The minute gun at sea sung in school days was recalled to my mind as the distress signal was steadily fired. At length Pilot Boat No. 11 hove in sight, and bore down on us. Coffee, hastily prepared, was served first to the women and children, and when the boats were ready the order was given for ladies and children to be taken off. This arrangement was cheerfully accepted. There was suppressed excitement, some hysterics, some sad farewells, a scene heartrending enough, but amongst the saloon passengers, at any rate, nothing but manly coolness was visible. A number of the stokers caused an unpleasant feeling, which but for the promptitude of the officer in charge might have led to a mad panic. It was perhaps fortunate that the coward was only felled, not brained; it served to make his fellows know their place. Soon eight boats were on their way to the Pilot Boat, and to one standing on the "Oregon's" deck there seemed small prospects of ultimate rescue.

I had been in the saloon about seven o'clock, and it was then dry; by eight o'clock there were five to six feet of water in it. Still in my stateroom, considerably aft, there was no water, and when I last saw it it was still dry. Watching from the upper deck the vessel continued to go down perceptibly, though slowly, and the conviction grew that means did not exist to save all there; but by the concurrence of a number of almost impossible conditions all were saved. The boats under the best conditions required to make three trips each, and take off a full cargo each time. The Pilot Boat was crowded with 400, and could take no more, and hope was only renewed when the "Fanny A. Gorman, a Yankee timber ship hove in sight, and by and bye took the helpless outcasts on her decks. By the time my turn came the strain on the captain must have been overwhelming. In his anxiety to save all he insisted on our boat taking what proved to be a number sufficient to swamp her, unless managed with consummate skill. No doubt he could rely on the officer in charge. And let me record that Mr Hood, second officer of the "Oregon," under God, saved many lives besides mine that day. By his decision he had stopped the panic caused by the stokers, and he took off 250 passengers from the sinking ship. We had 83 (when 50 would have been ample) packed so closely that, though it was very cold, the perspiration was pouring off me and my foot was seriously hurt by the pressure. Several Irish steerage passengers were in similar case, but all behaved quietly and cheerfully. After an hour's hard work, for there was not room to ply the oars, we reached the schooner, but an accident caused us to miss the rope, and a sudden swell acting on both swept us apart in a few minutes fully a mile. Mr. Hood at length succeeded in hailing the boat under charge of Mr. Barry, chief engineer, which at great risk was got alongside, and one-third of us transferred, and soon after we were safely put on board the schooner.

By this time, about noon, all the passengers were off the Oregon, as well as about 70 of the 920 mail bags, and last of all the captain. The North German Lloyd's steamer Fulda had come up, also an American river steamer, and the approaching fate of the Oregon absorbed the interest of 2,000 spectators. A great tragedy, bloodless but somehow unspeakably melancholy, we saw. The giant of the ocean had in pride and grandeur all but completed another voyage when a mysterious blow was struck which on a short Sunday forenoon put a term to a bright career. About 12.30 it was evident the end was near, the bows were getting almost on a level with the water. It went over the lower deck, and then came the first dip. The stem seemed to rise to take a last look round, then plunged again, and the stern rose. The inrush of the water compressing the air caused first an explosion, a second, a third, and then the hull slowly went below. The funnels followed, until the three masts with the pennant flying were alone left to mark the grave of the Oregon.

The transference of the passengers to the "Fulda" occupied the most of the afternoon. We were treated kindly, and received welcome refreshments. The addition of nearly 900 to the similar number already on board must have considerably incommoded our German friends. Every available space, in passages and saloon, sofas and floors, was occupied to sleep or, if not to sleep, to doze off the strain of the day. The inevitable newspaper interviewer broke in on the rest of the night. On Monday morning about seven o'clock we were landed in Jersey City, and for once the Customs officers asked no questions. I crossed to New York, and maimed in limb, and sensible of a rather weather-beaten and broken-down appearance, and without baggage, or even silver dollars, doubtful of my reception, I ventured to my hotel. My misgivings were unjust to mine host, for I got the heartiest welcome and the warmest shake, and the most interesting enquiries from a sable friend, who insisted on me resuming my former place at his table, where he continues to this day to make up for the privations suffered.

Of course much excitement prevails, many stories circulate, many theories are propounded, many judgments and censures are pronounced. A little truth, more untruth and no charity; a little sense, more nonsense and no consideration; are printed on this as on most other subjects; but is it not strange that with so much wisdom and seamanship abroad accidents on land and wrecks at sea will occur? I have no opinion. The story of the three-masted schooner is to me a phantom. How she could strike two fatal blows below water-mark, one to fill the fore compartment, and the other to drown the engine fires and ships, is a mystery. I only know the "Oregon," struck by an unseen hand, lies at the bottom of the Atlantic, and I, with very many more, would at this moment have been there too if God had not sent instruments to save us. He dispelled the fog. He made the sea calm; He gave a whole day to do a days' work; He sent refuge sufficient at the proper time; He gave strength to the weak and timid, self-denial and resignation to the stout-hearted; He proved a very present help in our time of need.

The Evening Mercury

FRIDAY EVE'G MARCH 26, 1886.

Prorogation.

The Ontario Legislature closed its labors for 1886 on Thursday, having assembled that day eight weeks before for transaction of business. It has been an unusually quiet and uneventful session, if we omit the flare up which took place in the opening days over the Riel question and more recently over the Pacand affair. These were about the only two occasions on which the Opposition exhibited energy enough to make a party fight. Their conduct on the former question was inspired by a hope of aiding their friends at Ottawa. In this they did not succeed, but they did succeed most effectively in stultifying themselves in the estimation of the public, and they made themselves appear even more ridiculous by clamoring for the dismissal of the Sessional Clerk, Pacand, because he happened to be a French Canadian, and had expressed his sympathy with the Halfbreeds of the Northwest. They found no jobs to debate upon, and raised no cry, because the even-handed and honourable course of the Government admitted of none. It seemed from their half-hearted criticism as if they had lost faith in themselves, and that they did not offer any of a serious character, was a tribute to the wisdom and ability of Mr. Mowat's administration, which is becoming more and more entrenched in the confidence of the people.

But though the session passed off quietly it was characterized by a good deal of solid work. The Lieutenant-Governor's speech refers to the passage of several important measures which will result in substantial benefits to the Province. Among them none possesses a deeper local import, nor indeed will be regarded with greater interest by the agriculturists throughout the country, than the Act respecting the Agricultural College. That institution under an Advisory Board, will doubtless be freed to a great extent from the partizan agitation which has been waged against it from its very inception. Perhaps, too, an improvement may be wrought in the way things are managed under the auspices of this Board, although we do not mean this to imply that the management has not been a great deal more careful and economic than is to be inferred from Tory criticism At anyrate greater caution than ever is certain to be observed in every step that is taken in connection with the institution.

We have already spoken of the opening up of the Rainy River District for settlement. This Act will give an advantage to the farmers sons of Ontario of which they might have availed themselves long ago had it not been for the stubborn and persistent fight which the Dominion Government made to deprive this Province of its territory, and the support which they received in this unjust course from the local Opposition under Mr. Meredith. The terms now offered to settlers are most liberal, and as the country is rich in agricultural, as well as in timber and mining resources, we may look for its speedy development.

The extended power to municipalities to restrain the spread of contagious diseases will have a wholesome effect. Last season during the small-pox outbreak in Quebec, we experienced the greatest benefits from the precautions taken under that Act, and the amendments just made will increase its usefulness.

Among the other remaining bills which have passed into law are those by which workmen may receive compensation for injuries suffered through negligence or default of their employers; by which persons entitled to vote who are absent from home six months at a time will not be disfranchised, and providing for additional facilities for workmen to vote at the noon hour, by extending the noon recess on polling days till two o'clock; by which the license fees are increased; the Separate Schools Act and that respecting Mechanics' Institutes improved, and for simplifying the transfer of property.

All the above will have a salutory effect in the Province and with such measures on the Statute book it cannot be said but that the session of 1886 was one marked by the adoption of good and useful legislation.

THE Rev. Mr. Longley, of the Dominion Methodist church, Ottawa, in the course of his sermon on Sunday night paid an eloquent tribute to the Hon. Mr. Blake's independence, candour and honesty, as illustrated in the peroration of his speech on the Riel question on the previous Friday. After dwelling on the many imperceptible influences affecting a man's career, the reverend gentleman quoted the peroration without, however, naming the speaker, and the occasion on which the words were delivered. Pursuing his subject Mr. Longley said that "when a bell was being cast, those who stood by often threw silver coins amongst the molten metal of the bell, and that afterwards it was found that these lent, and added sweetness to its tones, yet no one, however clever, could trace to each coin, its own particular share of that sweetness. So he, when he read noble sentences like these, where grand men stated that they had rather be without office having deserved it than accede to office without deserving it, could not help fancying he traced the silver coin dropped into the forming character of the boy, by the gentle hand of a loved and pious mother."

THE agrarian agitation seems to be still kept up in Wales. The farmers of Flintshire have petitioned their landlords for a reduction of rents—the Earl of Denbigh, Sir Pyers Mostyn, Lord Moystn and Sir E. Bates, M. P., being among those to whom an urgent demand was made. Though they have formed themselves into clubs, the complaining tenants deny that they have formed a land league. They urge, however, that the desire to preserve themselves from absolute ruin forces them to seek some remedy for their unfortunate condition. What they want is not mere temporary reduction of rent, but a complete change in the scale of charges, which has become intolerable. The landlords already mentioned have granted a reduction of 15 per cent.

THE subject of the "Inch Arran Scandal" is likely soon to be ventilated in Parliament. It was lately brought to light by the Transcript of Moncton, N. B., and Mr. Collingwood Schreiber, the Chief Engineer of the Government Railways, is the person implicated. The particulars of the case briefly stated are as follows:—On the Intercolonial railway at or near Dalhousie, on the Bay of Chaleur, there is a summer hotel known as the "Inch Arran House," of which it is said Mr. Schreiber is the principal proprietor. The Transcript charges and challenges investigation, that free tickets were issued over the Intercolonial, viz; from Point Lewis to Dalhousie and return to parties (summer tourists) designated by the Inch Arran management. It points to the alleged fact that Mr. Schreiber is the principal owner, if not the absolute owner of this hotel; and that this order was given to the Intercolonial agent at Montreal. It is further alleged that a plumbing contract for Inch Arran House was entered into and the papers signed in the general (Intercolonial) offices at Moncton, and that when the contract was completed the money was paid over to the contractor in the general offices on an ordinary Intercolonial voucher. It is still further charged that the contractor and his workmen had free passes over the Intercolonial to Dalhousie, to come and go when necessary. Similar passes were issued to carpenters employed on the house. These charges may or may not be true, but they will be made the subject of Parliamentary enquiry, as all the accounts and vouchers bearing on the case have been called for by Mr. Davies.

The Salvation Army.

SIR,—The "Army" is again a subject of discussion in your columns, and so long as it attracts public attention, there is a prospect of its usefulness being increased and its errors corrected. That its management, views and conduct are not in all respects perfect will at once be admitted, for we all know that no individual, and no human organization is all that could be desired, or is likely to be on this side of the millenium. What then is the present position of the Salvation Army?

A few unpretending strangers came here some two years ago, without wealth, name or prestige of any kind, led by two or three unlettered women who simply proclaimed the Gospel; they labored hard, they despised none on account of their poverty, ignorance or degradation; they invited the miserable to seek happiness, the drunkard to cease drinking, the thief and blasphemer to forsake his evil ways, and they largely succeeded in drawing together a body of people who seldom or never entered a place of worship. The drunkard was reformed and stood forth to proclaim what the Gospel had done for him; religious services are conducted seven evenings each week, and an amount of money was raised, in a few months, for the erection of a place of worship which was a surprise to all the city. Nor is there the falling off in numbers or apparent zeal, that the writer of this and many others looked for. Good, much good, has been done, and to God be all the praise.

All these things are admitted, but there are complaints of the irreverent, and in the eyes of some, almost blasphemous mode of conducting their services, and of the demoralizing tendency of many of their proceedings on the young who so crowd their barracks on the Sunday. The continual beating of a drum in connection with Sunday parades is also spoken of as an annoyance to schools, distracting the attention of the children and even drowning in some cases the voice of prayer. And on one or two cases recently the marching of the Army on the sidewalks to avoid the mud in the middle of the road has been matter of complaint, and no doubt proved a temporary annoyance. Well, admitting all these objections as being at least partially true, should we not be willing to endure them, if necessary, for the good the Army has accomplished, and for what they may hereafter do? But, are all these improprieties necessary for the carrying on of the work, and cannot they be avoided, or at least alleviated, by kindly action and friendly advice, so as to retain the good and avoid the evil?

In the first place—we all know that there are hundreds of people in the city who do not regularly attend any place of worship on the Sabbath; suppose the ministers of the Gospel act in concert or separately, in visiting every part of the city, and endeavoring to bring these people within Christian influences? Supposing the deacons, elders and leaders of the respective churches co operate with their ministers in the good work? By thus obeying the Scriptural injunction to go into the highways and houses and bid the poor, the depraved and the careless to come into God's house, there will be small room for the Army and its workers. Had this course been adopted in the past, the annoyance of some church goers and S. S. Teachers would not have existed.

In the second place I suggest that the same ministers wait on the women who head the Army, or invite one or more to their own studies, and kindly discuss the alleged improprieties of service and conduct. It should be borne in mind that nearly all the young women in command at the station here have little education, know little of public life, and may be carried away with new-born and indiscreet zeal, which could be tempered by older and more experienced Christians. There is nothing in Christianity or in the Bible but what teaches reverence for sacred things, good will and forbearance to our neighbors and co-operation in every good word and work.

I admit that there are times when considerable bodies of people are leaving the barracks, both by day and night, when young men rush headlong on the paths with no regard to others, and sometimes stumble against them; that they sometimes collect on the sidewalks to the annoyance of passers by; but the disposition to monopolize the pathway is not confined to the youth and apparently careless, for everyday and especially on Sundays, I meet two, three or more people walking abreast and thus occupying the whole width of the sidewalks, and those meeting them have either to rub shoulders with them going single file or step off the walk altogether. Yet many of those people are well dressed, strict in demeanour, and would feel it an insult to be thought unmannerly and unchristian. I therefore am disposed to find excuses for the thoughtless, the youthful and the ignorant. Bear with them friends, reason with them, pray for them, and set them a good example, and more good will be accomplished than by murmuring at the less informed, less courteous and less disposed to consider others than you are yourselves. At the same time I would add, that if all reasonable efforts fail to preserve the public from offence, the law should afterwards be evoked to secure public rights, and I much question the right of the "Army" or any others to parade the streets on the Sabbath with music and banners.

Yours, etc.,

Guelph, March 24.

THE Government is determined to spend some more money on the exploration of Hudson Bay and to again send the "Alert." As a fact, the British Admiralty is in possession of all the information that can be obtained, and told the Government so when it asked that body to undertake the exploration. So is the Hudson Bay Company. We do not suppose that this third expedition will throw any additional light on the subject, or tend to show that the route is a really safe and practicable one, or can be relied as a means of steady connection in the summer or fall with the projected railway between Winnipeg and Hudson Bay.

NOW BY

RYAN, BERKINSHAW & COMPANY,

OUR FIRST GRAND SEMI-ANNUAL SALE

Which will be continued for 30 Days.

It is our intention to hold a Grand Clearing Sale twice each year, The first one we shall launch

THURSDAY, MARCH 25TH.

On that date we will place before the public many lines of Goods at away below their regular prices. This being our first sale we are very anxious that it should prove a grand success, and we are determined that it shall be so if

Low Prices, Great Variety, and Big Bargains will do it.

Now we do not propose to advertise a lot of bargains just to draw a crowd and when our customers call for them say, "We are just sold out." No, we think we understand our business a little better than that. The man who undertakes to play with the public in that way is far from being sharp and will find although his printer's bill may run high, his trade will gradually drift away, and the public will have no confidence in him. We intend that our advertisements shall have weight with the public, and the only way to accomplish that is to KEEP FAITH WITH THE PEOPLE—having every line advertised, and at the price named.

ECONOMICAL HOUSEKEEPERS,

We ask your attention to the following Lots, which in almost every case it will be impossible to repeat. We shall adopt the system of placing each Lot as near as possible, down the centre of the store, marking the price plainly on each line. CHAPTER XIX.

"TAKING COUNSEL."

In this state Mrs. Longworthy found her when she came home only a few minutes later. Her alarm and anxiety were great; the more so as for some time none of the remedies she applied had the slightest effect. Helen still lay in that death-like swoon, with the same expression of agony on her face which it had worn when the weight of her misery proved too great for her.

At last she opened her eyes. She looked puzzled when she saw Mrs. Longworthy bending over her, and she would have spoken, but the rector's wife stopped her saying.

"Not just now, my love, wait a little before you speak."

Her eyes wandered round the room with a curious look in them; at last they rested on the newspapers which had struck her down, and she put her hands over her face, saying,

"I remember now."

She lay for a moment with her face hidden; then her chest heaved and she broke into passionate weeping.

Mrs. Longworthy did not attempt to check her; she only used various little womanly ways of expressing sympathy with an unknown grief, while her own eyes were dim with unshed tears, for Helen seemed to be crying her very life away.

At length her sobs grew lighter, and in time she ceased to cry at all, but lay quite still with such sadness in her face as made Mrs. Longworthy's heart ache. At last she spoke.

"Do you wonder what is the matter with me?"

"Do not tell me unless you choose," said Mrs. Longworthy soothingly.

"It was something I saw in one of those papers. I will tell you and Mr. Longworthy about it to-night, but I cannot now," she finished rather feebly.

"Of course not, my child; I should not think of letting you begin to tell a long story now. You must lie still till Rupert comes in, and then, if you feel very much better, you shall tell as much or as little as you like."

"I must tell everything," said the girl feverishly. "Everything; if I do not my brains will split. I wish you would give me something to make me sleep till evening. I am afraid I shall go mad if I have all that time for thinking."

In the afternoon she fell asleep in her own room utterly exhausted with her agitation, and she was still upstairs when Mr. Longworthy came in.

His wife told him what had happened, and he listened very gravely.

"Poor Mrs. Charming!" he said at last, "I am afraid she is in trouble. Of course we must make allowance for her state of health, so that perhaps the misfortune will not turn out so great as she believes. I am afraid she has been guilty of some folly and is paying for it."

"If you had seen her crying this morning you would have said she was paying very dearly for whatever she may have done."

"I do not doubt it for a moment—people always do pay dearly for any mistake they make. The remembrance that it will be so, ought, I suppose, to keep them from making mistakes, and no doubt will do so when the millennium arrives. In the meantime they go on their unreflecting way, and it behoves people who have profited by their own and others' mistakes to place their experience at the service of those who have not been so fortunate."

"At any rate we shall now learn who she is."

"I suppose so. I confess it will cost me an effort to leave off calling Mrs. Charming, but I must not complain if in exchange I can give her her real name."

Helen came down to tea, and Mr. Longworthy greeted her with his customary stately politeness. He took her into the dining-room and paid her deferential attentions without making any allusion to what had passed during the day, though Helen knew he had been told of it, and he knew that she knew. More than once Mrs. Longworthy saw her husband's eyes rest upon the face of their guest with an expression of admiration and interest which he was not wont to show.

Helen looked very beautiful that evening. All traces of her tears had gone, her delicate face was slightly flushed with the knowledge of what she was going to tell that evening, and her eyes looked more lustrious than usual. Though she looked very sad she was perfectly composed. She wore a white dress which Mrs. Longworthy had had made for her at the beginning of the summer, and it helped to give her an air of youthfulness which seemed strange when one's eye caught the wedding ring upon her finger.

She was very silent, as was indeed only natural. She drank her tea but ate scarcely anything, and that only in compliance with Mr. Longworthy's repeated requests. But it was evident that her thoughts were entirely occupied with the morning's occurrence. Once when the clergyman was speaking to her and she was looking at him he saw the colour fade suddenly out of her face, while she knitted her brows and compressed her lips, as though saying to herself—

"I will not give way."

She was very brave. Mr. Longworthy, knowing she must be suffering, thought to help her by engaging her in conversation, and she met him half way. She answered his questions, and asked some of her own, once or twice she even smiled. But it was a great effort, and she was thankful when Mrs. Longworthy rose from the table, and they went back into the drawing-room.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

In relieving you from your responsibility as a Legislative Assembly for another year, I desire to express my appreciation of the able manner in which you have discharged your duties, and the earnestness with which you addressed yourselves to the various measures which I promised to submit to you at the opening of the session.

Besides a large amount of private bill legislation, you have passed useful measures on important subjects, not, I think, surpassed in variety in any former session of the Legislature of the Province.

I have given my assent with great satisfaction to the Bill respecting Agriculture and Arts, in which the legislation of former years is simplified, improved, and consolidated. The provision for appointing an Advisory Board of experienced farmers to assist in the management of the Agricultural College and Experimental Farm, will, I have no doubt, strengthen public confidence in the management of this institution, and also promote its efficiency and usefulness.

By the measure for the settlement of the Rainy River District, another step has been taken to find homes for many of our people, who might otherwise be induced to settle on the prairies of the Western States. I am glad to learn that the fertility of the District thus opened up compares favourably with the lands in the older portions of the Province.

I cordially approve of your legislation for the prevention of contagious diseases. I attributed our immunity from smallpox during the past year, in a large degree to the wholesome measures of a former session. The increased powers now given to municipalities, with respect to vaccination and otherwise, will still further aid in preserving the public health, and in enforcing such precautionary measures as experience has shown to be necessary in dealing with all forms of epidemic diseases.

The Act by which workmen may receive compensation for injuries suffered through the negligence or default of their employers, will, I am confident, prove a great boon to those whose occupations are attended with great personal risk. The security which the same measure affords to their families will doubtless relieve many who would otherwise be exposed to great suffering and privation.

By your amendments to the Franchise Act, many persons whose avocations require them to be absent from their homes for several months at a time, will be entitled to vote at Parliamentary Elections, whilst the facilities afforded workingmen to poll their votes, by the extension of the noon recess to two hours, will enable them to discharge an important duty to the State without inconvenience to themselves or their employers.

I was glad to concur in the Bill further improving the License Laws. The sale of liquors by unlicensed houses, and the too frequent violation of the laws against selling intoxicating drinks on Sunday, have led to crimes and excesses which all good citizens deeply deplore. I sincerely trust that the stringent provisions of the new Act will mitigate these evils, and array the moral forces of society on the side of law and order.

The consolidation of the several Acts passed during former years respecting Separate Schools, and the improvements which you have introduced, will, I am sure, be of service to those charged with the administration of this part of our school system.

The value of Mechanics' Institutes, in providing facilities for mental improvement to many whose resources would not admit of any expenditure upon books and magazines, has been recognized in England and Canada as an important factor in the education of the people. I am glad that you have passed further legislation for their improvement, and that in conjunction therewith you have also increased the facilities for the establishment of evening classes for the study of Art and Industrial Drawing.

I have had pleasure in assenting to the Bill abolishing to a large extent the old distinction between real and personal estate; and to the Bill for further simplifying the laws respecting the transfer of property. I was glad also to assent to the Statute Law Amendment Act, by which you have made many important improvements in the statutes of the Province, in view of the new consolidation now in preparation of the whole body of the statutory law.

I have assented with pleasure to the Bill containing provisions needed in the interest of private owners whose property is required in order to carry out the patriotic object of permanently securing to the public the territory around the Falls of Niagara, that grandest of natural wonders, committed by Providence to our care.

I thank you for the supplies which you have voted for the public service. They will be expended with all the economy consistent with the public requirements.

Sadder and Wiser.

The St. Catharine's Journal has the following:—We are informed that during the sleighing last week a young man, whose relatives are all well off and keep a large livery stable in the town of Acton, got too warm. He took a horse and fancy cutter and drove all the way from Acton to this city, en route for the United States fort at Niagara, where he intended to enlist in Uncle Sam's army and become a bould soger boy. He put up at a hotel here over night on his march to the lake, and, as we learn, was a jolly good fellow, with more money than good sense. When he arrived at Niagara-on-the-Lake he stabled his nag and paid a man to pilot him across the boundary to the frowning fortress, where he at once offered himself as food for powder, and a war-like hunter ready to go after redskins or coyotes on the boundless plains of the west. Although a likely looking Canuck, his chest was too small and his feet too tender; in fact Uncle Sam could get many better men, dozens of whom are now daily offering their services in Buffalo and other cities. So in a courteous manner the army doctor advised him to return to Acton and grow up with the country. With a sad heart and his hopes of glory blighted, he recrossed the sturgeon stream to Canada, only to find that during his absence a thaw had set in which used up the sleighing. He paid the hotel man for the keep of his rig and was compelled to hoof it alongside of the horse all the way through the dismal swamp road to this city, where, after refreshing, he left for home, and is now likely telling the Acton youths his exploits on the march to the frontier. This young man is but one of many who come through this section intent on becoming American soldiers, and they generally return crestfallen. It is well they do, as without any disparagement to the United States military service, those who know can testify that outside of the quiet garrison duty their work on the frontier territories is the most humdrum and mule-like which can be imagined, and in comparison with which that of the British regular, with his varied change of quarters in all parts of the world, and his well defined duties, is a princely tourist.

Labour Notes.

The Missouri Pacific employees have made a final challenge to Jay Gould for a hearing of their difficulties.

The German Reichstag has rejected a Socialist motion favouring the establishment of Workingmen's Courts of Arbitrators.

Some of the striking lathers in Toronto returned to work at the advance of 2½ cents per hour.

The Paris Figaro says that the employees at Decazeville, France, are losing 5,000 francs a day in consequence of the present strike. One thousand of the strikers support themselves by farm work, while 800 others receive regular help from a relief fund maintained by donations.

Some months ago the wages of the engineers on the G. T. R. were reduced 5 per cent., and those of firemen 3 per cent. At a meeting of engineers and firemen, held in London, on Wednesday night, a delegation was appointed to wait on Mr. Hickson and request that wages be restored to the old rate in accordance with the promise made at the time of the reduction. It is rumoured that a refusal will probably result in a general strike and an absolute suspension of business over the whole Grand Trunk system.

At a mass meeting of Toronto carpenters Thursday night the following motion was passed:—That this mass meeting of carpenters and wood working machinists call upon all average mechanics to demand of their employers to fulfil their agreement of May, 1883, by paying 22½ cents per hour, and to grant them the privilege of working 9 hours per day for five days and five hours on Saturday; if not, to quit work on March 31 until such demands are granted.

Hon. Alexander Morris became suddenly ill Wednesday afternoon at the Parliament Buildings, Toronto. While occupying his place in the House he felt somewhat unwell, and retired to the reception-room, where he fainted. He was driven home and is now in a precarious condition.

A party of about one hundred agricultural immigrants from Great Britain passed through Montreal Thursday on their way to the Northwest, where they intend settling. All of them are well provided with money.

Gustave Mercier, the absconding accountant of La Banque Nationale, of Montreal, who is accused of committing extensive forgeries on the bank, was arrested Thursday in New York and held for extradition. He had but ten cents in his possession when arrested.

Judge Taylor, of Winnipeg, has been commissioned to enquire into and report upon the difficulties between Stipendiary Magistrate Travis and the people of Calgary, N.W.T. In the meantime Mr. Travis will not exercise his judicial functions.

CONCERNING CHEAPNESS.

Leading Boot and Shoe Store.

THE REAL TEST OF CHEAPNESS IS UNdoubtedly as the maxim has it "quality," for if any article lacks quality it is dear at any price, especially is this true in regard to

Boots & Shoes

People very often lose more than they save, when they indiscriminately go in for Cheap Goods without regard to their value. It has however been our steady aim through our business life that every article kept by us shall be of the

Local News

DR. ORTON and Rev. Jas. Kilgour are for hospital duty next week.

THE City Band will play at the City Hall on Wednesday evening.

MR. GEO. WALKER, of the firm of Hugh Walker & Son, has returned home after a week's holiday in the Niagara district.

A HOTELKEEPER and a beer agent were seen playing marbles yesterday afternoon. Evidently they are preparing for the Scott Act.

ON the Market Square this morning the auctioneers of the city seemed to do a thriving business in selling furniture, etc. The prices obtained were good.

REV. DR. TORRANCE will preach in Rev. J. K. Smith's church, Galt, to-morrow, and the Rev. J. K. Smith will occupy Dr. Smellie's pulpit, in Fergus.

THERE are a great many farmers in town to-day. They report the roads within two or three miles of the approach to the city very good, but beyond that they are bad.

A NUMBER of suspicious characters are to be seen at dusk prowling around the back streets of the city. Clothes line stripping and chicken thieving seems to be their occupation.

A NEW new time table has been issued by the G. T. R. authorities. It does not effect the time of any of the passenger trains here, and only has reference to some of the freight trains.

MR. GEO. SLEEMAN is making preparations for commencing extensive alterations to his brewery as soon as the weather will permit. These additions and alterations will be principally for new malting machinery.

IT is rumored on the street that a number of the principal hotelkeepers intend selling off their furniture by auction on the 29th of April and closing up on the 30th. Cheap furniture will be obtainable next month.

THIS morning the trains from all directions on the G. T. R. were well patronised by people who take advantage of the Saturday excursions to the city. The merchants and other dealers are well pleased during their visits.

WASHOUT.—The branch train on the G. T. R. from Galt was detained yesterday afternoon near Blair on account of a freshet on the Grand River, blocking the track with ice and washing away the ballast. The train was unable to proceed this morning.

SMALL BOYS, ATTENTION.—It will be seen from our report of the proceedings of the Public Library Board, that in future no one under the age of twelve will be allowed the privileges of the Reading Room. This action has been rendered necessary by the shameful way in which the illustrated papers and magazines have been soiled and torn by numerous small boys who have been in the habit of frequenting the room.

PUBLIC LIBRARY CLASSES.—The Secretary has received notification from the Department that the amount of $201 has been apportioned for classes to the Guelph Public Library, viz:—$150 for classes, and $51 for certificates. From this it appears that fifty-one members of the drawing class have succeeded in obtaining certificates at the examination, which is a very satisfactory record. The names of the successful candidates will be published as soon as they are received from the Department.

CHECKERS.—A very close and exciting game of checkers was played last night by telegraph between Messrs. D. Naismith, F. Burr and L. Rainer, representing Guelph, and Messrs. W. Plum, G. Bean and J. Cook, representing New Hamburg. Three games were played; Guelph won the second game, New Hamburg won the third game, and the first game was drawn. Some very fine moves were made on both sides. Time of game 3½ hours. A return match is to be played some time next week.

CANADIAN PRESS ASSOCIATION.—The Executive Committee of the Canadian Press Association met at the Rossin House yesterday. Present:—J. A. Davidson, Guelph Mercury, President; H. E. Smallpiece, Toronto World, Vice-President; J. B. Trayes, Times, Port Hope, W. R. Climie, Sun, Bowmanville, Secretary-Treasurer; Henry Hough, Grip; C. Blackett Robinson, Canada Presbyterian; Geo. Tye, Brampton Times. The libel law was discussed and arrangements made to bring the matter to the immediate attention of the Government. The annual excursion was talked over but nothing definite was arrived at.

MR. L. O. BARBER claims that he has the first dressed spring lamb in the market this season. It was bought from Mr. Joseph Hindley, Eramosa.

REV. THOS. R. WELCH, D.D., and United States Consul for the port of Hamilton, died very suddenly at his residence, Catharine street, Hamilton, on Friday night.

As will be seen by advertisement in another column, members of the Guelph Catholic Union will reproduce the "Social Glass" in the City hall on Wednesday.

THE members of Royal and Guelph Lodges A. O. U. W., will attend the Congregational church to-morrow evening, where a sermon will be preached for their benefit by the Rev. Bro. Dr. McGregor.

THE employees of the Grand Trunk Railway have been made happy at the announcement of the heads of the department that the 5 per cent. deducted two years ago from their salaries will be at once restored.

THIS morning the market was well supplied with produce of all descriptions, which was largely sought after, butter, eggs and poultry being the principal articles. Eggs brought from 12c to 13c per dozen, and as high as 25 cents per lb. was asked for butter. Chickens brought from 50c to 60c per pair.

REV. H. S. MATTHEWS, Superintendent of the Bracebridge District, dedicated a beautiful and commodious Methodist church, on the Gibson Reserve of the Iroquois Indians, last Sunday, the 21st. The whole of the work, both in building and finishing the church, was done by the Indians.

LARGE CONTRACT.—Mr. George Selwood, late of the Guelph Barrel Manufacturing Company has received the contract for the manufacture of 3,000,000 brick in Toronto. He leaves Guelph as soon as the season is open to commence the job. This is one of the biggest contracts of the year and Mr. Selwood is to be congratulated in having secured it.

POLICE COURT.—Michael Riely, who says he hails from London, was before the police magistrate this morning charged with being drunk. Not having the wherewithal to pay a fine of $1 and costs for his misconduct Michael was sent to jail for 10 days. In the meantime the Chief of Police found that he had sold a quantity of blacksmiths tools at a very low price, and will endeavour to find out how he came by them.

FARMERS in driving along the Market Square, should keep their eyes about them and have full control of their teams in case of accident. This morning one of them in driving along, and not watching where he was going, narrowly escaped running over two children but for a gentlemen who stopped the horses in time. The farmer instead of thanking the man for his timely interference abused him with unbecoming language for interfering with his team. A hearing before the police court might have beneficial effect on such characters.

SCOTT ACT.—A number of the temperance workers of Puslinch held a meeting in the Town Hall, Aberfoyle, on Thursday, 25th inst. After having formed themselves into an "Electoral Union" the officers for the current year were appointed. A lively discussion was entered into as to the best means of enforcing the act after it comes into force on May 1st. Other business of importance was transacted when the meeting adjourned to meet again on Friday evening, April 9th, at 8 o'clock at the same place. As many of the temperance friends as possible are cordially invited to be present.

THE DRUGGISTS AND THE SCOTT ACT.—R. W. Elliott (Toronto), W. B. Saunders (Stayner), and E. Harvey (Guelph), waited upon the Finance Minister, and Minister of Inland Revenue on Thursday evening as deputation from the Ontario college of Pharmacy, their object being to induce the Government to make such changes in the Scott Act as will allow druggists in Scott Act counties to sell medicine containing alcohol as well as liquor itself for medicinal purposes only. As the law stands druggists are at the mercy of those who have them summoned for supposed infractions of the Scott Act.

CHALMERS' CHURCH.—The special services at present being held at Chalmers' Church are growing steadily in interest, as is evidenced by the daily increasing attendance and the deep attention that is paid to what is spoken. All the proceedings are conducted very quietly, without any effort to cause what is known as "religious excitement." Hymns are sung, prayers are offered, and the Gospel is preached. The Word of God is making a deep impression on many who assemble night after night, and a few have been led to cast themselves, as they are, into the everlasting arms of Him who so loved sinners that he died for them. There will be no service this evening, but to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock a Bible reading will be given, and in the evening the Rev. J. K. Smith will preach.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.—A public meeting was held in the Methodist Church, Alma, on Wednesday evening. An address was delivered by A. C. Steel, of Guelph, District Councillor of the Royal Templars of Temperance for the County of Wellington. Music was furnished by the church choir. At the conclusion of the meeting a Council of the Order was instituted with 28 charter members and the following officers—S. C., Rev. J. Davidson; V. C., Miss J. Ledingham; P. C., Rev. A. M. Tonge: Chap., Alex. McCrae: R. S., A. M. Smith; A. S., Miss Levina Isaac; F. R., Robert Gale; Treasurer, James H. Cardy; Herald, John Gibbon; A. H., Miss Lyons; Guard, Mary Gibbon; Sentinel, A Allan. This new Council starts out under the most favorable auspices and with an excellent membership, is well officered, and will no doubt make a good record.

A great prairie fire is raging on the Crow reservation, Montana, and has already burned thousands of tons of uncut hay. It is charged the Crow Indians fired the prairie to drive the cattle off the reservation.

THE choir of Morfolk street Methodist Church are well up in their choruses, and with such soloists as Mrs. Whitehead, Miss Clara Stevenson and Mr. Harrington, of Bradford, Pennsylvania, will no doubt give a good sacred concert on Monday evening. d1

REV. MR. WEIR and Mr. G. T. Webb will address the Gospel Temperance meeting in Paisley Street Methodist Church, to-morrow afternoon at 4:15 o'clock. Excellent music. d1.

COURT OF REVISION.

Friday, March 26.

This afternoon the list of additions to the Voters' List, submitted by Col. A. H. Macdonald, acting in the Conservative interest, was finished and the names will be found below. Mr. J. Hallett's list of 57 names, which was objected to in the morning by Mr. Guthrie, and which had been left over for further consideration, was again submitted, and although only a small technical change had been made, was allowed by the Revising Officer, and the names placed on his list. Guelph Township was then taken up, and the Conservative list presented, followed by the Reform list, which was partially finished.

Saturday, March 27.

Court resumed at 11 o'clock this morning. The Reform list for Guelph Township was completed and at 12.30 Eramosa Township was then proceeded with. Sundry objections to names on the Guelph Township list by both sides on account of insufficient description were presented, but in nearly every case the Revising Officer took a liberal view and allowed the names, when the intent was clearly manifest.

KNOX CHURCH TEMPERANCE MEETING.—A very interesting meeting was held last (Friday) evening in Knox Church, under the auspices of the Temperance Association of that congregation. Dr. McGuire occupied the chair. Opening exercises were conducted by Revs. Dr. Griffin, and R. J. Beattie. Excellent readings were given by Miss Maddock, Miss Orr, and Miss Murray. Messrs. James Mills, Hugh Walker and James Law sang solos that were well received by the audience. Miss Jessie Walker played the accompaniments. Dr. Lett, managing physician of the Homewood Retreat, was then introduced, and read an address on "Inebriety resulting from physical causes." The disease form of inebriety was presented so clearly that all present were able to follow the lecture with ease, and so ably that the opinions of the highest authorities were given in a lecture within very narrow limits. The heredity phase of drunkenness as presented in the lecture, was appaling and might well cause any community or nation licensing the sale of intoxicants as a beverage, alarm for its future. The opinion was freely expressed that the publication of his lecture from the pen of one occupying Dr. Lett's position would be of great service to our city and country. Dr. Griffin, Messrs. T. Goldie, and Geo. Skinner, made a few very complimentary remarks, and moved a vote of thanks to the lecturer. This was cordially given, as well as the thanks of all present to the other friends who had taken part in the entertainment. The meeting was closed by the Rev. James Kilgour pronouncing the benediction.

THE EFFECTS OF COAL GAS.—This morning Mr. Geo. T. Webber, baker, Masonic Block, was overcome by the effects of coal gas. This morning the dampers of the baking oven had been shut up and neglected to be opened afterwards. Mr. Webber and Mr. John Dandeno worked away for a considerable time in the bake house, when Mr. Webber, who has been complaining of not feeling very well for the past few days, left his work and lay down on some bags at the far end of the room. Dandeno took no heed to this for about ten minutes, when he went over to where Mr. Webber was lying to ask him about something, and was startled to find him lying in a semi-unconscious condition. Assistance was procured from the store above when Mr. Webber was carried up stairs and a conveyance procured to take him home. Dandeno, who had not felt the effects of the gas until the fresh air was allowed to circulate in the apartment, also became sick, and it was some time before he recovered sufficiently to resume work. Mr. Webber, although suffering from the effects of the gas this afternoon, will likely be all right by Monday.

GUELPH SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY.—A meeting of the above Society's council was held last evening in the Free Library Rooms. It was moved by Prof. Panton, and seconded by A. The order of proceedings at council and Society meetings was also decided upon, and the following committees appointed:—Printing Committee, J. W. Clark and R. L. Torrance; Finance Committee, D. McCrae and A. Gilchrist; Property Committee, Prof. Panton, R. Gausby and Rev. D. McGregor; Proceedings Committee, Jas. Goldie, Prof. Panton, Prof. James and D. McCrae. It was moved by A. Gilchrist, and seconded by W. Tytler, that the Printing Committee at once procure printed copies of the constitution for distribution, also membership tickets for the Society. The next regular meeting of the Society will be held on Tuesday, 13th of April, at which an interesting paper is to be given by Prof. Panton. Further notice of this will appear later.

The Evening Mercury

SATURDAY EVE'G MARCH 27, 1886.

The Vote on the Riel Execution.

After a debate extending over three weeks the vote on Mr. Landry's motion, expressing regret at the execution of Riel, took place early on Thursday morning. The vote resulted pretty much as we anticipated and indicated in previous articles. There were seventeen French Bleus in all who voted for the motion, and by so doing sought to throw the blame on the Government for allowing the law to take its course, and Riel, the instigator of, and ringleader in, the rebellion to be executed. This is about as many as we expected. It does not follow from this vote that all these hitherto supporters of the Government will continue in opposition to it, for several of them in their speeches, with this one exception, expressed their general confidence in the general policy of the Government. The Liberals not having made it a party question naturally divided according to their opinion and judgment. Sixteen of the Ontario Liberals voted with Mr. Blake, and the balance, with the exception of four who are absent, against the motion and in favor of the execution of Riel. It is said that the Government are very much chagrined at the result of the vote, as it was expected that the Liberals for the most part would go for the motion, and thereby give the Government an excuse for raising a howl in the west over what they are pleased to term French domination. But they have been grievously disappointed, for each representative followed the dictates of his own judgment. For this they ought to receive credit for honesty and sincerity, even from those who may differ in opinion from them on a question which has excited so much attention.

The British Cabinet on the Irish Question.

The news from London indicates a coming crisis in the British Cabinet. The meeting yesterday lasted for over an hour, Messrs. Chamberlain and Trevelyan leaving the Cabinet together and holding a private conference. The Loyal and Patriotic Union is forming branches in the colonies to carry on the work of creating general opposition to the Parnellite demands and to Mr. Gladstone's scheme, for reform in Ireland.

Mr. Chamberlain said at the Cabinet Council that the discussion yesterday had only intensified the crisis. The Government's supporters have been privately assured that the Government's Irish programme has been settled by the Cabinet. A Home Rule measure will be introduced first and will be followed immediately by a land bill. Both measures, if passed by the House of Commons, will be presented to the House of Lords together. Messrs. Chamberlain and Trevelyan will remain in the Cabinet until the Home Rule bill has been tabled, which Mr. Gladstone will do on Monday or Tuesday next. It is now believed that the Premier has, in deference to opposition in his own party, decided to abandon temporarily at least his scheme for buying out the landlords of Ireland and to make Home Rule in some form, pure and simple, the basis of his Irish policy. Sir Charles Dilke on the other hand, in his address at Chelsea, said he believed the Irish difficulty could be settled by giving the Irish people full management of all purely Irish affairs. The present system of government in Ireland was weak and unsuitable. If the holdings of the landlords were purchased by the Government, the latter ought also to purchase all other forms of property whose value would be affected by the concession of Home Rule.

In response to Mr. Paterson's motion the Government has brought down a certified copy of the minutes of the Council, held by the Six Nation Indian Chiefs at Brantford on the 22nd December last, in reference to the Franchise Act. The minute reads as follows: "The Speaker reports that the Franchise Act has for some time been under consideration of the Council, and as they observe elections are the cause of much excitement among their neighbours, they desire to exclude its operation from their Reserve; they, therefore, request their people to abstain from attending political meetings and also from giving votes at any election." It seems, however, that the Revising Officer gave no heed to this resolution, but considered it a part of his duty to go to the Reserve and make out a list for himself of those whom he deemed qualified to vote under the Act to the number of 458. We find in no part of the Act any clause which authorizes a Revising Officer to go and make out a list of those whom he considers voters, whether Indians or whites. Mr. Paterson will most likely bring the matter before the House, and ascertain whether the Revising Officer is acting in accordance with the law.

Unanimous Approval of Medical Staff.

Dr. T. G. Comstock, Physician at Good Samaritan Hospital, St. Louis, Mo. says: "For years we have used it in this hospital, in dyspepsia and nervous diseases, and as a drink during the decline and in the convalescence of lingering fevers. It has the unanimous approval of our medical staff."

Imperial Federation.

Sir Alexander Stuart, one of the leading public men in New South Wales, paid a flying visit to Ottawa last week on his way to England. He was interviewed by some of the reporters while at the Capital, and in reply to their enquiries about Imperial Federation stated that the people in his colony manifested no enthusiasm on the subject. He thought, moreover, that the project was not practicable and rather favored a federation of all the British colonies in Australia and New Zealand. This seems to be the opinion generally entertained by the leading public men and statesmen in the great Southern Pacific colonies, though a few of these strongly favor Imperial Federation, and have even made an attempt to establish it. We find in a late number of Bradstreet their Australian correspondent writing as follows:

"The Federal Council met at Hobart, the capital of Tasmania, and formally set the machinery of intercolonial legislation going. There was no precedent as to form, and very little business was transacted. The Governor of Tasmania transmitted a "speech," which was read after the Council had organized, with Mr. Service, ex-Premier of Victoria, as the presiding officer. The address of Mr. Service on taking the chair was an apology for the Council's existence, and he expressed a hope that it would be the means of binding the colonies more closely to the mother country. This sentiment, however, was traversed by Mr. Douglas, one of the Tasmanian representatives, at a banquet given by Mr. Service the same night, when he said that the federal movement was the signal for the early separation of the colonies from England. The time was not far distant, he said, when the colonies would no longer remain subject to a little island in the northern hemisphere—an expression of opinion which has been variously received throughout Australia. The great colonies of New South Wales, New Zealand and South Australia were not represented at the Federal Council, which is pretty generally ridiculed. Five colonies were represented, of which Fiji and Western Australia are technically "crown colonies." The Federal Council consisted of eight delegates. With the exception of Messrs. Service and Berry, of Victoria, no man of leading position as a Colonial statesman was present. Mr. Griffith, Premier of Queensland, who was a delegate, is only coming into prominence, and Messrs. Service and Berry have retired from the political arena. The one noteworthy feature of this event is the fact that the powers at large are notified that henceforth Australia and New Zealand must be taken into account in any territorial settlement in the south and western Pacific."

It seems from the above that there was a but a very partial representation from the colonies interested, and the meeting seems to be regarded more with ridicule than anything else. Even the other proposal of managing the business of the colonies by a Council composed of Agents-General does not seem to find much favor any more than that of Imperial Federation. Mr. C. R. Baker, late Minister of Justice and Education in South Australia, while in London lately thus expressed himself on the subject to the representative of a London journal:

"I do not see much point in the proposed Council of Agents-General. For one thing, any increase in the political functions of the Agents-General intensifies the anomaly of their relations to the Governors. The old theory was that the Governor was the recognized political medium and the Agent-General was only a business agent; but the latter every day assumes more and more political functions, and he may be often carrying on negotiations with the Home Government of which the Governor himself is ignorant. And for another thing, I am decidedly of opinion that any Consultative Board of Agents-General would do more harm than good. The Agents-General very soon get out of touch with the actual state of public opinion in the colonies, and are apt to imagine that everything out there remains just as it was when they left, or to retain erroneous ideas concerning the matters they would have to advise on. No, depend upon it, the proper place from which to govern the colonies is the colonies themselves."

The charges for public debt, interest, and sinking fund show an increase of $623,044. The estimated expenditure for the redemption of debt and works chargeable to capital is reduced from twelve to five million dollars. There is an increase in the estimated expenditure for civil government, police, quarantine, lighthouse and coast service, fisheries, Indians, Mounted Police, and collection of revenues. The proposed expenditures for immigration, legislation, arts and agriculture, militia, railways, public works, mail subsidies, geological survey, and miscellaneous services have been reduced. No reduction is to be made in salaries or travelling expenses of immigration agents in Europe or Canada, but there is to be a decrease of $100,000 in the general vote in aid of immigration purposes, reducing the grant by that amount. The grant for railways, chargeable to capital, is to be $2,865,100, divided as follows:—Pacific Railway subsidy, $460,000; British Columbia section, $350,000; to complete road between Port Arthur and Red River, $72,000; salaries and expenses of staff, $50,000; Intercolonial Railway, $123,000; the estimated capital expenditure upon canals for next year $1,850,000, of which $750,000 is for the deepening of the Welland. The grant for Ontario public buildings is to be reduced from $234,430 to $104,500, the principal buildings to be proceeded with being the Hamilton Postoffice, $28,000; addition to Kingston Penitentiary, $17,000; Galt public buildings, $12,000; Toronto examining warehouse, $12,000; and Peterboro' buildings, $10,000. The appropriations for harbour and river improvements are also to be reduced in all the Provinces, excepting Manitoba and Northwest Territories. A grant of $100,000 is asked for the maintenance and repairs of the fisheries protection vessels.

MISS JOHNSTON, our popular manager in the Dressmaking Department, has just returned from New York. She left for that centre of Fashion nearly three weeks ago. She has visited most of the leading modistes and designers of Ladies' Toilets, and thus availed herself of many of the newest productions of the very best talent in the fashionable world. She also visited the large warehouses, and made selections of Novelties, including Dress materials, Trimmings, Silk and Lace Goods, and many lines of Fancy Goods, that we are assured will commend themselves to the good taste of our many patrons. It is almost needless to say to ladies who have had experience of Miss Johnston's abilities, that their requirements will receive the best attention at her hands.

"TAKING COUNSEL."

They stood about aimless y for a few minutes. Mr. Longworthy stood turning over the papers and magazines on the little table near the couch, and making rather disjointed remarks. Then there was a pause, and Helen understood that her hour had come. She looked up at him and said—

"Are you very busy this evening, Mr. Longworthy?"

"Certainly not, if I can be of any use to you. What can I do for you?"

"I want, if you do not mind, to tell you all about myself," she said, in a low voice.

"I shall feel honoured by the trust you repose in me."

"I want to ask your advice," she went on. "And I also want you to promise that you will not force me to act as you think best, contrary to my own judgment, and that you will do nothing without telling me."

"My dear madam"—he had almost said "Mrs. Charming," but arrested himself in time—"I should never dream of forcing any opinion of mine upon you. Such advice as my longer experience in life may suggest is at your service."

Her cheeks went crimson as he spoke.

"Do not misjudge me, please, she said. "What I am going to tell you is very strange, and it is quite possible we may not agree as to the best thing to be done. I am going to tell you everything, things I have told to no one else, not even to my husband."

"First," she went on in rather an unsteady voice, "I want to thank you for all you have done for me, or rather to tell you I am sensible of it, for I cannot really thank you, and to say I will never forget it would be mere empty words; how could I ever forget it? But the remembrance of it will make me a better woman, and if ever circumstances should arise in which I could be of any use to you I beg of you to command me, and I thank you in my own name and that of my husband."

Again she paused. She had evidently to make a great effort to speak at all, but she went on again more firmly.

"I had better begin by telling you who I am; my name is Helen Moore, and I am married; my maiden name was Lafone."

Briefly and comprehensively she told the story of her girlhood and her engagement to Percival. Then she went on—

"Now I am going to tell you what I have told no one else, and I beg of you to believe that I do it only because I am obliged. You would not understand the rest without it, and I begin to think that perhaps I ought not to have hidden it from Percival."

The last words were spoken more to herself than the hearers, but she went on without pausing.

"I have told you of my step-sister Alice and her great beauty, and the fear I was in lest, when Percival saw her, he should prefer her to me. When she came home my engagement was still a secret, but I feared no longer. I saw at once that Percival would never care for her as he did for me. Instead, as is always the case, that happened for which I was not prepared—Alice fell in love with him."

She lowered her eyes as she spoke. Far harder than to speak of herself had it been to tell of Alice and her weakness. She went on quickly to relate the scenes between herself and Alice, her own marriage and home-coming, and Alice's subsequent visit to Brantwood.

"It was very difficult to know what to do," she said. "I could ask no one for help without betraying Alice, which was just what I wanted to avoid. Every day I trembled lest she should betray herself to Percival, because I forgot what I see now, that I knew what he was completely ignorant of, and that he was the last man to imagine such a thing happening. Then an idea struck me. I thought I would go from home for a week or two; when I was no longer in the house Alice would be forced to go home. I planned it all while Percival was away, wrote him a note, telling him I was going to London, and left home."

There was not much more to tell. How she had changed her mind in the train and carried out her new intention, the double accident of which she had heard only the day before—all this was told in a few words, and she ended by saying—

"From that day to yesterday you know far more than I do. Yesterday Mrs. Longworthy told me what happened both to myself and to the train in which I was supposed to be, and this morning I saw this," pointing to the newspaper which lay in her lap. "Will you read that paragraph aloud, please," she said, handing the paper to Mr Longworthy.

He cleared his throat, and read the account of the wedding, the description of the ceremony, the dresses, and the presents, together with a remark or two on the wonderful beauty of the bride. Quite at the end came a mention of herself and her death under tragic circumstances twelve months before.

"You see," she said when he had finished reading.

For a little while no one spoke. Mrs. Longworthy could not command her voice sufficiently, and even the clergyman was almost overwhelmed by Helen's story. It was so simple, the incidents and followed one another so quietly and naturally, one thing had of necessity led to another, and it all resulted in this terrible complication which seemed to set at naught all ordinary remedies.

This is to certify that I have used McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and do honestly say that if it cost me one hundred dollars ($100.00) a bottle I would not be without it, as it has done me more good than all the medicines I ever used, and I feel like a new man.—Yours truly, Alex Steel, Carlaton Place, Ont. This medicine is for sale at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at Thos. S. Petrie's Drug Store.

CITY COUNCIL.

The Exhibit to be Sent to the Colonial Exhibition.

The City Council held a special meeting on Friday to reconsider the Colonial Exhibit. There were present Ald. Lamprey, Chadwick, Keough, Bruce, Maddock, Cutten, Hewer, Jos. Carter, Hamilton, Husband, W. Carter, Coffee.

The Mayor read the requisition submitted to him to call the meeting.

Moved by Ald. Lamprey, seconded by Ald. Carter, that it be an instruction by this Council to the Special Colonial and Indian Exhibition Committee to procure a carving of a Canadian Coat of Arms to replace the "Inhabitant's" head and also procure photographs of several manufacturing establishments in the city to replace the private dwellings and forward the exhibit as speedily as possible.

There followed quite a discussion, the same ground being taken for and against the question as was reported at the last special meeting for the same purpose. These are so well known that it is not necessary to repeat them.

Ald. Hearn asked for information regarding the probable cost of the proposed alterations.

Ald. Hewer replied that it would be $10 for the head. The photographer would take some views, such as Bell's factory and Raymond's factory, to replace the private residences now in the frame, but there were some other photographs, such as the City Hall, that would have to be paid for.

Moved in amendment by Ald Hearn, seconded by Ald. Read, that the frame and photographs prepared for the Colonial Exhibition at London, England, be kept at Guelph and disposed of to the best advantage, or utilized in the Council Chamber.

Ald. Carter, at some length opposed the amendment holding that quite a sum of money had been expended on the exhibit and it would look foolish to keep it at home after going to all the expense. If it did no good it could do no harm. He also held that the Council was in honor bound to carry out the agreement entered into with the contractors.

Ald. Hamilton said that instead of the population being mentioned as 10,000, it should have been placed at 11,000 which would have been nearer the figure.

Ald. Skinner asked what arrangements had been made for taking off the names of Messrs. James & Co. and Mr. O'Brien, and what remuneration they would require for having this done.

Ald. Chadwick replied $30.

Ald. Keough thought it would be about as just to obliterate the names of the manufacturers on the pictures of the manufactories as to take off the names of Messrs. James and O'Brien. He considered the one an equal advertisement with the other.

Ald. Hearn was in favor of leaving it at home. It was of little use as an advertising medium. From pamphlets circulated on steamboats and otherwise, information could be gleaned about Guelph on certain points that perhaps some of the residents of the town were not aware of. He had found it so in his own experience. A concise history of all the chief places were given in these pamphlets.

Ald. Maddock was for sending the exhibit.

Several other members spoke when the following motion was put:—

Moved in amendment to the amendment by Ald. Chadwick, seconded by Ald. Coffee, that the resolution moved by Ald. Lamprey be amended by adding the following words:—All advertisements being removed from the frame before forwarding.

The yeas and nays were called for on the three motions. The amendment to the amendment was put first and resulted as follows:—Yeas—Husband and Chadwick. Nays—W. Carter, Coffee, Hortop, Hamilton, Skinner, J. Carter, Reid, Hewer, Hearn, Bruce, Cutten, Maddock, Keough, Lamprey. Lost.

The vote on the amendment resulted as follows:—Yeas—Hamilton, J. Carter, Hearn, Chadwick, Keough, Lamprey. Nays—W. Carter, Coffee, Hortop, Husband, Skinner, Reid, Hewer, Bruce, Cutten, Maddock. Lost.

The main motion was then put and carried on the following division:—Yeas—W. Carter, Coffee, Hortop, Husband, Skinner, Hewer, Bruce, Cutten, Maddock, Keough, Lamprey. Nays—Hamilton, J. Carter, Read, Hearn, Chadwick.

The Council then adjourned.

Public Library Board.

A special meeting of the Board was held on Thursday evening in the Board-room.

Present—Mr. D. McCrae, chairman; J. Goldie, J. A. Wood, and W. Tytler. Absent—Messrs. W. Stevenson, J. Innes, W. Macdonald, J. Harris, J. Hazelton.

A number of communications were passed.

Education Department, Mar. 23, 1886.

DEAR SIR,—I have the honor to inform you that the bronze medal for Mechanics' Institutes is awarded to L. P. Snider. Your classes have done well both in carving and drawing, and taken quite a large number of certificates, which will be sent as soon as possible.

Yours, &c.,
ALEX. MARLING, Secretary.

D. McCRAE, Chairman Free Library, Guelph.

The Finance Committee submitted the following estimates for 1886:

On motion the estimates submitted were adopted, and the Secretary was instructed to transmit the same to the City Council, with the customary request that the sum of $1400 be raised by assessment for Public Library purposes for the year 1886.

It was resolved to order the following works on architecture: Cottages, or Hints on Economical House Building; Low Cost Houses; Stables.

The Property Committee was instructed to have a suitable desk erected for the daily papers and others.

The following resolution was adopted:

That no person under the age of twelve years be allowed the privilges of the reading room.

The Board adjourned.

The latest remedy for coughs, colds, croup whooping cough, bronchitis, etc., is McGregor's Lung Compound. There is no remedy in existence containing any one of the active ingredients composing McGregor's Lung Compound, so do not say you have taken everything until you have tried this for your cold or cough, and your opinion will be the same as all who have used it, viz., that it is the best. WILL YOU SUFFER with Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint? Shiloh's Vitalizer is guaranteed to cure you. Sold by A. B. Petrie.

Labour Notes.

A report by a commercial agency on the total number of striking industrial and transportation operatives in the United States shows a total of 52,500. The Gould road striking employees do not exceed 5,000 with 4,500 others thrown out of work.

The Gail and Ax Tobacco Manufacturers, Baltimore, employing 500 people, have reduced the hours of labor to eight per day, without a reduction of pay.

The first arrest in connection with the express robbery on the Rock Island Railroad was made last night in Chicago, in the person of Lehigh Walters, who has been chopping wood during the winter between Menooka and Channahon, nine miles east of Morris.

The Knights of Labor operations begin to attract great interest in the English press. The Daily News gives nearly two columns to the history of the organization from Uriah Stevens' time down, and the Telegraph has the same space devoted to an editorial on the subject, apparently joyous that there is no such order in England.

CAMPBELL'S

TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

THE determination of the Government to establish National Parks along the route of the Canada Pacific is a good one, though it is not so satisfactory to be told that the sites have not been fixed. It is to be hoped that the selections will not be made subservient to the horde of party hacks and others who have secured vast tracts as ranches and for other purposes. We understand that the Government has reserved four townships in the mountain region, in which are situated hot sulphur springs which no doubt in the near future will become favorite places of resort for invalids and all who are in search of health and recreation. This, along with the magnificent mountain scenery, and with the excellent facilities afforded for hunting and fishing, will attract visitors from all parts as soon as sufficient hotel accommodation can be provided, should the rates of travel by the C. P. R. be put sufficiently low to encourage travellers.

Y. M. C. A.—The Monday evening Bible class in the Y. M. C. A. will be cancelled this evening, the Secretary not being able to meet the class. d1

PETER CURRAN, the well-known trotting horse driver, who on several occasions has graced the Guelph race course, leaves this week for Austria, where he has accepted an engagement.

THERE was no produce on the market this morning. Prices are quoted the same as last week. The buyers to pass away the time discussed as to what the result of the enforcement of the Scott Act would lead to in about four weeks from the present time.

CAPT. MOORE, of the wrecked steamer "Algoma," in consideration of his long and faithful service as Master Mariner on inland waters of Canada and for other reasons, will have his certificate, which was suspended some time ago, restored on 1st May next.

OWING to the dullness of business to-day the employers and proprietors of a number of the hotels amused themselves playing marbles. Such sounds as "fan every," "knuckle down tight," "fan dubs," etc., were to be heard emanating from the stables. Boys will be boys.

WARDEN MASSIE will lose several hundred dollars by damage to his personal effects from the fire on Sunday. Miss Massie was so alarmed and excited at the sudden tumult that she seized her father's hat with a gold crown on in front of it, put it on, and was wearing it at 7 o'clock, amid the ruins and the rain.

THE members of St. George's Society will arrange this week for a fitting celebration for the 23rd April, St. George's Day. Guelph was inaugurated a city on that day, some time ago, and no doubt a first-class programme will be the result of the celebrations of the sons of "Merrie England."

MESSRS. TOLTON BROS. are this week receiving a car load of mowers and drills from the well known firm of Noxon Bros. Manufacturing Compnay of Ingersoll. This speaks well for the favor those implirnents are gaining with the farming community and also the energy and perseverance of Messrs Tolton Bros. as salesmen.

THE programme for the concert in the Norfolk street Methodist Church this evening is one of the best that has been presented in the city for some time. The names of Miss Clara Stevenson, Mrs. Whitehead, Mr. C. W. Harrington and others, are amply sufficient to secure a large attendance. Tickets, two for twenty-five cents.

WELLINGTON Legion No. 18, S. K. of A. O. U. Grand Commander Reed, of the Supreme Grand Legion, has signified his intention of being present. This will be the first time in the history of the Order, that any of the Supreme Officers ever visited any of the Canadian Grand Lodges.

A FEMALE SWINDLER.—Last week a woman dressed in mourning called at the office of a Toronto undertaker and ordered an expensive coffin, explaining that a New York man had died at her house in Mimico, and was to be buried at Mount Pleasant Cemetery. After arranging for the undertaker to call at the house of Rev. Mr. Tremaine, Mimico, for further instructions she remembered that in her hurry she had forgotten to bring her purse with her, and as she had to telegraph to the friends of deceased she would be obliged if the undertaker would advance her a few dollars till he arranged for the funeral. Seeing a good fat contract before him, he readily handed over $5, and the lady departed, tears of sorrow for deceased and of gratitude to the undertaker running down her cheeks. In the afternoon the undertaker drove out to Mimico to lay out the corpse, and upon reaching the Humber found four other undertakers there, all of them bound for the residence of Rev. Mr. Tremaine, who had, of course, never heard of a New York man dying in Mimico. The undertakers do not care about discussing the business, so that it is impossible to state just how much money the female swindler got away with.

THE COMING WEATHER.—The probabilities for April are, according to Mr. Walter H. Smith, of Montreal, successor to Vennor. In Canada, April promises to be a favorable month on the whole. The sugar crop, as before mentioned, will be excellent and abundant. Farming operations will begin and navigation open early. For all this the month will not be all sunshine, but is likely, as already stated, to enter cold and white, the "borrowed days" giving a marked cool term—due, doubtless, to a dense stream of meteors passing between the sun and earth, near the former, and intercepting heat. The month will have its storm periods, but they will be long drawn out, rather than short and intense. Early warmth will bring on vegetation rapidly, but I fear that cold afterwards is going to cause agriculturists inconvenience. Between the cold terms there are likely to be periods of very pleasant, marked spring like weather, warm for the season, which will bring on migratory birds to hand earlier than usual. Precipitation I would place below the normal for the month. Considerable electrical and magnetic activity is probable. April is likely to end and the "moving days" of May open cold with showers of sleet, cold rain, snow flurries and strong winds. Local floods and high waters in many qualities. The opening of navigation at Montreal I would place between the 18th and 21st, and the first arrival from sea during the last one or two days of April, 1886. Greatest precipitation during the first half of the month.

NOT SUNK IN THE OREGON.—We gladly announce the safe arrival of our French patterns from Mesdames Michniewicz—"Tuvie and Mathilde," of Rue Du 4 Septembre and Rue De la Paix, Paris. They were not shipped by the "Oregon" but by the above steamer hence their safe arrival. Ladies will have the pleasure of feasting their eyes on a few of these in our corner window to-night.

J. D. WILLIAMSON & Co.

JOHN A. WOOD'S delivery waggon broke down on Waterloo Avenue on Saturday night. A defective axle was the cause.

MR. GEO. ANDERSON, of Harriston, was in Guelph to-day on his way home after attending to shipments of grain in different parts east for the British markets.

SAMUEL BURTON, Drayton, who fell into a well some thirty feet deep in that village recently, injuring his spine, and who was brought to the General Hospital for treatment, is doing remarkably well.

MR. A. STEELE, Head Master of the High School, Orangeville, has been unable to discharge his duties on account of a serious attack of congestion of the lungs.

NOTHING daunts the small boy. Two little darkeys were playing alleys on Essex street this morning, each of them with a big umbrella over him or behind him as the case might require.

"Persecution," remarked the parson, "is good for us, it develops our best traits and makes us better." "That is true," replied the sexton; "just see how much better and more useful barley is after it has been malt-treated." But the parson couldn't understand the figure at all.

NEARLY A RUNAWAY.—On Sunday afternoon there was nearly a runaway on Woolwich street. A young man and a lady drove up to one of the residences there, and on the gentleman jumping out the horse made a start. The driver made a spring for the lines and succeeded in catching them, holding on until it turned the corner of Charles street where it was brought to a stand still. No damage was done.

SAYS the Fergus Advocate:—Mr. Asher Farrow, an extensive and enterprising farmer and resident of Eramosa for the past thirteen years, has purchased a beautiful residence in the city of Guelph. Mr. Farrow will take up his abode in the Royal City for the future. His many friends in this locality will miss the old gentleman's smiling countenance in their midst.

ALL ABOUT FRIDAY.—Persons who have a superstitious dread of Friday will not be pleased to learn that this is a thoroughly Friday year. It came in on a Friday, will go out on a Friday and will have fifty-three Fridays. There are four months in the year that have five Fridays each; changes of the moon occur five times on a Friday, and the longest and shortest days of the year each fall on a Friday.

THE FRANCHISE ACT.—There is an old saying that it is an ill wind that blows nobody good. This remark will apply to the city finances next year. City Assessor Armstrong has been watching the Revision Court since it opened and has been astonished to find on the list a large number of young men who were about nineteen or twenty when he made up his returns. This will be looked after for poll tax next year.

MORTUARY STATISTICS.—The statement of mortuary statistics for the month of February shows that the deaths in Montreal were 314, in Toronto 239, Quebec 142, Hamilton 78, Halifax 73, Winnipeg 30, Ottawa 56, St. John, N.B. 42, London 44, Kingston 21, St. Thomas 18, Charlottetown 11, Guelph 19, Belleville 8, Three Rivers 26, Chatham 28, Sherbrooke 13, Peterboro' 8, Sorel 25, and Fredericton 13. The deaths from smallpox were 21, of which 15 were in Montreal. From diphtheria, 69. The violent deaths were 30.

HOW HE FARED.—The troops who in the Northwest were fed on corn beef and hard tack, will be comforted to know that Gen. Middleton's supplies consisted of canned tongue, boneless chicken, raspberry jam, strawberry jam, pears, peaches, pineapples, apricots, lemons, marmalade, milk whiskey (four gallons and two kegs) cocoa, oysters, sauce, pickled walnuts, baked beans, tomatoes, cheese, essence, coffee, curry powder, and many other articles not included in the corn beef and hard tack menu. This is now made public in the Auditor-General's report. Is this the explanation of the long delay in making the attack at Batoche?

CHALMERS' CHURCH.—There was a very large attendance last evening at Chalmers' Church, when Rev. J. K. Smith, of Galt, delivered a most excellent discourse. The meetings conducted in this congregation during the past week have been well attended, and a deep interest in their spiritual welfare aroused in many of those attending. A short after meeting for prayer and praise was held, to which nearly all present remained. The evening meetings will be continued during the present week, except on Tuesday evening, when Rev. Hugh Rose of Elora, delivers his lecture on "Walks through Rome," in Knox church, under the auspices of Chalmers and Knox Literary Association.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—This healthy and attractive exercise is securing additional numbers of votaries nightly at the rink, and there is every indication of continued patronage, as everyone is well satisfied with the quality of the skates, smoothness of the floor and the popular prices that have been charged by the management. To-morrow night the first of a series of five games will be played for a silver cup and the championship of the city between the City Band and the Speed Polo clubs, the club winning three out of five to be declared champions. The City Band will be present and enliven the proceedings with choice music. Ladies free.

HONOUR TO AN AUTHOR.—Those who have read the very popular Scottish story entitled "Johnny Gibb of Gushetneuk," and there are many in Canada, will be glad to learn that at a late meeting the Senatus of Aberdeen University conferred on its author, Mr. William Alexander, editor of the Aberdeen Free Press, the degree of LL.D. This is a well deserved honour conferred on a talented and industrious writer whether in the field of fiction or on politics. Mr. Alexander is also the author of "Life among my ain Folk," and "Sketches of Northern Rural Life;" is author, jointly with Rev. J. G. Michie, of short Memoir of the late Andrew Jervise, the well-known Antiquary, embodied in second volume of his "Epitaphs and Inscriptions;" contributed a short tale, "Isaac Ronald, the Dominie, to Life and Work in 1882, and has occasionally contributed to some of the magazines.

THE COLONIAL EXHIBIT.—At the special meeting of the Council on Friday evening, on the yea and nay vote on Ald. Hearn's amendment to keep the exhibit at home, the name of Ald. Read should have been placed among the yeas, and the names of Alds. Keough and Lamprey among the nays.

LEG BROKEN.—This morning, as a result of the very slippery walking, Mr. Wm. R. Bartlett, druggist, of A. B. Petrie's upper store, had two bones of his right leg broken at the ankle by a bad fall. He with two companions was coming down to work and when near the Baptist church, Bartlett, who was on the outside, slipped and fell heavily on his right leg, breaking it a little above the ankle. He was at once taken to his boarding house and the fractured limb set, but it will be weeks yet before he will be able for work.

FIRE IN THE CENTRAL PRISON.

The Chapel and the Warden's Quarters Destroyed.

At about 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon Warden Massie had just entered the main gate of the Central Prison and was walking through the front grounds to the building. After returning from teaching in St. Andrew's Sunday School. Suddenly he espied flames issuing from the cupola, which is over the central or main building. The Warden ran to the prison, ordered out the hose and guards, gave instructions to see that the prisoners were safe and then almost breathless rushed to the telephone, where he gave the fire alarm. The central and all the west end fire halls responded.

The water that was played on the flames cames rushing down through the chapel and the Warden's quarters, drenching everything through and through. The carpets were soaked, the furniture was destroyed, and stairways were dripping like rain, while overhead the roof and cupola was a mass of crackling flame. The wind was quite strong. The roof over the chapel fell in, and that over the Warden's quarters was badly damaged.

The prisoners set up a howl when they knew of the fire—they were all in their cells awaiting tea—but they were quite safe, and so nothing was done but to assure them of their safety and to strengthen the inside guard.

The flames were got under control about eight o'clock. The chief and his men did good service in suppressing the flames; lack of water was the main difficulty they had to contend with.

It will take $15,000 to $25,000 to restore the roofs and replace the main service pipe by one sufficient to the needs of the place.

The Warden has no theory as to the origin of the fire. Only one chimney was carrying smoke, and that was from a coal fire in the Warden's apartment. A spark from a passing engine would hardly have carried so far.

Directors of the Central Exhibition.

A meeting of the Directors of the Guelph Central Exhibition was held in the Commercial Hotel on Saturday afternoon, at half past two o'clock. Ald. James Hewer, President, occupied the chair. Present, Robert Mackenzie, Secretary, John I. Hobson, George Howard, Adam A. Armstrong, James Anderson, Robert A. Kirby, A. McIntosh, Alex. Bruce, A. Whitelaw, James Laidlaw, jr., Thomas Gowdy, J. B. Hood, J. Newstead, Peter Bathgate, Wm. Rae, J. McCorkindale, Alex. White, James Millar, E. Parkinson.

Moved by Thomas Gowdy, seconded by George Howord, that on account of the Provincial Exhibition being held here this year this Society hold no show. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Howard, seconded by Mr Millar, that the President, Messrs. Gowdy and Hobson be a Committee to tender their services to the Agricultural and Arts Association, if so desired, during the holding of the exhibition here. Carried.

The Secretary stated that it had been suggested to him that the Ontario Agricultural and Arts Association be recommended to offer prizes for Collie dogs.

After a slight discussion, on motion of Mr. Anderson, seconded by Mr. Rae, it was agreed that the Association be asked to provide prizes for the best working and best bred Collie dogs.

The President intimated that while the deputation was in Toronto the Arts Association had expressed a desire to hold their Fat Stock Show in Guelph this year. Of course the Committee had nothing to do with this, and stated that the matter was entirely in the hands of the Guelph Fat Stock Club, but at the same time they expressed the hope that such arrangements would be made with the club that would warrant the show being held in Guelph.

The meeting then adjourned.

Baseball Matters.

A meeting of the Board of Directors of the Toronto Baseball Association was held Saturday night at the Rossin House, Toronto.

Propositions were received from the London and Guelph baseball clubs asking for dates to play exhibition games at home or here with Toronto. Taking into consideration the small guarantee which the clubs could afford to give, the long distance and little leisure time the Toronto team will get for rest and practice between games, the Board came to the conclusion that unless London and Guelph could guarantee their travelling expenses and make it worth their while they could not entertain the proposals, in so far as they related to playing in those cities. The Board were agreeable to arranging dates with London and Guelph for games to be played in Toronto, giving the visiting clubs a third of the gate receipts.

The uniform of the Toronto team this year will be bright and pretty. The club will wear when away from home maroon shirt, cap, and knickerbockers, with old gold stockings. When at home they will appear in red stockings, white duck pants, red belt, and striped red and purple cap.

Toronto was sheduled to play Hamilton in Toronto on May 25 and on the afternoon of August 16, Toronto's Civic Holiday. The clubs have agreed to cancel the first date and will play a morning and afternoon game in Toronto on the Civic Holiday. The first game which Syracuse was scheduled to play at home was with Binghampton May 14, but the Syracuse people want the Torontos to open the ball there. As Toronto plays Rochester on May 10 and 12, they have arranged to run down to Syracuse on the 11th and open their grounds. The Toronto club is made up of seven Syracuse Stars of last season.

At the recent International League convention Rochester, Buffalo, Hamilton, and Toronto representatives agreed that the visiting club shall have a tenth man on the ground in uniform at every game, ready to take the place of any player who may be disabled by accident or illness. It was also agreed that the above four clubs shall have two balls on the ground at every game, so that when a ball is batted or fouled over the fence play can be continued with the second ball without any unnecessary delay.

The Dominion Franchise Act.

Judge Drew, Revising officer for the South Riding of Wellington, has been holding his preliminary Court, under the provisions of the Dominion Franchise Act, in the Court House, here, since Thursday morning last. The work has been very tedious, the Counsels on both sides—Mr. D. Guthrie, Q. C., for the Reformers, and Mr. A. H. Macdonald for the Conservatives—fighting with the utmost vigor for their respective parties. A portion of the names submitted have been published in our columns from day to day, for the purpose of showing the electors the names proposed to be put on the voters lists. The lists put in by the Conservatives are not to be taken as correctly setting forth the politics of the voters. The Conservatives have taken upon themselves in several instances to put the names of Reformers on their lists, while these same parties have made their own applications for the Liberal party. The motive for this action, on the part of our Tory friends, is said to be that they hope to get the parties to vote for their men by claiming that they were the means of having the names placed on the voters lists. Too thin!

In his speech Wednesday night, Mr. Bergeron happened to use the words "British subjects" and "independence" in the same sentence. At this, Mr. Hessen, the champion Tory interpreter from North Perth said, "A British subject is always independent." Mr. Mills, however, was especially bright in repartee and elicited cheers by retorting "Then you are not a British subject."

A return presented by the Minister of the Interior shows that of 31 half-breeds on the Lake Qu'Appelle district, sixteen had received scrip or land in Manitoba. Forty-one did not prove their claims and forty received scrip from the commission. Of 276 living in the vicinity of the Cypress Hills, 101 had obtained their scrip in Manitoba, 161 did not prove their claims, and 14 obtained scrip from the Commission.

The Ottawa Free Press says: The appearance upon the notice paper, of the motion respecting Riel's execution, was prefaced by Mr. Landry, of Montmagny, holding a confidential meeting with members of the Administration; and the close of the debate was marked Wednesday night by Sir Adolph Caron holding a secret conversation in his room with Mr. Landry. The latter was the Government's dummy, and bye-and-bye he will receive the reward of his perfidy, as he on that night received his final instructions.

Some doubts were thrown on the accuracy of Mr. Lowe's figures as to the number of people who have gone into Manitoba, or who had left it, and several members of the committee took the ground that the present system of collecting statistics respecting those who come into the country, and those who leave it, are very imperfect, and that some better system should be adopted. This has been proved time and again by the incorrect returns sent to the Department of people who have left Canada for the States. These returns invariably show a great discrepancy as compared with those made up by the United States officers to their Government, and give rise to the suspicion that our Government or their agents at the frontier, purposely falsify the returns in order to make it appear that the yearly exodus from Canada is less than it actually is.

The greatest uneasiness is said to prevail in the Quebec cabinet. The Hon. Mr. Lynch, who has returned from Sherbrooke reports, it is stated, that there is no longer any hope of the Treasurer's restoration to health, and that, in any case, he will be unable to attend to his departmental or parliamentary duties during the session. A cabinet meeting was held to consult with regard to the action to be taken under the circumstances, but the result was transpired. In speaking of the attitude of the Quebec Government on the Riel question, the Montreal Witness says:—"A rumor, which is given for what it may be worth, has it that the Quebec Government intend to anticipate an opposition motion in the assembly on the Riel question by presenting one of their own expressing regret at the action of the Federal Government in executing the rebel leader. In that case, it is thought very probable that the Opposition will offer an amendment condemning the local ministers as representing the Province of Quebec for exerting no influence or making no representation in favor of clemency to Riel.

The election of Mr. Girouard, the Liberal candidate, as member for Drummond and Arthabaska for the Quebec Legislature, shows the state of feeling in that province on the Riel question. Mr. Watt, the English speaking member for the constituency, as a consequence of the Riel agitation, thought he did not represent the prevailing sentiment of his constituency and therefore resigned. The Conservative candidate who ran for the same constituency at the last general election and was defeated by a majority of one hundred, was Mr. Girouard's opponent. Both signed the Champ de Mars resolutions on the Riel execution, and censuring the Dominion Government for the same. This did not save the Conservative candidate, however, for on Wednesday he was defeated by a majority of five hundred. It was this same constituency which, during the Mackenzie regime, pointed the way to the coming defeat of the Liberal regime by rejecting the Hon. Wilfred Laurier on his entry into the cabinet; and at the last election it gave the Dominion Conservative member six hundred majority. This result is more than a revolution—it is one of many signs of a political cataclysm which in Quebec is overwhelming both the Dominion and Provincial Tory parties in utter ruin.

Spring Opening IN OUR Dress Making ROOMS.

TUESDAY, March 23rd, 1886

MISS JOHNSTON, our popular manager in the Dressmaking Department, has just returned from New York. She left for that centre of Fashion nearly three weeks ago. She has visited most of the leading modistes and designers of Ladies' Toilets, and thus availed herself of many of the newest productions of the very best talent in the fashionable world. She also visited the large warehouses, and made selections of Novelties, including Dress materials, Trimmings, Silk and Lace Goods, and many lines of Fancy Goods, that we are assured will commend themselves to the good taste of our many patrons. It is almost needless to say to ladies who have had experience of Miss Johnston's abilities, that their requirements will receive the best attention at her hands.

We desire to direct special attention to our general stock

Of Dress Goods AND SILKS

which we are constantly assured has no equal in the Trade of Guelph. We make this a special leading feature of our business, to which we pay special attention. During no season in our long experience have we shown such a large, varied and comprehensive stock of Dress Materials and Trimmings as at present. It would be almost useless to attempt an enumeration of details. We can only assure our lady friends that absolutely nothing is lacking in variety, color, design, quality and price to please almost every want. We confidently solicit your patronage. We guarantee satisfaction. Our business is maintained on the principle of and we are certain that no Dry Goods house in Guelph will serve you as well.

E. R. Bollert, 27 Lower Wyndham Street, Guelph, Ontario.

CONCERNING CHEAPNESS.

Leading Boot and Shoe Store.

THE REAL TEST OF CHEAPNESS IS UNdoubtedly as the maxim has it "quality," for if any article lacks quality it is dear at any price, especially is this true in regard to

Boots & Shoes

People very often lose more than they save, when they indiscriminately go in for Cheap Goods without regard to their value. It has however been our steady aim through our business life that every article kept by us shall be of the

CHAPTER XIX.

"TAKING COUNSEL."

"What is your own idea about this marriage?" he said at last, turning to Helen. "How do you explain it, I mean?" he added.

"I cannot explain it," she answered. "It is a mystery to me. Percival did not love Alice; I knew he did not. This morning I accused him of having forgotten me, but this morning I was mad. I know now that he did not, does not, love her; that he never will love any woman but myself."

She spoke in a tone of perfect assurance; it was evident that, in spite of what had happened, her faith in her husband was unshaken.

"But," said Mr. Longworthy, "if he did not love her, what was his motive in marrying her, so soon after your supposed death, too, so extraordinarily soon?"

"I cannot tell," she said restlessly; "that is just what I do not know. Perhaps—— No, that would be impossible," closing her lips as she spoke, as though in that way she both would and could shut out a disturbing thought from her mind.

Again the clergyman and his wife exchanged glances, and again it was he who spoke first—

"Have you formed any idea of what you will do?" he asked.

"It is about that I want your advice. It is very difficult to know how to act. I made up my mind last night to tell you about myself to-day, because then I intended to write to Percival, and I was going to ask you to write at the same time. Now——"

"Now, I hope you will still let me write," he interposed, as she paused.

"You see I was right," she said nervously; "we disagree at the very first. I do not see that I can write now."

"Why not? You are Mr. Moore's wife."

"But there is Alice, do you not see? What would happen to her if I went back? I am safe. I have been so long in your house, no one would dare to doubt my being married; but if I went back to Percival, what would Alice be? Her whole life would be ruined; it would be terrible for her."

"But I hope you do not intend to remain apart from your husband all your life out of consideration for a woman whom no one who knew the truth would blame?"

"Yes, but," she whispered, "that is just it; we do not know the truth; we cannot tell how the marriage was arranged. I know Percival does not love Alice, and Alice does love him, and she is a girl who has always had her own way; she cannot bear to be thwarted."

"But all this is very morbid," said Mr. Longworthy. "You are hardly strong enough to discuss such a question yet. At least, if you refuse to consider yourself, consider your husband. If he has married Miss Lafone without loving her he cannot be happy; you have no right to condemn him to an unhappy life merely to satisfy a whim of your own. Pardon me for saying so; but, looked at from an impartial view, this idea of yours is nothing but a whim."

"You make it very hard," she said in a voice of perplexity, as she rung her hands nervously. "If I knew Percival was unhappy it would be a different thing, but how am I to know? I cannot ask him, and if I can do without him he can do without me."

"Pardon me again, but that is not so. Women are capable of sacrificing themselves in such matters to an extent which would be impossible to a man."

Again they were all silent. Helen was sitting on a low chair leaning against Mrs. Longworthy's knee, holding the hand of that lady and doing her best to overcome the nervous trembling which would shake her all the time. Mrs. Longworthy sat with a perplexed frown on her face saying nothing, but from time to time silently assuring Helen of her sympathy; and the mere fact of her presence was an immense help to the girl. Mrs. Longworthy had every faith in her husband's ability to deal with this difficult problem, and so far he had said nothing which was not an echo of her own thoughts. If later on he should differ from her she would speak. Mr. Longworthy himself was seated in his own arm chair giving his whole attention to the question. At last he spoke.

"You want my advice, Mrs. Moore, and I will tell you what at present is the only thing, I think, you can do. This paper says, you see, that they are not to return home till the beginning of the winter; can you wait patiently till then? When they return it shall be my business to find out how they feel towards one another. It will be time enough to act then, and I daresay we shall act all the more wisely then for having had this time to reflect in. What do you say to my plan?"

"I think it is the best thing we can do, but where—" pausing in some embarrassment.

"You may remember," he went on as if she had not spoken, "that at the beginning of your conversation you were kind enough to say you would have pleasure in doing any little thing for us that came in your way. I am going to ask you to do us a great favor."

"It is good of you to ask so soon. What is it?" she asked eagerly.

Mrs. Longworthy was smiling at her husband over Helen's head; she knew what he was going to ask.

"I want you," he went on, "to be kind enough to remain here with my wife and me until this is settled; you will be conferring a great favor on us."

Helen turned to Mrs. Longworthy with a look on her face which brought tears into the elder lady's eyes, and impelled her stoop and press her lips on the girl's forehead, while she said,

"Yes, my love, if you will stay with us you will be doing us the greatest kindness you could."

They did not say much after this, and presently Helen rose and went upstairs to her own room.

"I never heard such a sad story in my life," said the clergyman, when he and his wife were alone.

"It is as clear as the sun," said the lady in rather an unsteady voice. "This odious Alice has bewitched Mr. Moore into marrying her."

"I wish I could believe in anything so innocent as bewitching," said Mr. Longworthy. "From Mrs. Moore's description, I very much suspect the girl has made it impossible for him to do otherwise than marry her.

"I never heard of anything so awful. She acted with the best intentions and the purest motives in saving her sister's pride in her husband's eyes, and this is the result."

"I am very glad she told us. From her story she seems to me to have so far acted entirely on impulse without consulting anybody."

"I am thankful," said his wife, that she happened to come here, where, at anyrate, she has been taken care of."

"On reflection, my dear, the whole complication may be said to have arisen from the fact that she neglected to have her name and addresses on her luggage. Had she done so we could have communicated with her friends at once, and all this would never have happened."

This is to certify that I have used McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and do honestly say that if it cost me one hundred dollars ($100.00) a bottle I would not be without it, as it has done me more good than all the medicines I ever used, and I feel like a new man.—Yours truly, Alex Steel, Carleton Place, Ont. This medicine is for sale at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at Thos. S. Petrie's Drug Store.

A. O. U. W.

Sermon by Bro. Rev. D. Macgregor.

Last evening about 100 members of Royal and Guelph Lodges A. O. U. W., met in the lodge room at 6:15, and under the marshalship of Bro. Capt. Clarke, marched by way Wyndham, Paisley, and Norfolk streets to the Congregational Church. Through the kindness of the members of that body the centre of the church was reserved for the members of the two lodges. After singing and prayer the Rev. Mr. Macgregor took for his text, Isaiah 65, 8, "Destroy it not, for a blessing is in it." After noticing the history of the words, the destructive tendencies of the present age were dealt with. It was right to destroy some things but wrong to destroy others. In engaging in some works of destruction we are simply executing God's will and promoting the general welfare of society. There are some things and institutions which are but unmitigated evils. They curse the world and hinder the progress of civilization and Christianity. The preacher here illustrated from nature and life the principle that the work of destruction must frequently precede the work of building up. He showed also how unwilling some were to submit to this heroic treatment in the upbuilding of their character. In the world, and in ourselves, let the work of necessary destruction go on until the evil in us and around us shall be utterly destroyed, that the good every where may proper. The reverend gentleman then cautioned all against indiscriminate destruction. He said that there were men in the world who seemed to think they were born to pull down everything. The modern iconoclast went forth breathing vengeance and plotting the destruction of the most venerable and blessed institutions. Such destructionists seemed bent upon revolutionizing everything. The home, the church or the existing Government, were, in time, attacked. With such people the only beautiful thing in this world seemed to be the beauty of disorder. In reference to such work it was only necessary to remark that any fool can destroy. It is no mark of superior genius, or of marvellous ability to pull down what may have taken centuries to build up. It takes a wise man, however, to build up from the raw material any noble structure. God set before himself the work of building up society upon the eternal foundations of truth and righteousness. And what a grand thing it is, said the preacher, to help build up character! A character whose influence will be a perpetual benediction to the world, and whose likeness to the Divine will be its crowning glory and happiness.

The reverend gentleman in the second place noticed the limit assigned to the work of destruction. According to the text that limit was the presence of "a blessing." When you come up to "a blessing" then make a halt in your work of destruction. It was possible, however, for men not always to know when they are in the presence of a blessing. "A blessing" is not always recognized as such. Here the preacher illustrated from nature, the truth of God's hidden blessings. Science was continually revealing facts and resolving things into their constituent elements, and in this manner disclosing hidden blessings. There are disguised blessings in life. In view of all, which we are to be careful about what we destroy, and what we would gladly get rid of. But blessings are not always hidden. There are open blessings. These lie before us bearing the mystic characters of God's own signature. Whenever, therefore, we stand in presence of a blessing we are to rein in our destructive tendencies. A blessing is a sacred thing. It bears upon its face the stamp of heaven. It is a heaven-sent messenger to a sin-cursed, weary and troubled world. God knows that there are curses enough in this world. He, therefore, opens his hand and pours out His blessings upon the world beneath. Woe then be to that man who, by word or deed or influence destroys what God intended for a blessing! Whatever it is, therefore, if it only contains a blessing, then "destroy it not." In the third place the text was applied to certain things and institutions and societies, concerning which society at large had not yet come to a unanimous decision. The preacher said that he would unhesitatingly apply the words of the text to the A. O. U. W. He then proceeded briefly to show wherein it was a blessing. The very idea of brotherhood which it exemplified was a blessing. It is of the nature of sin to separate. It separates man from God and man from his brother-man. It is the devil's work to separate. It is God's work to bring together. Every society, therefore, which is organized upon the recognition of the brotherhood of man is but the public proclamation of a victory gained over the common enemy of God and man. But the A. O. U. W. is a blessing because it a benevolent brotherhood. It is purely a beneficiary Society and ranks side by side with the Widow and Orphans' Society in connection with almost every denomination throughout the land. Here the aims and objects of the Order were set forth. The Order was started in Pennsylvania in 1868. To-day 157,209 persons are banded together in America for the purpose of realizing the aims and objects of the Order. The benevolent feature is the most prominent feature of the Order. Besides caring for its sick members it has already paid to the widows and orphans of deceased members over ten millions of dollars. The reverend gentlemen here showed from Scripture the duty of providing for one's own household. He also said that one reason why there were so many poor and dependent people in the world was because selfishness and sinful indifference have had such universal reign among men. With the facilities offered in this day for making some provision at least for those who are dependent upon us, there could be no excuse for the man who allows his family to be cast upon the cold sympathies of the world after he is dead and gone. The idea of fellow feeling was then characterized in very fitting terms. The causes at work producing hardness of heart, and petrified feelings, were alluded to. Under these circumstances the preacher thought anything a blessing which counteracted such hardening tendencies. The moral principles upon which the A. O. U. W. is based also proved it to be a blessing. No infidel could belong to it. Its meetings were opened and closed with singing and prayer. In closing, the attention of all was directed to those things which contained in them a spiritual blessing. Man's relation to God and eternity is by far the most important relation he can sustain in this world. Spiritual blessings are higher than temporal ones. The great folly of making provision for time only was then pointed out. The Gospel, the Bible, the Ministry, the Christian Church, and the blessing in them, were earnestly dwelt upon. Brothers of the Order, as well as all present, were then appealed to, and urged to receive God's blessings to sinful man. Let but Charity, Hope and Protection, the three cardinal principles of the Order, along with the trinity of Christian graces, bind man to man the world over, and wars and strifes and strikes would cease and the triumph of Fraternity would be complete. Already he seemed to hear the clock of time and of God's providence strike the long wished for hour—the hour of freedom, of love, of peace and of the realized universal brotherhood of man.

At the conclusion of the services, the brethren reformed and marched back to the lodge room where a cordial vote of thanks was tendered to the Rev. brother for his edifying and instructive sermon.

The Crisis in the British Cabinet.

LONDON, March 27.—A split has come at last. At the Cabinet Council yesterday it was clear immediately that all efforts to procure a compromise had been and would be unavailing. Chamberlain and Trevelyan have definitely resigned office.

Mr. Heneage will soon resign from the Cabinet. Much resentment is felt against Mr. Chamberlain, who has chosen such a moment to secede, at the imminent risk of a disruption of the Liberal party, on a question of detail. The anger of the Irish members against him knows no bounds.

It is now stated that Mr. Gladstone proposes placing the customs excise in the hands of an Irish executive. This scheme is intended to result in the creation of a great number of peasant proprietors in a comparatively short period. The detail upon which Mr. Chamberlain secedes is whether the Irish Government shall be left to guarantee payment of the interest on the capital necessary to effect this, or whether the Imperial authorities shall guarantee it. Mr. Gladstone takes the former and Mr. Chamberlain the latter view.

Hon. Jas. Stansfeld, the Radical member for Halifax, has been appointed president of the Local Government Board, vice Mr. Chamberlain. Mr. Stansfeld occupied the same office once before, but without a seat in the Cabinet, resigning in 1874. Earl Dalhousie has been appointed to succeed Mr. Trevelyan as Secretary for Scotland. Lord Dalhousie will not, however, have a seat in the Cabinet, as Mr Trevelyan had.

It is expected there will be six secessions from Mr. Gladstone's party outside of the Cabinet. Lord Spencer has full confidence in Mr. Gladstone and assisted the latter in drafting his bill.

A Farm House Burned and Two Lives Lost.

WIARTON, March 26.—A fire took place about three miles from here, at 8 o'clock last night, in a house occupied by William Bailey, a farmer, in which he and his hired man (name unknown) were burned to death. The flames were first seen by the nearest neighbor who lives ten rods distant, but the fire was so far advanced when he got there that there was no chance of entering the building. The outside doors were tried, however, but were found locked. His horses were found in the stables still harnessed, as he had just returned from here.

Found Dead on the Road Side.

WEFUND, March 26.—Ira Delamatter a farmer of Pelham township, was driving along the road to-day near Fonthill. When passing the bush on the farm of W. G. Church, he left his team on the road and got over the fence to cut a whip, when he was horrified to find the dead body of a man lying quite near the road. Mr. Delamatter at once came to Welland to notify Coroner Cummes.

A Mother and Two Children Found Starving.

LONDON, Ont., March 26.—A resident of London West named James Hood was arrested to-day on a charge of insanity. On visiting his house it was found that Hood's wife was sick in bed. She had two little children with her, and there was not a particle of food for and of them. The family, it seems, had been living nearly all winter on the little they got from the soup kitchen and were slowly starving to death. Their case will be attended to at once.

CAMPBELL'S TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

DRUGGISTS AND THE SELLING OF LIQUOR.—City Treasurer Harvey has arrived home from Ottawa. On being interviewed on his mission he said:—Between the Scott Act, the McCarthy Act and the Pharmacy Act, the position of a druggist in any county or city where the Scott Act is in force is of such a nature as to leave him at the mercy of any one who chose to inform against him selling any preparation manufactured or containing alcohol. In view of this fact a deputation consisting of E. Harvey, President, and three other members of the Ontario College of Pharmacy visited Ottawa and succeeded in introducing before the Senate a bill authorizing making it legal for druggists to sell without a medical man's certificate alcohol of 65 O. P. and methylated spirits, and all preparations in which the manufacture of alcohol is used. As the law now stands even the essence of lemon or other tinctures come under its provisions. Out of some 700 inquiries sent out by the College replies numbering over 500 were received, all of which, with the exception of 20, stated that they had no desire to sell liquor in connection with their business.

THE M. P. STRIKE.

Grand Master Powderly's Order Ignored by the Knights.

NEW YORK, March 29.—Grand Master Powderly says his interviews with Jay Gould were most pleasant. "I am satisfied," he continues, "that the developments of yesterday not only put an end to the trouble now, but Mr. Gould will be willing to have all future differences settled by arbitration. The strike has demonstrated in the most forcible manner the necessity of laws to regulate relations between employers and employed."

Vice-President Hoxie telegraphed to Mr. Gould, stating that the men have not resumed work as they were ordered to do by Mr. Powderly.

Mr. Gould, at a subsequent conference at which Mr. Powderly was unable to be present on Monday, said:—Mr. Powderly has evidently misunderstood the meaning of the telegram that was sent on Sunday night to Mr. Hoxie. Our position is that this strike has been in a condition for arbitration all the time. We have had an agreement with the workmen for some time that all differences were to have been submitted for arbitration before any strike should be resorted to.

ST. LOUIS, March 29.—At 9 o'clock tonight the Executive Committee rescinded the order issued this morning for the men to resume work.

Reports from all points show that the feeling is increasing in bitterness. Trains have been stopped and ditched at several points. Some of the men say Powderly has sold out to Gould. Warrants are out for the arrest of hundreds of men.

Between 9 and 10 o'clock to-night, while the Executive Committee was in session, the following despatch was received from New York:

"Complications have arisen since morning as to the methods of arbitration. Another conference will be held to-morrow.

T. V. POWDERLY."

The C. P. R. vs. a Contractor.

MONTREAL, March 29.—Mr. R. D. McGibbon, acting as examiner of the Court of Chancery of Ontario, to day proceeded with the examination of witnesses in the case of P. R. McLennan vs. the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and the cross action against McLennan. McLennan claims a balance due on a Lake Superior contract of about $90,000, and the Company claim they have overpaid the contractor about $200,000, which they reclaim.

Col. Irvine Resigns.

OTTAWA, March 29.—Col. Irvine has resigned his position as Commissioner of the Northwest Mounted Police. Lawrence W. Herchmer, brother of Col. Herchmer, is credited with being his successor. He has been in the service of the Government in the Northwest for years. Col. Irvine feels that he and his force were not rightly treated by the military authorities in the rebellion. Now that his hands are free he will probably be heard from.

Mayor Howland's Case.

Before the Chancellor in the Chancery Division at Osgoode Hall, on Monday, Mr. Lefroy, acting for Mr. Howland, stated that the latter had decided to abandon the appeal and run again. The appeal was dismissed with costs. On Saturday the Chancellor gave Mr. Bain leave to move to committ Mr. O'Brien for contempt of court by writing to the Mail about the case.

Foreign.

The effort to found a French railway syndicate for China has failed.

The colonists of Australia are against French annexation of the New Hebrides.

M. de Lesseps says the Panama Canal will be completed in three years. He is quite sanguine that the French Government will authorize the issue of the Panama Canal lottery bonds.

All efforts to obtain a foreign loan having failed, the Greek Government is asking the Chamber of Deputies to grant a credit.

Kissing games and dancing in connection with Sunday School and church entertainments are occupying the attention of some of the English clergymen. The Vicar of Wheelock has refused to permit members of his choir to resume their places in church because they attended a dancing party.

THE CHALLENGE ACCEPTED.—A twelve year old Luther boy the other day had the conceit taken out of him effectually. He and a number of other boys about the same age were amusing themselves by getting down on their hands and knees, placing the tops of their heads together and trying to see which one could push the other back. The boy in question was acknowledged best at the game, and his sense of superiority led him to boast that he could "lay out" the old ram. The stump was at once taken up by the other boys and all repaired to the barnyard, where the hard head dropped on his hands and knees and "blatted" his challenge. The ram at once noticed the boy, and as the attitude was unmistakable, started to meet him, gathering all his energies for the attack. The boy, not expecting so sudden a response, was just raising his head to see where his opponent was, when he received a stunning blow on the forehead that laid him on his back and brought the blood streaming from his mouth and nose. The ram was preparing for a second attack but the boys, who were thoroughly frightened by the first round, drove him off with sticks and carried their "champion" into the house, where he lay for some time before he could remember facts with any distinctness.

Sacred Concert.

Last evening the Norfolk Street Methodist Church was comfortably filled by a large and appreciative audience, the occasion being a sacred concert given under the auspices of the choir. The programme was one of high class music, and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who had the pleasure of listening to it. The concert opened with a march from the Jewish Warriors, introducing a chorus by the choir, who in their rendering of it never appeared to better advantage. Miss Clara Stevenson in her solos was well received and considerable improvement was noticeable in her voice since her last appearance in the city. The rendering of her parts was exquisite. Mr. Harrington has a deep bass voice. He seems to throw his whole soul into his singing, which makes it enjoyable. Mrs. Whitehead sang "Abide with Me" in place of the one marked on the programme, in her usual pleasing manner. Prof. James, of the O. A. C., gave a reading entitled "Kentucky Belle," and entered into the pathetic nature of his selection. He gave a clear conception of the incidents of the piece. Mr. Wm. Jones sang "Flee as a bird" very sweetly. Mrs. Harvey, in her organ solos, showed that she has full command of the instrument. Her part of the concert was more than well received. The trio by Miss Fielding and Messrs Crowe and Lawson was excellently rendered and greatly enjoyed. The duet, "O Morning Land," by the Misses Stevenson, was well rendered. The quartette and chorus, "Hear Our Prayer," by Misses Fielding and Stevenson and Messrs. Harrington and Jones—the chorus by the choir—was splendidly given and was acknowledged to be the feature of the evening. "God Save the Queen" brought the concert to a close. Miss Stevenson is to be congratulated for the manner in which she carried out the programme. It was a most successful affair.

Guarding the Fisheries.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 29.—The Government steamer "Lansdowne" arrived at Shelburne on Saturday afternoon from a cruise along the coast. At Pubnico, Yarmouth county, they found an American schooner, Rudolf master, shipping a crew, and ordered her to sea. A number of fishermen had as usual shipped at Shelburne to go in Gloucester vessels, they to call for them on their way to the banks. The Government orders forbid them doing so, and the fishermen left Shelburne on Saturday to take steamer for Boston on a telegram from Gloucester that all expenses would be paid.

Arrested for Counterfeiting.

PETERBORO, March 29.—On Saturday Chief of Police Cooper, on the strength of a telegram received from Orillia telling of the arrest of a man named Bell for passing counterfeit money, made a search of the photographic establishment of Hammill & Ball, and arrested Hammill as an accomplice of Ball's. In the place were found a kit of stamps, pads, different colored inks, and a box of type, the same as that used in manufacturing bank bills. The affair causes great excitement in town. Before the Police Magistrate Hammill pleaded not guilty, and denied all knowledge of the purpose for which Ball used the pads and stamps. He was released on bail.

The Mounted Police.

The report of the commissioner of the Northwest mounted police was laid on the table of the House on Wednesday. It shows that during the year there were seven cases of high treason and 92 of treason felony, in addition to a number of other offences. The offence of selling liquor to Indians is on the increase. There has been a falling off in regard to horse stealing. The traffic in illicit liquor is not on the decline. The first report on the Riel outbreak was received on July 13th 1884 from Major Crozier, he at the time referring to the grievances of the Indians and Halfbreeds. On the 8th of August, 1885, reference is also made in the report to the meetings held by Riel. Again on the 14th of January, 1885, further reference was made by Major Crozier to the troubles ahead; on the 26th of January the settlers presented Riel with $60. He also received aid from the Roman Catholic missionary at St. Laurent. And so on the department was kept duly posted as to the state of affairs. The next reference is to the Duck Lake fight. As the result of Irvine staying at Prince Albert he says that he got no orders to join Middleton and was very much surprised at the fact, as from his knowledge of the country he would have been of great service to the Major-General.

Discussing the attitude of the Indians in the Southern district, the commissioner points out on the authority of a report from Superintendent Cotton, dated 26th October that the feeling of the Blood Indians towards the Government and white men generally, is very far from one of a friendly character. Experience during the past summer convinces the superintendent that had any serious reverse happened to the troops serving in the north, an almost simultaneous outbreak would have occurred in the south. It is intimated that a number of Bloods have become professional horse thieves. On this subject he says: "That our Indians can, with the utmost ease, procure strong alcoholic drink in the United States, is unquestionably the fact. This proves a powerful incentive towards the continuance of these Southern migrations, as does also the fact that they receive aid, most willingly profered, in their criminal practices from their blood relations, the South Piegans (also of the Blackfoot nation.) The last mentioned Indians dare not themselves steal American horses, but they gladly accept horses from our Indians in payment for help and information afforded. In addition to this, our Indians go over to the United States to purchase ammunition. They can and do get any quantity of it from American traders, who appear to be specially equipped for the purpose of making such sales." Major Crozier in his report says he sees no necessity for any serious troubles with the Northern Indian. It is only necessary that they be managed justly and fairly. Superintendent Perry reports the halfbreeds in the Prince Albert District quiet, and the feeling among them appears to be one of regret for the past troubles. The Indians are quiet and peaceable. The report gives an interesting resume of the work accomplished by the force throughout the year.

Examine the Lists.

The preliminary Court of Revision for South Wellington under the Dominion Franchise Act closed its labors on Monday night.

The applications of Conservatives are not so much more numerous than those put in by the Reformers as they would appear to be by the figures presented. The fact is that the enemy's trick of putting in Reform applications for the fruitless purpose of winning over new friends, has been more largely indulged in than at first appeared. In one polling division no less than sixteen Reform names were handed in by the Conservatives every one of whom had made personal application to Mr. Hugh McMillan. The thing did not appear so glaringly in any other place, but in every municipality the same thing occurred.. So by the time these names are counted off the Conservative list, together with those who are good enough Tories but who have not the necessary qualification, their applications may not number many more than the Reformers.

Now it becomes the duty of Reformers to examine the list of applicants put in. Let every Reformer in the Riding make a point of reading over the list of applications published in this paper in order that each may learn for himself whether there is a Reformer of his acquaintance omitted who is entitled to vote, or whether he knows any person put on by the enemy who is not properly qualified to be there. Then let such omission on the part of our friends, and such improper additions on the part of opponents be made known, so that application may be made at the final Court of Revision, some weeks hence, to have the wrongs set right. Reformers should bear in mind that the author of this new system intended that a big part of the elections should be fought in these Courts of Revision, and in view of this they should supply what information they can, and render what assistance is in their power, to make the revision so complete that it will do justice to their party at least.

Immigration Returns.

The Parliamentary Committee on emigration and colonization met for the first time on Wednesday, when Mr. Lowe, the Secretary of the Department of Agriculture, gave some interesting information and statistics with respect to immigration to Canada during the past year. He said that the total number of emigrants arriving in Canada during last year from all points was 105,096. Of these 25,927 were passengers for the Western United States, and the net number of settlers according to the reports of agents was 79,166; as compared with 1884, which was a year of large emigration, there was a serious decline. In '84 the number of settlers was 103,824 against 133,000 for '83; 112,000 in '82; 47,000 in '81; 30,000 in '80; 40,000 in '79. The number of emigrants therefore last year, although not so large as the two years previous, was still relatively large. The total arrivals via Quebec was 17,000, of whom 1,900 were passengers to the United States, against 31,000 the previous years, a marked decline; via Halifax 5,378 were entered, of whom 286 were passengers to the Western States, leaving 5,092 settlers in Canada against 6,000 the previous year. At St. John, arrivals were 1,085 all of whom intended to settle in Canada. In 1885, 3,830 arrived at Montreal, of whom 611 were passengers to the States, leaving 2,619 settlers. Total arrivals by the Suspension bridge was 27,511 of whom 23,000 were for the States, leaving 4,400 as settlers in Canada. Port Arthur arrivals were 1,415. At Emerson 3,189 arrived; Gretna 4,056. These were passengers from points outside of Canada. From other agencies there were reported 11,344 as from the United States. The total number of settlers that arrived at the different ports in British Columbia was 8,023. Mr. Jessup, the agent, gave us as the total number arriving in that Province, 20,144; of those 16,047 were whites and 4,097 Chinese. Half the number of whites were entered as passengers. The number of Chinese who arrived during the last half of the year was less than twenty-five per cent. of the number who arrived the first quarter of the year. The number of emigrants with settlers' effect during the year was 32,301, as against 35,000, the previous year showing tendency to decline. Of the total number of emigrants 22,266 were returned Canadians. There has been a general decline in all large European centres. Canada suffered in a very marked degree from the rebellion last spring, which occurred just at the time when arrangements for "booking" had begun, and the reports of the disturbances, which were published not only in the papers of the United Kingdom, but throughout Europe were greatly exaggerated. Another of the causes of difficulty was the very low rate of passage by American companies from England to Chicago, at one time being as low as $10 only. for the four thousand miles. A $1 rate was fixed from New York to Chicago. A number of useful emigrants were lost to Canada by these rates. Mr. Lowe said he expected that next season the rate of ocean passage would be increased materially. The nationalities of the 32,000 emigrants were as follows, 2,700 English, 859 Irish, 678 Scotch, 564 Germans, 3,204 United States origin, 22,666 Canadian origin, and 1,900 scattering origin. The value of these emigrants' effects was placed at near one million dollars. The character of the emigrants on the whole was exceptionally good, and employment for all was found, and the demand for farm laborers and female domestic servants was not satisfied. There has been no perceptible movement of emigrants from the country, and in the United States returns the column denoting the movement of Canadians has been left entirely blank. The Grand Trunk returns show that the net loss to Canada between the "outs" and "ins" to and from the United States was 2,275. The total gain to Manitoba from the percentage of the outs and ins was 7,440.

That Colonial Exhibit.

SIR,—As my name has been subjected to a great deal of abuse and misrepresentation, in connection with the above subject, and being one of the aldermen at the Council Board, I ask your indulgence for a small space in your valuable paper, to explain my position, and to give the ratepayers a few facts in regard to this matter.

In the first place, I was one of those that gave my vote, that a small sum should be expended for this object—$150. Then the Council was asked for $1 00 more, then a further sum of $50 was asked for, and beginning to think how this would end, I voted against it, as I little dream't that some of it would be thrown away in the manner in which it was. I was present at the first meeting of the Committee (or some of them) by invitation of the Mayor. The first question that came up, was the size of the pictures, or drawings which was intended to be sent, and the chairman, Ald. Hewer, stated that the Government wished them to be 18x22. I was then asked if photographs could be got that size. I said I did not believe they could at least not in Canada. I was then asked as to the best way of getting these pictures, and gave it as my opinion that the only way was to get some small copies, of which there is many amongst the citizens, and enlarge and finish them on crayon by hand, as the time of year was not favorable for taking photographs out of doors; and in this opinion I have been sustained by all the photographers in the city, with the exception of one. The next question by the chairman was as to the price of these crayons. Having previously consulted with my son, (and in which I was not to receive any pecuniary benefit whatever) I gave an estimate at $8 each, if the Committee wanted six or more at the size required, taking off forty per cent. of the usual prices. Of course the worthy chairman, Ald. Hewer, would not listen to any more of my suggestions, or explanations, and stated he believed they would be got in Toronto, or Buffalo, and would go and see. Well, he went to Toronto and ascertained just what Messrs. Marshall and Burgess told him here, that they could not be got, and thus spent the money of the ratepayers in this useless way, and after coming back saying to some of the Aldermen that he had the "bulge" on them, as he could have his expenses paid to Toronto and back. I will leave this with the public to say if this is conduct worthy of an Alderman.

Now Mr Editor I say the same here as I did in Council, as regards the case in which the pictures was placed. (It was with the exception of the "Habitants" head in the top panel, and for which Mr O'Brien told me he was not responsible as he did as he was ordered by the committee) it was really a good piece of work, and does the makers credit. But in laying out the space or panels for the pictures some of them should have been deeper than others, and also wider to have taken larger pictures in such as church steeples and other high structures. This was also the fault of the committee and not the makers. Again an agreement was come too with Messrs O'Brien, James and others, that their names should be placed in the case. But when the committee found a blunder had been made in this respect how in honour could they take them out again. But they had the assurance to ask the Council for twenty-five or thirty more dollars of the ratepayers' money to recoup the makers should they find that the names had to be removed. Now, Mr Editor, I have been blamed for making all this noise and confusion, by the doughty chairman, Ald Hewer, and was told by him I had no right, being an Alderman, to criticise this thing. As a ratepayer I do not wish to see my money uselessly thrown away, and as an Alderman I for one will not give my vote to throw away that of others. And right here I say that it is a pity that whilst the Mayor and all of the chairmen of the standing committees with the members in connection with them are making every effort to economize, and keep down expenses something comes along and sweeps all their efforts and good intentions to the winds, and still leaves our good city struggling for an existance. Had the chairman taken the precaution to call and to see that all of his Committee was together, probably he would not have got himself and the city into this ridiculous position. He did not do so, as more than one member did not even know he was on it, but I have no doubt the impulsive chairman did, and as usual with him when he wants things his own way, thought he would do without them. I am not surprised at the vote taken in the Council on Friday, evening last, as I have no doubt the majority wanted to get rid of the thing, and send it away as soon as possible, being a sort of white elephant on their hands, and as one of the aldermen remarked not for any credit it would give the city. Now, Mr Editor, thanking you for so much of your space, and again repeating that with one exception my objections are all in regard to the photographs, as being too small, the work on them of poor quality, the subjects not well chosen, (as there were none of our manufactories or industries among them) and some of them are being done over again, for which we shall have to pay more money, and for the general bungling of the whole business in a great measure I hold the chairman responsible.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN READ,
Alderman St. John's Ward.

Guelph, March 30, 1886.

THE CANADIAN METHODIST MAGAZINE FOR APRIL, 1886.—Contents:—Mr. J. T. Moore's charming articles on "Wonderland and Beyond," maintain their fascination of vivid description and exquisite illustration. A striking series of engravings accompanies a paper by the Editor on "Landmarks in History." They will attract much attention. Mr. John Macdonald contributes a chapter of "Leaves from the Portfolio of a Merchant," giving graphic sketches of the strange variety of characters with whom he comes in contact. Much humor is developed in the narration. The Rev. F. H. Bland writes an able and discriminative review of the life and work of the celebrated William Wilberforce. An article of much interest, in connection with the development of our North-west Territory, is Mr. J. Macdonald Oxley's paper on Hudson Bay—"The Mediterranean of Canada." A valuable chapter on the Gospel of St. John, by Canon Farrar, is of special interest as the Sunday-schools of Christendom are just entering on the study of that book. Dr. Laing concludes his trenchant criticism of certain theories on the Millenium. The story of Jan Vedder's Wife grows in tragic interest. The Editor discusses Labor and Capital, Mission Adjustments, etc. A number of Easter poems, and an exquisite engraving of Correggio's "Christ Crowned with Thorns" are also given. For sale by all booksellers.

Canadian Barley.

The following appears in the Mail of a recent date in reference to barley: "Now for many years past Ontario has good barley—the best on the North American continent, as it would appear from the fact that it has been able to beat in United States markets that grown by our dear cousins across the line with a heavy duty levied on it, and all the cost of transport against it. Having gained a first-class standard for it Canadian farmers should be careful to maintain its reputation. This they will not do should they fail to "sow good seed in their fields." And that they may fail to sow such seed in 1886 we understand there is some danger. New varieties known as "Mensury" and "Russian" barley are, we understand, being taken up in some quarters. The only reason we can hear alleged is that it yields more freely. Whether this theory is correct or incorrect we cannot say positively. But there seems to be no doubt that even should there be a gain in quantity it will be more than lost in quality; and that the loss in quality will entail the loss of our market. We must please our customers if we would find buyers. That "Mensury" barley will not please American buyers seem certain from communications now before us. Messrs. Schaefer & Bro., of Buffalo, say: "It is now used only by maltsters who make a cheap malt for ale brewers, and then only taken when the barley is sold cheap. * * * You (Canadians) have the best and most desirable and profitable 6 rowed barley seed on the American continent for both farmer and brewer. If you change it for this worthless stuff, the "Mensury" kind, you will soon destroy the good reputation and malting value of the Canadian barley."

CHAPTER XX.

A NEW INTEREST.

Dr. Holme had been the doctor of Miller's Gate ever since he began to practise. It was an attractive spot to a man of his character; a little remote country village, shut in from the world by high bleak hills and the almost more impassable barrier of very bad roads, where no great families dwelt, where there was but one house above very modest pretensions, and that house the large old Rectory, standing in its large old garden. There was no society except the doctor and the clergyman with their respective families, if they happen to have any. Miller's Gate, therefore, was a very paradise to a reserved, self-centred man, whose only ambition was to kill or cure according to the best of his ability, and who prized the many leisure hours he enjoyed in the healthy, high-standing village that he might devote them to scientific studies and literary pursuits.

Miller's Gate would have been the ruin of a poor doctor with a large family. Though the village was of no great size, it might be considered typical of English independence. The cottages all stood apart from one another, in many cases there was considerable space between two very small habitations. When a village is constructed on these principles it is easy to spread it over a considerable area, and Miller's Gate sprawled over the hillside in a way which was anything but pleasing to a person who stood at one extremity of it and wished to reach the other in a short space of time; only there were no such people at Miller's Gate. The straggling propensities of the village make it necessary that the doctor should, at any rate, keep a horse, and as the villagers were seldom ill, and wont to think that it was better to spend money any way than on physic, a poor man with a large family would, as before said, have fared badly on this breezy hillside.

Dr. Holme, fortunately, was neither poor nor burdened with children, he was not even married. He had a comfortable private fortune, which made it of little consequence to him whether his stalwart patients paid their bills or not. Long experience, indeed, had taught him at which of the houses the receipt of a bill from him would have been regarded in the light of a bad joke on his part, and the bill itself would have been kept as a curiosity. He was able also to keep not only a horse, but a dog-cart, which were the boast and admiration of the country side. No other doctor who had come within the experience of Miller's Gate kept such a horse or such a cart. About thirty-five years of age, Dr. Holme was the only child of a solicitor in a flourishing north country town, and he was rather proud of his thoroughly middle class origin. He had himself chosen his career, and having studied diligently, took his degree and began to look about for a practice. During his student life his father died suddenly, leaving all his savings to his only son, and Dr. Holme at once saw himself freed from the necessity of seeking a practice which would be pecuniarily valuable. He was not sorry, for he held the theory that no man who had to work for the bare necessaries of life could do his work honestly. He took his time, therefore, and after rejecting various suggestions and offers from his friends, fixed upon Miller's Gate as the scene of his labors. He was not fond of society, so the absence of it was no drawback in his eyes. He loved science and had plenty of time for his studies in a place where people were seldom ill. He was independent, so the modesty of the people of Miller's Gate in acknowledging their obligations was no anxiety to him, or hindrance to his comfort. As soon as he had settled in the place he made the acquaintance of the Longworthys, people in every way agreeable to him. They satisfied all his social needs, and he had gone on living in his present home for ten years, personally, absolutely unknown except to a few friends preserved from his student days; but his name was well known in the scientific world.

In appearance he was tall and spare, thin, even, as regards face and hands, with dark eyes and hair, and a grave, rather soured, expression. No one had ever noticed this expression. The people of Miller's Gate were not a speculative race; they took their doctor as they found him, without any question as to why his face wore one expression rather than another, and Mr. Longworthy and his wife had failed during the ten years of their intimacy with the doctor to mark the gradual deepening of the look. Dr. Holme was a reserved kind of a man, thoughtful, and apt to become lost in a train of scientific meditations; it had never occurred to either the clergyman or his wife that these meditations could be other than scientific. But sometimes they were. It had happened more than once, and rather frequently of late years, for Robert Holme to wake up, as it were, and ask himself what he was doing with his life. To a certain extent he was doing good in attending these poor country folk in their illness without taxing them in return, and in his own world he was well known. He had contributed more than one fact to the advancement of medical science; it was possible that after, or even before, his death he might become famous. But what of that? Fame was not the object of his labours; he worked because he was one of those men who cannot help it, and love of work was what spurred him on. When, therefore, these two things were taken away, his merciful dealings with the poor, and a hope of fame, he could not see that he himself was getting much satisfaction out of his life.

There were times when he did not feel this at all, when his work was quite sufficient to fill his life with pleasure and interest, and there were other times when he came home fagged and cross from a long series of scientific observations appeared to have resulted in nothing at all, and then he felt a bitterness and discontent which were difficult to shake off. There were times, again, when he felt acutely that his life was all wrong and no real life at all, nothing more than a dull and very wearisome existence. Such fits of extreme depression came seldom. Sometimes he had met Mr. Longworthy by the side of a sick bed, or when the latter was returning from his round and had been persuaded by him to go to the Rectory, and have tea there. On such occasions he had of course witnessed the meeting between the clergyman and his wife. They seated themselves at the table, upon which flowers were arranged and at which a sweet and gracious woman dispensed simple hospitality, and gave grace and refinement to the whole thing. The contrast was great when he returned home to empty and perhaps unlighted rooms, where there was no one to speak to, and the silence was unbroken by any familiar voice. He ate his supper at an ungarnished table, alone and in silence, with no company save the book or pamphlet which lay before him, and was rather a continuance of than a distraction from the thoughts which had been in his mind all day.

At these times the Doctor felt keenly the incompleteness of his life, and though he was not a man to say to himself "I must get married," and to deliberately look about among the ladies of his acquaintance and set himself to fall in love with the one who pleased him best, none the less had a vague idea risen up in his mind that the permanent presence of a lady in his house would effect the change which he felt to be desirable. He never got any further than this, and he had fluctuated between these three states of feeling for some time when the railway accident happened.

GLADSTONE'S PROGRAMME.

The Grand old Man Announces the Dates for three Important Statements.

Home Rule—The Budget—Land Reform.

LONDON, March 29.—Mr. Gladstone in the House of Commons stated that on April 8th he would ask permission to introduce his Irish Government Bill. He added that on April 12th the budget would be introduced, and that on April 16th he would request permission to introduce a bill to amend laws for the sale and purchase of land in Ireland. Mr. Gladstone's statement was heard in dead silence, which was broken only at intervals by the cheers of the Parnellite members.

Mr. John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, will present in the House of Commons to-day a bill for the temporary relief of destitute persons in Ireland.

Mr. Gladstone and Lord Hartington, who was Secretary for War in the last Liberal Cabinet, interchanged communications to-day regarding the latter's attitude towards the Premier's proposed Irish policy. The Conservatives sometime ago hoped to win over Lord Hartington, but he is too sincere an admirer of Mr. Gladstone to go into opposition unless he finds he cannot approve of the Liberal leader's Irish proposals, but until these are submitted he will remain a firm supporter of the Government. If Lord Hartington should either take a place in the present Cabinet or openly proclaim himself a supporter of the Premier's Irish proposals, it is thought his aid would more than counterbalance the effects of Mr. Chamberlain's secession.

Chamberlain's personal followers are urging him to make use of the national Liberal federation, to discover the majority feeling of the Liberal party throughout Great Britain towards Mr. Gladstone's Irish policy.

It is stated that all the members representing workmen in the House of Commons oppose Mr. Chamberlain's present attitude toward Mr. Gladstone.

In the House of Commons in committee on the Crofters' bill the Government opposed the extension of the principle of the bill to the whole of Scotland.

Mr. Chamberlain seized the opportunity which the bill presented of publicly arraying himself against the Government by voting against it on the proposition.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, March 29.

In the House of Commons to-day several new private bills were produced and others advanced a stage.

A discussion took place on the case of Robert Stather, removed from Dorchester, N. B. penitentiary to Kingston by order of the Government, while his case was under consideration by the Supreme Court of New Brunswick. Papers on the subject were ordered.

Mr. Edgar moved for a committee to consider and receive evidence on the Copyright question. He made an important speech, urging that in the interest of the Canadian publishers and the reader, as well as of British authors, some change in Canadian law was necessary, and that a committee was the best means of securing the necessary information on which to proceed. Sir H. Langevin opposed the motion, first on the ground that an International Copyright Conference was sitting at Berne, but afterwards on the ground that the Canadian Government was negotiating with the British Government on this subject. On the second ground Mr. Edgar withdrew his motion.

A lively discussion arose on the motion by Mr. Landry, of Kent, for a return showing the cost of preparing and printing the papers called for by certain members of the Opposition. The debate became a general one upon the question of timber limits.

Mr. Gordon moved for a return giving the statistics as to the Chinese immigration into Canada and the manner in which such immigration has been affected by the Act passed by this House. Carried.

Many other papers were called for and the House adjourned at 10:40.

A Provincial Association Formed in Toronto.

On Wednesday a meeting was held in Toronto which had been called by Mr. Henry Wade at the instance of the Agricultural and Arts Association of Ontario. The object of the meeting was explained in a circular which he issued: "To form a Dominion Clydesdale Association for the purpose of guarding the purity of the stock in this country, and from such association to appoint a revising committee to inspect the pedigrees already on record in the Clydesdale Stud Book, opened by the Agriculture and Arts Association, and now nearly ready for publication."

Among those present were the following from this section: Messrs. Jas. A. Watson, Eden Mills; Jas. Cowan, Guelph Tp.; D. McCrae, Guelph; George Moore, Waterloo.

On motion, Mr. Chas. Drury, M. P. P., who was present in behalf of the Agriculture and Arts Association, was requested to take the chair. In a few brief words Mr. Drury explained the object of the meeting and the connection of the Agriculture and Arts Association with the Clydesdale breeders. He said that three years ago the Agriculture and Arts Association undertook the registration of Clydesdales, and as now it is deemed necessary to publish the first volume, this was thought to be a favorable and fitting time to form an association of Clydesdale breeders, a committee of which association would be requested to act with the Herd Book committee of the Agriculture and Arts Association to revise and examine the pedigrees of the present manuscript volume, previous to publication.

A motion by Mr. McCrae, seconded by Mr. Fothergill, "That they be called the Dominion Clydesdale Society of Canada," was lost, and an amendment moved by Mr. Wade, seconded by Mr. Kersey was carried, to call the organization the "Clydesdale Association of Canada."

Mr. D. McCrae, of Guelph, was elected President.

Mr. Smith of Columbus, was unanimously elected Vice-President, and Mr. Wade Secretary-Treasurer.

Directors—Henry Jeffrey, Whitby; Robert Cheyne, Toronto; H. H. Hurd, Hamilton; Wm. Rennie, Toronto; James Beith, Bowmanville; Simon Beattie, Markham; John Jackson, Grahamsville.

It was moved by Mr. Beattie, seconded by Mr. Ormsby, "That the standard be made so that our certificates of registration will be eligible for registration in the third volume of the American Stud Book." Carried.

Although this resolution at a subsequent stage was carried, considerable discussion ensued over this, and an amendment, moved by Mr. Coates and seconded by Mr. Adams, "That the standard as laid down for the first volume of the American Stud Book be adopted by us." The meeting then adjourned.

The latest remedy for coughs, colds, croup whooping cough, bronchitis, etc., is McGregor's Lung Compound. There is no remedy in existence containing any one of the active ingredients composing McGregor's Lung Compound, so do not say you have taken everything until you have tried this for your cold or cough, and your opinion will be the same as all who have used it, viz., that it is the best. Sold in 50c and $1.00 bottles by T. S. Petrie, Druggist.

The Paris Review tells the following:—A short time ago we announced the prospects of a marriage between Mrs. S. C. Bell, widow of the late A. C. Bell, formerly of Paris, to Tuthill King, a wealthy citizen of Chicago. Her age was then 45 and his 81. He wanted the affair kept quiet, but it leaked out before the ceremony was performed. The proposed marriage caused much comment. Mr. King said he had suffered for many years with bronchitis and needed some one who could be with him during the terrible pains he had constantly. Mrs. Bell, he said, knew something about medicine, as she was interested in her husband's drug-store before and after his death, and he wanted her to nurse him and prolong his life. Mr. King's family at first objected to his marrying, but when they saw that he was determined to do so they quietly withdrew their objections. Tuesday, January 5, he was married to Mrs. Bell. Only a few intimate relatives of the couple were present during the ceremony. The newly-wedded couple went to Milwaukee, and shortly after returned to Chicago. After remaining there about a week they left for the South. He suffered seriously from a heavy cold and died on Wednesday, March 3rd, at Thomsonville, Ga., of pneumonia. His widow receives the bulk of a fortune variously estimated but at least equal to three quarters of a million.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

Unanimous Approval of Medical Staff.

Dr. T. G. Comstock, Physician at Good Samaritan Hospital, St. Louis, Mo. says: "For years we have used it in this hospital, in dyspepsia and nervous diseases, and as a drink during the decline and in the convalescence of lingering fevers. It has the unanimous approval of our medical staff."

The statement of Mr. Mundella, President of the English Board of Trade, that ocean steamers have life-boat accommodation for only about half their passengers, is creating a sensation. Mr. Mundella has appointed a committee to see how far the boats could be supplemented by rafts and other appliances.

A NASAL INJECTOR free with each bottle of Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. Price 50 cents. For sale by A. B. Petrie.

The Pope has decided against a Roman Catholic Bishop, who attempted to prevent his communicants joining Primrose Leagues.

This is to certify that I have used McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and do honestly say that if it cost me one hundred dollars ($100.00) a bottle I would not be without it, as it has done me more good than all the medicines I ever used, and I feel like a new man.—Yours truly, Alex Steel, Carleton Place, Ont. This medicine is for sale at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at Thos. S. Petrie's Drug Store.

Turkish tests of Krupp guns have demonstrated the terribly destructive powers of the weapons, as several have burst and killed the gunners.

CAMPBELL'S

TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

Sold by all Dealers in Family Medicines.

BRANTFORD, March 30.—At the coming assizes here the case of John A. Eddy, postmaster at Scotland, near Brantford, who stands charged with stealing money belonging to E. G. Malcolm, of the Scotland plow works, will be taken up. The money was taken from a decoy letter posted in St. Thomas by Detective Heenan and Mr. Lizars, of Toronto, containing marked bills. Eddy was afterwards accused by Lizars of taking the money, and finally agreed to pay the cost of the investigation, and $50 alleged to have been stolen, also to resign his postmastership. He has now instructed his solicitors to enter an action against Lizars for blackmailing. Lizars at once handed the notes and money to Eddy's legal adviser and had a warrant made out for Eddy's arrest.

THE Social Glass will be re-produced in the City Hall to-night. All the performers are local, and as was evidenced by the former presentation of this play a few weeks ago, they will undoubtedly put the play on the boards in a even more satisfactory manner than before, which is saying considerable.

ELECTRIC LIGHT.—Mr. S. Hamburger, of Toronto, manager of the Canadian business of the Brush Electric company, of Ohio, is in the City to-day, intervieving the Guelph gas company, in reference to supplying them with electric light appliances. It is understood that the Gas Co. are about adding the electric light to their business.

CURLING CHALLENGE.—The Brantford Telegram says:—We are informed by Mr. J. S. Hamilton, one of the trustees of the Ben Wyvis Trophy: that Galt has issued a challenge to the Elora curling club, who are the present holders of the trophy for a match next season. The terms of ownership are, that the cup must be won three successive years before it can become the absolute property of any club.

SELECT KNIGHTS.—At a special meeting of Wellington Legion S. K. of A. O. U. W., committees were appointed in conjunction with committees from Royal and Guelph Lodges, A. O. U. W., to arrange for a fitting demonstration to the Grand Legion of Ontario, which meets in this city about the middle of May. It is expected that a grand concert will begiven on the evening of the first day's session. A number of the Supreme Legion officers are expected to be present and take part in the proceedings of the Canadian Grand body.

FOR THE ASYLUM.—There was considerable speculation to-day regarding an official car of the Detroit, Grand Haven & Milwaukee railway which was shunted off at the passenger station early this morning. Some parties suggested that it was a special train to convey the Colonial exhibit of this city and other cities to the seaboard. On making further inquiry it was found to be a special car containing inmates for the Homewood Retreat.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The attendance last night at the band concert and polo match was very satisfactory to the management, considering the bad state of the weather. The polo match between the City Band and Guelph clubs proved to be very exciting, each club securing a goal. No further advantage being gained by either clubs when time was called the match was again declared a draw, this being the second draw in succession. To-morrow night this draw will be played off and will count as one of the series for the championship.

"A WALK THROUGH ROME."—Rev. Hugh Rose delivered his popular lecture, bearing the above title, illustrated with sciopticon views, in Knox church last night before a large audience. The lecture being under the auspices of the Y. P. A. of Chalmers' and Knox congregations the young people did their utmost to make it successful. The rev. lecturer explained his views while passing along, and so interested were those present with the scenery and the remarks offered, that it was eleven o'clock before the entertainment was over.

"THE ARROW".—This is the name of the latest aspirant to public favors in the comic journalistic world. The proprietors and publishers are Crawford & Lunter, Toronto. The sample copy before us is well printed and arranged, the style being something like Grip. Three cartoons are given. They show that the artist has better ideas of choosing subjects, than of executing them. Judging from this sample copy we would not be surprised if The Arrow should take rank among the subsized organs. The regular publication is to begin April 8th.

SEED GRAIN.—Mr. W. Rehill, the well known and noted seed grower of Seaforth, was in Guelph on Tuesday, on his way from the east, where he had been disposing of grain. Mr. Rehill, intends to be in Guelph on Thursday next, 1st April, and remain for ten days, when he will sell oats, barley and wheat at so much per bushel. The quality of the produce needs no recommendation, seeing that in these classes he carried off the highest honors in Guelph at the last and previous exhibitions, and has also earned for himself a name in this neighborhood for supplying an article just as represented. No money is asked until the 1st of October, and if what is supplied does not come up to the representation Mr. Rehill is willing to stand the loss. It may be interesting in this connection to mention that the above gentleman has sent quite an extensive display of grains to the Colonial exhibition, and he has good prospects of gaining an honorary place at that great show. Farmers should examine his grain.

Burr Brothers' Bonus By-Law.

DEAR SIR.—On Tuesday next a vote will be taken on this By-law, and as the public generally do not know who are eligible as voters in a matter of this kind, it would be well if you, through the medium of your paper, would kindly explain who are entitled to vote, and what proportion of the total number of eligible voters are required to secure the passage of the by-law.

As the writer understands the matter, none but Freeholders can vote, and two-fifths of this class of voters are required to record their votes to carry the by-law. If I am mistaken in my view of the matter, will you kindly explain what is required.

It is important that the people should understand how the law stands in relation to bonus by-laws.

Personally, I am in favor of granting the bonus, and trust that the qualified voters will turn out and record their votes. Yours truly,

CITIZEN.

Guelph, March 30th, 1886.

[Some of the above questions are being considered by the City Solicitor now, and the Mayor expects to have his opinion to-morrow. We will then explain all the particulars about the voting.—Ed. MERCURY]

That Colonial Exhibit.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—I was quite surprised to see in your columns last evening a letter over the signature of Ald. Read in regard to the above exhibit, in which he makes special allusion to me as chairman of that committee, and tries to give the ratepayers the true facts of the case. Now, Mr. Editor, I am not prepared, nor have I the time, to enter into a newspaper discussion with Ald. Read on this question, as I think it is not the proper place for it. I beg to deny his statements from beginning to end, and to state that they are a tissue of falsehoods, and I shall call upon him at the Council meeting on Monday evening next under a question of privilege to make good such charges that he says are unbecoming of me as an alderman of this city. His letter speaks for itself and shows where the shoe pinches. The reason he complains is because the committee did not see fit to take some of his pictures. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this valuable space, I beg to remain,

Yours truly,

ALD. JAS. HEWER.

POLICE COURT.

Interesting to Tea Peddlars.

At the Police Court to-day a case of considerable interest to the public generally came up for adjudication in the shape of a charge by the Chief of Police against Samuel Campaign under the Municipal Act and the By-law of the City, respecting persons carrying on petty trades, etc. Defendant had been selling teas for the firm of Marshall & Co., London, until after the Act of the Ontario Legislature passed in 1885, which went into operation on the 1st of October last, and under which the City By-law was passed.

Upon that a new arrangement was made between Marshall & Co. and the defendant, whereby he became a purchaser from them of the tea he was selling. An ingeniously prepared agreement was got up and signed, the object of which, as His Worship stated, was evidently to evade the Act. Under the agreement the defendant's counsel claimed that the teas were the defendant's own property and that he was not selling as agent at all; and also that defendant did not come within the former law because he did not carry the goods he sold from house to house, but just took orders for the tea and afterwards delivered it, and that although it may have been intended as an attempt to evade the law, still it was a successful one, and that the case was outside both the original and the amended acts, and of course could not be and was not affected by the by law.

His Worship in giving judgment dismissing the complaint said that although the Legislature no doubt intended to meet such cases and although it was a hardship to residents of Guelph that persons like the defendant who were not ratepayers and contributed nothing to the expenses of the city should be allowed to sell as he was doing, still he could not help it. He could not set aside the agreement between Marshall & Co., and the defendants, and declare that the goods were not the defendants, whereas between Marshall and him under the agreement they were his, and that the Legislature would have to set their wits to work to meet the ingenious mode adopted by the parties to evade the present law.

Mr. James Watt acted as counsel for the defendant.

There were also two other cases in which the defendants were charged as selling as agents, but for the reasons indicated in the first case they too were dismissed.

Board of Trade.

Last evening a meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade was held in the City Hall. Present, Mr. James Goldie, chairman, Messrs. John McCrea, J. E. McElderry, Wm. Bell, Geo. Howard, Henry Hatch, J. M. Bond, W. H. Berkinshaw, Wm. McLaren, and the Secretary, James S. Jones.

Mr. Hatch explained that the object of the meeting was to take into consideration the advisability of petitioning the City Council for a small grant to have a route of the proposed junction railway surveyed. Here is Mr. Hatch's motion which explains itself.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Hatch, seconded by Mr. Bell, that the chairman (Mr. Goldie), Mr. J. McCrae, and the mover be instructed to communicate with the City Council, requesting them to grant the necessary funds to make a survey of that part of the proposed junction railway at the point where it is proposed to cross the River Speed on the Schaw route, to proceed from thence to the most convenient point on Waterloo Road, thence to the vicinity of diamond crossing.

Mr. Jones brought up the question of asking permission from the G. T. R. to give rates of a fare and a third from Saturday, May 22nd, until the 25th, the object being to allow people at a distance to attend the games, sports and calisthenic exhibition to be given by Adjt. Clarke and his classes on the Queen's Birthday.

Moved by Mr. Bond, seconded by Mr. Howard, that the Secretary make the best arrangements possible with the G. T. R. for cheap rates on the 24th of May.—Carried.

The Secretary during the evening handed in the following names as members:—Dr. McPhatter, Chas. Grundy, H. E. Richardson, Wm. McLean, Jas. Millar and Geo. Murton.

Speaking of the Guelph Junction Railway, Mr. Bell said that he had telegraphed Mr. VanHorne, asking when he expected to be in Guelph to inspect the proposed routes, and had received an answer that it was impossible to say how soon, as he had an important engagement for a week ahead.

The Council adjourned about ten o'clock, after discussing at considerable length matters pertaining to business generally.

A DEALER says oysters will be shipped until the end of April.

MR. JAMES RITCHIE is having men employed scraping off the crossings to-day. It is needed.

MR. WM. OSBORNE has received a letter from Mr. James Glennie stating that he arrived all safe and sound at his destination in the North West.

Hespeler Correspondence.

FIRE IN PUSLINCH.—The first thunder and lightning storm of the season which occurred about ten days ago, asserted its tremendous and uncontrollable power to destroy by coming in contact with the driving shed of Mr John Bond, at Puslinch Lake, which it totally consumed with contents, the most valuable of which were a good buggy and cutter. Loss in all about $500, partly covered by insurance. Mr Bond has the sympathy of his neighbors in the inconvenience he will consequently be put to.

THE ENTERTAINMENT.—The entertainment by the Royal Templars, in Glick's hall on the 26th inst, was an especially successful one. The sumptuous luncheon so tastefully prepared with no small degree of trouble by the earnest and self-sacrificing ladies of the order, was pretty much devoured by about 300 participants of the occasion. After this Mr James Hamer, Select Council of the Order, presided in an able manner during the evening, when a programme well calculated to entertain was brought on and most successfully executed, the contributors to which were the Misses Andrich of Galt, (instrumental violin and piano), Mr Caswell, a capital Scotch vocalist; Master Robbie Anderson, of Ayr, a comic song; from Hespeler, a song beautifully sung by Miss Haich, also songs melodiously rendered by Misses M A. Fannie, and Minnie Anderson; a recitation given with grand effect and listened to with marked attention by Mrs G E Chapman; also one similarly rendered by Miss Rife, and one by Miss May Rife; a duet most efficiently rendered on the piano by the Misses Henry. Mr Roos, former ly of Galt, but now of Hespeler, literally brought down the house with his Dutch comic, a which has amounts to a whole entertainment in himself. A good recitation by Mr John M Eagle, with the above mentioned pieces, many of which were lustily encored, constituted the programme. Several members from the Ayr Council of Templars were present, not afraid of a drive of 16 miles and return the same evening. The proceeds amounted to sixty dollars and some cents.

EVER ACTIVE.—The members of the Ladies' Aid Society in connection with the Methodist church here are ever on the move. The latest by these worthy ladies is the placing on the pulpit of the church one of the handsomest Bibles we have yet seen, obtained through Mr J D Conway, bookseller, and the holding of a most successful social at the residence of Mr Wm R Ellis, at which about double the cost of this book was realized.

TEMPERANCE.—The work of making that delicious stuff—maple syrup, and sugar—has now fairly commenced. A few in the neighborhood have gone into it somewhat extensively. Old weather observers think that the signs of the times do not presage a very abundant yield.

A NEW GROCERY.—Messrs G Martin and John W Eagle having formed a partnership have now opened out a splendid exhibit of every variety of groceries in Oatley's old stand, on Upper Queen street. If it is possible to work up a business where there is already lively competition, Messrs Martin and Eagle may manage it, as they are gentlemen of known integrity, and we think good ability. We wish them well.

SPRING BLOSSOMS, in the shape of robbins and blue birds, are already here in plenty.

LOSS OF A VALUABLE HORSE.—Mr John Anderson, of this village, lost a valuable young horse one day last week. Inflammation was the cause.

VALUABLE AND PROLIFIC.—There is already at the Grange farm, belonging to Mr J P Phin, a flock of 27 young lambs, consisting of Shropshire and Southdowns, pure bred, and beauties at that.

Hespeler, March 29th, 1886.

Belwood Correspondence.

KICKED BY A HORSE.—When Mr. R. J. Black, Reeve of West Garafraxa, was leaving Philips' sale on the Owen Sound road, on Friday, the 25th inst., and passing behind a colt, he was badly kicked on the right leg. The accident will confine him to the house for a week or two. We hope to see him round again soon all right.

FLOUR AND FEED.—I notice that James A. Goodall has added to his already extensive business a flour and feed store where farmers can exchange their wheat and get a fair return, in the best roller flour, bran, and shorts, &c. There is even talk of another baker in the village.

DRUG STORE.—I notice also that G. S. Smith, a practical druggist, has commenced business in the village with a stock suited to the wants of the community.

BUILDERS.—Mr. C. Cook, from Eramosa, has gone into partnership with Mr. Hugh McDonald as builders, planing mill, and lumber dealers. They have quite a number of contracts on hand.

ELEVATOR AND WAREHOUSE.—The Messrs. Clarke are getting their material on the ground to build an elevator and grain warehouse at the station, to be in working order early next fall, in time for the barley crop. We understand that they are promised a considerable bonus by business men in the locality, if the work is completed at the time agreed.

SAW MILL.—As timber is getting scarce in this locality, Mr. Daniel McDonald, with two threshing machine engines and portable saw mill, went right into Luther, on the McKinny farm, and has been turning out a large quantity of lumber and barn timber which is taken away by the farmers as soon as sawed—even the sawdust is taken away as soon made, to pack ice for the creameries.

SUDDEN DEATH.—We are sorry to notice that a son of Mr. James Gibson, of East Garafraxa, died suddenly from inflammation on Sunday, the 28th. We are also sorry to record that Mr. John Arnie is very dangerously ill with inflammation in the bowels. Inflammation has been very prevalent and fatal in this neighborhood this winter.

THE OUTER MAN.—I had almost forgotten to mention that Mr. T. C. McKay, tailor, from Toronto, had started business in Belwood. We wish him much success.

Wellesley Correspondence.

CREAMERY.—A Joint Stock Company has been formed to erect a creamery in the village of Crosshill. Already some of the material is on the ground, and preparations are being made to have the building ready early in the summer. The farmers in the neighborhood will benefit very materially by this, as they will get an increased price for their butter.

ACCIDENT.—While Mr Stricker, of Linwood, was sawing wood with a circular saw one day last week he thought he noticed something wrong, and on going near to make an examination he was struck in the face and knocked insensible. He soon regained consciousness and was taken to the house where his wounds were dressed, and he is now doing well. The saw had burst and the balance wheel was totally destroyed. It was a very narrow escape from instant death.

DEATH.—Mr Thomson, bailiff, died very suddenly of inflammation last week. There are already a number of applications for the office rendered vacant by his death.

FALSE PRETENCES.—An individual named Palmer, hailing from Peel Township, has been victimizing several parties in Listowel, Linwood and other places lately by pretending to have a fine property, and thus getting credit on that score. He was brought before a bench of J. P.'s in Berlin and committed to stand his trial at next assizes. He is now out on bail.

FAIR.—A monthly fair is to be established in the village of Crosshill. This will supply a long felt want among the farmers who had to drive their cattle so far formerly. There is no reason why the fair should not become one of the best in the country, as this section of country is noted for the number and quality of its cattle.

SPRING FAIRS.—The usual quota of fairs is being held in this district. Wellesley village holds one on April 7, and Crosshill village one on the 9th.

Wellesley, March 30, 1886.

Mr. Howland has received from a Toronto lady a letter offering to make over to him her little piece of land, valued at $1,400, to enable him to qualify.

Elora Correspondence.

DEATHS.—The unexpected and sudden death, from home, last week of Mrs. A. Andrich, cast a gloom over our village. She was an amiable woman, the beloved mother of a large family of young children, of kind and benevolent disposition, and ever ready to lend a helping hand in any good work. Her husband and family have the sympathy of all in their sad bereavement.—Mrs. William Thompson, of Peel, near Arthur, and who formerly lived at Aboyne, died after a short illness last week. She was well-known here and many turned out to attend her funeral. She leaves a husband and family who deeply mourn their great loss.

THE MANITOBA CAR.—On Thursday evening last the car on the C. P. R., filled with samples of the products of Manitoba, visited Elora, where it remained until Friday afternoon. Many persons visited it, and made a thorough examination of the varied proofs of the productive character of North-Western soil, but the people of Wellington are so accustomed to "Agricultural shows" that they expressed less surprise, probably, at picked specimens than has been displayed elsewhere. It will require more than an exhibit of large potatoes and good wheat and barley to persuade any large emigration from Ontario to the new land. More rival railway enterprise, more liberal treatment of the actual settler, and less favoritism in the disposal of the public domain are essential to the rapid settlement of a country which can grow big roots and grain but which has nevertheless been too much under the control of speculators, contractors and monopolists.

CATTLE SHIPMENTS.—The staple product of Centre Wellington is on the move, and our cattle stalls are beginning to yield their crop. Yesterday three car loads of thoroughly fattened stock was shipped by the G. T. R., Featherstone & Bain sending off two cars, and Rogers the third. Until the end of May frequent shipments will now take place at remunerative prices.

GOSPEL AND SALVATION.—Although the drum of the Salvation Army still mightily wakes the echoes and calls sinners to the place of meeting, the attendance at this means of grace has very much lessened, and novelty no longer comes to the aid of the workers. The Gospel Army has furled its standard, hung up its triangle, slackened its drum, and closed its conventicle. We have so many churches here that the illegitimate attraction doesn't draw.

ANOTHER LECTURE.—The most indefatigable and industrious lecturer in Canada is, probably, the Rev. Hugh Rose, of Knox Church. Elsewhere he has something to say on nearly every subject, and contrives to say that something very well indeed. On Thursday evening last he lectured in the Drill Shed on "The Bay of Naples and its surroundings," and will complete the lecture on that subject in Knox Church on Thursday evening next, the charge of admission being 15 cents. He exhibited 7 slides of M. Levy, of Paris, and will show 58 more on Thursday evening—if anything more attractive than those previously given.

ELORA LITERARY SOCIETY.—On the evening of Tuesday next, the members of the Elora Literary Society will give another of their interesting entertainments in the drill shed, a small charge being made for admission. Amongst other attractions will be a diorama exhibition of Coleridge's "Ancient Mariner," with numerous illustrations. Recitations, readings and vocal and instrumental music will fill up an attractive bill of fare.

AMONG THE BREAKERS.—The members of the Cosling Dramatic Club, having kindly volunteered to give a representation of the popular play of "Among the Breakers," for the benefit of the Elora Roman Catholic Church, and have visited Elora on Tuesday last, and were greeted by a large and thoroughly appreciative audience. The various characters were well represented, but "it would be invidious to make comparisons," as Peter Paragraph would say. Special mention, however, may be made of the parts of Meaker Carey, Biddy Bean and Scad. All did well, and whenever the members of the club desire a good audience and a warm welcome, let them come to Elora again. The total receipts were over $70, and the ladies managing the parsonage fund feel deeply grateful to the Dramatic Club for their well-timed assistance.

BONUS.—The Village Council have in contemplation the offer of $27 to a button manufacturer of Berlin to open a factory here. There are few places which have suffered more from the bonus mania than Elora, but it is probable the people will jump like trout at the tempting fly when cleverly dangled before them. Trout children don't always need the fly, and heavily taxed ratepayers will sometimes catch at a straw.

BACK AGAIN.—The familiar faces of Andrew Smart and David Kitchie once more illumine our streets. Boys are back from Toronto full of the doings of the session, convinced that the Opposition are nowhere and likely to remain there—if such a "bull can be permitted"—and that "the little tyrant" is deserving all the good things said of him.

Compensation to Workmen.

The Mowat Government have time and again proved how anxious they are to legislate in the best interests of working men and to ensure for them justice and fair treatment. The statutes of Ontario bear more than one evidence of this fact. But the crowning act of the present Administration is the bill which received assent last week, and which has become now one of our Provincial Statutes, to secure compensation to workmen for injuries in certain cases. We are safe in saying that this is not only the most generous and important act in the interests of labour ever passed in any Province, or in the Dominion, but exceeds in its just provisions any ever passed in the United States or in Great Britain. It is true that in respect of corporations having great provident and assurance associations the operation of a portion of the Act is suspended for a year, but this was only consented to at the solicitation of the workmen themselves and in order that injury might not be done to those whose interests the legislation was designed to promote. The Act has still large application, however, and will guarantee to persons engaged in the more perilous occupations and to their wives and families a much needed measure of security and protection. We have not space to give the Act in full, but will briefly summarize its principal provisions

The interpretation clause makes "employer" mean either a company or an individual. The expression "workman" does not include a domestic or menial servant, but embraces all others engaged in manual labour, whether under or over twenty-one years of age. The Act specifies five different grounds of action for personal injury, in which case the workman himself can recover damages, or in case the injury results in death, the legal personal representatives of the workman, and any persons entitled in case of death, shall have the same right of compensation and remedies against the employer as if the workman had not been a workman of, nor in the service of the employer, nor engaged in his work. The grounds of action are:—

1. By reason of any defect in the condition of the ways, works, machinery, or plant connected with or used in the business of the employer; or

2. By reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer who has any superintendence entrusted to him whilst in the exercise of such superintendence; or

3. By reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer to whose orders or directions the workman at the time of the injury was bound to conform and did conform, where such injury resulted from his having so conformed: or

4. By reason of the act or omission of any person in the service of the employer done or made in obedience to the rules or by-laws of the employer, or in obedience to particular instructions given by any person delegated with the authority of the employer in that behalf; or

5. By reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer who has the charge or control of any signal, point, locomotive, engine, or train upon a railway.

A special section is devoted to compensation for injuries received by workmen on railways. Section five provides that a workman shall not be entitled under this Act to any right of compensation or remedy against the employer in any of the following cases, that is to say:

1. Under sub-section 1 of section 3, unless the defection therein mentioned arose from or had not been discovered or remedied owing to the negligence of the employer or of some person in the service of the employer, and entrusted by him with the duty of seeing that the ways, works, machinery or plant were in proper condition.

2. Under sub-section 4 of section 3, unless the injuries resulted from some impropriety or defect in, the rules, by-laws, or instructions therein mentioned; provided, that where a rule or by-law has been approved, or has been accepted as a proper rule or by-law either by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council, or under and pursuant to any provision in that behalf of any Act of the Legislature of Ontario, or of the Parliament of Canada, it shall not be deemed for the purposes of this Act to be an improper or defective rule or by-law.

3. In any case where the workman knew of the defect or negligence which caused his injury, and failed within a reasonable time to give or cause to be given information thereof to the employer or some person superior to himself in the service of the employer, unless he was aware that the employer or such superior already knew of the said defect or negligence.

Section six provides that the amount of compensation recoverable under this Act shall not exceed such sum as may be found to be equivalent to the estimated earnings, during the three years preceding the injury of a person in the same grade employed during those years in the like employment within the Province; and such compensation shall not be subject to any deduction or abatement, by reason, or on account, or in respect, of any matter or thing whatsoever, save such as is specially provided for in section 9 of this Act, in cases where parties have previously obtained compensation under any other Act.

Section seven provides that an action for the recovery under this act of compensation for an injury shall not be maintainable unless notice that injury has been sustained is given within twelve weeks, and the action is commenced within six months from the occurrence of the accident causing the the injury, or in case of death within twelve months from the time of death; provided always that in case of death the want of such notice shall be no bar to the maintenance of such action, if the judge shall be of opinion that there was reasonable excuse for such want of notice.

Section eight declares that no contract or agreement made or entered into by a workman shall be a bar or constitute any defence to an action for the recovery under this Act of compensation for any injury.

(1) Unless for such workman entering into or making such a contract or agreement there was other consideration than that of his being taken into or continued in the employment of the defendant; nor

(2) Unless such other consideration was in the opinion of the court or judge before whom such action is tried, ample and adequate; nor

(3) Unless, in the opinion of said court or judge, such contract or agreement, in view of such other consideration was not on the part of the workman, improvident, but was just and reasonable; and the burthen of proof in respect of such other consideration, and of the same being ample and adequate, and that said contract was just and reasonable, and was not improvident shall, in all cases, rest upon the defendant.

The remaining sections of the Act specify how notices are to be served in case of injury, what particulars are required to be given when a demand is made for compensation, and how assessors are to be appointed by the Judge before whom the case is brought, whose duty it will be to ascertain the amount of compensation to be given to the injured workmen. Provision is also made by which several actions can be brought by a many workmen against a defendant in the same court for the same negligence, act or omission by which an accident was caused, and the judgment shall be alike for all the plaintiffs; but the amount of compensation shall be graduated according to the nature of the injuries each plaintiff receives.

With the exceptions as stated in our introduction, this act shall come in force on the first of July next. The workingmen of Ontario owe Mr. Mowat's Government a debt of gratitude for this wise and beneficient measure, which is specially framed for the benefit of themselves and their families. In regard to protective legislation the workingmen of Ontario are now in a better position than any similar class in any country in the world. In addition to the above Act there has been on the statute book for some years one providing for the creation of boards of arbitration for the prevention and settlement of labor difficulties. Strange to say, however, this Act has not hitherto been taken advantage of, though we hope it will be in the future. Then, in addition to these, we have Mr. Gibson's bill, which was also assented to last week, providing against the importation into Ontario of outside labor under contract.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, March 30.

Mr. McLelan, rising to move the House into Committee of ways and means, paid a high compliment to his predecessor, whose clear and able statements, he said, commanded the admiration and respect of the country. He hoped that Sir Leonard's health would yet permit of his returning to the service of his country. Great changes have taken place since Confederation, and there are strong evidences of the development of the Dominion. The population and area had increased tenfold since 1867, but changes were more marked in the condition of the people and means of intercourse from one country to another. People have now the closest means of communication with each other and are not dependent on any foreign power for a route to the Northwest as they were before the C. P. R. was built. The C. P. R. gave us an unbroken highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and the year 1886 would be a red letter day in the annals of the country on account of the completion of this great national undertaking. It was a significant mark of our geographical independence and a grand realization of the predictions made by the leader of the Government at the time of construction of the Intercolanial railway. British interests have been thereby strengthened and maintained and the resources of the country developed. It was a proud moment for Sir John, and he should be regarded as the benefactor of the Dominion and entitled to the gratitude of the country. In his various political tasks the right hon. gentleman never lost sight of the supreme importance of this work, although his scheme was assailed by the Opposition and regarded with fear and trembling by some of his supporters. He would have the highest reward in knowing, seeing and believing that he had wrought something to the advantage of his fellow-men. Signs of the country's progress were evident in its commercial standing, great national highways, public buildings, comfortable homes, and well-cultivated farms, its schools and churches, and last, but by no means least, the avocations in which the people were engaged. Mr. McLelan then made an explanation of the point raised by the leader of the Opposition in debate on an address personal to himself. The honorable gentleman had charged him with being opposed to confederation. "True it is," said he, "that as a Nova Scotian I was against the union, because I thought our little province was not receiving what she was entitled to. I regarded the terms as unfair, but when confederation was accomplished and made a law, I expressed myself as satisfied, and ready and willing to live under it." He wanted a modification of the terms, but did not hesitate in co-operating with all those who had at heart the first interests of the new Dominion as a whole. The Minister then entered upon a detailed statement as to the expenditure and receipts for 1885. Sir Leonard's estimate of receipts was $33,000,000, and the actual receipts were $190,000 in excess of this. There was a falling off in the estimated custom receipts of over $2,000,000. Honorable gentlemen opposite might feel disposed to ask how this can be with so much high tariff. But this loss of duty was proof of the beneficial effects of the N. P. It was wholly and solely on articles made in the country that had hitherto been imported. Gentlemen who talk about the grinding nature of the tariff should remember that in 1876, when the late administration resigned office, the duties collected amounted to $12,795,000, and gross importation of $91,199,000, as against duties in 1885 of $18,985,000 on total importation prevailed of $102,710,000. Did this look as if the tariff was grinding or burdening to the poor man? The reverse was the case. Increases in revenue did not come from the necessaries of life but from silks, satins and delicacies. The Minister continued to defend the policy of the Government and rested at recess amidst applause. He brought down the tariff changes after recess. They are given in another column.

Mr. McLelan wound up at 10.40. His speech is regarded as a good effort for a new man. The minister reserved his most important announcement to the last. It was to the effect that the C. P.R. intended to pay back within three months the loan of $20,000,000 advanced by the Government.

Sir Richard Cartwright replied in a telling speech of two hours and twenty minutes, a summary of which cannot be given to-day.

The House then went into Committee of Supply and passed several resolutions. The tariff is therefore in force.

OTTAWA, March 29th.

It is old news now to tell your readers that the Landry motion, dictated by the Government, regretting the execution of Riel, was voted on about three o'clock on Thursday morning, in the presence of full galleries and amid considerable excitement. The result of the vote is pretty much as I anticipated. A fair proportion of the Western Liberals voted with Mr. Blake and for the motion. It being no party question on the Liberal side every member was free to "go as you please." I hear that the Quebec Bleus who voted against the Government on this motion are quite satisfied with the Liberal vote they got from Ontario, which they say will bear its own fruit whenever a general election takes place. It is remarkable what an intense feeling the execution of Riel has created in Quebec and which even yet shows no signs of subsidence. The election in Drummond and Arthabaska last week of a member to the Local Legislature is good evidence of this, and the remarkable change in sentiment there would indicate a similar change in sentiment throughout the Province at a general election. It is said that Riel's portrait is being generally purchased by the habitants and hung up among other cherished characters on the walls of their houses. With them he is looked upon as a patriot and a martyr. If this feeling continues to prevail who can foretell the result when these people come to pronounce on the action of the Government which allowed his execution to take place?

The last three days of the debate were marked by three speeches—all by Ministers of the Crown—and each very different in kind and quality. Mr. Thompson, the new Minister of Justice, made his first set speech in the House on Monday, and on the whole created rather a favorable impression. It must be said that he had every advantage in this his first effort. Mr. Blake's great speech was delivered on Friday, which gave Mr. Thompson plenty of time to fully consider its points and frame his reply to them. He had, besides, the additional advantage of free access to all the documents in his department bearing on the subject. Mr. Thompson is not an impcsing individual. He is rather undersized, but well and compactly built. He possess a good voice, which he manages well and without great effort. One can readily notice in the style and arrangement of his speech that his judicial training has been of great value to him, for though possessing no great mental power, and lacking in breadth, he manages to put his points clearly and with the best possible effect. I must also say he is courteous in his language, and while trying to trip up an opponent, or make some point that he means to tell on the House, he never breaks through its rules or the amenities of debate. As a useful poins-taking and sagacious Minister, possessing good average abilities, and a better all round speaker than any of his colleagues, he is clearly an acquisition to the Government.

We ought almost to apologize for mentioning Mr. Costigan in the same breath with Mr. Thompson, but as he was the next Minister who spoke on the subject we must put him in order. No two speeches, however, could be more unlike. Mr. Thompson stuck to his text. He argued the subject in a proper and legitimate manner. On the other hand Mr. Costigan never really touched the subject at all, but began and continued and ended on the lowest level it was possible for a public man to descend to. Of course he posed, as he always does, as a representative Irish Catholic, and whined and complained of being bitterly assailed by the Montreal Post for his attitude on the Riel question. Next, he made a rediculously silly charge against Mr. Blake and Mr. Casey, that they only now wore the shamrock in their button hole on St. Patrick's day in the hope of currying favor with their countrymen. Then, of course, he once more brought up the old and well worn subjects of the New Brunswick school question and the resolutions on Home Rule, of which he claimed to be the father. It was on the strength of these he was brought out of obscurity and obtained office, and on the strength of these same he keeps it, for he has no other earthly recommendation we know of. His speeches are invariably narrowed to the lowest and bitterest form of national and sectarian prejudice, and would be degrading and ruinous in their effect were any weight attached to them, which happily there is not. That we are not too severe on him may be judged by the following from his former friend and supporter, the Post, already mentioned:—"Mr. Costigan may consider our criticism of his public acts and official conduct to be of the nature of a "bitter assault." We do not wonder at that. A representative who has been accustomed to words of praise and to favours in and out of season, and who, by his peculiar position, had nothing worse to fear from his political opponents than their silence, must indeed feel a rude shock and count it a bitter awakening when public criticism is adversely directed against him. Both the Irish people and their representatives in every sphere, whether civic, provincial or federal, of public life in this Dominion, have been educated in a false political school, where the unreasonable and dangerous doctrine was laid down that the Irish representatives were always to be held immaculate and inviolable. The result was that no tongue or pen could utter a word against them, without having the worst of motives attributed to the critic who had fault to find with their official conduct. This silly and childish custom of sparing, and shielding, and siding with our representatives, whether they be in the right or the wrong, obtains among no other nationality, and they are all the better and stronger for it."

Later on, on Wednesday night, Mr. Chapleau followed Mr. Costigan. The Secretary of State poses as the orator of the Cabinet. On this occasion it was evident that he was bound to "put his best foot foremost," to use a familiar expression, and to try and come up to, if not excel, Mr. Laurier's great speech. But he lacks one important element that Mr. Laurier possesses, namely, strong reasoning powers. He is eloquent enough, but his style has too much of the Gaelic frenzy. He has plenty of language at his command, sometimes a great deal more than is necessary, and consequently his sentences get unwieldy and he is forever committing the sin of mixing his metaphors. Take for instance the following as a sample:—"The hideous scaffold spread its lines over the newly christened town of Regina, christened after the name of our beloved Sovereign, and the virgin soil of the Province of Assiniboia was torn open to receive the dead body of a man who had sown the seeds of discontent, of revolt, and of war, and death in the land, which should have been kept for peace, happy tranquility and unity." This is piling on the agony with a vengeance, but such sentences occur very frequently in Mr Chapleau's harangues. Still, Mr. Chapleau is an effective speaker to a crowd. His voice, though thin and shrill, is quite distinct. His gestures and attitudes are thoroughly dramatic. He declaims like a true Frenchmen and even his pathos and clap-trap often elicit cheers from those who delight in plenty of sound, even though there be but a small modicum of sense in it.

I have thus attempted feebly to sketch the chief characteristics of our great speakers in Parliament, and in some of my future letters I may have something to say about those who may be said to occupy the second rank, or who even come

When the House met this afternoon it was very thin, quite a number of the members not having yet returned. By to-morrow they will be nearly all back to hear Mr. McLelan deliver his first Budget speech.

Sir John Macdonald is still confined to his room, though somewhat better. His chief trouble now is rheumatism or sciatica in one of his legs. The Ottawa correspondent thus speaks of him:—"It would be of little use to conceal the anxiety which is felt, especially among Conservatives at the Premier's illness. His condition is such, I have been assured by one who ought to know, that he cannot afford to run the slightest risk. He requires the utmost care, with relief from all physical exertion and mental worry, in order not to overtax those wonderful powers of mind and body which have sustained him so long, in spite of vicious habits and indifference to the laws of health.

He has reached a critical period of life and should ill health compel his prolonged absence from Parliament the effect on his party must be very bad. He has created and wields a one-man power so absolutely and has done so for so long that his party is like a shepardless pack of sheep without him. Should it unfortunately be deprived of his leadership its disintegration would be complete and speedy. There is no one among his followers at all capable of taking his place. Some among them have doubtless learned his methods, as they have learned to imitate the wag of his head or the way he carries his stick, but they woefully lack his genius, his tact, and his capacity for finding expedients in difficult and desperate circumstances. He has given them a moral and political code which they can practice under his guidance, but which, if left to themselves is sure to bring them to disaster and dispersion."

CITY COUNCIL.

Renewal of the Guelph Junction Railway Charter.

A special meeting of the City Council was held on Tuesday evening. Present—The Mayor in the chair, Ald. Chadwick, Lamprey, Keough, Bruce, Maddock, Cutten, Hewer, Smith, Hearn, Read, Raymond, Hamilton, Husband, Skinner, Coffee, Carter.

The Mayor stated that a communication from the City Solicitor, Mr. D. Guthrie, would explain the object of the meeting. That gentleman had received information from Mr. Innes, our member, that the charter would have to be renewed before the 19th of next month.

The communication in substance is as follows:—It is necessary to have the charter of the Guelph Junction Railway Company amended in several respects, principally to permit directors to qualify by reason of their being members of the City Council. This will enable the city, if it furnishes the money to build the road, to secure full and complete control by means of it sown representatives. This refers to the permanent directors. The time for commencement and completion of the Railway extended—By the present charter the work must be commenced before the 19th of next month. Under the present charter there is no provision which would enable the City Council to appoint its own members to the board of present directors, unless these gentlemen held $1,000 of stock in their private capacity. At the time the charter was obtained it was not contemplated that the city should do more than grant a bonus. In view of the present attitude of the Canada Pacific Co. which is that the City will have to furnish the money to build the road, an amendment to the charter becomes necessary in order to give the City Council that direct and complete control which it ought to have, and an amendment is likewise necessary, or at all events desirable, in order to have the time for the commencement of the work extended.

Moved by Ald. Chadwick, seconded by Ald. Bruce, that the Railway Committee be authorized to instruct the City Solicitor to apply for amendments to the Guelph Junction Railway charter as mentioned in his letter.

Ald. Cutten objected to the motion. He thought the City Council had nothing to do with the matter, and that it rested in the hands of the Provisional Board of Directors.

Ald. Maddock—What will be the cost?

The Mayor—About $200.

Ald. Smith thought that it would be better for the chairman of the Railway Committee to explain.

Mr. Chadwick said that he thought very little explanation was required, as the Aldermen knew all about the matter. It was in this position—the charter for the road expired in a few days and unless the time was extended at this session the charter would be of no use. He was in hopes up to the last moment that matters might be so arranged with Mr. VanHorne as to obviate the necessity of taking the present course. He had met Mr. VanHorne two weeks ago and he then of his own accord promised to visit Guelph personally with the engineer to become acquainted with the position of the whole concern. Mr. VanHorne had failed to come, and last Thursday was telegraphed on the subject, when he replied that his time was occupied for a week ahead on important matters that could not be postponed. In addition to the necessity for extension was the desirability of giving the citizens through the Council a controlling influence at the Board, so as to represent the money that would be invested. He felt convinced that the road would never be built unless the city contributed the bulk of the funds. Personally it was nothing to him whether the resolution carried or not, but he was determined if he could to give an opportunity to the ratepayers to express their wishes on the subject. He found a very general desire for the road expressed by individuals, by letters and editorials and by the Board of Trade and never yet had

The charter was at present under the heard of anyone against it. control of a Provisional Board, consisting of perhaps twenty persons, the capital being $100,000, of which when ten per cent had been paid into a Bank a fresh Board of five would be elected. It was necessary that provision be made for a representation on that Board of members of the Council who could not act on it as the charter stood.

On the question being asked how long the charter would be renewed Ald. Chadwick replied for about three years, he believed. The citizens were clamoring for the road and looked to the Council, as their representatives, to put this affair into proper shape for them, so that they could vote for such an amount as would be required to carry on their work.

Ald. Hearn thought that an amount of $200 should be placed to the credit of the Committee, as being all they desired. He asked if there was no other way, say of turning the sod, whereby the charter could be renewed at less expense.

Ald. Chadwick replied that of course the charter could be kept alive by purchasing a lot and commencing work, but this would cost probably more than renewing the charter and would not get over the other and more important difficulties. He declined to name any sum in the resolution as if it cost more than $200 he did not wish to be prevented in carrying out what he believed was the desire of the citizens for the sake of a few dollars and the Committee could ask for what was required at an ordinary meeting.

Ald. Smith was in favor of renewing the charter, and having the matter submitted to the ratepayers, as the ratepayers would hold them responsible.

Ald. Keough said it was a question whether the Council or the Provisional Board of Directors had to deal with the matter. He would like to know if the railway came here if there was any provision, or understanding for its being continued further north. It might so happen that Guelph would be cut off.

Ald. Chadwick replied that even if Guelph were the terminus it would be an advantage to the city.

Ald Coffee remarked that it was clear no private company would build the road, and he was opposed to the city saddling themselves with the debt, which would be incurred in building it at a cost of probably $100,000 or $200,000. The citizens he was sure did not desire to have the road at an outlay of this kind, and many of them had made expressions to him to this effect. He thought it would be throwing away money.

Ald. Bruce would support the motion, as it would give the ratepayers a chance to say whether they desired the road or not.

Ald. Read, Carter, Husband, and other members spoke, after which the motion was put—12 voting for it and three against.

The Council then adjourned.

CAMPBELL'S

TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

ST. Rain or Snow.

Strong winds and moderate gales from the southwest and northwest; partly cloudy weather, with occasional showers of rain or snow.

THERE was a slight fall of snow this morning.

THAT giddy thing called "Gentle Spring" is getting somewhat bolder; she snaps her eyes and loudly cries to winter who doth hold her, "See, see, old chap, get off my lap," and gives him the cold shoulder.

A SENTIMENTAL writer says:—"A baby is a link which binds its mother to Heaven." Pretty often it is a link which binds her to the house when she is "almost dying" to go out making calls or to do a little shopping.

HECTOR MCPHADDEN, from near Kincardine, was in the city to-day on his way home from Scotland, where he has been for the past few weeks purchasing a Clydesdale mare and horse for the improvement of the breed of horses in that locality.

MR. W. P. BROWN, Acton, assessor, has just completed a summary of the assessment for 1886. The total assessment is $178,230, an increase of $3,294 over that of last year. The assessor's census shows that the population has increased by 72.

MR. W. REHILL, seedsman, Seaforth, is in the city to-day with two car loads of oats, barley and wheat. The Brampton Conservator says: "Rehill has seed grains that is not equalled by any in Ontario or Manitoba. He showed them yesterday at the C. P. R. exhibition car, and came off not second best."

ALTHOUGH the rain of the past few days was far from pleasant, it was just the kind of weather that should prevail at this season. It washes out the sewers, levels down the streets, takes out the frost and brings to light accumulations around the premises which should receive attention at the hands of the scavengers. Welcome rain! do your work, no matter who complains.

HIGH TIDE.—The rain of the past few days has caused the Speed to overflow its banks in a greater degree than has been witnessed for many years. The flats along by the Dundas bridge are covered with water, and the water reaches up to Sallow's blacksmith shop, the street from there leading to Gow's bridge being almost impassible for conveyances or pedestrians. The paarpet of Wells' bridge is in a precarious condition, and liable to be swept away from the blocade of ice if the volume of water does not decrease. The river is clear of ice as far as Allan's dam.

THE SOCIAL GLASS.—This temperance play was reproduced in the City Hall last night by members of the Guelph Catholic Union, under the auspices of the League of the Cross. The hall was comfortably filled, and the audience throughout the entertainment appeared to enjoy and appreciate the efforts of the performers. On this occasion the play was better put on than on the last, and there was a noticeable improvement in the minor details. It was also observable that the performers had more confidence in themselves, thus taking their parts with more natural ease. The following is the cast of character:

Charles Thornley	John Sheahan
Dr. Slater	John A. Gallaher
Harold Hadley	Thomas F. Heffernan
John Farley	E. J. O'Brien
Bob Brittle	Jos. P. Downey
James Hollis	Philip Purcell
Nettie Netteby	Miss Julia Doran
Eva Thornley / Mrs. Farley	Miss Polley Downey

John Gallaher's song "It hasn't happened yet," was received with applause, and he was rapturously encored. The composition was local and reflected credit on the composer, being free from the vulgarity often expressed in songs of this kind. It is not necessary to particularize on the parts taken by the several actors, as these were criticised when the play was produced before. Miss Downey, however, is deserving of a word of praise. She had a difficult part to perform and did it in such a manner as reflected credit on herself. Miss Doran also sustained her part well, perhaps from the fact that she always wanted to "make folks happy." The City Band furnished excellent music during the evening.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Petrie v. Guelph Lumber Company

Full Report of Supreme Court Judgment.

Mr. Guthrie has recently received the following letter from Ottawa from one of the counsel for defendants. The letter says:—

"I have seen the judgment of the Supreme court in Petrie's case delivered by Gwynne, J.—(The other Judges concurred). It is very long and deals fully with both law and facts, going into the matter in some detail and taking up each ground of claim, The pith of it however is to be found in the general conclusion arrived at as to the whole case which is thus expressed—"Now, having read with the greatest care every particle of the evidence and having given the best consideration I could to the argument of the learned counsel for the appellants as delivered orally before us, and as expanded at large in his printed factum, I feel compelled to say that in my opinion the defendants are not only free from any just imputation of the gross fraud with which they are charged in the statement of claims, but they are equally free from any reckless disregard of the truth or falsity of the statements made in the prospectus, and that they prepared that document with an honest intention of fairly representing according to their knowledge the condition of the business for the taking over of which the company was proposed to be incorporated, and that they bona fide believed to be true every statement made in the prospectus both as to the condition of the business in which they were engaged as to the prospects of the proposed company, of which I think they have given in addition to their evidence upon oath in the cause the strongest possible proof by having taken among themselves $40,000 or more than 50 per cent of the preference stock issued by the company. And I cannot but add that the fact that the plaintiffs in these suits voted for the defendants as directors of the company after they had made the investigation in which they acquired all the information upon which they based these actions and caused them to be brought seems to my mind to show that the plaintiffs themselves did not believe the defendants to be guilty of the frauds now imputed to them, the charges as to many of which, as appears by the examination of the plaintiffs, seem to owe their origin to the zeal of the pleader who prepared the statement of claim rather than to the plaintiffs or any information derived from them." In discussing the different charges he says: "The plaintiff has, in my opinion, wholly failed to establish that the estimate of the quantity of lumber on the limits, stated in the prospectus, was inaccurate, much less fredulently so," and that "The evidence fails I think wholly to establish any intentional suppression" of the liabilities said to be omitted. The giving of the mortgage he says did not place the plaintiffs in any worse position, as the company would have been liable for what it secured if it had never been executed. As to the allegation that defendants, when the prospectus was issued, knew they were in a state of absolute insolvency, "it is only necessary, it my opinion, to say that the defendants did not know, or believe themselves to be, if they were in fact, in any such state."

This is the substance of the judgment as regards the result, and it could hardly be more satisfactory. It was unanimous.

DAMAGED BY FIRE.

The Incendiaries gag and then Club a Telephone Operator.

The "Mail" Office Once More a Prey to the Flames.

(Special to the Daily Mercury).

TORONTO, April 1.—Between four and five o'clock this morning an alarm, followed by a general alarm, was rung for a fire in the Mail building. The brigade promptly turned out, and in a short time were pouring streams of water on the burning pile. The Mail building is divided into two sections. In the front section are the Bell Telephone and the Mail's general offices, and also several private offices, while in the back section are the composing, press and editorial rooms, and the office of Alexander & Cable, lithographers. The fire originated in the top flat occupied by the Telephone Company. After battling with the flames for three quarters of an hour the firemen seemed to have got them under control. But suddenly the whole of the roof fell in with a crash, and the flames began afresh, licking up everything. The tower was quickly a mass of flames, and the telephone cables snapped like reeds. The firemen worked energetically, and by seven o'clock had succeeded in subduing the flames. The fire was fortunately confined to the front section which was pretty badly damaged. It is impossible as yet to ascertain the loss. The Bell Telephone Company will be heavy losers. Their offices are completely wrecked. The Mail's general offices on the first flat and other offices are flooded. The Mail's plant and many valuable drawings belonging to architects who had offices there are rendered useless. The rear part of the building, occupied as editorial, printing and press rooms, and by the Mail Job Printing Company are untouched, and the printers and pressmen are at work as usual this morning. The Bell Telephone Company lose all their valuable machinery, switches, furniture, &c., and the city is without telephone service, which will be a great inconvenience to business men and others. The Telephone Company's loss will amount to over $20,000, and the damage to the Mail building is estimated at $20,000 also. Among the offices badly damaged by water are those of the United States Consulate, Allan Macdougall, Darling & Carry, architects; Kennedy & Holland, architects; M. M. Renner, architect; Coleman & Thomson, real estate agents; New York Life Insurance Company and London & Lancashire Insurance Company. Porter, the night operator of the Telephone Company, who was the only person in the upper part of the building when the fire broke out, says that about half-past three he heard a noise in the outer office, and on going out was clubbed by two men who knocked him senseless. He remembered nothing further until he regained consciousness in the Mail press room. Superintendent Neilson, of the Telephone Company, is, however, of opinion, that the fire was caused by some defect in the electric wires, and that Porter was thrown down and rendered insensible by an electric shock. The loss cannot be less altogether, than fifty thousand dollars.

LATER.—The loss to the Telephone Co. by this morning's fire will be nearer fifty thousand dollars than twenty thousand as at first reported. Porter, the telephone night operator, persists in his statement that he was clubbed by two men. When found in his room he was gagged, his silk handkerchief being tightly tied over his mouth. His face also bears evidence of being tampered with. One eye is blackened, his nose is swollen, and his upper lip is swollen to double its natural size. An investigation is being conducted into the affair.

TRAGEDY NEAR WIARTON.

Two Men Brained and the Bodies Burned in a Building.

OWEN SOUND, March 31.—The inquest on the bodies of Jno. A. Bailey and a hired man, name unknown, which were burned in the building destroyed by fire on Thursday night near Wiarton, was opened at Ozenden on Saturday last and concluded late last night. It disclosed one of the most atrocious and bloodcurdling murders that have ever shocked the feelings of the country. The fire occured about nine o'clock p.m. on Thursday, the 25th, on lot 4, con. 20, Keppel, county of Grey. Bailey had been in Wiarton in the afternoon, and had started for home about 8 o'clock, after which he was never seen alive. His team was found standing in the stable unharnessed, just as he had unhitched and put them in when he went to the house to meet his untimely end. The body supposed to be that of John Bailey had a gash four inches long in the right side of the neck, severing all the principal blood vessels on that side, and a heavy blow had crushed in the forehead until the brain exuded. The body of the hired man showed still more horrible treatment. The skull was battered in and the brain was also exuding; three ribs were cut off near the backbone, and the 5th and 6th ribs cut in the centre along with the 7th, 8th and 9th ribs. The left arm was also broken.

The affair has caused wild excitement in the neighbourhood, which has been deepened by the facts that that no clue to the murderers has been discovered. It is to be hoped that the Government detectives will be sent to investigate the matter thoroughly. The mystery is so complete that suspicion rests on no one.

Mrs. McLary, being sworn said she lived on the lot next to the late John A. Bailey. She testified to having discovered the house of the deceased to be on fire, and to the fact that her daughter Helen cooked the food of the deceased and his hired man.

Helen McLary sworn, said—I am daughter of last witness. There were only Bailey and the stranger living in the house at the time of the fire. I was in the habit of cooking Bailey's meals. I was in Bailey's house twice on Thursday, first at noon to cook the dinners. The stranger was not in when I went over. There was no one in Bailey's house except Bailey, the stranger, and myself. I went there next about 5 o'clock to make supper. George Weir came in while I was there. I was at Bailey's altogether about one hour. Geo. Weir came in when I had nicely got the fire lit, but after a few minutes he left and went over to our place. No one else was there while Weir was there. Weir asked if Bailey was in. Nothing else. I could not tell how long I remained after Weir had left. The stranger came in while I was there. I left as soon as he came in. Weir was not at our house. Mother told me Weir had gone over to Mark Preston's. No one else was in the house except those mentioned by my mother except Bailey and Weir. Mother went to the door and first told us the house was on fire. I did nothing but went to the door. I was prepared to go to bed. I did not think Bailey would be in the house, because Bailey told me at noon that it would likely be late when he would get back. I did not go to the fire because I had my shoes off and did not think it was any use. It was after night and I could not get my sister to go with me and I would not go alone. Bailey was very friendly with me. James King and deceased had a spat about two weeks ago. The quarrel was outside. It was about myself. I heard some sharp words. They did not come to blows. Mr. Bailey was using some sharp words. The quarrel commenced in the house. I did not hear any threat after the quarrel. James King came into the house. At the time there was no one in the house except my mother, my sister Mary, my brother Charles and my father. King thought I liked Bailey better than him, and that is what made King mad. I do not know of any other quarrel between King and deceased. I do not know of King being in the neighborhood since he left. My brother George was not at my mother's house the night of the fire. I do not know of any other person that had any feeling against Mr. Bailey. There was no axe around the stove. The spat between King and deceased commenced about some stories that King had been telling about Bailey. This was on the day King left our place. King left our place the night of the quarrel; we heard he had gone home. It is about four or five miles east of our place. I do not know whether he has a farm. King was said to be about twenty years old. The stranger was cutting wood for Mr. Bailey. I do not know his name. He was a large man. I heard deceased was lame. I do not know whether he could use both his arms. I knew John A. Bailey was a married man. I knew his wife was living. I went out twice driving with him. I never stayed all night at deceased's house.

Charles McLary testified to going to the burning building in company with one Wilson. Mr. Wilson tried to open the door with a neckyoke, but the door would always come to. We went round to the back of the shanty. I put my foot through the window. The room was full of smoke. The door in the partition between the old and new house was open. When we got round the shanty, Mark Preston came along. Elias Weir was with him. By this time the building was too far gone to save. Mr. Gay, Mr. Wilson, and Mr. Robinson took the body out of the building. Mr. Wilson and I went home then. My sister and my father were sitting up; the rest were in bed. I told them the stranger was burnt. I knew Bailey's sleigh was at the east of the house at the time of the fire. There was a sawlog on the sleigh. The log was chained on the sleigh.

Dr. Fisher, who made a post mortem examination, testified that the bodies were burned beyond recognition; that he found a wound in the right side of Bailey's neck extending four inches backwards; that on removing the scalp, he found an extensive comminuted fracture of the frontal bone, extending from the nasal eminence to within ½ an inch of the crown suture and laterally 2½ inches from the median line. In either side two or three fragments of bone were much depressed, evidently impinging on the brain.

After the conclusion of the evidence the jury brought in the following verdict:—

That the said John A. Bailey and an unknown man came by their death on the 25th day of March, 1886, on Lot 4, Con. 20, in the Township of Keppel, by being wilfully and maliciously murdered by some person or persons at present to the jury unknown.

THIS is April Fool's Day.

The Evening Mercury

THURSDAY EVE'G APRIL 1, 1886.

The Vote Next Tuesday.

Mr. Guthrie, City Solicitor, has given the following answers to the questions submitted to him by the Mayor in respect to the voting on the Burr Bros bonus by-law next Tuesday—:

W. Stevenson, Esq., Mayor.

SIR,—I beg to give my opinion upon the question submitted by you to me as follows :—

1st question—Can persons who are merely assessed as occupants vote on the by-law for granting a bonus to Messrs. Burr Brothers ?

Answer—I see nothing in the Municipal Act permitting any one but freeholders and leaseholders voting on such by-law. See sections 309 and 310 of the Consolidated Municipal Act. There may be persons, however, who are assessed as occupants who are in reality leaseholders. I think such persons may vote on the by-law.

2nd question—Can persons who are assessed for real property in more wards than one, vote in each of the wards for which they are assessed, and in which they own property ?

Answer—In my opinion freeholders and leaseholders can vote in each ward in which they are assessed.

I have not seen the amendment to the Municipal Act passed during the late session of the Ontaria Parliament, and I have assumed that there has been no amendment to the clause of the Municipal Act above referred to passed during the last session.

Yours truly,
DONALD GUTHRIE,
City Solicitor.

This leaves the voting in the same position as it has hitherto occupied with reference to all by-laws providing for money grants. It was thought an exception might be made in the case of the present by-law, because it is proposed to pay the money over during the present year without an issue of debentures, and as all ratepayers would have to pay their share of the taxes to make up this sum as well as property owners and lease holders, it was thought that all should have a chance to vote.

It has been a practice on the part of those who owned property in different wards, to vote in such wards on a by-law of this kind, and this the city Solicitor holds to be right. It was thought the practice might be wrong, because it does not look fair that while one man who owns more property in a single ward than another does in three or four is confined to one vote, the other has three or four. But it appears to be law.

One thing in connection with the voting which should induce all who favor the passage of the by-law to work is the fact that a two fifth's vote of the whole property owners and lease holders must be polled in favor of it, and of course in addition to this there must be a majority for the by-law of the votes polled. Every man who stays at home does nearly as much to kill the by-law as the man who turns out and votes against it. Let there be a full expression of opinion on the subject at the polls.

THE official returns of the recent election in Drummond and Artbabaska give Mr. Girouard, the Liberal candidate, a majority of 366, which is very much larger than that given to the late member at the last general election in the Province.

STATITICS present a strong case for the disestablishment of the Church in Wales. In Montgomeryshire only 4 per cent of the population attend the State Church ; in Carnarvonshire only 2 per cent ; in Pembrokeshire only ½ of 1 per cent ; and in other counties in proportion. To force the Welsh people to pay tithes to the State Church under these circumstances is monstrous.

SOME of the Tory organs are unfeeling enough to insinuate that Mr. David Thompson, of Haldimand, shirked the vote on the Landry motion. The truth is that Mr. Thompson has been seriously ill for months, and is still confined to his house if not to his bed. It is also untrue that Mr. Fleming, of Peel, shirked the vote. He was absent attending to his business in connection with the Assize Court.

REFERRING to the strikes for living wages in the textile factories of the United States, Rev. H. W. Beecher said in his sermon on Sunday : "We hear talk of protecting the workingmen by protecting capital. There never was a principal brought out of perdition more abominable. To say our workingmen are protected by protecting the manufacturer ; there never was such an insane delusion. We are seeing some of the results of it now, and we shall see more." Mr. Beecher is sound on this point.

GREVIOUS complaints comes from the Lower Provinces about the cruel war in which old and faithful employees of the Intercolonial Railway are treated by the Government. At the mere whim of the manager several of these men have been dismissed in the dead of winter after being in its employ for many years. Much suffering and destitution have resulted from this hard-hearted action of the Government, in cutting down expenses in order to make up for waste and extravagance in other directions.

MEN who are out of employment and who have hard work to make both ends meet will look in vain to the present Government for consolation or relief from any of their burdens. Finance Minister McLelan announces no relaxation in the taxes on coal, on food or on clothing, but with great magnanimity he still allows diamonds and precious stones to remain on the free list. After a time the poor man will have to try the experiment of subsisting on these latter luxuries, to avoid paying the enormous taxes imposed on necessaries of life.

IN reply to a request from Mr. McCarthy, M.P., the promoter of the bill, the Quebec Board of Trade has resolved that it cannot lend its countenance or support to the legislation proposed in the Railway Commission Bill. The Shareholder a monetary journal of Montreal strongly objects to the bill. That journal points out that the railways have just passed through a trying period of depression "And just at the moment when there arise a few hopeful signs that this epoch of disaster may be on the point of passing away, all this vast interest is threatened with a senseless and indefensible interference having no higher justification than the gratification of the vanity of a private member who, it is notorious, would himself escape scatheless from the ruin he is at work to bring about."

OTTAWA Free Press:—When the first rebellion, that of 1869-70, was being discussed in Parliament Sir John Macdonald was detained from being present through illness and Sir George E. Cartier led the House in the absence of the Premier. Another rebellion has just passed away and the circumstances attending it were for three weeks discussed in the House of Commons. As it was after the first, so it was on the last occasion. Sir John Macdonald is ill and the successor to Sir George Cartier, Sir Hector Langevin, is leading the House for the sick Premier. While it would be unfair to accuse Sir John of foxing, still it is a little unfortunate that sickness should overtake him at a time when his presence in the House was of the utmost consequence, and that the same thing should happen on a similar occasion.

IT is clear that the Government are determined to give no more information to Parliament respecting the causes that led to the rebellion in the Northwest. In the Senate on Friday last Hon. Mr. Alexander moved that an humble address be presented to His Excellency the Governor-General, praying that he will cause to be laid before this House, all reports which were rendered to any member of the Government or to any department of the Government, by Lieut.-Governor Edward Dewdney, respecting alleged grievances or dissatisfaction of the settlers around Fort Carleton or elsewhere, between the 1st of July, 1884, and the 1st of March, 1885. Sir Alexander Campbell said that there was no such correspondence. To this Mr. Alexander replied that it was a deplorable state of affairs if the Lieut.-Governor of the Northwest did not communicate with the Government as to the state of affairs prior to the insurrection.

JUDGE MOUSEAU who died on Tuesday was born in 1838, at Berthier, Quebec, and called to the Bar in 1860. In 1874 he was elected to the Dominion Parliament, and in his first session he managed the defence of Louis Rie when Mr. Bowell moved to have the member elect for Provencher expelled from the House as a fugitive from justice. Mr. Mousseau was consulted by Sir John Macdonald about the construction of the Cabinet in 1878, and made it a condition of support that Ontario should not get a title to the territory in dispute between the Province and the Dominion, unless the territory of Quebec were correspondingly enlarged. Mr. Mousseau became President of the Privy Council in 1880 and Secretary of State in 1881. In 1882 he became Premier of Quebec, and while a suit was pending to unseat and disqualify him in 1884 he was appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court of Quebec which position he held at the time of his death.

SPEAKING of the vote on the Landry motion the Montreal Herald (Independent) says : "The division on the Landry resolution settles once for all the cry that the French members of Parliament intended to combine to overthrow the Government ; and so the vocation of the Toronto Mail is gone ! The division list shows that there voted for the resolution 28 French Conservatives and Liberals, and 25 French Conservatives voted against it. This is a pretty even divide. Only seventeen Conservatives deserted the Government on this vote, and of these a considerable minority will probably support the Government on all other questions. That the Liberals were bound not to attempt "to mount to power over the scaffold at Regina" is also clearly established by the division list. Twenty-four English speaking Liberals voted with the Government and against the resolution."

THE progress of that portion of Burmah which has been under British control is regarded as justifying the belief that similar progress is in store for the newly acquired territory. The following figures in the case of British Burmah are put forward to show the advancement which has been made :

Population	2,747,000	3,737,000
Revenue	1,555,000	2,702,000
Imports	1,859,000	3,779,000
Exports	3,480,000	7,089,000

The year 1884 showed a still further increase, the population being then 4,334,000, while the revenue had risen to £3,127,192, and it is contended that the growth in wealth, general prosperity, and population which has characterized Lower Burmah since its annexation will also, in the course of time, be equally felt in Upper Burmah, now that it is part of a united Burmah. The development of the natural resources of the country only requires British capital and enterprise to be brought to bear upon it, by the introduction of machinery and improved implements, to be an assured fact.

That Colonial Exhibit.

To the Editor of the MERCURY.

SIR,—My attention has been called to a letter from Ald. Read, which appeared in your issue of Tuesday, wherein he states that the work on the photographs taken by me for the Colonial Exhibition is of "poor quality." This judgment, coming as it does from a would-be competitor, who dabbles somewhat in photography, cannot, however, be considered altogether unprejudiced. If photographers of repute, who are not rivals, would say that the work was not well done, considering the season and other adverse circumstances, the statement would carry more weight. If the Committee had thought fit to go back to the method of a hundred years ago and given Mr. Read an order for some crayon pictures, I would have been only too glad, as the money I received for the work does not begin to compensate me for the outlay and trouble.

Yours truly,
F. DOBEREINER,

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—I have no doubt but Ald. Hewer was surprised by my letter on Tuesday last. Only to think anything he does should be taken exception to in any public way. The bare thought must be terrible ! at least to him ! In one thing I agree with him, that I have not time, neither do I intend to take up your space with any more newspaper discussion. I have stated exactly the facts of the case, and can at the proper time and place fully substantiate what he calls a tissue of falsehoods. The reason of my complaint (the bucolic Alderman says) was that the Committee did not take some of my pictures. The true reason was that they did not decide, as Alderman Hewer gave them no opportunity. I now leave the matter to him to prove where the shoe pinches and the bulge comes in. Thanking you, Mr. Editor, for this further indulgence,

I remain, yours, &c,
JOHN READ.

CHAPTER XX.

A NEW INTEREST.

He was just then feeling particularly pleased with his life. An article, written in his lonely untidy little den had created a sensation and brought a notoriety to which he could not be insensible. The weather too—Dr. Holme was peculiarly sensitive to changes in the weather—was all that could be desired—clear and fresh, after a very long hot summer; and he was feeling no older than in his student days. The illness of the unknown young lady who had been unexpectedly cast upon their hands had added a fresh interest to his life. The dwellers in Miller's Gate had not presented many complicated cases of concussion of the brain; and he was glad of a case which would demand all his skill, and call forth all his knowledge and experience. When he left his patient he went home and rubbed his hands as he consulted one learned tome after another. As Helen's illness had progressed, he had become absorbed in it; it was never out of his thoughts. He had never met with such an interesting case. So far, his interest had been purely professional, his patient as a woman was perfectly indifferent to him; it was only when she grew physically stronger, without regaining her mental powers in the same degree, that he began to feel a really personal interest in her, and suddenly realized what an awful thing it would be if she never did recover her memory.

Patiently and unwearyingly he had worked and studied and thought out the case; and perhaps he was, in his own, quiet, undemonstrative way, as glad personally as he was proud professionally when he saw his treatment succeed, as Mrs Longworthy herself.

He had given up visiting her regularly, though he still called every few days, and he happened to come on the day following that on which Ellen fainted away after reading about Percival's second marriage. Mrs. Longworthy had told him of the fainting fit, and for a moment all his fears had been revived, and he was more thankful than he could say when he heard she did not seem any worse after it. He knew, of course, the ignorance in which his friends were concerning their guest, and he was privately just as anxious as they were to hear who she was; but he learned nothing. He called, as before said, at the Rectory, and saw Helen, who looked pale and weary, as it was her lot to look for many a day after this, but received him with her usual quiet indifference.

"I hear you had a fainting fit yesterday," he said, as he shook hands with her. "How was that; can you account for it in any way?"

"It was caused by something I saw in the newspaper about some—some people I know, and it upset me, more, I suppose, than it would have done if I had been quite strong."

She spoke boldly; she did not absolutely dislike Dr. Holm but she had never felt any regard for him; she always had to make an effort to let him into the secret of her symptoms; and she had no intention of taking him into her confidence about herself.

"That may be," he replied, "but in any case fainting fits, such as Mrs Longworthy described to me, can do you no good, and it would be prudent to avoid any danger of them in future. You had better see no more newspapers. I will tell Mrs. Longworthy."

"It is quite enough if you tell me," she replied, quietly.

"Yet, I see you here surrounded with them. Here are half-a-dozen within reach of your hand," nodding towards them as he spoke.

"True, but I have not looked into them, and I have no intention of doing so."

"You are wonderfully reasonable," he said drily.

"Indeed; may I ask if, supposing you had heard something which disturbed you very much, you would return to the source of your information and seek a little more trouble there?"

"No," he answered calmly, "I should probably not, but one of the chief points of difference between men and women is that the former have generally strength enough to keep away from what they know to be harmful to them—for the latter, danger appears to have a peculiar fascination. They love to play with fire; they will burn their fingers again and if they may only meddle with what in reality they dislike."

Helen was feeling too much depressed and troubled to feel all the dislike to this theory which at another time might have been roused in her, and replied,

"I don't agree with you; you speak so generally. Those sweeping assertions have seldom much, if any truth in them."

"Your words are very energetic, even if just now you don't feel strong enough to give them their full force. I am convinced I should be defeated if I entered into an argument with you, besides which an arument would do you no good."

He rose to go as he spoke and smiled as he put his hand. Helen put her into it, and his long, supple fingers closed over her hand in a way which made her smile again; it felt so ridiculously small and slight. But he dropped it again at once, and went out of the house.

"She has character," he thought as he rode along the high, exposed road which connected one section of Miller's Gate with the other. "I believe she really could sit with those papers before her and refrain from reading them if she thought they would do her harm: and I confess I did not think any woman could have done that. She is pretty, too, I suppose; at least her face is agreeable to look at; in spite of her long illness there is nothing angular or awkward about her figure or movements, and her face has a great deal of determination in it. I wonder who she is and where she comes from; she has a little, fragile figure, and, I should imagine, a good deal of spirit. I never felt so small a hand."

Further on he met Mr. Longworthy and stopped to have a chat with him. He mentioned that he had called at the Rectory and seen "the patient," as he called her.

"By the way," he asked, "have you found out her name yet? If she does not speak soon, you will be justified in thinking she wishes to conceal her identity."

"She has spoken—she told Mabel and myself her whole story last night; but I am at liberty to say no more than that her name is Helen Moore."

"Is she leaving you soon, may I ask?"

"She will probably remain with us for the next few months."

They said no more. Dr. Holme knew all he wanted to know—Helen's name. Further than that he was scarcely interested in her; he did not even ask whether she was married or single.

Meanwhile Mrs. Longworthy had rejoined Helen.

"Well," she began, "you have seen the doctor. I cannot tell you how thankful I am that he thinks you no worse after that wretched faint. I hope he cheered you up; he can be very pleasant when he likes."

"He did not this morning then; he was not pleasant. I do not like him."

Mrs. Longworthy looked at her young friend in some astonishment.

THE TORONTO "NEWS" AND THE 65th

Judgment for One Thousand Dollars.

MONTREAL, March 31.—In the Superior Court to-day Judge Torrance gave judgment for $1,000 against E. E. Sheppard in the libel suit brought by Major Dugas of the 65th battalion. The judge was very severe on the course of the News and said if the amount was not paid and the defendant was found in Quebec he could be sent to jail and the other persons who had entered suits could sue for the full amount of $50,000 claimed. Some lawyers hold that Sheppard can be sued in Ontario courts for the amount awarded.

THE OLDEST PRESBYTERIANS.—The latest year book of the oldest Presbyterian Church in the world—that of the Waldensians—shows a state of things which is the reverse of discouraging. There are, it appears, 15,000 communicants, 59 churches, 36 missions, a seminary with three professors and 16 students, a college of 7 professors and 75 students, a female high school, a grammar school, 3 hospitals, 1 orphanage, 1 trades school, 250 primary schools, with 6,500 pupils; 170 schools, with 4,500 pupils, and several religious periodicals. The government as well as the doctrines of the Waldensians is essentially Presbyterian, and all things considered it well deserves the distinction which is here given to it—the oldest Presbyterian Church.

PRESBYTERIAN HOME MISSIONS.—The Home Mission Committee of the Presbyterian Church in Canada met in St. Andrew's Church, Toronto, on Tuesday. The Convener, Rev. Dr. Cochrane, of Brantford, reported the receipt of £150 sterling from the Irish Presbyterian Church, and £200 sterling from the Free Church of Scotland, for mission work in the Northwest. It was also reported that the divinity students of the United Presbyterian Church of Scotland were collecting contributions on behalf of the mission work in Manitoba, and the sum of from eleven to twelve hundred pounds sterling is expected to be received from them next month. The claims of the several Presbyteries of the Church for services rendered in the mission fields during the past year were considered, and the committee ordered payment of claims to the extent of $14,000. Rev. J. D. Macdonnell, Convener of the Augmentation Sub-Committee, reported that an estimate had been made indicating that that fund would show a probable deficit of $8,000 at the close of the year. The committee agreed to pay stipends in full up to the minimum of $850 and manse, and for this purpose proposed to draw upon the reserve fund to the extent necessary. The Home Mission Fund, it is expected, will have a considerable surplus. Grants exceeding thirty thousand dollars were made to augmented congregations in Quebec, Manitoba, the North-West Territories, and British Columbia.

Fergus Correspondence.

DEBATES—The religious discussions which had been going on here for some time between orthodoxy and Plymouthism terminated on Tuesday night last in a somewhat free-wordy fight both on the platform and amongst the audience. One stick was swung around with more force than politeness but tongues wagged apparently loose at both ends, much less religiously than earnestly. The result of this Tuesday night was that the Brethren held the Drill Shed fort and reviewed the whole work without opposition there whilst Mr. Wilkinson and his friends kept it up for two nights in St. Andrew's Church where good meetings were held and a great many attending, nearly all being of the opinion that these were the best nights of the series. We are of the same opinion as at first that these discussions would do little or no good, and many think the same.

ORDINATIONS.—Rev. Mr. Rose, of Elora, preached in Mr. Mullen's church on Sunday evening. The sermon, as usual with Mr. Rose, was a good one and appreciated. Rev. J. K. Smith, of Galt, conducted the morning service in Melville. The congregation was a very large one as it was known beforehand who would preach. The sermon was pronounced to be a splendid effort, powerful, convincing and appealing, and delivered in a finished, dignified manner. In the evening Dr. Wardrope, of Guelph, filled the pulpit. He increased the favor in which he is always held in Fergus.

Rev. Mr Ball, formerly of Guelph, and still Chaplain of the 30th Wellington Battalion, will officiate in the pulpit of Melville Church on Sunday next. The military are anxious to have a church parade in honour of their chaplain, and we hope they may succeed.

LECTURE—On Monday and Tuesday nights Rev Mr Ball will deliver his now celebrated address on the Northwest rebellion. Monday night the subject is: "The men of the war and how they fought." Tuesday: "The cause, course and results of the war." It will be remembered that the lecturer was along with the London Fusiliers during the war and was an eye witness of much that he describes in the talented, witty, loyal, enthusiastic and brilliant manner which has made these lectures so celebrated throughout the Province. Everywhere that Mr Ball has appeared he has had crowded houses, and in his own old county where he is known to be an entertaining and intellectual speaker, we can predict a splendid welcome. Colonel Clarke is to occupy the chair, and the officers and men belonging to the volunteer force are all invited to attend in uniform. The battalion band will be present also, so that it may safely be put down as a decidedly military evening, and will present more or less a warlike appearance in keeping with the speaker's subject.

CONCERT.—The lacrosse entertainment on Friday night promises to be a great treat—splendid sentimental music, good local singers and a laughable farce at the close. The boys are sure of a good house, and people must secure tickets at R. H. Perry's early to ensure seats.

HIGH SCHOOL.—The "Ancient Mariner" will be presented and recitations and readings given in connection therewith, on Thursday evening, in the Drill Shed, by our High School. It will be an intellectual evening. It is unfortunate that so many pleasant and profitable evenings come so close together. We think all deserve a large patronage from our village and vicinity.

COURT.—The Revising Barrister for Centre Wellington, Judge Chadwick, has been busy holding the preliminary Court of Revision for the Riding yesterday and to-day. This first court is only held here. Mr Jacobs, of Elora, is attending to the Conservative and Messrs Monro, Donaldson and Gordon, are watching the Reform interests. Nearly all names are being put on now. Some will be taken off at the final revision. The court was a farce to the public, merely a little private conversation between counsel and judge. The whole Franchise Act and Courts of Revision appear to be a most unrighteous farce to keep John A. in power at a terrible and wholly unnecessary expense.

DEPUTATION—Four of our Councillors visited Mount Forest on Friday last to see the chemical fire engine test. As yet their views have not been made public. They will likely be at the meeting of Council on Monday night next. There will no doubt be differences of opinion.

OBITUARY.—Mr. Rose, of Elora, preached in Mr. Mullen's church on Sunday evening. The sermon, as usual with Mr. Rose, was a good one and appreciated. Rev. J. K. Cuts Her Husband's Throat.

LONDON, April 1.—Nathan Griffith is a respectable and well-to-do farmer in the township of Westminster. His wife is greatly addicted to religion, and, according to her own statement, was inspired to "kill her husband and go preaching." About 4 o'clock this morning she rose from her bed, secured her husband's razor, and twice drew the weapon across his throat. She then coolly got back into bed. Mr. Griffith awoke to find the blood gushing from the wounds. He wrapped a towel around his neck, and although terribly weak from loss of blood, succeeded in arousing a neighbor. One of the gashes was three inches long on the left side, and laid the arteries bare. The other narrowly escaped the windpipe.

DEATH OF COL. HALL.—Col. Hall died at his late residence in this city last night about 7 o'clock, in his 80th year. The deceased was an old resident of Canada, having come to this country some years before the rebellion of '37, in the quelling of which he took an active part. He lived for many years previous to his removal to Guelph at Nanticoke, on the Lake Erie shore. About the year 1863 he came to Guelph and has been a resident here ever since. He was a thorough type of the old English gentleman, and his integrity and genial manner made him universally respected. He leaves a widow, three sons and four daughters to mourn his loss.

SCOTT ACT INSPECTOR FOR HALTON.—The Acton Free Press says:—We are much pleased that the Ontario Government have taken upon themselves to appoint an Inspector to enforce the Scott Act in this County, and equally pleased to notice that Mr. W. D. Brothers, of the Milton Reformer, has been appointed to that office. Mr. Brothers is a man of honesty and integrity; his principles are established and well known to the community, and we believe he will endeavor to the utmost of his power and ability to enforce the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act, now in force in Halton. All the people of this county who desire to see the laws of the land upheld and respected, are in duty bound to render the Inspector all reasonable assistance in his efforts to maintain a strict observance of the law referred to.

DEATH OF AN ERIN MAN.—The Erin Advocate says:—On Monday last the earthly remains of Mr. John McLaren, one of the most highly respected farmers in this section, who died after an illness of only a few days duration, were consigned to their last resting place in the White Church cemetery, in Caledon. Though the weather was most disagreeable, a very large concourse attended the funeral. Deceased was a member of the Masonic fraternity, and the members of Erin lodge, and visiting brethren from Elora, Brampton, and elsewhere, were present, and committed the body of their deceased brother to the grave with the impressive and beautiful ceremonies of the Order. A sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. McFaul, which was consoling and touching. Mr. McLaren leaves a family of six children to mourn his loss.

ON A VISIT.—Mr. Duncan McArthur, formerly of Erin, who for the past 2 years has been farming in Plymouth County, Iowa, near the city of Le Mars, is back on a visit to his old friends. He says that where he is located it is a good farming country, but nothing like what it has been represented in that respect through the newspapers out there. The land is rolling prairie, with small belts of timber along the river banks. The winter is shorter than in Ontario, but quite as cold while it lasts. The main crops are corn, spring wheat, oats and barley. It is a great cattle and hog feeding country. Cholera swept off whole droves of hogs. Times are just as hard over in Iowa as they are in Ontario. Mr. McArthur's many friends here are glad to see him again in such active good health.

THERE is every probability of Mr. John White leaving Fergus to become one of the inhabitants of the town of Shelburne, having purchased the flour and feed business of Mr. W. C. Richardson of that place.

MR. JOHN HANLAN, while assisting in getting out timber at Mr. Boyd's, to replace the log barn with a large frame structure, cut his foot clean through over an inch in length. The axe entered between the first and second toes.

TEMPERANCE.—A meeting of the G. W. C. T. U. was held on Tuesday evening. In addition to the officers chosen at the preceding meeting, the following were elected:—Treasurer, Miss Dillon; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Pike; Vice-Presidents, Misses Gorrie, Wardrope, Harrison, Penfold, Brownlow, and Davidson. The meeting was well attended and several new names were added to the list of those who had already joined.

Y. P. A. DUBLIN STREET CHURCH.—A meeting of the above association was held in the lecture room of the church last night at which there was a fair attendance present, Mr. W. N. Husband, President, in the chair. After the business of the evening was transacted, No. 1 division went through their programme which consisted of solos by Misses Oldham and Myers, duet by Miss Clark and Mr. Payne, instrumental solo by Miss Myers, and readings by Mr. Payne and Miss Myrta Husband. All the selections were well received and a happy time generally was spent.

A FEW days ago Alex. Boyd, of Stirton, while assisting in taking down a log barn, met with a serious accident. A log unexpectedly fell striking the end of a pole which lay across some other logs in such a manner that on being struck by the falling log the other end was immediately thrown up with terrible force, and Mr. Boyd, who was standing near, received a severe blow on the side of his head and face. For some time he lay insensible, but after recovering consciousness was driven to Drayton where his wounds were dressed, and he will in a short time be about as usual.

INVITATION EXTENDED.—The Mitchell Advocate says:—The Rev. Arthur Kent Griffin, Incumbent of Attwood, recently received an invitation from the Wardens of St. Thomas' Church, in the city of St. Catharines, with a view to the vacant Rectorship of the parish. The church is a large, handsome stone structure, recently erected at a cost of over $20,000. The congregation is large and growing, and the parish destined to be one of the most active and important in the diocese of Niagara. We are glad to learn, however, that the reverend gentleman, who has just declined a similar call to Mt. Forest, has declined this also, feeling that it would not be right to go, even with a view to a definite settlement, when the claims of his present mission are so urgent upon him. He hopes to remain at his post, a willing worker among a willing people, who, although scattered, and by no means numerous, are under his faithful labors, rapidly developing into a strong and prosperous congregation. Such evidences of self-sacrifice on his part and zeal on the part of his people cannot but ensure success." Mr. Griffin's friends in this city will be pleased to hear of his success. Although it is only one year since he was ordained he has had two very important invitations. Mr. Griffin is a brother of Mrs. W. G. Smith, of this city.

GUELPH RIFLE ASSOCIATION.—The annual meeting of the above association was held last night when the report of last year was brought in and officers and committee were appointed for the ensuing year. The Secretary's report shows a satisfactory balance on hand, after payment of all liabilities, which is particularly satisfactory owing to the fact that last year a large amount was spent in the thorough repair of targets and butts. The following officers were elected for 1886:—George Sleeman, president, B. R. McConkey, vice-president, John Crowe, secretary; committee, John Goldie, John Davidson, John Ogg, C. Armstrong, L. Wideman, W. S. Smith, John Thompson and W. Macdonald. It was decided that the Martini Henry rifle might be used at any practice, but the score made by the Martini not to count against the Snider, and separate prizes to be offered for each and in addition to the annual medal for Snider practice, also that paid railway fare to Ottawa and return be given to the member having the three highest aggregate scores with Martini, and paid railway fare to Toronto and return to the member having the highest aggregate scores with Snider rifle. It was also decided that a match be held of the 24th of May, when it is hoped there will be a good attendance, as the importance of rifle shooting is becoming more manifest every year.

PRESBYTERIANISM.—Dr. Torrance and Mr. Thomas McCrae have arrived home from Toronto from attending the meetings of the Home Mission of the Presbyterian Church. At the final meeting of the Committee it was agreed that the Committee's liability for mission work in the Synod of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories should not exceed $21,000 for the year, beginning 1st April, 1886. It was further agreed to make the grants asked for the several fields in the respective Presbyteries in that Synod, the grants being so much per Sabbath, the amount to be drawn by the Winnipeg Presbytery, and not to exceed $2,500 per annum. Grants were made as follows:—Rock Lake, $2350; Brandon, $5,750; Regina, $8,400; the grant for travelling or incidental expenses not to exceed $2,000 per year; the Presbyteries in the Northwest Synod to forward to this committee on forms provided for the purpose, reports of services rendered, and money paid out for such services in the several fields within their bounds. The salaries of the ordinary missionaries to be appointed to Fort McLeod and Lethbridge were fixed at $1,200 each, and that of the missionary at High River at $1,000. Mr. D. Campbell, of Guelph, was appointed to the Northwest mission fields.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN MARYBORO'.—Probably the most disastrous fire that has ever occurred in the township of Maryborough took place on Thursday morning, 18th ult., on the farm of Mr. John Graham, 9th con., at Huston. There was a dance and spree at Mr. Graham's residence on St. Patrick's night, at which a large number of young people were congregated. The barn was filled with rigs—the exact number not being known, but there must have been nearly a dozen at least. One of the rigs was taken out about one o'clock, the owner leaving for home then. The others remained till a later hour, and lights were taken into the stable frequently during the night. Shortly after two a. m., a lurid glare was noticed emanating from the vicinity of the barn by those assembled at the house, and on rushing out it was found that the barn and stables were in flames. A desperate effort was made to save the animals, but only one horse and a yoke of oxen were got out. All the rest, including, it is supposed, at least eight or ten horses, five milch cows, and several head of young cattle, besides all Mr. Graham's implements, vehicles, and a large quantity of grain and hay, were consumed. Everything in fact about the premises, excepting the one horse and the oxen were burned. Two young men had a very narrow escape from being burned to death in attempting to rescue the animals, having been badly burned about the head and face. The fire is considered to have been the result of carelessness on the part of some of those attending the spree. The amount of loss and insurance, if any, is not known. Mr. Graham was away from home at the time.

Presentation Mr. E. J. O'Brien.

In one of the ante-rooms adjoining the Free Library last night an interesting ceremony took place, being the presentation of an address to Mr. E. J. O'Brien, by the members of his carving class. It being the end of the first quarter, and the class being about to be closed for a time, the members thought this a most fitting opportunity to give to their teacher an expression of their opinion. Before the address was read by Mr. Chas. Howell, Mr. E. K. Harris stated the object of the gathering. At the conclusion of the address Mr. O'Brien thanked them in a short address for their testimonial, gave them considerable credit for the progress they had made, remarking that all had done much better than he had expected. The class is now closed, whether permanently or only for a time will be made known again. Following is a copy of the address:

To E. J. O'Brien, Esq:

DEAR SIR,—We, the undersigned members of the Guelph Freehand Drawing and Carving Class, which, during the past term, has been under your direct control and superintendence, beg to tender you our thanks, and to place on record the very high appreciation we have of your ability and skill, both as a first class mechanic and also as a teacher, the best proof of which has been the rapid advancement we have made in our studies, and the strong feeling of interest created for the same, which we feel to be mainly due to your untiring effort and cheerfully imparted instruction, and we trust that when the season returns for the resumption of the studies that we may again be favored by your presence as teacher.

Wishing you every success, we remain, Dear Sir,

Yours respectfully,

H. W. WALDMAN,	MISS A. DORAN,
H. HEATHER,	J. MCQUILLAN,

A CHIMNEY on fire on a Glasgow street residence, at noon to-day, raised considerable consternation among the inmates. No damage was done. The effect was rather beneficial, as the chimney was effectually cleaned out, thus cheating the sweeps out of a job.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The band concert and polo match last night was very well attended. Fully half of the skaters were ladies. The polo match again resulted in a draw. When time was called neither club had taken a goal, and during the play the game was hot and exciting, each player putting forth his utmost strength and ability, but without gaining the slightest advantage. To-morrow night the City Band will be present, when there will be a wheelbarrow race between some of the fastest skaters. Ladies free.

A HEN HUNT.—Between 12 and 1 o'clock to-day the dullness of Wyndham street was enlivened by an escape of a number of hens from a coop among a load of household furniture, which was being driven along the street. As the birds made their escape a number of small boys and two dogs gave chase. For some time the birds had the best of the race till they were cornered up in the door of Mr. Petrie's drug store, Lower Wyndham street. The dogs came up immediately, and for a time the air was full of feathers. The traveller at a risk of being bitten by the dogs managed to rescue his fowls, and transferred them to the coop and went on his way rejoicing.

SHIPMENT FOR THE NORTHWEST.—This afternoon Mr. L. Alexander, Lethbridge, Northwest Territory, who has been in this section for some time purchasing cattle had them shipped for that place. He takes with him over 270 poultry of different kinds, 69 hogs, 41 cows, 13 heifers and a Durham bull. The cattle are pretty much for dairy purposes, and the whole lot were purchased by Mr. Jas. Taylor within a week and delivered at the Commercial Hotel this morning. Mr. Taylor also purchased five milch cows for Mr. Harry Higinbotham, who is to go on to a ranch near Fort McLeod with his brother Edward. Mr. Alexander and Mr. Higinbotham also take with them quite a quantity of machinery.

DEATH OF MR. CHAS. HEATH.—Many in Guelph will learn with regret of the death of Mr. Chas. Heath, which took place at his home in Puslinch this morning, at the age of 54 years. About Christmas he was taken sick and a general breaking up of the system ensued. He was removed to Guelph to the residence of his sister, Mrs. Alex. Hadden, so as to be more convenient to medical attendance. A few weeks ago he recovered sufficiently to be taken home, but afterwards took a relapse from which he never rallied. The deceased was widely known, his genial, honest and open hearted disposition making him a favorite with all with whom he came in contact. He was the fourth son of the late Edmund Field Heath, and when a young lad came to this country from England about the year 1832-3. In the death of Mr. Heath another of the old settlers of this neighborhood is removed.

Police Court.

W. E. Brown, of Toronto, was up this morning charged with peddling goods within the city limits without a license, contrary to the by-laws of the city against unlicensed vendors. Evidence showed that the defendant came into Guelph and went to a hotel and inquired if any license was required in Wellington to sell jewellery and was informed there was not. He then went to Sprague's livery stable and offered to sell a watch to Mr. Sprague. Afterwards several articles of jewellery was found on the person of defendant.

Defendant swore that the went to the livery stable with no intention of selling the watch and the evidence did not prove he had ever offered anything for sale at any other place in the city, while his evidence was to the effect that he intended selling in the county and not in the city. Mr. Field, for the defence, urged strenuously that the by-law or the late act did not contemplate such a sale as this, that a single sale under the circumstances set out in the evidence, merely in passing through, could not be construed as carrying goods for sale from place to place. The argument between counsel for defence and his worship lasted some little time, Mr. Saunders finally agreeing to look into the cases and give his decision to-morrow. The result is watched with some degree of interest in the city, as the act is so very stringent that its provisions may be easily used for something sterner than justice.

Thos. Forsyth, for vagrancy, got a lecture. Geo. Prinzle, a young lad, for being disorderly, was fined $2 and costs. A man by the name of Welso was fined $1 and costs for the same offence. Nancy Dolan was sent up for six months on a charge of vagrancy.

DOMINION FRANCHISE ACT.—As was mentioned Tuesday, Judge Drew, Revising officer adjourned his court until Saturday for the purpose of enabling the Revising Officer's Clerk to put the list into permanent shape, and the Judge intimated that he would be prepared then to make any further amendments or corrections necessary. At the final courts to be held some weeks hence, of which due notice will be given, there will be a full opportunity given to both sides to take off any names which have no right to be on, and to add any names which are even now omitted but which now have a right to be on. Let our friends therefore in the various localities carefully scrutinize the names added by the Conservatives, and send in to Mr. Hugh McMillan, Secretary of the Reform Association, a memorandum of any objections. Our friends will also make careful enquiry to see whether there are not still other Reform names which ought to be added, and if there are send in particulars at once.

Cuts Her Husband's Throat.

LONDON, April 1.—Nathan Griffith is a respectable and well-to-do farmer in the township of Westminster. His wife is greatly addicted to religion, and, according to her own statement, was inspired to "kill her husband and go preaching." About 4 o'clock this morning she rose from her bed, secured her husband's razor, and twice drew the weapon across his throat. She then coolly got back into bed. Mr. Griffith awoke to find the blood gushing from the wounds. He wrapped a towel around his neck, and although terribly weak from loss of blood, succeeded in arousing a neighbor. One of the gashes was three inches long on the left side, and laid the arteries bare. The other narrowly escaped the windpipe.

He received injuries by falling from a balcony two years ago, which rendered him deaf and mentally unsound. He will be remembered in Guelph, having played for some time with the Maple Leafs.

DEATH OF COL. HALL.—Col. Hall died at his late residence in this city last night about 7 o'clock, in his 80th year. The deceased was an old resident of Canada, having come to this country some years before the rebellion of '37, in the quelling of which he took an active part. He lived for many years previous to his removal to Guelph at Nanticoke, on the Lake Erie shore. About the year 1863 he came to Guelph and has been a resident here ever since. He was a thorough type of the old English gentleman, and his integrity and genial manner made him universally respected. He leaves a widow, three sons and four daughters to mourn his loss.

SCOTT ACT INSPECTOR FOR HALTON.—The Acton Free Press says:—We are much pleased that the Ontario Government have taken upon themselves to appoint an Inspector to enforce the Scott Act in this County, and equally pleased to notice that Mr. W. D. Brothers, of the Milton Reformer, has been appointed to that office. Mr. Brothers is a man of honesty and integrity; his principles are established and well known to the community, and we believe he will endeavor to the utmost of his power and ability to enforce the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act, now in force in Halton. All the people of this county who desire to see the laws of the land upheld and respected, are in duty bound to render the Inspector all reasonable assistance in his efforts to maintain a strict observance of the law referred to.

DEATH OF AN ERIN MAN.—The Erin Advocate says:—On Monday last the earthly remains of Mr. John McLaren, one of the most highly respected farmers in this section, who died after an illness of only a few days duration, were consigned to their last resting place in the White Church cemetery, in Caledon. Though the weather was most disagreeable, a very large concourse attended the funeral. Deceased was a member of the Masonic fraternity, and the members of Erin lodge, and visiting brethren from Elora, Brampton, and elsewhere, were present, and committed the body of their deceased brother to the grave with the impressive and beautiful ceremonies of the Order. A sermon was preached by the Rev. Mr. McFaul, which was consoling and touching. Mr. McLaren leaves a family of six children to mourn his loss.

ON A VISIT.—Mr. Duncan McArthur, formerly of Erin, who for the past 2 years has been farming in Plymouth County, Iowa, near the city of Le Mars, is back on a visit to his old friends. He says that where he is located it is a good farming country, but nothing like what it has been represented in that respect through the newspapers out there. The land is rolling prairie, with small belts of timber along the river banks. The winter is shorter than in Ontario, but quite as cold while it lasts. The main crops are corn, spring wheat, oats and barley. It is a great cattle and hog feeding country. Cholera swept off whole droves of hogs. Times are just as hard over in Iowa as they are in Ontario. Mr. McArthur's many friends here are glad to see him again in such active good health.

ELORA Express:—"MRS. Dr. Savage, of this village, returned last week from Guelph, where she spent a most agreeable time for a few weeks." The lady mentioned is daughter-in-law to the Rev. W. Savage.

THERE is every probability of Mr. John White leaving Fergus to become one of the inhabitants of the town of Shelburne, having purchased the flour and feed business of Mr. W. C. Richardson of that place.

MR. JOHN HANLAN, while assisting in getting out timber at Mr. Boyd's, to replace the log barn with a large frame structure, cut his foot clean through over an inch in length. The axe entered between the first and second toes.

TEMPERANCE.—A meeting of the G. W. C. T. U. was held on Tuesday evening. In addition to the officers chosen at the preceding meeting, the following were elected:—Treasurer, Miss Dillon; Corresponding Secretary, Miss Pike; Vice-Presidents, Misses Gorrie, Wardrope, Harrison, Penfold, Brownlow, and Davidson. The meeting was well attended and several new names were added to the list of those who had already joined.

Y. P. A. DUBLIN STREET CHURCH.—A meeting of the above association was held in the lecture room of the church last night at which there was a fair attendance present, Mr. W. N. Husband, President, in the chair. After the business of the evening was transacted, No. 1 division went through their programme which consisted of solos by Misses Oldham and Myers, duet by Miss Clark and Mr. Payne, instrumental solo by Miss Myers, and readings by Mr. Payne and Miss Myrta Husband. All the selections were well received and a happy time generally was spent.

A FEW days ago Alex. Boyd, of Stirton, while assisting in taking down a log barn, met with a serious accident. A log unexpectedly fell striking the end of a pole which lay across some other logs in such a manner that on being struck by the falling log the other end was immediately thrown up with terrible force, and Mr. Boyd, who was standing near, received a severe blow on the side of his head and face. For some time he lay insensible, but after recovering consciousness was driven to Drayton where his wounds were dressed, and he will in a short time be about as usual.

INVITATION EXTENDED.—The Mitchell Advocate says:—The Rev. Arthur Kent Griffin, Incumbent of Attwood, recently received an invitation from the Wardens of St. Thomas' Church, in the city of St. Catharines, with a view to the vacant Rectorship of the parish. The church is a large, handsome stone structure, recently erected at a cost of over $20,000. The congregation is large and growing, and the parish destined to be one of the most active and important in the diocese of Niagara. We are glad to learn, however, that the reverend gentleman, who has just declined a similar call to Mt. Forest, has declined this also, feeling that it would not be right to go, even with a view to a definite settlement, when the claims of his present mission are so urgent upon him. He hopes to remain at his post, a willing worker among a willing people, who, although scattered, and by no means numerous, are under his faithful labors, rapidly developing into a strong and prosperous congregation. Such evidences of self-sacrifice on his part and zeal on the part of his people cannot but ensure success." Mr. Griffin's friends in this city will be pleased to hear of his success. Although it is only one year since he was ordained he has had two very important invitations. Mr. Griffin is a brother of Mrs. W. G. Smith, of this city.

GUELPH RIFLE ASSOCIATION.—The annual meeting of the above association was held last night when the report of last year was brought in and officers and committee were appointed for the ensuing year. The Secretary's report shows a satisfactory balance on hand, after payment of all liabilities, which is particularly satisfactory owing to the fact that last year a large amount was spent in the thorough repair of targets and butts. The following officers were elected for 1886:—George Sleeman, president, B. R. McConkey, vice-president, John Crowe, secretary; committee, John Goldie, John Davidson, John Ogg, C. Armstrong, L. Wideman, W. S. Smith, John Thompson and W. Macdonald. It was decided that the Martini Henry rifle might be used at any practice, but the score made by the Martini not to count against the Snider, and separate prizes to be offered for each and in addition to the annual medal for Snider practice, also that paid railway fare to Ottawa and return be given to the member having the three highest aggregate scores with Martini, and paid railway fare to Toronto and return to the member having the highest aggregate scores with Snider rifle. It was also decided that a match be held of the 24th of May, when it is hoped there will be a good attendance, as the importance of rifle shooting is becoming more manifest every year.

PRESBYTERIANISM.—Dr. Torrance and Mr. Thomas McCrae have arrived home from Toronto from attending the meetings of the Home Mission of the Presbyterian Church. At the final meeting of the Committee it was agreed that the Committee's liability for mission work in the Synod of Manitoba and the Northwest Territories should not exceed $21,000 for the year, beginning 1st April, 1886. It was further agreed to make the grants asked for the several fields in the respective Presbyteries in that Synod, the grants being so much per Sabbath, the amount to be drawn by the Winnipeg Presbytery, and not to exceed $2,500 per annum. Grants were made as follows:—Rock Lake, $2350; Brandon, $5,750; Regina, $8,400; the grant for travelling or incidental expenses not to exceed $2,000 per year; the Presbyteries in the Northwest Synod to forward to this committee on forms provided for the purpose, reports of services rendered, and money paid out for such services in the several fields within their bounds. The salaries of the ordinary missionaries to be appointed to Fort McLeod and Lethbridge were fixed at $1,200 each, and that of the missionary at High River at $1,000. Mr. D. Campbell, of Guelph, was appointed to the Northwest mission fields.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE IN MARYBORO'.—Probably the most disastrous fire that has ever occurred in the township of Maryborough took place on Thursday morning, 18th ult., on the farm of Mr. John Graham, 9th con., at Huston. There was a dance and spree at Mr. Graham's residence on St. Patrick's night, at which a large number of young people were congregated. The barn was filled with rigs—the exact number not being known, but there must have been nearly a dozen at least. One of the rigs was taken out about one o'clock, the owner leaving for home then. The others remained till a later hour, and lights were taken into the stable frequently during the night. Shortly after two a. m., a lurid glare was noticed emanating from the vicinity of the barn by those assembled at the house, and on rushing out it was found that the barn and stables were in flames. A desperate effort was made to save the animals, but only one horse and a yoke of oxen were got out. All the rest, including, it is supposed, at least eight or ten horses, five milch cows, and several head of young cattle, besides all Mr. Graham's implements, vehicles, and a large quantity of grain and hay, were consumed. Everything in fact about the premises, excepting the one horse and the oxen were burned. Two young men had a very narrow escape from being burned to death in attempting to rescue the animals, having been badly burned about the head and face. The fire is considered to have been the result of carelessness on the part of some of those attending the spree. The amount of loss and insurance, if any, is not known. Mr. Graham was away from home at the time.

Presentation Mr. E. J. O'Brien.

In one of the ante-rooms adjoining the Free Library last night an interesting ceremony took place, being the presentation of an address to Mr. E. J. O'Brien, by the members of his carving class. It being the end of the first quarter, and the class being about to be closed for a time, the members thought this a most fitting opportunity to give to their teacher an expression of their opinion. Before the address was read by Mr. Chas. Howell, Mr. E. K. Harris stated the object of the gathering. At the conclusion of the address Mr. O'Brien thanked them in a short address for their testimonial, gave them considerable credit for the progress they had made, remarking that all had done much better than he had expected. The class is now closed, whether permanently or only for a time will be made known again. Following is a copy of the address:

To E. J. O'Brien, Esq:

DEAR SIR,—We, the undersigned members of the Guelph Freehand Drawing and Carving Class, which, during the past term, has been under your direct control and superintendence, beg to tender you our thanks, and to place on record the very high appreciation we have of your ability and skill, both as a first class mechanic and also as a teacher, the best proof of which has been the rapid advancement we have made in our studies, and the strong feeling of interest created for the same, which we feel to be mainly due to your untiring effort and cheerfully imparted instruction, and we trust that when the season returns for the resumption of the studies that we may again be favored by your presence as teacher.

Wishing you every success, we remain, Dear Sir,

Yours respectfully,

H. W. WALDMAN,	MISS A. DORAN,
H. HEATHER,	J. MCQUILLAN,
GEO. FENWICK,	E. K. HARRIS,
C. HOWELL,	W. MARTIN,

DR. TORRANCE will attend the closing of Knox College on Monday.

MR. JOHN HEWER has sold a pure bred Berkshire boar to Mr. N. Higinbotham for shipment to the Northwest.

IT is stated that the proprietor of the Wellington Hotel will give up business on the first of May, and has notified his employees to that effect.

MR. A. W. MAITLAND, Mayor of Negaune, brother of Prof. Maitland, of Guelph, was in the city to-day. He is extensively connected with coal mining interests on the shore of Lake Superior.

A CHIMNEY on fire on a Glasgow street residence, at noon to-day, raised considerable consternation among the inmates. No damage was done. The effect was rather beneficial, as the chimney was effectually cleaned out, thus cheating the sweeps out of a job.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The band concert and polo match last night was very well attended. Fully half of the skaters were ladies. The polo match again resulted in a draw. When time was called neither club had taken a goal, and during the play the game was hot and exciting, each player putting forth his utmost strength and ability, but without gaining the slightest advantage. To-morrow night the City Band will be present, when there will be a wheelbarrow race between some of the fastest skaters. Ladies free.

A HEN HUNT.—Between 12 and 1 o'clock to-day the dullness of Wyndham street was enlivened by an escape of a number of hens from a coop among a load of household furniture, which was being driven along the street. As the birds made their escape a number of small boys and two dogs gave chase. For some time the birds had the best of the race till they were cornered up in the door of Mr. Petrie's drug store, Lower Wyndham street. The dogs came up immediately, and for a time the air was full of feathers. The traveller at a risk of being bitten by the dogs managed to rescue his fowls, and transferred them to the coop and went on his way rejoicing.

SHIPMENT FOR THE NORTHWEST.—This afternoon Mr. L. Alexander, Lethbridge, Northwest Territory, who has been in this section for some time purchasing cattle had them shipped for that place. He takes with him over 270 poultry of different kinds, 69 hogs, 41 cows, 13 heifers and a Durham bull. The cattle are pretty much for dairy purposes, and the whole lot were purchased by Mr. Jas. Taylor within a week and delivered at the Commercial Hotel this morning. Mr. Taylor also purchased five milch cows for Mr. Harry Higinbotham, who is to go on to a ranch near Fort McLeod with his brother Edward. Mr. Alexander and Mr. Higinbotham also take with them quite a quantity of machinery.

DEATH OF MR. CHAS. HEATH.—Many in Guelph will learn with regret of the death of Mr. Chas. Heath, which took place at his home in Puslinch this morning, at the age of 54 years. About Christmas he was taken sick and a general breaking up of the system ensued. He was removed to Guelph to the residence of his sister, Mrs. Alex. Hadden, so as to be more convenient to medical attendance. A few weeks ago he recovered sufficiently to be taken home, but afterwards took a relapse from which he never rallied. The deceased was widely known, his genial, honest and open hearted disposition making him a favorite with all with whom he came in contact. He was the fourth son of the late Edmund Field Heath, and when a young lad came to this country from England about the year 1832-3. In the death of Mr. Heath another of the old settlers of this neighborhood is removed.

Police Court.

W. E. Brown, of Toronto, was up this morning charged with peddling goods within the city limits without a license, contrary to the by-laws of the city against unlicensed vendors. Evidence showed that the defendant came into Guelph and went to a hotel and inquired if any license was required in Wellington to sell jewellery and was informed there was not. He then went to Spragge's livery stable and offered to sell a watch to Mr. Spragge. Afterwards several articles of jewellery was found on the person of defendant.

Defendant swore that the went to the livery stable with no intention of selling the watch and the evidence did not prove he had ever offered anything for sale at any other place in the city, while his evidence was to the effect that he intended selling in the county and not in the city. Mr. Field, for the defence, urged strenuously that the by-law or the late act did not contemplate such a sale as this, and that a single sale under the circumstances set out in the evidence, merely in passing through, could not be construed as carrying goods for sale from place to place. The argument between counsel for defence and his worship lasted some little time, Mr. Saunders finally agreeing to look into the cases and give his decision to-morrow. The result is watched with some degree of interest in the city, as the act is so very stringent that its provisions may be easily used for something sterner than justice.

Thos. Forsyth, for vagrancy, got a lecture. Geo. Principle, a young lad, for being disorderly, was fined $2 and costs. A man by the name of Welso was fined $1 and costs for the same offence. Nancy Dolan was sent up for six months on a charge of vagrancy.

DOMINION FRANCHISE ACT.—As was mentioned Tuesday, Judge Drew Revising officer adjourned his court until Saturday for the purpose of enabling the Revising Officer's Clerk to put the list into permanent shape, and the Judge intimated that he would be prepared then to make any further amendments or corrections necessary. At the final courts to be held some weeks hence, of which due notice will be given, there will be a full opportunity given to both sides to take off any names which have no right to be on, and to add any names which are even now omitted but which now have a right to be on. Let our friends therefore in the various localities carefully scrutinize the names added by the Conservatives, and send in to Mr. Hugh McMillan, Secretary of the Reform Association, a memorandum of any objections. Our friends will also make careful enquiry to see whether there are not still other Reform names which ought to be added, and if there are send in particulars at once.

The Bonus By-law.

It is very necessary that all parties favorable to the carrying of the by-law to grant a bonus to Burr Bros., should cast their votes on Tuesday. Indifference in regard to the matter may prove fatal to the by-law. An industry which will repay the city an hundred-fold on its outlay should not be overlooked, as Guelph, to increase in prosperity, must hereafter look to manufacturing industries. Let every freeholder vote on Tuesday, and vote for the by-law.

Centre Wellington.

Judge Chadwick, Revising Officer for Centre Wellington held his preliminary revision of the Dominion voters' lists for that Riding in Fergus on Monday and Tuesday, the 29th and 30th ult. The News-Record says all the municipalities were pretty well gone through with, with the exception of Orangeville, which was left over till an adjourned sitting that is to be held on Monday, the 12th of April. His honor at the preliminary sittings this week accepted such evidence as would satisfy an assessor, and inserted all the names for which application was made, the right of old and new names to remain upon the list being a question that will be gone into at subsequent sittings to be held in the various municipalities for that purpose, the same as in South Wellington.

In Fergus, Elora, Orangeville, and West Garafraxa, the Reformers will hold their own or may gain a little, but in the other municipalities of the Riding a deplorable want of interest in the matter has been displayed by the Liberals. Maryboro', Peel, and Pilkington have not done so much as they might have done, and unless they remedy things before the next court the Conservatives will make a clear gain of 200 votes by the revision. This is not as it should be, and the News-Record talks some plain truth to the Reformers of these towships, in telling them so. Fortunately it is not yet too late to act. Committees should at once be organized and active efforts made to procure the name of every Reformer in the municipalities not on the lists who is entitled to be on. Then these names can be handed in to the Secretary of the Reform Association for the Riding in sufficient time for notice to be given before the next court is held some weeks hence. The staunch Reformers of the townships referred to must bear in mind that Sir John Macdonald intended when he introduced this Franchise act that the battle should be fought in these Revision Courts instead of in the elections, and that unless they fight now they may as well stand at ease when the polling day comes. It will entail considerable work to organize and canvas the townships thoroughly, but it will be work well repaid by election results. Be up then and doing, and let Centre Wellington show some of its old time fire and energy when the Reform cause is at stake.

Discouraging Obstacles.

The obstacles which Mr. Gladstone is forced to encounter in preparing his Irish Home Rule measure are enough to appal a statesman of even more than unusual courage and determination. He has in the first place to face a strong Opposition led by an able man, and including within its ranks many men of great ability. With only the Conservative party ranged against his policy, Mr. Gladstone would find it hard enough to convince the British people of the propriety and wisdom of his concessions to Ireland. But how much greater are the difficulties with which he is beset when he finds his own political friends forsaking him to ally themselves in opposition to his scheme. With leading Radicals such as Chamberlain and Trevelyan dissenting from it and resigning their Cabinet seats in consequence, and with other Ministers reported to be threatening a similar course, people may well open their eyes and wonder at the bravery with which the Grand Old Man sticks to the helm and steers the ship of State past reef and breakers. But he has not anchored yet. How many of the Radical Leaders friends will follow them into Opposition? What influence will they wield against the Administration in the country? How far will the disaffection extend? The latest cable news brings the information that Scotch Liberals are beginning to object to some of the Home Rule proposals, and that Mr Gladstone is modifying his measure to suit their views. He knows that no scheme of Irish Reform can pass which is not acceptable to them as well as to the Parnellites. How will the matter end? It looks more and more like an early appeal to the country and another general election, whatever may be the fate of the measure in the present House.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

Dr. T. G. Comstock, Physician at Good Samaritan Hospital, St. Louis, Mo. says: "For years we have used it in this hospital, in dyspepsia and nervous diseases, and as a drink during the decline and in the convalescence of lingering fevers. It has the unanimous approval of our medical staff."

Selecting Officials.

SIR,—In the debate on Mr Meredith's Bill to place the appointment of registrars in the hands of the County Councils, Mr Mowat complained that "the patronage imposed on the Government was often the cause of serious embarrassment." When a coveted office becomes vacant it is quite natural that those who have made the greatest sacrifices on behalf of their party shall expect to be chosen to fill the vacancy. But as in the case of one office only a single individual can be selected, there being frequently a number of claimants whose respective merits are difficult to estimate equitably, it is here where a portion of the "embarrassment" comes in. It would not be an easy matter even in the court of heaven to properly decide upon the merits of those whose services are about equally balanced. Party slavery and success, not political or moral principal, combined with the requisite capacity, usually form the groundwork of the choice. If the emoluments derived from the duties appertaining to many of our public offices were reduced there would be considerably less scrambling among the faithful. Under present circumstances this is not to be seriously thought of.

There is a remedy, however, for much of the "embarrassment" of which the Premier complains. It is neither new nor original, but it is as old as, perhaps older than, the Grecian Democracies. It would not be convenient to carry it out in every case, though free from objection in the selection of most of our officials. In Ancient Greece and subsequently in the Italian Republics of the middle ages, particularly Florence, it very generally prevailed. It should be remembered that the principle dominating those diminutive republics was the entire subordination of the individual to the State. The former existed for the latter and the latter alone. In recent times this principle is being reversed, though there still remains an unlimited faith in State power and efficiency. The virtues attached to Protective Tariffs, Scott Acts, and much other crude legislation, are an evidence of this.

Not only magistrates, but even generals and orators were determined by "lot" throughout all the Grecian Republics. This would not be advisable here, but in the selection of various classes of officials it might be adopted with advantage and thereby relieve the Government of "serious embarrassment." It would be an easy matter to eliminate such as applied for an office but were known to be unfit or unsuitable for the position aspired to. One might be "determined by lot" from among those whose claims could not be passed by or ignored, and who were acknowledged to be competent to discharge the duties of the situation each was anxious to occupy. Every one among the claimants would have an equal chance and no one could reasonably complain of his neighbor was more fortunate than himself.

What would be the result if such an arrangement, and how it would operate upon our professional office-seekers present and prospective, it would not be safe to predict; but in ancient Greece the effect was not less important than salutary. Every citizen there labored to qualify himself for office. All who are familiar with ancient history know that Athens in the meridian of her glory produced more great men than the rest of the world, and Machiavelli affirmed of democratic Florence that she had within a population of 50,000 more great men than could be found in all the empires north of the Alps put together.

S. MCLENNAN.

Bosworth, March 30.

To the Editor of the MERCURY:—

SIR,—The time for voting on the by-law with regard to giving a bonus to Burr Bros. is close at hand, and is, I believe, a crisis in the history of our city. It seems to me the way to look at it is this: will it pay? and I certainly for one believe it will. I cannot see how we are to help ourselves as a community unless by fostering manufactories. The extra taxation will never be felt being so small, individually, but the benefit even of that one industry will be felt more or less by all, and certainly property owners will be the first to be benefited. We cannot shut our eyes to the fact that work here is at a very low ebb, and what only can improve that state of affairs is something coming to make extra labor. Now, in giving a bonus to Burr Bros. we are not giving it to strangers, but to men who have all their interest, and that not a small one, at stake, and who intend starting this new branch to make it a success. We have seen what they have already done, and though we may say we don't believe in bonuses, still, unless in certain cases they are given the town or city is the loser, and I believe would be in this case. So I hope there will be a large vote cast, and that in favor of the by-law.

Yours truly,

MERCHANT.

Guelph, April 1.

Ottawa, April 1.

In the Commons to-day, in reply to Mr. McMullen, Mr. Thompson said that legislation would be passed this session to remove the difficulties in the way of the working of the Scott Act.

Mr. McMullen's bill to amend the Act relating to interest on money secured by mortgage of real estate, and Mr. Charlton's bill for the Preventing of Crulty to Animals were read a second time.

Mr. Charlton's bill to make seduction a misdemeanour under certain circumstances, passed its second reading on the recorded vote of 114 yeas to 47 nays.

A brief discussion arose on resolutions calling for papers relating to several subjects, among them the Short Line Railway, expense under the Franchise Bill and the registration of Indian voters.

On Mr. Kirk's motion for papers relating to the proposed better terms for Nova Scotia Mr. Cameron, (Cape Breton), moved an amendment declaring en favour of re-opening the question of Nova Scotia's financial agreement with the Dominion. The amendment was lost by a large majority.

In the course of the debate on a motion by Mr. Mitchell for papers relating to the fisheries, the question was raised whether the Government had admitted it had no right to keep foreigners outside of the three mile limit. This was emphatically denied by Mr. Thompson, Minister of Justice, who explained the legal position, as the Government believed it to be, leaving Canada at liberty to make any rules of exclusion which she thought desirable. The House adjourned at 11:20.

Gladstone Wavering.

Threatened with Withdrawal of Scotch Liberal Support.

LONDON, April 1.—Mr. Gladstone is wavering. More dissensions are reported in the Cabinet. The further the Premier's home rule scheme is developed and considered the less it is liked. An appeal to the country is now regarded as certain, but Mr. Gladstone's friends are even then doubtful of the issue.

Wise men shake their heads ominously when they think of the outlook. Home rule on a scale satisfactory to the Parnellites cannot be carried, and its defeat means, it is generally feared, a terrible outbreak of crimes of violence.

In the eyes of many men the only saving clause in Mr. Gladstone's scheme is one providing that there shall be no protective tariff against English goods. This to a certain extent will probably allay the fears of Birmingham, Sheffield and Leeds manufacturers. In other respects Mr. Gladstone proposes to give Ireland as complete an autonomy as Canada enjoys, whereas the idea of a large section of his direct following is that Ireland should be merely placed on the same footing towards the empire as one of the Canadian provinces holds to confederation.

Michael Davitt, speaking at Leicester last night, said he did not impugn Mr. Chamberlain's motive for leaving the Cabinet. The Nationalist party looked upon Mr. Chamberlain as the friend of Ireland; his scheme for the government of that country was a generous one, but it failed to satisfy the demands of the Irish people. The speaker appealed to Mr. Chamberlain not to thwart Mr. Gladstone in the carrying out of his Irish projects.

John Dillon, speaking at Kensington, vigorously denounced the Orangemen who, he said, were fanning the flame of religious enmity, which the National League had almost swept away.

The Cabinet to-day discussed the scheme of buying out the Irish landlords. In consequence of the unfavorable attitude of the Scotch Liberal Association, Mr. Gladstone proposed to modify his project in several particulars, but no agreement could be arrived at by the Cabinet. It now seems probable the project will be withdrawn.

The Pall Mall Gazette says:—The hostile tone of the Scotch Liberal press, as well as that manifested in most of the public meetings, has caused some of Mr. Gladstone's closest followers to doubt that the Scotch members of Parliament will support the Premier in any very broad scheme of home rule for Ireland. Mr. Parnell sees this difficulty plainly and is perfectly willing to have Mr. Gladstone conform his policy to the exigencies of the situation and to modify his Irish proposals until they reach dimensions which will suit the Scotch without alienating the Irish. The Irish leader, it is stated, has declared that any home rule scheme which does not satisfy both the Scotch and Irish members, may as well be withdrawn, because it cannot succeed.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.—A very interesting "Historic Girl" is told about in the April number of St. Nicholas, by E. S. Brooks. Her name was "Woo of Hwang-ho." She was a Chinese girl, brought up under Christian influences, and became the only woman who ever ruled the "Middle Kingdom" as "Empress Supreme." Frank R. Stockton brings us a little near-er his home in his "Personally Conducted" paper, in which he describes the perils of Alpine climbing, and relates how he himself made the assent of the Rigi—by railway. Mrs. Burnett's serial, "Little Lord Fauntleroy," keeps at the same high-water mark. Horace E. Scudder's "George Washington" carries the hero through the campaign with Braddock, and his subsequent military experience as commander-in-chief of the Virginia forces, his courtship and marriage. Century Co., publishers, New York.

A TENDENCY

Of The Times.

Friday April 2nd, 1886.

We say "a tendency," as we do not now imply that our remarks refer to the leading tendency of the times, but "a Tendency of the Times" is to pass the spurious for the real, to represent the counterfeit as the genuine. Hence, Shoddy is made to appear like Wool, Jute looks like Silk, Cotton is manipulated and sold for Linen. This is not alone the rule in Dry Goods, but in every other branch of manufacture. We confine ourselves however to the discussion of Dry Goods.

One reason for this is the continual pressure on the manufacturer to produce appearance and cheapness, which is done at the sacrifice of quality. Something is wanted that catches the eye. Lines of goods are specially sought for to produce the impression of cheapness. Certain people in business are continually on the look-out for that kind of stuff. Of course it is no benefit to the purchaser, he thinks he buys wool and gets shoddy, he imagines he buys silk and has jute, he pays for the real and gets the spurious. It is no benefit to the dealer, his tether is not a very long one, he is soon found out and hardly gets the chance to gull the same victim a second time. Look about you and see who are the solid and successful manufacturers and merchants of our land. The men who produce honest goods, the men who sold honest goods. They come out all right in the long run. They merit the public confidence and they get it, while the apostles of deceit are wiped off the scene almost as fast as the polish off their goods. They have to get out of business every few years. They shine for a while but their light soon dims.

For our own part, we shall steadily adhere to the principle of "Honest Goods at Fair Prices." We have reason to know this plan works to the satisfaction of our customers as well as ourselves.

CHAPTER XX.

A NEW INTEREST.

"You surprise me. What reason could he have for being unpleasant?"

"He did not give his reasons, but he talked in a very disagreeable way. I do not think he has a high opinion of women."

"What makes you think so?"

Helen told her all that had passed, and Mrs. Longworthy heard in silence; then she said,

"He was in one of his ill-tempered moods, when he attacks everybody and everything."

"People who have such unfortunate tempers should reserve them for the enjoyment of their friends, I think," said Helen. "Such displays are apt to prejudice strangers against them."

Dr. Holme was a frequent visitor at the Rectory. He often came in the evening when he had no pressing work on hand and enjoyed an hour's chat with the Rector and his wife. He now began to come more frequently: he more often felt as if he would like to come without trying to account for the feeling. He always began by asking Helen a few professional questions, which served to give colour to his visit if any were needed, and then the conversation passed to general matters, and as often as not was confined to the Rector and his guest. Mrs. Longworthy was a woman of few words, and contented herself with putting in a word here and there; while Helen as often as not sat in almost complete silence. She felt no sympathy with Dr. Holme; they had nothing in common. She never felt any strong inclination to exchange views with him.

He came in one evening, about a week after the conversation which had left such an unpleasant impresion upon Helen's mind. She thought she had forgotten all about it, but when she came inte the room and she heard his voice she became conscious of a vague antagonism, which told her that the unpleasant feeling was still there.

She shook hands with him, and answered his questions, which were not many, and then became once more absorbed in her work, something which she had undertaken to help Mr. Longworthy. She was seated in a low chair close to the lamp, which stood upon a little table in the middle of the room, and he stood with his back to the fireplace and looked down upon her in silence. Instinct told him she did not like him, and he wondered idly what could be the cause of her dislike. He was not yet satisfied with her looks; she did not make the progress he wished, and he was speculating as to whether there was some hidden cause for her slow return to health.

"I have come to throw myself upon your hospitality, Mrs. Longworthy," he said, with a half smile. "I have been home, but owing to some domestic calamity, the exact nature of which I failed to grasp, though Harriet did her very best to make it clear to me, I could not be accommodated with any food. I know your large hearted generosity towards the needy, and I have ventured to come here, counting on a place at your tea table."

"You know quite well that you are always a welcome guest," replied his hostess smiling into his face with much sweetness, and then she left the room to arrange for the addition of one or two dishes to the tea table."

"You are incorrigible, doctor," she said when she returned. "You persist in keeping Harriet in your services, though she has not the most elementary idea of how a gentleman's house should be kept. I repeat my offer to find you a suitable housekeeper if you will only get rid of Harriet."

"You press me hard," said the doctor, knitting his brows, and almost unconsciously running his hand through his thick dark hair in accordance with a habit he had contracted when thinking alone at home. "You force me to disclose my weakness and cowardice before a lady, who, I know, has boundless strength of will. But I cannot refuse since you are generous enough to repeat an offer which some time ago I unhesitatingly refused. I recognize your delicate and thoroughly womanly way of punishing me, and I bow to fate. I do not dismiss Harriet, because I dare not. For ten years she wielded despotic sway over my hearth and home, and—I say it advisedly—I dare not tell her to go; she would refuse, I would not force her, and I should be more at her mercy than ever. No, even in domestic difficulties Hamlet's philosophy holds good, "Better let well alone.'"

"Certainly, if it be well," said Mrs. Longworthy when she had recovered her gravity; "but in this case it is decidedly open to question."

"You should get married, Holme," said the clergyman, who up to this time had been absorbed in a newspaper. "Why on earth don't you get married? You would evidently be a very fine subject for matrimony if you could only find the right lady. I am convinced that with such principles as you have just professed your life's peace and happiness would be secured."

"Possibly," replied the doctor, "but as yet the chief factor in producing my life's happiness is wanting. I have so far not met any lady at all answering to my requirements."

"But you must," said Mr. Longworthy. "A man without a wife is only half a man. What in heaven's name do you suppose I should be without Mabel?" laying his hand for an instant on his wife's shoulder. "I should be wasted, thrown away, floating about in the world without an anchor; not one of my finest plans would have been carried out. Do you not agree with me, Helen?"

Helen looked up with rather a startled expression on hearing herself thus appealed to. She had been sitting a little apart from the rest, and thinking her own thoughts without hearing what the others were saying. Mr. Longworthy, seeing that it was so, purposely drew her into the conversation.

"I beg your pardon; I did not hear what you were saying," she said at last.

He repeated his last words, and again asked her opinion.

"Certainly," she said, looking from him to his wife with a smile. "I cannot imagine you without Mrs. Longworthy, neither can I imagine her without you."

"What stronger testimony could you possibly have?" he asked. "Mrs. Moore declares that I am right. She even goes further, and embraces both sides of the question."

Before the doctor could reply, tea was announced, the rector gave his arm to Helen, and they all went into the dining-room.

They sat silent for a little while, and then the doctor said—

"They are very good people, are they not?"

"Who?"

"The Longworthys, what other acquaintances have we in common?"

"True, but I was surprised, because that seems to me such a very feeble expression to make use of. I admire and reverence them more than any people I know."

Aloud he said—

"Youth is naturally enthusiastic. I see you think I am very much wanting in appreciation."

"You have probably never been indebted to them to the extent that I am. How many people would have taken into their house and treated as their daughter a girl of whom they knew nothing, not even her name, and whom they continued to treat so for months always in the same ignorance?"

"Did I not say you were enthusiastic?" he said, with a half-smile. "I should suppose you to be naturally enthusiastic and impulsive," he added, looking at her rather critically. "Enthusiasm, like many other things, is a good servant but a bad master, and you as a woman and young will be in danger of letting your enthusiasm and impulses run away with you sometimes. You will allow me to give you that caution."

"You are very kind. If you ever had any enthusiasm I should think you have long ago trampled out its fire. Do you find the dead ashes very warming?"

"You have taken a dislike to me," he said serenely. "That shows how young you are, and how prone you are to act on impulse, for in reality you know nothing at all about me."

The color rushed into her face, and then died out again with equal rapidity as she listened to him. It was the old story—hasty, impulsive judgments and actions, had they not wrecked her life? and still she had not learned to subdue them.

She was silent as she thought of things, and he misinterpreted her silence and said—

"I am afraid I have annoyed you; it was not my intention to do so."

"No," she replied, with a little bitterness; "you only spoke the truth, and it always hurts a little to hear the truth."

He went home soon after this, and going to his den sat down and tried to read. But he could not. Mr. Longworthy's words echoed and re-echoed in his mind; "You should marry; why on earth don't you get married? A man without a wife is only half a man." He could not put them out; they disturbed him and would not let him work. Suppose he did marry? His heart beat a little faster at the thought, and then he rejected it with a contemptuous "Pshaw!" But yet, "However he put it from him, back it came." Would a woman's presence in his life really make this feeling of bitterness and unrest which was growing upon him cease? He tried to imagine a woman in the house and smiled grimly, for the only figure he could conjure up was the unattractive one of old Harriet, his housekeeper and cook. At last he shut up his book in a rage and went to bed.

ELORA, April 1.—About seven o'clock on Wednesday evening a most distressing accident happened to Edmund, second son of Mr. John Bowes, of this village. Father and son were sitting on boxes alongside a horse in the stable. The former was bathing the animals's front leg while the latter held a lantern. Without a moment's warning the boy shrieked "Father," and fell head foremost underneath the horse, carrying the light and seat with him. The startled animal commenced kicking and plunging to get out of the way, and in doing so injured the youth to such an extent that, when rescued by the father, who got underneath the horse and threw him on his side into the next stall, he had the appearance of one dead. When taken to the open air, however, it was discovered that life was not quite extinct. Dr. Paget was quickly on the spot, and found that the boy's right leg was broken in three places, the body considerably bruised and the head cut in several places. He now lies in a precarious condition. The father of the boy was kicked on the knee, although not very severely, and feels the effect of the efforts made to save the boy.

CAMPBELL'S TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

So found by the Author, whose experience for 23 years is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any physician. 300 pages bound in beautiful French muslin, embossed covers, full gilt, guaranteed to be a finer work in every sense—mechanical, literary and professional—than any other work sold in this country for $2.50, or the money will be refunded in every instance. The Science of Life is of greater value than all the medical works published in this country for the past 50 years.—Atlanta Constitution.

The Science of Life is a superb and masterly treatise on nervous and physical debility.—Detroit Free Press.

There is no member of society to whom The Science of Life will not be useful, whether youth, parent, guardian, instructor or clergyman.—Argonaut.

CONCERNING CHEAPNESS.

THE REAL TEST OF CHEAPNESS IS UNDOUBTEDLY as the maxim has it "quality." for if any article lacks quality it is dear at any price, especially is this true in regard to

Boots & Shoes

People very often lose more than they save, when they indiscriminately go in for Cheap Goods without regard to their value. It has however been our steady aim through our business life that every article kept by us shall be of the

Mr. Johnston Resigns.

Mr. E. F. B. Johnston has resigned his position of Deputy-Attorney General and will return to Guelph next week to resume the practice of his profession in his old offices above the Federal Bank. When Mr. Johnston accepted the position of Deputy-Attorney General he believed that he would be able to open a connection in Toronto and work up a law business in addition to his Governmental duties. He found, however, that the latter took up all his time, and soon recognizing that it would be impossible for him to make a legal practice besides, he placed his resignation in the hands of the Hon. Mr. Mowat before the last session of the Legislature. Mr. Johnston is too young, and too able a man, to be shelved. He concluded that his prospects were better not only for the present but the future in practicing law. Such were the considerations which induced him ta resign. The Government will have hard work in finding a man to fill his place so well, and that Mr. Mowat recognizes this is shown by the hearty manner in which he urged Mr. Johnston to retain the position. Having once decided, however, his decision was not to be altered. Many old friends in Guelph and vicinity will welcome his return.

Local News.

MR. W. B. WILSON, of Stratford, has been appointed Chief of Police of Ingersoll, at a salary of $550.

DR. MCKINNON who has been suffering for the past few days with a severe cold is improving rapidly.

W. E. BROWN, the jewellery peddler, was fined $1 and costs at the Police Court this morning. The case was remanded from yesterday until to-day for judgment.

MR. JOS. EMORY is having his hack repainted and renovated generally. When completed it will be one of the most stylish turn-outs of this description in the city.

NOVELTIES of the Rose Braniff concert will be choruses by class of small children, the youngest being four years. Solos on the harp by Miss Coffee and quartette of mal voices.e d1

NOTWITHSTANDING the bad state of the roads, the market this morning was well attended, and the prices were the same as former quotations, with the exception of eggs, which sold at from 10 to 12 cents per dozen.

THE tender for the erection of the new English Church at Riverstown has been given to Mr. Gruer, of Mount Forest. The building will be 62x27, and will have a basement underneath the same size. It is expected it will be opened about August or September next. It will be called "The Church of the Good Shepherd."

AMATEUR B. B. CLUB FOR LONDON.—A well attended meeting of baseballists was held Thursday night at the City hotel, London, for the purpose of forming an amateur baseball club. It was decided to organize a club to be known as the "Mutuals," and to then enter the Western amateur league. Mr. Geo. T. Hiscox was elected president, and the following committee of management were elected: Messrs. Chas. McDonald, Joseph Durkin, Jerry Pendergast, Bert. Sheer and Frank Morrison. C. W. Norman and I. D. Durkin were appointed delegates to the Stratford convention on Monday next.

PETER IN A HUMOROUS STRAIN.—Peter, of Berlin, has got off a joke. As he is not likely to survive the mental strain caused by its composition it is deemed well to republish it, and hand down the wise man's bit of humor to generations yet unborn. Here it is:—From the names of the officers, (of the Berlin Wheelmen's Association), it looks as though the season's operations will be rather dull (Doll), especially as the Captain is Doolittle, and the Secretary always Ill-ing. But the redeeming feature of the list is the Hon. President whose infirmities have during about a third of the past year made it impossible for him to walk, "riding" therefore being a necessity. Whether the present year will put him in the same "shape" for riding remains to be seen.

Vote for the Bonus.

SIR,—It would seem almost an unnecessary undertaking to call the attention of every voter in this city to the great responsibility which rests upon him or her, as the case may be, to exercise the right of the franchise on Tuesday, and do so by voting in favor of the by-law giving a bonus to Burr Bros. for their new factory. Every man and woman who has the interest of this city at heart should not wait for some one to come after them to get them to vote, but should be only too anxious to go of their own accord and register their votes for the by-law.

Do not blame the Council if this by-law is defeated by your own apathy, and lack of interest in the welfare of this city. The great danger is too many will say "oh! I have not time to vote; there will be lots of others to do the voting." This kind of sentiment will as effectually defeat the by-law as voting against it. Should the by-law be defeated it means a direct prospective loss to this city as well as a loss of the present factory. Let there be an earnest desire on the part of every voter to come out on Tuesday and vote for the by-law.

Yours, etc.,
TAXPAYER.

Fair Weather.

Probabilities—Light to moderate winds; generally fair weather, not much change in temperature.

THERE will be a Salvation Army funeral to-morrow.

THERE was a large crowd of people in town to-day.

SOME more peddlers for violating the city by-law will be before the Police Magistrate next week. They appear to be having a hard time of it.

A GENTLEMAN who came from Harriston to-day states that the portion of the town lying near the river is flooded, and that considerable injury has been done to property.

ON Sabbath evening last the Rev. T. Booker, of Mount Forest, preached his farewell sermon to a large audience in the Baptist Church. He is to take charge of a congregation at Oshawa at once.

MRS. E. E. GRAHAM was the other evening at Galt presented with an address and purse of money, on the occasion of her leaving for Hamilton. The donors were the Society of Willing Workers of the Baptist Church.

GUELPH JUNCTION RAILWAY.—Mr. Innes on Friday introduced in the House of Commons a Bill to amend the Act for the construction of this road, by extending the time for its commencement and completion, and for other purposes.

A CHIME of three bells has been purchased for St. Peter's Church, Berlin, and will be placed in position in a short time. The News says this church has made wonderful progress during the four years it has been under the charge of the Rev. Mr. Von Pirch.

THE new chemical fire engine purchased by the Mount Forest Council has arrived and was tested Wednesday last. Judging from the report of the papers of that town the test was satisfactory in every particular. Deputations from Fergus, Durham and other places were present.

A MEETING of the binder manufacturers was held in Toronto yesterday. It is understood that some of the manufacturers were heavily fined on account of their agents violating the rules of the Association, and that these agents are to be dismissed.

THE BAND CONCERT AT THE RINK.—Do not forget that the City Band will be present to-night at the rink. The wheelbarrow race by some fast skaters will be an interesting feature. This race is very amusing and comical, and will no doubt be immensely enjoyed. Distance, one half mile.

IT will be seen by advertisement that the barristers and solicitors of the city have agreed to close their offices during the months of April and May at 3 o'clock on Saturdays, and during June, July, August and September at 1 o'clock on Saturdays and 5 on other days.

AN Austrian astronomer, who has been over the record of eclipses mentioned in the Bible, finds in it a remarkable confirmation of the chronology of the Old Testament, and he is enabled to fix the time of the exodus of the children of Israel at the 27th of March, in the year 1335 B. C.

MR. PETER MCGREGOR, of Galt, has purchased extensive lumbering privileges in the State of Georgia. Mr. McGregor has now been a resident of Galt for some years. At the election in 1885 he was returned as representative from Ward No. 3 to the Town Council, and at the late election was again returned by acclamation.

A FINE GAME.—The Galt Reformer says: Guelph hotelkeepers have introduced a new kind of game. It is played with marbles. They label our "Scott Act," and place it in the centre of a ring; then they shoot at it and try to "knock it out." It is a sort of mild way of taking revenge for the manner in which the Act threatens to knock them out, and they say is wonderfully relieving to the feelings.

THE BRESLAU BRIDGE.—At a recent meeting of Waterloo Township Council, the following motion was passed:—"Moved by Mr. Phin, seconded by Mr. Shafer, that in view of the recent change in the Municipal Act, causing county councils to assume bridges in townships over 100 feet in length, the clerk be instructed to communicate with the Berlin Town Council and get their opinion as to what should be done under the circumstances with reference to the Breslau bridge."

THE Canadian Farm Advertiser just published by the enterprising and energetic real estate firm of John J. Daley & Co., of this city, certainly reflects credit on the firm, and its distribution throughout Canada, the United States and Europe amongst intending purchasers, will no doubt, prove very beneficial to the city as well as to this and other counties in Western Ontario. Never before was the City of Guelph and the County of Wellington so favorably advertised.

DEFECTIVE SIDEWALKS.—The village of Stouffville, allowed a loose plank in a sidewalk to remain on its principal street, and a lady resident was tripped up by it and sustained severe injuries. She brought suit against the corporation at the York Assizes, and has just been awarded $1,000 damages. Juries are evidently determined that corporations shall mend their ways, or suffer for it. There is a lesson for Guelph Alderman here. In every ward of the city there are man traps that may land the corporation into a similar action any day.

RETURNED FROM KINGSTON.—W. N. Snyder and C. J. Leicht, of the Wellington Field Battery, returned home from Kingston to-day after a short course of instruction at the School of Gunnery there. The former took a first-class certificate and the latter a second. W. Bardwell, son of Mr. A. Bardwell, Guelph, also took a first-class certificate and came off with high honors, but on Tuesday he had the misfortune to meet with an accident which will keep him in Kingston for a couple of weeks yet. When dismounting a gun it by some means fell on his left foot, bruising it to such an extent that it may yet be necessary to amputate some of the toes.

LISTOWEL is to have a band tournament on the 4th and 5th of August next.

PROPERTY OWNERS.—Go to the polls early on Tuesday and cast your vote in favor of the by-law.

REV. DR. CLARKE, of Toronto Baptist College, will preach morning and evening in the Baptist Church to-morrow. d1

ADJT. CLARKE is making extensive preparations for the entertainment to be given on the 24th of May on the Exhibition grounds by his calisthenic class attending the public schools.

THE April number of "Our Little Ones," published by the Russell Publishing Co., Boston, has come to hand and is in all respects a very fine magazine, just such as the little ones are always looking for.

MR. B. BROWN, Morriston, shot this winter nineteen foxes, which is a good showing for one sportsman. No word has yet been heard of the success of Mr. Jas. Black and Mr. Hugh Singular, also keen hunters.

ALD. SMITH has made several alterations and improvements in his drug store recently, chief of which is an enlargement of his office. It is handsomely papered and painted and presents an attractive appearance.

MR. GEO. MURTON'S coal delivery wagon broke down yesterday afternoon through the breaking of an axle. The heavy state of the roads seems to be equally trying on the endurance of the horses and the conveyances.

KINGSTON Whig:—Capt. and Adjutant Clark, of the Guelph Field Artillery, and attached to the Agricultural College, is in the city on business. He was formerly Sergt.-Major of "A" Battery. He looks well, and better still, he is doing well, and a host of friends were glad to see him.

"AMANG THE HEATHER."—A meeting of Scotchmen was held in Galt last Saturday evening to take steps to bring into closer union the Sons of "Auld Scotia" in Galt and neighborhood. After talking the matter over it was decided to hold a grand re-union in the Imperial Rink in that town on the evening of Friday, 16th April. The re-union will take the shape of a supper, to be followed by Scotch songs, stories, speeches, etc.

THERE are over 1,200 property owners in the city. Two fifths of this number is 480. As lease-holders vote on the bonus by-law in addition to property owners and a two-fifths majority of both is required to carry the by-law, five or six hundred votes must be polled for it. This shows the necessity of every one who favors the by-law and who has the right to vote, going the polls.

ACCIDENT.—George Gordon, a lad of about fourteen years of age, had three of the fingers of the right hand badly crushed yesterday afternoon while working a planer in Bell's old organ factory. In attempting to take a piece of board from the machine his hand came in contact with the rollers, and had it not been for the timely assistance of one of the men, who fortunately noticed the position of the boy, and threw off the belt his arm would undoubtedly have been drawn into the planer. Dr. McPhatter dressed the wound.

Caution.—Beware of any man who offers you an imitation article, no matter what it is, and says it is "just as good as the genuine;" they sell all kinds of "sham remedies" in this way upon the reputation of the Pain Killer—be sure and get the genuine made by Perry Davis.

Court of Revision.

The adjourned court for the preliminary revision of the voters list was held by Judge Drew to-day. Mr. T. P. Coffee appeared for the Conservatives and Mr. D. Guthrie, hQ. C., for the Reformers. The following names were added to the lists, the same having been inadvertantly omitted at the previous court. Such an omission might not have occurred had the list of all applications contended for by Mr. Guthrie been made in the first instance; these would not then have been overlooked.

The following names were added on application of Mr. Guthrie who produced further proof. Div. No. 1, Eramosa, Wm. Geddes, Eden Mills; James Clarke, Rockwood; and Wm. Wood, Rockwood.

A number of clerical errors were then corrected and the Judge signed the lists and closed the court. The Judge said that he hoped to be able some time during the present month to fix the sittings of the final courts. These courts will not sit before May. Let our friends, however be on the alert.

Entrance Examination.

Toronto, 30th Mar., 1886.

The Head Masters of Collegiate Institutes and High Schools are requested by the Minister to report to the respective Public School Inspectors the estimated number of candidates for the Entrance Examination by the 28th April. The form of application is discontinued. Forms of entrance certificates are now supplied by the local school authorities instead of the Department."

From the above it will be seen that intending candidates are not now required to fill up and send in a blank form of application as formerly. All that they have to do is, either personally, or through their respective teachers to send their names before April 24th, to the Head Master of the Collegiate Institute, or High School at which they intend writing.

Provincial Drainage Scheme.

The Harriston Tribune says:—Mr. F. S. Dobson called at this office yesterday and gave us an outline of the Drainage Scheme so much talked about in this neighborhood at present.

It is proposed to raise a sum equivalent to 25 cents per acre upon all the land in the Province (should that amount be required) in the following manner:—In addition to the Provincial Securities, now held by the Dominion Government, a sum sufficient for three eighths of the proposed Bill Issue be deposited with the Dominion Government, the same to bear interest at the rate of 5% per annum.

The three-eighths, in gold or its equivalent, above mentioned is the legal amount demanded by the Dominion Government from our chartered banks doing business in the country.

To put the matter in a clearer light the Ontario Government shall become the farmer's banker when borrowing money for drainage purposes.

The interest on the amount, be the sum large or small, not to exceed 2½ per cent per annum.

A meeting will be held in the township hall, Minto, on the 15th inst., to discuss the question. The Secretary considers that the meeting will be so large as to necessitate an adjournment to Harriston Town Hall.

This meeting is a Reeves' Convention. The next step will be taken by the Warden previous to the meeting of the County Councils in June. All the five counties invited, viz:—Wellington, Perth, Huron, Grey, and Bruce, should be represented as the question is an important one, considering the large amount of money involved in the undertaking, and also the number of farmers likely to be benefitted by its operation. Should the farmers throughout the country manifest as keen an interest in the movement as they are doing in Minto, we may expect lively times in the near future.

Mr. Johnston Resigns.

Mr. E. F. B. Johnston has resigned his position of Deputy-Attorney General and will return to Guelph next week to resume the practice of his profession in his old offices above the Federal Bank. When Mr. Johnston accepted the position of Deputy-Attorney General he believed that he would be able to open a connection in Toronto and work up a law business in addition to his Governmental duties. He found, however, that the latter took up all his time, and soon recognizing that it would be impossible for him to make a legal practice besides, he placed his resignation in the hands of the Hon. Mr. Mowat before the last session of the Legislature. Mr. Johnston is too young, and too able a man, to be shelved. He concluded that his prospects were better not only for the present but the future in practicing law. Such were the considerations which induced him to resign. The Government will have hard work in finding a man to fill his place so well, and that Mr. Mowat recognizes this is shown by the hearty manner in which he urged Mr. Johnston to retain the position. Having once decided, however, his decision was not to be altered. Many old friends in Guelph and vicinity will welcome his return.

Local News.

MR. W. B. WILSON, of Stratford, has been appointed Chief of Police of Ingersoll, at a salary of $550.

DR. MCKINNON who has been suffering for the past few days with a severe cold is improving rapidly.

W. E. BROWN, the jewellery peddler, was fined $1 and costs at the Police Court this morning. The case was remanded from yesterday until to-day for judgment.

MR. JOS. EMORY is having his hack repainted and renovated generally. When completed it will be one of the most stylish turn-outs of this description in the city.

NOVELTIES of the Rose Braniff concert will be choruses by class of small children, the youngest being four years. Solos on the harp by Miss Coffee and quartette of mal voices.e d1

NOTWITHSTANDING the bad state of the roads, the market this morning was well attended, and the prices were the same as former quotations, with the exception of eggs, which sold at from 10 to 12 cents per dozen.

THE tender for the erection of the new English Church at Riverstown has been given to Mr. Gruer, of Mount Forest. The building will be 62x27, and will have a basement underneath the same size. It is expected it will be opened about August or september next. It will be called "The Church of the Good Shepherd."

AMATEUR B. B. CLUB FOR LONDON.—A well attended meeting of baseballists was held Thursday night at the City hotel, London, for the purpose of forming an amateur baseball club. It was decided to organize a club to be known as the "Mutuals," and to then enter the Western amateur league. Mr. Geo. T. Hiscox was elected president, and the following committee of management were elected: Messrs. Chas. McDonald, Joseph Durkin, Jerry Pendergast, Bert. Sheer and Frank Morrison. C. W. Norman and I. D. Durkin were appointed delegates to the Stratford convention on Monday next.

PETER IN A HUMOROUS STRAIN.—Peter, of Berlin, has got off a joke. As he is not likely to survive the mental strain caused by its composition it is deemed well to republish it, and hand down the wise man's bit of humor to generations yet unborn. Here it is:—From the names of the officers, (of the Berlin Wheelmen's Association), it looks as though the season's operations will be rather dull (Doll), especially as the Captain is Doolittle, and the Secretary always Ill-ing. But the redeeming feature of the list is the Hon. President whose infirmities have during about a third of the past year made it impossible for him to walk, "riding" therefore being a necessity. Whether the present year will put him in the same "shape" for riding remains to be seen.

SIR,—It would seem almost an unnecessary undertaking to call the attention of every voter in this city to the great responsibility which rests upon him or her, as the case may be, to exercise the right of the franchise on Tuesday, and do so by voting in favor of the by-law giving a bonus to Burr Bros. for their new factory. Every man and woman who has the interest of this city at heart should not wait for some one to come after them to get them to vote, but should be only too anxious to go of their own accord and register their votes for the by-law.

Do not blame the Council if this by-law is defeated by your own apathy, and lack of interest in the welfare of this city. The great danger is too many will say "oh! I have not time to vote; there will be lots of others to do the voting." This kind of sentiment will as effectually defeat the by-law as voting against it. Should the by-law be defeated it means a direct prospective loss to this city as well as a loss of the present factory. Let there be an earnest desire on the part of every voter to come out on Tuesday and vote for the by-law.

Yours, etc.,
TAXPAYER.

Fair Weather.

Probabilities—Light to moderate winds; generally fair weather, not much change in temperature.

THERE will be a Salvation Army funeral to-morrow.

THERE was a large crowd of people in town to-day.

SOME more peddlers for violating the city by-law will be before the Police Magistrate next week. They appear to be having a hard time of it.

A GENTLEMAN who came from Harriston to-day states that the portion of the town lying near the river is flooded, and that considerable injury has been done to property.

ON Sabbath evening last the Rev. T. Booker, of Mount Forest, preached his farewell sermon to a large audience in the Baptist Church. He is to take charge of a congregation at Oshawa at once.

MRS. E. E. GRAHAM was the other evening at Galt presented with an address and purse of money, on the occasion of her leaving for Hamilton. The donors were the Society of Willing Workers of the Baptist Church.

GUELPH JUNCTION RAILWAY.—Mr. Innes on Friday introduced in the House of Commons a Bill to amend the Act for the construction of this road, by extending the time for its commencement and completion, and for other purposes.

A CHIME of three bells has been purchased for St. Peter's Church, Berlin, and will be placed in position in a short time. The News says this church has made wonderful progress during the four years it has been under the charge of the Rev. Mr. Von Pirch.

THE new chemical fire engine purchased by the Mount Forest Council has arrived and was tested Wednesday last. Judging from the report of the papers of that town the test was satisfactory in every particular. Deputations from Fergus, Durham and other places were present.

A MEETING of the binder manufacturers was held in Toronto yesterday. It is understood that some of the manufacturers were heavily fined on account of their agents violating the rules of the Association, and that these agents are to be dismissed.

THE BAND CONCERT AT THE RINK.—Do not forget that the City Band will be present to-night at the rink. The wheelbarrow race by some fast skaters will be an interesting feature. This race is very amusing and comical, and will no doubt be immensely enjoyed. Distance, one half mile.

IT will be seen by advertisement that the barristers and solicitors of the city have agreed to close their offices during the months of April and May at 3 o'clock on Saturdays, and during June, July, August and September at 1 o'clock on Saturdays and 5 on other days.

AN Austrian astronomer, who has been over the record of eclipses mentioned in the Bible, finds in it a remarkable confirmation of the chronology of the Old Testament, and he is enabled to fix the time of the exodus of the children of Israel at the 27th of March, in the year 1335 B. C.

MR. PETER MCGREGOR, of Galt, has purchased extensive lumbering privileges in the State of Georgia. Mr. McGregor has now been a resident of Galt for some years. At the election in 1885 he was returned as representative from Ward No. 3 to the Town Council, and at the late election was again returned by acclamation.

A FINE GAME.—The Galt Reformer says: Guelph hotelkeepers have introduced a new kind of game. It is played with marbles. They label our "Scott Act," and place it in the centre of a ring; then they shoot at it and try to "knock it out." It is a sort of mild way of taking revenge for the manner in which the Act threatens to knock them out, and they say is wonderfully relieving to the feelings.

THE BRESLAU BRIDGE.—At a recent meeting of Waterloo Township Council, the following motion was passed:—"Moved by Mr. Phin, seconded by Mr. Shafer, that in view of the recent change in the Municipal Act, causing county councils to assume bridges in townships over 100 feet in length, the clerk be instructed to communicate with the Berlin Town Council and get their opinion as to what should be done under the circumstances with reference to the Breslau bridge."

THE Canadian Farm Advertiser just published by the enterprising and energetic real estate firm of John J. Daley & Co., of this city, certainly reflects credit on the firm, and its distribution throughout Canada, the United States and Europe amongst intending purchasers, will no doubt, prove very beneficial to the city as well as to this and other counties in Western Ontario. Never before was the City of Guelph and the County of Wellington so favorably advertised.

DEFECTIVE SIDEWALKS.—The village of Stouffville, allowed a loose plank in a sidewalk to remain on its principal street, and a lady resident was tripped up by it and sustained severe injuries. She brought suit against the corporation at the York Assizes, and has just been awarded $1,000 damages. Juries are evidently determined that corporations shall mend their ways, or suffer for it. There is a lesson for Guelph Alderman here. In every ward of the city there are man traps that may land the corporation into a similar action any day.

RETURNED FROM KINGSTON.—W. N. Snyder and C. J. Leicht, of the Wellington Field Battery, returned home from Kingston to-day after a short course of instruction at the School of Gunnery there. The former took a first-class certificate and the latter a second. W. Bardwell, son of Mr. A. Bardwell, Guelph, also took a first-class certificate and came off with high honors, but on Tuesday he had the misfortune to meet with an accident which will keep him in Kingston for a couple of weeks yet. When dismounting a gun it by some means fell on his left foot, bruising it to such an extent that it may yet be necessary to amputate some of the toes.

LISTOWEL is to have a band tournament on the 4th and 5th of August next.

PROPERTY OWNERS.—Go to the polls early on Tuesday and cast your vote in favor of the by-law.

REV. DR. CLARKE, of Toronto Baptist College, will preach morning and evening in the Baptist Church to-morrow. d1

ADJT. CLARKE is making extensive preparations for the entertainment to be given on the 24th of May on the Exhibition grounds by his calisthenic class attending the public schools.

THE April number of "Our Little Ones," published by the Russell Publishing Co., Boston, has come to hand and is in all respects a very fine magazine, just such as the little ones are always looking for.

MR. B. BROWN, Morriston, shot this winter nineteen foxes, which is a good showing for one sportsman. No word has yet been heard of the success of Mr. Jas. Black and Mr. Hugh Singular, also keen hunters.

ALD. SMITH has made several alterations and improvements in his drug store recently, chief of which is an enlargement of his office. It is handsomely papered and painted and presents an attractive appearance.

MR. GEO. MURTON'S coal delivery wagon broke down yesterday afternoon through the breaking of an axle. The heavy state of the roads seems to be equally trying on the endurance of the horses and the conveyances.

KINGSTON Whig:—Capt. and Adjutant Clark, of the Guelph Field Artillery, and attached to the Agricultural College, is in the city on business. He was formerly Sergt.-Major of "A" Battery. He looks well, and better still, he is doing well, and a host of friends were glad to see him.

"AMANG THE HEATHER."—A meeting of Scotchmen was held in Galt last Saturday evening to take steps to bring into closer union the Sons of "Auld Scotia" in Galt and neighborhood. After talking the matter over it was decided to hold a grand re-union in the Imperial Rink in that town on the evening of Friday, 16th April. The re-union will take the shape of a supper, to be followed by Scotch songs, stories, speeches, etc.

THERE are over 1,200 property owners in the city. Two fifths of this number is 480. As lease-holders vote on the bonus by-law in addition to property owners and a two-fifths majority of both is required to carry the by-law, five or six hundred votes must be polled for it. This shows the necessity of every one who favors the by-law and who has the right to vote, going the polls.

ACCIDENT.—George Gordon, a lad of about fourteen years of age, had three of the fingers of the right hand badly crushed yesterday afternoon while working a planer in Bell's old organ factory. In attempting to take a piece of board from the machine his hand came in contact with the rollers, and had it not been for the timely assistance of one of the men, who fortunately noticed the position of the boy, and threw off the belt his arm would undoubtedly have been drawn into the planer. Dr. McPhatter dressed the wound.

Caution.—Beware of any man who offers you an imitation article, no matter what it is, and says it is "just as good as the genuine;" they sell all kinds of "sham remedies" in this way upon the reputation of the Pain Killer—be sure and get the genuine made by Perry Davis.

Court of Revision.

The adjourned court for the preliminary revision of the voters list was held by Judge Drew to-day. Mr. T. P. Coffee appeared for the Conservatives and Mr. D. Guthrie, hQ. C., for the Reformers. The following names were added to the lists, the same having been inadvertantly omitted at the previous court. Such an omission might not have occurred had the list of all applications contended for by Mr. Guthrie been made in the first instance; these would not then have been overlooked.

The following names were added on application of Mr. Guthrie who produced further proof. Div. No. 1, Eramosa, Wm. Geddes, Eden Mills; James Clarke, Rockwood; and Wm. Wood, Rockwood.

A number of clerical errors were then corrected and the Judge signed the lists and closed the court. The Judge said that he hoped to be able some time during the present month to fix the sittings of the final courts. These courts will not sit before May. Let our friends, however be on the alert.

Entrance Examination.

Toronto, 30th Mar., 1886.

The Head Masters of Collegiate Institutes and High Schools are requested by the Minister to report to the respective Public School Inspectors the estimated number of candidates for the Entrance Examination by the 28th April. The form of application is discontinued. Forms of entrance certificates are now supplied by the local school authorities instead of the Department."

From the above it will be seen that intending candidates are not now required to fill up and send in a blank form of application as formerly. All that they have to do is, either personally, or through their respective teachers to send their names before April 24th, to the Head Master of the Collegiate Institute, or High School at which they intend writing.

Provincial Drainage Scheme.

The Harriston Tribune says:—Mr. F. S. Dobson called at this office yesterday and gave us an outline of the Drainage Scheme so much talked about in this neighborhood at present.

It is proposed to raise a sum equivalent to 25 cents per acre upon all the land in the Province (should that amount be required) in the following manner:—In addition to the Provincial Securities, now held by the Dominion Government, a sum sufficient for three eighths of the proposed Bill Issue be deposited with the Dominion Government, the same to bear interest at the rate of 5% per annum.

The three-eighths, in gold or its equivalent, above mentioned is the legal amount demanded by the Dominion Government from our chartered banks doing business in the country.

To put the matter in a clearer light the Ontario Government shall become the farmer's banker when borrowing money for drainage purposes.

The interest on the amount, be the sum large or small, not to exceed 2½ per cent per annum.

A meeting will be held in the township hall, Minto, on the 15th inst., to discuss the question. The Secretary considers that the meeting will be so large as to necessitate an adjournment to Harriston Town Hall.

This meeting is a Reeves' Convention. The next step will be taken by the Warden previous to the meeting of the County Councils in June. All the five counties invited, viz:—Wellington, Perth, Huron, Grey, and Bruce, should be represented as the question is an important one, considering the large amount of money involved in the undertaking, and also the number of farmers likely to be benefitted by its operation. Should the farmers throughout the country manifest as keen an interest in the movement as they are doing in Minto, we may expect lively times in the near future.

The Evening Mercury

The Vote On Tuesday.

The by-law, on Tuesday next is in great danger of being lost through apathy on the part of the voters. It is of the greatest importance that the property owners and lease holders, who only have the right of balloting on this question, should act with the clear understanding that two-fifths of their number must vote in favor of the by-law in order to carry it. This means that, if there are 1,200 property owners and lease-holders, four hundred of the number must vote in favor of the by-law to secure its adoption. If less than this number vote for the by-law it will be defeated.

In addition there must be a majority for the by-law of those who do vote. We have no fears on this score. Few men will so rigidly adhere to principle that they will not express themselves in favor o so clear a case of wise expediency. Those who vote against the by-law will do so mostly from selfish or personal motives.

Let us once more scan our position as a city with respect to this question. We are at a disadvantage as compared with some other towns and cities in the matter of railway competition. Several places offer bonuses to well established industries to locate in their midst. We desire to flourish in trade. We must, therefore, offer some inducement to industries as an equivalent for that railway competition which we do not possess and which other places do, and we must offer these inducements also because other places are doing the same. Is that not a reasonable conclusion?

But there is more than justice on the side of the by-law. There is a powerful argument in the shape of what it means financially and industrially to Guelph. The $2,000 which it is proposed to grant to Burr Bros. for the purchase of the land for their new factory will entail a tax on the the ratepayers so insignificant that it will never be felt. What does the city get in return? It will immediately feel the benefit of money expended among masons, carpenters, laborers and others engaged in the erection of the new factory. Those who have houses to rent and land to sell will find an extra demand for the same in consequence of the additional number of men to be employed. Merchants will realize larger sales for the same reason. These are the classes who will be indirectly benefitted. But after all the great considerations are that this new factory will add something to our importance as a city, and that it will give employment to a considerable number of mechanics, whom we ought all to be interested in seeing finding plenty of work.

Nothing needs to be said as to the reliability of the firm or their ability to fulfil all that they propose. They have worked up a large business from humble dimensions in our midst, and are now thoroughly established.

For the reasons given we strongly urge upon every voter the importance of recording his ballot in favor of the by-law on Tuesday. Let each voter who thinks as we do turn out early to record his vote, not depending on others to carry the bonus, but remembering that his ballot may be the one to decide its adoption or defeat.

The Budget and the Tariff.

Mr. McLelan made his first budget speech on Wednesday. When this minister was promoted to the Finance Department it was generally felt that the Government had made a mistake. His speech on Wednesday realized this expectation, for it was the poorest financial statement made by any minister since confederation. Mr. McLelan himself seemed to have this instinctive feeling, for in his introduction he spoke of succeeding a line of Finance Ministers—all knights—all of whom were able financiers and had filled the position with credit. If the knightly mantle means anything in finance it has clearly not fallen on Mr. McLelan. His speech was long and tedious, with scarcely a break to relieve its dull monotony, and without a single bright interlude to arouse the attention of the half sleeping listeners. It is said that the galleries of the House of Commons were never so poorly patronized on the occasion of a budget speech being delivered, and that even the members on the Government side gave but little heed to what the Minister was saying, and only at rare intervals gave him a a mechanical cheer.

The exhibit made by the Finance Minister is the reverse of encouraging. It shows that this Government has year by year largely increased our expenditure until we have a deficit in prospect of nearly five million dollars. It shows also that this Government is following out its policy by steadily increasing the taxes, a course which it seems blindly to pursue as a cure for commercial depression, which, however, keeps increasing in proportion to our taxation. The late Finance Minister had a peculiar way of manipulating his figures, but his successor seems to rival him in ingenuity. For instance, in speaking of the total revenue and expenditure for the year, he said that if the expenses of the Northwest rebellion, and the increased cost of the Indians, were deducted from last year's expenditure, there would be a small surplus left in the treasury! Any Finance Minister could figure out a surplus in in the same way if he only deducted a sufficient amount to leave him a balance on the right side. But how ridiculously foolish for any sane man to imagine that this will bring out an actual surplus, and how stupid it is to try and make sensible people believe it. This is about as original a method of creating a surplus as the profound remark made by Mr. McLelan later on, that it costs money to build railways, canals, etc. Mr. McLelan gave the total revenue last year as $33,190,619, and the total expenditure at $35,037,063. Then taking into account all the items of income and expenditure, the expenditure for the current year would be somewhere in the neighborhood of $33,500,000, from which if we deduct what will probably be required for the Northwest troubles, say $3,500,000, we will have an ordinary expenditure of $35,000,000 to be provided for. It is estimated from what we have received up to the present time that we will receive from customs $19,509,000, from excise $6,250,000 and on the other services, post offices, railways, etc., $7,800,000, all of which sums taken from the estimate of expenditure will leave on the year's business, a deficit of $1,450,000. This should be divided between the two years, 1885 and 1886, inasmuch as part of the revenue to the present year had been anticipated and placed to the credit of 1885. Coming to the estimates for the year 1886-'87, he estimated in full for every service we are called upon to meet, except perhaps for public works, the total amount required for which will not be known until later on. There would be from customs, $20,200,000; from excise, $7,000,000; from post office, interest and miscellaneous service, $7,300,000; making a total of $34,500,000, against which he estimated an expenditure of $33,124,550, leaving as the estimates now stand $1,375,045 for a surplus.

With respect to the deficit present and prospective, Sir Richard Cartwright put the matter in its true light, when he said:—"The minister admitted $2,000,000 of a deficit. He also admitted that $1,000,000 was borrowed from this year in payments of excise duties. Over $3,000,000 was charged to capital expenditure on Dominion railways which should be charged to revenue. If the Government assumed the money received from Dominion lands as ordinary yearly revenue, they should not charge expenditure of over $3,000,000 for managing these lands to capital account. Had a deficit been fairly calculated it would have been put down at $3,900,000, and even allowing for $1,700,000 expended in a rebellion, a deficit would still remain of $2,200,000. He understood the minister to estimate the expenditure of the coming year altogether at about $38,500,000. Part of this, $3,500,000 expected payments on account of the rebellion was charged to capital. H protested against this as un-business like and absurd. If it was desired to keep a capital account, only amounts should be charged to it which were represented by some asset. But what became of this great sum? It was blown into powder and smoke in a rebellion caused by the Government's mismanagement of the Northwest. Instead of a drfecit of $1,400,000 as the Finance Minister expected, even if his expectations were realized, the actual deficit would be $4,900,000. Last year the Finance Minister had estimated expenditure at $29,811,000. The sum expended was $35,000,000 and deducting $1,700,000, proportion of the cos of the rebellion charged to that year, the estimate had been exceeded by $3,500,000. He feared that for the coming year $35,000,000 would be required instead of $33,124,000 and that there would be a deficit for which new taxes would not make provision.

Sir Richard Cartwright's reply to Mr. McLellan was perhaps the ablest he ever delivered. It covered the whole ground, and was given with a spirit in marked contrast to the uniform dullness which marked the delivery of the Finance Minister's speech. He severely censured the Government for the pernicious system of substituting specific for ad valorem duties, which tend to add to that kind of taxation which specially falls on the poorer classes. There is scarcely an article of general consumption now on the free list except tea. Every other article required in the household is taxed more or less. The system of imposing specific duties is for the ostensible purpose of reducing importations and encouraging the manufacture of articles at home. But this doctrine is very restricted in its application, for specific instead of ad valorem duties is now imposed on a long list of articles which cannot be made or produced in the country. A country such as ours may go too far in this respect. The United States tarift has had the tendency to largely decrease the imports from Britain into that country. But Britain on the other hand, when she finds that she cannot pay for American wheat in goods, has got tired of sending over her gold, and now buys a large percentage of her wheat in India which she pays for in manufactured goods. There years ago, the United States contributed fifty per cent. of Britain's wheat consumption, and India only fifteen per per cent. Last year India contributed about ferty-five per cent. of the whole, and the United States only fifteen per cent. As a consequence the visible and invisible supply of wheat upon this continent is enormous; and there is an unparalleled glut in the wheat market. To this fact we believe is owing to some extent the present commercial depression in the States, and if Britain adopts the same policy towards Canada what will be our position then, and what will be the position especially of our farmers?

A TENDENCY

Of The Times.

Friday April 2nd, 1886.

We say "a tendency," as we do not now imply that our remarks refer to the leading tendency of the times, but "a Tendency of the Times" is to pass the spurious for the real, to represent the counterfeit as the genuine. Hence, Shoddy is made to appear like Wool, Jute looks like Silk, Cotton is manipulated and sold for Linen. This is not alone the rule in Dry Goods, but in every other branch of manufacture. We confine ourselves however to the discussion of Dry Goods.

One reason for this is the continual pressure on the manufacturer to produce APPEARANCE and CHEAPNESS, which is done at the sacrifice of QUALITY. Something is wanted that catches the eye. Lines of goods are specially sought for to produce the impression of cheapness. Certain people in business are continually on the look-out for that kind of stuff. Of course it is no benefit to the purchaser, he thinks he buys wool and gets shoddy, he imagines he buys silk and has jute, he pays for the real and gets the spurious. It is no benefit to the dealer, his tether is not a very long one, he is soon found out and hardly gets the chance to gull the same victim a second time. Look about you and see who are the solid and successful manufacturers and merchants of our land. The men who produce honest goods, the men who sell honest goods. They come out all right in the long run. They merit the public confidence and they get it, while the apostles of deceit are wiped off the scene almost as fast as the polish off their goods. They have to get out of business every few years. They shine for a while but their light soon dims.

For our own part, we shall steadily adhere to the principle of "Honest Goods at Fair Prices" We have reason to know this plan works to the satisfaction of our customers as well as ourselves.

CHAPTER XXI.

WAITING.

As Helen grew stronger she began to accompany Mr. Longworthy on his parish rounds. She was both fond of walking and a good walker, and Mr. Longworthy was of opinion that in her present state of unavoidable suspense and wearing uncertainty, the more she could be taken out of herself the better. So almost every morning he took her with him when he went out after breakfast, and they spent the morning together walking and talking. He seldom took her into the cottages with him. The people of Miller's Gate were not fond of strangers, and were over hasty in judging them as intruders. Neither did he think she would get any good from what she saw or heard there. She showed far more fortitude in bearing her trouble than she would have learned from any of the people she would come in contact with, and he very quickly saw that she had no natural leaning towards visiting the poor sick, though she had done it as a duty among her husband's tenants at home. So he very wisely did not insist, for he knew that had he required it, mingled feelings would have impelled her to make the effort, however distasteful to herself. So when he went into a cottage she either sat down or strolled about till he came out.

These walks gave each a clear insight into the character of the other. They talked a great deal; there were few subjects which they did not discuss, and the after feeling left by these conversations was of increased respect one for the other. One of their most frequent topics was Helen's position, and what it would be best to do in the future. Mr. Longworthy was still of opinion that painful though it would be in many ways Helen's best course would be to simply inform her husband that she was alive and to let that statement be followed up by an explanation of all that had happened to her since leaving home. This Helen could not make up her mind to do. She clung with the morbid persistency of a person not in good health to the security of her own position as a married woman, and the humiliation which her return to Percival must of necessity bring upon Alice. Mr. Longworthy was perplexed by this feeling, which he took to be the result of brooding over the matter alone before she was strong enough to take a healthy view of it. The best antidote to that, he thought, would be to encourage her to talk about it, and, by asking questions, to make her feel that neither he nor his wife would ever fail to be interested in the matter. He was too wise to combat her fears and scruples openly, he scarcely mentioned them, but trusted to the common sense of his own view and her growing respect for him to gradually impress these views upon her and cause them to take the place of her own. He was not at all sorry that they had these few months in which to think things over, to get a clearer view of the situation, and to become acquainted through Helen with the character of her husband and Alice. He was a remarkable man in that he had none of that love so common among his countrymen of being "up and doing." He never rushed into action, but thought no time, however long, ill spent if—passed in study and reflection—it led to a firmer grasp of the situation, served to throw more light upon it, or showed him that one of his pet theories concerning it was erroneous. Helen could not have had a better adviser. Patience was his watchword, and under his tutelage Helen was learning to be patient.

By this time it was autumn with the breath of approaching winter perceptible under the heavy trees. At such a time one is reminded suddenly that when the sun goes down the grey-bearded old man is wont to sally forth from his hiding place and to roam through the woods till daybreak. Then he retires, leaving as tokens of his passing and reminders that he will come again, here a branch that a touch of his long, lean finger has turned from green to gold, or a thin, white coating on the pools in the road, or a network of dewy cobwebs to brush across the face of the first passer-by in the morning. As a rule he steals along very gently, giving ample warning of his coming. The mark left by the touch of his finger, and which no one sees but those who are up before the sun, is no more than a suggestion of the iron grasp which by and by he will lay upon the land. The red and yellow leaves are so beautiful, we forget they are but the beginning of the end, to fade and die in their turn and become one with the earth from which they sprang. It is perhaps the most beautiful time of the year, and to people born and bred in the country full of feelings which no other season can stir. Helen loved it, and so did Mr. Longworthy, who had lived so long at Miller's Gate as almost to have forgotten that there had been a time when these signs of the times had passed unheeded in the busy whirl of town life.

On such a typical early autumn morning, when the sun was just chasing away the haze which obscured the clear blue of the sky, the clergyman and Helen went out of the rectory soon after breakfast to begin their morning walk. Helen still looked delicate; her strength did not come back as it should have done. Her mental troubles reacted upon her physically, and prevented a return to perfect health. But she never complained, she always asserted that she grew stronger day by day, that she had been renounced at home for an undesirable spareness of figure, and many other little myths and legends which she was pleased to invent to allay the anxiety of her friends.

In the garden they paused, each gathered a flower, and presented it to the other, first touching it with the lips, which Mr. Longworthy assured Helen had been the custom when he was a boy in that part of the country from which he came, then they began their walk. The house at which the Rector had to call first, because the farmer's wife, an old friend of his, was dying, lay at the far end of the village, so they had time for a long conversation before being parted.

Mr. Longworthy began to speak of the future. Despite the brightness of the morning, Helen was in rather a desponding mood, inclined to take all the blame of what had happened upon herself.

"Percival warned me more than once not to act in that impulsive, headlong way, and he was right. If I had not changed my mind in the train in that way, I——"

"You would have died a very terrible death," put in her companion quietly.

"Yes, that is true, but I should have been out of the way, and this awful complication would have been avoided. Alice would have been Percival's wife, and I should not have had to make this decision. They would have been left in peace."

"That is a question very open to dispute. From what you have told me, and my own knowledge of human nature, I think it exceedingly improbable that Mr Moore and your sister will remain long at peace. In such cases things generally go from bad to worse. You will probably find when you return to your husband that you are saving them both from a life of misery."

He always spoke as though it was a matter of course that Helen would go back. He felt convinced that when she was perfectly well again she would see the moral necessity of it, and he thought it well to accustom her mind to the idea.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRES.

Nearly Fifty Thousand Swept Away in Several Towns.

PORT ROWAN, April 2.—A destructive fire broke out this morning about 5 o'clock in rear of the tin store of Mr. George Pitman, and in a very short time the buildings on both sides of the Main street were one mass of flames. The houses were all frame buildings, and no exertion could possibly save them. Stearn's Hotel and the Ocean House escaped damage. Altogether eighteen places of business were destroyed, and the loss will be about $30,000.

BERLIN, April 2.—About 5 o'clock this afternoon fire was discovered in the gas works, and before the engine could get down the building was doomed to destruction. The business people are likely to be left in darkness for some days. Insurance not known. Loss, $15,000.

PORT ELGIN, April 2.—Yesterday evening, about nine o'clock, a fire broke out in the pattern sheds to the rear of the foundry, destroying all the contents, amounting to about $2,000. No insurance.

OWEN SOUND, April 2.—About three o'clock this morning fire was discovered in the dwelling occupied by Mr. Leitch, Hill street, owned by J. C. Flowers, of this town. The fire is supposed to have originated from a defective stovepipe. Building and contents a total loss; building insured in the Mercantile for $300.

IRISH HOME RULE.

Mr. Gladstone Denounced at a Great Meeting in London.

LONDON, April 2.—A great mass meeting was held this afternoon in Guildhall to protest against the granting of a parliament to Ireland. The Lord Mayor presided. Sir John Lubbock (Liberal and member for London University) moved the adoption of a resolution condemning Mr. Gladstone for his intention of "handing Ireland over to Parnell, whom he had previously denounced." A workingman arose and offered an amendment to Sir John's resolution, but he was howled down. The resolution was carried amid wild enthusiasm, but 200 persons in the immense audience voting in the negative.

Mr. Gladstone is riding straight for a fall, the Pall Mall Gazette declares this afternoon. "He refuses," says the Gazette, "to modify his Irish scheme, and the result will be that the majority will have neither home rule in Ireland nor Mr. Gladstone."

DUBLIN, April 2.—The Freeman's Journal, commenting on the growing opposition of the Scotch members to granting Ireland a parliament, threatens that if the Scotch members help to defeat Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule bill the Parnellites will adopt a policy of relentless opposition to every Scotch measure.

THE MAIL FIRE.

No Clue Yet Obtained to Unravel the Mystery.

TORONTO, April 3.—Mr. C. F. Sise, Vice-President of the Bell Telephone Company of Canada, came up from Montreal and was busy all day yesterday and last night with matters connected with the fire. Both Mr. Sise and Mr. Neilson, the Toronto manager, are strong in their convictions that Arthur Porter's story about being assaulted by burglars about the time the fire broke out is true. On the other hand the dectives who are investigating the mystery scout the idea of cracksmen being in the building.

The day after the fire Dective Duddy and Acting Dectective Davis examined the doors of the safe as thoroughly as possible and are positive that there had been no attempt at drilling or any other means by which the combination could be wrecked. Several parties who examined the door were positive that no signs of drill holes existed.

When Mr. Sise went up to the wrecked exchange yesterday the first thing he did was to examine the safe door. About four or five inches below the combination he says he discovered two small holes. He at once sent to Goldie & McCulloch's for an expert. The latter gave it as his opinion that a start had been made with a quarter-inch drill to bore holes in the safe door. The marks were only surface ones. The expert says that if the burglars were at work they did not understand their business, because they were too far off to do any harm to the combination.

The revised theories of the origin of the fire are numerous. Porter's story, which was told to Mr. Neilson and the solicitor of the company, is as follows: At 11.30 on Wednesday night, while there was still another operator with him (who usually left at midnight) he thought he heard a noise in the attic above the exchange. He procured a dark lantern, went upstairs and made a minute search, but could find no trace of any one in the place. He returned to the exchange and nothing further occurred until the struggle, already described, took place in the hall, where he claims he was knocked senseless by two men, and he remembers nothing until he woke up three hours afterwards in the Mail press room.

It may be mentioned that the only visible sign of violence on Porter's face is is a red mark under his eye. There are no bruises such as would be made by a club or blunt instrument. It was customary for Porter to exchange calls every morning at 3.30 with the Walker house and the Yorkville office. This he did as usual on Thursday morning. Half an hour later (3 a.m.) when the Walker house called him up no answer could be obtained. That was the last heard of Porter until he was found unconscious in the hallway, a silk handkerchief which he usually wore around his neck, tied loosely over his mouth.

The discovery of alleged holes in the safe door, after their own close investigation, has greatly exercised the detectives, and they quietly put their finger on their nose and draw a long breath. It would be of the utmost interest to the public to have the mystery thoroughly unravelled. There is no doubt that if no one does it, the insurance people will.

Asphyxiated.

TORONTO, April 2.—Frank Harrison and Charles Dale, both of Doncaster, and apparently farm hands, hired a room at the Little York Hotel, corner of King and John streets, and retired soberly about half-past 11. Between 8 and 9 this morning a chambermaid passing the room detected the odor of gas and alarmed the proprietor, who, with assistance, burst open the door. The room was full of gas, the tap of the bracket being turned on full. Dr. Oldwright was called in at once and pronounced life extinct in Harrison. The other's chance of recovery was very poor at first but the doctor now thinks he may pull through.

Three Months Failures.

NEW YORK, April 2.—R. G. Dun & Co. report business failures in the first quarter of 1886 to the number of 3,203 in the United States with liabilities slightly over $29,000,000. In the first three months of 1885 they numbered 3,658 with liabilities of $46,000,000. The liabilities of the quarter just closed are less than in any similiar period since 1873. In Canada the failures for the first quarter of 1886 number 389 with liabilities of $3,442,000, as against 393 failures and $2,827,000 liabilities in the first three months of 1885. In the first quarter of 1883 and 1884 the liabilities in Canada were over $5,000,000 in each quarter.

To the Bitter End.

MONTREAL, April 2.—At a meeting of the officers of the 65th battalion it was proposed to take measures to force the Toronto News to make a full and satisfactory retraction of the libellous article against the regiment, in default of which actions for damages are threatened by every officer for $1,000, non-commissioned officers $250 each, and private $99.99 each; total for the whole battalion, $70,000.

Rioting at St. John's.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 1.—A riot occurred here last evening, when a mob, demanding labor and railroad extension, assembled around the Parliament buildings with flags, stormed the Assembly House, routed the police and broke into the Council Chamber, planting their banner on the table of the House.

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

The Newest. The Best.

The driving public in Canada now demand low riding vehicles, and the above gear will answer the most particular in that respect. By using a superior quality of steel in the axles, side bars and springs, we are enabled to secure the greatest possible lightness, and at the same time guarantee strength and durability far beyond the ordinary. By manufacturing all the parts in large quantities by machinery, we can afford to make prices LOW, and all seeing and using our goods know their many superior qualities. Sample buggies finished on above gear, on exhibition at our warerooms. Carriage builders and others freely furnished with full information, by mail, or personally.

Funeral of a Chinese Millionaire.

The Vanderbilt of China has just died and been buried. Not much is known in Europe of his life, less of his death, but his burial is reported to have been most picturesque. His pace of Hang-Chou was a miracle of luxury, and in creating this banker a provincial judge, and specially authorizing him to wear a yellow jacket, the Emperor of China made him the envy of all his other subjects.

But the glory of his funeral seems to have surpassed the splendor of his life. The whole city turned out to see the procession. First came a mob of coolies weighed down with leaflets, on which were written moral sentences and apothegms. Then followed a procession of lantern bearers, supported by a band of musicians with gongs, cymbals, and trumpets. It is hard to conceive anything less funereal. A hundred little boys came after the band, brandishing the heraldic arms of the deceased; the boys were followed by the bearers of his portrait.

Groups of guests came next in procession, some in white, some in scarlet, some in yellow; then bearers of lamps, banners, parasols, and fans; next the master of the ceremonies in white robes, on a white horse, preceding an enormous tent, under which the relatives of the deceased moved, entirely hidden from public view, and last the coffin, borne on the shoulders of twenty-four men.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Mineral Poison.

Nothing but pure extracts from plants and roots are used in preparing McGregor's Lung Compound, the modern and now popular remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis, croup, asthma, and all affections of the throat, lungs and chest. All mineral poisons and dangerous substances avoided, which renders it safe for children or adults. Sold at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at Thomas S. Petrie's Drug Store

At a meeting of wholesale dry goods merchants, held on Friday in Montreal, a deputation was appointed to visit Ottawa and protest against certain of the tariff changes which they held discriminated unfairly against the trade. It was also decided to endeavour to secure the cooperation of the trade throughout the Dominion.

University Boat Race.

The English Universities boat race, which annually takes place on the River Thames, excites but little interest in Canada, but it is still a great event in Great Britain. Saturday's race was won by Cambridge, which also came in ahead last year. Since 1829, when the inter-university boat races were inaugurated, there have been 43 contests. Of these, Oxford has won 24, Cambridge 18, and one was a dead heat.

Hanlan and Beach.

Mr. Gladstone Inflexible.

LONDON, April 4.—A breaking up of the Cabinet is imminent. Lord Kimberley, Sir Wm. Harcourt, Mr. Childers and Mr. Mundella refuse to assent to any Home Rule measure giving Ireland control of the customs and they threaten to resign if such a measure is insisted upon by Mr. Gladstone. Mr. Morley demands a modification of the plans for the buying out of landlords. Mr. Gladstone, however, remains inflexible and will maintain his full scheme intact. Cabinet councils are to be held on Monday and Tuesday and the climax will be reached on Tuesday. The ministers themselves admit that an agreement seems improbable. Mr. Gladstone may make his statement on Thursday without the approval of the ministry.

Balloting for Seats.

LONDON, April 3.—All the members of Parliament except forty have balloted for places for friends in the gallery during the Home Rule debate. Twent pounds is offered for a seat on the night of Mr. Gladstone's statement. Over five hundred distinguished persons have applied to the speaker for seats. The scene at the ballot resembled that on the stock exchange or in a betting ring.

The opinion is growing in England that Gladstone is courting defeat on the Home Rule question.

SIMCOE, April 4.—At 12:30 this morning a fire broke out in the Simcoe House, kept by George Walmsley. It was first discovered by Chas. Powell, who, after some difficulty, roused the proprietor and his family. He was then informed that the hostler, Geo. Cuhningham, was upstairs. He endeavored to reach his room, but was unable to do so, and had to make his escape by jumping to the ground from a window in the second flat. The building was entirely consumed and the charred bones of the unfortunate man were afterwards found among the ruins. Loss on building about $800, covered by insurance.

NORTH WELLINGTON.—At the Revising Officer's preliminary Court of Revision, for the North Riding of Wellington, which commenced in Arthur on Tuesday, 475 names were added to the voters' lists. Mr. W. W. White, of Arthur Village, appeared on behalf of the Conservative party; and Messrs. Ferguson, Listowell; Sheppard and Kilgour, Mt. Forest; Olliver, Palmerston; John Park, East Luther; and Ebles, of Harriston, did a like service for the Reform party.

FUNERAL OF MR. CHAS. HEATH.—The funeral of the late Chas. Heath took place yesterday afternoon from his residence in Puslinch, and was very largely attended considering the bad state of the roads. There was quite a number from Guelph City and other surrounding places present. The pall-bearers were Postmaster Stirton, Messrs. Alf. Howitt, James Anderson, Thos. Kernighan, Thos. Pallister, jr., and D. Sorby. The remains were taken to their last resting place in the Kirkland burying ground.

THE BELL ORGAN.—During the month of March Messrs. W. Bell & Co. manufactured and shipped 465 organs, being the largest turn out from the establishment since the institution of the firm. This is more than the combined production of all the other factories in Canada for one mone month, and the Company have just reason to be congratulated on their success, which could only be gained by merit and perseverance.

TAKEN SICK FROM HOME.—A citizen of Guelph went to Toronto last week, accompanied by his little nine year old daughter, to visit friends in that city. He volunteered to show his child the sights of that metropolis. After quite a lonf tramp the parent suddenly became very sick, and asked his offspring to wait for him while he consulted a physician. The father on rejoining his daughter, in answer to the inquiry, remarked that he felt much better and was almost relieved of his pain. On arriving home the child told the circumstances to her mother, and on being asked who was the doctor, replied that she did not know, but it was spelt restaurant on the sign board, for she had lots of time to spell the name while her father was getting cured.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The attendance at the Rink Saturday afternoon and night was very large and extremely satisfactory to the management. The audience was in the highest degree fashionable and respectable, and the evening's enjoyment was enhanced by the presence of the City Band who played in their usual brilliant and exceptional manner. The ladies in numbers slightly predominated, the skating element being nearly one half of the female persuasion. The wheelbarrow race was very amusing, and the audience laughed heartily at the tendency of the wheelbarrow to turn around and insist on the skater going in the opposite direction. The race was won by R. Fields, J. Bunyan a close second, and Heck Finlay third. To-morrow night the first of the series of five games will be played between the City Band vs. Guelph Polo Clubs (the last three having been draws) for a silver cup and the championship of the city. The same players on both sides will participate and a hot and close game may be expected. The City Band will be present.

SALVATION ARMY FUNERAL.—Yesterday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. J. J. Sutton took place from her husband's residence on Grove street. Six of the men soldiers carried the coffin to the hearse on Arthur street, wearing bands of white with the letter S on their arm. The coffin was covered with bunting of red, orange and blue, and the flag of the Army with white streamers was carried, drooping over the coffin, by the standard bearer. A procession was formed and the remains taken to the barracks, arriving there about two o'clock. The coffin was borne into the building, by six of the sisters and placed in the front, after which the Army sang and prayed, the flag still being held over the coffin. Capt. Fisher, of Toronto, then read a portion of Scripture and afterwards gave a very nice address. The ceremony altogether was solemnly conducted. The remains were taken back to the hearse by the same lady soldiers, when a procession was again formed and the soldiers marched to the cemetery playing and singing hymns on the route. The sidewalks were lined with hundreds of people, to witness the cortege. In the evening a memorial service was held and the barracks, as in the afternoon, was so crowded that scarcely standing room could be found.

There was not a very large attendance, but it was noticeable that many of the older residents of the city who had gained his more immediate acquaintance were present. The remains were taken to St. George's Church where short services were conducted by the Ven. Archdeacon Dixon and the Rev. Mr. Irving. The large church was well filled. The pallbearers were Dr. Clarke, Thos. Saunders, E. F. B. Johnston, Judge Chadwick, J. A. Nelles, and Chas. Bourne, Jarvis. The coffin was covered with handsome wreaths and flowers.

DEATH OF MR. T. H. COOPER.—Mr. T.H. Cooper, District Superintendent Central Division Grand Trunk Railway, died in Montreal on Sunday afternoon. Mr. Cooper entered the service of the Buffalo & Lake Huron Railway about 1856-57, as ticket agent at Brantford, and continued in the employment of the road till its amalgamation with the Grand Trunk, rising step by step. He was Assistant Superintendent of the Grand Trunk in Toronto for several years, and was afterwards moved to Belleville. On the formation of the Central Division from Montreal to Toronto, in 1883, he was appointed to the District Superintendency, the position he held at the time of his death. He was very fond of Toronto, and at his special request will be buried there on Wednesday next. The following telegram was sent on Sunday by Mr. James Stephenson, Superintendent of the Grand Trunk, to all agents, operators, trainmen, and others on the line: "Our old and esteemed friend, Mr. T. H. Cooper, died this afternoon at 3.45. Body will be taken to Toronto for burial. All the employees who can be spared from duty, will receive passes, should they desire to attend. I would suggest that each of us wear mourning for the period of one month by placing a mourning band on the left arm."

NEWS FROM FORMOSA.

Interesting Letters From the Rev. Dr. Mackay.

Tamsui, Feb. 5th, 1886.

My dear brother and sister,— . . . . I left here Oct. 28th, and never once came from the country until Feb. 1st; three months away, during which time I built three splendid stone churches. There are no churches in all Oxford equal to them in appearance. You will hardly believe it. Mrs. M. says she saw very few like them going round the world, and she is right. I had 200 men at work, dispensed medicines, and preached, besides travelling twenty miles a day. Mr. Jamieson is here two years and over. . . . A-Hoa and he help me. They were delighted at getting your letters. The letters were put away as keep-sakes. I have now 36 churches, and the students travelling as of old with me. There is snow now on the tops of the mountains. In a few days all will be gone, though. I am off again next week and will go all round, then will build two more churches, then open Oxford College and Girls' School. . . . Remember me to my true and devoted friend, W. A. Mackay. He has proved himself my staunch friend. Don't forget him. Your affectionate brother,

GEORGE.

Tamsui, Formosa, Feb. 10.

The Chinese Imperial Commissioner, Len Beng Chuan, or General Loo, as he is sometimes called, arrived here from Pekin to fight the French. He led his troops and conducted himself according to the customs of Western Powers. Deserters from the French lines were treated kindly and $100 besides given to each man. Before the French left I carried the British flag, passed through the Chinese lines and marched up to the General's door. He gave me a warm reception. I changed the British, hoisted the white flag, entered the French lines, was met by eight Frenchmen who put cartridges in their guns in an instant, dropped on their knees, levelled their rifles and were just going to fire. Their eyes flashed with rage and their bodies trembled with excitement.

The General is still here and is the highest official in the Island. He exposed the Taotai of Taimanfoo, proved that he swindled the Government out of tens of thousands of dollars. Two Chinese war ships came to Kelung with two high Mandarins from Pekin, the one a Tartar, the other a Chinaman. The Taotai was tried in Bang-Kah, found guilty and chained, taken to Foochow. He is condemned to be bound to a large stone for life. General Loo is fortifying Tamsui and Kelung. Here he has already built a large stone building for torpedoes. He has selected good places for forts on the tops of hills around Kelung. He has about three thousand soldiers in from a place called Sintiam making their way through savage country to the east coast. Already eight villages of the aborigines have come over without any fighting. The General had many out of Bang-Kah, treated them kindly, and sent them back. Scores of them have been out to my Chinese dwelling-house at Sintiam. I think there will be a road made very soon to the east side of the Island. This is a grand move, and is being conducted by a humane and able warrior. For the first time since I landed here, fourteen years ago, the Bang-Kah people are compelled to keep their streets, etc., clean. Men are pambooed nearly every day in the streets for neglect of this duty. The General lives near by. All is quiet in North Formosa now. The drilling of soldiers according to western ideas and the building of forts are the order of the day. Two American drill sergeants are employed, also an American doctor for the troops. This vast Empire is waking up, and western powers cannot afford to treat her with contempt. Her unknown resources will be developed in due time, and this mighty nation with her teeming millions will be such a formidable foe that no western power will dare to trifle with her rights. Prejudices will have to give way before stubborn facts.

PROVINCIAL FAT STOCK SHOW.

A meeting of the Committee of the Guelph Fat Stock Club was held on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Present, Mr. John Phin, President, Messrs. Adam A. Armstrong, John Tuck, James Laidlaw, jr., I. Dyson, Ald. Hearn, Jas. Millar, Jas. Taylor, D. Messenger, T. Manderson, James Anderson.

The object of the meeting was to take into consideration the advisability of having the Christmas Provincial Fat Stock Show in Guelph.

The Secretary read a communication from Mr. Henry Wade, Secretary of the Ontario and Agricultural and Arts Association, in answer to a card sent to that gentleman asking on what terms it was proposed to bring the Provincial Fat Stock Show to Guelph. The reply stated—We have $500 towards Fat Stock Show. Before other clubs or societies have also put in $500 to make a good prize list. I do not know if any other terms will be accepted. I will see some of our Committee and let you know. Toronto wants to get it, but we are holding off until we get promises of a good building. We want to know at once from you in order to get our prize list in the Provincial.

Ald. Hearn thought that the County Council should give a liberal grant towards bringing the show to Guelph. Little could be expected from the city as it would be saddled with a big share of the expenses of the Provincial Exhibition in Guelph this year. He had little doubt but the Council would guarantee the necessary buildings for the show, and supply the gas, but he was doubtful if they would give much of a grant.

Mr. Millar remarked that the Club had never asked the city for a cent to their shows, and they had held two each year for five years. The city collected all the market fees for the cattle that came into the fair ground, and he thought that the Council should do something in the way of a grant. If the show was no benefit to the city he was sure it was not to the Fat Stock Club. Ask any of the business men around town and they would state that more money was expended in the city during the time of holding the Fat Stock Show than there was when the Central and even the Provincial Exhibitions were held.

Ald. Hearn did not dispute the benefit of the show to certain individuals. He was in favor of having it if the money could be raised.

Mr. Messenger remarked that the County did not do what it should in encouraging these shows. The farmers reaped quite a benefit from them by increased prices, a better market and keen competition.

Mr. Jas. Taylor thought of the City Council might give $200 or $300 and fix up the drill shed and furnish the gas, the Club would be able to raise the balance.

Mr. James Anderson would not be in favor of giving one cent. The last time the Provincial show was here the Club lost heavily by it, and they had not even the privilege of controlling their own affairs. There was a lot of unnecessary advertising done which could have been dispensed with.

Mr. Millar said that Guelph had always had a good show whether the Provincial Fat Stock Show was held in Guelph or elsewhere, and he had no doubt but, in the event of the Provincial going elsewhere, they would have an equally good one this year. The cream of the stock in this section and buyers would come to Guelph anyhow.

It was suggested that some of the township councils might give something, if the County Council did not. The prospect of the County Council giving anything was discussed and the opinion generally expressed was that such liberality need not be looked for—not that the ratepayers would for a moment object to the small fraction of taxation, but from their representatives at the Council. On the question of collecting the amount, some of the previous collectors were strongly averse to it, because they had found it a very difficult task. While the city had given liberally heretofore, it was hard to get anything in the country, and now the townsfolk were becoming sick of having to give donations to so many different societies and associations. The following motions were then made:

Moved by Ald. Hearn, seconded by Jas. Millar, that the Guelph Fat Stock Club are in favor of holding the annual Provincial Fat Stock Show in Guelph this year, but do not see their way clear to rant the sum of $500 for that purpose, but will guarantee all the necessary accommodation. Carried.

Moved by James Millar, seconded by Thos. Manderson, that in the event of the Provincial Fat Stock Show not being held in Guelph, that Tuesday and Wednesday, the 14th and 15th December, be the days for holding the annual Guelph Fat Stock Show and Fair. Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

The Vote To-Morrow.

Just a closing word on the bonus by-law. We have no fear but there will be a majority in its favor of those who vote. The by-law is not in danger of being lost on the vote recorded. But we would again remind all freeholders and lease holders that it is in great danger of being lost through the necessary number of two-fifths votes of the whole number of voters not being polled for the by-law. It is incumbent on every free holder or lease holder who favours this by-law to record his ballot. It will not do to trust to others, for the by-law may be lost through an insufficient number voting. All the polling places will be open from 9 o'clock till 5 to-morrow. None can excuse themselves from voting for lack of opportunity. And it is not only necessary to vote. There should be a number of those interested in seeing the by-law passed stationed at every polling place to bring out indifferent voters. The result means a good deal to the city, and every effort should be put forth to ensure a satisfactory one.

A Fresh Railway Scandal.

Quite an excitement was raised in the Parliamentary Railway Committee at Ottawa on Wednesday, over a bill amending the Act for the construction of the Northwest Central Railway, which was originally chartered under the name of the Souris and Rocky Mountain Railway. The road is designed to run from Brandon in a northwest direction, through the Touchwood Hills, on to Battleford, thence to Edmonton, and on to the Peace River. Mr. Beaty, one of the members for Toronto, is the chief promoter of the road, but when the charter was first obtained he had associated with him as one of his chief directors and wire-pullers Mr. Woodworth, one of the members from Nova Scotia, who is known as the Tory bully. This enterprise receives from the Dominion Government at the price of $1.06 per acre, 6,400 acres of land per mile. The location of this land gives it a market value of $4.00 per acre. The subsidies of the road amount to something like $25,000 per mile while $15,000 per mile would construct it. Beaty sold to Messrs Young & Gemmill, of Winnipeg, so Mr. Woodworth states, $350,000 worth of Souris and Rocky Mountain stock, as the Northwest Central never issued any, and these gentlemen were to hand back to Beaty one-fourth of the stock for nothing. Beaty, however, admits having $386,000 of stock on which ten per cent was paid, but not by him. This stock he says was awarded to him for his services, in connection with the road. If this was not profiting by his influence with the Government as a member of Parliament, then actions have no logical interpretation. Beaty and Woodworth in time quarrelled over their plunder and through this quarrel came the revelations. Woodworth was removed from the board of directors and replaced by another Nova Scotian Tory member, Mr. Charles Tupper, son of old Sir Charles, who seems an apt scholar in getting his hand into this kind of political work.

In order to understand how the revelations came out at the committee meeting on Wednesday we would state that Mr. Blake in his speech at London last January made a reference to a railway transaction of this kind, and Woodworth, thinking that the cap was made to fit him, wrote Mr. Blake denying that there was any foundation for the statement. But his coarse attack on Beaty roused that gentleman's ire, and he in retaliation read the following letters from Woodworth:

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

February 19th, 1885.

MY DEAR BEATY,—From your question to me to day, and deportment, coupled with the incidents from the time since we had an understanding how matters should stand between us regarding the Northwest Central, the conviction is irresistibly thrust upon me that you have other views besides carrying out the solemn agreement you made with me, at or about the beginning of last session of Parliament, viz: that after giving fifty thousand dollars to certain of the directors of the company, you and I were to equally divide emoluments and gains in and about the building, bonusing and equiping of the road.

I went to New York on a certain mission last week, which you know, and yet if you had told me the facts I need not have gone. You have taken apparently the whole thing to yourself, ignoring our stipulations and agreement. If this is really so I shall deem it my duty to see that the free grant is not given until things are made a little satisfactory.

I am sorry to be forced to write this letter, but it is better that you should know how I feel about the matter before you go further. As yet I have said nothing to anyone.

Believe me, yours very truly,

(Signed) D. B. WOODWORTH.

Mr. Beaty did not deign to answer the above, and so Woodworth wrote this second letter:

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

TO JAMES BEATY, ESQ., Q. C., M. P.

SIR,—I wrote you some time ago regarding my interest and position in the Northwest Central Railway charter & co.

You have not condescended to give me the courtesy of a reply but have gone on without attempting to come to any understanding with me. I assure you now that you will not further your object by this kind of treatment. If I do not hear from you during the next day or two I shall take my own course, however disagreeable that may be to my feelings. I have the honor to be, yours very truly.

(Signed) D. B. WOODWORTH.

It was now Woodworth's turn to be even with Beaty, who had previously denied that there was any such agreement between them as stated by Woodworth. To show that he was acting with Beaty throughout in this matter, he read to the committee an extract from a letter dated Toronto, May 21, 1884 and written by Beaty to him at Ottawa. This extract is as follows:

....I wish before you go from Ottawa you will see that the order in council is passed and advise me.

I want to write to Codd, but I do not intend to say that the land is sure until the order is passed. I may tell you that the Wood Mountain and Qu'Appelle road order was passed on Friday, and the manager of a col. co., was so advised by telegram. It is important to get it through at once, so that the financial arrangements may be hastened before the summer holidays in England. Delay is a great danger now.

You ought to see Sir John, he will I think facilitate.

He will see the importance of haste. If the land were passed, the crisis would be reached, as we could soon determine whether the money could be had or not.

Do not fail to have the order passed at once.

Yours faithfully,

JAMES BEATY.

Such were the revelations made before the Railway Committee, which are shameful in their nature and bring disgrace on the chief actors. Here we have two members of Parliament, supporters of the Government, using their position and influence with that Government to obtain a grant of land and then divide the spoil between them, which would be made up of municipal bonuses, sales of stock &c. This is but a fair sample of the many and gigantic frauds that have for years been carried on in the Northwest, and in which members of Parliament, supporters of the Government, were in nine cases out of ten the principal actors. At a subsequent meeting of the Committee this scandal will be still further ventilated, and we hope all the facts in the case will be brought out to the utter and permanent disgrace of Beaty and Woodworth, who have been using their position as representatives of the people to feather their own nests, and who are unworthy any longer to be members of Parliament.

THE New Brunswick Legislature during the recent session passed an Act enabling unmarried women and widows to vote at municipal elections in the right of property.

THE New Brunswick Legislature was prorogued and dissolved on Friday. Nominations for the new Provincial elections are to take place on the 19th inst., and the elections on the 26th.

THE Tory Government of Manitoba, like the Tory opposition of Ontario, consider the interests of their Province only secondary to those of the Dominion Government. Both are willing to abandon the rights of their respective provinces whenever their chief at Ottawa overrides them. A fresh proof of the Manitoba's Govt. faithlessness was afforded last week, when the question of the disallowance of local railway charters was discussed in the Local Legislature. A motion asking for the reason of the disallowance of certain Bills by the Governor-General in Council, and the Opposition amendment reaffirming the rights of the Province were defeated. Manitoba will never get justice so long as she is governed by the Norquay stamp of politicians.

A TENDENCY

Of The Times.

Friday April 2nd, 1886.

We say "a tendency," as we do not now imply that our remarks refer to the leading tendency of the times, but "a Tendency of the Times" is to pass the spurious for the real, to represent the counterfeit as the genuine. Hence, Shoddy is made to appear like Wool, Jute looks like Silk, Cotton is manipulated and sold for Linen. This is not alone the rule in Dry Goods, but in every other branch of manufacture. We confine ourselves however to the discussion of Dry Goods.

One reason for this is the continual pressure on the manufacturer to produce APPEARANCE and CHEAPNESS, which is done at the sacrifice of QUALITY. Something is wanted that catches the eye. Lines of goods are specially sought for to produce the impression of cheapness. Certain people in business are continually on the look-out for that kind of stuff. Of course it is no benefit to the purchaser, he thinks he buys wool and gets shoddy, he imagines he buys silk and has jute, he pays for the real and gets the spurious. It is no benefit to the dealer, his tether is not a very long one, he is soon found out and hardly gets the chance to gull the same victim a second time. Look about you and see who are the solid and successful manufacturers and merchants of our land. The men who [illegible] honest goods, the men who sell honest goods. They come out all right in the long run. They merit the public confidence and they get it, while the apostles of deceit are wiped off the scene almost as fast as the polish off their goods. They have to get out of business every few years. They shine for a while but their light soon dims.

For our own part, we shall steadily adhere to the principle of "Honest Goods at Fair Prices." We have reason to know this plan works to the satisfaction of our customers as well as ourselves.

CHAPTER XXI.

WAITING.

They went on talking, Mr. Longworthy doing his best to lighten Helen's depression, and succeeding once or twice in winning a smile from her. The fresh autumn air was bracing and laden with health; even Helen felt as if she could walk for ever, and she had gone much further than usual before discovering that she was jired, and that the thought of the walk home again filled her with dismay. Mr. Longworthy noticed her fatigue, and was much annoyed with himself for having let her come so far. He was, therefore, very glad when he saw the doctor's dog-cart standing in front of the house where he himself was going to call.

"I am glad to see you, doctor," he said as they shook hands outside the door. "Less for your own sake than Mrs. Moore's."

"I hope she is not ill," said the doctor, glancing at Helen, whose face had gone very white, and his practised eye detected what had escaped the clergyman's notice; her very attitude betrayed her extreme fatigue.

"I hope not," said Mr. Longworthy. "In our zeal we have outwalked her strength. If you are going home you will drive her to the Rectory first."

The doctor was not going home, but a brief mental review of his patients showed him that he could very well spare the time to drive Mrs. Moore home, so, turning to Helen, he said—

"It will give me great pleasure to be of any use to you. It is fortunate I happened to be here; you could hardly have walked another half-dozen yards."

"I am not so tired as you suppose," she replied, a little annoyed both at his words and manner. "With the help of Mr. Longworthy's arm I could very well walk home."

"I will not argue it out with you," he said, with what always seemed to He'en such a disagreeable smile. "You would prove the truth of my theory by fainting in the middle."

"I hardly think I will drive, thank you," she said, forcing herself to stand in an attitude less expressive of general limpness.

"That is an impulse which you will hardly be able to follow. Would you mind getting up," he went on; "the sooner we start the sooner we shall get home."

She handed her umbrella, which she had been using as a staff to support her weary steps, to Mr. Longworthy, and prepared to get up. She felt her limbs tremble and her head swim; but she set her teeth, and pressing the rail in a desperate grasp succeeded in swinging herself into her seat. Arrived there she sat perfectly still; she could neither speak nor move.

"I will not detain you a minute," said Dr. Holme, going back into the house. He returned in a moment, carrying in his hand a glass containing a pretty stiff mixture of brandy and water.

"Drink that," he said, holding it up to Helen.

She put it to her lips from sheer lack of strength to refuse; but the nauseous smell and taste overpowered her, and she handed him the glass back again.

"Be good enough to finish it. We are not going until you have done so," consulting his watch with the utmost effrontery, "if we do not start at once I shall be late for an appointment."

"I am ready," she said quietly. He sprang up by her side, tossed a penny to the urchin who had been holding his horse and watching with wide, open eyes and mouth the little scene just described, and they were driving rapidly away before the flush of annoyance which his words had called had faded away from her face.

For some time neither spoke. Helen was not inclined for conversation. The relief of sitting still and being borne swiftly and smoothly along, after the aching weariness which had weighed upon her, was too great to find vent in words. She leaned back as comfortably as she could and enjoyed the feeling of languor which had crept over her. The brandy and water, after taking away her faintness, made her feel drowsy, and she did not care to utter a single word. Her eyes roamed over the country; they had not yet reached the village, and the moors and woods were empty of houses, except a few isolated farms, such as the one they had just left. The trees were "turning"; here and there the varieties of colouring were exquisite; the hedges were full of hips and haws, scarlet as the mountain ash berries which hung in graceful clusters above them. The fresh, keen air blew straight off the moor into her face, and seemed for the moment almost to sweep away all morbid fancies from her mind. Involuntarily her thoughts turned to Osmotherley. Winter came late there, the trees would still be green, and the hedgerows heavy. It was little more than a year since Percival and she had come home with the expectation of passing all their lives together, and already the dream had been broken in upon. All their hopes and plans ended in this, that she lived aloof to save the happiness of a woman for whom she had no love.

As she thought of all these things the shadow again settled down upon her soul, and she could not dispel it. Sadder and ever sadder her face grew, and her heart was heavy with a miserable feeling of failure as she sat looking at the bleak, bare hills which shut in Miller's Gate from the world.

Her companion, at first absorbed in his own thoughts, presently began to glance at her, and was puzzled and almost shocked at the look on her face. It was not new to him. He had noticed before that whenever she was alone and unobserved her face took this expression of pain and sorrow, and he had wondered again and again what brought it there. Unable to allude to it, and yet wishful to change her thoughts, whatever they might be he said—

"I had no idea you were in the habit of taking such long walks. You are by no means strong enough for them yet, if, indeed, at any time they would not be beyond your strength. I am afraid I must forbid them, so I can only hope they are not a source of very much enjoyment to you."

"You hope in vain. I enjoy them exceedingly. It always does me good to be with Mr. Longworthy. You know I am simple enough to consider him and his wife very superior people. At the same time we have never been so far before. If Mr. Longworthy is not coming home to dinner I generally turn back when I begin to feel tired. To-day was so fine, and we were talking," she finished a little vagnely.

"You cannot forget or forgive what you choose to consider my want of appreciation, but I must remind you that 'very good' from one person is equivalent to a long string of superlative adjectives from another.

"I don't think you have had any opportunity of judging whether I generally express myself in a long string of superlative adjectives or not."

"True in one way, but you forget there are ways and means of judging. A reserved undemonstrative man, like myself for instance, would be scarcely likely to express himself in the same manner as an enthusiastic, impulsive woman, such as I judge you to be. You will surely allow that. Add to my natural reserve an acquired habit of speaking in the moderate and exact language of science, and you

"Or at the difference in our tastes and dislikes. Why trouble to talk about it? We are different in every way. I do not suppose we should ever agree about anything."

The words were vehement if the tone in which they were spoken was quiet, and Dr Holme smiled as he replied, lightly flicking his horse with the whip as he did so.

"I should imagine that when two people never agree on any subject, one at anyrate of the two must be naturally unamiable. Courtesy forbids me to lay that sin to your charge, so there is nothing left but for me to take the burden of it upon myself."

The Railway Strikers.

FORT WORTH, Tex., April 3.— At 10 o'clock this morning fifteen hundred people assembled at the Missouri Pacific depot to assist Sheriff Maddock to send out a train. At 11 o'clock an engine with twenty armed deputities backed into the depot to take out a train of twenty cars. When ready the engine backed down the track, and there remained. The sheriff and thirty deputies are guarding the yards, warning the strikers to keep away.

The train pulled out for the south and reached the Fort Worth and New Orleans crossing, two miles south of the city, where Sheriff Maddock and posse were attacked at 1 o'clock, and a regular battle ensued. Three deputies were shot and several of the strikers were wounded, more or less seriously.

It was the determination of the strikers that no trains should run on the Missouri Pacific railroad, injunction or no injunction. The train arrived at the crossing, when it was flagged by the strikers. Not obeying the flag, the strikers next resorted to throwing open a switch. As the men approached and threw the switch open they were fired upon by the posse, and the fire was promptly returned by the men in ambush. The narrator says it was not the intention of the strikers to resort to violence unless forced to, but when they were fired on they returned the fire.

When the train stopped it was noticed that several men were congregated on the track in front of the train. The posse's commander approached the men and asked why they impeded the progress of the train, to which they replied that they had nothing to do with it, that they were not armed and had no intention of interfering with the road. As the officers returned to the train they noticed several men sitting or lying on the grass, a few yards from the train. The entire posse advanced toward the men in ambush until they had reached the ditch alongside of the track, when they commanded a throwing up of the hands. The command was obeyed, but as the hands came up they brought Winchester rifles with them, which belched forth a deadly fire. There were, perhaps, one hundred shots fired. After the first fire the posse advanced and continued firing. The ambushers retreated behind some piles of ties which proved a most excellent breastwork, and from the security of which they poured a murderous fire into the posse. From the position they were finally dislodged and driven beyond the range of the posse's pistols.

The casualties among the posse were three. Police Officer Ford was shot through both thighs. Special Officer Dick Townsend was fatally shot through the left breast near the nipple. Special officer Chas. Sneed was shot through the heart and jaw.

But one of the strikers, Tom Nace, a switchman, was fatally wounded. The posse, seeing it was useless to fight Winchesters with revolvers, placed the wounded officers aboard the train and returned to the Union depot. The strikers remained at the scene of the conflict for some time after the train returned to the city, when they secured the Winchesters of their wounded comrades and started off for Sycamore Bottom, all carrying their rifles. Nace was left on the prairie.

As soon as the train reached the city a posse was formed armed with Winchesters and started in pursuit of the murderers. The Knights of Labor claim that the first shot was fired by the officers, but the weight of testimony is against the proposition.

Ten companies of militia and one Battery of Artillery are here. The dead body of Frank Pierce, a striker, was found and has been brought into town. The two others who were wounded have been located. Trouble is looked for Monday morning. The strikers are coming in from all directions.

Vice-President Hoxie, of the Missouri Pacific, told a deputation that waited on him Saturday that the force on the road had been far too large and that not more than 50 per cent. of the strikers need ever expect to be re-engaged.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 3.—The Missouri Pacific Company sent out the usual number of freight trains to-day without any difficulty. Several of the strikers have returned to work.

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

THE SCOTT ACT IN BROCKVILLE.—The purchase of Old Man's Island is causing a good deal of stir among the temperance people of Brockville. The island being under American jurisdiction renders the Canadian parties powerless to prevent a license being granted from that source, the consequence being that the citizens of Brockville are likely to obtain all the liquor they want.

WINE AT THE SACRAMENT.—A Jewish rabbi at a recent interview in London, declared that Jews always used unfermented wine, fermented liquor being proscribed in the Old Testament, "Jesus," added the rabbi, "as an observant Jew, would not only have drunk fermented wine on the Passover, but would not have celebrated the Passover in any house from which everything fremented had not been removed."

UNITED WORKMEN.—The Grand Legion of Select Knights of Ontario meets in Guelph next month. Legions of Select Knights are to be formed in Aurora and Queensville. The estimated membership in the following jurisdictions is based on the returns for January last:—Ontario, 11,000; California, 20,998; Wisconsin, 6,132; Pennsylvania, 14,755; Iowa, 2,294; Indiana, 1,850; Minnesota, 3,410; Massachusetts, 7,501; Illinois, 16,002; Missouri, 16,615; Tennessee, 1,507; Texas, 1,560; Nevada, 3,087: Colorado, 2,715; Michigan, 9,147; Ohio, 3,875; Kentucky, 1,373; Georgia, 1,283; Kansas, 7,562; Maryland, 4,079; New York, 20,998. The net gain in membership for the entire Order last year was 12,669.

OPEN MEETING.—Last evening a very pleasant time was spent in Beaver Temple, I. O. G. T. At the close of the business of the lodge the doors were thrown open to the public, and in a short time the room was comfortably filled with the friends of the temperance cause, who expressed themselves well pleased with the room and its equipments. A short time was spent in social chit chat, and old acquaintances were renewed. A well arranged programme was prepared by the committee, and placed in the hands of Mr. H. Simpson, W. C., who occupied the chair, and who in a few well chosen remarks welcomed those present. The entertainment opened with a duet on the organ and violin which was followed by a number of solos, duets, readings, addresses, etc. A very pleasant hour was spent, and the proceedings closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

THE COUNTRY NEWSPAPER.—The country newspaper is the most useful of all the agencies which stamp the impress of progress upon villages and inland cities. Without the aid of local newspapers towns are, as a rule, thriftless and dead. It is common for small and great men to speak with contempt of the local newspapers, but the village newspaper makes more great men out of less material—more bricks without straw—than any other factor in politics, and it is the one ladder on which men climb to local distinctions as the begining of wider fame. The advent of the local newspaper has always dated the increased thrift of the community. The local newspaper is the life of the locality, and measures the advancement of the people. Subscribe then for the MERCURY, and get a paper that will keep you posted on all matters of importance pertaining to the county in which it is published.

AN EXTRA RIB.—The North Western Standard, Minneapolis, says:—"Mr. Geo. Anderson, chief of the mechanical staff of the Standard, quietly and unostentatiously one day last week took unto himself another rib in the person of Miss Rose Kermann, and is now an ideal married man. George has been the recipient of many congratulations and presents from friends, the Standard presenting him with a $30,000 brown stone front on Seventh street at which place he will always be glad to entertain any friends who place their legs under his mohogony and drink his wine." Mr. Anderson learned his business in the MERCURY office, and although he has been absent from the city for several years, with the exception of paying a flying visit now and then, he still retains many warm friends in Guelph, who will heareily congratulate him on his departure from bachelorhood and wish him all the blessings connubial.

THEY WENT A-SLEIGHING.—A week or two ago—and it has just leaked out—a party from Armstrong's mills, decided to go a sleighing. The night was fine, but the roads were bad. The destination was Fonsonby. Everything went merry as a marriage bell for some time, and consequently the spirits of the company became exuberant as they journeyed along, and they finally gave vent to their pent-up feelings by bursting forth in song and general hilarity. When the revelry was at its height, an unforseen, and a very common accident occurred, namely the upsetting of the conveyance. Instantly there was a change of scene. Instead of jollity and frivolity it was screaming and moaning. The occupants were pitched helter-skelter in every direction, but, as it afterwards proved, they were more frightened than hurt. The yells of one poor unfortunate young man, who had some how or other got boxed under the seat, were terrific, so it is said, and it was some time after he had been released from his predicament, before he could be assured that he was uninjured. The spectacle, though a sorry one, was laughable.

MR. WM. E. WAUGH, Manitoba, is in the city to-day on a visit to friends. He will be remembered as being the gentleman who started the carding machines at McCrae's woollen factory some years ago.

THE STORM.—The storm of to-day was one of the most severe that has visited the city for some time. At noon to-day the wind is still blowing a gale, and merchants on the main streets, if they have no business to transact, are kept busy shovelling the snow from the sidewalks.

YESTERDAY Messrs. Cox (President) and Hamburger (representative) of the Toronto baseball club, and Stroud and Sterling, of the Hamilton baseball club, were served with papers on behalf of George Sleeman, President of the Canadian League, claiming $5,000 from each club for non-fulfilment of contract.

THE fruit production of California is something wonderful. During 1885, she produced in raisins over 9,500,500 pounds, or nearly three times as much as in 1884. She also sent to market last year 1,500,000 pounds of prunes, 1,823,000 pounds of apples, 1,900,000 pounds of peaches, 1,139,000 pounds of plums, 650,000 pounds of apricots, 2,250,000 pounds of honey, 1,250,000 pounds of walnuts, and 1,050,000 pounds of almonds.

VOTING ON THE BY-LAW.—Up to noon today only some three hundred property owners have recorded their votes on the by-law for a bonus of $2,000 for the proposed new factory to Burr Bros. The day is such a wild one that people can hardly be induced to venture out, consequently as it requires two-fifths vote of the whole of the property owners the probabilities are that the by-law will be defeated unless some extra effort is made to bring the voters out.

AMATEUR LEAGUE.—The Western amateur baseball league was formed at Stratford on Monday. Woodstock, Brantford, London Mutuals, and Stratford clubs were represented, and these compose the league, with power to admit two more. The following officers were appointed: J. E. DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, April 5.

In the Commons to-day Mr. Bowell demanded that Mr. Edgar's motion regarding the Prince Albert Colonization Company should be proceeded with at once, and made an assertion denying the statements made in the motion. Mr. Edgar consented, and moved his resolution asking for a select committee to enquire into the matter. Sir Hector Langevin moved in amendment that the question be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. After remarks by Mr. White (Hastings) Sir Hector Langevin's amendment was carried.

Murder and Suicide.

MILLWAUKEE, April 5.—This morning Annie Rosenstien, a beautiful girl of fifteen, while sleeping by the side of her little sister was shot instantly and killed by Isadore Seidenbaum, an eighteen year old friend of the family who was enjoying their hospitality. About 1.30 o'clock Morris Rosenstien and his wife were awakened by the report of a revolver, followed quickly by a second shot. They discovered Miss Seidenbaum in her night clothes lying partly over the body of the murdered girl. Both were dead. None of the relatives of the deceased could advance any theory as to the cause of the tragedy.

The Seal Fisheries.

A Halifax despatch says: Accounts of the sea fishery of St. Johns, Nfld., indicate splendid season's catches for the fleet. Seals in great numbers are frequently seen on the coast, and some thousands have been hauled ashore by people living in the fishing villages at various points. At one place as many as 5,000 a day for several days in succession have been brought ashore from the ice. The steamer Leopard has arrived at St. John with between 15,000 and 16,000, and another steamship, thought to be the Nimrod, is reported to be on the way to some port with a full fare. One or two coasting schooners have obtained full loads in the channel, and are doing well.

DESTRUCTION.

A Heavy Gale Causes Havoc in City and Country.

The heavy gale of last night and this morning, which swept over the city, and which is still blowing, will long be remembered in this city by the amount of damage done and the unusual incidents connected therewith. Some effects of the high wind during the night were visible this morning, but the gale seemed to have reached its height about nine o'clock, about which time a startling and continued noise brought hundreds flocking from all quarters to Bell's old factory.

Those who were standing in front of the New Western Hotel, shortly after nine o'clock, noticed that the wind seemed to have loosened the galvanized iron roof on the four-storey portion of Bell's old factory. Suddenly a heavy gust from the north east struck the front corner of the high building, and the roof raised up like an umbrella, the power of the wind seeking vent forcing the centre of the roof upwards, and lifting the whole top, iron and sheeting, dragged it bodily over the rest of the factory and the MERCURY office, both lower than the main building and striking the rear of the top story of the Lion's building. The most of the roof dropped into the lane between the MERCURY office and the Lion buildings, darkening the windows in the basement and on the ground floor of this office. The noise was terrific and in a moment the scene of the wreck was surrounded by everybody that could run. The men who were working in the top flat of the factory thought that the roof had gone, but could see nothing for some minutes on account of the dust. The MERCURY office employees did not know whether it was an earthquake or a boiler explosion, but the instinct of self-preservation came to their relief and a grand rush was made for the door. The noise of the falling roof was sudden and soon over, but it was not more sudden than the rapidity in which the office was cleared of all hands. It was laughable when it was over, but not before. The same remark will apply to the employees in Bell's factory. On reaching the street the extent of the damage was seen. The factory roof had swept the smoke stack, exhaust pipe, ladder and chimney in different directions, the heavy brick chimney being carried clear over to the roof of the Lion building. The MERCURY office escaped scathless save for a few bricks off the chimney, but the Lion building had the east corner of the rear roof damaged, half of the eave at the rear shaved off, the trough and pipes broken, and a heavy stone sill torn completely out of the wall. The heavy coping stones of the factory were thrown to the sidewalk, smashing it badly, but fortunately no one was near.

Fortunately only one man was injured, which seems to be a miracle considering that a portion of the roof was thrown on to Carden street, and the sidewalk covered with boards and pieces of the iron sheeting. The man who was injured is Mr. Peter Haley, assistant engineer at Bell's old factory. He was working in the yard between the engine house and the MERCURY office at the time, and some of the boards or falling pipe stacks struck him on the head. He fell backwards into the engine house a distance of some six or seven feet. Strange to say he was not seriously injured, but was stunned for some time. He was conveyed to Dr. McPhatter's surgery, when it was discovered that he had sustained an ugly wound on the top of the head about four inches long, and also several bruises about the head and shoulder. It was found necessary to put four stitches in the wound in the head.

NOTES.

About half-past seven o'clock this morning the sign board of the Wellington Marble Works was blown down, but it did not come alone—the gable of the building was taken with it.

A pane of glass was broken in Mr. T. J. Day's window, and so was one in Mr. A. J. Little's store by goods being blown against them.

It is reported that the roof of a barn in Guelph Township was blown off.

A driving shed at McCann's hotel, four corners, Eramosa, was demolished, causing a loss of about $100.

The loss to Bell & Co., is estimated at between $500 and $600. The factory is closed for repairs.

The Scott Act in Brockville.—The purchase of Old Man's Island is causing a good deal of stir among the temperance people of Brockville. The island being under American jurisdiction renders the Canadian parties powerless to prevent a license being granted from that source, the consequence being that the citizens of Brockville are likely to obtain all the liquor they want.

Wine at the Sacrament.—A Jewish rabbi at a recent interview in London, declared that Jews always used unfermented wine, fermented liquor being proscribed in the Old Testament, "Jesus," added the rabbi, "as an observant Jew, would not only have drunk fermented wine on the Passover, but would not have celebrated the Passover in any house from which everything fremented had not been removed."

United Workmen.—The Grand Legion of Select Knights of Ontario meets in Guelph next month. Legions of Select Knights are to be formed in Aurora and Queensville. The estimated membership in the following jurisdictions is based on the returns for January last:—Ontario, 11,000; California, 20,998; Wisconsin, 6,132; Pennsylvania, 14,755; Iowa, 2,294; Indiana, 1,850; Minnesota, 3,410; Massachusetts, 7,501; Illinois, 16,002; Missouri, 16,615; Tennessee, 1,507; Texas, 1,560; Nevada, 3,087: Colorado, 2,715; Michigan, 9,167; Ohio, 3,875; Kentucky, 1,373; Georgia, 1,283; Kansas, 7,562; Maryland, 4,079; New York, 20,998. The net gain in membership for the entire Order last year was 12,669.

Open Meeting.—Last evening a very pleasant time was spent in Beaver Temple, I. O. G. T. At the close of the business of the lodge the doors were thrown open to the public, and in a short time the room was comfortably filled with the friends of the temperance cause, who expressed themselves well pleased with the room and its equipments. A short time was spent in social chit chat, and old acquaintances were renewed. A well arranged programme was prepared by the committee, and placed in the hands of Mr. H. Simpson, W. C., who occupied the chair, and who in a few well chosen remarks welcomed those present. The entertainment opened with a duet on the organ and violin which was followed by a number of solos, duets, readings, addresses, etc. A very pleasant hour was spent, and the proceedings closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

The Country Newspaper.—The country newspaper is the most useful of all the agencies which stamp the impress of progress upon villages and inland cities. Without the aid of local newspapers towns are, as a rule, thriftless and dead. It is common for small and great men to speak with contempt of the local newspapers, but the village newspaper makes more great men out of less material—more bricks without straw—than any other factor in politics, and it is the one ladder on which men climb to local distinctions as the begining of wider fame. The advent of the local newspaper has always dated the increased thrift of the community. The local newspaper is the life of the locality, and measures the advancement of the people. Subscribe then for the Mercury, and get a paper that will keep you posted on all matters of importance pertaining to the county in which it is published.

An Extra Rib.—The North Western Standard, Minneapolis, says:—"Mr. Geo. Anderson, chief of the mechanical staff of the Standard, quietly and unostentatiously one day last week took unto himself another rib in the person of Miss Rose Kermann, and is now an ideal married man. George has been the recipient of many congratulations and presents from friends, the Standard presenting him with a $30,000 brown stone front on Seventh street at which place he will always be glad to entertain any friends who place their legs under his mohogony and drink his wine." Mr. Anderson learned his business in the Mercury office, and although he has been absent from the city for several years, with the exception of paying a flying visit now and then, he still retains many warm friends in Guelph, who will heareily congratulate him on his departure from bachelorhood and wish him all the blessings connubial.

They Went a-Sleighing.—A week or two ago—and it has just leaked out—a party from Armstrong's mills, decided to go a sleighing. The night was fine, but the roads were bad. The destination was Ponsonby. Everything went merry as a marriage bell for some time, and consequently the spirits of the company became exuberant as they journeyed along, and they finally gave vent to their pent-up feelings by bursting forth in song and general hilarity. When the revelry was at its height, an unforseen, and a very common accident occurred, namely the upsetting of the conveyance. Instantly there was a change of scene. Instead of jollity and frivolity it was screaming and moaning. The occupants were pitched helter-skelter in every direction, but, as it afterwards proved, they were more frightened than hurt. The yells of one poor unfortunate young man, who had some how or other got boxed under the seat, were terrific, so it is said, and it was some time after he had been released from his predicament, before he could be assured that he was uninjured. The spectacle, though a sorry one, was laughable.

Where is the Hurricane?

Probs—North-east shifting to north-west winds, cloudy weather, with snow and rain, clearing again to-night.

The sale of the Royal Hotel and fixtures was withdrawn to-day, no one offering over the upset price.

Pete and Fred Wood have been offered an engagement by the Oswegos, who are in want of a battery.

There was only one load of hay on the market to-day, and it only stood for about five minutes, as it was in danger of being blowed over at any moment.

G. C. Wiggins was arraigned before the court this morning charged with getting board at the Royal Hotel under false pretences. The charge was dismissed without any defence being called.

Mr. Wm. E. Waugh, Manitoba, is in the city to-day on a visit to friends. He will be remembered as being the gentleman who started the carding machines at McCrae's woollen factory some years ago.

The Storm.—The storm of to-day was one of the most severe that has visited the city for some time. At noon to-day the wind is still blowing a gale, and merchants on the main streets, if they have no business to transact, are kept busy shovelling the snow from the sidewalks.

Yesterday Messrs. Cox (President) and Hamburger (representative) of the Toronto baseball club, and Stround and Sterling, of the Hamilton baseball club, were served with papers on behalf of George Sleeman, President of the Canadian League, claiming $5,000 from each club for non-fulfilment of contract.

The fruit production of California is something wonderful. During 1885, she produced in raisins over 9,500,500 pounds, or nearly three times as much as in 1884. She also sent to market last year 1,500,000 pounds of prunes, 1,823,000 pounds of apples, 1,900,000 pounds of peaches, 1,139,000 pounds of plums, 650,000 pounds of apricots, 2,250,000 pounds of honey, 1,250,000 pounds of walnuts, and 1,050,000 pounds of almonds.

Voting on the By-Law.—Up to noon today only some three hundred property owners have recorded their votes on the by-law for a bonus of $2,000 for the proposed new factory to Burr Bros. The day is such a wild one that people can hardly be induced to venture out, consequently as it requires two-fifths vote of the whole of the property owners the probabilities are that the by-law will be defeated unless some extra effort is made to bring the voters out.

Amateur League.—The Western amateur baseball league was formed at Stratford on Monday. Woodstock, Brantford, London Mutuals, and Stratford clubs were represented, and these compose the league, with power to admit two more. The following officers were appointed: J. E. Thompson, Woodstock, president; H. R. Blackwood, Brantford, vice-president; J. H. Dufton, Stratford, secretary-treasurer.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, April 5.

In the Commons to-day Mr. Bowell demanded that Mr. Edgar's motion regarding the Prince Albert Colonization Company should be proceeded with at once, and made an assertion denying the statements made in the motion. Mr. Edgar consented, and moved his resolution asking for a select committee to enquire into the matter. Murder and Suicide.

Milwaukee, April 5.—This morning Annie Rosenstien, a beautiful girl of fifteen, while sleeping by the side of her little sister was shot instantly and killed by Isadore Seidenbaum, an eighteen year old friend of the family who was enjoying their hospitality. About 1.30 o'clock Morris Rosenstien and his wife were awakened by the report of a revolver, followed quickly by a second shot. They discovered Miss Seidenbaum in her night clothes lying partly over the body of the murdered girl. Both were dead. None of the relatives of the deceased could advance any theory as to the cause of the tragedy.

The Seal Fisheries.

A Halifax despatch says: Accounts of the sea fishery of St. Johns, Nfld., indicate splendid season's catches for the fleet. Seals in great numbers are frequently seen on the coast, and some thousands have been hauled ashore by people living in the fishing villages at various points. At one place as many as 5,000 a day for several days in succession have been brought ashore from the ice. The steamer Leopard has arrived at St. John with between 15,000 and 16,000, and another steamship, thought to be the Nimrod, is reported to be on the way to some port with a full fare. One or two coasting schooners have obtained full loads in the channel, and are doing well.

DESTRUCTION.

A Heavy Gale Causes Havoc in City and Country.

The heavy gale of last night and this morning, which swept over the city, and which is still blowing, will long be remembered in this city by the amount of damage done and the unusual incidents connected therewith. Some effects of the high wind during the night were visible this morning, but the gale seemed to have reached its height about nine o'clock, about which time a startling and continued noise brought hundreds flocking from all quarters to Bell's old factory.

Those who were standing in front of the New Western Hotel, shortly after nine o'clock, noticed that the wind seemed to have loosened the galvanized iron roof on the four-storey portion of Bell's old factory. Suddenly a heavy gust from the north east struck the front corner of the high building, and the roof raised up like an umbrella, the power of the wind seeking vent forcing the centre of the roof upwards, and lifting the whole top, iron and sheeting, dragged it bodily over the rest of the factory and the Mercury office, both lower than the main building and striking the rear of the top story of the Lion's building. The most of the roof dropped into the lane between the Mercury office and the Lion buildings, darkening the windows in the basement and on the ground floor of this office. The noise was terrific and in a moment the scene of the wreck was surrounded by everybody that could run. The men who were working in the top flat of the factory thought that the roof had gone, but could see nothing for some minutes on account of the dust. The Mercury office employees did not know whether it was an earthquake or a boiler explosion, but the instinct of self-preservation came to their relief and a grand rush was made for the door. The noise of the falling roof was sudden and soon over, but it was not more sudden than the rapidity in which the office was cleared of all hands. It was laughable when it was over, but not before. The same remark will apply to the employees in Bell's factory. On reaching the street the extent of the damage was seen. The factory roof had swept the smoke stack, exhaust pipe, ladder and chimney in different directions, the heavy brick chimney being carried clear over to the roof of the Lion building. The Mercury office escaped scatheless save for a few bricks off the chimney, but the Lion building had the east corner of the rear roof damaged, half of the eave at the rear shaved off, the trough and pipes broken, and a heavy stone sill torn completely out of the wall. The heavy coping stones of the factory were thrown to the sidewalk, smashing it badly, but fortunately no one was near.

Fortunately only one man was injured, which seems to be a miracle considering that a portion of the roof was thrown on to Carden street, and the sidewalk covered with boards and pieces of the iron sheeting. The man who was injured is Mr. Peter Bailey, assistant engineer at Bell's old factory. He was working in the yard between the engine house and the Mercury office at the time, and some of the boards or falling pipe stacks struck him on the head. He fell backwards into the engine house a distance of some six or seven feet. Strange to say he was not seriously injured, but was stunned for some time. He was conveyed to Dr. McPhatter's surgery, when it was discovered that he had sustained an ugly wound on the top of the head about four inches long, and also several bruises about the head and shoulder. It was found necessary to put four stitches in the wound in the head.

NOTES.

About half-past seven o'clock this morning the sign board of the Wellington Marble Works was blown down, but it did not come alone—the gable of the building was taken with it.

A pane of glass was broken in Mr. T. J. Day's window, and so was one in Mr. A. J. Little's store by goods being blown against them.

It is reported that the roof of a barn in Guelph Township was blown off.

A driving shed at McCann's hotel, four corners, Eramosa, was demolished, causing a loss of about $100.

Disallowing Manitoba Railway Bills.

The Dominion Government has again disallowed two Manitoba Railway bills on the ground that they are an infringement in the agreement made with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, by which no Provincial railway was to be allowed to run nearer than fifteen miles of the American frontier. Thus again the rights of the people of that Province are being trampled on by the Federal Government, and railways necessary for the growth and development of the country are prevented from being built. It is also contrary to the promise made by Sir Charles Tupper two years ago, when as Minister of Railways in his place in Parliament he promised that this restriction would be removed as soon as the portion of the Pacific line north of Lake Superior was built. It is only a few days ago that the Reform Opposition in the Manitoba Legislature brought up a motion that a humble address be forwarded to the Governor-General-in-Council, praying that there be no further interference with its rights as a Legislature in this respect. The Premier, Mr. Norquay, feeling himself in a tight place made a feint of resisting disallowance as he did once before, and moved the following amendment;—"Be it resolved that this House in view of its anxiety to aid railway construction in this Province will advance in every way in its power the building of railways under the Act heretofore cited. And be it resolved that this House deems it its duty to express the desire that charters now in force or hereafter granted to railway companies under special acts of the Legislature within its jurisdiction, may be left to their own operation." This was carried but of course Mr. Norquay is not sincere in the attitude he has assumed towards the Dominion Government in this matter, and he has refused to ask the Legislature to re-enact the disallowed bills. But the people are determined on having their rights in spite of Mr. Norquay and the Dominion Government.

THE Hudson Bay Railway Company has been allowed the privilege of selecting its land grant of 6,400 acres per mile within a belt of fifty miles on either side of the Canadian Pacific Railway, instead of having to accept the land as it runs in alternate sections along the line.

THE Minister of Finance the other day laid on the table of the House of Commons a return regarding the expenditure in connection with the outbreak in the Northwest. The appropriation was $4,000,000 in all, and the expenditure against this appropriation was $4,129,237 up to the 15th of the past month.

IN the House of Commons the other day, Hon. Mr. White stated that services of volunteers during the rebellion, who were settlers on homesteads in Mabitoba and the Northwest Territories, would be treated as one year, in dealing with the time fixed by law for the occupation of homesteads.

SEVENTY halfbreeds, formerly of Batoche, thirty-three of whom took part in the rebellion, and who are now residing in the Pembina mountain country, across the border, have been asked by the Government to return and be pardoned. They say they will not do so, unless given patents to their lands and compensation for damages to their buildings.

THE Government have made a great mistake in appointing Mr. Lawrence Herchmer Superintendent of the Mounted Police. He has no claim to the position, for he has only been an Indian agent at Birtle, and knows nothing practically about the organization and work of the Police. The officers of that force feel humiliated in being passed over in this fashion, but the policy of the Government in this, as in every other department of the public service, is to pass over those who really deserve promotion and give vacant offices to political favourites. It seems that Mr. Herchmer is a special pet of Mr. Dewdney's, and this accounts for his being hoisted over the heads of the officers in the force, and put in this position.

DR. ORTON is to the fore again with his little bank bill, by which farmers are to get all the money they want at five per cent interest, no matter what rates other banks are charging. This proposition is absurd on the face of it, and likewise it would be very unjust to farmers were such a bank in existence under the Dr's. bill, for it could not charge more than the five per cent rate, while other banks were charging the highest rate current. The bill has been referred to the Committee on Banking and Commerce, where it will be speedily and effectually killed. It is nothing less than another scheme of the Dr.'s for humbugging the farmers.

A despatch from Moosejaw says that 28 men of "A" Battery, recently discharged, leave for Kingston at once under the charge of Adjutant Rivers. They will be joined by 16 men of "B" Battery, stationed at Qu'Appelle.

FROM the annual report of the Minister of Education we learn that the Head Masters of the Collegiate Institutes and High Schools of Ontario in 1884 were graduates of the following Universities:—Toronto University, 59; Victoria, Cobourg, 20; Queen's, Kingston, 11; Trinity, Toronto, 7; Albert, Belleville, now affiliated with Victoria, 2; McGill, Montreal, 1; British Universities, 4.

THE new license act which comes into force on May 1st contains some new and striking provisions. A light in a bar room during prohibited hours shall, under the new act be deemed prima facie evidence of the sale of liquor; also any proprietor allowing persons to frequent his bar room during prohibited hours shall be deemed guilty of an infringement of the act. Persons, not inmates of the house, found in bar rooms are liable to a fine of not more than $10, or less than $2 for each offence. It also becomes a punishable offence for a dealer to dispose of liquor to any person who sells illegally. Any holder of a beer and light wine license convicted of selling shall be disqualified from holding a license for the succeeding year. Any municipal council has a right to pass a by-law prohibiting shopkeepers who hold licenses from selling anything else than liquor.

THE London Standard of the 17th of March contains an editorial article on the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, pointing out the advantages which the Empire at large will derive from it. The article concludes as follows: "Hundreds of the wealthier of our distant relatives will seize the opportunity of visiting that land which to the majority of them is still known by the tender and touching name of 'home.' Their varied humours, and complexions, and manners cannot fail to be a source of endless instruction and suggestion. Such an exhibition will do more for the Confederation of the Empire than reams of pamphlets and avalanches of speeches. It will show the colonists that we are not unmindful of them, though sometimes, out of the cares engendered by more pressing affairs nearer home, we fail to enter as fully into their views as they consider we ought to do. They have built up great dependencies as populous as, and in many cases more wealthy than, some European Kingdoms. Cities like Sydney and Melbourne have developed a magnificence and a culture of which any community might be proud, and have grown with a speed not distanced by even Chicago or San Francisco. Cyprus, Gibraltar, Hong Kong and Malta are valuable as military stations. But Canada, the Cape and Australia are the homes of our countrymen, in whose loyalty we trust, of whose affection we are proud; the links that bind us are the links of brotherhood, and the old country bids them a right hearty welcome to her shores."

Letter from Mrs. Card.

SIR,—Will you allow me a brief space in your columns to do tardy justice to the Sisters of St. Joseph's Hospital. I owe them my deepest thanks for the attention paid to me during a stay of nearly six months in the institution while suffering from injuries received by a runaway last August. That I have not written thanking them before is due not to thoughtlessness about the matter but to inability to settle down to it sooner.

During my stay in the Hospital I was nursed with the greatest care and kindness, as I am sure, from observation, the other patients were also.

The cleanliness and good order of everything about the place were a pleasure to behold and rendered my stay as cheerful as it could be under the circumstances. After my own experience, I think it not too much to say that the treatment of cases in surgery can be conducted much more successfully in hospital than at the home of a patient. In addition to the trained nursing there is the advantage of complete equipment. Having partaken of these benefits, the least I can do is to publicly acknowledge my appreciation of such a boon and to wish the management of St. Joseph's every success in the prosecution of their mission of mercy.

Perhaps you will allow me a closing word of thanks to my Doctor, who is also the physician of St. Joseph's Hospital. I believe I am able to boast of recovering from the effects of one of the most seriously fractured and wounded legs which it has ever been anybody's misfortune to receive in this section, and I think Dr. Herod has conferred a benefit on his profession in treating it so successfully. It may be too that with this precedent other unfortunates who come after me may be spared their limbs,

With many thanks for your space,

MRS THOS. CARD.

A TENDENCY

Of The Times.

Friday April 2nd, 1886.

We say "a tendency," as we do not now imply that our remarks refer to the leading tendency of the times, but "a Tendency of the Times" is to pass the spurious for the real, to represent the counterfeit as the genuine. Hence, Shoddy is made to appear like Wool, Jute looks like Silk, Cotton is manipulated and sold for Linen. This is not alone the rule in Dry Goods, but in every other branch of manufacture. We confine ourselves however to the discussion of Dry Goods.

One reason for this is the continual pressure on the manufacturer to produce APPEARANCE and CHEAPNESS, which is done at the sacrifice of QUALITY. Something is wanted that catches the eye. Lines of goods are specially sought for to produce the impression of cheapness. Certain people in business are continually on the look-out for that kind of stuff. Of course it is no benefit to the purchaser, he thinks he buys wool and gets shoddy, he imagines he buys silk and has jute, he pays for the real and gets the spurious. It is no benefit to the dealer, his tether is not a very long one, he is soon found out and hardly gets the chance to gull the same victim a second time. Look about you and see who are the solid and successful manufacturers and merchants of our land. The men who produce honest goods, the men who sell honest goods. They come out all right in the long run. They merit the public confidence and they get it, while the apostles of deceit are wiped off the scene almost as fast as the polish off their goods. They have to get out of business every few years. They shine for a while but their light soon dims.

For our own part, we shall steadily adhere to the principle of "Honest Goods at Fair Prices" We have reason to know this plan works to the satisfaction of our customers as well as ourselves.

CONCERNING CHEAPNESS.

Leading Boot and Shoe Store.

THE REAL TEST OF CHEAPNESS IS UNdoubtedly as the maxim has it "quality," for if any article lacks quality it is dear at any price, especially is this true in regard to

Boots & Shoes

People very often lose more than they save, when they indiscriminately go in for Cheap Goods without regard to their value. It has however been our steady aim through our business life that every article kept by us shall be of the

CHAPTER XXI.

WAITING.

Helen said nothing, and her silence seemed to imply that she agreed with him; he at any rate thought so, for he half-smiled, and said—

"I am sorry you think me unamiable. What can I do to remove the stigma?"

"You speak sarcastically; but you must allow me to say that whatever you may be to other people, to me, since you knew me personally, you have been unvaryingly unamiable."

"Why do you suppose I make an exception in your favor or disfavor?"

"I do not know your reasons, or whether you do make an exception in case."

"You are very kind, I only wish to mention one thing; the merest trifle, I must ask your forgiveness for naming it, but it is in the interest of truth. If I wish to be unvaryingly unamiable to you, why do you suppose I am driving you home? I know you to be very tired: were I so bad as you represent me, should I not rather have left you to walk?"

She bit her lip to hide a smile as she replied—

"Certainly not, you were perfectly consistent; you knew I did not wish to be driven."

He burst out laughing.

"Your woman's logic is unanswerable," he said gravely.

"Seriously though," he went on after a pause, "the bad opinion you have of me troubles me considerably. I fear my presence in the same room must cause you annoyance; in my wish to redeem my character, I see myself, therefore, condemned to give up my evenings at the Rec ory."

Her tone was very cool as she replied—

"You would oblige me by not making a personal question of it. I can have nothing to do with your comings and goings; please do not speak as if I had."

Whether Dr. Holme considered himself crushed or not did not appear. He went on speaking almost as if he had not heard her.

"I have wondered sometimes what would happen if the rector and doctor—in the abstract—of this place were to quarrel. They would be entirely cut off from all intercourse with their intellectual fellows. I fancy they would put up with a great deal from one another before letting it come to a quarrel."

Helen appeared to have no remark to make upon this observation, and they drove on in silence.

By this time they had reached the village; a few moments more, and they would be at the Rectory. Helen contemplated the end of her drive with indifference, the doctor with regret and a little impatience; the conversation had not been altogether what he would have liked, and he was angry with himself for feeling hurt that Mrs. Moore thought him more unamiable than he really was. He deposited her at the Rectory door, gave her a parting caution as to the danger of again overwalking herself and drove away.

He returned to his work, but his thoughts were occupied in a persistent and annoying way with Helen. He could not make up his mind what to think about her. She was young and beautiful and charming; he could not help smiling as he recalled the Rector's name for her, and it struck him how suitable it had been. He did not know which was the most charming, her manner to himself, of reserve mingled with a cordiality which was evidently assumed with an effort and from a sense of duty, or her manner to the Rector of deferential attention and respect, lightened by affection and the half unconscious coquetry which is permissable between a young and attractive woman and a man old enough to be her father.

Dr. Holme felt her attraction keenly and he wondered what was the sorrow which so frequently threw a shadow over her face.

Helen went indoors and found Mrs Longworthy in a room which did not command a view of the drive.

"It was you," she said, as the girl came in. "I thought I heard wheels coming along the drive."

"I have no doubt you did, it was I being brought home in state in Dr. Holme's dogcart. I walked a little too far, and as we met him he drove me home."

Mrs. Longworthy looked annoyed.

"How thoughtless of Rupert!" she said. "I told him to send you home as soon as you felt at all tired. He is really too careless."

"I expect he had scruples about ridding himself of me in, that plain, unvarnished fashion," said Helen, smiling. "You know he says his intercourse with the Miller's Gate people has taught him to be very regardful of the feelings of others."

"You must have a glass of wine," said Mrs. Longworthy, rising and laying aside her work as she spoke.

"What did you talk about?" she asked when she was seated again.

"Who?"

"The doctor and you?"

"I don't think we talked about anything in particular. The impression left upon my mind by our conversation is that we squabbled."

"My dear!" said Mrs. Longworthy, looking distressed.

"I did not intend to, of course, but the conversation sank to that. We never do agree, you know. If he speaks only half-a-dozen sentences he contrives to irritate me. Whenever I talk to him I have the feeling of being rubbed the wrong way. I suppose I irritate him too in the same way, but he does not take as much trouble to conceal it as I do."

"I think you are quite mistaken. I believe Dr. Holme has a very high opinion of you, and during your illness he was most kind and attentive."

"During my illness—yes, he did not know me then. It was not I to whom he was kind and attentive, but a patient—in the abstract you know—a case. Professionally I have the greatest esteem for him, and feel very grateful whenever I think of all he did for me; but personally I cannot get on with him, there is no sympathy at all between us.

"You have found that out very soon, I think."

"Ah, you think I am judging too hastily, but I can always tell at once whether I am going to get on with a person or not. I have never made a mistake yet. I suppose it is instinct. I have no reason to give for not liking Dr. Holme, but I know—I can feel—that we shall never be friends."

"I am sorry for that. We have known known him for ten years, and have always got on with him exceedingly well."

"I daresay people are different," said Helen rather absently, and the subject dropped. Only as Helen left the room to take off her walking things she turned at the door and said—

"I know you think I have been slandering Dr. Holme, but he is at liberty to slander me as much as he chooses."

The Last Year, 1885.

Ald. Hewer and Read on the Colonial Exhibit.

The Guelph Junction Railway and a Host of Other Matters Discussed.

The regular meeting of the Council was held Monday evening. Present—the Mayor in the chair—Ald. Lamprey, Keough, Bruce, Maddock, Cutten, Chadwick, Hewer, Hearn, Raymond, J. Carter, Read, Hamilton, Smith, Husband, Skinner, Hortop, Coffee, W. Carter.

Ald. Hewer rose to a question of privilege in reference to a letter which appeared in the papers from the pen of Ald. Read, relating to the Colonial exhibit.

The Mayor stated that he thought Ald. Hewer in order, but he would not allow any of the other members to take part, neither of the Aldermen to speaker more than once.

Ald. Hewer then took up Ald. Read's letter and began to criticise it, stating that he thought the Council was the best place to reply to the charges, and if he (Ald. Hewer) had not done his duty he was willing to have a committee of inquiry to investigate the matter. The discussion lasted for nearly an hour, and as it is deemed of no interest to the public, being purely a personal matter, is not reported. At the close both Aldermen became rather personal, but His Worship promptly put his foot down, and brought the gentlemen to time.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The Clerk read a communication from the City Solicitor, stating that he had examined into Mr. Raymond's qualification and found it correct.

From Mr. Alex. S. Abbott, Clerk of London, asking the city to co-operate with them, in connection with other cities, to do away with exemption from taxation.

From Rev. Dr. Torrance, stating that the School Board had decided to hold their elections the same as the Municipal elections.

From James Lovell, asking for refund of statute labor, as he was paying taxes.

From John Ewing, asking to be refunded $10 damages done by water to goods in his cellar, caused by a defective drain.

From W. Tytler, stating that the estimate for the Free Library Board, for the current year was $1,400, and asking a sum to be put to their credit.

BOARD OF WORKS.

Ald. Maddock, chairman, reported, stating that that they had received eight tenders for lumber and six for blocks, and recommend that the following be accepted:—Robert Stewart, for 3 inch tamarack plank, $11 per 1,000 feet on board cars at Guelph station. From D. Porter, for 2 inch hemlock plank, F. O. B. C., Guelph, $9 per 1,000 feet. From Alonzo Bridges, $9.75 for cedar and $9.75 for elm, to be delivered in corporation yard. From Scott, Scott & Co., Toronto, for pine plank, $12.40 per 1,000 feet F. O. B. cars at Guelph. From Harvey & Co., for nails, at $2.64 per 100 lbs. We have also accepted the tender of Geo. Robinson to supply 12 cords of cedar blocks delivered in corporation yards at $5.70 per cord. Your Committee consider that the petition from Wm. Fletcher, asking the Council to pay damages because of his horse falling into the waterworks trench on Douglas street, should be referred to the Waterworks Committee to adjudicate and report thereon.—Adopted.

Ald. Hearn reported:—They have examined the following accounts and recommend payment; Peter Anderson, $5.65; Thos. Simmons, $2.26; Kloepfer & Richardson, $5.08; James Gibson, $3.50. Your Committee would recommend that the room in rear of Council Chamber be papered, and stairway put down from inside market to basement, and outside stairway closed, at an estimated cost of $30. Adopted.

Lamprey, chairman, reported, recommending that the Chief of Police be instructed to notify all parties having wood, lumber, or any other obstructions on the cemetery grounds to have the same removed forthwith; that the grounds be ploughed, preparatory to summer fallowing, as early as possible. Remittance to Germany for flower seeds, $14; cord wood for green house, $19; duty on flower seeds $2.10, leaving a balance on hand of $164.00 out of an appropriation of $200. Adopted.

POLICE.

Ald Read reported for the Committee and recommended the payment of the following accounts: Telegraph Company, 12 messages, $4.38; Telephone Company, 55 cents—total $4.93. Expended to date, $35.50. Your Committee are of opinion that when the Chief of Police is in attendance at the Council, Police Court, or on public occasions, he should wear his official uniform. With the approval of your Committee the Chief of Police has rented the property of Mr. F. Small, nearly opposite Dr. Herod's, on Woolwich street, thereby enabling him to be nearer the centre of the City, and also to have a better command of the force, as well as to have further protection to property in that neighborhood. Adopted.

THE PROVINCIAL.

Ald. Chadwick, chairman of the special Committee to attend the Agricultural and Arts' Association, in connection with the Provincial Exhibition reported the agreement as follows:—We, the deputation from the city of Guelph agree on behalf of the said city—to furnish all the necessary accommodation that you may require for holding your usual exhibition, if you decide to hold it in our city this year, as understood between your Special Committee and ourselves; that is to say we will put all the present buildings and fences in a proper state of repair, as required by your superintendent; also a water supply same as we did last time. We further agree to furnish all lumber that may be required for new stables, sheds and buildings, free of charge. This action of your Committee has already been approved by the Council, and they would recommend that a committee be appointed from the Council to assist the Board in making the exhibition a success. Adopted.

Moved by Ald. Chadwick, seconded by Ald. Coffee, that the following be a Committee in accordance with the special report of the deputation appointed to attend the meeting of the Agricultural and Arts' Association, viz:—Ald. Bruce, Hearn, Read, Hamilton, Wm. Carter and the mover.—Carried.

The Committee on the Colonial and Indian Exhibition reported: We have had the Habitant's head replaced by the Canadian coat of arms. Also pictures of private residences taken out, and the following factories put in: C. Raymond, McCrae & Co., J. B. Armstrong & Co.; also English Church replaced by the Guelph General Hospital. We also had the same packed and shipped on Friday last, and receipt handed over to His Worship the Mayor, also one forwarded to Ottawa. Your Committee have also decided to have views of the churches taken out and replaced by two general views of the city, taken from the railway bridge or its neighborhood, the one looking to the city side, with St. George's Church about the centre, the other looking across, showing a small bit of the river's best private residences. Also fresh views of the Central and High Schools. Recommend the payment of the following accounts as per agreement: F. Sturdy, painting, $54; P. Dobereiner, pictures, etc., $44; T. James & Co., making frame etc., $150; R. H. Rogers, engraving views, $2; sundries, postage, telegraphs, etc., $1; total $251. The following extras have been added since last special meeting of of the Council as per resolution, and recommend payment of the same: Mr. O'Brien, coat of arms, $10; Mr. P. Dobereiner, extras, $6; Mr. Gibson, $4; J. D. Williamson & Co., $1; total $30. Your Committee ask that the sum of $31 be placed to their credit.—Adopted.

GUELPH JUNCTION RAILWAY.

The Mayor stated that Mr. McCrea and Mr. Hatch desired to address the Council in reference to another proposed route for the Guelph Junction Railway.

Mr. McCrea was heard first. He stated that it had been talked over by the Board of Trade the advisability of showing Mr. Van Horne, when he came here, a different route from those now laid out. This route would strike the Great Western at the Budgeon farm, about four miles out, and join the Great Western. If running powers could be obtained from the Grand Trunk at a rental from this point to Goldie's mill, it would save the City some $20,000 or $50,000, and gain the object desired of communication with the Canada Pacific. The grant asked for the survey would only amount to some $20 or $30.

Mr. Hatch said that the chief object of the deputation was to get a small grant. The routes now laid down, to take them to Goldie's mill, would cost so much that it was a question if the people would vote the money. He had no doubt but that a by-law for the terminus to be at Huskisson street would carry, but the heavy expenses came in taking it to Goldie's mill, where valuable property would have to be bought out.

Moved by Ald. Hortop, seconded by Ald. Coffee, that the Railway Committee be authorized to have a line of levels taken as asked for by the Board of Trade if they consider it advisable. Carried.

GRANTS TO THE HOSPITAL.

Ald. Coffee introduced a by-law for providing a grant of $1,000 for the General Hospital, St. Joseph's Hospital and the House of Providence. Some discussion arose on the grant of $200 to St. Joseph's when it was explained that the same privileges were extended to city patients at St. Joseph's Hospital as at the General. The by-law was then passed.

WEDNESDAY A MARKET DAY.

Ald. Coffee introduced a by-law amending the market by-law so as to make Wednesday a special market day. The by-law was passed.

EXTRA POLLING PLACES.

Moved by Ald. Chadwick, seconded by Ald. Coffee, that the Committee appointed to consider the redistribution of polling subdivisions be empowered to make the necessary changes in conjunction with the Revising Officer for the South Riding of Wellington.

Ald. Coffee intimated that it was the desire of the Revising Officer, Judge Drew, that the Council should take some steps in making arrangements for extra polling places in the various wards, as according to the Act only 200 could vote in each polling subdivision, if over that an extra polling subdivision was required.

Ald. Chadwick explained that it would make no difference to the vote whatever, as all those who were entitled to vote could vote anyhow. The Revising Officer had the power to make the polling places himself, but he considered that it would be better if the Council should take some action.

The motion was carried.

After some other business the Council adjourned.

In the senate to-day Mr. Frye said, as soon as the first American fishing vessel was seized by the Canadian authorities he proposed introducing a bill closing the ports of the United States against all British colonial fishing, freighting and passenger vessels all along the line of the great lakes and Atlantic. Mr. Morgan replied, cautioning prudent consideration of the grave questions involved.

Labour Notes.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 5.—Larger crowds assembled this morning around the railway depot in east St. Louis than for some time past, but they were undemonstrative and offered no opposition to the making and starting out of freight trains.

A new development in the strike on the east side of the river, and which occasions considerable surprise and uneasiness among the railway officials, occurred this morning when the Chicago and Alton switch engineers struck. They say they will not go back to work until the trouble between the railroads and their employees is settled, and they are confident their brotherhood will support them.

HANNIBAL, Mo., April 5.—All the strikers who returned to work last Friday, pending arbitration, struck again to-day by order of the general executive board. The switch engines were run into the round house and killed.

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is not to occur in persons of a gouty character.
For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.
In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.
Sold by all Dealers in Family Medicines.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—On account of the stormy weather the Band Concert and Polo Match advertised for last night was postponed till Thursday night. The two teams are in good practice and both are confident of success. A great game will be the result.

MONTHLY CATTLE FAIR.—The monthly cattle fair was poorly attended to-day as regards cattle, compared with usual fairs. There are two reasons for this—the bad state of the roads and the near approach of the Easter fair. There was a fair offering of butchers' cattle, and the prices ranged from 3c to 4½c per pound live weight. Cows, and there were quite a few offered, ranged from $30 to $50.

A VERY pleasant gathering took place at the residence of Mr. James Baldwin, Erin Township, on Wednesday, 31st ult., the occasion being the marriage of his daughter Adelaide to Mr. John Loree, Eramosa. Over fifty of the friends of the families were present, and the valuable gifts showed the esteem in which the parties chiefly concerned were held.

KINCARDINE Fire Department are making arrangements for the holding of a monster firemen's demonstration to be held in that town on the 23rd and 24th of June next. THE ROYAL OAKS.—The Royal Oaks, as a junior baseball club had a very creditable record last year, and it seems that the club are taking steps for the coming season to maintain their prestige. A meeting of those interested in their welfare was held last night at the Queen's hotel, when John Brown was elected president, James Brown, secretary, and Thos. Hewer treasurer. Afterwards a conversation was indulged in with regard to forming a junior league, composed of the Galt, Hespeler, Preston and Guelph clubs. Further particulars in this connection will be glean'd shortly.

LEGAL CHANGES.—On account of Mr. E. F. B. Johnston having returned to Guelph to practice his profession, the partnership heretofore existing between Hugh McMillan and W. A. McLean, barristers, etc., has been dissolved. Mr. Johnston and Mr. McLean retain the old offices over the Federal Bank. Mr. McMillan will remain there for one week to wind up the business of the late firm of McMillan & McLean, after which he will remove to the new office now being fitted up for him in the Ontario Bank building, where he will be happy to see faces old and new.

There were 30 applications for transfers, among which are noticed Alfred Andrews, Guelph to Manitoba, forthwith. G. A. Gifford, M. A., Montreal to Guelph, May 27.

THE Rural Canadian for April has been received. Rural Notes are not quite as extended as usual; but the Farm and Field, Sheep and Swine, Poultry and Pets, and Garden and Orchard Departments are full of seasonable reading. Music is omitted from this number. Published by C. Blackett Robinson, 5 Jordan Steet, Toronto.

The report of the committee appointed at the general meeting held on the first of March to consider the advisability of withdrawing from the Canadian Board of Fire Underwriters, which was to the effect that the best interests of the company would be promoted by the withdrawal. The ballot for the election of directors for the ensuing year resulted in the re-election of the former board, consisting of:—James Goldie, Wm. Bell, Guelph; Hugh McCulloch, Galt; George Patterson, Preston; S. Neelton, St. Catharines; C. Riordon, Merritton; A. Watts, Brantford; W. Wilson, J. L. Spink, H. N. Baird, Hugh Scott, W. H. THE BONUS BY-LAW

Yesterday the vote on the by-law to grant Burr Bros. a bonus of $2000 and exemption from taxation for ten years with free water was voted on. The day was so stormy that even enthusiasts for the passage of the by-law were loath to venture out. At noon the number of votes polled were ascertained from each polling subdivision, when it became apparent that unless strenuous efforts were put forth the by-law would be defeated. Cabs were accordingly hired and voters taken to the polls, but notwithstanding this, when the poll was closed at five o clock, it appeared to be a foregone conclusion that the by-law was defeated. All the returns were in before six o'clock, and when they were counted up it was found that the vote for was 510, and against 53. The vote recorded, considering the state of the weather, was large. Had it been a fine day there is no doubt but the by-law would have carried by a handsome majority. Returning officer Mitchell at ten o'clock this morning made his official declaration and declared the by-law carried. The following are the returns:—

MESSRS. BELL & Co. have a gang of men employed to-day clearing away the debris caused by the roof of one of their buildings being blown off yesterday.

MR. JOHN WEST, of Salem, Oregon, formerly of Guelph, owns seven Cotswold sheep, which, from an Oregon paper, seem to be more than ordinarly prolific, having dropped eighteen lambs in all.

TALL LAYING.—Mr. John D. Robertson is to the front in the egg laying business, and the record given by him of his Plymouth Rock hens is ahead of anything that has yet appeared. From nineteen birds, in the month of January, he gathered 17 dozen eggs, February 18 dozen, and March 21½ dozen. This is something hard to beat.

OFF THE TRACK.—The passenger train due here at 5:17 p.m., was thrown off the track yesterday on the other side of Berlin, through a switch being left open, and the engine, baggage and second class cars were derailed. The constructionput on the cause of the accident is that on account of the storm the train was about two hours and a half late. In the meantime a special train passed along at the time of the arrival of the regular train, and the crossing watchman, mistook the one for the other, and opened the switch for the Galt Branch. An auxiliary was sent from Stratford, and it took till seven o'clock this morning before the track was cleared. Fortunately no one was injured.

The Railway Strikers.

ST. LOUIS, April 6.—It has been decided by the head Knights of Labour that upon the result of the great railroad strike in the south-west depends the welfare of the order. The members of the General Executive recognize the fact that the integrity of the Order is menaced by the mistake of Irons. Irons has accordingly been superseded by the General Executive Board, and if the latter should not remain on the ground an Eastern man will be placed at the helm.

The striking employees of the Gould lines issued an address to the labouring men of the world to-day, detailing the injustice to which they had been subjected. The address is directed personally against Gould.

CHICAGO, April 6.—Labour organizations here propose to raise $10,000 to help the strikers on the Gould roads.

Beverly Correspondence.

Mr. Dynes, of Hamilton, preached an excellent sermon on Sabbath, 4th April, at 2.30 p.m., in the Methodist Church in Rockton. He took for his text, Hebrews 11th Chapter, 24th and 26th verses. The congregation was large and very attentive. He showed how the Lord raised Moses up and enabled him to do great things, from the river Nile, till the Lord took him to himself. Faith was the means that caused him to do those mighty works. The preacher made a strong invitation to sinners to come to Christ and encouraged saints to go on their way rejoicing.
Rockton, April 5th, 1886.

J. C. McLEAN has just secured the agency for the famous Davis Vertical Feed Sewing Machine. This machine scored a triumphant success last fall at the Antwerp and Paris Exposition, where it carried off the diploma of honor against all competitors. All interested in sewing machines should call and inspect the Davis before purchasing any other. d3w1

TUESDAY'S STORM.

Much damage was done to buildings, roofs, fences and other property in different parts of the province by Tuesday's storm, which in many places was the most severe experienced this winter. Fortunately no loss of life is reported, though several persons have received injuries of a more or less serious character. Snow fell to a depth of two to five feet in places, and railway traffic was seriously delayed.

This morning many citizens had a spell of back-breaking work in shovelling the piles of snow from their sidewalks, which Tuesday's storm had deposited upon them. The streets and sidewalks have not been drifted to such an extent this winter before. Piles of snow, in some cases six feet high, covered the sidewalks. The roads were rendered miserable for traffic. The drifts everywhere at intervals along them spoiled the wheeling, while the fact that they were bare in many other places made sleighing equally bad. However, a number of cabs, delivery rigs, and other city conveyances are on runners to-day, thus presenting an unusual sight for this time of the year. One consequence of the bad roads was a poor fair to-day. Another was delay in railway traffic. The 5:17 train yesterday afternoon from the west ran off the track above Berlin and the passengers came through this morning. The fast express and the midnight express were cancelled. On the Wellington, Grey & Bruce Division traffic was also impeded to some extent, but all the passenger trains are running pretty regular to-day, although the roads are very heavy.

In addition to the damage caused by the high wind recorded yesterday a part of the iron railing was blown off the roof of Gny & Husband's store, as was also a part of that on St. George's Church. Some slate was likewise removed from the latter, and hurled into the street. The wonder is that amid the general wreck only one person was hurt. Mr. Healy, the assistant engineer at W. Bell & Co's old factory, was not seriously injured and will be able to return to work in a day or two.

The effects of the storm will be seriously felt when a thaw comes to cause floods and make roads even still more impassable.

At the docks in Hamilton the storm seems to have raged with great fury. The Grand Trunk docks suffered severely and all the way above the elevator not a plank is left on the dock. The huge seas ripped off the planks fastened by six inch spikes as though they were shingles. Lumber in piles along the docks and on flat cars flew about like straws. The old wharf at the west end of the yard was nothing but a row of spiles and a few stray timbers after the storm had worked an hour or two. The siding nearest to it was undermined by the encroaching waters and the track fell into the bay. The Toronto branch track, which is at the water's edge going out of the city to the junction, was also washed out at one point and the trains going west went slowly and carefully till they had passed the exposed part of the line as far as the canal. Chief Engineer Hobson faced the storm all morning at this point, and everything was in readiness to repair any damage the storm might do the main line, which so far has escaped injury. Residents at the Hamilton Beach say that there never was such a storm for years. The waves of old Ontario rolled fully as high as the light house at the end of the piers, and at times the latter on both sides of the canal were completely covered with water.

In Toronto the storm blew down the front of a shop on Queen street, knocked down and broke the leg of an unfortunate man on King street by a board which came from the direction of Manning's Arcade, and played sad havoc with the Lake Shore road and Hanlan's Point, endangering the foundation of the engine-room at the latter place. The snow overloaded the telegraph, telephone, and fire signal wires so that they broke, and the last were rendered entirely useless. Fortuhately there was no extensive fire. Street car traffic was seriously impeded.

Big Blaze at Belleville.

BELLEVILLE, April 6.—A serious fire occurred this morning in the Cronk block, a brick building on the corner of Front and Hotel streets, in which were situated the stores of A. L. Geen, druggist; J. W. Brown, tailor, and John Gilbert, flour and feed. The upper storey of a part of the building was occupied by Miss Page, John St. Jean, and W. H. Ockerman as a dwelling. The block, which was owned by Jacob Cronk, was completely gutted. The losses will reach $30,000. Well insured.

IRISH HOME RULE.

Scope of the Scheme—The Government Said to be Doomed.

The Globe says:—Our London correspondent, whose information throughout on British politics has been extremely accurate, sends us what he states to be the outline of Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule scheme as given to him by "a well-placed informant." Briefly the measure confers upon Ireland legislative powers almost equal to those enjoyed by Canada, but Ireland will have to contribute to the Imperial Exchequer, and will be represented in Imperial Parliament by a small number of members, who will not take part in discussion of any but Imperial questions.

LONDON, April 6.—Mr. Gladstone's home rule scheme was submitted to the cabinet to-day.

The Conservatives are making strenuous efforts to form a coalition with the Whigs against Mr. Gladstone. Lord Salisbury had a conference with the other Conservative leaders yesterday, but no decision was reached relative to the course to be pursued on Irish measures.

LONDON, April 6.—It was stated in the lobby of the House of Commons this evening that Messrs. Mundella and Childers had resigned their seats in the Cabinet. It is expected the Messrs. Fowler, Heneage and Broadhurst will secede from the Government on Thursday. The consensus of opinion is that the present Government is doomed.

The Late W. E. Forster.

LONDON, April 6.—The last words uttered by William E. Forster were:—"No home rule."

Mr. Gladstone paid a glowing tribute to the late W. E. Forster in the Commons this evening. He said Forster was a man worthy to be remembered, both on account of his public acts and personal character. He had earned a high place as a legislator. He was a man of unflinching courage. Though a man of peace, he was profoundly attached to the welfare and greatness of his country, and acutely sensible to whatever retained to its honor.

When Mr. Gladstone had finished Sir Michael Hicks-Beach said: "After the eloquent eulogy just delivered I can only add that the Conservatives cordially sympathise in the tribute that has been paid to Mr. Forster's memory. The nation has lost a man of high courage, great ability and of sincere devotion to his country."

Sir Hector Langevin made a motion to the effect that Government business should have precedence on Thursday, beginning next week.

The early part of the session was taken up with minor Government measures, several of which were advanced a stage, including one to provide for the consolidation of the statutes and one to authorize sharper curves on the Esquimault & Nanaimo Railway than those authorized by the contract.

The House spent over five hours in Committee of Supply, and made fairly satisfactory progress.

A long discussion arose respecting colonization companies and the settlement of the Northwest, in connection with the vote for the Department of the Interior.

The House adjourned at 12.25 a. m.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G APRIL 7, 1886.

Impeaching Members!

It is only a few days ago since we gave particulars of the disgraceful transactions between Messrs. Beaty and Woodworth, by which they sought to use their position as members of Parliament to make money out of a projected railway enterprise in the Northwest. This was done, too, with the knowledge and connivance of the Government, for in the correspondence between Beaty and Woodworth it was admitted that the Finance Minister knew of the arrangement made between those two worthies for putting money in their pockets; and Sir John Macdonald's influence was also invoked to get the land grant to the railway company hurried through so that they could put the whole scheme on the market.

These members have been impeaching each other, and the public have not yet got to the bottom of their nefarious doings. But we can with patience wait for further details while we say something about two other cases of impeachment, the charges this time, however, being preferred by members of the Opposition against a member of the Cabinet and three supporters of the Government. The first refers to the well known Priuce Albert Colonization Company, and the charges are made against Mr. Bowell, Minister of Customs, and Mr. John White, M.P. for East Hastings. It is alleged that Mr. White, in 1882, associated with Mr. James C. Jamieson, of the Bellville Intelligencer, son-in-law of Hon. Mr. Bowell, used his influence with the Government of which he is a supporter to obtain an order-in-council granting for colonization purposes 51,200 acres of land near Batoche, with the intention of forming the Prince Albert Colonization Company. The paying shareholders were to give White and Jamieson in consideration of their procuring the order-in-council, special advantage and profit. That advantage and profit was to comprise 'blind shares' to the amount of $33,000, to be allowed for out of the profits, one-twelfth of which was the share of each of these two promoters. The other shareholders did as a matter of fact pay their calls in cash. The charges further state that a further order-in-council was obtained making a land transfer for a part of the parish of St. Louis de Langevin. White is further charged with offering procure for the same company lands near Edmonton upon the same system of granting him "blind shares." White and Jamieson are charged with obtaining from the Government an agreement for another lot of lands for the Shell River Colonization Company on terms similar to those which pertained to the Prince Albert transaction. The allegation against Mr. Bowell is that the affair was conducted with his knowledge, that he was consulted during its progress, and that when Mr. Jamieson ultimately sold his "blind shares," Mr. Bowell received from Mr. Jamieson upon some transaction between them relating to the affair, $500 out the price of the said "blind share."

Mr. Edgar made the formal charge and moved for the appointment of a select committee to enquire into the whole matter with power to send for persons, papers and records, and to examine witnesses on oath, but through the action of the Government it was referred to the Committee Privileges and Elections. It is right to state that Mr. Bowell flatly denied having any connection whatever with the Company, or receiving any money for the consideration mentioned.

The other members impeached are Mr. Murray Dodd and Mr. H. F. McDougall, both from Cape Breton. Mr. Blake prefers the charge in this case, which in substance is that when McDougall was running for member of Parliament last year, Dodd, who is the Tory whip, threatened a voter named Roche, who as a member of the pilotage Board of Sydney was a Government official, that if he did not vote for the Conservative candidate — who was McDougall — he would be dismissed from the public service. It was also charged that after the election Dodd and McDougall entered into a conspiracy for the removal of Roche, who in spite of all Dodd's threats would not vote for the Tory candidate but voted for his opponent. These two worthies insisted that Roche should be superseded in his office as a punishment for voting as he did.

Mr. Blake in his impeachment gives the following narrative of what was subsequently done:—

"That Messrs. Macdougall, M. P., and Dodd, M. P., continued to press for the removal of Mr. Roche and in the end a plan was devised for the accomplishment of their object by the remodelling of the pilotage board and the creation of a new board for the comparatively unimportant outports, on which minor board Mr. Roche was to be put without his consent and the constitution of a board for the great port of Sidney on which Mr. Roche's name was not to appear;

"That having heard that he was by some such scheme to be turned out, Mr. Roche communicated with Mr. Dodd, M.P., who told him that the fact was so, reminded him of his requests and warnings about voting against the Government candidate, and told him that he must submit to the consequences;

"That the substance of this statement was communicated to the Government which, however, proceeded to carry out the plan and created the two boards accordingly; thus accomplishing the end sought of displacing Mr. Roche from the main functions of his office in pursuance of the threat of Mr. Dodd, and the determination of Mr. Macdougall to punish him for voting as they believed he had voted against the Government candidate."

As in the previous case Mr. Blake will move for the appointment of a select committee, armed with the same powers to investigate the charges. Between them and those preferred against certain members of the Government by Sir Richard Cartwright, of accepting gifts and otherwise making money by virtue of their position, we shall have a lively time in Parliament and some hot work.

THE caterer to the gastronomic needs of the members of the British House of Commons evidently has rather a good thing out of his contract. An inquisitive member who thought he had been overcharged for a meal lately brought out the information that, besides being furnished with firing, light and table appointments by the country, the contractor receives a grant of $2,500 per annum to provide for the wages of servants and another $2,500 to pay for plate, the accumulated supply of which at this rate would, it might be thought, soon suffice for a fairly extensive restaurant. The caterers for the Senate and House of Commons in Canada have privileges of the same kind if not to the same extent as in England. We cannot see why they should be such special favorites, or why their connection with Parliament could not be conducted on business principles the same as with any other body.

THE Montreal Post thinks Dominion politics at present are in a somewhat mixed condition. It says:—"Prince Edward Island wants a submarine railway which will cost something like $5,000,000. Nova Scotia is growling because her debt has increased from $8,250,000 at Confederation is $28,000,000 to-day. New Brunswick is threatening to leave the Dominion for similar reasons, and a general lack of commercial interests with the rest of the country. Quebec is angry over the Riel question. Ontario Orangemen threaten to 'smash Confederation into its original fragments" if the "croppies" do not "lie down." Manitoba is agitated over Farmers' Unions, disallowances, and railway monopolies. The Northwest Territories are fast coming under the rule of great landed proprietors, while the Indian question slumbers with a sickly leer on its half closed weather eye, and British Columbia wants Cabinet representation and is sulking on the Chinese difficulty!"

THE Right Hon. W. E. Forster, who was Chief Secretary for Ireland under the previous Gladstone Ministry, died on Monday after a lingering illness, at the age of 68 years. In some respects Mr. Forster was a remarkable man, though he never came to the very front rank among the statesmen of his day. Of Quaker descent, both by father and mother, he maintained throughout his career some of the supposed characteristics of that gentle, but most energetic, class of people. He was true to the traditions of his house in his whole-souled opposition to slavery in all its forms and in spite of all the aspersions thrown upon him in connection with his official life in Ireland, was to the last, both in theory and practice, a true and sturdy supporter of Liberal principles and enlightened freedom. Born in 1819 and educated in the Friends School at Tottenham, Mr. Forster went at an early age into business, and was very successful as a worsted manufacturer in Bradford. The first thing which brought him into public notice was his visit to the distressed districts of Ireland in 1846-7 for the purpose of distributing the famine relief fund raised by the Quakers. His subsequent narrative of this Irish expedition which was published in 1847 made him still more spoken about. It was not till 1859 that he sought to enter Parliament. He was unsuccessful on that occasion, but was subsequently returned in 1861 for Bradford, which he has represented ever since, and which renewed its expression of confidence a few weeks ago. In 1865 Mr. Forster took office under Lord John Russell, as Under Secretary of the Colonies, and was subsequently Vice President of the Committee of Council on Education. In 1870 he displayed remarkable tact and ability in carrying the Education Bill through the House of Commons, and in 1875, when Mr. Gladstone retired from the Liberal leadership, it was thought that Mr. Forster would have been chosen his successor had he not peremptorily declined to be put in nomination for the position, and the Marquis of Hartington was accordingly selected. Upon the organization of Mr. Gladstone's Ministry in 1880, Mr. Forster was made Chief Secretary for Ireland, the duties of which difficult and important position he discharged with characteristic energy and decision for upwards of two years, though not so mildly as might have been expected frum his Quaker associations and training. Mr. Forster never got over the strain put upon his mental and physical system by his Irish official work.

FIRE.—A vacant house which stood on the farm of Mr. Charles Bernard, a mile and a half from here, on the Guelph road, was burned on Sunday night. Cause of the fire unknown.

HIGH WATER.—The river raised so high during Wednesday night, that one of our storekeepers on awakening next morning, found his house so completely surrounded by water that it was impossible for him to get out. Notwithstanding its "magnificent water stretches," the village does not contain a boat that could be used in an emergency like this, and it looked for a time as if Sydney would have to follow the example of old man Noah, by waiting for the waters to subside, but toward nightfall a couple of venturesome spirits succeeded in reaching the house with a wagon, and releasing the family from their temporary prison.

NEARLY "OUTGENERALLED."—On Saturday last a Guelph horse trader arrived in town bent on doing a little business. After considerable talking he succeeded in trading horses with one of our merchant millers, receiving $20 to boot, when the Guelph man's horse, which was a fine animal to look at, was taken out of the harness it was found that he was so badly used up by disease that he could not stand unless he had something to lean against. The Rockwood man finding himself badly taken in, naturally refused to ratify the bargain, and the Guelph man finding matters getting too warm for him, fled from the scene leaving his team behind him. He afterward gave a man, whomhe met in Duffield's hotel, 50 cents to bring him his horses. Our townsman succeeded in keeping his "General but he is out $20 by the transaction.

A TENDENCY

Of The Times.

Friday April 2nd, 1886.

We say "a tendency," as we do not now imply that our remarks refer to the leading tendency of the times, but "a Tendency of the Times" is to pass the spurious for the real, to represent the counterfeit as the genuine. Hence, Shoddy is made to appear like Wool, Jute looks like Silk, Cotton is manipulated and sold for Linen. This is not alone the rule in Dry Goods, but in every other branch of manufacture. We confine ourselves however to the discussion of Dry Goods.

One reason for this is the continual pressure on the manufacturer to produce APPEARANCE and CHEAPNESS, which is done at the sacrifice of QUALITY. Something is wanted that catches the eye. Lines of goods are specially sought for to produce the impression of cheapness. Certain people in business are continually on the look-out for that kind of stuff. Of course it is no benefit to the purchaser, he thinks he buys wool and gets shoddy, he imagines he buys silk and has jute, he pays for the real and gets the spurious. It is no benefit to the dealer, his tether is not a very long one, he is soon found out and hardly gets the chance to gull the same victim a second time. Look about you and see who are the solid and successful manufacturers and merchants of our land. The men who produce honest goods, the men who sell honest goods. They come out all right in the long run. They merit the public confidence and they get it, while the apostles of deceit are wiped off the scene almost as fast as the polish off their goods. They have to get out of business every few years. They shine for a while but their light soon dims.

For our own part, we shall steadily adhere to the principle of "Honest Goods at Fair Prices" We have reason to know this plan works to the satisfaction of our customers as well as ourselves.

DAVIS

Vertical Feed Sewing Machine.

It is a sewing machine advertisement, it is true.
It is not an old Stereotyped story.
We have something of interest to you, whether you wish to buy or not.
We have a machine quite unlike anything else. New Principles, New Ideas.
Its name is familiar. It is the New High Arm "Davis."
You say you have seen it; you are mistaken. It is a new pattern; a New Model,
Did you ever see a sewing machine with only six working parts? If not, you never saw this new machine.
There is only one tension to regulate. No holes to thread through.
All the work on this machine is of the highest grade, and will compare favorably with the workmanship of a Winchester rifle.
You can't comprehend it. You won't believe it unless you come and see for yourself. It will pay you from curiosity. We are so much interested in this ourselves that we are anxious you should see, know, tell and help us get these facts before the people.

From the Capital.

OTTAWA, April 5th.

Mr. McLelan delivered his Budget speech on Tuesday. The new Minister of Finance is not a clever man, neither is Sir Leonard Tilley his predecessor. But the latter had several years' experience in the department of finance, and besides he managed to throw considerable force and spirit into his Budget speeches. Mr. McLelan failed in all these respects. He has a drawling, monotonous style of speaking which renders it very uninteresting to listen to. Although here and there in his speech he tried to break the monotony he was almost invariably unsuccessful, and fell back into his old dreary manner without arousing the attention of the House. The speech fell flat on members, and still more so on the occupants of the galleries, which were remarkably thin for a Budget speech day. Its length also wearied the House, for it requires a very able speech to interest members for nearly five hours.

Things brightened up, however, as they always do when Sir Richard Cartwright takes the floor. The ex-Finance Minister is always perfectly at home when replying to a Budget speech. He looks the very picture of health and physical vigour, and when he rises to reply he does so thoroughly conscious of his own power and with his ability to trip up his opponent. Sir Richard is not only one of the ablest but one of the most correct speakers in Parliament. His sentences are for the most part short, crisp, and faultless as regards grammar, so much so, indeed, that the reporters never require to correct or doctor them. Towards the close of his speech he drew a graphic picture of the condition of the country, in which the Government had plunged it, and charged its members with interested and sordid motives in their administration of its affairs. These charges are of the gravest character, and were made in language, which cannot be misunderstood, as will be seen by the following sentence: "It has come to pass that to-day, however much as we regret it, we are obliged to admit that every second member of the Cabinet has been either the recipient of a testimonial largely subscribed for by public contractors and public employees, or that Ministers have received subsidies granted for the purpose of advancing lines in which they are large shareholders; or that they have been participants, by means of the cloak of a special company created for that special end, in printing contracts and other jobs which they could not have undertaken in their own proper persons without putting their seats in peril; or that they have been recipients of timber limits; and I am sorry to say as the Cabinet are, so are the majority of their supporters." Your readers can imagine the effect that such a charge would have on the House and when made in the downright powerful manner which characterizes all Sir Richard's statements.

The debate on the Budget was resumed by Mr. Thomas White, the new Minister of the Interior. He was the Government's right hand man before he took office and would probably have made an abler Finance Minister than Mr. McLelan. It was clear that he felt this throughout his speech, for he is gifted with considerable conceit of himself, and thought he was making a better job of it than his colleague. Mr. White is what the Yankees would call a smart speaker. He is ready in debate, glib of tongue, has the utmost confidence in himself and latterly speaks with a bumptious air as though he was somebody and his utterances very weighty and important. He knows quite well that he is a very useful man to the Government because he is the readiest to reply to attacks, but he lacks weight and power, and consequently his replies are neither very effective nor very damaging.

Mr. Paterson, of Brant, followed and made a very excellent and powerful speech. Next to Cartwright he is the best acquainted with finances of any member on the Opposition side, and being largely engaged in business he has an intimate knowledge of commercial affairs. He is gifted with a splendid voice, free utterance, and speaks generally with great power and animation, especially when he gets warmed up to his subject. He is never personal nor sarcastic, takes high moral ground in all his speeches, which is alike consistent with his professions and his life. Mr. Paterson always gets an attentive hearing because both those on the floor of the House and in the galleries feel that he is not playing a part, but is deeply in earnest and sincere in all that he says. In his peroration he denounced in eloquent language the greedy practices of members of the Government, as charged by Sir Richard Cartwright in accepting gifts, etc., and launched the following passages from Scripture at their heads amid the profound silence of the House:—"Thou shalt judge the people with just judgment. Thou shalt not respect persons—neither take a gift, for a gift doth blind the eyes of the wise and pervert the words of the righteous." "Everyone coveteth gifts and followeth after rewards; they judge not the fatherless neither doth the cause of the widow come unto them." Need I say that the charge made by Sir Richard, and repeated by Mr. Paterson, has not yet been answered by any member of the Government.

It is easily seen that Dr. Orton intends to run for Centre Wellington again, as he is trying once more to humbug the farmers with his banking bill which he says is introduced specially for their benefit. Its absurdities were thoroughly exposed in a sharp debate which took place on Wednesday. To please the Dr. the Government did not strangle the bill at once, but, as Mr. Blake said, they referred it to the Banking Committee, where it will be certainly killed. He further said, what is no doubt true, that they wished to give him an opportunity of making capital in Centre Wellington by abrogating their own functions in allowing a measure of this nature to be referred to a Committee without announcing a policy upon it.

Mr. Charlton's seduction bill received a very large support in the Commons this year on its second reading, 114 voting for, and 47 against it. After such a vote the Senate dare hardly throw it out this year.

Mr. Bowell this afternoon called attention to the notice of motion by Mr. Edgar, containing certain allegations against him and Mr. John White, of Hastings, in connection with the Prince Albert Colonization Company and asked that the motion be at once passed for the appointment of a Committee to investigate the charges. He also denied all the charges referred to in the motion. Mr. Edgar then read his motion which ended by giving the names of the Special Committee, but Sir Hector Langevin moved an amendment that the motion be referred to the Standing Committee on Privileges and Elections. Mr. John White followed in a most childish, rambling speech which more than ever lowered him in the estimation of the House. Sir Hector's amendment was carried, only one member voting against it. The whole affair created quite a sensation in the House, although all the facts relating to the case are well known, having been published in full in the Reform press last fall. It is to be hoped the matter will now be sifted to the bottom and the guilt placed on the right shoulders.

It is reported to-day that Sir John Macdonald is in much the same condition as he was last week. Indeed, there is no improvement in any respect, and those who know him best are beginning to fear that there will not be any.

Elora Correspondence.

IMPROVING.—Edmund, son of John Bowes, who was kicked by a horse a few days ago, as detailed elsewhere in the columns of the MERCURY, is gradually improving under the skillful care of Dr. Paget, and although his recovery may be slow, it is now assured. The little fellow had a narrow escape from death, and but for the prompitude of his father would have been killed by the frightened horse. All concerned are to be congratulated that matters are not worse than they now promise to be.

TEMPERANCE.—The Royal Templars of Temperance have obtained a good foothold in Elora, and are making efforts to extend their operations. In a few days they will find an enlarged field for their operations in this county, and meet with the enemy in every concession. Go for him!

COMING CREAMERY.—Mr. Ezra Wissler, of Salem, projects the establishment of a creamery in this locality, at an early date. The idea is worth working out. have the women. Let them skim their cream to the butter factory, and save further trouble, bad butter, and wasted time.

FAIRS.—Easter Fair in Elora will be held on Wednesday of next week, 14th inst. The Elora Horse Show, which is confidently expected to be the largest, best, and most important of the series, will come off on the 21st. There ought to be a big turn-out to both, but especially large to the Horse Show. Keep the dates in mind.

DEATHS.—On Friday, 2nd inst., Mr. Edward Leybourne, of Pilkington, died after a short illness. He rose on the morning of that day, took his breakfast, felt weak, laid down upon a lounge, and suddenly died, probably from heart disease. He came to Canada from Durham, England, in 1855, lived at Speedside for a short time, removed to Garafraxa, and thence went to Pilkington. He was a quiet, industrious and well doing man, and had reached his 77th year. His remains were interred in Fergus cemetery on Friday last, a large cortege following them to the grave. On the 31st ult., Catharine Williams, wife of John W. Thomas, of Elora, succumbed to an attack of bronchitis, after living a good life and reaching three score and ten years. She was interred in the Elora cemetery.

THE BATTALION BAND.—Rev W S Ball, the Chaplain of the 30th Battalion, delivered an excellent lecture last evening, at Fergus on the Northwest, in behalf of the funds of the 30th Band. Several persons went over from Elora, the Band turning out in full force. The lecturer delivered one of the best descriptions of the men who fought and of the fighting done in the Northwest of any yet given to the public, and the readers of the MERCURY will be glad to know that the people of Guelph, Eramosa, Elora, Palmerston, Harriston and Mount Forest and surrounding country will be afforded opportunity, after seeding, of hearing the rev. gentleman tell of the historical events of last year in a manner at once instructive and highly attractive. Everybody should hear him.

TAKING IN SAIL.—The congregation of St. John's Church Elora, which has lately been decreased by the removal of members from Elora, feels it necessary to reduce the stipend of its minister. This is to be regretted, but it is presumable that the action is not taken without due and proper consideration. It is not part of the N. P. programme to reduce salaries.

LECTURE.—Rev Hugh Rose, in his lecture on Thursday evening, in Knox Church here, which was largely attended, struck upon a subject which proved highly attractive to his audience, and his vivid and pleasing descriptions were made more intelligent by the exhibition of about 60 photographic views, by Levy of Paris, shown through a fine lense lent for the occasion by Mr Thomas Connon. The views were of Vesuvius, its crate, the lava fields, Pompeii the site of Herlolaneum, the Bay of Naples from different points, and the various surroundings which have made this spot one of the most delightful in Europe. It goes without saying that this lecture is one of the best yet delivered by the the Rev H Rose—and that is according it high praise.

THE FAIR.—April fair held to-day in Elora, amidst a driving snow storm from the east cannot be pronounced a great success. The best saleable cattle are kept back until Easter fair when many buyers are likely to be present.

THE FRANCHISE.—What are the Reformers of Peel, Pilkington, and East Garafraxa doing in the way of attention to the Dominion Voters' List? Their opponents are not idle, and are using every effort to carry the next election now, and with good prospects of success unless the Liberals of the riding set to work with more vigor than has already been displayed. It is useless to fight next fall or next year unless a little more pluck is displayed at the present time. In Pilkington many Conservative names are being placed on the roll, from the south of the township, while scarcely anything has been done in other sections of that municipality by Liberals. Surely there are some young men in Pilkington with English names who are entitled to the exercise of the franchise? Hunt them up at once, and let the old banner Reform township maintain its proud supremacy in the western portion of the constituency.

TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above named disorders.

GOOD ADVICE.—The Berlin News man, who is proverbially noted for his good qualities gives the MERCURY the following advice, which is republished not for our own good, but as a warning to others:—Bell & Co's stone organ factory, Guelph, has been unroofed and gave the MERCURY and other neighbors a terrible fright. Some were beginning to say their prayers, thinking the general wind-up had come. The best way by far is to say your prayers before the trouble is upon you. We give this advice gratis to the MERCURY people.

WE have much pleasure in informing our friends that Rev. C. H. Mead, the well known and eloquent missionary of the South, has been induced to pay another visit to Canada. Those who heard Bro. Mead during his visit to this Province last fall, will remember with delight his irresistibly humourous and pathetic addresses and Gospel songs. On the present occasion he will have with him some other talented friends who will assist at his meetings with quartette singing, adding greatly to their interest and attractiveness.—Canada Citizen. d1

FOR ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS.—The Building Budget is the name of an excellent journal for architects and builders, which is published in Chicago. It is devoted to architecture and kindred arts, and having entered its 2nd volume is to appear as a weekly, which speaks well for the demand it has met with. Typographically it is almost perfect, and the paper is of first class quality. Besides containing articles which those interested in architecture will specially appreciate, there are a number of engravings showing buildings and plans. It is a journal which should command a large subscription among all who are interested in building.

COSTUMERS, dressmakers and fancy needle workers should call and inspect the Davis Vertical Feed Sewing Machine on exhibition at J. C. McLean's music store. d3w1

HALTON CONVICTION LIST.—There were eight convictions in Halton returned to the Clerk of the Peace for the quarter ending 9th March 1886. The charges were:—Violation of the C. T. A. '78, 1; vagrancy, 2; profanity, 2; assault 3. The fines aggregated $120, and the committals to jail, five months.—Sun.

A. O. C. NEW BUILDINGS.—This morning Hon. A. M. Ross, Minister of Agriculture arrived from the west. He and Messrs. John I. Hobson, Mosborough; John McMillan, Huron; J. S. Smith, Middlesex, and James Laidlaw, M.P.P., in company with President Mills drove to the Agricultural College where they will decide on plans for the new farm buildings to replace those recently destroyed by fire.

RENOVATING.—The Bell organ company have men busily engaged clearing away the rubbish caused by the roof being blown off on Tuesday morning. It was the intention of the firm to place a new boiler in the old factory as soon as the weather would permit—in fact it has been ready for some time—but now that this unforseen accident occurred, the boiler will be put in immediately. In the meantime the engine shafting, and some of the machines which require repairing will be thoroughly overhauled.

TRUE.—Mr. Black, Hamilton, Inspector of weights and measures, who has been in the city for some weeks in connection with this duty, to-day examined the market scales. He remarked that the city scales were the best and truest that he had come across in the town. This is a compliment and a credit to the city at the same time. It may be mentioned that the previous inspector made a similar remark when inspecting the scales some years ago.

PRINTING.—There is nothing so unbusinesslike or so calculated to produce a wrong impression on the receiver, as for a man claiming to do a live business to conduch his correspondence on sheets of cheap paper, or anything in the line of paper that comes handy. It costs but a trifle more to get nicely printed note heads and envelopes, and the result of using such supplies cannot be otherwise than satisfactory. The MERCURY is the best place to have your printing done. Send in your orders and they will be promptly filled.

Knox College.

The closing exercises of Knox College, Toronto, for the session of 1885-6 took place Wednesday afternoon and evening. At three o'clock a large audience assembled in Convocation Hall to witness the presentation of diplomas and the conferring of degrees in divinity. Rev. Principal Caven presided, but owing to a severe cold, which prevented him speaking above a whisper, was unable to make an address. Among those on the platform were Rev. Dr. Wardrope and Rev. Dr. Torrance, of Guelph.

The Rev. Dr. Gregg said the endowment fund had been swelled to $188,580. It was to be hoped that before long they would reach $200,000, after making allowance for losses. During the year $35,000 had been paid in to the fund, the whole amount at the present time being $123,412.35. He wished to state that the scholarships were not given uniformly to those who were first in the classes, because there was an understanding that a student shall not, as a rule, receive more than one scholarship. He then read the list of the students standing first in the different subjects.

Among the names of the second year scholarship is noted the name of Mr. J. Argo, Eden Mills, who with J. McGillivray, B. A., had the best average for the Torrance Scholarship of $50. Wm. Farquharson, B. A., of East Tilbury, and well known to many in Guelph, came off with numerous honors, and his record altogether is one which would be hard to surpass, and one which he and his friends have just reason to feel proud of. He is a third year man. In Systematic Theology his name is mentioned first, and third in Church Government. His name stands alone for Christian ethics. For the Burns-Bonar Scholarship, $80, general proficiency, he is the first, and also in the (1) Fisher Scholarship of $60, systematic theology, coming in second in the (2) same scholarship of $60 for exegetics. In the competition for Clark's prize (2) in Old Testament he again takes the honors.

Degrees were conferred as follows:—B. D. (first examination)—D. M. Beatty, M. A., M. Frazer, M. A., Peter Wright, M.A.; B. D. (second examination)—A. H. Martin, C. D. McDonald, M. A., R. M. Ramsey, M. A., Peter Wright, M. A.

Rev. Dr. Wardrope said he had much pleasure in presenting Rev. James Middlemiss, of Elora, for the degree of Doctor of Divinity. He counted it a privilege to do so, because of his esteem for Mr. Middlemiss as a personal friend, and as a valued member of the Presbytery to which he (Dr. Wardrope) belonged. Mr. Middlemiss had laboured faithfully and efficiently in his pastoral charge for the past thirty years, he enjoyed in a high degree the confidence of the generation now passing away, and he enjoyed in an equal degree the respect and affection of the generation growing up around him. (Applause). His counsels in the Presbytery were always received with deference, and generally acted upon without qualification or change. He had been diligent as a pastor and as a preacher of the gospel of the grace of God, faithful and painstaking and instructive. In the esteem of the community in which he lives he occupies a high place as a man of steadfast principles, warm sympathy, and benevolence. In addition, by his exposition of Christian doctrine and duty he had shown himself able rightly to divide the word of truth. Therefore he (Dr. Wardrope) asked the Senate of Knox College to give him a place among the graduates as a Doctor of Divinity. (Applause.)

In the evening the closing exercises of the College were continued in the Central Presbyterian church. A number of the Presbyterian churches had postponed their usual Wednesday night prayer meeting, so that many of the ministers and representatives of other congregations were present. The graduating class, numbering 19, occupied a front seat. Addresses were made by Rev. Dr. Maclaren, Rev. Dr. Thompson, of Sarnia, and Rev. G. M. Milligan. Mr. Robert Haddow, one of the graduates, addressed the younger students present.

IRISH HOME RULE.

CABINET DIFFERENCES HEALED.

Presbyterian Opposition to the Scheme in Any Form.

LONDON, April 7.—The Cabinet feud has abated. Mr. Gladstone modifies his proposals by giving the Imperial Parliament a veto power over the Irish fiscal enactments and providing that an Imperial Receiver shall collect the customs and excise, and making imperial claims first charges on the revenue. Mr. Gladstone is thoroughly supported in all his proposals by Earls Granville and Roseberry, the Marquis of Ripon and Campbell Bannerman; Sir Farrer Herschell does not participate in the discussion on Home Rule, but upholds the proposed land bill and has relieved Mr. Gladstone of drafting the latter scheme. Mr. Gladstone is in robust health and good voice, and confident of success.

Mr. Chamberlain will speak after Mr. Gladstone to-morrow, and Lord Hartington will move to adjourn. It is reported that Lord Salisbury has persuaded Lord Hartington to move the House to refuse to consider Mr. Gladstone's bill.

The Irishmen living in London have been requested to assemble in thousands to-morrow to cheer Mr. Gladstone as he enters Parliament. A similar Liberal manifesto is expected. Urgent whips have been issued requesting the presence of all members in the House of Commons to-morrow and on Friday. The House will be opened at 6 a. m. to-morrow to enable members to secure seats. The opening of the House at so early an hour is commented upon adversely on the ground that it places a premium on physical endurance, and handicaps invalid and weaker members. The Parnellites at a meeting to-day decided to enter the House at the earliest possible hour in order to secure seats.

The various whips have arranged with the members of their parties for the postponement until Friday of all questions which were to have been brought up in the House of Commons to-morrow except those of the most pressing importance. In thus curtailing the business of the House Mr. Gladstone will be enabled to begin his speech in explanation of his Irish Home Rule scheme at about 4:30 in the afternoon. The usual body of police stationed about the Parliament buildings will be strongly reinforced to-morrow. This precaution will be taken to suppress any demonstration that may be attempted outside of the buildings.

LONDON, April 8.—The Scotch members of the House of Commons held a meeting in the House this afternoon to receive a deputation of Presbyterians from Ulster, who came to enter their protest against granting Home Rule to Ireland. Sir Donald Currie, Liberal member for West Perthshire, presided over the meeting. The Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, who led the deputation, explained the reasons for the visit. He said the Presbyterians of Ulster were in deep anxiety lest Parliament should adopt legislation which would place the Protestant minority in Ireland at a great disadvantage by handing over the control of the affairs of the country to a party distinctively anti-protestant.

DUBLIN, April 7.—Eight thousand ladies of Cork county have sent a petition to the Queen against home rule. One thousand of the signers are Catholics.

LONDON, April 8.—All the Parnellite members of Parliament have already arrived in London in order to secure seats in the House for to-night. It is reported that Mr. Gladstone has informed Lord Hartington and Mr. Parnell of the leading features of his Irish scheme. Parnell, it is said, approves the plan. His approval, however, is subject to modification of details. Lord Hartington is averse to a division on the first reading of the bill. The Standard admits that the Conservatives are powerless without the assistance of Hartington, and the attempt at isolated Conservative action would result in a victory for Mr. Gladstone. The Liberals believe they will be able to carry the measure through the second reading, and the real danger will arise in committee. There is a rumor that the bill as modified will meet less opposition from Mr. Chamberlain. Special arrangements have been made for reporting and telegraphing the speech. An extra writing room has been prepared.

The Queen invited Mr. Gladstone last Wednesday and again on Saturday to dine at Windsor, but the Premier was too busy and was compelled to decline both invitations.

THE RAILWAY STRIKE.

Determination of the Strikers Not to be Replaced.

ST. LOUIS, April 7.—A mob one thousand trong drove away the men at work in the yards of the Ohio and Mississippi, the Burlington and Quincy, Vandalia and Cairo short line. At the yards of the Chicago and Alton a guard of deputy marshals compelled the mob to retire. In the afternoon the strikers held a meeting and decided that no man should be allowed to take their places.

Manager Hoxie telegraphed to New York this evening that trains were moving well everywhere on the Missouri Pacific system.

Nearly all the men who had gone to work in the yards of the Missouri Pacific, Bridge and Tunnel, and Union Depot companies, have quit again, and this morning scarcely anybody was at work in these yards.

The Executive Board of the Brotherhood of locomotive engineers held a meeting this afternoon in East St. Louis, Chief Arthur being present, and seriously considered whether it would be advisable to strike in support of the Knights of Labor. Twenty firemen employed on the engines of Bridge & Tunnel Co. struck today in support of the Knights of Labor.

GOOD ADVICE.—The Berlin News man, who is proverbially noted for his good qualities gives the MERCURY the following advice, which is republished not for our own good, but as a warning to others:—Bell & Co's stone organ factory, Guelph, has been unroofed and gave the MERCURY and other neighbors a terrible fright. Some were beginning to say their prayers, thinking the general wind-up had come. The best way by far is to say your prayers before the trouble is upon you. We give this advice gratis to the MERCURY people.

WE have much pleasure in informing our friends that Rev. C. H. Mead, the well known and eloquent missionary of the South, has been induced to pay another visit to Canada. Those who heard Bro. On the present occasion he will have with him some other talented friends who will assist at his meetings with quartette singing, adding greatly to their interest and attractiveness.—Canada Citizen. d1

FOR ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS.—The Building Budget is the name of an excellent journal for architects and builders, which is published in Chicago. It is devoted to architecture and kindred arts, and having entered its 2nd volume is to appear as a weekly, which speaks well for the demand it has met with. Typographically it is almost perfect, and the paper is of first class quality. Besides containing articles which those interested in architecture will specially appreciate, there are a number of engravings showing buildings and plans. It is a journal which should command a large subscription among all who are interested in building.

A. O. C. NEW BUILDINGS.—This morning Hon. A. M. Ross, Minister of Agriculture arrived from the west. He and Messrs. John I. Hobson, Mosborough; John McMillan, Huron; J. S. Smith, Middlesex, and James Laidlaw, M.P.P., in company with President Mills drove to the Agricultural College where they will decide on plans for the new farm buildings to replace those recently destroyed by fire.

RENOVATING.—The Bell organ company have men busily engaged clearing away the rubbish caused by the roof being blown off on Tuesday morning. It was the intention of the firm to place a new boiler in the old factory as soon as the weather would permit—in fact it has been ready for some time—but now that this unforseen accident occurred, the boiler will be put in immediately. In the meantime the engine shafting, and some of the machines which require repairing will be thoroughly overhauled.

TRUE.—Mr. Black, Hamilton, Inspector of weights and measures, who has been in the city for some weeks in connection with this duty, to-day examined the market scales. He remarked that the city scales were the best and truest that he had come across in the town. This is a compliment and a credit to the city at the same time. It may be mentioned that the previous inspector made a similar remark when inspecting the scales some years ago.

PRINTING.—There is nothing so unbusinesslike or so calculated to produce a wrong impression on the receiver, as for a man claiming to do a live business to conduch his correspondence on sheets of cheap paper, or anything in the line of paper that comes handy. It costs but a trifle more to get nicely printed note heads and envelopes, and the result of using such supplies cannot be otherwise than satisfactory. The MERCURY is the best place to have your printing done. Send in your orders and they will be promptly filled.

Knox College.

The closing exercises of Knox College, Toronto, for the session of 1885-6 took place Wednesday afternoon and evening. At three o'clock a large audience assembled in Convocation Hall to witness the presentation of diplomas and the conferring of degrees in divinity. Rev. Principal Caven presided, but owing to a severe cold, which prevented him speaking above a whisper, was unable to make an address. Among those on the platform were Rev. Dr. Wardrope and Rev. Dr. Torrance, of Guelph.

The Rev. Dr. Gregg said the endowment fund had been swelled to $188,580. It was to be hoped that before long they would reach $200,000, after making allowance for losses. During the year $35,000 had been paid in to the fund, the whole amount at the present time being $123,412.35. He wished to state that the scholarships were not given uniformly to those who were first in the classes, because there was an understanding that a student shall not, as a rule, receive more than one scholarship. He then read the list of the students standing first in the different subjects.

Among the names of the second year scholarship is noted the name of Mr. J. Argo, Eden Mills, who with J. McGillivray, B. A., had the best average for the Torrance Scholarship of $50. Wm. Farquharson, B. A., of East Tilbury, and well known to many in Guelph, came off with numerous honors, and his record altogether is one which would be hard to surpass, and one which he and his friends have just reason to feel proud of. He is a third year man. In Systematic Theology his name is mentioned first, and third in Church Government. His name stands alone for Christian ethics. For the Burns-Bonar Scholarship, $80, general proficiency, he is the first, and also in the (1) Fisher Scholarship of $60, systematic theology, coming in second in the (2) same scholarship of $60 for exegetics. In the competition for Clark's prize (2) in Old Testament he again takes the honors.

Degrees were conferred as follows:—B. D. (first examination)—D. M. Beatty, M. A., M. Fraser, M. A., Peter Wright, M.A.; B. D. (second examination)—A. H. Martin, C. D. McDonald, M. A., R. M. Ramsey, M. A., Peter Wright, M. A.

Rev. Dr. Wardrope said he had much pleasure in presenting Rev. James Middlemiss, of Elora, for the degree of Doctor of Divinity. He counted it a privilege to do so, because of his esteem for Mr. Middlemiss as a personal friend, and as a valued member of the Presbytery to which he (Dr. Wardrope) belonged. Mr. Middlemiss had laboured faithfully and efficiently in his pastoral charge for the past thirty years, he enjoyed in a high degree the confidence of the generation now passing away, and he enjoyed in an equal degree the respect and affection of the generation growing up around him. (Applause). His counsels in the Presbytery were always received with deference, and generally acted upon without qualification or change. He had been diligent as a pastor and as a preacher of the gospel of the grace of God, faithful and painstaking and instructive. In the esteem of the community in which he lives he occupies a high place as a man of steadfast principles, warm sympathy, and benevolence. In addition, by his exposition of Christian doctrine and duty he had shown himself able rightly to divide the word of truth. Therefore he (Dr. Wardrope) asked the Senate of Knox College to give him a place among the graduates as a Doctor of Divinity. (Applause.)

In the evening the closing exercises of the College were continued in the Central Presbyterian church. A number of the Presbyterian churches had postponed their usual Wednesday night prayer meeting, so that many of the ministers and representatives of other congregations were present. The graduating class, numbering 19, occupied a front seat. Addresses were made by Rev. Dr. Maclaren, Rev. Dr. Thompson; of Sarnia, and Rev. G. M. Milligan. Mr. Robert Haddow, one of the graduates, addressed the younger students present.

IRISH HOME RULE.

CABINET DIFFERENCES HEALED.

Presbyterian Opposition to the Scheme in Any Form.

LONDON, April 7.—The Cabinet feud has abated. Mr. Gladstone modifies his proposals by giving the Imperial Parliament a veto power over the Irish fiscal enactments and providing that an Imperial Receiver shall collect the customs and excise, and making imperial claims first charges on the revenue. Mr. Gladstone is thoroughly supported in all his proposals by Earls Granville and Roseberry, the Marquis of Ripon and Campbell Bannerman; Sir Farrer Herschell does not participate in the discussion on Home Rule, but upholds the proposed land bill and has relieved Mr. Gladstone of drafting the latter scheme. Mr. Gladstone is in robust health and good voice, and confident of success.

Mr. Chamberlain will speak after Mr. Gladstone to-morrow, and Lord Hartington will move to adjourn. It is reported that Lord Salisbury has persuaded Lord Hartington to move the House to refuse to consider Mr. Gladstone's bill.

The Irishmen living in London have been requested to assemble in thousands to-morrow to cheer Mr. Gladstone as he enters Parliament. A similar Liberal manifesto is expected. Urgent whips have been issued requesting the presence of all members in the House of Commons to-morrow and on Friday. The House will be opened at 6 a. m. to-morrow to enable members to secure seats. The opening of the House at so early an hour is commented upon adversely on the ground that it places a premium on physical endurance, and handicaps invalid and weaker members. The Parnellites at a meeting to-day decided to enter the House at the earliest possible hour in order to secure seats.

The various whips have arranged with the members of their parties for the postponement until Friday of all questions which were to have been brought up in the House of Commons to-morrow except those of the most pressing importance. In thus curtailing the business of the House Mr. Gladstone will be enabled to begin his speech in explanation of his Irish Home Rule scheme at about 4:30 in the afternoon. The usual body of police stationed about the Parliament buildings will be strongly reinforced to-morrow. This precaution will be taken to suppress any demonstration that may be attempted outside of the buildings.

LONDON, April 8.—The Scotch members of the House of Commons held a meeting in the House this afternoon to receive a deputation of Presbyterians from Ulster, who came to enter their protest against granting Home Rule to Ireland. Sir Donald Currie, Liberal member for West Perthshire, presided over the meeting. The Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, who led the deputation, explained the reasons for the visit. He said the Presbyterians of Ulster were in deep anxiety lest Parliament should adopt legislation which would place the Protestant minority in Ireland at a great disadvantage by handing over the control of the affairs of the country to a party distinctively anti-protestant.

DUBLIN, April 7.—Eight thousand ladies of Cork county have sent a petition to the Queen against home rule. One thousand of the signers are Catholics.

LONDON, April 8.—All the Parnellite members of Parliament have already arrived in London in order to secure seats in the House for to-night. It is reported that Mr. Gladstone has informed Lord Hartington and Mr. Parnell of the leading features of his Irish scheme. Parnell, it is said, approves the plan. His approval, however, is subject to modification of details. Lord Hartington is averse to a division on the first reading of the bill. The Standard admits that the Conservatives are powerless without the assistance of Hartington, and the attempt at isolated Conservative action would result in a victory for Mr. Gladstone. The Liberals believe they will be able to carry the measure through the second reading, and the real danger will arise in committee. There is a rumor that the bill as modified will meet less opposition from Mr. Chamberlain. Special arrangements have been made for reporting and telegraphing the speech. An extra writing room has been prepared.

The Queen invited Mr. Gladstone last Wednesday and again on Saturday to dine at Windsor, but the Premier was too busy and was compelled to decline both invitations.

THE RAILWAY STRIKE.

Determination of the Strikers Not to be Replaced.

ST. LOUIS, April 7.—A mob one thousand trong drove away the men at work in the yards of the Ohio and Mississippi, the Burlington and Quincy, Vandalia and Cairo short line. At the yards of the Chicago and Alton a guard of deputy marshals compelled the mob to retire. In the afternoon the strikers held a meeting and decided that no man should be allowed to take their places.

Manager Hoxie telegraphed to New York this evening that trains were moving well everywhere on the Missouri Pacific system.

Nearly all the men who had gone to work in the yards of the Missouri Pacific, Bridge and Tunnel, and Union Depot companies, have quit again, and this morning scarcely anybody was at work in these yards.

The Executive Board of the Brotherhood of locomotive engineers held a meeting this afternoon in East St. Louis, Chief Arthur being present, and seriously considered whether it would be advisable to strike in support of the Knights of Labor. Twenty firemen employed on the engines of Bridge & Tunnel Co. struck today in support of the Knights of Labor.

GOOD ADVICE.—The Berlin News man, who is proverbially noted for his good qualities gives the MERCURY the following advice, which is republished not for our own good, but as a warning to others:—Bell & Co's stone organ factory, Guelph, has been unroofed and gave the MERCURY and other neighbors a terrible fright. Some were beginning to say their prayers, thinking the general wind-up had come. The best way by far is to say your prayers before the trouble is upon you. We give this advice gratis to the MERCURY people.

FOR ARCHITECTS AND BUILDERS.—The Building Budget is the name of an excellent journal for architects and builders, which is published in Chicago. It is devoted to architecture and kindred arts, and having entered its 2nd volume is to appear as a weekly, which speaks well for the demand it has met with. Typographically it is almost perfect, and the paper is of first class quality. Besides containing articles which those interested in architecture will specially appreciate, there are a number of engravings showing buildings and plans. It is a journal which should command a large subscription among all who are interested in building.

In the meantime the engine shafting, and some of the machines which require repairing will be thoroughly overhauled.

He remarked that the city scales were the best and truest that he had come across in the town. This is a compliment and a credit to the city at the same time. It may be mentioned that the previous inspector made a similar remark when inspecting the scales some years ago.

PRINTING.—There is nothing so unbusinesslike or so calculated to produce a wrong impression on the receiver, as for a man claiming to do a live business to conduch his correspondence on sheets of cheap paper, or anythtng in the line of paper that comes handy. It costs but a trifle more to get nicely printed note heads and envelopes, and the result of using such supplies cannot be otherwise than satisfactory. The MERCURY is the best place to have your printing done. Send in your orders and they will be promptly filled.

Knox College.

The closing exercises of Knox College, Toronto, for the session of 1885-6 took place Wednesday afternoon and evening. At three o'clock a large audience assembled in Convocation Hall to witness the presentation of diplomas and the conferring of degrees in divinity. Rev. Principal Caven presided, but owing to a severe cold, which prevented him speaking above a whisper, was unable to make an address. Among those on the platform were Rev. Dr. Wardrope and Rev. Dr. Torrance, of Guelph.

The Rev. Dr. Gregg said the endowment fund had been swelled to $188,580. It was to be hoped that before long they would reach $200,000, after making allowance for losses. During the year $35,000 had been paid in to the fund, the whole amount at the present time being $123,412.35. He wished to state that the scholarships were not given uniformly to those who were first in the classes, because there was an understanding that a student shall not, as a rule, receive more than one scholarship. He then read the list of the students standing first in the different subjects.

Among the names of the second year scholarship is noted the name of Mr. J. Argo, Eden Mills, who with J. McGillivray, B. A., had the best average for the Torrance Scholarship of $50. Wm. Farquharson, B. A., of East Tilbury, and well known to many in Guelph, came off with numerous honors, and his record altogether is one which would be hard to surpass, and one which he and his friends have just reason to feel proud of. He is a third year man. In Systematic Theology his name is mentioned first, and third in Church Government. His name stands alone for Christian ethics. For the Burns-Bonar Scholarship, $80, general proficiency, he is the first, and also in the (1) Fisher Scholarship of $60, systematic theology, coming in second in the (2) same scholarship of $60 for exegetics. In the competition for Clark's prize (2) in Old Testament he again takes the honors.

Degrees were conferred as follows:—B. D. (first examination)—D. M. Beatty, M. A., M. Frazer, M. A., Peter Wright, M.A.; B. D. (second examination)—A. H. Martin, C. D. McDonald, M. A., R. M. Ramsey, M. A., Peter Wright, M. A.

Rev. Dr. Wardrope said he had much pleasure in presenting Rev. James Middlemiss, of Elora, for the degree of Doctor of Divinity. He counted it a privilege to do so, because of his esteem for Mr. Middlemiss as a personal friend, and as a valued member of the Presbytery to which he (Dr. Wardrope) belonged. Mr. Middlemiss had laboured faithfully and efficiently in his pastoral charge for the past thirty years, he enjoyed in a high degree the confidence of the generation now passing away, and he enjoyed in an equal degree the respect and affection of the generation growing up around him. (Applause). His counsels in the Presbytery were always received with deference, and generally acted upon without qualification or change. He had been diligent as a pastor and as a preacher of the gospel of the grace of God, faithful and painstaking and instructive. In the esteem of the community in which he lives he occupies a high place as a man of steadfast principles, warm sympathy, and benevolence. In addition, by his exposition of Christian doctrine and duty he had shown himself able rightly to divide the word of truth. Therefore he (Dr. Wardrope) asked the Senate of Knox College to give him a place among the graduates as a Doctor of Divinity. (Applause.)

In the evening the closing exercises of the College were continued in the Central Presbyterian church. A number of the Presbyterian churches had postponed their usual Wednesday night prayer meeting, so that many of the ministers and representatives of other congregations were present. The graduating class, numbering 19, occupied a front seat. Addresses were made by Rev. Dr. Maclaren, Rev. Dr. Thompson; of Sarnia, and Rev. G. M. Milligan. Mr. Robert Haddow, one of the graduates, addressed the younger students present.

IRISH HOME RULE.

CABINET DIFFERENCES HEALED.

Presbyterian Opposition to the Scheme in Any Form.

LONDON, April 7.—The Cabinet feud has abated. Mr. Gladstone modifies his proposals by giving the Imperial Parliament a veto power over the Irish fiscal enactments and providing that an Imperial Receiver shall collect the customs and excise, and making imperial claims first charges on the revenue. Mr. Gladstone is thoroughly supported in all his proposals by Earls Granville and Roseberry, the Marquis of Ripon and Campbell Bannerman; Sir Farrer Herschell does not participate in the discussion on Home Rule, but upholds the proposed land bill and has relieved Mr. Gladstone of drafting the latter scheme. Mr. Gladstone is in robust health and good voice, and confident of success.

Mr. Chamberlain will speak after Mr. Gladstone to-morrow, and Lord Hartington will move to adjourn. It is reported that Lord Salisbury has persuaded Lord Hartington to move the House to refuse to consider Mr. Gladstone's bill.

The Irishmen living in London have been requested to assemble in thousands to-morrow to cheer Mr. Gladstone as he enters Parliament. A similar Liberal manifesto is expected. Urgent whips have been issued requesting the presence of all members in the House of Commons to-morrow and on Friday. The House will be opened at 6 a. m. to-morrow to enable members to secure seats. The opening of the House at so early an hour is commented upon adversely on the ground that it places a premium on physical endurance, and handicaps invalid and weaker members. The Parnellites at a meeting to-day decided to enter the House at the earliest possible hour in order to secure seats.

The various whips have arranged with the members of their parties for the postponement until Friday of all questions which were to have been brought up in the House of Commons to-morrow except those of the most pressing importance. In thus curtailing the business of the House Mr. Gladstone will be enabled to begin his speech in explanation of his Irish Home Rule scheme at about 4:30 in the afternoon. The usual body of police stationed about the Parliament buildings will be strongly reinforced to-morrow. This precaution will be taken to suppress any demonstration that may be attempted outside of the buildings.

LONDON, April 8.—The Scotch members of the House of Commons held a meeting in the House this afternoon to receive a deputation of Presbyterians from Ulster, who came to enter their protest against granting Home Rule to Ireland. Sir Donald Currie, Liberal member for West Perthshire, presided over the meeting. The Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland, who led the deputation, explained the reasons for the visit. He said the Presbyterians of Ulster were in deep anxiety lest Parliament should adopt legislation which would place the Protestant minority in Ireland at a great disadvantage by handing over the control of the affairs of the country to a party distinctively anti-protestant.

DUBLIN, April 7.—Eight thousand ladies of Cork county have sent a petition to the Queen against home rule. One thousand of the signers are Catholics.

LONDON, April 8.—All the Parnellite members of Parliament have already arrived in London in order to secure seats in the House for to-night. It is reported that Mr. Gladstone has informed Lord Hartington and Mr. Parnell of the leading features of his Irish scheme. Parnell, it is said, approves the plan. His approval, however, is subject to modification of details. Lord Hartington is averse to a division on the first reading of the bill. The Standard admits that the Conservatives are powerless without the assistance of Hartington, and the attempt at isolated Conservative action would result in a victory for Mr. Gladstone. The Liberals believe they will be able to carry the measure through the second reading, and the real danger will arise in committee. There is a rumor that the bill as modified will meet less opposition from Mr. Chamberlain. Special arrangements have been made for reporting and telegraphing the speech. An extra writing room has been prepared.

The Queen invited Mr. Gladstone last Wednesday and again on Saturday to dine at Windsor, but the Premier was too busy and was compelled to decline both invitations.

THE RAILWAY STRIKE.

Determination of the Strikers Not to be Replaced.

ST. LOUIS, April 7.—A mob one thousand trong drove away the men at work in the yards of the Ohio and Mississippi, the Burlington and Quincy, Vandalia and Cairo short line. At the yards of the Chicago and Alton a guard of deputy marshals compelled the mob to retire. In the afternoon the strikers held a meeting and decided that no man should be allowed to take their places.

Manager Hoxie telegraphed to New York this evening that trains were moving well everywhere on the Missouri Pacific system.

Nearly all the men who had gone to work in the yards of the Missouri Pacific, Bridge and Tunnel, and Union Depot companies, have quit again, and this morning scarcely anybody was at work in these yards.

The Executive Board of the Brotherhood of locomotive engineers held a meeting this afternoon in East St. Louis, Chief Arthur being present, and seriously considered whether it would be advisable to strike in support of the Knights of Labor. Twenty firemen employed on the engines of Bridge & Tunnel Co. struck today in support of the Knights of Labor.

THURSDAY EVE'G APRIL 8, 1886.

An American View.

A recent Washington despatch complains of the unreasonableness of the Dominion authorities with respect to American fishermen. It says the Americans do not want to renew the fishery clause of the Washington treaty because they have not fished within the three mile limits of the Canadian shores for some years and do not want to in the future. They object to being shut out of Canadian ports for wood, water and repairs. They say that the prohibition of the Canadians to sell fishing bait to Americans will result in injury to both countries. This, it is said, raises the question not of fishery rights but of commerce, and that it does so is shown still further by the fact that American fishing vessels were forbidden to come into Canadian ports to make up members of their crews who had been engaged. The American Government now proposes taking retaliatory measures. The Ways and Means committee at Washington on Friday took up the Hewitt customs bill, and added to it the free list of the Morrison bill, so far as it applies to lumber, fish, salt, flax and hemp. Wool was also added to the free list. Under the head of dutiable goods the chemical and cotton schedules of the Morrison bill were added, with amendments relating to fine qualities of cotton goods, and the sugar duties were reduced 10 per cent. But it is stated that before the measure is reported to the House the clause placing fish on the free list will probably be qualified with a proviso excepting Canadian fish so long as Canada refuses to accord the fishermen of the United States the right to enter and clear from Canadian ports. The Newfoundland Legislature has followed the example of the Dominion Government and introduced a bill prohibiting the export of fishing bait. The whole fishery question has been terribly bungled by the Dominion authorities through their delay in dealing with it. They might have arrived at a settlement both satisfactory and beneficial to Canada had they taken proper steps when the treaty expired. Their alliance with the subject makes it extremely improable that they will be able to do so now, while it will result in a great deal of expense and no end of trouble. But there is no excuse for the piratical conduct of the American authorities which is extremely unbecoming in a great nation. If they want to partake of our advantages for fishing they should pay for them and not try to steal them.

LONDON Truth contains the statement that the Imperial Government has decided to subsidize the new line of steamers between British Columbia, Hong Kong, and Australia, to the extent of £100,000 sterling annually for ten years. The usual conditions attached to steamers carrying mails are specified, viz; that the steamers must be first class and capable of carrying guns and troops; and that if required, the Government has the right to use them in case of war. This action on the part of the British Government will give a great impetus to the Canadian Pacific Railway, which will now become a leading highway for traffic between Europe and China.

SPEAKING of Mr. Johnson's resignation of the office of Deputy Attorney-General, the Toronto correspondent of the London Advertiser says:—"Mr. E. F. B. Johnston, who succeeded Col. Scott as Deputy Attorney-General, has resigned the office. It is stated Mr. Johnston came to Toronto thinking that maybe his position as Deputy to Mr. Mowat would enable him to work into a practice in the city. Being disappointed in this, and being able to do better financially in Guelph, he is returning to the Royal City. It will be remembered that, at the late session of the Legislature, Mr. Meredith took exception to the salary paid Mr. Johnston as being too high, and Mr. Mowat, therefore, probably did not feel that he could offer any increase to induce him to stay It is understood, however, that Mr. Johnston would have remained if the remuneration had been made sufficient." Mr. Meredith therefore, is partly to blame for the fact that the Province has lost the services of a man who will not easily be replaced.

THE by-law granting $2,000 to Burr Bros., together with free water and exemption from taxation on their proposed chair factory for ten years, having been passed by the people, will come up for its third reading at the next meeting of the City Council. It is understood, reports to the contrary notwithstanding, that the firm are ready to start the new building at once and that they will begin operations as soon as the by-law receives its third reading and the land is procured. The probability is that the bonus was carried by a larger majority than the narrow one at first stated. What the exact majority was is not easily ascertainable, in view of the large number on the lists of 1885 who have died or removed and of the indefinite understanding of what constitutes a leaseholder qualified to vote. One thing is certain, that if the day had not been so unpropitious the vote in favor of the by-law would have been much larger. Under the circumstances, the interest manifested was satisfactory, and it is a wonder that more than the necessary two fifths of the qualified voters turned out to support the bonus on such a day.

A VERY stringent Liquor Act was read a second time in the House of Assembly last week without a division. The measure forbids the issuing of any but hotel, shop, and wholesale licenses, the fees for these are $200, $300, and $500 respectively. Hotels will not be permitted to have a bar, and liquor is to be sold only to bona fide guests and lodgers at table, and in quantities not exceeding one quart. Liquor sold in shops is not to be drunk on the premises, and is to be sold in quantities not less than one pint or more than two gallons. A wholesale license authorizes the sale in quantities exceeding two gallons and not less than one dozen quart bottles. The Act places the authority to issue licenses with the council of each district, and one or more inspectors are to be appointed by each council to direct a proper observance of the law. Heavy penalties are provided, not only for violation of the Act but upon anybody who knowingly permits the illegal selling of liquor. In default of payment of fines imprisorment is to be imposed, and the holder of a license who commits a third offence forfeits his license for three years.

That Puzzle.

SIR,—Your Elora correspondent, no doubt thinking that we, the female portion of this City, are in a state of idleness at this particular season of the year, having nothing to do but sit around our fires, dragging the weary hours along, patiently awaiting the arrival of the time when we can commence our grand semi-annual overhauling of our houses and household effects, as a help to divert our minds till that interesting period is at hand very thoughtfully wound up his last week's budget of Elora news with a puzzle for us to solve. But for my part, Mr Editor, as I had not forgotten all that I learned in my school girl days, and remembering that I was taught that five odd numbers can never make an even, I did not wear out many pencils or cover many square yards of foolscap in endeavoring to accomplish the feat. Nevertheless I hope for the sake of poor suffering humanity that he will in his next set at rest the many weary brains that he has been the cause of deranging in this vicinity by giving his solution. If he does it by taking 5 off or from any of the numbers given, or 5 off the sum of any of the columns of numbers given, please tell him that his puzzle will not do for us in Guelph, for we spell that of with two ffs.

Yours, etc.,
ONE OF THEM.

Guelph, April 8, 1886.

O. A. C. CREAMERY.

Prof. Robertson Has a Talk With the Patrons.

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Robertson, who has been appointed by the Government to take charge of the creamery at the Ontario Agricultural College, called a meeting of patrons of the creamery and farmers in an ante-room of the City Hall. There were some twenty-five present and Mr. John Ramsay was appointed to the chair.

Mr. Robertson then addressed the meeting and explained on what conditions it would be run. It was the intention to run it in the most economical manner, getting all out of the cream possible, and having no useless expense. Butter making was a subject which should greatly interest the farmers and an effort should be made to bring our standard up to that which has been gained by our cheese. It was proposed to give 14 cents during the months of June, July and August, and 15 cents in September and October. He desired that a Committee of three of the patrons of the creamery be appointed, who would act in conjunction with himself and Mr. McCallum to see that everything was carried on correctly, and that justice was done to the patrons. It was the intention to draw the cream every second day, which would reduce the cost of drawing, except when it would be found that it would not keep. Frequently tests would be made and if it was found that some cream did not come up to the standard these patrons would be paid accordingly, because it was not fair to pay the same amount to a patron who furnished inferior cream as to a patron who furnished good cream; one sample might be worth 2c and another 2½c. They would be paid in proportion to the quality. The skimmed milk could be utilized in feeding the calves. He mentioned that in feeding this milk it should always be warmed.

Mr. John Murphy thought the Government should pay 18 cents. Mr. Brill he understood had paid that. The Government instead of making the price lower should if anything make it larger and give the poor farmers every advantage. They were losing in other branches in connection with the institution and why not lose something on the creamery and give the farmer a chance who was taxed so much for upholding the institution. The loss would be little to the country and would encourage the house-wives.

Mr. Robertson said that the Government would not be justified in giving them more than the cream was worth. Other creameries would come to the front and say—"here is a Government that is paying more than the cream is worth, which is unfair to us. We cannot afford to pay this and compete successfully against them." The Government intended to pay what other creameries were paying, and 18 cents was had never been done heretofore.

Mr. Brill said that he was a butter maker and knew something about the matter. He considered that the offer which the Professor had made was a splendid one, and that the farmers were getting the whole benefit. He knew Mr. Robertson well, and he could say that he was one of the best butter makers in the Province. With regard to the salary of $300 spoken of for Mr. Robertson's services, it was not nearly enough. A good butter maker could not be had under $500 like Mr. Robertson were worth $300 for or $600 a year. The services of a man one month.

Several others spoke, after which a vote of thanks was passed to the chairman, the Professor, and the Council for granting the room, and the meeting adjourned.

At the close of the meeting Mr. Robertson remarked that it was the intention of the College to send samples of butter to the Colonial exhibition to be used in the Canadian restaurant. All butter makers would have the same privilege. The idea was to show the world what we could do in the manufacture of butter and cheese.

A GRAND PIECE OF WORK.—The Grand Trunk railway officials originally intended to send to the London Colonial exhibition a locomotive specially constructed for the occasion. Owing to the difficulty of ocean transport the idea has been abandoned and photographs of the engine and various cars with views of the works at Point St. Charles and one of the Victoria bridge will be sent instead. The locomotive No. 443 is a six wheel coupled freight engine of the Mogul pattern, and is a grand specimen of mechanical skill. The cylinders are 18 inches in diameter, 26 inches stroke; the boiler shell has a diameter of 53 inches, 213 wrought iron tubes of 2 inch outside diameter, 11 feet 6½ inches long, a grade surface of 6 feet 1 inch by 2 feet 11 inches, and is fitted with all the latest improvements. All the wheels have steel tires, the driving wheels are 5 feet 2 inches, and the fire hole and grate are of a new and improved pattern. The tender has a capacity of eight tons of coal and 3,000 gallons of water. The engine and tender together are about 56 feet in length, and weigh 82,000 pounds and 31,000 pounds respectively. They were entirely manufactured at the Grand Trunk works, with the exception of the boiler plates and boiler tubes, which are imported.

A TENDENCY

Of The Times.

Friday April 2nd, 1886.

We say "a tendency," as we do not now imply that our remarks refer to the leading tendency of the times, but "a Tendency of the Times" is to pass the spurious for the real, to represent the counterfeit as the genuine. Hence, Shoddy is made to appear like Wool, Jute looks like Silk, Cotton is manipulated and sold for Linen. This is not alone the rule in Dry Goods, but in every other branch of manufacture. We confine ourselves however to the discussion of Dry Goods.

One reason for this is the continual pressure on the manufacturer to produce APPEARANCE and CHEAPNESS, which is done at the sacrifice of QUALITY. Something is wanted that catches the eye. Lines of goods are specially sought for to produce the impression of cheapness. Certain people in business are continually on the look-out for that kind of stuff. Of course it is no benefit to the purchaser, he thinks he buys wool and gets shoddy, he imagines he buys silk and has jute, he pays for the real and gets the spurious. It is no benefit to the dealer, his tether is not a very long one, he is soon found out and hardly gets the chance to gull the same victim a second time. Look about you and see who are the solid and successful manufacturers and merchants of our land. The men who produce honest goods, the men who sell honest goods. They come out all right in the long run. They merit the public confidence and they get it, while the apostles of deceit are wiped off the scene almost as fast as the polish off their goods. They have to get out of business every few years. They shine for a while but their light soon dims.

For our own part, we shall steadily adhere to the principle of "Honest Goods at Fair Prices." We have reason to know this plan works to the satisfaction of our customers as well as ourselves.

CHAPTER XXII.

A GATHERING STORM.

As Dr. Holme and Helen became more intimate, Mrs. Longworthy was forced to recognize the truth of Helen's words, that they did not get on. They never met without contention and strife, and as they met almost every day there seemed no time for reconciliations; or, as Helen herself said, it did not seem worth while getting reconciled; they were sure to break out again the next time they met. Mrs. Longworthy was a little distressed at these frequent disputes, her husband viewed them with a mixture of amusement and astonishment; for it was never very clear why they quarrelled. Helen said, because they could not help it; Dr. Holme, because Mrs. Moore seemed to wish it, and he could only do his best to meet her wishes.

Helen rather enjoyed this warfare; it prevented her from thinking too much about herself, and she had nothing at stake. In addition to this her vague feeling against the doctor had developed into a very hearty dislike; so there was every excuse for her. She did battle cheerfully, and never lost her spirits or her temper over defeat, because, as before said, she had nothing at stake; it mattered not at all to her what Dr. Holme thought about her, or whether he was pleased or the reverse by the obstinacy with which she defended her cause.

It was less clear why Dr. Holme fought; unless, as he said, to comply with Mrs. Moore's wish. In reality if she took a pleasure in this interminable war of words his was almost greater. He was too clear sighted not to see that Helen did not like him, and too sensible to suppose that her dislike was either assumed or the result of a momentary annoyance. He felt that their natures were dissimilar, that there was a wide gulf between their tastes and their ways of looking at things, and the knowledge did not dismay him. He was accustomed to encounter difficulties and to overcome them; he had made it his life's work to fight against things that would not bend to his will, so that in opposing and overcoming Helen's dislike he was only following his calling. The greater difficulty and the longer the fight the more satisfactory and complete the victory. He felt his nerves thrill with the spirit and excitement of a warrior every time he talked to Helen, and found fresh causes for disagreement. He had begun without any plan or idea of systematic attack, but, as the struggle continued, he warmed to his work, and a short time after he had driven Helen home in his dog cart he had made up his mind that he would conquer her enmity, and that without employing a single one of the graces and fascinations which he supposed were dear to her heart. Without in the least unbending from his natural attitude of upright candour, he would, by the mere force of his will and character, compel her to call him her friend. So he told himself. He had not at present got further than to imagine them friends, for he had entered on this strife without asking himself where it was likely to lead him, or whether, when the heat and excitement of the fray should be over, he would be content with friendship's garland as his reward.

He was thinking of the coming strife one evening as he walked the few hundred yards which lay between his own modest dwelling—merely two cottages knocked into one, and half buried in ivy—and the Rectory. He had been very busy, and had not called at the Rectory for a whole week—a long time when one considers the conditions under which the rector and doctor lived.

He found the whole party in the drawing-room, sitting in the twilight, for by this time the day light was growing considerably shorter; and it was pleasant to sit in the dusk and watch the fire light playing on the walls and flickering over the books and china.

He shook hands with them all, declined Mrs. Longworthy's offer to have the lamps brought in, and stood leaning against a corner of the chimney-piece, saying nothing. The firelight was bright enough for him see with distinctness everything in the room; it shone upon the piano standing opposite to him, with a sheet of music upon it.

"Have you been playing, Mrs. Moore?" he asked.

"Yes. No doubt you will consider I have been wasting precious time when I tell you I have been playing nothing but waltzes."

"Is your time precious?" he said, looking down upon her. "What do you do with yourself all day?"

"I spoke of time in the abstract, not of mine in particular. My own life is probably a useless one, the kind of life that harmonises with waltzes."

"Waltzes are no doubt rather a frivolous and empty kind of music," he replied; "still, like other frivolous things, they may have their use; and I can imagine that, under certain circumstances, they would give more pleasure than a grander kind of music."

Helen was not unconscious of the meaning lying under the surface of what he said, but she ignored it, saying instead, as she peered up at him—for the blaze had died down—

"You are wonderfully charitable. I hardly know you. Are you quite well?"

"See how naturally you take it for granted that I am an ill-tempered boor," he said, composedly. "You utter your thoughts with the greatest frankness I ever saw in a woman."

If you are going to rail against women we will wait till after tea. It is too long a dispute to be despatched in a few minutes, and also too exhaustive. I must first fortify myself with a cup of tea."

"How could he rail against women with my wife and you present?" asked Mr. Longworthy.

"You don't mean," said Helen, "that you have known Dr. Holme for ten years without finding out that he is far above all little flatteries and deceptions of that kind. He would not hesitate in anything he wished to say if the room were full of women. He is much more sturdy and sincere than you. You cannot help making yourself agreeable; he, on the other hand, glories in speaking out his thought just as it is formed in his mind."

"Here comes Fanny to tell us tea is ready," said the doctor serenely, without making any attempt to defend himself from Helen's attack.

They went into the dining-room, all at first a little dazzled by the strong light. When Dr. Holme had got accustomed to it, he turned his eyes to Helen, who sat opposite to him.

She wore that evening the identical black lace dress which Mason had insisted upon putting into her box. It was a very pretty dress, and though the doctor knew very little about such matters, he had a vague feeling that the dress and the wearer harmonized. She had in her hair autumn flowers, which Mr. Longworthy had brought in from the garden for her. Deep ruffles of soft lace fell from over her white, delicately-rounded arms, and the stones in her rings flashed in the lamplight whenever she moved her hands.

So far, therefore, she looked well, but her face was pale, her eyes sadder than usual. She had been out alone that afternoon, and had been unable to resist the influence of the still autumn day. She had wandered on, hardly knowing where she was going, her heart aching with longing for her old life, and oppressed with a morbid, despanding fear lest, when it was time to act, she should find that Alice had after all won Percival's heart, and she herself would be condemned to a lonely and miserable existence. In her present mood that seemed the thing most likely

He had begun without any plan or idea of systematic attack, but, as the struggle continued, he warmed to his work, and a short time after he had driven Helen home in his dog cart he had made up his mind that he would conquer her enmity, and that without employing a single one of the graces and fascinations which he supposed were dear to her heart. Without in the least unbending from his natural attitude of upright candour, he would, by the mere force of his will and character, compel her to call him her friend. So he told himself. He had not at present got further than to imagine them friends, for he had entered on this strife without asking himself where it was likely to lead him, or whether, when the heat and excitement of the fray should be over, he would be content with friendship's garland as his reward.

He was thinking of the coming strife one evening as he walked the few hundred yards which lay between his own modest dwelling—merely two cottages knocked into one, and half buried in ivy—and the Rectory. He had been very busy, and had not called at the Rectory for a whole week—a long time when one considers the conditions under which the rector and doctor lived.

He found the whole party in the drawing-room, sitting in the twilight, for by this time the day light was growing considerably shorter; and it was pleasant to sit in the dusk and watch the fire light playing on the walls and flickering over the books and china.

He shook hands with them all, declined Mrs. Longworthy's offer to have the lamps brought in, and stood leaning against a corner of the chimney-piece, saying nothing. The firelight was bright enough for him see with distinctness everything in the room; it shone upon the piano standing opposite to him, with a sheet of music upon it.

"Have you been playing, Mrs. Moore?" he asked.

"Yes. No doubt you will consider I have been wasting precious time when I tell you I have been playing nothing but waltzes."

"Is your time precious?" he said, looking down upon her. "What do you do with yourself all day?"

"I spoke of time in the abstract, not of mine in particular. My own life is probably a useless one, the kind of life that harmonises with waltzes."

"Waltzes are no doubt rather a frivolous and empty kind of music," he replied; "still, like other frivolous things, they may have their use; and I can imagine that, under certain circumstances, they would give more pleasure than a grander kind of music."

Helen was not unconscious of the meaning lying under the surface of what he said, but she ignored it, saying instead, as she peered up at him—for the blaze had died down—

"You are wonderfully charitable. I hardly know you. Are you quite well?"

"See how naturally you take it for granted that I am an ill-tempered boor," he said, composedly. "You utter your thoughts with the greatest frankness I ever saw in a woman."

If you are going to rail against women we will wait till after tea. It is too long a dispute to be despatched in a few minutes, and also too exhaustive. I must first fortify myself with a cup of tea."

"How could he rail against women with my wife and you present?" asked Mr. Longworthy.

"You don't mean," said Helen, "that you have known Dr. Holme for ten years without finding out that he is far above all little flatteries and deceptions of that kind. He would not hesitate in anything he wished to say if the room were full of women. He is much more sturdy and sincere than you. You cannot help making yourself agreeable; he, on the other hand, glories in speaking out his thought just as it is formed in his mind."

"Here comes Fanny to tell us tea is ready," said the doctor serenely, without making any attempt to defend himself from Helen's attack.

They went into the dining-room, all at first a little dazzled by the strong light. When Dr. Holme had got accustomed to it, he turned his eyes to Helen, who sat opposite to him.

She wore that evening the identical black lace dress which Mason had insisted upon putting into her box. It was a very pretty dress, and though the doctor knew very little about such matters, he had a vague feeling that the dress and the wearer harmonized. She had in her hair autumn flowers, which Mr. Longworthy had brought in from the garden for her. Deep ruffles of soft lace fell from over her white, delicately-rounded arms, and the stones in her rings flashed in the lamplight whenever she moved her hands.

So far, therefore, she looked well, but her face was pale, her eyes sadder than usual. She had been out alone that afternoon, and had been unable to resist the influence of the still autumn day. She had wandered on, hardly knowing where she was going, her heart aching with longing for her old life, and oppressed with a morbid, desponding fear lest, when it was time to act, she should find that Alice had after all won Percival's heart, and she herself would be condemned to a lonely and miserable existence. In her present mood that seemed the thing most likely to happen, and the fear was still in her heart and the shadow on her face when she returned home.

Once or twice during tea she caught the doctor's eyes fixed on her face, and she was annoyed that she could not better hide a grief which she would not explain to him. She roused herself and began to take part in the conversation, and her words were so much more energetic, as she had to make a great effort to speak them at all.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, April 2.

In the Senate on the motion for the third reading of the Bill regulating the sale of liquor by druggists in counties where the Canada Temperance Act is in force, Mr. Scott said that ample machinery was provided in the original Act for the obtaining of liquor for mechanical or medicinal purposes, and this Bill was simply a cunning device to enable druggists to turn their establishments into dram shops. To pass this Bill would simply be to destroy the means provided by the Temperance Act for the suppression of the traffic in intoxicating liquors.

This Bill would allow the sale of liquor without any of the regulations now provided by the License Laws respecting the sale to minors, or sales after hours, and neither the municipal nor the Provincial revenues would be benefitted by this traffic in liquor by druggists. He moved that the Bill be read a third time this day six months.

Messrs. Vidal and Flint spoke against the Bill.

The House divided on Mr. Scott's motion for a six months' hoist, which was rejected by 31 to 25.

Mr. Scott then moved that the Bill should not go into operation in counties where the Canada Temperance Act is in force. Lost on the same division.

An amendment proposing to restrict the sale of patent medicines to those not capable of being used as beverages, was carried by 24 to 22.

The Bill was then passed and the Senate adjourned.

In the Commons petitions bearing several thousands of signatures praying for an amendment to the Scott Act were presented.

Mr. Thompson (Antigonish) replying to Sir R. Cartwright said that it was proposed to amend the Franchise Act during the present session.

Mr. Taylor moved for a Committee of the Whole to consider a resolution in favor of legislation to regulate the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine and other substitutes for butter. The debate was adjourned on the understanding that the Government would probably deal with the matter.

Mr. Casey obtained an Order of the House for copies of all correspondence referring to the character of the ammunition made at the Quebec Cartridge Factory, and supplied in the field, for practice or at rifle matches.

In the evening the Bill respecting the Canada Atlantic Railway was considered in Committee of the Whole, and a long discussion took place on the question of inserting a clause saving the rights of two contractors, which was not decided when the Committee rose.

The Minister of Justice, in accordance with Mr. Blake's suggestion, proposed to refer the Bill respecting the consolidated statutes to a Select Committee of the whole House.

The remainder of the evening was spent in discussing in committee Mr. Allen's Bill to extend the jurisdiction of the Maritime Court of Ontario. The Minister of Justice opposed the Bill. Mr. McCarthy moved that the Committee rise, which was carried, killing the bill.

Hespeler Correspondence.

THE WHEEL.—Quite a number of young men in town have recently invested in bicycles (very valuable ones). A series of evolutions, "tail fours" longitudinal, and otherwise will next be in order. Several of the young men have already made rapid progress in the art of propelling their inanimate steeds.

CATCHT.—About two weeks ago a new set of single harness was stolen from a cutter in the driving shed of Mr R H Knowles. The matter was kept very quiet, only Constable Winterhalt and a few others being made aware of the theft. There were no tidings whatever of the harness for about ten days, but about that time very slight suspicions as to their whereabouts came into existence. Accordingly Constable Winterhalt and another person drove on Friday night last to Puslinch Lake to the old tavern stand on the north shore, where a man by the name of Jones lives, and occasionally keeps boarders. On cautiously making known their business Jones told the constable that a harness answering the description of the one stolen, had been left there in his possession to be safe from the bailiff, and as security for board. On the harness being produced it was at once identified as being the stolen property, and suspicion as to who committed the theft justified. The supposed guilty party, in complete ignorance of "the find" was arrested next day in Hespeler. The necessary witnesses being subpoened, the case was investigated on Saturday evening before J P Phin, one of Her Majesty's Justices of the Peace, and resulted in the committal of the prisoner to Berlin goal to stand his trial.

MAPLE SYRUP—Some splendid lots of this excellent have already made their way to town, selling at $1.25 per gallon.

YESTERDAY'S STORM.—The storm of yesterday was most terrific here, and did more towards obstructing roads than any 48 hour storm of the entire winter.

TRAIN DERAILED.

An Accident at Berlin Which Does Considerable Damage.

BERLIN, Ont., April 7.—What nearly resulted in a very serious accident occurred to express train No. 3, from Chicago to Montreal, in charge of Conductor W. H. Hoskin, due here at 4.47 p. m., but four hours late. The accident occurred at 8 o'clock last evening, and was caused by a mistake in the instructions given to the man in charge of the switch. It appears that District Superintendent Tiffin had made up a special train at Stratford to take the place of No. 3, her delay at Sarnia being caused by a run off and snow drifts. This train passed Berlin at 5 p. m., which the switchman mistook for the Chicago express, and opened the main line for the Galt train. While thus open the express came on and was derailed here, four cars, the engine and tender being almost wrecked. Expressman G.W. Hickey, and the engineer, George Brown, were slightly injured, the latter very painfully but not seriously. The damage to rolling stock is considerable. The line will be opened to-day.

OVER AN EMBANKMENT.

GREENFIELD, Mass., April 7.—A terrible disaster occurred on the Fitchburg railway to-night midway between Bardwell's ferry and West Deerfield station, the east-bound passenger train from North Adams, due at Greenfield at 6.05 p. m., going over an embankment 200 feet in height. Nine bodies have already been taken from the ruins, and it is not known how many others were killed. As soon as the cars struck the bottom of the embankment they caught fire from the stoves. The shrieks of the wounded and dying filled the air, and for a time the scene was terrible. The total number of casualties is 15 killed and 19 seriously injured. Engineer Littlejohn was fatally hurt and is dying. His brother's wife and two children are among the dead. Of sixty passengers only three escaped unhurt.

Protection for the Birds.

Bird destruction in this country is every year assuming a more and more serious aspect. The startling decrease in the numbers of many of our birds, brought about of late years by the unceasing persecution waged for the sake of fashion, has aroused the American Ornithologists' Union to the recognition of the necessity for instant and decided effort in behalf of our birds. To answer this imperative demand the Union has appointed a "Committee on the Protection of North American birds."

The objects of the committee are as follows:

1. The gathering of all possible information bearing on the subjects of the destruction and protection of North American birds.

2. The diffusion of information among the people in respect to the extent of the slaughter of birds for millinery and other mercenary purposes; the wanton killing of birds in sport by men and boys; the robbing of birds' nests; the destruction of the eggs of rails, terns, gulls and other birds for food; and the marked recent decrease of many species resulting from this general destruction; the spreading of information, also, in respect to the utility of birds as a natural check upon the increase of insects injurious to vegetation, and with reference to their interest and value from an æsthetic point of view. This with the object of developing a public sentiment in favor of the rigid protection of our native birds, a sentiment that will naturally spring up strongly and widely as soon as attention is called to the subject.

3. To encourage the formation of bird protective associations and anti-bird-wearing leagues.

4. The perfection of a statute for the protection of birds, drawn with regard to its availability for enactment by all the States and Territories, leaving, however, the game birds, properly so considered, to the care of the game protective associations.

5. The prevention of the collecting of birds and eggs for pseudo-scientific purposes, and the development of a system of co-operation between this committee and the various authorities to whom may be assigned the power of granting permits for the collection of birds in the interest of science.

6. The consideration of the best means for securing the enforcement of bird protective statutes.

The committee is desirous of collecting facts and statistics bearing upon the subject of the destruction of our birds, and will welcome information from any source. It also extends the promise of its hearty co-operation to all persons or societies who may be interested in the protection of our birds.

The headquarters of the committee are at the American Museum of Natural History, Central Park, New York city, where it may be addressed.

DAVIS
Vertical Feed Sewing Machine.

It is a sewing machine advertisement, it is true.
It is not an old Stereotyped story.
We have something of interest to you, whether you wish to buy or not.
We have a machine quite unlike anything else. New Principles, New Ideas.
You say you have seen it; you are mistaken. It is a new pattern; a New Model,
Did you ever see a sewing machine with only six working parts? If not, you never saw this new machine.
There is only one tension to regulate. No holes to thread through.
All the work on this machine is of the highest grade, and will compare favorably with the workmanship of a Winchester rifle.
You can't comprehend it. You won't believe it unless you come and see for yourself. It will pay you from curiosity. We are so much interested in this ourselves that we are anxious you should see, know, tell and help us get these facts before the people.

The remains of the daughter of Sir George Cartier, who died in France will be brought to Canada for interment.

At the Lincoln Assizes Mrs. Jennings, of Buffalo, obtained a verdict for $6,000 against the Grand Trunk. Her husband was an express messenger and was killed by an accident on the railway.

A boat containing two dead fishermen and two in the last stages of exhaustion drifted ashore at Guyon island, Cape Breton, Wednesday. The unfortunate men missed their vessel on the Grand Bank, and had drifted about at the mercy of the waves for eight days.

A large party of well-to-do agricultural immigrants from England and Wales left Montreal on Wednesday by the Canadian Pacific Railway for Winnipeg. The majority have already secured homesteads at Calgary, Moose Jaw, and Turtle Mountain, on which they intend settling with their families.

At the Toronto City Hall on Wednesday Lieut.-Colonel Otter was presented by the Lieut.-Governor with an address signed by six hundred citizens of Toronto, expressing the public appreciation of the services the gallant officer had rendered the city and country in the past in connection with the militia force. Colonel Otter made a felicitous reply.

The annual meeting of the Canadian Fruit Packers Association began Wednesday at the Walker House, Toronto. About ten firms are represented. In conversing on the subject of the increase in duties on American fruit imported into Canada Mr. Boulter, of Picton, the President, said that he believed that it would tend to foster the cultivation of early native Canadian strawberries, but in the case of peaches he believed that it was a mistake "because Canada is not a peach producing country."

The Last Year, 1885.

After the above year is ended there need be no person suffering from rheumatism, neuralgia, toothache, headache lumbago, or any acute pain, if they only purchase a bottle of Fluid Lightning, as it cures instantly. Pain cannot stay where it is used. The name is Fluid Lightning. Sold by Thomas S. Petrie, Druggist.

Fergus Correspondence.

A WEEK OF ENTERTAINMENTS—The week of public entertainment is over, and it has been on the whole successful.

HIGH SCHOOL.—The hall was opened on Thursday night last for the views of "The Ancient Mariner," and also for different scenes in London, Paris, &c. The views representing parts of the story of "The Ancient Mariner" were accompanied by readings and recitations by the High School pupils, all of whom did remarkably well, and it would be unfair to mention any one when all deserve the same praise. The evening was a pleasant intellectual literary treat, reflecting credit on teachers and pupils. It realized for the benefit of the school piano in all about $30. Expenses, however, were large and the school did not make much profit. There was some good singing also by the pupils.

LACROSSE—This night was looked forward to by old and young as likely to be something good. The concert and play given two years since were considered about the best we have ever had, and of course as good amusement was expected this time, and we are happy to say that the audience generally was well satisfied. The string band is a credit to any town, and we are justly proud of our players—Ross, Bennett, French, Hinds. Mr Stideson sang "The death of Nelson" in a pleasing manner. Mr Hinds appeared for the first time before a Fergus audience. He has a splendid deep bass voice which will yet be valuable. Jack Wilson, one of the "Thistles," of Fergus, received a hearty welcome from the boys. He gave "The Highlandman's Toast" with such vigour and musical style as to bring down the house, and get a well deserved encore. Jack has an excellent voice, and with a little training he will make a successful public singer, as his choice of songs is good and his manner of rendering them taking. Our old friend Joe Phelan also sang very well, and was heartily encored. He has appeared before and will be welcome again. Mr. Christian, from Loudon, is almost a professional singer and a really good one. He gave "Mary of Argyle" in a most finished manner, and was enthusiastically encored. This gentleman need not be afraid to sing any place. Mr Craig's address was witty, practical and good. He made an excellent chairman and is as good a president of the lacrosse club as he is an able and honorable school inspector. In the play entitled "On his last legs," the ladies, Mrs Reid and the Misses Moffat and Patterson, all took their parts very well, and looked exceedingly pretty on the stage. Among the male characters Mr Craig excelled, taking the chief part and doing it well. The other characters were of less importance, but all did fairly well for amateurs, and may safely appear again, as the audience was well pleased with the whole performance. The house was a very good one, the receipts amounting to $65.80. The Thistles have now a good foundation for the summer, about one hundred dollars in the treasury.

STRANGE.—On April 1st a lady in Garafraxa got a fly in her ear. It caused a good deal of pain, and all efforts could not get it out. Her husband was compelled to drive her in to the doctor, a distance of six miles in the storm. The doctor removed the fly, and threw it on the floor, when it crawled off alive and well after its long ride in the snow storm.

WEDDING.—A couple came to the Wellington hotel last Wednesday night. The minister was sent for, and when all was ready there were no witnesses for supports. Mr. Spires and the girls filled up the blank, and the old bachelor was made presumably happy.

APRIL FOOLS DAY.—All fools day was more than usually quiet. We heard of no practical jokes being played here at all.

FAIR.—Easter Fair here on Tuesday next. We hope to see a good lot of cattle. Prices are a little better.

WEATHER.—Many think this spring very late, but we cannot say so as yet. We had good sleighing up to the 10th of April last year, and the ice did not go off the dam until the 20th. Of course by the looks of things and the weather of to-day, our winter is likely to be continued. Unfortunately the sleighing is pretty well gone, though still better than wheeling in the country.

COUNCIL.—Last night's meeting was adjourned to Tuesday night, 13th inst.

LECTURE.—Mr Ball's address in the Drill Shed here last night has been universally commended and praised by those who heard it. Unfortunately very few did hear it, for the most eloquent and talented speaker was greeted with a very small audience, and we say this in sorrow, as the smallness of the house is a dishonor to our village, not to the lecturer, who has been greeted with more than a hundred dollar house in other presumably more intellectual and patriotic villages. Had last night's entertainment being a negro show from the States or any other equally trashy affair there would have been a fair house, at 25 and 35 cents for a ticket, but a brief, bright, vivid, and historical sketch of our Northwest and the war, for the benefit of our badly paid defenders, the volunteers, at 25 cents a head, is so shabbily patronized that we believe expenses will only be paid. However, we all have a right to gratify our tastes in this respect and either go or not as we are inclined, but we are grieved to think that so few heard this really excellent effort. The Battalion Band was a little late in arriving at the hall. When they did come they were joined by our own band, and along with a small force of the Fergus Volunteer Company in uniform and officered by Lieut Murray, all paraded the streets back to the Drill Shed. During the march the streets were crowded, but only a small number followed the procession into the hall. Col Clark, M P P, who had consented to occupy the chair, first called Rev. J. B. Mullin to the platform, and then asked him to open with prayer. On the platform, besides Revs Mullin and Ball, were Col Clark, Major Mutrie and Captains Allan and Johnson, all in military array. On each side of the speaker was a stand of arms, while the hall its if was nicely decorated with red, white and blue bunting, and the walls covered with Union Jacks. Col. Clarke made a nice humorous little speech in introducing the lecturer, and on Mr. Ball stepping forward he was warmly greeted by all. Without wasting any time the speaker at once entered upon his subject and from beginning to end—about one hour and a half—kept the undivided attention of his audience. He first gave reasons to show why there was a war; then spoke of the natural fighting barriers of the country, the washouts and ravines with their almost perpendicular sides, the dense growth of brush and the grass all scattered over the country from the frontier to James' Bay; next the forces and how they were made up. In describing these the lecturer was particularly bright and happy and by his magnificent, but humorous description, kept the audience in roars of laughter. The bank dude with collar and cane, the law student, sons of clergymen, &c., as they left home and as they were in camp were all described in a most pleasant and laughable manner. The bravery of the mounted scouts, their hardships, the way they mounted guard all night, their food, and the men themselves; also the infantry, their marches and suffering; the charge at Batoche of the Midlanders, Grenadiers and 90th; the hurrah of the officers, the cheers of the men as given by the lecturer made every heart in the audience beat high with pride for Canada's brave sons. This charge was made across an open ground for 300 yards against an unseen foe, a feat never before accomplished by even British soldiers. In the face of these daring boys, as they charged forward, the place rang with the Indian war whoop and the voice of Dumont shouting in the thicket "Courage, courage." After the charge was depicted the scenes with the women and children of the halfbreeds and the gallant treatment accorded these by our soldiers were spoken of. The sketch of the country was instructive. The make-up of the different bodies of men was surprising. The comparison of men's mending of clothes to that of women was graphic, plain, and most amusing. The Montana teamsters and their superiority in profanity over men of Ontario was a good hit. He compared it to taking the cap off Mount Vesuvius and allowing the sulphur to escape. He condemned swearing, and advised all to leave it alone, as they were far behind these teamsters, and they never lived long. The bravery of the men, and the wonderful charge were glorious, and the lecture was concluded only too soon. It is pronounced by all the best we have ever heard. It was full of information, sparkling with wit and humor, glorious in actual battle, extremely affecting in sympathy for women, wounded, the dying and the dead; full of praise for the brave and those doing duty and delivered with that eloquent military oratory and enthusiasm which have made these lectures so celebrated. Too much praise cannot be given the really talented orator and chaplain of the 90th. It was a living, moving panorama passing before the audience. To-night's lecture was postponed, owing to bad weather. It will probably be delivered some time in May.

THE STORM.—As a result of the storm of to-day telegraph wires are mixed; a great many fences blown down, etc.

SUPPER.—After the lecture the officers belonging to the village entertained their visiting officers and a few friends to oysters, etc., at the Wellington Hotel, Mrs Spires providing a very nice spread in good style. A pleasant time was spent for an hour when all left for home.

JUBILEE.—Dr Sinclair's celebration is expected to come off on Thursday next week. Preparations are now being made for the Presbytery and others by the congregation

Curling.

The last game of the season in Hamilton for the Caledonian Curling Club was played on Monday at the covered rink between No. 1 and 2 rinks. Great was the sport. It was contested with true curler's spirit. The conquerors were to strip the losers of their brooms at the finish. To strip a curler of his broom is like stripping a lawyer of his gown, so No. 2 took possession of No. 1's brooms with a grand hurrah, with a majority of three shots.

THE New Davis Sewing Machine is a mechanical wonder. No cogs, cams, cranks, horizontal feed bar or feed teeth to rattle and tear and draw, full pucker and otherwise mar the work. All such old fogy contrivances are cast aside as worse than useless in this perfect machine. Call and see it at J. C. McLean's music store and be convinced. d3 w1

GENTS.—We are clearing the balance of our white and colored shirts, collars, ties, suspenders, etc., at bankrupt prices, as we are going out of gents furnishings entirely. Secure what you want before they are all sold, at 77 Upper Wyndham St. A. J. Little & Co. d2

WATERLOO Chronicle:—The Provincial Fat Stock Show was offered to Guelph for $5,000, but the city did not want it at the money. So the poor thing is going a begging for accommodation and $500. Who will take it up?

A STRANGE STORY.—After Mr. Heckerdorn, who lives near Waterloo Town, had retired Monday night, an alarm was made at his door. On the question being asked "Who is there?" the answer came, "Give us out that $200, or we'll blow your brains out." Mr. H. retired at the back door to arouse some neighbors, and on their return found the house ransacked but no money taken. A few days previously Mr. H. received an anonymous letter, telling him to keep on hand $200. The affair should be placed in the hands of a good detective.

BITTEN BY A DOG.—Edward, a young son of Mr. John Coulson, living in the East Ward, was rather severley bitten by a dog belonging to ex-Ald. Stull last evening. The lad was crossing a field near by Mr. Stull's premises when the dog made a run at the lad and bit him on the thigh of the right leg leaving a nasty scar. Dr. McPhatter was called in and dressed the wound.

J. C. MCLEAN has just secured the agency for the famous Davis Vertical Feed Sewing Machine. W. C. T. U.—At the regular meeting on Wednesday last arrangements were made for holding three or four rousing Temperance meetings, during the next few weeks. Noted speakers have been communicated with whose names are enough to insure success. Rev. C. H. Mead, of Hornellsville, N. Y., and three other gentlemen who form the Silver Lake Male Quartette, have been engaged for the first of these meetings, on Friday April 16, when the proceedings will no doubt be of a first class order. In compliance with a request from the Provincial W.C.T.U. it was decided to hold a Memorial Service in reference to the death of the late John B. Gough, on next Sabbath afternoon, in Paisley St. Methodist church.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The attendance at the rink continues to increase, and if the large gathering last night can be taken as a criterion there is every prospect of a continuance. The ladies were present in large numbers and a very enjoyable time was spent. The polo match resulted in favor of the City band, who, after long and hard playing, secured a goal, which advantage the Guelphs' could not overcome, and when time was called the game was declared in favor of the Royal City Band, one goal to nothing. The City band discoursed music. To-morrow night the city band will be present, when there will be a two-mile-race for boys under 16 years of age. See advertisement.

KNOX COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS.—At the closing examinations of Knox College, Toronto, to which reference was made in these columns yesterday, the scholarship for systematic theology, given to students of the graduating class by Mr. J. B. Armstrong, of this place, was divided between Messrs. C. A. Webster, B. A., and J. B. Tolmie, B. A., as they were considered of equal merit on that subject.

THE SCOTT ACT IN ORANGEVILLE.—This is a hard rap from the Waterloo Chronicle:—Orangeville Town Council has passed a resolution condemning the Scott Act because it is a monetary loss to the town and encourages the people to become law breakers. When Orangeville Council next feels moved to "resolute," it should adjourn instead, then its imbecility would not become so widely published. The idea that a town profits by license money is very silly but the notion that the law "encourages" people to break it is too delicious for anything. Orangeville is a great place and its Council have great heads.

Y. M. C. A.—At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association last night much business of importance was transacted. The report of the Standing Committee showed the work to be encouraging. The Secretary, Geo. T. Webb, was sorry to say that the people of Guelph did not appear to appreciate the work of the Association and felt called upon to present his resignation, which was accepted after some discussion. Mr. Webb will address the meeting of the Association next Sunday for the last time.

DEATH OF MR. MCINTYRE.—Many people will regret to learn of the death of Mr. McIntyre, school teacher, Guelph Township, which occurred in the General Hospital at noon to-day. It will be remembered that several weeks ago the deceased got his foot and leg terribly crushed in a horse-power which he was mounting for the purpose of speaking to a friend. The doctors decided that it was a case for amputation, but Mr. McIntyre dreading the operation and hoping to save the injured limb stubbornly resisted this course. It had, however, to be resorted to some days after the accident in consequence of mortification. After this the leg festered terribly, and this together with continued diarrhoea exhausted his strength until there were no hopes of his recovery. Mr. McIntyre was greatly liked and respected by all who knew him. He leaves a widow and young family to mourn his untimely end.

CHANCERY SITTINGS.

An Interesting Alimony Case.

April 8th.

HUGGINS VS. LAIR.—Action by the five minor children of Andrew Huggins, of Maryborough, against the executors of the will of their half-sister, Jane Lee, to recover legacies amounting to $2,600; or over $500 each, left to them under the will. The defence was that the Executors had in March 1882, paid this money to one T. G. Fennell, then living in Listowel, who had taken out letters of guardianship to the plaintiffs and their estate in the Surrogate Court at Guelph in December, 1881. Fennell had since absconded and his sureties were worthless. The plaintiffs' contention is that the payment to the guardian was not a proper one, and that the guardian had no right to the money, nor were the executors justified in paying it. It appeared in course of the argument of counsel that no case exactly like the present has heretofore been decided, although counsel for the plaintiff referred to several previous decisions which they claimed supported their contention. The point is a novel and very important one, as it has hitherto not been uncommon for executors to pay legacies due to infants over to their guardian. His Lordship reserved judgment. Mr. Guthrie, Q. C., and Mr. Watt, for plaintiffs; Mr. Bain, Q. C., of Toronto, and Mr. Scranton, of Bradford, for defendants.

KAY VS. KAY.—Mrs. Kay was the first witness. She stated that she was married on the 16th March 1880; that before her marriage she was in very comfortable circumstances and was supported by her brothers. She never saw Kay's place before she was married, and it was about a year afterwards before any difference arose between them; she was always healthy before marriage, and afterwards she did not get enough to eat.

The case was then adjourned until Friday morning, on account of Mrs. Kay, who is sick, and has been confined in the General Hospital, not being able to give further evidence.

April 9th.

KAY VS. KAY.

This was a case brought by Helen Kay, claiming alimony from her husband on the ground of ill treatment, etc. The evidence below will speak for itself:

After being in Kay's house eight or ten days and sleeping on the floor a bed was put up the day before I was taken ill; Dr. Herod called; was sitting near the stove; said I had better be taken to the Hospital or my death would be on Kay; Dr. Herod did not say anything about the house; was taken to the St. Joseph's Hospital the next day; the stoves not being in working order Mr. Kay told me to go to the Victoria Hotel; remained about eight days; this was in January or February; Dr. Herod then told me I had better go to Dundas to my parents; remained till June; was ill there; was attended by Drs. Brandon and Ross; returned to my husband about 18th June; my husband visited me at the hotel and spoke to me very cross; I told him I was going to Dundas and asked him for my clothes; my husband visited me twice in Dundas; was not confined to bed all the time; returned to Guelph and found the house in a very dirty state; remained at the home of my husband till the 19th of July; found my husband and brother in the house; was again sent to the Hospital on the 19th of July by Dr. Howitt; my husband took me to the Hospital; I was worse and Dr. Howitt said I was getting worse and had better go; was visited by the Dr. before I went to the Hospital; Dr. Howitt saw that there was no help for me and I must get out of the house; the cellar of the house was wet and about 400 weight of unwashed wool in the sitting room, slop pails full in the hall, about 50 bushels of rotten potatoes in the cellar; the clothes in my trunk blue moulded, and the whole place smelt of rotten potatoes; when I returned home I told my husband that the place had better be cleaned up as the smell was killing me; he never paid any attention to it, and let it remain; he never supplied me with money, and would not get me any assistance, as he could not; he told me at different times that he and his brother were worth $200,000; he never worked the farm, as he had means enough to live upon; my husband's age would be about 55 years; I was left by my father in 1881 about $4,000 or $5,000; have now about $800; James Geary, of Elora, is suing me for a sum of money; the remainder of the money I have spent on myself and child for clothing and necessities of life; after marriage, on my husband's farm I had to work very hard, cleaning horses, feeding cattle, and also do my house-work; this treatment commenced about a year after marriage; my husband said I must do it or I was a lazy b—h; he told me this several times, and he shook his fist and stamped his foot at me; this continued till I left him; there were 6 or 8 horses, and I had to attend to them and also feed 9 or 12 cattle and from 7 to 140 sheep at the time; had to pump all the water during the summer for the stock; did not work in the field, I told him I could not do it; he also told me I had to help him to shear the sheep, in 1884 about two months before the child was born; was away in 1881 and 1882 with illness off and on; I was not able to move about; I was then under Dr. White's care, of Buffalo; after my return I did not do the work as I used to as I was not able; was fed on pork, etc.; was not allowed to cook eggs and the pork had a bad smell; my husband sold the farm in 1885 and came to live in Guelph; in the winter time my husband and his brother would lie around the house and both order me to do the work; they also kept a large number of cats and I had to cook for them; he threatened me on several occasions by shaking his fist at me and ordered me to clean his boots and his brother's; his brother also threatened me and ordered me to carry the lantern to the stable and used bad language to me; my husband heard his brother use the language; my husband on one occasion came to the hospital—Jane Gordon was present—and asked me to go home, I said I would when he furnished a room with a stove to dry it; he refused to do so; on several occasions he compelled me to cut wood when I was ill; I had to carry it up about 11 steps when I had mustard over my lungs; when I could not do it he said I would ruin any man; I used a portion of my money to purchase provisions for the house as I could not bear the smell of the pork.

Cross-examined—I was living with my mother when I met Mr. Kay; my mother and father had been separated for a good many years; I knew Mr. Kay before I married him; first met Mr. Kay in my mother's house; he looked pretty much the same as he does now; saw him once or twice before he proposed; accepted him on the first proposal; had not seen his place; never made any enquiries about him; Adam Gerrie told me he was a respectable and wealthy man and would provide everything I wanted, and I married him for better or worse; I took him for better, and he promised to be kind to me; I expected him to keep me in food and clothes; I took him at his word; after the marriage we went to his farm; we got on tolerably well for the first two years; he was cruel to me once in two years; I told him if he would not abuse me I would overlook the first occasion; he made me work too hard with the horses and in the house after the first two years; he abused me for having the doctor; I like a horse, I have dealt in horses, was compelled to buy horses; had to buy before I could please him; had to sell three and bought the fourth from Mr. Guthrie, for which I paid $107; this one pleased him; he would not allow me to use any of his horses; did not feed the cattle so regularly as I did the horses; my husband always compelled me to do this, if I did not he shook his fist at me; I did this so long as I could; he wanted me to sign my money over to him about the end of 1882 or '83; he did not succeed; when he asked me to give him my money I told him if he would assign his right I would do the same; he told me I had to do so, and his brother also said I must; this was proposed on other occasions, but I remained firm; the next complaint was that he abuse I me for having the doctor, as there was no use of my doctoring as I would not get well; on other occasions he abused me for extravagance and waste of provisions in the cooking of meat; he kept the meat plate between him and his brother and would not deal so liberally with me as they did to themselves; my husband and brother measured the bread and meat morning and night, so that none could be used between meals; this occurred for several weeks; I had not my own way about the house; this all happened in 1883; was in Dundas about two months before my baby was born; went to Dundas in June; and was there about four or five weeks in 1883; went there in November 1883; came home four or five weeks after the baby was born; I told him once I would leave him; when I was in Dundas I wrote a number of letters to my husband (a number of letters were produced in which she expressed a wish to get home, and asking all about the farm); his letters to me were not kind; he said if I could not come home I could stay; his letter was very unkind; after my return home they (my husband and his brother) would hardly speak to me; he wanted me to leave the baby and help with the farm work; he said I must wash and that I was lazy; said I had to clean the stables; he shook his fist at me on several occasions, could not say how often; I did not want to go away as my lungs were sore; was willing to stay notwithstanding all that had taken place; this occurred till we came to the new house in Guelph; and we occupied beds on the floor; the bed was put up the day before Dr. Herod came to see me, and was occupied one or two nights; when the doctor saw me he said I had contracted pleurisy, and that I had better be removed to the hospital; was taken there by my husband.

AT the conclusion of Mrs. Kay's evidence the counsel indulged in considerable argument pro and con, and after being summed up by His Lordship the case was dismissed. Coffee, Field & Wissler and J. Bain for plaintiff; Guthrie & Watt, and Chas. McCs, Q. C., for defendant.

IRISH HOME RULE.

Mr. Gladstone Makes His Statement to Parliament.

HIS ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION.

EXTRACTS FROM THE SPEECH.

LONDON, April 8.—To-day has been the most eventful and the greatest in the English Parliament within the recollection of living man. As early as 6 o'clock in the morning, when the doors of the chamber were opened by the sweepers, members were present ready to secure seats, some of them bearing evidence of not having closed their eyes the whole night. The Parnellites were among the first on hand and secured their seats in a compact mass in front of Mr. Gladstone. Few outsiders had any chance of being spectators of the most memorable scene in the history of the British empire. At 8 o'clock every seat except Ministers', which, of course, are always reserved, had a hat on it. Nearly seven thousand applications for seats in the galleries were made to the Speaker and all but a little more than a bare hundred had to be disappointed, the seating capacity of the speaker's gallery being only fifty-two and of the strangers' sixty-five. One hundred pounds was offered for a seat without a transfer being effected. Members in many instances sat in their chairs and slept through the time until the House was regularly opened, having food and drink brought to them.

When the sun rose and the day became warmer the river terrace was sought by the majority, and here many expedients were resorted to to while away the time. The Parnellites were in a particularly happy frame of mind, acting as, to use the expression of one of them, "they had a sure thing on a day for Ireland."

All day long crowds of people gathered around the gates, and besides indulging in all kinds of horse-play cheered or hooted members as their fancy pleased them. In the afternoon the jam was simply tremendous, the multitude covering all the space down to Westminster bridge, and extending pretty well up Parliament street towards Whitehall. In addition an immense throng of people filled Downing street, where Mr Gladstone's official residence is situated. This crowd was patiently waiting for the Premier to make his departure for the House of Commons.

Catholic priests were conspicuously numerous in the crowd, and no less than 35 branches of the London organization of the Irish National League were represented by full deputations, whose identity was easily established even at a distance by their regalias. Political clubs beyond number were also present to take part in the popular demonstration. At 4 o'clock deputations from 32 Liberal clubs had been counted in the throng.

MR. GLADSTONE'S RECEPTION.

Mr. Gladstone spent the whole morning at his official residence, reading the papers of the day, answering telegrams, and writing or dictating a few letters. Not a soul was allowed to see him beyond his immediate subordinates and John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, for whom he sent and held a close conference of an hour with. After lunch and before going to the House he took a drive through St. James park, going away from and avoiding the crowd. He desired to be a while in the fresh air before going to Parliament. He returned to his residence, and in a few minutes emerged on his way to the Commons. The police had cleared a way for him to Parliament street, and down that across Bridge street to the House. They had to work hard to keep it open. Mr. Gladstone went in an open carriage, and his appearance was greeted with deafening cheers. The enthusiasm of the people all the way to the Commons entrance was spontaneous and thrilling. It vented itself at the begining of the journey in a roar of applause, hearty and great enough to make the great statesman dizzy, and when the whole immense multitude caught the signal one tremendous long sustained cheer was sent up, the like of which was never before heard in London, and which was plainly audible in the House. The cheering continued until long after Mr. Gladstone had entered the Parliament buildings.

Precisely at 4 o'clock the Right Hon. Arthur Wellesley Peel, Speaker of the House, took the chair. The chamber at the time was packed to the very extreme limit of its capacity, and every doorway showed the hallways crammed with people, all craning to see and hear. Half an hour later Mr. Gladstone entered. He was greeted with loud and prolonged cheering, which continued for several minutes. Among the Liberals and Parnellites the wildest enthusiasm prevailed, and it is safe to say that no such scene was ever witnessed before in the House of Commons. The venerable Premier was evidently touched, but he strove to maintain his calmness and succeeded admirably. Quietly and with surpassing dignity and gentleness of manner he greeted his immediate friends and then sat down, apparently the only unmoved man amid all the tumult. His face was inscrutable, but even his bitterest opponents were forced to acknowledge that at no time has he more impressively appeared the "Grand Old Man." It was a picture which will linger to the end in the memory of the beholder.

THE SPEECH.

When the cheering had subsided Mr. Gladstone rose and moved for permission to introduce a bill to amend the previous legislation, and to make provision for the future Government of Ireland. His manner was as calm and as unhesitating as if he were making the most ordinary motion of his life. At first his voice was somewhat husky, but speedily became as clear, fresh and strong as at any time in the last ten years. All was hushed as in making his motion Mr. Gladstone said the time had arrived when both honor and duty required Parliament to come to a decisive resolution. He said: "I could wish that it had been possible to expound to the House the whole policy and intentions of the Government with reference to Ireland. Although the questions of reform in the tenure of land and Irish government are so closely and inseparably connected it is yet impossible to undertake the task of elucidating both ques-

Curling.

The last game of the season in Hamilton for the Caledonian Curling Club was played on Monday at the covered rink between No. 1 and 2 rinks. Great was the sport. It was contested with true curler's spirit. The conquerors were to strip the losers of their brooms at the finish. To strip a curler of his broom is like stripping a lawyer of his gown, so No. 2 took possession of No. 1's brooms with a grand hurrah, with a majority of three shots.

THE New Davis Sewing Machine is a mechanical wonder. No cogs, cams, cranks, horizontal feed bar or feed teeth to rattle and tear and draw, full pucker and otherwise mar the work. All such old fogy contrivances are cast aside as worse than useless in this perfect machine. Call and see it at J. C. McLean's music store and be convinced. d3 w1

GENTS.—We are clearing the balance of our white and colored shirts, collars, ties, suspenders, etc., at bankrupt prices, as we are going out of gents furnishings entirely. Secure what you want before they are all sold, at 77 Upper Wyndham St. A. J. Little & Co. d2

THERE is never a snowstorm but that grandfather or grandmother remembers a worse one way back in the fabulous times of 30, 40 or 60 years ago.

WATERLOO Chronicle:—The Provincial Fat Stock Show was offered to Guelph for $5,000, but the city did not want it at the money. So the poor thing is going a begging for accommodation and $500. Who will take it up?

A STRANGE STORY.—After Mr. Heckerdorn, who lives near Waterloo Town, had retired Monday night, an alarm was made at his door. On the question being asked "Who is there?" the answer came, "Give us out that $200, or we'll blow your brains out." Mr. H. retired at the back door to arouse some neighbors, and on their return found the house ransacked but no money taken. A few days previously Mr. H. received an anonymous letter, telling him to keep on hand $200. The affair should be placed in the hands of a good detective.

BITTEN BY A DOG.—Edward, a young son of Mr. John Coulson, living in the East Ward, was rather severley bitten by a dog belonging to ex-Ald. Stull last evening. The lad was crossing a field near by Mr. Stull's premises when the dog made a run at the lad and bit him on the thigh of the right leg leaving a nasty scar. Dr. McPhatter was called in and dressed the wound.

J. C. McLEAN has just secured the agency for the famous Davis Vertical Feed Sewing Machine. This machine scored a triumphant success last fall at the Antwerp and Paris Exposition, where it carried off the diploma of honor against all competitors. All interested in sewing machines should call and inspect the Davis before purchasing any other. d3w1

W. C. T. U.—At the regular meeting on Wednesday last arrangements were made for holding three or four rousing Temperance meetings, during the next few weeks. Noted speakers have been communicated with whose names are enough to insure success. Rev. C. H. Mead, of Hornellsville, N. Y., and three other gentlemen who form the Silver Lake Male Quartette, have been engaged for the first of these meetings, on Friday April 16, when the proceedings will no doubt be of a first class order. In compliance with a request from the Provincial W.C.T.U. it was decided to hold a Memorial Service in reference to the death of the late John B. Gough, on next Sabbath afternoon, in Paisley St. Methodist church.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The attendance at the rink continues to increase, and if the large gathering last night can be taken as a criterion there is every prospect of a continuance. The ladies were present in large numbers and a very enjoyable time was spent. The polo match resulted in favor of the City band, who, after long and hard playing, secured a goal, which advantage the Guelphs' could not overcome, and when time was called the game was declared in favor of the Royal City Band, one goal to nothing. The City band discoursed music. Tomorrow night the city band will be present, when there will be a two-mile-race for boys under 16 years of age. See advertisement.

MR. W. D. SHATTUCK, of the Western hotel, received yesterday a telephone message from Stratford, stating that W. Rehill, seedsman, Seaforth, had died suddenly and was buried.

KNOX COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS.—At the closing examinations of Knox College, Toronto, to which reference was made in these columns yesterday, the scholarship for systematic theology, given to students of the graduating class by Mr. J. B. Armstrong, of this place, was divided between Messrs. C. A. Webster, B. A., and J. B. Tolmie, B. A., as they were considered of equal merit on that subject.

THE SCOTT ACT IN ORANGEVILLE.—This is a hard rap from the Waterloo Chronicle:—Orangeville Town Council has passed a resolution condemning the Scott Act because it is a monetary loss to the town and encourages the people to become law breakers. When Orangeville Council next feels moved to "resolute," it should adjourn instead, then its imbecility would not become so widely published. The idea that a town profits by license money is very silly but the notion that the law "encourages" people to break it is too delicious for anything. Orangeville is a great place and its Council have great heads.

Y. M. C. A.—At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association last night much business of importance was transacted. The report of the Standing Committee showed the work to be encouraging. The Secretary, Geo. T. Webb, was sorry to say that the people of Guelph did not appear to appreciate the work of the Association and felt called upon to present his resignation, which was accepted after some discussion. Mr. Webb will address the meeting of the Association next Sunday for the last time.

DEATH OF MR. MCINTYRE.—Many people will regret to learn of the death of Mr. McIntyre, school teacher, Guelph Township, which occurred in the General Hospital at noon to-day. It will be remembered that several weeks ago the deceased got his foot and leg terribly crushed in a horse-power which he was mounting for the purpose of speaking to a friend. The doctors decided that it was a case for amputation, but Mr. McIntyre dreading the operation and hoping to save the injured limb stubbornly resisted this course. It had, however, to be resorted to some days after the accident in consequence of mortification. After this the leg festered terribly, and this together with continued diarrhœa exhausted his strength until there were no hopes of his recovery. Mr. McIntyre was greatly liked and respected by all who knew him. He leaves a widow and young family to mourn his untimely end.

CHANCERY SITTINGS.

An Interesting Alimony Case.

HUGGINS VS. LAIR.—Action by the five minor children of Andrew Huggins, of Maryborough, against the executors of the will of their half-sister, Jane Lee, to recover legacies amounting to $2,600; or over $500 each, left to them under the will. The defence was that the Executors had in March 1882, paid this money to one T. G. Fennell, then living in Listowel, who had taken out letters of guardianship to the plaintiffs and their estate in the Surrogate Court at Guelph in December, 1881. Fennell had since absconded and his sureties were worthless. The plaintiffs' contention is that the payment to the guardian was not a proper one, and that the guardian had no right to the money, nor were the executors justified in paying it. It appeared in course of the argument of counsel that no case exactly like the present has heretofore been decided, although counsel for the plaintiff referred to several previous decisions which they claimed supported their contention. The point is a novel and very important one, as it has hitherto not been uncommon for executors to pay legacies due to infants over to their guardian. His Lordship reserved judgment. Mr. Guthrie, Q. C., and Mr. Watt, for plaintiffs; Mr. Bain, Q. C., of Toronto, and Mr. Scranton, of Bradford, for defendants.

KAY VS. KAY.—Mrs. Kay was the first witness. She stated that she was married on the 16th March 1880; that before her marriage she was in very comfortable circumstances and was supported by her brothers. She never saw Kay's place before she was married, and it was about a year afterwards before any difference arose between them; she was always healthy before marriage, and afterwards she did not get enough to eat.

The case was then adjourned until Friday morning, on account of Mrs. Kay, who is sick, and has been confined in the General Hospital, not being able to give further evidence.

April 9th.

KAY VS. KAY.

This was a case brought by Helen Kay, claiming alimony from her husband on the ground of ill treatment, etc. The evidence below will speak for itself:

After being in Kay's house eight or ten days and sleeping on the floor a bed was put up the day before I was taken ill; Dr. Herod called; was sitting near the stove; said I had better be taken to the Hospital or my death would be on Kay; Dr. Herod did not say anything about the house; was taken to the St. Joseph's Hospital the next day; the stoves not being in working order Mr. Kay told me to go to the Victoria Hotel; remained about eight days; this was in January or February; Dr. Herod then told me I had better go to Dundas to my parents; remained till June; was ill there; was attended by Drs. Brandon and Ross; returned to my husband about 18th June; my husband visited me at the hotel and spoke to me very cross; I told him I was going to Dundas and asked him for my clothes; my husband visited me twice in Dundas; was not confined to bed all the time; returned to Guelph and found the house in a very dirty state; remained at the home of my husband till the 19th of July; found my husband and brother in the house; was again sent to the Hospital on the 19th of July by Dr. Howitt; my husband took me to the Hospital; I was worse and Dr. Howitt said I was getting worse and had better go; was visited by the Dr. before I went to the Hospital; Dr. Howitt saw that there was no help for me and I must get out of the house; the cellar of the house was wet and about 400 weight of unwashed wool in the sitting room, slop pails full in the hall, about 50 bushels of rotten potatoes in the cellar; the clothes in my trunk blue moulded, and the whole place smelt of rotten potatoes; when I returned home I told my husband that the place had better be cleaned up as the smell was killing me; he never paid any attention to it, and let it remain; he never supplied me with money, and would not get me any assistance, as he could not; he told me at different times that he and his brother were worth $200,000; he never worked the farm, as he had means enough to live upon; my husband's age would be about 65 years; I was left by my father in 1881 about $4,000 or $5,000; have now about $800; James Geary, of Elora, is suing me for a sum of money; the remainder of the money I have spent on myself and child for clothing and necessities of life; after marriage, on my husband's farm I had to work very hard, cleaning horses, feeding cattle, and also do my house-work; this treatment commenced about a year after marriage; my husband said I must do it or I was a lazy b—h; he told me this several times, and he shook his fist and stamped his foot at me; this continued till I left him; there were 6 or 8 horses, and I had to attend to them and also feed 9 or 12 cattle and from 7 to 140 sheep at the time; had to pump all the water during the summer for the stock; did not work in the field, I told him I could not do it; he also told me I had to help him to shear the sheep, in 1884 about two months before the child was born; was away in 1881 and 1882 with illness off and on; I was not able to move about; I was then under Dr. White's care, of Buffalo; after my return I did not do the work as I used to as I was not able; was fed on pork, etc.; was not allowed to cook eggs and the pork had a bad smell; my husband sold the farm in 1885 and came to live in Guelph; in the winter time my husband and his brother would lie around the house and both order me to do the work; they also kept a large number of cats and I had to cook for them; he threatened me on several occasions by shaking his fist at me and ordered me to clean his boots and his brother's; his brother also threatened me and ordered me to carry the lantern to the stable and used bad language to me; my husband heard his brother use the language; my husband on one occasion came to the hospital—Jane Gordon was present—and asked me to go home, I said I would when he furnished a room with a stove to dry it; he refused to do so; on several occasions he compelled me to cut wood when I was ill; I had to carry it up about 11 steps when I had mustard over my lungs; when I could not do it he said I would ruin any man; I used a portion of my money to purchase provisions for the house as I could not bear the smell of the pork.

Cross-examined—I was living with my mother when I met Mr. Kay; my mother and father had been separated for a good many years; I knew Mr. Kay before I married him; first met Mr. Kay in my mother's house; he looked pretty much the same as he does now; saw him once or twice before he proposed; accepted him on the first proposal; had not seen his place; never made any enquiries about him; Adam Gerrie told me he was a respectable and wealthy man and would provide everything I wanted, and I married him for better or worse; I took him for better, and he promised to be kind to me; I expected him to keep me in food and clothes; I took him at his word; after the marriage we went to his farm; we got on tolerably well for the first two years; he was cruel to me once in two years; I told him if he would not abuse me I would overlook the first occasion; he made me work too hard with the horses and in the house after the first two years; he abused me for having the doctor; I like a horse, I have dealt in horses, was compelled to buy horses: had to buy four before I could please him; had to sell three and bought the fourth from Mr. Guthrie, for which I paid $107; this one pleased him; he would not allow me to use any of his horses; did not feed the cattle so regularly as I did the horses; my husband always compelled me to do this, if I did not he shook his fist at me; I did this so long as I could; he wanted me to sign my money over to him about the end of 1882 or '83; he did not succeed; when he asked me to give him my money I told him if he would assign his right I would do the same; he told me I had to do so, and his brother also said I must; this was proposed on other occasions but I remained firm; the next complaint was that he abused me for having the doctor, as there was no use of my doctoring as I would not get well; on other occasions he abused me for extravagance and waste of provisions in the cooking of meat; he kept the meat plate between him and his brother and would not deal so liberally with me as they did to themselves; my husband and brother measured the bread and meat morning and night, so that none could be used between meals; this occurred for several weeks; I had not my own way about the house; this all happened in 1883; was in Dundas about two months before my baby was born; went to Dundas in June; and was there about four or five weeks in 1883; went there in November 1883; came home four or five weeks after the baby was born; I told him once I would leave him; when I was in Dundas I wrote a number of letters to my husband (a number of letters were produced in which she expressed a wish to get home, and asking all about the farm); his letters to me were not kind; he said if I could not come home I could stay; his letter was very unkind; after my return home they (my husband and his brother) would hardly speak to me; he wanted me to leave the baby and help with the farm work; he said I must wash and that I was lazy; said I had to clean the stables; he shook his fist at me on several occasions, could not say how often; I did not want to go away as my lungs were sore; was willing to stay notwithstanding all that had taken place; this occurred till we came to the new house in Guelph; and we occupied beds on the floor; the bed was put up the day before Dr. Herod came to see me, and was occupied one or two nights; when the doctor saw me he said I had contracted pleurisy, and that I had better be removed to the hospital; was taken there by my husband.

AT the conclusion of Mrs. Kay's evidence the counsel indulged in considerable argument pro and con, and after being summed up by His Lordship the case was dismissed. Coffee, Field & Wissler and J. Bain for plaintiff; Guthrie & Watt, and Chas. MCRS, Q. C., for defendant.

IRISH HOME RULE.

Mr. Gladstone Makes His Statement to Parliament.

HIS ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION.

EXTRACTS FROM THE SPEECH.

LONDON, April 8.—To-day has been the most eventful and the greatest in the English Parliament within the recollection of living man. As early as 6 o'clock in the morning, when the doors of the chamber were opened by the sweepers, members were present ready to secure seats, some of them bearing evidence of not having closed their eyes the whole night. The Parnellites were among the first on hand and secured their seats in a compact mass in front of Mr. Gladstone. Few outsiders had any chance of being spectators of the most memorable scene in the history of the British empire. At 8 o'clock every seat except Ministers', which, of course, are always reserved, had a hat on it. Nearly seven thousand applications for seats in the galleries were made to the Speaker and all but a little more than a bare hundred had to be disappointed, the seating capacity of the speaker's gallery being only fifty-two and of the strangers' sixty-five. One hundred pounds was offered for a seat without a transfer being effected. Members in many instances sat in their chairs and slept through the time until the House was regularly opened, having food and drink brought to them.

When the sun rose and the day became warmer the river terrace was sought by the majority, and here many expedients were resorted to to while away the time. The Parnellites were in a particularly happy frame of mind, acting as, to use the expression of one of them, "they had a sure thing on a day for Ireland."

All day long crowds of people gathered around the gates, and besides indulging in all kinds of horse-play cheered or hooted members as their fancy pleased them. In the afternoon the jam was simply tremendous, the multitude covering all the space down to Westminster bridge, and extending pretty well up Parliament street towards Whitehall. In addition an immense throng of people filled Downing street, where Mr Gladstone's official residence is situated. This crowd was patiently waiting for the Premier to make his departure for the House of Commons.

Catholic priests were conspicuously numerous in the crowd, and no less than 35 branches of the London organization of the Irish National League were represented by full deputations, whose identity was easily established even at a distance by their regalias. Political clubs beyond number were also present to take part in the popular demonstration. At 4 o'clock deputations from 32 Liberal clubs had been counted in the throng.

MR. GLADSTONE'S RECEPTION.

Mr. Gladstone spent the whole morning at his official residence, reading the papers of the day, answering telegrams, and writing or dictating a few letters. Not a soul was allowed to see him beyond his immediate subordinates and John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, for whom he sent and held a close conference of an hour with. After lunch and before going to the House he took a drive through St. James park, going away from and avoiding the crowd. He desired to be a while in the fresh air before going to Parliament. He returned to his residence, and in a few minutes emerged on his way to the Commons. The police had cleared a way for him to Parliament street, and down that across Bridge street to the House. They had to work hard to keep it open. Mr. Gladstone went in an open carriage, and his appearance was greeted with deafening cheers. The enthusiasm of the people all the way to the Commons entrance was spontaneous and thrilling. It vented itself at the begining of the journey in a roar of applause, hearty and great enough to make the great statesman dizzy, and when the whole immense multitude caught the signal one tremendous long sustained cheer was sent up, the like of which was never before heard in London, and which was plainly audible in the House. The cheering continued until long after Mr. Gladstone had entered the Parliament buildings.

Precisely at 4 o'clock the Right Hon. Arthur Wellesley Peel, Speaker of the House, took the chair. The chamber at the time was packed to the very extreme limit of its capacity, and every doorway showed the hallways crammed with people, all craning to see and hear. Half an hour later Mr. Gladstone entered. He was greeted with loud and prolonged cheering, which continued for several minutes. Among the Liberals and Parnellites the wildest enthusiasm prevailed, and it is safe to say that the scene was ever witnessed within the house of Commons. The venerable Premier was evidently touched, but he strove to maintain his calmness and succeeded admirably. Quietly and with surpassing dignity and gentleness of manner he greeted his immediate friends and then sat down, apparently the only unmoved man amid all the tumult. His face was inscrutable, but even his bitterest opponents were forced to acknowledge that at no time has he more impressively appeared the "Grand Old Man." It was a picture which will linger to the end in the memory of the beholder.

THE SPEECH.

When the cheering had subsided Mr. Gladstone rose and moved for permission to introduce a bill to amend the previous legislation, and to make provision for the future Government of Ireland. His manner was as calm and as unhesitating as if he were making the most ordinary motion of his life. At first his voice was somewhat husky, but speedily became as clear, fresh and strong as at any time in the last ten years. All was hushed as in making his motion Mr. Gladstone said the time had arrived when both honor and duty required Parliament to come to a decisive resolution. He said: "I could wish that it had been possible to expound to the House the whole policy and intentions of the Government with reference to Ireland. Although the questions of reform in the tenure of land and Irish government are so closely and inseparably connected it is yet impossible to undertake the task of elucidating both ques-

Curling.

The last game of the season in Hamilton for the Caledonian Curling Club was played on Monday at the covered rink between No. 1 and 2 rinks. Great was the sport. It was contested with true curler's spirit. The conquerors were to strip the losers of their brooms at the finish. To strip a curler of his broom is like stripping a lawyer of his gown, so No. 2 took possession of No. 1's brooms with a grand hurrah, with a majority of three shots.

THE New Davis Sewing Machine is a mechanical wonder. No cogs, cams, cranks, horizontal feed bar or feed teeth to rattle and tear and draw, full pucker and otherwise mar the work. All such old fogy contrivances are cast aside as worse than useless in this perfect machine. Call and see it at J. C. McLean's music store and be convinced. d3 w1

THERE is never a snowstorm but that grandfather or grandmother remembers a worse one way back in the fabulous times of 30, 40 or 60 years ago.

WATERLOO Chronicle:—The Provincial Fat Stock Show was offered to Guelph for $5,000, but the city did not want it at the money. So the poor thing is going a begging for accommodation and $500. Who will take it up?

A STRANGE STORY.—After Mr. Heckerdorn, who lives near Waterloo Town, had retired Monday night, an alarm was made at his door. On the question being asked "Who is there?" the answer came, "Give us out that $200, or we'll blow your brains out." Mr. H. retired at the back door to arouse some neighbors, and on their return found the house ransacked but no money taken. A few days previously Mr. H. received an anonymous letter, telling him to keep on hand $200. The affair should be placed in the hands of a good detective.

BITTEN BY A DOG.—Edward, a young son of Mr. John Coulson, living in the East Ward, was rather severley bitten by a dog belonging to ex-Ald. Stull last evening. The lad was crossing a field near by Mr. Stull's premises when the dog made a run at the lad and bit him on the thigh of the right leg leaving a nasty scar. Dr. McPhatter was called in and dressed the wound.

J. C. MCLEAN has just secured the agency for the famous Davis Vertical Feed Sewing Machine. This machine scored a triumphant success last fall at the Antwerp and Paris Exposition, where it carried off the diploma of honor against all competitors. All interested in sewing machines should call and inspect the Davis before purchasing any other. d3w1

W. C. T. U.—At the regular meeting on Wednesday last arrangements were made for holding three or four rousing Temperance meetings, during the next few weeks. Noted speakers have been communicated with whose names are enough to insure success. Rev. C. H. Mead, of Hornellsville, N. Y., and three other gentlemen who form the Silver Lake Male Quartette, have been engaged for the first of these meetings, on Friday April 16, when the proceedings will no doubt be of a first class order. In compliance with a request from the Provincial W.C.T.U. it was decided to hold a Memorial Service in reference to the death of the late John B. Gough, on next Sabbath afternoon, in Paisley St. Methodist church.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The attendance at the rink continues to increase, and if the large gathering last night can be taken as a criterion there is every prospect of a continuance. The ladies were present in large numbers and a very enjoyable time was spent. The polo match resulted in favor of the City band, who, after long and hard playing, secured a goal, which advantage the Guelphs' could not overcome, and when time was called the game was declared in favor of the Royal City Band, one goal to nothing. The City band discoursed music. To-morrow night the city band will be present, when there will be a two-mile-race for boys under 16 years of age. See advertisement.

MR. W. D. SHATTUCK, of the Western hotel, received yesterday a telephone message from Stratford, stating that W. Rehill, seedsman, Seaforth, had died suddenly and was buried.

KNOX COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS.—At the closing examinations of Knox College, Toronto, to which reference was made in these columns yesterday, the scholarship for systematic theology, given to students of the graduating class by Mr. J. B. Armstrong, of this place, was divided between Messrs. C. A. Webster, B. A., and J. B. Tolmie, B. A., as they were considered of equal merit on that subject.

THE SCOTT ACT IN ORANGEVILLE.—This is a hard rap from the Waterloo Chronicle:—Orangeville Town Council has passed a resolution condemning the Scott Act because it is a monetary loss to the town and encourages the people to become law breakers. When Orangeville Council next feels moved to "resolute," it should adjourn instead, then its imbecility would not become so widely published. The idea that a town profits by license money is very silly but the notion that the law "encourages" people to break it is too delicious for anything. Orangeville is a great place and its Council have great heads.

Y. M. C. A.—At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association last night much business of importance was transacted. The report of the Standing Committee showed the work to be encouraging. The Secretary, Geo. T. Webb, was sorry to say that the people of Guelph did not appear to appreciate the work of the Association and felt called upon to present his resignation, which was accepted after some discussion. Mr. Webb will address the meeting of the Association next Sunday for the last time.

DEATH OF MR. MCINTYRE.—Many people will regret to learn of the death of Mr. McIntyre, school teacher, Guelph Township, which occurred in the General Hospital at noon to-day. It will be remembered that several weeks ago the deceased got his foot and leg terribly crushed in a horse-power which he was mounting for the purpose of speaking to a friend. The doctors decided that it was a case for amputation, but Mr. McIntyre dreading the operation and hoping to save the injured limb stubbornly resisted this course. It had, however, to be resorted to some days after the accident in consequence of mortification. After this the leg festered terribly, and this together with continued diarrhœa exhausted his strength until there were no hopes of his recovery. Mr. McIntyre was greatly liked and respected by all who knew him. He leaves a widow and young family to mourn his untimely end.

CHANCERY SITTINGS.

An Interesting Alimony Case.

HUGGINS VS. LAIR.—Action by the five minor children of Andrew Huggins, of Maryborough, against the executors of the will of their half-sister, Jane Lee, to recover legacies amounting to $2,600; or over $500 each, left to them under the will. The defence was that the Executors had in March 1882, paid this money to one T. G. Fennell, then living in Listowel, who had taken out letters of guardianship to the plaintiffs and their estate in the Surrogate Court at Guelph in December, 1881. Fennell had since absconded and his sureties were worthless. The plaintiffs' contention is that the payment to the guardian was not a proper one, and that the guardian had no right to the money, nor were the executors justified in paying it. It appeared in course of the argument of counsel that no case exactly like the present has heretofore been decided, although counsel for the plaintiff referred to several previous decisions which they claimed supported their contention. The point is a novel and very important one, as it has hitherto not been uncommon for executors to pay legacies due to infants over to their guardian. His Lordship reserved judgment. Mr. Guthrie, Q. C., and Mr. Watt, for plaintiffs; Mr. Bain, Q. C., of Toronto, and Mr. Scranton, of Bradford, for defendants.

KAY VS. KAY.—Mrs. Kay was the first witness. She stated that she was married on the 16th March 1880; that before her marriage she was in very comfortable circumstances and was supported by her brothers. She never saw Kay's place before she was married, and it was about a year afterwards before any difference arose between them; she was always healthy before marriage, and afterwards she did not get enough to eat.

The case was then adjourned until Friday morning, on account of Mrs. Kay, who is sick, and has been confined in the General Hospital, not being able to give further evidence.

April 9th.

KAY VS. KAY.

This was a case brought by Helen Kay, claiming alimony from her husband on the ground of ill treatment, etc. The evidence below will speak for itself:

After being in Kay's house eight or ten days and sleeping on the floor a bed was put up the day before I was taken ill; Dr. Herod called; was sitting near the stove; said I had better be taken to the Hospital or my death would be on Kay; Dr. Herod did not say anything about the house; was taken to the St. Joseph's Hospital the next day; the stoves not being in working order Mr. Kay told me to go to the Victoria Hotel; remained about eight days; this was in January or February; Dr. Herod then told me I had better go to Dundas to my parents; remained till June; was ill there; was attended by Drs. Brandon and Ross; returned to my husband about 18th June; my husband visited me at the hotel and spoke to me very cross; I told him I was going to Dundas and asked him for my clothes; my husband visited me twice in Dundas; was not confined to bed all the time; returned to Guelph and found the house in a very dirty state; remained at the home of my husband till the 19th of July; found my husband and brother in the house; was again sent to the Hospital on the 19th of July by Dr. Howitt; my husband took me to the Hospital; I was worse and Dr. Howitt said I was getting worse and had better go; was visited by the Dr. before I went to the Hospital; Dr. Howitt saw that there was no help for me and I must get out of the house; the cellar of the house was wet and about 400 weight of unwashed wool in the sitting room, slop pails full in the hall, about 50 bushels of rotten potatoes in the cellar; the clothes in my trunk blue moulded, and the whole place smelt of rotten potatoes; when I returned home I told my husband that the place had better be cleaned up as the smell was killing me; he never paid any attention to it, and let it remain; he never supplied me with money, and would not get me any assistance, as he could not; he told me at different times that he and his brother were worth $200,000; he never worked the farm, as he had means enough to live upon; my husband's age would be about 65 years; I was left by my father in 1881 about $4,000 or $5,000; have now about $800; James Geary, of Elora, is suing me for a sum of money; the remainder of the money I have spent on myself and child for clothing and necessities of life; after marriage, on my husband's farm I had to work very hard, cleaning horses, feeding cattle, and also do my house-work; this treatment commenced about a year after marriage; my husband said I must do it or I was a lazy b—h; he told me this several times, and he shook his fist and stamped his foot at me; this continued till I left him; there were 6 or 8 horses, and I had to attend to them and also feed 9 or 12 cattle and from 7 to 140 sheep at the time; had to pump all the water during the summer for the stock; did not work in the field, I told him I could not do it; he also told me I had to help him to shear the sheep, in 1884 about two months before the child was born; was away in 1881 and 1882 with illness off and on; I was not able to move about; I was then under Dr. White's care, of Buffalo; after my return I did not do the work as I used to as I was not able; was fed on pork, etc.; was not allowed to cook eggs and the pork had a bad smell; my husband sold the farm in 1885 and came to live in Guelph; in the winter time my husband and his brother would lie around the house and both order me to do the work; they also kept a large number of cats and I had to cook for them; he threatened me on several occasions by shaking his fist at me and ordered me to clean his boots and his brother's; his brother also threatened me and ordered me to carry the lantern to the stable and used bad language to me; my husband heard his brother use the language; my husband on one occasion came to the hospital—Jane Gordon was present—and asked me to go home, I said I would when he furnished a room with a stove to dry it; he refused to do so; on several occasions he compelled me to cut wood when I was ill; I had to carry it up about 11 steps when I had mustard over my lungs; when I could not do it he said I would ruin any man; I used a portion of my money to purchase provisions for the house as I could not bear the smell of the pork.

Cross-examined—I was living with my mother when I met Mr. Kay; my mother and father had been separated for a good many years; I knew Mr. Kay before I married him; first met Mr. Kay in my mother's house; he looked pretty much the same as he does now; saw him once or twice before he proposed; accepted him on the first proposal; had not seen his place; never made any enquiries about him; Adam Gerrie told me he was a respectable and wealthy man and would provide everything I wanted, and I married him for better or worse; I took him for better, and he promised to be kind to me; I expected him to keep me in food and clothes; I took him at his word; after the marriage we went to his farm; we got on tolerably well for the first two years; he was cruel to me once in two years; I told him if he would not abuse me I would overlook the first occasion; he made me work too hard with the horses and in the house after the first two years; he abused me for having the doctor; I like a horse, I have dealt in horses, was compelled to buy horses: had to buy four before I could please him; had to sell three and bought the fourth from Mr. Guthrie, for which I paid $107; this one pleased him; he would not allow me to use any of his horses; did not feed the cattle so regularly as I did the horses; my husband always compelled me to do this, if I did not he shook his fist at me; I did this so long as I could; he wanted me to sign my money over to him about the end of 1882 or '83; he did not succeed; when he asked me to give him my money I told him if he would assign his right I would do the same; he told me I had to do so, and his brother also said I must; this was proposed on other occasions, but I remained firm; the next complaint was that he abused me for having the doctor, as there was no use of my doctoring as I would not get well; on other occasions he abused me for extravagance and waste of provisions in the cooking of meat; he kept the meat plate between him and his brother and would not deal so liberally with me as they did to themselves; my husband and brother measured the bread and meat morning and night, so that none could be used between meals; this occurred for several weeks; I had not my own way about the house; this all happened in 1883; was in Dundas about two months before my baby was born; went to Dundas in June; and was there about four or five weeks in 1883; went there in November 1883; came home four or five weeks after the baby was born; I told him once I would leave him; when I was in Dundas I wrote a number of letters to my husband (a number of letters were produced in which she expressed a wish to get home, and asking all about the farm); his letters to me were not kind; he said if I could not come home I could stay; his letter was very unkind; after my return home they (my husband and his brother) would hardly speak to me; he wanted me to leave the baby and help with the farm work; he said I must wash and that I was lazy; said I had to clean the stables; he shook his fist at me on several occasions, could not say how often; I did not want to go away as my lungs were sore; was willing to stay notwithstanding all that had taken place; this occurred till we came to the new house in Guelph; and we occupied beds on the floor; the bed was put up the day before Dr. Herod came to see me, and was occupied one or two nights; when the doctor saw me he said I had contracted pleurisy, and that I had better be removed to the hospital; was taken there by my husband.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Kay's evidence the counsel indulged in considerable argument pro and con, and after being summed up by His Lordship the case was dismissed. Coffee, Field & Wissler and J. Bain for plaintiff; Guthrie & Watt, and Chas. Mcs, Q. C., for defendant.

IRISH HOME RULE.

Mr. Gladstone Makes His Statement to Parliament.

HIS ENTHUSIASTIC RECEPTION.

EXTRACTS FROM THE SPEECH.

LONDON, April 8.—To-day has been the most eventful and the greatest in the English Parliament within the recollection of living man. As early as 6 o'clock in the morning, when the doors of the chamber were opened by the sweepers, members were present ready to secure seats, some of them bearing evidence of not having closed their eyes the whole night. The Parnellites were among the first on hand and secured their seats in a compact mass in front of Mr. Gladstone. Few outsiders had any chance of being spectators of the most memorable scene in the history of the British empire. At 8 o'clock every seat except Ministers', which, of course, are always reserved, had a hat on it. Nearly seven thousand applications for seats in the galleries were made to the Speaker and all but a little more than a bare hundred had to be disappointed, the seating capacity of the Speaker's gallery being only fifty-two and of the strangers' sixty-five. One hundred pounds was offered for a seat without a transfer being effected. Members in many instances sat in their chairs and slept through the time until the House was regularly opened, having food and drink brought to them.

When the sun rose and the day became warmer the river terrace was sought by the majority, and here many expedients were resorted to to while away the time. The Parnellites were in a particularly happy frame of mind, acting as, to use the expression of one of them, "they had a sure thing on a day for Ireland."

All day long crowds of people gathered around the gates, and besides indulging in all kinds of horse-play cheered or hooted members as their fancy pleased them. In the afternoon the jam was simply tremendous, the multitude covering all the space down to Westminster bridge, and extending pretty well up Parliament street towards Whitehall. In addition an immense throng of people filled Downing street, where Mr Gladstone's official residence is situated. This crowd was patiently waiting for the Premier to make his departure for the House of Commons.

Catholic priests were conspicuously numerous in the crowd, and no less than 35 branches of the London organization of the Irish National League were represented by full deputations, whose identity was easily established even at a distance by their regalias. Political clubs beyond number were also present to take part in the popular demonstration. At 4 o'clock deputations from 32 Liberal clubs had been counted in the throng.

MR. GLADSTONE'S RECEPTION.

Mr. Gladstone spent the whole morning at his official residence, reading the papers of the day, answering telegrams, and writing or dictating a few letters. Not a soul was allowed to see him beyond his immediate subordinates and John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, for whom he sent and held a close conference of an hour with. After lunch and before going to the House he took a drive through St. James park, going away from and avoiding the crowd. He desired to be a while in the fresh air before going to Parliament. He returned to his residence, and in a few minutes emerged on his way to the Commons. The police had cleared a way for him to Parliament street, and down that across Bridge street to the House. They had to work hard to keep it open. Mr. Gladstone went in an open carriage, and his appearance was greeted with deafening cheers. The enthusiasm of the people all the way to the Commons entrance was spontaneous and thrilling. It vented itself at the begining of the journey in a roar of applause, hearty and great enough to make the great statesman dizzy, and when the whole immense multitude caught the signal one tremendous long sustained cheer was sent up, the like of which was never before heard in London, and which was plainly audible in the House. The cheering continued until long after Mr. Gladstone had entered the Parliament buildings.

Precisely at 4 o'clock the Right Hon. Arthur Wellesley Peel, Speaker of the House, took the chair. The chamber at the time was packed to the very extreme limit of its capacity, and every corner was showed the hallways crammed with people, all craning to see and hear. Half an hour later Mr. Gladstone entered. He was greeted with long and prolonged cheering, which continued for several minutes. Among the Liberals and Parnellites the wildest enthusiasm prevailed, and it is safe to say that no such scene was ever witnessed before in the House of Commons. The venerable Premier was evidently touched, but he strove to maintain his calmness and succeeded admirably. Quietly and with surpassing dignity and gentleness of manner he greeted his immediate friends and then sat down, apparently the only unmoved man amid all the tumult. His face was inscrutable, but even his bitterest opponents were forced to acknowledge that at no time has he more impressively appeared the "Grand Old Man." It was a picture which will linger to the end in the memory of the beholder.

THE SPEECH.

When the cheering had subsided Mr. Gladstone rose and moved for permission to introduce a bill to amend the previous legislation, and to make provision for the future Government of Ireland. His manner was as calm and as unhesitating as if he were making the most ordinary motion of his life. At first his voice was somewhat husky, but speedily became as clear, fresh and strong as at any time in the last ten years. All was hushed as in making his motion Mr. Gladstone said the time had arrived when both honor and duty required Parliament to come to a decisive resolution. He said: "I could wish that it had been possible to expound to the House the whole policy and intentions of the Government with reference to Ireland. Although the questions of reform in the tenure of land and Irish government are so closely and inseparably connected it is yet impossible to undertake the task of elucidating both ques-

Still Refusing to Bring Down the Papers.

Mr. Blake made one more effort to force the Government to bring down all the papers yet in their possession relating to affairs in the North-west, which would tend to throw any light on the situation before, during, and after the rebellion. Now that the House has pronounced on the action of the Government regarding Riel's execution, one would think that they would be disposed to accede to this reasonable request of the leader of the opposition. Not so, however, for they still stoutly maintain that they have brought down all the papers that could throw any light on the rebellion, except those which in the public interest it is not deemed advisable to bring down. Judging from the way they have acted in this matter from the first, they cannot make the public believe any such statement. It has been like drawing teeth to get the papers which are already in the hands of members, and the production of these was so timed as to suit the views of the Government and after a discussion had taken place on which these papers might have thrown some light. There can be little doubt that the Government is in possession of all the facts and all the documents connected with the rebellion and the causes that led to it. But they well know that they are of a most damaging character to them, and that their publication would throw such a flood of light on their neglect, incapacity and delay as would seal their doom. No other reason can be given or imagined why the production of these papers is refused. They would tell such a tale as would clearly bring guilt home to the Government, and the refusal to produce them is itself a confession of guilt on the part of its members. In fact, it proves that they would be ready to adopt any course which would tend to shield them from public condemnation, and that they would not scruple to stoop to do what the Hon. Mr. McDougall once charged them with when he said ;—"I know that you (the Premier) and the majority of your colleagues would not hesitate to garble or suppress important State papers even when demanded by Parliament, if their production was likely to expose or embarrass the Government.

Mr. Blake read a long list of papers which he knew from previous discussions and other sources of information were still in possession of the Government and had not been brought down. Besides, it had been admitted by the Premier that there were a number of unofficial letters addressed to individual members of the Government, which he promised would be collated and brought down at the beginning of this session. But so far these have not yet made their appearance, as it was found no doubt when examined that they would tend to implicate the Government and strengthen the charges made by the Opposition. They tried to break the attack by putting up Mr. Hall, one of their supporters, to move that the House had confidence in the Government, in the way in which they were bringing the papers down, and to accept the assurance that all the papers which could be properly produced would be brought down when asked for or required. This of course left the whole matter in the hands of the Government as before, and no doubt they were consoling themselves that it would all be settled by a straight vote on Mr. Hall's amendment. But Mr. Cameron, of Huron, staggered them by moving an amendment to Mr. Hall's amendment, declaring that Mr. Blake can prove that such documents are in the hands of the Government as would show that they are guilty of mismanaging Northwest affairs, and asking that a select committee be appointed to enquire into the allegations, with powers to send for papers, persons, and records, and to examine witnesses on oath. This challenge was not accepted, but was voted down and the Government amendment carried, the majority however being only 48. The effect will be that the Government will bring down just such papers as they please, and which will be sure not to criminate them in any way. They hold the evidence of their guilt in their own hands, and knowing that, they and their followers refuse to let it see the light.

THERE was lately published in the London Times the statistics of the consumption of intoxicating liquors in Great Britain for the year 1885. These are taken from official returns. The value of the whole is given at £123,268,760. These figures show a reduction on every kind of intoxicating liquor in 1885, as compared with 1884; on home-made spirits of £1,385,239, on foreign and colonial spirits of £180,744, on beer of £1,310,323, and on wine of £204,190—a total reduction of £3,080,496, or about 2.5 per cent. A table is also given of the expenditure in every year since 1860, when it was £85,276,870. The highest figure ever reached was £147,288,759 in 1876; since then there has been an almost constant decrease. The compiler in speaking of the course of this steady diminution attributes it to the depression in trade rather than to the growth of temperance and thrift in the country. The total amount spent in 1885 is equal to four pounds two shillings per head, or twenty pounds ten shillings per family. It is equal to the nation's expenditure for bread, butter and cheese, is not much less than the rents paid for farms and houses, is three times the amount spent for tea, sugar, coffee and cocoa, and six times the sum expended on linen and cotton goods.

THE investigation into the Beaty-Woodworth scandal by the Parliamentary Railway Committee has been adjourned to the 21st inst.

THE Government have issued secret instructions to captains of vessels and other officers charged with the protection of our fisheries under the Treaty of 1818.

IT is understood that the Dominion Government intend to recommend that a pension of $400 a year be granted to Mrs. Delaney, the widow of the farm instructor who was killed by the Indians at the Frog Lake massacre last year.

A TENDENCY

Of The Times.

Friday April 2nd, 1886.

We say "a tendency," as we do not now imply that our remarks refer to the leading tendency of the times, but "a Tendency of the Times" is to pass the spurious for the real, to represent the counterfeit as the genuine. Hence, Shoddy is made to appear like Wool, Jute looks like Silk, Cotton is manipulated and sold for Linen. This is not alone the rule in Dry Goods, but in every other branch of manufacture. We confine ourselves however to the discussion of Dry Goods.

One reason for this is the continual pressure on the manufacturer to produce APPEARANCE and CHEAPNESS, which is done at the sacrifice of QUALITY. Something is wanted that catches the eye. Lines of goods are specially sought for to produce the impression of cheapness. Certain people in business are continually on the look-out for that kind of stuff. Of course it is no benefit to the purchaser, he thinks he buys wool and gets shoddy, he imagines he buys silk and has jute, he pays for the real and gets the spurious. It is no benefit to the dealer, his tether is not a very long one, he is soon found out and hardly gets the chance to gull the same victim a second time. Look about you and see who are the solid and successful manufacturers and merchants of our land. The men who produce honest goods, the men who sell honest goods. They come out all right in the long run. They merit the public confidence and they get it, while the apostles of deceit are wiped off the scene almost as fast as the polish off their goods. They have to get out of business every few years. They shine for a while but their light soon dims.

For our own part, we shall steadily adhere to the principle of "Honest Goods at Fair Prices." We have reason to know this plan works to the satisfaction of our customers as well as ourselves.

CHAPTER XXII.

A GATHERING STORM.

It was at the time of a visit of the Czar of Russia to various towns in his dominions, and Mr. Longworthy and the doctor were speaking of the precautions which were taken for his safety, the thousands of extra police who were enrolled, and the terror which pervaded every grade of society. Mr. Longworthy expressed a certain sympathy with the Nihilists. Dr. Holme was strongly opposed to all their works and ways. The discussion had grown tolerably animated, when the doctor seeing Helen sit with her eyes fixed upon the Rector's face, broke off to ask—

"On which side do you throw the weight of your sympathy, Mrs. Moore?"

"I agree with Mr. Longworthy."

"I beg your pardon. I really need not have troubled you with such a question. I might have been sure with whom you would agree. You would not support my views on principle. "Is it not so?"

"To me," she said, "it all seems to depend on the question whether it is more fitting that millions should stand in fear of one man or one man in fear of millions."

He looked at her in some astonishment; he had not expected such an answer from her.

"And you think ?" he asked, after a pause.

"Hardly the former."

"Well, of course," he began, rolling little pallets of bread between his fingers as he spoke; "put in that way your view looks plausible, but I must confess I never heard it put in that way before."

"I congratulate you, Helen," put in the Rector, turning to her in his courtly way; "you have given this darkened individual his death blow. I have known him longer than you have, and I know from frequent experience (here his eyes twinkled) the signs of defeat. No, no," putting out his hand towards her as he saw she was going to speak again. "Do not say another word, you will spoil your victory, he would twist what you said into the most unnatural shape to suit his own ends. Mabel," looking at his wife, "be good enough to let us go, or Helen will be beaten after all."

Mrs. Longworthy rose, and she and Helen went back to the drawing-room; the Rector detained the doctor a minute, ostensibly to talk over a case in the village, in reality, to keep him for a few moments from Helen.

When later, they were all together again, the conversation turned on quite a different subject.

"Winter will soon be here now," said Mrs Longworthy, as she put her feet on the fender and let Helen put a little wrap of white Shetland wool round her shoulders. "You must let me have your list doctor; there are always so many families wanting relief."

The doctor noticed that at Mrs. Longworthy's first words, the rector and Helen had exchanged glances. His was one of those looks which seems to carry strength in them, hers had an expression of nervousness and anxiety. He wondered what was the meaning of it, but replied to Mrs Longworthy.

"I wonder sometimes when I have nothing else to do, and an unusual number of families wanting relief have come under my notice, what will be the fate of this village, when you, the rector, and myself are all dead. The people have been regularly and systematically spoiled for twenty years. I am glad I shall not be present when they are rudely wakened from their dream of ease and plenty."

"Well," said the rector, "I don't know. I sincerely hope you will outlive both Mabel and myself; in which case you will probably witness the installation of my successor."

"With a large family of children to increase my practice," said the doctor, with his most unamiable smile.

"Well, well, poor man," said Mr. Longworthy, cheerfully, "his life at first, at anyrate, will not be easy. As a stranger he will be looked upon with distrust and aversion, and unless he very quickly falls into the way of his flock, I fear contempt will be among the emotions he will excite. Then again, he will be in the position of a lady's second husband, he will be deafened, probably maddened, by hearing the praises of his predecessor. I sincerely pity him, and I shall trust to you, doctor, to take him by the hand and put him in the right way. Why do you smile, Helen?" he concluded, turning to her.

"I was thinking that you could not have entrusted the unfortunate man—his position as described by you, presents a most depressing picture—into worse hands. I cannot imagine Dr. Holme leading anyone by the hand. I can fancy him pushing a person forcibly along before him, but I should not suppose he had any talent for leading."

"So many people refuse to be led," said the doctor, "for their own sake they must be pushed; and after all it is the easiest way. A good strong push and the obstacle must move, and one is free to push again. To stumble along with a dead weight dragging at one's hand can be neither pleasurable nor profitable."

"Then you consider anything given into your charge as an obstacle and a hindrance to your free progress?" she asked.

"If a man wishes to get on he must, in your opinion, be alone?"

"He will get on faster if he be alone."

"In that case you would not advocate marriage for a man who has his way to make."

"Most decidedly not."

"You consider marriage a luxury for those whose position is made."

"I did not say that I considered it a luxury under any circumstances. In most cases I imagine it to be the very reverse."

"You really think that if a man is married his wife will be a burden to him?"

"If he has his way to make, most certainly. Anxiety for the comfort and happiness of his wife and children must often rob him of his nerve, and cause failure where he would have been successful had he stood alone."

"I do not agree with you at all."

"I'd not for a moment expect that you would," was his answer, and no one noticed the bitterness with which he spoke.

"For my own part," she said, "I can imagine nothing more helpful to a man than the knowledge that there is a woman who takes an interest in every one of his concerns, and whose sympathy and help are always at his service. I think to feel that must cheer and strengthen any man."

She spoke almost passionately, with a vivid recollection of her own married life. Perhaps the picture she drew touched Dr. Holme more than he cared to show. His answer was ungracious both in tone and words.

"No doubt; but then you see you are a woman; naturally you see things in the most favourable light for your own sex."

He could have stamped with vexation as soon as he had said the words. Helen made no reply. Her lips curled, and he noticed a little involuntary straightening of her figure, but she only unfolded the work lying in her lap and began to sew.

There was so great an intimacy between the doctor and the Longworthys that all "company manners" were laid aside when they met. Neither the rector nor his wife thought it necessary to abandon the usual employments of the day because the doctor had come in. So, now, soon after Helen and Dr. Holme had begun to talk, Mr. Longworthy had left the room and gone to his study, and Mrs.

tious together. I do not know of any previous task laid upon me involving so diversified an exposition. In contemplating the magnitude of the task I am filled with painful mistrust, but that mistrust is absorbed in a feeling of the responsibility that will be upon me if I should fail to bring home to the public mind the magnitude and the various aspects of the question. We should no longer fence or skirmish with this question. (Loud cheers). We should come to close quarters with it. (Cheers). We should get at the root of it. We should take means not merely intended for the wants of to-day or to-morrow, but should look into the distant future. We have arrived at a stage in our political transactions with Ireland when the two roads part one from the other, not soon probably to meet again. The time is come when it is incumbent on the duty and the honor of Parliament to come to some decisive resolution on this matter. Our intention is, therefore, to propose to the Commons that which, if happily accepted, will, we think, liberate Parliament from the restraints under which of late years it has ineffectually struggled to perferm the business of the country, and will restore British legislation to its natural, ancient, unimpeded course, and, above all, establish harmonious relations between Great Britain and Ireland—(hear, hear)—on a footing of those free institutions to which Englishmen, Scotchmen and Irishmen alike are unalterably attached." (Loud cheers, prolonged by the Home Rule members.)

COERCION A FAILURE.

After reviewing the condition and crime existing in Ireland since 1883, Mr. Gladstone described the coercive legislation enforced during the same period as not exceptional but habitual. He compared Ireland during all this period to a man trying to find sustenance in medicine only meant for a cure. Coercion, however, had, he said, proved no cure. Serious dissatisfaction continued to prevail in Ireland, and if England and Scotland had suffered similar hardships, he believed the people of those countries would resort to means similar to those the Irish had used to ventilate their grievances. (Parnellite cheers.) Coercion was admitted to have been a failure for the the past fifty-three years, only two of which had been wholly free from repressive legislation. Coercion, unless stern and unbending and under an autocratic government, must always fail. Such coercion England should never resort to until every other means had failed.

THE ALTERNATIVE TO COERCION.

The basis of the whole mischief was the fact that the law was discredited in Ireland. It came to the Irish people with a foreign aspect, and their alternative to coercion was to strip the law of its foreign character and invest it with a domestic character. (Loud Irish cheers). Ireland, though represented in Parliament numerically equal with England or Scotland, was really not in the same position politically. England made her own laws. Scotland had been encouraged to make her own laws as effectually as if she had six times her present representation. The consequence was that the mainspring of the law in England and Scotland was felt to be the English or Scotch. The mainspring of the law in Ireland was not felt by the people of Ireland, was not felt to be the Irish. He, therefore, deemed it little less than mockery to hold that the state of the law, which he had described, conduced to the real unity of this great, noble, world-wide empire. "Something must be done," continued Mr. Gladstone, "something is imperatively demanded from us to restore in Ireland the first conditions of civil life—the free course of the law, the liberty of every individual in the exercise of every legal right, their confidence in the law and their sympathy with the law, apart from which no country can be called a civilized country." What then was the problem before him? It was this—how to reconcile imperial unity with diversity of legislatures. Mr. Grattan held that these purposes were reconciliable. More than that, he demanded a severance of the Parliaments with a view to the continuity and everlasting unity of the empire. Was that an audacious paradox? Other countries had solved the problem, and under much more difficult circumstances. "We ourselves might" he said, "have solved it with respect to Ireland during the time that Ireland had a separate Parliament. Did it destroy the unity of the British empire?" (Cheers).

EXAMPLES THAT GOVERN.

Mr. Gladstone then pointed to the case of Norway and Sweden, which countries were, he said, united on a footing of strict legislative independence and co-equality. Then, there was, he added, the case of Austria and Hungary. And with regard to those countries, he asked, whether the condition of Austria at the present moment was not more perfectly solid, secure and harmonious than it was prior to the existing condition between that country and Hungary. It could not be questioned that its condition was one of solidity and safety compared with that of the time when Hungary was making war upon her. The claim of Ireland to make laws for herself was never denied, continued Mr. Gladstone, until the reign of George II. The parliament of Grattan was as independent in point of authority as it could be.

WHAT THE UNION MEANS.

They (the Government) were not about to propose the repeal of the union. It was impossible to propose the repeal of the union until they had settled what was the sense of the union. He defined the essence of the union to be the fact, that, whereas before the union, there were two separate and independent parliaments, after the union there was but one. To speak of the dismemberment of the empire was in this century a misnomer and an absurdity. The fault of the administrative system of Ireland was that its spring and source of action was English. [Cheers.] The Government, therefore, felt that the settlement of the question was to be found by establishing a parliament in Dublin—[Irish cheers]—for the conduct of business, of both a legislative and an administrative nature. The political economy of the three countries must be reconciled. There should be an equitable distribution of imperial burdens. Next there must be reasonable safeguards for the minority and why could not this minority in Ireland take care of itself? He had no doubt about its ability to do that, when we have passed through the present critical period and been disarmed of the jealousies with which any change was approached. But for the present there were three classes of people whom they were bound to consider. First, the class connected with the land; secondly, the civil servants and officers of the Government in Ireland; thirdly, the Protestant minority.

THE CLAIMS OF ULSTER.

The speaker could not admit the claim of the Protestant minority in Ulster, or elsewhere, to rule on questions which were for the whole of Ireland. Several schemes for the separate government of Ulster had been submitted to him. One was that Ulster province should be excluded from the operations of the present bill. Another was that separate autonomy should be provided for Ulster, and a third suggested that certain rights should be reserved and placed under provincial councils. No one of these proposals had appeared to the Government to be so completely justified by its merits, or by the weight of public opinion in its favor, as to warrant the Government in including it in their bill. However, they deserved fair consideration and the free discussion that would follow the introduction of the present bill might lead to the discovery of one plan which had a predominating amount of support, and the Government would do their utmost to adopt the plan that seemed the most likely to give general satisfaction.

NO REPRESENTATION AT WESTMINSTER.

The speaker said he would now pass to the plan how to give Ireland a Legislature to deal with Irish as distinguished from Imperial affairs. (Hear.) He was confronted at the outset with what he felt to be a formidable dilemma. Ireland was to have a domestic Legislature for Irish affairs. That was the postulate from which he set out. Were the Irish members and the Irish representative peers in either House to continue to form part of the representative assemblies? The speaker thought it would be perfectly clear that if Ireland was to have a domestic Legislature the Irish peers and the Irish representatives could not come to Parliament to control England and Scotland's affairs. (Cheers.) Then with regard to the question whether Irish representatives should come to the House of Commons for the settlement of Imperial affairs, he thought that could not done. He had, therefore, arrived at the conclusion that Irish members and Irish peers ought not to sit in the palace of Westminster. (Oh! oh! and cheers.) If Irish members were not to sit in the House of Commons, Irish peers ought not to sit in the other House of Parliament. (Hear, hear and oh!)

THE QUESTION OF TAXATION.

How were the Irish people to be taxed if they had legislators in both countries? He believed that Great Britain would never impose upon Ireland taxation without representation, and added: "If we were to have taxation without representation, then there would come another question which would raise a practical difficulty, and that is, are we to give up the fiscal unity of the Empire?" He did not think that by giving up the fiscal unity of the Empire they were giving up the unity of the Empire. He, however, stood on the substantial ground that to give up the fiscal unity of the Empire would be a public inconvenience and misfortune. It would be a great misfortune for Great Britain and a greater misfortune for Ireland. He conceived that one escape from that dilemma would be such an arrangement as would give the Imperial Government authority to levy customs duties and such excise duties as were immediately connected with the customs. The conditions of such an arrangement were:—First, that the general power of taxation over and above these particular duties should pass unequivocably into the hands of a domestic Legislature in Ireland; second, that the proceeds of the customs and excise should be held for Ireland, and for the discharge of the obligations of Ireland, and the payment of the balance after these obligations were discharged, should be entered into the Irish exchequer, and be for the free disposal of the Irish legislative body. The government bill provided for this, and the bill then provided that representatives of Ireland should no longer sit in the House of Commons, or Irish peers in the House of Lords, but at the same time they would have the right of addressing the Crown, and so possess all the constitutional rights they had now. (Oh! and cheers.) It would therefore relieve the Irish members from attendance at Westminster. Mr. Gladstone said he had several reasons why this should be the case. Even it were possible for them to attend, as they had a Parliament of their own, it would be very difficult to have two classes of members in the British House, one class who could vote on all questions connected with the business of the country and another which could only vote on special and particular questions which were brought before Parliament. Again, it would be very difficult for gentlemen in Ireland to decide who should go to Westminster or who should remain in Ireland, and at the same time to maintain the fiscal unity of the nation. There is another point with regard to the powers of the Legislature. Two courses might have been taken—one was to endow the legislative body with particular legislative powers, the other was to except from the sphere of its action those subjects which the Government thought ought to be excepted and to leave to it every other power. The latter plan had been adopted. The administrative power would pass with the legislative power.

FUNCTIONS OF THE IRISH PARLIAMENT.

The duration of the proposed legislative body should not exceed five years. The functions which it was proposed to withdraw from the cognizance of the legislative body were three grand and principal functions, viz.:—Everything which related to the Crown; all that belonged to the defence, the army, the navy, the entire organization of the armed forces, and our foreign and colonial relations. It would not be competent to pass laws for the establishment or endowment of any particular religion. (Cheers.) As to trade and navigation it would be a misfortune to Ireland to be separated from England. The Irish parliament would have nothing to do with coinage or the creation of legal tender. The subject of the postoffice would be left to the judgment of Parliament, though the Government inclined to the view, that it would be more convenient to leave postoffice matters in the hands of the Postmaster-General. Quarantine and one or two other subjects were left in the same category.

COMPOSITION OF THE PARLIAMENT.

The next subject he had to approach was that of the composition of the proposed legislative body. The bill proposed to introduce two orders who would sit and deliberate together with the right of voting separately on any occasion and on the demand of either body, which could be able to interpose a veto upon any measure for a limited time, either until the dissolution or for three years. The orders would be constituted as follows: First, there were the 28 representative peers who could not continue to sit in the House of Lords after the representatives of the Irish people left the House of Commons. They would have the option of sitting as a portion of the first order in the Irish Parliament, with the power of sitting for life. Some people thought the option was not likely to be largely used, but the speaker was not of that number. (Hear, hear.) He proposed that with the 28 peers now in the House of Lords there should sit seventy-five representatives elected by the Irish people. With regard to the powers of election, the constituency would be composed of occupiers of the value of £25 and upwards, and they would be elected for ten years. The property qualification of these representatives would be £200 annual value, or a capital value of £4,000.

Mr. Gladstone then said he proposed that the 101 Irish members in the House of Commons should be members of the Irish Parliament, and whilst the first order of the legislative body would consist of 103 members, the second order would consist of 206.

THE VICEROY.

It was proposed to retain the Viceroy, but he would not be the representative of a party or quit office with the outgoing Government. The Queen would be empowered to delegate to him any prerogatives she now enjoyed or would enjoy.

THE JUDICIARY.

With regard to the judges who had been concerned in the administration of the criminal law in Ireland, Her Majesty might, if she saw cause, by order-in-council, antedate the pensions of those particular judges. In future, the judges would be appointed by the Irish Government, be paid out of the consolidated fund, and be removable only on the joint address of the two orders.

THE CONSTABULARY.

The constabulary would remain under the present terms of service and under their present authority. The charge for the constabulary was now £1,500,000 per annum, and the speaker felt confident the charge would be reduced, but for the present he proposed to relieve the Irish legislative body of all expenditures from the constabulary in excess of £1,000,000 per annum. The Government had no desire to exempt the peace of Ireland in reference to its final position from the ultimate control of the Irish legislative body. The speaker had no jealousy upon that subject, as the care of providing for the ordinary security of life and property was the first duty of a local Government.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

With respect to the civil service the Government did not think their case was the same as that of the constabulary and the transfer of the civil service to the legislative body would effect a great economy. He, therefore, thought it would be wise to authorize the civil servants now serving to claim the pensions that would be due to them upon the abolition of their offices, provided they served two years in order to prevent the inconvenience from a rapid transition of the service, and at the close of that time both parties should be free to negotiate afresh.

THE FINANCES.

Mr. Gladstone next went on to speak of the finances, stating that the new Irish Parliament ought to start with a balance to its credit and proposing that this should be carved out of this year's Imperial budget, and that in future Ireland should pay one-fifteenth towards the Imperial expenditure. He went on to speak of how much Ireland would gain by exporting spirits to Great Britain, and how much Great Britain would lose to Ireland by the flow of money from one to the other. As a result of careful enquiry, he stated with confidence, not as an actual demonstration, but as a matter of certainty, with regard to the far greater portion, that the Irish receipts would gain from Great Britain a sum that would amount to no less a total than £1,400,000 per annum. He then entered into an elaborate calculation of the total income and expenditure of Ireland, in the course of which he stated that the total charge to Ireland, as an Imperial contribution could be put at £3,242,000 per annum. He stated as an instance of the intense demoralization of the Irish administration that, while the postoffice in England showed a large surplus, in Ireland it just paid its expenses. He estimated the total expenditure of Ireland, including a payment as a sinking fund for the Irish portion of the national debt, at £7,946,000 per annum. Against that there was a total income of £8,350,000, or a surplus to the good of £404,000.

In support of Irish Home Rule he instanced the fact that this principle had to be accorded to the colonies, which were now better governed than they were from Downing street.

ON PATRIOTISM.

In conclusion Mr. Gladstone said: "I hold that there is such a thing as local patriotism, which in itself is not bad, but good. (Cheers) The Welshman is full of local patriotism. The Scotchman is full of local patriotism. No: the Scotch nationality is as strong as it ever was, and if the need were to arise I believe it would be as ready to assert itself as it was in the days of Bannockburn. (Cheers.) If I read Irish history aright, misfortune and calamity have wedded her sons to their soil with an embrace yet closer than is known elsewhere, and the Irishman is still more profoundly Irish. But it does not follow that because his local patriotism is strong he should be incapable of an imperial patriotism. There are two modes of presenting the subject which I have argued. One of them is to present what we now recommend as good, and the other is to present it as a choice of evils, and the least among the varied evils with which as a possibility we are confronted. Well, I have argued the matter as if it had been a choice of evils. I do not know whether it may appear too bold, but in my own heart I cherish the hope that this is not merely a choice of the lesser evil, but that it may be proved to be ere long a good in itself. (Loud cheers.) There is, I know, an answer to this, and what is the answer? The answer is only found in the view which rests upon a basis of despair, of absolute condemnation of Ireland and Irishmen as exceptions to those beneficial provisions which have made in general, Europeans in particular, Englishmen and Americans, capable of self government, that an Irishman is a lusus naturæ; that justice, common sense, moderation, natural prosperity have no meaning for him; that all that he can understand and all that he can appreciate is strife, perpetual dissension. Now, sir, I am not going to argue in this House whether this view, this monstrous view [Irish cheers], is a correct one. I say the Irishman is as capable of loyalty as another man. [Renewed Irish cheers.] But if his loyalty has been checked, why it is because the laws by which he is governed do not present themselves to him, as they do to us in England or Scotland, with a native and congenial element. I ask the House to show to Europe and America that we too can face the political problems which America had to face 20 years ago and which many countries in Europe have been called on to face and have not feared to deal with. I ask that we shall practice as we have very often preached, and that in our own case we should be firm and fearless in supplying the doctrines we have often inculcated on others; that the concession of local self-government is not the way to sap and impair, but to strengthen and consolidate unity. I ask that we should learn to rely less on mere written stipulations and more on those better stipulations written on the heart and mind of man. I ask that we should apply to Ireland the happy experience we have gained in England and Scotland, where a course of generations has now taught us, not as a dream or a theory, but as a matter of practice and of life that the best and surest foundation we can find to build on is the foundation afforded by the affections and convictions and will of man, and that it is thus by the decree of the Almighty that for more than by any other method we may be enabled to secure at once the social happiness, the power and the permanence of the empire."

Mr. Gladstone finished his address at 8 o'clock, having spoken three hours and twenty-five minutes, and resumed his seat amid bursts of enthusiastic cheers, which were sustained for several minutes.

NOTES.

Mr. Trevelyan next arose and explained that he had resigned his Cabinet portfolio because he could never approve of such a scheme as that proposed.

Mr. Parnell followed with a few words in which he objected to the financial arrangement, and of the two orders of representation. The Irish party would do their best to remove these. On the whole, however, apart from these defects, he believed the measure would be cheerfully accepted by the Irish people.

Mr. Plunket, Conservative member for Dublin University, opposed the scheme.

Mr. Chamberlain moved the adjournment.

After his speech Mr. Gladstone left the House done out by his effort and retired to bed.

After the adjournment eighty Parnellites met in caucus and decided upon uniform action on the line indicated by Mr. Parnell.

The daily papers all acknowledge that Mr. Gladstone made a great oratorical effort, worthy of his best days, but the general opinion appears to be that the measure in its present form cannot carry.

DAVIS

Vertical Feed Sewing Machine.

It is a sewing machine advertisement, it is true.
It is not an old Stereotyped story.
We have something of interest to you, whether you wish to buy or not.
We have a machine quite unlike anything else. New Principles, New Ideas.
You say you have seen it; you are mistaken. It is a new pattern; a New Model,
Did you ever see a sewing machine with only six working parts? If not, you never saw this new machine.
There is only one tension to regulate. No holes to thread through.
All the work on this machine is of the highest grade, and will compare favorably with the workmanship of a Winchester rifle.
You can't comprehend it. You won't believe it unless you come and see for yourself. It will pay you from curiosity. We are so much interested in this ourselves that we are anxious you should see, know, tell and help us get these facts before the people.

Longworthy had taken up a novel in which she was interested, and heard nothing of what was passing between the others. To all intents and purposes they were alone, and when the silence which followed the doctor's last words had lasted some little time, he broke it to say in a rather lower voice than usual—

"I beg your pardon. I had no right to speak in that way."

There was silence again, and before either spoke Mr. Longworthy returned. He fidgetted about in a way which would have made his wife nervous if she had not been too absorbed in her book to notice it; then he paused near Helen's chair, saying—

"Will you play something for us?"

"With pleasure," she replied readily, glad both to have the silence broken and to change her occupation.

"What shall I play? more waltzes?" she asked, turning round; and it was evident that her question was addressed to Mr. Longworthy alone.

"Yes," he said; "I am fond of waltzes. I was not present at the performance this afternoon; if you are sinning I will take the responsibility upon myself."

"Very good," she replied; "for once we will believe that responsibilities are transferable." Immediately she began to play a waltz she had heard when she was in Germany with Percival, and which had not appeared in England.

STOLE THE CLAPPER.—The good people of Berlin evidently do not relish being aroused from their slumbers at an early hour in the morning, and to prevent the town bell being rung at six o'clock some of them lately stole the clapper, rendering the bell useless. GAS IN HOTELS.—The adjourned inquest in Toronto on Friday, at the Little York hotel, on the victims of asphyxiation by illuminating gas was of more than ordinary importance. Dr. Oldright requested the coroner to embody in his evidence some practical suggestions to hotel-keepers. He would recommend that the gas be turned partially off at the metre at bedtime and totally off during the day to avoid chronic poisoning; the use of automatic burners which would cause the gas to ignite immediately on escaping; limiting the minimum size of sleeping apartments and requiring thorough ventilation. The jury without hesitation, attached the following recommendation, as prepared by the coroner, to their verdict:—This jury strongly recommends that the whole question of the use of illuminating gas in hotels be taken up by the Provincial Board of Health, and proper rules for the use of such gas framed by the said Board for the guidance of all persons interested.

ABOUT WATER.—"Pica" of the Toronto News, apologises to St. Catharines for having said that Ottawa has the best water of any city in Ontario. CONCERT.—Last night Miss Rose Braniff late of the Boston conservatory of music, gave a concert in the City Hall. For a few months past Miss Braniff, whose home is in Toronto, has been instructing classes in music, and from the proficiency displayed by her pupils in the part they took in the programme last night, it is evident that she is a music teacher of no mean ability. A lengthy programme of vocal and instrumental music was presented, and it is a credit to Miss Braniff and her pupils to state that some of the most pleasing features of the entertainment were given by her pupils. The stage was decorated with a number of nice house plants, which presented a very pleasing and refreshing appearance. The programme on the whole was very well rendered, and is as follows:

Duet—(Violin and piano) "Prometheus,"—Prof. Philp and Mrs James Clarke.
Solo—"Carnival de Venice"—Miss Rose Braniff.
Harp Solo—Irish Airs and Variations—Miss Coffee.

Chorus—"Now tramp o'er Moss and Fell"—Miss Braniff and pupils (Obligato solo by Miss Coffee.
Duet—(Violin and piano) "Swiss airs"—Prof. Philp and Mrs James Clarke.
Solo—"Swiss Echo Song"—Miss Rose Braniff.
Harp Solo—"Scotch Airs and Variations"—Miss Coffee.
Solo—"Selection from French opera"—Prof. Barre.
Chorus—"Good-night Farewell"—Class of little children (Obligato solo by Miss Maggie Philp.)

Mrs. Clarke, Miss Doran, and Miss Coffee played the accompaniments with skill and taste. Miss Braniff deserves credit for being instrumental in getting up such a high classed concert. When she appeared herself she was welcomed with applause, and was encored on every occasion, and so were the majority of those who took part. Prof. Barre announced at the close that Miss Braniff appeared under very trying circumstances, as she had received a telegram that her father was lying at the point of death in Toronto.

IRISH HOME RULE.

Mr. Chamberlain Explains His Position.

LORD HARTINGTON SPEAKS.

LONDON, April 9.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Gladstone said he hoped to finish the debate on the Home Rule Bill on Monday next. He announced that the Budget would be introduced on Tuesday and the Irish land bill on Thursday, the latter being a necessary supplement to the Home Rule bill. He proposed that the House adjourn for a week's holiday at Easter. It is understood that the Tory and Whig leaders of the opposition o Mr. Gladstone's Irish scheme preferred to force a division on the first reading of the bill but abandoned the idea because of Mr. Chamberlain's strong opposition to it.

Lord Hartington, is an interview with Lord Salisbury to-day, arranged that no motion should be made against the Home Rule bill until the second reading. Lord Hartington does not intend to propose an alternative scheme, though he will oppose Mr. Gladstone's bill root and branch. He continues to be averse to the formation of a coalition government in the event of Mr. Gladstone being defeated. Mr. Chamberlain has also rejected overtures from the Conservatives for a coalition.

Among the various Radical workingmen's clubs the feeling is in favor of Mr. Gladstone. Several meetings were held to-night to discuss the project of a grand mass demonstration in support of the Home Rule bill.

Mr. Chamberlain was received with faint cheers upon rising to resume the debate. He said he rose more for the purpose of making a personal explanation than with the object of entering upon a detailed discussion of the speech of Mr. Gladstone. Continuing, he said that when he was asked to join the Government he told Mr. Gladstone that he did not think it possible to reconcile a separate parliament at Dublin, as demanded by the Irish members, with the conditions of full guarantees for the security of the empire, and Mr. Gladstone informed him that all he wanted then was an independent inquiry into the subject of the government of Ireland. He wrote a letter to Mr. Gladstone on Jan. 3, in which he explained that he could not consent to the establishment of a separate parliament in Dublin, and it was on that understanding that he consented to join the Cabinet. He had presumed from what Mr. Gladstone told him that the whole Cabinet would proceed step by step in consultation to build a scheme of Home Rule not involving separation. It was not until March 13 that Mr. Gladstone startled the Cabinet by bringing forward a scheme involving the issue of £15,000,000 in consols.

At this point, Mr. Gladstone interrupting, reminded Mr. Chamberlain that he had not received the permission of Her Majesty's Government to reveal the land proposals.

Mr. Chamberlain, continuing, said that he would reserve his explanation. He did not resign on the land purchase proposals alone, but on the whole scheme. Still, he asked, how could he explain his position if his hands were tied? [Conservative cheers.] He asked if he might be permitted to read his letter to Mr. Gladstone.

Here an angry discussion took place between Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Gladstone. The latter declared that he could not go beyond the limits of the permission given. Mr. Chamberlain thereupon complained that his explanation would be lame and incomplete. He would never be able to justify his conduct to the House and the country. He took four principal objections to the scheme for the government of Ireland. The first was to the proposal to exclude the Irish members from Westminister. His second objection was to renouncing as proposed, the exercise of the right of imperial taxation. In the third place he objected to the surrender of the appointment of judges and magistrates, and finally he objected to the supreme authority given to the Irish Parliament to matters not specially excluded from its authority. Since he had left the Cabinet, he said, an important change had been made by retaining power over the customs and excise duties, but the proposal now appeared utterly inconsistent with the principle that taxation and representation should go together. He further objected to any scheme that laid upon the British taxpayer a tremendous liability with excessive risk, as such a project could only be looked upon as a bribe to modify the hostility of Irish land owners to Home Rule. He did not believe the Irish people would agree to be deprived of all voice in the control of matters and policies in which they were deeply interested, and he asserted that Ireland was being asked to occupy a degrading position which the people would never accept. Further the contribution which Ireland was to be called upon to pay to the Imperial treasury was fixed by the scheme and could not be increased even in case the United Kingdom should be placed in a position of the direst peril and where then he asked was the integrity of the empire? The financial question, he continued, disposed itself into two parts. The English taxpayer would object to any additional burden being thrown on him to make good the Irish deficiency and the Irish taxpayer if there was a deficiency in the budget owing to failure of the excise and customs duties, would be called on to pay new taxes, failing which the Government would be obliged to repudiate their obligation. The scheme would be accepted grudgingly, and in the course of two years there would be an attempt to revise or alter it. As for himself, rather than force the future agitation, which would be certain to prevail between the two countries, rather than face the distractions and foreign complications which would arise by having a quasi-independent Government, he would vote for separation pure and simple. (Loud cheers.) Th opponents of the Government scheme were told that the only alternative was coercion. That was not his alternative. The agrarian discontent had arisen chiefly through evictions by landlords. He would propose to deprive the landlords of the power to evict for six months, guaranteeing them six months' rent, the land being security for the sum. During this period a peace commission, composed of the members of every section represented in Parliament, could conduct an exhaustive inquiry into the land question. Besides this he looked for a solution of the Home Rule matter in the direction of federation. He was not, he declared, pedantically pledged to his former proposals for a national council.

The Evening Mercury

SATURDAY EVE'G APRIL 10, 1886.

Mr. Gladstone's Speech.

The British Parliament is now face to face with the most momentous question with which it has had to deal during the present generation. Neither the repeal of the Corn Laws, nor the disestablishment of the Irish Church, which hitherto have been spoken of as the leading historical events for many years, approach in magnitude the question of Home Rule for Ireland. It is a subject which politicians have evaded and tried to avert by every means in their power, but which circumstances have at length forced them to face boldly and to solve definitely one way or the other.

In submitting a scheme to Parliament for the solution of the question, Mr. Gladstone has probably accomplished the most gigantic work of his life, and generations yet unborn will fix his place in history more by his connection with this than with any other act of his career. The enthusiasm with which he was hailed as he drove through the streets to Parliament and as he entered the House was enough to turn an unusually well balanced head, yet throughout he acted with calm dignity and perfect self-possession. That the eloquence of his words enraptured the listeners we may well believe, and that it has convinced millions throughout the world of his sincerity, who before thought that he was playing for a great stake, there is neither any doubt. His recapitulation of the failures of coercion for the past fifty years and his reminder that the Colonies were never satisfactorily governed from Downing street were strong proofs in favor of that other course which he has proposed.

The subjects reserved to the Imperial Parliament are: Everything relative to the prerogative of the Crown, to Customs and Excise, to defence, the army and navy, armed forces generally, the constabulary (as to which the Imperial Government will pay all expenses exceeding £1,000,000 per annum), no religious sect is to be endowed or established, and no power is given over the coinage or legal tender.

The subject of postal service, quarantine, and a few kindred subjects are reserved for Parliament to decide which Legislature shall deal with them.

The Vice-Royalty will be a non-political office, that is, the occupant will not retire with the British Cabinet that appoints him.

The Irish Parliament will appoint the judges and the civil service. Provision is made for the pensioning of all who are dispossessed.

Irish Parliaments are to sit for not longer than five years. They are to be composed of two orders, the members of which may sit and deliberate together and vote together as they choose; or they may sit or vote separately if either order desires it; and either order has a limited veto upon the acts of the other.

The first order is to consist of 103 members. Twenty-eight of them may be, if they choose to sit, the Irish Representative Peers, who are to be relieved from attendance at Westminster. The remainder will be elected by the £25 occupiers throughout the country.

The idea that loyalty to the Empire was not consistent with loyalty to Ireland, which seems to be pretty general, was clearly shown to be absurd by Mr. Gladstone in his eloquent peroration when he instanced the case of the Welshman and the Scotchman, who, while patriotic to the Union, were so warmly devoted to the land of their birth and so proud of their nationality. He is not one of those who believes that the Irishman is a lusus naturæ, that all he can believe in or understand is perpetual dissension. Having failed to force the natives of the Green Isle into submission to a system of Government which they regarded as repugnant, and which no doubt has inflicted upon them many hardships, he has sufficient faith in the stipulations of honor written on the heart and mind of man to trust them with an independence and freedom which they did not feel before. In doing so who will predict that his action may not knit Ireland to the Empire in closer union than before?

Mr. Gladstone, however, has considered the results, and feels tolerably certain of approval for his scheme. Whether it passes in the present Parliament by a large or small majority or whether it passes at all, does not signify so much, if it meets with favor in the country. An appeal to the people will have to be made in any case, for it is certain the House of Lords will reject the measure, even if it is passed by the House of Commons. The remaining proceedings in this great political drama will be watched with eager interest in every quarter of the civilized world.

HON. ALEX. MACKENZIE has been ill for several days and unable to attend to his Parliamentary duties. He is now confined to bed at his home in Toronto. Canadians generally will hope to hear of his early recovery.

THE Dundas Standard announces that a correspondent in Halton County informs it that a "strong effort will be made to induce Mr. Wm. Laidlaw, "barrister, of Toronto, to accept the "nomination for the Commons in that "county," in the Conservative interest. The report that Mr. Laidlaw won't accept the doubtful honor shows him to be a sensible man. To run would mean certain defeat. The people of Halton are not likely to go back on their political faith as Reformers.

THE returns of the Dominion lands agents for the year 1885 are in. The number of applications received during the year for coal mining lands was 69, and 22 of the applicants have been given the privilege to purchase within a specified time. The Cascade Coal Mining Company, whose mines are situated in township 26, range 11, west of the fifth meridian, and north-east of Banff station, have made arrangements to work their mine next summer, and in all probability several pits in the vicinity of Calgary will be opened by other parties.

A YEAR ago Sir Leonard Tilley imposed a duty on some kinds of fruit coming into Canada. The effect was that peaches and such like fruit coming from the States were considerably enhanced in price. Mr. McLelan, however, goes even farther than Sir Leonard, for among the tariff changes given in his budget speech he proposes to impose a duty of four cents a pound on blackberries, gooseberries, raspberries, and strawberries, and a duty of one cent per pound on peaches, the weight of the packages to be included in all cases. This will still further increase the price of such fruits, for the duties imposed are virtually prohibitory. In the early part of the season large quantities of American fruit have hitherto been brought into Canada because it is earlier than that grown at home. In return we sent large quantities to the States after their fruit season was over. This system was mutually beneficial to both countries. Three years ago Congress took the duties off Canadian fruit. Now our rulers increase the duties on American fruit. It is not likely the United States will stand such treatment as to allow our fruit to enter their markets duty free, while we put high duties on their fruit. Cheap fruit is not only a luxury, but is highly conducive to health, and our Government in so legislating are doing it against the best interests of the people, especially the working classes.

IT appears from a return presented to Parliament the other day that since Confederation forty-five acts passed by provincial legislatures have been disallowed by the Governor-General-in-Council. Between 1867 and 1873 five acts were disallowed, two of them passed in Ontario, two in Nova Scotia and one in Quebec; between 1873 and 1878 there were twenty-two acts disallowed, namely, one from Ontario, one from Quebec, three from Nova Scotia, seven from Manitoba, seven from British Columbia, two from Prince Edward Island and one from the Northwest. Since 1878 eighteen acts have been disallowed, five from Ontario (the Rivers and Streams bill three times), five from Manitoba, seven from British Columbia, and one from New Brunswick. The majority of the acts disallowed had relation to trade and commerce, or interfered with navigation, subjects within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament, while not a few, seven or eight in number, were disallowed because interfering with the criminal law. Five Manitoba railway charters have been disallowed because conflicting with the settled and consistent policy of the Parliament of Canada pending the final completion of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

THE fifth session of the Quebec Legislature opened on Thursday. In the Lieut.-Governor's Speech new legislation is promised with respect to the public health, the small-pox epidemic last summer having proved that the Province was deficient in this respect. It is to be hoped some such stringent provision will now be made as we enjoy in Ontario to prevent the ravages of disease. The experience of Montreal during the small-pox epidemic certainly shows it to be necessary. The speech congratulates the Legislature on the satisfactory settlement in the courts of the license question and the hope is expressed that Parliament and Legislatures will in future avoid all conflicts as to jurisdiction. If Quebec had had half the reason which Ontario has had to complain of Federal encroachments of this kind it would have threatened long ago to smash confederation to atoms. Therefore, Ontario will join in that wish. The only other important matters referred to in the Speech are the promised construction of colonization railways, and the report of the commission appointed to enquire into the working and sale of certain Provincial railways.

THE annual report of the Provincial Secretary for Ontario on the working of the Tavern and Shop Licenses Acts for the years 1884-5 shows that 3,997 licenses of all kinds were issued during the year, against 4,233 in 1883-4 and 4,196 in 1882-3. Of these 3,256 were ordinary tavern licenses, 24 beer and wine, 675 shop, 28 wholesale and 14 vessel licenses. The decrease of 236 from the previous year was distributed as follows: 115 tavern, 106 shop, 8 wholesale and 7 vessel. The revenue derived by the province from licenses and fines was $192,867, against $93,225 in the previous year and $93,528 in 1882-3. There was a falling off in the ordinary revenue from this source consequent on the decreased number of licenses, but there was a large additional revenue from the increased duties, which went wholly to the province, amounting to nearly $100,000. The total collection from provincial licenses and fines, including the sums imposed by municipal by-laws, were $540,299, against $444,745 in the previous year, and $435,152 in 1882-3. The payments to the municipalities fell from $287,246 in 1883-4 to $283,589 last year. The fines collected during the year amounted to $18,826, and the amount paid in respect of expenses of commissioners and salaries of inspectors was $49,792 against $49,610 in the previous year, and $47,795 in 1882-3.

HAVING vanquished the French Canadians in a bloodless battle, the Mail takes a tilt at the Methodists, under pretence that Hon. Mr. Ross has been trying to hire the adherents of that Church to vote for the Mowat Government. From the Christian Guardian's reply the following is taken:

The simple fact is, that if the publisher in this case had been authorized to fix the price, it is highly probable it would have been at a considerable percentage higher, because of the very narrow margin of profit which is now realized. The above statement is made, however, to justify an insinuation, or, more properly, an assertion, that this contract is given as a bribe to the Methodist Church, as though the Methodist Church had been in some sort of conflict with the Government or the Minister of Education, and finally consented to accept a contract for the publishing of a school book as the price of its surrender. We are not aware that the Methodist Church has given occasion for any suspicion of being equal to political intrigue. As a Church, Methodism has kept aloof from party politics as to both the provinces and the Dominion. Thus far partyism has not been one of the planks in its platform, and therefore "peace" or "propitiatory" offerings from the Government—as the Mail denominates this contract—have not been necessary, nor are they likely to be.

CHAPTER XXII.

A GATHERING STORM.

It was a beautiful thing, the very spirit of the dance seemed pent up within it, and when she had played it through Mr Longworthy at once asked her to repeat it. From that she passed to others; her fingers seemed charmed, they flew or lingered over the keys as the music required, and she appeared to have utterly lost herself in her music. She quite forgot to turn round at the end of each dance and ask if her audience had had enough; no doubt she had forgotten that she had an audience. Presently Mr. Longworthy went up to her, and, while making her a sign not to cease playing, he drew a chair to her side, and began to talk to her in a low voice, so low that no single word of what he said reached the doctor's ears, neither, when Helen replied, did he catch anything she said.

"Have you seen Sayings and Doings?" asked Mr. Longworthy.

"No; has it come in?"

"It came this afternoon. I see they are expected home very soon now."

She changed colour, but did not cease playing; on the contrary, the doctor thought she was pressing the loud pedal a little too hard as she replied—

"In that case, I suppose, we shall have to do something."

"You do not speak enthusiastically, almost as if you were afraid."

"I am afraid. Much as I long to see Percival again, and empty though my life seems in spite of your kindness, you will understand what I mean. I do feel afraid. I try to persuade myself that when Percival and I meet again it will only be as though we had been parted for an exceptionally long time. I know that in reality it is not so. Percival thinks I am dead, he has grown accustomed to live without me, and with Alice. It is a fact that people may stay away from their friends too long, I am afraid."

Mr. Longworthy did not reply at once. His own observation of Helen's character, as well as what she told him of her bringing up and home life, helped him to understand her feelings. At last he said—

She obeyed; the music which had been growing fainter, now swelled out again, and completely covered the rector's voice.

"You know," he said "I want you to lose that feeling. It is difficult, I know; but try not to despond. Remember I have promised to go to Osmotherley when your husband comes home, and your feelings will be, to a great extent, guided by the report I bring you."

He saw a little shiver pass over her whole figure, and he went on, "Until then you will have to go on being brave and patient. You have given ample proof that you can be both. When you join your husband again, and he hears all I have to tell him, he will be very proud of you."

Dr. Holme had watched them, fascinated and excited. What were they talking about? What could bring that look and smile into the rector's face? He knew them both well. He had seen them when the rector was sitting by the bedside of some sick person who was to undergo some painful operation or examination. He had seen them when all hope was over and the clergyman was speaking of death. What could he be saying to Mrs. Moore that called such a look upon his face. Again, what was the meaning of Helen's replies, of the burning colour which covered her cheeks, and which was followed by the abrupt departure of Mr. Longworthy, who, as he went, laid his hand for an instant upon her shoulder, as though for encouragement!"

He felt moved and uneasy as he thought over all this, and recollected what in the excitement and bitterness of the moment he had said to Helen only a short time before. He felt very unhappy, for she had given him no sign of forgiveness, and he felt that to go away unforgiven would be impossible. How could he allow himself so to forget everything due to Mrs. Moore? how could he so far forget himself as to sneer at what was evidently an earnest conviction of hers? He must obtain her pardon: they were almost alone, so good an opportunity might not occur again. As impulsively as if he had been Helen herself, he crossed the room and stood at the piano. She was still playing, but in a way which betrayed that her thoughts were elsewhere. She did not turn round as he came up to her, which he took for a bad sign, and his voice was a little more brusque even than usual as he said—

"I beg to apologise again, Mrs. Moore, for the license I allowed myself just now."

At the sound of his voice she turned abruptly; evidently she had not noticed his approach. Her forehead contracted in a little perplexity at his words.

"Really," she said when he had finished, "I do not know to what you refer."

He explained, and the slight embarrassment he felt made his manner even stiffer and less affable than usual.

"Oh, yes," she answered, with a half smile, "I recollect. It did annoy me at the moment, but I had forgotten all about it. Please do not think of it any more."

Her tone and manner were careless in the extreme. She had evidently forgotten him and his ill manners in the contemplation of some much more agreeable object. He wished to know what she and Mr. Longworthy had been talking about; he left her side with almost a scowl on his face, and very soon afterwards said "Good-night," and went home.

He did not go as usual to his den, but into the dining-room; and holding up his candle he waved it about, and threw the light all over the room, heedless that at the same time the wax was falling in large drops all over the carpet, an offence for which he would have to answer to his housekeeper on the following morning. Just now the room looked comfortable enough, but he knew that when he came down to breakfast the next morning, he would feel a want. He could no longer resist the consciousness that what was wanted to change his dwelling from a house into a home was a woman's constant presence, and looking round, he found himself picturing Helen there. One after another he called up the images of the few women he knew, but none seemed at home there except Helen. He sighed and shook himself and went back to his books, but he could not forget the young lady at the Rectory, and her name "Mrs. Moore." Mrs. Moore! he repeated a hundred times, why Mrs Moore? and who was Mr. Moore, and where was he? He could not read, he flung his book aside and paced up and down his little room until he was weary, and threw himself into his chair, saying—

"I must and I will know who she is and all about her."

John H. Hamilton,

Proprietor

Under a federation Ireland would remain an integral portion of the empire. The principle of federation had been successful in Italy, Germany and America. It would, he asserted, maintain the imperial unity and at the same time satisfy the desires of the Irish people for local self-government.

Mr. Healy taunted Mr. Chamberlain with using his five years of experience to attack a minister of fifty years experience. He ridiculed the scheme of Mr. Chamberlain as impracticable and as involving an indefinite postponement of legislation. How could they, he asked, set up a federation in Ireland without first starting some kind of a local legislature.

Mr. Chamberlain's speech was received with marked coldness.

Sir John Lubbock (Liberal) said he believed if the bill was passed at all it would be against the wishes of the great majority of the people of the country. The bill was entirely opposed to the views expressed by the Premier in his Midlothian speeches and its result would be the dismemberment of the empire.

The Marquis of Hartington rose to speak at 10 p. m., and was loudly cheered. It required, he said, no prolonged examination of the scheme submitted last night, with so much eloquence and ability, to say that the project for established future relations between this country and Ireland was one which it would be absolutely impossible for them to make themselves parties to. [Cheers.] The distinguishing feature of the act of union was the creation of one sovereign legislature which was to be the sole legislative body for the kingdoms of Great Britain and Ireland, and it was a kingdom thus legislatively united that was meant when they spoke of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland. [Cheers.] The country, he said, had had no sufficient warning at all that any proposals of the magnitude and vastness of those which were explained last night were to be considered in the present parliament, much less that they were to form the first subject for consideration. [Cheers.] The House of Commons had no moral right to initiate legislation of which the constituency had not been previously informed. The result of the last election was not altogether what had been expected. The present triumph of the Liberal party was not as complete as had been anticipated, and if it had been known that the first work of the new Parliament and a Liberal Ministry was to be an entire resettlement of the legislative relations between England and Ireland it was impossible to say that the result might not have been the return of a large Conservative majority. [Opposition cheers.] If the proposals of the Prime Minister were accepted by the Irish members it would only give them a vantage ground for demanding fresh concessions. Whatever might be the fate of the measure, its introduction by a responsible Minister would have done much that could never be recalled. [Cheered.] Lord Hartington then gave his reasons for refusing to support the bill, following much the same line of argument as Mr. Trevelyan had done. He vigorously denounced those who favored a disruption of the empire, which the present bill meant.

Mr. John Morley, Chief Secretary for Ireland, followed strongly defending both Mr. Gladstone and the bill and declaring that opposition signified that Ireland was not fit for self-government. He took especial pains to assail Mr. Chamberlain's position.

The House was again crowded to-night. Among the visitors were the Dukes of Connaught and Cambridge, and many Peers and Ambassadors.

Most of the Parisian newspapers comment approvingly on the British Premier's Irish scheme. The French editors all speak with admiration of the courage and power exhibited by Gladstone in his address and La France alludes to the venerable statesman as a "redeemer."

MORE BLOODSHED.

The Guard Fires Into a St. Louis Crowd Killing Six Persons.

ST. LOUIS, April 9.—Eight deputy guards stationed at the Louisville and Nashville yards, near Broadway, fired into a crowd of 300 strikers at about 2.20 o'clock this afternoon. Five men and one woman were shot; three of the men were killed and the woman mortally wounded.

The crowd had made no attack upon the yard, but were standing on Cahokia bridge, near the Louisville and Nashville yards, jeering at the guards, when, without the slightest apparent provocation, the deputies levelled their rifles and fired two volleys.

Half an hour after the shooting an angry mob gathered in the square between the city hall and the police station, shouting "Hang the curs," "Kill them," "Kill, kill, kill," "Burn, burn, burn." In vain Messrs. Brown and Hayes, Knights of Labor representatives, appealed for respect to law and order. The crowd would not be appeased, and shortly after three Cairo Short Line, and four Louisville and Nashville freight cars were burned in the railroad yards in East St. Louis. Subsequently the Louisville & Nashville depot was reported to be burning.

CHANCERY SITTINGS.

April 10th.

LOCKING VS. KROELLER.—This was an action for specific performance of an agreement for the sale and purchase of land. The parties reside near Clifford. The plaintiff who is a farmer and land agent drew up an agreement for the sale of his farm to the defendant. The defendant resisted on the ground that the agreement was read over to him wrongly, and he signed it not knowing its terms. The evidence took all yesterday afternoon to be put in and counsel finished their arguments this morning. The defendant and his brother both swore that the bargain in the agreement was not the bargain they made with plaintiff, but that defendant only agreed to purchase plaintiff's farm in case he sold his own, and that defendant was unable to read and could not understand this. Several witnesses were called for the plaintiff whose evidence seemed to contradict this. His Lordship summing up said it was very desirable no advantage should be taken of ignorance, but equally desirable that ignorance should not be a safeguard against carrying out the ordinary obligations of a contract. He thought the parties understood the contract as well as laymen usually understand contracts, and he gave his judgment for plaintiff with full costs. Mr. John Bain, Q. C., and Mr. G. W. Field for plaintiff, and Mr. Kingston for defendant.

"What is McGregor's Speedy cure for"?
It is for dyspepsia, liver complaint, indigestion, biliousness, and it is the finest blood purifier in the known world to-day.
"Does it give satisfaction ?"
We cannot point to one instance where it did not.
"Where does it have the largest sale ?"
Right in the city of Hamilton where it is manufactured, there has been over one thousand dollars' worth sold in the last year retail, and the great majority of the sales are by one recommending it to another. For sale at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle by Thos. S Petrie, Druggist.

Four young men had a free fight in Providence church, Osprey, over seeing a girl home. They fought rough-and-tumble free-all-round up and down the aisle, "until they reached the pulpit, where the parson separated them, and the biggest fellow got the girl after having trounced the other three."

POPE SIXTUS V.

Lecture by Ven. Archdeacon Dixon in St. George's Church.

The last meeting of the season was held in the large school room of St. George's Church on Thursday evening. After a solo on the remarkably sweet toned and powerful piano that the Association has purchased, by Mrs. Clarke, the Venerable Archdeacon Dixon gave hislecture on the "Life and Times of Pope Sixtus V. The lecture was historical and not polemical. He commenced with a graphic picture of the condition of the Papal States in the middle of the 16th century, and especially during the reign of Gregory 13th. He was a devout and holy man, but not firm enough to stem the torrent of corruption. The evil of the times wore him out, and he died looking towards Heaven and praying that the Good Lord would have mercy upon Zion. As he was drawing near his end, crime increased and became bolder and more aggressive, feeling confident of impunity, as it had been for centuries the custom to release all prisoners on the election of a new Pope. During the period between Gregory's death and the election of a successor, the palaces of five Cardinals were plundered, and that of Farnese, where there was a host of retainers, was stripped of its treasures of art at mid-day. Never was a strong arm more needed to wield the sceptre of the Papacy—never a more bold and courageous heart to suppress the outbreak of hideous riot and crime. He whose life I am about to sketch briefly, was the man of iron grasp and unflinching will that the evil time required. The Archdeacon then gave the particulars of the early life of Felix Peretti,—and how step by step he arose from being as a boy a driver of hogs—then an errand boy at a monastery, then First Bishop and Cardinal taking the name of Montalto. During the reign of Pope Gregory he seemed to have given up all interest in public matters, and his health also seemed to have wholly failed so that he was regarded as the most imbecile of the Cardinals both mentally and physically. After several votes having been taken without success, three of the contending factions agreed to vote for one who was tottering over his grave, in the hope that after his death, their candidate would have a better chance. Accordingly he was elected, and the election seemed to have a miraculous effect upon him, for he suddenly threw off all appearance of weakness and showed himself possessed of powers of mind and body equal to the most celebrated of his predecessors. At this time the prisons were crowded with criminals who had given themselves up, expecting to be pardoned in a day or two. As the pardon seemed very slow in coming, the Governor of Rome and captain of the Castle of St. Angelo waited on the Pope to enquire whether the pardon was to be general, or with exceptions. He expressed much indignation at their enquiry, and assured them there was no pardon for the guilty, and insisted that their trials should go on immediately so that the criminals should suffer and the prisons be made ready for more prisoners. He came with a sword and not mercy for the wicked, and he would hold them responsible if one escaped. By this severity, so much needed, in a few months Rome and the Papal States were made the most peaceful and law abiding of all the European kingdoms. Tranquility being thus secured he set about beautifying the city. New palaces towered towards Heaven from the seven hills of Rome; an aqueduct 22 miles long supplied it with pure water, a hospital was built with accomodation for 2,000 patients and thus buildings arose on every side rivalling in splendour the days of the Emperors, when Rome was the Queen of the nations, and gathered into her bosom the wealth of the world. He died in the 6th year of his Pontificate and during these few years he advanced the power and glory of the Holy See more than all his predecessors put together for over a century and a half.

The above is only a short sketch of a very interesting subject, which was illustrated by striking ancedotes.

At the close Mr. Gausby proposed a vote of thanks to the lecturer, expressing the pleasure he had enjoyed in hearing it, and the benefit he had derived from hearing such historical studies brought before them. This was seconded by Mr. Oxnard and carried with applause. Miss Maude Oxnard, who promises to be a very brilliant player on the piano, then gave a solo, and Mr. Jones sang with great taste "Strangers yet." Then followed "God Save the Queen."

MORE NOTORIETY.

OTTAWA, April 8.—The lobby just outside the press room was this evening the scene of a fisticuff encounter between a member of the Commons and a journalist. The member was Dr. Orton (Centre Wellington) and the journalist, E. W. Thomson, Globe editorial writer, well-known in Toronto. The trouble rose out of a paragraph in the Globe last week, insinuating that Dr. Orton was drunk and misconducted himself while Sir Richard Cartwright was speaking.

The paragraph read: "Mr. Orton was almost as conspicuous on Tuesday as Capt. Scott and in the same way. This is a case in which a pair is better than three of a kind and three of a kind better than a full four."

In denouncing the article from his seat in the House on Tuesday, Dr. Orton said it was high time this kind of newspaper criticism was stopped and threatened to take the remedy into his own hands. In other words, the doctor meant blood. Well, at 5-10 this evening, when the chamber and corridors were comparatively deserted, the pugilistic parliamentarian met M. Thomson in the lobby near the entrance to the press room.

"Are you the Globe correspondent?" queried Dr. Orton.

"No" replied Mr. Thomson, "I'm an editorial writer."

"Did you write that paragraph about me?" was the doctor's second question.

"It is not for me to disclose the writer, but I am ready to assume the responsibility," said Mr. Thomson, with the characteristic spirit of a newspaper man.

The next instant Dr. Orton drew off and struck Mr. Thomson a stinging blow between the eyes, repeating the dose before the surprised journalist could defend himself. Mr. Thomson was all right in a minute and lost no time in defending himself, pitching into his assailant in lively style. The noise of the affair brought the few members and correspondents who had not gone to dinner, hastily to the scene. The combatants were separated, both highly excited, and for a couple of minutes there was a lull in hostitilities. Dr. Orton danced round in prize-fighting attitude, anxious to renew the encounter, and Mr. Thomson was also eager to see the thing through, exclaiming quietly, "This is my affair, gentlemen; let me alone."

Some of the spectators were for peace but the majority, the gathering numbered about twenty, wanted to let them have it out, and accordingly all fell back for a second round. The men were pretty well matched, each weighing about 180 lbs. Mr. Thomson was something of a sparrer in his younger days, and his hands have not yet lost their cunning. He got in some telling blows on the doctor, and when they clinched he pummelled him severely on the side of the face and neck. Disengaging themselves there was another round of scientific business, in which Dr. Orton put in a left-hander on his opponent's right-cheek, for which, however, he received more than double payment. Another clinch resulted in the journalist's favor, and he jabbed Wellington's representative against Mr. Blake's empty wardrobe locker with a dull thud. "Time" was called by a Quebec M. P., and the combatants fell back with swollen and blood-stained faces. The general feeling was that Dr. Orton got the worst of it. The news of the affair spread quickly, and it is the talk of the town and Parliament tonight. Dr. Orton appeared in the House after recess and Mr. Thomson cheerfully resumed his journalistic duties.

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

A HEN THAT DOES HER DUTY.—With the Spring comes the usual big egg season. This morning an egg was brought in from Mr. John Armstrong's, Marden, which measured 8½ inches by 7 inches and weighs 4½ oz. The hen that laid it is a cross between a black Spanish and a Plymouth rock, and it is stated that this is only a fair specimen of the general work which this hen puts in.

INTERESTING ENTERTAINMENT.—An entertainment of an interesting character, will be held in the city hall on Friday evening the 16th, of April. The programme is composed of temperance songs, stories and short addresses, and will be given by the Silver Lake Quartette Club, of the States, comprising the following members:—Prof. Geo. E. Chambers, soprano; Rev P. S. Lyman, tenor; Mr. A. H. Lawrence, alto; and the Rev. C. H. Mead, banjo. The quartette appear here under the auspices of the Womans' Christian Temperance Club, and from the unique character of the entertainment should be well patronized.

DEATH OF MISS BROWNLOW.—Many will regret to hear of the death of Miss Jeannie Brownlow, daughter of Mr. Wm. Brownlow, at the early age of 22 years. Her death will be especially mourned by members and adherents of the Baptist church, of which she was for some years the efficient organist. Her death was caused by blood poisoning resulting from an operation which was performed several days ago for the removal of varicose veins. Miss Brownlow was much beloved and esteemed by her young companions as well as by the older people of the Baptist congregation and all will extend their sympathy to the sorrowing family in this time of their bereavement.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The attendance at the Rink on Saturday night was very large and satisfactory to the management, the ladies again forming a respectable portion of the audience. The mile race was well and evenly contested. There were four entries, Mat Bunyan, Heck Finlay, P. Milloy and Alf. Tovell. Finlay led for the first eight laps, Bunyan second with Milloy and Tovell close behind. After that Bunyan forged ahead, Milloy second, and up to the finish it was a hot and exciting race, Bunyan taking first, Milloy second and Finlay third. The Band was present and played with their usual ability. To-morrow night a Band Concert as usual. There will also be a three legged race, distance one-half mile. An amusing and comical race will be wittnessed.

MEMORIAL SERVICE.—A very interesting memorial service in honor of the late John B. Gough was held on Sunday afternoon in the Paisley Street Church by the W. C. T. U. After singing "Shall we gather at the river," and reading the Scriptures, prayer was offered by the Rev. Mr. Holmes. The Rev. D. McGregor, M. A., on being called, remarked that similar services in honor of the late John B. Gough were being held to-day throughout the country. He then read extracts from Mr. Gough's writings relating to the principal events of his life, and afterwards spoke at some length on the over-ruling Providence which by the bitter experience Gough had before he became a total abstainer, together with his firm trust in God, strong faith in reform, and loving sympathy, eminently fitted him for his life-work of endeavoring to reclaim the struggling, sinking ones. The results of such a man's life are never-ending. "He being dead yet speaketh."

A BOGUS BAPTIST MISSIONARY.—The London Free Press says:—For some days a man who gives his name as John W. Bird has been in the city, and has been soliciting aid upon the representation that he was a Baptist missionary en route to California, and that he had been robbed on the train of his pocket book, which he alleged contained his through ticket and some $85 in money. He said also that he had been given assistance in Hamilton and Woodstock, and that in the latter place he had been warmly assisted by Rev. R. Trotter. His story naturally gained for him considerable sympathy, and he secured quite an amount. Amongst those who contributed was Mr. Williams, insurance agent, but subsequently that gentleman learned that the supposed missionary had been engaged at one of the hotels in drinking and throwing dice for "the drinks." A warrant was therefore issued, and he was arrested.

EASTER FAIRS.—The Fergus Easter fair will be held to-morrow, Elora on Wednesday and Guelph on Thursday. From present indications the Guelph fair promises to be equal to any that has been held heretofore.

SICK.—The Rev. J. C. Smith, of St. Andrew's church, has been confined to bed for over a week with a severe attack of cold and rheumatic fever. Although Mr. Smith has suffered severely it is expected that he will soon recover and be able to attend to his pastoral duties. Yesterday forenoon and evening his pulpit was supplied by the Rev. Henry Knox, of Muskoka, who preached two acceptable sermons, and also addressed the Sabbath School scholars in the afternoon.

FUNERAL OF D. A. MCINTYRE.—The funeral of the late D. A. McIntyre took place from the house of his father-in-law, Mr. Watson, corner of Dublin and Durham streets, yesterday afternoon and was largely attended, quite a number from the country being present. The pall bearers were Messrs. Robert A. Kirby, Amos and Mounce, trustees, Speedside, and Messrs. Luttrell, Talbot and Dow, teachers. The remains were interred in the Union Cemetery, Guelph.

Y. M. C. A.—The gospel meeting in the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Sunday evening was very largely attended. Mr. G. T. Webb, who has been Secretary of the Association for the past year, addressed the Association for the last time prior to his removal from the City. His earnest, impressive address of thirty minutes was attentively listened to, and the thoughtful faces of the hearers as they passed out bore testimony of the appreciative consideration of the subject matter of the discourse. The singing was hearty and universal, and contributed in no small degree to the success of the meeting.

GAIETY AND LILLY CLAY.—The Buffalo Times speaking of this performance, which takes place in the City Hall to-morrow night, says: As previously indicated the performance of the "Adamless Eden" by Gaiety and Lilly Clay's consolidated burlesque company was a marked success, and the Adelphi was crowded last evening to its fullest seating and standing capacity. It could not be otherwise, for the attraction is one that is always sure to take well. To see thirty-five ladies such as compose this troupe on the stage at one time is something unusual even at the Adelphi. They are assisted by a lady orchestra who render some excellent music. The performance must be seen to be appreciated, and the beautiful ladies need only be seen to be admired.

Presentation to Mr. P. Purcell.

On Saturday night a pleasant event took place in the Guelph Catholic Union Hall. Though the proceedings were of a pleasing character they were performed with an evident feeling of pain on the part of the members. Mr. Philip Purcell, who has filled the office of Secretary ever since the organization of the society, tendered his resignation on the eve of his departure for Detroit, and it was to give some tangible expression of their esteem for him and their sorrow at his contemplated step, that the members were assembled. The chairman called upon Mr. John Gallagher, 2nd Vice-President of the society, to read the following ADDRESS.

To Mr. Philip Purcell:

DEAR SIR,—Your resignation as Secretary of the Guelph Catholic Union, and your intended departure from Guelph, have caused us much regret. We are pained to think that we will soon be forced to bid you farewell. Scarcely can we imagine, and it occasions a pang in our hearts to contemplate, that the pleasant associations between you and us are now about to terminate. We have learned to love and esteem you because you possess those admirable and sterling qualities which alone can win the affections and command the respect of one's fellows.

You have, dear sir, during the brief, but eventful, and, may we hope, fruitful period of our society's existence, shown an unselfish zeal and energy, and a devotion for the welfare of the Union, which could only find inspiration in motives at once noble and exalted. For the sacrifice you have made, and the work you have done, we cannot repay you. We can only thank you, and that from the bottom of our hearts.

But we would beg your acceptance of this watch and locket as a little token which may in the future serve to bring to your mind cherished recollections of the past. If through it, we, your friends, occasionally are made to occupy a place in your memory, then we will feel that our feeble tribute of esteem is faithfully accomplishing its object.

In conclusion, permit us to again express our sorrow at your departure, and our earnest prayer for your future success. May the principles of our society, and especially the cardinal virtue—the promotion of which is its chief object—guide and direct your footsteps wherever your lot may be cast.

Signed by forty members of the Union.

SUNDAY SCHOOL SERVICE.

The Anniversary Sermons of the Dublin street Methodist Sabbath School were preached yesterday morning and evening, by the Rev. W. Briggs, president of the Toronto Conference. Raised seats were erected behind the pulpit, which accomodated about 150 of the younger portion of the Sabbath School. On the platform were placed several exotics in bloom, and the Union Jack filled up the vacant space at each side of the organ, the whole presenting a pleasing and refreshing effect, especially the happy faces of the children. The church was well filled. Hymns prepared for the occasion were sung by the children. The singing by so many young voices had a fine effect and was listened to with apparent pleasure. Evidence of careful training was perceptible in the renditions. After reading the Bible lession from 1st chapter of St Luke, Dr. Griffin reading one verse and the congregation another alternately, the Rev. W. Briggs arose and chose his text from the 1st chapter of St. Luke's Gospel, and part of the 66th verse—"What manner of child shall this be?" The sermon was a polished, thoughtful and eloquent exposition regarding the nature of children and the work of the Sabbath School. He pourtrayed in graphic language the latent power which lay dormant in the little child, which would soon be unfolded and be productive of great good and of great evil. He then spoke at length on the influence of the home and the Sabbath School as being the two great factors for moulding a child's mind. The earlier the impressions of right were instilled into their minds, the more tenaciously would they cling to the child. He illustrated the great work that the Sabbath School had done since it was first organized, and the important part that the Methodist Church took therein. At the conclusion of his address to the congregation the preacher turned to the children and spoke a few words to them in plain, simple and winning language. He gave them as a text "watch and pray": one important thing was to watch over the words of their mouth and their actions, and to do this successfully they would have to pray earnestly and often. He asked them several questions, which were promptly and correctly answered, which went to show that the teachers had not been remiss in their duty. At the close a collection was taken up for the benefit of the Sabbath School.

In the evening the children again occupied the raised seats and galleries, and their voices predominated throughout the singing. Just after the Scriptural reading they sang very sweetly the hymn "When I survey the Wondrous Cross," which took the place of the anthem usually given by the choir.

Rev. Mr. Briggs again preached, taking for his text this time: Joshua I. and 8: "This book of the law shall not depart out of thy mouth; but thou shalt meditate therein day and night, that thou mayest observe to do according to all that is written therein; for then thou shalt make thy way prosperous, and then thou shalt have good success." The discourse opened with a very eloquent description of a book, which reached its climax in the reference to the Bible. Then the preacher emphasized the meaning of the words "meditate," and "observe to do." Finally he showed that the success here referred to was temporal and that it was dependent on religion; it did not mean that a man should use all his energy first to attain worldly success and afterwards to seek religion. In the illustration of all these points many practical resources were drawn upon, and many beautiful similitudes brought into use. The subject throughout was handled in a clear and able manner.

At the close of the service the rev. gentlemen referred to the pleasure it gave him after the lapse of a number of years once more to stand in Dublin street Church. He also took occasion to express his entire approval of the responsive reading of the Scriptures by the congregation, which is an innovation made some time ago. The use of the voice was required in more than the singing to awaken a fixed interest in the service. Hitherto the Scriptural reading portion of the service had been weak in that respect. This responsive reading he characterized as the very thing that was wanted to make up the deficiency and therefore he thoroughly approved of it.

This evening the annual entertainment by the Sunday School will be given, and those who wish to spend an enjoyable evening should not fail to be present. The programme to be presented contains new features and will be commenced promptly on time.

HE is not only an effective orator, a good mimic and a capital story teller, but a grand singer, having a deep rich voice of great compass which he uses with a skill that is only attained by those who combine natural ability with careful training. He has sung his way to the hearts of many an audience. Such is one of many tributes to the genius of Rev. C. H. Mead, of Hornellsville, N.Y., who with three other gentlemen forming the Silver Lake Quartette, will appear in the City Hall on Friday the 16th. d1

FELL INTO A TRENCH.—A horse belonging to Mr. James Weatherston, Eramosa, on Saturday afternoon sank into a waterworks trench in front of Guthrie & Watt's office, through the earth being washed away by a leak in the service pipe. The animal was got out after considerable difficulty not much the worse. To-day the leakage is being repaired.

CHANCERY SITTINGS.

The trial of this case, which was the last on the docket, took up the time of the court during the whole of Saturday to within 5 minutes of Sunday morning when the evidence was concluded and it was arranged that the counsel should argue the case before the Judge in Toronto on Monday morning. It is an action brought by the plaintiffs, a money lending company in Toronto, to set aside sales of his farm, stock and implements made by the defendant John Palmer, a farmer in the township of Peel to his son George Palmer and afterwards by George Palmer to the defendant Peter Ferguson who is also a farmer residing in Peel and who is a neighbor of John Palmer's. The ground upon which the plaintiffs' sought to have the sales set aside are that they were made with intent to defraud the creditors of John Palmer, or with intent to give his son and the defendant Ferguson an unjust preference over other creditors. The defendants denied that there was any intention on the part of George Palmer or Peter Ferguson to defraud John Palmer's creditors and they alleged that the purchases were made on their part in good faith and for full value and without knowledge of any wrong intention towards his creditors on the part of John Palmer. The plaintiffs' claim was based upon a mortgage made by John Palmer upon which there is due for principal $4,200 and for interest $353, and they alleged that Palmer's land is not worth more than $4,000 and they claim the right to make the deficiency out of his goods. They also bring the present action on behalf of all his other creditors and they say his other debts come to nearly $3,000. The price paid by the defendant George Palmer to his father was $1,475, which amount was raised on the strength of the defendant Ferguson's name being upon certain notes given in the bank, and to secure the defendant Ferguson from loss by reason of his backing these notes it was agreed that the goods should be pledged to him. This was the first arrangement. A short time afterwards the defendant Ferguson bought out the interest of George Palmer in the goods in consideration of his paying the notes for $1,475 and paying George Palmer $50 in cash. Although Ferguson was a neighbor of Palmer's it did not appear that he had any special interest to serve in helping Palmer to perpetrate any fraud nor was he a creditor of Palmer's at the time of this transaction. Some 14 or 15 witnesses were called in all. Mr. Allan Cassels, of Toronto, assisted by Mr. Lown, of Drayton, appeared for the plaintiffs; Mr. Guthrie, Q.C., and Mr. Moss, Q.C., were counsel for the defendants.

Arrest of an Unfortunate.

TORONTO, April 12.—A case of suspected child murder occurred in the East End of Toronto yesterday morning. Maggie Rock, a domestic, now out of employment, has been staying for a few weeks at 323½ Wilton avenue. The unfortunate girl had got into trouble. At 2 o'clock yesterday morning she was seized with the pains of labor. She went down stairs and out into the back yard, where she gave birth to a perfectly developed female child. She then threw her child over the fence into a lane that separates the yard which she was in from that of a neighbor. At 10 o'clock yesterday morning this neighbor discovered the infant, which was dead, and reported the matter at the Wilton avenue station. The girl was arrested and at first denied all knowledge of the affair, but tracks of blood were traced to her room and bloody sheets were found in her trunk and she then confessed to the police. She was taken to the hospital, where she lies in a critical condition in consequence of her exertions and want of proper medical attention.

Foreign.

The remains of W. E. Forster were interred on Saturday, in Burnley Church.

The London Board of Trade will begin an inquiry at Liverpool, on the 16th inst., into the loss of the Cunard Line steamer "Oregon."

Emperor William will go to Wiesbaden, returning for the spring reviews of the army. The Crown Princess has been advised by her physicians to make a prolonged sojourn in Italy.

Another secession from the Gladstone Cabinet is announced in the person of the Earl of Morley, who was Commissioner in Italy.

Burns, Hyndman, Champion, and Williams, the London Socialist leaders, were acquitted on Saturday of having incited the Trafalgar Square riots.

It is reported that a match has been arranged between Princess Clementina, the fourteen year old daughter of the King of Belgium, and Prince Albert Victor, the eldest son of the Prince of Wales, who is twenty-two years of age.

DELUSIVE HEADINGS.—The average heading to newspaper articles is fast beginning to take on all the characteristics of a hollow snare and sad-eyed mockery. A column article made its appearance, a few days ago, simultaneously in the most influential newspapers in the county under the glaring caption of "Gold in our old Fields." Just as we had taken the pick-axe and spade off the parlor mantlepiece and were preparing to sally forth into our old fields, we noticed that the article began with the words, "Health is better than wealth," and ended with "For sale by all druggists for 25 cents," and went out and got a clove instead.

SEVEN WONDERS OF THE WORLD.—A married man, when asked to name the seven wonders of the world, replied as follows, says the Philadelphia Herald:—A woman who will wear a spring bonnet the second season without growling. The man who tells the truth when he says he never tasted liquor. The temperance lecturer who is willing to talk for the good of the world when there is no cash in view. The minister who gives all his marriage fees into the missionary fund. The female who doesn't think every woman but herself looks like a fright when wearing a big bustle. The lawyer who cannot lie without blushing. The old maid who never cried herself to sleep because she never married.

The Evening Mercury

A Veracious Minister.

Mr. Chapleau is by no means a scrupulous man. He never enjoyed that character while a member of the Government at Quebec, but was supposed to have as accommodating a conscience as it was possible for any public man to possess. He seems bent on keeping up that character in the wider arena at Ottawa. The latest instance of his crookedness is the confession he made in reference to the mental condition of Riel when confined in the Longue Pointe Lunatic Asylum. In the course of his speech in the Riel case he said:—

I have received documents which I hesitate to place before the House, though it would not be so improper as the presentation of a letter from a juryman disclosing the deliberations of the jury. He said, I have the evidence. I have not asked for it. I have never inquired about it. I knew it. I did not want to ask for it. It was sent to me and given to me. One of those documents I ask permission of the House to read. I have said that they did not at all influence my own feeling about the case—my own conviction about the case, or the conclusion to which I arrived; but they may assist the honorable member for West Durham as being confirmatory of the evidence of a friendly juryman at Regina. This is a letter dated 19th March, 1886, from Longue Pointe. It is given by the physician who is the attending physician of the asylum since the opening of the institution.

After some further observations Mr. Chapleau read a certificate from Dr. Perrault, beginning in these words:

I, the undersigned physician of the Asylum St. Jean de Dieu, certify that a few days after the entrance of Louis Riel in this asylum, I perceived that with him insanity was simulated.

Mr. Chapleau asks:

How is it that a man who has been visiting doctor to an institution, and knew a patient was not insane, and yet allowed him to remain in the institution where he was shamming insanity? I ask the honorable members, and all those who know the circumstances under which the man was detained in the asylum, whether it would have been prudent, even in the public interest, to have at that time revealed the secret and set the man at large? It was in 1877. The amnesty had been proclaimed, but the murder had not been forgotten, and it would not have been in the interest of anyone that this poor man should have been made a target for the bullet which would have been sent in revenge for the murder of Scott. I hear some honorable members laugh, I wish they had been in the Province of Quebec, in the councils of some of their own friends and some who came to me as Provincial Secretary, and told me, in fact, that the man was Louis Riel. But his name had not been made public for the reason I have mentioned. They said that his retention in the asylum would not be made a reproach to me.

Now, it turns out, according to the statement of the Quebec L'Etendard, that Dr. Perrault could have known nothing of Riel's condition. It states that he was received into the asylum on the 16th of March, 1876, and was sent out on the 19th of May following, having been taken directly to the asylum at Beauport. It states, besides, that Dr. Perrault was not appointed physician to the asylum till September, 1879, that is to say more than three years after Riel had left it. It will be seen from this, therefore, that Mr. Chapleau not only produced a sham certificate, but made the confession that he was a party to a fraud in keeping Riel in the asylum when, as he states, he knew that he was not insane. He thus, by a series of untruths seeks to excuse the conduct of the Government of which he was a member, by producing a false certificate, and then by further lying seeks to escape from the degrading position in which he has placed himself before the country. Verily, those who know him best speak the truth when they say that Mr. Chapleau would not stick at anything to accomplish his purpose.

According to some correspondence laid before Parliament the question as to Canada having the right of prohibiting Chinese immigration without referring to the Imperial authorities has been settled. In 1884 the British Columbia Legislature passed a prohibitory law. It was disallowed by the Dominion, the Minister of Justice saying that the question should be laid before the Imperial authorities. Lord Derby in a despatch states that the subject is one on which the Canadian Government has a perfect right to legislate and control.

It seems that the Mennonite Colony in Manitoba is in a thriving condition. Mr. Shantz, of Waterloo, the immigration agent who took charge of these Mennonites when they first came to Canada, gave some evidence the other day before the Parliamentary Committee on immigration and colonization. When these people first came into Southern Manitoba they lived in small villages of say about 24 families, and worked the land together as a common, each sharing in the proceeds. They, however, discovered they made a mistake, and now took up homesteads and settled the same as farmers did. Some of the younger people were now speaking English and a few were attending English schools. With but few exceptions they were satisfied with the country. In Waterloo the Government had loaned the Mennonites $96,400 to tide over their difficulties, getting security for the money from people resident in that locality. Of that sum there was some $65,000 paid back, and he was in a position to say, being secretary of the committee, that upward of $20,000 would be paid in the course of two or three months. There was little prospect of further immigration as the young men could not get away now, owing to the Russian war troubles. Some few families left and went to Kansas.

Mr. McCarthy's bill to appoint Commissioners who to a certain extent would have control of the railways has been again shelved. This is the third time that Mr. McCarthy has brought it up, and he now consents to withdraw it on the promise of the Government that during the recess they will institute an inquiry into the whole subject. We do not know whether Mr. McCarthy is sincere or not in his advocacy of the bill, but one thing is clear, the Government is opposed to it in its present shape and he had to accept the proposal to withdraw it in the meantime or have it defeated.

Farmers will remember that great promises were held out to them of enhanced prices by the operation of the National Policy, but instead of this what do they find? That while the taxation has been steadily going up the prices of all kinds of produce have been as steadily going down. This is how Sir Richard Cartwright put it in his budget speech:—"We have not got absolutely perfect statistics, but I think I am correct in saying that, apart from what they raise for their own use our farmers throughout the Dominion probably sell about $100,000,000 of produce, part for export and part for consumption by the remainder of the population. Now, I am in the judgment of the House whether I am not correct in saying that there has been a reduction of probably 20 per cent. at least on the average value of those farm products, and while the hon. gentleman and his friends have been adding many millions to the taxation of those farmers, the reduction of prices to which I have alluded has reduced the selling value of those persons' produce by probably at least $20,000,000 a year.."

Mr. Jamieson has again introduced his bill to obtain certain amendments to the Scott Act. It is complained by temperance people and friends of the Act that the law does not provide the necessary machinery to enforce it, and that therefore the Government should supply the same. Parliament will be asked to do so by Mr. Jamieson's bill. Last session the measure was virtually destroyed by the Senate, through the adding of a clause for the sale of beer and light wines in Scott Act constituencies, and had a narrow majority in the Commons. On Wednesday night when the bill for regulating the sale of liquor by druggists in counties where the Canada Temperance Act is in force came up, the Hon. Mr. Scott, the father of the act, opposed it on the ground that the act provided ample machinery for obtaining liquor for mechanical and medicinal purposes. He held that this bill was nothing more than a cunning device to enable druggists to turn their places of business into dram shops. He held that if this bill passed it would go far to destroy the means provided by the Temperance Act for the suppression of the traffic in intoxicating liquor. He moved the six months' hoist, but this was defeated by a majority of six, and the bill was read a third time. It is quite probable that it will pass the House of Commons. It is said that Dr. Orton proposes to introduce a bill to amend the Scott Act by allowing ale, porter, lager, beer, cider and light wines to be sold in counties in which the said act is in force. The liquor interest have been very busy lately throughout the country in getting up petitions in favor of this light wine and beer clause. Quite a number of these were presented to Parliament this week, and some were very numerously signed.

The Canadian Sportsman edited by the notorious King Dodds, contained in a late number a foul attack on the London Advertiser for stating that in 1879 Dodds had been paid a certain sum of money by the Government for services as a sessional clerk, which services he never performed. Dodds denies the statement point blank and, moreover, is very abusive in his language towards our contemporary. In its issue of Tuesday the Advertiser being thus challenged gives all the facts in the case, which fully substantiate its first statements. These are that Dodds went to Ottawa very near the close of the session of 1879. He went to Mr. Patrick, the Clerk of the House, and told him that he had been engaged as a sessional clerk. Mr. Patrick informed him that he was not needed as he required only twelve sessional clerks and the Government at the beginning of the session had given him about a hundred! Mr. Patrick, however, was instructed to put him on the list. Immediately after Dodds wanted to leave, but Mr. Patrick informed him that he would get no pay unless he did some work for it. Dodds, however, went to the Government and soon made matters all right. They told Mr. Patrick that as it was near the end of the session he had better ante-date Dodds' appointment. This was done. He was given credit for forty days work and was paid $160 for which he did no work, but went off immediately and stumped the county of Monck. It remains to be seen what Dodds has to say in reply to this clear and positive statement.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, April 8.

In the Commons to-day Mr. Charlton's Bill to punish seduction and like offences was referred to a select committee.

Mr. Orton's resolution in favor of establishing Farmers' Banks whose capital should be mainly made up of mortgages on real estate occasioned a lively discussion, in the course of which an effort was made to induce the Finance Minister (Mr. McLelan) to explain the policy of the Government on the question, but without success. The motion that the committee rise, which would have killed the measure if carried, was lost by 16 yeas to 24 nays. The resolutions were carried, and a Bill founded upon them read a first time.

Mr. McCarthy's Bill to establish a Court of Railway Commissioners took up nearly all the evening. The arguments used were the same as in former sessions on the same measure. The Minister of Justice announced that the Government would appoint a commission to enquire into the difficulties and the best way of meeting them, and on the strength of this promise Mr. McCarthy withdrew the Bill.

OTTAWA April 9.

The Scott Act amendments were brought before the House to-day by Mr. Jamieson, who succeeds Prof. Foster as the apostle of temperance in the Commons. He explained that the provisions were analogous to those before the House last year, but there were some additional ones. The first amendment was to remedy a defect in the present law by allowing the filing of petitions for the act to be done at one registry office merely, where two offices are located in the same county, and not requiring filing in both as at present. The act was inapplicable to British Columbia and it was proposed to remedy that; while in Ontario there were some provisional judicial districts and the act required amendments to permit its submission in them. It was also intended to allow druggists and others to sell in quantities less than one quart and to impose a penalty on medical men giving a colorable certificate. It was also proposed to extend the search clause of the Act to counties in which the old Dunkin Act is in force, and to extend the right to search to any hour of the day or night, at any time where there is evidence of the presence of illicit liquor, instead of limiting the search to daytime as at present. Another amendment was to provide a set of forms for justices of the peace to prevent errors by those magistrates unlearned in the law, and it was proposed to divide the penalty imposed upon offenders evenly between the prosecutor and the local municipality in which the offence occurred.

Mr. Orton took occasion to refer to the articles in The Globe respecting him, and said he had taken the law into his own hands, and that if newspaper correspondents were not checked by the House this must be the rule. Mr. Trow thought he should not urge others to follow his example, as he had not been successful in his undertaking.

The Bill to authorize grades on the Esquimalt and Nananimo Railway sharper than allowed by the contract, was read a third time after a short discussion.

The Bill respecting the extension of the Intercolonial and Stellarton-Pictou, caused discussion lasting from early in the afternoon to midnight, except for an hour after recess, occupied in reading Private Bills. The Opposition contended this measure should be referred to the Railway Committee in order that full information upon it should be given to members, and the details intelligently discussed, but the Government refused, and the Bill was passed in Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Innes' Bill to amend the Act incorporating the Guelph Junction Railway passed its second reading.

The House adjourned at 12.10 a.m.

CHAPTER XPIII.

GATHERING CLOUDS.

By the time Percival had been married a month he began to recall all he had ever said to Helen about the folly of acting on impulse, and he wondered why all these wise things had not come into his head at the proper time instead of waiting till it was too late. He had no words strong enough to express his sense of the folly of which he had been guilty in letting himself be overcome by Alice's display of emotion. Why, in heaven's name, he asked himself, could he not have behaved more like an ordinary man? Why had he not talked to Alice with calm common sense, and shown her that things were not nearly so desperate as she imagined in her morbid self-consciousness? Why had he not told her that he did not and never could love her, so that their marriage would only make them both miserable, and if she would only exert herself she would soon overcome her feelings? Why, he asked himself, could he not have done that? Anyone else would have done it; why was he so constituted that he could not, that he had feelings about women which made it impossible for him to see one in trouble, or to find it was in his power to help her, without immediately laying his life and purse at her feet? Alice had spared his purse, but in the widest sense of the word she had taken his life; and many things went to make him believe that she was one of those irresponsible people who are not to be trusted with anything belonging to another person.

A month spent in daily, constant, unceasing intercourse with Alice had served to disabuse him of any idea he might once have cherished that when their lives and interests became common, points of sympathy and fellow-feeling would arise which had not at first been visible. It was not so. Day by day the gulf fixed between Alice and himself grew wider and deeper. They had not an interest in common; not one single thing did they look at with the same eyes. On no subject, be it ever so trifling, or never so grave, did they think alike. A month had shown him all this; he hardly liked to think of the state at which they would have arrived at the end of, say, ten years, and that was perhaps only a third part of the time they were to spend together. He found himself wondering one day which would be the hardest lot—to be physically bound to a person from whom mentally you were separated as far as the heaven from the earth, or to be parted by wide seas from a person with whom you were mentally in sympathy.

He obstinately forebore from illustrating the problem in his own person, but it was very often present in his mind.

None of all this was allowed to appear. In Alice's presence, if sometimes silent and serious, he was never sarcastic or bitter; and the consciousness that spiritually they were not united at all, never prevented his paying her the most constant and unwearying attention. He was always at her service, her most extravagant and ridiculous whims were gratified promptly and uncriticised. Yet even so soon after their marriage as this, many a man who had married her professedly for love would have lost all patience with her and have given her but scant grace. So no one suspected that anything was wrong with this rather strangely assorted couple, this young and magnificently beautiful woman, and a man with prematurely grey hair, certainly not remarkably handsome, and with a pale, rather stern face. For Alice's amiability was unfailing, and Percival's tireless attention and exquisite politeness to his wife threw dust in everyone's eyes.

Yes, Alice was charming. If her husband felt any want of sympathy between them it was apparently unnoticed by her. She had won the game on which she had staked so heavily, and success made her radiant. Her beauty shone out more resplendent than ever, and she talked and laughed and rubbed her husband the wrong way with the most charming grace and the utmost innocency in the world. Percival was really astonished at her gentleness and sunny temper, the many ways she had of showing her gratitude to him. He had not believed Alice capable of such long continued amiability, and he hoped it might last. Even though under the balm of her manner was the raw of their hopeless mental unsuitability.

The most wonderful of all was that she seemed for the time being to have lost her taste for society. She was happiest alone with her husband, and she appeared to take pleasure in studying what would please him, and trying to accomplish the hopeless task of entering into his thoughts and inner life, and liking the things he liked.

This state of things lasted just one month, and then came a sudden change of which Percival sought in vain for the cause. It had escaped his notice that for a few days his wife had been unusually quiet and thoughtful. The first thing which he knew was that she suddenly and without a word of explanation returned to the gay life which before her marriage she had loved so well. They were in the south of France, and knew most of the people who were staying at the various hotels of the town in which they were just then. Alice took her place in society, and all in a moment became the queen of it. From living a life of quietness with her husband she plunged into a perfect sea of dissipation. Nothing was too gay for her, she went everywhere and received more people in their own rooms than Percival had the slighest idea she knew.

This went on for some time. Husband and wife rarely met, and when they met were still more rarely alone. Percival when he married Alice had made up his mind that their lives would have little in common, and he had resolved to leave her full liberty in the matter. He was sure she would resent any interference from him, and he wished her to enjoy herself as much as she could. So he stood aloof, taking no more part in his wife's life than he was obliged; but none the less heartily tired of it.

When they were married they had talked of spending some months abroad. Percival had suggested it because he could not so soon make up his mind to installing a new mistress at Brantwood, and Alice had wished it because she was tired of Osmotherley, and she wanted to forget much that had taken place there.

Well how is it? We are inclined to doubt it, either this or the other aphorism. "Fortune favors the brave," must be wrong. We think Shakespeare covers the whole ground when he says, "There is a tide in the affairs of man which taken at the Flood leads on to Fortune."

IRISH HOME RULE.

The Scene Between Messrs Chamberlain and Gladstone.

LONDON, April 10.—The debate last night was the most bitter in Parliament for a long time. Mr. Chamberlain's speech was the sensation of the evening. It passed into a personal quarrel between him and Mr. Gladstone. He began by explaining his reasons for joining and quitting the Cabinet. He joined the Cabinet at Mr. Gladstone's strong request. The letter he had written to Mr. Gladstone he read to the House. He then proceeded to explain further that when he learned the Government scheme, it contained, he said, with delicate intonation, a very startling proposal, involving the issue of £120,000,000 in consols. The last words had hardly passed his lips before Mr. Gladstone sprang to his feet. "That," he said in effect, "was an explanation the right hon. gentleman had no right to make." A painful scene followed, out of which it was impossible for the spectators to separate the right and the wrong. Mr. Chamberlain claimed that he had held from Mr. Gladstone permission to read certain letters, especially one of March 15. This one Mr. Gladstone could not recollect. Mr. Chamberlain, however, insisted that permission had been given, and repeated because given the first time in equivocal terms. Matters were evidently at a deadlock. Mr. Chamberlain, pointing his finger at the Prime Minister, said in low voice, but with perfect distinctness: "I beg to ask my right honorable friend whether he wishes to withdraw that permission now." But Mr. Gladstone could not recollect what letter it was, and the Tories sneered aloud. The quarrel was serious enough by this time. Passion was steadily making Mr. Chamberlain hoarse. "How can I explain," he cried, "with my hands tied behind me." His speech was a weighty indictment of the Government scheme. If he had only stopped before passing on to his own alternative proposals it would have left a rent in the measure. The climax of his speech, however, was a blow at the Prime Minister's position in 1860. "Sir," said he, "I remember that time when in its greatest crisis, when it was in the most terrible moment of its fate, my right hon. friend counselled the disintegration of the United States." Mr. Gladstone said, "I did not counsel it." Mr. Chamberlain said, "my right hon. friend says he did not counsel it, but gave the weight of his great name to the statement that they had become separate nations. I dare say," continued Mr. Chamberlaim, "my right hon. friend himself would admit that in that view of the situation he made a mistake." "Hear, hear," said Mr Gladstone. Said Mr. Chamberlain, syllable by syllable, his finger levelled at the Prime Minister's bowed head: "Are you certain he is not making a mistake again?" It was a tremendous scene. The Tories, of course, yelled like madmen. From the Liberal benches arose several cries of "shame," directed at Mr. Chamberlain. The latter, however, had more shots to deliver. Levelling his finger again towards the front bench, almost inarticulate with passion, he demanded, "what should have been said of him, if, like some servile partisans who disgrace political life, he had remained on that bench, pretending to serve his country with a bit in his mouth?" This was aimed directly at Sir William Vernon Harcourt, and produced a tremendous sensation.

The press generally, and all classes, including members of the Government, consider the cardinal defeat to be the abolition of Irish representation in the Imperial Parliament.

The amount of the Irish contribution will be as follows: One-fifteenth of the annual debt charge of £22,000,000 will be £1,466,000; one-fifteenth of the army and navy charge, including the war notes and also excluding that for volunteers and yeomanry, would be £1,666,000; the amount of civil charges will entail upon Ireland £110,000, or a total charge, properly imperial, of £3,242,000. The Irish budget will be as follows:—Customs, £1,880,000; excise, £4,300,000; stamps, £600,000: income tax, £550,000, and non-taxed revenue, including post office, £1,020,000; total, £8,350,000. Against that the imperial contribution is £3,242,000; constabulary, £1,000,000; civil charges, £2,510,000. Finally, the collection of revenue is £834,000, making a total charge of £7,588,000. A ¾ per cent. sinking fund amounts to £360,000, giving a total charge of £7,946,000, against a total income of £8,350,000, or a surplus remaining of £404,000.

MONTREAL, April 11.—At a meeting of the Montreal branch of the Irish National League this afternoon the following cables were ordered to be sent:

The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone:

The Irish National League in Montreal send you thanks for your pronouncement in favor of home rule, and wish you godspeed, life and strength to carry the measure through.

To Charles Stewart Parnell:

The Irish National League in Montreal extends its congratulations on this advance of the cause, and pledge you support until Ireland is free. Have already forwarded $1,000 to parliamentary fund, send to day another $650.

The scheme as it at present stands is said to be unsatisfactory even to the Nationalists.

Among the avowed opponents to Mr. Gladstone's scheme in the Liberal press are:—The Spectator, Pall Mall Gazette, Echo, Scotsman, and Manchester Guardian.

Cardinal Manning has expressed himself in opposition to that feature of Mr. Gladstone's bill which excludes Irish representatives from sitting at Westminster.

The Orangemen of Armagh made a public demonstration Saturday against Mr. Gladstone's proposals. They adopted rasolutions denouncing the Premier and declaring their allegiance to the empire.

The effect of the proposals upon business has not been very encouraging. Merchants and traders in Dublin and Belfast especially regard the measure with impatience and dread. Prices on the stock exchanges are depressed, especially the quotation of Bank of Ireland stock, which has fallen a sovereign a share. The bank is largely a creditor on mortgages of Irish estates.

Negotiations for a coalition are making better progress, Lord Hartington accepting Mr. Goschen's platform for a Whig-Conservative Ministry.

Lord Hartington concluded his speech on Friday night by exclaiming:—"I believe that now, at all events, the people of this country will require that their representatives shall, in relation to Irish affairs, agree to sink all minor differences, and unite as one man to hand down to our successors the great empire compact and complete as we have inherited it from our forefathers." The Tories did not fail to put a world of meaning into this invitation. There were hats waved by the Liberals when he sat down.

The British Home Rule Association, of which Earl Ashburnham is president, is receiving adhesions, and has become a powerful element in popular politics. The association is preparing to make a vigorous campaign throughout the country to advocate Mr. Gladstone's bill. Lord Ashburnham is a Liberal-Conservative, and is a member of most of the exclusive aristocratic clubs, where he has been boycotted since he adopted the advocacy of Home Rule for Ireland.

THE ST. LOUIS TRAGEDY.

Eight Persons Killed—Incendiary Strikers—Jay Gould's Guilt.

ST. LOUIS, April 11.—Andrew Jones, a Knight of Labor, shot yesterday, is not expected to live. He will make the eighth person killed.

The Cairo Shortline Company will be compelled to send their yard workmen fifty miles out from the city to escape the boycott with which the hotels and boarding houses are threatened if they harbor non-strikers.

Coal miners along the entire line of the Illinois and St. Louis road have gone out to aid in carrying out the purposes of the Knights of Labor to prevent the Gould lines carrying or using the product of their labor.

The Louisville and Nashville R. R. Co. advertise for deputy marshals at East St. Louis stating that "only those having plenty of grit and mean business need apply." The Executive of the Knights of Labor in a telegram to Jay Gould pointed to Friday's affray as an evidence of how well this advertisement had been answered. The telegram concludes: "By your actions in refusing the peaceful negotiations solicited by the board for arbitrators you and you alone must be held responsible by the world for the lives of these innocent people."

Some oil sheds and a round house were destroyed by fire, in East St. Louis on Saturday. The total number of cars burned at the several yards were forty-two, representing a total loss of about $32,000; exclusive of the merchandise of the fourteen cars on the Illinois and St. Louis road. All were loaded and their contents utterly destroyed. The hose of the fire department was cut several times and the firemen finally had to leave the scene of the fires.

The inquest on the bodies of the seven people killed Friday afternoon by the deputy sheriff in the yards of the Louisville & Nashville railway in East St. Louis began at 2.20 yesterday. Four or five witnesses were examined. All agreed that Deputy Hewlett fired the first shot and most of them said that no stones were thrown and that there was no provocation for the shooting other than the yelling and jeering of the crowd.

At Chicago Saturday night about 15,000 workingmen assembled and passed resolutions denouncing Jay Gould and favoring the eight hour movement.

Alarm in India.

LONDON, April 10.—The Army and Navy Gazette has published an article which causes quite a sensation. It states that advices from India indicate uneasiness among the European officials stationed in that country, owing to the existence of Brahmin plots against the English regime. The spirit of the native Indian press is increasingly hostile to the English. The agitation for an increase of the native armies and for arming the native soldiers with artillery of improved patterns is very formidable to the interests of the foreign-born residents of some portions of the provinces. The reduction of the strength of the English garrisons, owing to the military necessities in Burmah, has added to the alarm. The Gazette declares that it will not be wise for the Government to treat this as a sensational and unfounded report. It declares that the situation demands a watchful eye and a firm hand. The number of Brahmins involved is laced at 500,000.

Excited British Columbians.

VICTORIA, B.C., April 10.—There is tremendous popular excitement at New Westminter. The Legislature, just before adjourning, passed a bill prohibiting all companies chartered under the act of the Local Parliament from employing Chinese on works. Among the companies was the Canadian Pacific Railway which proposed to build a branch line to New Westminter. As soon as it was apprised of the anti-Chinese bill the company refused to build the line. People rose in their wrath last night, hanged the members of the Legislature in effigy, and afterwards burned the figures. Tar and feathers are said to a premium on the mainland.

Among the latest inventions, says the New England Grocer, is that of a match which may be used over again an indefinite number of times, the wood being, it is claimed, soaked with a peculiar chemical solution which makes such re-uses practicable.

"What is McGregor's Speedy cure for"?
It is for dyspepsia, liver complaint, indigestion, biliousness, and it is the finest blood purifier in the known world to-day.
"Does it give salisfaction ?"
We cannot point to one instance where it did not.
"Where does it have the largest sale ?"
Right in the city of Hamilton where it is manufactured, there has been over one thousand dollars' worth sold in the last year retail, and the great majority of the sales are by one recommending it to another. For sale at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle by Thos. S. Petrie, Druggist.

DEATH has been busy among the principals of Scottish Universities lately. Not much more than a year has passed since Sir Alexander Grant died; Principal Shairn expired in September; Dr Pirie, of Aberdeen, in November last; and lately news came of the demise of Principal Tulloch of St Andrew's. The whole Scotch nation will feel the loss of the latter keenly, he having been an able liberal ecclesiostic as well as an advanced scholar. His great influence was always on the side of tolerance and progress.

JUBILEE CONCERTS.—In the Paisley street Methodist Church, on Wednesday and Thursday, April 14th and 15th, a concert will be given by the celebrated Ball family of Jubilee singers. The Buffalo Times speaks of them thusly:—"The Ball Family is undoubtedly one of the finest troupes that appear before the people. It is a rare thing to find so much talent in any combination, and it is simply marvellous when it is found in a single family. Every style of voice is represented from the richest bass to the most exquisite soprano."

WENT ON THEIR WAY.—This morning as the fast express on the G. T. R. east steamed into the station P. C. Flowers noticed three suspicious looking characters jump from it at the Huskisson street crossing. He at once made a descent on the trio, and finding out that they had beat their way from the west, they were ordered to shake the mud of the city from their feet instantly or else a worse thing might befall them. They took the hint and made a rush for the train, which they succeeded in overtaking as it went out of the depot. The last seen of the three worthies they were was clinging to like grim death to the rear end of the eastward bound train.

THE LATE JEANIE BROWNLOW.—The family of Mr. Wm. Brownlow must have the sympathy of the entire community in their very sad and sore bereavement. The death of Miss Brownlow has a peculiar sadness attached to it, inasmuch as, for about two weeks it was a struggle between life and death. Hope and despair alternated. On Sunday afternoon the last ray of hope of recovery vanished. She peacefully passed away to be "Forever with the Lord." Death's victim in this case was one universally beloved. Her sweet and amiable disposition, her sunny face, her beautiful Christian life, her fidelity to duty, and her quiet resignation to the will of God in the hour of death, all combine to give a very tender pathos to the grief, now felt by all who knew her. She was a consistent and useful member of the Baptist Church for about seven years. For eight years she filled, with great acceptance, the position of organist in the church. At the time of her death she was President of the Mission Band, and Treasurer of the Dorcas Society. The funeral service will be held in the Baptist Church to-morrow at half-past two o'clock. The Rev. Mr. Weir will conduct the service, and will be assisted by the Rev. D. McGregor, who, in the absence of her own pastor, visited the departed during her illness.—Com.

Sabbath School Entertainment

A Splendid Programme and a Large Audience.

Dublin street church was filled to the doors last night on the occasion of the 11th anniversary entertainment of the children of the Sunday School. The raised platform which had been erected for the previous Sunday service was filled by the infant and intermediate classes, and a scene that alone was worth the price of admission was in full view of the congregation. Precisely at 8 o'clock two young gentlemen undertook upon themselves the duty of nominating and electing a chairman in the person of the "biggest boy in the house," their secretary, Mr. C. W. Kelly, a position which the Rev. Dr. Griffin filled on account of the great amount of work Mr. Kelly had on hand that evening in connection with the programme. After the opening prayer, the programme was entered into most heartily. The singing of the school was highly pleasing, and showed Mr. Wheatley, the song leader, to be the right man for the position. A number of recitations, dialogues; and singing by the infant class, were gone through with which were most pleasingly rendered.

Mr. C. W. Kelly, Secretary of the School, presented the 11th annual report which gave a very complete account of the year's progress. One teacher and one scholar had died during the year, and there were now on the roll 442 persons, the average attendance being 358. The school was divided into 37 classes. The financial report showed the total receipts to be $395.53 and the expenditure $376.82, leaving a balance on hand of $18.71. A new library had been purchased during the year, and $50 had been paid in advance for papers for 1886, which left the school finances in a very satisfactory condition. The infant class under the management of Mrs. McConnell, and a valued assistant, Miss Kenny, was a great feature in the school. The necessity of providing more suitable accommodation for this class was referred to, and it is the intention of the Board at its earliest convenience to erect a suitable room as it is altogether too small for the comfort of the little people. The officers for the present year are Superintendent, Rev. Dr. Griffin; Asst.-Supt., E. R. Bollert; Sec., C. W. Kelly; Asst. Sec., Jos. Gowdy; Treas., H. Welch; Librarian, John R. Robertson; Assistant Librarian, Wm. Shepherd; Leader of Song, Wm. Wheatley; Organist, Miss Wheatley; Blackboard artist, Mr. Payne. A resolution in reference to the retiring Superintendent, Mr. J. H. Dietz, was also entered in the report, tendering the thanks of the teachers and officers to him for his untiring work in the school during the past year.

A couple of new features were introduced in the shape of a motto tableau and an auction sale. In the tableau eighteen little girls neatly dressed in white with sashes of varied colors appeared, each one bearing a banner with a single letter in the centre on one side, and when standing close together presented the motto "Jesus is our Shepherd." On the reverse side a representation of the rainbow was shown, and the countermarching and singing of the little girls while getting their banners in position was nicely done, the scene itself being a very pretty one. As each one spoke her piece, or as the class sang in concert, there was not only a cheerful blending of colors, but a moral lesson in every utterance. In the auction sale Mr. Kelly acted as the auctioneer, and received bids among the audience from seven young ladies and gentlemen who represented "Fashion," "Crime," "Intemperance," "Infidelity," "Education," "Ambition," and "Religion," each one speaking to their bid. Finally "Religion" was declared the purchaser, an announcement which brought out a hearty cheer from the children on the platform and the waving of a hundred handkerchiefs. The excitement spread to the congregation, and in an instant the organist struck up the grand old tune "All hail the power of Jesu's name," which was most heartily sung by all present. This was the concluding piece. The national anthem and doxology being sung, the Rev. W. F. Clarke pronounced the benediction. The proceedings terminated shortly after 10 o'clock.

It was the general remark that great credit is due to Misses Oldham and Goodfellow and Messrs. Payne and Wheatley for the excellent programme prepared, and the untiring energy and work done in bringing the anniversary to such a successful issue.

It was also a matter of general regret that Rev. Mr. Carson, who was to take several positions on the programme, was taken suddenly ill that evening and forbidden by his medical adviser to be present. It is the general wish that the rev. gentleman will soon be round again.

Tailors, Dress, Mantle and Fancy Goods makers are intensely delighted with the wonderful work done in their special lines by the Davis Vertical Feed Machine; work no other can do; free trial proves it. J. C. McLean, Temple of Music. d2w1

BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The Board of Education met on Monday evening. Present—Messrs. Kilgour, Murton, Bruce, Mitchell, G. Skinner, Dr. McGuire, Fairbank, Spragge, Stewart, Mackenzie, Knowles, and Rev. Father Doherty, D. D.

In the absence of the chairman, Mr. Knowles was appointed to take his place for the evening.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From. Ald. Keough, Secretary of the Separate School Board, stating that the Rev. W. J. Doherty had been appointed by that Board a High School Trustee.

From Principal Tytler, stating that Harvey Webber and Robt. Wilson had been expelled from school for insubordination to their teachers.

From Mrs. Geo. Webber, stating that her son Harvey, had his conduct marked good in nearly all his reports, and she did not think it was right that he should be whipped for having an unprepared lesson.

From the Department in reference to the grant to the Collegiate Institute and other matters.

Principal Tytler submitted a statement of appliances and books purchased for the Collegiate Institute since the last report to the Board. He also asked for further instructions from the Board in reference to future additions to the library and Laboratory, which the Board by resolution had at a previous meeting decided to make during the present year. He called the attention of the Board to the circular of the Department giving the "Qualifications for first class grading" and that a portion of the Government grant would henceforth be distributed on the basis of buildings, furniture, &c.

From Capt. Clarke, stating that he intended getting up an entertainment on the 24th of May, with school children under his tuition in calisthenics, and asking the Board to assist him in the undertaking. From the petition presented the entertainment promises to be a most interesting one. An entertainment will also be held in the evening of the same day in the City Hall.

From James Davison, mathematical teacher, asking that his salary be increased from $900 to $1,000. When he accepted the position some eight years ago it was with the understanding that his salary should be raised.

Mr. Tytler testified to Mr. Davison's abilities and also remarked that he had been told by the School Inspector that if he had the picking of a master Mr. Davison would be chosen first. Several of the members bore out Mr. Tytler's statements regarding Mr. Davison.

Moved by Mr. Fairbank, seconded by Mr. Stewart, that Mr. Davison's salary be increased to $1,000. Carried.

Moved by Messrs. Bruce and Murton, that the communication of Mrs. Webber be referred to the School Management Committee. Carried.

The other matters were referred.

Several accounts were read and were referred afterwards by the chairman to the Finance Committee.

ESTIMATES FOR THE YEAR.

Mr. Mitchell, chairman of the Finance Committee, reported: We have examined the following accounts and found them correct:—Messrs. Kloepfer & Richardson, coal for Central School, $227.61; the same for coal to the North Ward School, $28.68.

Your committee also beg leave to present the estimates for the support of the Collegiate Institute and Public Schools for the year 1886, and recommend that the Secretary forward the same to the city.

Messrs. Mitchell and Mackenzie moved the adoption of the report.

Mr. Skinner objected to several of the items, and some cross-firing took place, when it was Moved by Mr. Skinner, seconded by Dr. McGuire that the Board go into Committee of the Whole on the estimates. Carried.

Mr. Bruce was called to the chair and read item by item the estimates for the Collegiate Institute.

The first contention was on the amendment of Messrs. Skinner and Fairbank that the estimates for salaries be increased to $4,600 instead of $4,500 as it originally stood. Mr. Skinner held that the sum was too small and that it would be better to have the figure that he mentioned put down than to have the Board ask for more money from the Council during the year. On the other hand it was held that this estimate was merely an estimate, and would in no way affect the actual and necessary expenditure for carrying on the work of education. Mr. Skinner also took objection to the large amount put down for sundries. No reports had been received from committee's and the Board were going blindfold in the matter. Seventy tons of coal was considered too much for the High School. And the money to be spent on the High School grounds was not enough. The place was an eye-sore and the swamp below where all the refuse of the city was dumped was a hot-bed of fever and disease.

Many other items were contested but they all passed as in the estimate.

After the Collegiate Institute estimates were read it was moved that the Committee rise and report. Mr. Bruce left the chair and while so doing a member added with leave to sit again. On Mr. Knowles resuming the chair and reading a portion of the Collegiate Institute estimate it was agreed that the estimates should pass. The chairman remarked that that settled it, and declared the estimates carried. Messrs. Skinner, Fairbank and Dr. McGuire held that it was only the estimates for the Collegiate Institute that were carried, and that those for the Public Schools had not as yet been investigated. Mr. Knowles said he had declared the estimates passed. The gentlemen complaining, had a remedy in their hands. They could appeal to the Board if he was wrong and he was perfectly willing to abide by its decision. After some further discussion the matter dropped.

MANAGEMENT.

Mr. Murton reported for the Management Committee, stating that a commercial master had been paid $17.10. Adopted.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Rev. Dr. Torrance reported as follows for the Public Schools: On roll, 1,375 for March, being 23 more than for the corresponding month of 1885, of these 698 were boys and 677 girls. The total aggregate attendance for the month was 24,692 and the total average was 1,074 nearly. The roll average to each teacher was 53 and the general average 41 and the daily average 47.

COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE.

Mr. Tytler, Principal, reported:—Number of pupils on roll from January 1st, 1886, 229; number in attendance in March, 210; average attendance, boys, 102; girls, 78; total average, 180.

THE BIBLE.

Messrs. Fairbank and Skinner gave notice of motion to the effect that the Word of God be read in the Public Schools and the teachers be instructed to that effect.

NO QUORUM.

Mr. Skinner, seconded by Mr. Fairbank, moved that the Board stand adjourned until the 26th inst.

DEATH OF WM. REHILL.—The Seaforth correspondent of the Clinton New Era, under date of April 9th, has the following in reference to the death of Wm. Rehill, seedsman, who is well known in this neighborhood:—We again this week chronicle the departure from this life of another of our citizens and one who has long been a resident of this place. We refer to Wm. Rehill, the well known seedsman, who died at his residence last Monday after a somewhat severe illness. The funeral took place on Wednesday to the Maitland Bank Cemetery under the auspices of the Canadian Order of Foresters, deceased being a member of that body. The funeral was largely attended. A wife and three children are left to mourn the loss of a husband and father all of whom have the sympathy of the whole community in this the time of their bereavement.

A concert will be given in the lecture room of the Congregational church, on Tuesday evening, April 20th, under the auspices of the Young People's association. d1

The Evening Mercury

TUESDAY EVE'G APRIL 13, 1886.

ACCORDING to a return presented to the Manitoba Legislature, there are 41,895 voters in the electoral districts of that Province. 16,595 are said to be residents, 9,733 non-residents, and 15,567 not designated. It is pretty certain that the latter class are principally non-residents, for it is well known that outside speculators hold a very large proportion of the lands.

No fewer than 5,147 men deserted from the British army last year, but comparatively few of the delinquents were recaptured. Deserters are always severely punished, but a knowledge of this fact does not prevent many soldiers, after a short period of service, from making an attempt to escape from duties that are at best irksome.

QUEEN Victoria has decided to visit Liverpool some time during next month in connection with the International Exhibition to be opened in that city. Her Majesty's last visit to Liverpool took place Oct. 9th, 1851, when she was accompanied by the Prince Consort, the Prince of Wales, the Princess Royal and the Princesses Alice and Helena. The royal party called at Liverpool on their journey from Scotland.

THE Hon. G. W. Ross, Minister of Education, is going over to England and will be present at the Indian and Colonial Exhibition. Ontario is to make a creditable display there of school work and appliances calculated to show the progress of Education in the Province since its first settlement. Mr. Ross will be able to compare these with school exhibits from other British possessions, if there are any, and the result of his observations would be interesting to the country if he should put them in the form of an address when he returns.

MORE politicians than Dr. Orton seem to aspire to the same kind of notoriety as John L. Sullivan has acquired. Sol. White, M. P. P., was indicted at the Essex Assizes for pulling an old man out of a waggon and brutally beating him, and the Grand Jury have brought in a true bill against him. White had the insolence to appear at a dinner given by the Local Bar to Mr. Justice Rose, who was to try him, but his Honor had the good taste to decline to fraternize with an individual who was to appear before him, and so the fighting M. P. P. had to retire. His case has been adjourned till the next assizes.

THE fact that in all the by-elections the Liberals have made gains in Great Britain shows that whatever differences of opinion the Liberal party may have in regard to home rule there is not much truth in the Tory contention that the party is in course of disintegration. In the late Barrow-in-Furness election there was a very large increase in the Liberal vote. At the general elections the Liberal vote stood 2,958, Conservative 2,612—Liberal majority 346. On Tuesday the vote stood, Mr. W. S. Caine, Liberal, received 3,109 votes; Mr. Bruce, Conservative, 2,174 and Mr. Edmunds, Nationalist, 15; or Liberal majority 935. The Nationalist candidate retired before the day of polling.

WE commend the following from the Week to the Arthur Enterprise, which has no faith in the MERCURY'S criticism of the Budget speech. The Enterprise cannot deny the independence of the journal from which this paragraph is taken: "Mr. McLelan's first Budget will not be looked back to as the starting point of a new and brilliant fiscal policy that shall set the wheels of commerce rolling and heap up surplus after surplus in the treasury. On the contrary, it is a particularly dull affair, and one must conclude from it either that the new Finance Minister has no wonderful genius for finance, or, as we prefer to think, that the wings of genius have been clipped to prevent it from soaring into dangerous altitudes on the eve of a general election." But as the Dominion Government deny that there is to be a general election this year we are forced to the other conclusion "that the new Finance Minister has no wonderful genius for finance."

AN attempt has been made to arrive with some accuracy at the loss inflicted directly and indirectly by the strike of the Knights of Labor on the Gould system. The loss of earnings to the railway companies is estimated at $2,200,000, damage to property at $300,000, and expenses for guards $200,000, in all $2,700,000. The strikers have lost at least $500,000 in wages, and the strike has deprived some six thousand other employees of the railway of wages to the amount of about $800,000. These figures cannot, of course, be added to the previous ones, as they only show what part of the loss of $2,800,000 is borne by the men. What the indirect cost to the public is, can only be guessed at from the fact that fifty millions' worth of goods has not been transported, and four or five thousand men employed in various establishments dependent for supplies on the railways have been thrown out of work.

A Talk With the Farmers About Wheat.

SIR,—In response to the invitation of Mr Blue, Deputy Commissioner of Agriculture, I take particular pleasure in drawing the attention of the farmers of Ontario to some important things in connection with spring wheats. This action on our part is the result of very many enquiries, particularly from Grey, Simcoe, and other northern and north-eastern counties during the past winter, as to procuring new varieties of seed grain through Government agency. It has been thought by some that the money placed in the estimates three years ago for importing new varieties of wheats from Europe should now be handled for that purpose, or otherwise appropriated for farm seeds. While the good intentions of the Legislature in this respect have not as yet been followed up to a practical issue, I think it is not a strong point in the smartness of our farmers that no part of the Province took any notice of the unexpended money until broached at the Farmers' Institutes during the past winter.

That the Province of Ontario must remain a prominent grower of the cereals, whatever branch of her agriculture may predominate during any particular period, is no doubt true. Competition does not affect mixed farming in comparison with a specialty such as dairying, and wheat as an absolutely necessary part of systematic crop growing cannot be neglected in its thorough maintenance by a systematic work in selection, change, and even the making of new varieties.

Before submitting the more special subject of this letter, I find it is necessary to say a word on the wholequestion of maintaining the character of wheats in this country.

The science of the subject is not a prominent thing anywhere at present, for what has been done is creditable to the practical farmer more than the botanist. The world as yet is not well up in what it is that affects the conduct of wheats under all the variety of circumstances and physical conditions. Admitting that there is a close analogy in the variation of plants and animals under domestication, the living thing that walks about is easier diagnosed, so to speak, than the standing plant, and must always be more interesting and receive more study than the other. I think one of the uncultivated fields of wheat improvement is the use of the microscope. If quality, permanence, immunity from disease, and other characteristics, are not part and piece of the internal anatomy, then all our masters in physiology have been wrong. Why then the neglect of this simple and efficient test? There are early, late, northern, southern, rich soil, and poor soil types of wheat, that tell of their whereabouts and character by the way the grain and straw are put together. Take an example of this that occurred in Ontario ten years ago in the case of the Egyptian or Eldorado spring wheat, which sold at first for $10 a bushel; had our farmers and millers been familiar with the proper mixture of science and practice needed to detect good and bad in this particular line—and which by the way in this case required no microscope—they would at once have said "no, not even as a gift," because the coarse structure of the broken berry, and the pithy, spongy straw told of things we do not want, and that this wheat could only produce. The prime objects, of course, are to uphold the best types already in use, and if possible to improve them, to also import new varieties, and hybridise in view to establishing new ones. This work should be part the work of Experimental Stations. Crosses amongst wheats have not however made that reliable sort equal to the best original kinds, and at present we cannot ask Ontario to wait for developments in this way. On the other hand the securing of varieties from Europe has been hitherto the mainstay of the continent. Even as far back as fifty years the wheats of America were found to be identical with the native sorts of Britain, and it is something worth knowing that Britain does not owe a single good variety of wheat to any other country. In this connection our present and future experts should remember that varieties are not produced so much by soil or climatic influences, but by what is termed "the prodigality of nature." Climate possibly can only affect in size, vigor and staying power, and when from such circumstances we have a variety doing well, it is not so adapted to change on new conditions of growth, while, on the other hand, others are possessed of so much variability of character as to conform themselves to changes readily. And here allow the remark that the idea of producing the best variety for all districts is contrary to the true principles of improvement, and in order to grow many wheats successfully for a period of years, we must be well acquainted with the conditions that made them, as for example, it may be that high cultivation and thin seeding, or early and thin seeding, are quite opposed to maintaining their whole characteristics. I have to thank Mr. Everested, of England, for several of the foregoing notes. Any country of such importance as ours should systematically introduce and test wheats for its people. No sounder politics than this, and the future should not be neglected in this item. Meantime there is another work demanding greater attention than it has hitherto received. A very common and good practice amongst our farmers is change of seed, one from another and from distant parts of the Province. In this respect our leading seedsmen have also done excellent work. Many of these changes have not succeeded where, it may be, we had become "wise after the event." The wheat regions of Canada are already well outlined, and possessing the range we do of altitude, elevation, forest influence and soil, it seems somewhat strange that no effort has been made to zone or outline the country by the kinds of wheat that characterize them. Such is the variety of these conditions even in Ontario, that we hold in our own hands possibly a greater wheat variety field than Europe itself. At the present moment some of the older standards, such as Red Fife, are said to be doing as well in the North East of the Province as they did a quarter of a century ago, both there, and in the more Southern districts, where now, it is said, to be impossible to secure the crops of former years, or to uphold the many goodnesses of such a variety as the Red Fife. In this there are evidently important facts for the Province—so much so, I think, as to demand immediate scientific enquiry. Be it soil, climate, or other local peculiarities, there is an incalculable national value in the very idea of part of our Province being able to maintain some wheats for an indefinite period in all their original characteristics. The home of a particular variety may as reasonably be met by conditions in the neighborhood of Ottawa as of others, or, indeed, of the very same kind as Russia immediately north of the Black Sea, from which some of the best spring wheats have been obtained.

Another feature of our wheat growing is just beginning to loom up in the distant Northwest. The great field and physical area being covered there so rapidly, is as likely to illustrate the capability of upholding the basis of the same or another wheat life for many years, if not permanently, as that referred to in Ontario.

In place, therefore, of longer waiting and greater risks by importations, it is clearly the duty of Ontario Farmers to immediately secure the good old Fyfe from our North East. Several arguments could be advanced in favor of this recommendation. There is, after all, more chance of success by the improvement of those that have done well with us—both by the selection of particular berries and their re-invigoration by studied conditions. Would it not pay Ontario many hundred-fold to be able to see the old Fyfe days again, and therefore to hold a first class Experimental expert for the purpose indicated?

Your obedient servant,
WILLIAM BROWN.

CHAPTER XPIII.

GATHERING CLOUDS.

As the winter drew near Percival began to wish to go home. Sooner or later he would have to take Alice to Brantwood and let her receive the homage of the neighborhood, so it might as well happen sooner as later. Then, he hated leaving things to themselves, he wanted to be at home to look after his affairs.

Alice, on the contrary, wished to remaim abroad. It had occurred to her that it would be pleasant to winter in Italy. She had talked it over with some of her friends, and had almost promised to meet them either in Florence or Rome. She was looking forward to it with considerable pleasure, and was ill prepared to have her plans thwarted. It was therefore rather a blow to her when one evening, which, by some strange chance, she and her husband were spending alone, Percival said—

"I am thinking of writing to Brantwood next week, Alice, to tell them to prepare for us—kill the fatted calf and make any other preparations they may think necessary to celebrate our return home. What do you say?"

He had spoken half jestingly because the idea of this home-coming was so very distasteful to him.

"What on earth do you mean?" asked Alice, in amazement.

"Why," he replied, "do you not want to go home? Ipshould have thought you were tired of all this racketting about, and would have been glad to go home? We have been away three months, that is a long time."

"Well, yes," he replied frankly, "I confess I am. There is a certain monotony about the proceedings. We are continually tearing ourselves up by the roots, and rushing off to a new place before we have got used to the old. And with all this running about we don't seem to meet any fresh people; it is the same set over and over again. We seem to be pursuing them round the world."

"Speak for yourself," said his wife. "I am not in the habit of pursuing people."

She flushed crimson as she finished speaking, and looked at Percival rather askance over her fan. But he did not appear to have noticed anything remarkable or suspicious in her words, for he went on seriously—

"I had no intention of annoying you, but I had observed that when we get to a new place these people are generally all there before us."

"Perhaps you would prefer to go somewhere where we know no one and there is not a soul to speak to."

"I don't think I was ever deterred from speaking to a man by the mere fact that I did not know him," rejoined her husband, good-temperedly."

"That may be. I confess I am more fastidious. I do not care to rush into conversation with the first person whom I meet. I like to know all about people, who they are and where they come from, before I speak to them."

"A very laudable habit," said Percival, for once forgetting his resolve never to say anything ill-natured to Alice; "but of how many of the people whom you know here can you say that?"

"Oh, of none at all," she replied, with a little laugh. "They are all knaves and imposters. I really wonder I have not missed any of my rings and bracelets."

"That is a great concession. If there is anything in the world I detest," she went on as her husband did not speak, "it is Bohemianism."

They were both silent after this. Alice was feeling offended; Percival was thinking,

"I am afraid there is going to be a bother."

He presently broke the silence by saying—

"I beg your pardon, Alice. I spoke disrespectfully of your friends. I retract what I said. Suppose we return to the original question. I am afraid you don' wan't to go home."

"Most certainly not."

"I am very sorry to hear it, because it is necessary for me to go home, and you cannot remain here alone."

"How can it be necessary for you to go."

"It is necessary that I should be at home to look after my property," he explained. "You forget that I have duties in England."

"You have an agent, I know. Pray what are his duties if not to look after things in your absence?

"Very true. At the same time it does not do to leave too much in the hands of an agent; it is not fair to my tenants. A landowner who spends his life away from his estate and leaves everything to an agent is not fit to be a landowner; he is false to his trust. Life is not all pleasure."

"Three months is not a life time. I never heard anyone talk in such a way. If everyone thought as you do, people would never go from home at all. There would be no society. Look at Mr. Erskine; his property is far larger than yours, and he has not been near it except for shooting, for five years. He leaves everything to his agent."

"Mr. Erskine can manage or mismanage his property as he pleases; I have no wish to interfere with him; I have quite enough to do on my own. But I must be allowed to do things in my own way, and I prefer to be my own agent; so that, much as I regret to deprive you of any pleasure, I repeat that we must go home next week."

"I cannot tell why you have decided so suddenly; you never mentioned it before."

"It is partly from inclination and partly from business reasons, with which I shall not trouble you."

"From inclination you see! You will give up nothing for me. Because you want to go and bury yourself in the depths of the country, you drag me with you. You have no consideration for my wishes at all."

"There need be no question of burying,' he said at last. "You may fill Brantwood with visitors from cellar to attic if you like; you may be as gay as you are here.'

"It will not be at all the same," she said. "There are ways and ways of being gay, and that is not the way to which I had looked forward. I quite expected we were going to winter abroad, and when Middletons and Grahams left last week I promised to meet them again in Florence; they will think it so strange when we never come."

"I am very sorry for your disappointment, but when you make arrangements in that way you must expect that sometimes they will be upset. How could you possibly answer for what you would be doing so long beforehand? You did not know what my engagements might be, and you could not suppose I should remain away so long."

"You remained much longer before," she retorted, biting her lip as she spoke.

Her husband frowned, but his voice was as quiet as usual as he replied—

"That occasion had nothing to do with this; the circumstances were very different.

"I fail to see the difference," lowering her eyes as she spoke that he might not see how they flashed. "That was your honeymoon as well as this. If you wish to imply—"
