams, in attempting to draw their cord of green wood over the bare gravel to which the runners stick with an affectionate tenacity. When two or three loads are together the doubling of strength by the tandum method is adopted, but in other cases when the "cord" refuses to move, the application of "cord" to the cuticular muscles of the unfortunate stud is resorted to.

A YOUNG TOWN.—Arrangements for the erection of several nice dwellings on the lots purchased off the Swan estate on the Guelph road last year, are already under way. The enlargement of the town in this direction, being the main highway between this place and the sunny little city to the north of us (Guelph) will prove a great acquisition.

LITTLE GEMS.—The disappearance of the winter's snow is revealing in several of our flower gardens many a beautifully tinted pansy, having as much bloom and dignity as though the frost and snow had been compelled by some law of nature to subserve the interests of the little gems.

VISITING THE GREAT CITY.—Mr. John Cunningham is at present spending a few weeks visiting friends in New York, where no doubt his eyes will be feasted taking in the many wonderful sights of that great metropolis.

GOING AND RETURNING.—Miss Lizzie Braid, second daughter of Mr. John Braid (merchant), of the Waterloo House, has gone to take an important situation as milliner, in a leading establishment in Aurora. Miss McPherson, the popular milliner in the dry goods establishment of Mr. J. Cunningham, last fall, has returned to conduct the millinery in the same establishment the present season.

COBER & BECHTEL'S CARRIAGE WORKS.—This establishment is now in full blast for the summer trade. Orders are coming in so quickly that hands are working over-time to fill them. The work of this establishment is acquiring a world-wide fame, and we believe justly so as none but the most skilled workmen are employed to conduct the work in each department. Not only has the work of the establishment reached various parts of Ontario, Quebec, the Maritime Provinces, and the Northwest, but British Columbia and even remote Australia have received a portion of it. As the proprietors are men of the strictest integrity and excellent business capacity it is not improbable that their works here will attain considerable magnitude.

HANDSOME.—A grand display of wall papers may be seen at Brewster's stationery store on Queen street.

Cyclopedia of Universal History.

We have had the privilege of examining Dr. John Ridpath's Cyclopedia of Universal History, which is being brought to the attention of some of our leading citizens by Mr. E. P. Balch, of the Publishing House of Balch Brothers, 10½ Adelaide street East, Toronto.

This is a valuable and comprehensive historical work, presenting in a condensed but graphic style an account of the principal events in the history of human race, from the beginning of civilization to the present time, taken from the most authentic sources. The work is complete in three imperial octavo volumes, making 1,346 double column pages. Dr. Ridpath, the author, is Professor of History in Depauw University, Indiana. He is the author of a history of the United States, which has had a very wide circulation. His natural gifts, as well as his training and special historical studies, eminently qualify him for writing a history of this kind. Accordingly, we find that the work presents evidence of careful study of the best historical authorities, a power of grasping and grouping events, an impartial presentation of facts, a keen appreciation of character, and a vigorous and lucid style which arrests and retains the attention of the reader.

Many of the brief biographical sketches of eminent men and women are vivid and picturesque pen portraits, concise and yet eloquent and attractive; and all through the work the succession of events described moves on in a way that produces a sense of animated action. Though concise, in comparison with full and elaborate histories of particular countries, yet the student who masters the contents of these three splendid volumes will be well furnished with historical knowledge. Vol. I. covers Ancient History; Vol. II. is occupied with Mediæval Times Vol. III, with Modern History.

The work is beautifully printed on fine paper, and handsomely bound in several styles. It is profusely illustrated with maps, charts, sketches, portraits and diagrams, which add greatly to its attractiveness. There are over 1,200 engravings. The ancient and modern maps are well executed and valuable; and the third volume is specially rich in striking portraits of the most prominent personages in history. This is an interesting feature of the work. The chronological charts carefully prepared by Dr. Ridpath will be found a valuable aid to the student. There are also special historic maps, showing boundaries at former times, and thus enabling the careful student to more fully understand the import of the historic narrative. There is a full index and table of contents, which make it very convenient for reference. The author declares that his motive in preparing this elaborate work was "a desire to bring within the reach of the average reader a concise and accurate summary of the principal events in the career of the human race." The object has been successfully achieved in this "CYCLOPEDIA OF UNIVERSAL HISTORY."

FAMOUS RECORD.

In our Spring Announcement for Plows would call attention to the following copied from the Fergus Advocate:—

Honors won by Tolton's No. 7 Jointer Plow.

Copied from The Advocate, Fergus, December 16, 1885:

This plow made a famous record at the late Eramosa Plowing Match, held on the 23rd October, in that township where some thirty-four plowmen in all were in keen competition, using the best make of plows in their various classes manufactured at the present day, and as we think it specially interesting to the farming community to know what progress is being made in this department of agriculture, we give the following record for the above mentioned plow which took the 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes in the first-class; 1st, 2nd and 3rd in the second class, and all the prizes in the fourth-class. And also came out ahead plowing stubble in third-class, (boys), which prizes summed up in all to the value of $130.50, for the Tolton plow, while the five other make of plows in competing with it, only took prizes in all to the value of $47.75. This looks well on the side of the Tolton plow and would indicate (for those enterprising manufacturers, Tolton Bros., Guelph), a large demand for their plows in future, and in conclusion must say that Garafraxa had the honor of sending a man (Mr. George Smith, Belwood Road), with one of the above famed plows to the Eramosa match, who took Messrs. Tolton Bros' No. 7 plow, which they so liberally gave as a first prize in Mr. Smith's class. Good for Garafraxa.

Local News.

MAPLE sugar and syrup are now being talked about.

MOTHER Earth is gradually losing her winter mantle.

MR. JOSEPH LOWREY, of the C. P. R., arrived in the city last night on a brief visit to his wife and family.

THE Guelph friends of Mr. A. McBean are to entertain him at a complimentary supper at George Williams' on Monday evening.

PEOPLE who advertise only once in three months forget that most folks cannot remember anything longer than about seven days.

ST. GEORGE'S SOCIETY adjourned annual meeting to night in the Moulders' hall, Upper Wyndham street. All Englishmen, Welshmen and their descendents cordially invited to be present.

A farmer once called his cow "Zephyr,"
She seemed such an amiable hephyr,
When the farmer near,
She kicked off his ear,
And now the old farmer's much dephyr.

THEY all do it. It's a way they have! Sam Jones says: A man said to me the other night. "Jones, I wouldn't have missed your sermon for $10," and yet when the plate was passed around that man put in a copper cent.

IT is now style to use the term "canvas" in place of "picture." For instance, it is said that the first night of the Morgan sale "eight canvasses were sold." In speaking of an artist, it will be said by way of commendation, "he turns out a very fine canvas."

THE Sisters of St. Joseph beg to extend their best thanks to the ladies and gentlemen who took part in the drama "Among the Breakers" for the sum of $63.62, realized for them by that entertainment, and which, by an oversight, they did not acknowledge before.

MRS. CRAIK, the author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," claims that it is possible for a great novel to be written and yet not be a love story. Her readers will have an opportunity to judge of her own success in that line in the novel, "King Arthur, not a Love Story," which appears in the April HARPER'S. She bases the interest of her novel on maternal love.

T. PATTISON, of Hamilton's confectionery waggon, upset at the corner of Huskisson and Burrey streets last evening. The driver was precipitated on the roadway with the box of the waggon, but escaped injury. Biscuit boxes were strewn about in profusion. The horses did not attempt to run away, and a carriage maker soon righted all the damage done.

POLICE COURT.—Charles Ripley and Samuel Webb were up this morning on a charge of throwing snow balls at Rossanna Brookneyer. Complainant and her mother testified that the boys threw balls at her and struck her on the head about half-past twelve o'clock on Monday. Mr. Field, who appeared for the defence, called witnesses to prove that at that hour the boys were in Mr. Carter's shop, and both defendants swore strictly they never saw complainant on Monday. The charge was dismissed. Jerry Connors was up on a charge of being drunk. He was discharged on promising to behave himself.

ACCIDENT THROUGH SNOW BALLING.—The Milton Champion says:—On Tuesday last as Mr. John Strong was drawing away the earth dug from the cellar of Messrs. McKay's new building, and was in the act of getting into his waggon, some young rascal threw a snowball which struck one of his horses and the team started suddenly, throwing Mr. Small into the cellar. He did not appear to be very much hurt at first and continued his work for some time, but finally had to go home, where he still remains unable to work and almost unable to move. It is feared that he is injured internally.

WATERLOO Chronicle:—The newspaper press exists to subserve three purposes. The first is to give a readable summary of news, local, general and political. The second is to act as a teacher, the third to act as a public censor. The last is just as important as either of the others, but more trying to the man who owns the paper. Many people are prone to forget the great value of even a local paper in this respect, if fearlessly conducted. They think it ought to reflect their personal views in every particular, otherwise they won't take it, and think themselves doing simple justice in refusing it their custom.

MR. ARCH. SHERRETT, formerly of Speedside, now of St. Helena, Montana, left for that place to-day after a short visit to friends in Guelph.

A MEETING of the hotelkeepers was held last night to arrange for getting up a spring show. There were not enough present to warrant taking any action.

A Grand Concert will be given by the choir of the Norfolk street Methodist church on March 30th. Miss Clara Stevenson and Mr. Wally Harrington will take part. 1t

MR. THOS. PALLISTER brought a snow drop to this office to-day. This specimen is only one of many more which Mr. Pallister has in his garden. From this he augurs that spring is at hand.

THE Galt Caledonian Society are already arranging for their annual gathering which they intend holding sometime about the third week in June. $1,000 is to be given in prizes and the programme will be the most attractive yet given by the Society.

DISAPPEARANCE OF DECLARATIONS.—The first sitting of the court of revision for East Bruce under the Dominion Franchise Act of last session, was held in Walkerton on Thursday before Judge Kingsmill. On opening the court it was found that 382 declarations put in by the Conservatives had mysteriously disappeared from the judge's chamber. The court had to be adjourned in consequence. Of course the naughty Grits will be charged with the offence.

ESCAPE OF A PRISONER.—A sensation was created in Georgetown Thursday morning over the escape of Thomas Maw, who had been confined in the cells over night, and who was in charge of Constable Search, on his way to Milton for trial. Maw was accused of having stolen certain goods from Mr. J. E. Belisle, merchant tailor, of that place. The goods had been found on the 29th of last December in the old paper mill. He was brought before Magistrates Ruston and McKenzie Wednesday and committed for trial at Milton. While the constable was taking him from the cell Thursday morning he escaped and has not since been heard of.

FOR THE OLD COUNTRY.—Mr. Alfred Drew left Guelph yesterday for New York, having purchased a ticket hence to Liverpool some short time ago, and had expected to sail by the ill fated "Oregon" on the 20th inst. Mr. D. was brought up on a large farm in Gloucestershire, and came to this neighborhood a few years since with the intention of farming. Some three years ago he bought a farm about two miles from Guelph, but his experience has not been satisfactory, and he has let his land whilst he makes a summer's visit to his old country friends. We wish him a safe trip and quick return to this land of freedom, peace and happiness.

DR. D. J. KERGAN.—The general practitioner often fails to cope successfully with diseases which are chronic of their nature simply because his experience has always been confined to the treatment of acute troubles. Hence the necessity of calling upon physicians and surgeons who devote themselves entirely to the treatment of chronic, obscure and lingering complaints. In those cases, however, it is always advisable to call on the best, such for instance as Dr. J. D. Kergan and the staff of surgeons composing his International Medical Council, members of which are to be in Guelph at the Wellington Hotel, Saturday and Monday, March 20 and 22.

AFFLICTION.—The crop of Spring poetry this year is about up to the average. Jas. Gay, gun and locksmith, Market Square, who styles himself the poet laureate of Canada, is always entitled to a short space about this season of the year. Here is a poem of six lines on St. Patrick's Day, and it is presumed, should the words reach the ear of Tennyson, that laureate will have to look to his crown. Several critics say that the only difference between the poetry of Tennyson and Gay is in the polish:—

St. Patrick's day is gone and past
With hands and hearts all did agree
One thing more I feal happy to say
Very few was on the Spree,
No one caused any disaster, no room at all for the silver Plaster.

GAY.

CHRISTIAN FRATERNITY.—The following item, from the Brampton Banner illustrates our ideas as to the unity and fraternal relations which should exist between Christian denominations, and we have pleasure in congratulating the Brampton people that such a spirit is common among them:—"The "At Home" in the parlors of St. Paul's Methodist Church last night was a brilliant success. There was an assembly of about three hundred. The Y. P. A. of St. Paul's invited the Y. P. A.'s of the Main Street North Methodist church and the Presbyterian church to a friendly "At Home" in St. Paul's, and the result was a sociable and pleasant gathering. The ladies of St. Paul's provided refreshments, while the literary and musical part of the programme was supplied by the united association. A very enjoyable time was spent by all present. There was no charge for admission, no collection, and no fish-ponds or side-show of any kind to lure the guileless or unsuspecting. We hope that there will be more such occasions among the churches in town."

THE YARMOUTH Gazette says of Prof. Vallance's entertainment in the Town Hall: He rendered the entire programme with great satisfaction. In the tragic, humorous and pathetic he held his audience spell-bound for over two hours, and brought forth their rapturous applause. f19d1

A Good thing.

Dr. Adam Miller, Chicago, Ill., says: "It is one of the very few really valuable preparations now offered to the afflicted. In a practice of thirty-five years, I have found a few good things, and this is one of them."

The recent assistance rendered to the sufferers from famine in the islands off the west coast of Ireland has been the means of saving many lives.

THE CITY'S EXHIBIT.—To-day the exhibit to be sent by the City to the Colonial Exhibition was placed in the old City Hall for the inspection of citizens. It consists of a frame containing views of the city and a few private residences together with a short account in lettering of what Guelph is. The frame is fifteen feet high from base to top and eight feet wide outside the frame with a plate glass front measuring eight feet by five inside. This is divided off, at the sides, into six spaces ten by twelve inches, in which are contained photographs of public buildings and private residences. The space in the centre is devoted to the same purpose but the size is larger, being ten by thirty-one inches. These divisions are framed with walnut relieved with oak mouldings next to the glass. The half of the centre portion is reserved for the city. On the right side are views of the Bank of Commerce, residence of Mr. C. Raymond, residence of Mr. Thos. Gowdy, Dublin Street Methodist Church, the Church of Our Lady, and the Wellington Hotel. On the left side is shown Tovell's block, T. J. Day's residence, Ald. Hortop's residence, the High School, St. George's Church and the Central School. In the centre is a well executed bird's eye view of the City. City Hall, Agricultural College, Lower Wyndham street, the Postoffice, and also contains a vacant space for an advertisement for the builders of the wood work, Messrs. James & Co., and Mr. O'Brien, their carver. The frame is of solid walnut in the conventional style with richly carved caps and columns, and brackets on each side of the columns. On the top of each column sit beavers resting on a maple leaf branch. On the centre is a rich canopy, with coves relieved by butternut veneer, and on top of the canopy is the British coat of arms, carved to the smallest particular. Above the glass circle is a carved shield in relief, and a full sized head of a French habitant. The base of the frame is 16 inches deep, and mounted with duplications, veneered with butternut veneer. The work reflects credit on the firm of James & Co., and also on Mr. O'Brien. It might be mentioned that the coat of arms is the same that received so much praise from the Princess Louise at the Toronto Exhibition some years ago. If the woodwork is deserving of credit no less is the painting and lettering by Mr. F. Sturdy. This has to be seen to be appreciated. The description is written with burnished gold on shaded glass. The words Guelph and Canada are embossed in the glass and blocked up to imitate raised letters, and the whole shows taste and artistic skill. The lettering is as follows:—"City of Guelph, Wellington County, Ontario, Canada; a chief station at the junction of the Grand Trunk and Great Western railways. Population over 10,000. Distance from Toronto 50 miles, Niagara Falls 90 miles; noted for its limestone quarries and manufactories, consisting of sewing machines, organs, woolen goods, machinery and implements; known as the Smithfield of Canada—the market town for one of the best stock raising sections of the Dominion. The Ontario Agricultural College adjoins the city. Has a Collegiate Institute and magnificent Public Schools, which are all free. The photographs were taken by Mr. Doberiner.

A THUNDERSTORM passed over the city this afternoon. The lightning was vivid and the peals of thunder loud.

Guelph Cricket Club.

The annual meeting of Guelph Cricket Club was held last night at the Wellington Hotel, and was very well attended by the well wishers of this game of games. After the usual routine business the following officers were elected:—

President—Mr. Thos. Goldie.
Vice Presidents—Messrs. T. W. Saunders, Dr. Keating, B. R. McConkey, and Donald Guthrie, Q. C.
Patrons—Messrs. T. H. Finlay, G. Murton and E. Morris.

Board of Trade.

A meeting of the Board of Trade was held in the City Hall last evening. Present, Messrs. John McCrea, Loch, Keleher, Bollert, Davidson, McElderry, McLaren, Geo. Walker, Marshall, Wood, Little, Hatch, Ald. Hortop.

On motion of Mr. McCrea, duly seconded, Mr. C. Davidson was appointed to the chair, in the absence of the President, Mr. Jas. Goldie, who arrived later on.

The Secretary, Mr. Jones, stated that one of the objects of the meeting was to take into consideration the advertising of Wednesday as a special market day. It was the intention to mail over 10,000 copies of a circular, showing the advantages of the City to every farmer in the country. This could be done at a cost, including printing and postage, of about $150 or $200. Mr. Jones considered that from the advertisements which would be contained in the circular, the Board would have little expense in the matter.

Moved by Mr. McElderry, seconded by Mr. Bollert, that Messrs. McElderry, McLaren, Keleher, Walker, Bollert, Loch and Jones be a committee to arrange for the advertising of the special Wednesday market day provided it entails no expense on the Board. Carried.

A discussion then ensued as regarded unlicensed peddlers selling goods through the town and country, the outcome of which was a motion to the effect that the Council be requested to enforce the city by-law with regard to transient traders and pedlers, who sell from house to house.

Moved by Mr. Bollert, seconded by Ald. Hortop, that the Secretary be instructed to write to the G. T. R. railway authorities and ascertain whether the cheap excursion rates on Saturday from Elora and other neighboring points had been discontinued, and if so, the reason. Carried.

A talk then ensued about the proposed Guelph Junction railway, after which the meeting adjourned.

The Y. P. L. A. St. George's Church.

The members of the Y.P. L. A. enjoyed an intellectual treat of no ordinary character in the lecture given by Prof. Panton, F. G. S., in the large school room last evening.

The programme opened with an admirably rendered instrumental duet by Misses Holliday. Miss Foster followed in a solo "Nearer My God to Thee," given with her usual good taste.

The President then introduced Prof. Panton. The Professor is an admirable lecturer, having a great command of simple yet picturesque language, so that even the young children as well as the large attendance of adults seemed quite fascinated, as from the various specimens stones, fossils, and petrifactions, he had on a table before him, he illustrated the mysterious records of creation. His description of the formation of glaciers and the manner in which the huge boulders found everywhere were carried to where they are found in the glacial period was very striking. So also were his remarks on the essential differences between petrifactions and fossils and their respective origin. It is a great advantage for the new Scientific Association just being formed in Guelph to have so distinguished a geologist as Prof. Panton among its chief officers.

At the close the Ven. Archdeacon Dixon in a felicitous manner moved a vote of thanks to the Professor for giving them a lecture so admirable and instructive. The great poet spoke of one who found "Tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, sermons in stones, and good in everything. We had just heard a splendid "sermon in stones," and he must declare it was one of the most interesting he had ever heard from so hard a text.

Mr. Geo. Murton seconded the resolution, referring to the great instruction and profit to be derived from such an excellent lecture as had just been delivered.

The resolution was carried amid loud applause.

The Professor briefly replied, thanking those present for the vote of thanks just passed, and offering those present an opportunity to inspect the different stones, fossils, etc., at the close of the entertainment.

The programme was then continued. Mr. W. H. Jones sang "Flee as a bird; in his usual excellent manner, Miss Mabel Jones playing his accompaniments. Miss Maddock gave a solo "Resignation" (by Miss Lindsay) very sweetly. Miss Katie Reynolds followed in a piano solo, rendered in a very creditable manner.

The next meeting will take place on Thursday evening, April 1st, when the Ven. Archdeacon Dixon will give a lecture in the form of a historical study, entitled "The Life and Times of Pope Sextus V."

"PROF. VALLANCE AT LEANELLY."—This famous elocutionist made his second appearance before a large audience at the Atheneum Hall, His almost unrivalled powers as a reader and reciter are fully demonstrated by the telling rendering of his varied and interesting programme. To attempt a description would be futile. He must be heard to be appreciated. He more than delighted his audience. We trust we shall soon be favoured with another visit from him.—Leanelly Guardian. 19d1

NO LONGER EDITOR, BUT STILL A CONTRIBUTOR.—"Kosmos," a quarterly review issued by the Science Association of Victoria University, Cobourg, in the current number contains the following:—Mr. C. C. James, B.A., who, since its inception, has been Editor of "Kosmos," was, at the beginning of this year, appointed to the chair of chemistry in the Agricultural College, Guelph, which chair was vacated by the death of the late Dr. Hare. Those who know Mr. James's abilities are not surprised at this appointment; and while we congratulate him on his promotion, we likewise congratulate the Agricultural College on obtaining one so efficient to fill a chair so important. This adds another name to the already somewhat lengthy list of professors which Victoria University has given to the colleges of America. Though Mr. James is no longer upon our editorial staff, we shall, from time to time, be favored with articles from his graceful pen.

A SIMPLE CERTAIN WAY.—Up and down his store he strode with a sad and sorry face; on his mind there lay a load, for no buyer ever showed himself within the place. Then he found a simple way to sell off his large supplies, and thus to make his business pay. Now, if you question him, he'll say "I always advertise."

The Evening Mercury

FRIDAY EVE'G MARCH 19, 1886.

Mr. Laurier's Speech.

We question very much whether there was ever an abler or more eloquent speech made in Ottawa than that which was delivered by Mr. Laurier in the House of Commons on Tuesday night. Take it all in all it was a splendid effort. Those who heard it say that it was listened to by both sides of the House with the greatest attention, and that even the reporters at times forgot their work and became wholly absorbed by his eloquence. Whether as a defence of his loyalty and patriotism, and of those French members who viewed the Riel question as he did; whether as a powerful argument against the action of the Government in reference to this man's trial and execution, and its policy for years towards the halfbreeds, it was a splendid effort couched in the most fitting language and delivered with all the grace of a finished orator. Mr. Laurier of course pleaded the cause of Riel and the halfbreeds from his French standpoint, and he did it with a power and fervour which entitle him to their warmest gratitude. However much men may differ from him they cannot but confess that he presented a strong case to Parliament and the country. We must say that we have no sympathy with Riel, nor do we think that he met an unmerited death. But Mr. Laurier showed that in his trial he had not been fairly dealt with, for the Government refused to produce his papers, and instead of giving him a month which he asked for to prepare for his trial, he was only allowed eight days. He dwelt on this and on much else in palliation of the criminal and his friends. If he failed to convince his hearers he charmed them by his eloquence, and from first to last they hung on his words as if spell-bound. The highest tribute that could be paid to the Liberal leader from Quebec for his noble speech was not alone the heartfelt congratulations of his friends, but also the spontaneous and equally hearty admission by his opponents, that this speech is all but unequalled in the annals of Parliamentary oratory.

According to a Parliamentary return recently issued it appears that the Irish Land Commission had received, up to the 31st August last, 122,784 applications to have fair rents fixed in court. Of these, rents were fixed in 85,129 cases, 23,832 applications were dismissed or struck out, and 10,471 applications were withdrawn. In addition to the foregoing cases, all of which were disposed of in court, 84,355 agreements fixing fair rents were made out of court. During the same period there were 20,149 appeals lodged against the fair rent fixed by court, of which 11,075 have been disposed of.

The Senate took its usual short holiday last week after getting through the debate on the Address. Senator Alexander was opposed to this, and gave nine good reasons why it should not adjourn, but discuss the following nine important questions:—The halfbreed rebellion, the rebellion expenditure, the grants of timber limits in the disputed territory, the granting of timber limits to the political partisans, the building up of the sea fishery, the profuse expenditure of the prodigal Government, a wider reciprocity treaty and, lastly, the effect of the tariff. The proposal, however, involved too great a task for the wasted energies of that venerable body, and would reflect too severely on the mal-administration of the Government, and so the ten days' rest was agreed on.

School teaching, school architecture, and school hygiene, are topics of every-day consideration and discussion in these enlightened times, though each subject seems to occupy a very subordinate place to the School Readers,—at least in the Local Legislature, and the public journals of the Province. Just now our attention has been called to the structure and arrangements of school houses and their surroundings, by a pamphlet issued from the Education Department, which contains much useful information and many suggestions of a secondary nature, beside the mere arrangement and materials of which school buildings are formed. The site, aspect, outside accommodation, pure water and cleanly arrangements are all dilated on, and cannot be too frequently impressed upon teachers and trustees, and we hope the information imparted in this little work will be carefully considered and as nearly as possible acted on.

The Ottawa Free Press says:—The difference between Tory and Liberal ideas of fair play in Parliamentary procedure is marked! The former moves the previous question in the Riel debate to prevent the minority from giving an expression in an amendment to the whole of its views upon the issue involved, and the subsidized claqueurs of the Tory press approved of that course. During the Mackenzie regime a Maritime Province Liberal moved the previous question; when Mr. Mackenzie rose and rebuked him for so doing. The Liberal Premier declared the practice to be a cowardly invasion of the right of the House to freedom of expression, and finding the Premier so set against the motion the Liberal member was forced to withdraw his proposal. How different that course by Mr. Mackenzie, was to the course taken now by Sir Hector Langevin, as acting leader of the Government in the House, when he moved the very proposal which Mr. Mackenzie denounced years ago as an invasion of the freedom of Parliamentary utterance. The circumstance needs no elaboration. It is plain enough and the contrast is damning to the Tory party.

Last week a very large deputation from the Midland Counties of Ontario waited on the Government and extorted from it the promise of an appropriation of $350,000 towards the work on the Trent Valley Canal. That this is purely an enterprise fostered and kept up for political purposes, is shown by the following from the Montreal Witness: "Some forty or fifty years ago the Trent Valley Canal was a very practical public works. The long water stretches of lake and river that seem to join the Bay of Quinte and the Georgian Bay offered great facilities for the construction of what was the great artery of trade of valuale timber seeking an outlet, and the period—a canal. The country was full, there were few railways. A considerable sum of money was spent by old Canada, in exploring and surveying this chain of lakes. Half a dozen cut stone locks, and as many dams were built, making several short stretches of navigation, and then the work was abandoned. During the last ten years the Trent Valley Canal has been brought before the public at intervals, usually just before general elections. It is no longer a practical public works, but a political job. The railways running to ports on the Georgian Bay are now quite sufficient to transport every bushel of grain that can be induced to pass within Cabot's Head, quite as cheaply as it could be hauled through the mazes of the proposed waterway. The timber of the valley is practically all within easy reach of the railways, and besides there is not much of it left. The work will be tremendously expensive, and if it fulfilled its object would largely supersede the Welland Canal, on which so much is being spent. The three hundred and fifty thousand dollars will be expended in such a manner as to be distributed in four constituencies, so as to insure the return of four members. At the rate of $87,500, a member is not dear if the majority is likely to be small.

The Public Health—The Living and the Dead.

We find the following in a paper called Man, published in Ottawa:—

The total number of deaths returned by the twenty cities and towns of the Dominion to the Department of Agriculture for the month of January was 1,279 or 57 less than for December; a mortality of 26.5 per 1,000 of estimated population per annum. From zymotic diseases there were 207 deaths recorded in January or 4.5 per 1,000 of population per annum. The rate of mortality from zymotic diseases rather than from all causes in a locality, is regarded as an index of its sanitary condition. The mortality from zymotics was high, taking the 20 cities and towns together. In 28 cities in England last year the average from zymotics was 2.7 per 1,000, although during the ten years previous, 1875-1884, the average had been over 3 per 1,000. But the mortality from zymotics in January in the 20 cities and towns in Canada was much lower than during the previous few months, when small-pox was much more prevalent. During the six preceding months, the latter half of 1885, it averaged as high as 18 per 1,000 per annum. Eliminating the deaths from small-pox the average from all other zymotics was 6.6 per 1,000. This last high rate was mainly owing to diarrheal affections amongst infants during the summer months. The high rate of January was chiefly due to epidemics of measles, scarlet fever and diphtheria in certain of the cities.

The small-pox mortality in Montreal dropped from 152 in December to 47 in January. No deaths reported from Charlottetown in January, though there were 24 in December. It would appear that the epidemic was promptly crushed out in that city. The manner in which this was accomplished Man will probably soon be enabled to explain to its readers. In Sorel there were five deaths from this disease in January, the same number as in December. In St. Hyacinthe there were 6, as against 13 in December. In Toronto one death from small-pox was reported in each of the two months; and in Ottawa 3 each month. In Quebec there was one in December, but not one in January. None reported from any of the other cities or towns. The total number of deaths reported from small-pox in January was 62, as against 199 in December

From measles there were 45 deaths in Quebec, 14 in Sherbrooke, 2 in Toronto, and one each in Montreal, Ottawa and Three Rivers. This makes a total mortality from measles of 64, a larger number than from smallpox. In December there were 81 deaths from this disease, 80 of which were in Quebec and one in Sherbrooke; none reported from any other place.

From scarlet fever there were 15 deaths, 4 in Montreal, 4 in Toronto, 6 in Kingston and one in Sherbrooke. In December 17 were reported; 9 in Kingston and 8 in Toronto.

Diphtheria caused 92 deaths in January as against 82 in December. The mortality from this disease increased in Montreal from 25 in December to 39 in January, and in Toronto from 15 in December to 20 in January. In Quebec there was a decrease from 13 in December to 6 in January. In Hamilton there was an increase of from 5 to 7; in Halifax there was the same number, 3 in each month; in Winnipeg an increase of from 2 to 4; in Ottawa, a decrease of from 3 to 1; and in St. John a decrease of from 11 to 5. In Guelph there were 3 deaths in each month from this disease.

Well Done Norfolk!

A peculiar announcement was made from the pulpit of Dublin Street Methodist Church a few Sundays ago. It caused many to shake their heads. It was considered almost audacious. "A cash collection of $3,000 will be asked for in two weeks from to-day!" Well everybody knows the result, over $500 in excess of the amount asked for was contributed. And now, Norfolk Street Church has just achieved a similar result. Think of it! "Hard times" is the general cry, and yet two only moderately wealthy churches are enabled to contribute within the course of a month over $7,000 in solid ca wipe out certain liabilities.

Now, what does this show. 1st—That practical Christianity is not at all a thing of the past. 2nd—That "where there's a will there's a way," and that the most difficult tasks may be accomplished by clear heads, warm hearts and strong hands. 3rd—That churches as well as individuals are becoming more and more alive to the beauties of getting and keeping out of debt. The principle of "Cash down," "pay as you go," is growing. People believe in it. They daily see its benefits.

In the business world, the live, keen, close selling, no credit houses are the successful ones, and the old fogy ideas of big prices, long credits, heavy interest, duns and law suits are being driven to the wall.

At No. 27 we are making a grand display of New Staple and Fancy Dry Goods for the Spring. The store has undergone a thorough renovation making everything as bright and clean as a new dollar, and with the new blending of shades of the piles upon piles of new goods, customers find it a very attractive place. We invite all to visit us. We shall keep the public posted as to details from week to week, and promise that no more attractive Dry Goods Store is found either in or outside of Guelph and as we give no credit, make no bad debts, customers are assured of getting goods Cheap for Cash.

CHAPTER XVIII.

RESURRECTION.

In the drawing-room at the Rectory of Miller's Gate two ladies were sitting—rather, one was seated; the other lay on a couch in the window. It was a delicious day in the autumn, and the beautiful garden was in its greatest beauty. Through the open window came the scent of the roses and wallflowers and pinks; honeysuckle nodded in at one side, and climbing Dijohn rose at the other, the trees whispered in the breeze, from which one descended by three or four steps into the garden before-mentioned.

The room was full of pretty things. Little tables covered with books and magazines stood about; every available space, or shelf, or cabinet was crowded with ornaments of all kinds, of no great rarity or value perhaps, but each possessed of some beauty or quaint grace which entitled it to a place in that pretty room. There were "pots," as their owner called them, of all kinds and countries—vases and cups and saucers from China and Japan, specimens of Doulton and Valauris, rough, clumsy little pans and vessels from the south of France, which Mrs. Longworthy had brought home herself after seeing them made on a wheel; queer things from Italy, including lamps and pastile burners. All these things abounded. There were a few good pictures too, and heaps, literally heaps, of flowers. If every available standing place held a pot, every pot held ferns and flowers; they flourished even in the grate, and looked cool and green in its shadow.

The owner of the room harmonized with it. Of middle age, her abundant dark hair was scarcely streaked with grey; she wore it arranged in a becoming manner, and decently covered with a cap of soft creamy lace. Her dress was rich and quiet; everything about her helped to set off her sweet, tender face, with its fine, delicate features and clear, pale skin. In her youth Mrs. Longworthy must have been a beautiful woman, with a slender, upright figure and clear dark eyes. She satin her low chair busy with some parish work knitting, which showed her white hands and slender wrists, and every now and then she raised her eyes to glance at the girl who lay on the couch, and whose closed eyes and the way she lay back among her cushions showed she was asleep.

She, too, was beautiful, and very much younger than her companion—young enough to be her daughter. She lay straight out, so it was easy to see she could boast no great height, and her figure so slim, one at once conjectured she was recovering from a serious illness. The impression confirmed by the fact that the thick waves of chestnut hair were almost as short as a boy's. She was covered with a woollen sofa blanket, and a little filmy shawl of white wool was thrown over head to protect her from any draught from the window. As Mrs. Longworthy looked at her, she moved and half threw off the covering, so leaving her hands exposed—small, thin white hands, the left bearing a heavy gold wedding ring with a curious old-fashioned keeper above it.

Mrs. Longworthy rose to replace the wrap, but as she crossed the room the girl opened her eyes and leaned back her head with a half smile.

"Have I been sleeping again?" she asked. "It is disgraceful. I am really ashamed.

"It is the best thing for you," said Mrs. Longworthy, pulling the blind down, for the afternoon sun came in at one of the side windows, and shone straight into the invalid's face. "You know," she went on, looking round to see if she had properly arranged the light, "Dr. Home said you must sleep as much as you could."

"Nevertheless, I think I have had enough for one day," rising to her feet as she spoke. "I am going to work with you now, and we will have a talk before Mr. Longworthy comes in."

"Are you sure you are strong enough to talk?" asked her companion rather doubtfully.

"If you had ever known me in my days of strength you would not have asked such a question," said the girl, now smiling fully. "I think that in the kindness of your heart you are inclined to follow the doctor's orders too strictly. You promised to tell me all about my illness, and how I came to be here and everything, as soon as I was strong enough. I have been getting stronger for some tine now, and this afternoon is such a good opportunity."

Mrs. Longworthy remembered the doctor's words.

"If she shows a great desire to hear about herself tell her everything. She will not ask until she feels strong enough to hear it, and the irritation of being refused would do her far more harm than any shock contained in what you have to tell."

So Mrs. Longworthy said—

"Perhaps I have, my dear, but I was fearful of your having a relapse, and we had saved you with such difficulty; but since I promised I will tell you now, only I think you had better go back to the couch."

The girl obeyed, and when she had again settled herself she asked—

"How long have I been ill?"

"Twelve months, my love."

"Twelve months!" she repeated, "twelve months; you may completely lose sight of and forget a person in that time."

The last words were spoken almost to herself, and after a little pause Mrs. Longworthy began—

"Tell me, if you can, what is the last thing you remember?"

The girl made a visible effort, and Mrs. Longworthy seeing it said—

"Do not try if you cannot do it. Your memory is not strong enough yet."

"But I can do it," speaking with determination, "only it is the first time I have really tried, and twelve months is a long time ago. But I remember I was in a train; yes, of course, in a train, and it began to go very unevenly and to sway about, and then—and then, yes, I remember falling.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

TORONTO, March 18th.

Mr. Pardee's Bill respecting free grants and homesteads to actual settlers in the district of Rainy River was read a third time and passed.

The House then went into committee to consider the consolidation of the Separate Schools Acts. After some time the Committee rose and asked leave to sit again.

The House next went into committee on the Attorney-General's Bill to further improve the law.

The evening session was spent in committee on several bills.

The clause in the Franchise and Representation Act, which says that on the day of polling any workman may absent himself from his employment from 12 until 2 o'clock without suffering any reduction of wages for so doing, was objected to.

Mr. Meredith thought it would be better to prolong the time for voting until 8 o'clock.

Mr. Creighton proposed that the day of election should be proclaimed a public holiday, and that would settle the difficulty.

Mr. Ermatinger moved to extend the hours for voting from 9 in the morning until 8 o'clock in the evening.

This was lost and the clause carried.

An adjournment was made at 11.15.

Dominion Parliament.

Ottawa, March 18.

In the House of Commons to-day the debate on the Riel question was at once resumed, Sir A. Caron, Minister of Militia, continuing his speech. He spoke until 5.30 p.tm., strongly defending the execution of Riel and criticizing the attitude of those former supporters of the Administration who had turned against them on this question. Mr. Desjardins followed his speech with a temperate reziew of the case and an elaboration of the arguments in favour of the resolution, regretting that clemency had not been exercised. He strongly contended that there was no question of race or creeds, and that the French Canadians desired only to appeal to the reason and sense of justice of the other nationalities. Mr. Landry (Kent, N. B.) recognized that the arguments presented in the House in favour of the resolution were fair ones, and temperately put, but he could not see his way to condemning the Government for the step taken. Mr. Guay followed in French, upholding the resolution, mainly on the grounds taken by the former speakers on the same side. Mr. Mackintosh moved the adjournment of the debate, and the House rose at 12.25 a. m.

A DISHONEST OFFICIAL.

The St. Thomas Assistant-Postmaster a Thief and Forger.

ST. THOMAS, March 18.—For some months past it has been apparent to Mr. Barker, Postoffice Inspector of the London district, that a dishonest person was operating in the St. Thomas postoffice, four registered letters passing through that office at different periods having mysteriously disappeared. On the 4th of December last an unregistered letter addressed to Harley McConnell, St. Thomas, was stolen, and a money order for $43 which it contained was subsequently found to have been cashed upon the forged signature of Harley McConnell. Mr. Barker took the case in hand, and on Tuesday last proceeded to St. Thomas, accompanied by his assistant, Mr. Fisher. Yesterday afternoon a warrant was issued for the arrest of Mr. George W. Boggs, Assistant-Postmaster, upon a charge of forgery. It is understood that Mr. Boggs made an admission when he saw that it was useless to deny his guilt, and that the four registered letters were included in the list of those stolen by him. He has been in the St. Thomas postoffice for sixteen years, and has been respected and trusted by all who knew him. He was arrested last evening, and pleading guilty before the police magistrate to-day was remanded for sentence.

A Bachelor's Carol.

From the Somerville Journal.

I'm a jolly old bachelor, blithe and jaoose,
I'm as happy as June days are long.
How I pity you benedicts, dull and morose.
Who can see now just where you went wrong!
I've had narrow escapes, too, myself in my time,
And my gratitude now I express
In sincerity, if not in artistic rhyme,
To the dear girls who wouldn't say Yes.

There was Kate, now, the beauty who first won my heart,
If she'd had me, where would I be now?
Providing for seven four years from the start,
And buying the "milk of one cow."
Then Jennie, who jilted me next, what of her?
She's an invalid now, thin and pale,
And her husband has ruined himself they aver,
Buying tonics and Bass' pale ale.

Then Mollie, and Lillie, and Gertrude, and Belle,
And Fanny, and Florence, and May,
And Jessie, and Josie, and Hallie, and Nell?
All wrinkled and faded to-day,
While I'm as jolly and young as a boy,
And my thanks once again I express
To the scornful young maidens, proud, haughty and coy,
To the dear girls who wouldn't say Yes.

RAISE THE STANDARD HIGH.

The Dry Goods Trade is never elevated by one firm trying to hurt the reputation of another, neither will it raise the firm who tries it in the estimation of the public.

We do not propose to lower the standard of a

Respectable and Highly Thought of Business by any such Nonsense,

But on the other hand if there is anything we can do that will tend to elevate the Dry Goods Trade and those connected with us it will be done.

If other merchants in the city have found their trade in advance of last year (and with less salesmen required), we are glad to hear of it, and it speaks well for Guelph and we only hope they will still continue to prosper. As for us

WE ARE SATISFIED.

We are pleased with our business, our city and the people we have met with since coming to Guelph.

It is just a little over one month since we bought the

Very Respectable and Highly Thought of Business of Messrs. John Hogg & Son.,

and we have been told by those who know, that our sales for the month of February are in advance of the same month last year and we propose by attending

Strictly to our own Business

and by placing before the public

Good Honest Reliable Goods,

and at prices that will cause the people to know (without us having to tell them) that we are

Men of Experience in the Dry Goods Trade knowing Where to buy, How to buy and having the Bullion to Buy with.

Large quantities of goods are coming to hand every week from England, Ireland, Scotland and the United States; also from the different parts of Canada, which we are marking at a very low price and passing into stock.

We expect a large Spring Trade and are preparing for same.

We have retained all the old hands and they will be pleased to see their old friends.

DOMINION ARTILLERY.

Annual Meeting—Changes in Selecting the Shoeburyness Team.

OTTAWA, March 18.—The annual meeting of the Dominion Artillery Association was held this morning, the President, Lt.-Col. Oswald, in the chair. Amongst those present were the Governor-General and Major General Middleton. The report of the Council stated that satisfactory progress had been made during the past year and that two detachment's will be sent to this year's competition at Shoeburyness. The Governor-General congratulated the Association on having reached the tenth year of its existence, and hoped the example set by Ontario of forming a Provincial Association would be followed by the other provinces. In moving the adoption of the annual report Capt. McRae drew attention to a few needs of the Artillery, amongst which were better sights for the guns and shelter plates for the gunners, to protect them against an ambuscade foe. The Association rules were augmented by the addition of the provision that whenever an artillery association is formed for any of the Provinces of the Dominion such an association shall be entitled to affiliate with this Association on the payment annually of $250 for each battery composing such provincial association. Lieut.-Colonel Oswald was re-elected President, Lieut.-Cols. Stevenson, F. B. Mobrey, H. G. A. Peters, Quebec, and Major Irving, P. E. I., were re-elected Vice-Presidents. With the exception of Lieut.-Col. Peters, who replaces Lieut.-Col. Gray, M. P. P., who wished to withdraw from office, the auditors were re-elected.

At a subsequent meeting of the Council Col. Mackenzie moved, seconded by Col. Gray, "That the right of field batteries to select representatives to the Shoeburyness team be determined as follows:—That a roster of field batteries be made, the position of each battery thereon being determined by lot, and that each field battery have the privilege of sending a representative in the order in which they appear on the roster, the roster so formed to be perpetual, each battery failing to send a representative to be placed at the bottom of the roster.

The roaster of field batteries was drawn by lot as follows:—Durham, Welland, Richmond, Woodstock, London, Quebec, Montreal, Guelph No, 2, 1st Brigade; Toronto, Winnipeg, Gananoque, Guelph No. 1, 1st Brigade Kingston, Newcastle, Hamilton, Shefford, and Ottawa.

The conditions of shooting and prizes for annual competitions were referred to the Executive Committee.

The meeting then adjourned.

London is to have a monster International Religious Convention, under the auspices of the Salvation Army, commencing May 28th and lasting one week. 2,500 delegates are expected.

DUNCAN SHEPHARD, a native of Aberdeen, Scotland, and an old resident of Galt, died in that town last week at the age of 84 years. The Reformer says: He loved to talk of the "old days," when Galt was a place in name only, and when the joys and sorrows of its few inhabitants were shared alike by all. One of the last public acts of Mr. Shepherd was his signing a deed to the town for the old eastern burying ground, of which he had been the sole surviving trustee for many years.

COMMENDABLE ENTERPRISE.—The Snowshoe and Toboggan Club deserve credit for the enterprise they have shown in bringing Prof. Vallance to this City on the 23rd inst., thereby giving citizens another opportunity of hearing the finest elocutionist that has ever visited this country. The Glasgow Herald says:—"The members of the Burn's Club are to be congratulated on the success of their entertainment in the City Hall last night, when Prof. Vallance appeared before a large and enthusiastic audience. His elocutionary powers are really wonderful and every selection given by him was received with rapturous applause."

SUDDEN DEATH.—The Victoria, B. C. Times records the sudden death of Sarah Jane Robinson (nee Moody), the beloved wife of Mr. Wm. Dalby, brother of Frank Dalby, Elora, manager of the Belmont Boot and Shoe Manufacturing Company, and daughter of Joshua Moody, Esq., of that city, formerly of Harland, Me., U. S., at the family residence, Pandora street, at the early age of 45 years. Epilptic convulsions was the cause of death, after a few hours' sickness. There are left to the bereaved husband six living sweet pledges—one girl and five boys—all interesting and attractive children—ranging from the ages of six to fourteen years. The grief-stricken husband and motherless children, as well as the family relatives, have the sincerest and heartfelt sympathy of a sorrowing community in this their terrible affliction and irreparable loss.

I. O. O. F.—The Secretary of the Oddfellows' Grand Lodge of Ontario has issued an abstract showing the semi-annual returns of subordinate lodges for the two terms and the year ending 31st December, 1885. From this statement it appears the number of members to that date was 14,506, being an increase of 75 over the year of 1884. The amount of money expended for relief was $45,049.88, being an average for each day of 1885 of $123.42, a daily increase over last year of $10.74. The receipts from lodges were $129,102.82; assets of Lodges, $518,102.44; funds of Lodges, $468,933.25. The number of brothers who received sick benefits was 1,702; number of widows who received annuities, 306; number of orphans who received annuities, 86; number of wives of brothers died, 61. The ratio of death was one in each 15¾. Of the total membership one in each 8.52 received sick benefits. Since the meeting of the Grand Lodge in August last, six new lodges have been instituted, one of them being Gordon Lodge 247, Palmerston.

A DISGRACEFUL SCENE.—The Galt Reformer says:—"On Sunday evening last, about eight o'clock, a most disgraceful scene took place at the head of Main street. It appears that the "soiled doves" who have made their abode here for some time, had a free fight amongst themselves, and the spectacle is described by those who saw it to have been most revolting. The abandoned wretches are said to have pulled one another's hair and to have playfully brandished revolvers at the spectators, while the language they used was simply abominable. The Catholic congregation happened to be coming out about the time the row was at its height, and the people were compelled to listen to language worse than sulphurious. Warrants were issued for the arrest of the women on Monday, but in the meantime they had "silently stolen away," and we trust that the town will never again be disgraced by such a revolting spectacle." The authorities in Galt are to blame for allowing such nefarious pests to remain in their midst one hour longer than suspicion of their vocation is ascertained. The Guelph police have routed out these characters years ago, and they have never since gained a foothold.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.—Last evening the members of Dublin-street church choir met at the residence of Miss Goodfellow for practice, and at the close of the service in the church Rev. Dr. Griffin called in and stated that as the members of the choir had absented themselves from church that evening he would like an explanation. Miss Goodfellow undertook the task of answering, and after satisfying the Rev. Dr. that all was right, stepped to the front and read an address to Miss B. Oldham, and at the proper time Mr. Wheatley, jr., presented that lady with a well filled purse. The address spoke of the valuable and willing services Miss Oldham, as leading soprano, had rendered the choir, and also that through her connection with it they had been enabled to hold a prominent place in the hearts of the people. It was a case of genuine surprise to Miss Oldham, but Dr. Griffin responded. He congratulated the choir on their excellent method of rewarding valuable services, and paid a high compliment to Miss Oldham and his talented choir for the beautiful musical service given on Sundays. A few minutes were spent in song and pleasure and the company separated.

FUNERAL OF DAVID KENNEDY, JR.—The funeral of David Kennedy, jr., third son of Mr. David Kennedy, contractor, Waterloo Avenue, took place on Friday and was largely attended by the friends and companions of the deceased. The pall bearers were his five brothers and his old shopmate, Robert Gow. The deceased was a young man of exemplary character and was highly respected. He was for some time in the employ of Herod & Co., druggists, and from there entered the Elephant clothing store, then under the management of W. Rutherford & Co., Guelph, where he remained for a couple of years, and was then transferred to the wholesale clothing firm of W. E. Sandford & Co., of Hamilton, where he remained for a number of years and then entered the Oak Hall clothing establishment, Toronto, for a time. By his courteous demeanour, obliging manner and strict attention to business he was promoted to the management of the Sandford & Co's branch establishment, Quebec. About three or four months ago he contracted a severe cold, which brought on an old complaint—rheumatism—which he was troubled with in his boyhood days. As soon as he was able to proceed home he left the establishment and arrived home a few weeks ago, where he received all the care and attention that loving parents could bestow. For a time he seemed to be recovering, but taking a fresh cold, rheumatism troubled his heart and carried him off at the early age of 25 years. Mr. Kennedy and family have the sympathy of the community in their sad bereavement.

Perry Davis' Pain Killer taken internally, it relieves instantly the most acute pain. Used externally, it is the best Liniment in the world.. Its effect is almost instantaneous, affording relief from the most intense pain. It soothes the irritated or inflamed part, and gives quiet and rest to the sufferer. It is eminently the people's friend, and everyone should have it with them, or where they can put their hands on it in the dark if need be.

THE directors of the Toronto base ball club have decided to increase the capital of the Association from $5,000 to $10,000.

O. HENRY, of the Guelph "Solid Leather Boot and Shoe Store," Market Square, is advertising a clearing sale for 30 days, at a reduction of 10 per cent. Read the advertisement.

BOOKLESS & GALER, of the Royal Hotel, are about to dissolve partnership and on account of some disagreement in the arrangements, a receiver has been placed in the hotel by the Master in Chancery until the matter is finally settled.

THE mail bag for the Agricultural College, lost at the Gordon street railway crossing, has not yet been found. A lady passing at the time states that she saw the bag fall from the waggon while crossing the track, and also three boys pick it up and carry it along to the rear of Gibson's blacksmith shop.

A BAD FALL.—Adam Horn, who is employed at Spence's mill, met with an accident on Thursday evening which might have resulted fatally. He was walking through the place when he accidentally fell a distance of some thirteen feet into the cellar, alighting on a pile of rubbish. He was considerably bruised and cut about the head. He had to be assisted home. No serious results are anticipated.

A HANDSOME RING.—Mr. George Fitzsimmons, manufacturing jeweller, has just completed what is perhaps the heaviest ring ever made in Guelph. It is intended for presentation at Harriston, and consists of solid gold, being a quarter of an inch wide at the largest part, and an eighth inch thick. Instead of being rounded, as rings commonly are, it is flat in form. At the top is a star setting, in the centre of which is a beautiful solitaire of great value. Whoever gets the ring will have a prize worth keeping.

THUNDERSTORM.—If a heavy thunderstorm is any indication of the near approach of spring then it is close at hand. One broke over Guelph with considerably fury yesterday afternoon and continued with more or less severity till daybreak this morning. Early in the morning the thunder was very loud, and one terrific peal seemed to shake the whole city, while rain poured down in torrents. To-day is mild and foggy. The only drawback the average man sees in the approach of fine weather is the knowledge that house cleaning comes in with it, and that the "healthy and "invigorating" pastime of gardening follows soon thereafter! They say it takes of bushel of back-ache for every peck of stuff they raise. Poor fellows!

THE COLONIAL EXHIBIT.—On account of the dissatisfaction expressed by citizens regarding the Guelph exhibit to the Colonial, a meeting of the Special Committee and the Citizens Committee was held this morning, and sat over a couple of hours. Objection was taken to having photographs of private residences placed in the display, and also to the names of individual parties as an advertisement. It was considered, too, that the head of a French habitant might do well enough for the Lower Provinces, but was out of taste as regarded Guelph. A special meeting of the City Council is being held this afternoon to discuss the question.

LEFT GUELPH.—Mr. W. H. Marcon, who has for many years conducted a seed business on the Market Square, and latterly in connection therewith entered into the manufacture of artificial flowers, left Guelph on Thursday to start business at Drummondville, Niagara Falls. The reason of Mr. Marcon taking this step is that the rate of shipment from Guelph is too high to warrant successful competition, and so also are the duties on the goods he manufactures. It is his intention to establish an artificial flower manufactory on the American side. From Niagara he will have the benefit of competing railway lines, and reduced freight rates, which cannot be obtained in Guelph. Mr. Marcon carries with him the well wishes of many friends in Guelph for his success, and by his departure the city loses a good citizen and energetic business man. The retail business has been purchased by Mr. Geo. Dudgeon who has for many years been in the employment of Mr. Marcon, and is well acquainted with all the details regarding the business.

St. George's Society.

The St. George's Society held its adjourned annual meeting last night. The Society by the reports handed in is in a flourishing condition. There were nearly thirty members present, and eight new members were were admitted. The society during the past year has spent $97.92 in relief, and has $417.00 to its credit in the bank. Last year a relief committee was appointed to take charge of the relief business in all its departments, and the committee has done its work well, and has relieved many a deserving person among the English poor of the City. A vote of thanks was tendered to the retiring officers who have done their work well during the year. The election of officers was then proceeded with and resulted as follows:—

Mr. Geo. Selwood, President
Dr. Howitt, 1st Vice "
Mr. J. F. Kidner, 2nd Vice "
Mr. Geo. Elliot, Treasurer, (re-elected)
Mr. Wm. Read, Secretary, "

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.—Messrs. H. Gummer, J. Read, Geo. Howard, J. T. Brill, Ed. Ryde.

RELIEF COMMITTEE.—Messrs. Jas. Hewer, A. H. Goodeve, Jas Howard.

Chaplains.—Rev'ds Archdeacon Dixon, Wm. Savage, W. F. Clarke.

SURGEONS.—Drs. Herod, Howitt and Orton.

TOO BIG A BLAW.—A Scotch farmer was leading a calf by a halter across a bridge; but on approaching the rise of the bridge the creature refused to move farther. The farmer, seeing the rural postman coming towards him, said to him, "Mister postman, wad ye jist gie a blaw o' yer horn ahint the calf and mak' it come on?" The postman gave a shrill blast, and with one bound the animal cleared the parapet of the bridge, and fell into the running stream beneath. The farmer first looked at the postman, and then exclaimed, "Man, you stupid ass, that was far owre big a blast for a calf!"

Important News Item.

COOKSTOWN.—Mrs Campbell had for a number of years been troubled with indigestion and constipation, and was induced to try McGregor's Speedy Cure and found it all that was needed, and would recommend its use to any person similarly troubled. This invaluable remedy is sold in every part of Canada at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle. Sold at Thos. S Petrie's Drug Store.

Fire at Georgetown.

GEORGETOWN, March 19.—The knitting machine factory of Creelman Bros., of this place, was partly destroyed by fire this morning. The fire originated in the office and made considerable headway before the firemen arrived, but was got under control in about an hour. The office is completely ruined. The books and papers are destroyed, except those in the safe, which are partly scorched on account of the safe not having been locked the previous night. Several sewing machines were destroyed. The damage done by water in the machine room will be very serious. The upper flat was occupied by Messrs. Shilton, Allan & Baird, barristers, who saved most of the contents of their office; L. L. Bennett, dentist, whose loss will probably not exceed $50; and R. D. Warren, publisher of the Georgetown Herald, plant considerably damaged by water. Messrs. Creelman Bros.' loss can scarcely be estimated. Among the insurance companies interested are the Lancashire, Norwich, Union, Imperial and Gore Mutual, to the extent of about $9,000 in all.

Sentenced for Five Years.

ST. THOMAS, Feb. 19.—George W. Boggs, Deputy Postmaster in this city, who pleaded guilty to robbing the mails on the previous day, was sentenced to five years in the Penitentiary on each charge, sentences to run concurrent. He will be sent to Kingston on Monday.

A serious socialist riot took place in Liege on Thursday evening, which was suppressed by the gendarmes, who arrested several hundreds of the rioters.

It is said that the split between Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Morley on the one hand and Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Trevelyan on the other is complete.

Our Colonial Exhibit.

To the Editor of the MERCURY.

SIR,—On looking at our exhibit for the Colonial Exhibition this day, I felt disappointed; the meagre show we are to make. I was surprised to find nothing but photographic views of the city, and those I think not of the most eligible kind. What interest to foreign sightseers, I should like to know, will be the views of private residences of this city, and what good is likely to accrue from such? Why not have photographs of the different manufactories, such as Bell's, Raymond's, Armstrong's, etc? I should imagine that would be more likely to show that we are an industrial city as described in the centre of the show-case; and some of the views have the appearance of having been photographed from a balcon, the English church, for instance, putting one more in mind of a "candle snuffer" than anything else.

I feel sure that Mr. Bell and others would only have been too pleased to have added their quota to making the city exhibit a success, although exhibiting independently.

Another point against the photographs—they will once more convey to the foreigner that this is an ice-bound country all the year round. Fancy the stranger looking at these views in the summer time! On seeing the piles of snow they will thank Providence that their lot is not cast in such a Siberian climate. If we are to have photographs let us have one or two summer scenes to give the stranger an idea that it is not always necessary to wear the costume of the Esquimo in Canada. In conclusion I think it is a great pity, considering the number of manufacturers we have in our Royal City, that we are not showing something more creditable than an enlarged hotel advertisement frame.

INTERESTED CITIZEN.

Guelph, Jan. 19.

Guelph's Exhibit to the Colonial.

To the Editor of the Mercury:

SIR,—I have just examined the photos. of the public buildings of Guelph, to be sent to the Colonial Exhibition. It is to be hoped the Citizens' Committee will prohibit the forwarding of such a collection, many of them, as for instance St. George's church being neither more nor less than a caricature. The "Church of Our Lady" is merely the copy of a print of what the church is likely to be in some future age. The best features of the City Hall are concealed so as to give prominence to the butcher shops. The Agricultural College is taken from a point, whereby some of the leading characteristics are suppressed.

Then, again, with respect to the frame—what has Guelph to do with a grinning negro as its chief ornament?

INDIGNANT CITIZEN.

P. S.—In startling contrast to the City Hall of the frame, there is a first class view of the same building hung beside it.

The Evening Mercury

SATURDAY EVE'G MARCH 20, 1886.

The Irish Question.

Monday next is the date which was originally fixed upon by Mr. Gladstone for the submission of his scheme to Parliament dealing with Home Rule and the Irish land question. The cable recently, however, has brought intelligence that he has extended the time for consideration of his measure, and if the information in this particular is more accurate than the contradictory and unreliable reports which have reached us in reference to the scheme itself, and the disfavor with which it is viewed by certain of the Cabinet Ministers, we will have to wait a while longer for a revelation of the Government's policy. Meantime millions of eyes in every quarter of both hemispheres are strained with expectancy as the event approaches.

For the past two months we have had an opportunity of learning that the proposal to give Ireland Home Rule, like nearly every measure, be it good, bad or indifferent, has awakened opposition. Those who choose to call themselves Loyalists have given expression to their views against it, not only in Ireland, but in other portions of the British Isles; and as if the people at home were not capable of governing themselves, so-called Loyalists in this country have met and uttered their protests and tendered their advice. Two fears seem to have taken possession of them; one that the Protestants of the Green Isle will suffer persecution at the hands of a Local Parliament elected by a Catholic majority; the other that the integrity of the Empire will be endangered.

In view of assurances which Mr. Gladstone has given that he intends to guard against such possibilities the manifestations of alarm on this score are unnecessarily premature. The Premier has expressly laid down as the first principle of his undertaking that Home Rule must be subservient to the Imperial authority. Mr. Parnell, who it is true, in the heat of the elections, when Great Britain seemed determined to overrule the rights for which Ireland was contending, declared that the people would not be satisfied with anything less than the severance of that tie which bound the Union together, has since expressed his satisfaction that this tie should continue to to exist. And now still further to give assurance that separation is not desired, Archbishop Walsh, acting on behalf of the Roman Catholic Bishops of Dublin, the other day sent a letter to Mr. Gladstone, in which he says:—

"As regards 'self government' or 'Home Rule,' it is our firm and conscientious conviction, based, as we believe on the fullest, most varied, and at the same time most reliable information, that it alone can satisfy the wants and wishes as well as the legitimate aspirations of the Irish people.

"Those wishes and aspirations have been expressed with unmistakable clearness by the constituencies of the four Provinces of Ireland at the recent elections. We venture to remind you that immediately before those elections you had appealed to the people of this country to speak out their mind on this great question and that in doing so, you already laid down the lines within which you believed it to be a question of practical politics. We regard the issue of the elections as the answer given by the Irish people to that appeal. We are fully satisfied that the demand for Home Rule thus put forward in no way transgresses the constitutional limits marked out by you. Its concession cannot trench either on the supremacy of the Crown or on the unity of the Empire, nor can it interfere with the maintenance of all the authority of Parliament necessary for the consolidation of that unity. This being so, we feel convinced with you that the granting of Home Rule within those limits will be not a source of danger but a means of averting it, as furnishing a new guarantee for increased cohesion, happiness, and strength.

His Grace goes on to speak of the settlement of the land question, favoring the purchase by the Government of the landlords' interest in the soil and the reletting of the latter to tenant farmers at a figure very considerably below the present judicial rents. Then he predicts that there can in future be no excuse for social disorder, which has been caused in the past by the remorseless conduct of needy and extravagant landlords. Meantime he asks the suspension of the power to evict, and that in the impoverished districts remunerative labor be provided out of the public purse to support the starving poor and thus help them to better times.

The statement that the result of the elections was a clear declaration in favor of Home Rule is true not only as regards Ireland, for Mr. Gladstone in his Midlothian speeches laid down the lines which he proposed to follow in respect to the island in unmistakable language, and the Scottish people as unmistakably declared in favor of giving his policy a trial. Not only so, but a number of the Tories were elected by Irish votes. Thus the sentiments of the people in favor of self-government were more generally expressed than would appear at a glance.

So far as the cry of danger to the Empire is concerned it has no really substantial basis. It is raised by the Tories with the hope of alarming timorous people. Toryism is not synonymous with loyalty, else we should not have Scotland, which has shown itself in the past a powerful defender of the Empire, Liberal to the core. She would be the first to raise her hand again to preserve that unity, yet she has declared by a majority of 60 to 10 that Ireland shall have self government as a means of bringing about peace and prosperity. Home Rule or coercion is the question now, and it is the true loyalists and the party of enlightenment who have decided to try the former as a means of securing peace, that the Empire may be strengthened and rendered more enduring thereby.

At the last meeting of the Trades and Labour Union of Guelph, held on the 8th inst., the following resolution was moved, and unanimously carried:—Resolved, that we, the members of the Trade and Labor Council of the City of Guelph, do hereby tender to Sir S. Samuels, agent-general for the Colony of New South Wales, our sincere and heartfelt thanks for the noble stand he took (being alone), and his well-timed, earnest speech, in opposing the sending of emigrants, assisted by State aid, to the Colonies, whilst our High Commissioner, Sir C. Tupper favored the scheme. The same, if carried out, would not be conducive to the interest of the labor class of this Dominion.

A very pleasant and praiseworthy spirit of Christian unity was lately exhibited in Montreal, which we would like to see oftener manifested by the different denominations throughout the country. On Sunday last were brought to a close a series of services commemorating the hundredth anniversary of the introduction of Presbyterianism in that city. The services were held in St. Gabriel's church, the Rev. Dr. Reid, of Toronto, officiating in the morning. In the afternoon Ven. Archdeacon Evans and Cannons Anderson and Ellegood conducted the service, and in the evening Rev. Dr. Douglas, of the Methodist College, preached a powerful sermon. On the Friday previous Rev. Dr. McVicar gave an eloquent address in the hall of the Presbyterian College. Altogether the services were of a most interesting and memorable character. The spirit of unity and good-will was all the more emphasized by the fact, which was mentioned during the celebration, that the earlier services of the Presbyterians which were begun in March 1786, were held in the Church of the Recollet Fathers belonging to the Roman Catholic Church, who in a spirit of rare liberality and good feeling, very uncommon now-a-days, granted the handful of Presbyterians the use of their church for a time.

The Tory speakers on the Landry motion give a funny and original explanation why the Orange Lodges which Mr. M. C. Cameron referred to in his speech passed resolutions demanding that the Government should execute Riel. Every one of them who referred to the subject asserted with the utmost gravity that these were "Grit Lodges." Of course the statement was received with incredulous laughter, for whoever heard of a "Grit Lodge" existing in Canada. Such a transparently ridiculous way of meeting the charge will not for a moment be entertained by any one who knows what Orangeism in Canada has been made by those who use it for party purposes. Some of the speakers even went further than this, and tried to rouse the spirit of race and religious hatred. For instance, Mr. Curran in the latter part of his speech assumed the character of a fiery demagogue and sought to embitter the Irish Roman Catholics against the Liberal party, by charging that the only Orange procession ever held in Montreal with drums beating and flags flying, protected by British bayonets, was under the auspices of a Liberal Government. The animus which inspired this charge will be appreciated, when it is explained that that so-called Orange procession was the funeral cortege of young Hackett, who was murdered during the riots of some years ago! The man who would drag a memory of that class into parliamentary discussion, who would seek to give the occurrence a partizan color, by saying that an Orange procession was held under the auspices of a Liberal Government, is a dangerous demagogue of a most blatant type. Mr. Rykert's speech was of the same low type and exhibited the same spirit. He raked up every scrap from the Reform newspapers for the last thirty years which he thought would rouse ill feeling between the Liberals and the French Canadians, or which would fan anew the flame of religious discord and animosity. He made a pitiable exhibition of himself, but then everybody knows that nothing better can come from Charlie Rykert, who is the poetical gutter-snipe and scavenger of the Tory party.

Well Done Norfolk!

A peculiar announcement was made from the pulpit of Dublin Street Methodist Church a few Sundays ago. It caused many to shake their heads. It was considered almost audacious. "A cash collection of $3,000 will be asked for in two weeks from to-day!" Well everybody knows the result, over $500 in excess of the amount asked for was contributed. And now, Norfolk Street Church has just achieved a similar result. Think of it! "Hard times" is the general cry, and yet two only moderately wealthy churches are enabled to contribute within the course of a month over $7,000 in solid cash to wipe out certain liabilities.

Now, what does this show. 1st—That practical Christianity is not at all a thing of the past. 2nd—That "where there's a will there's a way," and that the most difficult tasks may be accomplished by clear heads, warm hearts and strong hands. 3rd—That churches as well as individuals are becoming more and more alive to the beauties of getting and keeping out of debt. The principle of "Cash down," "pay as you go," is growing. People believe in it. They daily see its benefits.

In the business world, the live, keen, close selling, no credit houses are the successful ones, and the old fogy ideas of big prices, long credits, heavy interest, duns and law suits are being driven to the wall.

At No. 27 we are making a grand display of New Staple and Fancy Dry Goods for the Spring. The store has undergone a thorough renovation making everything as bright and clean as a new dollar, and with the new blending of shades of the piles upon piles of new goods, customers find it a very attractive place. We invite all to visit us. We shall keep the public posted as to details from week to week, and promise that no more attractive Dry Goods Store is found either in or outside of Guelph and as we give no credit, make no bad debts, customers are assured of getting goods Cheap for Cash.

CHAPTER XVIII.

RESURRECTION.

Ah! I see, there was an accident, and that made me ill—was not that it?"

"That is right. Now let me tell my tale. It was one day last autumn, and I was sitting here working, when Fanny came running in to say there had been an accident just outside the station—a train had run off the line, and some people were hurt—for anything she knew some might be killed. I put on my things, and went straight away to the station, for you know Rupert and I have always considered it our duty to see after anything of that kind, and to offer any help we can. Rupert was not at home that day, so I felt it doubly my duty to be on the spot, and see if there was anything I could do. By the time I had reached the station the injured people had been brought in. There were about half a dozen of them, and they had nothing worse than a few bruises or a bad shake. The doctor was there too, and with very little help from him they were able to go on by the next train. Seeing there was nothing for me to do, I was coming away when the porter came up and said the doctor would like to see me in the waiting room. I went in, and there I found him bending over you. You had been put on the seat which runs the length of the room. He looked up as I came in and said—

"Mrs. Longworthy, here is a case after your own heart. I know you like to turn your house into an hospital, and this young lady will want long and careful nursing, if we succeed in saving her at all."

"I went up to him and looked at you. You were insensible, and you looked so young and small I felt full of pity for you. The doctor said it was concussion of the brain, and you would have a long and very interesting illness. He begged that if I felt inclined I would take you in, at any rate until we found out who you were, or you were well enough to be removed."

She paused. The girl was leaning back with her eyes fixed upon the garden, She did not turn them away when her companion ceased speaking, only said—

"Please go on, if it does not tire you.'

"Of course," went on Mrs. Longworthy "I was delighted to have you. Rupert and I live here, each with a fortune of our own, with no children, and this large house all to ourselves. It is only a duty, therefore, looking at it from the least attractive point of view, that as a clergyman and his wife we should place ourselves at the disposal of people in the position you were. You were utterly helpless and dependent on the mercy of some one, on what other people than ourselves could you have had a greater claim? I told the doctor you should be moved here as soon as possible, and we had you brought at once. All this time you were insensible, and you continued so until the doctor began to despair of your life. We had no clue to your identity; your hand told us you were married, but we had not the slightest hope of finding out your name. Your linen was marked "H. M.," and the trunk which we claimed on the strength of the linen it contained bearing the same initials gave us no clue. Everything, including the trunk, bore the same initials, but no name. At first we thought it probable your friends would claim you, but perhaps our railway accident was lost sight of in the other one; at any rate no one came, or wrote or made inquiries, and we came to the conclusion that you were alone in the world, and more in need of our help than ever. For you were very ill indeed. When you recovered consciousness you were delirious, and after that you were fearfully ill with brain fever. But in your worst delirium you never said anything which gave us the least idea who you were. For a very long time you lay like that, for so long that Dr. Holme again despaired of your life, and Rupert prayed for you in church. But by degrees the fever left you—you were as weak as a baby, but you had no fever; there was no longer any obstacle to your complete recovery."

She paused again. This time her companion turned towards her and spoke with some constraint.

"But is that all? It is rather a painful story of my being a burden upon you, which you have borne with incredible goodness and patience, but I see nothing in it which I might not have heard before."

"No, my dear, it is not all; but I fear to distress you beyond what you can bear if I tell you the rest."

"I can bear it. I once knew someone who had brain fever, and I suspect what it was. Please, tell me."

"There was no obstacle to your recovery, I said," went on Mrs. Longworthy in her soothing voice, "I should have said to your physical recovery. You were gaining bodily strength every day—but your mind—your memory did not come back. For a time we feared for your reason."

The deep colour dyed the cheeks of the girl on the couch, and she hid her face in her hands for a moment. Then she raised it, saying—

"In fact I was an idiot."

"I was afraid of you thinking so," said Mrs. Longworthy, nervously. "That was why I wanted to wait till you were stronger. My dear child, you must not think that; it was not so at all, you were perfectly alive to what you were doing at the time. You entered completely into the events of each day, but you could not remember the past. You did not know you had been ill; you could not recollect how you came to be anywhere near Miller's Gate, nor could you give us any idea where you came from."

She stopped, struck by the look on the girl's face; it was perfectly white, and her eyes were full of agony.

"It is useless to try to hide it," she said. "I have been an idiot; every word you say proves it."

Mrs. Longworthy came up to her, and held her closely in her arms, looking straight into her eyes.

"I give you my word of honour that it was not so. The only thing was that your brain did not recover as fast as your body. Now you are better. You see you remember things, not only what happened yesterday, but how the accident took place. As your body becomes stronger your memory will grow stronger too; in a few weeks you will be perfectly well. Dr. Holme says so. But for that you must do everything you are told, and not try to think too much," stroking the soft hair as she spoke.

The girl said nothing for a moment; she looked out of the window. When she did speak her words surprised Mrs. Longworthy—

"You said something about another accident—what was that?"

"That was to the London train from Dewhurst. It was very odd that two accidents should happen on the same day; but that was an awful thing. It was an express train, only four or five carriages, and while crossing the river Strate the bridge gave way and the whole train was precipitated into the water. Of course every one was drowned."

The girl at her side said nothing, and Mrs Longworthy went on.

"It was so strange it should happen just about the same time of day as the one in which you were hurt. It was the half-past four express from Dewhurst, and the train here—my dear child what is the matter? You are ill."

She might well ask. The girl's face was grey in its ashy paleness, her eyes were full of horror.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Mr. Blake Speaks Out on the Riel Question.

OTTAWA, March 19.

Mr. Mackintosh was the first speaker in the Riel debate to-day, and supported the Government on the question.

Mr. Blake rose to speak at 5.10 amidst the enthusiastic applause of his followers. After a few sarcastic points at the expense of the last speaker, he launched into the question, which, while it came immediately under the Department of Justice, demanded imperatively the interference of Parliament. He did not desire to complicate the particular issue raised with other issues, and hoped all spirit of partizanship would be eschewed. They should view the case as nearly as they could with the calmness and dignity of a judge, which task, he admitted, was the most difficult one in a political body. Their duty was, as far as justice and truth would allow, to say nothing irritating and to cure old sores and new ones, too. In referring to Mr. Laurier's speech he laughingly described it as a crowning proof of French domination, inasmuch as the member for Quebec East had invaded our (English) tongue, and delivered the finest parliamentary speech on record since confederation. (Hear, hear.) Mr. Blake made a delaration that the members of the Opposition would vote as they pleased on the question, and anything he said was not in his capacity as leader of the Liberals, but his individual expression of opinion. He criticised the Minister of Justice for not having spoken, and drew the inference that Mr. Thompson did not intend to rise. The conduct of the Government in refusing to produce papers was blameable in the extreme. (Hear, hear.) The only document he had seen was a copy of the instructions to the Crown Counsel. They only chose to give the House what was useful to them in making a point in the debate. The Government's course of conducting the discussion was inconvenient, illogical and unsatisfactory, and it had better be understood that if they insisted on putting the cart before the horse the horse would have to be discussed later on, the horse in this instance being the state of affairs in the Northwest before the rebellion—(hear, hear)—and the cart the rebellion itself. There must be decisions on other questions besides the one involved in Mr. Landry's resolution, and the speaker intimated that he intended to bring these up. He would vote against previous question, believing the time had not arrived when the House should be asked to vote on Riel's execution. In doing so he knew he would be with the minority and therefore before the House came to the straight question he wished to express his views.

The Government, said Mr. Blake, is guilty of gross and palpable delay, neglect and mismanagement in their administration of Northwest affairs, which led up to the rebellion. They are responsible for every dollar expended, for every pang inflicted and for every life lost on the field or scaffold (Opposition applause), and for this accountability they will be challenged here and at a later date before the great tribunal of the people. (Hear, hear.) There was no doubt as to the legal guilt of Riel. No matter what the provocations, grievances and hardships, he and those who rose with them were equally guilty of treason, if they were mentally responsible, but he objected to the constitution of the court which tried Riel. The choice of a judge was bad. The stipendiary magistrates in the Northwest were rather political officers of the Government than magistrates.

Mr. Blake resumed at 8.15. He said the Government occupied altogether different position as prosecutors in such a case as this from what they did in ordinary offences. In these cases the judges should not depend on the executive (hear, hear), and should not belong to political bodies. Criticizing Col. Richardson from this standpoint, the speaker pointed out that he was the legal adviser of the executive in the Northwest and the recipient of special favors and allowances at the hands of the Government. Besides he was nominated by members of the Northwest council. As to the jury there should have been a larger panel to choose from. As to the prosecution, how was it that Riel was indicted for high treason while those associated with him were only accused of treason-felony? Were there special instructions from the department of justice on this point? As to the witnesses, he regarded it as a matter of the highest consequence that Dr. Howard, of Montreal, should have been called to give evidence as to Riel's condition of mind. Dr. Howard, it may be remarked, had the prisoner under treatment in Quebec asylum some years ago and knew his case thoroughly. Then as to the part played by the whites in the affair. Jackson was acquitted on the ground of insanity, and Scott was found not guilty. Had effort been made to ascertain if other whites at Prince Albert were mixed up in the case? As to the issue before the jury, a verdict of guilty would have been right, no matter how much of a political offence it was, no matter as to the mental condition of the prisoner's mind, of which much had been said on the insanity point, most of it altogether irrelevant. He disposed of Sir Alex. Campbell's argument that if Riel were insane he could not have done what he did and had so many followers, by quoting from authorities instances where persons laboring under religious, military and other delusions had gained control over and influenced large bodies of people. Unquestionably Riel had been insane. He was in Beauport from 1876 to 1878, when he was released with a sound mind. This was Dr. Roy's opinion. The same symptoms reasserted themselves in 1885. He quoted cases of a recurrence of insanity. The chances are three to one that if a man once becomes insane he will remain in that condition until he dies, and if he recovers, the recovery will only be temporary, and he will fall back into insanity again. Too much importance could not, therefore, be attached to the condition of Riel, prior to and during the outbreak, having regard to his previous insanity. His actions and speeches all went to show he was laboring under delusions when he took up arms. Father Andre's evidence showed that he was crazy on religion, believing himself to be a prophet and infallible. When the outbreak began he lost all control of himself and wanted to destroy the churches, and spoke wildly on political and national questions. He would destroy England, Canada, Italy and other countries, and build up new nationalities. Before the rebellion Riel went about with a large crucifix claiming to be inspired and asserting that Rome had fallen. He was going to divide territories among the Poles, Hungarians, Halfbreeds and Indians. His clear conclusion was from the imperfect evidence produced that there was overwhelming proof of great disorder of intellect on religious and political matters. Whether it was sufficient or not to warrant a verdict of acquittal minds would differ. Even if it was not serious enough to justify such a verdict, and the jury brought in a verdict of guilty, this by no means relieved the executive of its subsequent responsibility—(hear, hear)—about which so much had been said inside and outside the House. Criminal statistics of England and Wales showed that in the past five years only 48 per cent. of the capital sentences had been carried out. During four years in Ontario and Quebec 96 persons were charged with murder, 26 only been convicted and only half of these executed. This showed reluctance to convict and a tendency to acquit. In a capital case there were more sorts and shades of guilt than in other crimes. There was a most marked distinction between capital sentence and its execution and another sentence and its execution. It was not the rule to execute the capital sentence. The old law for high treason still prevailed, but the practice was to treat political offences more leniently than murder. Gentlemen argued that treason was a higher crime than murder, but he argued to the contrary. In England and France it was the executive that really fixed the punishment in capital cases, and in exercising the prerogative of mercy the executive was not limited as to extent. It could be used as to the recommendation of mercy. The practice in England invariably was to make a commutation of sentence. In this case it was unfortunate the jury was not asked by the judge what they meant by the recommendation. One of the jurors, whose name the speaker withheld, had written to him intimating to him that the jury considered the prisoner guilty and sane, but that the grievances of the halfbreeds were a sore provocation and the feeling among the jurors was that Sir John Macdonald, Sir David Macherson and Lieutenant-Colonel Dewdney should be arraigned as accessories. (Hear, hear from the Opposition and Ministerial groans.) Continuing Mr Blake argued that the authorities were unanimous on the point that a weakened intellect should not be held responsible for crime to the same extent as a sound mind. In all but capital cases clemency for a weakened intellect was regarded by the judge, and in a capital case by the executive. Clearly the executive had not discharged its duty in this respect towards the prisoner. He then took up the political nature of Riel's offence, which he regarded as one of resistance against the long-felt hardships and oppression experienced by the half-breeds at the hands of the Government. "God forbid," exclaimed he, "that Canadians should forget that the corner stone of liberty is the sacred right of resistance." Did the hon. gentleman opposite remember that resistance, made under King William the third of pious memory, founded the principles of civil and religious liberty. The sentiments of the Minister of Militia were retrogressive. He wished the government to rule everything, and it ill became him to taunt the Opposition with disloyalty when the very Minister of the Interior, under whose reign the rebellion broke out, signed in 1849 the annexation manifesto. (Hear, hear.) While he held the government guilty in the highest sense of neglect and mismanagement, he did not justify the rebellion, and so the question resolved itself into one of punishment. The government chose that the punishment should be Riel's death on the scaffold instead of their own death in the House. (Applause.) As to his attitude on the affairs of 1869-70, he still maintained that the death of Scott was a cruel murder, and the only point on which he had charged his mind since was that it was questionable whether at that time Riel's mind was evenly balanced. (Hear, hear.) He approved of and voted for his amnesty in 1875. How about the position of the Secretary of State at the time of the first rebellion and now? Then he defended Lepine, accused of Scott's murder, and in December, 1874, passed resolutions of sympathy and friendship with Riel as a compatriot. Now he sent him to the scaffold. Perhaps the hon. gentleman would explain the change at an early date.

Mr. Chapleau nodded his head.

Mr. Blake closed with a reference to his threatened political annihilation by the parties on the other side. He did not know whether or not his services were of any benefit to the country, but his principle of parliamentary representation was not that we should retain, but that we should deserve, public confidence. He regretted that the execution should have been allowed to take place, and therefore in favor of that view he must record his vote. (Loud applause.)

The Minister of Justice moved the adjournment of the debate.

The House adjourned at 12.40.

Local News.

HIS Honor Judge Drew arrived home from Ottawa Sunday morning.

A MEETING of the Curling Club will be held at the Secretary's Office this evening at 7.30.

J. A. LAMPREY, Estate, Agent, has closed the sale of John Iles' farm, in the plains of Puslinch, comprising 198 acres to David Gordon of said Township for $8,000.

W. STAHLSCHMIDT & Co., furniture manufacturers of Preston, Ont., have enquired of the Ottawa City Council what inducement would be offered them to remove to that city.

MR. A. A. ARMSTRONG, "Cranberry Farm," has purchased a pair of beautiful two year old chestnut colts from Mr. Jas. Griffith, of Eramosa. The price paid was somewhere in the neighborhood of $300.

THE G. T. R. Co. have given orders to station masters to enforce the rules regarding baggage storage. Each piece of baggage removed to the storeroom is therefore liable to the charge of 10 cents.

MR. GORDON SCOBELL, of Buffalo, auditor of the Buffalo and Lake Huron Railroad, has been visiting for a few days Mr. W. Philp and friends here. He left this morning for his home taking with him a partner for life.

WRITING upon the present fashion of killing feathered songsters in order to put their wings or bodies on hats, Oliver Wendell Holmes says: "Certainly I do feel the shame of the wanton destruction of our singing birds to feed the demands of a barbaric vanity.

FIRED BY LIGHTNING.—A fire occurred early Saturday morning on the premises of Mr. John Bond, near Puslinch Lake, destroying his driving shed with the entire contents, consisting of vehicles, implements, a quantity of wood, etc. Lightning is supposed to have been the cause. The loss is about $500, probably insured.

ATTRACTIONS AT THE RINK.—The Speed Skating Rink reopens Thursday night for roller skating, and is in first-class condition, the ice not having damaged it in the least. Among the attractions of the evening will be a polo match between the band and the Speed Club, also an obstacle race. The Guelph Band will furnish the music.

THE Grand Trunk railroad authorities are to erect a new depot at Montreal this summer that will cost between $300,000 and $400,000. Yet they cannot expend a few thousand to erect a comfortable passenger station at Guelph. As the present one stands, it is a disgrace to the city and also to the company.

BY REQUEST.—At the entertainment to be given by the Guelph Snowshoe and Toboggan Club on Tuesday evening next Mrs. Whitehead will sing by special request that beautiful Scotch ballad "Annie Laurie". It is evident that the engagement of Prof. Vallance and Mrs. Whitehead for this entertainment is a popular one, as an immense number of tickets have been sold. Those wishing a good seat should call at Pringle's at once and have them reserved. There are a number of good seats yet untaken, and as there is no extra charge for them they are soon to be snapped up.

FIRE IN EDEN MILLS.—Yesterday afternoon a fire occurred at Eden Mills in the house of Messrs. John and Harris Rouse. They had left to attend service in the Methodist Church. About half-past, two while Mr. James Willis was going to the same church, he observed flames issuing from near the chimney, and drove to the church and gave the alarm. Soon about forty willing hands were present, and after having secured all the pails possible set to work with a will, and finally succeed in quenching the flames, but not before the roof was burned off. A quantity of the furniture was burned and destroyed through removal. The loss is not known. Mr. Ed. Johnston, hotel-keeper, received a severe blow on the head by a pail falling from the roof, but fortunately escaped without serious injury.

SPECIAL SERVICES.—In accordance with the recommendation of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, many of the churches have been holding special services and Bible readings. In this connection the session of Chalmers' Church considered it advisable to hold such meetings, and on Sabbath afternoon the Rev. J. K. Smith, of Galt, who has been most successful in conducting these services elsewhere, gave a Bible reading in Chalmers' Church in the afternoon, and preached an excellent sermon in the evening on conversion. Both meetings were well attended, and the sermon in the evening was a masterly one and was listened to with rapt attention. After the regular service a meeting occupying about ten minutes, was held. It is intended to hold Bible readings in Chalmers' Church at four o'clock every afternoon this week, and a special meetings at 7:30 in the evening, to be conducted by Rev. Mr. Smith.

THE Ottawa Free Press now appears as a four-page, nine-column newspaper, or a thirty-six column newspaper in all. It is printed in clear type on a new press; and will contain many attractive features which have hitherto not appeared in its columns. This will give an increase equivalent to two pages of the former size. The Free Press has ever held a front place as a Canadian journal, and an exponent of Reform; and these changes, while they can add little to the present literary excellence of the Free Press lend to it a comliness refreshing to behold. No doubt the efforts of the proprietor, Mr. C. W. Mitchell, will be fully appreciated and encouraged by the large number of subscribers to that paper. From the energy and enterprise displayed it may be predicted that before long the Free Press will have again to enlarge.

LIGHT WEIGHT IN BUTTER.—The Herald of Saturday says:—"It would appear that the by-law providing against the sale of short weight butter is, as it now stands, a piece of impracticable legislation. This morning a woman was detected selling rolls under weight, but under the provisions of the by-law, it is stated, nothing could be done to her. Scales must be kept at the market that buyer and seller may at all times have access to them." With reference to this paragraph it might be said that the by-law itself provides fully a means for preventing people being deceived in the weight of butter, which they purchase, and scales are required to be kept in the butter market for the purpose of weighing butter, so that if any defect occurs, it is not in the by-law, but in the way of carrying it out.

AN OUTSIDE OPINION.—The Monetary Times has the following in reference to Guelph:—Guelph, on a winter market day, is a lively city. The way that loads of grain and hay, of pork and dairy produce, of cordwood, etc., come sliding in makes the heart of the shopkeeper to rejoice. Among the groups that throng the market place one may see imitations of Uncle Josh Whitcomb, or of Alvin Joslin, of the type of old Scotland rather rather than New England. But Guelph's activities are not confined to her streets or her market-place. A hum of employment is heard from the factories and mills. The People's Mills of Mr. Goldie, are making flour night and day at the rate of 450 barrels per day. W. Bell & Co's., organ factory, which to-day has 240 hands at work, turns out from 400 to 420 instruments per week. Raymond's sewing machine factory is well employed, J. B. Armstrong's carriage factory numbers seventy-five employees, Burr Brothers, who make furniture, are busy with orders. And so the list might be extended. Apropos of the Colonial Exhibition, the Royal City has arranged to send thither a handsome carved case containing a bird's eye view of her goodly self and some photographs of the principal buildings. Messrs. Bell & Co., send an exhibit of twenty-two organs, in a variety of styles suitable for school-room, church or parlor; ranging from the low-priced single reed up to the expensive double bank instrument. Mr. Goldie, we understand, despatches some samples of his well-known brands of flour. John McConnell sends a carriage, R. W. Ross a hand-knitting machine, J. B. Armstrong & Co., three carriages and two cutters. In the case of the latter, the maker has patented the application of tempered steel, a very durable material, to cutter running gears. The adjustable "jump-seat" is a feature of this firm's trade, and the exhibit shows this, as well as the footman boards on cutters, for the use of the "Jeames de la Pluches" of foreign aristocrats.

A DESPERATE MURDERER.

After Killing His Employer Disposes of Three Pursuers.

OMAHA, Neb., March 21.—H. C. Steadman, a prominent farmer of Burt County, proprietors of two creameries near the village of Lyons, yesterday afternoon discharged Ed. W. Johnson, alias John Anderson, a young man and a comparative stranger in the vicinity. Johnson thereupon picked a quarrel with Steadman, and without giving warning whipped out a revolver and shot him dead. Johnson secured a Winchester rifle and a large quantity of ammunition and, mounting a horse, started off. Constable Parker immediately organized a party armed with revolvers and gave pursuit, being joined by others along the way. They kept gaining on him and finally 12 miles south, near the farm of C. B. Johnson, a regular battle ensued. The murderer fired several shots in rapid succession, shooting Peter Johnson in the head, killing him instantly. He next shot C. B. Johnson fatally in the abdomen. His next shot killed Constable Parker's horse. This was followed by other shots, injuring some horses and grazing some of the men. Meantime the pursuers, whose numbers had largely increased, kept firing their revolvers but the desperado was out of their range. The crowd began to close in on him, when he finally jumped from his horse and running into a barn he opened a lively fire through the cracks and openings, and held the entire crowd, numbering over 100, at bay. They continued to shoot into the barn until dark, when it was proposed to burn him out, but no one would volunteer to fire the building. Late last night Sheriff Skinner arrived with a posse of ten men armed with Winchester rifles. This morning they opened fire again on the barn and the desperado responded. He guarded every side of the barn and no one dared to approach to set fire to it, as had been determined to do. A special train has been ordered to carry fifty men to the scene of the siege. At the last account, five o'clock Sunday afternoon, the desperado still held the fort.

CABINET DISSENSIONS.

Chamberlain and Trevelyan Still Kicking Over the Traces.

LONDON, March 20.—It is now expected that Mr. Gladstone's bill for the purchase of the Irish estates will be ready to be laid before parliament on April 5. If Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Trevelyan persist in their intention to withdraw from the Cabinet they will announce their retirement after Mr. Gladstone has formally asked leave to bring in the bill. The rumors that several other members of the ministry, including Mr. Morley, were prepared to follow Mr. Chamberlain, have today been officially denied by the gentlemen whose names were mentioned, but it is understood that Mr. Chamberlain still has assurance of considerable support from various quarters. He and others who oppose the general principle supposed to underlie Mr. Gladstone's plans, are preparing to stump the country with speeches denouncing the scheme, in anticipation of a new general election to follow its announcement in parliament.

This morning's Post believes that Mr. Bright is mediating between Mr. Gladstone and the Cabinet members, who threaten to resign.

The interview between John Bright and Mr. Gladstone to-day lasted two hours. When Mr. Bright departed, Mr. John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, had a conference with Mr. Gladstone, and the Premier and his Irish Secretary were in council together for a full hour and a half.

The News says if Mr. Gladstone's scheme fails coercion must again be enforced.

W. P. McLaren's drug and book stores, at Watford, were set on fire early Sunday morning. They had been entered and the tills ransacked and the bookstore set on fire. The stores were among the finest finished in Western Ontario. The stock, of about $8,500, is nearly a total loss. Stock and building were well insured.

P. B. Barclay, an elderly Inisfil grain merchant, was robbed of $50 in a house of ill fame in Toronto last week. Two soiled doves named Kate Fleming and Flossy Cooper, were arrested for the robbery and have been committed for trial.

A despatch was received on Saturday by the manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce in Toronto stating that the man Joe Elliott, arrested in New York last week, has been identified as the notorious Walter Gardiner who swindled Toronto banks in June, 1883, out of about $15,000.

The argument on the quo warranto proceedings to unseat Mayor Howland, on the ground of disqualification, took place at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, on Saturday, and judgment was reserved.

THE COLONIAL EXHIBITION.

The Council Decide to Keep Their $250 Case at Home.

THE WHY-FOR EXPLAINED.

A special meeting of the City Council was held at four o'clock on Saturday afternoon. Present, the Mayor in the chair, Ald. Chadwick, Keough, Bruce, Maddock, Coffee, Hewer, Smith, Hearn, Read, Hamilton, Husband, Skinner, Cutten, Hortop, Carter.

The Mayor stated that the object of the meeting was in reference to the exhibit to the Colonial. The Committee had held a meeting this morning on account of some dissatisfaction expressed by citizens. The Committee thought it well to refer the matter to the City Council, and hence the meeting. The plan laid out by the late Ald. Hall had been faithfully executed, and the frame was a fine piece of workmanship. The only thing in the frame that was taken exception to was the head which it was considered could be replaced by the Canadian coat of arms. With regard to the views Messrs. Marshall and Burgess, photographers, would not take them. Mr. Burgess had said that on account of the season it was impossible to get fine weather and he would injure his reputation by taking them as it was impossible to do so with any satisfaction. He understood that the Chairman, Ald. Hewer, had tried to get them taken in Toronto, and the photographers there had refused. The idea was to replace the winter scenes with spring ones as soon as possible and have them forwarded to the Colonial.

Ald. Chadwick thought the Mayor was out of order. All that he had to do was to explain the object of the meeting. It was for the Committee to explain matters.

Ald. Hewer then read the following report:—

The Special Committee on Colonial Exhibition beg leave to report as follows:—Your Committee have nearly completed the exhibit for the Colonial Exhibition to be held in London, Eng., this year. Notwithstanding that they have used the utmost economy they have expended all the money at their disposal. They have had great difficulty at this season of the year in having proper views taken. This, however, can be remedied in the spring by having others taken and substituted. We have expended the amounts to date:—For frame and carving, $150; sign writing, $49; pictures and views, $44; glass, frame work, and sundries, $15—total $258. To make some improvement and some new pictures to replace several of those now in the frame it will require about $60 more to complete it. Your Committee ask for this as a further appropriation.

Moved by Ald. Hewer, seconded by Ald. Husband, that the report be adopted.

Ald. Cutten desired to know if $60 was all that would be required for the proposed alterations.

Ald. Hewer said that the Committee had under consideration having a small description of the City printed in pamphlet form and sent over in the spring. A man from Toronto, who was doing this kind of work, had offered to do it at a small outlay. The Committee in getting up his exhibit had used all the economy they could, and as regarded the painting, carving and frame work he considered that it was a very satisfactory job and so did every one he had spoken to. There was some complaint about the photographs. He was not pleased with them himself, but under the circumstances, the time of year being unsuitable, it was impossible to get better. Mr. Dobereiner had gone to great pains to get good photographs and had even purchased a new instrument at a great outlay to fill the contract. As he remarked before the season was so bad that a good photograph could not be taken. The general view of the City had to be taken five times before anything like a presentable picture could be got; St. George's Church had been taken three or four times, and he had also tried St. Andrew's Church, but could not get close enough to it for the size of the frame. With reference to the private residences being exhibited, Mr. Dobereiner had been instructed by the late Ald. Hall to take pictures of these as he went along taking public buildings, and during that the photographs of some of these private residences were better executed than the public buildings it was decided to put them in the latter's place. Ald. Hewer stated that he had done everything he could to make the exhibit a success, and had spent a great deal of time over it, which would have been far more profitably employed attending to his own business.

Ald. Keough asked what special alterations were contemplated, to what extent, and for what purpose?

Ald. Hewer—Some of the gentlemen object to the names of Messrs. James & Co., and Mr. E. J. O'Brien, appearing in the frame. It was found that the space for the lettering on top was not sufficient, and a foot had to be taken off from the bottom for this purpose. This upset the calculations for the parts below and a space was left at the bottom. Ald. Hall had promised this space to Mr. James for advertising. It was considered that there would be no harm in this as it was customary for sign writers and manufacturers to put their names to their work.

Ald. Keough asked if this had been decided on why had it now been concluded to take the names of James and O'Brien off.

Ald. Hewer—The Committee at its meeting thought that these names were put there for advertising purposes.

Ald. Bruce objected to any additional expense. He thought the thing should go as it is with the exception of the head. He did not blame Ald. Hewer in the least, as he considered that he had done all that he could, and more than the Council could reasonably expect him to. It was the Committee who were to blame in not assisting him. In a case of this kind there were always a great many fault-finders. It was too bad that four or five private residences were shown and not one manufacturing institution. If the Committee had gone to Messrs. Gowdy, Raymond, Bell and other manufacturers, he had no doubt, but plates or photographs of their buildings would have been furnished them at once. As regarded the figure-head he would like to see it changed to something like an Indian or a Christian, at least something between a "Niggar" and an Indian. He did not see what Guelph had to do with a French habitant. He had no fault to find with the carving. $150 had been voted for this exhibit in the first place, then an extra $100 was granted, and now $30 more was asked for. He would say ship it and get it out of the way, and have no additional cost.

The Evening Mercury

MONDAY EVE'G MARCH 22, 1886.

LATTERLY the Dominion Government have not published the number of immigrants arriving in Canada each month. Are these to be cooked like many other returns? If not why are they suppressed?

REV. JAMES FREEMAN CLARKE thinks the greatest evil which can befall the people of a nation is to be taught to look for support to the help of the State. He says protection defeats its own aim. "When everything is protected it will be found that nothing is protected."

THE very large number of 787,110 letters were sent to the dead letter office at Ottawa during last year. This is much above the average, and is explained by the post office authorities to be partly due to the receipt of many letters vaguely and incorrectly addressed to foreigners imported by the Syndicate for working on the Canadian Pacific Railway.

THE investigation into the "Oregon" disaster will likely result in a general overhauling of the life-saving apparatus of steamships. It is not reassuring to hear that this vessel, one of the finest of the Atlantic fleet, did not carry sufficient life boats to accommodate her 1,000 passengers in such an emergency as overcame her. Had she sunk more quickly, or had the disaster occurred in mid-ocean, how many of those on board would have been saved? A disaster such as this should not be necessary to remind vessel owners of their duty to the public.

THE Irish Canadian is not yet satisfied with the management of the Central Prison. The Commission appointed to enquire into the charges brought against Mr. Massie exonerated him, and the Court of Assizes awarded a verdict against the Irish Canadian, with eight thousand dollars damages, and in favor of Mr. Massie; yet the paper is not satisfied. But it will require more than three columns a week of biased editorial to overweigh the decision of two impartial courts and the best thing the Canadian can do is to drop the matter before it gets over-excited and rushes into fresh trouble.

MR. O'CONNOR, M. P. P., called attention in the Legislature the other day to the law providing for the appointment of boards of arbitration for the settlement of labor disputes. It is singular that this act in the interests of workingmen, which has been on the Statute books since 1873, should never have been taken advantage of. The law gives conciliatory powers to boards of arbitration composed of an equal number of masters and workmen. Mr. Mowat in referring to the matter said; "A simpler, a more speedy, method of settling labor disputes could not be easily devised, and if employers and men would take the precaution of forming Arbitration Boards when no trouble exists, serious loss and difficulty would be avoided."

WE have not heard from the N. P. for a long time, says a Nova Scotia paper. The tall chimneys are not available for another campaign. Good times are not on hand according to contract. The great home market is decidedly dull. The great shams and frauds of the last campaign are torn and ragged, and there is nothing left for the country to gaze upon but the lean skeleton of Conservatism gnashing its toothless jaws and clutching with bony fingers at the spoils. It is some satisfaction to be able to add that the "clutching" days of Toryism will soon be over. It cannot be denied that they have made the most of their opportunities. The wretched state of the Dominion finances and the paralyzed condition of trade indicate with what inordinate greed they have devoured the substance of the country.

WE never hear of the Tories agitating for the power of appointing officials being taken from the Ottawa Government and placed in the hands of the municipalities. Yet there is just as much reason in saying that the appointment of a county court judge, or a customs collector, or a postmaster should be made by a county council, as there is in holding that a sheriff, or registrar, or license inspector, should be. The fact that they do not want the power of patronage taken from the Dominion authorities, while they advocate its being taken from the Local Government shows a deplorable want of sincerity in the matter. It is not the principle of the thing that they object to, but the trouble is that they have not got control of the appointments in Ontario as they have at Ottawa, and in view of their not being likely to have for some time to come, they are willing to do anything likely to weaken the power of the Provincial Government and Legislature. It is this desire that makes a section of the Conservative press contend so strongly for biennial sessions of the Legislature, and it is a good thing that federal encroachments of late years have taught the people the necessity of strengthening rather than diminishing the power of our Local Government.

IT is said the Conservatives have sent in to the Revising Barrister about 686 names to be placed on the new voters' list for the Dominion franchise, and that the Reformers have put in about 460, making a total of about 1,100 in all. It is believed that a number of names have been given in by the Conservatives which the Reformers can succeed in having struck off when the next court is held, while few if any votes on the Reform side will be erased, care having been exercised to accept only such names as were believed to be permanently admissable.

The Salvation Army.

To the Editor of the MERCURY.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me through your columns to call the attention of our Council to the promenading of the Salvation Army on the sidewalks. These people who pray to be seen of men call themselves soldiers. Their valour is now displayed by driving women and children off the sidewalks into the gutters. They aim at taking the side of the streets where they will cause the most annoyance and seem to be very happy when they can force unprotected children into the mud. Is there not a by-law prohibiting parades on the sidewalks? If so why is it not enforced? We want these people to have strict justice, what every other citizen wants. If they must march we ask that they keep the law. Our Council will do well to see that the rights of ninety-nine-one-hundreths of our citizens are not trampled upon by a few people.

Yours,
S. S. TEACHER.

Clear the Sidewalks.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Can not something be done to clear the sidewalk at the Post Office of its impassable crowds that gather there on Saturday nights, especially when "Roaring Rob" or "Shouting Bill" are holding forth? If these people want to listen to such eloquence on Saturday night they should take the street with these worthies themselves, and give people who are about their business a chance to pass through. If half-a-dozen young men stop in front of any place of business they are moved on. Why should the other be tolerated?

Yours, etc.,
CITIZEN.

Well Done Norfolk!

A peculiar announcement was made from the pulpit of Dublin Street Methodist Church a few Sundays ago. It caused many to shake their heads. It was considered almost audacious. "A cash collection of $3,000 will be asked for in two weeks from to-day!" Well everybody knows the result, over $500 in excess of the amount asked for was contributed. And now, Norfolk Street Church has just achieved a similar result. Think of it! "Hard times" is the general cry, and yet two only moderately wealthy churches are enabled to contribute within the course of a month over $7,000 in solid cash to wipe out certain liabilities.

Now, what does this show. 1st—That practical Christianity is not at all a thing of the past. 2nd—That "where there's a will there's a way," and that the most difficult tasks may be accomplished by clear heads, warm hearts and strong hands. 3rd—That churches as well as individuals are becoming more and more alive to the beauties of getting and keeping out of debt. The principle of "Cash down," "pay as you go," is growing. People believe in it. They daily see its benefits.

In the business world, the live, keen, close selling, no credit houses are the successful ones, and the old fogy ideas of big prices, long credits, heavy interest, duns and law suits are being driven to the wall.

How Lost, How Restored!

We have recently published a new edition of Dr. Culverwell's Celebrated Essay on the radical and permanent cure (without medicine) of Nervous Debility, Mental and Physical Incapacity, Impediments to Marriage, etc., resulting from excesses.

Price, in a sealed envelope, only 6 cents, or two postage stamps.

The celebrated author, in this admirable Essay, clearly demonstrates, from thirty years' successful practise, that alarming consequences may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicines or the use of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

CHAPTER XVIII.

RESURRECTION.

"It is nothing," she said at last, "only what you said about the accident. It must have been so awful, and I am not strong yet. I could not help thinking suppose I had been in that train instead of the other."

Mrs. Longworthy did her best to soothe her, secretly blaming herself for having been persuaded to tell so much. But in a few moments the girl rose from the couch and said she should go upstairs to her own room; she was tired and excited with what she had just heard, and she would rest better if she were alone.

Mrs. Longworthy let her go, but she looked anxiously after her as she left the room and was heard to slowly mount the stairs.

She was still sitting reproaching herself for her imprudence an hour later when the door opened and her husband came in.

She leaned her head back against the top of the chair as she recognized his step, and he put both hands lightly on her shoulders and kissed her gently on the forehead, saying—

"Well, wife, how have you been all day?"

"I have been well enough," she replied. "You will want tea; pull the bell to let Fanny know you are in, please, Rupert."

Mr. Longworthy rang the bell, and then stood upon the hearthrug with his hands behind his back, and let his keen dark eyes wander over his wife's pretty drawing-room.

The Reverend Rupert Longworthy was rector of Miller's Gate, and a man in every way fitted for the post. Of an old family, he was scholarly and cultivated in mind. His warm sympathies and sound common sense, united with a considerable fund of quiet humour, brought him the respect and affection of his parishioners. He was an indefatigable worker, being devoted to his work, and he grudged neither time nor trouble to his flock. He had been rector of Miller's Gate for twenty years, and knew his people as he was known of them. In appearance he was tall and rather portly, with a dignified carriage, and his face was both handsome and noble.

"Where is Mrs. Charming?" he asked after a pause, and speaking of Helen by the name he had invented for his own and his wife's use, so long as they were ignorant of the real name of their guest.

"Hush, Rupert!" said Mrs. Longworthy looking nervously round, though she knew Helen was nowhere near. "I am always afraid of her overhearing you, and I am sure she would be hurt if she knew you had given her a nickname."

"What else can I do?" expostulated her husband. "She has not told us her real name, and we must call her something when we speak of her. Besides there are nicknames and nicknames; I know very few people whom I should feel at all tempted to call Mrs. 'Charming,' it is a very pretty name, and she might be justly proud of it. But all this time you do not tell me where she is, and I want to know; I miss her."

Mrs. Longworthy smiled the quiet smile with which she greeted much of what her husband said. But her face became grave as she replied—

"She is upstairs in her own room. I am afraid I have been very foolish and imprudent to-day," she went on, looking up at her husband, who still stood on the hearthrug.

"We are none of us perfect. At the same time if you begin to be foolish and imprudent, who may hope to be free from those detestable vices? Seriously, though, what has happened? I hope you have not quarrelled."

"Really, Rupert!" was all the reproof he got. "She wanted very much to hear how everything happened, and you know what the doctor said?"

"I don't. I never have known. In spite of all the interest I took, I never could get either you or himself, or even Mrs. Charming, to tell me. You might have been brewing a conspiracy of the darkest dye from the secrecy you all observed."

"He said that if she really wanted to know I must tell her; it would do her more harm to be refused."

"In that case of course, you told her."

"Yes. I did it as gently as I could; but you know I always said I was afraid she would be very much distressed when I mentioned her temporary loss of memory; and so she was, almost more distressed than I had expected. She persisted in saying she had been altogether out of her mind, and in spite of all I said I saw she could not get rid of the impression. It was very painful, though I did my best, and said everything Dr. Holme had told me, so far as I could remember."

"Dear, dear," said the clergyman, rubbing his hands nervously together and knitting his eyebrows. "I am very sorry—very sorry indeed. I so particularly wished to avoid anything of that kind. Poor girl I am afraid it has upset her. Is there nothing you can do for her?"

"You remember my first idea was that you should tell her. I am sure you would have done it far better than I did. I always get nervous and begin to say wrong things, while you are so strong and yet so gentle. I am sure she would not have felt it nearly so much if she had heard it from you."

"Flattery from my wife is the thing I love best to hear," said the clergyman, again kissing his wife; "but at the same time, though it seems ungracious to disagree with you, I think you must have managed it better than I could have done. And so," he went on after a pause, "it has upset her so much she has had to go upstairs."

"It was not altogether that. She is so quick, you cannot think how she catches things up. I made an allusion to that other accident near Dewhurst you know, and she made me tell her all about it. It was that which seemed to make her ill; you never saw such a color as her face went, perfectly grey. I thought she would have fainted."

"That was surely odd. Did she give you no explanation?"

"Yes. She said how awful it must have been, and that she could not help thinking of what would have happened to her had she been in that train. It was quite natural I think. I cannot imagine what induced me to tell her about it, but it is so difficult to refuse anything she asks. But I can quite understand it."

"I can't" said her husband decidedly. "I should not be surprised if she were in some way connected with that train."

"How you jump at conclusions! Why should you suppose anything of the kind?"

"Why else should she have been so disturbed at your account of the accident? It is absurd to suppose that the mere imagining of herself to have been in it should move her so deeply."

"You cannot tell. After such an experience as hers, it must be long before the nerves return to their normal state."

"But why should she imagine herself in the train at all?"

"Really I cannot say. You had better ask her yourself. Such inquisitorial questions would come better from you than from me."

"I really think I had. You seem to learn nothing from her. Did she tell you her name this afternoon?"

"No. I think the things I told her put such a trifle out of her head."

"Trifle? It is no trifle. You don't think of the awkwardness of my position. You, of course, can call her 'my love' or 'my dear,' or anything else you like of the same kind. But since I do not know her name I can call her nothing, and such abruptness is painful to me. She has lived with us for twelve months, and we know no more about her than when she first came into the house."

Ald. Skinner said the Committee in commencing this undertaking had to go blindfold. It was easy to criticise a thing of this kind after it was finished. He would like to know what views were to be changed, and what views were to replace them. He would say ship it, and send summer views afterwards; yet at the same time he considered some views were there that ought not to be.

Ald. Chadwick said that he was one of those chiefly responsible, as he was on the Committee. There were some things which he objected to along with other citizens. One thing especially objected to was having the names of makers placed in the case as an advertisement. He considered that every citizen had the same right as Mr. James and Mr. O'Brien to advertise their business—no matter whether he was a designer or not. He was surprised that none of our manufactories were represented. Guelph should be represented as it is—not private residences like Ald. Hortop's. These private residences would look very small in the old country, compared with the grand residences and approaches which they were accustomed to see there. He repudiated that the Committee had any design on the Council, and did the best they could with the means at their disposal, and gave Ald Hewer credit for doing so. Where the chief difficulty came in was that the Committee did not ask for a quarter enough of money to represent Guelph in a proper manner. It was not in accordance with the greatness of the City to send such a small exhibit. He would be in favor of the additional grant.

Ald. Coffee was in favor of supporting the report. It seemed that it was considered part of the bargain that the designer's name should be on the frame and when such was the understanding the Council should carry out the arrangements of the Committee. If they did not it would be acting unfairly to these gentlemen.

Ald. Keough held if the names of the designers were obliterated it would be a censure on the Committee, and there was no time to change the exhibit now, if it was intended to be sent. Apparently the designers had, in consideration for work, stipulated that their names should be on the case. The design on the whole was creditable and the British Coat of Arms by Mr. O'Brien had won commendation from the Princess Louise and was considered a remarkably fine piece of carving.

On the question being asked what the $60 grant was for,

Ald. Hewer replied that it would cost some $10 to replace the head objected to with the Canadian coat of arms as proposed by the Committee; of the balance $25 was to compensate Messrs. James and O'Brien for erasing their names from the exhibit. Out of 30 places stipulated by the late Ald. Hall some 25 had been taken, among which were the principal factories and leading streets, but as he had stated before they could not be taken with satisfaction. The tender of Mr. Dobereiner was $1.50 for small sized views and $3 for large. That of Mr. Burgess and Mr. Marshall was $2 for the small and $3 for the large, consequently the tender of Mr. Dobereiner was accepted.

Ald. Keough asked if the Council had to turn around and bribe men to buy out their right of agreement. It seemed that such was the case or the Committee would not entertain giving Messrs. James and O'Brien some $30 for having their names taken from the exhibit. He thought it would be a disgrace to the city if they backed down on a duly understood bargain.

Ald. Husband thought the Committee had done the best they could under the circumstances. Although some things might be objectionable the exhibit was an excellent one, and for the amount of money was far ahead of Toronto's $1,000 exhibit. Ald. Hall apparently granted the privilege to James & Co. to put their names on their work, although he was not aware of it.

Ald. Carter objected to granting more money, and was in favor of allowing the exhibit to go as it was.

Ald. Hearn was of the same opinion as Ald. Carter. The exhibit would be of no great advantage to the city as all the manufacturers would have their exhibits there and advertise them fully. If the $250 spent on this thing had been appropriated on the streets it would have been money well spent. He thought the best thing to do was to keep the exhibit at home as a monument of the foolishness of the Council.

Ald. Read was opposed to more money, contending that there was not value given for the photographs, which were not fit to be sent out. Such views were a disgrace to the city. The specifications of the Government, and they knew what was desired, was for pictures about 22 by 18, while these were about 9 by 6½ inches.

Ald. Smith was not in favor of granting any more money, yet if the alterations spoken of would only cost $25 or $30 he would not object so much. He considered it would be unwise to erase the names spoken of.

Ald. Hortop thought it was a mistake to place private residences in the exhibit. He would not object to spending a few more dollars and send the thing right.

Ald. Keough, Maddock, Skinner and others spoke, when the following resolutions were put:

Moved in amendment to the adoption of the report by Ald. Skinner, seconded by Ald. Smith, that $40 be placed to the credit of the Special Committee in place of the $60 asked for.

Moved in amendment to the amendment by Ald. Keough, seconded by Ald. Bruce, that the frame and case intended for the Colonial Exhibition, be forwarded as it is with the exception of the head.

The amendment to the amendment was put first, seven voting for it and 7 against. Two only voted for the amendment, and five for the original motion. A vote was taken against the original motion, nine voting that way.

His Worship declared neither of the motions carried, as they had not obtained a majority of votes of the Council.

Ald. Keough did not think it required a majority of the Council to carry a resolution of this kind.

The Mayor said that it would take nine.

Moved by Ald. Chadwick, seconded by Ald. Maddock, that the Special Committee appointed on the Colonial Exhibition be instructed to withhold any exhibit that they had prepared to be forwarded to the exhibition to be held in England this season.

Moved in amendment by Ald. Keough, seconded by Ald. Bruce, that the exhibit intended for the Colonial be forwarded as it is.

The amendment was lost, five voting for it, and the motion to withhold the exhibit was carried by a vote of 8 to 7.

Ald Coffee called for the yeas and nays. It was held that he was too late before he asked for them, hence they were not taken.

The Council then adjourned.

THE GUELPH BATTERIES.

Their Efficiency as Shown by the Inspector's of Artillery.

In addition to the general reports of the Inspectors of Artillery upon the condition of batteries, there is each year prepared a detailed report showing the respective standard of efficiency of each battery in respect of the different details which go to make up the general efficiency of the corps. Those details as made up for the year 1885 show that, leaving out one-fifth of the total score made at competitive practice, which is always added to the competition for the Governor General's prize for general efficiency, No. 1 Field Battery, Guelph, stands at the head of the list, and No. 2 Field Battery exactly ties the Montreal Field Battery, which latter, however, by the addition of one-fifth of the excellent score made by it at practice, becomes the winner of the Governor General's Cup. The Guelph batteries obtained for the condition of their clothing and accoutrements, respectively, nine and eight points out of 12, for gun carriages and equipments 9 and 6 points out of 12, for the condition of their horses, each battery obtained 8 points out of 12, for the condition of their harness and harnessing, 14 and 12 points out of 16, for marching past No. 1 Battery obtained the maximum of 15 points, and No. 2, 12 points, for standing gun drill and general duties each battery obtained 23 points out of 28, for answers to questions by officers each battery obtained the maximum number of points, 40, for answers to questions by non-commissioned officers the batteries obtained, respectively, 44.5 and 40 points out of 48, for field manœuvres 15 and 14 points out of 16, for sword drill mounted 5 each out of 8, while for dismounting and disabled ordnance and discipline and camp detail each battery received the maximum number of points, 12. The one-fifth of the total score of each of the batteries 91.6 and 95.2 respectively, make the total score of No. 1 Field Battery 299.1, and of No. 2 Field Battery 287.2, and the general result of the whole competition places the Montreal Field Battery first with 308.4 points, No. 1 Field Battery second with 299.1 points, the Quebec Field Battery third with 292.7, of which one-fifth of their total score amounted to no less than 107.2, and No. 2 Field Battery fourth with a total score of 287.2.

It is to be observed that Major Hood's battery, which only gets six points for condition of guns, carriages and equipments, is yet armed with an obsolete and comparatively useless gun, and is the only battery in the Dominion which is now armed with the bronze nine pounder smooth bore, which it is hoped the Department will be in a position to replace this year by rifle guns of a superior pattern.

It is to be observed that in answer to questions by officers these two batteries and the Hamilton Field Battery obtained the highest number of points and that No. 1 Field Battery obtained the highest number of points obtained by any battery in the Dominion for answers to questions of non-commissioned officers, the Hamilton Battery being second, and No. 2 Field Battery third in that respect, and these particular credits are especially referred to as indicating the diligence with which the officers and non-commissioned officers must have attended to the detail of duties laid out of them.

In the Garrison Artillery, No. 2 Garrison Battery, Prince Edward Island, has won the Governor-General's cup for general efficiency by a total of 108, the Toronto Garrison Battery standing second with a total of 101.

Annual Stock Taking Sale

FOR 12 DAYS ONLY.

Having completed our annual stock-taking, we commenced on the 15th inst. a Clearing out Sale of last Season's Goods at nominal prices.

We do not believe in the old exploded dodge of making our customers believe that we are selling goods below cost price, or that we are giving goods away for nothing. WE CONDUCT OUR BUSINESS TO MAKE MONEY; our THEORY AND PRACTICE are that small profits yield large sales, and give us contented customers.

Experienced buyers are not slow in finding out the best place to purchase, and no amount of windy advertisements and newspaper puffing, will induce them to purchase unless the goods are of sterling quality, fashionable and cheap.

We solicit this class of buyers. Call and see what we mean by a clearing sale. To continue twelve days—from the 15 th to the 27th.

Trade Depression.

No. II.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—I see by placards that there is to be a public meeting in the City Hall on Wednesday evening to consider the labor-question. That there is widespread depression in trade, thousands of men at this side the Atlantic, and thousands at the other who are able and willing to work, but cannot get work to do, feel by bitter experience is a truth that cannot be refuted. The question now should be what are the causes of this depression? The speeches at the meeting may mention others; be it so, still facts remain. 1st cause, misuse of money. At the lowest estimate at least twenty-five millions of dollars are each year being spent in the Dominion of Canada in the purchase of intoxicating liquors; and another million in the purchase of tobacco; the manufacturing of these liquors, and of that tobacco gives but little employment, compared with what wohld be given were that money spent to buy food, clothing, dwellings, furniture, and a thousand other things that tend to make the homes of the people of Canada what each and all of them should be,—healthy, comfortable dwelling places. In proof of the above statement, the Caledonian distillery, in Edinburgh, Scotland, turned out spirits selling for ¼ million pounds sterling a year, and employed only 150 men and boys; while the same sum spent in steel, and cotton works, would employ from 6,000 to 7,000 hands; and they in their turn, would employ thousands more; spending money for intoxicating drinks, and tobacco, makes the makers and sellers rich, but the buyers poor for the simple reason—the buyer is fooled, he has next to no value for his money.

A short time since the editor of a Ohio newspaper, that had a large circulation, and who had written and published much in his paper against prohibition went to Maine to see for himself the result of prohibition. What did he see? In Saccarappa, a manufacturing village of 4,000 inhabitants, six miles from Portland, he saw signs of industry, thrift, prosperity, everywhere. Large shops with handsome fronts, plate glass windows and tasteful displays of goods of various kinds; handsome school-houses; churches in good style of architecture; nice private dwellings; mechanics shops where everybody seemed to be busy; all these buildings of whatever kind, in excellent repair,—signs of neglect, dilapidation, decay, nowhere. From Saccarappa he drove to Cumberland Mills, a village of about the same size as Saccarappa; said to be the largest paper works in the world. What did he see there? He saw one of the nicest, prettiest villages in the United States. There is not a house or building of wood in the village that is not nicely painted; and everything is in perfect repair. The workmen's houses have about them little lawns, and beds of flowers all well kept. Every house is well drained and supplied with excellent water. The churches and school houses are models of good taste, all in the best condition, and there is a handsome town hall. The result of his personal investigation of the results of prohibition was, he exclaimed, "I am converted; I go for prohibition; for pulverising the rum power" and from that day his paper with a great circulation, and a wide influence, has gone against the liquor traffic. I address this to argue that money properly spent not only benefits the spender, but the entire community; fine churches and school houses; comfortable, nicely kept dwellings, and surroundings, mean much money spent among all kinds of mechanics, laborers and business men. The liquor traffic is Canada's curse; a very millstone about our necks; put an end to it, and this young giant Dominion will in a marvellously short time emancipate itself from the other things that tead to make and keep the people unemployed and poor. In this communication I have confined myself to one factor in the problem of trade depression. There are other factors in that problem. More anon.

Guelph, Mar. 22. OBSERVER.

Local News.

PROF. VALLANCE in the City Hall to-night.

THE through express from the east was an hour and a half late to-day.

MR. A. A. Carlton will deliver a lecture in the City Hall to-morrow night on "Capital and Labor." Lecture free.

THE sacred concert to be held in the Norfolk street church on Monday evening, the 29th, promises to be one of rare excellence. d2

ONE of the best readings to be given by Prof. Vallance to-night will be at the commencement of the programme. Those who desire to hear it should go early.

THE vivid flash of lightning which startled the whole town about six o'clock Saturday morning, struck the swamp near Birmingham's lime kilns, St. Patrick's Ward. Some shattered poles attest the fury of the shock.

POLICE COURT.—The Police Magistrate, so far as his duties at the Police Court are concerned, has enjoyed a period of repose for the past few days, little of note having come before him for deliberation or expatiation since the Coughlin case, with the exception probably of a couple of drunks.

LOCAL NEWS.—The Kingston Whig very sensibly remarks:—"Sprightly correspondence to a local paper is a help to the people of the vicinity represented. It advertises it in other sections of the country, attracts buyers and agents from other places, increases competition and cheapens necessaries, and adds to the importance of the place to a far greater extent than is commonly supposed."

WATERLOO PEDDLERS' BY-LAW.—We are informed that a test case is likely to be submitted to the courts regarding the legality of the peddlers' by-law recently passed in this county. On Tuesday last an agent of a tailoring firm in London was brought before the Mayor of Galt on the charge of an infraction of the provisions of the by-law, and was fined $25. He said he would appeal: but whether he will or not remains to be seen.

LOOK OUT FOR SWINDLERS.—Two men called upon a farmer in the neighborhood of Tavistock recently, offering seed wheat for sale. The farmer agreed to take some, but just as he was going to sign his name to the printed form of agreement the men produced, he noticed that the line upon which he was going to write his name was not on the agreement paper, but upon another sheet cunningly placed underneath it. He picked up the papers, pulled them apart and discovered that he would have put his name to a note of hand for $300 if he had signed.

AS TO POISONING SPARROWS.—The Toronto World says:—It is proposed to kill off, with poisoned crumbs, the English sparrows which have bravely weathered the intense cold and deep snows of this unusually bitter winter. Why? Because these pugnacious little scavengers are said to be driving away our native birds. Yesterday an observer counted the remains of over twenty of our most attractive New England birds sewed to the hedgear of the women who were riding into town in a horse-car. If poisoned bread is to be fed to the worst enemies of our birds, milliners and their customers would better live on crackers.

AN OLD GUELPH BOY.—The Canadian American has the following in reference to an old Guelph boy:—Allan McCulloch, wholesale and retail bread, pie and biscuit manufacturer, has one of the largest and best equipped bakeries in Chicago. He came to Chicago from Guelph, Ont., when but thirteen years of age, and by his own perseverance and industry has acquired a handsome competency. The premises occupied by him on State Street are spacious and commodious. The bakery is well arranged, and is equipped with all the most improved and modern machinery and appliances; employment being given to thirty hands. The quality of the bread, cake, crackers, biscuits and pies turned out is unsurpassed. Mr. McCulloch has now an excellent name in mercantile circles.

THE WRECK OF THE "OREGON."—We have received through Mr. Jas. Barclay, of "Blair Athol" farm, Waterloo, a long and interesting description of the "Oregon" disaster, written by his brother, Mr. Samuel Barclay. This gentleman, who was a passenger by the ill-fated vessel, is a member of the firm of Barclay & Brand, Glasgow, and also of that of Barclay, McGregor & Co., New York, wholesale sugar brokers, and was on his way out to this country in connection with his New York business, when the accident occurred. Owing to lack of space we are compelled to hold over this interesting letter just now, but it will appear in another issue and the vivid description given cannot fail to absorb the attention of the reader.

Oil in Egypt.

LONDON, March 22.—The discovery of an oil field in Upper Egypt has attracted attention here. The Times correspondent at Suez says that even with the present extremely crude system of lifting the petroleum to the surface there has been obtained from a single well as much as 12 to 15 barrels a day. The territory is not far from the Red Sea coast and is described as easily accessible.

The Government survey of the Egyptian territory wherein petroleum was recently discovered, has revealed the fact that the geological formation of the district indicates the existence of a large oil field. The authorities have ordered a number of borings to be immediately made for the purpose of defining the field, and have set about developing the yield of the petroleum on the largest possible scale.

THE MARKET.—The roads in the country are in a very bad condition at present. There was little grain for sale but quite a quantity of hay and a good offering of hogs.

The Salvation Army.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—S. S. Teacher must be something of the Pharisee, who said, "I thank thee," &c., otherwise he would not be so ready to judge the Salvation Army of wanting to be seen of men. I suppose "Teacher" would not trouble himself if it was a minstrel troupe who were parading the sidewalks, but because these people are an instrument capable of doing good, and saving souls that the churches would never reach, they have to be subjected to all sorts of insults. I am sure if the women and children had minded where they were going they need not have gone off the sidewalk; but perhaps they were something like teacher—did not wish to contaminate with such people.

Teacher should go to the barracks and hear some of the testimonies, which ought to convince him that for the sake of certain men in the Army, he would never say a word against them again. I am not a member of that worthy body, neither have I any thought of becoming one, but I go there sometimes and always enjoy their meetings. If there was anything done it ought to be protection to the Army, to aid them in keeping proper order. The conduct of boys and girls, yes, and some men, in the barracks is a burning shame to the families they belong to, and to some who think they are somebody.

I would like to ask "Citizen" if the sidewalk on Saturday night was not always crowded at a certain time before the Army came to Guelph. It is nothing new for people to get jostled about on a Saturday night by a walking or a gossiping crowd. But anyway it is only common people that have so much business to do on that night, so what does it matter to "Citizen," and is it not better for those men to be shouting for God instead of the Devil? I believe these people are an instrument in God's hand, and no one who calls himself a Christian should say aught against the Army. They always put me in mind of the parable of the King's feast, that is in going out into the highways.

Yours,
SYMPATHIZER.

Address and Presentation.

To Mr. A. McBean on His Removal to Woodstock.

Mr. A. McBean, formerly a well-known hardware merchant of this city a few months ago sold out his hardware business to Messrs. Harvey & Co., Harriston, and sometime afterwards purchased another business in Woodstock, which he took possession of a few weeks ago. During the twelve years that Mr. McBean carried on business in Guelph he was characterized for his honesty and straightforwardness in all his transactions, and not only won for himself the esteem of those with whom he had more immediate connection in his social and business relations, but with the public generally. As an evidence of this good feeling about fifty of the business men and young men of the city met last night in the large oyster parlor of Mr. George Williams, baker and confectioner, Upper Wyndham street, and tendered Mr. McBean a complimentary supper, an address and presentation. The supper was got up with taste and skill and reflected credit on Mr. George Williams and his assistants. The tables were laden with fruits, sweetmeats, and every requisite necessary for a first-class oyster supper. The cup that cheers was dispensed with, and all the toasts were drank with cold water.

The chair was occupied by Col. Higinbotham, on his right was the guest of the evening, and W. Jones, on his left Mayor Stevenson and Post master Stirton. The vice chair was occupied by W. Tytler, Principal of the Guelph Schools. On his right W. Anderson, and on his left G. W. Field.

Among those present were noticed Ald. Husband, A. J. Little, P. Spragge, James Cormack, J. D. Williamson, A. Bruce, Geo. Howard, Hugh McMillan, W. Higinbotham, J. A. Nelles, H. Gummer, G. D. Pringle, Chief Randall, W. Campbell, R. Gemmell, Wm. McCandless, J. J. Kelso, and a number of others.

After ample justice had been done to the spread, Col. Higinbotham rose and proposed the toast of the "Queen," which was honored by the company singing God Save the Queen.

The toast of the Governor-General was next given and responded to by Mr. Diamond singing an "Irishman's Toast," which he did with excellent effect, Mr. H. McLellan playing the accompaniment with his usual taste to this and other songs during the evening.

A letter was here read from Principal Mills, regretting his inability to be present, after expecting to be on hand. The letter paid a high tribute to Mr. McBean, as an honest, straightforward business man and a thorough and consistant Christian.

The chairman thoroughly agreed with the sentiments expressed in Principal Mills' letter. The removal of Mr. McBean from our midst was cutting a social and commercial cord which would leave a space hard to fill. All who knew Mr. McBean only knew him to admire him, and the longer one was acquainted with him still more was he admired. He was a man of honesty and integrity, and the speaker hoped he would draw around him as many warm friends in Woodstock as he had left behind him. His character and disposition deserved more than he had ever gained here. Had it not been for Mr. McBean's native modesty he would perhaps have been more popular in Guelph than he was. He was a young man which could be held up as a worthy example to other young men. Another thing was that whenever Mr. McBean was wanted it was always known where he was to be found.

Col. Higinbotham then called on Mr. Wm. Anderson to read the following address:—

To Mr. A. McBean:

DEAR SIR,—It was with much regret that your numerous friends in Guelph learned of your intended departure from their midst to take up your abode in another place; and they feel that some public token of this regret, and of the general respect and esteem in which you are held by the community should not be wanting. They have, therefore, asked you to be present here this evening, in order to testify in this public manner to the high position which you hold in the estimation of all classes of our citizens the general sorrow that you are no longer to reside amongst us, and their earnest and heartfelt wishes for your future happiness and success.

During the many years that you have been known to the people of this city, you have, by your many estimable qualities, by your honorable, public-spirited and consistent conduct in all the relations of life, earned, and justly earned, for yourself, the good opinion of your fellow-citizens in general, and, in addition to this, the warm personal regard of many of those with whom you have been brought into more immediate contact in business and in social life. We know that your removal is deeply regretted by the community at large, while, to your more intimate friends, your departure from Guelph comes with all the weight of a personal loss.

In many circles of various kinds, public and private, your presence, and your counsel and conversation will be greatly missed. Your influence and your efforts have ever been exerted on the side of right and honor and integrity, and the cordial readiness with which your assistance has at all times been given has rendered your services doubly valuable and doubly valued. This influence and these services are now to be transferred to another sphere, and we feel assured that, in your new home, they will soon exert for you their legitimate power, and win for you a large share of respect and honorable regard from those among whom you dwell. That this may be so is our earnest prayer; and, at the same time, we express our most sincere hope that your business relations in your new field may be satisfactory and prosperous to the extent of your highest wish.

We say "Good Bye" with many regrets, and with many heartfelt wishes that all blessings may attend you. Though you are no longer to be a citizen of Guelph, we shall hope frequently to see you, and so inquire personally of your welfare.

As a memento of your long residence in the Royal City and as a visible token of the many warm friends you leave behind you, this writing desk is offered for your acceptance. While you strive earnestly and successfully to obtain an honoured place in the regard and esteem of those among whom you are now to live, let it remind you that old friends are not the worst, and let its purpose induce you to send to some of us, at least, frequent and satisfactory intelligence of your continued and ever-increasing happiness and prosperity.

The address was signed by nearly all present.

The presentation was made by Mr. Wm. Jones, and consisted of a large and handsome writing desk, purchased from the jewellery establishment of Mr. B. Savage. A brass plate on the lid bore the following inscription:

Presented to A. McBean, Esq., by his Guelph friends, March 22nd, 1886. The case contained a fancy gold pen and holder, silver-plated ink bottles and every requisite in connection with an article of this kind.

The address was got up at the Business College, and the manner in which it was executed reflects the highest credit on that institution.

Mr. McBean appeared to be taken back by the presentation. He could not find words to thank the company for their kind address and the handsome mark of their esteem. He had received intimation to meet a few of his old friends, but he had no idea that the gathering was to be nearly so large, nor affairs to take the turn they had. Not being in the habit of making speeches he was at a loss how to express himself. It had been nearly twelve years since he started business in Guelph, and then he had not the least idea that he would make so many warm friends, nor did he expect to make so many again in that time. The address had been flattering indeed, and he noticed that none of his weakness was mentioned. When he listened to it he felt somewhat like one who was resurrected might be supposed to feel on reading his obituary notice containing all his good qualities. Circumstances compelled him to leave Guelph. Six months ago he had no intention of doing so, but afterwards received an offer for his business which was accepted. Then he had to look around for something to do and purchased the store in Woodstock, as they were all aware. He was not far away and would look with interest to everything that pertained to the interest of Guelph. He again thanked those present for their kindness, remarking that it was hard to say good-bye under the circumstances.

Mr. Wm. Tytler, vice-chairman, in proposing "The British Arms," took occasion to refer to the many good qualities of Mr. McBean. This toast was briefly acknowledged by Col. Higinbotham and Lieut. Higinbotham, who made a neat speech and recited with considerable spirit and taste one version of the "Charge of the Light Brigade."

Mr. Geo. Howard proposed "The Senate and Houses of Parliament," also paying a compliment to the guest of the evening, together with the respondents to the toast, Messrs. Stirton, J. McLean, and J. W. Field, all of whom made able speeches.

"Our Country" was responded to by Chief Randall in a humorous strain, and by Mr. Harley, who sang very well, "Our Jack's Come Home Again."

Mr. Hugh Guthrie proposed the toast of the learned professions which was acknowledged by Messrs. J. Mowat and H. McMillan.

Mr. G. D. Pringle gave the toast of the "Agricultural interests," coupled with the names of Messrs. McCandless and A. Bruce, both gentleman honouring it.

The "Royal City" was proposed by Mr. McBean. Mayor Stevenson, Ald. Smith and Husband spoke to the toast.

"The mercantile interests." Mr. W. A. Higinbotham proposed this toast, and suitable responses came from Messrs. J. D. Williamson, George Howard, and W. Anderson.

"The Press" was proposed by Mr. Howard, and responded to by representatives present.

Mr. Harley proposed "The Sporting Fraternity," which brought speeches from Messrs. Griffin and Ald. Husband.

"The Ladies" was honored by two speeches from Messrs. W. Brasby and Hugh Guthrie.

During the evening songs were sung by Messrs. Harley, Jones and Dymond, and recitations by Messrs. Brasby and Higinbotham, all of which were well received.

The party broke up by singing God Save the Queen.

Presentation to Mr. W. J. Sparkman.

Last evening Mr. W. J. Sparkman, upholsterer and furniture dealer, was called away from his store about half-past seven o'clock on what was represented to him as most urgent business. He threw on his coat, locked up his premises and followed his guides to the residence of Mrs. Robert Taylor, George street, where he was surprised to meet some twenty of the members of the Canadian Order of Foresters, who immediately took him in hand and Mr. Wm. Mann read the following address:

Guelph, March 22, 1886.

To W. J. Sparkman:

DEAR SIR,—We, your brethern of Court Grove No. 69, Canadian Order of Foresters, having heard that you are about to remove to Toronto and feeling that we are indebted to you for the assistance that you have rendered to Forestry in this City, cannot allow you to leave without expressing in some manner our appreciation of your services. We, therefore, ask you to accept the accompanying gift as a slight token of our esteem. One and all we wish you Godspeed, and that you will be successful in the Queen City of the West is the sincerest wish of your brother Foresters in Guelph.

W M MANN, Rec. Secretary. JAS RAVEN, Chief Ranger.

Mr. Sparkman, although altogether taken by surprise, made a short and fitting reply, thanking his friends for the address and their present.

The presentation was made by Dr. Cowan, and consisted of a handsome Forester's pin.

The company afterwards sat down to a first-class oyster supper got up by Mrs. Taylor. The spread for excellence and variety would have been hard to surpass, for which the hostess deserves credit.

Afterwards a social time was enjoyed until nearly twelve o'clock. Speeches were made by Messrs. Mann, Hughes, Dr. Cowan and others, and songs were sung by Messrs. Weir, Mann, Crewster and Sparkman. A very pleasant evening on the whole was spent.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, March 22.

In the Commons to-day the whole day was taken up with speeches on the Riel question, Mr. Thompson, the new Minister of Justice, and Mr. Mills being the only speakers. Mr. Thompson made his maiden speech lasting five hours, dealing with the legal aspects of the case. Mr. Mills spoke in the same phase against the Government. Sir H. Langevin said he hoped the debate would end on Wednesday. Dr. Orton has the floor.

The Evening Mercury

TUESDAY EVE'G MARCH 23, 1886.

Mr. Blake's Speech.

If Mr. Laurier's great speech on the Riel question on Tuesday was a splendid specimen of oratory, Mr. Blake's speech on Friday was an equally wonderful legal effort. For five hours and a half he held the attention of the House while he presented to it a mass of information and a chain of argument which showed him to be a master in special pleading. In his introduction he took care to disabuse the minds of the Tories in and out of the House of the impression, which they thought to spread abroad, that he and his followers intended to make this a party question. He stated that in giving his views on this subject he alone was responsible for them, and that each of his followers was at perfect liberty to speak or vote independent of party ties. We are not surprised that the Government supporters received this announcement with derisive shouts, for, as Mr. Blake well said, they could not understand how on this or on any question they could free themselves from the tyrannical dictation of their leader, who tolerates no independence in either voice or vote. Looking at the matter in all its bearings we think that this position assumed by Mr. Blake is the right one. Neither the rebellion, nor the part that Riel played in it, nor his trial, nor his execution is in any sense a party question. In saying this, of course, our readers will clearly understand that these are altogether separate from the bad policy of the Government which led up to, and caused, the rebellion. That of course is a party question, and is a legitimate subject of discussion in and out of Parliament. But when the rebellion was crushed, when Riel was a prisoner, and when he was brought to trial for his crimes, then his case was removed from the arena of politics and became one for the Courts and Executive to deal with. Considering the nature of the testimony produced at the trial, with what has subsequently been made public, and considering too the immense amount of writing of a most contradictory character which has flooded the press since his execution, we are not surprised that members of Parliament, as well as people generally, should form contradictory opinions, and come to different conclusions on the subject. And the more that is written and spoken on it the more confused people are apt to get. Mr. Blake, while exercising his right to express his own views on the case, fully acknowledged and conceded the same right to his colleagues. Some will, no doubt, fall in with his views. Some again will come to the conclusion, considering all the circumstances, that it was right to hang Riel, while others it may be, unable to come to a decision either the one way or the other will refrain from voting altogether, and they will be justified in doing so if after hearing all that can be said on both sides they cannot come to a conscientious finding on the question.

It is needless for us here to go over the ground covered by Mr. Blake in his long and exhaustive speech. His chief contention in support of Mr. Landry's motion was that Riel was so constituted mentally as to render him not responsible for his actions. He quoted a great many authorities on this point, both legal and medical, which went to show that people of Riel's cast of mind were more or less under the influence of hallucinations, which impelled them to say and do things totally at variance with what they would do with a well balanced mind. If he failed to prove this in the case of Riel he at least made a powerful argument in that direction. In fact throughout the whole of his speech he brought forward a mass of circumstantial evidence strongly in support of the view he took of the case. In coming to the conclusion he had done he did not disguise from himself the misconceptions that might arise from the position he had taken, and the injurious results which might possibly affect him individually in consequence thereof. We think he is mistaken in this, for no one, however widely they may differ from him in their view of this whole case, can fail to admire the courage and candour of one occupying his position in referring to it in the way in which he did. In closing this remarkable speech he thus spoke of himself, his position, his responsibility, his conviction, and the high ideal he had formed of his public duties:—"His opinion was that a great wrong had been done and a grave blow inflicted upon the correct administration of criminal justice in this country, and for this the Executive were responsible. Many persons for whom he had the highest respect had been unable to reach the same opinion as he had, but he blamed no one. He had been threatened with political annihilation on this question, and so far he agreed with those who opposed him that the vote he was about to give was an inexpedient one, and if politics were a game, it would be a false move. But it could be said of no one, and least of all of himself, that his continued occupation of a share of public confidence, of the lead of a party, or of a seat in Parliament, was essential or even highly important to the public interest, while it must be said of all that was needed was not that they should retain but that they should deserve public confidence; not that they should keep, but that while they did keep them, they should honestly use their seats in Parliament. To act otherwise would be to grasp at the shadow and lose the substance. We might be wrong; we must be true. We should be prepared to end, but resolved to keep unstained our public careers. He was unable honestly to differ from the view that it was deeply to be regretted that this execution should have been allowed to take place, and therefore in favour of that view he must record his vote."

MR. J. J. CURRAN, the Irish Roman Catholic member of Montreal, is being severely taken to task by the Post of that city for his very injudicious speech on the Riel question. It charges that in his remarks he insulted Archbishop Tache in stating that that prelate had published a letter after Riel's execution in which he questioned the soundness of his mental condition, but that at the trial he would not go and give evidence that he believed Riel to be insane. Mr. Curran also made other equally stupid and foolhardy statements for which he is being sharply called to account, and which must seriously damage him with his constituents who are astonished at the length he went in excusing and defending the Government.

Among all the admissions made by the Government in this wretched Riel business, the most damaging to them are those relating to the reports of the Medical Commission. It has been clearly established that the Privy Council came to the decision on the 12th November that Riel should be executed. The reports of the three doctors were not received until after that date. They were telegraphed in cipher, then written out in full and sent by mail to Ottawa, after which the cipher despatches were returned to them. The question naturally arises, why were they returned? This action on the part of the Government naturally gives rise to a suspicion that the written reports and the cipher telegrams were not identically the same. Perhaps they were and perhaps they were not. The course all through of the Government in this gives rise to the suspicion that they were not, that in fact they were so worded as to justify the Government in going on with the execution. The Government cannot complain that this charge is made, for they did not act fair and above board with Parliament and the country as they ought to have done in a matter of this kind involving a man's death, and especially when such an excitement prevailed in reference to it. If there had been no discrepancy between the telegrams and the written report there was no need for the Government returning the first, and they ought to have kept them for their own justification. But viewing the whole matter as given to Parliament, it does look as if the execution was determined upon in spite of the telegrams.

The Montreal Herald, in referring to the dissatisfaction of the London Canadian Gazette at the reception extended in the British House of Commons to the grant for the medals to the Canadian volunteers, says:—"The Herald has already commented upon the tone of the discussion, and has spoken freely of the folly which prompted the Canadian Government to apply to the Imperial Government for these medals. We have already stated that it was not a Royal medal, but such a medal as the Canadian people would think best to give, that was originally suggested and that was looked for by the volunteers. While the discussion was certainly of a character to make Canadians blush, their anger will be directed rather against the short-sightedness of their own Government for placing them in a false position before the people than the Parliament of England. It was another attempt to mix up Canadian and English affairs which should have been kept separate. Canada had put down a riot of large dimensions in her own country and had no right to apply to England to strike a medal in commemoration of the event; we should have done that here, if we deemed it the proper course to take." We quite agree with the above remarks of our contemporary. We think, moreover, that if medals are to be given to the volunteers engaged in the rebellion last year, those who took part in the Red River Expedition in 1870, under Ool. (now General) Wolesely, are equally deserving of such tokens of merit. Men engaged in that expedition had to endure great hardships and were subjected to far more labor and endurance in their journey between Port Arthur and Rat Portage than the volunteers last year, and though none of them took part in any fight yet they are equally deserving of recognition.

THE political subject now uppermost in every French Canadian constitutency is the Riel question, and the Quebec Government will have to face the same issue squarely as soon as the Quebec Legislature meets. A resolution condemning the execution of Riel will be presented to the House during the first days of the session, and while the Government will not be asked to agree to it as a government, individual members will have to declare themselves on the question. It is stated that Messrs. Beaubier, Caron, Garneau, Pelletier, Robillard, Marion and Beauchamp will go into opposition, and it is even whispered that the Prime Minister will resign should any such resolution be presented. Personal friends of the Attorney-General, realizing that there is no likelihood of Hon. Dr. Ross remaining at the head of the Cabinet after the present session, are preparing the way for Hon. Mr. Taillon to succeed him. They are endeavoring to persuade the honourable gentleman to come out for the parti-national but have not yet succeeded. From present appearances there is every likelihood that the approaching session of the Provincial Legislature will be as interesting as that of the Commons at Ottawa.

CHAPTER XVIII.

RESURRECTION.

The first part of her husband's speech had provoked Mrs. Longworthy's laughter, but when he had finished she said reproachfully—

"You are absolutely cruel, Rupert. For how long has the poor girl been in a fit state to tell us anything about herself? You speak as if you wanted to get rid of her."

"Not at all, you totally misunderstand me. On the contrary, the fact that we hear nothing of her, and that no inquiries are made, seems to point to her being absolutely without friends, and in that case I hope she might be induced to remain with us altogether."

His wife shook her head.

"That would be delightful. But I confess I am not so sanguine as you. She is too young to have been married long, and she is not in mourning; neither the dress she wore nor any of those in her trunk were mourning dresses. It is certainly a mystery which I wish could be explained to us."

"It will be explained, rest assured of that. Mrs. Charming's face is against any idea of mystery. Now that you have once broken the ice, she will begin to talk about herself, and in a week we shall know all there is to know."

"I hope so" said his wife, "but here comes Fanny to say tea is ready."

"Go and ask Mrs. Charming if she will give us the pleasure of her society," said Mrs. Longworthy as he and his wife left the room.

Fanny was too old and discreet to betray any feeling at the use of this name, which she had heard once or twice before. She departed with the message, but came back to say "the young lady" was very sorry to give so much trouble, but her head ached badly, and she would be much obliged if Mrs. Longworthy would send her a cup of tea upstairs.

"I told you," said the lady when she and her husband were alone. "She is fretting upstairs, and no doubt crying herself ill."

"You must go up to her after tea, and see what you can do for her."

Helen had left the drawing-room and gone upstairs. She found herself in her bedroom without knowing how she got there. She was seated in the window seat looking out of the window and trying hard to count how many rose bushes she could see in the garden below. After a time her brain became clearer, and she was able to think, and as she thought her heart sank within her. She was aghast, terrified, at the awful gap that had been made in her life. Twelve months had passed since Percival had heard anything of her; he must think her dead, drowned in the ill-fated train in which she had begun her journey. The very fact that no inquiries had been made about her when she was missing proved that he thought her dead. She clasped her hands in despair as all the possible consequences of what had happened disclosed themselves to her. She felt as though she would and must lose her reason. Her heart yearned towards her husband. He believed her to be dead, and she knew what her death would mean to him. She rocked herself to and fro, and a vague terror stole into her heart, sending thrills of faintness through her veins. Twelve months! twelve months! what might not have happened in that time! She must communicate with her husband, and of course would lose no time, but what would his feelings be on receiving a letter addressed to him in the hand of some one whom he believed to be dead? An idea occurred to her; her own letter should be enclosed in one from Mr. Longworthy. She must tell the Longworthys all about herself; that she wished to do in any case, as much from her natural dislike of concealment and mystery as from gratitude. When she thought of all the clergyman and his wife had done for her she felt lifted out of herself with gratitude and admiration. After all the excitement of the afternoon she could not tell her story that night; she must put it off till the following day. She resolved not to go downstairs again that evening, and when Mrs Longworthy came up to see her she received her with her usual sweet courtesy and went to sleep, thinking,

"I will write to Percival to-morrow."

Labour Notes.

A general strike of miners of the fourth district, Pennsylvania, was inaugurated Monday morning, the operators having refused to grant the 11 cents advance.

The gendarmes and strikers at Seraing, Belgium, were in conflict Monday. Both sides have been firing on each other and many persons have been wounded.

On Monday morning the union switchmen in every railroad yard in Kansas city quit work. The freight business is generally stopped. The switchmen made a general demand for an advance in wages a week ago on the various roads. It was granted. There are crews of yardmen on eleven roads engaged in this strike. Two trains started out over the Chicago and Alton road, but men from the surrounding groups jumped aboard the cars and applying the brakes stopped the trains in the lower yards, and no attempt was made to get them farther. As nearly as can be ascertained the strike was ordered by the switchmen's union because of complaints that the agreement made last week was not kept by some of the roads.

In a letter in the London Times, Mr. Heneage, Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, is cited as having said that his only reason for joining the Government was that he might be in a position to assist at the proper time at its overthrow upon the development of the Premier's Irish policy.

Captain Tuke, the Government relief commissioner, who has been distributing supplies to the starving fishermen in the islands on the west coast of Ireland, says the distress is even worse than has been represented, and that generous Government aid is needed to save the people from death.

Scarlet fever and diphtheria are very prevalent in Hamilton.

The heavy storm in Ottawa has completely demoralized the telegraph service.

Wm. Stephen's gristmill at Bowmanville, was burned Monday morning.

The payment of the thirty per cent. dividend to the creditors of the Exchange Bank was commenced on Monday by the liquidators.

At Stratford, Ont., on Saturday, J. G. Yeman, dentist, was assaulted by J. Welsh, who accused him of seducing his sister, a girl attending school.

Stock speculations on margins was declared by a majority of the judges in the Court of Appeal at Montreal on Monday to be gambling.

Miss Annie E. Bradshaw, a saleswoman in Toronto, on Monday received word that she had fallen heir to $25,000, through a deceased uncle in New York.

Mrs. Grasett, widow of the late Dean Grasett, Toronto, had a stroke of paralysis on Wednesday last and is not expected to recover.

His Excellency the Governor-General has subscribed $240 towards the relief of the destitute fishermen in Gaspe and Bonaventure counties.

An Ottawa firm of oatmeal millers have imported a quantity of oats from Scotland for seed, with a view to improving the quality of Canadian oatmeal.

Most of the lathers in Toronto went on strike Monday morning for an advance in wages. It is not expected that the strike will last long, several of the employers being willing to pay the increase asked for.

The Government have granted a free pardon to Pierre Parenteau, a Batoche halfbreed, sentenced to seven years' imprisonment, for complicity in the Northwest rebellion.

The medals for the volunteers who served in the Northwest campaign have arrived at Ottawa. The presentation will be delayed until the name of each recipient has been engraved on the medal.

One hundred immigrants arrived at Winnipeg on Saturday followed by 75 families Sunday morning. They came chiefly from Huron and Bruce counties. They left immediately for the west and south-west to locate.

Sir John Macdonald has taken a turn for the worse. He is now suffering severely from sciatica. Dr. Howard, whose name figured frequently in the Riel debate, came up to Ottawa from Montreal on Monday night as consulting physician.

On Saturday morning a tramp deliberately fired a revolver at the engine of a Canada Southern train near Pelton, Ont., narrowly missing the engineer and seriously wounding the fireman. The miscreant escaped, but a vigorous search is being made for him.

Mr. Andrew Wilson, who for many years has occupied a front place among Hamilton manufacturers, died on Monday at the age of 62. Deceased had been in the sewing machine manufacturing business in Hamilton for nearly twenty years.

The forgeries committed by the absconding accountant of La Banque Nationale, of Montreal, are assuming formidable proportions as the investigation progresses. The names of two customers of the bank have been found to be forged to cheques amounting to $14,000, and it is feared many others will be discovered.

In the indictment against the city of Toronto for maintaining a nuisance in the Police Court buildings, the jury on Monday returned a verdict of guilty. Some legal objections taken by the counsel for the city will be argued before the higher court, and if its decision should sustain the verdict, Judge McDougall expressed his intention of passing an exemplary sentence at the next session of the court.

Lowville Correspondence.

Spring seems to have fairly set in, and the fields are pretty bare now, but no spring birds have put in an appearance yet so far as I have seen. The fall wheat appears to be safe as yet. It had a good top in the fall which will help it to withstand the March and April frosts yet to come.

Although times are dull and prices low, the farmers seem to have plenty of money, for there is a large amount of building going on in this vicinity. There are three large bank barns and one house, all in sight of Lowville, in progress of erection, which when finished will have put in circulation between $6,000 and $7,000, and I presume they are all prepared with the ready cash.

The Lowville grist mill seems to be most unfortunate of late years. Every one who attempts to run it, seems to loose money and go under. Mr. Hortop, formerly of Eden Mills, the late lessee, left last week and no one seems to know where he has gone. It is most difficult for a mill away from a railway, where flour has to be teamed for miles, to compete with mills near a station, where it costs but little to put the flour on the cars.

Our Township voted strong for the Scott Act, but I'm sorry say that it has not come up to the expectations of its supporters, simply because the law has not been carried out. I don't think any liquor is sold in the village, still we have hummers that drink, and drink hard, but they are going to 'starve' out here and they will have to hunt fresh "fields of glory."

Farm hands are wanted in this vicinity at present. Some men are asking $20 per month and board, but it seems to me farmers can hardly afford to pay so much as they did when wheat and other produce was much dearer than it is at present.

P. D. Scott has recently purchased and brought to this neighborhood, the prize bull calf "General Gordon," from Mr. C. P. Preston, Scotch block, Esquesing. This will give the farmers a chance to improve their stock.

The lumber business still booms to some extent here. Mr. Readhead has a mill about a mile east and Mr. Crawford one about two miles north. Both mills do a considerable trade, a fair proportion being to the farmers in the vicinity for bill stuff and lumber.

LEADING BOOT & SHOE STORE

Annual Stock Taking Sale

FOR 12 DAYS ONLY.

Having completed our annual stock-taking, we commenced on the 15th inst. a Clearing out Sale of last Season's Goods at nominal prices.

We do not believe in the old exploded dodge of making our customers believe that we are selling goods below cost price, or that we are giving goods away for nothing. WE CONDUCT OUR BUSINESS TO MAKE MONEY; our THEORY AND PRACTICE are that small profits yield large sales, and give us contented customers.

Experienced buyers are not slow in finding out the best place to purchase, and no amount of windy advertisements and newspaper puffing, will induce them to purchase unless the goods are of sterling quality, fashionable and cheap.

We solicit this class of buyers. Call and see what we mean by a clearing sale. To continue twelve days—from the 15 th to the 27th.

ROLLER SKATING. — The Speed roller skating rink will be opened to-morrow night by the management. The skates have been thoroughly repaired and the floor is in good condition. The polo match between the City Band and the Speed Polo Club, and an obstacle race will be the chief attractions. Ladies and ticket holders will be admitted free, others will be charged 10 cents.

THE MEETING TO-NIGHT.—Mr. A. A. Carlton, general lecturer of the Order of the Knights of Labour, and whose duties are specially directed to the interests of that body in Canada, is at present seriously ill at St. Thomas, and his medical adviser has forbidden his speaking in public for some weeks to come. Mr. E. J. O'Donohue, Toronto, and Mr. Alfred Jury, Toronto, will address the meeting in the City Hall to-night in consequence.

AN UPSET.—A carry-all load of the youth and beauty of the city took it into their heads on Monday night to pay a visit to a farmer in Guelph Township. They arrived there safely, and all went merry as a marriage bell until they started for home. On driving out at the said farmer's gate the conveyance upset and then there was a heterogeneous mixture more easily imagined than described. There were no broken bones, but it was found necessary to secure a sleigh to drive the party some distance till good wheeling could be procured. They arrived home about daylight looking weary and travel stained enough.

FLYING COLORS.—At the Ontario Art Examination, held in Toronto recently Mr. L. P. Snyder, of Guelph, came off with flying colors, having won a bronze medal, carrying off the highest awarded offered in his course among competitors from all parts of the Province. MEMENTOES OF THE OREGON.—Every one is acquainted with the disaster which befell the ill fated "Oregon" of the Cunard Line, off Sandy Hook on the 14th of March. Some of the mail bags were saved, and to-day there arrived at this office two papers—one a catalogue of books from John Grant, bookseller, Edinburgh, and the other a copy of the Aberdeen edition of the People's Jonrnal dated March 6th—both of which bore unmistakeable evidence of having been water soaked. The papers were in a good state of preservation and perfectly readable. Mr. T. J. Day, bookseller, also received a few papers which had been on the "Oregon."

It is being made by Mr. Hooper, and consists of a white marble tablet upon a black ground. On a medallion surmounting the tablet are the arms of the 90th Battalion, and below is a laurel wreath surrounding a cap, sword and belt. The inscription is as follows:—In memoriam: Lieutenant Charles Swinford, 90th Battalion, Winnipeg. Died at Fish Creek, N. W. T., April 30th, 1885, from wound received in action April 24th, 1885. Aged 34 years. "Brave, gentle and true." The whole design is very handsome and artistic, the white marble on the black being very effective.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

Toronto, March 23.

In the Legislature to-day Mr. Fraser said that he desired to make his promised explanations with regard to the proposed new Parliament buildings. He briefly reviewed the failure of the original competition, the plans produced under which were utterly unsuitable in view of the limit to which the cost of the building had been confined, $750,000. Mr. Waite, an eminent Buffalo architect, had been called in by the Government as an adviser, and he had reported against the plans. Various delays intervened, but after the Speaker's return from England the Goverament resolved to carry out their pledge to go on with the buildings. Under the circumstances, in view of the failure of competition, they had thought that the safest and most expeditious way of proceeding was to entrust the work to a competent architect, and owing to Mr. Waite's eminence as an expert, and his previous knowledge of the whole matter, he was selected, upon the agreement that he should be paid 5 per cent. upon the total cost of $750,000, the advertisement for tenders to issue not later than the 1st of May next. The work was expected to commence a couple of months later.

Among a number of bills which received their third reading was that increasing the license fees, an amendment by Mr. Creighton regretting that no portion of the increased fees was to be received by the municipalities being defeated by 47 to 37. Hon, A. M. Ross' bill respecting Mechanics' Institutes and Art Schools; Hon. G. W. Ross' to consolidate the Separate Schools Act, Mr. Wood's to prevent minors from frequenting billiard rooms, Mr. Mowat's respecting the awards under the Niagara Falls Park Act, Mr. White's to amend the County Courts Act, the same gentleman's to amend the Surrogate Courts Act, and also to amend the Act respecting the Court of Queen's Bench and Common Pleas, Mr. Fraser's to secure compensation for workmen in certain cases, Mr. Balfour's to amend the Franchise Act, Mr. Caldwell's for the protection of game were all read a third time.

Hon. H. M. Ross moved that the House ratify an agreement with the Guelph Gas Company, for the supply of Gas to the Agricultural College, for five years from the 15th day of November, 1885. The old contract was $2.25 per thousand; the new contract was $2 per thousand. Carried.

Hon. C. F. Fraser moved the House into committee on the Bill amending the Municipal Law. It includes all the proposed Bills amending the Municipal Act which have survived the Municipal Committee.

Among the amendments moved was one by Mr. Ferris that the Bill be re-committed with instructions to insert the clause which he had moved in Committee, excluding a municipality from counting on cases where it is sought to effect an improvement under the local improvement system.

The drift of this amendment was to defeat the wishes of the people of Toronto in reference to the Grand Trunk's control of the Esplanade. After a heated discussion the amendment was carried by a vote of 37 to 28, and in consequence of the deadlock prorogation, which was fixed for Wednesday, could not take place then.

UNWILLING PEDESTRIANS.—Last evening three of the gentlemanly clerks in the freight department of the G. T. R. in this city, visited the classic village of Elora to witness the performance of "Among the breakers" for the benefit of the Catholic church in that place. At the close of the programme they wended their way to the railway station to come home on a supposed special, which was expected to leave at that time, but owing to a not sufficient crowd presenting themselves to make it worth while to run a train, it was cancelled. Our three worthies, who are not well blessed with an overplus of this world's goods, debated in their minds the best thing to do under the circumstances, and concluded to take the people's line for the Royal City. About 4 o'clock this morning the three way-worn travellers were to be seen wending their journey to their several boarding houses, tired out, and vowing vengeance on the G. T. R. management. They say there are 32 telegraph poles and 1,642 ties to the mile by actual count. What they don't know about overland journeys is not worth knowing.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

OTTAWA, March 22nd.

The Riel debate still drags its weary length along, but there is now a reasonable prospect of its being finished by Wednesday at farthest. The practice of making long speeches, which seems to be coming more and more common every session, takes up a great deal of time, and in consequence little progress is made when a number of members have to speak on both sides. Of the few speeches made last week those of the two Opposition leaders are the most remarkable in every way. And I would say here, that apart altogether from the views expressed, those opposed to the Government have had the best of it in regard to the excellence and quality of the speeches.

The praise bestowed on Mr. Laurier for his great speech on Tuesday last is not confined to his own side of the House, but has been expressed by more than one member of the Government on the floor of Parliament and by nearly every one of their supporters in private. Indeed, nearly every one agrees with Mr. Blake, when he said in his speech on Friday, that Mr. Laurier's was unquestionably the best that had been delivered in Parliament since Confederation. And he spoke the truth. Mr. Laurier possesses all the requirements and accomplishments of an orator. He is handsome and well made, with an open, honest and pleasant countenance, a finely balanced head covered with crisp, curling dark hair. Although his lungs are not strong his voice is of good average power, which is well modulated, and which he exercised to the fullest extent on Tuesday. He is equally at home speaking in English as in French, and it is only once in a while that one can detect his French training in his pronunciation. His language is invariably well chosen and felicitous. One can notice as he goes along that he has paid good heed to his lessons in elocution, for in addition to the skillful modulation of his voice, his attitudes and gestures are very graceful and give added effect to his words. What renders his speeches more attractive and popular is the fact that he is never personal, never sarcastic, and invariably takes high ground in discussing any subject. In a speech like that delivered on Tuesday it was of course to be expected that he had carefully prepared himself. This was shown in the excellent arrangement of his subject and the way in which his arguments were put. But if these were all well thought over and prearranged, he scarcely looked at his notes except to refresh his memory, while his language came spontaneous as though suggested—as no doubt in great measure it was—by the inspiration of the moment. One could see in looking over the House that all felt a delight in listening to him, whether they agreed with him or not and when he rose, as he often did, to a climax, there was dead silence, followed by shouts of applause. Such is a faint description of Mr. Laurier and his great speech, but it conveys a very poor idea of what was seen and heard on Tuesday. Since the day that he entered public life, the people of Canada have formed a high opinion of Mr. Laurier's ability and power as a speaker, but since the delivery of this speech he has risen higher than ever in their estimation, and especially so in the estimation of the Liberals, who are prouder than ever of the eloquent Opposition leader from Quebec.

Mr. Blake in his speeches presents a striking contrast to his co-leader, Mr. Laurier. Take his speech of Friday as a good sample of this. His natural bent of mind and his training have made him in everything the lawyer. He is for the most part unimpassioned and cool, keeping himself strictly within the line of his argument and pursuing it to the end with rigid and logical exactness. Not but that he can flare up at times if need be, or when he is provoked, and then he is very ready at retort and answers back with biting sarcasm, but he is in no sense an orator in the sense Mr. Laurier is, though his language is generally well chosen, but it is often diffuse and his sentences long and involved. It is seldom that he employs any gestures, only occasionally using the right hand to give weight to some pregnant remark. Sometimes when roused the momentary passion will, find vent in the swaying of the body and the head, but he soon relapses into a calmer attitude and pursues his argument as if no irritating thought had broken its continuity. The best and most popular portions of Mr. Blake's speeches are those of a didactic character, and they are always original and often truly eloquent though not delivered with the flourishes of the orator. When Mr. Blake is pointing out what is his duty as a public man, or what the duty is of other public men, his language is choice and the sentiment exalted. Generally his manner is deliberate except when his temper is ruffled and he is provoked into an attack. It was more than ordinarily so on Friday, as became the subject, for throughout his speech was one exclusively of argument and close reasoning, which, though masterly in their treatment, will not take with the public as Mr. Laurier's speech will, which combined argument with an array of historical facts, with appeals to patriotism, feeling, and sentiment. And yet there is no other man in the House equal to such a speech as that delivered by Mr. Blake, for the mass of information that he had collected, for the evidence he had arrayed in support of his statements, and for the masterly manner in which he brought these to bear in proving his case. The two Opposition leaders stand unique in Parliament in their own particular gifts as speakers, and no one on the other side of the House can at all approach or measure swords with them as the ablest and most accomplished parliamentary speakers in Canada.

LUSUS NATURAE.—This is from the St. Catharines Journal:—About a month ago a ewe owned by Captain Horn, of this city, on his farm in Stamford, gave birth to a lamb, which has two fore and three hind legs, and stranger still, the extra hind leg, from the gambrel joint downwards, is divided into two perfect feet, thus giving your mutton chops five legs and six feet. In every other respect the lamb is perfect, and as lively as a lamb should be. The captain thinks it is the greatest living curiosity on earth, and as it is a ram lamb, he is studying up the problem of its reproduction in order to have a breed of sheep, each of which will give three legs of mutton. The Guelph Agricultural College should look into this matter.

THE sacred concert to be held in the Norfolk street church on Monday evening, the 29th, promises to be one of rare excellence. d2

READINGS AND MUSIC.

Pronounced Success of the G. S. S. & T. C. Entertainment.

The Guelph Snow Shoe and Toboggan Club have great reason to feel gratified with the handsome patronage bestowed upon their entertainment at the City Hall last evening. The audience which assembled on the occasion was large and fashionable, and no doubt the practical result will be a substantial surplus on hand to wind up the season with. During the afternoon some of the members of the club had busied themselves decorating the stage, and the effect presented by their arrangement of flags, bunting, pictures, snowshoes, toboggans, and articles of costume for winter sports, was decidedly charming. The stage furnishings were equally tasteful, for which fact the club are obliged to Messrs. F. B. Skinner & Co.

Shortly after eight o'clock Dr. McPhatter, who acted as chairman, appropriately opened the proceedings by thanking those present on behalf of the club for their countenance in so handsome a manner. He then introduced Prof. Vallance, the explanation being made that his baggage had been left at Stratford by mistake, and that therefore he did not appear in evening dress, and would have to trust his memory for the most of the readings.

Prof. Vallance has a wonderful memory, and it did not fail him on this occasion. It was noticeable on his first appearance in Guelph a few weeks ago that he did not refer to a scrap of anything to help him through the programme, and although he said most of the pieces last night were not on his regular reportoire, still he gave most of these also without book or note. The readings included in the first part of the programme were "The Life Boat," "A Leap Year Wooing," "The Editor's Guests," "Tam O'Shanter," and "Father Phil's subscription," from "Handy Andy." His rendering of the first struck a chord of sympathy in the audience, and the applause which followed showed that he had captured their appreciation at the start. The others were of a humorous nature, and created a good deal of merriment, but most of them were varied with pathos, and the faces of the hearers alternately turned from gay to grave. "Tam O'Shanter" was capitally rendered and could not have failed in pleasing the Scottish portion of the audience particularly.

During the first part of the programme Mrs. Whitehead sang "When the Flowing Tide comes in," and, to dispose of her contributions at once, in the second part gave "Annie Laurie" by request. In both cases she elicited well-deserved encores. "Annie Laurie" was her most successful effort, and probably was the best render of that ever-popular song ever heard in the City Hall. Mrs. James Clarke acted as accompaniest with ability.

Prof. Vallance, in the second part of the programme, recited "One More," (an old Skipper's yarn); "The Minister of Kirkfadden;" "Tragedy at Sloan's;" and "Nottman" (a story of the rail.) This programme was augmented, however, by requests for reading "Reubenstein's playing;" "Mark Twain," and "Niagara," a climax in one of Gough's temperance orations. Reubenstein's playing has been heard to better advantage, and it was evident the Professor, out of a good natured desire to satisfy everybody, undertook the reading without having previously given it much attention. The other pieces were capitally given, that of "Niagara" being particularly good. The programme was just the very one to suit a mixed audience, but many no doub would have been pleased if the humorous had been varied with something of the tragic. The "Tragedy at Sloan's" belied its name, inasmuch as it was one of the most laughable readings of the evening and gave Mr. Vallance an excellent opportunity of displaying a versatility of elocution in representing Sloan, and his wife and the magistrate. Altogether the reader intensified the favourable impression he left on his former visit, and should he ever return may depend pretty thoroughly on being brought out under good auspices and of being greeted with an interesting house.

Mayor Howland Unseated.

Mr. Dalton, Master in Chambers, on Tuesday in the quo warranto case, gave judgment unseating Mr. W. H. Howland, the Mayor of Toronto, on the ground that he had no property qualification. The objection as to the Master's jurisdiction to grant the summons instituting the proceedings was overruled. In answer to Mr. Robinson's objection that the writ was not taken out in time, Mr. Dalton referred to the case of Queen ex rel Clancy v. Mackintosh, in which Chief Justice Hagarty and Justices Armour and Cameron held that the acceptance meant by the statute was a formal acceptance by the statutory declaration of qualification and office, and not a mere verbal acceptance. He concurred in this view and overruled the objection. Mr. Kappelle immediately took out a mandamus declaring the seat vacant. The judgment in a short time was street talk; conjectures in all direction were numerous. The general feeling seemed to be in sympathy with Mr. Howland, but the impression abroad was that the law, however apparently severe, must take its course. Mr. Howland stated that he was quite content with the judgment. He intended to leave the matter largely in the hands of his solicitors, who will appeal from this decision. In the event of a final unseating he was prepared to run again, if his friends thought it proper. In the meantime he was scarcely inclined to transact civic business as he did not care to do anything to compromise himself.

The Bonus Question.

On Tuesday, the 6th of April next, those of our citizens entitled to vote on the question will be called upon to pass their opinion upon a by-law involving a grant to Burr Bros., the well-known furniture manufacturers of this city. This by-law, if passed, will bind the city to pay over to the firm $2,000 in cash, or an equivalent to the land necessary to accommodate the new works. In addition the city will enter into an agreement to exempt this new factory from taxation for ten years, and to supply city water free of charge during the same period. In consideration for these things Burr Bros. on their part contract to erect a new factory for the manufacture of chairs, the building to be 168x50 feet in size, and engine house, etc., and to have four floors. They likewise agree to employ not less than twenty-five hands, in addition to their present force, to start with, and to increase the number afterwards. The whole transaction refers to a new branch of business which the firm proposes launching into, and does not affect the present furniture factory which they have managed with so much success for several years.

In calling attention to this matter we desire to point out what we conceive to be a few of the considerations which should influence ratepayers in voting either for or against the by-law. The principle of bonuses is one of which we were never enamored, but at the same time it is one which has been recognized more or less favorably in Guelph during the past few years. Several of our large industries have been granted such favors in the shape of exemption from taxation on extensions which have been made to them, and free water has been thrown in for a period of years. It must be said that many places have had disastrous experiences with bonused concerns, but there have been exceptions where aid was given to old-established and reliable firms.

As a matter of strict justice, the principle is wrong, inasmuch as it compels one man to pay taxes for another. It is expected that no man will embark upon an enterprise of manufacture unless he sees his way to making it pay, and consequently it is not right that others should contribute to his profits. But on the other hand a place desires advantages from the establishment of new industries or the enlargement of old ones, and on that ground as well as upon the consideration that better railway advantages might be had elsewhere, the manufacturer asks for encouragement. More men are employed, building property and tenement houses are in greater demand, and the wages are distributed among our merchants, thus creating an impetus in business on every hand and tending to our general advancement.

There is no doubt but the granting of bonuses forms a bad precedent, and once set we may expect every manufacturer who contemplates an extension of his business, or launching out anew, seeking to avail himself of the same advantages. But the precedent, as we have said, has been set already. Moreover, this seems to be the only means by which we can secure additional manufacturers. We do not possess the railway facilities which some other places do, and if we are to have manufactories we must offer extra inducements to make up for this deficiency. Then other places are offering assistance to capitalists who will launch new industries in their midst, and in the absence of better railway facilities we must do the same.

On the whole we do not think the present precedent the one at which to draw the line and say we will encourage manufacturers no further. The question resolves itself into a practical shape something like this: At the lowest estimate Burr Bros. will employ twenty-five extra hands at an average of say $1.50 per day. This means that they will pay out in wages not less than $37.50 per day, $225 per week, $900 per month and $46,800 per annum. Considering this, together with the more immediate employment the erection of the works will give to masons, carpenters and labourers, do the property owners think these things will compensate the city to the extent of the bonus proposed? If so it lies with them to vote for the by-law, and if they do not so think then it is their duty to vote for its defeat.

There are some points in doubt at present as to the voting. The City Solicitor's opinion is to be obtained on the question of whether none other than property owners are entitled to vote on this question, and also as to whether a voter can record his vote in more than one polling place. These matters, together with the fact of a two-fifths majority of the whole ratepayers being necessary to carry the by-law, will be referred to after the Solicitor's opinion is given. The vote will be governed by the list of 1885.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

TORONTO, March 22nd.

The Minister of Education's bill respecting mechanics' institutes and art schools was recommitted to Committee of the Whole for the purpose of making a verbal amendment. The Committee reported the bill.

The Attorney-General's bill respecting the payment of criminal justice accounts by the Province was considered in Committee, and the powers and duties of the officials charged with its execution defined.

The bills to regulate the manner of making returns of convictions by police and stipendiary magistrates, respecting awards under the Niagara Falls parks Act, and to further amend the Assessment Act, were also put through Committee of the Whole.

In reply to Mr. Murray the Attorney-General stated that it was not his intention to introduce legislation this session giving the people of the Nipissing district legislative representation.

Mr. Young made a short speech against the member for Hamilton's bill giving building societies certain powers to issue debentures, terminable and otherwise, and moved an amendment embodying the views expressed in his speech. The amendment was lost and the bill passed through Committee.

After recess Mr. Meredith resumed the debate—adjourned from Friday last—touching the disallowance of one of the Statutes of the Western university, which, he alleged would have the effect of destroying the law school of that university.

The Minister of Education replied that he had merely done his duty in disallowing the illegal Statute of a body which had attempted to create for itself self-governing powers. It was impossible to assume that any university subject to act of Parliament had a right to create a faculty without consulting the superior power. No other Canadian university had ever attempted to do anything of the kind. The motion for the returns was passed.

There was quite a flare up between Messrs. Meredith and Waters on the one side and Mr. Fraser on the other over Mr. McLaughlin's proposal to enable township councils to narrow roadways for the purpose of facilitating the construction of wire snow fences, Mr. Fraser taking the affirmative and the other two gentlemen the negative view of the existing law. Mr. McLaughlin's bill was advanced a stage and reported.

Mr. Caldwell's bill to amend the law for the protection of game and fur-bearing animals was the occasion for more fun, which was led by Mr. Merrick in a quizzical speech.

The most marked feature of the bill was that making more stringent the inhibition of the exportation of game from Ontario, which was unanimously amended to cover the larger kinds of game only.

The much amended and much laughed over bill was finally passed through committee.

A serious discussion took place upon bill number four to amend the act relating to master and servant. Messrs. Meredith and Creighton took the ground that the bill might be made to work in the interests of alien workmen imported hither by contractors who knew our law, while the imported workmen would know nothing of the remedy that our law placed at their disposal.

Upon the other hand, the members of the Government contended that their bill met the views of the labor organizations so far as they had been heard from and that its real object was to prevent importers of alien labor from taking an advantage of their importations. A strong point made in this behalf was that contracts made in a foreign country, in good faith, would hardly be overruled in our courts, and that to pass a law which could or would not accomplish its purpose would be to defeat its purpose.

The House adjourned at 12.26.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, March 23.

This has been the first dull day in the Commons since the Riel debate commenced. The able speeches of Messrs Thompson and Mills last night were followed to-day by common-place arguments on both sides. Mr. Costigan pitched into the Reformers for stirring up race and religious passion and prejudice, among the French and Irish Catholics. His speech had no bearing on the question, but it took with the Ministerialists. The other speakers were Dr. Orton, and Messrs. Kaulbach and Sproule on the Government side, and Messrs. Casgrain and Casey on the Opposition. The question will come to a vote to-morrow night. The Government's majority is estimated at about 50.

CAMPBELL'S

:o:

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics with the Elixir contained render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is not to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Debility, Nervousness, and in cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

NOW BY

RYAN, BERKINSHAW & COMPANY,

The above is the time and place, When and Where we shall hold

OUR FIRST GRAND SEMI-ANNUAL SALE

Which will be continued for 30 Days.

It is our intention to hold a Grand Clearing Sale twice each year, The first one we shall launch

THURSDAY, MARCH 25TH.

On that date we will place before the public many lines of Goods at away below their regular prices. This being our first sale we are very anxious that it should prove a grand success, and we are determined that it shall be so if

Low Prices, Great Variety, and Big Bargains will do it.

Now we do not propose to advertise a lot of bargains just to draw a crowd and when our customers call for them say, "We are just sold out." No, we think we understand our business a little better than that. The man who undertakes to play with the public in that way is far from being sharp and will find although his printer's bill may run high, his trade will gradually drift away, and the public will have no confidence in him. We intend that our advertisements shall have weight with the public, and the only way to accomplish that is to KEEP FAITH WITH THE PEOPLE—having every line advertised, and at the price named.

ECONOMICAL HOUSEKEEPERS,

We ask your attention to the following Lots, which in almost every case it will be impossible to repeat. We shall adopt the system of placing each Lot as near as possible, down the centre of the store, marking the price plainly on each line. Everything advertised will be on hand on the morning of the sale, and will be found as represented, or if not satisfactory the money will be refunded.

We enumerate below some of the lines we shall offer along with others, all of which we will have ready Thursday, March 25th.

JAMES MCLEAN, CLERK

Aberfoyle, March 18th, 1883.

Farm Laborers' Wages.

To the Editor of the MERCURY:—

SIR,—Will you allow me a small space in your valuble paper, to say a word to "Farmer," whose letter appeared in your last week's issue.

He starts with telling your readers that it is usual with farmers to engage what help they require for the spring, summer and autumn, (and as a rule for seven months) about this time.

"Farmer" thinks wages have been too high for some years back, but seems to forget that the law of supply and demand rules in this matter.

Again he says "wages should be reduced $4 or $5 a month." Would he reduce the scrub hand as well as the first-class man? or would he put them both on a par as regards wages? His words look like it and if so "Farmer" has mistaken his calling; he must be a K. of L.

Again, he thinks $14 per month for the seven months would be fair wages. Generous man! Farmers ought to take note of this.

Now we will take the case—say of a married man. This man gets $14 a month for the seven months and then is left without employment, and perhaps has hard work to make his own board through the long winter. This gives just $98 to keep his wife and perhaps a large family a whole year! and he puts the man's board at $13 per month!! on the farm. I will leave "Farmer" to explain this. When I hear a farmer who only hires his help for seven months of the year grumbling about wages visions rise before me of dirty ill-tilled fields where thistles wave their crowned heads high above the 10 bushel per acre crop of wheat.

Again we see a straw stack in the barn yard and cattle (are they worthy of the name) standing around the same, with backs peaked, with a scant allowance of hair on their wretched bodies, and icicles hanging from their eyes and nostrils. And still the cry is "farming wont pay, wages must come down."

Again we see Farmer growing enough turnips to make his cattle stand long enough in their stalls every night till the chains are round their necks and expects his cattle to feed! "Farmer" says, a man's board is worth $13 per month. He is very generous in one way. If he don't gives the wages, he will make the board high enough so that all the boys will get on the voters' list. Thanks, my dear "Farmer," on behalf of the boys, but we would rather take more wages, in hard cash, and a little less "board," which would put us there all the same.

He thinks most farmers are unable to pay the magnificent sum of $14 per month, so the writer thinks also, as long as their cattle and the straw stack bear each other company through the cold winter days.

I so far agree with "Farmer" that it would be better for most farmers to seed down more of their farms to pasture and hay. But I would advise them to keep their help through the winter to attend to a dozen or so fat steers and make them carry away the hay and rough grain in the shape of beef instead of the poor old team having to do it, for feeding will pay at 5c per lb., which is now being paid for shippers. "Farmer" is a little late with his last suggestion to his brother farmers for most good men are picked up for the summer months at wages of from $17 to $20 per month. I have no doubt that if "Farmer" will look around a bit he will get his $14 a month man without much trouble and most farmers will say he is welcome to him, and so says.

ONE OF THE BOYS.

Everton, March 19th, 1883.

To the Farmers of Wellington.

GENTLEMEN,—As the season for sowing barley is approaching I think it important you should be cautioned against sowing the Russian barley, which I find has been introduced into some localities. The barley of this Province has attained a high character in the markets of the United States, and the unanimous verdict of all who have used the Russian variety goes to fix its value 10 to 20 cents per bushel under the six-rowed Canada. Even if kept separate from six-rowed this would be its value, but if mixed it would be unsaleable to any maltster who detected it, because the two will not malt alike. Thirty years' experience in shipping and malting has convinced me that to keep our position we must guard by every means in our power against the introduction of a barley whose malting properties are so inferior to our Canada six-rowed. Some years since we tried malting about 1,000 bushels of two-rowed, grown from seed imported from England, and our experience of this variety, which is somewhat similar, although preferable to the Russian, was that no brewer would buy it at even a reduced price.

JOHN MCCREA.

Rockwood Correspondence.

Mr. Neil Strachan, of Farries & Strachan, has been confined to his room for several days past by a severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism.

Messrs. Charles Strange and James Orr will leave for Dakota on the 1st of April to seek their fortunes in the home of the coyote and prairie dog.

The many friends of the Rev. Mr. Pigott, in this locality, were pleased to learn from the MERCURY that the rumor of that gentleman's resignation was incorrect. The report of Mr. Pigott's resignation was furnished the writer by a prominent member of the church, and was given to the public in good faith, merely as an item of news.

Miss Margaret Thompson, of Everton, recently fell on the ice sustaining a compound fracture of the wrist. The services of Dr. Dryden were called into requisition, and under his skillful treatment the sufferer is rapidly improving.

The managers of the Eureka skating rink held their last carnival for this season on Thursday evening. The principal attraction was a three mile race for a watch, which was won by Charles Watson. The egg race caused great amusement and was won by Thomas Garston. In the ladies' competition Miss M. A. Strachan, "Russian Peasant," took first prize, and Miss Lee, "Scotch Lassie," second. Archie Murray, "Clown," won the gentlemen's prize. Judges, Captain Schultz and Messrs. R. Rewat and J. C. Hastings, of Buffalo.

Our Dramatic Club presented "The chimney corner" for the second time on the evening of the 17th, before a large audience. The amateurs sustained their several parts very creditably, but the playing of Mr John Strachan as "Mr Probity," and of Miss Dryden as his "Old woman" was excellent, both these young people evidently possessing histrionic talent of a high order. Between the acts Mrs D L Schultz (Miss Hastings) favored the audience with a song "Jamie Dear," and in response to a hearty encore she sang "Pretty Pond Lillies." This was Mrs Schultz's first public appearance in Rockwood since she came to live amongst us, and it is almost unnecessary to add that, as usual, she carried the house by storm. The proceeds of the entertainment go to the Presbyterian Sunday School library.

Rockwood, March 23, 1886.

Goldstone Correspondence.

ILL.—Mr Joseph Grote has been during the past week prostrated with typhoid fever and bronchitis, but under the efficient treatment of Dr Wallace, of Alma, he is recovering favorably.

NARROW ESCAPE.—As Mr L. Rose was feeding his cows the other evening the building 50 x 30 ft. suddenly collapsed and the greater part of the roof fell in. Mr Rose happening to hear the first sound of the timbers giving way succeeded in making good his escape. The partition of the stall preserved the cattle.

ANNUAL MEETING.—The annual meeting of the Goldstone cheese factory was held on Thursday of last week. The directors of last year were re-elected. Several shares were sold to new patrons and other business of importance was transacted.

CHANGED HANDS.—The old Royal Exchange hotel property known a quarter century ago by the name "Bird-in-hand" has been purchased by Mr Norris who will convert it into a paint shop and lumber house.

UNFORTUNATE.—One day recently L Rose was killing a beef for G Jordan and after getting the animal on the barn floor they accidentally posed the poor creature near a trap door leading to the stable. The hole was minus a door and the weather sufficiently cold to render necessary the covering of the orifice with straw. All ready Sammy held the rope and Loo seized the axe to fell the beast but scarcely had the blow fallen ere the stunned animal disappeared and the butchers had to descend to the stable to bleed the mangled beast which had been precipitated down the trap door.

RETURNED.—Mr Wm Norris and his bride left on Tuesday last for their prairie home in the Northwest. and Mrs B Waind and Miss Goulding will start to-morrow for their home in Dakota.

ODDS AND ENDS.—Special services are closed at Wesley. Mr Thomas has gone to Arthur to prosecute his evangelistic work; before leaving Wesley, however, his friends presented him with a complimentary address and a handsomely bound volume titled "The world" historical and actual.—The Salvation Army hold a bi-weekly service at Shiloh.—Special services are being held at Starton appointment. —Drayton has a second printing office.—The Vidette will be issued weekly hereafter by Mr J T Mitchell, late of Palmerston.—Robins made their appearance hear on Saturday last.—Ed Gainer, township assessor, visited this neighborhood last week in his official capacity.—J W Craig's sale is to-day and on Wednesday of this week he takes charge of the post office here.—A social for the benefit of Alma Methodist parsonage was held at R Rudd's on the evening of Thursday last; proceeds $25.

Goldstone, March 22, 1886.

Harriston Correspondence.

SALVATION ARMY ANNIVERSARY.—The Salvation Army anniversary is being held this evening. About two hundred soldiers and their friends, bearing torches, paraded the streets, and between the beating of the drums and the howling of the boys considerable noise was made. They may have accomplished a large amount of good during the past year, but now, at the end of the year it is somewhat difficult to see where much good has resulted from their labors.

VOTERS' LISTS.—If the other municipalities in North Wellington send in as many applications to be placed on the Voters' Lists as Harriston and Minto has there is considerable work on hand for the Revising Barrister. Both parties for some past have been actively at work getting all their friends who are entitled to be put on the lists to make application. If ever there was an unnecessary, unfair and iniquitous law passed in Canada it is Sir John's Franchise Act.

THAT ROLLER RINK LICENSE.—A determined, but unsuccessful, effort to have the by-law imposing a license on the roller rink either repealed or amended, has been made at the last two meetings of the Town Council. The proprietors, being now satisfied that the council will not either change the revisions or repeal the by-law, intend taking out the license and opening the rink.

DANGEROUSLY ILL.—For some days past Mrs. German, wife of Rev. J. W. German, Methodist minister here, has been dangerously ill. There are but slight hopes of her recovery; indeed every day is expected to be her last.

GONE.—Martin Patmore, one of the oldest business men of Harriston, left for parts unknown a few days since without consulting his creditors, and they in consequence feel somewhat annoyed. His creditors are numerous, and many of them can ill afford to bear the loss. They will, however, have to bear it, as best they can, as their prospects of obtaining what rightly belongs to them is not very bright. Mr. Patmore has met with some heavy losses in business during the past few years, and along with that he has not attended as closely to business as he should have done, and in consequence his business career here has not terminated as satisfactory either to himself or his creditors as it would otherwise have done. The amount of his indebtedness to unsecured creditors in and about the town is said to be in the neighborhood of $2 000.

GOING TO THE OLD LAND.—Rev. M. Beaven, incumbent of St. George's Church here, has decided to leave Canada and return to the Old Country and there make his home. Mr. Beaven has during his stay here made many friends outside as well as among his own people, and his removal will be regretted by very many.

THE THAW.—The warm weather, together with the heavy rains, has caused the river to rise considerably. The corporation, as well as parties living near the river, are making preparations for the freshet and Dobson's logs. Unless the water rises higher than usual there is not likely to be much damage done.

Harriston, March 22nd, 1886.

Important News Item.

COOKSTOWN.—Mrs Campbell had for a number of years been troubled with indigestion and constipation, and was induced to try McGregor's Speedy Cure and found it all that was needed, and would recommend its use to any person similarly troubled. This invaluable remedy is sold in every part of Canada at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle. Sold at Thos. S Petrie's Drug Store.

LEADING BOOT & SHOE STORE

Annual Stock Taking Sale FOR 12 DAYS ONLY.

Having completed our annual stock-taking, we commenced on the 15th inst. a Clearing out Sale of last Season's Goods at nominal prices.

We do not believe in the old exploded dodge of making our customers believe that we are selling goods below cost price, or that we are giving goods away for nothing. WE CONDUCT OUR BUSINESS TO MAKE MONEY; our THEORY AND PRACTICE are that small profits yield large sales, and give us contented customers.

Experienced buyers are not slow in finding out the best place to purchase, and no amount of windy advertisements and newspaper puffing, will induce them to purchase unless the goods are of sterling quality, fashionable and cheap.

We solicit this class of buyers. Call and see what we mean by a clearing sale. To continue twelve days—from the 15 th to the 27th.

A DOG fight of more than usual interest took place on West Market Square to-day, from the fact that one of the canines was worried against the window of Mr. Wm. ACCIDENTS.—This morning B. Whetstone, employed in Bell's old organ factory, had the thumb of the left hand badly cut while operating a moulding machine. John Rudd, employed in the new factory, met with a more serious accident yesterday, having had his thumb and two fingers cut while working a shaper.

CHALMERS' CHURCH.—The series of meetings at present being held in Chalmers' Church is increasing in interest. Last night the largest number that had yet attended showed a deep interest in the work that is being carried on. There are meetings held every afternoon and evening. The well known hymns of Moody & Sankey are used and the people readily pick them up. They seem to be a great power in the conversion of the careless.

CHICKEN THIEVES.—Chicken thieves seem to be plying their nefarious trade in the neighborhood of the Elora Road rather lively. A short time ago some valuable birds were stolen from the roosts of Messrs. Broadfoot and Millard, and last night the thieves made a raid on the roost of Mr. J. Person, carrying away a valuable Plymouth Rock cock bird, valued at $5. The parties afflicted by the midnight marauders should take prompt steps to have them brought to justice, as by so doing they would not only do themselves a service, but also the community.

THE SPEED SKATING RINK.—This fine and handsomely decorated rink will be opened to-night, and as the management have gone to considerable expense in getting it in running order since the ice was taken off, it is hoped that they will receive good support from the patrons. The City Band will be in attendance. A polo match between the City Band and Speed polo clubs, and an obstacle race will be the attractions. The skates are in first-class repair and the floor in good shape. Ladies will be admitted free.

MISS CLARA STEVENSON IN HAMILTON.—The Hamilton Times has the following in reference to Miss Clara Stevenson, who sang at the Centenary Church concert in Hamilton on Tuesday night:—"Nature has endowed this young lady with superior vocal powers and a prepossessing appearance, together with a physique indicating capacities of endurance. Without perceptible effort she reaches the highest notes and descends with equal ease to the lowest. She evidently enjoys music and produces inspiration in others. She possesses what so many singers lack—soul and sympathy. Her rendering of "Judith" revealed dramatic qualities of a high order so necessary to musical excellence. She will be welcomed to Hamilton again."

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.—The following have been appointed License Commissioners under the provisions of the Liquor License Act of Ontario in the following Ridings:—Grey (East) — Thomas W. Tyson, Wm. Brown, and Thos. B. White. Grey (North)—George Price, David R. Dobie, and James Stewart. Gray (South)—Archibald Davidson, James Brown and Thomas Smith. Waterloo (North)—Chas. Noecker, James Potter, Benjamin J. Bollard. Waterloo (South)—Philip Erbach, Wm. Scott, John D. Moore. Wellington (Centre)—Charles McMillan, Chas. Allan, Samuel Williams. Wellington (South)—John Murphy, David Kennedy, Walter J. Fairbank. The names of the commissioners for South Riding were published some time ago.

"Reader," in imorming you of this wonderful remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, consumption, and all affections of the throat and lungs, we feel that we are doing you a great kindness, as if you have any of the above complaints, if you will only try it we will guarantee satisfaction in every case or money refunded. Ask for McGregor's Lung Compound. Price 50c and $1.00 per bottle at Thos. B. Petrie's Drug Store.

CAPITAL VS. LABOUR.

Speeches by Messrs. Jury and O'Donohue, of Toronto.

One of the largest public gatherings that has been held in the City Hall for many a day took place last evening. Eight o'clock was the hour mentioned, but before that time both the new and old halls were crowded and the proceedings commenced fully five minutes before the time. His Worship Mayor Stevenson occupied the chair, and read the requisition placed in his hands for calling the meeting, after which he expressed his satisfaction at seeing such a large audience, which he had no doubt would listen patiently to the speakers. Mr. E. J. O'Brien then came forward and introduced Mr. Alfred Jury, of Toronto.

Mr. Jury on coming forward stated that the labor and capital question was one which had occupied the attention of philosophers and philanthrophists and they had not as yet been able to solve it. The Knights of Labour had taken up the problem. Their method was not by the knife, the gun, dynamite or force, but by a joining together of the working classes so that they could work out their own salvation, as it were. This labour question was one in which all humanity were interested. One of the planks of the platform of the Knights of Labour was that no creed nor class were acknowledged, but simply honest labour. A few men were excluded from joining and they were a class of people which would not be much missed in the community if the executioner had them on his list. Instead of this being an organization to lower humanity, it was, from its principles, bound to elevate humanity. Speaking of labor statistics which the Government had called for, he remarked that every working man should sign these as it gave the labor party reliable statistics to go by. If this had not been deemed necessary the Government would not have demanded it, and it was done by the wish of the labor party so that the Government might be furnished with reliable information on this question. Another demand was that a factory act should be passed, the provisions of which would be to see that all machinery was properly inspected and in good shape so as to cause no danger by accident, and also that children under a certain age should not be allowed to work. They emphatically asked that the protection of the law be given to women and children. It was an iniquitous thing to place a child of nine or ten years of age in a factory, where it is at all times running risks of its life. A child under 14 or 15 years should not be allowed to work, and it was to the benefit of the public that it should not. This the speaker exemplified by showing that when a father took his son into a workshop as soon as he was able to work was not only injurious to the child, but the child became a competitor with the father in the labor market, thus reducing the wages of the parent. The longer a child can be kept from work it would be the better for the child and the parent. The child should have the chance of gaining a fair education and building up a constitution which he could not do if placed in a factory where he would have to labor and inhale all the noxious gases there. Then again the law should step in and save women from having to work only certain hours; woman's sphere was in the home and there she should remain to attend to her household duties. An employer's liability bill was another thing asked for, whereby all employers would be liable for accidents caused by defective machinery. In the case of a scaffold for instance, where a man fell off, it would have to be shown that all due precaution had been taken for the preservation of the life and limb of the man, so the same with railways and factories. This was only asking a reasonable and proper protection. He understood this bill had received its second reading in the House last night. He then mentioned that if a man being injured, maimed for life or even killed, the family of the injured man would get no relief from the employer. The speaker then touched on the supply and demand question. Political economists say that the price of labor depends upon the demand. He acknowledged that, but to regulate these proposed less hours of labor—say eight hours a day, and illustrated in this way. When tomatoes come first into the market say twenty cents a pound had to be paid, but shortly afterwards they could be purchased for 20 cents a bushel, thus showing that the longer the hours of work the supply would be greater, and when there was less work there would be more demand. It was hoggish for one man to work from 10 to 12 hours a day while another man was walking around the streets idle. The theory was that the hours should be so limited as not to permit of one man going idle. By working long hours a lot of surplus labor was kept on the market. This surplus labor gave an advantage to the employer, who, if you had any grievance, might say if you don't do as I desire there are lots of men ready to take your place. The demand should be kept over the supply. He showed that all those trades which worked the shortest hours the year round received the highest pay, and the moral was, reduce the hours of labor. It had been raised in objection to the reduction of hours that the workingman would spend this extra time in the taverns. He repudiated the idea and asked if there was more drunkenness now than there was 25 years ago when the working hours were twelve hours a day. On the contrary, this extra time would give the working man a chance to make himself more intellectual and give him a chance to enjoy more fully social relations. He blamed the long hours for being the chief cause of drunkenness. A man would come home after working his ten or twelve hours a day feeling fagged out and unnerved, not feeling able to attend to his duties socially and politically and the least thing irritated him. He could not even stand the prattle of his little children, and would say to his wife "put these children to bed." Then probably he would go the tavern to get something to brace him up. The speaker held that there was something else for the workingman to do besides working and sleeping. Low wages were much the cause of drunkenness. When low wages were realized and both ends could not be met, too often the sorrow and the poverty was drowned in drink. It would be observed that the worst paid people drank the most. Give them better wages and better surroundings, then there was an ambition to go ahead. Another plank in the platform was in reference to land. They objected to the Government giving away large tracts of land to gigantic railway monopolies or any other party to speculate on, because the whole source of wealth was directly from the land. What was to the interest of the workingman was to the interest of the farmer. Both were producers and the one could not get along without the other. Speaking of the monopoly of land, he held that it simply meant the monopoly of the right to live. It had been said that Knights of Labor was a political institution, and it was in so far as the interests of the working man was concerned. He then spoke on the question of exemption of taxation of working men's wages, and held that all incomes up to $600 should be exempt. The income tax was spoken of as being the most unjust taxe in the world, and was first formed in the Old Country as a war tax. In this income tax the assessors would go around to the shop, enquire how much a man earned, and totalled the sum up for a year making no allowance for short time. The extra tax should be on real estate, and it was a noticeable fact that a rich man could get exemption where a poor man could not. Another plank was that of penitentiary labor, which came in contact with free labor. Every workingman should protest against this. Goods manufactured in penitentiaries were sold at such a price to contractors that would scarcely pay for the food of the prisoners, and these prisoners received better food than the workingman in many instances enjoyed. It was too bad that the workingman had to be taxed to keep a prisoner in jail and also taxed to lower the price of his own labor, and throwing honest men out of employment. Another plank, and one of the chief ones, was the co-operative system. He considered that it was time the producers and consumers were made the servants and not the masters. He objected to middlemen who handled the produce of others, as they were making money which rightly belonged to the consumer. He had no quarrel with these, but the time had gone by when they could levy tribute from the working classes. Speaking of the co-operative system in England he mentioned that in one year a business of £29,000,000 had been transacted with a profit of between five and six million pounds, so that by this operation the workingman has the profits of the middlemen. The Knights of Labor were opposed to strikes and always endeavored to settle disputes by arbitration if possible, but they desired a fair division of the profits. He illustrated this problem at some length and took his seat having spoken for over an hour.

Mr. E. J. O'Donohue was the next speaker. He covered almost the same ground as Mr. Jury. He spoke of the bitter opposition that all employers had to organized labor, for the simple reason that it was not to their benefit. If employers were wise enough for their own interests they would take heed as regards their opposition. There was a socialist and anarchist party had gained footing in the States and it was within the reach of probabilities that they might gain ground in Canada. The Knights of Labor agreed in the sufferings of these, but disagreed in the method of treatment. The former believed in dynamite and the latter in arbitration, but the employers of labor should be careful how they resist fair demands. Had it not been for the Knights of Labor who stepped in between the socialists and the employer, dynamite might have been resorted to as a means of settling difficulties. He then spoke on the insurance system in connection with the organization. Each member could insure for $500, but not below $100, and as all the business was transacted by the organization, there were no middle-men to employ, nor fine buildings to keep up, consequently the cost was very trifling, and would cost about $11 a year, while it would cost about $29 a year by the regular companies.

Mr. E. J. O'Brien, in a humorous speech, moved cordial votes of thanks to the Mayor for presiding over the meeting and to the two gentlemen who spoke. These were carried unanimously.

COURT OF REVISION.

Revising Barrister Drew Holds His Preliminary Court.

Ten o'clock this forenoon was the time fixed by Judge Drew for his preliminary court under the Dominion Franchise Act. It was a quarter to eleven, however, when His Honour entered the Court Room, followed by his Clerk, Mr. H. Gummer, who presented a legal aspect in his newly made gown. Five minutes' later Constable Michael Conway stepped to the front and took the capacity of crier, formally opening the proceedings by calling out "O yes, O yes, O yes, all manner of persons having business to transact at the first Preliminary Court," etc., etc. Messrs. Donald Guthrie, Q. C., and H. McMillan appeared on behalf of the Reformers, and Messrs. Harry Macdonald and Thomas Coffee for the Conservatives. Mr. Robt. Melvin, President of the South Wellington Reform Association, occupied a seat near the counsel on his side, and Mr. Jos. Heffernan sat near the Tory council.

A deputation came in from Eramosa, representing every polling division in the township expecting that the municipalities would be taken up and dealt with in alphabetical order. But in this they were disappointed, as the Judge took up the City of Guelph list first.

The Judge opened a registered envelope from Rockwood and stated that it contained an application to be put on the lists from James Riddick, Eramosa. He asked whether counsel knew anything about it.

Mr. Guthrie examined the application, then remarked that what he was going to say was that in looking over the Franchise Act he saw a section providing that the Revising Officer shall keep a list of applications open for inspection before the cases were disposed of, and what he would beg to submit was this, that His Honor should prepare a list of claims which the public might have a chance of inspecting, before he would finally accept them.

The Judge said they would be prepared and he would leave them with Mr. Gummer to be inspected. If anybody had expressed a wish to see them before the list would have been prepared they would have had an opportunity. But they would not be disposed of now; they would not be disposed of until finally disposed of at the next court. They were not disposing of them now; they were simply putting the names off.

Mr. Guthrie said the list should have been open for inspection before the names were put on, and therefore they could not go ahead and make the list to-day, but he thought if anybody wanted further time to inspect the list when made up they should have it.

The Judge holding up the applications said is that not a list? He would not conduct the court in that way. It would have been impossible for him to prepare a list for inspection before this court, but a list would be prepared and anybody who wished could see it. All he (Mr. Guthrie) could do now was to object and the objection would be noted. He could not call evidence now; if he had to do that he did not know that he need go over them again. All he could do was to make out a prima facie case and take up the objections at the final Court of Revision.

Mr. Guthrie pointed out that the Statute required that the list should be prepared, as well as the notices of appeal, before the claims were disposed of. Was there any such list?

The Judge said yes there was, again holding up the bundle of applications.

Mr. Guthrie said that a list should be open for inspection before his honor said he would admit or reject the applications. Suppose the name John Smith is submitted. Your honor says I will add his name. But I cannot say whether he should be added or not. I have had no chance of knowing John Smith was an applicant. The Statute contemplates that the list should be made out before the applications are disposed of.

The Judge remarked that the Statute did not say the list should be made out before we proceed; it is before we dispose of the claims.

Mr. Guthrie again urged that what he contended was since the list had not been prepared the names should not be disposed of now.

His Honor said the applications were posted to him, say last Friday. He could not have got a list prepared by any possibility since then.

Mr. Guthrie once more pointed out tha the fair way would be now to make out the list of applications and then afterwards say who he would admit and he would not.

Mr. Macdonald said it must be admitted that from the clause given the list should be made up, but he could not see the object of his learned friend in making objections now to the names being put on the list. He thought it was distinctly agreed between his learned friend and himself, and all the parties interested, that if his honor was satisfied the names should go on without objection on either side at this court, and he was quite satisfied to do so. He spoke about the list, but though it would be impossible to make any use of it seeing that there was no time to examine the claims.

Mr. Guthrie said he never dispensed with his right to look at the list.

The Judge said the clerk would take the names and put them in his office for inspection. If he had made up a list before that would do him (Mr. Guthrie) no good.

Mr. Guthrie said the act provided that his honor might note objections now, but as he had not seen the list he supposed he would admit nine-tenths of them.

His honor asked what benefit the list would be.

Mr. Guthrie said A and B might be all right and C might not, but he could not tell this without enquiring.

His Honor said they were not bound by putting the names on now.

Mr. Guthrie said he wanted to have an understanding as to what the effect of putting the names on the list was to be. On whom was it going to throw the onus. If his learned friend had put on a name which was objected to was he to be compelled to show that it had a right to be on, or would it rest with himself to show that it should not be on.

His Honor said objection might be made now, or at the next court on notice being given two weeks before it was held. Then as the final court it would rest with the party objecting to prove that the name should not be on.

Mr. Guthrie said that made it all the more necessary that the preliminary step should be taken of having the list of applications made out for inspection.

Mr. Macdonald held that the onus lay with the person seeking to have a name taken off.

The Judge reiterated this. If you wish to have a name taken off the motion and objection must be on your part.

Mr. Guthrie said then all the more care should be taken in putting the names on. If once a name was on it was a difficult thing to get it off again. Before his honor finally decided to put a man on, there should be satisfactory evidence, and they should have a list as required by the Act.

His honor said he thought Mr. Guthrie and Mr. Macdonald had agreed as to what should be satisfactory evidence.

Mr. Guthrie said they had.

The Judge then said why not go on.

Mr. Guthrie answered because how could he make his objections if he had no list. He supposed there would likely be an adjournment.

His honor said certainly. He then called off the name of the first applicant, taking up the Reform list for the city of Guelph first.

About twenty names had been put on when the court adjourned at noon. As the names were not given in their respective polling divisions it was proposed to adjourn to enable the clerk, with others, to make out the list in an orderly shape, but the judge decided against this course, and so the court is proceeding. The announcement was made that the Reformers had sent in 460 names for the Riding while the Conservatives had given in 655. It is expected that these will occupy the attention of the court five or six days at least. The list of those received will be published from day to day.

FOR TWO KILNS OF LIME.—Forty years ago, says the Dufferin Post, when this section was sparsely settled and Orangeville was an unknown term, land was of little value and could be had in many cases as a gift. The late Wm. McIlroy, who was buried on Sunday, was once offered 100 acres for burning two kilns of lime. The offer was made by the late Seneca Ketchum, the grand uncle of our own Seneca G., and was promptly declined by Mr. McIlroy, who thought the labour and trouble of burning two kilns of lime were worth more. A portion of the land offered comprised what is now known as the North Ward, and on it are situated many fine private residences, and fully two-thirds of our places of business. To-day the land is worth a quarter of a million dollars. McIlroy was offered a big thing for the two kilns of lime but not being a prophet he could not see coming events.

FROM THE NORTH WEST.—Mr. Alexander, who owns a farm in the North West about four miles from Lethbridge, is in Guelph at present purchasing cattle and hogs, and is intimately acquainted with Mr J. Higinbotham, druggist there, and at Fort McLeod. Mr. Harry Higinbotham will return with him, also taking stock, and will go into business with his brother Edward who has some 320 acres of land within a mile and a half of Fort McLeod, and all the ranche imaginable. They will probably leave in about a week.

A dog fight of more than usual interest took place on West Market Square to-day, from the fact that one of the canines was worried against the window of Mr. Wm. ACCIDENTS.—This morning B. Whetstone, employed in Bell's old organ factory, had the thumb of the left hand badly cut while operating a moulding machine. John Rudd, employed in the new factory, met with a more serious accident yesterday, having had his thumb and two fingers cut while working a shaper.

CHALMERS' CHURCH.—The series of meetings at present being held in Chalmers' Church is increasing in interest. Last night the largest number that had yet attended showed a deep interest in the work that is being carried on. There are meetings held every afternoon and evening. The well known hymns of Moody & Sankey are used and the people readily pick them up. They seem to be a great power in the conversion of the careless.

CHICKEN THIEVES.—Chicken thieves seem to be plying their nefarious trade in the neighborhood of the Elora Road rather lively. A short time ago some valuable birds were stolen from the roosts of Messrs. Broadfoot and Millard, and last night the thieves made a raid on the roost of Mr. J. Person, carrying away a valuable Plymouth Rock cock bird, valued at $5. The parties afflicted by the midnight marauders should take prompt steps to have them brought to justice, as by so doing they would not only do themselves a service, but also the community.

THE SPEED SKATING RINK.—This fine and handsomely decorated rink will be opened to-night, and as the management have gone to considerable expense in getting it in running order since the ice was taken off, it is hoped that they will receive good support from the patrons. The City Band will be in attendance. A polo match between the City Band and Speed polo clubs, and an obstacle race will be the attractions. The skates are in first-class repair and the floor in good shape. Ladies will be admitted free.

MISS CLARA STEVENSON IN HAMILTON.—The Hamilton Times has the following in reference to Miss Clara Stevenson, who sang at the Centenary Church concert in Hamilton on Tuesday night:—"Nature has endowed this young lady with superior vocal powers and a prepossessing appearance, together with a physique indicating capacities of endurance. Without perceptible effort she reaches the highest notes and descends with equal ease to the lowest. She evidently enjoys music and produces inspiration in others. She possesses what so many singers lack—soul and sympathy. Her rendering of "Judith" revealed dramatic qualities of a high order so necessary to musical excellence. She will be welcomed to Hamilton again."

CAPITAL VS. LABOUR.

Speeches by Messrs. Jury and O'Donohue, of Toronto.

One of the largest public gatherings that has been held in the City Hall for many a day took place last evening. Eight o'clock was the hour mentioned, but before that time both the new and old halls were crowded and the proceedings commenced fully five minutes before the time. His Worship Mayor Stevenson occupied the chair, and read the requisition placed in his hands for calling the meeting, after which he expressed his satisfaction at seeing such a large audience, which he had no doubt would listen patiently to the speakers. Mr. E. J. O'Brien then came forward and introduced Mr. Alfred Jury, of Toronto.

Mr. Jury on coming forward stated that the labor and capital question was one which had occupied the attention of philosophers and philanthrophists and they had not as yet been able to solve it. The Knights of Labour had taken up the problem. Their method was not by the knife, the gun, dynamite or force, but by a joining together of the working classes so that they could work out their own salvation, as it were. This labour question was one in which all humanity were interested. One of the planks of the platform of the Knights of Labour was that no creed nor class were acknowledged, but simply honest labour. A few men were excluded from joining and they were a class of people which would not be much missed in the community if the executioner had them on his list. Instead of this being an organization to lower humanity, it was, from its principles, bound to elevate humanity. Speaking of labor statistics which the Government had called for, he remarked that every working man should sign these as it gave the labor party reliable statistics to go by. If this had not been deemed necessary the Government would not have demanded it, and it was done by the wish of the labor party so that the Government might be furnished with reliable information on this question. Another demand was that a factory act should be passed, the provisions of which would be to see that all machinery was properly inspected and in good shape so as to cause no danger by accident, and also that children under a certain age should not be allowed to work. They emphatically asked that the protection of the law be given to women and children. It was an iniquitous thing to place a child of nine or ten years of age in a factory, where it is at all times running risks of its life. A child under 14 or 15 years should not be allowed to work, and it was to the benefit of the public that it should not. This the speaker exemplified by showing that when a father took his son into a workshop as soon as he was able to work was not only injurious to the child, but the child became a competitor with the father in the labor market, thus reducing the wages of the parent. The longer a child can be kept from work it would be the better for the child and the parent. The child should have the chance of gaining a fair education and building up a constitution which he could not do if placed in a factory where he would have to labor and inhale all the noxious gases there. Then again the law should step in and save women from having to work only certain hours; woman's sphere was in the home and there she should remain to attend to her household duties. An employer's liability bill was another thing asked for, whereby all employers would be liable for accidents caused by defective machinery. In the case of a scaffold for instance, where a man fell off, it would have to be shown that all due precaution had been taken for the preservation of the life and limb of the man, so the same with railways and factories. This was only asking a reasonable and proper protection. He understood this bill had received its second reading in the House last night. He then mentioned that if a man being injured, maimed for life or even killed, the family of the injured man would get no relief from the employer. The speaker then touched on the supply and demand question. Political economists say that the price of labor depends upon the demand. He acknowledged that, but to regulate these proposed less hours of labor—say eight hours a day, and illustrated in this way. When tomatoes come first into the market say twenty cents a pound had to be paid, but shortly afterwards they could be purchased for 20 cents a bushel, thus showing that the longer the hours of work the supply would be greater, and when there was less work there would be more demand. It was hoggish for one man to work from 10 to 12 hours a day while another man was walking around the streets idle. The theory was that the hours should be so limited as not to permit of one man going idle. By working long hours a lot of surplus labor was kept on the market. This surplus labor gave an advantage to the employer, who, if you had any grievance, might say if you don't do as I desire there are lots of men ready to take your place. The demand should be kept over the supply. He showed that all those trades which worked the shortest hours the year round received the highest pay, and the moral was, reduce the hours of labor. It had been raised in objection to the reduction of hours that the workingman would spend this extra time in the taverns. He repudiated the idea and asked if there was more drunkenness now than there was 25 years ago when the working hours were twelve hours a day. On the contrary, this extra time would give the working man a chance to make himself more intellectual and give him a chance to enjoy more fully social relations. He blamed the long hours for being the chief cause of drunkenness. A man would come home after working his ten or twelve hours a day feeling fagged out and unnerved, not feeling able to attend to his duties socially and politically and the least thing irritated him. He could not even stand the prattle of his little children, and would say to his wife "put these children to bed." Then probably he would go the tavern to get something to brace him up. The speaker held that there was something else for the workingman to do besides working and sleeping. Low wages were much the cause of drunkenness. When low wages were realized and both ends could not be met, too often the sorrow and the poverty was drowned in drink. It would be observed that the worst paid people drank the most. Give them better wages and better surroundings, then there was an ambition to go ahead. Another plank in the platform was in reference to land. They objected to the Government giving away large tracts of land to gigantic railway monopolies or any other party to speculate on, because the whole source of wealth was directly from the land. What was to the interest of the workingman was to the interest of the farmer. Both were producers and the one could not get along without the other. Speaking of the monopoly of land, he held that it simply meant the monopoly of the right to live. It had been said that Knights of Labor was a political institution, and it was in so far as the interests of the working man was concerned. He then spoke on the question of exemption of taxation of working men's wages, and held that all incomes up to $600 should be exempt. The income tax was spoken of as being the most unjust taxe in the world, and was first formed in the Old Country as a war tax. In this income tax the assessors would go around to the shop, enquire how much a man earned, and totalled the sum up for a year making no allowance for short time. The extra tax should be on real estate, and it was a noticeable fact that a rich man could get exemption where a poor man could not. Another plank was that of penitentiary labor, which came in contact with free labor. Every workingman should protest against this. Goods manufactured in penitentiaries were sold at such a price to contractors that would scarcely pay for the food of the prisoners, and these prisoners received better food than the workingman in many instances enjoyed. It was too bad that the workingman had to be taxed to keep a prisoner in jail and also taxed to lower the price of his own labor, and throwing honest men out of employment. Another plank, and one of the chief ones, was the co-operative system. He considered that it was time the producers and consumers were made the servants and not the masters. He objected to middlemen who handled the produce of others, as they were making money which rightly belonged to the consumer. He had no quarrel with these, but the time had gone by when they could levy tribute from the working classes. Speaking of the co-operative system in England he mentioned that in one year a business of £29,000,000 had been transacted with a profit of between five and six million pounds, so that by this operation the workingman has the profits of the middlemen. The Knights of Labor were opposed to strikes and always endeavored to settle disputes by arbitration if possible, but they desired a fair division of the profits. He illustrated this problem at some length and took his seat having spoken for over an hour.

Mr. E. J. O'Donohue was the next speaker. He covered almost the same ground as Mr. Jury. He spoke of the bitter opposition that all employers had to organized labor, for the simple reason that it was not to their benefit. If employers were wise enough for their own interests they would take heed as regards their opposition. There was a socialist and anarchist party had gained footing in the States and it was within the reach of probabilities that they might gain ground in Canada. The Knights of Labor agreed in the sufferings of these, but disagreed in the method of treatment. The former believed in dynamite and the latter in arbitration, but the employers of labor should be careful how they resist fair demands. Had it not been for the Knights of Labor who stepped in between the socialists and the employer, dynamite might have been resorted to as a means of settling difficulties. He then spoke on the insurance system in connection with the organization. Each member could insure for $500, but not below $100, and as all the business was transacted by the organization, there were no middle-men to employ, nor fine buildings to keep up, consequently the cost was very trifling, and would cost about $11 a year, while it would cost about $29 a year by the regular companies.

Mr. E. J. O'Brien, in a humorous speech, moved cordial votes of thanks to the Mayor for presiding over the meeting and to the two gentlemen who spoke. These were carried unanimously.

COURT OF REVISION.

Revising Barrister Drew Holds His Preliminary Court.

Ten o'clock this forenoon was the time fixed by Judge Drew for his preliminary court under the Dominion Franchise Act. It was a quarter to eleven, however, when His Honour entered the Court Room, followed by his Clerk, Mr. H. Gummer, who presented a legal aspect in his newly made gown. Five minutes later Constable Michael Conway stepped to the front and took the capacity of crier, formally opening the proceedings by calling out "O yes, O yes, O yes, all manner of persons having business to transact at the first Preliminary Court," etc., etc. Messrs. Donald Guthrie, Q. C., and H. McMillan appeared on behalf of the Reformers, and Messrs. Harry Macdonald and Thomas Coffee for the Conservatives. Mr. Robt. Melvin, President of the South Wellington Reform Association, occupied a seat near the counsel on his side, and Mr. Jos. Heffernan sat near the Tory council.

A deputation came in from Eramosa, representing every polling division in the township expecting that the municipalities would be taken up and dealt with in alphabetical order. But in this they were disappointed, as the Judge took up the City of Guelph list first.

The Judge opened a registered envelope from Rockwood and stated that it contained an application to be put on the lists from James Riddick, Eramosa. He asked whether counsel knew anything about it.

Mr. Guthrie examined the application, then remarked that what he was going to say was that in looking over the Franchise Act he saw a section providing that the Revising Officer shall keep a list of applications open for inspection before the cases were disposed of, and what he would beg to submit was this, that His Honor should prepare a list of claims which the public might have a chance of inspecting, before he would finally accept them.

The Judge said they would be prepared and he would leave them with Mr. Gummer to be inspected. If anybody had expressed a wish to see them before the list would have been prepared they would have had an opportunity. But they would not be disposed of now; they would not be disposed of until finally disposed of at the next court. They were not disposing of them now; they were simply putting the names off.

Mr. Guthrie said the list should have been open for inspection before the names were put on, and therefore they could not go ahead and make the list to-day, but he thought if anybody wanted further time to inspect the list when made up they should have it.

The Judge holding up the applications said is that not a list? He would not conduct the court in that way. It would have been impossible for him to prepare a list for inspection before this court, but a list would be prepared and anybody who wished could see it. All he (Mr. Guthrie) could do now was to object and the objection would be noted. He could not call evidence now; if he had to do that he did not know that he need go over them again. All he could do was to make out a prima facie case and take up the objections at the final Court of Revision.

Mr. Guthrie pointed out that the Statute required that the list should be prepared, as well as the notices of appeal, before the claims were disposed of. Was there any such list?

The Judge said yes there was, again holding up the bundle of applications.

Mr. Guthrie said that a list should be open for inspection before his honor said he would admit or reject the applications. Suppose the name John Smith is submitted. Your honor says I will add his name. But I cannot say whether he should be added or not. I have had no chance of knowing John Smith was an applicant. The Statute contemplates that the list should be made out before the applications are disposed of.

The Judge remarked that the Statute did not say the list should be made out before we proceed; it is before we dispose of the claims.

Mr. Guthrie again urged that what he contended was since the list had not been prepared the names should not be disposed of now.

Hon. Honor said the applications were posted to him, say last Friday. He could not have got a list prepared by any possibility since then.

Mr. Guthrie once more pointed out the fair way would be now to make out the list of applications and then afterwards say who he would admit and he would not.

Mr. Macdonald said it must be admitted that from the clause given the list should be made up, but he could not see the object of his learned friend in making objections now to the names being put on the list. He thought it was distinctly agreed between his learned friend and himself, and all the parties interested, that if his honor was satisfied the names should go on without objection on either side at this court, and he was quite satisfied to do so. He spoke about the list, but thought it would be impossible to make any use of it seeing that there was no time to examine the claims.

Mr. Guthrie said he never dispensed with his right to look at the list.

The Judge said the clerk would take the names and put them in his office for inspection. If he had made up a list before that would do him (Mr. Guthrie) no good.

Mr. Guthrie said the act provided that his honor might note objections now, but as he had not seen the list he supposed he would admit nine-tenths of them.

His honor asked what benefit the list would be.

Mr. Guthrie said A and B might be all right and C might not, but he could not tell this without enquiring.

His Honor said they were not bound by putting the names on now.

Mr. Guthrie said he wanted to have an understanding as to what the effect of putting the names on the list was to be. On whom was it going to throw the onus. If his learned friend had put on a name which was objected to was he to be compelled to show that it had a right to be on, or would it rest with himself to show that it should not be on.

His Honor said objection might be made now, or at the next court on notice being given two weeks before it was held. Then as the final court it would rest with the party objecting to prove that the name should not be on.

Mr. Guthrie said that made it all the more necessary that the preliminary step should be taken of having the list of applications made out for inspection.

Mr. Macdonald held that the onus lay with the person seeking to have a name taken off.

The Judge reiterated this. If you wish to have a name taken off the motion and objection must be on your part.

Mr. Guthrie said then all the more care should be taken in putting the names on. If once a name was on it was a difficult thing to get it off again. Before his honor finally decided to put a man on, there should be satisfactory evidence, and they should have a list as required by the Act.

His honor said he thought Mr. Guthrie and Mr. Macdonald had agreed as to what should be satisfactory evidence.

Mr. Guthrie said they had.

The Judge then said why not go on.

Mr. Guthrie answered because how could he make his objections if he had no list. He supposed there would likely be an adjournment.

His honor said certainly. He then called off the name of the first applicant, taking up the Reform list for the city of Guelph first.

About twenty names had been put on when the court adjourned at noon. As the names were not given in their respective polling divisions it was proposed to adjourn to enable the clerk, with others, to make out the list in an orderly shape, but the judge decided against this course, and so the court is proceeding. The announcement was made that the Reformers had sent in 460 names for the Riding while the Conservatives had given in 635. It is expected that these will occupy the attention of the court five or six days at least. The list of those received will be published from day to day.

FOR TWO KILNS OF LIME.—Forty years ago, says the Dufferin Post, when this section was sparsely settled and Orangeville was an unknown term, land was of little value and could be had in many cases as a gift. The late Wm. McIlroy, who was buried on Sunday, was once offered 100 acres for burning two kilns of lime. The offer was made by the late Seneca Ketchum, the grand uncle of our own Seneca G., and was promptly declined by Mr. McIlroy, who thought the labour and trouble of burning two kilns of lime were worth more. A portion of the land offered comprised what is now known as the North Ward, and on it are situated many fine private residences, and fully two-thirds of our places of business. To-day the land is worth a quarter of a million dollars. McIlroy was offered a big thing for the two kilns of lime but not being a prophet he could not see coming events.

FROM THE NORTH WEST.—Mr. Alexander, who owns a farm in the North West about four miles from Lethbridge, is in Guelph at present purchasing cattle and hogs, and is intimately acquainted with Mr J. Higinbotham, druggist there, and at Fort McLeod. Mr. Harry Higinbotham will return with him, also taking stock, and will go into business with his brother Edward who has some 320 acres of land within a mile and a half of Fort McLeod, and all the ranche imaginable. They will probably leave in about a week.

The Treatment and Education of the Indians.

The education and maintenance of of our Indians are questions which are receiving, as they deserve, much attention in Canada at the present time. Fresh importance has been given to the subject by the outbreak in the Northwest last year, in which it was feared the Indians would at one time play a more conspicuous part than fortunately they did. The maintenance of the different Indian tribes in our Northwest Territories entails a very large expenditure of public money every year. These people are now wholly dependent on the bounty of the Canadian people, and it is but right and just that they should be kept by them. Their lands have become the property of the Dominion. By the inroads of the white settlers and the onward march of civilization, the buffalo and other game have been either exterminated or driven out of the country. The consequence was that the red man had either to starve or be supported by those who took possession of his lands and indirectly at least deprived him of his subsistence. At this juncture our Dominion rose to the full sense of its duty, placed the various tribes on different reservations, where they could be more easily fed by the Government's agents and looked after. Had this work been properly done by these agents there would not have been the discontent which prevails among the Indians, nor the semi-starvation which is known to exist in more than one reservation. That the policy of the present Government has largely led to this there can be no doubt, for it was given expression to by the Premier himself when he uttered his cruel and heartless remark that the best way to bring them into submission was to starve them. Not a few of the Indian agents, we believe, acted faithfully on this advice as far as starving these miserable wretches are concerned, but we have yet to learn that it has taught them submission. Such cruel treatment is a disgrace to our civilization and is but a poor requital for the seizure of the lands, the depriving them of their support and of their free and roving life. We believe also that the frauds and peculations in connection with these Indian agencies are many and of a most astounding character, and that in many cases but a small portion of what should go to the Indians ever finds its way to them. The whole system of providing Indian supplies demands a thorough overhauling and reformation. Thousands and thousands of dollars are yearly spent in this department for which the Indians get no value, as the money either sticks to the fingers of the contractors, or the Indian agents, or both. But it is no use to complain or remonstrate so long as the present Premier is Chief Superintendent of Indian affairs, under whom the present ineffective and corrupt system has been created and fostered, and by which many needy office-seekers have found places where with scarcely any check or supervision they can steal Government property and fatten at will on public plunder.

Our Government has also given some little attention to the educating and training of Indian children. A few isolated efforts have been made in this direction among some of the Indian tribes in the far west. These industrial schools, as they are called, are all under the supervision of Roman Catholic priests or nuns, with the exception of that under the management of the Rev. Mr. McDougall, of the Methodist body, at Morley, west of Calgary. Although the Catholic schools receive a yearly grant from the Government, Mr. McDougall has had no pecuniary help whatever, but continues his labor of love without fee or reward from Parliament. The education of the Indian is yet a problem. It cannot be said that the experiment has yet fairly been tried in Canada. We notice, however, that in the United States the experiment is being thoroughty and systematically made. Schools have been established at Hampton and Carlisle. Young Indians of the far west, boys and girls, are taken to these schools and subjected to intellectual and industrial training. The attempt is made to civilize and Christianize them. After they are educated they are sent back to their people with the expectation that they will be among them missionaries of civilization. The results so far have been rather disappointing, especially if these young people after spending a while at school are sent back to their tribes. It has now become evident that if any permanent good is to result from their training, the Government should not abandon them as soon as they give them a smattering of education. It should keep them longer under its care, and then it should, wherever it is possible, employ them in its service among the Indians. It should give them the means and the opportunity not only to preserve the civilization they have acquired, but, from positions of authority and influence to diffuse it among their people.

MAYOR HOWLAND, of Toronto, has decided not to appeal from the decision of the Court which unseated him, but will come before the people for re-election. Though qualified under the clauses of the municipal act as they originally stood, he was not strictly qualified under those clauses as they were affected by the Married Women's Property Act. It was clearly the intention of the Legislature that a qualification such as Mr. Howland's should be sufficient, and a clause has now been passed by the House settling all such cases as those to which Mr. Howland's case has called attention. Were Mr. Howland to appeal the Council would be left in doubt until the appeal was decided as to the legality of any of his acts. He has therefore taken a wise course in deciding to seek re-election, and there can be no doubt of his being returned by a large majority in view of the fact that his conduct as Mayor has made him more popular than ever, and that he secured 1,800 majority when elected last January.

THE Montreal Herald says:—The Government are safe enough in the present House of Commons. What they should be considering is not so much their standing in the House as their standing in the country. The restricting of debate; the failure to bring down information ordered by the House; arrest of the ordinary business of the country; the continuance of burthensome duties on the necessaries of life; the failure to arrange for the speedy settlement of Northwest claims in one way or another, so that the country may be informed of the actual liabilities incurred in that quarter; the action of the Government in putting public documents, such as the original medical reports from Regina out of the reach of Parliament—these are a few of the latest ugly facts which are shaking public confidence in the administration. Blunders such as these should be avoided. They may not affect the majority in the Commons, who are bound to stand together for mutual self-preservation, but they leave a very bad impression on the great body of the electors.

Farm Laborers' Wages.

To the Editor of the MERCURY:—

SIR,—I notice in your issue of the 18th a letter on farm laborers' wages, written by a person who signs himself "Farmer." Well, by his language I presume he is a "Farmer," but a selfish one. He comes forth without hesitation advising farmers in a fatherly way to make $14 per month a standard wage for farm laborers for seven months to commence on the first of April next, which leaves 5 months in a year when such laborers cannot obtain work.

Then he says a man's board is worth $13 per month, which I claim is greatly exaggerated, for as "Farmer" says himself farm produce sells at low prices, they can also be maintained at a small cost. There is money made by keeping boarders for less than $13 per month. For instance, I have known farmers to beg for boarders at $2.25 per week when flour was $9 per bbl and pork 15c per lb, and other household necessaries in accordance. But I will go back to "Farmer's" own calculation, which is $189 for 7 months, and board himself. Now, supposing this man had a wife and say three children to support. Allow wife and children combined the same fare as the single man, the laborer would have $1 per month whereby to provide clothing, firewood, house rent, and other sundries for his family.

We will now briefly consider the circumstances of this laborer during the five months in which he is thrown idle. I think you will agree with me that it takes as much to board a man in winter as in summer, which in five months would amount to $65, and his family as much more, thus making the board bill alone amount to $130; and it certainly takes more clothing and firewood in winter than in summer, which leaves the laborer at least $170 in arrears in one year at "Farmer's" way of counting.

Then "Farmer" says there are very few farmers that can afford to pay more than $14 per month and board, but there are still fewer men that can afford to work for that. Now, I quite agree with him about seeding, and that it would have been better if some farmers had done more grass seeding in years past, and that they would be able now to pay a reasonable wage to a good man for this term of seven months. He says farmers are themselves to blame for paying such high wages. Well, I think the majority of farmers are sensible men and capable of knowing what they are doing, and what is to the benefit of themselves and others; and as to the propriety of giving $14 per month I feel certain farmers will consider it and come to the conclusion that a good man is worth a much better wage than this being with or without a family.

"Farmer" speaks of the prospects of next season. Well, I do not quite understand how they can be foretold.

Home Rule.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—In the MERCURY of the 20th there is a long editorial upon this question, which in it has this statement, that "the cry of danger to the Empire has no substantial basis." This is the point in which a very large number of loyal Reformers differ from you. I am willing to admit that in the administration of Irish affairs there has been a great deal of wrong done, and a great many wrongs connected with the tenure of land which require a remedy. Similar evils exist particularly in Scotland, and also in England, and no one would rejoice more than I should in seeing these evils remedied and even-handed justice done to all classes of Her Majesty's subjects, and I believe this can be done by wise an patient legislation. But when you talk of Home Rule, it will be well to consider what it means in the opinion of Mr Parnell and his followers at home and on this side of the Atlantic.

It means nothing more nor less than the dismemberment of the Empire, and the erection of Ireland into an independent State, if we can believe the statements of leading men on the subject. In the Globe of the 17th March the Hon. T. Anglin in a speech made at the National League banquet is reported to have said "He hoped to live to see Ireland independent, and occupying a place among the nations of the earth." What can these words mean if they do not mean entire separation and independence? In 1879 when Messrs Parnell and Dillon paid a visit to America at Pitsburg he (Parnell) said in a speech "when we have claimed the land for the people of Ireland, we shall have laid the foundation stone for our country to take her place among the nations of the earth.

That is, when according to Archbishop Walsh's plan, the English and Scotch taxpayer is saddled with the cost of buying out the Irish landlords, then Ireland is to posess the land and become an independent nation.

Again to illustrate this view Mr Parnell said at Cincinnati, February 23, 1880, "when we have given the land to the people of Ireland, we shall have laid the foundation upon which to build up our Irish nation, and also "when we have undermined English misgovernment we have paved the way for Ireland to take her place among the nations of the earth, and let us not forget that that is the ultimate goal, at which all we Irishmen aim." "None of us whether we are in America or Ireland, or wherever we may be, will be satisfied until we have destroyed the last link which keeps Ireland bound to England.

On March 15th, Mr Biggar, M.P., said at Cork, referring to Hartman who assassinated the Emperor of Russia by a dynamite bomb, "if the course we are pursuing in Parliament should fail of its object, I think Ireland may be able to produce an other Hartman and probably with better results."

I might extend such quotations indefinitely to show that the ultimate goal at which Parnell and the Nationalists aim, is the treasonable dismemberment of the Empire. By their course of agitation, and the terrorism of the National League, in boycotting everyone who refused to obey their mandate, they have gagged freedom of speech and action in Ireland to such an extent that the liberty of individuals is placed at the mercy of the League. This can be shown by private letters from people whose wrongs the press dare not publish, which appear in the English newspapers. I think, Mr Editor, the wise course is for the Canadian press to leave these matters alone and not introduce into this country elements of discord, about what we have nothing directly to do with, and not follow the course which I am sorry to say the Globe is taking, to the great disgust of many old Reformers, who look back with pride to the high and loyal tone of the Globe, when the late lamented Mr. Brown was at the head of its editorial staff.

REFORMER.

Guelph, March 24, 1886.

ONTARIO LEGISLATURE.

The Business Wound Up—Prorogation To-day.

TORONTO, March 24th.

The absorbing topic in Legislative circles this morning was Mr. Ferris' amendment to Mr. Fraser's amendment of the Municipal Act.

Mr. Ferris said that as there had been considerable misunderstanding and dissatisfaction with the amendment to the Municipal Act which he had moved last night, he would offer a substitute which had been agreed upon as mutually acceptable to all concerned. He therefore moved the House back into Committee to insert a substitute, to the effect that a clause be added to the bill placing leaseholders holding leases for 21 years or more in the same position as property owners, so far as regards petitioning against local improvements, when such are initiated by the municipal council.

This provoked no discussion.

The Committee rose and the bill was moved to a third reading.

Mr. Meredith objected to the clause which imposed upon counties the support of bridges 100 feet in length in towns and villages as unfair to the rural municipalities. The clause was carried.

Mr. Gillies moved to place all municipalities upon the same footing in this respect, which amendment was carried. The bill stands for a third reading to-morrow.

The Treasurer's bill to make provision regarding the Public Health gave rise to some discussion regarding the proposed appointment of health officers, but there was no serious opposition offered to the principle of the measure.

The first order of business after recess was the bill introduced by Mr. Fraser respecting the drainage indebtedness of Sombra.

After the debate had lasted two hours the bill carried.

On motion of Mr. Fraser the bill for the consolidation of the Municipal Act was read a third time, the clause referring to bridges 100 feet long being left in suspense one year.

The Attorney-General withdrew his bill respecting Niagara park, owing to the lateness of the session. Treasurer Ross also dismissed his bill respecting the debt of Cobourg.

The supplementary estimates were adopted.

During concurrence Mr. Meredith moved to strike out $1400 for the returning officer in East Simcoe. Lost.

Spring Opening

IN OUR

Dress Making

ROOMS.

TUESDAY, March 23rd, 1886

MISS JOHNSTON, our popular manager in the Dressmaking Department, has just returned from New York. She left for that centre of Fashion nearly three weeks ago. She has visited most of the leading modistes and designers of Ladies' Toilets, and thus availed herself of many of the newest productions of the very best talent in the fashionable world. She also visited the large warehouses, and made selections of Novelties, including Dress materials, Trimmings, Silk and Lace Goods, and many lines of Fancy Goods, that we are assured will commend themselves to the good taste of our many patrons. It is almost needless to say to ladies who have had experience of Miss Johnston's abilities, that their requirements will receive the best attention at her hands.

We desire to direct special attention to our general stock

Of Dress Goods

AND SILKS

which we are constantly assured has no equal in the Trade of Guelph. We make this a special leading feature of our business, to which we pay special attention. During no season in our long experience have we shown such a large, varied and comprehensive stock of Dress Materials and Trimmings as at present. It would be almost useless to attempt an enumeration of details. We can only assure our lady friends that absolutely nothing is lacking in variety, color, design, quality and price to please almost every want. We confidently solicit your patronage. We guarantee satisfaction. Our business is maintained on the principle of and we are certain that no Dry Goods house in Guelph will serve you as well.

"Choice Goods at Moderate Prices,"

E. R. Bollert,

27 Lower Wyndham Street, Guelph, Ontario.

THE DAY WILL BE THURSDAY,

THE MONTH WILL BE MARCH.

THE YEAR WILL BE 1886.

THE PLACE WILL BE GUELPH.

The spot will be the store lately occupied by John Hogg & Son

NOW BY

RYAN, BERKINSHAW & COMPANY,

The above is the time and place, When and Where we shall hold

OUR FIRST GRAND SEMI-ANNUAL SALE

Which will be continued for 30 Days.

It is our intention to hold a Grand Clearing Sale twice each year, The first one we shall launch

THURSDAY, MARCH 25TH.

On that date we will place before the public many lines of Goods at away below their regular prices. This being our first sale we are very anxious that it should prove a grand success, and we are determined that it shall be so if

Low Prices, Great Variety, and Big Bargains will do it.

Now we do not propose to advertise a lot of bargains just to draw a crowd and when our customers call for them say, "We are just sold out." No, we think we understand our business a little better than that. The man who undertakes to play with the public in that way is far from being sharp and will find although his printer's bill may run high, his trade will gradually drift away, and the public will have no confidence in him. We intend that our advertisements shall have weight with the public, and the only way to accomplish that is to KEEP FAITH WITH THE PEOPLE—having every line advertised, and at the price named.

ECONOMICAL HOUSEKEEPERS,

We ask your attention to the following Lots, which in almost every case it will be impossible to repeat. We shall adopt the system of placing each Lot as near as possible, down the centre of the store, marking the price plainly on each line. Everything advertised will be on hand on the morning of the sale, and will be found as represented, or if not satisfactory the money will be refunded.

We enumerate below some of the lines we shall offer along with others, all of which we will have ready Thursday, March 25th.

CHAPTER XIX.

"TAKING COUNSEL."

When Helen came down on the following morning she found Mrs. Longworthy dressed for going out.

"I am so sorry I have to leave you, dear," said the clergyman's wife, kissing her as she spoke; "but I have been sent for to see a poor woman who has been ill for months, and is now, I fear, dying. I must go; but I hope not to be away very long."

"Do not hurry on my account, please," said Helen. "You give up so much time to me."

"There is no question of giving up; but here are books and one or two new magazines, besides the papers, if you care to ook at them. So I hope you will not feel ull."

Left alone, Helen seated herself on the ouch and looked out of the window. Her mind was full of Percival, and the letter she was going to write him. On second thoughts, she had given up the idea of writing that day. She must tell the Longworthys all about herself before doing anything, and Mr. Longworthy was never at liberty before the evening, by which time it would be too late for the post. She must give it up for that day. It was a disappointment, and a very bitter one. In her convalescent state a day's delay seemedof immense importance. She did so long to have Percival with her, and she knew he would come as soon as he got her letter. But it would be impossible to write without saying anything to the Longworthys, and then tell them she had written to her husband, and they might expect him any day.

She sat dreaming her time away, with a smile crossing her face now and then as she thought of what Percival would say when he heard she was alive, and pictured their meeting to herself. The bare imagining of it made her restless; her heart beat faster, and the colour rose to her face, while her lips trembled between smiles and tears. She rose at last, resolved to occupy himself in some way, and turning to a little table near the couch, she began to look over the newspapers which lay upon it. Among them were two or three of the society papers, for Mr. Longworthy took in several, and often derived a great deal of amusement from what he read there. She took one up without noticing that it was for the previous week, and began to read it diligently. She read every paragraph without any very clear idea of what she was reading, when she came to one headed—"Fashionable Marriage in the Country," to which she turned with a determination to take in every detail of the dresses worn by the bride and bridesmaids. When she had read a few lines she became aware that she was reading an account of the wedding of Percival and Alice. She laid the paper down, and her heart seemed to stop beating for a moment only the next to go on again with such force as made her feel faint and dizzy,and obliged her to lean back among the cushions. Everything swam before her eyes, and she put up her hand to loosen her dress at the throat, for she could not breathe. She lay in that way for some little time without absolutely fainting, but trembled from head to foot and feeling cold and sick. She could not take it in all at once; she hardly knew what it meant. But by degrees her mind grew clearer, and she began to realise what her illness meant. Twelve months—was that long for a man to forget the memory of his wife, and to woo, win and marry another woman? Was it long enough for Percival to forget her? The stinging thought put life into her,and she shook off the faintness of the moment before. She sprang from the couch, saying aloud—

"No, no, it cannot be; it is a lie. These papers print so many things that are not true. It will be contradicted."

Then she saw for the first time that the paper she held in her hand was not the one of the current week, and a gleam of hope shot through her heart. The contradiction must have appeared. Hastily she seized another paper lying on the table, and assured herself it was of later date than the one she had been reading. Eagerly she scanned the pages; with incredible swiftness she passed from one to the other, yet not a name that was mentioned in any one escaped her notice. She had almost got to the end, and her heart was beginning to fail her, when she saw at the head of a short paragraph the names she had been seeking. The next moment she was crushing the paper in her hand, while her features worked convulsively,for what she read was not a contradiction, merely a regret that a mistake had been made in the reporting of the wedding. The bridesmaids' dresses had been silk, not cashmere.

With a feeling of loathing Helen took up the first paper again and read the lengthy paragraph through to the end. Then there could be no further doubt. To her friends she was dead, and worse than that, forgotten! Percival had forgotten her. Her fears had been correct and justified. He, too, had fallen in love with Alice; he whom she had placed apart from other men, from the vulgar crowd who fall in love with a woman because she is the fashion, and out again as her popularity begins to wane. There was torture and agony in the thought. She writhed under it, and shook with horror at the wild ideas which flitted through her brain. She paced up and down the room, her lips moving with the formation of words which she never uttered; words of love, of injured pride, of reproach, and of bitter lamentation. She had forgotten where she was, forgotten that at any moment Mrs. Longworthy might return, and that just then it would be impossible to her to give a coherent account of what had happened.

So she walked and walked until her newly recovered strength gave way. Her trembling knees refused any longer to support her, and with a faint cry she fell on to the couch unconscious.

FREE SHOW.—The Canadian Pacific Railway Co's celebrated exhibition car, containing samples of the products and soils of Manitoba and the Canadian Northwest Territories, will arrive at Elora on Thursday, the 26th inst., and remain until 3.45 p. m. on Friday, the 26th. All feeling an interest in our great Northwest are cordially invited to attend. Visitors will be enabled to see at a glance the productive quality of the virgin soil of the Northwest, of course remembering that what they look upon, are selected samples of the finest productions of the country. The car opens at 9 a. m., and will close at 11.30 a. m. until 12 30 p. m., when it will be re-opened until the hour of departure. Maps and pamphlets, descriptive of the new land, will be given to all those who desire to have them.

DEATH.—On Wednesday last the infant son of Mr. Levi Wissler, Salem, was suddenly attacked with convulsions, and before noon the child which had been healthy in the morning, was a corpse. Mr and Mrs Wissler have the sincere sympathy of their many friends in this sad affliction.

LEAVING.—This morning John Bye, Frederick Wallace and Frederick Lasby leave the Township of Pilkington for Nebraska. As with Pilkington so it is with all the elder townships of the County. The young men grow up and leave, too many unfortunately, when we look at our vast and compartively empty Canadian territory, for the United States. A reference to the census returns of the old townships of Wellington will show an actual decrease of population in the last decade. While the number of landed proprietors is decreasing the size of our farms is increasing, improved machinery enabling the increasing work to be done, while fewer human hands are required. While all this may be unavoidable, it is a sad pity that misgovernment in our Northwest drives our hardy young men to Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, and other portions of the American Union. Truly Canada has become the breeding ground for the population of the Northwestern territory of Uncle Sam.

LECTURE.—On Thursday, the 25th inst, Rev. Hugh Rose will lecture on behalf of the Mechanics' Institute, in the drill shed, here, on a popular subject. His lecture is entitled "Around the Bay of Naples," and will be illustrated, through the kindness of the Rev. P. L. Spencer, with a series of fine stereoscopic views, showing the beauties of the locality. A small fee of fifteen cents will be charged for admission.

SOLD OUT.—Mr John Bain, of Elora, wishing to confine his attention exclusively to manufactures, has sold out his hardware business on very favorable terms to Messrs Spoon and Bishop, of Parkhill, who will open out immediately.

EXAMINATION.—On Friday last the fathers and mothers of Bethany assembled in their school house at ten a. m., for the purpose of witnessing the annual examination of their children. The school is under the management of Mr Forster, who has been indefatigable in his efforts to further the cause of education in that section, and who has assisted in the work of examination by Mr McColgan, teacher, from Nichol. The examination terminated at 3:30 p. m., and was of the most complete and satisfactory character. About an hour's intermission at noon afforded opportunity for the distribution of lunch, on pic-nic principle, which was acceptable, and a novel feature in an entertainment of this character. The example thus set by the parents of Bethany is worthy of imitation throughout the Province. If the fathers and mothers of our little folks, in rural sections, would annually devote a day to the business of examination in such pleasurable fashion, a vast stimulus would be given to our teachers, and school work would become a greater pleasure to all concerned.

Elora, March 23rd, 1886.

Fergus Correspondence.

BUYERS.—During the past week there have been two or three horse buyers operating in the village and country. Many horses have changed hands at good prices, as high as $140 having been paid for good drivers. Mr. Shortreed, of Salem, is buying again, and along with the Americans the trade has been brisk.

FAIR DAY.—Our monthly fairs are becoming most popular; each month seems to bring out a larger crowd than that of the previous one. Last Thursday we had a very large crowd of people in town, there was also a large number of cattle on the ground. Prices were very low and not much better than 4 cents and scarcely that. Buyers were numerous. However, the fair was a good one.

CURLING.—There is much dissatisfaction in curling society over the Brantford match. All curlers appear to think that Hughes should have gone or said he could not in time to allow others to go. The club promised to go and should have gone. We congratulate Elora on its success. Our curlers are all pleased that Elora one the cup, and a pretty one it is.

ST. PATRICK.—The supper at the Dominion Hotel on St. Patrick's night was a fair success. There were about 50 persons present. The supper was good and so were the speeches, songs, &c. All did not feel so well after as at the time.

THUNDER.—We had during Friday afternoon and night a great amount of thunder and lightning, rather unusual at this time of year. Rain came down in great abundance; the streets and roads were more decidedly moist than we have ever seen them. The roads in the country are bad, bare in places, full of water and snow in other parts, making travel exciting but pleasant. The cold and frost of to-day will hold the sleighing a few days more. Wheels are used in the village and sleighs still in the country.

RELIGIOUS DISCUSSIONS.—The meetings in the Drill Shed are still going on. They were continued last week every night but Saturday and again last night and to-night when we believe they cease as Rev Mr Wilkinson has to leave us. The millennium, the second and third coming of Christ, the future church minister and the payment of ministers are some of the topics that have been discussed, the Plymouths claiming they have the better side of the argument and the other churches doing the same from their side. The hall has been full every night, and when the speakers get hot and abuse each other and their opponents generally the boys are delighted. Applause, though against the rules, cannot be prevented entirely. The meetings are very cheap, no admission fee and no collection taken up. For this cheapness of religion we have to thank the Plymouths. They will not take money from us. Lost sinners giving a quarter make that 25 cents poisonous and it cannot be touched. We do not know whether these strange notions are carried into business with these strange people or not; if they are we hope they will start a general accommodation store for "blessed are they that give" even to the sinner and as money is refused from such, a store kept by Plymouth notions would be a great boon in hard times. Rev Wilkinson is a man of undoubted ability as a debater; we could wish he was milder and more choice in style and language; he would do more good, and as he is too much in argument for his opponent he does not require to be too severe on his opponents. We hope the village will be better for the meetings but it is doubtful.

LACROSSE.—The boys have organized for '86, Mr Michie, Hon. President; Mr Reed, Hon. Vice; Mr J J Craig, President; J Anderson, Vice; D Slater, secretary, and Sandy Anderson, captain. We understand that a good committee are arranging for a concert and play to come off probably about the end of next week on Friday. From past records the concert will be good. We wish the boys luck, and we think the material is here to ensure it.

LECTURE.—There is some talk of asking Rev W S Ball, chaplain of the 30th rifles, to give his lecture on the war. We believe he offered while in London camp to deliver several lectures for the benefit of the 30th band and arrangements will probably be made for a lecture here on the 5th of next month. We hope there will be no hitch and that the lecture will go on. We are sure it will be a good one, and under military patronage and music it ought to draw.

CHURCHES.—Rev Mr Wilkinson preached in the Drill Shed Sunday night to a united congregation from the Methodist church, Mr Mullin's and Mr Smellie's. There was no service in any of these churches. Dr Torrance was to preach in Melville, but did not get back from Belwood where he had been in the morning till too late and the church was closed. Mr Wilkinson preached a very fine sermon and was closely listened to. The singing was also good. Revs Colling and Mullin were on the platform. The Plymouths held service in the drill shed Sunday afternoon. Rev J K Smith, of Galt, will conduct service in Melville church on Sunday next. We are having plenty of variety in religion just now. Mr Smith is well known as a leading Presbyterian minister.

FIRE PROTECTION.—A hand grenade or fire extinguisher was tried to-night on some boards erected on the street opposite the North American hotel. The boards were dry and covered with oil so as to burn well. When all was ready the structures were set on fire and the ball thrown against the fire extinguished it almost at once. These grenades are very useful for private houses or hotels.

We understand the Fire Committee and perhaps the whole Council intend driving to Mt. Forest to-morrow to see the trial of the chemical engine there in the evening. We hope the fire question will soon take on a definite shape. We are trusting to luck, which will not stand forever.

We are sorry to hear of Mr. N. Linet's loss at Shiloh. The destruction of his mill by fire last week will be a great inconvenience to the farmers while it is a decided loss to the owner. We hear the mill will be rebuilt.

There was a bright light at times in the south western part of the sky last night. It kept flashing and dying out for half an hour. No word of any fire.

ENTERTAINMENT.—The High School purpose holding an entertainment in the hall a week from Thursday night, April 1st. Dores illustrated views will be presented as well as productions by the scholars.

The Pacific coast finds employment for over 8,000 Chinese in cigarmaking. The tenement house cigarmakers of New York work from 12 to 18 hours per day, Sundays included.

The cloak makers' strike in New York against the contract system has become general, the stopage of work by 2,000 operators causing a cessation of work on the part of 5,000 others, including finishers, cutters, buttonhole makers and pressers. Some of the manufacturers are weakening.

The Missouri Pacific officials at Atchison, Ks., yesterday made two attempts to send out freight trains but failed to succeed. All the Missouri Pacific engines have been disabled except two. If the company do not speedily come to terms an extension of the strike will be ordered by the Knights of Labor. The strike is paralyzing business along the route of the Missouri Pacific and thousands of men are rendered idle.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Landry's Motion [Defeated] by a Large Majority.

OTTAWA, March 24.

The bolting Bleus had the House to themselves this afternoon. Mr. Girouard spoke for nearly two hours, followed by Mr. Desaulniers (Maskinonge) and Mr. Massue in French. After recess Mr. Chapleau spoke for four hours. His health is anything but good, but he stood the strain well and aroused the Ministerialists to enthusiasm by his eloquent and forcible utterances. The House was impatient for the division after the Secretary of State sat down, but Messrs. Bergeron and Tasse kept up the talk for over two hours.

The debate was brought to a close about 2:30 a.m. The vote was first taken on "the previous question," moved the first night of the debate by Sir Hector Langevin. It was carried by 126 to 73. Mr. Landry's motion was then put and lost, the vote standing, yeas, 52; nays, 146.

THE instructions issued by the Government to Revising Officers under the Franchise Act show that the clerks to such officers are to be allowed two dollars per day when actually employed, and one dollar additional per day when absent from home on duty, besides travelling expenses. Each Revising Officer's bailiff is to receive one dollar and fifty cents per day while attending Court, and for serving notices and similar services, such fees as are paid to such officers in ordinary Courts. The scale of prices to be paid for printing electoral lists under the Dominion Franchise Act is as follows:—For every voter's name on the preliminary list, including particulars of qualification, etc., twelve cents for twenty names and under; of voters on addendum for second list, $2 50, and the same for every twenty names added to the final list; where the number of names on the first or second addendum exceeds twenty, then twelve cents per name will be allowed. Advances of money have been made to different Revising officers to enable them to pay for printing and the services of clerks and bailiffs, but the remuneration of Revising Officers has not yet been settled. A low estimate of annual expenditure that will be necessitated by the Franchise Bill places it at a million dollars. All the revenue raised from the coal tax will have to be spent in paying Revising Officers, clerks, bailiffs, etc.

GRIST MILL SOLD.—On Thursday the well known "Dumfries Mills," of Galt, were sold to John Cherry, of Preston, formerly of the Red Mills, Guelph, for $14,700.

DR. LETT, of the Homewood Retreat, will deliver a lecture, in Knox Church tonight. Subject—"Inebriety the result of Physical Causes." The lecture is a good one.

THE gloomy days of winter are again behind us, and we are soon to welcome the spring that brings with it gladness and abundance. So it would appear from the baby carriages that Mr. T. J. Day received yesterday.

THIS morning a large butter sale took place at the market, 84 packages being disposed of to a principal buyer at 44c per lb., the butter being bought some time ago at from 17c to 20c per lb. G. T. R. drays were busy conveying the same from the City Hall cellar to the buyer's storehouse.

CALISTHENIC ENTERTAINMENT.—Galt Reformer: A grand calisthenic, gymnastic and musical entertainment will be given in the Alpha roller skating rink on Tuesday, April 20th, by the members of Adjutant Clarke's Galt classes. As our townspeople are all thoroughly familiar with the nature and excellence of such an entertainment, it would be almost superfluous to bespeak for the class and their popular and efficient conductor, a large audience.

THE PROVINCIAL.—The Acton Free Press pays the following compliment to Guelph in reference to the Provincial Exhibition:—Ottawa and Kingston showed considerable anxiety to get the show. Guelph deserved the preference. Three years ago she went to very large expense to accommodate the exhibition, when she succeeded in doing nobly. The heavy expense necessary is now over, and the exhibition this fall will consequently be likely to return some commensurate profit to the residents of our favorite juvenile city.

CLINTON WANTS THEM.—The Galt Reformer says:—This bonus business is becoming quite a nuisance. No sooner does a manufacturing establishment attain to prosperity in some lively town, than inducements are held out to them to remove to some other town. The town of Clinton is now trying by offers of a large bonus to get Brown, Wright & Co., of Berlin, to remove their felt boot factory to that town. It is not thought that they will accept, however.

A FAREWELL SUPPER.—The Acton Free Press says: Mr. Darius Wardell, who has occupied the position of foreman in Messrs. Christie & Henderson's quarries and kilns, Nassagaweya, for the past five years, has just been removed to Guelph to superintend the firm's business there. Previous to his removal last week the workmen who have been under his charge at the former place honored him with an oyster supper. The men with their families gathered at the foreman's residence and a very pleasant evening was spent together. The best of feeling has always prevailed between the men and their overseer.

BAND OFFICERS.—At a meeting of the Bell Organ Company's Band held last evening the following were elected officers for 1886: President, A. W. Alexander; Vice-President, J. C. Walker; Secretary, R. G. Howell; Treasurer, D. Sallows; Musical Director, R. W. Robinson; Assistant Director, S. Craig; Managing Committee, W. W. Putnam, D. Allan, Jr., H. W. Jukes, D. Sallows. The Band has been placed on a better footing that in the past and no effort will be spared to make it a success. New music will be procured at once, and each member intends to work hard, so that a good result may be expected.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The opening at the rink last night was a grand success in every particular. There was a large turn out, the ladies especially gracing the rink with their presence in large numbers. Every one went away apparently well satisfied with the night's sports and particularly with the condition of the skates and the smoothness of the floor. The polo match was very closely and keenly contested, neither club during the twenty minutes play getting the slightest advantage over the other, so evenly were they matched. The game ended in a draw, no goals being obtained by either side. The obstacle race was very amusing and comical, Mat. Bunyan taking first and Geo. Jeffrey second. It is the intention of the management to have the band three nights a week in future—Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday, together with whatever attractions are available. These will be duly announced. The rink will be open every day, the sessions the same as in the past. Ladies will be admitted free and a nominal fee of 10cts. will be charged if they wish to secure skates. Gentlemen will be charged 10cts. admission and skates 5cts.

Young Women's Christian Temperance Union.

A number of young ladies met on Monday evening last in the W. C. T. U. rooms for the purpose of organizing a Young Women's Christian Temperance Union. Owing no doubt to the unfavorable state of the weather the attendance was not large, but those present expressed themselves strongly in favor of the movement. Mrs. Raymond, Mrs. Budd and other members of the W. C. T. U. explained the objects and working of such Unions. The young ladies chose Miss Sarah McLaren as their President and Miss Girdwood, Secretary. As several who had intimated a desire to become members were unable to be present, it was decided to hold another meeting in the same place on next Tuesday evening the 30th inst., when other officers will be elected, and times of meeting and plan of work arranged. The aims of the Y. W. C. T. Unions, which are to use social influence on the side of temperance, to teach the young and to extend a helping hand whenever and wherever opportunity may occur, must appeal to all who feel an interest in those about them, and it is to be hoped there will be a hearty response to the invitation of the young ladies for next Tuesday evening.

COURT OF REVISION.

The Reform List for the City of Guelph Completed.

SOME OF THE CONSERVATIVE APPLICANTS.

The Revising Barristers' Court was in session yesterday afternoon until half-past five o'clock. The list of names sent in by the Reform party for Guelph City to the number of 105 was accepted, after which the Conservatives commenced to make additions of names in the polling subdivisions. In the list given below the letter O after a name means owner, O. S., owner's son, I, income, and T, tenant.

Thursday afternoon

Mr. Guthrie and Judge Drew had quite a dispute on the ground of the list not being open for inspection.

The Section of the Act to which Mr. Guthrie called the Judge's attention reads as follows:—"The Revising Officer shall keep at his office in the electoral district a list of the notice of objections, claims, and proposed amendments sent in to him under Section 19, 26 and 35, which list, as well as the said notices and notices of appeal, shall be open for inspection by any one desiring to inspect the same before the said objections, claims or proposed amendments are disposed of by the Revising Officer."

His Honor Revising Barrister Judge Drew stated that although he did not see the necessity for the list, still as the Act required it, it could be put up yet, and that it was still in time to make it, because all that the Act required was that it should be open to inspection before the claims were disposed of.

Friday morning.

The court resumed this morning at half past ten.

Mr. Guthrie and Judge Drew had quite an argument on the start out this morning, with reference to having a list which would be open for inspection. Mr. Guthrie held that according to the Act such a list should be available. He desired a list identically the same as Mr. Gummer's so that he could compare it with the proofs. The Judge held that a better list than the one before the court could not be obtained, and it was now open for Mr. Guthrie's inspection.

Although the Judge over ruled Mr. Guthrie's objection to the want of a list he in fact gave effect to it by ordering Mr. Gummer, his clerk, to make a list, and the same is about half completed.

His honor then took up a list of fifty names submitted by Ald. Thomas P. Coffee, who claimed to have them added as voters, and who made a Statutory declaration in support of the claim.

Mr. Guthrie examined the declaration and list, and objected to it upon the ground that in regard to the qualification of every one of the fifty parties, Mr. Coffee only professed to speak from hearsay; that he had no personal knowledge on the subject, and that his declaration was in no sense evidence. Mr. Guthrie stated that a form of declaration had been agreed upon between himself and Mr. Macdonald, and that the form clearly showed that it was intended to be made by parties who could speak from their own knowledge as to the qualification of proposed voters, and that while it permitted names to be added upon information and belief, that was to be the exception and not the rule.

Mr. Macdonald said that if he could put on one name upon hearsay evidence he could put on fifty.

Mr. Guthrie replied that that would be entirely contrary to the understanding.

His Honour stated that as he knew Ald. Coffee and believed that he would not make the statement except upon good grounds, he would accept his declaration.

Fifty-one names sent in by Mr. J. Hallett were also objected to, on the ground that Mr. Hallett's declaration was even weaker than Mr. Coffee's, as he did not profess to have derived his information from parties conversant with the facts.

The Judge gave effect to this objection and Mr. Hallett's list stands over for proper proof, and the same with regard to lists put in by Wm. Jenkinson and W. W. Bilton.

The list of 14 names put in by Ald. John Hamilton was received, although objected to on the same grounds.

His Honor declined to adjourn for dinner, stating that very little work had been done so far for the time occupied. He would go on with the Court, and would probably adjourn after to-night for a day or two.

THE LOST "OREGON."

The Disaster Described by a Scotch Cabin Passenger.

The following description of the "Oregon" disaster is written by Mr. Samuel Barclay, brother of Mr. James Barclay, of "Blair Athol" farm, Waterloo. The writer, is senior partner of the firm of Barclay & Brand, Glasgow, and also of Barclay, McGregor & Co., New York, sugar brokers, and was a passenger on the ill-fated vessel. His account of the catastrophe is as follows:

Sunday, 14th March, 1886, is a marked day in 895 human lives. On Saturday, 6th of March, 185 saloon, 66 intermediate, and 369 steerage passengers, with 255 of a crew, sailed in the Royal mail steamer "Oregon," of the Cunard Line, under the command of Captain Cottier, from Liverpool to New York. For the season of the year a satisfactory passage was made. She left Queenstown at 2 p.m. on Sunday, 7th March, and at noon on Monday had made 390 miles; till same hour on Tuesday 397 miles; on Wednesday 400 miles; on Thursday 447 miles; on Friday 457 miles; on Saturday 423 miles. The 340 miles more to Sandy Hook should have been made by 7 o'clock on Sunday morning. There were the usual drawbacks and discomforts of a winter voyage on the North Atlantic, but on Saturday, the 13th inst., the present writer, like his fellows, congratulated himself on a safe and early haven.

We retired to rest with no misgivings as to the end but it is no new thing in history that while many an unlikely ship has come to land also many a likely ship has perished within sight of its harbour. A crash, or more properly a crushing, grating sound awoke me just as day seemed to be breaking, and the vessel seemed to stop; but as the engines resumed I concluded that the usual noisy operations of arrival were going on, and composed myself again to rest. But before long the stateroom steward opened the door and said, 'Get up instantly and dress.' He did not stay to answer enquiries, and still, with no alarm, finding my room water out off, I dressed without washing, and was soon on deck. This was about 5 o'clock, and, as I afterwards learned, the alleged collision took place about 4:30, no time had been lost in giving warning.

It was a clear, calm morning, and the Oregon was making good speed through a smooth sea. Except for the preparations making, and an apparent reluctance to give information, there was as yet really little to cause alarm, though there were soon many anxious faces. In a short time the crew were busy endeavoring to launch the boats; but I found this was not the easily and promptly accomplished act that had been reported. It took long to do, and seemed awkwardly done. Meantime signals of distress were hoisted, and rockets were fired; and these were actually replied to by a steamer not far distant. The appearance of the vessel encouraged hope in most, but its appearance sent a chill to many a heart. For now we lay dead and helpless. The vague and indefinite statement that a schooner had struck the Oregon, causing a leak of such extent that the engine fires were drowned, affords no evidence of who was originally to blame for the catastrophe, and the officer in charge, a tried and brave seaman, and skilful (or he would not have held such a responsible position), has a heavy enough account to give without having his regrets embittered by unjust, because ignorant, accusations. But at the worst it could only have been remissness, culpable no doubt when so many lives were at stake, but innocence itself compared with the dastardly conduct of the unknown steamer, whose captain left the Oregon and her passengers and crew without an effort to save them.

Let me here say that I have no sympathy with depreciatory criticisms of Captain Cottier and his crew. Neither he nor officers nor crew failed in their duty. Of course when a great disaster overtakes a man it is the way of the world to make his life as bitter as possible. I bear testimony to invariable attention and regularity in the management of a great ship on a former voyage, and on this one so abruptly and prematurely closed; and I do not believe that the unhappy wreck should detract in the slightest degree from their highreputation.
