IRISH HOME RULE.

The Debate Continued in the Imperial Parliament

LONDON, April 12.—The House of Commons was again densly crowded this evening as a result of the announcement that Lord Randolph Churchill would attack Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule bill. Among the Conservatives and the Whigs there was interest in Lord Randolph's effort. Prince Arthur and Prince Christian and the Duke of Cambridge sat together in the peers' gallery, surrounded by a host of peers.

Mr. Gladstone, in reply to questions, stated that it would be impossible to close the debate on his request for leave to-night and that on this account he had decided to postpone introducing his Irish land purchase bill until next Monday.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Conservative, made a brief address, in which he indicated for his party an understanding to refrain from forcing a division on the Home Rule bill until it came up for a second reading.

Lord Randolph Churchill resumed the debate and attacked Mr. Gladstone's proposals which he characterized as desperate, unconstitutional and misleading.

Sir C. Russell, Attorney-General, taunted Lord Churchill with infusing into his speech prejudice and passion. Mr. Gladstone's bill was the first genuine effort to give law in Ireland moral support. If the measure was not passed, if Parliament refused it to-day, another Parliament dare not refuse to pass it. If it were postponed till the military were used to enforce repression, it would still have to be done and under conditions infinitely worse.

Mr. Bradlaugh regretted the bitterness of the criticisms on Mr. Gladstone's speech. He would give Mr. Gladstone his heartiest support.

Major Saunders congratulated Mr. Gladstone on his maiden speech as the leader of the Home Rulers. The Parnellites represented three-quarters of the population of Ireland, but the minority represented the industry, education and backbone, and it would be found the fighting power of Ireland.

On motion of Sir Michael Hicks-Beach the debate was adjourned until to-morrow.

The Home Rule issue is being made the sole ground of contest in the election of Ipswich, to fill the vacancies caused by the unseating of Jesse Collings and H. W. West for fraudulent electioneering practices. The district is very close.

The Daily News has caused a sensation by a sudden right-about-face. The News is a Ministerial organ and was the only London journal hitherto supporting Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule scheme.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach will wind up the debate to-night.

Lord Hartington had a long interview with Lord Salisbury to-day.

Mr. Borlass succeeds Jessie Collings as Under Secretary of the Local Government Board.

The Premier is in high spirits. He proposes to devote the Easter recess to a campaign in Scotland.

It is announced that the Lords of Kenmare and Cork, Lord Suffield and Viscount Kilcoursie have resigned.

Sir M. Kay Shuttleworth has been appointed Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster in place of Mr. Heneage, resigned.

The editorial article in yesterday morning's Daily News on Mr. Gladstone's scheme served to increase the uneasiness of the Liberals.

The Tories are hugging the hope that they may defeat the Government again on the budget, and thus a second reading of the Home Rule Bill will never be reached.

It is stated that Lord Churchill has written Lord Salisbury, offering to stand aside if his presence will throw any obstacle in the way of the Hartington-Salisbury coalition.

The Conservatives of Manchester have invited the Liberals to co-operate with them in organizing a great public meeting to denounce Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule scheme.

Michael Davitt said yesterday that if Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule Bill is rejected a tremendous row is certain, and Irishmen will then go in for nothing less than complete separation.

While Mr. Gladstone was driving to the House of Commons this afternoon he was greeted with mingled cheers and groans. When he reached the palace yard the groans and hisses of the crowd quite overtopped the cheers.

The Dublin Freeman's Journal says:—"The rejection of the Home Rule measure would result in an acute commercial crisis and would provoke the unemployed of Dublin to commit excesses similar to those perpetrated during the recent riots in London.

The Liberals expected Mr. Gladstone to offer large amendments to his plan in committee as the only hope of passing it. If the bill is rejected on the second reading Gladstone will retire; if the bill passes a second reading and is rejected later, he will appeal to the country.

Joseph Cowan, Radical member of Parliament for Newcastle-on-Tyne, and an advocate of Home Rule for Ireland, in a published letter says: "The present Parliament will soon be dissolved, and with it I will end my Parliamentary career."

Mr. Gladstone spent two hours yesterday afternoon in private conference with Mr. John Morley, the Chief Secretary for Ireland, and Earl Spencer, the ex-Irish Viceroy. It is reported the Premier has decided to subject his Home Rule scheme to several important modifications.

An incident of to-night's debate excited much amusement. Lord Churchill during his speech wanted to quote from article 3 of the Act of the Union. He fumbled in his pockets for a time, and then began an apology to the House, saying that he had forgotten to bring the Act with him. Mr. Gladstone instantly produced the Act, turned up article 3, and handed the document to Lord Randolph amid general cheers and laughter.

Rising of the Great Lakes.

The people of Chicago are much concerned about a rise in the level of Lake Michigan amounting to two and a half feet in seven years. This rise is at the rate of about four inches a year. The effect has been felt in the destruction of part of Lincoln Park by the encroaching waters and greater reach of the waves in heavy storms. About three years ago attention was called to a remarkable rising of the waters of Lake Ontario. The result of this rising and of the severe storms of 1883-4 was the destruction of a great deal of property along the American shore. The water crumbled the cliffs, threatening the tracks of the Ontario Shore Road, and destroying one or two buildings. At the time, it was shown that there could not be but one explanation, and that was increased precipitation over the water-shed of the lake. It seems that Lake Michigan is now to be included. This increased precipitation involves increased evaporation from the sea, a result which could be brought about only through a considerable accession of solar energy. Measured by two feet and a half of water upon the level of Lake Michigan this increase of energy becomes a matter of great interest.

ORIGIN OF THE STRIKE.

Different Sides of the Story Told by Discharged Foreman and His Superior.

The Galveston Daily News of a recent date gives over three columns to the explanations of the origin of the great railroad strike. The substance of the story is as follows: The discharge from the employ of the Texas & Pacific Railroad of Charles A. Hall, a foreman in the freight car repair shop at Marshall, Tex., and the refusal of the company to reinstate him, was the first cause of the strike. The reason given for Hall's discharge on February 17th was that he had been absent from duty without leave of absence. In a long talk with Hall the News correspondent gives his side of the case in detail. He had been in the employ of the Texas & Pacific Railroad for four years, and a member of the Knights of Labor since March 17th, 1885, having been one of the charter members of the local assembly at Marshall. He took an active part in the strike of 1885, being at that time a mechanic, but was taken-back in the employ of the company with the rest of the strikers, and a short time afterward was appointed to the position from which he was discharged.

A meeting of District Assembly 101, to which Hall's local was attached, and to which he was a delegate, was to be held on Feb. 15th, and, according to Hall's story, he applied to J. A. Crosbie, the general foreman of the car-shops, his immediate superior, for leave of absence to attend the meeting, stating that he would be absent for two or three days, but would be in the shop for a couple of hours in the morning and evening every day. The leave of absence was granted. After the adjournment of the assembly on the 17th Hall took several of the delegates through the shops by permission. When he went to his desk he found a note from Crosbie telling him that his services were no longer required. He went to Mr. Crosbie and was told that he was discharged because he had been absent without leave of absence and because a man was needed in the position of foreman of whom the men were afraid. The matter was laid before the Local Executive Committee, and that body sent a note to A. H. Watts, the master mechanic of the road, asking the reason for Hall's discharge and requesting his reinstatement. No satisfactory answer was given, and the District Executive Board then took the matter in hand, and, as they were equally unable to get any satisfaction the strike was ordered. The statement of Mr. Hall is supported by letters and affidavits. The other side of the story is told by Mr. Crosbie. He says that on Saturday, Feb. 13th, Hall asked for leave of absence for a couple hours on Monday, which was granted. He again spoke to him on Wednesday about it, and understanding that it was the same request, he told him it was all right. Hall was absent for the best part of three days, and important work had to wait in consequence. On his return he was discharged. Committees called on him in regard to the matter and questioned him. He informed the committee that Hall had been discharged for absence without leave and incompetency. Hall was not as competent as his predecessor had been, and the books of the company showed it. Mr. Watts, the master mechanic said: "We had been giving in to the Knights for six months, and the more we yielded the more arrogant they became. We were right in the discharge of Hall, and did not propose to make any concessions."

EVANGELISTIC WORK.—The Rev. James Bryant, well known to many in this section, has sent in his resignation to the Presbytery of Barrie, where he is now laboring, asking to be relieved of his charge, and that the Presbytery apply to the General Assembly for the same. Mr. Bryant has served as a minister in the Presbyterian church for eleven years, eight of these at Glenallen, in the Presbytery of Guelph, and during the last three years at Bradford, within the Presbytery of Barrie. During these years he has had not a little experience in evangelistic work, which is well known to many members of the above named Presbyteries. While in Glenallen he held forty-four weeks of what are called continuous meetings, at which a few hundred professed conversion, five of whom are now ministers of the Presbyterian church. In Bradford and vicinity, also, he held and assisted in carrying on evangelistic services for about forty-two weeks, during which over two hundred professed conversion. Every member of the Presbytery, says the Barrie Advance, testified not only to the great and pressing need for an evangelist, sanctioned by the highest courts of the Presbyterian church, but to the special fitness of Mr. Bryant for the work. It will be a good thing to allow ourselves to return to the good old system of the early church, when ordained evangelists, bearing the church's sanction, shall go from place to place aiding regular pastors, visiting needy districts, and helping on the great work of the church as an evangelist. Could we get back to these old times, or rather adopt their mode of working in this respect, there would be no room for the Salvation Army, with its drums and tamborines, parading our streets to draw a crowd, the church's work would be better done, true religion would hold a firmer place in the hearts and minds of people everywhere. This unceasing cry about the "lapsed masses," "non church-goers," carelessness, etc., etc., would soon be a thing of the past.

JUBILEE SINGERS.—The Ball family of jubilee singers arrived in the city today, and will give one of their concerts this evening in the Paisley street church. Those who have heard them say they cannot be too highly recommended. They have always been kindly invited to return wherever they have sung.

DEFECTIVE DRAIN.—This morning Mr. C. F. Leonard's horse, attached to a light wagon, broke through the covered drain, about three feet deep, on Trafalgar square, opposite Mr. McConnell's carriage establishment. The animal was relieved after some difficulty apparently not much the worse.

OUR obituary column contains the death notice of Mrs. John Elliott, of "Bushy Farm," Guelph Township. The deceased was taken down with inflammation of the lungs, and after an illness of only about six days passed away, leaving a husband and two boys to mourn the loss of a loving wife and mother.

S. S. No. 2 ERAMOSA.—The examination at S. S. No. 2 held on the 9th inst., was a decided success. Wilbert Bolton recited a piece in good style. Several appropriate remarks were made by the paterfamilias about the advancement of the scholars. Mr. Armstrong made an excellent speech. The musical part of the programme was good. Masters Bolton and Armstrong distinguished themselves for their excellent voices, especially Master Bolton. National anthem closed the proceedings, and everybody went home, well pleased. Mr. Scott is well liked for the short time he has been in our midst.

LAW SUIT.—The Brandon Sun of a recent date contains the following account of a law suit between Mr. Post, formerly accountant in the Ontario Bank here, but who for some time past has been farming at Rapid City: Post v. Johnston.—This was an action brought to recover damages for refusal to renew a chattel mortgage made by plaintiff to defendant, according to a written agreement between the parties. The evidence showed that the defendant had agreed to renew the mortgage; but, when it came due, he refused to do so, and seized and sold the plaintiff's goods by auction. Verdict for plaintiff for $1,042. J. S. Ewart, Q. C., and Clifford Sifton, for plaintiff; W. A. Macdonald, for defendant.

SOMETHING OF A SELL.—The Gaiety & Lilly Clay's "Adamless Eden" Co. were greeted with a good audience at the City Hall last night, among whom were to be counted quite a number of bald heads. Mayor Stevenson had got the idea that there was something immoral about the show and sent the police to the hall to watch the proceedings. It was probably the same idea which accounts for the fact that the audience was exclusively made up of the male persuasion. If that was the sole attraction which induced them to "lose their heads" and rush wildly up to the ticket box and pay 50 cents a head for admission, they were disappointed. There was nothing immoral about the show, beyond a few dirty insinuations, and nothing else to recommend it outside of some music, including a few features rather better than the average and none much worse.

LEFT HIS CLOTHES BEHIND.—A young swain from Ospringe came into town the other day to get a suit of brand new clothing, to be worn, it is whispered, on a very interesting occasion, in which he was to be one of the two principals. After having paid for his clothes he took them under his arm and left them at one of the hotels, meanwhile taking a stroll through the city, feeling as happy as a man can who had a suit of new clothes and prospective future felicity. On being ready to go home he received his bundle and started off. It was not till he got home, however, that he discovered that the parcel contained a horse blanket, and a madder man than the hero of this mistake could not be found in Ospringe. The blanket has been returned, and so it is presumed have been the clothes.

THE dissolution of partnership of the firm of McLachlan Bros., Montreal, is announced Mr. John S. McLachlan retiring while Mr. Wm. McLachlan continues the business under the same name. Mr. Wm. McLachlan is son-in-law to Mr. J. D. Williamson of the Lion.

Rain To-night.

The Probs.—Moderate to fresh easterly to southerly winds; fair mild weather today; local rains to-night and to-morrow.

BOARD OF TRADE.—Last evening a meeting of the Board of Trade was held in the City Hall building. Present, Messrs. John McCrea, Chas. Davidson, Henry Hatch, D. Coffee, James Keleher, ex-Mayor Chase, A. Murchy, Thos. Gowdy, J. A. Nelles, J. E. McElderry, B. Hughes, H. Loch, A. Smith, James Millar and J. S. Jones. A conversation in reference to trade in general took place. The special matter seemed, however, to be that farmers had been discourteously treated on the market by the police, and it was thought well to investigate the matter and see if such was the case. The only motion made was the adjournment until Tuesday evening, when the election of officers will take place.

A BOWER OF BEAUTY.—A visit to the Hillside Conservatory of Mr. Wm. Mann would do the lover of nature good, and prove a refreshing sight such as he does not often witness. The display of roses of every kind is simply magnificent. On one of the largest bushes—a French climbing rose bush—can be seen hundreds of rose buds. Other roses are also in profusion, such as cream colored, crimson, light yellow, and many other varieties. Then there are lovely clove scented carnations in full bloom, gorgeous azaleas, palms, pandanusis, and a great many other tropical plants. There are budding geraniums of every description. Altogether the conservatory looks beautiful, and as a floral worker Mr. Mann, the florist, can't be beat. Everybody ought to visit the conservatories. They are open from 7 o'clock a.m. until 6 o'clock p.m.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—Notwithstanding the other attractions in the city last night the rink was fairly patronized by an appreciative audience. The City Band was present and played choice and suitable music. The three legged race caused considerable amusement by the comical and peculiar positions the contestants struck in their endeavors to keep up with their more speedy rivals. The race was fairly contested, and was won by Bunyan and Heck Finlay as partners, Milloy and Philp being good seconds. For Friday and Saturday nights the Downie Brothers have been engaged and will present three entirely new and original acts—contortions brothers act, aerial perch act, besides these back somersaults from a fifteen foot ladder to shoulders. The "perch" is a new kind of trapeze act never done by any other performers. These gymnasts having a wide reputation, and the prices being fixed at such a low rate, ought to ensure a full house. City Band in attendance. Ladies free. See advt.

NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING.—About six o'clock last evening a four year old daughter of Mr. Wm. Wells, who lives on the Waterloo Road, adjoining the Pound Creek, had a narrow escape from being seriously injured or drowned. Some time ago attention was called in these columns to the unprotected state of the sidewalk on the south side of the Pound Creek bridge. The little girl had been playing on the bridge, and accidently fell from the sidewalk a distance of some six feet into the swollen stream below, breaking her collar bone. The mother heard the screams of the child and ran out to see what was the matter, when to her horror she saw the little one struggling in the water and being swept under the barb wire fence marking Holliday's boundary line. Not being able to get over the fence she ran to the back door and succeeded in rescuing her child some ten yards at least below where she fell. Dr. Keating was at once called in and set the bone. It is said that the father intends coming on the city for damages for neglecting to put up a proper railing for protection.

Y. W. C. T. UNION.—The Y. W. C. T. U. held their regular meeting in the rooms of the W. C. T. U. on Monday evening with an increased membership. Interesting and encouraging letters were read from other unions, and the questions of night school, flower mission and other useful work taken up and discussed. It was decided to hold the meetings in future on the 2nd and last Monday evenings of each month.

MR. ROBT. GEMMELL, agent of the American & Canadian Express Company, is at Suspension Bridge to-day attending the funeral of Dr. Arnott, former President of the American Express Company.

Knox Church Y. P. A.

An evening with Longfellow was the programme at the Knox Church Y. P. A. last evening, and few more pleasant gatherings there have been in the course of the winter than this. The society has been more vigorous during this season than perhaps ever before, which speaks volumes for the present management. After introductory exercises Miss Mowat read a charming essay on "The Psalm of Life," which was criticised in detail, its beauties pointed out and Longfellow's peculiarities, as evinced in its composition, illustrated. Mr. Orr followed with a suitable reading, "King Robert of Sicily." Mr. Orr performed the unusual feat of giving a long reading and wearying no one, but making his piece interesting to the close. Miss Spalding sang "The Bridge," after which there was intermission for a few minutes, when Mr. G. W. Field read his essay on Longfellow and his times. The essay began with the little Portland boy at home, took a rapid view of the state of the country and the condition of literature at that time, and then proceeded to discuss the influence these surroundings had on the poet, as illustrated in his writings. Longfellow, he said, was the "bard of peace." There were some traces in his works of the great agitations he had witnessed. The echoes of Webster's voice could be traced in the "Building of the Ship" and the anti-slavery agitation had left its influence on his work. Though the pet of that class which loved to call itself the aristocracy Longfellow was the poet of the poor almost as much as Dickens was their champion. To illustrate this the essay closed with a reference to the "Village Blacksmith." Rev. Mr. Beattie, who was in the chair, then read the lines Longfellow addressed to the children when they presented him with a chair made out of the wood of the chestnut tree under which that "Village Blacksmith" wrought, and the meeting closed with the transaction of business relative to the next public meeting.

Dr. Deal, who is a Veterinary Surgeon of great skill, writes from Bowersville, Harrison Co., O.; I have given Perry Davis' Pain Killer in many cases of colic cramp and dysentry in horses, and never knew it to fail in a single instance. I look upon it as a certain remedy.

From the Capital.

OTTAWA, April 12th.

Business in Parliament began lively last week. On Monday Mr. Bowell forced the fighting on Mr. Edgar's impeachment of himself and Mr. John White, of Hastings, in connection with the Prince Albert Colonization Company. It was clear that Mr. Bowell regarded the matter in a very serious light, for his denial and explanation were carefully drawn up and committed to paper, which he read. Mr. Edgar moved that the whole case be referred to a special committee, but the Government suggested that it be referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections which was done. The Committee have held two sittings but nothing material has yet been brought out. Mr. Edgar states that he is confident he will be able to establish his charges. This matter has created considerable consternation among those Government supporters who have been dabbling in Colonization Companies, timber limits, &c., for no one knows whose turn will come next as the subject for investigation.

Speaking of Colonization Companies, the subject came up in discussion the other day when Mr. O'Brien, the Tory member for Muskoka, came boldly out and said that the Government must now admit that these had been a failure and asked what course they intended to pursue in dealing with them. The Minister of the Interior indicated that these companies would be allowed to retain what lands they had paid for, and that the Government would take back the balance. This is a practical confession that another of the grand schemes which was to settle the Northwest has failed. It was got up by Sir John Macdonald before the last general election as a bait to hundreds of Conservatives throughout the country, and also to many Liberals who were selfish enough to be roped in to the Tory ranks by prospects of great gain, which they were to secure by being shareholders in these Companies. They served their purpose as election agencies, but for settlement purposes they have turned out to be practical failures and the bottom is now knocked out of them.

Contrary to expectation the House went into Committee of Supply on Tuesday, thus ending the debate on the Budget. On the preceding Friday the debate was only adjourned on the wish of Mr. McLelan, who said that other members on his side wanted to speak. It was rumored that Mr. Foster was going to reply to Mr. Paterson, in which case Mr. Charlton would have followed him. But it seems Mr. Foster's courage failed him, and no doubt the Government thought it prudent to let Mr. McLelan's financial exhibit pass with as little discussion as possible. It is very rare indeed that a debate on the Budget is so short.

Dr. Orton was gratified on Thursday by taking up a good part of that day with the discussion on his bill for granting charters to farm or real estate banks. I might explain the provisions of this bill and discuss them did I consider it worthy of serious attention. But it is not. The scheme in itself is unworkable and contrary to all the principles of sound banking. It is a jumble of contradictions and inconsistencies, and as I said before is a clumsy scheme got up by the Dr. to bamboozle farmers and secure their sympathy and votes. Those who support the measure have the same object in view and are angling in the same direction. The member for Muskoka, who is himself a farmer, gave in very terse language his opinion of the bill when he said that it was "a trap set by knaves to catch fools." Mr. O'Brien is a Tory of the old school, but he always says what he thinks, and he is quite right in regard to this bill, for it is nothing more than a cheap way of gaining popularity in making farmers believe that it is a scheme by which they may apparently get rich without working. The Government are very much blamed for not announcing their policy on this measure, but the Dr. has evidently entreated them not to kill it off in the House, but to leave the Committee on Banking and Commerce to do the job quietly.

I see you have given an account of the cowardly attack Dr. Orton made on Mr. Thomson, of the Globe, in the corridor of the House on Thursday evening. Those who know the Doctor best in his old home know that he is too ready with his fists. But it is one thing to fight in Fergus and another within the precincts of Parliament. It may be the Doctor's idea of the code of honor, but it certainly is most damaging to his reputation as a public man. I should think his friends and supporters in Centre Wellington would feel ashamed of their representative, who has to resort to such means of redress for fancied grievances. In doing so he does not injure the character of the press, but he destroys his own reputation.

The old battle is to be fought over again on the bill to amend the Scott Act. Mr. Jamieson introduced it on Friday. Its main features are the same as those embodied in last year's bill, but there are some additional provisions which are thought important in order to secure the objects of the Act. It will no doubt be strenuously opposed as it was last year, and a fierce fight will be made in favor of grafting on to it the light wine and beer clause. Since last session the liquor interest have been industriously working up this subject, and they hope to carry it this year in the Commons as well as in the Senate. In such case it would be far better for the Temperance cause, in Ontario at least, to do away with the Scott Act altogether and leave the regulation of the liquor traffic to the now very stringent and excellent Crooks Act. It is well known that the light wine and beer clause would be but a very thin disguise for selling all kinds of liquor by unscrupulous and unprincipled hotel and saloon keepers. Better far put them under the provisions of the stringent Ontario Act, with its stringent rules and heavy penalties.

The reports as to Sir John Macdonald's condition are more favorable. The Doctor's bulletin a few days ago stated that he was improving and held out good hopes of ultimate recovery. It is reported round the corridors that he may be able to attend the House to-morrow.

McGregor's Speedy Cure.

When we say McGregor's Speedy Cure is the only perfect cure for dyspepsia, liver complaints, indigestion and impure blood, we are telling plain facts, of which hundreds upon hundreds can testify who have been restored to perfect health by its use. We would therefore advise you strongly if you are a subject of any of the above troubles to give McGregor's Speedy Cure a trial and be convinced. It is sold, in 50c. and $1.00 bottles at Thomas E. Petrie's Drug Store.

THAT HACKING COUGH can be so quickly cured by Shiloh's Cure. We guarantee it. Sold by A. B. Petrie.

Elora Correspondence.

TEMPERANCE.—The Royal Templars of Temperance, Elora Council No 19, will hold a public meeting in the Drill Shed here, on Friday evening next. A. C. Steele, D.D., of Guelph, will deliver an address. Several young ladies will take part in vocal exercises, and speeches will be made by several gentlemen not yet named. Admission free.

NARROW ESCAPE....The residence of Mr James Middleton, in Nichol, near Salem had a narrow escape from fire a few days ago. The shingles on the roof caught from a spark, and but for the alarm being given by a passer by the building would have been speedily in flames. Mrs Middlemiss and her son-in-law were sitting reading at the time totally unconscious of the danger to the building. The roof was badly damaged. Mr. Middleton has rented his farm to Mr Frank Mitchell, and is about to remove to Salem.

HYMENEAL.—Wednesday of last week was a red letter day hereabouts. Mr. Hugh Short, of Pilkington, was united to Miss Shortreid, of Salem, and Mr. Moffatt married Miss Archibald of Elora. May their shadows never grow less.

D. D.—The people of Elora feel that they share in the honor recently conferred upon the old pastor of Chalmers' Church. The Rev Jas Middlemiss has resided here so long, spending the best years of his life in the service of his flock, that he has become one of the institutions of the place, and deserving was the respect and esteem of the whole community. It was thought, therefore, a fitting thing that Knox College invested him with the degree of D. D. That Dr, Middlemiss may live many years to enjoy his well-won honors is the sincere wish of all who know him.

BAD ROAD.—Cannot something be done by somebody to put into some approach to decent repair the gravel road, on south side of river, between Elora and Fergus? Cannot the County assume this short link and give two important villages a fair means of communication spring and fall, beyond the two railways? The pathmasters do wonders, but they cannot pretend to keep up the road with the labor under their control. Fancy a road so bad that Adam Beck, with a team of horses fit to move artillery, was fairly stuck for several hours last week. What stronger proof is needed of its wretched condition?

WELL DONE. — The congregation of Knox church here will remember, with affection, the ministrations of a young divinity student, Mr. John McKay, who filled the pulpit during the long interregnum. They will be delighted to learn that upon his recent completion of his course at Knox College he carried off four of the five scholarships competed for. This is a brilliant record, and augurs well for his future usefulness.

SAVAGE DOG.—Young Ben Hill was bitten on the leg recently by a savage dog owned by Mr Petrie, but under medical care promises a speedy recovery. Mr Petrie at once got rid of the dangerous brute.

CHANGING HANDS.—Mr W C Shaw, proprietor of the Elora Express, has sold out to Mr Henry James Bock, of Mount Forest, who will take possession on May 1st. Mr Bock comes here with an excellent reputation, is a warm Reformer, a good printer and a careful man of business. Mr W C Shaw will leave Elora at an early date, and intends to re-enter business at the new city expected to spring up at the terminus of the C P R. on the Pacific Coast. He has done well since he has owned the Express, and hopes to do still better in his new home. In that wish he is heartily joined by all and sundry.

WHAT IS IT?—In one of our tin-shops there is a something in course of construction which puzzles all who see it. It contains three large cans, with taps at bottom, which are set in a zinc covered trough calculated to hold cold water, and a cupboard below affords facilities for—what? The affair is stamped "Boss Cream," but there are wicked people who say that there are such things as "cream ale," "cream soda," etc., etc., and they knowingly shake their heads. Inspector Macdonald is said to have his eye on it, and to be watching it night and day. The first of May will soon be here.

ABOUT AGAIN.—Mr John Holman, in a splendid white hat, which has bloomed ahead of the flowers this spring, tra la, is about again as jolly as ever, and, despite his recent accident, is as capable of driving a fast horse as he was a month ago. May he long continue to wave his whip and hold the lines.

REMOVED.—Dr. Paget has removed into his new residence near the Irvine bridge, and finds it roomy and pleasantly situated.

LEAVING.—Mr Alexander Waddell will remove his family to Toronto on May 1st, where he will open up a general grocery business on Yonge street. Mr Waddell has been one of our most successful business men, and seeks a wider field than Elora. He carries with him the warm wishes of a host of friends.

OUR CHIEF.—The Dominion member for Centre Wellington has been in our midst, to sing his song of victory, and make us all happy by the assurance that he split the Globe reporter into ribbons last week, knocked him into eternal smash, and whipped the life all but out of him. This is eminently satisfactory to us. We should have felt real mean had our own and only original "Hero of Batoche"—our dearly beloved and highly revered "strike him-in-the-back"—gone under before an ordinary newspaper man. We feel sure that the organs of public opinion told an immense whopper when they stated that a common quill-driving gallery-man had the better of our pugilistic representative. He knew his peculiar tactics in a rough-and-tumble and would have felt surprised, indeed, if he had not got in two or even three hot ones before the other fellow woke up to the importance of the occasion. His right hand evidently didn't forget its cunning, and once more Centre Wellington's Little Brave came out top dog in the fight. Henceforth and forever, let the printers mind their p's and q's or they will speedily find out "Who struck Billy Patterson."

IN NEW YORK.—Rev H Rose bagges off for a two weeks visit to New York, his pulpit being filled meanwhile by Rev J Dell, who appears to be almost as vigorous as he was thirty years ago, and preached as successfully as in the early days of his ministerial career.

THAT PUZZLE.—For the relief of the fair one who has lost rest through her efforts to solve the puzzle given in these columns two weeks ago, it may be well to furnish the simple solution. Take five of any of the following numbers and make twenty:

5 9 1 7 3

You can't do it by addition. Nor can you get twenty by addition and subtraction. But with multiplication and addition or with multiplication, subtraction and addition you secure numerous methods, of which the following are samples:

$(5 \times 1) + 5 + 3 + 7 = 20$
$(5 \times 7) - 9 - 7 + 1 = 20$

MONSTROUS.—When a fellow tries to serve his country, hits upon a valuable idea, and has the courage of his convictions, it is very annoying to find a want of appreciation where warm approval was looked for. Dr. Orton has introduced resolutions approving the establishment of real estate banks which will flood the country with dollar bills and make everybody rich, and this is the style of criticism indulged in by the Monetary Times:—"As an exhibition of ignorance it has never been surpassed in Parliament. Dr. Orton and the members supporting him are from agricultural constituencies. The Doctor doubtless knows his profession. The other gentlemen probably know something about farming, but their talk about financial matters is the veriest nonsense. They debate the matter like a lot of schoolboys, and with just about as much knowledge of the subject. One hardly knows what Parliament is coming to when such silly resolutions could be gravely considered, and such silly speeches made in support of them."

Elora, April 13, 1886.

Labour Notes.

NEW YORK, April 12.—"You can say," said Mr. Gould in an interview to day, "that this company (the Missouri Pacific) will have nothing more to do with either Mr. Powderly or any other member of his committee. We have been deceived enough by them and we do not propose to have anything to do with the kind occasion." They cannot lick the Knights of Labor to obey them. They are simply play with sceptors in their grasp and have no power."

A RIOT has taken place in Winnipeg among the labourers, the intervening some of their fellows accepting $1.25 from the C.P.R.

The Central Labour Union, of New York, has decided to boycott Jay Gould.

Toronto Advertiser—Outside of speaking, we should not regard Guelph as a "fast" city, yet it has considerable Speed.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G APRIL 14, 1886.

The Home Rule Scheme.

The more one reflects on Mr. Gladstone's scheme for the self-government of Ireland the more is he impressed with its character and magnitude. It is nothing short of a political revolution. It proposes such radical changes as throw into the shade all previous legislation for the better government of that country. In framing his measure Mr. Gladstone no doubt fully appreciated the gravity of the situation. He had to deal with a question beset with innumerable difficulties, and it required no common or small amount of courage to grapple with it, and no common share of wisdom to devise a remedy. That remedy is now before the country and the world. It is novel in its provisions. Those who are opposed to it call it crude and undigested, while others consider that it is impracticable and would break down when brought into operation. On the other hand the friends of Ireland, and those who are most anxious to see a peaceable solution of this burning question, think that with some amendments Mr. Gladstone's scheme is feasible and capable of being worked out to the satisfaction of the Irish people, while at the same time the unity and integrity of the empire would be preserved. If this could be done, and the success of the measure assured, it would be the grandest achievement in the long and eminently useful life of the great statesman who seeks to make this the crowning act of his public career.

That there are serious difficulties connected with the scheme no one will deny. To give Ireland that measure of self government which would be right and just to her people, and at the same time to preserve Imperial power, control and unity is a most difficult problem, and in this lies the great divergence of opinion among thinking men in and out of Parliament. Objection, no doubt, will be made to the proposed arrangement for excluding Irish members from the Imperial Parliament, while an annual tribute to the Imperial Treasury is exacted. This will be looked upon by some as taxation without representation. But, then, it must be recollected that Ireland would get all the benefit of Britain's protection which should be accounted of the greatest consideration by a loyal people. Then the question of security to the Protestant minority is one of the first importance. The guarantees for the preservation of the rights of the Protestants in the country should be as full, and as explicit and binding as are those in relation to the maintenance of the rights of the Catholic minority in Canada. Another cause for irritation and trouble might arise in connection with the power of veto which the Imperial Government could exercise with regard to Irish legislation. Subordinate legislators are invariably very sensitive and touchy when their measures are disallowed by the higher authority, and it is feared that the hot Irish temper would very soon show itself if the legislation of the native Parliament was interfered with or vetoed.

But it would serve no good purpose at the present stage to point out possible defects in the scheme or magnify the difficulties that seem to stand in the way of its adoption. These may be overcome or removed by such changes as may be deemed best in the interests of Ireland and the empire. We hope they may, and that such a measure will be matured as will give peace to much distracted Ireland, while at the same time the power, the stability and the glory of the empire will be in no way impaired.

For the present all is uncertain as to the fate of the measure. The defection of Lord Hartington and Messrs Chamberlain and Trevelyan is a serious one to Mr. Gladstone, and may largely affect the vote if they unite their forces with the Tories. We are not surprised that Lord Hartington has left his chief on this question. He is by birth and instincts allied with the old Whig families. He is heir to the Duke of Devonshire, who owns large estates in Ireland. It is natural that he should object to Mr. Gladstone's sweeping scheme of reform. Not so, however, with the other two, especially Mr. Chamberlain, who has hitherto posed as an extreme Radical, and who now, strange to say, withdraws from his advanced position and makes quibbling and querulous objections to his old leader's scheme. What this defection will amount to, and what will be the fate of the measure, a short time will tell.

THE Waterloo Chronicle says:—The Guelph Herald in a moment of forgetfulness utters the following solemn truth: "Supply and demand have stronger laws than any combination, and must evidently prevail." Of course the Herald was not thinking of the N. P. at the time. It was speaking of the labor question and addressing itself to the Knights of Labor and their interests as a class. That was why it flung in the face of the N. P. an economic law which the N. P. and all its advocates hold in utter abhorrence. For is not the law of supply and demand solemnly abrogated by the Canadian Parliament and doth not the N. P. reign in its stead, with the approval and support of the Herald? But people who build on fallacies like certain other people have need of long memories.

THE St. Thomas Journal is informed by a gentleman, prominent in railway circles, that the emigration from Western Ontario to Dakota has been greater this spring than during the two preceding seasons. This is the way we work it:—We tax the people of Canada $500,000 a year to bring immigrants to this country, and then we place such a high tax on them when here that we drive them to Dakota. The London Advertiser shows that a settlers' party from along the line of the London, Huron & Bruce, on the 16th ult., numbered 85 people, and had 30 cars of freight. They were bound for Dakota. That is the way our Government keeps Canada for the Canadians, as they promised to do.

CAMPBELL'S

TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above named disorders.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

OTTAWA, April 12.

In the Commons to-day Mr. Kirk called attention to the fact that a paper purporting to be an official report of the debate on the question of better terms for Nova Scotia, and bearing the imprint of the Government Printers, had been circulated with misleading headings. The Speaker said the proceeding was most improper, and that he would call the attention of the Printing Committee to it.

Mr. Watson obtained an order for the correspondence regarding the abandoned project of sending a flying column to the Northwest.

A long debate arose on a motion of Mr. Wilson for correspondence regarding assisted immigration. The discussion lasted until 11:40, when the motion was carried and the House adjourned.

OTTAWA, April 13.

In the Commons' to-day Mr. Pope moved the third reading of the Bill respecting the extension of the Intercolonial Railway from Stellarton to Pictou. Mr. Vail moved an amendment declaring that other public works in Nova Scotia were more urgently needed. The amendment was lost on a vote of 107 to 51, and the Bill was read a third time.

Mr. Thompson's Bill respecting real estate in the North-west Territories, Sir H. Langevin's Bill to amend the Interpretation Act, Mr. Thompson's Bill respecting the application of fines and forfeitures, and Mr. Thomson's Bill respecting summary convictions, were read a second time.

The House in Committee considered Mr. Foster's resolutions regarding the transfer of the lighthouse at Cape Race to Canada.

Mr. Pope's resolution respecting the subsidy to the Chignecto Marine Railway Company, and Mr. Costigan's resolution to amend the Consolidated Revenue Act were carried, and the Bills founded on the resolutions were introduced and read a first time.

The House then went into supply and passed a number of items under the head of Civil Government.

Winterbourne Correspondence

The people of this village and vicinity received their annual festival in the form of a concert, by the Young People's Christian Association of this place. As it has been customary for the society to close their meetings for the season with an open concert, this one proved very successful. The meeting was presided over by the first vice-president, Mr. Jas. Loggie. After electing a librarian, the chairman proceeded with the programme. Mr. Walter Veitch was called on for instrumental music and responded double handed, being assisted by his brother John Veitch and Miss Jeannie Hamilton playing the chords, and was joyfully received. Next came a reading by Johnston Wilkinson, entitled "A sure cure for rheumatism." Then came more instrumental music by George Sherriffs, assisted at the organ by Miss Hamilton. There was also a paper bag with some thirty subjects in it. Mr. Geo. Elsley was called forward to have a draw and give a stump speech. He drew the subject "Salvation Army." Following this was a recitation entitled "The Thistle," by Miss Mary A. Mackie, and then a reading by M. Millard, followed by a song from John Sherriffs entitled the "Laird o' Cockpen." William Hamilton tried his luck out of the paper bag, getting "Hotel-keeper" to speak on. Miss Janet Hamilton then gave one of her favorite recitations "The inventor's wife," which was received amid loud laughter. After this was a reading from John Simpson entitled "A thousand dollars reward." This now brought us to the middle of our programme and five minutes recess was given. The meeting proceeded with music by Miss Jeannie Hamilton entitled "Clayton's March," which was well received from the crowd of spectators. Mr. Herbert Wilkinson tried his luck out of the paper bag and drew a subject that he had no experience in, "Married life." Then came a recitation by Joseph Harrison "Faith illustrated." Wm. Mitchell was now called to draw out of the bag and struck on the subject "Courting." Music followed by Miss Kate Bemis "Whispering hope," and it could be seen by the pleasant countenance of the audience that it had a grand effect and was well received. Jas. Runceman was the next man to try his luck out of the bag and drew a grand subject "Edward Blake." A recitation by Miss Anna Mackie "Shipwrecked on the breakers" was well received, Alex. Glennie drew "Gladstone," a grand subject, and plenty to be said on it, but he cut it short. Next was a reading by Miss Maggie Sherriffs "Her little mistake," after which was another draw from the bag by John Glennie, subject "Girls," and we had the pleasure of listening to one of finest speeches of the evening, he rendering it amid roars of laughter. This brought us to the close of the long programme and as there were some more good subjects left in the bag the audience thought that the chairman should take a draw, and so he did and struck on the "Farmer." The late hour did not allow him to speak at length. The meeting was then closed by singing the doxology, and the audience separated for their respective homes much pleased with the programme of the evening.

Millinery Opening at the Lion.

"Fortuna Caeca est."

Is Fortune Blind or does she distribute her prizes according to merit?

Well, how is it? We are inclined to doubt it, either this or the other aphorism. "Fortune favors the brave," must be wrong. We think Shakespeare covers the whole ground when he says, "There is a tide in the affairs of man which taken at the Flood leads on to Fortune."

THE -LION-

The "Tide" taken at the "Flood,"

is certainly now on that wave of "Fortune." The "Tide" has been taken at the "Flood" One warhorse retires, the other holds the field. The BOOM at the

Grand MILLINERY DISPLAY

On Thursday 15th, Friday 16th, Saturday 17th inst.

Millinery Opening Exhibit surpassing anything in the past.

We hold our Spring Millinery Opening.

Pattern Bonnets and Hats.

It is always our aim to excell. We have been complemented on our Millinery in the past, but we flatter ourselves that our exhibit this year will far surpass anything Guelph has ever seen. We show the largest stock of ever displayed in the Royal City having imported over 100 ranging all the way from 50 to 175 francs. These patterns after the opening we will sell at the price of ordinary goods, having made use of them in our designing apartments.

We have now engaged in the peason of

MISS MARRIOTT

One of the foremost Milliners in the country, who although living in the larger Canadian and American cities for some years past, is well known in Guelph.

J. D. WILLIAMSON & Co.

We cordially invite the ladies of Guelph and vicinity to pay us a visit on our opening days, and we assure them of our best efforts to make their visit a pleasant one. (No cards.)

Armstrong's Patent Buggy and Carriage Gears,

THE DEFIANCE.

The Newest. The Best.

The driving public in Canada now demand low riding vehicles, and the above gear will answer the most particular in that respect. By using a superior quality of steel in the axles, side bars and springs, we are enabled to secure the greatest possible lightness, and at the same time guarantee strength and durability far beyond the ordinary. By manufacturing all the parts in large quantities by machinery, we can afford to make prices LOW, and all seeing and using our goods know their many superior qualities. Sample buggies finished on above gear, on exhibition at our warerooms. Carriage builders and others freely furnished with full information, by mail, or personally.

The Bartlett Murder.

LONDON, Eng., April 12.—The case against Mrs. Adelaide Barlett and the Rev. Mr. Dyson, a Methodist clergyman of Pimlico, for the alleged murder of Edward Bartlett, the woman's husband, by chloroform, was brought up for trial at the Central Criminal Court to-day. The court room was crowded. The Crown declined to proceed against Mr. Dyson because it was convinced of its inability to maintain the indictment against him and he was accordingly discharged. Mrs. Bartlett, pale and attractive, watched the proceedings intently.

Mr. Bartlett's father testified that he believed the will offered for probate as that of deceased was a forgery. He stated that Mrs. Bartlett, during her husband's life, once eloped with his brother Frederick, with whom she remained for a week. Frederick, after this, went to America, and witness did not know his present whereabouts. The Rev. Mr. Dyson is to appear as a witness against Mrs. Bartlett.

THE DEATH OF MRS. CLUNY MACPHERSON.—Mrs Macpherson, widow of Cluny, died at Edinburgh last week. She was a daughter of Davidson of Tullock, and married the late Chief of the Clan Chattan in 1832. When they arrived in Badenoch early in 1833 the newly-married couple were received by a procession of fifty Highland gentlemen on horseback, who accompanied them to Cluny, and drank their health in double bumpers Three years ago Sir George Macpherson-Grant and a company of three hundred gentlemen attended at Cluny and presented the Chief and his wife with a splendid silver candelabrum as a memorial of their golden wedding. Mrs. Macpherson, of Cluny, was a typical specimen of the Highland lady of the good old school of Sir Walter Scott's heroes and heroines.

Maryboro' Correspondence.

REVIVAL MEETINGS.—The Rev. A. McCullough, who has been holding special meetings in the Methodist Church of Rothsay for the past five weeks, brought them to a close on Friday night last. The Rev. Buggin, of Drayton, preached an eloquent and touching sermon on that evening. A part of the Gohen band, and Mrs Allan, of Harriston, rendered considerable assistance in the meetings. There are over sixty-five conversions, a number being from other circuits.

SALE.—Mrs. Cole, who has been left a widow by the sudden death of her husband a short time ago, made a sale a few days ago, selling farm stock and implements. She intends living on the farm but has it rented to Mr. A. Hamilton for five years.

CONCERT.—The Ball singers intend giving a concert at Zion in the Methodist Church on Tuesday evening; a good crowd might be expected but for the condition in which the roads are at present. They seem to be liked and their singing admired wherever they go. They sang for the Good Templars and Methodist people in Drayton on Monday and Wednesday last.

SUGAR MAKING.—The farmers are now at the sugar-making. There has not been much of a run yet because it does not freeze hard enough at night; they have made enough for a few good feeds of taffy.

REMOVALS.—A number of young men from the sixteenth of Maryboro' and Rothsay have gone to Dakota this spring to seek their fortunes. They will find hardships there as well as here to contend with. Money will not drop into their fingers as easily as they expect it will.

BUILDING.—James Mitchell, on the fourteenth line of Maryboro', intends building a large bank barn this summer, and has everything in preparation for the purpose. John McLachlan has the contract for the framing part of it.

PERSONALS.—Samuel Noble has sold fifty acres of his land and has bought two hundred acres on the tenth of Maryboro'. Mr. and Mrs. Green have moved to their new dwelling on Mr. Oxby's farm.

"What is McGregor's Speedy cure for"?

It is for dyspepsia, liver complaint, indigestion, billiousness, and it is the finest blood purifier in the known world to-day.

"Does it give satisfaction ?"

We cannot point to one instance where it did not.

"Where does it have the largest sale ?"

Right in the city of Hamilton where it is manufactured, there has been over one thousand dollars' worth sold in the last year retail, and the great majority of the sales are by one recommending it to another. For sale at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle by Thos. S. Petrie, Druggist.

A Bad Road.

To the Editor of the MERCURY.

SIR,—I beg to call the attention of the Guelph Township Council, through the columns of the MERCURY, to the state of the road between Dooley's corner, Waterloo Road, and Mr Scrby's gate. In coming into town this morning my horse got mired about four feet, and after struggling sometime finally threw himself, smashing things generally. I unhitched him and with great difficulty got him out, I saw where some one else had foundered close to where I went down. I have spoken to Messrs Hobson and Sweetnam repeatedly about the state of this road. I would like some of them to see it now. In twenty-five years there has not been $10 spent on it, except what Mr Scrby and I did. It is simply a disgrace to a Christian country. I do not wonder at the residents of Puslinch, in that section, going to Hespeler to transact their business, when they know the state the road is in to the Royal City. It wants thorough gravelling. For two weeks every spring it is impassable for a load, and now the bottom is completely out of it. It is a good thing I was not going for a doctor for some of my family at the time the accident happened.

I am, yours, etc.,
JAMES ANDERSON,

Puslinch, April 13, 1886.

Local News.

STORE-KEEPERS are doing a lively business to-day.

THE first straw hat of the season made its appearance on the streets to-day. Summer is at hand.

VEN. ARCHDEACON DIXON was present in Toronto yesterday at a meeting of Trinity College Corporation.

MAJOR G. B. HOOD commenced plowing yesterday. Plowing will be pretty general in this district in a few days.

MR. BELL has written to the Globe stating that there is no difficulty at all existing between his workmen and the Bell Organ Company.

MACDONNELL street in front of the hotel is crowded with vehicles to-day. In some instances their is scarcely room for conveyances to pass.

THE Ladies Aid Society of the Metropolitan Church, Toronto, have secured the services of Rev. C. H. Mead and the Silver Lake Quartette Club, who are to sing in Guelph to-morrow night, for a concert in their church on Monday next.

THE Globe says "Mr. Carleton gave an unusually interesting lecture on the Knights of Labor, their objects, and progress, in Shaftesbury Hall, on Wednesday evening." Mr. Carleton speaks in Guelph to-morrow evening.

SHORT-HORNS FOR THE N. W. T.—Mr. A. H. Morrison, who has purchased over 700 high grade heifers for ranching purposes, He bought yesterday from Mr. F. W. Stone nine thoroughbred shorthorn bulls. They are an extra fine lot and will do credit to the County of Wellington.

THE Rev. W. S. Ball, of St. John, Ont., was in the city to-day on his way to Fergus. He is a delegate from the Synod of Hamilton and London to unite with the Presbytery of Guelph in celebrating the semi-centenary of Rev. Dr. Smellie's ordination to the ministry, which is being held in Fergus to-day.

PASSED.—At the Annual Convocation of Trinity Medical School, held at Toronto on Wednesday, it was annoucced that J. B. Guthrie, son of Donald Guthrie, Q. C., of this city, passed his first year in practical anatomy, descriptive analogy, physiology and botany, and that L. C. Brock, son of Dr. Brock, also of this city, took his final fellowship degree.

NEARLY RUN OVER.—A team belonging to Tolton Bros., Agricultural Implement manufacturers had a narrow escape from being run over this morning at the Huskisson street crossing. The freight yard engine was shunting cars there, and stopped for an instant before backing eastward. At this interval the team attempted to cross, with a seed drill behind, but the drills being down caught the rails and they were barely cleared before the train came along. The escape was a narrow one.

BASE BALL.—At a meeting of last season's players of the Maple Leaf club, held last night, it was decided to organize for the season of '86, under the name of the Guelphs, and to play exhibition games. The meeting was well attended, and all the old nine fell in with the programme. As soon as the grounds will permit the nine will commence practice. A meeting will shortly be held for the election of officers, and to arrange a schedule of games.

THE JUBILEE SINGERS.—The Ball family of Jubilee Singers gave a most excellent concert of vocal music in the Paisley street church last night before a good audience, although nothing near what the Family deserved. Their voices are in splendid condition and well trained. There are eight singers in the company, and repeated encores were given and kindly responded to. Little Minnie Ball has a most pleasing voice and captivated the audience on her first solo. In such songs as "I stand as a free man," "Sleep on Israelites," and "Every day will be Sunday by and bye," they display excellent abilities and the banjo accompaniments are good. Rev. Dr. Griffin, who was present, being well acquainted with the troupe, offered a few kind words of encouragement and predicted for them a full house to-night.

LECTURE AND CONCERT.—Rev. W. S. Griffin sends the following communication to the MERCURY:—"Will you permit me to call attention to the lecture and concert announced for Friday evening in the City Hall. Rev. Mr. Mead is one of the few men who exerts an irresistible control over his audience. His oratorial powers are wonderful. His audience is excited to tears and laughter alternately and continually. We had him at Grimsby camp three years ago. His public efforts were simply immense. I cannot speak personally of the merits of the Quartette Club, but if Mr. Mead's three assistants are equal to himself, nothing better has ever appeared in this city. I make an appeal to temperance people especially to sustain the W. C. T. U. in this effort to provide an unusual treat."

HYMENEAL.—On Wednesday a very pleasant gathering took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Kenny, adjoining Guelph, the occasion being the marriage of their daughter, Anna Augusta to Mr. Melvin Pettit, of Comber, Essex County. In addition to a number of guests present from Guelph, there were several relatives of the family from a distance, including Mr. and Mrs. Edey, from Aylmer, Quebec. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Griffin, and after the knot had been tied and congratulations extended to the bride and bridegroom, the company repaired to the dining room, where a most pleasant hour was spent around the festive board. The happy couple, amidst the congratulations of the company and showers of rice, left for the 5.17 train east. The bride was the recipient of a large number of handsome and valuable presents.

TENDERS AWARDED.—Mr. John Day, architect, has awarded the following contracts for a two story brick building, 30 by 40 feet, 9 rooms, to be erected for Mr. G. D. Pringle, jeweller, on Quebec street east (Dr. Herod's old property) as follows:—A Pike, stone and brick work; Eli Snyder, woodwork; P. Martin, plastering; Chas. W. Reynolds, painting and glazing; Feek & Kirkwood, plumbing, and Geo. Howard, tinsmithing.

The Davis Vertical Feed Sewing Machine never fails to completely surprise all who examine it and the exquisitely beautiful work it does. All say frankly and freely that no other machine can successfully compete with it. Call and see it yourself at J. C. McLean's Temple of Music. d2w1

THE annual show of stallions in connection with the North Waterloo Agricultural Society was held on Tuesday, at the market place, Berlin. The attendance of men and horses was unusually large and many of the latter very beautiful and stylish.

AN EXPLANATION.—The MERCURY has been asked to state that the Knights of Labor had nothing to do with the strike of a few finishers which took place in Bell's organ factory the other day. Neither had the strikers any grievances against the firm. What they went out for was because one of the contractors had let a portion of his work to a subcontractor. It is understood that the difficulty between this contractor and his men has now been amicably settled.

CRICKET.—At the annual meeting of the Ontario Cricket Association, held on Tuesday, at the Walker House, Toronto the Guelph delegates were Messrs. McConkey, Morris, T. Goldie, and F. J. Chadwick. After the reading of the committee's annual report of the season's matches the regret was expressed that a more generous public had not seconded the efforts of the Association to furnish them with a high standard of cricketing events, and also that the financial results had not been satisfactory. A heated discussion took place in regard to the status of the Guelph, Toronto and Zingari clubs in the Association, objection being raised to the rights of these clubs to be represented at the meeting on the ground that they had forfeited their membership by not paying their annual dues in the required time. The report was finally amended and the above clubs were inserted in the list forming the membership of the Association. A number of amendments to the constitution were adopted and the following officers were elected:—President, Henry Totten; Vice-Presidents, Thomas Swinyard and Clarkson Jones, of Toronto, and Mr. Goldie, of Guelph; Hon. Secretary-Treasurer, H. K. Cockine, Toronto; Hon. Assistant Secretary, A. W. Winslow, Toronto; Committee, Messrs. Wright, Merritt, and Dr. Spragge, Toronto; H. P. Perry, Port Hope; Judge Dartnell, Whitby; Morris and McConkey, of Guelph; Hammond and Stinson.

The sum total of last Friday's execution at St. Louis so far is nine victims with another expected to die.

NEW YORK, April 13.—Fresh correspondence between Grand Master Workman Powderly of the K. of L. and Jay Gould is given for publication to-night. Powderley threatens that in case Gould carries out his threat of beginning suits against the Knights for conspiracy to retaliate by suits against Gould for violations of the law said to have occurred during the latter's accumulation of great wealth. Gould replies to this by referring to his industry, frugality and temperate habits as the foundations of his success.

Sir William Harcourt will not consent to the retention of Irish members at Westminster. His terse remark to an interviewer was, "Let 'em go. England made herself without Ireland, and can maintain herself without it."

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Ottawa, April 14.

In the Commons to-day, Mr. O'Brien moved for copies of petitions or letters from the Indians on the North Shore of Lake Huron or Lake Nipissing, with reference to their rights of fishing in those waters, and a discussion arose in which various suggestions were made for bettering the condition of the Indians in that district.

Mr. Edgar moved for papers showing the honors conferred upon the officers who took part in suppressing the Northwest rebellion, and upon the officers engaged in connection with the Fenian raid and Red River expedition. The motion was carried after a debate in which Sir A. Caron and Sir R. Cartwright took part.

There was some discussion on Mr. Vail's motion for correspondence on the subject of a flag treaty between Spain and the United States.

After recess Mr. Charlton's Bill to punish seduction was passed through committee and read a third time.

Mr. McCarthy's Bill, respecting carriers by land, was withdrawn on the statement that the matter would be considered by the promised Royal Commission.

Mr. Cameron (Huron) moved the second reading of the Bill allowing a prisoner to testify on his own behalf. The Minister of Justice opposed the second reading, and the motion was lost on a vote of 80 to 57. The House adjourned at 10.25 p. m

THE EASTER FAIR.

Large Offerings, Numerous Buyers and Good Prices.

The annual Easter Fair, always an event in Guelph of more than ordinary importance, was a pronounced success this year. Bad roads did not deter the farmers from coming into town in large numbers. The beautiful weather which favored the occasion probably counteracted their effects. At anyrate the turn-out of farmers was unusually good even for a fair day.

There were about six hundred head of cattle brought in for sale last night and this morning. The majority were of prime quality, being fed during the winter and reserved for sale till now. The fair ground swarmed with buyers who greedily picked up everything at ruling prices. Average cattle brought from 4c to 4½c per lb. live weight, and extras ran all the way to 5½c. There were very few sheep, and the prices of these were from $6 to $8 a head. Veal is in demand at present, and there were quite a number of calves on the ground which brought from $9 to $20 each. Spring lambs is a delicacy for table use just now and those brought in sold at from $3 to $5 a piece. Live hogs sold at 5c per lb. A large number of the cattle were sold in lump and many of the number were bought for export. The majority of the farmers are still feeding their cattle for May and June delivery for exportation.

Following is a partial list of the sales made to-day:—

TERRIFIC HURRICANE.

A Minnesota Town Laid Waste and Forty People Killed.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., April 14.—Reports have been received of a terrible cyclone at St. Cloud, Minn., this afternoon, in which it is reported that 40 persons were killed, 75 injured and half the town laid waste. It is reported that Sauk Rapids also suffered. The Mayor at Ames and half a dozen physicians are just leaving in a special train for St. Cloud in answer to messages for assistance. A train for St. Cloud left here at 6 o'clock having 12 physicians on board. The information at hand is very meagre and sensational. Reports are current that one hundred people have been killed and about 75 injured, but it is impossible to get much information. The disaster is certainly appalling.

Conservative Gains.

LONDON, April 14.—The election at Ipswich, Suffolk County, resulted as follows: Lord Dalrymple (Conservative), 3688; Lord Elcho (Conservative), 3662; Hervey (Liberal), 3635; Davey (Liberal), 3627.

At the last election H. W. West, Q. C., (Liberal) received 3795 votes and Jesse Collings (Liberal), the man whose allotment motion defeated the Salisbury Government, 3777.

SCIENTIFIC SOCIETY.

Prof. Panton Lectures on Guelph's Geological Formation.

The report of the first practical meeting of the above Society was crowded out on Wednesday. The meeting was held on Tuesday evening.

After the transaction of routine business the President, Mr. James Goldie, called on Prof. Panton for his paper on the "Geology of Guelph and Surroundings." The Professor made a few preliminary remarks in reference to his choice of the subject, and called the attention of the audience to two cards, one showing drawings of a few of the different geological specimens found near Guelph and the other explaining the different ages of formation. The drawings, which were the work of Mr. Gilbert, a student of the O. A. C., were excellently done. In beginning his paper he referred to some points to be considered, first, in reference to rocks, which were divided into three divisions. First, eruptive, which were large, irregular masses, never containing remains of animals or plants. Second, metamorphic, which were in layers, afterwards being subject to great changes through heat, pressure and moisture, examples of these being mica, slate, etc. This formation was common in Eastern Canada, Muskoka, Kingston, Brockville, extending north to the Arctic Regions, and was the oldest on the Continent. Many boulders found in our own section belong to this formation, carried south by ice fields. Third, aqueous, which formed by far the greatest proportion of the earth's surface, always appearing in beds or strata. All rocks come under one of these three divisions.

The second fact set forth was that rocks were usually in layers and that where rocks were now found there had almost surely at some time been bodies of water.

The third fact to be borne in mind was, the grouping of the different form of rocks in divisions, such as the Devonian, Silurian, Cambrian, etc.

Fourth, that each division had characteristic fossils, a sure evidence of their different ages, and

Fifth—and a most important fact—that they always, wherever found, occupy the same position in reference to each other.

Considering these five leading facts, in visiting the quarries around Guelph, many interesting fossils could be found and the most productive for these he had found to be Howitt's Quarry. The stone there was a greyish white crystaline, making excellent building material—especially for ornamental work, and good lime. The exposures there were very marked, in layers, in horizontal position, containing remains of animals, most certainly aqueous. There were innumerable evidences of primeval life, such as corals, cuttle fish, shells, etc., some of which were shewn on the diagram before them, and which were peculiar to the Silurian system. The Guelph formation was low down, being in the 5th Series, and it must have been at least forty million years since it was laid down. The question arose as to what had become of the intervening Strata, none appearing in Guelph between the 5th, 15th and 16th. Their absence was accounted for in various ways:

First, the idea was advanced that this this locality had been raised above the sea, while surroundings were submerged.

Second, that these missing deposits had been formed and afterwards worn away, but this was hardly possible.

Third, that perhaps Guelph had been covered by too great a depth of water the formation gathering nearer the shores.

After formation of Guelph division there had evidently been a great break in surroundings, as during the coal forming period nothing was added; during the chalk series nothing was added. The glacial and post glacial dolmites received their covering, and it was estimated that for 160,000 years this section had been ground over by an immense glacier until the southern district gradually threw off its hold. There were traces of the life quite common in quarries, and the formation extends from the Niagara River north to Manitoulin Island, and was fully 160 feet deep in the Western Peninsula.

A fossil is first, anybody, or traces of body of animal or vegetable life, embodied in rocks; second, casts or moulds of these bodies; third, a replacement; or, fourth, impressions, such as tracks, rain drops, etc. From these fossils can be inferred, first, the age of the deposit, and each age has its peculiarities. Fossils in Guelph were peculiar to the Silurian system, below the carboniferous, which shows plainly that coal cannot be found here. Second, the nature of the deposit. All animals have a peculiar mode of life and from the conclusions can be formed that remains now found in Guelph were peculiar to salt and warm water.

Third, climate was readily inferred from fossils found, and those in Guelph go to show climate was never below 66 degrees, certainly a tropical climate, and the balmy southern breezes must have once passed over our surroundings where 30° below zero is not now uncommon. It was also plain that delicate ferns and other tropical plants once flourished here.

Some of the fossils were not clearly defined; and the Professor next gave a list of some of the most commonly found here, amongst others the Murchisonia, or remains of shells, of which there were some thirty-eight species. Second, bivalve Molusks. Third, cuttle fish—fourteen species—and many others, all types of animals which occupied the sea covering our surroundings.

There was ample opportunity to look up many new fossils and he trusted many Guelph people would take up this branch, assuring them of success. He referred to Hugh Miller, who commenced studying rocks far above the Silurian system and who occupied a foremost position among the geologists of the world.

The next paper will be given on the second Tuesday in May by the President of the society, Mr. James Goldie, his subject being ornithology.

Short Three Thousand.

STRATFORD, Ont., April 14.—H. S. Roy, for some time past teller of the Bank of Montreal here, left on Saturday afternoon last for Toronto, and not being on hand for business Monday morning, as expected, suspicions were aroused, and an investigation showed that he was a defaulter to the extent of something like three thousand dollars. There are no tidings of his whereabouts up to the present.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G APRIL 14, 1886.

The Ontario Agricultural College.

The eleventh annual report of the Ontario Agricultural College is before us. The day has passed when men carped at the establishment of such an institution in Ontario. Even the ultra Tory London Free Press has drifted into confining its criticisms to mere matters of detail and not to the principle involved in its establishment. We turn therefore with a lively interest to the report to see what is being done in the only educational institution in the Province farmers can especially call their own. The first satisfactory feature that strikes one in the President's report is that the number attending from our own Province is comparatively so large. Out of 175 students in the College 103 are from Ontario. England contributes 30, Quebec 14, Ireland 5, Scotland 5, Turkey, Wales and the Island of Jersey each 1. This is as it should be. The Ontario Agricultural College, sustained by Ontario funds, and established for Ontario farmers should be patronized by Ontario boys. It is of course desirable that any English capitalist who wishes to settle in Canada should have an opportunity of learning something of the nature of our soils and the principles of his profession. But too often we fear those who honor the College with their presence from beyond sea either pass their after-life in other lands or drift out of farming altogether. We have scanned the President's report somewhat carefully to see whether any statistics were given of the number of those who have left the College who are actually engaged in farming. If it were possible to give such a list it would be eminently satisfactory and no doubt silence many carpers. The Institutton seems to be in highest favor with the Episcopalians as out of the whole number of students 63 are of that persuasion. The Presbyterians follow with 48, and then come the Methodists with 34. The Roman Catholics only send 5, a fact for which we can venture on no explanation.

A change has been effected in the outdoor work of the institution, and henceforth those coming in from the country will have more time to fit themselves by lectures for the practical work of their life. Those who know Prof. Mills' sanguine temperament and how much his heart is in his work will not be surprised to find once again in his report the question of agricultural education in our Public Schools advocated. It is just doubtful, however, whether our Public Schools are not attempting too much already and whether in case Prof. Mills' suggestion were adopted some other branch would not have to be dropped from an over-crowded curriculum. Indeed, if we were disposed to criticise we would say that almost the only objection that can be taken to the really noble institution over which Prof. Mills presides is that it too, perhaps, is attempting too much. We do not believe with the London Free Press that a farmer has no use for English literature. On the contrary, the masterpieces of English prose and verse should find a fitting home beside every rural fireside in the land and their influence would not be unfelt in the field. But when a two years' student endeavours to soar into the mists of meterology and one or two other things, besides mastering a host of really profitable knowledge, the chanches are his ideas as to some things may be somewhat clouded. We propose to reserve for future notice the rest of the volume and especially the report of Prof. Brown, who as Professor of Agriculture, pure and simple, merits a somewhat longer notice than the others from journals furnishing information to a farming community.

THE Manitoba Legislature will be asked to give a million dollars as subsidy to the Hudson Bay Railway.

A NEW memorial renewing the application for "better terms" was adopted by the Nova Scotia Assembly on Wednesday night without a division.

Two notices of motion have been given in the Quebec Legislature expressing loyalty to the Queen and approving Mr. Gladstone's course.

AT a Reform Convention at Stayner, on Wednesday, to elect a candidate in North Simcoe against Dalton McCarthy, the Hon. T. W. Anglin wa unanimously the choice of the party.

THERE was a hot debate in the Quebec Legislature on Friday on the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. Mr. Mercier made an attack on the Dominion Government on account of Riel's execution, and at a later stage he is to ask the Government what action they took in bringing under the notice of the Dominion Government the numerous resolutions and petitions from the people of that Province, praying that Riel's sentence be commuted. The attack of the Opposition on this subject will put the Government in an awkward position, for their supporters almost to a man view the execution of Riel as an act for which the Dominion Government should be condemned.

IN Canada we are protesting against assisted immigration because we have a sufficiency of labor for all demands, and is is, therefore, unfair to our laborers and mechanics to assist people in coming to this country to compete with them in an over-crowded market. But the labor organizations in the States are going farther than this, and are agitating for restrictions on the importation of all classes of foreign labor. Evidently both countries are entering on a new phase of the immigration question.

MONTREAL Post: There are about 7,000 immigrants from abroad in the Northwest Territories. Not a soul more. The total population, red and white, is only 48,362. Of these 20,170 are Indians, 4,848 are half-breeds, and a little over 23,000 are whites. But of these 23,000 whites, 14,218 of them are from different parts of the Dominion. This fact has been established by the official census. Now, if we take 14,218, the number of white Canadians in the Northwest Territories, from 23,000, the total white population, we have 8,782 whites to represent the immigration into the territories. But from this latter number we must deduct the officers and employees of the Hudson's Bay Company, who where in the territory before it was acquired by Canada, the Americans who are employed there as cow boys, the transients and others, and we shall probably have no more than 7,000 bona fide immigrants from Europe left. Now the opening of the Northwest, including all expenses, must have cost to date, say something like $100,000,000 cash; returns to date, 7,000 immigrants from abroad; cost of each immigrant to date, say $14,000. How is that for high?

CHAPTER XPIII.

GATHERING CLOUDS.

"Be good enough not to finish. I know what you were going to say, and you will be kind enough to leave it unsaid."

She was silent. She left the last word with him, and soon afterwards he went out of the room. He went downstairs, and stood for a moment at the open door; then he went out of the hotel and strolled into the large garden belonging to it.

Though tolerably late in the year the air was soft and still, and after wandering about the twisting paths for a little while he lit a cigar and sat down on one of the rustic seats by which he passed from time to time.

He sat there for a considerable time, his hands in his pockets, his eyes downcast, and his foot beating a kind of tattoo upon the gravel. He was very much put out by what had just happened. It was something quite new in his experience, and he felt a certain embarrassment as to how he should act. Before meeting Helen he had, considering his age and position, come into contact with remarkably few women, and he was not deeply versed in their ways. Helen had never treated him to such a scene, nor had Alice until now. This was the first time she had shown so much perversity and such a deplorable want of dignity and common sense. After thinking it over he came to the conclusion that he must overlook it, as he would have done the first rebellion against school discipline of a child. He remembered that Alice had from her earliest youth up had everything she wanted. She had since her introduction to society enjoyed an unusual amount of liberty. Her comings and goings had been regulated by her own fantacies. She had, strictly speaking, been accountable to no one for what she did. He clutched hold of this idea and held it fast. This was the first time it had ever been brought home to her that when she married she had yielded a part at least of her free will and independence. So far she had regulated their life, decided where they were to go, and often how they were to spend their time; now for the first time she was to learn that when she had one plan and he another, hers must sometimes give way to his. He recognized that it would be a hard lesson to learn all at once, especially for a woman who had never obeyed any one's will but her own.

"It must be hard, by Jove, it must be hard!" he said to himself. "She had no business, of course, to go making such promises to people without consulting me, but I can understand it. She will learn by degrees; there is no need to make it harder for her than it is. I will say no more about it, but just act as if it had not happened. I must go home, and she must go with me, but I will try to make it up to her in some way. Of course she is disappointed. Last year if she had wanted to winter in Florence with these people there would have been nothing to prevent it, and I suppose she can't get used to the change all at once. It will come gradually. I had better go in, or she will think I am really angry."

He got up and returned to the house, resolved not only to say no more about it, but, what was far harder, to think no more about it. Perhaps he had a dim feeling that, after the glimpse Alice had given of what she could be when thwarted and disappointed, further thought would only reveal possibilities which it would be more prudent not to look forward to.

When he got in he found that visitors had arrived during his absence. Alice was in her element with three men talking to her at once and a fourth looking on with envy. He was occupied until late, and as soon as they were alone again Alice rose up with a yawn and said she was going to bed. Nothing more, therefore, was said that night, and Percival hoped that in the morning it would all have blown over. Her was disappointed, and at the same time astonished, to find that for a day or two Alice kept rather aloof from him, showing, as he supposed, that she had not forgotten his unbecoming opposition to her wishes.

The following day his own desire to go home was increased by a letter which he received from his agent, and he wrote to Brantwood without consulting Alice. His arrangements made, he said—

"I should like to leave here a week today, Alice, if perfectly convenient to you."

As she had heard no more of the projected return home, she had chosen to imagine that her husband had abandoned the idea; his words, therefore, gave her a rude shock. But she feigned admirably, and without raising her eyes from her book said, as though only half attending to him,

"How leave?"

"For home," he replied. "You remember what I said a few days ago."

"For home!" she repeated, laying down her book and looking very much astonished. "I don't understand. I remember now you did say something about wanting to go soon, but as you did not mention it again I supposed you had given up the idea. Indeed, it is not convenient! in fact I cannot possibly go. I have made all kinds of engagements for next week which I cannot break. No, really, if you intended to go you should have given me longer notice."

Percival was very much vexed, but he still did his best to overcome the feeling. He was standing by the window of their private sitting-room, and he mechanically rolled between his fingers a frond of one of the ferns in the fern stand, as he replied,

"It was, to say the least of it, imprudent to make engagements which you were uncertain about being able to keep, and you must have been uncertain had I merely spoken of our return as possible. If I remember rightly I said that I had made up my mind to go home."

"What then?" drawing up her long throat.

"In that case you must have made these engagements knowing that you could not keep them, so that it cannot cause you any great disappointment to give them up."

"No," she persisted obstinately, "I cannot give them up."

He crossed the room to her side and put his lips to her cheek, saying—

"Alice, do not be foolish. I must go. I cannot put it off. Why do you make it so unpleasant for both of us?"

"I am sure you could put it off for a week. What difference could a week make?"

"Impossible. I must go on important business; if I waited a week I might as well not go at all," and he began to explain the business to her, using plain, simple terms; taking pains to bring it within her comprehension, and to put it in as interesting a light as possible. She did not listen. All the time he was speaking her eyes were wandering about the room, and she at last interrupted him with.

"Besides, Percival, even if I could throw up my engagements, I have ordered a dress and a bonnet which will not be ready till the end of next week. I cannot go without them. I really could not afford, and it is too late to countermand the order."

Percival stopped speaking abruptly, so abruptly that he never finished the word he was saying. He was too angry to speak at first, but at last he said—

"Surely the making of your clothes can be hastened, or if not they can be sent after you. You will forgive my saying, Alice, that to me your objections appear very trivial."

"Not more trivial than your 'important business' does to me," was her retort. Pray, what does it matter what kind of a

Is Fortune Blind or does she distribute her prizes according to merit?

Well, how is it? We are inclined to doubt it, either this or the other aphorism, "Fortune favors the brave," must be wrong. We think Shakespeare covers the whole ground when he says, "There is a tide in the affairs of man which taken at the Flood leads on to Fortune."

Grand MILLINERY DISPLAY

On Thursday 15th, Friday 16th, Saturday 17th inst.

Millinery Opening Exhibit surpassing anything in the past.

We hold our Spring Millinery Opening.

Pattern Bonnets and Hats.

It is always our aim to excell. We have been complemented on our Millinery in the past, but we flatter ourselves that our exhibit this year will far surpass anything Guelph has ever seen. We show the largest stock of ever displayed in the Royal City, having imported over 100 ranging all the way from 50 to 175 francs. These patterns after the opening we will sell at the price of ordinary goods, having made use of them in our designing apartments.

We have now engaged in the peason of

MISS MARRIOTT

One of the foremost Milliners in the country, who although living the larger Canadian and American cities for some years past, is well known in Guelph.

J. D. WILLIAMSON & Co.

We cordially invite the ladies of Guelph and vicinity to pay us a visit on our opening days, and assure them of our best efforts to make their visit a pleasant one. (No cards.)

tenant you have, or whether he lets the whole farm go to wreck and ruin; I suppose you can build it up again. This is the first time I ever heard of a man who had not been married six months preferring the preservation of a farm to the happiness of his wife."

Percival rose from his chair with a very white face.

"You understand, Alice, that we leave here for England next Tuesday. You will be kind enough to make your arrangements accordingly."

Before she had time to answer he left the room.

As on a former occasion of a like nature he went into the garden and began walking up and down the narrow winding paths. This was dreadful; for the second time within a week she had made a scene. Would there be one every time she set her mind on something that she could not have? He felt genuine alarm at the thought. It was most annoying and unseemly, and who could tell to what length she might not go? He began to see how weak, easy-going men became that ridiculous and contemptible object—a henpecked husband. Merely as a study, he imagined himself giving way to Alice on this occasion, and he saw as in a vision what his future life would be. His thoughts turned involuntarily to Helen, but by an enormous effort he turned them away. He had vowed on the day when he became engaged to Alice, and again on his wedding day, that he would not draw comparison between Alice and Helen, and he was determined not to break his vow. So, as while he remained alone he could not help thinking of what had passed, and the more he thought of it the less he liked it, he went back to the hotel and sought the billiard room, where he found occupation of a nature to prevent his mind dwelling upon painful domestic difficulties.

IRISH HOME RULE.

The Scheme Denounced at a Great Meeting in London.

LONDON, April 14.—The approaches to the Opera House where the meeting of the Loyal Patriotic Union was held tonight, were besieged by the crowds of people and the roadways were blocked hours before the time announced for the beginning of the proceedings. Upwards of four hundred prominent Orangemen from Belfast and Liverpool came to London to attend the meeting. Lord Hartington, Lord Salisbury and Lord Randolph Churchill were received with enthusiastic cheering. Some one in the audience called for cheers for the Queen and groans for Parnell and Gladstone. The audience sang "Rule Brittannia" and listened to the reading of letters from the Duke of Argyll and the Earl of Derby, in which the writers denounced the Home Rule Bill, saying it would be unworkable and would involve the Kingdom in serious danger.

Earl Cowper, who presided, said that they were face to face with a great national calamity. He was, therefore, glad to see around him representatives of all parties willing to unite to avert the danger. From his own experience as Vicroy of Ireland he could safely say that Home Rule was not desired by the great body of Irish people. The priests had largely gone over to the Nationalists because they would join any body who would drive every other religion out of Ireland. (Cheers.) If the Bill was allowed to pass this year would be memorable in all time as a disastrous year, as the beginning of the decline of the British Empire.

Lord Hartington moved that Mr. Gladstone's proposals, as they would tend to invalidate the legislative union, would prove disastrous to the interests of both countries. He repeated the arguments of his late speech in Parliament, contending that the country's voice had not yet been heard. He credited Mr. Gladstone with an honest belief that the country wished a constitutional change, but he refused to credit Mr. Gladstone's colleagues with the same belief.

Mr. Rylands (Liberal), who seconded Lord Hartington's motion, charged that the Irish party was connected with skirmishers whose deeds had made humanity shudder.

Lord Salisbury on rising was greeted with enthusiastic applause, which was several times renewed. He moved that a petition embodying the sentiments of the meeting be presented to Parliament. They were dealing, he said, with a question immeasurably beyond party differences. They were confronted with the greatest danger that had ever menaced the Empire. He joined in eulogizing the Premier's powers, and said that if eloquence so great and experience so consummate had failed to provide a tolerable Home Rule measure, he was convinced such a measure could not be produced at all. He said the proposed scheme of federation belonged to the region of political ideas, not of practical realities. The country had been asked to trust the Irish people, while by moonlight and ribbon societies murder by night and day made doubtful the angelic character attributed to the Irish peasantry. He did not maintain that the Irish were worse than other people, but he did hold that the circumstance that Ireland was centuries old made it impossible to believe that, if entire liberty should be conceded, the Irish could forget the animosities of centuries and treat those placed in their power for the first time with perfect justice and equity. (Cheers.) It would be terrible if, through England's faint-heartedness, the Irish were abandoned to the anarchy that would result from Home Rule. The contest between England and the disaffected Irish had lasted for generations and England was now asked to consent to an ignominous and complete surrender similar to that of a great nation which had lost a great battle involving a loss of territory. In conclusion the speaker said: "England would find that separation involved loss of prestige. It would be as doubts as to the progress o England. It would effect the attachment of the colonies, and weaken England's influence throughout the world. The capitulation desired by Mr. Gladstone would bring disasters to which nothing in English history could compare. Our enemies would view it with sinister exultation, our friends with shame, confusion and despair." (Cheers.)

Mr. Goschen seconded the motions introduced by Lords Hartington and Salisbury and they were unanimously carried.

Fergus Correspondence.

DISAPPOINTED.—Quite a large number were disappointed because of the postponement of Rev. W. S. Ball's lecture on Tuesday last. It could not be helped, however. The storm had blown in one of the windows and partly covered the platform and some of the seats with snow. Along with this the fire would not burn and people could not listen under such circumstances to a Gladstone. We can say to all who went last Tuesday, keep cool, it will come yet.

SALE.—Some of our leading cattle men from this neighborhood, including D. Rea and R. Kirby, of Eramosa; and Messrs. Lindsay and P. Dow, of Nichol, attended the auction of Mr. J. C. Snell's cattle last week. Mr. D. Rea purchased a cow and bull calf for $425, a tall price, but our farmer knows what he is doing. It is reported that Mr. Kirby also invested. These farmers deserve credit for improving the stock of this county.

CONCERT.—The entertainment given by the Ball Family (colored) in the Drill Shed on Thursday last was very good. The singing was first class. The concert was under the auspices of the Methodist body. We are pleased to say they had a very good house.

PERSONAL.—Dr. Orton was here over Sunday looking very little the worse for his fight in Ottawa. A slight scratch on his cheek was about the only mark he carried to show he had been hit. He, we believe, thinks he had the better of the scrimmage.

SUCCESS.—We congratulate Dr. W. G. Dow, son of Mr. P. Dow, Nichol, on his appointment as assistant at Toronto General Hospital. We doubt not he will do the position and himself credit.

CHURCHES.—Last Sunday the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was dispensed in Rev. Mr Mullin's church. Dr. Torrance, of Guelph, preached to a united congregation there in the evening after conducting service in Melville in the morning. Rev Mr Colling filled his own pulpit in the Methodist Church.

SUDDEN DEATHS.—Mr A McIntyre an old and respected resident of Fergus, passed quickly and quietly away on Saturday morning last. He was at church on Friday, attended the committee meeting of the Mechanics' Institute in the evening, was taken sick on his road home about 9.30 and breathed his last before 4 o'clock next morning. He was an active man and a member of Mr Mullin's church, lived a life becoming a Christian, was a good member of society, a good friend and worker in the Mechanics' Institute, and was well educated and well read. He was a mechanic managing a little shop of his own. He leaves a wife, a son in the Northwest, and a talented daughter now residing about Parry Sound. Mr Skeoch, an old resident of Nichol, also died very suddenly last week. He was in his 80th year.

STORM.—Last Tuesday's snow and mud blocked the roads worse than any storm during this season. In fact it was the worst storm here for years.

EASTER SHOW.—To-day was our Easter fair day and fair and lovely it has been for once. The fair was a good one, a great many splendid cattle being in. Probably the best lot belonged to Mrs. Gordon. They were prime, weighed nearly 1,500, sold and delivered at 5½c. an extra price. Average sales were dull at 4½c to 5c. Cattle are down to 5½c for May delivery.

THE FLOOD.—This morning all was flat, nothing of importance to write. To-night everything is changed, and had we time and words we might write a book entitled "Smash up on the Grand." Between three and four this p. m. the cry ran through the village "the ice is breaking up and bridges are going down the river." Like the cry of fire it made all who could, rush to the scene, and soon both our bridges and approaches were crowded with an excited throng, all eager to see the magnificent sight. The first move of the large block of ice on Mr Semple's dam caught his flume as it passed over the dam and carried all before it, and soon this part of his property was a total wreck, a thing of the past it passed on its way to Lake Erie. It was thought that the end of the mill must also go, but it weathered the crash, and stands out to-night a prominent bulwark against the angry surging water as it courses violently down its now enlarged borders. No sooner had our dam cleared than ice, logs, timber, shingles and bridges, more or less broken up, were seen tumbling over Wilson's dam, and plunging rapidly down the river. This continued for nearly an hour, but long before it was all past it was reported, and only too truly, that Mr Wilson's bridge on the townline, Glenlammond bridge and saw mill, were swept away. A run up the river showed half the town line bridge, built last year, gone. All Glenlammond bridge and one side of the saw mill and a big part of the dam were washed away, while the end of the saw mill was knocked in, and the building jammed up with logs, stones, etc. This is altogether the most damaging break-up we have had on this dangerous river. A jam formed above Glenlammond dam from what came down the river. The ice stood for a time, and then it all moved bodily down in terrible grandeur, a mass of ice, saw logs, stumps, etc, rising to the height of nearly twenty feet. This tremendous volume of material, forced on by the irresistible power of the water, crashed down on the face of the old mill, broke in the end and washed away the side of it. A large body of water washed around it carrying away about 10,000 feet of lumber and some shingles. Mr. Black has just come into possession of the mill property. He may not lose as much as is generally supposed, but he must lose heavily. Mr. Reid loses about $100. Mr. Semple's loss is as severe as was that of last year. Garafraxa, unfortunate as ever, loses a bridge costing about $1,500. A good many men must lose employment now that the saw mills are gone as Mr. Perry's, in the village, is also useless without any power to drive it. Mr. Wilson's saw mill will now be in demand, and perhaps after all, the losses may not be so bad as they look.

ROADS.—The roads are reported terribly bad in the country. Our streets are being cleaned up.

CELEBRATION.—The jubilee ceremony in connection with Mellville church is making good progress, and will probably be satisfactorily completed on Thursday. The Presbytery will be dined in the drill shed. Service will be held in the church at 2 30 in the afternoon, when addresses will be read and presents made to Dr. Smellie, the Presbytery and congregation each giving an individual purse or present. In the evening tea will be served in the drill shed. Quite a programme.

REMOVAL.—We are sorry to lose Mr. John White from Fergus. He has been here 7 or 8 years and has always taken an active part in all good work, and was a good Grit into the bargain. He has removed to Galt where he takes charge of a flour and feed business, having bought out a store near the market in that town. His wife and family will soon follow him, Mr White going yesterday and beginning business to-day. We wish him every success.

Fergus, April 14, 1886.

Reasons why you should purchase Fluid Lightning in preference to all other remedies are: Rapid result—cures instantly. It is easily applied—no trouble—no lost time. Try it for neuralgia, Toothache, Headache, Rheumatism Sold at 25c a bottle by Thos. S. Petrie, Druggist

Hespeler Correspondence.

VILLAINY.—The word villainy may be considered a strong term but we think it none too strong to apply to the practice of Sabbath desecration, which some of the young men and boys of our town indulge in by assembling in a field or the village park, and practising athletic sports, using dumbells &c. It is well known that that sort of work has a contaminating influence, and is sufficient to subvert almost every effort of those who are endeavoring to impart christian morals in the place. A visit by constable Winterhault to the scene of action will set matters right, and we feel sure the proper authorities will attend to it when they become cognizant of the facts.

GONE DOWN FOR A YEAR.—The prisoner who was sent to Berlin goal from here last week for stealing a set of single harness, pleaded guilty to the charge, and received a sentence of six months at the Central prison. Reports say however, that he made a strike for liberty on being escorted from the court house to the goal, and gave the Berlin constabulary a privilege to exercise and exhibit their pedestrian capabilities. He ran almost to Waterloo village (two miles) before he was rearrested, and for this six additional months were added to his sentence.

THE ROADS.—Although the roads coming into town are very muddy, we expect that a few days like to-day will set them in good condition. It now becomes difficult to reconcile the idea that such a fearful snow storm as that of last week should have occurred so recently, as the immense drifts have almost entirely disappeared under the genial temperature of the last few days.

A SPLENDID DISPLAY.—If you want to see a superb display of millinery, go into the Waterloo house, conducted by Mr. John Braid, where the head milliner, Miss Green, fully asserts her ability to make as good an exhibit in the line alluded to as is made perhaps in this part of Ontario. The opening was last week.

MEDICAL AND THEOLOGICAL.—Last week Mr John Howit, son of Mr A Howit, P.L.S., and Mr James Holmes, son of the Rev Edwin Holmes, were in town and were the guests of Mr and Mrs Cunningham. Mr Howit is a medical, and Mr Holmes a theological, student, both well known and much respected here.

tenant you have, or whether he lets the whole farm go to wreck and ruin; I suppose you can build it up again. This is the first time I ever heard of a man who had not been married six months preferring the preservation of a farm to the happiness of his wife."

Percival rose from his chair with a very white face.

"You understand, Alice, that we leave here for England next Tuesday. You will be kind enough to make your arrangements accordingly."

Before she had time to answer he left the room.

As on a former occasion of a like nature he went into the garden and began walking up and down the narrow winding paths. This was dreadful; for the second time within a week she had made a scene. Would there be one every time she set her mind on something that she could not have? He felt genuine alarm at the thought. It was most annoying and unseemly, and who could tell to what length she might not go? He began to see how weak, easy-going men became that ridiculous and contemptible object—a henpecked husband. Merely as a study, he imagined himself giving way to Alice on this occasion, and he saw as in a vision what his future life would be. His thoughts turned involuntarily to Helen, but by an enormous effort he turned them away. He had vowed on the day when he became engaged to Alice, and again on his wedding day, that he would not draw comparison between Alice and Helen, and he was determined not to break his vow. So, as while he remained alone he could not help thinking of what had passed, and the more he thought of it the less he liked it, he went back to the hotel and sought the billiard room, where he found occupation of a nature to prevent his mind dwelling upon painful domestic difficulties.

IRISH HOME RULE.

The Scheme Denounced at a Great Meeting in London.

LONDON, April 14.—The approaches to the Opera House where the meeting of the Loyal Patriotic Union was held tonight, were besieged by the crowds of people and the roadways were blocked hours before the time announced for the beginning of the proceedings. Upwards of four hundred prominent Orangemen from Belfast and Liverpool came to London to attend the meeting. Lord Hartington, Lord Salisbury and Lord Randolph Churchill were received with enthusiastic cheering. Some one in the audience called for cheers for the Queen and groans for Parnell and Gladstone. The audience sang "Rule Brittannia" and listened to the reading of letters from the Duke of Argyll and the Earl of Derby, in which the writers denounced the Home Rule Bill, saying it would be unworkable and would involve the Kingdom in serious danger.

Earl Cowper, who presided, said that they were face to face with a great national calamity. He was, therefore, glad to see around him representatives of all parties willing to unite to avert the danger. From his own experience as Vicroy of Ireland he could safely say that Home Rule was not desired by the great body of Irish people. The priests had largely gone over to the Nationalists because they would join any body who would drive every other religion out of Ireland. (Cheers.) If the Bill was allowed to pass this year would be memorable in all time as a disastrous year, as the beginning of the decline of the British Empire.

Lord Hartington moved that Mr. Gladstone's proposals, as they would tend to invalidate the legislative union, would prove disastrous to the interests of both countries. He repeated the arguments of his late speech in Parliament, contending that the country's voice had not yet been heard. He credited Mr. Gladstone with an honest belief that the country wished a constitutional change, but he refused to credit Mr. Gladstone's colleagues with the same belief.

Mr. Rylands (Liberal), who seconded Lord Hartington's motion, charged that the Irish party was connected with skirmishers whose deeds had made humanity shudder.

Lord Salisbury on rising was greeted with enthusiastic applause, which was several times renewed. He moved that a petition embodying the sentiments of the meeting be presented to Parliament. They were dealing, he said, with a question immeasurably beyond party differences. They were confronted with the greatest danger that had ever menaced the Empire. He joined in eulogizing the Premier's powers, and said that if eloquence so great and experience so consummate had failed to provide a tolerable Home Rule measure, he was convinced such a measure could not be produced at all. He said the proposed scheme of federation belonged to the region of political ideas, not of practical realities. The country had been asked to trust the Irish people, while by moonlight and ribbon societies murder by night and day made doubtful the angelic character attributed to the Irish peasantry. He did not maintain that the Irish were worse than other people, but he did hold that the circumstance that Ireland was centuries old made it impossible to believe that, if entire liberty should be conceded, the Irish could forget the animosities of centuries and treat those placed in their power for the first time with perfect justice and equity. (Cheers.) It would be terrible if, through England's faint-heartedness, the Irish were abandoned to the anarchy that would result from Home Rule. The contest between England and the disaffected Irish had lasted for generations and England was now asked to consent to an ignominious and complete surrender similar to that of a great nation which had lost a great battle involving a loss of territory. In conclusion the speaker said: "England would find that separation involved loss of prestige. It would raise doubts as to the progress of England. It would effect the attachment of the colonies, and weaken England's influence throughout the world. The capitulation desired by Mr. Gladstone would bring disasters to which nothing in English history could compare. Our enemies would view it with sinister exultation, our friends with shame, confusion and despair." (Cheers.)

Mr. Goschen seconded the motions introduced by Lords Hartington and Salisbury and they were unanimously carried.

Fergus Correspondence.

DISAPPOINTED.—Quite a large number were disappointed because of the postponement of Rev. W. S. Ball's lecture on Tuesday last. It could not be helped, however. The storm had blown in one of the windows and partly covered the platform and some of the seats with snow. Along with this the fire would not burn and people could not listen under such circumstances to a Gladstone. We can say to all who went last Tuesday, keep cool, it will come yet.

SALE.—Some of our leading cattle men from this neighborhood, including D. Rea and R. Kirby, of Eramosa; and Messrs. Lindsay and P. Dow, of Nichol, attended the auction of Mr. J. C. Snell's cattle last week. Mr. D. Rea purchased a cow and bull calf for $425, a tall price, but our farmer knows what he is doing. It is reported that Mr. Kirby also invested. These farmers deserve credit for improving the stock of this county.

CONCERT.—The entertainment given by the Ball Family (colored) in the Drill Shed on Thursday last was very good. The singing was first class. The concert was under the auspices of the Methodist body. We are pleased to say they had a very good house.

PERSONAL.—Dr. Orton was here over Sunday looking very little the worse for his fight in Ottawa. A slight scratch on his cheek was about the only mark he carried to show he had been hit. He, we believe, thinks he had the better of the scrimmage.

SUCCESS.—We congratulate Dr. W. G. Dow, son of Mr. P. Dow, Nichol, on his appointment as assistant at Toronto General Hospital. We doubt not he will do the position and himself credit.

CHURCHES.—Last Sunday the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was dispensed in Rev. Mr Mullin's church. Dr. Torrance, of Guelph, preached to a united congregation there in the evening after conducting service in Melville in the morning. Rev Mr Colling filled his own pulpit in the Methodist Church.

SUDDEN DEATHS.—Mr A McIntyre an old and respected resident of Fergus, passed quickly and quietly away on Saturday morning last. He was at church on Friday, attended the committee meeting of the Mechanics' Institute in the evening, was taken sick on his road home about 9.30 and breathed his last before 4 o'clock next morning. He was an active man and a member of Mr Mullin's church, lived a life becoming a Christian, was a good member of society, a good friend and worker in the Mechanics' Institute, and was well educated and well read. He was a mechanic managing a little shop of his own. He leaves a wife, a son in the Northwest, and a talented daughter now residing about Parry Sound. Mr Skeoch, an old resident of Nichol, also died very suddenly last week. He was in his 80th year

STORM.—Last Tuesday's snow and mud blocked the roads worse than any storm during this season. In fact it was the worst storm here for years.

EASTER SHOW.—To-day was our Easter fair day and fair and lovely it has been for once. The fair was a good one, a great many splendid cattle being in. Probably the best lot belonged to Mrs. Gordon. They were prime, weighed nearly 1,800, sold and delivered at 5½c, an extra price. Average sales were dull at 4½c to 5c. Cattle are down to 5½c for May delivery.

THE FLOOD.—This morning all was flat, nothing of importance to write. To-night everything is changed, and had we time and words we might write a book entitled "Smash up on the Grand." Between three and four this p. m. the cry ran through the village "the ice is breaking up and bridges are going down the river." Like the cry of fire it made all who could, rush to the scene, and soon both our bridges and approaches were crowded with an excited throng, all eager to see the magnificent sight. The first move of the large block of ice on Mr Semple's dam caught his flume as it passed over the dam and carried all before it, and soon this part of his property was a total wreck, a thing of the past it passed on its way to Lake Erie. It was thought that the end of the mill must also go, but it weathered the crash, and stands out to-night a prominent bulwark against the angry surging water as it courses violently down its now enlarged borders. No sooner had our dam cleared than ice, logs, timber, shingles and bridges, more or less broken up, were seen tumbling over Wilson's dam, and plunging rapidly down the river. This continued for nearly an hour, but long before it was all past it was reported, and only too truly, that Mr Wilson's bridge on the townline, Glenlammond bridge and saw mill, were swept away. A run up the river showed half the town line bridge, built last year, gone. All Glenlammond bridge and one side of the saw mill and a big part of the dam were washed away, while the end of the saw mill was knocked in, and the building jammed upwithlogs, stones, etc. This is altogether the most damaging break-up we have had on this dangerous river A jam formed above Glenlammond dam from what came down the river. The ice stood for a time, and then it all moved bodily down in terrible grandeur, a mass of ice, saw logs, stumps, etc, rising to the height of nearly twenty feet. This tremendous volume of material, forced on by the irresistible power of the water, crashed down on the face of the old mill, broke in the end and washed away the side of it. A large body of water washed around it carrying away about 10,000 feet of lumber and some shingles. Mr. Black has just come into possession of the mill property. He may not lose as much as is generally supposed, but he must lose heavily. Mr. Reid loses about $100. Mr. Semple's loss is as severe as was that of last year. Garafraxa, unfortunate as ever, loses a bridge costing about $1,500. A good many men must lose employment now that the saw mills are gone as Mr. Ferry's, in the village, is also useless without any power to drive it. Mr. Wilson's saw mill will now be in demand, and perhaps after all, the losses may not be so bad as they look.

COUNCIL.—The adjourned meeting of the Council was held last night. The question of fire protection was brought up. After considerable discussion Dr. Johnson gave notice that he would ask leave to introduce a by-law for providing an engine for the village. The Road and Bridge Committee meet next week.

ROADS.—The roads are reported terribly bad in the country. Our streets are being cleaned up.

CELEBRATION.—The jubilee ceremony in connection with Mellville church is making good progress, and will probably be satisfactorily completed on Thursday. The Presbytery will be dined in the drill shed. Service will be held in the church at 2 30 in the afternoon, when addresses will be read and presents made to Dr. Smellie, the Presbytery and congregation each giving an individual purse or present In the evening tea will be served in the drill shed. Quite a programme.

REMOVAL.—We ary sorry to lose Mr. John White from Fergus. He has been here 7 or 8 years and has always taken an active part in all good work, and was a good Grit into the bargain. He has removed to Galt where he takes charge of a flour and feed business, having bought out a store near the market in that town. His wife and family will soon follow him, Mr White going yesterday and beginning business to-day. We wish him every success.

Fergus, April 14, 1886.

Reasons why you should purchase Fluid Lightning in preference to all other remedies are: Rapid result—cures instantly. It is easily applied—no trouble—no lost time. It does not require constant use—one application is effectual. One bottle will remove more pain than any other remedy in existence. Try it for neuralgia, Toothache, Headache, Rheumatism Sold at 25c a bottle by Thos. S. Petrie, Druggist

Hespeler Correspondence.

VILLAINY.—The word villainy may be considered a strong term but we think it none too strong to apply to the practice of Sabbath desecration, which some of the young men and boys of our town indulge in by assembling in a field or the village park, and practising athletic sports, using dumbells &c. It is well known that that sort of work has a contaminating influence, and is sufficient to subvert almost every effort of those who are endeavoring to impart christian morals in the place. A visit by constable Winterhault to the scene of action will set matters right, and we feel sure the proper authorities will attend to it when they become cognizant of the facts.

GONE DOWN FOR A YEAR.—The prisoner who was sent to Berlin goal from here last week for stealing a set of single harness, pleaded guilty to the charge, and received a sentence of six months at the Central prison. Reports say however, that he made a strike for liberty on being escorted from the court house to the goal, and gave the Berlin constabulary a privilege to exercise and exhibit their pedestrian capabilities. He ran almost to Waterloo village (two miles) before he was rearrested, and for this six additional months were added to his sentence.

THE ROADS.—Although the roads coming into town are very muddy, we expect that a few days like to-day will set them in good condition. It now becomes difficult to reconcile the idea that such a fearful snow storm as that of last week should have occurred so recently, as the immense drifts have almost entirely disappeared under the genial temperature of the last few days.

A SPLENDID DISPLAY.—If you want to see a superb display of millinery, go into the Waterloo house, conducted by Mr. John Braid, where the head milliner, Miss Green, fully asserts her ability to make as good an exhibit in the line alluded to as is made perhaps in this part of Ontario. The opening was last week.

MEDICAL AND THEOLOGICAL.—Last week Mr John Howit, son of Mr A Howit, P.L.S., and Mr James Holmes, son of the Rev Edwin Holmes, were in town and were the guests of Mr and Mrs Cunningham. Mr Howit is a medical, and Mr Holmes a theological, student, both well known and much respected here.

Thunder Storms.

The probs: Fresh west to south winds; continued fair, warm weather to-day; local showers or thunder storms to-morrow.

WM. BELL & Co. are putting in the new boiler to-day.

THE average daily attendance at Georgetown Public School is 201. Milton's average is 256.

THE city auditors, Messrs. Knowles and Heffernan, have completed their quarterly audit of the city books, and returned their report to the Mayor.

THE liquor dealers report that they are at present selling off large quantities of liquors. Evidently the antis are making preparations for the Scott Act two weeks hence.

A SLIDE took place on the cutting on the Eramosa hill beyond the Bull Frog yesterday and has blocked up the road considerably. Corporation hands are at work to-day clearing the earth away.

MR. GEO. WILLIAMS evidently finds that the old cash box is not sufficient to contain all the wealth which he draws over the counter, because yesterday he put in a handsome new safe made by Goldie & McCullough, Galt.

PANE OF GLASS BROKEN.—Some time early this morning a large pane of glass in the door of Mr. E. R. Bollert's store was smashed in. It is a question whether it was whether it was done with inten to burglarize or caused by a drunken manfalling against it. So far no goods have been missed. The pane was replaced to-day.

PROVINCIAL FAT STOCK SHOW.—On Thursday afternoon a meeting of the committee of the Guelph Fat Stock Club was held in the city hall in regard to holding the Provincial Fat Stock Show in Guelph. There were present the President, Mr. John Phin, Messrs. A. A. Armstrong, Jas. Millar, James Taylor, W. West, and D. Messenger. On motion of Messrs. Millar and Taylor, it was decided that the Guelph Fat Stock Club give $250 towards bringing the Provincial Show to Guelph, provided the Guelph City Council would provide the necessary accommodation, and that the City Council be asked to do so.

SILVER LAKE QUARTETTE CLUB.—This Club, composed of trained voices, give a concert in the City Hall this evening, under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Something new and interesting will be offered, and no one should miss the opportunity of seeing and hearing their programme. The Club is composed of Rev. C. H. Mead, Mr. A. H. Lawrence, Rev. S. P. Lyman, and Prof. G. E. Chambers. Temperance songs, stories and short addresses will fill the programme, and there is every probability that the Club will be well patronized.

ENGAGED WITH TORONTO.—Mr. Charles Maddock, formerly of the Maple Leafs, has been engaged by the Toronto baseball club. He will have charge of the grounds and ticket office, will be one of the reserve players and will act as umpire in local matches. The Torontos are to give him $70 a month for six months from the 1st of May till the 1st of October, and guarantee to find him work at his trade during the winter. The position is one which his previous training will fit him to fill with satisfaction. His engagement as manager of the roller rink here ends on the 1st of May when he will leave for Toronto.

THE BALL FAMILY.—The Ball Jubilee Singers gave their second concert in the Paisley street church last night to a larger audience than that of the previous night. Several new pieces were sung, and every number was either generally applauded or heartily encored, and received a cheerful response. A vote of thanks, moved by Rev. Dr. Griffin and Mr. J. Smith, was unanimously passed. Mr. Ball, who is a pleasing speaker as well as the leader of his troupe, thanked the audience for their kind expressions, and the concert closed. Immediately after the audience dispersed a deputation of the Church Board waited on Mr. Ball and invited him and his troupe to return again in the fall, which invitation has been accepted. The troupe have now disbanded for the summer season, each going to their homes in different parts of the Province.

UP THE RIVER.—Yesterday afternoon a number of persons in boats and canoes went for a sail up the river, purposely to enjoy a trip at this early season and also for the novelty of seeing the high water. The lands on both sides of the river is overflowed to the depth of one or two feet and boats in many places can go now where in a few days possibly will be dry land. The current is also very strong in some places, but to enjoy the sail persons have a hard pull up to come down easily. Some gentlemen coming down yesterday afternoon report that they met a young lady ploughing the billows herself in a frail canoe with a gentleman companion leisurely sitting in the stern guiding their barque through the breakers. The lady we are informed is an enthusiast in canoeing, and it is hoped that the sail was enjoyed.

A visit to the establishment of R. E. Nelson will repay any one wanting a new spring suit, stylish pants or choice spring overcoat. His stock is new and well assorted, and prices very low, and being a practical cutter and thoroughly understanding his business parties can rely on getting the very best satisfaction. Be sure and give him a call. Remember the place 99 Upper Wyndham street. d2

MR. THOS. FORD, travelling agent of the G. T. R., arrived in the city to day from Dakota. He is on his return home from having seen a special train of settlers safe to their destination. He is about commencing the arrangement of a number of excursions to Toronto and other points throughout the country.

AT HOME.—The Ladies' Association of Norfolk street Methodist church are making extensive preparations for an "At Home" to be held in the lecture room of the church next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. Admission 15c. d1

THE reduced prices of B. B. Hughes spring goods attracts more customers than even the spring millinery openings and brass or string bands. The public know he is the only real wholesale dry goods man in Guelph. Go to him if you want your new spring goods at wholesale prices. d

SHIPMENT OF CATTLE.—The market fee returns seems to give no adequate idea of the number of cattle brought to the city on a fair day. Only 377 were returned to the market clerk as appearing on the fair ground yesterday. The Grand Trunk authorities report that there were 660 head shipped, as follows:—On Wednesday 4 cars containing 80, yesterday 25 cars with 500 head, and to-day 4 cars having 80 head more. From this it would appear that close on to half of the cattle are purchased before they come to the market.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The attraction at the Rink to-night will be of a first-class order, the Downie Bros. being incomparable and unexcelled by any other artists in their special line. They will introduce three entirely new and original acts, besides three back somersaults from shoulder to shoulder. They will also present all the special lines done by the star gymnasts and acrobats. The City Band will be in attendance. Ladies free.

REV. DR. SMELLIE.—The Jubilee in honor of the Rev. Dr. Smellie, of Fergus, yesterday, was a grand success, reflecting credit on pastor, Presbytery and congregation. The church services were solemn and impressive, and in many cases affecting. The social in the evening was pleasant, profitable, free and friendly. The congregation presented the honored rev. D.D. with a purse of over $225, and the Presbytery gave him a fine dark marble clock, each being accompanied by an address. We expect to have a fuller account of these interesting services in a day or so.

THE BASEBALL SUIT.—Mr. Geo. Sleeman, President of the Canadian Baseball League has commenced an action in the High Court of Justice, Chancery Division, against the Toronto Baseball Association (limited) and Simon Hamburger, Toronto, and the Clipper baseball club of Hamilton, and W. H. C. Stroud, Hamilton, and Geo. E. Sterling, of Hamilton. The plaintiff's claim is for an injunction to restrain the defendants from entering into or carrying out any management with the International baseball league, or any other baseball club or association of clubs, which will interfere with or prevent the carrying out by the defendants of their obligations to the plaintiff and the Maple Leaf base ball club and the Canadian baseball league, or will interfere with or prevent the defendant association and club from playing a series of championship games as members of the Canadian baseball league for the ensuing baseball season commencing on the 15th day of May next and ending on the 15th October; and also for an injunction to restrain the defendant association and club, and the other defendants from withdrawing from the said Canadian baseball league until the 15th day of October next, and also to recover $5,000 by way of damages from the defendants for breach of their agreement.

THE LATE MISS BROWNLOW.—The funeral of the late Miss Jeannie Brownlow, which took place on Wednesday, was largely attended. The cortege proceeded from the home of the parents, Woolwich street, to the Baptist church, where an impressive funeral service took place in presence of a large congregation. The organ, at which the deceased had been wont to preside, was draped in deep mourning, and its notes led the singing of "Rock of Ages." Rev. D. McGregor then engaged in prayer and Rev. Mr. Weir, the pastor elect, read the Scriptural lessons. The latter afterwards addressed those present from the words: "To be absent in the flesh is to be present with the Lord." He dwelt upon the labors of the deceased in connection with the church and exhorted the bereaved ones to view her departure as a change from the church militant to the church triumphant. After another hymn and the benediction a last look was taken at the well known face. On the coffin were floral offerings from the Bible Class, of which deceased was a member, from the Dorcas Society, the choir and the Mission Band. Miss Brownlow was President of the last named Society, and was an energetic worker on behalf of the Mission Band. The remains were then conveyed to the Union Cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Weir conducted another short service. The pall bearers were: Messrs. Alex. B. Stewart, John T. Millman, N. Erb, Thos. Moffatt, F. G. Spragge, and Geo. T. Webb.

GAS LIGHT OPENING.—We tender an apology to our friends for not offering the same privilege as our neighbors in opening our store to the public this evening, as we have been so busy it will take us until a late hour to get our stock in shape for to-morrow's business. Our spring opening thus far has exceeded our fondest anticipations, and we have reason to feel proud of the immense success which has crowned our efforts, particularly as we offered no outside attractions. Our aim is to make our stock so attractive in style and price as to draw the crowd, and in this we have succeeded to an unprecedented degree this season. To those who have not been able to visit our store this week, we will be glad to welcome any time to-morrow from 9 a. m. until 10 p. m., (or at any future time) when we will show them the most elegant assortment of trimmed millinery, dress goods, etc., in the city.

MINNESOTA'S CYCLONE.

First Reports of the Dead and Wounded Understated.

BIG LAKE, Minn., April 15.—Drs. Higsby and Dalber, of Minneapolis, just from St. Cloud, state that new bodies are being recovered hourly from the debris and being brought in from the country in the track of the tornado. Twelve injured people have been brought in; several of whom will die. Four persons have died of their wounds since morning.

At the church east of Rice Station, 13 instead of 10 of the wedding party were killed, including the officiating minister.

At Sauk Rapids 31 are already dead and the list will be swelled to 40.

Dr. Ames, of Minneapolis, who is on duty at St. Cloud, told Dr. Dalver that at least 30 deaths will result from the visitation there.

SKIDMORE, Mo., April 15.—A fearful cyclone passed over Monroe Township, Nodaway County, last evening destroying dwellings, barns, outhouses and killing thousands of dollars' worth of stock. Three persons were killed and many injured,

Revised estimates of the killed and wounded are:—St. Cloud, 15 killed and 40 wounded; Sauk Rapids, 30 killed and 100 injured; Rice's Station, 22 killed, the number of injured being yet unknown.

Dilke's Case Again.

LONDON, April 15.—Sir Charles Dilke has sent to the Queen's Proctor a full and formal denial of all the statements incriminating him in the confession made by Mrs. Crawford to her husband, and on which the latter obtained a decree of divorce from her. Sir Charles expresses the hope that the Proctor will find cause to intervene and re-open the case for his (Sir Charles') vindication.

The Pall Mall Gazette says the Proctor has obtained a mass of information upon which he will take action, so as to bring the Crawford-Dilke case before a court for re-examination. Sir Charles is preparing to make public a statement of the case in his own defence.

A Big Transfer.

MONTREAL, April 15.—Seven hundred and seventy-five shares of Bank of Montreal were bought to day at 209½, on the order of W. C. McDonald, bringing his holding up to 1,000 shares. There are four shareholders holding 1,000 shares each, namely Hon. D A. Smith, Hector Mackenzie and Robt. Hamilton, Quebec. This is one of the largest transfers made for investment for some time.

Sad Drowning Accident.

BRUSSELS, April 15.—A very melancholy accident occurred near here this afternoon by which two young persons lost their lives. It appears some young people, eight in number, of Sunshine village, which is about five miles down the southern branch of the Maitland River from Brussels, sent up two boats by team this morning in order that they might return home in them by the river, which, owing to the water being high, is quite navigable for small boats. They had proceeded down the river about a mile from here when the first boat struck something that threw the occupants out. Of the three young ladies and a young man, two of the ladies succeeded, by clinging to the boat, in reaching the shore in safety; but Miss Maggie Clegg, aged about 20, daughter of Mr. Joseph Clegg, of Sunshine, was drowned along with Mr. Henry Bain. The current being so swift it seemed impossible to render any assistance by the others in the second boat.

Steamer Burned

OWEN SOUND, Ont., April 15.—The Steamer Africa, owned by Capt. F. Patterson, of Kingston, is now on fire and will likely be burned to the water's edge. The dry dock property, lumber yards, and adjacent property are in danger. Cause of fire supposed from the stove in the cabin amidship. Fully insured.

Thunder Storms.

The probs: Fresh west to south winds; continued fair, warm weather to-day; local showers or thunder storms to-morrow.

WM. BELL & Co. are putting in the new boiler to-day.

THE average daily attendance at Georgetown Public School is 201. Milton's average is 256.

THE city auditors, Messrs. Knowles and Heffernan, have completed their quarterly audit of the city books, and returned their report to the Mayor.

THE liquor dealers report that they are at present selling off large quantities of liquors. Evidently the antis are making preparations for the Scott Act two weeks hence.

A SLIDE took place on the cutting on the Eramosa hill beyond the Bull Frog yesterday and has blocked up the road considerably. Corporation hands are at work to-day clearing the earth away.

MR. GEO. WILLIAMS evidently finds that the old cash box is not sufficient to contain all the wealth which he draws over the counter, because yesterday he put in a handsome new safe made by Goldie & McCullough, Galt.

PANE OF GLASS BROKEN.—Some time early this morning a large pane of glass in the door of Mr. E. R. Bollert's store was smashed in. It is a question whether it was whether it was done with inten to burglarize or caused by a drunken manfalling against it. So far no goods have been missed. The pane was replaced to-day.

PROVINCIAL FAT STOCK SHOW.—On Thursday afternoon a meeting of the committee of the Guelph Fat Stock Club was held in the city hall in regard to holding the Provincial Fat Stock Show in Guelph. There were present the President, Mr. John Phin, Messrs. A. A. Armstrong, Jas. Millar, James Taylor, W. West, and D. Messenger. On motion of Messrs. Millar and Taylor, it was decided that the Guelph Fat Stock Club give $250 towards bringing the Provincial Show to Guelph, provided the Guelph City Council would provide the necessary accommodation, and that the City Council be asked to do so.

SILVER LAKE QUARTETTE CLUB.—This Club, composed of trained voices, give a concert in the City Hall this evening, under the auspices of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. Something new and interesting will be offered, and no one should miss the opportunity of seeing and hearing their programme. The Club is composed of Rev. C. H. Mead, Mr. A. H. Lawrence, Rev. S. P. Lyman, and Prof. G. E. Chambers. Temperance songs, stories and short addresses will fill the programme, and there is every probability that the Club will be well patronized.

ENGAGED WITH TORONTO.—Mr. Charles Maddock, formerly of the Maple Leafs, has been engaged by the Toronto baseball club. He will have charge of the grounds and ticket office, will be one of the reserve players and will act as umpire in local matches. The Torontos are to give him $70 a month for six months from the 1st of May till the 1st of October, and guarantee to find him work at his trade during the winter. The position is one which his previous training will fit him to fill with satisfaction. His engagement as manager of the roller rink here ends on the 1st of May when he will leave for Toronto.

THE BALL FAMILY.—The Ball Jubilee Singers gave their second concert in the Paisley street church last night to a larger audience than that of the previous night. Several new pieces were sung, and every number was either generally applauded or heartily encored, and received a cheerful response. A vote of thanks, moved by Rev. Dr. Griffin and Mr. J. Smith, was unanimously passed. Mr. Ball, who is a pleasing speaker as well as the leader of his troupe, thanked the audience for their kind expressions, and the concert closed. Immediately after the audience dispersed a deputation of the Church Board waited on Mr. Ball and invited him and his troupe to return again in the fall, which invitation has been accepted. The troupe have now disbanded for the summer season, each going to their homes in different parts of the Province.

UP THE RIVER.—Yesterday afternoon a number of persons in boats and canoes went for a sail up the river, purposely to enjoy a trip at this early season and also for the novelty of seeing the high water. The lands on both sides of the river is overflowed to the depth of one or two feet and boats in many places can go now where in a few days possibly will be dry land. The current is also very strong in some places, but to enjoy the sail persons have a hard pull up to come down easily. Some gentlemen coming down yesterday afternoon report that they met a young lady ploughing the billows herself in a frail canoe with a gentleman companion leisurely sitting in the stern guiding their barque through the breakers. The lady we are informed is an enthusiast in canoeing, and it is hoped that the sail was enjoyed.

A visit to the establishment of R. E. Nelson will repay any one wanting a new spring suit, stylish pants or choice spring overcoat. His stock is new and well assorted, and prices very low, and being a practical cutter and thoroughly understanding his business parties can rely on getting the very best satisfaction. Be sure and give him a call. Remember the place 99 Upper Wyndham street. d2

THE Hon. G. W. ROSS, Minister of Education, and Mr. E. F. B. Johnston will deliver addresses in the town hall, Georgetown, Wednesday, April 21st, under the auspices of the Young Men's Liberal Club.

MR. L. BROCK, son of Dr. Brock, arrived home last evening from Toronto where he has completed his medical studies at Trinity University, receiving the degree of M. D., C. M. and F. T. M. S., Trinity Medical School; passing in the first class.

MR. THOS. FORD, travelling agent of the G. T. R., arrived in the city to day from Dakota. He is on his return home from having seen a special train of settlers safe to their destination. He is about commencing the arrangement of a number of excursions to Toronto and other points throughout the country.

AT HOME.—The Ladies' Association of Norfolk street Methodist church are making extensive preparations for an "At Home" to be held in the lecture room of the church next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. Admission 15c. d1

THE reduced prices of B. B. Hughes spring goods attracts more customers than even the spring millinery openings and brass or string bands. The public know he is the only real wholesale dry goods man in Guelph. Go to him if you want your new spring goods at wholesale prices. d

SHIPMENT OF CATTLE.—The market fee returns seems to give no adequate idea of the number of cattle brought to the city on a fair day. Only 377 were returned to the market clerk as appearing on the fair ground yesterday. The Grand Trunk authorities report that there were 660 head shipped, as follows:—On Wednesday 4 cars containing 80, yesterday 25 cars with 500 head, and to-day 4 cars having 80 head more. From this it would appear that close on to half of the cattle are purchased before they come to the market.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The attraction at the Rink to-night will be of a first-class order, the Downie Bros. being incomparable and unexcelled by any other artists in their special line. They will introduce three entirely new and original acts, besides three back somersaults from shoulder to shoulder. They will also present all the special lines done by the star gymnasts and acrobats. The City Band will be in attendance. Ladies free.

REV. DR. SMELLIE.—The Jubilee in honor of the Rev. Dr. Smellie, of Fergus, yesterday, was a grand success, reflecting credit on pastor, Presbytery and congregation. The church services were solemn and impressive, and in many cases affecting. The social in the evening was pleasant, profitable, free and riendly. The congregation presented the honored rev. D.D. with a purse of over $225, and the Presbytery gave him a fine dark marble clock, each being accompanied by an address. We expect to have a fuller account of these interesting services in a day or so.

THE BASEBALL SUIT.—Mr. Geo. Sleeman, President of the Canadian Baseball League has commenced an action in the High Court of Justice, Chancery Division, against the Toronto Baseball Association (limited) and Simon Hamburger, Toronto, and the Clipper baseball club of Hamilton, and W. H. C. Stroud, Hamilton, and Geo. E. Sterling, of Hamilton. The plaintiff's claim is for an injunction to restrain the defendants from entering into or carrying out any management with the International baseball league, or any other baseball club or association of clubs, which will interfere with or prevent the carrying out by the defendants of their obligations to the plaintiff and the Maple Leaf base ball club and the Canadian baseball league, or will interfere with or prevent the defendant association and club from playing a series of championship games as members of the Canadian baseball league for the ensuing baseball season commencing on the 15th day of May next and ending on the 15th October; and also for an injunction to restrain the defendant association and club, and the other defendants from withdrawing from the said Canadian baseball league until the 15th day of October next, and also to recover $5,000 by way of damages from the defendants for breach of their agreement.

THE LATE MISS BROWNLOW.—The funeral of the late Miss Jeannie Brownlow, which took place on Wednesday, was largely attended. The cortege proceeded from the home of the parents, Woolwich street, to the Baptist church, where an impressive funeral service took place in presence of a large congregation. The organ, at which the deceased had been wont to preside, was draped in deep mourning, and its notes led the singing of "Rock of Ages." Rev. D. McGregor then engaged in prayer and Rev. Mr. Weir, the pastor elect, read the Scriptural lessons. The latter afterwards addressed those present from the words: "To be absent in the flesh is to be present with the Lord." He dwelt upon the labors of the deceased in connection with the church and exhorted the bereaved ones to view her departure as a change from the church militant to the church triumphant. After another hymn and the benediction a last look was taken at the well known face. On the coffin were floral offerings from the Bible Class, of which deceased was a member, from the Dorcas Society, the choir and the Mission Band. Miss Brownlow was President of the last named Society, and was an energetic worker on behalf of the Mission Band. The remains were then conveyed to the Union Cemetery, where Rev. Mr. Weir conducted another short service. The pall bearers were: Messrs. Alex. B. Stewart, John T. Millman, N. Erb, Thos. Moffatt, F. G. Spragge, and Geo. T. Webb.

GAS LIGHT OPENING.—We tender an apology to our friends for not offering the same privilege as our neighbors in opening our store to the public this evening, as we have been so busy it will take us until a late hour to get our stock in shape for tomorrow's business. Our spring opening thus far has exceeded our fondest anticipations, and we have reason to feel proud of the immense success which has crowned our efforts, particularly as we offered no outside attractions. Our aim is to make our stock so attractive in style and price as to draw the crowd, and in this we have succeeded to an unprecedented degree this season. To those who have not been able to visit our store this week, we will be glad to welcome any time to-morrow from 9 a. m. until 10 p. m., (or at any future time) when we will show them the most elegant assortment of trimmed millinery, dress goods, etc., in the city.

MINNESOTA'S CYCLONE.

First Reports of the Dead and Wounded Understated.

BIG LAKE, Minn., April 15.—Drs. Higsby and Dalber, of Minneapolis, just from St. Cloud, state that new bodies are being recovered hourly from the debris and being brought in from the country in the track of the tornado. Twelve injured people have been brought in; several of whom will die. Four persons have died of their wounds since morning.

At the church east of Rice Station, 13 instead of 10 of the wedding party were killed, including the officiating minister.

At Sauk Rapids 31 are already dead and the list will be swelled to 40.

Dr. Ames, of Minneapolis, who is on duty at St. Cloud, told Dr. Dalver that at least 30 deaths will result from the visitation there.

SKIDMORE, Mo., April 15.—A fearful cyclone passed over Monroe Township, Nodaway County, last evening destroying dwellings, barns, outhouses and killing thousands of dollars' worth of stock. Three persons were killed and many injured,

Revised estimates of the killed and wounded are:—St. Cloud, 15 killed and 40 wounded; Sauk Rapids, 30 killed and 100 injured; Rice's Station, 22 killed, the number of injured being yet unknown.

Dilke's Case Again.

LONDON, April 15.—Sir Charles Dilke has sent to the Queen's Proctor a full and formal denial of all the statements incriminating him in the confession made by Mrs. Crawford to her husband, and on which the latter obtained a decree of divorce from her. Sir Charles expresses the hope that the Proctor will find cause to intervene and re-open the case for his (Sir Charles') vindication.

The Pall Mall Gazette says the Proctor has obtained a mass of information upon which he will take action, so as to bring the Crawford-Dilke case before a court for re-examination. Sir Charles is preparing to make public a statement of the case in his own defence.

A Big Transfer.

MONTREAL, April 15.—Seven hundred and seventy-five shares of Bank of Montreal were bought to day at 209½, on the order of W. C. McDonald, bringing his holding up to 1,000 shares. There are four shareholders holding 1,000 shares each, namely Hon. D A. Smith, Hector Mackenzie and Robt. Hamilton, Quebec. This is one of the largest transfers made for investment for some time.

Sad Drowning Accident.

BRUSSELS, April 15.—A very melancholy accident occurred near here this afternoon by which two young persons lost their lives. It appears some young people, eight in number, of Sunshine village, which is about five miles down the southern branch of the Maitland River from Brussels, sent up two boats by team this morning in order that they might return home in them by the river, which, owing to the water being high, is quite navigable for small boats. They had proceeded down the river about a mile from here when the first boat struck something that threw the occupants out. Of the three young ladies and a young man, two of the ladies succeeded, by clinging to the boat, in reaching the shore in safety; but Miss Maggie Clegg, aged about 20, daughter of Mr. Joseph Clegg, of Sunshine, was drowned along with Mr. Henry Bain. The current being so swift it seemed impossible to render any assistance by the others in the second boat.

Steamer Burned

OWEN SOUND, Ont., April 15.—The Steamer Africa, owned by Capt. F. Patterson, of Kingston, is now on fire and will likely be burned to the water's edge. The dry dock property, lumber yards, and adjacent property are in danger. Cause of fire supposed from the stove in the cabin amidship. Fully insured.

The Evening Mercury

FRIDAY EVE'G APRIL 16, 1886.

Members at Ottawa are beginning to speculate about the time when the session will close. The Government have already taken Thursday for their own business, and it is said they will take another day next week, thus leaving only one day for private business. The general belief is that the session will close in the fourth week in May.

THE Committee on Privileges and Elections, who have the Prince Albert Colonization Company's case on hand, have appointed a sub-committee to take the evidence of witnesses. This will expedite the business, as a small committee can do the work quicker than a large one.

LONDON Advertiser:—We are informed that the reports of those who inspected the flour with which the Indians were furnished show that it was utterly unfit for human food. It was musty and rotten, and nearly poisoned those who were starved into consuming it. Mr. Paterson, of Brant, has moved for the production of these reports, but we are inclined to think, like the papers relating to the North-west, although promised, they will not be forthcoming because they would disclose the disgraceful condition of things that existed. We understand that the flour was furnished by an influential supporter of the Government, and the department instead of rejecting it, gave the Indians the alternative of consuming it or going without food altogether.

EVERY reflecting man who takes the slightest interest in the welfare of the country cannot but feel alarmed at the continued extravagance and reckless expenditure of the Government, and the deplorable financial position of the country. The public debt of Canada is now admitted to be $281,314,000. This is probably under the mark, but taken as it is the figures are startling. It is three times as great per head as the debt of the United States. Taking our whole population at 4,800,000, the debt of $281,314,000 gives us an indebtedness of $57.75 for every soul in the Dominion, while the indebtedness of the people of the United States is only $22 per head on a population of 58,000,000.

THE Globe says: A suggestive incident is reported to have happened at the Revising Officer's court for North Wellington. The Reformers applied to have placed on the roll the name of a resident of Minto who had been a prominent supporter of Judge Drew, the Revising Officer, when he was the Conservative candidate for the representation of the Riding in the Commons. The Judge expressed surprise that the Reformers should now be seeking to have this name placed on the roll, and the only explanation the Reform counsel could offer was that the Mintoian had received more light. Possibly this was the true explanation. And it will be found, no doubt, at the next elections that thousands of Conservatives all over the country have received new light, and will no longer give their support to the party of high taxes, large deficits, huge scandals, and general corruption. The incident also forces home the conviction that it is not well that those placed in control of the voters' list should be dangerously familiar with the political predilections, the past and present of the electors of the constituencies.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT.

Bills in the Commons to Amend the Scott Act.

OTTAWA, April 15.

In the House of Commons Dr. Orton introduced a bill to allow the sale of beer, wine, &c., in Scott Act counties. The bill proposed that nothing contained in such Act shall affect the dealing in or sale of wine, cider, beer, or ale containing not more than fifteen per cent. of alcohol, except in the municipalities which have already adopted the Act. The second clause of the Bill provides that on the petition of one-fourth of duly qualified electors, an election may be held in any county or city to determine by majority of votes whether licenses to sell ales, wines, and beer shall be issued in such county or city. The machinery for holding elections under the Scott Act is made to apply to elections held under the provisions of this bill. The bill was read a first time.

On motion of Mr. Thompson the House went into committee on the bill respecting the application of fines and forfeitures. The bill was suggested by the difficulties which had arisen as to the application of fines under the Canada Temperance Act, and in other cases. It provided that fines in certain cases should go to the Governor-General in Council, who should have the power to state how they should be appropriated.

Mr. Blake said the bill would in effect hand over the whole matter to the Governor-General in Council. He thought that the Minister of Justice should have prepared a mode of dealing with the fines and allow Parliament to pronounce upon it. The fact was that session after session the House was becoming more and more a mere machine for handing over additional powers to the Governor-General in Council.

Mr. Thompson said the bill was not framed with a view of increasing the power of the Governor-General in Council. This was only a temporary measure. He intended to bring in a bill dealing with the whole subject, but as it would affect a number of statutes, its preparation would require considerable time. In the meantime it was necessary that there should be some provision for the disposition of fines.

Mr. Blake said that if the measure was intended to be temporary that should be expressed in the bill, and it should be provided that it should be in force only until the end of next session. The Minister had stated that several acts would be affected, but there was no reason why he should not deal at once with a large class of cases arising under the Canada Temperance Act.

Mr. Thompson said that he had received from the Prince Edward Island Government and the Ontario Government varying suggestions as to how the Scott Act fines should be applied.

The committee reported the bill.

On the motion for the third reading, Mr. Blake moved that the bill be referred back so as to amend it by defining the application of fines, penalties, and forfeitures.

The amendment was lost.

Mr. Blake moved that the bill be referred back with instructions to amend it so that it should be in force only to the end of the next session of Parliament.

The amendment was lost on a vote of 47 yeas and 106 nays.

Sir Hector Langevin's bill to amend the Post Office Act, 1875, was read the third time.

Mr. Pope introduced a bill founded on a resolution respecting the subsidy to the Chignecto Valley Railway Co. Sir Hector Langevin, to amend the Interpretation Act, and Mr. Thompson's bill respecting the application of certain fines and forfeitures was passed in committee and read the third time.

The House went into committee on Mr. Thompson's Bill respecting summary proceedings before magistrates and other justices, and made some progress with it.

After recess, on motion to go into supply, Mr. Cameron (Huron) moved an amendment condemning the Indian policy of the Government. Sir Hector Langevin, Mr. Paterson (Brant), Mr. Ferguson (Leeds), Mr. O'Brien, Mr. Fairbank, Mr. Cameron (Middlesex), Mr. Charlton and Mr. Watson took part in the debate which followed. The amendment was lost on a vote of 114 to 65.

The House adjourned at 2.05.

IRISH HOME RULE.

Mr. Gladstone's Bill as Printed With Modifications.

LONDON, April 15.—The House of Commons having voted permission to Mr. Gladstone to introduce his Bill for the better government of Ireland, the official text of the measure is to-day made public. It debars the proposed Irish Parliament from legislating concerning the status, dignity or succession of the Crown; from passing laws affecting peace or war, the army or navy, militia or volunteer, or defence of the realm, and from taking any action concerning the foreign or colonial relations of the Empire.

Among other subjects placed beyond the power of the Irish Government to deal with are dignities, titles and honors, prizes and booties of war; offences against the law of nations, treason and alienage; navigation, copywright, patents, mails, telegraphs, coinage and weights and measures.

The Bill further prohibits Ireland from doing anything to establish or endow any religionorto disturb or confer any privileges on account of any religious belief and also forbids it to impose customs or excise duties.

The Queen is given the same prerogative to summon, prorogue and dissolve the Irish Legislature she has with respect to Imperial Parliament; to Her Majesty also is reserved the power to erect forts, arsenals, magazines and dockyards. The Irish Legislature is permitted to impose taxes to be paid into the consolidated fund to defray expenses of public service in Ireland subject to provisions of the Irish Land Purchase Bill, but is not to either raise or appropriate revenues without the Queen's recommendation made through the Lord Lieutenant. Church property in Ireland is to belong to the Irish people, subject to existing charges.

The Executive Government of Ireland is vested by the Queen in the Lord Lieutenant, who will govern with the aid of such officers and council as the Queen may appoint, and will give or withdraw the Queen's assent to such bills as the Irish Legislature may pass.

Henry R. Brand, (Liberal) will move the rejection of the Bill when it comes up for its second reading in the House of Commons.

The Dublin Express (Conservative) says if the Home Rule Bill is passed Mr. Gladstone will recommend to the Queen the granting of an amnesty to large numbers of Irish prisoners.

At a meeting in Glasgow Dr. Hanne, of Belfast, leader of the Presbyterians of that city, said that he wanted Mr. Gladstone's measure rejected with contempt and scorn. It was the most unworkable, grotesque and mischievous proposal that had ever emanated from the brain of a statesman, sane or insane. Dr. Vernon White of London said that if Ireland got Home Rule there would be civil war, which might also result from the rejection of Mr. Gladstone's measure. If the worst came the Irish Loyalists, like their forefathers, would not be afraid to fight and die for Christ, Crown and Covenant. Resolutions were adopted in favor of upholding the Union and opposing Gladstone's Bill.

THE IMPERIAL BUDGET.

A Large Decrease in Revenue due to the Disuse of Alcohol.

LONDON, April 15.—Sir Wm. Harcourt, Chancellor of the Exchequer, introduced the Budget in the House of Commons this evening. It shows an actual deficit of £2,642,943. The diminution in revenue was most marked in the case of alcohol, the receipts derived from which were £971,000 below the estimates, and £1,179,000 below the receipts derived from alcohol in 1884-85. Within a decade there has been a decrease in revenue from alcohol of £4,500,000. This has been due to changes in the habits of the people and has been concurrent with an enormous increase in revenue derived from the comforts of life. The falling off in receipts from alcohol has been reduced about one-half by increased receipts derived from tea, tobacco and fruits. There has been no substantial decrease in the revenue from other sources.

For the fiscal year of 1886-87 the expenditures are estimated at £90,480,559, and the revenue at £89,888,855. It is proposed to meet the deficit by taking £800,000 from the £6,750,000 applicable to the reduction of the National Debt, which has been reduced £30,000,000 in the past five years. It is also proposed to abolish the license tax on private brewing in cottages, the annual rental of which is under eight pounds, entailing a loss of £16,000 in revenue. Thus there will remain a surplus estimated at £258,771. No further changes are proposed in taxation, which the Government regrets its inability to reduce.

The House adopted the Budget.

A little boy named Dewar, of Charlottetown, P. E. I., was found in a stable with his brains kicked out by a horse. The old woman who found him ran to tell a neighbor and dropped dead through fright.

MILLINERY OPENINGS.

The Fashions of the Season as Seen in Our Stores.

A REIGN OF BEAUTY AND TASTE.

The usual spring millinery opening season has again come round, and the millinery stores in the city are chuck full with everything pertaining to the reigning fashions. The store windows are beautifully decked out, and many an admiring female eye lingers lovingly on the "braws," as they pass along the street.

MESSRS. J. D. WILLIAMSON & CO.

held their opening last night. The City Band was engaged for the occasion, and arrived at eight o clock, and commenced playing, when the doors of the stores were thrown open to allow the public an inspection. The large double store presented one of the most attractive sights that may be witnessed at any time. From the entrance to the rear of the store goods are displayed of such brilliancy of color, rarity of design and style, and such nicety of arrangement as to reflect great credit on the staff of the Lion, under the direction of Mr. Jones, who is certainly a master hand at the decorative art. Lace curtains draped from the ceiling and converging at the back, give a lovely perspective view, the sides of the store being trimmed with all the newest shades and styles of goods, producing a very enhancing effect. Around the mirror is a strip of plush arranged in Eastlake style, which sets off the show room. Here is the centre of the attraction for the ladies. Hats and bonnets, both in French patterns and the Lion's own production, are arranged on every side. Space only permits to draw attention to two of these:—The "Pijaro," pronounced pah-ah-roe, which, although having a Spanish name is entirely French in style and baffles description by an English pen is well named the Pajaro, which signifies bird, and certainly no bird of southern clime was ever decked in more gorgeous plumage. "The Virok" is a beautiful little black bonnet trimmed with crescent-shaped jet ornaments studding the crown with a lovely over trimming of jet lace and old gold crape de filliree and an elegant bunch of cream crushed roses with ties of black reversable picot edge ribbon. The whole arrangement reflects great credit on Miss Marriott, who cannot be too highly complimented on her millinery taste.

E. R. BOLLERT.

This gentleman's display is excellent, comprising all the newest shapes and shades of hats, bonnets, plumes, etc., which showed to advantage the excellent judgment and good taste of the milliners, Miss Manny and Miss Stewart. This is one of the most attractive show rooms in the city. The whole of the second flat is devoted to millinery purposes, and it is beautifully fitted up with all modern improvements. A very fine plate glass show case was put in last week and are stocked with elegant flowers, feathers, etc. The decorations and arrangements are very tasteful. The display of rare curtains, Madras laces, fancy gauzes, lace crepes, ribbons, aigrettes is most attractive and skilfully arranged with regard to the blending of shades. The chief attraction for the ladies of course is the elegant bonnets and hats, in all the latest styles and colors. It would be useless to particularize, but one cannot refrain from mentioning one or two, one being a bonnet constructed entirely of fawn pearl, with velvet to match, and large sprays of violets. Another which struck the eye of the unsophisticated interviewer as being very odd was a bonnet with a beechnut crown and trimmed with a handsome bunch of aigrette. The yum-yum hat trimmed with Mikado ribbon and tips also looked very pretty. One table is solely devoted to mourning goods, of which this house makes a specialty.

RYAN, BERKINSHAW & CO.

The millinary opening of this establishment took place to-day. All day long the establishment was crowded with ladies eager to see the new styles, and it may be added that the majority of them were highly pleased at some of the radical changes made by the goddess Fashion from what was worn last year. Miss Mahaffy and Miss Budd conducted the reporter through the establishment and explained the various styles, etc. The show room is filled with hats and bonnets which for number, variety and finish, it would be hard to equal. In hat shapes the newest styles seem to be the Pall Mall and the Strand. Among the bonnets is a handsome theatre bonnet, with pale pink crape, the front embroidered with pearls and trimmings of tips and ribbons to match, surrounded with moss green flowers. Another, a white tulle bonnet, the front of which forms a diadem covered with pearls, with trimmings of white primroses and tips, is equally attractive. Then another is a shrimp pink velvet, covered with cream lisse lace, and pearls and tips to match. It would take a column to describe in a proper way the numerous styles and designs; suffice it to say that the leading shades appear to be scarlet, pink, buttercup and beige. An attractive feature of the display are the decorations of the show room. Above the looking glasses are arches of flowers and feathers, and over the windows handsome bouquets and other designs of flowers, laces and ribbons. One feature worthy of note is a fan which shows artistic taste in its design.

REID & BAYNE.

The entrance into the millinery room of this establishment is separated from the main store with lace curtains artistically displayed, and relieved with admirably arranged bouquets of flowers, the whole reflecting credit on the taste of the milliners. Inside is to be found all the new shapes in straw hats, trimmed and untrimmed, such as the pall-mall, the strand, the yum-yum, Winchester, puritan, fairy queen, (for children), amorita, and every other conceivable style. The display is a very attractive one. The firm do not pretend to display gorgeous goods but claim that they have the leading classes, and many of the old articles, the bankrupt stock of Mr. A. O. Bucham, which they are selling off at and under cost. This firm is connected with one of the largest wholesale houses in Toronto, hence they hold that they can sell goods very cheap. Miss Hamm and Miss Kelly superintend this department.

A. J. LITTLE & CO.

It is with pleasure we direct the attention of the public to the display made by this millinery and dress goods house of the city. They commenced their spring opening yesterday and continue it to-day and to morrow. Judging from the immense crowd which thronged their store yesterday and to-day they must feel repaid for their efforts. Their show room presents a georgeous appearance, contains it does the latest French and American styles of trimmed and untrimmed millinery. On visiting their store this afternoon it was impossible to get any information regarding the names and styles of their leading hats and bonnets, as they were too busy. The display is a most attractive one throughout and cannot fail to meet the tastes of the various customers.

MRS. PASS'S

Millinery display is up to the old standard, and in many points superior. This lady has faithfully attended to the trade in her line for a number of years and the success that has attended her efforts is a guarantee that satisfaction has been given. The millinery opening took place to-day and will continue till to-morrow evening. Mrs. Pass personally superintends every branch of the trade, and patrons can depend upon first class work being done. Hair goods are also a branch of the establishment, and any innovation in this line receives prompt attention.

THE JONES DRY GOODS CO.

This firm show some as beautiful millinery as we have had the pleasure of inspecting, both in respect of shades and shapes, which are neatly designed and tastily put together, and as to the finish each hat and bonnet does great credit to Miss Mooney, the designer. In reference to the large range of the different designs it is impossible to particularize, but it would be advisable for all ladies who have not inspected the show room to do so at an early date, as the visit will be sure to please and gratify them, and they will receive every information from Miss Mooney, the courteous manager of this department.

MISS SIMPSON.

Well, Miss Simpson, asked the reporter, what is in vogue this year in millinery, and what are the leading colors. Well, replied the lady, "The colors for millinery trimmings this season are different shades of brown, coquelicot, red mandarin, buttercup, cardinal, and pink and blue, the latter shades again coming into favor. Gauzy goods in all shades and ribbons of different colors are being used for trimming also, as well as lace with velvet bows. The styles in the way of hat shapes are the Bon Ton, the Modiste, the Gainsborough, the Coquette, Rienza, and the Jaunty. In bonnets the style is a high crown and small rim, and a great many are beaded around the edges. You can see the different styles for yourself," and so he did. The arrangement is most artistic, and the variety almost beyond description. In short everything in the millinery line seems to be represented.

Local News

THE pulpit of the Baptist Church will be occupied to-morrow by Rev. Chas. Williams, of Toronto Baptist College.

THE green grocer in London is one who sells vegetables. In this country it is one who trusts.

NEXT season, it is rumored, some of the merchants intend putting canvas over their stores and making the circus complete.

ON Monday last Mr. Thomas Vair was elected by acclamation as councillor for Ward No 3, Galt, in place of Mr. Peter McGregor, resigned.

A PRACTICAL tobbaconist was heard to remark yesterday: "Gad, they furnish music, I furnish cigars." He wants the milliners to keep up the excitement.

REV. FATHER FEAR, of Elora, who used to preach in this city 50 years ago, and who is now 84 years of age, will occupy the pulpit of Paisley street church tomorrow morning and evening.

GOOD FRIDAY EVENING.—The greatest attraction in the city on that occasion will be the unique entertainment now in preparation by the young ladies of Dublin street church Union. Nothing like it was ever given in Guelph, and the admission fee will be made to accommodate all. 1

GALT is going to have the electric light. The Reformer says:—We are informed that Messrs. Gourlay, Sylvester and Metcalfe have purchased the Dumfries mill property from Cherry Brothers, for electric lighting purposes. We did not learn the price paid, but it would doubtless be an advance upon the $14,700 paid two weeks ago.

This morning the market was well attended, the farmers taking advantage of the fine weather and coming to the city to purchase their spring seeds. In the green grocers' market lettuce and other garden truck made their appearance and was eagerly sought after. Butter and eggs were plentiful and were a shade lower than usual. In other produce the prices were fair.

LIGHTNING VS. A FEATHER BED.—Frank Boling, of Cherokee, Kan., threw himself on a feather bed that lay on the floor during a thunder storm. He neglected to draw up his legs, and his feet were touching the floor, when the lightning struck the house and played about his feet, burning them and knocking him senseless. That part of his body that was on the bed was not hurt, and a child lying by his side was uninjured. All of which may be used to show that feather beds are good places of refuge in thunder storms.

GALT SPRING SHOW.—The Reporter says: Wednesday was fortunately a very fine day, and as a consequence the attendance of farmers and others in the town was very large, despite the bad condition of the roads. The exhibit of bulls was deficint in number of animals shown; to be accounted for, we believe, by the fact that there are not so many breeders in this section as there were. Any deficiency in the bull class was amply made up by the exhibit of horses, which was the largest and best seen at any of our fairs. In the agricultural class Young Ontario Chief, shown by Richard Bond, Puslinch, took first.

CLEAN UP.—The time is rapidly approaching when the annual spring fires will be lighted in most of the yards and gardens in this town. Make these fires as large as possible, kind reader? The revelations of spring are not the most pleasant even where there is ample room for the winter's refuse; and there is no better way of getting rid of this refuse than the old one of burning it up. We are all inclined to laugh at the women about their house cleaning mania; but it is certain that the more nearly the men imitate them in the outdoor surroundings the better it will be. So roll up your sleeves, boys, and keep the fire going!

BRANTFORD'S PAMPHLET.—A pamphlet describing the City of Brantford, and intended for distribution at the Colonial Exhibition, has been issued under the auspices of the Council and Board of Trade of that place. The work comprises 31 pages and contains several pages of illustrations of public buildings and leading sights of the Telephone city. Mr. Wm. Watt, jr., is the compiler and he has done his work with taste and ability, as has also the Expositor in the matter of the printing. The covers are very elaborately and beautifully lithographed, but while this work might have been done as well in Canada it is a pity that it was given to Buffalo printers, whose names appear on the front page. As an advertisement for a Canadian city it would have looked better if the mechanical work had been done in Canada. Altogether the pamphlet is highly creditable and one cannot help but think how much more wisdom Guelph would have displayed had it sent something of the same kind over to the Colonial.

A PREDICTION.—A local weather prophet who claims to have visions of the future says that probs. will have a hard time of it foretelling weather twenty-four hours ahead this season. Although the indications given, he says, are correct at the time they are given the atmospherical changes have been so sudden during the past few days that it is next to impossible to tell anywhere correct twenty-four hours ahead. Three changes, as an example, were very marked yesterday—in the morning there were indications of rain from the east, at noon a thunderstorm appeared to be coming from the south, and between seven and eight frost appeared to be coming from the north. We neither, he says, had rain, thunderstorm or frost, and he attributes these sudden changes in the atmosphere to the wind cyclones that are travelling high in the air, and which have swooped down upon some places, Guelph as an example, and doing so much damage of late. The seer also tells us to beware, our city being so high up, may be visited with another wind storm of much more severity than the last before the summer is over. We shall see, "O, my prophetic soul."

Pain Killer is a purely Vegetable preparation, safe to keep and to use in every family. The simplicity attending its use, together with the great variety of diseases that may be entirely eradicated by it, and the great amount of pain and suffering that can be alleviated through its use, make it imperative upon every person to supply themselves with this valuable remedy, and keep it always near at hand.

A NEW post-office called Auguston has been opened in Melanchton on lot 16, con. 4.

MESSRS. SHURLY & DIETRICH, Galt, have recently received an order from Milwaukee for $2,377 worth of their saws.

A LECTURE on "What I saw in London" will be given Tuesday evenidg, April 27, in the Congregatinnal Church, by Rev. H. D. Powis late pastor of Zion Church, Toronto.

COSTLY ADVERTISING.—The man who places a $100 advertisement in the MERCURY and flatters himself that he is a liberal advertiser, will be surprised to learn that a yearly advertisement, one column in length, in the Chicago Tribune costs the advertiser $26,000. The New York Herald receives for its lowest priced column, $30,000, and for its highest, $348,000. The New York Tribune, for the lowest, $29,751, and for the highest, $85,638, and those papers, it is stated, are never at a loss for advertisements to fill their columns.

THE WEATHER.—The weather for several days past has been admirably adapted to advance all forms of vegetation. The usual "cold period" of 11-14 has been missed, or has been very indistinct, while the temperature has been more summer-like than vernal in large portions of the country, with a considerable intersprinkling of thunder storms to the southward. The old proverb—doubtless holds true, for when April's horn (thunder) is heard it is always accompanied by growing weather, made up of frequent alternations of hot sunshine and shower.

When April blows his horn
It's good both for hay and corn—

THE CONCERT LAST NIGHT.—The Silver Lake Quartette Club in the City Hall had a good house last night, and their programme was of a most enjoyable nature. Rev. Mr. Mead, who is the speaker of the troupe, convulsed the audience with many humorous anecdotes of life among the negroes in the South. The singing by the quartette was generally remarked to be very good, and gave the best of satisfaction. In the "Model Church" and "Which way is your musketa-pointing to-day?" the effect was very good. Rev. Dr. Griffin was called on the platform and spoke a few words for the temperance cause, which were well received. The closing piece "Where the surges cease to roll," was very feelingly sung, and the W. C. T. U., under whose auspices the quartette visited the city, deserve every credit for bringing such talent here.

SEEKING CONNECTION.—The Galt Reporter has the following:—Brantford, Guelph, Berlin and London are all just now seeking connection with the old and at one time despised C. V. R. For a railway that was described as an "outrageous imposition" on the public, and that "led from nowhere to nowhere," the old C. V. has lately found a large number of admirers. If it were possible for switch posts to laugh, and steel rails to chuckle, we should hear a pretty solid chorus from the line of the Credit Valley when the spectacle is presented of Mayors and other dignitaries rushing after Van Horne with hatfuls of boodle which they are ready to exchange for the privilege of touching his line

SPEED ROLLER RINK.—About 500 patronized the attraction at the Rink last night. Jas. Downie in his contortion acts was simply immense, twisting and bending himself in all manners of seemingly impossible shapes perfectly convincing the audience that the human frame with practice can be bent into any shape or form. Andrew Downie, in his "aerial perch acts," was exceptionally fine and daring in all his movements, and frequently drew forth the plaudits of the spectators. This is a feature in the acrobatic line that every one should see, being novel and original and the first time presented by any artist. The Downie Bros. in their Brother acts, representing tumbling and acrobatic feats of every description exhibited much finished grace and dash, clearly demonstrating that they have no superiors in these special lines. The audience showed their appreciation of this performance by frequent rounds of applause. To-night they will again appear in a change of programme, and the City Band will be present. Ladies free.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On Saturday last says the Mount Forest Index while Messrs Henderson, Black and Balfour were running a car of dried oats from the kiln to the grist mill, and when about midway between the two buildings the track gave way, allowing the whole load to fall to the ground, a distance of about fourteen feet. The two former men were precipitated to the ground with great force, and but for prompt assistance given by those near at hand would have had trouble in extricating themselves. The two unfortunate men were conveyed to their homes. Mr. Black was found to be injured to a great extent internally. His collar bone and several ribs on his right side were badly fractured, the ribs piercing the lung. Mr. Henderson escaped with a severe shaking up, a bruise on the left leg, and a scalp wound on the back part of the head. He will be around in a few days.

MILLINERY OPENING.—Last night their seemed to be a rivalry between the firms of Messrs. J. D. Williamson & Co., and Mr. E. R. Bollert, on the opening of their respective millinery establishments. The former engaged the Bell Band and the latter an Italian string band of some five players from Toronto. The result of this was that the streets in the vicinity of both stores were crowded with thousands of people, who evidently appreciated the music, and especially that of the string band, which was very choice and greatly appreciated, and rather a novelty in connection with a millinery opening. The Bell Band discoursed excellent music, and the selections given showed that the players were well trained and versed in music. Both stores were packed full of people, and it was hard work for one to thread his way through the throng. Mr. Bollert's store was so full, when the Band was inside that it was almost impossible to get upstairs to the millinery department, whereupon the band was taken to the balcony above, thus allowing the people to get on the street, and relieving the store of the crowd of men and giving more room to the ladies. Although the crush was great on Lower Wyndham street it was nearly as bad in the millinery establishments on Upper Wyndham st., which although no attraction in the music line was presented seemed to have about as many admirers of their millinery as those in the lower portion of the city.

SERMON on Capital and Labor, by the Rev. J. W. Holmes in the Norfolk street church to-morrow evening.

THERE was no quorum at the Free Library Board on Thursday evening. Another meeting is to be called early next week.

GILCHRIST BROS. and M. O'Connell had on the market this morning for sale a number of handsome window plants and flowers, which were eagerly bought up.

MR. J. SOPER is making several alterations in his hotel, principal of which are the construction of a business office, and arrangements for the electric light.

MR. JAMES LOVE, of Guelph township, is to the front with sowing. Yesterday and to-day he sowed a field of wheat and one of peas. This is early.

THE two houses and lots on Devonshire street, belonging to the estate of the late John Thomas Cunningham were sold today by Mr. James Taylor, auctioneer, for $1,030. Ald. Keough was the purchaser.

ANOTHER instance of locking the door after the horse is stolen is shown by the corporation having erected a fence protecting the sidewalk at the pound creek, where Mr. Wells' little girl fell in the other day.

MR. VINCENT LEMBERGER, a few years out from the Old Country and recently staying with Mr. James Anderson, Springfield, has received an appointment as bugler in the Northwest Mounted Police.

MESSRS. J. M. SHAW, Elora, and J. J. Craig, of the Fergus News-Record, are in town to-day. They like to strike the Royal City on a market day whether there are cheap fares or not.

THE Electric light pole, 65 feet high, on St. George's Square, fell after it had been raised this morning. All forenoon was occupied in raising it again. No one was hurt.

THE numerous friends of Lieut.-Col. Armstrong, City Assessor, who has been confined to bed for about two weeks with a severe cold, will be pleased to learn that he is considerably better to day, and was able to sit up for a short time.

MR. E. R. BOLLERT had the string band playing on the balcony of his store this morning and afternoon. A large throng of people gathered in front of the store and listened to the sweet music with evident pleasure.

THE police have been notified of boys trespassing upon the grounds of Mr. Thos. Goldie, "Homewood Retreat", and Dr. Clark and setting fire to the grass. Yesterday they burned a big piece of the fence on Mr. Goldie's grounds.

MR. JOHN FARROW, of Guelph township, near Armstrong's mills is the owner of a ewe which has developed something strange in the way of maternity. A short time ago she dropped a lamb, and a week afterwards gave birth to another. Both lambs are doing well.

COCK FIGHTING.—An anonymous correspondendent writes stating that some men are in the habit of indulging in the brutal sport of cock fighting in his neighborhood, and advises them to take warning, as if this proceeding is persisted in he will have the parties prosecuted. He knows all their names. Several cases of this kind have already been reported, and if the correspondent sends us the names they will be published for the benefit of the public.

COURT OF CHANCERY.—Building & Loan vs. Palmer—In this case, which was tried at the last Chancery Sittings here, and in which the defendant, John Palmer, consented to judgment against himself, judgment was yesterday delivered in Toronto as follows: Judgment for plaintiffs against defendant, John Palmer, for the amount unpaid upon the mortgage with interests and costs as of undefended action. Action dismissed with costs as against other defendants, and as to other relief sought. A. Cassels, for plaintiffs. Guthrie, Q. C., and Moss, Q. C., for defendants.

THEIR AIMS AND OBJECTS.—Mr. A. A. Carleton, of Boston, is the gentleman who was to have addressed a mass meeting in the City Hall, called by the Knights of Labor a couple of weeks ago, but in consequence of being taken sick he was replaced by Messrs. Jury and O'Donohue, of Toronto. Last night Mr. Carleton addressed a private meeting of the Knights in the Catholic Union Hall, which was filled to the ddors. He took for his subject, "The aims and objects of the Knights of Labor," which he discussed in a clear and eloquent manner at considerable length. At the close of the address a vote of thanks was passed amidst applause to the speaker, and an invitation was extended to him to return to Guelph and deliver a public address, which he will probably do.

INFUSED WITH NEW LIFE.—The St. George's Society has recently been infused with new life, an interest having been awakened in several Englishmen who formerly held aloof from it. Some time ago the society rented a portion of the old Free Library room. This has now been partitioned off, the walls being very neatly painted, and the apartment furnished with new chairs and tables, altogether constituting the place most comforable, and suitable for the meetings. To-morrow evening the members are to assemble at their hall, when they will be drawn up in procession by Capt. Clarke and march to Dublin street Methodist church, to hear the annual sermon to the Society, which will be preached by Rev. Wm. Savage, who is one of the chaplains. A large turn out is looked for. After the service, which throughout will have an appropriate bearing on the occasion, the society will re-form in procession and return to the hall. The members are expected to wear badges, of which a plentiful supply has been received, and will be furnished to those who have not got them already. The new badges are of white satin, having rosettes, and bearing the cross of St. George in red, altogether being very handsome in appearance.

The Porte has notified Germany, Russia, and Austria that it is taking fresh steps to compel Greece to disarm.

SIR JOHN RETIRES.

If a Report from Ottawa is to be Relied Upon.

A FAREWELL ADDRESS.

The Announcement to be Made Public on Monday.

The Toronto News to-day contains the following special despatch from Ottawa:

"In view of his increasing age and failing health, Sir John Macdonald, Premier of the Dominion, has resolved to retire from public life, and while confined to the house during the past few weeks has occupied his time in preparing a farewell address to the people of Canada, which he completed revising to-day, and which will be placed in the hands of the printers tomorrow. Copies will be struck off and given to all the newspapers on Monday morning for simultaneous publication. Hearing of this on Thursday, I left Toronto at once, reached here to-day, and have been successful in obtaining an advance copy of this, the most important utterance ever delivered by a politician on this continent. The News will be the only paper in the world that will have it before Monday. How I obtained the advance sheets in order to enable you to thus distance all competitors I am not at liberty to make public at present, though at a subsequent period everything will be explained and the exact origin of the document proven. The address will be dated from Earnscliffe."

Then follows the address which is directed by Sir John to his friends and fellow Canadians and which occupies four columns and a half in the paper.

Conservatives here view the report with distrust, and two or three private messages have been sent off to Ottawa to see if it is true. Whether these have been answered has not been learned. In the meantime the despatch is given for what it is worth and Monday will reveal its truth or falsity.

The report seems, however, to be well founded, else the correspondent would not have been able to produce the Premier's farewell address, which it is inferred he came by clandestinely. At the conclusion of the report the correspondent says: "No doubt the premature publication of this address will create intense excitement, and will probably result in my abrupt return."

Failing health and old age have no doubt induced Sir John to take this step, but it is not too much to say that with his natural shrewdness he sees approaching defeat surely staring the Conservative party in the face and that this has also influenced his action.

CENTRAL SCHOOL.—Yesterday afternoon the pupils attending the Public Schools gave a rehearsal of the performance which is to be given by the school children, under the management of Capt. Clarke, in the Speed skating rink on the 30th inst. The calisthenic classes under the immediate instruction of Captain Clarke went through the different movements, etc., which are entirely new from those given on previous occasions, in a most creditable manner. The singing classes are instructed by Mrs. Whitehead. They also did remarkably well, and this lady deserves credit for the evident pains she has taken in training them. Several members of the Board of Education were present and took occasion to compliment Capt. Clarke and Mrs. Whitehead on the proficiency of their pupils. Before the rehearsal took place a fire alarm was sounded, and the Central School was cleared of all its scholars in 35 seconds, which is very quick time.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.—Mr. W. Marshall, photographer, was to-day taking views of the central exhibition grounds and buildings, to be forwarded to Toronto, to be lithographed for the Provincial exhibition bills. Mr. Marshall states that the day was very propitious for the work, and he has no doubt but that the photograph will be a first class representation of the buildings and grounds.

A visit to the establishment of R. E. Nelson will repay any one wanting a new spring suit, stylish pants or choice spring overcoat. Local News

THE pulpit of the Baptist Church will be occupied to-morrow by Rev. Chas. Williams, of Toronto Baptist College.

THE green grocer in London is one who sells vegetables. In this country it is one who trusts.

NEXT season, it is rumored, some of the merchants intend putting canvas over their stores and making the circus complete.

ON Monday last Mr. Thomas Vair was elected by acclamation as councillor for Ward No 3, Galt, in place of Mr. Peter McGregor, resigned.

A PRACTICAL tobbaconist was heard to remark yesterday: "Gad, they furnish music, I furnish cigars." He wants the milliners to keep up the excitement.

REV. FATHER FEAR, of Elora, who used to preach in this city 50 years ago, and who is now 84 years of age, will occupy the pulpit of Paisley street church tomorrow morning and evening.

GOOD FRIDAY EVENING. — The greatest attraction in the city on that occasion will be the unique entertainment now in preparation by the young ladies of Dublin street church Union. Nothing like it was ever given in Guelph, and the admission fee will be made to accommodate all. 1

GALT is going to have the electric light. The Reformer says:—We are informed that Messrs. Gourlay, Sylvester and Metcalfe have purchased the Dumfries mill property from Cherry Brothers, for electric lighting purposes. We did not learn the price paid, but it would doubtless be an advance upon the $14,700 paid two weeks ago.

THIS morning the market was well attended, the farmers taking advantage of the fine weather and coming to the city to purchase their spring seeds. In the green grocers' market lettuce and other garden truck made their appearance and was eagerly sought after. Butter and eggs were plentiful and were a shade lower than usual. In other produce the prices were fair.

LIGHTNING VS. A FEATHER BED.—Frank Boling, of Cherokee, Kan., threw himself on a feather bed that lay on the floor during a thunder storm. He neglected to draw up his legs, and his feet were touching the floor, when the lightning struck the house and played about his feet, burning them and knocking him senseless. That part of his body that was on the bed was not hurt, and a child lying by his side was uninjured. All of which may be used to show that feather beds are good places of refuge in thunder storms.

GALT SPRING SHOW.—The Reporter says: Wednesday was fortunately a very fine day, and as a consequence the attendance of farmers and others in the town was very large, despite the bad condition of the roads. The exhibit of bulls was deficint in number of animals shown; to be accounted for, we believe, by the fact that there are not so many breeders in this section as there were. Any deficiency in the bull class was amply made up by the exhibit of horses, which was the largest and embraced the finest animals we have ever seen at any of our fairs. In the agricultural class Young Ontario Chief, shown by Richard Bond, Puslinch, took first.

CLEAN UP.—The time is rapidly approaching when the annual spring fires will be lighted in most of the yards and gardens in this town. Make these fires as large as possible, kind reader? The revelations of spring are not the most pleasant even where there is ample room for the winter's refuse; and there is no better way of getting rid of this refuse than the old one of burning it up. We are all inclined to laugh at the women about their house cleaning mania; but it is certain that the more nearly the men imitate them in the outdoor surroundings the better it will be. So roll up your sleeves, boys, and keep the fire going!

BRANTFORD'S PAMPHLET.—A pamphlet describing the City of Brantford, and intended for distribution at the Colonial Exhibition, has been issued under the auspices of the Council and Board of Trade of that place. The work comprises 31 pages and contains several pages of illustrations of public buildings and leading sights of the Telephone city. Mr. Wm. Watt, jr., is the compiler and he has done his work with taste and ability, as has also the Expositor in the matter of the printing. The covers are very elaborately and beautifully lithographed, but while this work might have been done as well in Canada it is a pity that it was given to Buffalo printers, whose names appear on the front page. As an advertisement for a Canadian city it would have looked better if the mechanical work had been done in Canada. Altogether the pamphlet is highly creditable and one cannot help but think how much more wisdom Guelph would have displayed had it sent something of the same kind over to the Colonial.

A PREDICTION.—A local weather prophet who claims to have visions of the future says that probs. will have a hard time of it foretelling weather twenty-four hours ahead this season. Although the indications given, he says, are correct at the time they are given the atmospherical changes have been so sudden during the past few days that it is next to impossible to tell anywhere correct twenty-four hours ahead. Three changes, as an example, were very marked yesterday—in the morning there were indications of rain from the east, at noon a thunderstorm appeared to be coming from the south, and between seven and eight frost appeared to be coming from the north. We neither, he says, had rain, thunderstorm or frost, and he attributes these sudden changes in the atmosphere to the wind cyclones that are travelling high in the air, and which have swooped down upon some places, Guelph as an example, and doing so much damage of late. The seer also tells us to beware, our city being so high up, may be visited with another wind storm of much more severity than the last before the summer is over. We shall see, "O, my prophetic soul."

Pain Killer is a purely Vegetable preparation, safe to keep and to use in every family. The simplicity attending its use, together with the great variety of diseases that may be entirely eradicated by it, and the great amount of pain and suffering that can be alleviated through its use, make it imperative upon every person to supply themselves with this valuable remedy, and keep it always near at hand.

A NEW post-office called Auguston has been opened in Melanchton on lot 16, con. 4.

MESSRS. SHURLY & DIETRICH, Galt, have recently received an order from Milwaukee for $2,377 worth of their saws.

A LECTURE on "What I saw in London" will be given Tuesday evenidg, April 27, in the Congregatinnal Church, by Rev. H. D. Powis late pastor of Zion Church, Toronto.

COSTLY ADVERTISING.—The man who places a $100 advertisement in the MERCURY and flatters himself that he is a liberal advertiser, will be surprised to learn that a yearly advertisement, one column in length, in the Chicago Tribune costs the advertiser $26,000. The New York Herald receives for its lowest priced column, $39,000, and for its highest,, $348,000. The New York Tribune, for the lowest, $29,751, and for the highest, $85,638, and those papers, it is stated, are never at a loss for advertisements to fill their columns.

THE WEATHER.—The weather for several days past has been admirably adapted to advance all forms of vegetation. The usual "cold period" of 11-14 has been missed, or has been very indistinct, while the temperature has been more summer-like than vernal in large portions of the country, with a considerable intersprinkling of thunder storms to the southward. The old proverb—doubtless holds true, for when April's horn (thunder) is heard it is always accompanied by growing weather, made up of frequent alternations of hot sunshine and shower.

When April blows his horn
It's good both for hay and corn—

THE CONCERT LAST NIGHT.—The Silver Lake Quarteite Club in the City Hall had a good house last night, and their programme was of a most enjoyable nature. Rev. Mr. Mead, who is the speaker of the troupe, convulsed the audience with many humorous anecdotes of life among the negroes in the South. The singing by the quartette was generally remarked to be very good, and gave the best of satisfaction. In the "Model Church" and "Which way is your musket a-pointing to-day?" the effect was very good. Rev. Dr. Griffin was called on to the platform and spoke a few words for the temperance cause, which were well received. The closing piece "Where the surges cease to roll," was very feelingly sung, and the W. C. T. U., under whose auspices the quartette visited the city, deserve every credit for bringing such talent here.

SEEKING CONNECTION.—The Galt Reporter has the following:—Brantford, Guelph, Berlin and London are all just now seeking connection with the old and at one time despised C. V. R. For a railway that was described as an "outrageous imposition" on the public, and that "led from nowhere to nowhere," the old C. V. has lately found a large number of admirers. If it were possible for switch posts to laugh, and steel rails to chuckle, we should hear a pretty solid chorus from the line of the Credit Valley when the spectacle is presented of Mayors and other dignitaries rushing after Van Horne with hatfuls of boodle which they are ready to exchange for the privilege of touching his line

SPEED ROLLER RINK.—About 500 patronized the attraction at the Rink last night. Jas. Downie in his contortion acts was simply immense, twisting and bending himself in all manners of seemingly impossible shapes perfectly convincing the audience that the human frame with practice can be bent into any shape or form. Andrew Downie, in his "aerial perch acts," was exceptionally fine and daring in all his movements, and frequently drew forth the plaudits of the spectators. This is a feature in the acrobatic line that every one should see, being novel and original and the first time presented by any artist. The Downie Bros. in their Brother acts, representing tumbling and acrobatic feats of every description exhibited much finished grace and dash, clearly demonstrating that they have no superiors in these special lines. The audience showed their appreciation of this performance by frequent rounds of applause. To-night they will again appear in a change of programme, and the City Band will be present. Ladies free.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT.—On Saturday last says the Mount Forest Index while Messrs Henderson, Black and Balfour were running a car of dried oats from the kiln to the grist mill, and when about midway between the two buildings the track gave way, allowing the whole load to fall to the ground, a distance of about fourteen feet. The two former men were precipitated to the ground with great force, and but for prompt assistance given by those near at hand would have had trouble in extricating themselves. The two unfortunate men were conveyed to their homes. Mr. Black was found to be injured to a great extent internally. His collar bone and several ribs on his right side were badly fractured, the ribs piercing the lung. Mr. Henderson escaped with a severe shaking up, a bruise on the left leg, and a scalp wound on the back part of the head. He will be around in a few days.

MILLINERY OPENING.—Last night their seemed to be a rivalry between the firms of Messrs. J. D. Williamson & Co., and Mr. E. R. Bollert, on the opening of their respective millinery establishments. The former engaged the Bell Band and the latter an Italian string band of some five players from Toronto. The result of this was that the streets in the vicinity of both stores were crowded with thousands of people, who evidently appreciated the music, and especially that of the string band, which was very choice and greatly appreciated, and rather a novelty in connection with a millinery opening. The Bell Band discoursed excellent music, and the selections given showed that the players were well trained and versed in music. Both stores were packed full of people, and it was hard work for one to thread his way through the throng. Mr. Bollert's store was so full, when the Band was inside that it was almost impossible to get upstairs to the millinery department, whereupon the band was taken to the balcony above, thus allowing the people to get on the street, and relieving the store of the crowd of men and giving more room to the ladies. Although the crush was great on Lower Wyndham street it was nearly as bad in the millinery establishments on Upper Wyndham st., which although no attraction in the music line was presented seemed to have about as many admirers of their millinery as those in the lower portion of the city.

SERMON on Capital and Labor, by the Rev. J. W. Holmes in the Norfolk street church to-morrow evening.

THERE was no quorum at the Free Library Board on Thursday evening. Another meeting is to be called early next week.

GILCHRIST BROS. and M. O'Connell had on the market this morning for sale a number of handsome window plants and flowers, which were eagerly bought up.

MR. J. SOPER is making several alterations in his hotel, principal of which are the construction of a business office, and arrangements for the electric light.

MR. JAMES LOVE, of Guelph township, is to the front with sowing. Yesterday and to-day he sowed a field of wheat and one of peas. This is early.

THE two houses and lots on Devonshire street, belonging to the estate of the late John Thomas Cunningham were sold to-day by Mr. James Taylor, auctioneer, for $1,030. Ald. Keough was the purchaser.

ANOTHER instance of locking the door after the horse is stolen is shown by the corporation having erected a fence protecting the sidewalk at the pound creek, where Mr. Wells' little girl fell in the other day.

MR. VINCENT LEMBERGER, a few years out from the Old Country and recently staying with Mr. James Anderson, Springfield, has received an appointment as bugler in the Northwest Mounted Police.

MESSRS. J. M. SHAW, Elora, and J. J. Craig, of the Fergus News-Record, are in town to-day. They like to strike the Royal City on a market day whether there are cheap fares or not.

THE Electric light pole, 65 feet high, on St. George's Square, fell after it had been raised this morning. All forenoon was occupied in raising it again. No one was hurt.

THE numerous friends of Lieut.-Col. Armstrong, City Assessor, who has been confined to bed for about two weeks with a severe cold, will be pleased to learn that he is considerably better to day, and was able to sit up for a short time.

MR. E. R. BOLLERT had the string band playing on the balcony of his store this morning and afternoon. A large throng of people gathered in front of the store and listened to the sweet music with evident pleasure.

THE police have been notified of boys trespassing upon the grounds of Mr. Thos. Goldie, "Homewood Retreat", and Dr. Clark and setting fire to the grass. Yesterday they burned a big piece of the fence on Mr. Goldie's grounds.

MR. JOHN FARROW, of Guelph township, near Armstrong's mills is the owner of a ewe which has developed something strange in the way of maternity. A short time ago she dropped a lamb, and a week afterwards gave birth to another. Both lambs are doing well.

COCK FIGHTING.—An anonymous correspondent writes stating that some men are in the habit of indulging in the brutal sport of cock fighting in his neighborhood, and advises them to take warning, as if this proceeding is persisted in he will have the parties prosecuted. He knows all their names. Several cases of this kind have already been reported, and if the correspondent sends us the names they will be published for the benefit of the public.

COURT OF CHANCERY.—Building & Loan vs. Palmer—In this case, which was tried at the last Chancery Sittings here, and in which the defendant, John Palmer, consented to judgment against himself, judgment was yesterday delivered in Toronto as follows: Judgment for plaintiffs against defendant, John Palmer, for the amount unpaid upon the mortgage with interests and costs as of undefended action. Action dismissed with costs as against other defendants, and as to other relief sought. A. Cassels, for plaintiffs. Guthrie, Q. C., and Moss, Q. C., for defendants.

THEIR AIMS AND OBJECTS.—Mr. A. A. Carleton, of Boston, is the gentleman who was to have addressed a mass meeting in the City Hall, called by the Knights of Labor a couple of weeks ago, but in consequence of being taken sick he was replaced by Messrs. Jury and O'Donohue, of Toronto. Last night Mr. Carleton addressed a private meeting of the Knights in the Catholic Union Hall, which was filled to the doors. He took for his subject, "The aims and objects of the Knights of Labor," which he discussed in a clear and eloquent manner at considerable length. At the close of the address a vote of thanks was passed amidst applause to the speaker, and an invitation was extended to him to return to Guelph and deliver a public address, which he will probably do.

INFUSED WITH NEW LIFE.—The St. George's Society has recently been infused with new life, an interest having been awakened in several Englishmen who formerly held aloof from it. Some time ago the society rented a portion of the old Free Library room. This has now been partitioned off, the walls being very neatly painted, and the apartment furnished with new chairs and tables, altogether constituting the place most comforable, and suitable for the meetings. To-morrow evening the members are to assemble at their hall, when they will be drawn up in procession by Capt. Clarke and march to Dublin street Methodist church, to hear the annual sermon to the Society, which will be preached by Rev. Wm. Savage, who is one of the chaplains. A large turn out is looked for. After the service, which throughout will have an appropriate bearing on the occasion, the society will re-form in procession and return to the hall. The members are expected to wear badges, of which a plentiful supply has been received, and will be furnished to those who have not got them already. The new badges are of white satin, having rosettes, and bearing the cross of St. George in red, altogether being very handsome in appearance.

The Porte has notified Germany, Russia, and Austria that it is taking fresh steps to compel Greece to disarm.

Those choice suits made to order by R. E. Nelson, at the low price of $13, $14 and $15, astonish everybody. They are really choice. Call and secure a good choice at 99 Upper Wyndham st. d2

SIR JOHN RETIRES.

If a Report from Ottawa is to be Relied Upon.

A FAREWELL ADDRESS.

The Announcement to be Made Public on Monday.

The Toronto News to-day contains the following special despatch from Ottawa:

"In view of his increasing age and failing health, Sir John Macdonald, Premier of the Dominion, has resolved to retire from public life, and while confined to the house during the past few weeks has occupied his time in preparing a farewell address to the people of Canada, which he completed revising to-day, and which will be placed in the hands of the printers tomorrow. Copies will be struck off and given to all the newspapers on Monday morning for simultaneous publication. Hearing of this on Thursday, I left Toronto at once, reached here to-day, and have been successful in obtaining an advance copy of this, the most important utterance ever delivered by a politician on this continent. The News will be the only paper in the world that will have it before Monday. How I obtained the advance sheets in order to enable you to thus distance all competitors I am not at liberty to make public at present, though at a subsequent period everything will be explained and the exact origin of the document proven. The address will be dated from Earnscliffe."

Then follows the address which is directed by Sir John to his friends and fellow Canadians and which occupies four columns and a half in the paper.

Conservatives here view the report with distrust, and two or three private messages have been sent off to Ottawa to see if it is true. Whether these have been answered has not been learned. In the meantime the despatch is given for what it is worth and Monday will reveal its truth or falsity.

The report seems, however, to be well founded, else the correspondent would not have been able to produce the Premier's farewell address, which it is inferred he came by clandestinely. At the conclusion of the report the correspondent says: "No doubt the premature publication of this address will create intense excitement, and will probably result in my abrupt return."

Failing health and old age have no doubt induced Sir John to take this step, but it is not too much to say that with his natural shrewdness he sees approaching defeat surely staring the Conservative party in the face and that this has also influenced his action.

CENTRAL SCHOOL.—Yesterday afternoon the pupils attending the Public Schools gave a rehearsal of the performance which is to be given by the school children, under the management of Capt. Clarke, in the Speed skating rink on the 30th inst. The calisthenic classes under the immediate instruction of Captain Clarke went through the different movements, etc., which are entirely new from those given on previous occasions, in a most creditable manner. The singing classes are instructed by Mrs. Whitehead. They also did remarkably well, and this lady deserves credit for the evident pains she has taken in training them. Several members of the Board of Education were present and took occasion to compliment Capt. Clarke and Mrs. Whitehead on the proficiency of their pupils. Before the rehearsal took place a fire alarm was sounded, and the Central School was cleared of all its scholars in 35 seconds, which is very quick time.

PROVINCIAL EXHIBITION.—Mr. W. Marshall, photographer, was to-day taking views of the central exhibition grounds and buildings, to be forwarded to Toronto, to be lithographed for the Provincial exhibition bills. Mr. Marshall states that the day was very propitious for the work, and he has no doubt but that the photograph will be a first class representation of the buildings and grounds.

The Law of Libel.

The press throughout the country continues to keep up the agitation for some needed amendments to the law of libel. The Press Association have had the matter under consideration for sometime, and a committee of its members not long ago put in specific form such amendments as they thought most desirable and necessary in the interests of the profession. A few days ago Messrs. Somerville and Innes on behalf of the Association waited on the Minister of Justice and submitted these amendments for his opinion. On looking over them, he stated that with the exception of two of the recommendations, the rest belonged to the Local Parliaments on which to legislate. A case which was tried at the Ottawa Assizes on Monday has again brought this question under our notice, which shows how necessary it is for the protection of the publisher of a newspaper that in certain cases a plaintiff should give security for the costs before he be allowed to go on with his action. This was one of the principal amendments recommended by the Association. The case referred to was a suit brought by a man named John Moore against C. W. Mitchell, proprietor of the Free Press, for inserting a notice in that paper that he had been representing himself as being connected with the Free Press, and on the strength of such representation had applied for railway passes and cautioning the railway companies and in fact the general public against transacting with him any business connected with the Free Press. The jury brought in a verdict for the defendant, thus justifying the publication of the notice. The Free Press in an editorial on the subject puts the matter in a proper light, and shows the annoyance and expense that a publisher may be put to in defending such actions. We may state that the case here mentioned is one in which Local Legislatures have jurisdiction as regards guaranteeing security for costs. It says:—

Here is a case in which without justification the defendant is put to considerable expense, simply to please a person whose character the jury has declared was not damaged by the publication. It is true that the costs are thrown upon the plaintiff, but there are always in libel suits expenses incurred by the defendant, outside of those assessed upon the plaintiff in the event of his failing, even if he should pay the plaintiff's costs as assessed upon him, which payments do not always take place.

There ought to be some means of checking speculative libel suit or suits in which there is no ground for substantial grievances. The plaintiff in an action of this character should be compelled to give security for costs; and so furnish a guarantee that he believes he has substantial grounds for proceeding. It may be said that this demand would preclude a poor man who may be deeply wronged by a newspaper from obtaining justice. Such exceptional cases might be met by a special provision permitting a man to plead poverty, and throwing upon the county judge the duty of briefly examining into the matter and determining whether there is fair ground for an action. In the event of his deciding in the affirmative the security for costs should come out of the public treasury.

In the Senate the other day the Postmaster-General made an important announcement with respect to his department. He said that he had no doubt the completion of the C. P. R. would lead to the establishment, at an early date, of a system of rapid transit across the Atlantic, and the postoffice department was now preparing an advertisement for tenders for more rapid mail service between Liverpool and Quebec in summer, and Liverpool and Halifax in winter. The speed required for mail steamships would be increased from the present rate of twelve knots an hour to fourteen or sixteen knots an hour, and the time of passage from Liverpool to Quebec would be reduced to six days. Another result of the completion of the Pacific Railway, he hoped, would be the early completion of a fast line of steamships on the Pacific Ocean, between Vancouver and Japan, China, and Australia. The propriety of aiding such a line of steamships had been brought before the Imperial Government by Sir John Macdonald and Sir Geo. Stephen in order to enable them to compete successfully with the line plying from San Francisco. The Dominion Government were not yet officially informed that the subsidy of five hundred thousand dollars a year for ten years had been granted by the Imperial authorities to the proposed steamship line, but there were telegrams to that effect, and official notification was probably on the way out. From knowledge gathered during a visit to San Francisco Sir Alex. Campbell said he was not so sanguine as some were that there would be in the near future any considerable business done by a line of steamships on the Pacific Ocean, or that the Canadian Pacific Railway would derive any great amount of trade from that source.

Monument to Vanderbilt.

NEW YORK, April 16. — Cornelius, William, Frederick W., and George W. Vanderbilt, sons of the late W. H. Vanderbilt, have given to the College of Physicians and Surgeons $250,000 for the erection, as a memorial of their father, of a building on the College land, corner of Sixtieth st. and Tenth Avenue, to be known as the Vanderbilt Clinic of the College of Physicians and Surgeons. The building will be used entirely for clinical teaching. Its erection will be begun at once.

Important News Item.

COOKSTOWN.—Mrs Campbell had for a number of years been troubled with indigestion and constipation, and was induced to try McGregor's Speedy Cure and found it all that was needed, and would recommend its use to any person similarly troubled. This invaluable remedy is sold in every part of Canada at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle. Sold at Thos. S Petrie's Drug Store.

A Couple of Fires.

ST. THOMAS, Ont., April 16.—About 12 o'clock last night a dwelling house on Stanley street, owned by A. Hutson, was destroyed by fire; loss $1,400, insured in the City of London for $850; cause, defective stove pipe. Early this morning the residence of W. O. Pollock, Deputy Reeve of Yarmouth, a short distance from the city, was destroyed by fire. Loss, $1,500; insured in the London Mutual for $650.

An Unholy Traffic.

QUEBEC, April 16.—What seems to have been a wholesale market for inveigling young innocent girls has come to the notice of the authorities. It appears that a number of disreputable houses have sent on agents from Chicago, New York, Boston and other American cities whose duty it is to put on a respectable appearance and ingratiate themselves with young women whom they induce to go to the United States, and when there draw them into a life of infamy. The agents here comprise both women and men and their trade has been carried on to an alarming extent, sometimes as many as ten and twelve females being shipped in one week. The prices paid these agents are in accordance with the looks of the girl, varying from $20 to $200.

A great number of those inveigled are young French Canadian girls. This week no less than fifteen were shipped.

CAMPBELL'S

TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show room of Messrs. Clark & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes, fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

CHAPTER XXIV.

A VISIT TO BRANTWOOD.

Mr. Longworthy came in one evening when his wife and Helen were chatting in the twilight. All day long Helen had been feeling depressed and restless, and Mrs. Longworthy, seeing that it was so, was doing her best to cheer her by encouraging her to talk of Brantwood.

Her plan seemed to have answered. Helen's voice was already less listless than when she began to speak. She was describing the place, and her description brought it very vividly before Mrs. Longworthy's eyes. The clergyman's wife was very much interested in it all. She had a woman's love for personal detail; she liked to hear how Helen had lived before coming to Miller's Gate. Helen, too, warmed to her story; she had almost forgotten the sad thoughts which had been haunting her all day; she was absorbed in her present occupation, and was speaking with a good deal of animation when the door opened and Mr. Longworthy appeared.

"Dear me," he said, "all in the dark. I shall have to stand here until Fanny brings the lamp. I dare not try to walk across the room, for I should infallibly knock over a table or two on my way."

"Don't be absurd, Rupert," said his wife, turning with a smile. "Come in and shut the door; there is a draught."

"I have news for Helen," he said, taking a few cautious steps forward.

"For me?" said Helen, turning quickly. "Oh, do come in and tell me what it is."

He had not seen her before. She was sitting in the shadow, and wore a black dress. Now, however, he went on—

"You are there, are you? See what it is to be so small. Yes, I have news for you, which you shall hear as soon as Mabel has been prevailed upon to let us have a light."

"What a tease you are, you tiresome old man!" said his wife rising to meet him, for by this time he had reached her chair. They exchanged the usual salutations, he shook hands with Helen, the lamp was brought, and the two women sat expectant.

"I must ask you to wait a moment until I have brought a little order into my toilette," said the clergyman, looking first at himself and then at the two ladies, who had changed their dresses for the evening, "I see I am not fit to stay here."

He left the room as he spoke, to Helen's disappointment, but in ten minutes he was back again, and taking up a position in front of the fire, began at once.

"Your husband has come home."

"So I see," said his wife serenely.

"I spoke to Helen."

Helen had flushed crimson, her heart began to beat with excitement and nervousness as she asked,

"How do you know? How did you hear?"

"I heard from one of his own grooms whom I met in this way. I had a meeting to attend to-day at Thurston, to get to which place I had to go to Dewhurst, change and take the train on to Thurston. You know, or rather I don't suppose you do, so I tell you, that in accordance with one of my theories concerning the relation which should exist between a shepherd and his flock, I always travel third class. In the third-class carriage in which I travelled to-day were two grooms. They began to talk to one another, and in the course of the conversation, which was too technical for me to follow it altogether one of them mentioned that his master was Mr. Moore of Brantwood, Osmotherley. As soon as I could, which was not until the other groom left the train, I began a little conversation on my account, and soon succeeded in learning what I wanted to know. Mr. Moore returned from the Continent about a week ago; his wife has sent out invitations for a large house party, and very gay doings are anticipated at Brantwood. By a little manœuvering I brought the conversation upon you, Helen, and it appeared that this groom was the same man who saw you off when you left home."

"Stevenson," said Helen; "did he say his name was Stevenson?"

"He did not absolutely say so, but he was of a communicative disposition, and told me all about what happened after the accident. As his story contained a great many 'and he said, "Stevenson," "Stevenson," said he,' I concluded that was his name."

There was a silence of a few minutes which Mrs. Longworthy broke by saying,

"What do you think of doing now, Rupert?"

"Whatever Mrs. Moore thinks best," he replied, turning to Helen, and the substitution of that for her Christian name, seemed to bring it all home to them.

Helen did not speak at once. At last she said in a low voice—

"I leave it to you. Will you decide?"

"I promised to do nothing without your consent. If you remember, my idea was that I should go to Osmotherley. I have not thought of anything better. Can you suggest anything?"

"No, that will be the best, I am sure."

"Then I have your consent. I can go as soon as I like?"

"Certainly. Go to-morrow if you like—if you will—the sooner the better, of course."

There was such a tone of shrinking in her voice that he looked down upon her as she sat in her low chair. She was trembling violently from head to foot.

"Do you fear my going?" he asked in a low voice.

"Yes, I fear it. I cannot help it. You do not know, you cannot possibly feel all I have at stake. I feel like the man who played chess with Satan and staked his soul upon the game, and it makes it no more easy to know that Satan is represented by my sister. You do not know her; she is so beautiful and unscrupulous. Percival may have begun to love her since he is married to her, and if he has—"

She did not finish, she rose from her chair and began to walk up and down the room, twisting her handkerchief in her hands.

"And if he has?" asked Mr. Longworthy.

"If he has?" I shall die, or go mad."

She turned and faced them as she spoke, and it seemed to those who looked at her that they now saw for the first time a change which had been slowly coming for weeks.

THE LAND BILL.

Gladstone Submits His Scheme for Buying Out Irish Landlords.

£180,000,000 REQUIRED

Opposition from Messrs. Chamberlain and Parnell.

LONDON, April 16.—Mr. Gladstone propounded his Irish Land Bill to the House of Commons this evening.

He said the aim of the present endeavors of the Government was directed towards securing contentment among the people of Ireland and the permanent restoration of social order. His proposals would greatly benefit the tenants of Ireland, but the landlords were the principal object of the measure, although he thought that many of these landlords were most hostile to the Government's policy. At the outset he wished to make the most emphatic denial that it was his intention to ask the Scotch and English to run any pecuniary risk on account of the landlords of Ireland.

The purchase would be made through the issue of £180,000,000 of three per cent. stock issued at par. These new Irish consols might with the consent of the Treasurer, be commuted for stock of a lower denomination. If the stock could not be issued forthwith scrip of equal value would be issued for the same purpose.

The Act was to give the landlords the option to sell out under its terms. Its enactments were confined to agricultural holdings and did not include mansions having demesnes and woods.

The State authorities acting between the peasant and land owner, would purchase from the latter and put the peasant in possession as absolute proprietor, subject to an annual rent charge until the total payments equalled the purchase money. The State would not force the small occupant to become proprietor.

In districts where the population was congested the State would have the power to decide whether expropriation of the too crowded land should be compulsory. Nobody except the immediate landlords would have the option to sell to the incumberancer and then he must sell by foreclosure and not an option for himself. Applications to sell would have to be made by all the tenants on an estate and all these applications and sales would be registered. Applicants would be required to give security for costs in certain cases. The Land Commission would be empowered to refuse applications.

The bases of prices would depend upon the rental for a fixed period. The judicial rental of 1845 would be the standard in all cases wherein the rent of the land to be sold was then fixed; in all other cases the Land Commission would have the power to arrive at a price by comparing the other judicial rentals with Griffith's valuations. The Land Commission would also be allowed to examine the state of the books concerning estates for ten years back. Twenty years rental would be a normal purchase. In exceptional cases twenty-two years rental would make a purchase. Applications for sale would not be received after March 31, 1890.

Ten millions of pounds of the stock could be issued during 1887; £20,000,000 in 1888; £20,000,000 in 1889, and £20,000,000 in each of the two succeeding years.

When the proposals were first placed before the Cabinet he (Mr. Gladstone) proposed to raise £130,000,000 immediately. Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Trevelyan both objected to this as a wholesale issue which would depreciate values. The speaker, therefore, thanked both gentlemen for having given him occasion to reconsider that original proposition. He now thought it was an error to ask forthwith for anything like the outside estimate, and believed by appointing a receiver for the general rents, armed with sufficient authority to collect them, but without coming into contact with the new proprietary, the repayment of the purchase money would be amply secured. The charge upon the Irish Exchequer would be £2,000,000 per annum, and this sum would be the first charge on the rents and taxes raised by the Irish Government.

Adding to this the Imperial contribution, the sum paid to England by Ireland would be £6,242,000 per annum, secured on a revenue amounting to £10,850,000, no portion of which would be applied to any purpose until £6,000,000 was paid into the English Exchequer. The present contribution of the Irish taxpayers to England was £6,980,000, of which England paid back in the Irish Civil Service and in the service of collection £4,840,000. The residue, which seemed to represent an imperial contribution for army, navy, national debt and imperial civil charges, was £2,085,000. What did England do with it? As an instance, she sent an army of 26,000 men to Ireland, and kept them there at an annual cost of £3,000,000; £915,000 more than the balance mentioned. That was a specimen of the economy of the system Mr. Gladstone wanted to root up.

Mr. Gladstone commended the scheme to the strict, jealous, careful, unbiased examination of Englishmen. He was convinced that it would be recognized as a fitting part of the great auspicious effort to sustain the plans of the British legislature for the welfare of what had long been, and the speaker hoped would ever be, under circumstances far happier than heretofore, an integral part of Her Majesty's dominion.

Mr. Gladstone spoke for one hour and thirty-five minutes, and sat down amid great applause.

Mr. Gladstone's proposals do not imply a new issue of £180,000,000 in 3 per cent., but of only £50,000,000 from the £180,000,000 in new threes already authorized.

Following Mr. Gladstone, Mr. Chamberlain read the letter which he sent to Mr. Gladstone tendering his resignation as a member of the Cabinet. In the letter Mr. Chamberlain stated that Mr. Gladstone's policy would throw a heavy burden on Great Britain entailing an enormous addition to the national debt and probably an immediate increase of taxation, not to secure the union of the Kingdom but to purchase separation.

Mr. Chamberlain then went on to say that the land proposals, although they had been modified since he left the Cabinet, would still impose a great burden on Great Britain without sufficient security for the loans advanced. The Bill was calculated not so much to benefit the tenants as a sop for the landlords. Although only £50,000,000 was to be issued, the option to sell was offered to landowners holding land valued at £15,000,000. Supposing the full number of options to sell should be accepted, how would all the money be provided? He opposed the Bill on principle because it specially protected the landlords. If the Irish Parliament was to be entrusted with the protection of the commercial classes and the maintenance of social order, why could it not be trusted to protect the landlords? The Government was putting on Ireland a burden which no Irish member could declare to be a fair price to give for the landlords' rights. (Cheers.) The Irish people would regard the bargain as one imposed by a foreign country, and would be justified in taking the first opportunity to repudiate. If the bargain should be repudiated, how would it be enforced? The Government could not disregard the risk to the British taxpayer. Under the decreasing depression in trade hundreds of thousands of hard workers in England would probably be thrown out of employment and would demand assistance from the State. While refusing to assist deserving Crofters in Scotland and postponing the claims of the English laborer could the Government consistently grant large sums for the benefit of the Irish peasantry? (Cheers.) In conclusion Mr. Chamberlain said he was not an irreconcilable opponent of Mr. Gladstone's policy. If the land proposals should be sufficiently modified he would be happy to be relieved of the duty of continuing his present attitude.

Mr. Parnell said that, not having had Mr. Chamberlain's advantage of a seat in the Cabinet, he was not prepared to express a too confident opinion upon the merits and demerits of the scheme until he had seen the provisions of the bill. Mr. Chamberlain had spoken in deservedly complimentary terms of Mr. Davitt, and had expressed a desire to know the latter's opinion of the Land Purchase Bill. Mr. Parnell assured Mr. Chamberlain that Mr. Davitt would not act from motives of personal spite or jealousy—(Parnellite cheers)—but solely out of regard for Ireland. To the speaker it appeared that the appointment of a Receiver-General was unnecessary and absurd, because, according to the Premier's statement, the receipts from the Customs and Excise duties in Ireland will amount to within £20,000 of the total amount payable by Ireland to the Imperial Exchequer.

Mr. Gladstone's statement to-day of the provisions of his Irish Land Bill lacked completeness and clearness, and evoked no enthusiasm from any quarter, even the Parnellites remaining silent during its delivery. Mr. Chamberlain's speech made a great impression.

The Scotch Liberals had an informal meeting and decided to support Mr. Chamberlain unless the loan was reduced to a sum sufficient to assist in the purchase of only the smaller holdings.

Mr. Davitt says the only persons who will benefit by the scheme will be the absentee landlords who will jump at the opportunity to sell out and be delighted to get rid of their property.

VALEDICTORY ADDRESS

And Presentation to the Revd. E. A. Irving.

There was a large attendance of the members of St. George's Church last evening in order to present a farewell addresses a well filled purse to the Revd. Mr. Irving on his removal to Dundas. The Venerable Archdeacon Dixon took the chair. After prayers in which were special supplications that the minister now about to leave them, might be blessed in his work in the new field of duty to which he was called, the Archdeacon stated what the object of the meeting was. They had been called together to show their high appreciation of the services in the parish for four years of the curate who was now about to leave them. Their feelings were of a mingled character, regret that one who had endeared himself to them allby his zeal in his sacred functions was soon to depart and gladness that the change was for his benefit, being promotion to the sole charge of a desirable parish. As regarded himself the Archdeacon said his loss would leave a blank hard to be filled as for four years they had been working together in brotherly harmony, taking sweet counsel together and walking in the House of God as friends. He most heartily wished him and Mrs. Irving God speed.

He then called on Mr. George Murton to present the address and testimonal which was a beautiful purse containing $300. The address was as follows:

To the Rev. E. A. Irvine, Curate of St. George's Church.

REV. AND DEAR SIR—The congregation of St George's Church to whom you have faithfully ministered in spiritual things for nearly four years, feel that the approaching severance of your connection with them should not take place without something being done to mark the esteem in which you are held by them, and we the Church Wardens, on behalf of the congregation beg to present to you this address in acknowledgement of the faithfulness and zeal with which you have ever discharged the important duties of your sacred office as curate of this parish from your unceasing labors in it.

It is felt that the parish will suffer a great loss by your removal from it—a loss which will long be felt. Still your acceptance of the advantageous offer from an adjoining parish in the diocese is to be commended, and rest assured that in leaving us you will take with you the best wishes of this congregation for the welfare of yourself and Mrs. Irving, in the new sphere of labor upon which you are entering.

The congregation have expressed a desire to assist you, if you will allow, in bearing the expense of your change of residence and for that purpose we ask you to accept from them this purse, which is attended by their earnest prayers that God may abundantly bless you and Mrs Irving, and spare you both in health and strength to continue your labors in the vineyard.

We remain, dear sir, on behalf of the congregation.

Yours faithfully

Guelph, April 16, 1886.

Mr. Irving then very happily responded.

The Archdeacon then called on Mr. George Elliott to address the meeting, which he did expressing his strong personal friendship for Mr. and Mrs. Irving and high appreciation of his services in the parish. Mr. Geo. Murton also spoke to the same effect and likewise Mr. T.W. Saunders who had many opportunities of seeing Mr. and Mrs. Irving's good work among the poorer classes especially. A feeling of harmonious unity of sentiment prevaded the whole audience, and at the close many pressed forward to shake hands with Mr. Irving and bid him farewell.

The Archdeacon closed with the benediction.

Local News

CITY Council to-night.

A GENERAL spring shower fell this afternoon.

THIS is Primrose Day, being the fifth anniversary of the death of Lord Beaconsfield.

LAST week Mr. James Gray, Rockwood, lost a valuable bull, five months old. The animal was valued at $300.

SAM BITTLE the pugilist was in town yesterday from Galt. He is going into training under instructions of Fitzjames in a short time.

ON Monday forenoon last the stone foundation of Cowan & Co.'s moulding shop, Galt, gave way and fell into the river, Fortunately there was no other damage done.

YESTERDAY appeared more like a day in the middle of June than the middle of April. The heat after the recent cold weather was keenly felt. To-day is equally fine, and the indications go to show an early spring.

FALL WHEAT.—A farmer who has been travelling extensively through the country during the past week states that he never saw the fall wheat look so well before, and it is growing rapidly and presents a fine healthy appearance.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The Rink was well filled Saturday night by a large and admiring audience to see the artistic and well executed acts of the Downie Bros. They appeared in several different acts and change of costume from Friday night's programme and highly delighted those present by the many difficult acrobatic and gymnastic feats in which they excel.

DOES HE BELONG TO GUELPH.—The Goderich Star says:—We had a death here the week before last of a stranger by the name of John Johnston. No person seems to know anything of the poor fellow. It is supposed he hailed from Stratford or Guelph. This man was a Lowland Scotchman of between 40 and 50 years of age, light complexion, about 5 feet 9 or 10, and very fond of singing the songs of Scotland, particularly those of Burns.

BASE BALL NOTES.—Sonny Purvis has signed to catch for the Maple Leafs, Sonny is a good one if he only tackles his work with a proper spirit. This makes three catchers signed with Mr. Sleeman. The suit, Sleeman vs. Hamilton and Toronto B. B. Clubs, has been postponed for a few days to allow the defendants to prepare their defence. The players signed by the Maple Leafs will report here on the 1st of May. It is likely another pitcher will be secured. As Mr. Sleeman has exercised great care in the selection of his team, the base ball public may expect first class exhibitions.

ROYAL ARCANUM.—The Grand Council of Ontario meets, for the first time since its organization, on the 19th of May next in the city of Toronto. It is expected that there will be a large and influential gathering of delegates from councils in the Province. On April 10th, as near as can be estimated by the records in the office of the Supreme Secretary, there were 63,754 members of the Order in good standing. This does not include members initiated whose applications are in the hands of secretaries, or on their way to headquarters, of which there may be safely understood to be about 150. There are now 958 councils. During March fifty-one beneficiaries were paid, amounting to $150,000.

MUSIC SWEET.—On Saturday night the air was again filled with music. Mr. E. R. Bollert had the City Band stationed on the roof of his store playing music for his millinery opening, and Messrs. J. D. Williamson & Co. secured the services of the Bell Band, and had it stationed on the street for the same purpose. The crowd on the street was very large. While both bands were playing for all they were worth, quite a diverson arose. James Gay received permission from Mr. P. Anderson, of the Marvellous Tea store, to stand on several bags of salt on the sidewalk opposite the store and discourse music from his flute. The result was that the crowd assembled round James Gay, and after he had finished his first piece he was greeted with rousing cheers from the hundreds present. The police thought that Mr. Gay had no business to occupy such an elevated position, but the crowd maintained that he had as good a right to do so as the band. He was afterwards placed into Anderson's delivery waggon in front of the store, where he was allowed to play to his heart's content, much to the amusement of the large number of onlookers. Another thing which may be mentioned in connection with Saturday night's performance was that W. D. Shattuck, of the Western Hotel, with some friends, took it into their heads to add to the general display by driving a carriage with four white horses around the principal streets.

COMPLIMENTARY SUPPER.—The Listowel Banner says:—"On Wednesday evening, a number of the intimate friends and acquaintances of Mr. John McKenzie, who leaves for Guelph this week to take charge of a large tailoring department in that city, met at the "Royal" to say a friendly goodbye. After supper the Mayor, Mr. Hess, was called to the chair, and Mr. W. Forbes to the vice-chair, and after the customary loyal toasts had been disposed of, the health of Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie was proposed. All present expressed regret at Mr. McKenzie leaving the town, and while wishing him all prosperity in the Royal City hoped he would yet be able to return to Listowel amongst his old friends." Mr. McKenzie is now in charge of the tailoring department of the Lion.

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE.—At the Gospel temperance meeting in Paisley street church on Sunday afternoon Mr. E. H. Maddock, in speaking of the present state of the temperance question in the country said, we must not be discouraged, as our cause is founded on right and must prevail. God is with us as He was with Elijah when persecuted by Ahab. The liquor traffic costs Anglo-Saxon countries alone about two billions per annum, enough to build twenty Pacific railroads; and in Anglo-Saxon countries alcohol is the cause of 250,000 persons' death each year, or 685 deaths per day. We fight alcohol whether found in beer, wine, whiskey, brandy, gin or rum. When our cause becomes popular many are willing to join us without counting the cost, who become discouraged when they find there is hard work to be done, but true men will be nerved to greater action by opposition.

Light to moderate winds; continued fair, warm weather.

AMATEUR gardeners have commenced spring operations.

Two disorderly cases were dismissed at the police court this morning.

THERE will be an "At Home" in Knox Church to-morrow night. See advt.

MR. CHAS. DAVIDSON has a beautiful bed of flowers in bloom in his garden, which is the admiration of all passers by.

THE Maple Leafs had better look out for their laurels this year. An enthusiast of the game was seen training a club of young aspirants for the base ball field on the other side of the Eramosa bridge the other day.

BULL PURCHASED.—Durham Review: "M. C. C. McFayden returned this week, with a fine young bull, which he purchased from Mr. George Fyfe, of Paisley Block, near Guelph. The animal was calved in 1885 and now weighs 1,320 lbs. It is of a fine dark red color and was the admiration of all who saw it. It is named the "Oxford Lad" and bears a full pedigree. Mr. McFayden deserves to do well as this is probably the finest animal ever brought into this section." This is certainly a flattering tribute to the stock raised by Mr. Fyfe.

TENDERS AWARDED.—On Saturday afternoon the School Trustees of School Section No. 2, Puslinch, were at the Western Hotel for the purpose of awarding tenders for the erection of a new school house in that section at a cost of some $1,700. The size will be 48 by 28 feet, brick, with stone foundation, and fitted up with the latest improvements. Messrs. Foster & Benallick secured the tenders for the mason and brick work, and J. Mahoney for the carpeentr, joiner and plastering work.

NEARLY A RUNAWAY.—On Saturday afternoon a farmer by the name of John Shute, Guelph Township, drove from the stables of the Albion Hotel. He commenced to whip the horses, after leaving the yard, and by some means the tongue of the waggon slipped from its fastening and fell to the ground, the result being that the pole, swinging from side to side and striking the horses, caused them to become frightened and uncontrollable. Mr. E. McKenna, hostler at the Commercial Hotel, attempted to draw a buggy belonging to that stable out of the way, and while so engaged the horses ran against it, the tongue striking the wheel, upsetting the buggy and knocking the top off, McKenna being thrown over in the general smash up, and receiving several bruises of a slight nature. Had the horses not been stopped as they were, and had they secured a free track, the consequences might have been serious to the driver and the young girl who accompanied him. The only damage done was to the buggy, and that was trifling.

That Puzzle.

To the Editor of the MERCURY.

SIR,—I beg a short space in the columns of your paper to answer that puzzle given by your Elora correspondent for the ladies.

5 9 1 7 3

Answer in simple addition by prefixing one (1) to the Nos. 5, 3 or 1, thus 15+3+1+1=20, or 13+5+1+1=20 or 11+5+3+1=20.

A Young Faster.

LACROSSE, Wis., April 17.—Anna Belle Langan, the 9 year old girl who has been fasting for forty-seven days, is still strong and lively. She still has an abhorrence of food, and positively refuses a mouthful. She even refuses to take the juice of oranges. She looks comparatively well and weighs 65 pounds. The doctor in attendance hopes to bring her out all right. Hundreds of people visit the little faster, and some refuse to believe that she has gone without food so long a time.

Suicide at Ninety.

ARKONA, Ont., April 17.—Mrs. George Stewart, of this place, an old lady over 90 years of age, was discovered in a dying condition yesterday morning, having cut her throat with a razor. She lingered for twenty-four hours, and was insensible most of the time. No definite reason is assigned for the act.

SPECIAL SERVICES.

Sermons to St. George's Society and the Knights of Labour.

CAPITAL AND LABOUR.

The announcement that Rev. W. J. Holmes would preach a sermon having reference to capital and labor drew out a large congregation at the Norfolk street Metodist Church last night. The rev. gentlemen premised his discourse with an explanation. He objected to the caption of his subject. He did not believe that rights and wrongs always belonged to the Gospel or to Gospel preaching, and had no sympathy with inflammatory speeches made on Sunday, but where these rights and wrongs affected the moral character in the relationship in which we stood to one another they were a fit subject for instruction, reproof or admonition from the pulpit or anywhere else. He had been asked to preach a sermon to the working men and he would address to them, whether they worked with their hands or brains, a few words that would be in keeping with the order of the services.

His remarks were based on Matthew VII. and 12th: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you do ye even so to them, for this is the Law and the Prophets." They would find this not only in the Bible but the Palladium and everywhere where the question of rights and wrongs were being discussed to-day. In I Corinthians 13th and 14th these words occur: "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong." "Let all your things be done with charity." He coupled these passages for the reason that we had here presented to us the most perfect of all laws, the only law, and they presented to us the practical sequences of that law. He would venture to add that there is only one law—only one law-giver; therefore, there is only one law. That law touched every point of human society and came to every man no matter what his position.

The history of the world had been one of conflicts—the strong against the weak, the wise against the unwise, the knowing against the ignorant. On this principle worlds had been conquered, and wars had been waged all over. The cry during the Soudan campaign and during our own rebellion in the Northwest was "more men," But he reminded them that there was a greater conflict than these, because it reached farther, its results were more important because they were eternal, a conflict that was raging between God and man and the great adversary, as to who would be the governor and ruler. In this conflict it was not more men but more man that was wanted. God had placed before men a law, a model of true manhood, and he wanted them to come up that standard.

In the first passage there was a golden rule for guidance, and in the others calls, first, to vigilance. Keep your eyes open. It was necessary for us to understand the mode of attack. It was one of the stratagems of the adversary to observe secrecy; he came stealthily and slyly; therefore it was safe to be vigilant. Then he was always in close proximity. The abettors of wickedness and those who resisted it were very near to each other. They found that men of means combined to carry out their plans and purposes. He supposed they had their rights. Men with no means combind to carry out their purposes. He wanted them to apply the golden rule of the text in all cases. He noticed in the paper he had referred to this statement, that all the commercial questions or difficulties amongst the nations of the earth are to be settled by the principles enunciated in the sermon on the Mount. He was willing to accept this. There were no questions in society that this law would not regulate, but could they bring themselves to accept it. Just as soon as those who labor and those who employ were brought under the influence of this rule, just so soon would they meet with the peace which they had been seeking for centuries. He advised them to watch their opportunities, not to take undue advantages and guard against the attacks of evil. They had also to watch against the power of their adversaries. God knew the plotting, seductive power of evil in every form and of every kind.

There was a call to manliness "stand fast in the faith" "whatsoever things are true," whether in the affairs of buying or selling, or in agriculture, or in social relations—the basis on which they might expect God to unite with them—"whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report" in these to have faith. Stand fast in the belief of true things. Truth has always stood and always would stand in its own might and strength. He said to them, men of toil, men of anxiety, "Be strong, quit you like men, stand fast in the faith." Believe in these true things, and in the efforts they were employing to redress their wrongs and assert their rights, be sure they had truth on their side. Let the principles that they advocated be true; see that they bear investigation; then assert their rights; God gave them the privelige to do it. He commanded them to do it. But, let them remember that if God had given them their rights they should have been cut down as cumberers of the ground. There were some men who talked about rights who if they had their due would be incarcerated in the penetentiary.

He would urge them to be strong in the convictions they held. Let these convictions be the result of careful, honest and patient investigation. In the conflicts that might take place between them and their fellowmen be sure of their facts. Let their convictions be such that they would not shrink from examination; let them be right and then be strong in holding them. He had no objection to the assertion of their rights; he had no objection to the adjustment of their difficulties, but they should be sure in contending against the evils they did not plunge themselves into greater ones, "Quit you like men." He appealed to them to be strong in their loyalty to Christ. A man who is true to Christ could never be untrue to himself. There are questions higher than those of capital and labor. He besought the men engaged in this question not to look in a too circumscribed limit. There were questions which would not be settled until they reached eternity. The great question was whether their character was such as to meet the approval of a Divine Redeemer, and he was sure when they came to that point that the difficulties would be settled. They would find changes. What was a correct theory to-day would not be regarded as correct to-morrow. He looked upon this as an indication of progress. We knew more to-day than we did yesterday. But when he asked them to be true to Christ he asked them to be true to that which never changed. He resented the jest of the paper to which he had before referred that Christ was the tramp of the Apocalypse. Christ was born of industry.

They were urged to be men of mind—"be strong"—of mature mind, not thinking as a child. How would that apply to the condition of things in Europe? He would ask them why was it that the elements of discord in that unhappy country were settled by dynamite and similar means. Because they have not the principles of this golden rule. Why was it that difficulties of the same character in this land did not produce the same results? Because here the principles of the sermon on the Mount were more extensively applied and understood. He mentioned that the labour men sometimes attacked the pulpit for not preaching Christ, but if it were not for the influence of the pulpit the press, another mighty power for good or evil, would not possess the high moral tone it did. [Applying the principles of this sermon to the largest city in the world he instanced a number of cases in which women, after toiling hard all day until long into the night received a beggarly pittance for their labors. Speaking of famine in his native land by which 500,000 died he referred to the monopoly of the liquor traffic whose granaries would have fed the whole country. He did not know of cases of injustice here although he might speak of some in the Province if he were provoked to it.

In concluding he said they had a perfect right to combine. The same right was preserved to capitalists. But he reminded them of their duty as servants to work faithfully.

The musical portion of the service was well rendered.

SERMON TO ENGLISHMEN.

Last evening the members of St. George's Society assembled in their rooms, Upper Wyndham street, and marched, over seventy strong, two deep, to the Dublin Street Methodist Church, where a sermon was preached to them by one of the chaplains, Rev. Wm. Savage, pastor of the Paisley Street Methodist Church. As the sons of St. George passed along the street they were witnessed by a large number of people, who gave expression to the respectable turn out both as regarded appearance and numbers. On entering the church they formed into single file, one half proceeding up one aisle and one half the other, and took their seats in the front centre pews, which had been reserved for them. As the members of the Society came in the choir sang "God Save the Queen," which was sung with spirit. The Rev. W. F. Clarke, one of the chaplains, offered up an earnest prayer after which the Rev. Mr. Savage read the 133rd Psalm, from which he afterwards took his text and preached a most acceptable sermon in a plain, earnest and convincing manner. The words were:—"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard; that went down to the skirts of his garments; as the dew of Hermon and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion—for there the Lord commanded the blessing, even life for evermore." After a few introductory remarks the preacher said that there was a significance in the first word of the text "behold," which struck one with attention to the grand and glorious truth which was to follow. This word was often used in the Scriptures when anything of importance was to be conveyed. He then called attention to the passage in general which he characterized as one of the most beautiful views of unity in the Scriptures, abounding in the most beautiful imagry and presented in the plainest language. The speaker then explained about the universal brotherhood of mankind, the national brotherhood, and the settled and distinct brotherhood of societies of men for various kinds of good. Speaking more immediately of St. George's Society he mentioned that its object was two fold—loyalty to the dear old land that gave them birth; and charity—assisting Englishmen who in God's Providence had come to this country as strangers and required the sympathy and assistance of fellow countrymen here. In reference to the loyalty of Englishmen he laid before them and commented on the plaint of the Jews while in captivity:—"If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget its cunning. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy." A curious fact was that during the time that King David was building the temple at Jerusalem and engaged in wars, Ebrancus, was founding York, the old capital of England. One of the great objects of the Society should be to write indelibly on their minds the memory of the dear old land from which they came. Another object was to maintain their position as a St. George's Society, so that they might be able to assist the stranger who came to our land freighted down with his burdens, and open to him the arms of love and affection, making him feel that he was at home in a strange land, and thus fulfilling one of the cardinal principles of the Society. Mr. Savage then explained at length the great difference between the words unity and uniformity. This was illustrated in chaste language and beautiful similies from nature, architecture, agricultural, science, the family circle and the Church of God, etc. Another instance was given in the British Empire, and the difference shown between the Asiatics, the Australians, Canadians, and the mother land, yet there was a bond of union existing between these which kept the nations of the earth quiet. The Godly grace of unity was presented as one of the most important graces. Another line of thought drawn from the text was the combination of utility and pleasantness. He then spoke of the beautiful metaphor of the ointment that ran down Aaron's beard even to the skirts of his garment, as being worthy of consideration, and as he had not time to speak of it at length he would refer his hearers to the 30th chapter of Exodus, from the 19th to the 30th verse. Referring to the dew of Hermon, it was a beautiful metaphor and could be applied to the way in which the Society did their work—noiselessly, silently, gently and without any outward or ostentatious display. He was struck with the Christmas donations they had given to the poor, which was a manifestation of the charity of the Society. The charity of every member should be copious as the dew of Hermon, and every member should give to the objects of the society cheerfully and as God had prospered them. The sure word of God was given for this as was found in the benedic-

Local News

CITY Council to-night.

A GENERAL spring shower fell this afternoon.

THIS is Primrose Day, being the fifth anniversary of the death of Lord Beaconsfield.

LAST week Mr. James Gray, Rockwood, lost a valuable bull, five months old. The animal was valued at $300.

SAM BITTLE the pugilist was in town yesterday from Galt. He is going into training under instructions of Fitzjames

ON Monday forenoon last the stone foundation of Cowan & Co.'s moulding shop, Galt, gave way and fell into the river, Fortunately there was no other damage done.

YESTERDAY appeared more like a day in the middle of June than the middle of April. The heat after the recent cold weather was keenly felt. To-day is equally fine, and the indications go to show an early spring.

FALL WHEAT.—A farmer who has been travelling extensively through the country during the past week states that he never saw the fall wheat look so well before, and it is growing rapidly and presents a fine healthy appearance.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—The Rink was well filled Saturday night by a large and admiring audience to see the artistic and well executed acts of the Downie Bros. They appeared in several different acts and change of costume from Friday night's programme and highly delighted those present by the many difficult acrobatic and gymnastic feats in which they excel.

DOES HE BELONG TO GUELPH.—The Goderich Star says:—We had a death here the week before last of a stranger by the name of John Johnston. No person seems to know anything of the poor fellow. It is supposed he hailed from Stratford or Guelph. This man was a Lowland Scotchman of between 40 and 50 years of age, light complexion, about 5 feet 9 or 10, and very fond of singing the songs of Scotland, particularly those of Burns.

BASE BALL NOTES.—Sonny Purvis has signed to catch for the Maple Leafs, Sonny is a good one if he only tackles his work with a proper spirit. This makes three catchers signed with Mr. Sleeman. The suit, Sleeman vs. Hamilton and Toronto B. B. Clubs, has been postponed for a few days to allow the defendants to prepare their defence. The players signed by the Maple Leafs will report here on the 1st of May. It is likely another pitcher will be secured. As Mr. Sleeman has exercised great care in the selection of his team, the base ball public may expect first class exhibitions.

ROYAL ARCANUM.—The Grand Council of Ontario meets, for the first time since its organization, on the 19th of May next in the city of Toronto. It is expected that there will be a large and influential gathering of delegates from councils in the Province. On April 10th, as near as can be estimated by the records in the office of the Supreme Secretary, there were 63,754 members of the Order in good standing. This does not include members initiated whose applications are in the hands of secretaries, or on their way to headquarters, of which there may be safely understood to be about 150. There are now 958 councils. During March fifty-one beneficiaries were paid, amounting to $150,000.

MUSIC SWEET.—On Saturday night the air was again filled with music. Mr. E. R. Bollert had the City Band stationed on the roof of his store playing music for his millinery opening, and Messrs. J. D. Williamson & Co. secured the services of the Bell Band, and had it stationed on the street for the same purpose. The crowd on the street was very large. While both bands were playing for all they were worth, quite a diverson arose. James Gay received permission from Mr. P. Anderson, of the Marvellous Tea store, to stand on several bags of salt on the sidewalk opposite the store and discourse music from his flute. The result was that the crowd assembled round James Gay, and after he had finished his first piece he was greeted with rousing cheers from the hundreds present. The police thought that Mr. Gay had no business to occupy such an elevated position, but the crowd maintained that he had as good a right to do so as the band. He was afterwards placed into Anderson's delivery waggon in front of the store, where he was allowed to play to his heart's content, much to the amusement of the large number of onlookers. Another thing which may be mentioned in connection with Saturday night's performance was that W. D. Shattuck, of the Western Hotel, with some friends, took it into their heads to add to the general display by driving a carriage with four white horses around the principal streets.

COMPLIMENTARY SUPPER.—The Listowel Banner says:—"On Wednesday evening, a number of the intimate friends and acquaintances of Mr. John McKenzie, who leaves for Guelph this week to take charge of a large tailoring department in that city, met at the "Royal" to say a friendly good-bye. After supper the Mayor, Mr. Hess, was called to the chair, and Mr. W. Forbes to the vice-chair, and after the customary loyal toasts had been disposed of, the health of Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie was proposed. All present expressed regret at Mr. McKenzie leaving the town, and while wishing him all prosperity in the Royal City hoped he would yet be able to return to Listowel amongst his old friends." Mr. McKenzie is now in charge of the tailoring department of the Lion.

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE.—At the Gospel temperance meeting in Paisley street church on Sunday afternoon Mr. E. H. Maddock, in speaking of the present state of the temperance question in the country said, we must not be discouraged, as our cause is founded on right and must prevail. God is with us as He was with Elijah when persecuted by Ahab. The liquor traffic costs Anglo-Saxon countries alone about two billions per annum, enough to build twenty Pacific railroads; and in Anglo-Saxon countries alcohol is the cause of 250,000 persons' death each year, or 685 deaths per day. We fight alcohol whether found in beer, wine, whiskey, brandy, gin or rum. When our cause becomes popular many are willing to join us without counting the cost, who become discouraged when they find there is hard work to be done, but true men will be nerved to greater action by opposition.

Continued Fair and Warm.

Light to moderate winds; continued fair, warm weather.

AMATEUR gardeners have commenced spring operations.

Two disorderly cases were dismissed at the police court this morning.

THERE will be an "At Home" in Knox Church to-morrow night. See advt.

MR. CHAS. DAVIDSON has a beautiful bed of flowers in bloom in his garden, which is the admiration of all passers by.

THE Maple Leafs had better look out for their laurels this year. An enthusiast of the game was seen training a club of young aspirants for the base ball field on the other side of the Eramosa bridge the other day.

BULL PURCHASED.—Durham Review: "M. C. C. McFayden returned this week, with a fine young bull, which he purchased from Mr. George Fyfe, of Paisley Block, near Guelph. The animal was calved in 1885 and now weighs 1,320 lbs. It is of a fine dark red color and was the admiration of all who saw it. It is named the "Oxford Lad" and bears a full pedigree. Mr. McFayden deserves to do well as this is probably the finest animal ever brought into this section." This is certainly a flattering tribute to the stock raised by Mr. Fyfe.

TENDERS AWARDED.—On Saturday afternoon the School Trustees of School Section No. 2, Puslinch, were at the Western Hotel for the purpose of awarding tenders for the erection of a new school house in that section at a cost of some $1,700. The size will be 48 by 28 feet, brick, with stone foundation, and fitted up with the latest improvements. Messrs. Foster & Benallick secured the tenders for the mason and brick work, and J. Mahoney for the carpeentr, joiner and plastering work.

NEARLY A RUNAWAY.—On Saturday afternoon a farmer by the name of John Shute, Guelph Township, drove from the stables of the Albion Hotel. He commenced to whip the horses, after leaving the yard, and by some means the tongue of the waggon slipped from its fastening and fell to the ground, the result being that the pole, swinging from side to side and striking the horses, caused them to become frightened and uncontrollable. Mr. E. McKenna, hostler at the Commercial Hotel, attempted to draw a buggy belonging to that stable out of the way, and while so engaged the horses ran against it, the tongue striking the wheel, upsetting the buggy and knocking the top off, McKenna being thrown over in the general smash up, and receiving several bruises of a slight nature. Had the horses not been stopped as they were, and had they secured a free track, the consequences might have been serious to the driver and the young girl who accompanied him. The only damage done was to the buggy, and that was trifling.

That Puzzle.

To the Editor of the MERCURY.

SIR,—I beg a short space in the columns of your paper to answer that puzzle given by your Elora correspondent for the ladies.

1 3 5 7 9

A Young Faster.

LACROSSE, Wis., April 17.—Anna Belle Langan, the 9 year old girl who has been fasting for forty-seven days, is still strong and lively. She still has an abhorrence of food, and positively refuses a mouthful. She even refuses to take the juice of oranges. She looks comparatively well and weighs 65 pounds. The doctor in attendance hopes to bring her out all right. Hundreds of people visit the little faster, and some refuse to believe that she has gone without food so long a time.

Suicide at Ninety.

ARKONA, Ont., April 17.—Mrs. George Stewart, of this place, an old lady over 90 years of age, was discovered in a dying condition yesterday morning, having cut her throat with a razor. She lingered for twenty-four hours, and was insensible most of the time. No definite reason is assigned for the act.

SPECIAL SERVICES.

Sermons to St. George's Society and the Knights of Labour.

CAPITAL AND LABOUR.

The announcement that Rev. W. J. Holmes would preach a sermon having reference to capital and labor drew out a large congregation at the Norfolk street Metodist Church last night. The rev. gentlemen premised his discourse with an explanation. He objected to the caption of his subject. He did not believe that rights and wrongs always belonged to the Gospel or to Gospel preaching, and had no sympathy with inflammatory speeches made on Sunday, but where these rights and wrongs affected the moral character in the relationship in which we stood to one another they were a fit subject for instruction, reproof or admonition from the pulpit or anywhere else. He had been asked to preach a sermon to the working men and he would address to them, whether they worked with their hands or brains, a few words that would be in keeping with the order of the services.

His remarks were based on Matthew VII. and 12th: "Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you do ye even so to them, for this is the Law and the Prophets." They would find this not only in the Bible but the Pallaäium and everywhere where the question of rights and wrongs were being discussed to-day. In I Corinthians 13th and 14th these words occur: "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong." "Let all your things be done with charity." He coupled these passages for the reason that we had here presented to us the most perfect of all laws, the only law, and they presented to us the practical sequences of that law. He would venture to add that there is only one law—only one law-giver; therefore, there is only one law. That law touched every point of human society and came to every man no matter what his position.

The history of the world had been one of conflicts—the strong against the weak, the wise against the unwise, the knowing against the ignorant. On this principle worlds had been conquered, and wars had been waged all over. The cry during the Soudan campaign and during our own rebellion in the Northwest was "more men," But he reminded them that there was a greater conflict than these, because it reached farther, its results were more important because they were eternal, a conflict that was raging between God and man and the great adversary, as to who would be the governor and ruler. In this conflict it was not more men but more man that was wanted. God had placed before men a law, a model of true manhood, and he wanted them to come up that standard.

In the first passage there was a golden rule for guidance, and in the others calls, first, to vigilance. Keep your eyes open. It was necessary for us to understand the mode of attack. It was one of the stratagems of the adversary to observe secrecy; he came stealthily and slyly; therefore it was safe to be vigilant. Then he was always in close proximity. The abettors of wickedness and those who resisted it were very near to each other. They found that men of means combined to carry out their plans and purposes. He supposed they had their rights. Men with no means combind to carry out their purposes. He wanted them to apply the golden rule of the text in all cases. He noticed in the paper he had referred to this statement, that all the commercial questions or difficulties amongst the nations of the earth are to be settled by the principles enunciated in the sermon on the Mount. He was willing to accept this. There were no questions in society that this law would not regulate, but could they bring themselves to accept it. Just as soon as those who labor and those who employ were brought under the influence of this rule, just so soon would they meet with the peace which they had been seeking for centuries. He advised them to watch their opportunities, not to take undue advantages and guard against the attacks of evil. They had also to watch against the power of their adversaries. God knew the plotting, seductive power of evil in every form and of every kind.

There was a call to manliness "stand fast in the faith" "whatsoever things are true," whether in the affairs of buying or selling, or in agriculture, or in social relations—the basis on which they might expect God to unite with them—"whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report" in these to have faith. Stand fast in the belief of true things. Truth has always stood and always would stand in its own might and strength. He said to them, men of toil, men of anxiety, "Be strong, quit you like men, stand fast in the faith." Believe in these true things, and in the efforts they were employing to redress their wrongs and assert their rights, be sure they had truth on their side. Let the principles that they advocated be true; see that they bear investigation; then assert their rights; God gave them the privelige to do it. He commanded them to do it. But, let them remember that if God had given them their rights they should have been cut down as cumberers of the ground. There were some men who talked about rights who if they had their due would be incarcerated in the penetentiary.

He would urge them to be strong in the convictions they held. Let these convictions be the result of careful, honest and patient investigation. In the conflicts that might take place between them and their fellowmen be sure of their facts. Let their convictions be such that they would not shrink from examination; let them be right and then be strong in holding them. He had no objection to the assertion of their rights; he had no objection to the adjustment of their difficulties, but they should be sure in contending against the evils they did not plunge themselves into greater ones, "Quit you like men." He appealed to them to be strong in their loyalty to Christ. A man who is true to Christ could never be untrue to himself. There are questions higher than those of capital and labor. He besought the men engaged in this question not to look in a too circumscribed limit. There were questions which would not be settled until they reached eternity. The great question was whether their character was such as to meet the approval of a Divine Redeemer, and he was sure when they came to that point that the difficulties would be settled. They would find changes. What was a correct theory to-day would not be regarded as correct to-morrow. He looked upon this as an indication of progress. We knew more to-day than we did yesterday. But when he asked them to be true to Christ he asked them to be true to that which never changed. He resented the jest of the paper to which he had before referred that Christ was the tramp of the Apocalypse. Christ was born of industry.

They were urged to be men of mind—"be strong"—of mature mind, not thinking as a child. How would that apply to the condition of things in Europe? He would ask them why was it that the elements of discord in that unhappy country were settled by dynamite and similar means. Because they have not the principles of this golden rule. Why was it that difficulties of the same character in this land did not produce the same results? Because here the principles of the sermon on the Mount were more extensively applied and understood. He mentioned that the labour men sometimes attacked the pulpit for not preaching Christ, but if it were not for the influence of the pulpit the press, another mighty power for good or evil, would not possess the high moral tone it did. Applying the principles of this sermon to the largest city in the world he instanced a number of cases in which women, after toiling hard all day until long into the night received a beggarly pittance for their labors. Speaking of famine in his native land by which 500,000 died he referred to the monopoly of the liquor traffic whose granaries would have fed the whole country. He did not know of cases of injustice here although he might speak of some in the Province if he were provoked to it.

In concluding he said they had a perfect right to combine. The same right was preserved to capitalists. But he reminded them of their duty as servants to work faithfully.

The musical portion of the service was well rendered.

SERMON TO ENGLISHMEN.

Last evening the members of St. George's Society assembled in their rooms, Upper Wyndham street, and marched, over seventy strong, two deep, to the Dublin Street Methodist Church, where a sermon was preached to them by one of the chaplains, Rev. Wm. Savage, pastor of the Paisley Street Methodist Church. As the sons of St. George passed along the street they were witnessed by a large number of people, who gave expression to the respectable turn out both as regarded appearance and numbers. On entering the church they formed into single file, one half proceeding up one aisle and one half the other, and took their seats in the front centre pews, which had been reserved for them. As the members of the Society came in the choir sang "God Save the Queen," which was sung with spirit. The Rev. W. F. Clarke, one of the chaplains, offered up an earnest prayer after which the Rev. Mr. Savage read the 133rd Psalm, from which he afterwards took his text and preached a most acceptable sermon in a plain, earnest and convincing manner. The words were:—"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity! It is like the precious ointment upon the head, that ran down upon the beard, even Aaron's beard; that went down to the skirts of his garments; as the dew of Hermon and as the dew that descended upon the mountains of Zion—for there the Lord commanded the blessing, even life for evermore." After a few introductory remarks the preacher said that there was a significance in the first word of the text "behold," which struck one with attention to the grand and glorious truth which was to follow. This word was often used in the Scriptures when anything of importance was to be conveyed. He then called attention to the passage in general which he characterized as one of the most beautiful views of unity in the Scriptures, abounding in the most beautiful imagry and presented in the plainest language. The speaker then explained about the universal brotherhood of mankind, the national brotherhood, and the settled and distinct brotherhood of societies of men for various kinds of good. Speaking more immediately of St. George's Society he mentioned that its object was two fold—loyalty to the dear old land that gave them birth; and charity—assisting Englishmen who in God's Providence had come to this country as strangers and required the sympathy and assistance of fellow countrymen here. In reference to the loyalty of Englishmen he laid before them and commented on the plaint of the Jews while in captivity:—"If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget its cunning. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy." A curious fact was that during the time that King David was building the temple at Jerusalem and engaged in wars, Ebrancus, was founding York, the old capital of England. One of the great objects of the Society should be to write indelibly on their minds the memory of the dear old land from which they came. Another object was to maintain their position as a St. George's Society, so that they might be able to assist the stranger who came to our land freighted down with his burdens, and open to him the arms of love and affection, making him feel that he was at home in a strange land, and thus fulfilling one of the cardinal principles of the Society. Mr. Savage then explained at length the great difference between the words unity and uniformity. This was illustrated in chaste language and beautiful similies from nature, architecture, agricultural, science, the family circle and the Church of God, etc. Another instance was given in the British Empire, and the difference shown between the Asiatics, the Australians, Canadians, and the mother land, yet there was a bond of union existing between these which kept the nations of the earth quiet. The Godly grace of unity was presented as one of the most important graces. Another line of thought drawn from the text was the combination of utility and pleasantness. He then spoke of the beautiful metaphor of the ointment that ran down Aaron's beard even to the skirts of his garment, as being worthy of consideration, and as he had not time to speak of it at length he would refer his hearers to the 30th chapter of Exodus, from the 19th to the 30th verse. Referring to the dew of Hermon, it was a beautiful metaphor and could be applied to the way in which the Society did their work—noiselessly, silently, gently and without any outward or ostentatious display. He was struck with the Christmas donations they had given to the poor, which was a manifestation of the charity of the Society. The charity of every member should be copious as the dew of Hermon, and every member should give to the objects of the society cheerfully and as God had prospered them. The sure word of God was given for this as was found in the benediction at the end of the chapter. He had not time to dilate on the history of their country. Her record was patent to all the world, and her balance of power kept nations in order and gave liberty to other nations. She was the headland front of civilization and other nations beheld her laws and are copying them. He spoke briefly of the brotherly unity existing between the St. George's, St. Patricks and St. Andrew's Societies, which was pleasing to witness. He trusted that St. George's Society would remain the embodiment of liberality, loyalty and generosity, and maintain the truth and an open Bible, rights which their forefathers had bled and died for. If there was a man who was to be despised and looked upon it was the man who forgot or was indifferent to the land that gave him birth.

The sermon was attentively listened to. At its conclusion Rev. Dr. Griffin made a few remarks expressive of the pleasure that it gave him to see a body of men belonging to a society of this kind worshipping in his church. Appropriate hymns were sung during the service and several anthems by the choir, which were very well rendered.

PALM SUNDAY.

In Our Lady's Church yesterday morning Rev. Father Plant read the "Passion," and Rev. Father Doherty celebrated mass and preached. There was a very large congregation. During the service palms were distributed by the altar boys to those present.

Special services were also held in St. George's Church.

The Evening Mercury

MONDAY EVE'G APRIL 19, 1886.

Oleomargarine.

Most of our readers know that the word which stands at the head of this paragraph is that applied to an article now extensively used for butter, especially among our neighbors across the line. It has been brought more prominently under public notice by the action of our Government in reference to its manufacture. Tuesday last week the Minister of Inland Revenue, among other proposed amendments to the Inland Revenue Act, gave notice of the following;—"That no oleomargarine or other substitute for butter shall be manufactured except by persons duly licensed, and that the Governor-in-Council may make regulations respecting such manufacture and supervision thereof." The Government did well to take the manufacture of this substance under its control, and provide such safeguards as shall protect not only the dairy interest in the country, but also the interests and health of the people. The manufacture of artificial butter in the United States has grown to immense proportions. In Chicago alone from May 1884 to May 1885 the quantity of this stuff made amounted to twenty million pounds. The Americans are taking steps to pass stringent laws to protect their dairy interest. In Canada a customs duty of ten cents and an excise duty of eight cents per pound was formerly imposed on all substitutes for butter. Now it has been prohibited, thanks to the action of Mr. Paterson who moved an amendment to effect this result, on Thursday, when the Minister of Inland Revenue, brought up his resolutions. In addition to this it is now proposed to give the Government power to control and regulate its manufacture. This is rendered all the more necessary from the fact that the stuff is often made from very questionable material. If it was made from pure lard, or tallow, or suet there could be no objection to it so long as it was sold under its proper name. But the reports that come to us from the States about the material from which it is often made are enough to deter any one from using or allowing it to be used. It is said that often the carcases of horses, cattle, pigs and other animals, which had died from disease or otherwise, were utilized in the manufacture of the vile compound. It is all the more necessary, therefore, for the Government to exercise a strict supervision over its manufacture in Canada, especially as a company, composed largely of Americans, with a capital of half a million dollars, propose to start a manufactory in Montreal for making oleomargarine or butterine. It should also be distinctly and clearly labelled or branded under its proper name, so that the public will not be imposed upon or cheated by unscrupulous manufacturers or dealers in the business, who might seek to palm off a spurious article for genuine butter. In such case those who wish to buy it will do so knowing that it is simply a substitute and nothing else. In order to protect the public heavy penalties should also be inflicted for all who break the law in this respect.

MR. DAVID THOMPSON, M. P., who has represented Haldimand in the Dominion Commons for the past twenty-three years, died of Bright's disease at his residence, "Ruthven Mansion" on Saturday afternoon, at the age of 50 years. The deceased came from a staunch old Liberal stock, his father having sat in the Canadian Assembly for Haldimand from 1841 till 1851. David was born in Wainfleet, Welland County, and was a thorough Canadian. He was Major of the 37th Battalion, and held many positions of influence in connection with local organizations. He was of temperate habits and favored a prohibitory liquor law. By his death the Reform party loses one who was greatly esteemed, not only on account of his unswerving loyalty to principle and his ability as a Parliamentarian, but because of his genial and upright disposition.

The Porte has notified Germany, Russia, and Austria that it is taking fresh steps to compel Greece to disarm.

Cholera in Europe.

VIENNA, April 17.—Cases of cholera are reported at Trieste. The outbreak of the disease in Italy is more serious than was at first stated. The authorities there are hiding the truth regarding the ravages of the disease. The Austrian authorities have again established a cordon on the Italian frontier, and every precaution will be taken to prevent the spread of the epidemic.

A post mortem on the bodies of the soldiers who have just died at Trieste showed that death was caused by typhus, and not by cholera as supposed.

Fighting in Prospect.

ATHENS, April 18.—The General commanding the Greek troops on Zarkos Heights, which commands the Plain of Lausss, was summoned by the Turkish General to-day to withdraw from that stronghold. The Greek General flatly refused. A Turkish force consisting of 7,000 men and several batteries thereupon advanced to the foot of the heights.

The Minister of War has withdrawn his resignation, and is about to start for the frontier. It is reported the Athens garrison will go forward immediately.

American Imitation of Butter.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—The manufacture of imitation butter began in the United States some twelve years ago. Since then, it has taken immense proportions. We hear from good authority that the yearly production amounts to nearly sixty million pounds. It is made extensively in all the larger cities of the east and west. New York has seven or eight factories. We count 23 factories in Chicago. Each of these factories are capable of turning out 50,000 lbs. daily. We even find a manufactory of this spurious compound in the old Puritan city of Salem, Mass., where they used to be so pious as to burn witches.

WHAT ENTERS INTO ITS COMPOSITION?

According to the numerous patents issued at Washington to protect the rights of the bogus butter makers, the following ingredients enter into its composition:—Caul fat, mutton suet, sour milk and cream, butter milk, peanut oil, almond oil, Sesamme oil, benne oil, mustard oil, oil of sunflower seed, lard treated to nitric acid, carbolic acid, boracic acid, sugar, milk sugar, bicarbonate of soda, saleratus, salt, pepsin from cows udders, salt petre, borac, butyric ether, stomachs of pigs and sheep, flour, slippery elm bark, glucose, gelatine, vaseline and natural butter.

Imitation butter is designated under the following names: Oleomargarine, swine butterine, etc.

Oleomargarine properly speaking is a mixture of oil extracted from the caul fat of oxen, vegetable oils, and lactid acid. The whole is churned in sour milk or cream.

Swine would be better called swine butter. The name only would make a hog laugh. It generally consists of 60 per cent. of lard rendered at a low temperature and 40 per cent. of genuine butter.

As regards butterine, nobody knows exactly what it is made out of. It is fat of swine rind mixed with a portion of butter.

IS IT A HEALTHFUL ARTICLE?

The advocates of imitation butter claim that it is a healthful article, that only the purest fat and oils are used in its manufacture. They come forward with affidavits establishing the purity of the samples examined by scientists and experts. Everyone knows how easy such affidavits are obtained. A fine article of butterine is made expressly for this purpose, and the scientist is hired out at a liberal fee to analyze it and report his conclusions. The scientist is honest enough but is nevertheless a complacent tool in the hands of a set of sharpers. What the consumers want to know is not how pure the article can be made, but how it is made, and if they can rely on the purity and healthfulness of the product, as set before them in the store, restaurant, boarding house, or hotel.

Samples of imitation butter have been purchased from stores at different times, and in different localities. These samples have been examined microscopically and chemically. Here follows the result of some of the investigations.

From the American Journal of Microscopy, evidence of Prof. Michels, microscopist; "My examination of imitation butter extended over some months during which period I invariably found that each sample contained cells of suspicious nature and character, with fragments of tissues and muscles." Others amongst them, Mr Taylor, of New York, have positively identified germs of disease in that substance."

"There can be no doubt that fat and grease of every description crowded to make imitation butter, because all the caul fat of oxen brought to New York city in a week would not be sufficient for one manufactory for four days, and there are 9 butterine factories in New York."

Besides to use of the oil from the pure caul fat would be too costly. It would leave no profit to the manufacturer, who disposes of his goods at a price varying from 8 to 12 cts per lb.

Mr Michels continues; "In investigating the method of manufacture, I then found that during the whole process from first to last that the animal fat, etc., is never subjected to a higher temperature than 120° Fahrt."

"If we take into consideration the fact that butterine is made from the fat of animals, stomachs of pigs and sheep, 120° Fahrt, is totally insufficient to kill the embryos of parasites, or destroy germs of disease, which exist in a very large proportion of domestic animals used for food."

"For the reasons above mentioned, I conclude that imitation butter thus manufactured is not a safe, a wholesome article of food, and I assert that however disguised it may be in appearance imitation butter as offered for sale is nothing but raw fat liquified, deodorised, scented, colored and flavored to give it a spurious appearance of butter, and that those who use it run the risk of trichinæ, from the stomachs of pigs chopped with the fat, and that infection from contagious diseases which are common to domestic animals might follow.

SOME PROOFS OF GUILT.

From American Dairyman, April 8, 1886.—Prof. Naehrieb, of the Minnesota University, has been analyzing some butterine. The best samples he says had many living organisms, and spores in them, with many dead mold bits of cellulose wood, various colored particles, shreds of hair, bristles etc, while other samples teemed with life. Doubtful portions of worms were also noticed. The great variety and number of organism found in the samples indicated the use of foul water, and a criminally filthy process in making."

He states that persons who eat so promiscuous and so lively a mixture as the butterine examined are running great risks morally as well as physically. "This is the evidence of filth in making butterine that is coming to the surface even now, when butterine manufacturers should be on their guard and good behaviour, while active war is being raged against them. What may be expected should the war abate, and these people be left to their own sweet will in making this counterfeit compound? Any one who has doubts about the propriety of interfering with the manufacture and sale of butterine should carefully reflect upon the result of these scientific tests and then reason in his mind what will probably be done by these manufacturers if the attention of the public is withdrawn from their work. Think of the temptation they will be subjected to? For instance A renders the body of dead animals from a large city, including cats, dogs, horses, etc., a perfectly legitimate industry, for he sells the grease to a wholesale dealer, who may make it, or a part of it into lubricating oil, or axle grease. But B comes along and examines some of the barrels of grease and says he will try some of it in his oleomargarine or butterine factory, not knowing nor caring where the oil or grease came from. He finds it a success in deceiving the public, the stuff is cheap, it leaves large profits, and soon he buys directly from the horse rendering establishment. How could this be prevented," etc., etc.

A French medical commission has condemned margarine. Its use is forbidden in all the Parisian Hospitals. This is more than sufficient to prove that imitation butter such as is generally offered for sale, is far from being a pure, healthy article of food, and that no reliability can be placed on the purity of such compounds.

HOW THE PUBLIC IS DEFRAUDED BY IT.

Imitation butter is not always sold for what it is, under its own name and merits. Who would buy it knowing exactly its nature and extraction? This doctored grease is offered to the public under the fancy names of Alderny, Woodland, Wanwatosa dairy, silver spring creamery, etc. Most of it is sold for and instead of genuine butter, at the price which medium grades of butter generally bring, and the unscrupulous grocers practice this fraud upon the laboring classes, the poorer customers, from which he has less to fear in the case of detection.

HOW IT WOULD AFFECT THE DAIRY INTEREST OF CANADA.

(1) It will take the place of a large quantity of genuine butter, reduce the demand for this article and materially injure the farming community. (2) It will throw suspicions or distrust on Canadian butter, and injure its reputation in foreign markets.

WHAT LEGISLATION CAN DO AND SHOULD DO.

Six years experiences in the United States proves that any attempt to protect by law the consumer against this fraud must fail, and that as long as it is allowed to be made it will be sold for and instead of butter. The manufacturer might be forced to brand it, he may sell it for what it is, but the retailer buys it, he destroys the envelope and the brand, and there the product stands requiring an expert to detect it from the genuine.

A great crusade against imitation butter began in the United States in 1879. Since then bills after bills were passed in the State Legislatures to regulate its sale, hundreds of thousands of dollars have been spent to enforce the laws; yet in spite of all these efforts to abate this nuisance there is now more butterine sold instead of butter than there was in 1879.

Nothing short of prohibition of its manufacture, or legislation equal to it, will in my opinion remedy this evil. Some States have already adopted this last alternative. We hear that the dairy interest of Canada is now threatened by this monstrous imposition, and that an American company proposes to manufacture imitation butter on a large scale in the city of Montreal.

This most important question of butter substitutes was lately brought up by Mr. George Taylor M. P. for Leeds, in the House of Commons, where it created a most interesting discussion, and where it will no doubt receive all the attention it deserves. Let us hope that the proposed legislation to regulate the manufacture and sale of imitation butter in Canada will be of such a nature as to spoil its prospects for ever.

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show room of Messrs. Clark & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes, fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

CHAPTER XXIV.

A VISIT TO BRANTWOOD.

Percival's comparison between Helen and Alice, made when he first saw the latter, was in Helen at least holding good. Sorrow and trouble, instead of robbing her of her beauty, seemed to add to it, by refining and spiritualising her face. They saw with a shock that she seemed to be wasting away. Except when excitement sent a feverish colour into her cheeks they were very white. Her eyes were almost unnaturally large and bright, and the look in them combined with the feld between her eyebrows proclaimed the possibility of what she had just said being fulfilled. Her wasting figure and colourless cheeks pointed to death as the probable result of the loss of her husband's love; but her eyes and even the attitude in which she stood sent a chill to the hearts of the clergyman and his wife, with the thought that the agony of it might turn her brain.

Mr. Longworthy crossed the room and took both her hands in his, leading her back to the fire. His firm, strong clasp seemed to reassure her; she drew one hand away and passed it over her eyes, then she looked up at him with a very poor attempt at a smile, saying—

"You will think I am mad already."

"I think you are in a very, very difficult and anxious position, and that you are bearing it very bravely."

He looked into her eyes as he spoke, with his strong courage-giving smile, and Helen answered by saying—

"You help me so when you talk like that."

"But, now," he said, at last, "painful though it is, we must go back to where we left off; and first, I will remind you of one thing—Remember that when you imagine your husband to have forgotten you, you are probably doing him a great wrong."

"I know; when I am myself I know he will never change. But sometimes when I am alone, if I lie awake at night, or in wet weather, I forget that. I only remember that Alice is very beautiful, and that sooner or later every man falls in love with her. Then everything seems possible."

"In that case you must not be alone. Mabel should ——"

"It is not Mrs. Longworthy's fault," said Helen impulsively, laying her hand on that lady's aam. "She does not know; when I feel like that I often leave her. Sometimes I feel as if I liked to think those thoughts," she finished hesitatingly.

"I know; you are not altogether strong yet. I am going to ask you to promise me something."

"Whatever you like."

"Promise me that whenever you feel like that you will not be alone. If you happen to be, go and talk to somebody, if it be only the gardener or Fanny. If I am at home, come to me. Never mind what I am doing, even if I am thinking out my sermon; sermons must yield to human necessities and make me talk to you. Any rubbish will do; but these are not healthy thoughts, and if you persist in them you may permanently prevent yourself from judging fairly."

"I do try to throw them off when I can."

"I know you do," laying his hand upon her shoulder. "It is a horrid devil. I have had to fight it myself, but with a little help you have strength to overcome it."

It was arranged that Mr. Longworthy should go to Osmotherley on the following day and try to gain some information regarding the feeling which supposed to exist between Mr. and Mrs. Moore.

"You may possibly see Percival," said Helen, and she proceeded to describe him, so that if the clergyman chanced to meet her husband he should know him at once.

The following day Mr. Longworthy went to Osmotherley. He had not told Helen, but he had made up his mind to see her husband somewhere or somehow, and he was chiefly occupied in thinking what he should say to him. In a third class carriage on that busy line he was not likely to be alone, but he was deaf to the buzz of conversation going on around him. He had secured a seat by the window, and looked out from time to time, mechanically noting the things past which the train rushed.

By and by he began to notice the country more closely. Helen had so often described it, and the beauties of the bay studded with little islands. For some little distance before reaching Osmotherley the line ran parallel with the bay, and he presently found himself recognising things he heard described. There, on the inland side of the line, on a hill was the ruined tower, about which it was doubtful whether it had belonged to a church or not; further on, was the long, bare Fell, which looked bleak and desolate under the wintry sky. On the other side was the bay; the tide was out, and the winter sunshine gilded the wide level sands; in front was the largest of the islands, the one upon which Helen had been wrecked; across the same treacherous, uncertain sands which now looked firm and dry she had picked her way to her destiny. He smiled and sighed as he looked at all these things, and wondered what news he would take back to Helen in the afternoon.

The Success of the Millinery Opening

AT

RYAN, BERKINSHAW & CO.

Friday, Friday night, Saturday and Saturday night, our Show Room looked like fairy land, as the great number of pleasant countenances posted too and iro among the large and beautiful assortment of variegated Spring Colors. We had no MUSIC to offer our many patrons but the harmony was grand.

Harmony of Colors,
Harmony of Styles,
Harmony of Shapes,
Harmony between Customers and Sales Ladies.

In fact everything passed off as pleasant and harmonious as a marriage bell.

We have a large number of Orders ahead, but having a full and efficient staff, there will be no delay with any orders we may be favored with.

THE LAND BILL.

Irish Tenants Oppose its Adoption.

DUBLIN, April 18.—At a meeting of tenant farmers at Kildpart to-day the Land Purchase Bill was denounced as simply a measure for the relief of the landlords. It was declared that if the farmers got their holding on the basis of four years' rental their position would be very little improved, as they are without the necessary capital with which to obtain a start. A resolution was passed asking the Parnellite members of Parliament to oppose the Bill.

Four hundred tenants of the Earl of Bessborough's Kilkenny estate held a meeting to-day to consider the Earl's offer of reduction of from 10 to 20 per cent. in rents. The tenants had asked for a reduction of 33 per cent. At to-day's meeting 335 of the tenants voted in favor of accepting the Earl's terms.

Lord Hartington Saturday had a conference with the Ulster leaders relative to the stand to be taken on the Irish measures. Among those present were the Duke of Argyll, George J. Goshchen, and Albert Grey.

The Edinburgh Scotsman condems Mr. Gladstone's Irish Land Purchase Bill. It pronouces the measure "a vast and dangerous transaction," and says both the Home Rule and Land Purchase Bills are doomed to failure.

Mr. Herbert Gladstone, speaking at St. Pancras Friday night, said the hope might be cherished that Mr. Chamberlain would see a way to support Mr. Gladstone, who was certain to do everything possible to meet his views.

The Liberal members of Parliament who are opposing Mr. Gladstone's Irish policy met Saturday at Devonshire House, Lord Hartington's London residence. Lord Hartington presided. The meeting adopted resolutions to oppose by all means possible the passage of the Land Bill.

Shaw Lefevre (Liberal), recently Postmaster-General, addressed a meeting at Bradford Saturday. He said Mr. Gladstone's measures were not intended to effect the separation of the Union, but, even should this be the result of the adoption of the Bills, it would be preferable to coercion.

MRS. BARTLETT ACQUITTED.

A Rev. "Gentleman" Whose Word was not Reliable.

LONDON, April 17.—The Bartlett poisoning case was given to the jury to-day. In closing the case for the Crown Attorney General Russell contended that from all the evidence that had been adduced it was clearly impossible for Mr. Bartlett to have committed suicide, as alleged by the defence, and there could be no doubt that he was killed by the prisoner, Mrs. Adelaide Bartlett, who had been maintaining relations with the Rev. Mr. Dyson, and who was inspired to remove her husband because he was regaining his health. The Judge, in summing up, told the jury that Mr. Dyson had taken advantage of the husband's maudlin nonsense to supplant him in the affections of the wife and advised that no part of the clergyman's testimony, although he had been a witness for the Crown, be accepted as reliable. The jury were out but a short time and rendered a verdict of acquittal. The verdict was applauded by the spectators. The defence presented two strong points in favor of the prisoner in proving that she had not destroyed the bottle of chloroform, and had urged a post mortem examination being made. When these facts were impressed upon the jury they were subjected to the influence of doubt, and they gave the benefit of that doubt to the prisoner as instructed by the Court.

A Hoax.

The Toronto News has now fairly won the title of being the champion liar. The five columns which it published on Saturday purporting to be Sir John Macdonald's farewell was all a hoax. It was an address delivered by George Washington to the American people 90 years ago. There can be no doubt after this that the News libelled the 65th Batt.

Big Fire at Stayner.

STAYNER, April 17.—Late last night a serious fire broke out in a building owned by J. H. McKeggie and occupied by Lindsay Bros., dry goods merchants. Lindsay Bros. lose a stock valued at $9000, on which there was an insurance of $1,000 in the Glasgow and London, and $1500 each in the Royal Canadian and Britith. Other losers are: Freemason's Lodge, furiture, regalia, etc., a total loss valued at $700; insurance $250 in the Commercial Union; C. W. Wiggins, furniture damaged; W. G. Begg, goods damaged by removal; Sun office, the same; C. J. McRae and M. C. Harkins, the same; McKeggie, $1500 on building; Andrews' Bros., $2500 on building; A. Cameron on building, $400.

THE JURY

Empanneled at the Opening of the LION have rendered their verdict. It reads thus--

We find that in the person of MISS TODD the Lion has the Dressmaker of Guelph.

That MISS MARRIOTT, the Milliner of this establishment, has shown herself to be unequalled.

That MR. McKENZIE, their new Cutter, has created the right impression and is already highly in favor with the young men of Guelph. His reputation as a first class Cutter is already established.

That they have the largest and best stock.

That they undersell all others.

And that for a genial and affable reception and courteous treatment the Lion is the place.

Local News

A MEETING of the Board of Trade will be held in the City Hall building to-night at 7.30, sharp, for the election of officers.

GUELPH JUNCTION RAILWAY BILL.—This Bill passed its third reading in the House of Commons on Monday.

MR. GEO. A. LIGHTFOOT, drover, of Greensville, shipped from here yesterday three car loads of extra choice cattle to Halifax for export, for Messrs. Small & Gray.

THE residents of Arthur and George streets would like to know how it is that stones are being broken on that street and carted away again, when the streets there are in such a bad condition.

THE barn owned by Mr. Yates, of Minto, with its contents, was destroyed early on the morning of the 19th by a fire supposed to have been started by some tramps. The horses and cattle were saved. Loss about $1,000; insured for $600.

THE school examinations for S. S. No. 2, Guelph Township, were, through an error credited to Section No. 2, Eramosa. Of course the people in Eramosa would be surprised at having so many new names in the school section and so also would those in Guelph Township. If they had been placed vice versa they would have tallied

THE third annual meeting of the Woodstock Amateur Athletic Association is to be held on the 24th and 25th of May. The programme, which has already been issued, is largely made up of bicycle riding and foot racing, the events numbering 21 in all, in each of which handsome prizes are offered. The Association under whose auspices this programme is to be carried out is one of the best of the kind in the Province.

SPEED ROLLER SKATING RINK.—To-morrow (Wednesday) night the Bell Organ Company band, who have been engaged regularly for the balance of the season, will be present. They will also play on Good Friday night. There will be a one-legged race on rollers by some of the best skaters on the same night, which will no doubt be very amusing and comical. Ladies free.

THE May Century will contain the last paper written by General McClellan for publication. It is a description of the critical time from the second battle of Bull Run to the advance from Washington toward South Mountain and Antietam. On the morning after General McClellan's sudden death the manuscript pages of this unfinished article were found on his table. General McClellan's literary executor, Mr. William C. Prime, furnishes an introduction.

EX-MONK WIDDOWS AGAIN.—Ex-Monk Widdows writes a very saucy letter to the editor of the Seaforth Expositor, from Liverpool, for daring to class him with John R. Clark, the lecturer. He says:—I have no doubt but that all you said about the "Boot Black" is the truth. But, why call me a buffoon, &c.? I beg to say I am as popular as ever—halls and churches packed. When you say I am a "buffoon" and my lectures are 'coarse," I say you are a LIAR. I hope to be in Seaforth before the year is ended, and I'll brand you as a public liar and coward."

A SUCCESSOR TO REV. E. A. IRVING.—At a special meeting of vestry of St. George's Church, held last evening, the Rev. Geo. A. Harvey was appointed curate in place of Mr. Irving, on the nomination of the Archdeacon. Mr. Harvey has been doing duty in Dundas for some months and also as locum tenens at All Saints, Hamilton, having gone there from the Cathedral. He has earned the reputation since taking orders and from long service as lay reader of being a successful organiser of Bible classes, mission work, training of children's choirs, etc. He has been highly commended by the Bishop and Rev. Dr. Mockridge as well qualified for parish work in all its varied forms. Mr. Harvey has just been offered a very desirable curacy in Bermuda, but prefers Canada.

THOSE interested in forming a lacrosse club will hold a meeting on Wednesday night for that purpose.

AFTER the first of May the Wellington, City and Royal hotels will be vacated by their present proprietors.

THE closing meetings of the Knox and Congregational church Y. P. A. will be held in their respective churches to-night.

THE sidewalk on Macdonnell street, in front of Mr. James Johnston's stable, is in a miserable state and requires looking after.

MR. DAVID CLARK, Badenoch, lost two horses last week, one of them a valuable animal, and the other a common horse purchased recently for spring work.

SEVERAL of the students of the Ontario Agricultural College had a supper at Soper's hotel last night preparatory to leaving the institution for their Easter holidays.

MR. MURDOCH MCKENZIE, formerly of Guelph, and now of Sarnia, arrived in Guelph yesterday afternoon with the remains of his young son, about four years of age, who died in that place from diphtheria.

JOHN ANDERSON, son of Mr. John Anderson, Milllands, has been taken ill with hemorrhage of the lungs in Cincinnati. His physicians advised that he should be sent to the Pacific slopes, but his family considered that it would be better to have him at home, and he is expected shortly.

MR. SAMUEL BOOTH a resident of Guelph for the past 26 years, left to-day for Bear Lake. It is his intention to go into the baking business. He carries with him the well wishes of many friends in Guelph.

LAID AT REST.—This forenoon the remains of the late Thomas Carrol, son of Mr. William Carroll, of Guelph, formerly teacher of the Separate School, were laid at rest in the Roman Catholic cemetery. The funeral, which was a large one, was attended by the League of the Cross in a body, of which society the deceased had been a consistent member.

SHIPMENT OF DRESSED MEAT.—Messrs. J. & R. Millar have shipped by express to Mr. Chas. Satchelle, Ottawa, for his Easter custom, four very choice Southdown sheep, purchased from Mr. F. W. Stone; a fine pure bred Shorthorn calf, bred and fed by Mr. Adam A. Armstrong, Eramosa, and two spring lambs from Mr. Carter, Brock Road. This is only another evidence of the demand for prime Wellington meat.

THE ladies of the Norfolk Street Methodist Church are sparing no trouble to make the "At Home" in the lecture room of the church this evening a great success, besides tastefully ornamenting the room and adorning it with home comforts they have secured the services of the talented singer, Miss Clara Stevenson, also Prof. James, whose readings have been so well received on former occasions. Come to-night and enjoy yourself. Admission, 15 cents. d1.

A BIG LAND SLIDE.—A big land slide occurred at Limehouse about half past seven o'clock last evening, the earth covering the Grand Trunk track to a considerable depth for several yards. A train of flat cars was sent to the scene of the occurrence from each end of the section with large gangs of men. Owing to the slide freight traffic was stopped for the night, the local passeger trains in the evening transferred passengers and returned, and the midnight express from the east went around by the Western Division from Toronto. By seven o'clock this morning the track had been cleared.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

Opposition to Home Rule and the Land Bill.

LONDON, April 19.—The defection of the Scotch Radical members in the House of Commons has been growing since the Land Bill was made known. In the lobby of the Commons to-night it was estimated that twenty-five would vote against Mr. Gladstone and that more would abstain from voting. Mr. Duncan McLaren, a former member for Edinburgh, and a prominent Radical since 1820, denounces the whole scheme. He is Mr. Bright's brother-in-law. Mr. Bright's hostility to the land proposals is pronounced. He considers the terms of purchase intolerable. It is reported that he urges Mr. Gladstone to appeal to the country if the Home Rule Bill passes by only a small majority.

At a crowded meeting of the Glasgow Chamber of Commerce to-day the proposed Dublin Parliament was unanimously denounced as dangerous to the commercial interests of the Kingdom. The speakers were Liberals, and were formerly Gladstonians.

An active campaign will be conducted during the Easter recess, in which Mr. Chamberlain, Mr. Trevelyan, Lord Hartington, Mr. Morley, Lord Spencer, Mr. Goschen and the Duke of Argyll will take part. The Conservative leaders will hold aloof, desiring to leave the front of the opposition to the Whigs. Some of the Conservative members, discontented because their leaders had decided not to take part in the campaign, sent a protest to Lord Salisbury, who, however, declined to change their course.

Mr. Brand's motion against the second reading of the Home Rule Bill has been tabled under an arrangement with Lord Hartington, who will make the motion in place of Mr. Brand.

The Canadian Pacific Railway Company will start the first through train from Montreal to Vancouver city, British Columbia, on the Queen's birthday.

Toronto Board of Trade discussed a scheme yesterday for compelling retailers to carry a 75 per cent. insurance on their stock.

IT always requires time to establish a reputation, but ability will always tell in the long run, and so it has proved in the present case. Miss Todd the Dress Maker at the Lion is now doing the largest and best trade that has ever been done in that establishment. d

THE reduced prices of B. B. Hughes spring goods attracts more customers than even the spring millinery openings and brass or string bands. The public know he is the only real wholesale dry goods man in Guelph. Go to him if you want your new spring goods at wholesale prices. d

FLOODS IN MONTREAL.

The Total Loss to Business Men Roughly Estimated at $1,000,000.

MONTREAL, April 19.—The full extent of the flooded districts can be seen away to the southwest across the river village of Laprairie, which is apparently completely surrounded by water, while the country back of it for a couple of miles is also submerged. All down the south shore of the river to St. Lambert the houses along the river bank stand with water all around them. The front of St. Lambert cannot be seen for ice, which seems to be piled up to the very doors of the houses facing the river, but behind the houses and at the sides a gleam of water is discerned. On this side of the river the scene is quite as desolate. From the foot of the Rapids down to Hochelaga the river seems to be over the banks. The village of St. Gabriel appears to be built in a straggling line away out into the river. It is completely surrounded.

All Point St. Charles appears to be under water. The canal basins in the city seem to be indefinitely extended. Every street in the lower part of the city running parallel with the line of vision is seen to be a canal. The river is clear of ice from a short distance above the bridge clear away up to the rapids. But from the bridge down until the river is lost sight of some miles away, there is a complete block of ice. Only one small piece of blue open water is to be seen, and that opposite Ile Ronde, below St. Helen's Island.

On the Corn Exchange there was a pretty serious assembly of men. No business whatever was done and all that was talked of was the flood. The general opinion is that though most of the storehouses and warehouses in which grain and flour are stored are in the flooded district, the loss will not be great. A good deal of flour is doubtless under water, but flour does not damage much from water. A thick coating of paste forms around the outside of the packages and the great bulk of the flour remains sweet and dry within.

A moiety of the amount of loss suffered at this time would pay for all that was necessary to make Montreal as dry as a bone in case of even a higher flood than the present. It is stated that the present flood is thirty-one inches higher than that of 1861.

The sugar companies cannot give an estimate of their loss but they state that it has been so great that an advance in the price of sugar may be certainly looked for. It is said that both companies, the St. Lawrence and Canada Refining Company, are fortunate that a great amount of raw sugar bought for refining purposes this season has not arrived, and that much loss has thus been avoided.

At a meeting of the City Council a Special Committee was appointed to alleviate the distress caused by the floods. Ald. Grenier, the chairman of the Finance Committee, stated that it was his intention to call a special meeting of the Committee of Chairmen to take steps to borrow $4,000,000 to raise the level of the low-lying districts of the city, and also to enlarge the present revetement wall.

The loss to the business community by the floods will probably never be known, but at a rough estimate it must amount to over one million dollars. Messrs. Henry Morgan & Co. have suffered damage to the amount of $20,000, Messrs. Thibaudeau Bros. $5,000, Messrs. Silverman, Boulter & Co. $100,000, Messrs. Masson & Co. $3,000, Adam Gerrie $5,000, Renny, Macpherson & Co. $5,000, R. Martin $5,000, Rolland Bros. $4,000, and hundreds of others are losers in smaller amounts.

At 12.30 to-night the water had fallen one and a half feet, and was gradually receding.

Important Chancery Judgment

Huggins vs. Law.—The Honorable Mr. Justice Ferguson has rendered judgment in the case of Huggins v. Law, tried before him at the Chancery Sittings here the other day. It will be remembered by our readers that the point in dispute in this case is one of general importance, namely, whether an executor is justified in paying a legacy, left to a minor, to the guardian of that minor. In this case a half sister of the five plaintiffs had left legacies amounting to over $500 each to them. One Fennell, then of Listowel, was appointed guardian to the plaintiffs, who were then infants, by the Surrogate Court and the executor paid over the legacies to Fennell, who never paid them over to the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs sued the executor for the legacies, contending that the payment to the guardian was not a proper one, and that the guardian had no authority as guardian to collect legacies. At the trial the judge required time to consider the point, and has now given judgment in favor of the plaintiffs for the full amount with costs, thus holding that the payment to the guardian did not discharge the executors. Mr. Guthrie, Q. C., and Mr. Watt, for the plaintiffs; Mr. Bain, Q. C., and Mr. Scanlon for the defendants.

Destruction of Birds.

At a meeting of the Natural History Society in Toronto it was decided to accept the appointment as a Canadian branch of the Audubon Society of New York, with a view of preventing (1) the killing of any wild bird not used for food; (2) the destruction of the nests or eggs of any wild bird, and (3) the wearing of feathers as ornaments. It was also decided that the President be instructed to request the Mayor to enforce, as far as possible, the law against the use of catapults, guns, etc., for the purpose of destroying birds.

The Scott Act.

ST. JOHN, N.B., April 19.—The Scott Act was defeated in St. John to-day. The vote was: For the Act 1,610, against 1,687

In the adjoining city of Portland the Act was carried by 614 to 485.

The county of St. John will vote on the Act to-morrow.

The Fishery Question.

LONDON, Eng., April 19.—Geo. Osborne Morgan, Under Colonial Secretary, was questioned in the House of Commons this afternoon in relation to the Canadian fisheries. He said he was not aware that the Dominion Government had complained of agression by the United States fishermen. If any dispute should arise between Canada and the United States over the fisheries the English Government would make every effort to end it with as little friction as possible.

The regular meeting of the City Council was held Monday evening. Present—Mayor Stevenson, in the chair, Ald. Lamprey, Chadwick, Keough, Maddock, Bruce, Cutten, Hewer, Smith, Raymond, Jos. Carter, Read, Hamilton, Husband, Hortop, Wm. Carter, Coffee and Skinner.

COMMUNICATIONS AND PETITIONS.

From Dr. Torrance, Secretary of the Board of Education, submitting the estimates of expenditure of the Board for the year. These estimates were published in the last report of the Board of Education.

From Wm. Creighton, calling attention to water running down past Mr. Tolton's to his place.

From City Clerk and Returning Officer Mitchell, stating that the by-law giving a grant to Burr Bros. was carried by a majority. The vote was 510 for and 53 against.

From Relieving Officer Clarke, asking for $100 in addition to the $300 already granted for relief which had been spent.

From the Guelph Gas Company, asking permission to put up electric light poles on the streets, and for the passage of a by-law for the same.

From Dr. Lett, calling attention to the disgraceful state of the road on Delhi street, from the General Hospital to the gate of the Homewood Retreat, and asking that it be repaired. The same petitioner also asked for a hydrant to be placed at the Homewood Retreat, the nearest being at the General Hospital.

From John Phin, President of the Guelph Fat Stock Club, and Adam A. Armstrong, Secretary, stating that the club were to give $250 towards bringing the Provincial Fat Stock Show here, provided the council gave all the necessary accommodation.

The sugar companies cannot give an estimate of their loss but they state that it has been so great that an advance in the price of sugar may be certainly looked for. It is said that both companies, the St. Lawrence and Canada Refining Company, are fortunate that a great amount of raw sugar bought for refining purposes this season has not arrived, and that much loss has thus been avoided.

At a meeting of the City Council a Special Committee was appointed to alleviate the distress caused by the floods. Ald. Grenier, the chairman of the Finance Committee, stated that it was his intention to call a special meeting of the Committee of Chairmen to take steps to borrow $4,000,000 to raise the level of the low-lying districts of the city, and also to enlarge the present revetement wall.

The loss to the business community by the floods will probably never be known, but at a rough estimate it must amount to over one million dollars. Messrs. Henry Morgan & Co. have suffered damage to the amount of $20,000, Messrs. Thibaudeau Bros. $5,000, Messrs. Silverman, Boulter & Co. $100,000, Messrs. Masson & Co. $3,000, Adam Gerrie $5,000, Renny, Macpherson & Co. $5,000, R. Martin $5,000, Rolland Bros. $4,000, and hundreds of others are losers in smaller amounts.

At 12.30 to-night the water had fallen one and a half feet, and was gradually receding.

John Doyle, St. Gabriel village, committed suicide because he was drowned out.

Important Chancery Judgment

Huggins vs. Law.—The Honorable Mr. Justice Ferguson has rendered judgment in the case of Huggins v. Law, tried before him at the Chancery Sittings here the other day. It will be remembered by our readers that the point in dispute in this case is one of general importance, namely, whether an executor is justified in paying a legacy, left to a minor, to the guardian of that minor. In this case a half sister of the five plaintiffs had left legacies amounting to over $500 each to them. One Fennell, then of Listowel, was appointed guardian to the plaintiffs, who were then infants, by the Surrogate Court and the executor paid over the legacies to Fennell, who never paid them over to the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs sued the executor for the legacies, contending that the payment to the guardian was not a proper one, and that the guardian had no authority as guardian to collect legacies. At the trial the judge required time to consider the point, and has now given judgment in favor of the plaintiffs for the full amount with costs, thus holding that the payment to the guardian did not discharge the executors. Mr. Guthrie, Q. C., and Mr. Watt, for the plaintiffs; Mr. Bain, Q. C., and Mr. Scanlon for the defendants.

Destruction of Birds.

At a meeting of the Natural History Society in Toronto it was decided to accept the appointment as a Canadian branch of the Audubon Society of New York, with a view of preventing (1) the killing of any wild bird not used for food; (2) the destruction of the nests or eggs of any wild bird, and (3) the wearing of feathers as ornaments. It was also decided that the President be instructed to request the Mayor to enforce, as far as possible, the law against the use of catapults, guns, etc., for the purpose of destroying birds.

TUESDAY EVE'G APRIL 20, 1886.

Guelph Junction Railway Bill.

On Friday Mr. Innes managed to get the Bill to amend the Act passed two years ago, to incorporate the Guelph Junction Railway Company, through the Railway Committee of the House of Commons. The first section of the Bill provides that the capital stock of the Company be reduced from $60,000 to $30,000, divided into three hundred shares of $100 each. This was passed by the Committee.

The second section contains an amendment to section seven of the Act, which reads as follows:—"No person shall be a Director of the Company unless he be a holder of at least ten shares of the stock of the Company, and have paid up all calls thereon." It was proposed to add to this the following:—"Or unless he is a member of a municipal council holding stock or bonds in the said Company." The Minister of Railways objected to this on the ground that it was without precedent, and that it might have the effect of throwing the whole directorate into the hands of a council whose members were elected for an entirely different purpose. The clause was accordingly struck out.

The third clause amends the thirteenth clause of the Act, which reads as follows:—"Municipal corporations in Ontario being duly empowered so to do by the laws of that Province, and subject to the limitations and restrictions by such laws prescribed, may give in money or debentures a bonus to aid in the construction of said railway; and the Mayor, Warden or Reeve, or other head of such corporation, giving such a bonus to the amount of ten thousand dollars or upwards, shall be ex officio one of the Directors of the Company, in addition to the number of Directors authorized by this Act." This is amended by adding the following words:—"And municipal corporations in the Province of Ontario may subscribe for any number of shares in the capital stock of the said Company, or may lend to the said Company, upon its bonds, hereinafter mentioned, any sum of money, subject to the limitations and restrictions by the laws of the Province of Ontario prescribed; and any corporation so subscribing for shares, or lending money, shall be entitled to all the privileges, powers and rights of shareholders or bondholders, under this Act."

The fourth section, as amended, provides that the railway shall be commenced within two years, and completed within three years after the passing of the Bill. This gives the same time in which to commence and complete the line as in the original Act.

THE Senate, oppressed no doubt with the weight of their labours, have adjourned for a fortnight.

A Redistribution of Seats Bill is to be introduced in the Manitoba Legislature, which will increase the number of members in the Legislative Assembly from thirty to thirty-eight.

THE Parliamentary Committee on Banking and Commerce have thrown out Mr. McMullen's bill respecting the payment of mortgages, the Minister of Justice having decided that it is Ultra vires.

THE Manitoba Government have introduced a bill for increasing the license fees for the sale of liquors. The rates are as follows:—Restaurant, in cities, $250; hotel, in cities, $150; shop, in cities, $150; restaurant, in towns, $100; hotel, in towns and municipalities, $100; shop, in towns and municipalities, $100; wholesale, $100; vessel, $100.

THE Speaker of the House of Commons is displeasing some of the Tories because he won't allow them to abuse the Liberals without stint. The Montreal Gazette the other day had a carping paragraph about him, and during the Riel debate Mr. Rykert was very impudent to the Speaker, because he very properly called him to order for indulging in his dirty personalities. All of which goes to show that Mr. Speaker is impartial in the discharge of his duties.

A Spade is a Spade.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—As the Young People's Christian Association season is now almost closed, will you permit an old Christian to suggest to these young people that they ought either to change the name of their society, or change the exercises entered into at their meetings. In your last weekly issue an account was given of the closing festivals of the Young People's Christian Association of Winterbourne, the programme running nearly as follows: a reading, subject, "Sure Cure for Rheumatism," a stump speech subject, "Salvation Army," next a song, "The Laird O' Cockpen," Recitation, "The Inventor's Wife," two more speeches one on "Married Life," one on "Courting"; followed by a song, "Whispering Hope"; concluded by the speech of the evening, subject, "Girls," which was received with roars of laughter, and everything serenely closed up by the Doxology.

Now Mr Editor, I believe in young people enjoying themselves. I believe in harmless amusement, but I also believe in calling a spade by its right name; and I submit, with all due deference to the spiritual guides of these young people, that these associations ought to be rightly named, "Young People's Comic Associations," not "Christian." There is something shocking in closing such meetings with the Doxology, even the Benediction is sometimes added to complete the unholy alliance of the comic with the Christian.

I give your Winterbourne correspondent credit for honesty and truthfulness in describing the meeting and the programme just as it must have acted out, an honesty and a truthfulness, I cannot be always credited to correspondents who describe such association meetings in a spirit of more pretensions. The Church of Christ never was meant to compete with the world, and must always fail when she tries to vie with the world in this matter of pleasure, amusement, Smooth things, pleasing things, a jolly time, and even harmless pastimes, will never save young souls.

CHURCH JUBILEE.

Celebration of Dr. Smellie's 50th Anniversary as a Pastor.

(From our Fergus Correspondent.

The year of Jubilee for Melville Church, Fergus, 1886, has come and with it the day, April 15th, of the grand semi-centennial celebration in honor of its esteemed pastor, Dr. Smellie. For weeks the event has been looked forward to with mingled feelings of doubt and anxiety as to its expediency and advisability, but as the mists of the early morning clear away before the cheering brightness of the day, so have all fears vanished from the minds of those interested in this first Canadian Presbyterian ceremony in remembrance of a truly well performed fifty years pastorate; and the sun rises once more to throw its bright light on an accomplished, perfectly completed, pleasant, impressive, solemn, historical, religious fact upon which we look in vain—with the fullest knowledge of detail—to find a single spot to mar its beauty and success, either in connection with the honored Rev. Doctor, the Guelph Presbytery, or the Fergus congregation and people.

This jubilee ceremony has been spoken of for some time and when it became known that members of the Guelph Presbytery were to favor Melville church with their presence the ladies of the congregation decided upon a reception in the Drill Shed worthy of their visitors and creditable to themselves. With this object in view preparations had been going on, and on Wednesday afternoon and Thursday forenoon all were centred in the hall. Gilt mottoes on a red ground were made by the ladies. These the boys assisted in placing in conspicuous places on the walls of the hall. Over the platform we saw the appropriate motto "God bless our pastor;" above this was suspended a magnificent life size (in a large gilt frame) portrait of the cause of all this decorating, Dr. Smellie; above this again were the two figures "50," and on each side Union Jacks. On the sides of the hall were the mottoes "Welcome the Presbytery," and "As thy days so shall thy strength be," and on the Union Jack at the back "Unity the bond of peace," and over the door ["Jubilee" on another flag. The red, white and blue beautified the whole, stretching from side to side and from corner to corner of the large building, showing we are ever loyal. The platform was made an earthly haven of rest adorned with natural flowers, the gifts of God's bounty, and ornamented artificially by the work of the willing hands of Heaven's most loving and tender women.

On the floor of the hall was arranged a large table, covering three sides of a square, laden with the most delicious of delicacies, and groaning under the weight of more substantial viands, the necessities of this world's bodily existence. Truly it was a magnificent spread, just what we would expect from the Melville ladies—a right royal lunch to which all the visitors, ministers and laity were conducted, when they arrived at about one o'clock.

Full justice having been done to the repast and nature satisfied and strengthened the Presbytery repaired to the church where a somewhat formal meeting was held about two o'clock. The church was already filled with people from all the congregations of the village listening to the doings of the Presbytery. Before this body was through with its routine business, Dr. Smellie, the central figure, the honorable and to be honored origin and conclusion of this particular jubilee was carried into church and placed in a large chair immediately below the pulpit. The doctor's appearance was, to many of us who had not seen him since the accident nearly ten weeks past, better than we expected. He looked more aged, dignified and delicate, but still strong and vigorous after his long confinement to his room, and we could safely predict some years yet in store for him here.

The church services of the jubilee proper were commenced about 3 o'clock, Rev. J. K. Smith, of Galt, Moderator, conducting. After praise the Moderator read a selection of texts from the old and new Testaments. Dr. Torrance made an excellent prayer, and shortly after the Moderator called upon Dr. Middlemiss, of Elora, one of Dr. Smellie's oldest associates, to read the address of the Presbytery. This was a well worded document which justly eulogised Dr. Smellie for his work in the church and Presbytery, stated that he had been an ordained minister for 50 years and had been in charge of a congregation for 51. It referred in feeling terms to the kind and able assistance always given to every good work by Mrs. Smellie, and throughout breathed a noble sentiment of Christian and brotherly love. When this had been done Dr. Reid, of Toronto, another of Dr. Smellie's oldest friends in the Canadian ministry, was called upon to make the present on behalf of the Presbytery. Dr. Reid attempted to do this in a humorous manner and it was well that he did as by this time many of the Presbytery and congregation, as well as Dr. Smellie, were nearly giving way to a praiseworthy desire they could not resist. Tears were flowing and Dr. Reid's tact averted a scene. The large, rich, dark marble clock provided by the Presbytery was handed over in a friendly way by Dr. Reid.

Then Dr. Smellie made a brief, affecting, kind reply. He said he must speak sitting as he was not allowed to rise. He then spoke of the good feeling that had always existed between the Presbytery and himself. They did not always agree, but they were always friendly. He confessed his supposed failings, said he was not satisfied with the results of his preaching in so far as he could see. He was conscious of having done his best. He had given his best attention to his duties, to the preparation of his sermons, to visiting his congregation and the sick; but withal he could not speak so confidently of the good work achieved as many ministers did. He thanked the Presbytery in a becoming manner notwithstanding that he was visibly affected and excited by the kindness they had shown him.

After the singing of another hymn Mr. Ferrier, on behalf of the congregation, read a very nice address, full of friendly feeling, and breathing the spirit of love such as children would show their parents. It referred to the affection and friendship which has always existed between the pastor and congregation during the 43 years they had been associated—the longest period such relations had existed in the Canada Presbyterian Church. The address was one of esteem, affection and respect from congregation to pastor and was accompanied by a purse which Mr. Castells handed to Dr. Smellie at the proper time, and which contained $226. Mr. Ferrier was visibly affected and almost completely broke down before he finished.

Dr. Smellie again replied. He was now more affected than before. This was more a family greeting, and an expression of kindness from daily friends to which he could express little but his deepest thanks, His feelings would not permit more.

After singing again Dr. Wardrope addressed the congregation and hoped that some one might be saved as a result of the service. His words were kind and thoughtful. Rev. W. S. Ball was present as one of a deputation from the London and Hamilton Synod to do honor to Dr. Smellie. He complimented pastor and congregation and congregation alike in the proofs of constancy, good sense and friendship they had shown by sticking to each other so long. He afterwards spoke as a friend of both Dr. Smellie, his family and congregation. His speech was excellent. Rev. T. W. McMullen,

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show room of Messrs. Clarrk & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes, fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

Vocal Culture.

MISS ROSE BRANIFF, LATE OF THE New England Conservatory of Music, is prepared to receive pupils in the above subject at Loretto Academy and the residence of Prof. Philip. Miss Braniff is also open for concert engagements.

of Woodstock, the other member of the deputation from the same Synod, made a few affecting remarks, referring to the fact that Dr. Smellie first advised him as to his going to church, pointed to the seat in the church where he had taken his first communion, and spoke very nicely and kindly of Dr. and Mrs. Smellie. The Moderator spoke briefly, but pointedly, in a religious aspect. All who spoke here characterized the services as something better, than they had ever seen. Mr. Ball defied a set of infidels to have a meeting with such a feeling of christian love, charity and kindness pervading its every action, and in this we agree, and, with others we say, all never saw anything like it before.

The church was the same poor old building, except that the table was beautified by delightful natural roses, placed there by the gentle hands of loving friends, but there was a heavenly feeling of "peace and good will toward men" pervading the whole atmosphere of the place. It seemed impossible that unkind, angry or wicked feelings, could exist much less grow, in such a harbor of love, kindness and charity to all and for all. No wonder the ministers said they had never seen such before. The occasion was one that must strengthen and generate better, more kindly, more charitable feeling between pastor and family, Presbytery and congregation; one that has honored with Dr. Smellie christianity, christians and christian principles and one that will not soon be forgotten in our village.

It was 5 o'clock when the church services were over and all were invited to the hall for tea which was to begin at once. After the long meeting appetites were good and showed themselves by their attack on the good things provided. Provision and waiters were plentiful and the inner-man was soon satisfied. About 6:30 the tables were cleared and shortly after the intellectual part began, Rev. Mr. Mullan in the absence of Dr. Smellie presiding. This part of the Jubilee assumed the form of a social. Rev. Mr. McMullen gave a splendid speech. He went back to his boyhood days in Fergus. He is attempting to follow Dr. Smellie, as he has put 25 years in the same place, Woodstock, and he looks good for 50 yet. Rev. Dr. Gregg gave quite a history of the past 50 years, referring to the differences in commerce, trade, agriculture, railways, telegraphs, education and the church then and now. Fifty years since Dr. Smellie was one of 13 or 14 Presbyterian ministers in the large Synod of Guelph, London and Hamilton. Dr. Reid spoke in the same strain. Mr. Anderson, a Fergus boy, now of Toronto, spoke. Revs. Davidson, of Alma, Black, of Belwood Colling, of Fergus, D. J. MacDonnell of Toronto, and others made short speeches. All held up Dr. Smellie as a worthy model to follow as a minister. Dr. Smellie was heartily applauded when carried into the hall in the evening. Mrs. Smellie was referred to as a model minister's wife, the speakers attributing much of Dr. Smellie's excellent efforts and character to her energy, good sense and amiability. The family also received a large share of deserved praise for the standing they have taken and are taking in the country and the church. While Dr. Smellie and his family were so commended Melville congregation was not forgotten. Their perception, sense and good judgment were rightly lauded for nobly holding on to a true, trusted, and tried friend and teacher and not flying off like many of the world for something more dashy but often more trashy.

We especially congratulate the ladies of the congregation on the excellency of their efforts in so hospitably entertaining the Presbytery and visitors, their untiring energy, the fine artistic taste displayed in decorating the hall, the beautiful mottoes, the quality and abundance of eatables, the beauty and neatness of their appearance and the pleasing grace which they displayed throughout. Dr. Torrance called them the cream of the congregation; they are on this occasion the first creme de la creme of the Dominion and deserve more praise than words can express.

Mr. Mullan presided with his usual ability.

A social the following evening was also quite a pleasant affair and was richly enjoyed by the Sunday school scholars, for whom it was intended. The choir rendered good music both evenings. Saturday morning the hall, dishes, etc., the effects in fact, were all attended to and the Jubilee closed with the same benediction from one and all, that it was a magnificent success from beginning to end, and redounds to the praise of Dr. Smellie, the Presbytery, the congregation, and to the pride of Fergus.

Dr. Smellie has baptized about 1,100 children here, has had 1,400 different members and has married at the same rate exactly how many we know not. We are pleased to hear that the Rev. Doctor was very little the worse for the day's efforts, Fergus, April 17th, 1886.

THE JURY

We find that in the person of MISS TODD the Lion has the Dressmaker of Guelph.

That MISS MARRIOTT, the Milliner of this establishment, has shown herself to be unequalled.

That MR. McKENZIE, their new Cutter, has created the right impression and is already highly in favor with the young men of Guelph. His reputation as a first class Cutter is already established.

That they have the largest and best stock.

That they undersell all others.

And that for a genial and affable reception and courteous treatment the Lion is the place.

JOHN GRIFFITHS,
Market Square, West

Ald. Hewer desired to know what was the necessity of bringing in a by-law and what were its provisions. The electric light company were allowed to put up their poles by resolution of Council.

Ald. Bruce said that the streets were unsightly enough already without placing any more poles on them.

Ald. Smith considered that our own citizens should at least be granted the same rights as outsiders who came here merely for an experiment. The petitioners were men who owned large property in the city and had large interests at stake. If the petition was not granted it would be simply throwing out our own men and giving place to strangers.

Ald. Raymond thought it would be well to know if the by-law was going to throw out the present company, because permission was granted the one by resolution to put up their poles and the other asked the same right by by-law.

Ald. Read believed in giving both companies equal rights.

Ald. Keough asked the same question as Ald. Raymond in reference to the by-law.

Ald. Coffee could not see what real necessity there was for the by-law only that the City Solicitor had thought that it was the proper course to pursue. With reference to the other company the Council by resolution had granted them the right to put up their poles and it was not likely that they would tell them to take them down. More than one half of the names on the petition were not connected with the Guelph Gas Co.

Ald. Skinner said that our citizens should have the same rights as outsiders, no matter whether it was a monopoly or not. He considered that the more competition there was the cheaper we would get light. If this company desired to put up poles they should be allowed to do so and have a fair competition and a fair field.

Ald. Bruce said that any one could see that this was a direct snuff-out to the present company. He did not see the necessity for competition. There was no competition in gas.

Ald. Keough thought if a by-law was introduced it should be of such a nature as to allow any parties the same privilege, thus giving them a fair start and fair competition.

Ald. Carter was in favor of competition. It was only right that one company should have an equal right with another. It was a matter of fair play.

Moved in amendment by Ald. Maddock, seconded by Ald. Bruce, that the petition be referred to the Board of Works.

Ald. Maddock said that the city had got these poor men to come here, and they would have a hard time of it in working up a business, and now the Council was to turn around and allow another company to come in. It was a strange thing that the Gas Company had never thought about putting in the electric light before this company came. When the present company commenced to put up their poles he had half a dozen of the Gas Company running after him complaining of the large pole which was to be erected on St. George's Square. He thought it was a most contemptible, mean transaction to try to run the present Electric Light Company out.

Ald. Chadwick thought if Ald. Maddock would look at the other side of the question calmly he would find that it was the Electric Light Company that were trying to run out the Gas Company. The Gas Company only asked the same privilege as the other company.

Ald. Smith asked for the yeas and nays on the motions.

They are as follows on the amendment:—Yeas, Ald. Read, Raymond, Bruce, Maddock, Keough, Lamprey—6.

Nays—Ald. Carter, Coffee, Hortop, Husband, Skinner, Jos. Carter, Hewer, Smith, Cutten, Chadwick, Hamilton—11.

The motion was put and carried on the same vote with the exception of Ald. Hewer, who voted against it, thus making the vote 10 for, and 7 against.

The other communications and petitions were referred.

BY-LAWS.

On motion of Ald. Smith and Hewer, the by-law granting exemption from taxation, etc., to Burr Bros., was read a third time and passed.

FINANCE.

Ald. Cutten reported the payment of the following accounts:—Globe Printing Co., $11.25; Robert Ewing, $2; Innes & Davidson, $150.90; H. Gummer, $147.90; T. J. Day, $1.50; F. Nunan, $10; Hart & Co., $5.25. They also recommend the repayment of $5.24 to W. H. Ziegler he having through error paid that amount twice as taxes on lot ten, Liverpool street. The committee have obtained the City Solicitor's opinion as to whether the Council can legally refund taxes paid for income and statute labor. In view of that opinion the city cannot recommend the granting of the petition to the following: J. Revell, E. O'Connor, R. W. Scott.

Ald. Carter and Coffee moved that the report be referred back to the committee with instructions to report the circumstances in connection with the petition of R. W. Scott and others.

Quite a discussion arose on this. Ald. Carter and others showed that Mr. Scott had been wrongly assessed, and Mr. Cutten contended that the Court of Revision was the proper place for the matter to be brought. The report was finally adopted.

WATER WORKS.

Ald. Bruce, chairman, reported, and recommended the payment of the following accounts:—John M. Bond, $6.03; J. R. Mitchell, $19.13; Steven, Turner & Burns, $7.20; estate of Allan Simpson, $3.45; W. H. Mills, $26. Your committee recommend that the contract between the G. T. R. and the city for water be renewed for a period of five years at the old terms, viz:—$1,000, and to give six months notice by either party to terminate the contract. Your committee in making out the estimates for the year find they will require the following amounts:—Coal, $2,000; salaries, $1,708; lead pipe, $300; labor, $1,000; iron pipe, $500; telephone, $75; interest on land, $90; contingent, $527; Blackie & McKay, $500. Total, $6,700. Money spent up to 31st March, $1,509.43. By Treasurer's books there has been collected up to 31st March, $1,801.60. Adopted.

BOARD OF WORKS.

Ald. Maddock, chairman, reported: In reference to the petition of John Ewing, asking damages to the extent of $10 for water from drain destroying potatoes, &c., in his cellar, we recommend that $5 be paid him for damage sustained. That the petition from Mr. Chambers asking for teaming on the streets this season be not granted, as a team was engaged previous to his application. We also recommend that the various petitions from Thomas Gowdy for deficient water course; John Murphy, repairs on Stevenson street; Wm. Hood, sidewalk on Eramosa road; John Roche, draining Northumberland street, Wm. Kenning and others for sidewalk from foundry bridge to Spur Line crossing be not considered till after the streets are inspected by your committee. In addition to the $500 already granted, your committee would ask the Council for a further grant of $400 to meet the probable expenditure for this year. Adopted.

FIRE, WATER AND GAS.

Ald. Skinner reported that the committee had still $319.03 to their credit. They would ask for an appropriation of $6,600 to pay expenses for the year. They would recommend the payment of Kloepfer & Richardson's account of $17 90. The Bell Telephone Company have reduced the rates for the six telephones and one extension bell now in the fire alarm stations from $199 to $150, the same to take effect on the 26th of May. Adopted.

RELIEF.

Ald. Smith, chairman, reported recommending payment of these accounts:—George Murton, $5; H. Lock, $4.50; J. E. McElderry, $8; J. Fenelton, $5.50; J. A. Wood, $3; Joseph Jackson, 36 cords of wood, $156; W. S. G. Knowles, $2.50; J. Harris, $8.50; P. Anderson, $7.25; R. Mitchell, $9.50; total, $209.75. Your committee have during the past month dispensed the following relief: Orders for goods, $47.75; wood, $89; delivery of same, $17.60; Mrs. Millar's monthly allowance, $4; railway passes, $3; funeral expenses, $5; total, $166.35. When these are paid the balance to the credit of your committee will be $121.37. Your committee would recommend that the sum of $1,200 be placed to their credit for the present year including the $800 already granted. Adopted.

PARKS AND SHADES.

Ald. Lamprey, chairman, reported as follows: Would recommend that the side conducting pipes be laid to the drinking fountain on St. George's Square. That five stone monuments be placed in the ground to mark the boundary at the angles of the old cemetery park. That Saturday, 1st May next, be set apart as "Arbor Day" and that His Worship the Mayor do issue a proclamation requesting all citizens to observe said day by planting at least one ornamental tree on the public streets, That $300 (in addition to the sum of $200 already granted) be placed to the credit of your committee, being the appropriation required for the current year. Adopted.

POLICE.

Ald. Read reported on behalf of the committee asking for a further sum of $500 to be placed to their credit in addition to the preliminary appropriation of $100. Adopted.

RAILWAYS.

Ald. Chadwick, chairman, reported:—The Railway Committee report that since their last report they have had an interview with Mr. Van Horne, who has promised to visit Guelph personally with the engineer, but up to the present time he has not made his appearance, or appointed any day for such visit. They ask that $400 be placed to their credit. Adopted.

BY-LAWS.

The Council went into Committee of the Whole on the by-law granting the Guelph Gas Company power to erect electric light poles, Ald. Hamilton in the chair. The by-law was read a second time. A motion was made for its being read a third time, but it was defeated, not receiving a two-thirds vote, which was necessary, in order to give it three readings in one night.

ABOUT GAS.

Moved by Ald. Cutten, seconded by Ald. Husband, that the City Clerk lay before this Council at its next meeting the contract between the City and Guelph Gas Company with regard to the light supplied by the Co. to the City.

In explanation Ald. Cutten said that the present Council had no idea what the agreement was and it would be well to know.

The motion was carried.

CONTINGENT ACCOUNT.

Moved by Ald. Cutten, seconded by Ald. Bruce, that the City Treasurer furnish this Council at its next meeting a detailed statement of the disbursments for 1885 and up to the end of April 1886 of the contingent account.

Mr. Cutten remarked that he thought it would be well if each item of the contingent account was laid before the Council.

The motion was carried.

A motion was then made to appoint an assistant assessor for Mr. Armstrong the present assessor, but it was withdrawn.

The Council adjourned at half past ten.

Labour Notes.

The Toronto street railway men are meditating another strike. They want the rule of the company rescinded which prevents them joining labor unions, all the hands discharged on account of their connection with the union reinstated, a uniform wage of $10 per week, and that ten hours shall constitute a day's work. The company refuse to listen to them as Knights of Labor.

The difficulty between the Toronto master bakers and their journeymen has been satisfactorily settled.

Thirty of the boys attending the Toronto Model School struck on Monday because they got the idea that the Easter holidays were to be restricted to two or three days. Most people would credit Canadian boys with more sense.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 16.

In the House of Commons to-day several Government Bills were advanced a stage, including the Bill to amend the Dominion Lands Act, which was read the second time.

The day from the middle of the afternoon was spent in the discussion of the tariff resolutions. Increase of duty on green fruit was earnestly protested against by a number of members, especially the representatives of the Maritime Province fruit growing sections, who contended that in accordance with the policy of 1879, Canada should follow the example of the United States, and take the duty off fruit instead of increasing the duty.

No change was made on the proposal to place the per cent. duty on oleomargarine. Mr. Patterson (Brant) moved that it be prohibited altogether. This amendment was strongly supported by other members of the Opposition and accepted by the Government. As the opinion seemed to be overwhelming in favor of the prohibition of the manufacture as well as the importation of substitutes for butter, the proposed Excise duty on oleomargarine was allowed to stand.

The Opposition objected strongly to the increased duties on wire fencing, and Mr. Watson moved that this article be allowed to enter Manitoba free of duty. The motion was lost.

There was a long discussion on sugar duties, in which Mr. Patterson (Brant), Sir Richard Cartwright, Mr. Gunn, Mr. Bowell, Mr. McLelan, and Mr. Stairs took part.

The resolutions, with the exception of those referring to oleomargarine, were concurred in with some slight amendments. The House adjourned at 1.40 a.m.

OTTAWA, April 19.

In the Commons to-day Mr. Edgar gave Mr. Wallace, of West York, an opportunity to explain his reading of the bogus communications between Mr. Blake and Mr. Edgar on the Riel question. Mr. Wallace said they were given in good faith, and that at all events they gave a fair idea of what he said everyone knew had passed between those gentlemen.

An interesting debate took place on Mr. Charlton's resolutions as to the mode of conducting debates. The resolutions were so amended as to become merely an expression of opinion in favor of shorter speeches, and in that form passed.

Mr. McCraney raised a discusssion by moving for various returns of information regarding the expense of maintaining the Governor-General, some of which were ordered.

The death of David Thompson, M. P. for Haldimand, was referred to by Mr. Blake and Sir H. Langevin. The House adjourned at 10.23 p. m.

Defrauding the Customs.

MONTREAL, April 16.—The excitement regarding the customs seizure of dry goods, imported by McLachlans, which they settled by paying about $36,000 to the Government, has hardly died out. Yet it is reported that further frauds on the revenue by Montreal wholesale firms have been discovered. To-day the stock and books of Messrs. Desmarais & Co., of Notre Dame street, were seized by Customs officers for alleged undervaluation by means of false invoices. A demand was also made on Messrs. Paterson, Kissoch & Co., of St. Helen's street, for their books, but the firm acting under legal advice, refused to surrender them, and declare their intention of testing the matter.

Canadian.

The Welland canal was opened for navigation Tuesday.

Mr. William Gillespie, Collector of Customs at Dundas, died on Monday. He was formerly assistant Collector of Customs in Hamilton, and was intimately connected with the early history of the "Ambitious City's" newspapers.

A contract has been made for the construction of fifty miles of the Manitoba and North-Western Railway, and work will be begun immediately.

Two Men Drowned.

SHELBURNE, Ont., April 19.—On Saturday a son of Mr. O. B. Thompson, of Riverview, Melancthon, was out boating on the Grand River, when he lost control of the boat and went over the dam. Hugh Foster, the boy's uncle, went to rescue the boy and got hold of him, but the current was so strong that they were carried down the river and drowned. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

THIS ORIGINAL DOCUMENT IS IN VERY POOR CONDITION

Ald. Hewer desired to know what was the necessity of bringing in a by-law and what were its provisions. The electric light company were allowed to put up their poles by resolution of Council.

Ald. Bruce said that the streets were unsightly enough already without placing any more poles on them.

Ald. Smith considered that our own citizens should at least be granted the same rights as outsiders who came here merely for an experiment. The petitioners were men who owned large property in the city and had large interests at stake. If the petition was not granted it would be simply throwing out our own men and giving place to strangers.

Ald. Raymond thought it would be well to know if the by-law was going to throw out the present company, because permission was granted the one by resolution to put up their poles and the other asked the same right by by-law.

Ald. Read believed in giving both companies equal rights.

Ald. Keough asked the same question as Ald. Raymond in reference to the by-law.

Ald. Coffee could not see what real necessity there was for the by-law only that the City Solicitor had thought that it was the proper course to pursue. With reference to the other company the Council by resolution had granted them the right to put up their poles and it was not likely that they would tell them to take them down. More than one half of the names on the petition were not connected with the Guelph Gas Co.

Ald. Skinner said that our citizens should have the same rights as outsiders, no matter whether it was a monopoly or not. He considered that the more competition there was the cheaper we would get light. If this company desired to put up poles they should be allowed to do so and have a fair competition and a fair field.

Ald. Bruce said that any one could see that this was a direct snuff-out to the present company. He did not see the necessity for competition. There was no competition in gas.

Ald. Keough thought if a by-law was introduced it should be of such a nature as to allow any parties the same privilege, thus giving them a fair start and fair competition.

Ald. Carter was in favor of competition. It was only right that one company should have an equal right with another. It was a matter of fair play.

Moved in amendment by Ald. Maddock, seconded by Ald. Bruce, that the petition be referred to the Board of Works.

Ald. Maddock said that the city had got these poor men to come here, and they would have a hard time of it in working up a business, and now the Council was to turn around and allow another company to come in. It was a strange thing that the Gas Company had never thought about putting in the electric light before this company came. When the present company commenced to put up their poles he had half a dozen of the Gas Company running after him complaining of the large pole which was to be erected on St. George's Square. He thought it was a most contemptible, mean transaction to try to run the present Electric Light Company out.

Ald. Chadwick thought if Ald. Maddock would look at the other side of the question calmly he would find that it was the Electric Light Company that were trying to run out the Gas Company. The Gas Company only asked the same privilege as the other company.

Ald. Smith asked for the yeas and nays on the motions.

They are as follows on the amendment:—Yeas, Ald. Read, Raymond, Bruce, Maddock, Keough, Lamprey—6.

Nays—Ald. Carter, Coffee, Hortop, Husband, Skinner, Jos. Carter, Hewer, Smith, Cutten, Chadwick, Hamilton—11.

The motion was put and carried on the same vote with the exception of Ald. Hewer, who voted against it, thus making the vote 10 for, and 7 against.

The other communications and petitions were referred.

BY-LAWS.

On motion of Ald. Smith and Hewer, the by-law granting exemption from taxation, etc., to Burr Bros., was read a third time and passed.

FINANCE.

Ald. Cutten reported the payment of the following accounts:—Globe Printing Co., $11.25; Robert Ewing, $2; Innes & Davidson, $150.90; H. Gummer, $147.90; T. J. Day, $1.50; F. Nunan, $10; Hart & Co., $5.25. They also recommend the repayment of $5.24 to W. H. Ziegler he having through error paid that amount twice as taxes on lot ten, Liverpool street. The committee have obtained the City Solicitor's opinion as to whether the Council can legally refund taxes paid for income and statute labor. In view of that opinion the city cannot recommend the granting of the petition to the following: J. Revell, E. O'Connor, R. W. Scott.

Ald. Carter and Coffee moved that the report be referred back to the committee with instructions to report the circumstances in connection with the petition of R. W. Scott and others.

Quite a discussion arose on this. Ald. Carter and others showed that Mr. Scott had been wrongly assessed, and Mr. Cutten contended that the Court of Revision was the proper place for the matter to be brought. The report was finally adopted.

WATER WORKS.

Ald. Bruce, chairman, reported, and recommended the payment of the following accounts:—John M. Bond, $6.03; J. R. Mitchell, $19.13; Steven, Turner & Burns, $7.20; estate of Allan Simpson, $3.45; W. H. Mills, $26. Your committee recommend that the contract between the G. T. R. and the city for water be renewed for a period of five years at the old terms, viz:—$1,000, and to give six months notice by either party to terminate the contract. Your committee in making out the estimates for the year find they will require the following amounts:—Coal, $2,000; salaries, $1,708; lead pipe, $300; labor, $1,000; iron pipe, $500; telephone, $75; interest on land, $90; contingent, $527; Blackie & McKay, $500. Total, $6,700. Money spent up to 31st March, $1,509.43. By Treasurer's books there has been collected up to 31st March, $1,801.60. Adopted.

BOARD OF WORKS.

Ald. Maddock, chairman, reported: In reference to the petition of John Ewing, asking damages to the extent of $10 for water from drain destroying potatoes, &c., in his cellar, we recommend that $5 be paid him for damage sustained. That the petition from Mr. Chambers asking for teaming on the streets this season be not granted, as a team was engaged previous to his application. We also recommend that the various petitions from Thomas Gowdy for deficient water course; John Murphy, repairs on Stevenson street; Wm. Hood, sidewalk on Eramosa road; John Roche, draining Northumberland street, Wm. Kenning and others for sidewalk from foundry bridge to Spur Line crossing be not considered till after the streets are inspected by your committee. In addition to the $500 already granted, your committee would ask the Council for a further grant of $400 to meet the probable expenditure for this year. Adopted.

FIRE, WATER AND GAS.

Ald. Skinner reported that the committee had still $319.03 to their credit. They would ask for an appropriation of $6,600 to pay expenses for the year. They would recommend the payment of Kloepfer & Richardson's account of $17 90. The Bell Telephone Company have reduced the rates for the six telephones and one extension bell now in the fire alarm stations from $199 to $150, the same to take effect on the 26th of May. Adopted.

RELIEF.

Ald. Smith, chairman, reported recommending payment of these accounts:—George Murton, $5; H. Lock, $4.50; J. E. McElderry, $8; J. Penelton, $5.50; J. A. Wood, $3; Joseph Jackson, 36 cords of wood, $156; W. S. G. Knowles, $2.50; J. Harris, $8.50; P. Anderson, $7.25; R. Mitchell, $9.50; total, $209.75. Your committee have during the past month dispensed the following relief: Orders for goods, $47.75; wood, $69; delivery of same, $17.60; Mrs. Millar's monthly allowance, $4; railway passes, $3; funeral expenses, $5; total, $166.35. When these are paid the balance to the credit of your committee will be $121.37. Your committee would recommend that the sum of $1,200 be placed to their credit for the present year including the $800 already granted. Adopted.

PARKS AND SHADES.

Ald. Lamprey, chairman, reported as follows: Would recommend that the side conducting pipes be laid to the drinking fountain on St. George's Square. That five stone monuments be placed in the ground to mark the boundary at the angles of the old cemetery park. That Saturday, 1st May next, be set apart as "Arbor Day" and that His Worship the Mayor do issue a proclamation requesting all citizens to observe said day by planting at least one ornamental tree on the public streets, That $300 (in addition to the sum of $200 already granted) be placed to the credit of your committee, being the appropriation required for the current year. Adopted.

POLICE.

Ald. Read reported on behalf of the committee asking for a further sum of $500 to be placed to their credit in addition to the preliminary appropriation of $100. Adopted.

RAILWAYS.

Ald. Chadwick, chairman, reported:—The Railway Committee report that since their last report they have had an interview with Mr. Van Horne, who has promised to visit Guelph personally with the engineer, but up to the present time he has not made his appearance, or appointed any day for such visit. They ask that $400 be placed to their credit. Adopted.

BY-LAWS.

The Council went into Committee of the Whole on the by-law granting the Guelph Gas Company power to erect electric light poles, Ald. Hamilton in the chair. The by-law was read a second time. A motion was made for its being read a third time, but it was defeated, not receiving a two-thirds vote, which was necessary, in order to give it three readings in one night.

ABOUT GAS.

Moved by Ald. Cutten, seconded by Ald. Husband, that the City Clerk lay before this Council at its next meeting the contract between the City and Guelph Gas Company with regard to the light supplied by the Co. to the City.

In explanation Ald. Cutten said that the present Council had no idea what the agreement was and it would be well to know.

The motion was carried.

CONTINGENT ACCOUNT.

Moved by Ald. Cutten, seconded by Ald. Bruce, that the City Treasurer furnish this Council at its next meeting a detailed statement of the disbursments for 1885 and up to the end of April 1886 of the contingent account.

Mr. Cutten remarked that he thought it would be well if each item of the contingent account was laid before the Council.

The motion was carried.

A motion was then made to appoint an assistant assessor for Mr. Armstrong the present assessor, but it was withdrawn.

The Council adjourned at half past ten.

Labour Notes.

The Toronto street railway men are meditating another strike. They want the rule of the company rescinded which prevents them joining labor unions, all the hands discharged on account of their connection with the union reinstated, a uniform wage of $10 per week, and that ten hours shall constitute a day's work. The company refuse to listen to them as Knights of Labor.

The difficulty between the Toronto master bakers and their journeymen has been satisfactorily settled.

Thirty of the boys attending the Toronto Model School struck on Monday because they got the idea that the Easter holidays were to be restricted to two or three days. Most people would credit Canadian boys with more sense.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 16.

In the House of Commons to-day several Government Bills were advanced a stage, including the Bill to amend the Dominion Lands Act, which was read the second time.

The day from the middle of the afternoon was spent in the discussion of the tariff resolutions. Increase of duty on green fruit was earnestly protested against by a number of members, especially the representatives of the Maritime Province fruit growing sections, who contended that in accordance with the policy of 1879, Canada should follow the example of the United States, and take the duty off fruit instead of increasing the duty.

No change was made on the proposal to place the per cent. duty on oleomargarine. Mr. Patterson (Brant) moved that it be prohibited altogether. This amendment was strongly supported by other members of the Opposition and accepted by the Government. As the opinion seemed to be overwhelming in favor of the prohibition of the manufacture as well as the importation of substitutes for butter, the proposed Excise duty on oleomargarine was allowed to stand.

The Opposition objected strongly to the increased duties on wire fencing, and Mr. Watson moved that this article be allowed to enter Manitoba free of duty. The motion was lost.

There was a long discussion on sugar duties, in which Mr. Patterson (Brant), Sir Richard Cartwright, Mr. Gunn, Mr. Bowell, Mr. McLelan, and Mr. Stairs took part.

The resolutions, with the exception of those referring to oleomargarine, were concurred in with some slight amendments. The House adjourned at 1.40 a.m.

OTTAWA, April 19.

In the Commons to-day Mr. Edgar gave Mr. Wallace, of West York, an opportunity to explain his reading of the bogus communications between Mr. Blake and Mr. Edgar on the Riel question. Mr. Wallace said they were given in good faith, and that at all events they gave a fair idea of what he said everyone knew had passed between those gentlemen.

An interesting debate took place on Mr. Charlton's resolutions as to the mode of conducting debates. The resolutions were so amended as to become merely an expression of opinion in favor of shorter speeches, and in that form passed.

Mr. McCraney raised a discussion by moving for various returns of information regarding the expense of maintaining the Governor-General, some of which were ordered.

The death of David Thompson, M. P. for Haldimand, was referred to by Mr. Blake and Sir H. Langevin. The House adjourned at 10.23 p. m.

Defrauding the Customs.

MONTREAL, April 16.—The excitement regarding the customs seizure of dry goods, imported by McLachlans, which they settled by paying about $36,000 to the Government, has hardly died out. Yet it is reported that further frauds on the revenue by Montreal wholesale firms have been discovered. To-day the stock and books of Messrs. Desmarais & Co., of Notre Dame street, were seized by Customs officers for alleged undervaluation by means of false invoices. A demand was also made on Messrs. Paterson, Kissoch & Co., of St. Helen's street, for their books, but the firm acting under legal advice, refused to surrender them, and declare their intention of testing the matter.

Canadian.

The Welland canal was opened for navigation Tuesday.

Mr. William Gillespie, Collector of Customs at Dundas, died on Monday. He was formerly assistant Collector of Customs in Hamilton, and was intimately connected with the early history of the "Ambitious City's" newspapers.

A contract has been made for the construction of fifty miles of the Manitoba and North-Western Railway, and work will be begun immediately.

Two Men Drowned.

SHELBURNE, Ont., April 19.—On Saturday a son of Mr. O. B. Thompson, of Riverview, Melancthon, was out boating on the Grand River, when he lost control of the boat and went over the dam. Hugh Foster, the boy's uncle, went to rescue the boy and got hold of him, but the current was so strong that they were carried down the river and drowned. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

The Montreal Floods.

MONTREAL, April 20.—Early this morning the ice in the St. Lawrence commenced to shove, and the water rapidly receded from the inundated districts, allowing business and traffic to be resumed. No estimate of the probable loss can yet be formed, but it is feared that it will be very heavy. Navigation is expected to open at Montreal to-morrow.

Invisible but Instantaneous.

All pains or aches will be instantly removed by a few drops of Fluid Lightning applied over the affected parts. No time lost; no nauseous medicines needed; no poulticing or using greasy liniments. It will not blister or discolor the skin. Sold at 25c per bottle by Thos. S Petrie, Druggist. Sufferers from Neuralgia assure us that they never fear it when their house contains a bottle of Fluid Lightning.

THE reduced prices of B. B. Hughes spring goods attracts more customers than even the spring millinery openings and brass or string bands. The public know he is the only real wholesale dry goods man in Guelph. Go to him if you want your new spring goods at wholesale prices. d

One More Victory.

Once more the Mowat Government and the Province of Ontario have triumphed in the Courts over the Dominion rulers at Ottawa. In Toronto on Tuesday the Court of Appeal gave judgment in the case of the Queen vs. The St. Catharines Milling and Lumber Company confirming the judgment already rendered against the defendants in the Court below. This case involves the right of the Province to the timber, land and minerals in the disputed territory awarded to Ontario by the Privy Council. The Federal authorities, after that award was decided, maintained that under certain treaties with the Indians the timber and minerals were ceded to the Dominion. Mr. Mowat decided that no such title could be established, and took the steps to restrain the defendants the taking timber of the Province under a Dominion warrant, which have resulted so successfully in the courts. It is doubtful if the Tory heelers and officials who have been given Ontario timber lands by the Dominion Government will care to carry this suit any farther in the face of certain defeat. The St. Catharines Company hold 32,000 acres for which they must disgorge and the Dominion authorities must make full and ample restitution to the Province for what they have plundered. Mr. Mowat's level headedness and manly actions on behalf of Provincial rights are once more displayed, as are also the mighty poor position which Federal ministers occupy as constitutional lawyers and the miserable success of their policy of grasping aggression.

Local News.

MR. J. C. MCLEAN, of the Temple of Music, has just sold a splendid Heintzman piano to ladies of Loretto Convent. This is another proof of the high quality of these celebrated instruments.

ALL our exchanges report that the fall wheat has come through the winter capitally. With the warm weather of the past ten days' vigorous re-vegetation has set in, and everything thus far points to a heavy crop this season.

THE social in the Dublin street Methodist church on Friday evening promises to be a grand success. Several novel features will be introduced in this entertainment, and those who patronize it will, we are sure, be glad they have done so. The young ladies are resolved to spare no trouble or expense to make this the most attractive social of the season. d2

AT HOME.—The "At Home" in the lecture room of the Norfolk street Methodist church last night was so successful and enjoyable that the ladies have decided to hold another "At Home" to-morrow (Thursday) evening, with an entire change of programme. Everyone present last night expressed themselves highly pleased with the tastefully adorned room and the very superior quality of the programme presented. Commencing at eight o'clock. Admission 10 cents. d1

AT HOME.—The young people of Knox church gave an enjoyable "at home" in the basement of their church last evening, at which a very fair audience was present. The large basement was handsomely decorated with flags and banners, and a liberal display of bunting. There were also on exhibition relics of other days, notably swords and sheaths that had done duty in the war of 1812 and in the rebellion of 1837, and also others of a later date—one from the American war and one from Batoche. The two former instruments were very ancient looking articles, and a visitor on looking at these rusty notched blades could not help but think of the terrible bloodshed of those days. A number of other curiosities were on view, also illustrated works for any one to spend a few minutes over that wished. During the evening a programme of vocal and instrumental music was carried out, which was creditable to all who took part. A liberal supply of refreshments was handed round about nine o'clock, which appeared to be much enjoyed. The company separated about ten o'clock.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH Y. P. A.—Notwithstanding the many other attractions in the city last evening, a large and appreciative audience assembled in the lecture room of the Congregational Church, the occasion being the closing meeting of the Y. P. A. The chair was taken by the President, Mr. G. W. Clarke, a few minutes after eight o'clock. After introductory exercies Mr. McRoberts favoured the audience with a piano solo, which was much appreciated. Miss Edith Gausby then sang "The Death of Little Nell" in a charming and pathetic manner. The following piece was a recitation by Miss Edith Skinner, "The Hero of the Tower," which was admirably rendered. Miss Bessie Borthwick then sang "Grand Old Ocean." This contralto solo was well adapted to Miss Borthwick's full rich voice. The dialogue, "Orlando and Rosalind," from "As You Like It," was well recited by Mr. McRoberts and Miss E. Sprague. Then followed a vocal trio by the Misses S. McLaren, E. Gausby and B. Borthwick. A few minutes intermission was then given for social intercourse. The second part of the programme opened with a piano solo, "Les Rameaux" (Lugbach), by Miss Fannie McLaren; followed by a song the "Gay Hussar," which was exquisitely rendered by Mr. John Crowe. In response to an enthusiastic encore Mr. Crowe sang with great gusto, "I'm a Soldier now Lizette." The next item on the programme was "Ballad of Arabella," which was rendered in excellent style, and was fully appreciated by the audience. Then followed "Bonnie Sweet Bessie," by Miss Lettie Parker, which was very sweetly sung and received a hearty encore. "The Tyrolean Ducks," by Miss E. Gausby and chorus, caused a great deal of amusement. The Rev. D. MacGregor then made a few appropriate remarks, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Fine and Warm.

SEEDING has commenced in the neighborhood of Guelph.

TUESDAY was the Jewish New Year's Day of 2199.

HUGH WALKER & SON received yesterday a large consignment of bananas.

FIVE parties will appear before the Magistrate to-morrow for allowing cows to run at large.

IT is about time that Chase's drinking fountain on the market square was set in working order for the summer.

THERE is someting the matter with the pipes leading to the fountain on St. George's Square, and men are at work discovering wherein lies the impediment.

THREE women who bore a rather doubtful reputation were ordered out of the city by the Chief of Police yesterday. They took the hint and departed.

THE Dundas hill, on the Brock Road, Chadwick's hill and the hill opposite Laycock's farm are almost impassable for conveyances from water rising on top of them.

ALD. HEWER received to-day a shipment of two car loads of potatoes, one from the County of Bruce and the other from Prince Edward Island, for seed and table use.

LAST night the till in the office of the Royal Hotel was relieved of some 50 or 60 cents, while the porter was showing some travellers, who arrived by the midnight train, to their rooms.

THE other day Mr. Chas. Willoughby in driving from Hamilton's hotel to Arkell got stuck on the road, the horse sinking up to the body on the top of the hill. It was some time before the animal was got out, assistance having to be procured.

BELL Band to-night at the rink. This band has been engaged for the balance of the season and will appear to-night and Good Friday for the first time. Their will also be a one legged race, distance one-half mile. This will prove a very amusing and laughable race. Ladies free. See advt.

MR. FRANK MIDDLETON, locomotive engineer of the C. P. R., who has been visiting his parents residing near Arkell since November last, leaves to-morrow for Kamloops, British Columbia. He is a brother of Robert Middleton, who was shot at Duck Lake on the outbreak of the rebellion.

ACCIDENT.—Wm Naismith, son of Mr. D. Naismith, yesterday afternoon slipped off the top of an ice box, and in falling off the top of an ice box, and in falling off the arms caught in a meat hook, tearing it from the middle of the arm to the wrist. Dr. McPhatter sewed up the wound. It will be some time before he will be able to use the arm.

H. C. STOVEL, formerly of Mount Forest Confederate, left last night for Napanee, where he assumes the position of manager of the Express, which has lately passed into the hands of Mr. J. C. Drewry. Mr. Stovel is a thorough newspaper man, and is bound to conduct the Express in an able manner. His many friends in Guelph and Mount Forest wish him success.

EARLY SOWING.—Mr. Walter Laing says that last year he commenced to plow on the 21st of April and this year on the 16th—as soon as the ground would permit. Last year he sowed on the 30th of the month and this year on the 19th, all of which goes to show that the season is very early, last season being considered extra early. Old settlers state who have been here over fifty years, that this is only the third time that they have witnessed such an early spring.

FISHING OUT OF SEASON.—Chief Randall will have Geo. Snelling, Guelph Township, before the Police Magistrate on a charge of catching trout in the Speed during the close season, which is from the 18th of September to the 1st of May. It is stated that Snelling caught several trout on the 17th of April, and hence the summons. The Chief is determined to bring every case he hears of of violating either the fishery or the game laws before the Magistrate. He is right, and will receive the support of every genuine sportsman in this direction.

NORFOLK ST. METHODIST CHURCH.—The "At Home" held in this church last evening under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society was a most successful affair. The usual plain appearance of the lecture room had been completely changed and carpets, curtains, centre tables, piano, easy chairs, sofas, lounges, pictures, paintings, bric-a-brac, books, views, stereoscopes, photographs, musical boxes and other interesting and appropriate garniture contributed in a large degree to the social character of the gathering. A very nice programme of vocal and instrumental music, recitations and readings was furnished by the Misses Stevenson, Buchan, Scroggie, Hatch, Scarff, Messrs Thomas, Zavitz and Prof James, and a lunch during the evening added its quota to the general enjoyment. The ladies intend to have another entertainment of a similar nature to-morrow evening, and all who had the pleasure of being present last evening can testify to the unique excellence of a Norfolk street Methodist "At Home."

PROPERTY SALE.—Mr. Wm. Bell has purchased for his daughter, Mrs. Dr. Kennedy, the residence of Mr. John A. Wood on Woolwich street, embracing the property in the rear on Cardigan street, on which is a frame house and stable, for $7,500. This includes several permanent fixtures in Mrs. Wood's residence such as window blinds, carpets, etc. Negotiations are on foot for the sale of Mr. Wood's grocery business on Upper Wyndham st., and the probabilities are that it will be purchased by Mr. Charles Watson and his brother Alfred, the former of whom has been in the employment of Mr. Wood for a number of years and is thoroughly acquainted with the business in its minutest particulars. They are enterprising young men, and should they purchase the business there is little doubt but they will succeed in retaining and even adding to the large trade heretofore carried on in these premises. It is said that Mr. Wood will take up his residence for a short time, at least, in Toronto.

Deputy Sheriff Williams, who was badly beaten by the strikers, while guarding Iron Mountain Railway property, at Little Rock, Ark., has received a cheque for $500 from Jay Gould.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

Mr. Gladstone is Gratified by Quebec's Expression.

LONDON, April 20.—Mr. Gladstone has cabled his acknowledgment of the receipt of the resolution adopted by the Quebec Assembly on the 16th inst. He has also mailed the following letter:

I am deeply gratified at the resolutions adopted by your honorable body. It is my belief that the people of England who have partial responsibility for the old misdeeds of the British Government and the people of Scotland, who have really none, will both concur in the wise and liberal views entertained by the Quebec Assembly.

A meeting of the City Liberal Association to-day adopted a resolution in favor of the second reading of the Home Rule Bill, and expressing the hope that Mr. Gladstone would succeed in pacifying Ireland. Sir John Lubbock's amendment declaring that the proposed Parliament in Dublin and the Land Purchase Bill would be injurious to the Kingdom was rejected by a large majority.

Some of the leading Liberals opposed to the separation of Ireland are forming a committee for the purpose of securing joint action.

It is understood that Lord Spencer's opposition alone prevents the abandonment of the Land Bill.

Mr. Chamberlain will make no further advances, but will await developments

DUBLIN, April 20.—It was announced at the fortnightly meeting of the Irish National League to day that $3,500 had been received in donations to the League Parliamentary Fund from America during the past two weeks, and $2,250 from Ireland. Lord Mayor Sullivan addressed the meeting, and said that while he could not pronounce Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule scheme equal to the ideal of the Nationalists, yet it was a measure that Ireland could honorably accept.

GLASGOW, April 20.—Michael Davitt addressed a crowded meeting of Irishmen at the City Hall here this evening. He hoped the prosperity that would result if the Bills were adopted would induce Parliament to extend still further Home Rule in Ireland. If the landlords stayed in Ireland and circulated money, trade would revive and Ireland would not need to resort to protection. He condemned the principle of the Parliament of the two orders, but urged the acceptance of the plan in the hope that it would soon be altered.

Mr. Healy said the question was one between the democracy and the aristocracy and that England's generous and warm-hearted reception of Mr. Gladstone's proposals was creditable and honorable to hear.

Mr. Froude, the historian, has sent a telegram expressing hearty sympathy with the proposed meeting of the opponents of Mr. Gladstone's policy in Scotland and regretting his inability to attend owing to illness.

Herbert Gladstone, speaking at Bradford last evening said the Government would hold to its present Irish policy and would secure victory whether it required six months or six years.

CITY VOTERS' LIST.

Court of Revision of Voters List for the City for the Local Legislature.

At half past ten o'clock this morning Judge Drew opened the Court of Revision for the Local House, for the city. City Clerk Mitchell states that there are some 456 applications to be put on the roll but out of these there are quite a few who already appear on the voters list, and some who have their names wrongly spelled, so that when these are deducted the actual number will amount to about 430.

Mr. D. Guthrie, Q. C., and Mr. Hugh McMillan appeared for the Reformers and Mr. Coffee, Macdonald and Mr. Cutten for the Conservatives.

A few names on both sides were allowed by mutual consent, and it was then arranged with the Judge's approval that the Court should stand adjourned until next Monday night at seven o'clock, and in the meantime the representatives of both political parties are to meet and go over the lists, and mark off those names to which there is no objection, so that when the Court meets on Monday night it will only be necessary to produce evidence in support of those names to which there is objection.

All those Reformers who have been summoned to attend the Court will please bear in mind to be on hand on Monday evening at the Court, and those of them to whom there is no objection will be relieved from attendance immediately after the opening of the court.

THE grass has grown rapidly within the the past few days.

Fergus Correspondence.

AN OLD RESIDENT GONE.—Mr Alex Gerrie, saddle and harness merchant, Fergus, an old and well known resident, died on Friday. He has been in poor health for some weeks. The remains will be buried to-morrow (Wednesday) with Masonic honors. The funeral will no doubt be a large one, as he was much liked generally, and has been a long time doing business in Fergus.

SPRING WORK.—Ploughing commenced in this neighborhood on Saturday 17th. It is not general.

ACCIDENTS.—Mr Jas Milne, senior, of Garafraxa, drove in to the village, and was present at the jubilee services in Melville church on Thursday last, and when taking his horse out of Mr Couse's stable to start for home he was badly kicked on the back right up between the shoulder blade. He suffered very much and still does from the bruise and shock. He was injured inwardly, and will probably be some time in getting well. The horse belonged to Mr James Currie, was never known to kick, and had agreed enough to know better. It was 20 years old. A son of Mr J Hutchinson's in Nichol, fell off a hay rick on Friday last. He fortunately escaped any severe injury, though he fell about twelve feet, and struck on a beam with his back.

IMPROVEMENT.—The streets have been scraped, the dirt removed, and the village looks decidedly better. The boulevards are assuming their early summer green suit, and everything will soon be lovely.

VILLAGE FATHERS.—The road and bridge committee inspected the village and especially the streets yesterday. There is a good deal of work to be done in gravelling, ditching and more sidewalks to be laid and repaired.

MUSIC.—The band paraded the streets on Saturday night. The music was good. The boys deserve encouragement, as the band music enlivens the village during the summer and makes one more good attraction.

SPRING.—The thermometer stood only two or three degrees below eighty in the shade on Sunday. It still continues very hot. Spring work has begun in the country. Ploughing started on the 17th. In the village house cleaning, back-yard cleaning and gardening are the order of the day. Yesterday we had a heavy thunder storm with hail, about two p. m. There was no rain at Speedside nor in Upper Garafraxa, and little at Elora, so it is said.

FALL WHEAT.—This crop is looking well in this section. If the good weather continues the fall wheat and grass fields will soon be green.

HORSES.—There was a large shipment of horses, 25 in number, from here to-day for the States. Good prices were paid, the average about $150, for solid general purpose horses.

EXCITEMENT.—The article in Saturday morning's "News" caused quite a fuss. The Conservatives were pale with fear lest it should be true. When John A. resigns or retires the loaves and fishes will soon follow they fear.

NEW.—F. Robinson's livery is ahead with a swell wagon with top ready for pic-nic or other summer parties. The waggon is a good one, built by Mr. J. Templin, and is a credit to the livery and builder.

GONE.—The old saw mill at Glenlammond was completely washed away the day following the smash-up. A lot of machinery went down the river.

RENTED.—Mr. A. Perry has, we understand, rented Mr. Wilson's saw mill. Mr. Semple will not be able to fix his up for use for some time. The flood has caused considerable loss to the mill men here. They have, however, started for Luther and the logs will soon be down the river.

CHANGE.—We understand that Mr James Philips, formerly of John A Wood's store, Guelph, and lately farming, has bought out Mr. Sherwood and will carry on his business in the old store We wish him success. Mr. Sherwood will be missed. He was always obliging and kept a good store. Mr. John White's family moved to Galt to-day. Mr. Philips goes into his house.

Fergus, April 20.

Rockwood Correspondence.

PERSONAL.—Mr George Dryden, who has been prostrated for several weeks by an attack of typhoid fever, is approaching convalescence.

LACROSSE.—A meeting of the Star Lacrosse Club was held on Monday evening for the purpose of organizing for the summer campaign. They will be pleased to hear from neighboring clubs. Mr John Jago is Secretary.

THE SCOTT ACT.—It is said that our local hotel keepers will carry out the spirit of the Act by closing their houses and refusing accommodation to all comers. Mr. Duffield is erecting a fence across the entrance to his stables and sheds, which certainly looks ominous.

A WANT SUPPLIED.—Heretofore those of our young men desirous of keeping up with the fashions have been obliged to transfer their trade to neighboring towns in order to keep abreast of the times. The necessity is now obviated by Mr. J. N. Stinson, tailor, who is displaying a varied assortment of the latest and most fashionable goods in his shop, next door to the post office Mr Stinson will be found an expert in his calling, and honorable and straightforward in his dealings

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.—The people of Rockwood intend celebrating the sixty-seventh birthday of Her Majesty the Queen by a grand demonstration The committee, consisting of Captain Schultz and Messrs S. Hayward and C. H. Easton, have collected a large sum of money for the purpose and is is intended to expend nearly $200 in prizes for sports and athletic games. A lacrosse match will take place in the afternoon between two well known clubs. The day's proceedings will be closed by a grand concert in the evening, in which the best musical and vocal talent of Guelph and Rockwood will participate. Full particulars in a few days.

Rockwood, April 20.

Rothsay Correspondence.

Mr. Hugh Montgomery, who has rented his farm and intends moving to near Goderich, to take charge of a large stock farm, sold his stock and implements on Saturday, the 17th. The day was very fine and a large crowd was present. The prices ranged high. Mr. Montgomery will be sadly missed by his many friends, who wish him every success in his new home.

Mr William Johnson, of the 10th concession, Maryboro, lost a very valuable mare last Saturday, from inflammation.

The farmers of this neighborhood are all busy ploughing, and making ready for sowing their spring crops.

The members of the I. O. G. T., of Rothsay, intend giving a free concert on the night of the first Tuesday in May. A fine programme is being prepared. Those who go will be sure to receive a treat.

Mrs King, who has been seriously ill for several months, is, we are very glad to say, so far recovered as to be able to visit her neighbors.

Rothsay, April 20, 1886.

Labour Notes.

Eight hundred stove moulders at Troy, N. Y., have been out on strike since Feb. 28th.

All the street car lines in New York, with one exception, resumed work Tuesday. The total number of men on strike on Monday was 10,020.

The United States Congressional Committee commenced its enquiries into the labour difficulties Tuesday.

Early Tuesday morning attempts were made to move trains on the Lake Shore out of Chicago, but the strikers intervened and the trains returned to the yard. A brakeman was knocked senseless.

The Toronto street car men have decided to follow the advice of the K. of L. Executive Committee; they will not strike. For the present they will sacrifice their principles and continue to work under the existing state of things.

Pain Killer is a purely Vegetable preparation, safe to keep and to use in every family. The simplicity attending its use, together with the great variety of diseases that may be entirely eradicated by it, and the great amount of pain and suffering that can be alleviated through its use, make it imperative upon every person to supply themselves with this valuable remedy, and keep it always near at hand.

VOTERS' LIST NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that

An Adjourned Court

will be held pursuant to "The Voters Lists Act," by His Honor the Judge of the County Court of the County of Wellington, at his Chambers, in the Court House, in the City of Guelph, on Monday, the 26th day of April, A. D. 1886, at 7 o'clock in the evening, to hear and determine the several complaints of errors and omissions in the Voters' List of the Municipality of the City of Guelph for 1886.

All persons having business at this court are required to attend at the same time and place.
RICHARD MITCHELL,
Clerk of the said Municipality.
Dated at Guelph, April 21, 1886. d4

EDUCATIONAL.

Boarding School for Young Ladies.

MISS MACLEAN assisted by first class masters and governess will resume Monday, April 26th, at her residence, 13 Kent-st., English, French, German, Music, (piano, violin, organ, voice culture), Painting and Drawing. Evening classes for book-keeping, &c. All the latest attractions for the little kindergartners. Circulars on application. a21d2w1

The Montreal Floods.

MONTREAL, April 20.—Early this morning the ice in the St. Lawrence commenced to shove, and the water rapidly receded from the inundated districts, allowing business and traffic to be resumed. No estimate of the probable loss can yet be formed, but it is feared that it will be very heavy. Navigation is expected to open at Montreal to-morrow.

Invisible but Instantaneous.

All pains or aches will be instantly removed by a few drops of Fluid Lightning applied over the affected parts. No time lost; no nauseous medicines needed; no poulticing or using greasy liniments. It will not blister or discolor the skin. Sold at 25c per bottle by Thos. S Petrie, Druggist. Sufferers from Neuralgia assure us that they never fear it when their house contains a bottle of Fluid Lightning.

THE reduced prices of B. B. Hughes spring goods attracts more customers than even the spring millinery openings and brass or string bands. The public know he is the only real wholesale dry goods man in Guelph. Go to him if you want your new spring goods at wholesale prices. d

One More Victory.

Once more the Mowat Government and the Province of Ontario have triumphed in the Courts over the Dominion rulers at Ottawa. In Toronto on Tuesday the Court of Appeal gave judgment in the case of the Queen vs. The St. Catharines Milling and Lumber Company confirming the judgment already rendered against the defendants in the Court below. This case involves the right of the Province to the timber, land and minerals in the disputed territory awarded to Ontario by the Privy Council. The Federal authorities, after that award was decided, maintained that under certain treaties with the Indians the timber and minerals were ceded to the Dominion. Mr. Mowat decided that no such title could be established, and took the steps to restrain the defendants the taking timber of the Province under a Dominion warrant, which have resulted so successfully in the courts. It is doubtful if the Tory heelers and officials who have been given Ontario timber lands by the Dominion Government will care to carry this suit any farther in the face of certain defeat. The St. Catharines Company hold 32,000 acres for which they must disgorge and the Dominion authorities must make full and ample restitution to the Province for what they have plundered. Mr. Mowat's level headedness and manly actions on behalf of Provincial rights are once more displayed, as are also the mighty poor position which Federal ministers occupy as constitutional lawyers and the miserable success of their policy of grasping aggression.

Local News.

MR. J. C. MCLEAN, of the Temple of Music, has just sold a splendid Heintzman piano to ladies of Loretto Convent. This is another proof of the high quality of these celebrated instruments.

ALL our exchanges report that the fall wheat has come through the winter capitally. With the warm weather of the past ten days' vigorous re-vegetation has set in, and everything thus far points to a heavy crop this season.

THE social in the Dublin street Methodist church on Friday evening promises to be a grand success. Several novel features will be introduced in this entertainment, and those who patronize it will, we are sure, be glad they have done so. The young ladies are resolved to spare no trouble or expense to make this the most attractive social of the season. d2

AT HOME.—The "At Home" in the lecture room of the Norfolk street Methodist church last night was so successful and enjoyable that the ladies have decided to hold another "At Home" to-morrow (Thursday) evening, with an entire change of programme. Everyone present last night expressed themselves highly pleased with the tastefully adorned room and the very superior quality of the programme presented. Commencing at eight o'clock. Admission 10 cents. d1

AT HOME.—The young people of Knox church gave an enjoyable "at home" in the basement of their church last evening, at which a very fair audience was present. The large basement was handsomely decorated with flags and banners, and a liberal display of bunting. There were also on exhibition relics of other days, notably swords and sheaths that had done duty in the war of 1812 and in the rebellion of 1837, and also others of a later date—one from the American war and one from Batoche. The two former instruments were very ancient looking articles, and a visitor on looking at these rusty notched blades could not help but think of the terrible bloodshed of those days. A number of other curiosities were on view, also illustrated works for any one to spend a few minutes over that wished. During the evening a programme of vocal and instrumental music was carried out, which was creditable to all who took part. A liberal supply of refreshments was handed round about nine o'clock, which appeared to be much enjoyed. The company separated about ten o'clock.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH Y. P. A.—Notwithstanding the many other attractions in the city last evening, a large and appreciative audience assembled in the lecture room of the Congregational Church, the occasion being the closing meeting of the Y. P. A. The chair was taken by the President, Mr. G. W. Clarke, a few minutes after eight o'clock. After introductory exercies Mr. McRoberts favoured the audience with a piano solo, which was much appreciated. Miss Edith Gausby then sang "The Death of Little Nell" in a charming and pathetic manner. The following piece was a recitation by Miss Edith Skinner, "The Hero of the Tower," which was admirably rendered. Miss Bessie Borthwick then sang "Grand Old Ocean." This contralto solo was well adapted to Miss Borthwick's full rich voice. The dialogue, "Orlando and Rosalind," from "As You Like It," was well recited by Mr. McRoberts and Miss E. Sprague. Then followed a vocal trio by the Misses S. McLaren, E. Gausby and B. Borthwick. A few minutes intermission was then given for social intercourse. The second part of the programme opened with a piano solo, "Les Rameaux" (Lugbach), by Miss Fannie McLaren; followed by a song the "Gay Hussar," which was exquisitely rendered by Mr. John Crowe. In response to an enthusiastic encore Mr. Crowe sang with great gusto, "I'm a Soldier now Lizette." The next item on the programme was "Ballad of Arabella," which was rendered in excellent style, and was fully appreciated by the audience. Then followed "Bonnie Sweet Bessie," by Miss Lettie Parker, which was very sweetly sung and received a hearty encore. "The Tyrolean Ducks," by Miss E. Gausby and chorus, caused a great deal of amusement. The Rev. D. MacGregor then made a few appropriate remarks, and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Fine and Warm.

SEEDING has commenced in the neighborhood of Guelph.

TUESDAY was the Jewish New Year's Day of 2199.

HUGH WALKER & SON received yesterday a large consignment of bananas.

FIVE parties will appear before the Magistrate to-morrow for allowing cows to run at large.

IT is about time that Chase's drinking fountain on the market square was set in working order for the summer.

THERE is someting the matter with the pipes leading to the fountain on St. George's Square, and men are at work discovering wherein lies the impediment.

THREE women who bore a rather doubtful reputation were ordered out of the city by the Chief of Police yesterday. They took the hint and departed.

THE Dundas hill, on the Brock Road, Chadwick's hill and the hill opposite Laycock's farm are almost impassable for conveyances from water rising on top of them.

ALD. HEWER received to-day a shipment of two car loads of potatoes, one from the County of Bruce and the other from Prince Edward Island, for seed and table use.

LAST night the till in the office of the Royal Hotel was relieved of some 50 or 60 cents, while the porter was showing some travellers, who arrived by the midnight train, to their rooms.

THE other day Mr. Chas. Willoughby in driving from Hamilton's hotel to Arkell got stuck on the road, the horse sinking up to the body on the top of the hill. It was some time before the animal was got out, assistance having to be procured.

BELL Band to-night at the rink. This band has been engaged for the balance of the season and will appear to-night and Good Friday for the first time. Their will also be a one legged race, distance one-half mile. This will prove a very amusing and laughable race. Ladies free. See advt.

MR. FRANK MIDDLETON, locomotive engineer of the C. P. R., who has been visiting his parents residing near Arkell since November last, leaves to-morrow for Kamloops, British Columbia. He is a brother of Robert Middleton, who was shot at Duck Lake on the outbreak of the rebellion.

ACCIDENT.—Wm Naismith, son of Mr. D. Naismith, yesterday afternoon slipped off the top of an ice box, and in falling one of his arms caught in a meat hook, tearing it from the middle of the arm to the wrist. Dr. McPhatter sewed up the wound. It will be some time before he will be able to use the arm.

H. C. STOVEL, formerly of Mount Forest Confederate, left last night for Napanee, where he assumes the position of manager of the Express, which has lately passed into the hands of Mr. J. C. Drewry. Mr. Stovel is a thorough newspaper man, and is bound to conduct the Express in an able manner. His many friends in Guelph and Mount Forest wish him success.

EARLY SOWING.—Mr. Walter Laing says that last year he commenced to plow on the 21st of April and this year on the 16th—as soon as the ground would permit. Last year he sowed on the 30th of the month and this year on the 19th, all of which goes to show that the season is very early, last season being considered extra early. Old settlers state who have been here over fifty years, that this is only the third time that they have witnessed such an early spring.

FISHING OUT OF SEASON.—Chief Randall will have Geo. Snelling, Guelph Township, before the Police Magistrate on a charge of catching trout in the Speed during the close season, which is from the 18th of September to the 1st of May. It is stated that Snelling caught several trout on the 17th of April, and hence the summons. The Chief is determined to bring every case he hears of of violating either the fishery or the game laws before the Magistrate. He is right, and will receive the support of every genuine sportsman in this direction.

NORFOLK ST. METHODIST CHURCH.—The "At Home" held in this church last evening under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society was a most successful affair. The usual plain appearance of the lecture room had been completely changed and carpets, curtains, centre tables, piano, easy chairs, sofas, lounges, pictures, paintings, bric-a-brac, books, views, stereoscopes, photographs, musical boxes and other interesting and appropriate garniture contributed in a large degree to the social character of the gathering. A very nice programme of vocal and instrumental music, recitations and readings was furnished by the Misses Stevenson, Buchani, Scroggie, Hatch, Scarff, Messrs Thomas, Zavitz and Prof James, and a lunch during the evening added its quota to the general enjoyment. The ladies intend to have another entertainment of a similar nature to-morrow evening, and all who had the pleasure of being present last evening can testify to the unique excellence of a Norfolk street Methodist "At Home."

PROPERTY SALE.—Mr. Wm. Bell has purchased for his daughter, Mrs. Dr. Kennedy, the residence of Mr. John A. Wood on Woolwich street, embracing the property in the rear on Cardigan street, on which is a frame house and stable, for $7,500. This includes several permanent fixtures in Mrs. Wood's residence such as window blinds, carpets, etc. Negotiations are on foot for the sale of Mr. Wood's grocery business on Upper Wyndham st., and the probabilities are that it will be purchased by Mr. Charles Watson and his brother Alfred, the former of whom has been in the employment of Mr. Wood for a number of years and is thoroughly acquainted with the business in its minutest particulars. They are enterprising young men, and should they purchase the business there is little doubt but they will succeed in retaining and even adding to the large trade heretofore carried on in these premises. It is said that Mr. Wood will take up his residence for a short time, at least, in Toronto.

Deputy Sheriff Williams, who was badly beaten by the strikers, while guarding Iron Mountain Railway property, at Little Rock, Ark., has received a cheque for $500 from Jay Gould.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

Mr. Gladstone is Gratified by Quebec's Expression.

LONDON, April 20.—Mr. Gladstone has cabled his acknowledgment of the receipt of the resolution adopted by the Quebec Assembly on the 16th inst. He has also mailed the following letter:

I am deeply gratified at the resolutions adopted by your honorable body. It is my belief that the people of England who have partial responsibility for the old misdeeds of the British Government and the people of Scotland, who have really none, will both concur in the wise and liberal views entertained by the Quebec Assembly.

A meeting of the City Liberal Association to-day adopted a resolution in favor of the second reading of the Home Rule Bill, and expressing the hope that Mr. Gladstone would succeed in pacifying Ireland. Sir John Lubbock's amendment declaring that the proposed Parliament in Dublin and the Land Purchase Bill would be injurious to the Kingdom was rejected by a large majority.

Some of the leading Liberals opposed to the separation of Ireland are forming a committee for the purpose of securing joint action.

It is understood that Lord Spencer's opposition alone prevents the abandonment of the Land Bill.

Mr. Chamberlain will make no further advances, but will await developments

DUBLIN, April 20.—It was announced at the fortnightly meeting of the Irish National League to day that $3,500 had been received in donations to the League Parliamentary Fund from America during the past two weeks, and $2,250 from Ireland. Lord Mayor Sullivan addressed the meeting, and said that while he could not pronounce Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule scheme equal to the ideal of the Nationalists, yet it was a measure that Ireland could honorably accept.

GLASGOW, April 20.—Michael Davitt addressed a crowded meeting of Irishmen at the City Hall here this evening. He hoped the prosperity that would result if the Bills were adopted would induce Parliament to extend still further Home Rule in Ireland. If the landlords stayed in Ireland and circulated money, trade would revive and Ireland would not need to resort to protection. He condemned the principle of the Parliament of the two orders, but urged the acceptance of the plan in the hope that it would soon be altered.

Mr. Healy said the question was one between the democracy and the aristocracy and that England's generous and warm-hearted reception of Mr. Gladstone's proposals was creditable and honorable to her.

Mr. Froude, the historian, has sent a telegram expressing hearty sympathy with the proposed meeting of the opponents of Mr. Gladstone's policy in Scotland and regretting his inability to attend owing to illness.

Herbert Gladstone, speaking at Bradford last evening said the Government would hold to its present Irish policy and would secure victory whether it required six months or six years.

CITY VOTERS' LIST.

Court of Revision of Voters List for the City for the Local Legislature.

At half past ten o'clock this morning Judge Drew opened the Court of Revision for the Local House, for the city. City Clerk Mitchell states that there are some 456 applications to be put on the roll but out of these there are quite a few who already appear on the voters list, and some who have their names wrongly spelled, so that when these are deducted the actual number will amount to about 430.

Mr. D. Guthrie, Q. C., and Mr. Hugh McMillan appeared for the Reformers and Mr. Coffee, Macdonald and Mr. Cutten for the Conservatives.

A few names on both sides were allowed by mutual consent, and it was then arranged with the Judge's approval that the Court should stand adjourned until next Monday night at seven o'clock, and in the meantime the representatives of both political parties are to meet and go over the lists, and mark off those names to which there is no objection, so that when the Court meets on Monday night it will only be necessary to produce evidence in support of those names to which there is objection.

All those Reformers who have been summoned to attend the Court will please bear in mind to be on hand on Monday evening at the Court, and those of them to whom there is no objection will be relieved from attendance immediately after the opening of the court.

THE grass has grown rapidly within the the past few days.

Fergus Correspondence.

AN OLD RESIDENT GONE.—Mr Alex Gerrie, saddle and harness merchant, Fergus, an old and well known resident, died on Friday. He has been in poor health for some weeks. The remains will be buried to-morrow (Wednesday) with Masonic honors. The funeral will no doubt be a large one, as he was much liked generally, and has been a long time doing business in Fergus.

SPRING WORK.—Ploughing commenced in this neighborhood on Saturday 17th. It is not general.

ACCIDENTS.—Mr Jas Milne, senior, of Garafraxa, drove in to the village, and was present at the jubilee services in Melville church on Thursday last, and when taking his horse out of Mr Couse's stable to start for home he was badly kicked on the back right up between the shoulder blade. He suffered very much and still does from the bruise and shock. He was injured inwardly, and will probably be some time in getting well. The horse belonged to Mr James Currie, was never known to kick, and had seemed to know better. It was 20 years old. A son of Mr J Hutchinson's in Nichol, fell off a hay loft on Friday last. He fortunately escaped any severe injury, though he fell about twelve feet, and struck on a beam with his back.

IMPROVEMENT.—The streets have been scraped, the dirt removed, and the village looks decidedly better. The boulevards are assuming their early summer green suit, and everything will soon be lovely.

VILLAGE FATHERS.—The road and bridge committee inspected the village and especially the streets yesterday. There is a good deal of work to be done in gravelling, ditching and more sidewalks to be laid and repaired.

MUSIC.—The band paraded the streets on Saturday night. The music was good. The boys deserve encouragement, as the band music enlivens the village during the summer and makes one more good attraction.

SPRING.—The thermometer stood only two or three degrees below eighty in the shade on Sunday. It still continues very hot. Spring work has begun in the country. Ploughing started on the 17th. In the village house cleaning, back-yard cleaning and gardening are the order of the day. Yesterday we had a heavy thunder storm with hail, about two p. m. There was no rain at Speedside nor in Upper Garafraxa, and little at Elora, so it is said.

FALL WHEAT—This crop is looking well in this section. If the good weather continues the fall wheat and grass fields will soon be green.

HORSES.—There was a large shipment of horses, 25 in number, from here to-day for the States. Good prices were paid, the average about $150, for solid general purpose horses.

EXCITEMENT.—The article in Saturday morning's "News" caused quite a fuss. The Conservatives were pale with fear lest it should be true. When John A. resigns or retires the loaves and fishes will soon follow they fear.

NEW.—F. Robinson's livery is ahead with a swell wagon with top ready for pic-nic or other summer parties. The waggon is a good one, built by Mr. J. Templin, and is a credit to the livery and builder.

GONE.—The old saw mill at Glenlammond was completely washed away the day following the smash-up. A lot of machinery went down the river.

RENTED.—Mr. A. Perry has, we understand, rented Mr. Wilson's saw mill. Mr. Sample will not be able to fix his up for use for some time. The flood has caused considerable loss to the mill men here. They have, however, started for Luther and the logs will soon be down the river.

CHANGE.—We understand that Mr James Philips, formerly of John A Wood's store, Guelph, and lately farming, has bought out Mr. Sherwood and will carry on his business in the old store We wish him success. Mr. Sherwood will be missed. He was always obliging and kept a good store. Mr. John White's family moved to Galt to-day. Mr. Philips goes into his house.

Fergus, April 20.

Rockwood Correspondence.

PERSONAL.—Mr George Dryden, who has been prostrated for several weeks by an attack of typhoid fever, is approaching convalescence.

LACROSSE.—A meeting of the Star Lacrosse Club was held on Monday evening for the purpose of organizing for the summer campaign. They will be pleased to hear from neighboring clubs. Mr John Jago is Secretary.

THE SCOTT ACT.—It is said that our local hotel keepers will carry out the spirit of the Act by closing their houses and refusing accommodation to all comers. Mr. Duffield is erecting a fence across the entrance to his stables and sheds, which certainly looks ominous.

A WANT SUPPLIED.—Heretofore those of our young men desirous of keeping up with the fashions have been obliged to transfer their trade to neighboring towns in order to keep abreast of the times. The necessity is now obviated by Mr J. N. Stinson, tailor, who is displaying a varied assortment of the latest and most fashionable goods in his shop, next door to the post office Mr Stinson will be found an expert in his calling, and honorable and straightforward in his dealings

THE QUEEN'S BIRTHDAY.—The people of Rockwood intend celebrating the sixty-seventh birthday of Her Majesty the Queen by a grand demonstration The committee, consisting of Captain Schultz and Messrs S. Hayward and C. H. Easton, have collected a large sum of money for the purpose and is is intended to expend nearly $200 in prizes for sports and athletic games. A lacrosse match will take place in the afternoon between two well known clubs. The day's proceedings will be closed by a grand concert in the evening, in which the best musical and vocal talent of Guelph and Rockwood will participate. Full particulars in a few days.

Rockwood, April 20.

Rothsay Correspondence.

Mr. Hugh Montgomery, who has rented his farm and intends moving to near Goderich, to take charge of a large stock farm, sold his stock and implements on Saturday, the 17th. The day was very fine and a large crowd was present. The prices ranged high. Mr. Montgomery will be sadly missed by his many friends, who wish him every success in his new home.

Mr William Johnson, of the 10th concession, Maryboro, lost a very valuable mare last Saturday, from inflammation.

The farmers of this neighborhood are all busy ploughing, and making ready for sowing their spring crops.

The members of the I. O. G. T., of Rothsay, intend giving a free concert on the night of the first Tuesday in May. A fine programme is being prepared. Those who go will be sure to receive a treat.

Mrs King, who has been seriously ill for several months, is, we are very glad to say, so far recovered as to be able to visit her neighbors.

Rothsay, April 20, 1886.

Labour Notes.

Eight hundred stove moulders at Troy, N. Y., have been out on strike since Feb. 28th.

All the street car lines in New York, with one exception, resumed work Tuesday. The total number of men on strike on Monday was 10,020.

The United States Congressional Committee commenced its enquiries into the labour difficulties Tuesday.

Early Tuesday morning attempts were made to move trains on the Lake Shore out of Chicago, but the strikers intervened and the trains returned to the yard. A brakeman was knocked senseless.

The Toronto street car men have decided to follow the advice of the K. of L. Executive Committee; they will not strike. For the present they will sacrifice their principles and continue to work under the existing state of things.

Pain Killer is a purely Vegetable preparation, safe to keep and to use in every family. The simplicity attending its use, together with the great variety of diseases that may be entirely eradicated by it, and the great amount of pain and suffering that can be alleviated through its use, make it imperative upon every person to supply themselves with this valuable remedy, and keep it always near at hand.

Dominion Experimental Farms

The Minister of Agriculture has given notice of a series of resolutions for the establishment and maintenance of experimental farms or stations, and for acquiring or setting apart lands for the same, for the purpose of rearing stock, and for conducting experiments in agriculture, horticulture, forestry, etc. The resolutions are based on a report presented to the House of Commons a few days ago by Professor Wm. Saunders, F. R. S. C. In conformity with this report the Government propose to establish a central farm or station near Ottawa, with not less than four hundred acres of land. This would serve as an experimental station for the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec. It is also proposed to establish one sub-section for Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island; one for Manitoba; one for the Northwest Territories, and one for British Columbia. These four substations would be under the charge of a superintendent for each, who would report to the chief superintendent at the Central station. About 200 acres would be deemed sufficient for the substations in the Maritime Provinces and in British Columbia. But in Manitoba and the Northwest it is recommended that six hundred and forty acres be set apart for such stations, so that there may be land sufficient to carry on experiments in stock raising and forestry on a fair scale.

Unlike our Agricultural College in Ontario these farms or stations would in no respect be educational, as no students would be taken, and no lectures or instruction given to any one. The object in view is purely experimental, and these experiments would embrace every department of agriculture, both practical and scientific, along with dairying. They would also include, as we have already stated, horticulture, forestry, entomology and botany. Chemistry would also form an important factor in the work, not only as regards the soil, but in regard to fertilizers and other cognate investigations. A thoroughly qualified chemist would be at the head of this department, and there would be equally well qualified men as heads of the other departments. Veterinary science would also be included, so that the treatment of diseases of animals may have the best skill, as the surgeon will have every opportunity of reporting on them to his chief. As will be seen from this outline the scheme is a very extensive one, and we refrain from giving any opinion on it until we have fuller information. The objects in view are most commendable and in the interest of agriculture. If the scheme is sufficiently matured, the machinery put in proper working order, efficient men put in charge, and the cost kept within proper bounds these stations would become of great value to the farming community throughout the Dominion, and create and keep up the interest in skilled agriculture.

The Report of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Turning to Professor Brown's report of what has been done in his department during the last year at the College it is satisfactory to learn that the dairy is receiving no small amount of attention there.

The significance of this is appreciated more when we reflect that in those older districts whence come a considerable number of the College students, constant cropping has exhausted what was once an almost endless mine of wealth—the fertility of the Virgin soil. Unless some rest can be procured for the worn out soil the worst consequences must ensue. The antidote to this is the establishment of more dairies and a substitution of grass culture for grain. We learn from the report before us that the necessity has not been lost sight of at the College, and that the butter factory and the dairy department are receiving a great amount of attention. Few but will agree with Professor Brown when he says:

"The question is not necessarily one of profits, but, under judicious management, to obtain light of every sort upon what is at present a sore point by the world's estimate of our average Provincial product. In doing this the position of the Centrifugal Separator should be argued, so that our people may have the best and latest,—the practical, the scientific, and he truth."

The experiments at the farm in exterminating the Canadian thistle have a touching interest for those who have been called on in the past to remove that sturdy native of our fields. The methods tried have no doubt the sanction of long experience and thorough training and we give them in full---

"This weed can be thoroughly exterminated without the loss of a crop as in fallowing, or by the almost equally expensive cutting in most crops, or by the cultivation of roots, either of which is not permanent. The agent we have found for this purpose is—the establishment and maintenance of permanent pasture. This may not be new to some, as many observers say nothing; at any rate it has never to my knowledge been brought under the particular notice of our farmers. Some farmers can tell us of natural meadows, orchards and lawns, without thistles, except it may be in odd spots, but what do our roadsides say, and nearly all the pasture that accompanies the rotation called hay in our system of cultivation? Many know of smothering out thistles by a very heavy crop of corn, or other green fodder, but this is temporary. When land is laid down to permanent pasture with the proper variety of grasses and clovers, under good average conditions, there is such a rush of growth during the first year, and such a close matting of everything in all subsequent years—such an early and continuous cropping of pasture, that nothing else has a chance of establishment. We have had this clearly demonstrated in all our experimental permanent pasture plots during the last ten years, where in other plots immediately adjoining, with any other crop—grain, roots and some fodder plants, singly—thistles were continually bothering, but, four feet distant on the pasture none existed. There is not only a smothering of the thistle, but a rotting of its stem deep down, and apparently the permanent extermination of the weed. It shall be my duty to tell in what way such pasture can be rotated with other crops so as to overtake what has long baffled the Province, and, at the same time, give greater returns than can possibly be got by any other method."

The public will no doubt eagerly listen to the story of how this can be done.

The surplus cattle in the farm realized, we are told, about $2,865, a rather handsome sum all things considered, and the gross revenue arising from the same source amounts to $3,473 per annum.

The details of the fire last fall of course are set out, the total loss amounting to about $30,287, of which $905 consisted of live stock and $3,126 of implements, machinery and tools.

The report of Mr. P. J. Woods, the farm foreman, a very clear and elaborate statement of the experiments carried on at the farm and the progress achieved, is a valuable addition to the report of Prof. Brown. Glancing down the list of animals sold during the year we find the highest price was paid for a Hereford cow purchased by Mr. H. Sorby, Guelph, for the sum of $350. The superiority of the Jersey cattle as butter producers was demonstrated in the tests of the year, it being found that while the milk of the Ayrshires yielded 37½ lbs. of butter to the hundred pounds of cream, and the Holstein 30¾lbs, the cream of the Jersey milk yielded 45 1-3 lbs. of butter from the same quantity, though if this report can be trusted the much vaunted Jersey even stands second to the Devon. The time it takes to churn seems from a very careful but very curious set of statistics to depend chiefly on the size of the globules in the cream. Where the globule is represented by 2.00, the time being 10 minutes, and where the globule is represented at 1.22, the time for the formation of butter being 40 minutes. The Guernsey cattle seem to take the lead as producers of cheese, that class making 14½ lbs. of cheese from 100 lbs. of milk, while the Holstein stands at the foot of the list with 9½ lbs from the same quantity of milk. The estimates of the various breeds are concisely summed up as follows:

"We require cattle directly and indirectly for beef production and cattle for the dairy; I know of no other local cattle want. In each of these we wish to obtain the greatest amount of the best through the most permanent source, and at the least cost. We are perfectly satisfied that Aberdeen Poll, Hereford and Galloways are not the best for the first purpose, although they are certainly good, and to place them as competitors for the second would be an admission of great ignorance indeed. To meet any thickheadedness allow the repetition that we are speaking for the average farmer of Ontario, and not for every farmer of the Province. It is not so easy, however, to dismiss the Jersey, Guernsey, Ayrshire and Holstein, but it has to be done. The three first are well enough known in Canada, and require no description now. Neither the Jersey, Guernsey, Ayrshire, nor Devon can possibly take the place of direct or indirect beef-makers; for the dairy they have strong claims, and hence the difficulty of many in choosing. Were the dairy to become one half of all our agricultural interest, and one-half our arable area became permanent pasture, we would hesitate in saying good by to all these breeds; but, will Ontario ever change from her six months' dry fodder and her top beef? We are also still of opinion that Ontario judgment will always admire the milk, and butter, and cheese, as seen through the greatest consistent allowance of flesh—aye, even to the disadvantage of the former things, so that could we possibly get all the desired value from an Ayrshire, Jersey, Guernsey, or Devon—their size and form are against them. To say that this is foolish, would be right commercially, but what is bred in the bone is said to be invaluable so long as it is believed."

On the whole the report is an interesting one and well calculated to increase the interest of Canadian farmers in the institution, which is maintained solely for their benefit in the Province of Ontario.

CAMPBELL'S

TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thomeson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show room of Messrs. Clark & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

Dominion Experimental Farms

The Minister of Agriculture has given notice of a series of resolutions for the establishment and maintenance of experimental farms or stations, and for acquiring or setting apart lands for the same, for the purpose of rearing stock, and for conducting experiments in agriculture, horticulture, forestry, etc. The resolutions are based on a report presented to the House of Commons a few days ago by Professor Wm. Saunders, F. R. S. C. In conformity with this report the Government propose to establish a central farm or station near Ottawa, with not less than four hundred acres of land. This would serve as an experimental station for the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec. It is also proposed to establish one sub-section for Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island; one for Manitoba; one for the Northwest Territories, and one for British Columbia. These four substations would be under the charge of a superintendent for each, who would report to the chief superintendent at the Central station. About 200 acres would be deemed sufficient for the substations in the Maritime Provinces and in British Columbia. But in Manitoba and the Northwest it is recommended that six hundred and forty acres be set apart for such stations, so that there may be land sufficient to carry on experiments in stock raising and forestry on a fair scale.

Unlike our Agricultural College in Ontario these farms or stations would in no respect be educational, as no students would be taken, and no lectures or instruction given to any one. The object in view is purely experimental, and these experiments would embrace every department of agriculture, both practical and scientific, along with dairying. They would also include, as we have already stated, horticulture, forestry, entomology and botany. Chemistry would also form an important factor in the work, not only as regards the soil, but in regard to fertilizers and other cognate investigations. A thoroughly qualified chemist would be at the head of this department, and there would be equally well qualified men as heads of the other departments. Veterinary science would also be included, so that the treatment of diseases of animals may have the best skill, as the surgeon will have every opportunity of reporting on them to his chief. As will be seen from this outline the scheme is a very extensive one, and we refrain from giving any opinion on it until we have fuller information. The objects in view are most commendable and in the interest of agriculture. If the scheme is sufficiently matured, the machinery put in proper working order, efficient men put in charge, and the cost kept within proper bounds these stations would become of great value to the farming community throughout the Dominion, and create and keep up the interest in skilled agriculture.

The Report of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Turning to Professor Brown's report of what has been done in his department during the last year at the College it is satisfactory to learn that the dairy is receiving no small amount of attention there.

The significance of this is appreciated more when we reflect that in those older districts whence come a considerable number of the College students, constant cropping has exhausted what was once an almost endless mine of wealth—the fertility of the Virgin soil. Unless some rest can be procured for the worn out soil the worst consequences must ensue. The antidote to this is the establishment of more dairies and a substitution of grass culture for grain. We learn from the report before us that the necessity has not been lost sight of at the College, and that the butter factory and the dairy department are receiving a great amount of attention. Few but will agree with Professor Brown when he says:

"The question is not necessarily one of profits, but, under judicious management, to obtain light of every sort upon what is at present a sore point by the world's estimate of our average Provincial product. In doing this the position of the Centrifugal Separator should be argued, so that our people may have the best and latest,—the practical, the scientific, and he truth."

The experiments at the farm in exterminating the Canadian thistle have a touching interest for those who have been called on in the past to remove that sturdy native of our fields. The methods tried have no doubt the sanction of long experience and thorough training and we give them in full:—

"This weed can be thoroughly exterminated without the loss of a crop as in fallowing, or by the almost equally expensive cutting in most crops, or by the cultivation of roots, either of which is not permanent. The agent we have found for this purpose is—the establishment and maintenance of permanent pasture. This may not be new to some, as many observers say nothing; at any rate it has never to my knowledge been brought under the particular notice of our farmers. Some farmers can tell us of natural meadows, orchards and lawns, without thistles, except it may be in odd spots, but what do our roadsides say, and nearly all the pasture that accompanies the rotation called hay in our system of cultivation? Many know of smothering out thistles by a very heavy crop of corn, or other green fodder, but this is temporary. When land is laid down to permanent pasture with the proper variety of grasses and clovers, under good average conditions, there is such a rush of growth during the first year, and such a close matting of everything in all subsequent years—such an early and continuous cropping of pasture, that nothing else has a chance of establishment. We have had this clearly demonstrated in all our experimental permanent pasture plots during the last ten years, where in other plots immediately adjoining, with any other crop—grain, roots and some fodder plants, singly—thistles were continually bothering, but, four feet distant on the pasture none existed. There is not only a smothering of the thistle, but a rotting of its stem deep down, and apparently the permanent extermination of the weed. It shall be my duty to tell in what way such pasture can be rotated with other crops so as to overtake what has long baffled the Province, and, at the same time, give greater returns than can possibly be got by any other method."

The public will no doubt eagerly listen to the story of how this can be done.

The surplus cattle in the farm realized, we are told, about $2,865, a rather handsome sum all things considered, and the gross revenue arising from the same source amounts to $3,473 per annum.

The details of the fire last fall of course are set out, the total loss amounting to about $30,287, of which $905 consisted of live stock and $3,126 of implements, machinery and tools.

The report of Mr. P. J. Woods, the farm foreman, a very clear and elaborate statement of the experiments carried on at the farm and the progress achieved, is a valuable addition to the report of Prof. Brown. Glancing down the list of animals sold during the year we find the highest price was paid for a Hereford cow purchased by Mr. H. Sorby, Guelph, for the sum of $350. The superiority of the Jersey cattle as butter producers was demonstrated in the tests of the year, it being found that while the milk of the Ayrshires yielded 37½ lbs. of butter to the hundred pounds of cream, and the Holstein 30¾lbs, the cream of the Jersey milk yielded 45 1-3 lbs. of butter from the same quantity, though if this report can be trusted the much vaunted Jersey even stands second to the Devon. The time it takes to churn seems from a very careful but very curious set of statistics to depend chiefly on the size of the globules in the cream. Where the globule is represented by 2.00, the time being 10 minutes, and where the globule is represented at 1.22, the time for the formation of butter being 40 minutes. The Guernsey cattle seem to take the lead as producers of cheese, that class making 14½ lbs. of cheese from 100 lbs. of milk, while the Holstein stands at the foot of the list with 9½ lbs from the same quantity of milk. The estimates of the various breeds are concisely summed up as follows:

"We require cattle directly and indirectly for beef production and cattle for the dairy; I know of no other local cattle want. In each of these we wish to obtain the greatest amount of the best through the most permanent source, and at the least cost. We are perfectly satisfied that Aberdeen Poll, Hereford and Galloways are not the best for the first purpose, although they are certainly good, and to place them as competitors for the second would be an admission of great ignorance indeed. To meet any thickheadedness allow the repetition that we are speaking for the average farmer of Ontario, and not for every farmer of the Province. It is not so easy, however, to dismiss the Jersey, Guernsey, Ayrshire and Holstein, but it has to be done. The three first are well enough known in Canada, and require no description now. Neither the Jersey, Guernsey, Ayrshire, nor Devon can possibly take the place of direct or indirect beef-makers; for the dairy they have strong claims, and hence the difficulty of many in choosing. To say that this is foolish, would be right commercially, but what is bred in the bone is said to be invaluable so long as it is believed."

"A BIG Majority."

GUELPH, April 19th, 1886.

Now that the event of the "opening season" has passed, when thousands were delighted with the rich musical treat which we were enabled to tender to them, and thousands were still more delighted with the magnificent display of lovely goods which adorned our Store and Show rooms, and the verdict of everybody in reference to the whole affair was that "Bollert is ahead by a big majority," we purpose settling right down to solid business, to give our customers the very best attention, and to further demonstrate, as we have already done, that No. 27, is not only the best place for music, but also the most satisfactory, reliable and profitable house to make your Dry Goods purchases.

Every Department is crowded with Beauty, Novelty and Value.

LEADING BOOT AND SHOE STORE.

New Goods, Low Prices.

We work a system of close margins, buy and sell for cash, every article good, reduced in price to the lowest point of profit compatible with success. We do not believe in the old exploded dodge, making our customers believe that we are selling goods below cost price, nor are we giving some articles away for nothing in order to sell others. Our theory and practice are that small profits yield large sales, and give us steady trade and contented customers. Our stock of Spring and Summer goods complete. We invite the ladies to see our $2.00 Gem Parlor Boot, which cannot be surpassed in price or quality. Leading Boot and Shoe Store.

CARPET HOUSE.

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thomoson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show room of Messrs. Clark & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes, fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

OTTAWA, April 19.

The Government got a good heckling on Monday last in connection with their assisted immigration policy. The matter was brought up by the Opposition in the interests of the mechanics and workingmen of the country, who have been placed in an unfair position by the Government in helping mechanics and others to come to Canada to compete with our resident population in the already over-stocked labour market. It is clear that the protests of the Opposition, backed as they are by the remonstrances of the Trade and Labour Councils, are having a good effect, for the amount expended in assisted passages last year was considerably less than the year before. It was amusing also, to notice how quickly the breath of popular opinion changes the views of some Tory members. For instance, Mr. Beaty, of Toronto, and Mr. Gault, of Montreal, chimed in with the Opposition in denouncing the system of assisted passages except for farm hands and domestic servants. Yet these gentlemen two years ago voted against a motion of Paterson's, of Brant, condemning assisted immigration. It is evident that the united action of the mechanics and labouring classes against this system has made sudden converts of these gentlemen, or rather that they are in fear of losing that class of votes.

The question of regulating the sale and manufacture of oleo-margarine engaged a good deal of attention last week. Mr. Taylor, the Tory member for Leeds, having been advised by the Government that they intended to legislate on the subject, sought to make a little capital by ventilating the matter the week before on a notice of motion. When the Government's proposal to impose a duty on any of the stuff imported, and also an excise duty on that manufactured in the country came up for discussion, it was met by an amendment proposed by Mr. Paterson, of Brant, that its importation be prohibited under a penalty of $200, together with the forfeiture of the goods. This was throwing a bombshell into the Ministerial camp. So strong was the feeling raised against this questionable substitute for butter that it was evident Mr. Paterson's amendment would carry. After a hurried consultation the Government saw that they would be obliged to accept it, which they did, and so the item was struck out of Mr. McLelan's list of amendments to the tariff. The subject will come up again, however, when the question of placing an excise duty on it and otherwise regulating its manufacture in Canada is discussed. It is doubtful now if the House in its present temper will allow it to be manufactured at all, and if so, it will be under the most stringent regulations as to the nature of the material of which it will be composed.

There was a long and animated debate on Thursday on the maladministration of the Government in regard to the Indians of the Northwest. Mr. M. C. Cameron, of Huron, opened the ball, and, as usual, pitched into the Government with hearty good will. Mr. Cameron is by no means an orator, but he is a sharp and effective speaker. He is by no means chary in his charges, which he makes always in plain and sometimes in bitter language. But he always speaks to the purpose, for he prepares his indictment with great care, and being an old and experienced Parliamentarian he knows just where to lay his hands on his facts and figures. He hits straight from the shoulder every time, and his attacks which are often given in rather sarcastic style, worry and annoy the Government and its supporters more than any other speaker on the Opposition side. Although his opponents denounce these charges as false and pretend to feel indifferent over his attacks, they really feel them keenly because he backs them up by ample proofs. Very few Conservatives indeed care to cross swords with Mr. Cameron for he is an ugly customer and a practised debater. His exposure of the Government's maladministration of Indian affairs was most complete and telling, and when the facts are known throughout the country they must have a most damaging effect on the Government. No one on their side made even a pretence of meeting or answering the charges.

The members on Saturday were greatly amused to hear about the stupid hoax which was perpetrated by the Toronto News in publishing a pretended farewell address by Sir John Macdonald. They were also amused to learn that not a few in the West thought it was a genuine document. It scarcely created a sensation here for the character of the News reports is well known, and, besides, it was soon found that it was but a clumsy paraphrase of George Washington's address on retiring from public life. No doubt Sir John enjoyed the joke himself. He is now able to go out daily in a carriage and may be expected some day soon to appear in the House. His recent attack however, has left its impression on him, and at his age it is doubtful if he will entirely recover from it.

Much regret is expressed among members at the death of Mr. David Thompson, late member for Haldimand. It is just a year since Mr. Thompson left Ottawa, being unable any longer to attend to his duties in the House. He was much respected by his fellow members and had considerable influence with them though he never spoke in the House. He sat for his county continuously from 1863, which is pretty good evidence of his popularity.

An incident occurred in this city last week which recalled the tragic murder of Thomas D'Arcy McGee. While some workmen were excavating for the erection of a new building on Sparks streets they came upon a memorial slab which had been erected on the spot where he had been shot down on the 7th of April, 1868. The tablet is of limestone but owing to its long burial beneath the surface it is quite brittle and on being raised the face of it became somewhat broken. The stone occupied a place in the building near the door and was smoothed and carved to commemorate the sad event. Some two years after the assassination a fire occurred in the building and this stone was lost in the debris and remained so until the workmen unearthed it. On the slab were engraved the following:—"Here fell on the 7th of April, 1868, by the assassin's bullet, Thomas D'Arcy McGee." Thus we have vividly brought back to mind this tragedy of eighteen years ago, when the distinguished Irish orator, poet, statesman and historian was struck down in the height of his fame.

On Thursday the House will adjourn over the Easter holidays till the following Tuesday.

THE JURY

We find that in the person of MISS TODD the Lion has the Dressmaker of Guelph.

That MISS MARRIOTT, the Milliner of this establishment, has shown herself to be unequalled.

That MR. McKENZIE, their new Cutter, has created the right impression and is already highly in favor with the young men of Guelph. His reputation as a first class Cutter is already established.

That they have the largest and best stock.

That they undersell all others.

And that for a genial and affable reception and courteous treatment the Lion is the place.

Base Ball.

THE GUELPH CORRESPONDENT OF THE TORONTO Mail SAYS:—The Toronto correspondent of the Philadelphia Sporting Life in his last letter attacks Mr. Sleeman in a manner that will meet with contempt from the base ball public of the United States and Canada, as the record of the two men are so well known.

Several of the Western Amateur League clubs are fishing for the services of some of the many amateur players who reside in this city. Some of them will accept.

So the old veteran, Charley Maddock, has decided to accept a situation with a club which does not bear the name "Maple Leaf." We are sorry, but say success to the old war-horse. Charley commenced his career as a ball tosser with the Leafs about twenty years ago, and has continued with them ever since. Who is there in the base ball world who does not know Charley, and who is there who does not know him for his manly character, kindly disposition and thorough integrity? His gentlemanly deportment, combined with his fidelity to his club, has made him deservedly popular in Guelph. We wish him every success in his new venture, and bespeak for him a hearty welcome in the Queen City.

With Furvis, Thyne and Dillon, Sleeman is well fixed for catchers. Another first-class pitcher will make the team complete. I do not wish to give the team a paper reputation, like so many of them are doing, still I am of the opinion that it will bother the best of them to do much with the Maple Leafs.

The Guelphs have already lost two of their best players in Maddock and Purvis.

There are some good ones left among them yet, especially that crack infielder Jimmy Hewer.

Geo. W. Bradley is doing great work for the Athletics of Philadelphia, both in the box and at short. Bierbauer, late of the Hamilton Prims, is also playing good ball for the same team.

Williams, left fielder, and George, shortstop, for the Leafs, are glass blowers by trade, but ball tossers from choice.

The Maple Leaf players will be dropping in any time between now and the 1st of May.

A book for every man, young, middle-aged and old. It contains 125 prescriptions for all acute and chronic diseases, each one of which is invaluable. So found by the Author, whose experience for 25 years is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any physician. 300 pages bound in beautiful French muslin, embossed covers, full gilt, guaranteed to be a finer work in every sense—mechanical, literary and professional—than any other work sold in this country for $2.50, or the money will be refunded in every instance. Price only $1 by mail, post paid. Illustrative sample free to any body. Send now. Gold medal awarded the author by the National Medical Association, to the President of which the Hon. F. A. Bissell, and associate officers of the Board the reader is respectfully referred.

The Science of Life is worth more to the young and middle aged men of this generation than all the gold mines of California and the silver mines of Nevada combined.—S. F. Chronicle.

The Science of Life points out the rocks and quicksands on which the constitution and hope of many a young man have been fatally wrecked.—Manchester Mirror.

The Science of Life is of greater value than all the medical works published in this country for the past 50 years.—Atlanta Constitution.

"The Science of Life is a superb and masterly treatise on nervous and physical debility.—Detroit Free Press.

There is no member of society to whom The Science of Life will not be useful, whether youth, parent, guardian, instructor or clergyman.—Argonaut.

Address the Peabody Medical Institute, or Dr W. H. Parker, No. 4 Bulfinch Street, Boston Mass., who may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill and experience. Chronic and obstinate diseases that have baffled the skill of all other physicians a specialty. Such treated successfully without an instance of failure. Mention MERCURY Guelph, Ont. m16dwly

War in Cable Rates.

A further cut in the cable rates to six cents a word is announced. The Commercial Cable Company, owned by Bennet and Mackay, has not yet joined in the cable rate war declared by the Atlantic cable companies in London last week. The company is dependent on the Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph company for its American connections, and cannot reduce its rates unless the latter reduce its land rates. Interesting developments are expected.

McGregor's Lung Compound.

Have you a bad cough, a chronic hoarseness, a feeling of lightness in the chest, weak lungs, or any similar complaint? If so, buy at once a bottle of McGregor's Lung Compound. It will cure you. It contains entirely new specifics, of which one dose is more effectual than a whole bottle of the old time remedies it is put up in 50c. and $1.00 bottles. Sold by Thos. S. Petrie, Druggist. Try it, and you will never have reason to complain.

CAPT. CLARK'S GALT CLASS.—The Brantford Expositor says:—On Thursday, May 6th, a company of ninety young ladies from Galt and vicinity, will give the promised calisthenic and musical entertainment in the roller rink in this city. The young ladies come under the patronage of the Dufferin Rifles, and are said to give a pleasing performance. Captain Clark, Adjutant of the 1st Brigade Field Artillery, Guelph, is drill instructor, and the music is under the direction of Guelph's prima donna, Mrs. Whitehead.

DEATHS.

BLACK—On April 21st, James Black, sr., of Eramosa, in his 69th year.

Funeral on Saturday, 24th, at 10 o'clock a.m., from his late residence to Everton Cemetery.

Local News.

HOT cross buns will be in order to-morrow.

THE wise father now oileth the front gate hinges.

PHYSICIANS look forward to the advent of the cucumber.

SOMEBODY should tell the Easter bonnet that it's still Lent.

MR. D. MCCRAE left for the Old Country this morning on business. He will be absent about two months.

MEN are employed digging a trench to lay water works pipes to the drinking fountains on St. George's Square.

THE contractors for the stone work of the unfinished portion of Our Lady's Church are getting ready to resume building operations.

ALD. LAMPREY, estate agent, has purchased for Mr. Wm. Edwards Mr. Wm. Matthews' story and a half brick house on Durham street for $1,100 cash.

THE Georgetown Herald complains that a number of people in that town are making their living dishonestly. These people are so bold that they picked the pocket of a stranger while engaged in Christian work in one of the churches.

LACROSSE.—Last night a meeting of those interested in organizing a lacrosse club for the season was held, about fifty being present. It was decided to have the first practice game to-morrrw afternoon at 2.30, and hold a meeting afterwards for the election of officers. The prospects for the year were talked over, and on the whole were considered good.

THE young ladies of the Dublin street Methodist Church seem to be practising womanly independence, at least they are going to have a social to-morrow night in which the sterner sex will not be allowed to take any part in the proceedings. This in itself speaks for its success. An excellent programme has been prepared.

THE social in the Dublin street Methodist church on Friday evening promises to be a grand success. Several novel features will be introduced in this entertainment, and those who patronize it will, we are sure, be glad they have done so. The young ladies are resolved to spare no trouble or expense to make this the most attractive social of the season. d2

IT will cost the company who are to start the Electric light in Galt some $25,000. This includes the purchase of the property. At a meeting of the Council on Monday night last, it was agreed to exempt the plant of the company from taxation for a period of ten years. The exemption does not apply to the mill property, only to the plant which they purpose adding to manufacture electric light.

CALISTHENICS.—Capt. Clarke, instructor of calisthenics, etc., of pupils attending the High and Central Schools will on Friday evening the 30th instant give his annual entertainment in the Speed Skating Rink with a class of girls and boys numbering 225. The programme on this occasion will be an entire change from those furnished formerly, and judging from previous entertainments of a similar nature given by Captain Clarke, it is sure to be a success to the smallest particular. Another feature of the proceedings will be a concert by the pupils. For some time past a class has been under training by Mrs. Whitehead, and this lady's ability as a vocalist and music teacher is sufficient warranty for the success of this part of the programme. Altogether the proceedings promise to be of a most pleasing nature. The admission is 25 cents, and the proceeds will be devoted towards the building of a drill room at the Collegiate Institute.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

GOOD FRIDAY being the fish and oyster day of the season, I have just received a large consignment of fresh oysters, halibut, haddock, cod, whitefish, salmon trout, &c. George Williams, 81 and 83 Upper Wyndham street.

"AT HOME."—Remember the "At Home" in the lecture room of the Norfolk street Methodist church this (Thursday) evening, at eight o'clock. Miss Stevenson has the programme in hand, which fact will ensure a first class entertainment. Admission, 10 cents. d1

MR. HEAKES, architect, Toronto, and Mr. Warden, Hamilton, are at the Agricultural College to-day making drawings and plans for the new buildings to replace those destroyed by fire last year. They will likely complete their work to-morrow, and it is supposed tenders will be advertised for in the beginning of next week.

MR. JOHN SMITH has sold for Mrs. Biscoe the Chisholm house and grounds, near the Great Western railway station, to Mr. C. Walker for $2,000, and the residence of the late Mr. Biscoe, on the Eramosa hill, to Mr. D. Guthrie, who has occupied the property since the owner left here, for something over $5,000.

BASE BALL.—The Raymond base ball club have reorganized for the season. They held a meeting the other night when the following players were elected subject to change: James Hunter, change pitcher; Albert Wicks, change catcher; Wm. Keough, s. s.; Harvey Barry, 1b; Wm. Biecker, c.; Fred. Dyson, p.; James Newbigging, 2b; John Burgess, r. f.; John Fairley, c. f. This club is now prepared to receive challenges from any other manufactory or trade in the city.

KNOX CHURCH, ACTON.—The Free Press says: Rev. Dr. Torrance, of Guelph, preached impressive sermons in the Presbyterian Church last Sabbath. At the close of the morning service the congregation was asked to vote on the petition to Presbytery for leave to extend a call. The vote was unanimously in favour of the action. A public meeting of the congregation will be held next Monday evening to appoint commissioners to support the petition before the Presbytery, and to determine the amount of stipend the congregation is prepared to offer.

I. O. O. F. CONCERT.—The concert to be given by the daughters of Rebekah on Monday evening next, April 26th, promises to be one of the best concerts of the season. The following talent has been secured for the occasion: Madam Cleomati, of Toronto, soprano, comes highly recommended by the Toronto press as a singer of ability and sweetness; the Gardiner Bros., of Hamilton, in their comic specalities and bango accompaniments; Mr. Shupe, of Galt, in his comic recitations, together with Mrs. Shultz, Rockwood, the Misses Stevenson, Mrs. Harvey and Messrs. Pipe, Jones and Spragge, of this city. The plan of the Hall was opened on Monday and up to last evening 175 seats were reserved.

THE BRESLAU BRIDGE.—The Galt Reformer says: The proposition made by the representatives of Waterloo Township to the County Council on Thursday last, to grant $5,000 towards the erection of the Breslau bridge, provided the county would assume it at once and erect it within one year, was not entertained, only the three representatives from Waterloo voting for it. The opinion is now pretty general that the law passed at last session under which the maintenance of all bridges over 100 feet in towns and townships would be thrown on the counties, will never come into force. Its operation was suspended for one year, and the probabilities are that at the end of that time the whole matter will be brought up for discussion and the conclusion arrived at last year negatived.

SHOEING A HORSE.—Messrs. Palmer & Alexander, horse buyers, purchased recently a four year old colt from a farmer in Puslinch, with the understanding that the horse had to be delivered shod. The animal was brought in late on Tuesday evening by the farmer, who paid Mr. John Hooper the regular price for shoeing. Yesterday morning the operation commenced. The blacksmiths struggled for over an hour in trying to get the beast to lift its front foot to have a shoe fitted on. This it would not permit, and kicked so viciously with front and rear feet that they were fain to leave it alone. The animal was taken out to the yard of the Smithy in the afternoon, when, after another hour's work it was shod on all fours, but not before Mr. Wm. Hooper received a severe kick on the side. The proceedings were witnessed by a number of people, two or three of whom narrowly escaped from being kicked.

SPEED ROLLER RINK.—A fair audience, notwithstanding the hot weather, greeted last night the initial appearance of the Bell Organ Band. All expressed themselves well pleased with the character of the selections and the musical ability displayed by this organization. The one-legged race had eight contestants, who, in their desperate exertions to secure first place, had many tumbles, creating considerable amusement and laughter. After an exciting and interesting race Jos. Bunyan came in first, R. Fields second, and M. Bunyan third. To-morrow (Good Friday) Bell's Organ Band will be present, when there will also be on the programme wheelbarrow and one-legged races. These races are amusing, and cannot fail to draw a large audience.

TO-MORROW being Good Friday no paper will be issued from this office.

MR. EVERETT O. FELT, London, General Agent for the Joseph Hall Manufacturing Company, is in town.

THE road and bridge committee of the Galt town Council has been granted $4,000 for expenses for the year.

WILL BE MISSED.—Harriston Tribune:—"Robt. McCready, son of Postmaster McCready, has accepted a situation in the Galt post office. Bob is a good, careful, steady, civil boy. He will be missed in town." Mr. McCready was employed for some time in the Guelph post office, and fully bore out the recommendation given to him above.

NEW LIVERY STABLE.—Mr. Jas. Johnson's new livery stable, which has been in the course of erection, on Macdonnell street, for the past six months is now completed. The building, which is of red brick, with white facings, is an addition to the appearance of the street on which it is erected. It has all the modern improvements, and is said to be one of the finest stables in Western Ontario. Inside the building everything is fitted up in first-class style. There is a very fine collection of livery horses, suited to harness, the saddle, family and general use, single and double teams, etc. All the carriages are either new or have been thoroughly renovated, and Mr. Johnson claims to have the best lot of conveyances of every description of any stable in the city. The stock of harness, robes, blankets, whips, dusters, etc., are all new and of the best make. To this already first-class and finely equipped stable he intends shortly to add more horses and several new and elegant carriages, and seems determined to spare no pains or energy to make his the leading stable of the city. In another column of this paper a fine engraving of the new building will be found.

CLYDESDALE EXPORTATION.—The North British Agriculturist of April the 7th says: A small but very superior shipment of Clydesdale horses was made from Liverpool on Saturday last, by Mr. John Duff, Everton P. O., Ontario, Canada, who for over twenty years has been at intervals exporting Clydesdales to Canada. The present shipment includes the three year old horses "Reform" (3947), "Duke of Flemington" vol. 9, and "Lyon Chief" (3812). The first named horse was purchased from Mr. George Dunbar, Perth, and was one of the short leet of seven at the recent stallion show. His sire was the Gordon Castle stud horse "Prince Albert Victor" (617), a son of the Merryton "Prince of Wales" (673), and bred there, while his dam is a superior mare owned by Mr. Bruce, Collithie, Gartly. "Duke of Flemington" is a horse of fine quality, and very highly bred. His sire, "Lord Erskine" (1744), is well known to be one of the best breeding stallions in Scotland, and his dam was a very fine mare owned by Professor M'Call. She was bred in Bute, and got by a son of "Keir Samson" (741), out of a mare got by the noted breeding horse "General Williams" (326), the property of the late Mr. Barr, Erskine. "Lyon Chief" was bred in Perthshire. His sire was the horse "Fitzlyon" (1656), which gained first prize at the H. & A. S. Show at Glasgow in 1882, when three years old, and the East Lothian premium the same year. His dam was got by the prize horse "Marquis" (517), bred by Mr. Andrew Montgomery, Boreland, Castle-Douglas, and winner of the fourth prize at the H. & A. S. Show at Glasgow in 1875 when six years old, the West Lothian premium in 1873, Carrick Farmers' premium in 1874, and Strathearn Central premium in 1875. His granddam was got by "Wellington" (906), which gained first honors at the H. & A. S. Show at Inverness in 1865.

Three boys, aged 12, 10, and 7, disappeared suddenly from their homes in Quincy, Illinois, on the 4th instant, and no trace of them could be found until Wednesday, when a man getting a load of sand found the three bodies in the sand bank, where they had evidently been buried alive by a cave-in while playing.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Two Prisoners Perish in the Flames at Cornwall.

CORNWALL, Ont., April 21.—Early this morning a fire was discovered in the lower portion of the Town Hall. The alarm was given, and the fireman of the steam engine, who is also caretaker of the hall and lives near by, endeavored to get at the cells, where two men were confined. The torrent of smoke that rushed out prevented his entrance. With great difficulty some men made their way to the cells and got out the body of a man named John Craig. The other man in the cells was a French barber named John Louvie, and his body was not extricated for fully an hour afterwards, when it was nearly cooked. The fire was put out after it had been burning about two hours. It is supposed to have been started by one or other of the prisoners smoking in the cells, as they were not searched previous to being placed there. There was no watchman on the premises. The Council Chamber, etc., on the ground floor are a complete wreck, the Music Hall is badly damaged by water and smoke, but the insurance is sufficient to cover all loss.

Grand Trunk Report.

LONDON, Eng., April 21.—The report of the Grand Trunk Railway Company just issued deals at length with the position which the company now occupies. The total decrease in the net receipts for the half year was £110,000. This decline is attributed to the depression in trade, the war of rates, and the loss of traffic caused by the smallpox epidemic in Montreal. The directors, however, consider the general finances of the company in a satisfactory condition, as the company is in a position to secure a full proportion of the general advantages confidently expected from more peaceful arrangements now established among the American railway systems.

Compliments to a Toronto Q.C.

Montreal Star:—A great compliment was paid to Mr. S. H. Blake, Q.C., the other day. He was counsel for the defence in the libel case of ex-Mayor Dunnet, of Belleville, against the vestry of Christ Church, at Belleville, the suit arising out of a circular issued by the vestry touching upon the character of the plaintiff, and the matter has been referred to Mr. Blake for judgment, both parties agreeing to abide by his decision. It is not unusual to compromise such cases by the arbitration of third parties, but it is very unusual to refer the matter to the counsel for the defence. It is an acknowledgment of Mr. Blake's big reputation for fairness and integrity.

NEW YEAR IN BURMAH.

It is Celebrated by Incendiarism and Bloodshed.

LONDON, April 21.—A despatch from Mandalay says: To-day being the Burmese New Year fifty followers of Myingzaing Prince set fire to this city in several places at 4 o'clock in the morning. Hundreds of houses have been burned. The treasury, postoffice and smaller buildings within the palace enclosure have been destroyed. The main buildings of the palace are uninjured. One third of the walled city has been destroyed. The troops pursued and captured several incendiaries. Mr. Devine, the English military apothecary, was killed. A number of encounters took place outside the city with three hundred of the Prince's followers, several of whom were killed, and many were wounded on both sides.

Advices from Mandalay say that the British expedition sent against the Kachyen tribe has been compelled to retreat. The rebels, in overwhelming force, made a desperate attack on the British, charging into a battery of mountain guns and driving the expedition back. Reinforcements for the expedition have been ordered from Mandalay. The rebels have captured Meegandet police station. They bound the garrison with cords and massacred 23 persons.

Lord Dufferin, Viceroy of India, telegraphs that he does not attach any importance to the news received yesterday and to-day from Burmah. The Viceroy states that, according to his official information, only two British soldiers were wounded and none killed in the encounters which took place during the attempts yesterday of the rebels to burn Mandalay. Lord Dufferin adds that skirmishes between British troops and Dacoits will probably be daily occurrences until Dacoity is entirely suppressed.

The Bellicose Greeks.

LONDON, April 21.—The representatives of the Powers, including M. Grenadois, the Greek Charge d'Affaires, had a lengthy conference this afternoon with Lord Rosebery, Minister of Foreign Affairs, respecting the Greeks difficulty. An ultimatum was despatched to Greece to-night intimating that the Powers were in perfect accord in fixing a limit to the time within which Greece must disarm and that otherwise serious steps would be taken to enforce their demands.

Turkey has entrusted her cause growing out of the bellicose attitude of Greece to Lord Rosebery, who is entirely in accord with Bismarck respecting the difficulties in the East. Sir Horace Rumbold, British Minister at Athens, in a despatch to the Foreign Office, admits that advice and warning have been hopelessly wasted on Greece. An ultimatum of the Powers to Greece is momentarily expected to be issued.

New Trial Granted.

LONDON, April 21.—The Queen's Proctor, after testing the evidence in the divorce case of Crawford v. Crawford and Dilke, has intervened, and the case will be reopened. Subpœnas are being issued for numerous new witnesses, including Sir Charles Dilke's late butler and footman, and the attendance of "Fanny," Sir Charles' alleged mistress, will be secured if possible. Sensational evidence is expected. The Queen's Proctor will apply for a new trial on May 4. Mrs. Crawford will testify to prove her confession to her husband. Sir Charles Dilke will then swear a categorical denial. Sir Charles will be defended by Sir Henry James.

MR. GEO. A ROSS, B. A., mathematical master of the Galt Collegiate Institute, has handed in his resignation to the Board. It is understood that his intention is to study law.

The Evening Mercury

THURSDAY EVE'G APRIL 22, 1886.

The Treatment of the Indians.

The treatment of the Indians in the Northwest by the Government and their agents has lately been the subject of public attention, especially since the rebellion of last year was put down. During the fall, and even at an earlier period, reports began to circulate that the Indians were preparing for an uprising. The country was greatly alarmed in consequence, and even the Government, ever slow to credit any reports from the Northwest, began to believe there was something in them and talked at one time of sending out a flying column to overawe the refractory tribes. Happily the fear of any immediate uprising was dispelled and this column is not to be sent out. But there is little doubt that there exists a general discontent among the Northwest Indians, and that very little provocation or encouragement would induce them to rise in arms. At the time of the Riel revolt he induced a few of the Indians to join him. But they did not understand the causes for which he brought about the outbreak, and it is generally believed that in joining him they did so more for the purposes of plunder and because they were being half starved by the Government.

These poor people have found an able champion in Parliament in the person of Mr. M.C. Cameron, of Huron. On Thursday, on the motion of going into Committee on Supply, he made a most effective and eloquent speech on the treatment of the Indians, and one which was very damaging to the Government. He showed that the whole Indian department was frightfully mismanaged, and he backed up his statements by evidence taken from the blue books and from other official documents. He proved that the grossest immorality has been practiced by white agents of the present Government in the Northwest territories, and that at some points fifty per cent. of the Mounted Police were at one time stricken with a most revolting and loathsome personal disease due to immorality and licentiousness. It was shown that one Government appointee imported from England, kept a whole harem of Indian girls and women to gratify his lust; and that Indian girls who were trained in the Christian mission schools were purchased by lustful white men at prices ranging from ten to twenty dollars each, after the girls had passed beyond the influence of the schools. No wonder that such statements should cause the blush of shame to mantle the cheek of every Canadian who reads such revolting details. No wonder that Christian missionaries in the face of such shameful occurrences find their efforts all but paralyzed. He also showed that the supplies granted the Indians by the Government were not in any way in accordance with the obligations due the red skins by the Government. Pork was supplied to the Indians at 25 cents per pound when beef could be supplied at 12½ cents. Salt pork was death to the Indians while beef was strength and health to them. The Government allowed the Indians to be frozen and starved to death. This he proved from the reports of the Government officials and other returns. He charged the Government with the starving of these Indians. In respect to the ill treatment and starvation of Indians, Lieut.-Gov. Dewdney suppressed the original reports from the Government. At Indian Head, File Hills and other places a number of Indians died from this policy of starvation by the Government, and Lieut.-Government Dewdney sent word to the other sufferers that if they disclosed the facts their rations would be stopped. He charged these things against the administration and challenged the Government to appoint a commission to enquire into the matter; he was convinced that all could be satisfactorily proven. The Indians were robbed by the Government officials and middlemen. He went on to show that $87,000 was charged in one year for agricultural implements supplied to the Indians, an amount of money which never could be expended in that way. One band of Indians was said to have got 1,160 hoes, and the following year they got 1,014. The travelling expenses of Government officials were ridiculously high. Some included in their bills silk handkerchiefs and the like. Travelling expenses in the Northwest were extraordinarily low, all that was necessary being a buckboard and a few Indian ponies. Then in regard to garden seeds supplied the Indians he pointed out that in three years $2,722 was charged for this purpose. That amount was more than sufficient to seed every garden in the Northwest, from the boundary of Manitoba to the foot of the Rocky Mountains. There was no doubt but the Indians were robbed by carpet baggers and camp followers of the Government, men who minimize the truth and who are of bad habits. It was also shown from returns brought down that a quantity of flour supplied by I. G. Baker & Co. was totally unfit for human food, and was the cause of death among the Indians. This stuff, too, was charged at $8 per sack when the same quantity of good quality sold for $3.90. No wonder the Tory member for Montreal West indignantly exclaimed:—"That is the last contract that firm will get from this Parliament. It is disgraceful."

If any corroboration of Mr. Cameron's statements was required we find it in a report regarding the insufficiency of food to the Indians, which was laid before Parliament the other day. We glean from it the following facts:

A letter from Mr. W. Anderson, Indian agent, Edmonton, writing to the commission at Winnipeg, sets forth that on March 25th, 1882, he shipped supplies to Whitefish Lake, Lac la Biche, as the Indians were, according to Mr. Hardisty's report, starving at that time, owing to the catch of fish having failed, and the early frost had ruined their grain and caused the loss of many potatoes. Mr. Irvine, Commissioner of the Northwest Mounted Police, writes on the 23rd of September, 1882, that he found 2,000 Indians at Qu'Appelle all in a starving and wretched condition for want of clothing. These Indians said that that was their country, and they intended to remain there, and they asked aid by the issue of provisions. "In the present starving condition," says Mr. Irvine, "I fear if no food is given them that they may hereafter commit depredations which will bring them into collision with the force." This letter was to Lieut.-Gov. Dewdney. Mr. Norman, also of the Mounted Police, writes on the 2nd of October, from Fort Walsh, that the provision issued was barely sufficient to sustain life. This letter was addressed to the Indian Commissioner at Winnipeg. Mr. Fred. White, on the 19th October, 1882, writes Lieut.-Gov. Dewdney, from Fort Walsh, N. W. T., that 2,000 Indians were naked and on the verge of starvation. Lieut.-Governor Dewdney writing to Col. Irvine on the 27th of October, says that he would regret to see the Indians come into collision with the police. It was with reluctance that he allowed Mr. Macdonald to go to Fort Walsh to make payments to the Indians. The acting Indian Commissioner at Regina received on the 7th of February, 1884, a letter from Mr. Q. C. Edwards, M. P., stating that in Piapot's camp disease was prevalent, especially "starvation," if that could be called a disease. Death was caused by the scanty supply of food. The same story of "destitution," "starvation" and hunger pervades the whole correspondence from 1882 down to the present day.

The above are only but a few items in the long list of damning evidence by which Mr. Cameron supported his charge that the whole management of Indian affairs in the Northwest has been characterized by mismanagement, extravagance and culpable neglect. Sir Hector Langevin in a most feeble reply did not even pretend to meet the charges brought against the Government, but whined becaused they had been made in Sir John Macdonald's absence. In fact not a single speaker on their side ventured to deny the truth of the statements made, because they could not. The shameful disclosures remain unanswered and unchallenged. All that the Government could do, and did do, was to call in the members and vote down Mr. Cameron's amendment. And this shows the way that similar disclosures against the Government are dealt with. Surely it is time for the people at last to awake to their sense of duty in reference to this Government, which is piling up such a terrible record of wrong doing against itself.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 20.

In the Commons to-day Mr. Foster's Bill, providing for the transfer of the Cape Race lighthouse, was read a third time.

Mr. Thompson's Bill to make further provision respecting summary proceedings before justices and other magistrates was passed in committee.

Sir H. Langevin's Bill to expedite the issue of letters patent for Indian lands was read a second time.

On motion to go into supply, Mr. Laurier moved an amendment condemning the policy of the Government with respect to the extinguishment of the Indian title of the Halfbreeds. A debate arose in which Messrs. White (Cardwell), Davies, Foster, Mills, Dawson, and Mitchell took part. The amendment was lost by 106 yeas to 64 nays, eleven Conservatives and Bleus voting with the Opposition.

The House went into supply, and passed several items.

OTTAWA, April 21.

In the Commons to-day Mr. Thompson introduced a Bill respecting Insurance.

Mr. McLelan, replying to Mr. Edgar, made a statement regarding foreign treaties affecting Canada.

Mr. Landry (Montmagny) obtained an order for the correspondence between the Government and the Medical Commission appointed to inquire into the mental condition of Riel.

A long discussion took place on Mr. Jenkins' motion for papers respecting the suspension of the trips of the "Northern Light" in February, in which fault was found with the Government by the Prince Edward Island representatives on both sides of the House for not maintaining a more efficient communication between the Island and the mainland.

In the evening a number of private bills were advanced a stage. Mr. Robertson's bill to make it a misdemeanour to leave unguarded holes in the ice on frequented waters, was read a third time. Mr. McCarthy's Bill to amend the Railway Act by providing for compensation for lands injured by, as well as lands taken for railway construction, was read a third time. The Bill to authorize agnostics to testify in criminal cases, was read a second time on division—yeas 86, nays 52. Mr. Muntock's Bill to amend the Contagious Diseases (Animals) Act by making better provision for compensation, for slaughtered animals, and in other respects, was read a second time and passed in Committee of the Whole.

A motion to authorize the Easter holiday from 6 p. m. to-day (Thursday) to 8 p. m. Tuesday was carried, and the House adjourned at 11 p m.

The Oregon Investigation.

LIVERPOOL, April 21.—Counsel for the owners of the Oregon in summing up the evidence taken by the Board of Trade Committee asked that the Court render a decision that the Oregon foundered solely because the bulkhead door failed to close. Counsel for the Board of Trade, in his argument, admitted that the evidence adduced at the hearing had dissipated many false rumors regarding the sinking of the vessel, and stated that in his opinion it was proved conclusively that a schooner collided with the steamer. In conclusion he asked the Court to say whether a proper lookout was kept on board the Oregon. Judgment will be delivered to-morrow.

"A BIG Majority."

GUELPH, April 19th, 1886.

Now that the event of the "opening season" has passed, when thousands were delighted with the rich musical treat which we were enabled to tender to them, and thousands were still more delighted with the magnificent display of lovely goods which adorned our Store and Show rooms, and the verdict of everybody in reference to the whole affair was that "Bollert is ahead by a big majority," we purpose settling right down to solid business, to give our customers the very best attention, and to further demonstrate, as we have already done, that No. 27, is not only the best place for music, but also the most satisfactory, reliable and profitable house to make your Dry Goods purchases.

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The showroom of Messrs Clarrk & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

The Treatment of the Indians.

The treatment of the Indians in the Northwest by the Government and their agents has lately been the subject of public attention, especially since the rebellion of last year was put down. During the fall, and even at an earlier period, reports began to circulate that the Indians were preparing for an uprising. The country was greatly alarmed in consequence, and even the Government, ever slow to credit any reports from the Northwest, began to believe there was something in them and talked at one time of sending out a flying column to overawe the refractory tribes. Happily the fear of any immediate uprising was dispelled and this column is not to be sent out. But there is little doubt that there exists a general discontent among the Northwest Indians, and that very little provocation or encouragement would induce them to rise in arms. At the time of the Riel revolt he induced a few of the Indians to join him. But they did not understand the causes for which he brought about the outbreak, and it is generally believed that in joining him they did so more for the purposes of plunder and because they were being half starved by the Government.

These poor people have found an able champion in Parliament in the person of Mr. M.C. Cameron, of Huron. On Thursday, on the motion of going into Committee on Supply, he made a most effective and eloquent speech on the treatment of the Indians, and one which was very damaging to the Government. He showed that the whole Indian department was frightfully mismanaged, and he backed up his statements by evidence taken from the blue books and from other official documents. He proved that the grossest immorality has been practiced by white agents of the present Government in the Northwest territories, and that at some points fifty per cent. of the Mounted Police were at one time stricken with a most revolting and loathsome personal disease due to immorality and licentiousness. It was shown that one Government appointee imported from England, kept a whole harem of Indian girls and women to gratify his lust; and that Indian girls who were trained in the Christian mission schools were purchased by lustful white men at prices ranging from ten to twenty dollars each, after the girls had passed beyond the influence of the schools. No wonder that such statements should cause the blush of shame to mantle the cheek of every Canadian who reads such revolting details. No wonder that Christian missionaries in the face of such shameful occurrences find their efforts all but paralyzed. He also showed that the supplies granted the Indians by the Government were not in any way in accordance with the obligations due the red skins by the Government. Pork was supplied to the Indians at 25 cents per pound when beef could be supplied at 12½ cents. Salt pork was death to the Indians while beef was strength and health to them. The Government allowed the Indians to be frozen and starved to death. This he proved from the reports of the Government officials and other returns. He charged the Government with the starving of these Indians. In respect to the ill treatment and starvation of Indians, Lieut.-Gov. Dewdney suppressed the original reports from the Government. At Indian Head, File Hills and other places a number of Indians died from this policy of starvation by the Government, and Lieut.-Government Dewdney sent word to the other sufferers that if they disclosed the facts their rations would be stopped. He charged these things against the administration and challenged the Government to appoint a commission to enquire into the matter; he was convinced that all could be satisfactorily proven. The Indians were robbed by the Government officials and middlemen. He went on to show that $87,000 was charged in one year for agricultural implements supplied to the Indians, an amount of money which never could be expended in that way. One band of Indians was said to have got 1,160 hoes, and the following year they got 1,014. The travelling expenses of Government officials were ridiculously high. Some included in their bills silk handkerchiefs and the like. Travelling expenses in the Northwest were extraordinarily low, all that was necessary being a buckboard and a few Indian ponies. Then in regard to garden seeds supplied the Indians he pointed out that in three years $2,722 was charged for this purpose. That amount was more than sufficient to seed every garden in the Northwest, from the boundary of Manitoba to the foot of the Rocky Mountains. There was no doubt but the Indians were robbed by carpet baggers and camp followers of the Government, men who minimize the truth and who are of bad habits. It was also shown from returns brought down that a quantity of flour supplied by I. G. Baker & Co. was totally unfit for human food, and was the cause of death among the Indians. This stuff, too, was charged at $8 per sack when the same quantity of good quality sold for $3.00. No wonder the Tory member for Montreal West indignantly exclaimed:—"That is the last contract that firm will get from this Parliament. It is disgraceful."

If any corroboration of Mr. Cameron's statements was required we find it in a report regarding the insufficiency of food to the Indians, which was laid before Parliament the other day. We glean from it the following facts:

A letter from Mr. W. Anderson, Indian agent, Edmonton, writing to the commission at Winnipeg, sets forth that on March 25th, 1882, he shipped supplies to Whitefish Lake, Lac la Biche, as the Indians were, according to Mr. Hardisty's report, starving at that time, owing to the catch of fish having failed, and the early frost had ruined their grain and caused the loss of many potatoes. Mr. Irvine, Commissioner of the Northwest Mounted Police, writes on the 23rd of September, 1882, that he found 2,000 Indians at Qu'Appelle all in a starving and wretched condition for want of clothing. These Indians said that that was their country, and they intended to remain there, and they asked aid by the issue of provisions. "In the present starving condition," says Mr. Irvine, "I fear if no food is given them that they may hereafter commit depredations which will bring them into collision with the force." This letter was to Lieut.-Gov. Dewdney. Mr. Norman, also of the Mounted Police, writes on the 2nd of October, from Fort Walsh, that the provision issued was barely sufficient to sustain life. This letter was addressed to the Indian Commissioner at Winnipeg. Mr. Fred. White, on the 19th October, 1882, writes Lieut.-Gov. Dewdney, from Fort Walsh, N. W. T., that 2,000 Indians were naked and on the verge of starvation. Lieut.-Governor Dewdney writing to Col. Irvine on the 27th of October, says that he would regret to see the Indians come into collision with the police. It was with reluctance that he allowed Mr. Macdonald to go to Fort Walsh to make payments to the Indians. The acting Indian Commissioner at Regina received on the 7th of February, 1884, a letter from Mr. O. C. Edwards, M. P., stating that in Piapot's camp disease was prevalent, especially "starvation," if that could be called a disease. Death was caused by the scanty supply of food. The same story of "destitution," "starvation" and hunger pervades the whole correspondence from 1882 down to the present day.

The above are only but a few items in the long list of damning evidence by which Mr. Cameron supported his charge that the whole management of Indian affairs in the Northwest has been characterized by mismanagement, extravagance and culpable neglect. Sir Hector Langevin in a most feeble reply did not even pretend to meet the charges brought against the Government, but whined becaused they had been made in Sir John Macdonald's absence. In fact not a single speaker on their side ventured to deny the truth of the statements made, because they could not. The shameful disclosures remain unanswered and unchallenged. All that the Government could do, and did do, was to call in the members and vote down Mr. Cameron's amendment. And this shows the way that similar disclosures against the Government are dealt with. Surely it is time for the people at last to awake to their sense of duty in reference to this Government, which is piling up such a terrible record of wrong doing against itself.

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The showroom of Messrs Clark & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

The Foes of a Household

CHAPTER XXIV.

A VISIT TO BRANTWOOD.

Arrival at Oamotherley he wandered miessly about a little while, and then made his way to The Thwaite. He took an interest in the house where Helen had been born, where she had passed her girlhood, and from which she had been married. He inspected it, asked a few questions concerning it and its inmates from the lodgekeeper, and then inquired the way to Brantwood.

He was told that it was a good three miles to Brantwood, and having by this time won the woman's heart by his simple courtesy, she suggested that he would come in and and have a mouthful of bread and cheese with her husband. He accepted the invitation. He was accustomed to such simple, kind hospitality. Before long he set forward again, this time in possession of information which made him look very thoughtful as he walked along at his easy swinging pace.

The woman's tale had been as follows:

Mr. and Mrs Moore had been at home about a week, and had only once come to The Thwaite, when they had ridden over, and Mrs Moore had been very grave and polite. But this she, Mrs Fletcher, could say for certain, that no one knew what had made Mr Moore marry her. Ever after the first Mrs Moore's death, Miss Lafone had been so queer and short-tempered—though that she always was, added the woman—and had gone on getting thinner and thinner and fretting so, though nobody could make out what for, for she had everything she wanted; and for all she was such a beauty she looked nothing when she had gone so thin. Then one morning Mrs. Fletcher had seen her go out at the gate, looking quite pale and wild, and had wondered what was the matter. In about an hour she had come back with Mr. Moore, looking as different as possible. Then it became known that they were engaged. "And after that," concluded the woman, "there was no peace until they were married. Miss Alice began to pick up again from the very day I saw her go out of this gate with that queer look upon her face."

That was Mrs. Fletcher's testimony given in answer to one very simple question on the part of her guest, and soon after she had finished speaking Mr. Longwnrthy rose to go. He thanked her and her husband for their hospitality, shook hands with them, and went away.

He walked almost the whole distance from The Thwaite to Brantwood without meeting anyone; only when he had almost reached the goal of his pilgrimage did he see a man coming towards him between the leafless hedges. He was a tall, spare man with an upright carriage, and, meeting him in this particular place, he recalled Helen's description, and wondered if he were going to be so fortunate as to meet Percival. But as the man came nearer he saw that his face was pale and rather stern, bearing the expression of a man who endures some hidden sorrow rather than as one who enjoys life. Still there was something about him which tallied with Helen's description, and which made him pause when they met, and raising his hat, he asked—

"Pardon me, but are you Mr. Moore of Brantwood?"

"I am. Can I be of any use to you?" was the courteous reply, and as he spoke he raised his hat, disclosing to Mr. Longworthy's keen eyes, hair, not the rich brown which Helen had described, but "patched and streaked" with grey.

For a moment the clergyman was too much shocked to speak. He stood with his eyes fixed on Moore's hair, even after he had replaced his hat.

"I beg your pardon," he said at last, returning to himself with an effort. "I heard you had introduced a new kind of mowing machine on your farms, and as I am very much interested in such things I took the liberty of calling, as I happened to be in the neighbourhood."

They were soon deep in conversation on the subject which the clergyman had introduced, and were walking slowly along the road. Percival had apparently not noticed that he had turned in Mr. Longworthy's direction, not Mr. Longworthy in his. Before long they had reached the Brantwood gates.

"If you will let me have the pleasure of giving you some lunch," said Percival, "we shall be able to talk over the question more thoroughly, and I can show you a model of the machine, which I think will interest you."

Mr. Longworthy hesitated, but Percival urged him, saying—

"Mrs. Moore will be exceedingly grateful to you, for we are quite alone."

"That is a strange speech from a man who has not been married six months," thought the clergyman, as, having yielded, he walked up the avenue by the side of his new friend.

Involuntarily his eyes wandered over the garden and park. It was here Helen had spent the short time between her coming home in joy and leaving it in doubt and suspense. He seemed to see her figure flitting among the leafless trees, and to hear her voice calling to them.

In the drawing-room they found Alice. Perhaps Mr. Longwerthy had never in all his life been so anxious to make the acquaintance of any other woman. He had heard so much of her beauty, and he was not disappointed. Radiantly beautiful she looked, as, having glanced up at Percival's entrance, she half arose at the sight of the man who accompanied him.

She was fau tlessly beautiful and faultlessly dressed—a jewel without a flaw in a rich and harmonious setting, and yet—

"Alice," said Percival, "this gentleman whose acquaintance I have just been fortunate enough to make has kindly consented to relieve your dullness at lunch. Let me introduce him; Mr.——"

He paused suddenly, aware that he was ignorant of his new friend's name.

"Longworthy, rector of Miller's Gate," supplied the clergyman, readily.

Alice acknowledged the introduction both gracefully and graciously. She had suddenly forgotten that before receiving people it was necessary to know all about them, or perhaps she considered the fact that Mr. Longworthy was a clergyman a sufficient guarantee of his respectability. Before Percival came in she had been feeling bored; now she saw a man, and a strange man, before her she was at once restored to amiability; smiles and gracious words became matters of course.

Mr. Longworthy devoted himself to her; until they went into the dining-room to lunch he scarcely spoke to Percival. Two reasons he had for this; one was the natural instinct of a man to occupy himself with a young and beautiful woman; the other was that he wished to gain some idea of Alice's real nature, and to a man like Mr. Longworthy it was easy to do this in the light, conventional conversation which followed Percival's introduction as in any other way.

THE JURY

We find that in the person of MISS TODD the Lion has the Dressmaker of Guelph.

That MISS MARRIOTT, the Milliner of this establishment, has shown herself to be unequalled.

That MR. McKENZIE, their new Cutter, has created the right impression and is already highly in favor with the young men of Guelph. His reputation as a first class Cutter is already established.

That they have the largest and best stock.

That they undersell all others.

And that for a genial and affable reception and courteous treatment the Lion is the place.

Elora Correspondence.

HIGH WATER.—The bursting of the dam at Fergus on Tuesday afternoon last raised the waters here with a big wave, brought down bridge timbers, sawn lumber, logs, shingles, and a large field of broken ice, submerged cellars, threatened the bridge, excited the hopes of pikers, and presented one of the finest river sights ever witnessed in this locality. Beyond the inconvenience of water in cellars, and the loss of a brace from Victoria bridge no serious damage was done here, although the hearts of the pikers were nearly broken at the sight of rapidly rushing timbers which they couldn't secure. The waters have kept up their unusual height all week, and as they went dashing in immense volume down the rocky bed of the falls in majestic and overwhelming force, they presented a sight worth miles of travel to see. Grand by day they became glorious in the brilliant moonlight with which we have been favored since spring weather set in, and crowds of young and old, but of young especially, have ventured down the rocky bank of the falls behind the mill to view a scene, which for poetic beauty and exhibition of mighty power, is equalled in but few sections of Ontario, outside of Niagara.

EASTER FAIR.—On Wednesday last the usual Easter fair was held here, and was largely attended by buyers and sellers. Many fine cattle were shown and sales were numerous at what were, doubtless, remunerative prices, although not fully equal to the expectations of feeders. Shipments were heavy and many fine animals were delivered, which had been previously sold. In some instances as high as $5.75 was paid, but the highest going price was about $5.40, with an average of over $5.

FINE STEERS.—The McQueen steers, which are noted as prize winners, are packing their trunks and studying the topography of the British Isles, whither they are bound in the course of a fortnight or so. They don't expect to return, as they intend to pass the balance of their bovine lives, which will be of uncertain duration in the English climate, with their old grandparent, John Bull. They will be accompanied by Mr. Robt. McQueen, who will probably place them on exhibition at the International in Liverpool, and the Colonial in London. They will doubtless attract great attention, and do still more even than has hitherto been done to raise the high estimation which our English relations entertain of Canadian beef.

WHOPPERS.—Probably the finest shipment of cattle made by an individual feeder from Elora was that sent off on Thursday last by Mr. Groff, of Pilkington. The number was not great, but the quality was superb. There were eighteen steers, all of which turned the scales at over fourteen hundred, and a number of which went up to sixteen hundred pounds. They were an even, well fed lot of grades, which do credit to this locality, and will, we hope, prove renumerative to their enterprising feeder.

STRANG BIRDS.—With the first decent weather this spring, came the swallows to join robins, blue birds, grey birds, meadow larks and other hardy fellows, who had previously cheered us with their presence. On the 14th came the blue backed swallow, followed on the 15th by the purple master. They are in extraordinary numbers, as are other spring birds this year, despite the silly wail of the Globe over the predatory, pugilistic and exterminating instincts of the European sparrow. No ornithologist wrote the deprecatory article, and if Globe writers knew no more of politics than they do of bird life, they would be blind guides indeed.

COMING CONCERT.—On the evening of Friday next, the 23th inst., the lacrosse boys will give a concert in the drill shed here. When they go in for that sort of thing they do it well, and on the present occasion have resolved to be not one whit behind any of their former efforts. Mr. James Fax, the well known comic singer from Toronto, will appear in some of his best and newest selections, while Miss A. Hastings, of Guelph, and Miss Cotter, of Harriston, will render vocal music with that ability which is so well known. The evening will conclude with a social dance.

PUBLIC MEETING.—On the evening of Thursday a public meeting will be held for the purpose of considering the proposition of an addition of $2,000 to the debt of this village, with a view to aiding a butter factory here. The ratepayers seem impressed with the idea that the rate of taxation in Elora is quite as high as is healthy, and that any further increase of it at the present time would tend to still further depopulate the village. It is very doubtful whether the by-law will receive the assent of the electors, and there are many who believe that the council could have made better use of the public money than in its publication.

TEMPERANCE MEETING.—On Friday evening last the R. T. of Temperance held an open meeting in the drill shed here, which was very largely attended and was a great success. Rev. P L Spencer occupied the chair in very satisfactory fashion. Dr Middlemiss offered an opening prayer, and Messrs Black of Garafraxa, Currie, of Rockwood, and Mills, of Elora, delivered pointed and telling addresses. Misses Harris and Mills, of Elora, a gentleman from Drew, and the 30th Band enlivened the meeting at intervals with vocal and instrumental efforts, and it is whispered that so impressed were the members of the Band with the remarks of the speakers, that they have one and all sent in application for admission as members of the R. T. Lodge. Some of their shadows will probably grow less.

ART.—At the recent distribution of certificates by the Ontario School of Art, Elora and some other Canadian town were bracketed as the only two in the Province entitled to four certificates. The lucky winners of these proofs of ability here are Misses Snyder, Chinnick, and Simpson and Mr. Robert Mitchell. Miss Chinneck was successful in the five subjects of free hand drawing, practical geometry, linear perspective, model drawing and memory and blackboard drawing.

THAT ADDRESS.—On Saturday last, the Tories of Elora were thrown into consternation, while the Grits went up to the seventh heaven of expectancy, when the Toronto News arrived containing what was represented to be the retiring address of Sir John Macdonald. The published valedictory was so evidently that of George Washington, with a slight travesty of words, in one or two instances, that it was really surprising to find intelligent men impressed with a belief in its genuine character. Nevertheless many were imposed upon. Said one reader of it more canny than others "Mon, but I thocht it graund, and that the auld mon had truely repentit o' a' his sins, until I cam' to that part o' it where he spakit o' relegion an' morality, an' then I felt gey sure it couldna ha' been written by him, for he never in a' his life kent anything o' either o' them." Our old friend wasn't far wrong.

HORSE FAIR.—The show of horses to-morrow in Elora is likely to be large and successful. Many fine animals are coming in to-day, and if this glorious weather continues the turnout will be simply immense.

Hespeler Correspondence.

REMOVED TO GALT.—Mr Alexander Buchanan a farmer in the vicinity for the past five years' recently sold out and removed to Galt.

PRESENTATION.—During Mr Buchanan's stay in the neighborhood he had been an active member of the Presbyterian Church, and was for several years the superintendent of its S. S. and teacher of the Bible class, proving a most zealous and efficient one. A number of our young people accordingly visited himself and lady at Galt on the evening of Friday the 16th inst., and presented him with a handsome silver pitcher. The presentation was made by Miss Kribbs, and was supplemented by a flattering address read by Miss Haigh. The address expressed the high esteem in which Mr B was held by the members of the Presbyterian Church and S. S., the regret that they felt at his departure and earnest wishes for his success and happiness. The recipient was taken very much by surprise, as he had been taken quite unaware of the generous intention of the donors. He, however, made a feeling and appropriate reply, and he, and his better half made things exceedingly pleasant for the guests who spent a few very happy hours, which were considerably protracted by the drive home in the beautiful moonlight.

STILL MORE HANDSOME WORK.—Last week we alluded to the grand display at the millinery opening in the Waterloo House, but were unaware, and consequently omitted mentioning, the very elaborate display at the millinery opening of Mr James Cunningham. The milliner of this establishment, Miss McPherson, belongs to the "A 1" order, whose taste and ability to execute are superseded by but few. Although the opening resulted in the disposing of a lot of goods, and the taking of many orders, the show room of the establishment still contains a lot of splendid work.

A NEW LOCK UP.—The village council are having a new lock-up built in a corner of the Engine House on the river bank. The various detachments of the ignoble army of tramps that from time to time infest the town, will then have dry and comfortable quarters at least. A work-house in connection with the lock-up may prove a grand acquisition.

UNKIND.—We are sorry that the correspondent of the Dumfries Reformer is now and then capable of uttering unkind and ungenerous sentiments. In his epistle of last week to that journal, he states something to the effect that the ladies of Hespeler and vicinity are often compelled, at much inconvenience and expense, to go to Galt and Guelph to secure a first-class article in the line of dresses, and suggests that some competent person had better "take the hint" and open out. This is decidedly uncomplimentary to the several competent dress makers that have resided amongst us for years, and it is well known that the dress maker in the establishment of Mr. G. E. Chapman is first class and competent in every department of the work, and for over a year has demonstrated that fact to the almost entire satisfaction of the people of this place, having been patronized to a far greater extent than the proprietor ever anticipated. In the quality of goods and the style of dress, cost, etc., this establishment is we believe quite willing to compete with the best that either Galt or Guelph can do. Should some competent person "take the hint," the adventure we are confident would prove a fatal one so far as a successful trade is concerned, as the business is already "cut fine." In conclusion we pity the husband of the Hespeler lady who is so fastidious in his ideas of fashion that she cannot be suited by the best the place can do in that line, financial wreck is apt to be his doom; but we question very much if any so fastidious make up a portion of our prudent, economical and level headed population.

THE WEATHER.—Not only spring, but summer in all its virgin beauty and attractiveness, seems to be here.

Hespeler, April 21st.

Young People's Association.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Your correspondent of yesterday, who is so anxious to have a spade called a spade would have been more consistent with himself had he signed his own proper name to his communication, instead of skulking behind the nom de plume of "Mentor." If some anonymous veil were necessary, I think "Cynic" would have been more appropriate.

Permit me to say in reply to him:—1. The Associations in question are not styled "Christian," but usually Young People's Associations, or Y. P. Literary Associations. 2. To call them "Comic" Associations would be to misrepresent them utterly. As well might an ordinary roast beef dinner be called "annustard dinner," because a slight flavoring of mustard was in it. The comic element has been quite inconsiderable in these meetings—a mere flavoring, as it were. 3. To quote a Winterbourne programme as a sample of those got up in the City of Guelph, is a rather unfair dodge on the part of an "old Christian" and truthful "Mentor."

But I am chiefly anxious to grapple with the subtle error, which, as I consider, lurks under the phrase "the unholy alliance of the comic with the Christian." Man is endowed with a mirthful faculty. It is a product of the creation, not a result of the fall. Like all our faculties, it was given to be exercised; its use gives pleasure; and it is capable of being employed for the glory of its Creator. What there is irreverent or "shocking" in praising God for a faculty promotive of human happiness, or asking his blessing on the exercise of it, I fail to see. Let us thank God that we can look happy and laugh, as well as look solemn and pray.

Mr. "Mentor" is probably a sour old bachelor, or a childless old benedict, who has never had boys and girls about him, to sweeten his vinegar, and thaw out his rigidity. He is doubtless a stranger to the perplexity which parents and "spiritual guides" feel in regard to getting right influences around young people. They are social, fun-loving, and full of rollicking life. This is not depravity, but nature. We must act in harmony with it. Within due bounds, we should not only let them enjoy themselves, but help them do so. It is not incompatible with religion to act thus, but part of it. "Him serve with mirth," says the grand old 100th psalm. "They began to be merry" in the Divine Father's house, when the prodigal returned. And it was with what Mr. "Mentor" would call a worldly merriment.

The church is never in competition with the world, any more than the sun competes with a tallow candle, and it should say with the eloquent old Roman, "I deem nothing human foreign to me." It is directly in the line of "saving young souls" to gather them socially, and to give them a pleasant, instructive, improving time away from scenes of vicious allurement. These meetings during the past winter in our city have been of a high literary, musical, moral, and religious character, with no more of the mirthful about them than served for a little condiment or spicing. Those who have worked hard to make them successful and useful, deserve better treatment at the hands of "old Christians" and "Mentors" than they received from your correspondent yesterday. The fact that two of my sons have the honor to be presidents of these associations in our city, must be my apology for writing on the subject, if any be needed. "A spade is a spade," and I am,

W. F. CLARKE.

Another Railway Route.

To the Editor of the MERCURY:—

SIR,—Will you allow me a few lines in your most valuable paper regarding the much talked-of railroad—the Guelph Junction. There has been quite a few roads proposed for it to go, and I would call the attention of the City Council and the people of Guelph generally to another road which, in my estimation, would be by far the cheapest route. It is as follows: To follow alongside the river in a north-easterly direction till near the town line between Wellington and Halton, then due east through the natural chasm striking Halton, and keeping to the east of the town-line till at or about lot number 18 in the 1st concession of Nassagaweya and then take the town-line which was never opened and which I think they may get free, as there is no likelihood of it ever being opened between the sideline at lot number 18 and the next sideline below, then strike the C. V. R. between McCrae station and Campbellville.

Hoping the City Council will consider this route I remain yours truly,

RESIDENT OF PUSLINCH.

Puslinch, April 22, 1886.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

Leading Liberals Addressing Mass Meetings.

LONDON, April 21.—The Marquis of Salisbury, in a letter published this afternoon, states that he is convinced that the nation will indignantly reject Mr. Gladstone's desperate scheme for the government of Ireland. A conference of the Conservative Associations of Great Britain will be held on May 15, to consider the Home Rule question and to reorganize the party.

Mr. Chamberlain, speaking at a meeting in Birmingham this evening, said that Mr. Parnell would not regard as permanent any settlement of the Irish Government which would not enable him to sever the last link between Ireland and England. No free people worthy of the name would submit to such restrictions in their repressive authority as Mr. Gladstone proposed. As regards Mr. Gladstone's alterations of the Land Purchase Bill the amount proposed by him was only a paper estimate. It could not be doubted that at least £150,000,000 would be required. He (Mr. Chamberlain) would sooner quit politics altogether than pledge British credit for such a sum and for such a purpose. Irishmen ought to be allowed to attend Westminster and vote on all matters not especially remitted to the Parliament at Dublin. He would enter no cave and join no coalition. He would support Mr. Gladstone all that he consistently could if the latter accepted the modifications which he (Mr. Chamberlain) suggested. Mr. Chamberlain said he would be glad to concede Ulster a separate assembly. The modifications he suggested must not be left to a committee, but the Government ought to give a guarantee that they would be accepted. The meeting unanimously endorsed Mr. Chamberlain's proposals.

The Duke of Argyll in a speech at Glasgow to-day admitted the sincerity of Mr. Gladstone. He believed the Premier was misled by the Parnellites when he receded from the position assumed by him before the elections. He strongly opposed Mr. Gladstone's proposals as embodied in the Home Rule and Land Purchase Bills. It would be impossible, he said, to entrust the Government of Ireland to men whose object was separation.

Lord Spencer, speaking at a meeting in Newcastle to-day, said there were two ways to deal with the Irish problem, namely, coercion and concession. The former was a dangerous means by which to restore order. He combatted the accusation that Mr. Gladstone was handing the Government of Ireland over to crime-mongers. Judging from the evidence obtained during his term of office as Lord-Lieutenant of Ireland he had not found that the supporters of the Parnellite policy encouraged crime and conspiracy. The colleagues of Parnell, he said, have a real affection for their country, and their ability is undoubted. Taxpayers will incur no risk from the land scheme proposed by Mr. Gladstone. The great body of the Irish people do not want separation, knowing it to be impossible owing to the geographical position of Ireland and the ties of blood and social and business relations existing between the people of Ireland and England. Mr. Gladstone's proposals would strengthen the union between the two countries.

John Morley said he was prepared to accept reasonable modifications of the Irish Bills. The retention of the Irish representatives in the House of Commons would weaken the Parliament at Dublin and demoralize the Parliament at Westminster.

Mr. Morley said it was impossible for the Government to revive the Coercion Act. If it did revive that Act it would only play into the hands of the Irish desperadoes in America. The proposition on which the Government's policy depended was this: "We are willing and bound to run some risks to give Irishmen the degree of power necessary to teach them a responsibility which fits men for freedom and for a place in a free and constitutional system of Government." He was willing to listen to a practical plan to retain the Irish members at Westminster. He had not seen such a plan, and he was not sanguine that a suitable one would be invented. No power on earth, however, could prevent the Irish representatives, if admitted to Westminster, being the arbiters and masters of English legislation.

The meeting was attended by over 4,000 persons and great enthusiasm prevailed. Resolutions were adopted supporting Mr. Gladstone's policy.

CORK, April 21.—An immense Loyalist meeting was held here this evening, at which Home Rule was denounced. A procession of Nationalists also paraded the streets to-night. No disorder.

LONDON, April 21.—In the Parliamentary election at Bradford, Eng., yesterday, Mr. Shaw Lefevre (Liberal) received 4,407 votes and Mr. Hoare (Conservative) 3,627. At the general election the late W. E. Forster received 5,725 votes against 3,732 cast for his Tory opponent. Mr. Forster's majority was 1,993 and Mr. Lefevre's is 780.

HOME RULE IN CANADA.

Mr. Gladstone's Reference to the Troubles the Family Compact Caused.

The principle that I am laying down I am not laying down for Ireland exceptionally. It is the very principle upon which, within my recollection, we have not only altered but revolutionized our method of governing the Colonies. (Cheers.) I had the honor of holding office in the Colonial Department—perhaps I ought to be ashamed to confess it—51 years ago. At the time the Colonies were governed from Downing street. It is true some of them had Legislative Assemblies. And what was the result? We were always in conflict with them, for we were always fed with information by what is termed the British party in the Colony. (Parnellite cheers.) The state of things in which we lived was that a clique of gentlemen constituted the British party, and that the non-British party, or, as it was sometimes called, the disloyal party—(Parnellite cheers)—was composed of the enormous majority of the population of the Colony. (Hear, hear.) And so we had continued shocks, continued debate, continued conflict. But that, sir, has been changed. England tried to pass good laws for her Colonies at that period. But the Colonies said, "We do not want your good laws; we want our own." (Parnellite cheers.) We admitted the reasonableness of the principle. It has now come home to us across the sea, and we have to consider whether it is applicable to the case of Ireland.

WOMEN'S MISSION WORK.

Annual Meeting of the Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society.

LONDON, April 20.—The tenth annual meeting of the Presbyterian Women's Missionary Society is now being held at London, Ont. A brief review of the year's work shows that the society supports three lady missionaries, one medical missionary, two young lady assistants, six schools, Bible women, native helpers, etc., in Central India, and also provides the necessary buildings and residences there. In Formosa the Girls' School of the Presbyterian mission is partly supported by the society, and some assistance is also given towards the maintenance of missionary schools in the New Hebrides and Trinidad. In the Northwest Territory of Canada, missionary teachers at Mistowasis, Crowstand, and Birdtail Creek Indian Reserves, and two other lady teachers who will shortly be placed on Indian Reserves, are supported, and an additional sum of $2,000 is ready for extending this work during the coming year. The organization now includes 16 Presbyterial Societies, 190 Auxiliaries and 48 Mission Bands. There are over five thousand members in the Auxiliaries and one thousand one hundred and eleven in the Mission Bands. The total contributions this year are $13,423.55; including $10,472.62 from the Auxiliaries, $2,425.92 from the Mission Bands, and $525.01 from other sources. During the ten years of its existence the society has contributed $58,536.12 for missionary work among women and children.

Local News.

THE Winnipeg News has suspended publication.

ARTHUR fair last month was well attended and prices were fair.

A. W. WRIGHT, Government Commissioner, leaves next week for England on Colonial Exhibition business.

PAISLEY is going to hold their Caledonian games on June 23rd. They propose offering $1,300 in cash prizes.

THE Lucknow Caledonian Society, on account of the coldness and irregularities of the weather later on, will hold its annual games this year in July.

THE Rev. Mr. Carson will preach a sermon to Oddfellows in the Dublin street church to-morrow evening on the occasion of the 67th anniversary of the Order.

NUMEROUS horses in Kingston, Ont., a local paper says, are suffering with a new disease, which affects the legs. A worm bores a hole in the heel of the animal and eats its way into the leg, and the result is that the leg swells and the skin falls off.

AT a woman's suffrage convention, where it was found necessary to pass the bonnet instead of the hat, not one of the delegates would consent to give up her headgear for fear somebody else would discover where the bonnet had been fixed over.

"WHAT is the origin of motion?" asks a celebrated preacher. Well, there are many origins. A call to come up and have a drink will bring men to their feet in a second, and a spider down a girl's back is the origin of some of the liveliest motions the world ever saw.

THE difference between green tea and black lies in the fact that in the former fermentation has been arrested by "firing," the color of the leaf being in this way partially preserved and fixed; with the latter, by a much longer process, fermentation up to a certain point is permitted, and the leaves are not "fired" until they have been oxidized by exposure to the air.

A NEW SCALE.—The Scientific American of the 24th April says:—An automatic weighing scale has been patented by Mr. Jacob Ball, of Waterloo, Ont., Canada. The invention covers a novel construction and combination of parts and details for making scales, whose parts shall be simple and which are adapted to be adjusted very easily for weighing bodies of different weights.

LACROSSE.—The first practice of the season took place yesterday afternoon, about eighteen players being present. Owing to the extreme heat and the fact that it was the first game, the boys did not exert themselves very much, but it was evident from the way they handled their sticks, that with a little practice they would probably make the best club that has ever been in Guelph. The first evening practice will be held on Monday on the exhibition ground. After practice a meeting will be held at the Commercial Hotel at eight o'clock. Every person who has the interest of our national game at heart should be present and assist the boys in making the club a grand success.

An important meeting of the Caledonian Society will be held at Ellis' hotel on Tuesday evening, for the purpose of making arrangements for the annual games. A full attendance is requested. d1.

GOSPEL Temperance Meeting in the Paisley street Methodist church to-morrow afternoon. Rev. D. McGregor, M.A., will give an address. Good singing. J. E. Smith, Secretary W. C. T. U. d1

GOOD Friday passed off very quietly yesterday. There was nothing of interest going on in the city, and many spent the day by visiting friends in the neighboring towns and villages, and at a greater distance.

MR. JAMES GOLDIE has received a pair of magnificent elk antlers from the Northwest from Mr. George Murton, formerly of Guelph, and also a Sandhill crane. The crane will make a nice addition to Mr. Goldie's splendid aviary.

ST. GEORGE'S DAY.—Good Friday was the anniversary of St. George's Day, the Patron Saint of Merrie England, and also the natal day of Guelph, which was founded in 1827 by John Galt, the novelist, who was at that time agent for the Canada Company. The Guelph St. George's Society will celebrate the day on Tuesday by a supper at the Commercial hotel.

THE editors of the Palmerston Telegraph and Drayton Vidette must be on very unfriendly terms. The Telegraph man recently sent to the office of the Vidette 25 cents as payment of three month's subscription. The amount was at once returned together with a note stating that it was not his custom to charge for exchange.

QUEEN VS. SAMUEL BITTLE.—The prisoner who is well known in Guelph, was indicted for larceny at the Berlin assizes last week. He was attending bar at an hotel in Galt and an Italian gave him as he said $10 in payment for certain drinks, but that was stoutly denied by the prisoner who said the sum paid was only 10 cents and the indictment was laid for the alleged appropriation of the $10. The evidence however entirely failed in establishing the charge and the Judge directed an acquittal.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES.—In St. George's Church yesterday the usual Good Friday services were held. The Archdeacon preached morning and evening in reference to the Grand topic of the day. The music was of a peculiarly solem character, suitable to the season. During the week daily services were held with appropriate addresses. Easter services will be held to-morrow with early celebration of the communion, and the same at mid-day. In Our Lady's Church at half past ten, yesterday, the mass of the pre-sanctified was celebrated, and in the evening the "Way of the Cross." To-morrow the services will be of a jubilant character, when the draperies covering the crucifixes and pictures on the altar will be taken off.

A BIG TIME FOR THE SOLDIERS.—The opening of the new Salvation Army Temple, Toronto, Monday, 26th, is expected to be a great success numerically. There will be 3,000 or 4,000 soldiers, including Commissioner Frank Smith and his American braves, also Ballington Booth, of Australia. The grand Hallelujah Wedding, with twelve brass and string bands to the front, Council of War, etc., should attract a crowd. A few of the soldiers from Guelph left to-day, but they will not go in full force until Monday, when they will be headed by the band.

FANCY FAIR.—On Thursday, the 27th instant, the Young Ladies' Sodality in connection with Our Lady's church will hold an Easter festival and fancy fair in the City Hall, in aid of the building fund of the church. A large number of fancy and useful articles will be offered for sale, and harmless amusements of several kinds provided. Ice cream, fruits, etc., will also be provided. In the evening a musical programme of considerable interest will be rendered. On the whole the fancy fair should prove a great success, and if it does not, the fault will not lie in the hands of the young ladies, who have worked hard and earnestly to make it such.

SPEED ROLLER RINK.—Last night's attractions at the Rink drew a large and respectable audience, notwithstanding the unfavorable aspect of the weather. The Bell Organ Band played most appropriate selections with fine musical ability, acquitting themselves very creditably and to the evident appreciation of the audience. The races passed off very satisfactorily, causing considerable laughter and fun among the spectators. The wheelbarrow race had three contestants, who traversed half a mile in close and exciting evenness till within a few laps of the home stretch, when Field's skate came off, throwing him out, leaving the other two winners—Jos. Bunyan first, with W. Milloy a few feet behind. There were eight starters in the one legged race, which caused any amount of fun by the tumbling and scrambling of the boys to secure first places. After a keen and interesting race Alf. Tovell came in winner, Mat. Bunyan close at his heels, with Finlay a good third.

City Voters' List.

As was mentioned on Wednesday, the Court of Revision of the voters' list for the city for the Local Legislature, was adjourned until Monday evening, at seven o'clock, in the Court House. All Reformers who have been summoned to attend the Court should be present and be prepared to prove their rights to be put on the list. The names objected to so far on the Reform list are as follows:

James Arthur Elmslie,	George Simpson,
Andrew Scott,	George Mitchell,
James Taylor,	William Holman,
John Hunt,	John A. Robinson,
Jacob D. Walters,	John Metcalf,
Edmund Allan,	Benoni Allen,
William Blackburn,	Alfred Allen,

William Nichols,

BURR BROS. new factory, weather permitting, will be ready for the joists on Tuesday.

TO-MORROW the Rev. J. C. Smith will preach jubilee sermons in the Rev. Dr. Smellie's Church, Fergus. St. Andrew's pulpit will be supplied by the Rev. Mr. Savage, of Paisley street Church, and Mr. Hunt will preach in the latter church.

THIS morning Mr. John Kennedy, while crossing the Neeve street bridge, found two pieces of silver weighing four ounces, evidently a portion of a castor. On one of the pieces was a crest representing a bird with open wings on a turtle.

CHECKERS.—Yesterday six of the Guelph checker players went to Acton to play a friendly game with the checker players of that village. The game commenced about two o'clock in the town hall, and was witnessed by quite a number of people. Eight games were played in all, each player playing with two different parties. The Guelph men won by 31 to 11 games.

POLICE COURT.—Allan Waldron, a lad of 11 years of age, was charged at the Police Court to day with assaulting Catharine O'Halleran, a girl of about the same age. He was sent to gaol for one day. In the cow cases, Robert Day, Wm. Ward, Felix O'Donnell, and Wm. Smith were allowed to go, being the first offence of the kind this season. Other cow owners who have a case proved against them may expect to pay a fine of $2 and costs.

EXCURSION ON THE 24TH.—Bro. Mead, Secretary of Metropolitan Lodge 6534, I. O. O. F., Manchester Unity, Toronto, and three other delegates were in the city yesterday making arrangements to hold a picnic of some five or six hundred from that city in Guelph on the 24th of May. Adjt. Clarke has secured the Exhibition grounds for his entertainment on that date, but as the grounds are spacious enough, and the charge only ten cents for admission, the delegation were perfectly satisfied, and gave it as their opinion that arrangements would be at once set on foot to carry out the proposed excursion.

YOUNG LADIES' ENTERTAINMENT.—Some time ago the young men of the Dublin street Methodist Church took it into their heads to give an entertainment for the purpose of raising funds for the church. Whether the young ladies took umbrage at this proceeding or not is not known, but last night they got up an entertainment in the basement of the church in which no gentlemen were allowed to lend the smallest particle of assistance. At 8 o'clock Miss Nellie Ker stepped on the platform and deliberately sank into the place of honor, which she filled with ability, also it must be admitted not a little to the amusement of the large number present. After a brief speech of welcome the young lady introduced Miss Harrison, whom she said would auction off to the highest bidder certain packages containing things good to eat. On each of these pockages was the name of a lady, and the gentleman purchasing had to do the honors of the table and divide up the contents of his package with the lady. Miss Harrison took her stand on a chair, and at once proceeded to business. She acquited herself so well that had any of the licensed auctioneers been present they must have felt somewhat jealous for their reputation. The auctioneer continued with her business until every one in the room had been supplied with a package, and it was amusing to see how the company was paired off. A number of attentive young ladies were kept busy finding and introducing ladies to their chaperons for the tea table. After all had partaken of an excellent luncheon, which reflected credit on the taste of the young ladies, both as regarded the decorations, and the good things provided, a short musical programme was well rendered and is as follows:—Piano and duet, Trumpets of War, Misses Goodfellow and Griffin; vocal duet, Mrs. McCutcheon and Miss Dietz, reading, Miss Goodfellow; a chorus "see-saw" by some thirty young girls was very well rendered and their appearance most attractive; solo, by request, The Lords of Creation, Miss Oldham; trio, Misses Myers, Watson and Goodfellow; duet, Mrs McCutcheon and Miss Dietz; song, Miss Oldham; and another chorus by the junior members of the union. A few tableaux were given by colored lights by some of the children. Some were well produced and others not so well on account of difficulty with the lights. At the close of the entertainment a vote of thanks was moved to the chairwoman, by Rev. Dr. Griffin, seconded by the Rev. Mr. Savage, after which the benediction was pronounced. The young ladies realized about thirty six dollars and a half and have to be congratulated on their enterprise and the successful manner in which they carried it out.

Sping Assizes.

The following are the names of the Grand Jurors for the Spring Assizes, which open in the Court House, Guelph, on Monday, the 10th of May, before the Hon. Mr. Justice O'Connor:—John Anderson, Guelph; John Austin, Erin; Hiram Bessey, Erin; Robert Blackwood, Harriston; James Bailey, Minto; James Brown, jr., Minto; J. R. SATURDAY EVE'G APRIL 24, 1886.

The Cost of Government House

We are not surprised that the yearly cost of the Government House at Ottawa was the subject of discussion in the House of Commons the other day. This matter has for a long period claimed the attention of Parliament yearly, but it seems without fruit, for the expenses keep mounting up all the same, and the worst of it is that no one seems to know where the money goes. When the subject came under the notice of the House of Commons, on a motion for information brought up by Mr. McCraney, the Government refuted to allow the motion to pass, and they also refused to give any kind of information of a satisfactory character. The fact is that even the Tories are getting sick of the outrageous expenditure which has been going on for years in and about Rideau Hall. No one blames this, or any previous Governor General, for being the cause of such a wanton waste of public money, though it must be confessed that Lord Dufferin led the country a pretty expensive dance in connection with his household expenses while he was Governor. Either the Government or some of the Governor's under-strappers are responsible for the large yearly outlay about Rideau Hall and the grounds. But this responsibility cannot be brought home to any one so long as the Government refuse to give information as to who orders work to be done, or authorizes the purchase of furniture, etc. The whole business seems to be conducted in the loosest and most reckless fashion. Any one, it seems, can order what he or she chooses. The highest prices possible are charged, and the accounts seem to be paid without any check being made, or whether or not the order is properly filled.

That our readers may see we are not writing at random on the subject, we will give a few figures, which will enable them to form some idea of the heavy expenses connected with this establishment every year. When they read them they will stand aghast at the annual cost, and like us wonder how the money can be spent. The Governor's salary, which is $50,000 a year, is only a small portion of the expenses connected with the Government House establishment. Rideau Hall, where he lives, was bought in 1869 for $82,000. It was but a poor affair then. Since that time several additions have been made to it, which now makes it appear more like a barracks than a Governor-General's residence. Since the time it was bought it has cost on an average about $25,000 a year for alterations, additions and repairs. Every now and then there is a big bill for furniture, for our readers must know that the country supplies this also. In 1880 the furniture cost close on $13,000, and the year before only about $1,000 less. For the last three or four years the item of furniture has been reduced to about $1,000. The gardens and grounds cost yearly for keeping about $5,000. Light and fuel cost yearly a little over $8,000. The Governor himself is allowed yearly in addition to his salary $5,000 for travelling expenses. But the expenses of his retinue and all the hangers-on who accompany him also come out of the country, so that the total travelling expenses every year averages $10,000. Then we have what are called contingent expenses of the Governor's office, including salaries of secretary, clerks, &c., which are about $18,000 a year. Among the items of this department the subscriptions for newspapers alone amount yearly to $800. The above are given as averages. But we will now give the exact totals in each branch of expenditure to show that we are not following mere guess work. Since Confederation this old ram-shackle of a building down to 1883 cost for furniture $85,360; for alterations, additions, &c., $394,458; keeping gardens and grounds $52 615; fuel and light $79,371; purchase money and two years rent before it was bought $89,854. Grand total, $701,670. Now take salaries [from Confederation down to 1883. The salaries of the Governor-General and his officials amount to $915,340]; contingencies of his office, $72,441; travelling expenses from 1875 (when this expense began) to 1883, $72,411. Grand total, $1,217,434. Add to this the $701,670 for maintenance and we have a grand total of $1,919,104 as the cost of the Governor-General, his staff and Government House since Confederation. Our readers by this time no doubt begin to think with us that it is high time something was done to put an end to this wasteful, and to a large extent useless, expenditure from which a number of Tory sharks about Ottawa, who are in high favour with the Governmen, reap the benefit.

THE total amount of tolls collected on the canals of Canada, between the 30th of June, 1885, and the 31st of December, 1885, reached $199,444, of which $15,000 had been refunded.

MR. JOHN WHITE, of Hastings, is not the only public man who seeks to gain some pecuniary advantage by his position. It now turns out that Mr. Norquay, the Tory Premier of Manitoba, has accepted $25,000 paid-up stock in the Saskatchewan Coal Company as the price of his influence. He is not like Mr. White, however, for he coolly admits the fact. People may well ask when this kind of bribery and corruption among our public men is to end.

THE following seven members of the present House of Commons have died since the general election of 1882: J. P. Lanthier, Soulanges, Q.; J. Pickard, York, N. B.; F. Houde, Maskinonge, Q.; W. T. Benson, South Grenville, Ont.; A. T. Williams, East Durham, Ont.; Isaac Burpee, St. John City and County; David Thompson, Haldimand, Ont. Mr. Lanthier died before the new Parliament assembled.

THE Ottawa Free Press says that the frequency of fatal railway accidents along the line of the Canadian Pacific Railway, west of Cartier, has given rise to a local demand for organized and complete enquiries into each of these sad occurrences. The Nipissing Times demands that the Stipendiary Magistrates should be instructed to organize courts of enquiry into all cases of fatal accidents along the railway, so that the deaths due to criminal negligence which now occur, may be avenged by the law. The daily massacres which occur are so numerous that not a tithe of them becomes known to the general public, because the railway company controls the telegraphic facilities for communicating those accidents to the outside world, as accidents elsewhere are communicated. The matter is so serious and grave that the Ontario Government ought to take prompt steps to relieve its frequency, by punishing wherever possible those whose criminal negligence contributes towards the frequency of those accidents.

:o:

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the glands of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

ALLEN'S

LUNG BALSAM

THE remedy for curing Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Croup, Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest or Lungs, Difficult Breathing, and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs. No better remedy for Whooping Cough can be found.

CAUTION.—Don't experiment with new and untried medicines, but always keep on hand this safe and sure remedy,—Allen's Lung Balsam.

MOTHERS, have you delicate, weakly children, who are always TAKING COLD, and subject to CROUP? Remember, there never was a case of CROUP which did not originate in a COLD.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM IS YOUR REMEDY.

Physicians who have failed to cure their patients should try this medicine before they give the case up, as we know many valuable lives have been saved by being persuaded to give it a trial.

DO NOT DESPAIR because all other remedies have failed, but try this remedy, and you will not be deceived. It will cure when all others fail.

Allen's Lung Balsam is now put up in Three Sizes,

Price 25c., 50c., and $1 per Bottle.

The 25c. bottles are put up for the accommodation of all who desire simply a Cough or Croup remedy. Those desiring a remedy for Consumption or any Lung Disease should secure the Large $1 Bottles.

Sold by all Medicine Dealers.

THE House of Commons on Monday affirmed the principle that long speeches are undesirable except in special cases. This is a move in the right direction, for in previous years much valuable time has been lost by some members, who seemed to vie with each other as to who would make the longest speeches. There are cases when such are necessary for the clear elucidation and thorough understanding of a subject, as in the case of Mr. Blake's speeches on the C. P. R. loan last session, and on the Government's administration of affairs in the North-west.

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show room of Messrs. Clark & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes, fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

The Foes of a Household

CHAPTER XXIV.

A VISIT TO BRANTWOOD.

At lunch the conversation was carried on in the same tone, and chiefly between Alice and her guest. Percival scarcely took any part in it, and his wife showed no inclination to include him. As the meal went on Mr. Longworthy thought he began to see light. Never in all his life, he thought, had he seen any man treat his wife with such exquisite politeness and such an utter absence of tenderness. He could scarcely understand Alice's manner.

As a woman she had more skill in concealing her feelings, and perhaps more feelings to conceal. She was not the least in the world like a fond wife, but neither did she give him the impression of being indifferent. He could not make up his mind what she was. He felt that she required longer and deeper study than a couple of hours in her own house.

As he had looked round the garden, so he looked round the drawing-room and the dining-room, and the impression he got, without being exactly aware how, was that neither of these rooms contained any relics of Helen's reign. He hardly knew how to interpret that, it might be the result of so many causes.

They sat long over lunch—longer, Mr. Longworthy fancied, than Percival wished, but he made not the slightest attempt to stem the flow of his wife's words. Neither face nor manner betrayed the very least impatience, and when at last Alice rose from the table and left the room he held the door open for her to pass out.

Soon after lunch Percival invited his guest into his study, with the remark that there he kept the model of which he had spoken to him. From the expression which crossed Mrs. Moore's face as her husband spoke, Mr. Longworthy gathered that his taste for new fashioned agricultural machines was one with which she did not sympathise.

Percival led the rector across the hall and along a passage to a room which lay a little apart from the others. The door being opened they entered the strangest room for a man to call his study which he had ever seen.

It seemed originally to have been arranged and furnished in the orthodox way; that is, there were the bookshelves, writing-table, and rather severe furniture which one is accustomed to associate with a study; but these things were supplanted by others in the oddest manner. In one corner near the window was a little low work-table, on which stood a dainty woman's work-basket half open and gaping with work. Close to the table stood a chair with so easy a back that no one could possibly have worked in it. Knick-knacks of an essentially feminine nature stood on the mantel shelf, and even on Percival's writing table. Mr. Longworthy took in all these things at a glance; he understood at once that it was here such things as Helen had left behind her had found a refuge.

But what chiefly drew his attention was a portrait of Helen which hung over the writing-table, and which represented her before a growing sorrow had robbed her face of its color and caused her slender figure to waste away. He almost gave utterance to an exclamation as he looked at it, but he did look at it so intently that Percival having spoken once without getting any reply turned round to see what had happened. Mr. Longworthy, seeing the movement, spoke at last.

"What a wonderfully attractive face," he said.

Even while he was speaking he saw the change in Percival's face, though he did not know that it was his use of the word "attractive" which had wrought it. Had he said "beautiful," Percival would merely have assented and said no more. Alice was beautiful; he was tired of hearing and seeing and being made to feel how beautiful. This man had passed even Helen's beauty to dwell upon her charm. Percival felt he was a friend.

"It is the portrait of my first wife," he said, without looking at it, but speaking in a different tone from any he had used before.

"It is the most charming face I ever saw," repeated Mr. Longworthy, and nothing more was said, but both men felt that a bond of sympathy had been forged between them.

It was late in the afternoon when Mr. Longworthy left Brantwood, and Percival drove him to the station. As they stood for a moment in the porch the Rector caught sight of a bush of white chrysanthemums growing near the door.

"May I beg one of these?" he asked impulsively, and Alice thought how odd that he should ask Percival for them instead of herself; but Percival, on hospitable thoughts intent, noticed nothing. He stepped into the garden and gathered a handful of the finest, which he gave to Mr. Longworthy.

They did not talk much as they drove to the station. Percival was now habitually reserved and Mr. Lonworthy was thinking.

They had a few minutes to wait at the station, and as they walked up and down the platform with the sound of the incoming tide booming through the darkness, Percival said—

"I need hardly say that if you ever happen to be at Osmotherley again we shall hope to see you at Brantwood."

"I thank you," replied Mr. Longworthy ceremoniously. "I shall probably tax your hospitality again, perhaps at no distant date."

The words were spoken slowly and rather thoughtfully, and Percival, though the least exacting of men, rather wondered that no return invitation was given.

Mr. Longworthy journeyed home in the darkness, the white flowers he held in his hand looking very conspicuous against his black coat; and, as he journeyed, he pondered on what he had seen and heard that day, and feared, he would soon lose Helen.

THE LONGEST WORD IN THE WELSH LANGUAGE.—The longest word in the English, or rather Welsh, longuage has, after a long period of oblivion, been once more exhumed. It is Llananfairpwllgwngyllgerchwyrnbyllgogerbwllxantvsiliogogogoch. This awful word of seventy-two letters and twenty-two syllables, the name of a village in Wales, constituted the subject of a lecture lately given by the Rev. J. King, M. A., at the Museum, Berwick, in which he showed that it it mean: St. Mary's white hazel pool, near the turning pool, neat the whirlpool, very near the pool by Llantsilio, fronting the rocky islet of Gogo.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

Meeting of Radicals who Favor Mr. Gladstone's Proposals.

FULL TEXT OF THE LAND BILL.

LONDON, April 22.—A great mass meeting of Liberals and Radicals was held at St. James' Hall this evening. Mr. Labouchere presided, supported by Messrs Bradlaugh, Lawson, Howell and Pickengill, members of Parliament, and others. Thousands were unable to gain admittance to the hall.

Mr. Labouchere said if Mr. Gladstone fell, he would fall with the democracy of the three Kingdoms around him. Many who now refused to give back Ireland her Parliament were descendants of the Esaus, who in their Parliament sold their birthright for a peerage.

Mr. Howell proposed a resolution congratulating Mr. Gladstone on his endeavors to secure the permanent union of England and Ireland, and expressing a hope that the Home Rule Bill would become law after being so modified as to harmonize with the desires of the Radicals.

The resolution was seconded by Mr. Leicester, M.P., and was supported by Mr Lawson and was carried unanimously, as was also a resolution authorizing the chairman to sign a petition to the House of Commons in favor of the Bill.

BELFAST, April 22.—At a crowded meeting of Liberals and Conservatives in the Chamber of Commerce here to-day, resolutions were passed violently condemning the measures proposed by Mr. Gladstone for the future government of Ireland.

LONDON, April 22. — The Land Bill was issued to-day. The full text shows it to provide that a landlord who is desirous to sell his property shall apply to the State authority. The latter shall refer the application to the Land Commission, which after making an inquiry shall fix the price at which the property shall be sold, unless the landlord and State authority have previously come to an agreement. If the landlord objects to the price fixed by the Commission he may withdraw his application on paying the costs.

When a sale of property has been effected the Commission shall pay the creditors before making any other distribution of the purchase money. Certain rent charges may be bought outright by the State authority, or payment may be continued from tenants' payments.

In cases of property whereon there is reasonable cause to suppose that valuable minerals exist, the Commission shall add to the purchase money a fair sum therefor, and the minerals realized from said property shall be vested in State authority or such local body as the Irish Legislature may provide.

The Irish Receiver General and deputies who are to execute the financial part of the Act, shall be appointed to hold office as permanent civil servants subject to the authority of the Treasury. They shall be paid from the Imperial exchequer, but the Irish Government shall appoint the actual collectors.

If the Receiver general or any of his deputies shall be guilty of malfeasance the culprit shall forfeit the sums so lost and also shall be subject to a fine of £500.

The measure empowers the Treasury to create three classes of permanent annuities bearing interest respectively at 3, 2¾ and 2½ per cent., and which shall be charged to the Imperial Consolidated Fund.

Strict rules are provided by the Bill which prevents the letting or sub-letting of a holding so long as it is subject to any State charge; but the State authority is empowered to relax these rules where it may be thought advisable.

The other points of the Bill were fully covered by Mr. Gladstone's speech of Friday evening last.

LONDON, April 23.—Lord Selborne (Liberal), in a letter to the Times, attacks certain features of Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule Bill. He also strongly attacks the Land Purchase Bill.

GALWAY, April 23.—The trustees of the extensive Simes' estates near Westport have offered to turn over the lands infee to tenants at sums equaling in the case of each holding twelve years' rent, the property to be sold at the present Poor Law valuation. The offer has created a sensation in Ireland.

MURDER WILL OUT.

A Confession of the Tragedy Near Wiarton.

FIVE PERSONS ARRESTED.

Preliminary Proceedings in the Owen Sound Police Court.

OWEN SOUND, April 23.—It will be remembered that about the end of March the MERCURY contained an account of a fire near Wiarton, in the township of Keppel, by which James A. Bailey and his hired man, whose name was unknown, lost their lives in the flames. About the beginning of April a full account of the inquest was given, and this report left no doubt that a foul murder had been committed. The verdict of the jury was to this effect, but there was no evidence which could lead to the identity of the culprit or culprits.

Detective Rogers has now succeeded in unearthing the mystery, by following Ellen McLeary, one of the witnesses, and a man who gave his name as John McCarty, to Palmerston, where they put up at a hotel as man and wife. The detective got under the bed where he heard them conversing about the murder and arrested them. Ellen McCleary then made the following confession to the officer:

On the Saturday previous to the Thursday night Bailey and the hired man were murdered I met James King and John Wilson on the road near Bailey's. They asked me if Bailey was at home. I told them no. They said they had come to finish him and wanted to know what night he would be alone, that they intended to finish him and would come back. I told them he would be alone on the following Thursday night. They said they would be there and wanted to know if I would be there. I told them yes. They said for me not to be there. If I was there they would give me the wink to leave. They also said they would finish me if I ever mentioned anything about the matter. That was the reason I did not make a full statement before the inquest. King told me before this that he had killed our dog to give him a better chance on Thursday night. The night Bailey was killed I was over at Bailey's house and prepared supper for them, I mean Bailey and the hired man. About six, or between six and seven o'clock, James King and John Wilson came to Bailey's house. I was putting on my coat to go home. They said good evening, and wanted to know if Bailey was home. I said no, that he had not returned from Wiarton, but I expected him very soon. They then gave me the wink to go. I left and went home. Shortly after I saw King and Wilson go to the bush. It was said during the conversation on the Saturday evening that they would finish Bailey either coming through the bush or in the back shed. They distinctly said they were going to kill Bailey and did not want me to see the deed committed. When they went to the bush I sent my brother Charlie over to Bailey's house to get the hired man out, as I did not want to see an innocent man killed, and I knew they would have to kill him to get at Bailey. I saw King and Wilson return to the house about an hour after they left. Shortly afterwards I saw the fire; they left and went through the bush.

(Signed) ELLEN MCCLEARY.

Detective Rogers took the girl and McCarty to Owen Sound goal. The man mentioned as Jim King was next arrested at his father's house, Mountain Lake, about six miles from Wiarton. He took his arrest very coolly, denying all knowledge of the murder. King is not of a prepossessing appearance. It seems almost impossible for him to look a man straight in the face. His sneaking appearance has been for long the subject of remark by the residents of Keppel. He is about five feet six inches in height.

The detective and constable then went to Griffith's Island, about fifteen miles distant, where, after a tramp of two hours in the bush, they found Wilson at McNeil's shanty. Wilson was completely taken by surprise. For a time he cared not to speak at all, and after he recovered his speech he began to cry. He denied all knowledge of the murder, and it is believed this man will be able to prove that he was on Griffith's Island when the murder was committed. It is thought Ellen McCleary is trying to shield a man who was stopping with her at the time of the fire, and that this part of the confession is simply a piece of blackmail. Wilson is about twenty-five years of age. When he saw King he said, "Jim, this is what I get for keeing bad company. I came from Griffith's Island to Oxenden with you on the day of the inquest and this is what I get for it." King gave him a fierce look when he made the remark.

The next person who was arrested was Charlie McCleary, brother of Ellen McCleary who made the confession. He was found on the McCleary farm, next to Bailey's, where the murder occurred. When taken in charge by Constable Pearce, he said, "is Steinoff arrested yet?" On Thursday night the whole party were taken to Owen Sound, arriving here about half-past one o'clock this morning. The prisoner King has a very bad record. Numbers of people living in the township of Keppel say they were afraid of him. Four years ago he was arrested on a charge of murdering his sister, Mary King, by poisoning her with oil of cedar, but he was acquitted. This therefore is his second arrest for murder. After he was arrested he admitted to the detective and constable that he was guilty of the most bestial practices. For some time past, according to the statements of his own brothers and neighbors, his conduct has been more like that of a beast than a human being. When arrested he did not appear to have any one in sympathy with him except his mother, who told her son when handcuffed that God would protect him.

As for Wilson, from what can be learnt his reputation has always been good. He has resided in Keppel for eighteen years, and never was known to be mixed up in anything questionable. He feels his position keenly. Detective Rogers handled the case well in every respect, and there is no doubt but the quickness with which this case has been uncovered will have the effect of making the residents feel safer in their homes in Keppel. Provincial Constable Pearce's assistance was invaluable. The arrest created intense excitement at Wiarton where the men were known.

The preliminary trial of King and Wilson was opened at 4 o'clock to-day before George Price, J. P. Ellen McCleary was first examined. The only important statements in addition to those contained in the confession were that she saw the prisoners come back from the bush to Bailey's House, whither they had gone to look for Bailey and about three quarters of an hour afterwards the fire occurred. Her brothers Charles and Steinoff went over to the fire. When she had gone home from Bailey's that night she wanted Charles to go over and ask the hired man to come to her place as she was afraid he would be killed, but he would not come. Both Bailey and King had asked her hand in marriage and King said if he got Bailey out of the way he would have her. Both Bailey and King had threatened to kill each other.

Charles McLeary, being sworn, corroborated his sister's statement about her telling him to ask Bailey's hired man to come over to their place.

It was decided to remand the prisoners for a week for further evidence as important witnesses in the case were not present. The magistrate refused bail.

From her pen emanated "Batoche," "Shot through the heart," "Only Mother," and many other touching and beautiful poems that appeared in our journals during the late war.

A Libel Suit.

Peter Murray is the name of the editor of the Orillia Times. A prisoner of the same name was charged in the Toronto Police Court last fall with raising a $1 bill to a $10, and the Globe in its report stated that he belonged to Orillia. When the mistake was discovered the Globe made ample correction, but the editor of the Times was not satisfied and entered an action for libel, claiming $10,000 damages. The case came up at the Whitby assizes on Friday, before Mr. Justice Cameron, when the jury brought in a verdict, finding $10 damages for the plaintiffs with costs, for the plaintiff.

THE SCOTT ACT IN BRUCE.—The Grand Jury at the Spring Assizes for the county of Bruce, held in Walkerton last week, has this in its presentment in reference to the Scott Act:—"We regret to state that in this county it is certainly a failure, as there appears to be as much if not more drinking than under the license system, besides the loss of revenue to the county. We would recommend a return to the license system, as the present Act, encourages law breaking and without apparent remedy." In reply Judge Rose said:—"The great majority appeared to be in favor of closing the saloons and thus to remove the temptation to foolish treating, which led so many boys to drink, while at the same time allowing full liberty in the use of liquor at hotel tables and in the purchase of it by private families." In commenting on the presentment the Telescope says:—"It contains one assertion that we think it would be hard for that august body to substantiate viz:—"The present Act (Scott Act) encourages law breaking." There is no doubt that the law is broken, but it is not made clear how the law encourages its own violation."

A Few Facts and Figures.

1st—The Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association has now over $130,000,000 of Insurance in force.

2nd—This Company transacted more new business in Canada, the first three months after its admission than did all the old line level premium companies combined.

3rd—The new business of this Association approximates $5,500,000 per month, which demonstrates the great popularity of the Reserve Fund System and is an earnest that the Association will eclipse all life organizations in cheapness of cost, in number of members and in volume of business, and is a guarantee of future permanency and stability.

4th—The Mutual Reserve has more than $2 in cash for every $1 of liability.

5th—The Reserve Fund is increasing at the rate of over $1,000 per day.

6th—The Association pays over $3,000 every day to Widows and Orphans and representatives of deceased members.

7th—It has $1,500,000 of assets.

8th—Rates less than one half that of stock companies.

Base Ball.

Detroit people contend that Buckenberger, 2nd baseman, and Mulholland, 3rd baseman of the Maple Leafs, are as good as any in their positions outside of the two big leagues.

Ed. Hewer got his arm injured while practising in the fair grounds last week.

James Henry, catcher of the Royal Oaks, caught for the Stratfords in a practice game on Friday. Like all other Guelph talent he did well away from home. It is likely he will finish the season in Stratford.

Messrs. Fuller, Nesbitt and Bicknell have been engaged by Hamilton, and Wm. Lount, Q.C., by Toronto, to look after their interests in the law suit, Sleeman vs. Hamilton and Toronto Association, which will come up to-morrow at Osgoode Hall, Toronto.

Manager Sleeman is adding three feet to the top of the fence around the Maple Leaf baseball grounds. Outsiders will have a poor chance of seeing games in future.

Local News.

No market of any account to-day.

E. W. JOHNSTON has been engaged as trainer and groundman of the Brooklyn Athletic Club.

MR. A. MCBEAN, hardware merchant, formerly of Guelph, now of Woodstock, is in the city to-day.

DON'T forget the Easter Festival and Fancy Fair, by the Young Ladies Sodality, in the City Hall, to-morrow. See advertisement.

THE heavy rain which poured in torrents from early last night until nearly daybreak this morning, has again made the roads very bad.

THE city authorities to-day received a letter of enquiry regarding the Guelph water works system, from T. S. Parker, Owen Sound. It was immediately answered.

IF you want to have a good laugh go to the I. O. O. F. concert at the City Hall this evening and see Gardiner and Gardiner's brudder in their specialties and comic banjo solos. d1

COCK FIGHTING.—The Grand Trunk authorities object to a cocking main on their premises. The names of several of the parties who witnessed the disgraceful scene have been obtained, two of which hold positions of responsibility in the town. Other two fights were held a short time ago, one in a man's cellar and the other a few paces from the city hall.

SPEED ROLLER RINK.—Bell Organ Band will play at the Rink to-morrow (Tuesday) night, and as it is probable that it may be the last band night under the present management everyone should be present. There will be backward and two-legged races, and a good night's sport may be anticipated. Ladies free.

PREPARING FOR THE SCOTT ACT.—Mr. J. Soper for the past week has men employed making alterations in his hotel preparatory to the enforcement of the Scott Act. The partitions in the sitting rooms have been re-painted and fitted up with glass windows between each room. The bar has been re-papered, and presents a very attractive appearance. Mr. Soper says that he is bound to give the Scott Act a fair trial, and if he does not succeed he will take up his bed and walk to some more congenial clime.

WAS IT GODERICH OR GUELPH?—The Huron Signal asks: — The War Cry has the following: — "A medical man was standing on the street at G — h the other day in conversation with a friend, when a S. A. soldier came up and handed him the balance of an old account. "Ah?" said he, "all the lawyers in Canada would never have got that a while back, but the Army has brought it round." He had hardly ceased speaking when another soldier handed him a $10 bill to settle an old score." For the information of the Signal we may say that this was in Guelph.

THE MAY HARPER.—Harper's Magazine for May is in every way strong. The number opens with an entertaining description of the fashionable arrangements that make up what is known as The London Season—illustrated by eleven characteristic pictures drawn by George du Maurier. The second part of Mr. Charles Dudley Warner's story, Their Pilgrimage, is located in the Catskills. This story of summer life at American pleasure resorts is unique in its conception and is admirably well executed. Mr. Rheinhart's spirited drawings add greatly to its interest. R. F. Zoghaum contributes another of his interesting military papers, entitled With the Bluecoats on the Border, illustrated from his own drawings. William Hamilton Gibson, in Sap Bewitched, contributes an exquisite bit of fancy blended with scientific suggestion, and illustrated in his happiest style. Miss Woolson's novel, East Angels, is concluded. The second part of Mrs. Craik's King Arthur—Not a Love Story, will be read with interest by every mother who has perused the previous chapters. This novel is to be concluded in the June number. Poems are contributed by Paul Hamilton, Hayne, Juliet C. Marsh, and Mrs. Harriet Prescott Spofford. The drawer is full of interesting anecdotes.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

A large consignment of fresh oysters, halibut, haddock, cod, whitefish, salmon trout, &c. George Williams, 81 and 83 Upper Wyndham street.

Day has made a contract for six hundred dollars worth of baby carriages, first lot expected next week. Nice goods and big value at Day's Bookstore.

Our Dress Making department is in the hands of Miss Amiss, of New York. W. are now ready to take orders. Ryan, Berkinshaw & Co. d

New wall paper, borders and decorations at the City Bookstore, and all the praise they require is to say we have a larger stock, nicer goods and cheaper prices than last year, and we astonished people last year. Come and see them before buying. J. A. Nelles.

Children's carriages, new, stylish and cheap, at Nelles' City Bookstore. Don't be misled. You get the best value in the city from J. A. Nelles.

IT always requires time to establish a reputation, but ability will always tell in the long run, and so it has proved in the present case. Miss Todd the Dress Maker at the Lion is now doing the largest and best trade that has ever been done in that establishment. d

ENGLISH Boaters, and American Mackinaw hats at Shaw & Grundy's.

A large assortment of cocoa mats have been received, by John M. Bond & Co., direct from Westmoreland, England. In rakes, spades, oilcloth, and all seasonable hardware their stock is large and suited to the wants of all. See adv.

Handsome goods at Nelles' City Bookstore. Our place is full of new, nice, cheap goods for the trade. Call and see them.

Try Loch's unrivalled Teas and Coffees. Careful personal attention given to the blending so as to strengthen and flavour. Italian Warehouse, 89 Wyndham street.

THE reduced prices of B. B. Hughes spring goods attracts more customers than even the spring millinery openings and brass or string bands. The public know he is the only real wholesale dry goods man in Guelph. Go to him if you want your new spring goods at wholesale prices. d

ALL quiet in Police circles to-day.

DON'T fail to hear Madam Cleomati at Daughters of Rebecca concert at City Hall this evening. d1

MR. E. R. BOLLERT, is having a trench dug to-day, for a supply of city water to his establishment.

MR. A. A. CARLTON, Boston, Mass., Grand Lecturer of the Knights of Labor, will deliver a lecture on "Capital and Labor" in the City Hall on Friday next at eight o'clock. Mr. Carlton is highly spoken of as a sound, sensible speaker.

CAPT. CLARKE'S calisthenic class in Galt will give an entertainment in that town to-morrow evening. Up to Saturday night over 1,000 tickets have been sold. After paying expenses the surplus will be devoted to various charities.

IMPROVING.—Mr. Wm. Atkinson, Liverpool street, who has been confined to his bed for the past seven weeks with general debility has somewhat recovered within the past few days, and is now able to walk around a little, which will be a source of pleasure to his many friends in the city.

TROUT fishing opens the first of May. It is confidently expected the catches will not be so large as on former occasions, as the Scott Act comes in force on that day, and many of the lovers of the piscatory art will not be able to secure the requisite bait.

REMEMBER the Oddfellows concert in the city hall to-night. The programme altogether is an excellent one. The Globe speaking of Madame Cleomati says:—Madame Cleomati sang a selection of popular songs in her most effective style, and was received with the most enthusiastic applause.

COURT OF REVISION.—Reformers who have been summoned to attend the Court of Revision of the voters list for the city for the Local Legislature, should not fail to put in an appearance to-night, at the Court House, at seven o'clock, and give proof of their being entitled to be put on the list.

SHEEP KILLED.—Mr. James Heffernan, Nichol, during the thunder storm of Friday, had six sheep kil ed by lightning. It seems that they had been lying under a tree, and the lightning struck the tree, ran down the trunk and struck the sheep. Only one escaped out of a lot of seven. The rails of the fence near by were also struck.

ARBOR DAY.—The Mayor has issued his proclamation for Saturday, the first of May, being Arbor Day. The chairman of the Market House Committee will have a large number of suitable trees at the Market House on that day, which will be sold at ten cents apiece. Every one who has property without shade trees being planted in front thereof should take advantage of this opportunity, as it not only enhances the value of the property but the appearance of the streets.

ADDRESS.—At the close of the session of the Norfolk street Methodist Church Sabbath School yesterday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Bucham, who had been connected with the school—Mr. Bucham as Secretary and Assistant Superintendent for 25 years, and Mrs. Bucham as scholar and teacher for 42 years, being at the present time teacher of the Young Ladies' Bible Class—for the greater part of its history, were presented with a nicely illuminated address. Mr. and Mrs. Bucham and family are leaving the city to take up their residence in Toronto, and the address was a tribute to faithful service of Mr. and Mrs. Bucham in the Sabbath School. It was read by Mr. James Schofield, and on replying on behalf of himself, wife and family, Mr. Bucham spoke of the regret they would feel in leaving Guelph and the many very pleasant associations connected with the school.

INSPECTING OUR FIRE SYSTEM.—Mr. Charles McGregor, Mayor of Stratford, was in the city to-day inspecting our system of fire protection in its minutest details. He was greatly pleased with it as a whole, and more especially with the quick time in which the horses were hitched to the hose reel. They were hitched up three times, and the last time, when they were driven out, the time made was a little over 7 seconds. "This is what we want in Stratford," remarked Mr. McGregor. Mr. McGregor is an old Guelph man, his father some 34 years ago being pastor of the old Knox church, which was then on the sight of Raymond's brick factory, where he ministered for many years with great satisfaction. During his short stay in Guelph Mr. McGregor met with many old friends who had p'ayed with him in the days of his boyhood, and who contrived to make his visit to the Royal City as pleasant and enjoyable as could be. He is on his return from Elora where he has been visiting his aged mother, who is now far advanced in years.

Suicide at London.

LONDON, April 25.—Mr. David Campbell, a farmer, who lived alone in a cottage on the road to the waterworks, was found on Friday morning, by a neighbour, suffering intense pain, and soon afterward suddenly fell forward and died. Deceased, who lost his wife a few weeks ago, had been subject to fits of melancholy, and as a quantity of Paris green was found about the house it was inferred that he had poisoned himself. A piece of paper was picked up on the floor, on which deceased had written, "It is impossible for me to live any longer without her." A post mortem revealed the fact that death had been caused by poison, and an inquest having been held the jury returned a verdict of suicide.

An Enterprising Town.

Mr. H. W. C. Meyer, of Wingham, has been at Ottawa in reference to the Wingham branch of the C.P.R. The Government have promised a grant of $3,200 a mile for the four and a half miles, and other satisfactory arrangements have been made with the Company. The prospects of the road being built are now good. The boring for salt at Wingham is being prosecuted, a second well having been sunk in order to strike stronger brine. This is being done at the request of the C. P. R., who have no salt on their lines. The discovery of salt on their line would therefore promote a competition in salt rates and in salt trade.

Factory Burned.

BLENHEIM, April 23.—At noon to-day a fire broke out in Irwin's hoop and heading mill, known as Wixon's mill, totally destroying it. The mill and machinery were owned and worked by Andrew Irwin. Loss, $2,000; no insurance. The fire is supposed to have started from the ash barrel.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

Mr. Gladstone to be Asked to Drop His Measure.

T. P. O'CONNOR ON THE SITUATION.

LONDON, April 24.—Opposition to the Land Bill is steadily increasing in strength. The fact is noteworthy that among the strongest objectors are some of the earnest supporters of Mr. Gladstone's general policy. Lord Selborne's letter, pointing out the inadequacy of the amount devoted to the purchase of estates, is but a conspicuous example of similar criticisms made from within the immediate circle of the Premier's friends. Mr. Gladstone's adherents have decided upon a formal collective statement of their objections to the Land Bill, and will present it to the Premier with a request that the measure be dropped altogether.

The Economist and Tablet (the latter Roman Catholic) think the Land Bill cannot be regarded as permanent, for the amount named as a purchase fund stops less than half way of the sum which will be required.

Thus far the Parnellites have had little to say about the measure in the way of expressions of opinion pro and con. A meeting of the central branch of the National League has been called for May 4, at Dublin, at which the draft of the Land Bill will be discussed.

More than eight thousand members of the Civil Service in Ireland have appointed a committee to watch the progress of the Home Rule Bill and to endeavor to secure an improvement of the provision in the Bill which relates to themselves.

Petitions against the Home Rule measure will be introduced at the Easter meetings of the English churches.

Archbishop Croke, speaking at Thurles, delivered a panegyric on Mr. Gladstone, declaring that the Premier was Ireland's greatest friend.

The Birmingham Post says it understands that Mr. Chamberlain has given notice that he will introduce in the House of Commons an amendment in opposition to the Land Bill.

It is stated that some officers now stationed in Ireland have applied for a transfer to India, lest they be called upon to serve against the people of Ulster.

LONDON, April 26.—Mr. Gladstone has written the following letter to the Chronicle:

It is not my custom to comment on statements made by hostile newspapers, but having a sincere respect for the Chronicle I would call attention to an allegation made by it in a leader that I have heretofore taught that Home Rule in Ireland would be a source of Imperial danger. I will not challenge proof of the assertion, which was doubtless made in good faith but is entirely an error. I have always asked for an explanation of the meaning of Home Rule in order to make clear the question whether or not it would be a source of danger. We have now learned the demand of Ireland from five-sixths of her chosen representatives. Such Home Rule is, in the language of my address of September last, a source not of danger but of strength. The danger, if any, lies in refusing it.

Thomas Power O'Connor sends a cablegram in which he says taking the week as a whole it must be regarded as ending favorably for Mr. Gladstone. While John Morley's reply at Newcastle to Mr. Chamberlain's speech was effective, it may be looked upon as an assurance also that further consideration of the Land Purchase Bill has been postponed to a date sufficiently remote to prevent its interfering with the Home Rule Bill. The Cabinet have recognized the impossibility of their being able to carry both measures through the present session in view of the narrow majority expected for the second reading of the Home Rule Bill. The week has been remarkable for the scores of resolutions passed by Liberal Committees in all parts of the country supporting Mr. Gladstone by overwhelming majorities. Many of these come from districts which were supposed to be under the exclusive influence of the caucus or the Hartington clique. Another point is the fact that numerous Radical members of Parliament, some of whom were considered doubtful on the Home Rule issue, have addressed their constituents in support of Mr. Gladstone. In every instance the resolutions were adopted with uproarious applause. In Radical constituencies, where the members stated they were opposed to Mr. Gladstone's Irish policy, they were angrily called to account and explanations demanded. These members are not likely to stand up against the storm of local excitement, and will find it prudent to invent eleventh-hour reasons for going into the division lobby with the Prime Minister.

No Change in the Weather.

The probabilities:—Strong winds and moderate gales from east and south; partly cloudy weather, with local rains; stationary or higher temperatures.

An area of depression now central in Iowa is moving towards the Lake region. The weather has been cool and showery in Manitoba and fair and moderately warm in the Northwest Territories. Light local rains have occurred in the lower Lake region, while further east the weather has been clear. Cautionary signals are displayed at ports on Lakes Erie and Ontario.

Mother and Child Drowned.

DRESDEN, Ont., April 24.—At Dawn Mills last evening Mrs. Lye and a 3-year old child were drowned. It is thought that she went out shortly before 6 o'clock to call her family to tea, and the child fell over the bank, which is very steep, and that she jumped after it. When her husband came to tea the children said ma had gone to call tea and had not returned. He at once tracked her to the river, where she was found lifeless. The body of the child had not been recovered up to midnight.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

IN Seasickness.

Prof. Adolph Ott, New York, says: "I used it for seasickness, during an ocean passage. In most of the cases the violent symptoms which characterize that disease yielded, and gave way to a healthful action of the functions impared."

This is to certify that I have used McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and do honestly say that if it cost me one hundred dollars ($100.00) a bottle I would not be without it, as it has done me more good than all the medicines I ever used, and I feel like a new man.—Yours truly, Alex Steel, Carleton Place, Ont. This medicine is for sale at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at Thos. S. Petrie's Drug Store.

About $1,500 has been collected in Toronto for the loyalists of Ireland to aid them in fighting the Home Rulers and will be forwarded to Belfast this week.

Rev. John Stewart, formerly of Kincardine, but lately of the Northwest, has accepted a call from the Presbyterian congregation at Keady, Grey County.

The Royal Grenadiers on Sunday marched to St. Luke's Church, Toronto, for divine service in commemoration of the battle of Fish Creek fought April 24, 1885.

The body of a young man named Farr, son of Archibald Farr, was found in the Welland River on Friday. He had been missing some time, and it is supposed he committed suicide.

Henry Sandfield, eldest son of the late John Sandfield Macdonald, died at Cornwall at 4 a. m., Saturday, never having recovered from a stroke of apoplexy he received eight days previous when conducting a case in the Court House.

In the Halifax Herald's obituary columns of Monday are recorded the deaths of eleven persons whose ages aggregated 853 years. On Saturday the Herald announced the deaths of eleven persons whose ages aggregated 838 years—or 1,691 years for the 22 persons, an average age of 77 years. Not a bad record for our country, and not excelled by any.

The report is confirmed that the Emir of Harran has massacred all the Europeans in his Capital; also that the members of the Italian scientific expedition under Count Parro.

Prof. Roscoe, the celebrated English chemist, and four other British medical scientists, have arrived at Paris to study M. Pasteur's system of inoculation against hydrophobia.

A Horrible Death.

WALLACEBURG, Ont., April 22.—Just before 6 o'clock to-day James Heyward a miller in Patterson & Co.'s roller mill climbed the bolt for the purpose, it is supposed, of clearing a choked convey box, when his clothing caught in the complicated gearing and shafts and he was drawn to a horrible death in an instant. Both arms were torn off near the elbows and the end of the bolt shaft pierced his breast, causing a terrible wound. His head was also lacerated and the shoe torn from one foot. When assistance reached him his mangled and lifeless body hung suspended in the machinery.

Nothing for their Pains.

DURHAM, April 23.—The G. T. R. station was entered last night by burglars. Some pieces of freight and baggage were broken open. Entrance was made by breaking a window. Everything in the office was turned over, but nothing has been missed.

Base Ball.

Detroit people contend that Buckenberger, 2nd baseman, and Mulholland, 3rd baseman of the Maple Leafs, are as good as any in their positions outside of the two big leagues.

Ed. Hewer got his arm injured while practising in the fair grounds last week.

James Henry, catcher of the Royal Oaks, caught for the Stratfords in a practice game on Friday. Like all other Guelph talent he did well away from home. It is likely he will finish the season in Stratford.

Messrs. Fuller, Nesbitt and Bicknell have been engaged by Hamilton, and Wm. Lount, Q.C., by Toronto, to look after their interests in the law suit, Sleeman vs. Hamilton and Toronto Association, which will come up to-morrow at Osgoode Hall, Toronto.

Manager Sleeman is adding three feet to the top of the fence around the Maple Leaf baseball grounds. Outsiders will have a poor chance of seeing games in future.

Local News.

No market of any account to-day.

E. W. JOHNSTON has been engaged as trainer and groundman of the Brooklyn Athletic Club.

MR. A. A. CARLTON, Boston, Mass., Grand Lecturer of the Knights of Labor, will deliver a lecture on "Capital and Labor" in the City Hall on Friday next at eight o'clock. Mr. Carlton is highly spoken of as a sound, sensible speaker.

CAPT. CLARKE's calisthenic class in Galt will give an entertainment in that town to-morrow evening. Up to Saturday night over 1,000 tickets have been sold. After paying expenses the surplus will be devoted to various charities.

IMPROVING.—Mr. Wm. Atkinson, Liverpool street, who has been confined to his bed for the past seven weeks with general debility has somewhat recovered within the past few days, and is now able to walk around a little, which will be a source of pleasure to his many friends in the city.

TROUT fishing opens the first of May. It is confidently expected the catches will not be so large as on former occasions, as the Scott Act comes in force on that day, and many of the lovers of the piscatory art will not be able to secure the requisite bait.

REMEMBER the Oddfellows concert in the city hall to-night. The programme altogether is an excellent one. The Globe speaking of Madame Cleomati says:—Madame Cleomati sang a selection of popular songs in her most effective style, and was received with the most enthusiastic applause.

COURT OF REVISION.—Reformers who have been summoned to attend the Court of Revision of the voters list for the city for the Local Legislature, should not fail to put in an appearance to-night, at the Court House, at seven o'clock, and give proof of their being entitled to be put on the list.

SHEEP KILLED.—Mr. James Heffernan, Nichol, during the thunder storm of Friday, had six sheep killed by lightning. It seems that they had been lying under a tree, and the lightning struck the tree, ran down the trunk and struck the sheep. Only one escaped out of a lot of seven. The rails of the fence near by were also struck.

ARBOR DAY.—The Mayor has issued his proclamation for Saturday, the first of May, being Arbor Day. The chairman of the Market House Committee will have a large number of suitable trees at the Market House on that day, which will be sold at ten cents apiece. Every one who has property without shade trees being planted in front thereof should take advantage of this opportunity, as it not only enhances the value of the property but the appearance of the streets.

ADDRESS.—At the close of the session of the Norfolk street Methodist Church Sabbath School yesterday afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Bucham, who had been connected with the school—Mr. Bucham as Secretary and Assistant Superintendent for 25 years, and Mrs. Bucham as scholar and teacher for 42 years, being at the present time teacher of the Young Ladies' Bible Class—for the greater part of its history, were presented with a nicely illuminated address. Mr. and Mrs. Bucham and family are leaving the city to take up their residence in Toronto, and the address was a tribute to faithful service of Mr. and Mrs. Bucham in the Sabbath School. It was read by Mr. James Schofield, and on replying on behalf of himself, wife and family, Mr. Bucham spoke of the regret they would feel in leaving Guelph and the many very pleasant associations connected with the school.

INSPECTING OUR FIRE SYSTEM.—Mr. Charles McGregor, Mayor of Stratford, was in the city to-day inspecting our system of fire protection in its minutest details. He was greatly pleased with it as a whole, and more especially with the quick time in which the horses were hitched to the hose reel. They were hitched up three times, and the last time, when they were driven out, the time made was a little over 7 seconds. "This is what we want in Stratford," remarked Mr. McGregor. Mr. McGregor is an old Guelph man, his father some 34 years ago being pastor of the old Knox church, which was then on the sight of Raymond's brick factory, where he ministered for many years with great satisfaction. During his short stay in Guelph Mr. McGregor met with many old friends who had p'ayed with him in the days of his boyhood, and who contrived to make his visit to the Royal City as pleasant and enjoyable as could be. He is on his return from Elora where he has been visiting his aged mother, who is now far advanced in years.

Suicide at London.

LONDON, April 25.—Mr. David Campbell, a farmer, who lived alone in a cottage on the road to the waterworks, was found on Friday morning, by a neighbour, suffering intense pain, and soon afterward suddenly fell forward and died. Deceased, who lost his wife a few weeks ago, had been subject to fits of melancholy, and as a quantity of Paris green was found about the house it was inferred that he had poisoned himself. A piece of paper was picked up on the floor, on which deceased had written, "It is impossible for me to live any longer without her." A post mortem revealed the fact that death had been caused by poison, and an inquest having been held the jury returned a verdict of suicide.

An Enterprising Town.

Mr. H. W. C. Meyer, of Wingham, has been at Ottawa in reference to the Wingham branch of the C.P.R. The Government have promised a grant of $3,200 a mile for the four and a half miles, and other satisfactory arrangements have been made with the Company. The prospects of the road being built are now good. The boring for salt at Wingham is being prosecuted, a second well having been sunk in order to strike stronger brine. This is being done at the request of the C. P. R., who have no salt on their lines. The discovery of salt on their line would therefore promote a competition in salt rates and in salt trade.

Factory Burned.

BLENHEIM, April 23.—At noon to-day a fire broke out in Irwin's hoop and heading mill, known as Wixon's mill, totally destroying it. The mill and machinery were owned and worked by Andrew Irwin. Loss, $2,000; no insurance. The fire is supposed to have started from the ash barrel.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

Mr. Gladstone to be Asked to Drop His Measure.

T. P. O'CONNOR ON THE SITUATION.

LONDON, April 24.—Opposition to the Land Bill is steadily increasing in strength. The fact is noteworthy that among the strongest objectors are some of the earnest supporters of Mr. Gladstone's general policy. Lord Selborne's letter, pointing out the inadequacy of the amount devoted to the purchase of estates, is but a conspicuous example of similar criticisms made from within the immediate circle of the Premier's friends. Mr. Gladstone's adherents have decided upon a formal collective statement of their objections to the Land Bill, and will present it to the Premier with a request that the measure be dropped altogether.

The Economist and Tablet (the latter Roman Catholic) think the Land Bill cannot be regarded as permanent, for the amount named as a purchase fund stops less than half way of the sum which will be required.

Thus far the Parnellites have had little to say about the measure in the way of expressions of opinion pro and con. A meeting of the central branch of the National League has been called for May 4, at Dublin, at which the draft of the Land Bill will be discussed.

More than eight thousand members of the Civil Service in Ireland have appointed a committee to watch the progress of the Home Rule Bill and to endeavor to secure an improvement of the provision in the Bill which relates to themselves.

Petitions against the Home Rule measure will be introduced at the Easter meetings of the English churches.

Archbishop Croke, speaking at Thurles, delivered a panegyric on Mr. Gladstone, declaring that the Premier was Ireland's greatest friend.

The Birmingham Post says it understands that Mr. Chamberlain has given notice that he will introduce in the House of Commons an amendment in opposition to the Land Bill.

It is stated that some officers now stationed in Ireland have applied for a transfer to India, least they be called upon to serve against the people of Ulster.

LONDON, April 26.—Mr. Gladstone has written the following letter to the Chronicle:

It is not my custom to comment on statements made by hostile newspapers, but having a sincere respect for the Chronicle I would call attention to an allegation made by it in a leader that I have heretofore taught that Home Rule in Ireland would be a source of Imperial danger. I will not challenge proof of the assertion, which was doubtless made in good faith but is entirely in error. I have always asked for an explanation of the meaning of Home Rule in order to make clear the question whether or not it would be a source of danger. We have now learned the demand of Ireland from five-sixths of her chosen representatives. Such Home Rule is, in the language of my address of September last, a source not of danger but of strength. The danger, if any, lies in refusing it.

Thomas Power O'Connor sends a cablegram in which he says taking the week as a whole it must be regarded as ending favorably for Mr. Gladstone. While John Morley's reply at Newcastle to Mr. Chamberlain's speech was effective, it may be looked upon as an assurance also that further consideration of the Land Purchase Bill has been postponed to a date sufficiently remote to prevent its interfering with the Home Rule Bill. The Cabinet have recognized the impossibility of their being able to carry both measures through the present session in view of the narrow majority expected for the second reading of the Home Rule Bill. The week has been remarkable for the scores of resolutions passed by Liberal Committees in all parts of the country supporting Mr. Gladstone by overwhelming majorities. Many of these come from districts which were supposed to be under the exclusive influence of the caucus or the Hartington clique. Another point is the fact that numerous Radical members of Parliament, some of whom were considered doubtful on the Home Rule issue, have addressed their constituents in support of Mr. Gladstone. In every instance the resolutions were adopted with uproarious applause. In Radical constituencies, where the members stated they were opposed to Mr. Gladstone's Irish policy, they were angrily called to account and explanations demanded. These members are not likely to stand up against the storm of local excitement, and will find it prudent to invent eleventh hour reasons for going into the division lobby with the Prime Minister.

No Change in the Weather.

The probabilities:—Strong winds and moderate gales from east and south; partly cloudy weather, with local rains; stationary or higher temperatures.

An area of depression now central in Iowa is moving towards the Lake region. The weather has been cool and showery in Manitoba and fair and moderately warm in the Northwest Territories. Light local rains have occurred in the lower Lake region, while further east the weather has been clear. Cautionary signals are displayed at ports on Lakes Erie and Ontario.

Mother and Child Drowned.

DRESDEN, Ont., April 24.—At Dawn Mills last evening Mrs. Lye and a 3-year old child were drowned. It is thought that she went out shortly before 6 o'clock to call her family to tea, and the child fell over the bank, which is very steep, and that she jumped after it. When her husband came to tea the children said ma had gone to call tea and had not returned. He at once tracked her to the river, where she was found lifeless. The body of the child had not been recovered up to midnight.

A Horrible Death.

WALLACEBURG, Ont., April 22.—Just before 6 o'clock to-day James Heyward a miller in Patterson & Co.'s roller mill climbed the bolt for the purpose, it is supposed, of clearing a choked convey box, when his clothing caught in the complicated gearing and shafts and he was drawn to a horrible death in an instant. Both arms were torn off near the elbows and the end of the bolt shaft pierced his breast, causing a terrible wound. His head was also lacerated and the shoe torn from one foot. When assistance reached him his mangled and lifeless body hung suspended in the machinery.

The Evening Mercury

MONDAY EVE'G APRIL 26, 1886.

HON. EDWARD BLAKE will be entertained to a banquet by the Liberal members in the House of Commons and Senate on Saturday evening next.

IT is reported that Senator Plumb was sworn in on Saturday as Postmaster-General, in place of Sir Alexander Campbell, who has been obliged to retire owing to continued ill health. Should Sir Alexander recover it is said that he will be appointed Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario. It is also reported that Mr. Dewdney has been appointed Lieut.-Governor of British Columbia in place of Mr. Cornwall, the present incumbent, whose term of office has expired.

ON Saturday next the Scott Act will go into effect in Guelph, Wellington, Brant, Leeds and Grenville, Kent, Lanark, Lennox and Addington, Elgin, Lambton, St. Thomas, Frontenac, Lincoln, Middlesex, Victoria, Ontario, Peterboro, Northumberland and Durham; Brome and Chicoutimi, Que.; and Guysboro, N. S. The Act is now in force in twenty-eight places in the Maritime Provinces, twelve in Ontario, three in Quebec and two in Manitoba. After May 1, therefore, the Act will be in operation in sixty-four of the counties and cities of the Dominion. The Act was carried in St. John, N.B., County on Wednesday.

BY resolution of the City Council Saturday next, May 1st, has been declared Guelph's Arbor Day and the citizens have been asked to mark the occasion by planting at least one tree each. Our first Arbor Day last year was observed pretty generally, and it is hoped that the second one will result in the laying of a still larger foundation for the future beauty of the city. Nature has endowed Guelph with many features of a picturesque and beautiful character, which have been improved upon by the good taste of citizens. Parks, fountains, avenues, boulevards, and lawns are yearly adding to the beauty of the place. It is not necessary to point to the value of tree planting as a means of increasing the attractiveness of our streets. Several well shaded avenues already bear evidence to that when these are contrasted with streets where tree planting has been neglected. Money spent in planting trees not only contributes to the appearance of the city, but it is a good investment, because nothing tends in a greater degree to the improvement of property or does more to increase its value for the outlay. The work done on Arbor Day will give an appreciable return in a few years.

THE Toronto Week condemns in fitting terms the attempt of Messrs. Beaty and Woodworth to use their positions as members of Parliament in order to secure some plunder out of their Northwest railway. It says:—"The more the Beaty-Woodworth scandal is stirred the greater is the stench; and the worst of it is that the line taken in defence implies that a generally low standard prevails among members of parliament on these subjects. This we greatly fear is the fact, and the matter calls urgently for the attention of the country. * * Expulsion from Parliament and exclusion from it for the future ought always to be a part of the penalty. A strict and inflexible law should prevent members of Parliament from meddling with anything which is before the House and in which they have a pecuniary interest. The glimpses which on such occasions as the present we get into the condition of public life warn us that the need of safeguards has become pressing. Our politics are in danger of being saturated with corruption, while the ideas of our people will be debauched at the same time. Mr. Blake has a character above suspicion, and if he will take up the question bravely he may render an estimable service to the country."

WHEN any single law is persistently and constantly broken it is apt to cultivate a disregard for all laws, which is a very undesirable state of feeling to exist in any community. The result cannot be otherwise than demoralizing. Hence it is that respectable men, whether they favor or disapprove of the Scott Act, are anxious, now that this Act has been adopted here, that it should be enforced with the utmost rigour. An attempt will no doubt be made to defeat the working of the Act by the sale of liquor without license. This is to be inferred from the fact that their are still ample stocks retained in the city. To defeat unprincipled vendors in breaking the law will require constant watching not only on the part of inspectors and policemen but on the part of all who respect law and order. The whole machinery furnished by the Scott Act will have to be determinedly brought into operation and offenders persistently and vigorously prosecuted and made to feel the full penalty of their misdeeds. If prompt action is taken and a few examples are made at first of those who try to retail liquor without license the effect will be most salutary.

Important News Item.

COOKSTOWN.—Mrs Campbell had for a number of years been troubled with indigestion and constipation, and was induced to try McGregor's Speedy Cure and found it all that was needed, and would recommend its use to any person similarly troubled. CONVICTS REVOLT.

Desperate Fight at St. Vincent De Paul Penitentiary.

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL, Que., April 25.—The convicts in the penitentiary here revolted about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It appears that the row first broke out in the stone shed, the guards who had charge of the gang being seized and bound. The prisoners, after stripping the guards of their revolvers and rifles, took some rafters to make a ladder to enable them to get over the walls. Warden Laviollette demanded their surrender, when the prisoners opened fire on him and the guards and a desperate fight ensued, which lasted some time. The Warden received a bullet in the back of the head which came out at his jaw, another pierced his wrist, while a third entered the abdomen. His wounds are very serious, and he is not likely to recover. Chartrand, a guard, was wounded in the leg, while several others received wounds more or less serious. A prisoner named Corriveau was shot dead. Five other prisoners were wounded. None of the convicts escaped. Vian, who shot at A. F. Gault while plundering that gentleman's house several years ago, was the leader of the gang.

The tailoring shop was burned down some time ago. Since then the convicts have been extremely busy in this department and have finished many suits. The first guard seized in the stone shop was Bostock. Convict Norman, who is serving a term for robbing Webster's tailoring shop, came up behind and seized him by the arms. Bostock, endeavoring to free himself, threw his captive backwards on the ground, and other convicts, coming up, tied him. A search was made through his pockets for the keys. None were found, but on another guard the convicts got the keys and entered the tailor shop and procured clothes and dressed themselves.

When the Warden was brought to the fence to act as a shield for the convicts in their efforts to break it down the convicts yelled to the guards on the walls, "you can't shoot or you will kill the Warden." The latter bravely and pluckily cried out to them, "Shoot, shoot, never mind me." The guards continued doing their duty.

There are eight guards on relief all the time. These fortunately were at hand. Hearing shots, they ran up with revolvers, and while the convicts were at the fence kept up a fusilade through it. The convicts, finding themselves helpless, returned to their cells. They have acted like mad men since.

There are at present 275 convicts in the building, rather less than usual. Vian is one of the most notorious.

"A BIG Majority."

In Millinery and Mantles we excell.

We hold a big range of Silk and Satin Dolmans and Jackets in Plain and Brocade.

MISS MARRIOTT, our Milliner, although young in years, is old in experience and having youth on her side, she naturally adapts herself more readily to the changing styles.

Our Dressmaking Department under MISS TODD has assumed such proportions as we never dreamed of before.

CLOTHING

We strongly advise young men who want Suits made by MR. McKENZIE for the 24th May, to leave their orders at once, as we are so busy in this department that it is almost impossible to get the work out.

Our Ready-Made Cutter is now engaged in getting out 1,000 Suits which we will be able to sell at $3.95 each.

Cloths, Tweeds, Worsteds in French, English, Scotch and American styles and good.

Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association of New York

Potter Building, Park Row, Nassau & Beekman-sts., New York, April 1st, 1886.

TO OUR AGENTS—

Six Millions, Three Hundred and Seven Thousand Dollars.

The following statement gives the amount of new business received at the Home Office of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association each day during the month of March, 1886:

" 2,	148,000	" 13,	140,000	" 25,	213,000
" 3,	158,000	" 15,	444,500	" 26,	253,000
" 4,	181,000	" 16,	273,000	" 27,	117,500
" 5,	237,000	" 17,	173,000	" 29,	370,500
" 6,	118,500	" 18,	272,500	" 30,	214,000
" 8,	289,000	" 19,	209,000	" 31,	370,000
" 9,	248,000	" 20.	245,000
" 10,	157,000	" 22,	298,000		$6,307,000
" 11,	178,000	" 23,	200,000

This enormous volume of new business is in amount unprecedented, and is the result of the labor during the month of March of the "Mutual Reserve Army" of insurance workers, in whose rank and file are representative insurance men who have no equals, and to them is due the credit of having written an average new business, allowing eight hours as a day's work (Sundays excepted), of $491.00 per minute.

It is the desire of your management that the new business for April should amount to SEVEN MILLION DOLLARS, and I now appeal to you knowing that you will heartily respond to the call, to individually increase your business over that of the past month by 10 per cent., thereby reaching the allotment for April—of $7,000,000.

Truly yours.

CHAPTER XXV.

DEEPENING SHADOWS.

Mr. Longworthy had told his tale, withholding nothing. He judged Helen aright in thinking her strong enough to bear it, and he knew that her woman's and wife's instinct would tell her if he concealed anything.

When he had finished they were all silent. Helen sat in the couch with her flowers clasped in her hand. On hearing of the change in Percival she had turned very pale. Only at the end of the story, when the clergyman put into her hand the flowers he held and told her they had been gathered by her husband, did she raise her bowed head and let them see her face. It bore an expression of almost unearthly sorrow, heightened and purified by an equally unearthly joy. She looked transfigured, and Mr. Longworthy, as his eyes rested upon her, felt that to all intents and purposes his battle was won; the proclamation of victory would be but a question of time.

She did not ask many questions, nor say very much; but he knew that she was feeling "with every fibre of her nature" that her place was with her husband.

Presently she rose and left the room, taking her flowers with her. Mr. Longworthy, as he held the door open for her, said—

"You have no reason to feel afraid now."

As he spoke his eyes rested upon the flowers. She separated one from the rest—a large, soft, exquisitely pure white flower with long-pointed petals—and put it into his hand without speaking. Then she went on her way upstairs. She wanted to be alone, and she wanted to leave the Longworthys alone.

"The battle is won," said the clergyman as he came back to his wife after closing the door upon Helen.

"You think so?" she asked, rather anxiously.

"I am sure of it. There was no renunciation in her face. She may not go back to him to-morrow, but she will go back."

"I shall be glad for her sake. It is easy to see that in spite of her efforts to appear so she is not really happy. But it will be terrible to lose her. She will leave a fearful blank. Until she came," went on Mrs. Longworthy, looking up at her husband with a smile, "I was perfectly content with you, but since I knew her I have often wished for a daughter."

Mr. Longworthy stooped and kissed his wife.

"We shall not lose her when she goes away," he said. "She is not one of those people who forget."

"Is her sister really so very beautiful?"

"She is, indeed. As you know, I used to think perhaps Helen's fears led her to exaggerate, but it was not so. Alice is a perfectly beautiful woman, as well as a perfectly heartless and selfish one."

"Then she cannot be perfectly beautiful."

"No, not humanly speaking, but I am speaking physically. She has a face for a sculptor, not a painter. Now, Helen would come out very poorly in a statue, but you cannot imagine anything more charming than the portrait hanging in her husband's study."

"And you liked him?"

"Very much. We had a good deal of talk on other matters besides machinery; and I came to the conclusion that he is a very fine fellow indeed, whose life, if not spoiled, is very much crippled and narrowed by the loss of his wife."

"Did he speak of her at all."

"Not very much. I think he would not. He was looking through some papers for a drawing of some other machine, and I saw much of Helen's handwriting. I fancy they worked together a good deal. He could not find it at first, and while trying to think where he had put it he said almost to himself.

"'I can't have lost it, because Helen did it.'"

"And did he find it?"

"He did. When he showed it to me I made some remark about the correctness of the drawing, and he said,

"'Yes, my first wife drew it; she had a wonderful talent in that way.'

"After that he mentioned her several times, and always in connection with his work. I assure you it was very difficult not to tell him the truth straight out."

"Oh dear! I hope you did no such thing."

"I did not, because of my promise to Helen; but as we drove to the station I could not help thinking how it would simplify matters if I did."

"I am thankful you did not," said his wife. "You would only have made mischief; I am sure Helen would have been very much annoyed. You are as impulsive as a boy, Rupert."

"Well, in this case I governed my impulses, so you must not scold me. As for Mrs. Fletcher's tale," he went on, after a pause, "it only confirms the suspicion I have had all along that Alice fell into love with Percival, most likely because he showed no inclination to fall in love with her, and she managed things so that he married her. Depend upon it, that is the solution of the mystery."

"I am afraid it is."

"Oh, it is; there can be no doubt of it, and Helen thinks the same, only her pride will not allow her to say so."

"Well, did she give you the impression of being very fond of her husband?"

Mr. Longworthy did not reply at once. At last he said—

"No, she did not. Remember, I only saw her for a couple of hours, and our conversation was necessarily of the lightest description; in addition to which she gave me the impression of being a woman who could hide her feelings very well when she chose. She has not a simple character, and I cannot say I read it at a glance. I do not want to speak of it now, because as yet the idea is floating in a very unformed state in my brain. But do not be surprised when you find I do not advise Helen to take immediate steps to return. In a little while I imagine things will arrange themselves in a very much simpler way than she at present dreams of."

"You queer man," said his wife smiling, what mystery have you got in hand now?"

"Now your woman's wit must find out the rest. I must give Helen a hint, but certainly no one else."

The conversation dropped and was not renewed, indeed the whole subject seemed to have disappeared from view.

CARPET HOUSE.

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show room of Messrs. Clarrk & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes, fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

The Churches Yesterday.

SERMON TO ODDFELLOWS.

The Oddfellows of the different lodges assembled in their hall yesterday evening, numbering over a hundred, and marched, marshalled by Captain Clarke, to the Dublin street church where a special sermon was to be preached by the Rev. Bro. Carson, commemorative of the 67th anniversary of Oddfellowship. The brethren occupied the centre seats which were reserved for them. Before the services commenced the church was so filled that it was found necessary to place a few chairs in front and along the aisles. The rev. gentleman chose for his text the 9th chapter of Mark, 40th verse: "For he that is not against us is on our part." The sermon was an able one, expounding the aims of the order, and was listened to with apparent interest by the large congregation. Space does not permit of giving more than a mere outline of the principal thoughts presented. The preacher in commencing his discourse drew attention to the context which led up to the words of the text. The disciples had told the Master that they saw one casting out devils in Jesus' name who followed not them, and they had forbidden him. Jesus replied to forbid him not, as no man who would do a miracle in His name could speak lightly of Him, and then followed the words of the text. The speaker from the words of the disciples showed their shortsightedness, and it was evident from the words of Jesus that they had only but very narrow thoughts concerning the principles of Jesus Christ and His kingdom. They could not understand that He was to form a kingdom which would extend to the uttermost ends of the earth. The bigotry of these followers of Christ had been manifested in others all through the ages down to the present time, and was not dead yet. It was seen in the hostility by certain parties to secret societies and to the organization which he was now addressing. If these men knew as much about the Oddfellows as he did instead of condemning it they would likely praise it. He then showed at some length how bigotry existed in the churches pulling cross ways against each other, and in different societies. In referring more particularly to the text he explained what is against and whatis not against religion. That which is not contrary to morality, generosity and open hearted charity was not opposed to the teachings of Jesus Christ. Thus he illustrated by the parable of the good Samaritan and other parables, showing that those who acted the good part were for us and the others against us. God teaches that our duty to him was to love him with all our heart, with all our strength, with our mind and our neighbour as ourselves. The business of the Oddfellows was not to save souls, but to love their neighbors. It had been said that this society placed the principles of the Order above God. This was false, and he repudiated the idea. The society was in the interests of humanity and seeks to grasp all and bring them into a brotherhood, and do all they can to lighten the burdens of the brotherhood. The Society had a beautiful field open to them in looking after the body. There were great objects raised to societies because they were secret. The preacher demonstrated by several examples that the inner workings of every organization was secret. The constitution of Oddfellowship provided that any member guilty of immorality, fraud, immoral conduct, habitual drunkenness, etc., should be expelled. The society recognized God in all its doings and opened and closed its meetings with prayer. There might be hypocrites in the Order, but the whole Order could not be condemned for that. A few of this class would be found in the church, the state, and other organizations. No man could enter this society who was not pledged to his God and his country by the laws of the Oddfellows. Oddfellowship had two grand objects—the assistance of a brother in pecuniary distress and in the time of death; and the care of the widow and orphan. The Rev. Bro. spoke at length on these two heads showing the great services of the brotherhood at the time when a brother was taken sick, and if perchance he died, the watchful care they exercised over his widow and children. In every true Oddfellow they had a friend who would deny himself for them. Another thing was the spirit of friendship, love and truth that they had to lean on. There was something in a man's kind words and actions during a season of trial which was far more valuable than dollars and cents. The society did not only profess certain things but carried them out. To-morrow they would observe the 67th anniversary of the Order by a concert in the City Hall, and it might not be amiss to glance at what the society had done during that time. Sixty-seven years ago there were only five members now there were 540,000; then there was one lodge, now their over 8,000 scattered on this continent and beyond the sea; then their treasury consisted of only a few shillings, now it had in it over $5,250,000. Since 1884 the increase had been more than $10,000; and now more than two-million dollars was spent a year. He then gave in detail figures showing the amount of receipts and expenditures in the Province in accordance with the last returns published in the MERCURY some time ago.

In concluding his remarks he exorted each member to be careful of their walk and conversation, and thus advance their own respectability and the character of the organization to which they belonged.

During the evening the choir furnished excellent and appropriate music. The front of the pulpit was beautifully decorated with various kinds of flowers.

EASTER SERVICES AT ST. GEORGE'S

There was an early celebration of the Holy Communion, which was attended by a large number of the congregation. At the 11 o'clock service the music was very beautiful and appropriate. The spacious church was well filled and the Archdeacon preached from 1st Cor. 15th chapter and 20th verse, dwelling vividly on the state of the world ere the Sun of righteousness arose with healing on His wings. He then dwelt on our own deep interest in the resurrection as a consolation in the darkest hour of sorrow.

At the close the Lord's Supper was again celebrated and was attended by a large proportion of the congregation.

In the evening the church was again crowded, an anthem and other Easter music being well rendered by the large choir present. The Revd. E. A. Irving preached a farewell sermon which was heard with deep interest as being the last time he would preach there as connected with the parish. His text was from the last two verses of the 8th chapter 2nd Corinthians. Mr. Irving left for his new home this morning though he will be back again before he finally leaves Guelph.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

The pulpit was occupied in the morning by Rev. Dr. MacGregor, and in the evening by Rev. Mr. Savage. Both gentlemen gave excellent addresses, while the choir discoursed some very suitable music. The morning service was opened by the choir singing "Jesus Christ has Risen To-day," and as anan them sang "He is Risen," composed by Mrs. G. Harvey. Both were in keeping with the Easter season. At the evening service Mrs. Whitehead rendered most beautifully the solo, "I Know that My Redeemer Liveth." The floral decorations were something magnificent.

CHURCH OF OUR LADY.

As usual in the Church of Our Lady the ceremonies were of an imposing character. The altar was very handsomely decorated with the most beautiful flowers and the appearance of the church truly showed it was Easter Sunday. At the early mass a large number receiv) Holy Communion, and at 10.30 High Mass was celebrated by Father Plante and the sermon preached by Father Kelly. The music was on a grand scale and the solos were taken by Misses Coffee, Johns and Hayden. In the evening there were vespers and grand benediction. Father Doherty preached a very eloquent sermon on the Resurrection and the music of the choir was very sweet. The solos were taken by Misses Coffee, Hayden, Doran and Johns, all of whom sustained their parts well. The church was almost crowded.

THE marriage and death rates in London last year were the lowest on record, and the birth rate the lowest since 1850.

SHELBURNE has got a new chemical engine, at a cost of $3,400, and considerable dissatisfaction exists among the citizens as to whether it is worth the money or not.

THE Brantford Expositor gives away a cock fight which occured on Good Friday morning in Brant township, between Hamilton and Brantford birds. The Hamiltonians won every battle. The police came down upon the sports and many names where taken. Prosecutions will follow. The Hamilton sports are shaking in their shoes, for it is said the whole gang have been given away.

EASTER FESTIVAL.—The Easter Festival under the patronage of the Young Ladies' Sodality of Our Lady's Church, was opened in the City Hall this afternoon. The proceeds will go towards the building fund of the church. The ladies deserve great credit for the enterprise which they have shown in getting up this fair and entertainment. The hall is beautifully decorated, and reflects credit on their taste. Outside of the decorations the articles offered for sale are numerous, many of them being elegant specimens of workmanship, and rich in design. The attractions to be offered to-night are numerous. There should be a large attendance.

THE CATACOMBS OF ROME.—The St. George correspondent of the Brantford Expositor has the following notice regarding the Rev. W. S. McTavish, well known in Guelph:—By request, the Rev. W. S. McTavish, pastor of the Presbyterian church, repeated his popular lecture on "The Catacombs of Rome" in the Baptist church on Monday evening to a large audience. The chair was filled in a very able manner by the Rev. Prof. Rae. The lecture was replete with information, the language chaste and elegant, and delivered in his usual pleasant way. A cordial vote of thanks to the lecturer was moved by the Rev G. Clark, seconded by the Rev. D. M. Mihell, and carried by a standing vote.

THE FERTILIZERS ACT.—The regulations respecting the carrying out of the Fertilizers Act, 1884, provided that all Collectors of Customs and Collectors of Inland Revenue shall be inspectors of agricultural fertilizers. Each inspector is required to ascertain that all importers and manufacturers of fertilizers sold at more than ten dollars a ton, containing ammonia or phosphoric acid, have complied with the provisions of the Act by forwarding to the Minister of Inland Revenue a two-pound sample of each of the fertilizers they propose to manufacture, together with a certificate of analysis. Inspectors are authorized to collect a fee of five cents per one hundred pounds weight.

THE HARRISTON Tribune SAYS:—It will be remembered that last fall Wm. Medill, of the 1st concession of Minto, lost his new bank barn and contents by fire. Nothing daunted, he at once proceeded to make arrangements for the erection of new buildings. About ten days ago some evil disposed persons entered his sugar bush, broke his buckets, knocked the spiles out of the trees, and smashed his kettles and boiling vats to such an extent as to cause the loss of a season's make. This act has raised a suspicion in the mind of Mr. Medill and his neighbors that the fire last fall might not have been by accident as was supposed, but has been the work of some enemy. We trust the clue now in possession of the authorities may be the means of bringing home to the guilty parties the punishment so richly deserved.

TORONTO'S NEW TEMPLE.

The Salvation Army Celebrate Its Opening.

Monday was another great day in the history of the Salvation Army in Toronto. All morning soldiers kept arriving from outlying towns to take part in the monster street parade. Service was held in the Temple at 7 a.m. and 10:30, and from 1 o'clock until 3 the ranks were forming in St. Andrew's Market Square for the procession. The scene up there was animated. Officers were running here and there giving orders and feeling very big—and it seemed as if every soldier was an officer. The Salvation girls frisked about like spring lambs. The young men showed a praiseworthy indifference to the public comments respecting their fantastic appearance. They held up their heads and were as proud of their colors as good soldiers should be.

The march was one of the longest ever taken by a procession through Toronto streets—up Brock street from St. Andrew's Square, Queen, Bathurst, King, Sherbourne, Wellesley, Yonge and James streets. There were ten bands; ten officers on horse back; six carriages containing divisional officers' wives; Marshal Booth, Wm. Booth, Mr. Brace and Mrs. Coombs in a "war chariot," or common place two-horse hack; 40 male captains; 30 male lieutenants; 28 male cadets; 105 female officers, and about 600 full privates.

Along the route, the Marshal, following the custom of the nobility, kept smiling and bowing to everybody. The tramp lasted from 3 until 5 o'clock. At the Temple the Marshal spoke a few words. From that time until midnight a fifteen cent banquet was served in the basement to over 2,000 persons.

At 7:30 the grand review commenced in the Temple. It consisted of singing, testimonies, addresses and prayer. There was the usual crowded attendance. Printed slips were handed round for subscriptions to wipe off the $25,000 indebtedness on the Temple. In a short time over $4,200 was subscribed. Great enthusiasm prevailed. The meeting concluded about 10:30.

The all-night meeting commenced shortly before midnight.

Court of Revision.

Judge Drew resumed his Court of Revision of the voters' list for the city of Guelph, for the Local Legislature, at seven o'clock last night, when some thirty of the names objected to on both sides were taken up. Out of this number two or three were heldover for consideration at the next Court, which will be held in the Court House on Tuesday evening, 4th May, at 7 o'clock. According to the official list the names on the Reform side which have not yet been decided or taken into consideration are: John Hunt, Jacob Walters, Edmund Allan, Wm. Blackburn, John Gray, John H. Barrett, J. D. Macdonald, T. W. Scott, Alfred Allen, John Metcalf, Wm. Nicholas, A. D. McCrae, Chas. Pilgrim, and John Fergusson. These parties should make it a point to be present on Tuesday evening and establish their right to be on the voters' list.

D. H. Scott, of Winnipeg, accused of forgery on the Merchants' Bank of that city to the amount of between $25,000 and 30,000, and who absconded to Mexico, whither he was followed and captured by the Winnipeg chief of police, arrived at Halifax in charge of his captive on Sunday night, and left for Winnipeg yesterday afternoon.

Two little fellows named Budge, living near Manitou Lake, Manitoulin Island, found a bear in a tree. One of them stayed to keep bruin in the tree, while the other went for assistance. Their father and a neighboring lady, Mrs. McMillan, arrived about the same time, armed with a shot gun and butcher knife respectively. After receiving a charge of buckshot the bear slid down the tree, until a muscular prod from the butcher knife in the hands of Mrs. McMillan made him scramble up again, when a second shot finished him.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH.

The Annual Vestry Meeting Held Yesterday.

The annual vestry meeting of St. George's Church took place yesterday afternoon at half past three o'clock.

Present—Ven Archdeacon Dixon, in the chair, Church Wardens Morris and Murton, also Messrs. Underhill, Nelles, Walker, Elliott, H. Murton, Moore, Garnham, B Powell, J. Hallett, J. M. Bond, Col. Macdonald and Dr. Lett.

After the minutes had been confirmed, the Church Wardens read the yearly report and financial statement which showed, receipts $5,429.26, and expenditure of $5,302.18, leaving a balance on hand of $127.08. The Secretary of the Cemetery Committee and the Treasurer of he endowment fund also read their reports, all of which were adopted.

The rector appointed Mr. E. Morris as his Church Warden.

Moved by Mr. Elliott, seconded by Mr. Nelles, that Mr. Geo. Murton be reappointed people's Church Warden for the ensuing year. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Murton, seconded by Mr. Elliott, that Dr. Lett and Mr. Nelles be auditors for the current year. Carried.

Moved by Dr. Lett, seconded by Mr. H. Murton, that the Vestry desire to express its appreciation of the manner in which the choir rendered their services during the past year and to return them a vote of thanks for the same. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Bond, seconded by Mr. Hallett, that in the opinion of the Vestry the system of synod appointments as far as this parish is concerned is not equitable, as by the present system the arrears of non paying parishes are carried forward to be met by those who contribute in full. On this view they are of opinion that the amount apportioned to them should be reduced or some more equitable plan devised by the Synod, and that the Rector and Church Wardens frame and sign on behalf of this vestry a memorial setting forth these views. Carried.

Moved by Mr. H. Murton, seconded by Mr. Mackenzie, that Messrs. Wood, Bond, Nelles, Baker, Dr. Lett, Elliott, Clarke, Leonard, Harland, Foster, Walker and H. Murton be sidesmen. Carried.

Moved by Mr. J. Hallett, seconded by Mr. Bond, that the thanks of this Vestry be given to the auditors of the accounts—Messrs. Elliott and H. Murton—of this church, for the past year. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Elliott, seconded by Dr. Lett, that the cordial thanks of the Vestry are hereby tendered to the Church-Wardens for their efficient management of the affairs of the Church. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Bond, seconded by Mr. F. J. Chadwick, that the following be a Committee to devise and act toward collecting Bishopric funds—Messrs. Elliott, J. Hallett, E. Morris, Dr. Lett, and the mover and seconder.

Mr. Chas. Walker was appointed lay delegate to the Synod.

The Vestry then adjourned.

At a former meeting of the Vestry Rev. Mr. Harvey, Dundas, was appointed assistant minister.

ODDFELLOWS' CONCERT.

Beatrice Lodge Greeted with a Good Audience at their Concert.

The ladies of Beatrice Lodge, No. 12, Daughters of Rebecca, were greeted with a good audience at their concert given in the City Hall last evening, in celebration of the 67 h anniversary of Oddfellowship. The ladies belonging to the lodge wore their pink badges, and could be distinguished by these in every part of the hall. The management of the programme was left to a committee of the other Oddfellows lodges, the following being seated on the platform: Bros. G. T. Brill, D. D. G. M.; W. Parker, P. G., Reliance Lodge; James Hewer, P. G., and J. J. Mahoney, N. G., Progress Lodge. The stage was very prettily decorated with flags and flowers, and was handsomely furnished.

There were two parts to the programme, comprising eighteen numbers in all. The overture to the operetta of Dinah, a piano duet by Mrs. Harvey and Miss Stevenson, opened the entertainment and was an enjoyable part of it, as was their other duet later on "Grand Galop de Concert." In "Friendship, love and song," a vocal quartette by the Misses Stevenson, Messars. Jones and Thomas, the blending was very sweet. Their second effort however, "The flowers that bloom in the spring," from the "Mikado" was perhaps more appreciated. Mrs. Shultz first sang "When the pansies droop and die" for which she was encored. In the second part she gave "When the birds sing." Her best song was that given for the recall. Gardiner and Gardiner's brother gave a good exhibition of banjo playing it the first part. The feat they performed, on being encored, of each fingering the other's banjo while picking his own was something new and difficult. Their minstrel performance later on provoked a good deal of laughter, especially their local hits and the song about what they would do if they were Mayor Stevenson. Miss Stevenson's song "Jamie Dear" showed that this lady's voice has undergone an improvement. Mr. John Shupe, of Galt, is just adapted to reciting in broken English—or broken Dutch—in school boy fashion, and provoked a good deal of laughter by his recitations for which he was encored in both parts of the programme. Mr. George Thomas has not a strong enough voice for concert singing, but it suited the song he gave very well, "I'm So Shy." Cleomati's first vocal effort was "Angelus," for which she was encored and gave "Coming Through the Rye." Later in the evening she sang an Italian selection, and as an encore "Supposing." She has a sweet voice, well cultivated and under good control. Her last two songs were given with better expression than the others. Mr. W. W. Sprague was encored for a comic song, "Rosie's Sunday Out," which he gave in character. The Misses Stevenson sang as a duet, "Pale Moon," which was duly appreciated. But Miss Clara Stevenson's song, "The Fortune Teller," proved the gem of the evening, and for this effort she met with a hearty and well deserved encore.

During the evening Rev. Bro. Carson delivered a short address in which he commended the aims and objects of Oddfellowship and spoke particularly of the useful field which women occupy in connection with the Order, pointing out how they were better fitted than men to enter the homes of the afflicted and offer tokens of consolation and sympathy to the suffering and mourning.

The National Anthem brought this very successful entertainment to a close about half-past ten.

The Evening Mercury

TUESDAY EVE'G APRIL 27, 1886.

New Brunswick Elections.

The New Brunswick elections for the Local Legislature, which took place on Monday, have resulted in the retention of the Reform Government in power. The total result will show probably twenty-eight to thirteen, or thirty to eleven in favor of the Government, which is quite strong enough. Among the defeated candidates are Wetman, the leader of the Opposition; McLeod, ex-Attorney-General of the old Government; Colter, ex-Commissioner of Public Works; Lynott, Speaker of the late House of Assembly, and Gillespie, President of the Council in the present Government. The six Liberal Conservative candidates in St. John City and County were all defeated, although they were assisted by the local members for the Dominion Parliament and had all the influence which the Federal Government could bring to bear.

The result was hailed with great rejoicings throughout the Province, while Tory Ministers at Ottawa are greatly disappointed. They exerted all their influence and used all the patronage at their disposal to secure the defeat of the Blair Government, but the result is that the latter will be stronger than they were before the Legislature was dissolved. Mr. T. R. Jones, leader of the Tory party in New Brunswick, was in Ottawa about two weeks ago, and after consulting with Sir John and Foster and Costigan returned home with instructions to fight the Provincial elections upon Dominion party lines. Accordingly the Local Opposition called themselves the "Liberal Conservative party," and the whole Tory press of the Province called upon the people to turn out Mr. Blair and his friends because they were politically opposed to the Ottawa Ministry, and were using the patronage of the Provincial Government to help the Liberal party. In King's County Mr. Foster formed a ticket of three of his personal friends against Mr. Blair's supporters, but the Fosterites have been routed. And we have one more indication of the approaching downfall of our corrupt and unscrupulous rulers at Ottawa.

THE intelligence of the seizure of an American fishing schooner at Baddeck, Nova Scotia, for infraction of the fisheries regulations, caused quite a commotion in Ministerial circles and a Cabinet meeting was at once called to consider the situation. Referring to the fishery question, the London Times says: "Canada would be wiser not to insist upon her full rights. We have made such large concessions before that we may continue them without risk of being misrepresented." The Pall Mall Gazette advocates the formation of a supreme and permanent court for the settlement of fishing disputes between Canada and the United States.

GODERICH Signal:—The Tory party is sliding down hill as rapidly as if the declivity were greased for the occasion with oleomargarine.

HAMILTON Times:—Big Bear and his chief men have been released from the Manitoba Penitentiary. Their places should be taken by the men who so mismanaged the affairs of the Northwest as to render rebellion possible.

IT is now asserted that the Dominion Parliament will be prorogued about the 24th of May. The Government is anxious to have the debates brought to a close as soon as possible, for the more discussion and investigation there are the deeper in mire the Ministers and their purchased majority flounder.

IT is now stated that the report of Sir Alexander Campbell's retirement and Mr. Plumb's appointment as Postmaster-General was somewhat premature. Sir Alexander will sail for England on 22nd May, if his health will permit, and meantime a deal is being arranged by which Messrs. Plumb and Dickey will take charge of Government measures in the Senate, pending the appointment of a leader in that House.

THE Stratford Beacon says: "At the last general election hundreds of persons were seduced from the line of duty by grants or shares in grants of land, and the effect was apparent in a score of local contests. But the chickens are coming home to roost, and the general election will tell a tale when men who have lost their all by investing in colonization companies and other Northwest land speculations come to the polls."

Hard on the Professor.

(From the Stratford Beacon.)

"Moral reformer Foster and others of his ilk, profess to look with great horror on the liquor traffic, but they had not a word to say against the traffic carried on by their own agents in the Northwest in young Indian women. They can speak very strongly against hotels, but they have not a word to say against harems kept up with the funds of the people of this Dominion. They denounce the sale of beer, but they were as dumb as oysters when Mr Cameron showed that their own officials buy Indian girls at $10 apiece for immoral purposes. They profess to be greatly exercised about the poverty and suffering caused by the excessive use of strong drink, but they can hear unmoved that some of the wards of this nation are driven by hunger to eat the entrails of dead animals while their friend Dewdney spends $453 of Indian money on window blinds for his office. Not one word comes from these moral reformers against the licentiousness and thievery of their own agents. Not one word. Not only do they say nothing in condemnation of such corruption and beastly profligacy, but they vote that it is all right. And yet these arch-hypocrites ask us to believe they are moral reformers. Such hypocrisy is simply loathsome! The man who can defend the practices indulged in by some of the Government agents in the Northwest is unfit to mingle in decent society. And some of these men pose as temperance reformers forsooth! For the man who sincerely opposes evil and wrong doing in all their forms we have the most profound respect, even if we cannot endorse all his methods; but the man who denounces hotels in Ontario and defends thievery and prostitution in the Northwest is a skulking hypocrite that richly deserves the contempt of every decent citizen."

Labour Troubles.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Almost every newspaper published tells of labour troubles some on a large scale some on a small. The reasons assigned for these troubles are almost as many as the troubles themselves. We are told that one great trouble is scarcity of employment, and the consequent enforced idleness of many men who are able and willing to work; and that to remedy this, those who work must work eight hours a day, instead of ten, so that employment may be given to those who otherwise cannot get anything to do; either work must be shared with them, or wages to maintain them as paupers, for they and their families cannot be allowed to starve.

Some evils cannot be avoided; this may. Guelph's drink bill is $65,000 per annum, six dollars and fifty cents for each man, woman and child in the city—$65,000 dollars a year misspent as far as the spenders and their families are concerned; instead of having value for their money as they would have had they bought any thing but drink; by buying drink they have been self-fooled, have next to no value for their money and their fools-pence makes liquor vendors rich. I do not wish it to be understood for a moment that all of the $65,000 spent annually in Guelph becomes the property of those who re all liquors, the Dominion Government for custom or excise duties takes a large share, the distiller or brewer has his portion for manufacturing, the Provincial and City treasuries appropriate some in the shape of license fees; and the retailer has the balance; and if the balance left, after the Dominion and Provincial Governments, the distillers and brewers, and the city treasury have dipped their hands into the liquor buyers' purse and taken large drafts therefrom there has been sufficient to put up some of the largest buildings in the city, as the hotels and breweries are, how much better off Guelph would have been to-day if in the past its people had spent for useful things the tens to thousands of dollars a year they have been throwing away for drink, that is a bane rather than a blessing. If any strike is a wise act surely a strike against the liquor traffic is. Guelph would be wild with excitement were we assured that a firm was going to carry on a business here that would employ 200 men; the money Guelph spends each year for liquor would pay each one of these 200 men $300 a year, and leave $5,000 o' profit for the firm carrying on the business; these 200 men and their families would furnish employment to many more, thus the entire community would be enriched. The old proverb still holds good, "waste not, want not." It is because people have not looked at the economic aspects of the liquor traffic, they have pursued the impoverishing policy of tolerating it. Let each and every sober citizen see to it that when the time for the enforcement of the Scott Act arrives that the evil system that has been tolerated so long shall be put an end to. It is to the interest of all but liquor sellers that the Scott Act shall be enforced; the well being of the entire city is involved in its enforcement. "Who would be free themselves must strike the blow."

A CITIZEN.

Guelph, April 27, 1886.

A Sensible Vindication.

To the Editor of the MERCURY:—

SIR,—Some three weeks ago I noticed in the columns of the city dailies a letter purporting to be from Mrs Thos Card, which has caused a great deal of comment and not a little merriment in town as well as in the neighborhood where the lady resides. If Mrs Card really wrote the letter she is indeed to be complimented on her happy manner of describing the hospital and also the skill of the attending physician.

Though I have never had an opportunity of visiting St. Joseph's Hospital I can readily believe it to be all the letter describes, and that the Sisters are both kind and attentive. But anyone reading the letter could see that the writer wished to convey the idea that the doctor employed on the occasion was the only one in the locality who would not rather cut a limb off than set it. Had the sentences been better composed and arranged one would be inclined to suspect the doctor himself of having written it, but of course the school-boy composition leaves it out of the question that any professional man wrote it.

A few of the sentences so strongly resemble a letter of a similar kind that appeared during the winter, we must believe the same individual wrote both.

I have had a serious case of fracture in my own family, and feel in duty bound to vindicate our family doctor so far as to say that the case was successfully treated without amputation, and I hope for the sake of unfortunate sufferers as well as for the reputation of the medical profession, there are many others in practice quite as skillful and humane, though not Mrs Card's physician.

McKay, Jas. J. Landy and Geo. Rudd.

HOW TO MAKE A HIDE WEIGH.—Yesterday an occasional buyer on the market purchased a calf's skin and allowed it to lie at the weigh scales until noon. When the market was deserted he went after the hide, and on coming to a pool of water near the weigh scales, dipped the hide several times in the puddle, and then went on his way with the intention, it is supposed, of disposing of it to a dealer. Verily, there are tricks in every trade.

MOOREFIELD SPRING SHOW.—The annual spring show, under the auspices of the Moorefield Entire Stock Association, was held at that village on Monday last. The following is the list of successful competitors:—Imported Clyde, Slemmon & Boyd 1st and 2nd, Cowden, Lad and Grand Cross; Agricultural Horse, W. Willcott 1st, Young Glen Lee, W. Laurie 2nd, Annandale; General Purpose, S. Eby 1st; Percheron, A. B. Schneider 1st, Thomas Whale 2nd; Coach Horse, E. Woodman 1st; Road or Blood Horses, P. Collison.

A Few Facts Worth Knowing

in regard to

THE GOLDEN LION.

1st—We are the only direct importers in Guelph,
2nd—We are the only Firm of any importance having no rent to pay.
3rd—We buy entirely for cash.
4th—We sell entirely for cash.
5th—We deliberately threw up a credit trade of $30,000 and are now doing a larger cash trade than we then did of cash and credit combined.
6th—Our expenses are less than any house in the city doing one half the business.

With these advantages we must and do undersell all others.

WE SHOW

A Beautiful range of Black French Dress Goods.
Our Silks and Satins are unparalleled.
In Millinery and Mantles we excell.

We hold a big range of Silk and Satin Dolmans and Jackets in Plain and Brocade.

MISS MARRIOTT, our Milliner, although young in years, is old in experience and having youth on her side, she naturally adapts herself more readily to the changing styles.

Our Dressmaking Department under MISS TODD has assumed such proportions as we never dreamed of before.

CLOTHING

We strongly advise young men who want Suits made by MR. McKENZIE for the 24th May, to leave their orders at once, as we are so busy in this department that it is almost impossible to get the work out.

Our Ready-Made Cutter is now engaged in getting out 1,000 Suits which we will be able to sell at $3.95 each.

Cloths, Tweeds, Worsteds in French, English, Scotch and American styles and good.

The Waterloo Murder Case.

QUEEN VS. JOHN C. RAVENNES.—The trial of John Calim Ravennes for the murder of William Jiertz was concluded at the Assizes in Berlin on Saturday night. It occupied all Friday and Saturday and created intense interest. Mr. W. H. Bowlby prosecuted for the Crown, and Mr. John King defended the prisoner. The accused is 17 years old and the son of an English gentleman, who was once wealthy, but died poor seven years ago. His mother is a lady in reduced circumstances at Hastings in England. The accused had been hired at Mr. Wehr's farm in Waterloo Township, was badly treated by Wehr, went away to the States and returned to Wehr's for his clothes, which he had previously left there. This was on the 5th of November last. He was seen going to and returning from the farm, was spoken to at the place by two children, and was charged with murdering on that day Jiertz, a German boy, aged 15, who was hired to Wehr. The two were utter strangers to each other. Neither could speak or understand the other's language, and there was no apparent motive for the crime. The Crown theory was that Wehr was the intended victim, and that Jiertz was killed first to get him out of the way when Wehr should arrive at the barn, where Jiertz was killed, to feed his cattle. Jiertz's body was found covered with chaff on the threshing floor of the barn, killed, it is supposed, by a club. The deceased had previously said he had a mind to put Ravennes out of the barn. There was also evidences of confession by prisoner. The defence accounted for Ravennes' whereabouts and manner of living after leaving Wehr's. All this was favourable. Dr. Clarke of the Toronto asylum, and Dr. Bingham of Waterloo were called by the defence to prove that Ravennes was the victim of a secret vice and feeble minded, but not mentally diseased. Ravennes is well educa ed, quiet and refined looking, with large brilliant eyes and fine features. The Judge (Hon. Justice O'Connor) charged against the prisoner, who was acquitted. His Lordship highly complimented the counsel for the prisoner on his very able defense, which was all the more creditable as the service was gratuitous, from motives of charity. It proved, he said, that there were some lawyers who would discharge an onerous professional duty from higher motives than mere pecuniary reward. An acquittal was not expected although it is known the jury were eleven to one soon after they retired. They were out two hours. The prisoner and his counsel were warmly congratulated. There was a great deal of excitement over the trial and the result. The case altogether was most interesting and mysterious.

THE KEPPEL TRAGEDY.

"John McCarty" a Detective—The Witnesses and Prisoners.

Ellen McCleary, the girl who cooked for Bailey, is about eighteen years of age. She has lived on the farm next that of the murdered man for a few years only, having previously been a resident of Owen Sound. She is a rather fine-looking, slender, dark complexioned girl. Although Miss McCleary is held in the Owen Sound gaol just now, she is not charged with any criminal act, but is detained as a witness simply. After the preliminary examination at Owen Sound on Friday last she wanted to get out of gaol to go home again. The Magistrate would not allow her to leave just yet, and when a constable asked if she was not afraid to go back home, she replied:—"Oh, no, so long as King is in here (meaning in gaol). The McCleary family seem to be fairly well educated. Ellen said she was a music teacher by profession, while her sister was a dressmaker. The man "McCarty," who was arrested with her at Palmerston, was allowed to go. He was a detective who went to McCleary's house in the guise of a tea-peddler. He got into the good graces of Ellen, and they left for a trip together, but only got as far as Palmerston when they were arrested. Ellen still believes that John is in gaol with her. Shortly after being arrested, Ellen said—"Oh, there's no use of arresting John, he had nothing to do with the murder. I have only known John a few days."

Charlie M'Cleary, the seventeen-year-old brother of Ellen, who is an important witness in the case, is one of the sharpest of lads. It is generally believed that the men who did the deed are now lying in gaol at Owen Sound. King, it appears, a year or two ago, joined the Salvation Army, but he was soon found to be a bad member. He fell back till soon his connection with the army ceased.

At the preliminary investigation at Owen Sound on Friday, after Ellen McCleary had concluded her evidence, the Magistrate asked the prisoner Wilson if he wanted to put any questions to the witness. He said that he could prove that he was on Griffith's Island when the murder was committed, and he did not want to ask her any questions. "Do you want to ask her any questions, King?" said the Magistrate. King therefore scowled at Miss McCleary in a most devilish manner, and in surly tones growled out, "I don't want to speak to her at all." King has evidently made up his mind that it is a serious thing with him, as in conversation he said, "If I swing for this job I can say I am innocent, and you fellows will be sorry for it."

There is great satisfaction among the people of Keppel generally that King is under lock and key. An old man who has resided in Keppel for the past eighteen years says: "It is terrible to think of the state of affairs existing in this township. Why, if a man does know anything about one of these crimes he dare not open his mouth about it for fear that he might be the next victim. So you see the best way is to say nothing." Judging from what others say on the same subject the old man was right. Another man said, "You see, Keppel is pretty well a lumbering district, and Wiarton is the end of the railway, so we get a great many hard individuals who find it their business to stop in the vicinity where they think they are comparatively safe from justice." So it is time some of the murderers were brought to justice. Houses and lonely spots on the road are pointed out as places where, only a few years previous men and women had been found murdered. Some of these murders have been so completely covered up that the bodies were never found.

The latest remedy for coughs, colds, croup whooping cough, bronchitis, etc., is McGregor's Lung Compound. There is no remedy in existence containing any one of the active ingredients composing McGregor's Lung Compound, so do not say you have taken everything until you have tried this for your cold or cough, and your opinion will be the same as all who have used it, viz., that it is the best. —AT THE—

CARPET HOUSE.

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show room of Messrs. Clarrk & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes, fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

John Bright Joins the Seceding Liberals.

LONDON, April 26.—Lord Hartington, in a speech in Lancashire this evening, said no alterations would remove the objections to the Irish Scheme. He did not wish to coalesce with the Tories, but hoped with the assistance of Mr Chamberlain, Mr Trevelyan, Mr Goschen, Sir Henry James, Mr Bright, Earl Selborne, Earl Derby and the Duke of Argyll to create an independent party or to induce the withdrawal of the measure. A portion of the audience made hostile demonstrations against the speaker.

Mr John Bright, who was unable to attend the meeting, sent a letter in which he said he thought Lord Hartington's conduct had been consistent and courageous. "It would," he wrote, "be a calamity for the country if measures of the transcendant magnitude of those of Mr Gladstone should be accepted on the authority of any leader, however eminent. The present sad division in the Liberal party has arisen through the introduction of Irish measures before the public mind was properly prepared for them."

Lord Hartington said he would possibly move the rejection of the Home Rule Bill.

The Daily News, referring to Mr Bright's letter to Lord Hartington, says it increases the seriousness of the division in the Liberal party.

DUBLIN, April 26.—A loyal meeting was held at the Maze, County Antrim, to-day at which some violent speeches were made. Mr Johnston, M.P. for South Belfast moved that the Irish Loyalists refuse to recognize the Dublin parliament if established, decline to pay taxes and resist attempts to enforce payment. He said he intended to draw up a list of those Loyalists who were prepared to bear arms. He was greeted with loud and enthusiastic cheers.

War Averted.

LONDON, April 26.—The statement that the Greek army would be disarmed is confirmed. The Greek Chamber of Deputies has been convoked. The combined fleet of the Powers which had assembled to coerce Greece has departed. The sudden termination of the probability of war is received by the Greek people with consternation.

Mr. Gladstone at Church.

The Service Stopped by People Eager to see the Premier.

LONDON, April 24.—There was a singular scene at Hawarden on Good Friday. The village was filled with visitors, drawn thither by the presence of the Prime Minister at his home. Mr. Gladstone attended morning service at the village church, which was filled with people. It was not expected that he would be at church in the afternoon, but he entered about the middle of the service. This becoming known in the village, where his intention of attending service in the morning had not been made public, crowds flocked into the church until they packed it full of people and made it impossible for the service to go on. They blocked the aisles and stood on the seats and craned their necks to get a glimpse of Mr. Gladstone, and made so much noise that the clergyman's voice could not be heard above the hubbub. Rev. Stephen Gladstone was officiating, and was compelled to stop and make a mute appeal to the people. This was quite ineffectual as the shuffling and rustling continued, and destroyed all idea of the sanctity of the place. Rev. Mr. Gladstone then asked the crowd to find seats or to retire. When this was done, Mr. Gladstone rose and saluted the crowds of people as the only means of satisfying their curiosity and restoring order and quiet in the church so that the service could go on. The people then left the church, except those who were seated and attending the service, and Rev. Mr. Gladstone went on with the recital.

The Queen's Jubilee.

LONDON, April 26.—Her Majesty has finally fixed 20th June, 1887, by which time she will have actually reigned fifty years, for the celebration of her jubilee. Of the fifty-seven kings, queens and protectors exercising authority in this country from early in the 9th century, the reign of three only was prolonged to the jubilee period of fifty years. Those long reigning monarchs were Henry III., Edward III., George III. Amongst the gracious acts of the last named monarch were donations of £2,000 to the Society for Relief of Small Debtors in England, £1,000 for a like relief in Scotland, and the same sum for a similar purpose in Ireland. The king likewise ordered the liberation on Jubilee day of all Crown debtors. Proclamations were issued pardoning all deserters from the land forces, provided they returned to duty within two months from October 25, and deserters from the fleet were pardoned whether they returned to duty or not.

The Convicts Revolt.

MONTREAL, April 26.—The coroner opened an inquest this morning at St. Vincent de Paul on the body of Corriveau, the convict who was shot dead in the Penitentiary revolt. The people here are now thoroughly aroused to the danger to society from the loose discipline maintained at the Penitentiary, and a Government investigation will be asked for. Several revolts have been organized lately, and were only foiled by accident. In one case a convict divulged the plans to the Warden, and was afterwards stabbed by one of his comrades, who was hanged. On another occasion all the convicts had got to the corridor, where they waited all night, ready to overpower the relief when he came, and only that he neglected his duty they would all have escaped ten days ago. The convicts set fire to a shed, hoping to escape in the confusion. The Penitentiary appears to be lacking in several essentials, the most important of which, apart from the laxity of discipline, is the facility with which escape can be made. If the convicts on Saturday had carried out the design as successfully as they had planned it, the consequences would have been serious.

Diabolical Work.

KANSAS CITY, April 26.—An incoming freight train on the Missouri Pacific Railroad was wrecked at 4 o'clock this morning between Wayandotte and this city, near Raw River bridge. The spikes had been removed from the rails on the curve, and when the train approached the engine and four freight cars went off the track down a low embankment. The engine rolled over and stopped bottom side up at the water's edge. Ben Horton, fireman, and George Carlyle, brakeman, were killed outright. Engineer Fowler was thrown into the river and seriously injured. Mr. Hoxie has offered a reward of $2,500 for the arrest and conviction of the wreckers.

Hamilton has granted no new licenses this year, and proposes to lop off seventeen old ones.

This is to certify that I have used McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and do honestly say that if it cost me one hundred dollars ($100.00) a bottle I would not be without it, as it has done me more good than all the medicines I ever used, and I feel like a new man.—Yours truly, Alex Steel, Carleton Place, Ont. This medicine is for sale at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at Thos. S. Petrie's Drug Store.

New Goods, Low Prices.

We work a system of close margins, buy and sell for cash, every article good, reduced in price to the lowest point of profit compatible with success. We do not believe in the old exploded dodge, making our customers believe that we are selling goods below cost price, nor are we giving some articles away for nothing in order to sell others. Our theory and practice are that small profits yield large sales, and give us steady trade and contented customers. Our stock of Spring and Summer goods complete. CAPT. CLARKE IN GALT.—The calisthenic entertainment given by Capt. Clarke's Galt class of young ladies, in the rink of that town, last night, was an unqualified success. There were upwards of 1,600 people present and the jam was such that standing room could scarcely be found. On the entrance of the young ladies they were presented by Rev. J. K. Smith with a magnificent banner, which they displayed throughout the exercises of the evening. Mr Smith in making the presentation took occasion to speak of the good influence which Mr Clarke's instructions in Guelph had had upon other places by spreading the desire for instruction in calisthenics. Throughout, the programme was an interesting one, presenting entirely new features, and the manœuvres were watched with a good deal of pleasure, as was evidenced by frequent outbursts of applause.

ATTENTION is directed to the advertisement in another column of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association. The figures set forth speak for themselves.

Local News

BUSY.—The Armstrong Carriage Goods Co. are so pressed with orders that it is now necessary to run their works to their full capacity. This took effect on Monday last and the men are working 24 hours per day, two gangs of men being employed.

ELECTRIC LIGHT.—Messrs. Tolton Bros., who had the contract from Mr. D. Spence for the millwright work, etc., to furnish power for the Ball Electric Light Co., have now got the machinery in full working order. It is expected that the lights will be in operation this evening.

EXTRA POLLING PLACES.—This morning the Committee, appointed to make extra polling places in the various wards on account of the increase of population, and the provisions of the Act which only allows 200 voters in each polling sub-division, met and divided up the city into 19 polling sub-divisions, for electoral purposes. Revising Officer Judge Drew was also present. Although having the power himself to make the divisions he left it in the hands of the City Council, as he thought they would be better able to determine the boundaries. There are now three polling places in each ward—which is one more than heretofore—with the exception of St. George's Ward, in which there will be four.

IMPROVEMENTS.—Mr. B. B. Hughes, jr., is at present making considerable alterations in his store, Roche's old stand, which, when completed, will foot up to over $1,000. Ald. Geo. Bruce has now men at work laying a new hardwood floor in the store proper, and by Monday it is expected that the old front windows will be taken out and replaced with plate glass, 10 feet long by 7 feet wide, with brass sashes. The interior of the store from top to bottom will also be thoroughly renovated as regards painting, papering and other attractions calculated to be necessary for the business. When these improvements are completed the store will present a far more attractive appearance than it does at present.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.—There was a very successful social held last evening in the Congregational Church, the chief feature of which was an interesting lecture from the Rev. H. D. Powis! on his trip to England last year. Mr. Powis has got the faculty of thoroughly interesting his audience, and his description of the voyage and of the sights in and around London and other parts of the British Empire was very graphic and entertaining. After 40 years' work in the ministry of the Congregational Church in Canada, Mr. Powis has decided to remove to England where most of his family reside, and the Congregationalists of this country will suffer a severe loss by his departure. The musical part of the programme was also very interesting, and exceedingly well rendered as a whole.

SPEED ROLLER RINK.—There was a good attendance at the rink last night. The Bell Organ Co. Band played good selections with their usual ability. The races were well and hotly contested. The backward race had four entries, Brandon, Field, Bunyan and Milloy, the distance was half a mile, and was won after a keen and close contest by R. Fields, Brandon second. The half mile straight race, skating in the opposite direction, was very exciting. There were five contestants, namely, Brandon, Jos. and Mat Bunyan, Fields and Milloy. Brandon's skate breaking he fell out on the second lap. After that the race was virtually between Fields and the two Bunyans, Fields ultimately winning with Jos. Bunyan second. To-morrow night Bell's Organ Band will be on hand for the last time under the present management. There will be a one mile race between Brandon, Jos. and Mat Bunyan and Fields, and other races keen and interesting.

LAST evening a social dance was held at the Reynold's House. There was a large number present, and a very enjoyable time spent, the host and hostess doing everything possible to make the guests feel at home.

CALEDONIANS.—Last night a meeting of the Caledonian Society was held in the American hotel. There was a very fair attendance. The chief business under discussion was the election of officers and to make arrangements for the annual celebration. As there are some preliminary matters to arrange a fuller report will appear to-morrow.

CHECKERS.—The following is the score of the draught match played between Guelph and Acton checker players on Good Friday. The reason that it is so long of being published, although an account of the match appeared the day after is that some of the Guelph checker players had scruples about publishing it, for no more definite reason than that "the Acton players wouldn't like it." We are indebted to a friend in Acton for the score:—

AGAINST A BOOK AGENT.—An order was obtained in Chambers at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, on Monday, allowing as good the service of a writ of summons and statement of claim in an action, upon a Mr. Ballantyne, described as a book agent, in the Transvaal Republic, South Africa. The affidavit of service was sworn before a notary public, and certificates in the Dutch language were filed from a judge of the High Court and the Secretary of State of the Republic showing the notary's authority. The defendant has twelve weeks to appear and defend. Mr. Ballantyne is well known in Guelph and vicinity, having lived here for a number of years prior to his going out to Africa as an agent for the World Publishing Co. of this city. His wife, who is still a resident of Guelph, has not heard from him for some time now.

SELECT KNIGHTS. — Wellington Legion, No. 18, S. K. of A. O. U. W., are completing their arrangements for the reception of the Grand Legion of Ontario, which hold their annual session in this city, commencing on Monday, 17th May. Committees have been appointed for the receiving of delegates, and arranging for their stay while in the city. On Monday evening, on the arrival of the train from the east on the G. W. R. Division of the Grand Trunk, Supreme Commander Reed, of Topeka, Kansas, and Grand Commander Leubsdorf, of St. Catharines, will be met at the station by the members of the A. O. U. W., and S. K.'s, and will be escorted to the city. It is expected that the City Band will be engaged for the occasion. A grand concert will also be given in the City Hall, under the leadership of Prof. Philp, assisted by the City Band, Mrs. Whitehead, and other well known vocal talent. The American, Reynold's, Commercial and Western Hotels will be the headquarters for the representatives.

EASTER FESTIVAL.—The Easter festival and fancy fair held under the auspices of the Young Ladies Sodality in aid of the building fund of the Church of Our Lady, took place in the City Hall last evening, and was a financial success. The centre of the hall was occupied by a number of tables arranged in circular form ladened with useful and fancy articles manufactured by the deft fingers of the fair ladies, and which were freely bought up by the people present. Besides this the usual fish pond, Rebecca at the well, post office, pea nut and candy stands were scattered throughout the hall, presided over by young ladies, and did a thriving trade. During the evening a first-class musical programme was rendered in an excellent manner. The programme opened with the Maypole dance by fifty children and was rendered in such a manner as to bring to mind the old time sports of "Merrie England." The trio by Prof. Barre, Messrs. Spragge and Lawson created considerable merriment, and was rapturously applauded. The songs of Miss Coffee, Miss Doran, and Mr. Gallagher, were given in excellent style and were well received. In the tableau scenes the singing of the children was the feature of the evening. This evening the fair will be continued and an entire change of programme will be given. Considerable excitement was manifested in the voting for a wax doll to be given to the most popular child in the city. Four little ones are the candidates, and the contest seems to lie between Nellie Hogan and Lily Sleeman.

Coughs and Colds.—At this season when coughs are so prevalent, an effectual remedy, and one easily obtained, is Perry Davis' Vegetable "Pain-Killer." It is no new nostrum, vended by unknown agents, but has stood the test of over 20 years; and those who use the article, internally or externally, will connect with it grateful recollections of its worthy inventer.

The Guelphs play the Hamiltons on Saturday in Hamilton.

Ed. Stapleton is playing great ball in Bridgeport, as is Biebaur for the Athletics of Philadelphia.

OUR dress goods are the talk of the city, in this department alone our sales have doubled that of any former season. Why? Because we have the very latest effects, and our prices are the most popular. Call and satisfy yourself. A. J. LITTLE & Co. d3-w1.

MERRIE ENGLAND.

The Sons of St. George Celebrate Their Natal Day.

The sons of St. George and "Merrie England" celebrated the anniversary of their patron saint last evening by a supper in the Commercial hotel. On account of St. George's day falling on Good Friday it was decided to hold the annual dinner on Tuesday night in accord with the majority of St. George's Societies in the Province. At eight o'clock then some fifty of the leal sons of old England assembled at the Commercial hotel, and half an hour afterwards they sat down to the table and partook of such a repast as could not fail to gratify the palate of the most fastidious Englishman. Although roast beef and plum pudding occupied a prominent place on the table, yet there was everything else provided that is expected at a first-class dinner, and in this connection Mrs. Reinhart and her assistants have to be congratulated. The tables were beautifully decorated and the arrangements very tasteful. Behind the President's chair "St. George's banner broad and gay" displayed its graceful fold. On the right of the President were the Rev. Mr. Savage, one of the chaplains, ex-Mayor Chase and Secretary Read. On his left were Principal Mills, representing St. Patrick's Society, Rev. W. F. Clarke, another of the chaplains, and Mr. G. W. Field. The first vice chair was occupied by Dr. Howitt, the second by Mr. J. F. Kidner, and the third by Ald. Hewer. It was noticeable that the chair set apart for the representative of St. Andrew's Society was vacant, which was a source of general comment and regret.

After the tables were cleared the usual loyal toasts were given and responded to, after which Mr. Wm. Read, Secretary, read letters and telegrams of fraternal greeting from the Societies in Hamilton, Toronto, and Ottawa.

"The House of Commons."—This toast was responded to by Rev. Mr. Savage, who made a splendid speech, in which he congratulated British subjects on having such a noble Queen, limited monarchy, and a sound constitution. There was not a nation on the face of the earth but felt the influence of Queen Victoria and the power of Great Britain. He then spoke at some length on the Upper and Lower Houses of Parliament, and the great orators that had spoken there. These halls, it was shown, were open to every one who had force of character enough to place himself there. Different religious opinions and even nationalities were not known in the House of Commons. Speaking of representatives sent to Parliament he said that it was well to send those in whom perfect confidence could be placed. They might do things which would appear to us wrong, but they were on the spot and acquainted with circumstances which if we were in possession of would change our views entirely.

The Rev. M. Clarke also replied in a few words, after which Mr. Selwood read the following address:

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS.

GENTLEMEN,—As President of Guelph St. George's Society I feel very much gratified to see such a large number of gentlemen assembled at this our annual dinner, to do honor to St. George's Day. I hope it is a good omen of greater unity, greater zeal and patriotism for the future welfare of the Society than we have ever experienced in the past. I feel proud of the success the Guelph St. George's Society has achieved in the past, and that the aims and laudable objects of the Society have been carried out most effectively. But gentlemen, you all know that unity is strength. As the Rev. Mr. Savage in his excellent discourse to us dwelt aptly and eloquently on the power and excellence of unity, I ask you to-night for greater unity of purpose in carrying out the objects of St. George's Society. Those objects, I am sure must be dear to the heart of every Englishman. They are not confined to deeds of charity to the sick and needy of our countrymen, but the giving of good practical advice and sympathy, when they first arrive among us, strangers in a strange land. Gentlemen, some of our officers could relate to you cases of this kind that would do your hearts good to know—cases of good men who have failed to obtain the work they sought for and have given up to despondency. Many such has St. George's Society helped with sound advice, and assistance when necessary, who are now doing well in different parts of Canada. We want to continue this good work, and to hold out the right hand of fellowship to every newly arrived Englishman on our shores.

I am very glad to see here to-night the President of St. Patrick's Society, and regret the absence of the President of St. Andrew's Society, which must have arisen from some unforseen cause. These are engaged in the same patriotic and benevolent work as ourselves. It is customary, gentlemen, for Presidents of St. George's Society to make allusion to our patron saint. Most glowing descriptions of his chivalry, valour, and all the Christian virtues for which he was so remarkable, have been so often told us in eloquent oratory that it needs for me to say but little about him. That he was a model Englishman, I am convinced in my own mind—a good example for each of us to imitate—Like him let us fight for liberty and relieve the oppressed, aid the sick and infirm, and live in charity with all men.

Gentlemen, I shall not take up any of your time. I am no orator as Brutus was, and as we have several Brutuses among us to address you this evening, I will say no more, but congratulate the Society and myself on this splendid demonstration, and thank you each and all most heartily for your attendance here to-night.

The President then handed over the programme to the 1st Vice-President, Dr. Howitt, who in a short speech proposed

"The Army, Navy and Volunteers." This toast was ably responded to by Capt. Macdonald, who referred with pride to the soldierly behaviour of our volunteers during the Northwest rebellion, who did as well as trained soldiers, and it was but right that we should feel admiration and esteem for them, seeing the sacrifices they had made. It was no feather-bed soldiers who stood on flat cars with the thermometer 22 degrees below zero, nor was it any feather-bed soldiers who faced at Fish Creek an unseen enemy. The speaker then mentioned several instances of heroism done by our volunteers, showing the stuff they were made of. He felt that the toast that he was called on to respond to was a very important one, as on this occasion he represented 40,000 men and 600,000 of the reserve force.

Mr. J. W. Colson also replied stating that he was one of the oldest volunteers in the service. He had been out in the Fenian raid, and if his services were needed he was willing to go again.

"Our Universities" was responded to by Mr. G. W. Field, who made an able and eloquent speech. Perhaps Britain had no glory that she should be more proud of than that which emanated from her halls of learning and went on to show that the defusion of education among the masses was of far greater benefit to the country than if centred in a few cities and towns. The march of progress was rapidly raising another class—the common people. Some of the greatest men of our day never received a university training, such as John Bright, Chamberlain, Beaconsfield, Alexander Mackenzie and Sir John A. Macdonald. He did not think that universities would play that important part in the future that they had done in past. About the cry that had been made that Britain was losing her prestige he did not believe it. A nation that had been for ten long centuries Christianizing and civilizing the world and was still prosecuting the work was not going to sink into oblivion like that. Britain was stronger to-day than she ever was before. She was only slumbering and if aroused would be more terrible than ever.

"The Day We Celebrate" was ably acknowledged by Mr. A. H. Goodeve. He explained at some length the charitable purposes of the Society. Last year notwithstanding the small membership nearly $100 had been given in relief. He had a pet hobby that if the three sister societies—St. George's, St. Patrick's, and St. Andrew's—would combine they would do more good. He then spoke of the love which existed in America for the old land, notwithstanding all the bombast which might appear on the surface.

Mr. J. T. Brill also spoke at some length, and showed that Canada had more territory than the United States, and in comparison with the population was equally advanced.

"The Sister Societies" was responded to by Principal Mills, of the Agricultural College, on behalf of St. Patrick's and St. Andrew's, in a humorous and appreciative speech. Notwithstanding the definition that he had heard of a Scotchman, which was that he keeps the Sabbath day and everything else that he can get his hands on he paid them equally as high a compliment as if they had been represented by a son of the heather. He then spoke of Irishmen and Ireland and enumerated some of her orators, poets and soldiers. Home rule he thought would be a benefit to Ireland and would in no way endanger the union, but make it stronger.

In the absence of the Mayor, ex-Mayor Chase was called on to respond to the "Mayor and Corporation." This he did with his usual ability. Alds. Maddock, Hewer and Read also responded briefly.

"The Commercial and Manufacturing Interests" were coupled with the name of Mr. Thomas Holliday, who fittingly responded.

The cause of the ladies, not any being present, was championed by Mr. Joseph P. Downey, and the flattering manner in which he dilated on their charms and perfections will gain him favor in their eyes for evermore.

The host and hostess brought the programme of song and toast to a close.

During the evening songs were sung in excellent style by Messrs. John Crowe, Howell, Pettit, F. Smith, Mostyn, Read and others.

Below is given a short poem written for the occasion by one of the students of the Agricultural College. It was handed to us by Mr. Kidner for publication, which it merits:

Where ever England's sons may roam,
Where'er her sons may pillow,
They muse upon their island home,
Beyond the rolling billow.
Who has not heard of England's name,
Her victory and her glory;
Her wealth and power, deeds of fame,
Have grown old in story.
But some declare the day will come
When England's power shall crumble,
Her sons defeated, meet their doom,
Her standard break and tumble,
And o'er that noble island shore
So oft by right defended
Find her proud banner wave no more,
And know her triumphs ended.
Away the thought! let cowards fear,
But England's sons will ever
Stand up for right, for freedom dear,
For naught their hearts can sever.
Though far they roam, their love's the same
As it has ever been.—
They cherish England's sacred name
And love her noble Queen.

Death of a Much Respected Pioneer.

Elder James Black passed away peacefully on the evening of the 21st of April, 1886, at the homestead, the residence of his son, Mr. Hugh Black, in the township of Eramosa, in his 89th year, after an illness of about two weeks.

Deceased was born in Argylshire, Scotland, in August 1797. At the age of 15 he commenced teaching school. Emigrated to Canada in 1820 and settled in the township of Aldbourough. In 1825 he removed to the township of Nassayaweya, taught school in Milton, then known as Martins Mills, and at Beamsville; was married in February 1828 and moved to the township of Eramosa in 1830, and settled on the farm where he lived continuously till his death.

He and his partner, who preceded him six years, were subjected to all the trials of the early settlers, but lived to enjoy the fruit of their labours and to see a wonderful change in a residence of over half a century.

Being possessed of more than ordinary ability, a strong constitution and a liberal education, he had an opportunity which he did not hesitate to embrace, of doing much for the early settlers in this and the surrounding counties.

The clearing of a farm, the supporting of a large family and all the hardships connected with pioneer life, did not prevent him from doing the work to which he consecrated himself in early life. After the week's hard toil, he would be found walking a distance of from five to twenty miles, to fill his regular appointments to preach to the people assembled, the glad tidings of salvation of which he was an acceptable proclaimer.

From early youth he was a close and critical Bible student; and in religious matters accepted no authority or creed but the Bible. In 1817 he was baptised by Elder Sinclair, a Scotch Baptist, but soon after connected himself with those known as "Disciples of Christ," in whose fellowship he continued to the close of his long life.

Although never known as a politician he always took an active interest in civil affairs and considered it a moral duty to cast his vote at the polls, which he invariably did on the side of Reform.

He was buried in the Everton Cemetery on the 24th inst. The funeral was largely attended, numbers having come from a distance to pay their last tribute of respect to the memory of one who was held in high esteem by all who know him.

The Scott Act.

On Saturday next, May 1st, the Canada Temperance Act will come into force in the City of Guelph and County of Wellington. The present is therefore an opportune time to once more remind our readers of the provisions of this Act and to call upon them as law abiding citizens to lend their assistance towards its enforcement.

Respectable citizens, whether they view the Scott Act with favor or disfavor, now that it has been adopted and is about to become law, are anxious that it should be carried out to the letter. They regard it as essential to good order and morality that all laws should be enforced and that none should be broken with impunity. Hence the danger of infraction does not lie with the large number of law respecting and conscientions men who express disapproval of this form of prohibition. Where the danger does rest is in the first place with those who are interested in the sale of liquor and still hope to derive a profit from its disposal without a license, and with those who are unscrupulous enough to become their customers for the mere purpose of gratifying a depraved appetite. Now, in order that this class may fully understand their position and the risk they run we give the following summary of the principal provisions of the Scott Act as they will apply to this city and county.

On and after May 1st liquor can only be sold by retail in this city and county for sacramental, medical and manufacturing purposes.

In the first instance it can only be sold on the certificate of a clergyman; in the second on the certificate of a doctor, and in the third on that of two Justices of the Peace.

For these purposes it can only be sold in quantities of not less than one pint and only by druggists or vendors appointed by the Lieutenant-Governor for the disposal of liquor in this way. Only one druggist or vendor can be licensed in each township, two in each town, and in cities one for every 4,000 inhabitants. When the liquor is bought for medical purposes the purchaser must present a certificate from a doctor affirming that such liquor has been prescribed for the person named therein. When it is bought for use in manufacturing the purchaser must present a certificate, signed by two Justices of the Peace, accompanied by an affirmation of the applicant that the liquor is for the purpose set forth. Druggists are obliged to file such certificates and keep a register of such sales, indicating the name of the purchaser and the quantity sold, and to make a return of the same to the Collector of Inland Revenue on the 31st of December each year.

Distillers and cider manufacturers may sell in quantities of 10 gallons and brewers in quantities of 8 gallons to licensed druggists or vendors, but not to other persons in the city or county or in any adjoining county where the Scott Act is in force.

Merchants exclusively engaged in wholesaling and duly licensed to sell liquors by wholesale may sell in quantities of not less than 10 gallons and then only to licensed druggists or vendors, or to persons in other than Scott Act counties.

If there is any prosecution against a distiller, brewer, manufacturer, merchant or trader for infractions of the foregoing it is incumbent on the defendant to furnish satisfactory evidence of having good reason for believing that such liquor would be forthwith removed beyond the limits of the city and county, or of such other adjoining county in which the Act is in force, for consumption.

Then follow the penalties to be inflicted in cases of infraction, and the clauses respecting prosecutions:

For the first offence a fine of not less than $50 is to be imposed; for the second a fine of not less than $100, and for the third and each subsequent conviction imprisonment in the county gaol at hard labor for not less than two months.

A person who is engaged in the sale of liquor, whether in the employment of the owner or not is liable to the same penalty or punishment as his principal. It is the duty of the Inland Revenue Collector to institute prosecutions, where he does not run an undue measure of responsibility in so doing.

In the city cases may be brought before the Sheriff, Mayor, Sitting Magistrate, or two Justices of the Peace, and in the municipalities before the Sheriff, or two Justices of the Peace. One of the latter may try any case alone with the other's consent.

Every prosecution must be commenced within three months after the alleged offence is committed, and will be determined in a summary way.

In case a credible witness swears before a Magistrate, Justice of the Peace, etc., that there is reasonable cause to suspect that any intoxicating liquor is in any place in respect to which an infraction has been committed, such magistrate, etc., may grant a warrant to search the place, and order that any liquor found may be brought to him, and in all cases destroyed.

A penalty of $50 will be imposed upon any person who is proved guilty of tampering with a witness, either to induce him to swear falsely, to conceal a portion of his evidence, or to get him out of the way.

There is no appeal from any conviction except from those made by Justices of the Peace.

Imprisonment for not more than three months is the punishment to be inflicted upon any person compounding or settling a case of infraction, and the same will be meted out to any one who is a party to, or concerned in, such settlement.

When in any place a bar, counter, beer pumps, kegs or any other appliances or preparations similar to those used in licensed places are found liquor shall be deemed to have been kept for sale unless the contrary is proved by the defendant, and the occupant of such a place shall be taken conclusively to be the person who keeps therein such liquor for sale.

It is not necessary to show that any money actually passed or any liquor was actually consumed if the justice hearing the case is satisfied that a transaction in the nature of a sale or barter or other unlawful disposal actually took place.

It is not necessary for a witness to depose as to the description of liquor, or to the consideration given therefor, or to the sale having taken place of his own personal knowledge, but on the justice being satisfied that the evidence sufficiently establishes the infraction complained of he shall put the defendant on his defence and in default of his rebuttal of such evidence shall convict him accordingly.

A wife is a competent and compellable witness against her husband and vice versa.

The Council of every municipality shall set apart not less than one third of such fines or penalties for a fund to secure the prosecution for infractions of the Act.

The amedments which have been so far made to the Scott Act since it was passed in 1878 do not affect this city and county. There are at present, however, a number of proposed amendments before Parliament, some of which will probably become law. One of these affects the sale by druggists and provides that they may sell liquor to the extent of eight ounces in prescriptions and preparations containing liquor which are not intended for use as beverages, etc. The chief provision of another bill gives the right to search suspected places after dark. The third provides for a wine and beer license in Scott Act cities and counties.

It will be seen that the Act as it now stands does not afford so many loopholes of escape for offenders as some people seem to think, and with the machinery which the Legislature has provided for enforcing the Act since the Privy Council decided that it had the right of regulating the liquor traffic the illegal consumption of liquor should be reduced to a very insignificant minimum.

Potter Building, Park Row, Nassau & Beekman-sts., New York, April 1st, 1886.

TO OUR AGENS—

Six Millions, Three Hundred and Seven Thousand Dollars.

The following statement gives the amount of new business received at the Home Office of the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association each day during the month of March, 1886:

" 2,	148,000	" 13,	140,000	" 25,	213,000
" 3,	158,000	" 15,	444,500	" 26,	253,000
" 4,	181,000	" 16,	273,000	" 27,	117,500
" 5,	237,000	" 17,	173,000	" 29,	370,500
" 6,	118,500	" 18,	272,500	" 30,	214,000
" 8,	289,000	" 19,	209,000	" 31,	370,000
" 9,	248,000	" 20.	245,000
" 10,	157,000	" 22,	298,000		$6,307,000
" 11,	178,000	" 23,	200,000

This enormous volume of new business is in amount unprecedented, and is the result of the labor during the month of March of the "Mutual Reserve Army" of insurance workers, in whose rank and file are representative insurance men who have no equals, and to them is due the credit of having written an average new business, allowing eight hours as a day's work (Sundays excepted), of $421.00 per minute.

It is the desire of your management that the new business for April should amount to SEVEN MILLION DOLLARS, and I now appeal to you knowing that you will heartily respond to the call, to individually increase your business over that of the past month by 10 per cent., thereby reaching the allotment for April—of $7,000,000.

Truly yours.

A Few Facts Worth Knowing

in regard to

THE GOLDEN LION.

1st—We are the only direct importers in Guelph,

2nd—We are the only Firm of any importance having no rent to pay.

3rd—We buy entirely for cash.

4th—We sell entirely for cash.

5th—We deliberately threw up a credit trade of $30,000 and are now doing a larger cash trade than we then did of cash and credit combined.

6th—Our expenses are less than any house in the city doing one half the business.

With these advantages we must and do undersell all others.

WE SHOW

A Beautiful range of Black French Dress Goods.

Our Silks and Satins are unparalleled.

In Millinery and Mantles we excell.

We hold a big range of Silk and Satin Dolmans and Jackets in Plain and Brocade.

MISS MARRIOTT, our Milliner, although young in years, is old in experience and having youth on her side, she naturally adapts herself more readily to the changing styles.

Our Dresemaking Department under MISS TODD has assumed such proportions as we never dreamed of before.

CLOTHING

We strongly advise young men who want Suits made by MR. McKENZIE for the 24th May, to leave their orders at once, as we are so busy in this department that it is almost impossible to get the work out.

Our Ready-Made Cutter is now engaged in getting out 1,000 Suits which we will be able to sell at $3.95 each.

THIS ORIGINAL DOCUMENT IS IN VERY POOR CONDITION

Goldstone Correspondence.

HOME.—Mr Kerby Hawkins, of the Guelph Commercial College, and Mr. R. Norris, of Mount Forest High School, are both home for Easter holidays.

FINE WEATHER.—As a result of the early departure of the snow and the extraordinary weather many of the farmers had by the early part of last week got fairly commenced seeding. Great precaution had to be exercised in caring for their horses, as they are somewhat soft after their long winter's rest, and with the heat are very liable to get sore shoulders.

ADDITIONS.—Owing to the increased patronage of the cheese factory the directors have found it necessary to add a considerable addition to their already large manufacturing capacity. The contract has been awarded to Mr. J. Boyle, of Parker. . . . . J. H. Waind has also found it necessary to add a lean to of 15 feet to his large frame barn.

QUARTERLY MEETING.—The quarterly official business meeting of the Stirton circuit was held at Wesley appointment, on Saturday, 24th inst. and was presided over by Rev Mr Richardson, of Listowel, District Superintendent, and on the following day the rev gentleman preached to a large and appreciative audience in the same church, at 10 30 a. m., after which he conducted a sacramental service.

BUYERS.—Horse and cattle buyers seem to frequent this neighborhood considerably, which must surely indicate that the farmers raise some fairly good stock, and they certainly do, but prices are very low, especially for horses.

HONORS.—Mr T. Whales carried off second prize at the Elora show on Wednesday last and achieved a similar feat in Drayton on Saturday last for his Percheron stallion, "Vernal."

MEDICAL.—Dr. G. A. Cassidy, recent graduate of McGill University, has come to Moorefield to practice his profession His brother, J. I. Cassidy, has just passed his final in Toronto for M. D., C. M. Very much credit is due those young men for the manner in which they have persevered and succeeded, and their long list of acquaintances are unanimous in wishing them a bright and successful career as medical men.

RECOVERED.—The many friends of J. Grose are glad to see him walking about again. He is greatly reduced in flesh, but when once around he will regain his lost avoirdupois.

Goldstone, April 25, 1886.

Elora Correspondence.

GOOD FRIDAY.—The usual abstention from business was observed on Good Friday and services were held in some of the churches. The day was gloriously fine, and the sun poured down his rays with summer heat, so that work in the garden, which occupied many, was no joke. In the evening the ladies of the Methodist church gave what they termed "A pink social" which was well attended. The ladies were decorated more or less with pink, the cakes had pink icing, pink rosettes adorned the walls and tables, and everything and everybody wore a roseate hue. Of course there was "a pink in the garden" for every young man who looked therefor.

REMOVAL.—Mr S J Taylor removes with his family to Guelph this week where he will open up a flax mill in the old foundry. He has been an excellent citizen here, and will prove an acceptable addition to the population of the Royal city. Mrs Taylor, who is an indefatigable church worker, was presented with an album by the scholars of St. John's Sunday School on Sunday last, and the little folks feel truly sorry at her departure.

IMPROVEMENTS.—A new verandah has been erected by Mr M Halley in the front of his property, occupied by Murdoch Brothers, on Metcalf street, and so effected a desirable improvement. Mr C Clarke is making changes in his residence which will materially improve its appearance.

NEW TENANT.—Mr William Watson, who has for some years worked the Beamis farm at Winterbourne, has removed to the farm of Mr. Frank Reynolds, and will do much to put it in a good state of cultivation. Mr Watson is full of push and energy, and is a desirable addition to the agricultural population of Pilkington.

TUMBLED DOWN.—The old tannery at Salem is one of the landmarks of this section, and was built at a time when it was the only place of the kind between Elora and Lake Huron. Sem Wissler ran a big business there in the days of early settlement, and his boot and shoe store furnished covering for the feet of nearly all the farmers of Peel and Upper Nichol and Pilkington. But with the disappearance of the forest and hemlock bark the business gradually decreased, and the building lost its old value. The great floods of this spring have tried it severely, and on Friday evening the portion next to the river was so damaged that it fell, and it is not probable that it will be rebuilt.

PUBLIC MEETING.—On Thursday evening last a large meeting was held in the town hall here, for the purpose of considering the propriety of making a $2,000 loan to the manager of a proposed button factory. The experience of the people of Elora in the way of loans and bonuses has not been of a very encouraging nature, and it is not surprising that the scheme found but few supporters. Numerous questions were put to the projector and borrower, but it was evident from his replies that the security offered for the repayment of the proposed loan was of the most shadowy character. The by-law, which is published in the Express, will be voted on in a few days, and, it is highly probable, will be voted down. To prevent the passage of the by-law, every opponent of the scheme should turn out and vote.

FIX IT.—The grumbling at the condition of the gravel road from Elora to the Junction on the way to Guelph, are loud as well as deep. The penny-wise policy of putting on a wheelbarrow load of gravel instead of a wagon load is telling seriously against travel this spring and it is to be hoped that the County Council at its next sitting will see the advisability of making more liberal grants for the repair of leading gravel roads of Wellington than it has been doing for some time past. The people of this county have expended money liberally in the construction of roads which, at one time, were the boast of our whole people. It seems worse than folly to permit them to become one huge mud hole for the want of decent maintenance. It would be better to expend nothing than to fritter away a totally inadequate sum in repairs.

MORE ATTENTION.—In a few days the Scott Act will be in force. When taverns are closed, and pumps are locked, way-side springs will become of double their present value, and ought to be utilized wherever possible. One of the best of these is on Maitland's hill, on the way to Guelph. Just now it is obstructed, and useless. Half a day's work, or less would set it running again, and keep the horse trough constantly filled. Let the caretaker of the road look to it at once.

EARLY SEASON.—The present spring is remarkably early. Flowers are blooming in gardens and woods, leaves are opening on forest trees, grass is growing freely, and there are abundant indications of an early summer. Farming operations, during the past week, were pushed vigorously. Some declare that they never saw such an early display of leaves. But the springs of 1873 and 1878 were still more early and in both years there was an absence of the late frosts which destroy the hopes of the orchardist and husbandman. In 1878 especially, the indications of an early summer were abundantly realized, and the warm season was unusually long. On the 8th of October in that year a gentleman in this village gathered twenty-six varieties of flowers in his garden, as there was as marked an absence of autumn as there had been of spring frosts. Let us hope that the coming season may be as favorable as that of 1878.

BUSY.—Sergt. Forbes is kept busy in looking out for new stations for the operations of the Salvation Army. To him Elora was indebted for the barracks here, and now Ferguson has been favoured by his attentions. Probably Belwood will be next looked after.

HOW OTHERS SEE IT.—A little four-year-old chanced to see the Salvation Army at knee drill in our Market Square a few days ago. "Ma," he said, "it was real nice. They played ring, ring a rosy on the road, and the drummer hopped down first. Won't you let me go and play with them?"

SHIPPING.—Weigher Fenwick is kept busy at the village scales just now. Cattle shipments have commenced, and many fat hogs are being sent off by rail. He says that the cattle are in splendid order this spring, and that John Bull will have good reason to smack his lips over Wellington beef.

SERIOUSLY ILL.—The wife of Rev. John Stewart is lying seriously ill at the residence of her mother, Mrs. Hugh Wallace, Pilkington. It is hoped that she will be speedily restored to good health, and gladden the home circle once more.

ST. JOHN'S VESTRY.—At the annual meeting of St. John's vestry held last evening, A. H. Paget, M D., and Henry Clarke were appointed Churchwardens for the coming year; Dr. Paget was selected as Lay Delegate to the Synod; and Messrs. R. Topham, A. Walsh, W. Sheppard, James Waite, and J. Walters were elected Sidesmen.

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show room of Messrs. Clark & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes, fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

The Other Side of the "Story."

This is the title of a tastefully printed and well got up pamphlet containing a series of reviews criticising M. J. C. Dent's "Story of the Upper Canadian Rebellion." It also contains the letters which appeared in the Toronto press in the Mackenzie-Rolph controversy. These are connected together with a short account of the controversy, and are followed by a lengthy critique on "The New Story" by Mr. John King, M. A., Barrister, Berlin, who also contributes an introductory. The publication of the pamphlet is justified on the ground that the promise given the public that the Story of the Rebellion would be written from a "Liberal but non-partisan point of view" has not been kept—that "the faith plighted in the word has been broken in the deed," especially in the author's estimate of William Lyon Mackenzie and John Rolph. Issue is joined with Mr. Dent on these points, as well as many others in his narrative. The pamphlet as a whole is well written, and is very readable and interesting; no doubt it will have many readers. It gives a good idea of Mr. Dent's book, criticizes pointedly and pungently those parts of it which the writers conceive to be fairly open to criticism, and furnishes a good deal of new and important information on the whole subject. Mr. King's critique is a slashing and racy review by a Liberal of Mr. Dent's narrative, and, without being so avowedly, is a strong vindication of the character of William Lyon Mackenzie. Those who have read the "Story" should certainly read this reply, and those who have not read it may, with great advantage, read what the critics say about it. The price of the pamphlet is 25 cents. It may be had at the bookstores.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 27.

The House of Commons re-assembled after the Easter holidays at 8 o'clock tonight. Mr. White (Cardwell) introduced a bill allowing land to be granted to the railway companies in the Northwest in alternate townships or blocks instead of alternate sections. The House went into Committee of Supply and passed several items.

Cholera Among the Soldiers.

LONDON, April 27.—Lord Dufferin, Viceroy of India, telegraphs from Mandalay that the cholera attacked with such virulence the Forty-third Regiment, while ascending the Irrawaddy River, that the whole regiment had to be disembarked. Fourteen deaths occurred. The dead were buried, the sick were placed in hospitals and the healthy soldiers placed in camp a short distance up the river.

Harriston Correspondence.

SEEDING.—The unusually fine weather of the past two weeks has enabled farmers in this section to get considerably advanced with their seeding. A large proportion of the spring crop was sown last week. Fall wheat is said to have stood the winter well. Farmers are unanimous in saying they never saw it look better at this season of the year.

GOOD FRIDAY.—Good Friday passed off very quietly here, business generally being suspended. Services were held in some of the churches. Quite a number spent the day away from home. Others enjoyed themselves at the Roller Rink, playing cricket and other amusements.

BEAUTIFYING THE CEMETERY.—The cemetery committee are now having a number of ornamental trees put in place in the cemetery. Harriston has one of the best burial grounds in the county, and with the improvements being put on it each year, it will soon be one of the most beautiful to be found in this section of the country.

HE DIDN'T GO.—One William Little has spent the mott of the time, during the past year, in and around Harriston, and has in that time given the Salvation Army considerable attention. One week he would devote his time to beating the drum for them, and the next in beating some of the army people. William has of late, enlarged the territory in which he operates. Last week being his week for "cuffing" the Salvationists, he went up to Clifford, took a few drinks and then had a difficulty with the Army. A constable followed him down here, and induced him to return. We are not aware what process William was put through, but report says that on Friday last the constable and his man started on a trip to Guelph, and when at Palmerston, without any ceremony William boited from the Clifford official, and has not yet been found. He is doubtless laboring with the Army somewhere else.

ASSESSMENT ROLL, 1886.—Thos. T. Watson, town assessor, has completed the assessment roll for the year. Owing to various reasons the assessor has thought proper to reduce the assessment somewhat. The decrease is not large. The population has increased considerably.

REVIVAL SERVICES.—Rev. Mr Savage with his band arrived in town on Saturday last, and have commenced revival services in the Methodist church. People here know but little concerning his method of conducting such services, but all agree that he has found a grand field in which to commence operations. It is to be hoped much good may result from their labors.

Harriston, April 26, 1886.

Garafraxa and Guelph.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—I have been watching for some time the different schemes reported in the MERCURY of your City Fathers trying to get a branch of the G V. Railway to Guelph with a view, I presume, of having cheaper rates and better accommodation.

We here, in West Garafraxa, are waiting and hoping some influential member of your City Council would propose having the Elora branch of the Credit Valley railway extended to Guelph by way of Thorpville and on to Goldie's mill, instead of Schaw station through Puslinch. This Elora branch is in fine order and runs two trains daily to and from Toronto, and if extended to Guelph would serve their purpose equally as well and would confer a great benefit on this township by giving us more reasonable rates to Guelph, our old place of doing business. Your Fergus correspondent neglected to inform you that the Grand Trunk Railway reduced the fare from Fergus to Guelph on Saturdays some weeks ago to a very reasonable figure. But the council of Fergus, which is composed of gentlemen of large, liberal views, got thoroughly terror-stricken, fearing their trade was about to be ruined, and they took the bull by the horns and had the impending calamity averted by spending a great part of the night discussing their grievance in the Village Council, and either by petition or deputation, with the assistance of the station master, got the order rescinded.

Mr Editor, there is a large number here who have been the regular customers of these Councillors for years who feel a little sore at their interfering with our interest in this matter. We must now stop and trade in their little shops in Fergus or go to the Royal City in the old way as best we can.

A FARMER.

CAMPBELL'S TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

LEADING BOOT AND SHOE STORE.

New Goods, Low Prices.

We work a system of close margins, buy and sell for cash, every article good, reduced in price to the lowest point of profit compatible with success. We do not believe in the old exploded dodge, making our customers believe that we are selling goods below cost price, nor are we giving some articles away for nothing in order to sell others. Our theory and practice are that small profits yield large sales, and give us steady trade and contented customers. Our stock of Spring and Summer goods complete. We invite the ladies to see our $3.00 Gem Parlor Boot, which cannot be surpassed in price or quality. Leading Boot and Shoe Store.

THE SCOTT ACT.

Stabling Accommodation.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—Not being in the confidence of the hotel keepers I do not know whether they intend to keep open or close their stables when the Scott Act comes in force. To meet the case I would suggest that not only the driving sheds of churches be thrown open for the use of those who need accommodation, but that application be made to have the stalls on the Exhibition grounds thrown open also. A word to the wise is enough.

Labour Notes.

The St. Catharines Knights of Labor have boycotted the News of that place.

The London master carpenters and builders have adopted the nine hours a day system.

The striking street car men of New York have started a free omnibus in opposition to their late employees.

A special from St. Louis says the Southwestern strike will probably be declared off this week, the Citizens' Committee pledging itself to use every effort to secure re-employment for the strikers.

The Western Boot and Shoe Manufacturers Association was formed at Chicago Tuesday night. One hundred and sixty firms were represented. The object is mutual protection.

The foundrymen in the Grand Trunk shops at Montreal have struck work. It seems the Company undertook the prosecution of two workjmen for assaulting another workman who were fined before the Recorder and dismissed from the Company's service, and the others went out asking that Wilkinson be dismissed and the other two be reinstated.

Mr. A. A. Carlton, organizer of the Knights of Labor, who is to address a public meeting at the City Hall to morrow, is a self-made man. He is by trade a shoemaker, and by his own energy and industry acquired that extensive knowledge which he evidently possesses. Mr. Carlton is an eloquent and forcible speaker, but his most admirable point of merit is his moderation. He appeals to reason and common sense. He does not try to arouse the enthusiasm of his hearers by working on their prejudices and passions. He states calmly and moderately the claims and rights of the laboring classes, and advocates only the employment of constitutional agitation and moral persuasion to ameliorate the wrongs of the workingman. More men of Mr. Carlton's stamp would do much to reconcile the growing difficulties between capital and labor.

Local News

CANADIAN frog legs are quoted at 75 cents per pound in the New York market. A rich harvest can now be reaped in the swamps, for the croak of the croaker is heard throughout the land.

THE death is announced of G. T. Strickland, of Galt, the well known auctioneer, who died from the effects of an abscess which had formed upon his head, and from which he has been a sufferer for some weeks. He was well known in Guelph.

ON Monday evening, 3rd May, a grand organ recital will be given in the lecture room of St. George's Church under the auspices of the choir, at which several selections from Haydn and other eminent composers will be given. Mrs. Whitehead will also take part.

THE Point Edward correspondent of the Sarnia Canadian says:—D. S. McMillan, barrister, late of Guelph, has opened out an office on Michigan Avenue for the practice of his profession. Mr. McMillan comes well recommended, and we bespeak for him a good share of the business of our townspeople.

DRAUGHTS.—The "Herd Laddie" has left Scotland, and according to last advices was in Leeds. The club at Melbourne, Australia, has subscribed £30 to defray Mr. Wyllie's Australian expenses, and have sent him a formal invitation. Mr. Jas. Labadie, the well known Canadian expert, is to play on exhibition in Woodstock, Ont., next week.

EASTER FAIR.—The continuance of the Easter Fair in the City Hall last evening was a marked success over that of the evening previous. The young ladies sold a large quantity of goods. The musical programme and tableaux were well given and excited rounds of applause. The fair has been a grand success in every respect and no doubt the exchequer of the Young Ladies' Sodality will be greatly replenished.

SYNOD OF THE DIOCESE OF NIAGARA.—The Executive Committee of this Diocese met on Tuesday at the Synod office, Hamilton. Among those present were Ven Archdeacon Dixon, Guelph. The work for the approaching meeting of the Synod, which will be convened about the 28th May, was discussed, and the report put into shape, while a good deal of Diocesan business was attended to, occupying the greater part of the afternoon. A number of notices of motion were put upon the table for discussion at the Synod upon subjects of great interest and importance to the Church.

LITTLE BROWN JUG.—The near approach of the first of May, the day of the coming in force of the Scott Act, has had the effect of causing a boom in the crockery trade. The prudent and respectable citizen, who likes to take a little semi-occasionally for his stomach's sake, these days procureth him a little brown jug, causeth the storekeeper to inclose within the same an appropriate quantity of the fluid that cheers and also inebriates if you take it too frequently or too strong; and bestoweth the same in a quiet and secluded corner of his cupboard against the days when the Scott Act shall rule, and John Barleycorn shall be a fugitive and an outlaw in the land.

PASSED.—The many friends of the Rev. J. H. Carson, of this city, will be pleased to learn that at the recent examination he came off successfully, having averaged nearly 85 per cent. Mr. Carson will be ordained at the next Guelph conference, which is to be held at Goderich in June.

THE police of Brantford broke up a cocking main in a barn near Brantford on Good Friday morning. Warrants will be issued for certain parties whose names were obtained. That is right, let the participants suffer as two cock fighters did in Guelph to day.

THE Hamilton Spectator says:—Mr. George Sleeman, ex-Mayor of Guelph, is plucky. The Canadian baseball league—of which his club is a member—bursts up, and Mr. Sleeman immediately engages a lot of expensive players. The Scott Act is to come into force in Guelph May 1, and Mr. Sleeman is busily engaged in enlarging his brewery.

ENTERTAINMENT.—To-morrow evening the calisthenic and gymnastic entertainment of Capt. Clarke's class of young ladies and gentlemen—numbering over 200—will take place in the Skating Rink. The programme will consist of singing, club swinging, bar bell exercises, rifle drill, marching evolutions, etc., and will be of such a character as will stamp it to be the most novel entertainment ever given by Capt. Clarke's classes. Go early and secure a good seat.

C. O. F.—On Wednesday evening at the regular meeting of the Canadian Order of Foresters, the following officers were elected:—H. Gummer, Chief Ranger; D. Tripp, Vice-Chief Ranger; J. Stephenson, Chaplain; Arch. Galbraith, Financial Secretary; W. M. Mann, Recording Secretary; Henry Hughes, Treasurer; S. Brown, Senior Woodward; J. W. Denyes, Junior Woodward; Geo. Warren, Senior Beadle; James Howitt, Junior Beadle. W. M. Mann was appointed Representative to the High Court, which meets in Chatham in June.

QUEEN'S UNIVERSITY.—The proceedings in connection with Convocation at Queen's University, Kingston, were terminated yesterday by the presentation of medals and laureation of graduates, and the conferring of honorary degrees, the degree of LL.D. being conferred on Rev. S. T. Rand, and Rev. Father Dawson, and of D. D. on Rev. David Wilson, of Thorah, and Dr. Forrest, Principal of Dalhousie University. Dr. Wardrope, of Guelph, was elected a member of the Endowment Association.

ELECTRIC LIGHT.—Last evening the Ball Electric Light Company had their lights running for the first time on the street and in stores of subscribers, and every brilliant appearance was the result which gave evidence of the electric light being a great improvement on the gas so far as lighting power is concerned. From eight to nine o'clock Wyndham street was crowded with sightseers who were loud in their praise of the light. The two lights on St. George's Square lighted up the street a considerable distance, and show with such brilliancy that small print could be read without difficulty at a considerable distance away. A number of the dry goods and other stores had their goods shown off with great effect. The expressions of the vast mass of people were that it was the light for the times. About 9 o'clock the lights were suddenly extinguished and several of the places crowded with people were left in total darkness. Taken altogether the exhibition display last evening was a success.

A SAD CASE OF DROWNING.—Mr. R. Rodger, mason, Arkell, met with a sad affliction yesterday morning through the death of his daughter Joan, aged 16 years, by drowning. About a year ago the young girl was affected with a common trouble which somewhat affected her mind, a physician was consulted, who prescribed for her and confidently expressed the opinion that she would be all right after a time. Afterwards she became better and continued in excellent health and spirits up to Tuesday night. On Wednesday morning all the family were away from home with the exception of an elder sister and a little brother. About nine o'clock Joan picked up a pail and said that she was going to the well for water. About an hour afterwards the elder Miss Rodger became uneasy and wonderingly asked her little brother what had become of Joan that she was staying away so long. The little lad replied that he had seen her go towards a neighbor's and that she had no doubt remained there. When she did not come home for dinner the sister again became uneasy and made inquiries in the neighborhood regarding her missing sister, and in her search met two of her younger brothers on their way home from school, to whom she explained the circumstances of her disappearance. They at once set out on the search and returned about five o'clock with the sad intelligence that they had found their sister lying drowned in a pond of water a short distance from the house. She was lying in about eighteen inches of water, with her head resting on her hand, her body being only partially covered with water. From the position in which the body was found, and the undisturbed state of the bed of the pool, it was evident that she had never made a struggle. The oldest son who works the farm was apprised of the occurrence on his way home with a load of seed grain and immediately drove for his father, who was building the foundation of a house for Mr. Wm. Herbert, about three miles and a half away. The blow fell on Mr. Rodger more heavily from the fact that Mrs. Rodger had left home on Monday to the bedside of her mother, Mrs. Aiken, of Nichol, who is supposed to be dying. After taking his father home the young man at once set out to bring his mother home, and arrived with her in Guelph early this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Rodger and their family have the sympathy of many friends in their trying affliction.

THE hotel-keepers deny that they are to close up their stables on Saturday.

MESSRS. HUGH WALKER & Son have received a shipment of fresh mackerel.

THE trees will be in leaf considerably earlier than last year. Many of them are clothed in foliage already.

MR. JAMES RITCHIE, foreman of the corporation hands has teams busily engaged taking away the winter's refuse accumulated on Wyndham street.

MR. G. L. PATERSON, Owen Sound, owner of the City Hotel is in the City to-day, in connection with selling that establishment.

THE GROWTH OF GALT.—The total assessment for Galt this year is $1,539,650, being an increase of $85,510 over last year. The population this year is given at 6,314, being an increase of 508 over last year. The school population is—between 5 and 6, 1,546; between 10 and 21, 615; between 7 and 13, 915.

SPEED ROLLER RINK.—The Bell Organ Co. Band will give their last concert to-night under the present management. Every skater should be present and indulge in the last "skate." There will be a mile race between Jos. Brandon, R. Fields and J. Bunyan. These men are evenly matched, and a close race may be anticipated. A boys race, distance one mile, will also take place.

SALE AT THE ROYAL.—Mr. P. Spragge, auctioneer, was to-day and yesterday engaged selling off the furniture and everything in connection with the Royal Hotel, belonging to Messrs. Bookless & Galer. The sale will be continued again to-morrow, when bar-room stock and fixtures, and other articles not disposed of will be sold. It is the intention of both the proprietors to leave the city, but they have not as yet decided what line of business they will pursue.

ARBOR DAY.—It will be noticed elsewhere in these columns that Saturday, 1st May, has been proclaimed Arbor Day for the city. Although the day will not be observed as a public holiday citizens should bear the fact in mind, and endeavor to plant at least one tree each where it is required. Time spent in planting trees not only contributes to the appearance of the place, but it is a good investment, because nothing tends in a greater degree to the improvement of property or does more to increase its value for the outlay. The work done on Arbor Day will give an appreciable return in a few years. The trees can be obtained for about ten cents each, which is only a trifling sum. By all means plant a tree on the 1st of May.

COCK FIGHTERS IN COURT.—W. J. Sparkman and James Garvin appeared in the Police Court this morning to answer a charge preferred by Officer Kelly of cock fighting on the night of Tuesday 20th inst. The birds engaged on that occasion did not belong to Guelph, one being brought from Toronto and the other from London. The fight took place in a Grand Trunk car at the freight yards. Mr. A. H. Macdonald appeared on behalf of the defendants, but his intervention was not very much required as they pleaded guilty. Police Magistrate Saunders thereupon imposed a well deserved penalty of $10 and costs on each defendant, the costs against each amounting to $6.05. Thus the treasury is richer by $32 10. Other prosecutions may follow if sufficient evidence can be obtained to convict those who were present at the fight besides the two fined this morning. No doubt this action will have the effect of frightening those who have indulged in this brutal sport for some time past and it is hoped will prevent further cock fighting exhibitions. It is well for some of the high-toned young men who frequently participate in this sport that they did not happen to get caught this time, and they and others should be warned in time. Another thing in connection with the case which is worthy of mention is that one of the parties accused interviewed the Police Magistrate this morning and intimated that some his (Mr. Saunders') friends would be implicated in the case if it went on, his son being one. This was a contemptible piece of business, and was tantamount to bribing the Police Magistrate. In the open Court His Worship took occasion to refer to the matter, and denied that his son had been present at this fight. If his son was present at any such disgraceful and unlawful proceedings and brought up before him he would receive no more leniency at his hands than any one else. Mr. Saunders deserves credit for bringing this occurrence up in Court, which goes to show that no matter how his private interests are concerned, they in no way interfere with his dispensation of justice. The proceeding was a direct insult to the Magistrate and was justly resented.

GUELPH CITY BAND.—For some years past the City Band has received $200 a year from the City Council, towards maintaining their organization in a state of efficiency. As the band intend to petition this year for a slight increase in this grant they have issued a circular in which is detailed at some length the history of the institution. Few, if any, in the city would have credited the statement that in the past two and a quarter years the expenses made up of the purchase of new instruments, bandmaster's salary, rent, light, fuel, music &c., have amounted to over $3,600, but the facts and figures are there, and towards which the city grant was $450. By dint of hard, earnest and systematic work, and an amount of enterprise and pluck that would put to shame many more pretentious organizations, all this burden has been paid in full and no member thereof has received any remuneration for his services during this period. As the band desire to procure a new uniform this year, over and above their annual running expenses of $600, and some means of raising money open to them in the past are now shut off, it would be but fair on the part of the council to increase the grant, the band having benefitted the city in many ways, and giving value for the grant, by playing publicly during the summer months, and if they should see their way clear to do so, they would have the cordial support of the ratepayers at large.

Base Ball Notes.

The Guelphs go to Hamilton on Saturday to play with the crack club of that city.

The Maple Leaf ground was rolled yesterday and is now in condition to play on. Mr. Sleeman has also cut a gate in the left field fence to allow fielders to go after the ball on home runs made. We hope by the Maple Leaf players.

Messrs. Nesbit and Malone, counsels respectively for the Hamilton and Toronto Baseball Association, are in the city working on the pending suit.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

Lord Lorne's Opinion of American Approval of Gladstone's Schemes.

LONDON, April 27.—The World says that Parnell and his friends are so confident of success that they have already begun to constitute a Ministry.

The Marquis of Lorne has written a letter to the Times, in which he says it is possible that over much weight is attached to the approval expressed by public bodies in America and Canada of Gladstone's Bills. It is always politic for the two political parties in America to enlist Irish sympathy.

The O'Donoghue publishes a letter, in which he denounces Mr. Gladstone's insidious proposals, which, if adopted, will result in seriously diminishing the strength, prosperity and glory of England, and in absolutely rending the Irish social system.

LONDON, April 28.—Jesse Collings, the unseated Liberal member for Ipswich, publishes a second attack on Mr. Gladstone's Home Rule. Mr. Collings now declares the scheme is but a "thinly veiled measure of separation."

Michael Davitt spoke at Birmingham last night. He said Mr. Chamberlain had tried to justify his attitude towards the Irish Bills by a most inconsistent argument and he quoted a passage from a speech made by Mr. Chamberlain at Sheffield, in which the latter favored Mr. Butt's scheme and the removal of the Irish representatives from Westminster.

Caledonian Society.

The following are the names of the officers elected on Tuesday night:—Chief, Ald. Bruce; 1st Chieftain, Wm. Gibson; 2nd Chieftain, John Gore; 3rd Chieftain, R. Brown; 4th Chieftain, A. Alexander; Secretary Treasurer, A. Little. Committee, James Miller, A. Robertson, Robt. Mitchell, H. K. Maitland, Wm. Ross, A. J. Little, Dr. Cowan, Geo. Anderson, and W. Stewart. Chaplains, Rev Dr. Wardrope, and Rev. J. C. Smith. Bard, Thomas Laidlaw. Physician, Dr. Cowan. The meeting was then adjourned until the 4th of May at the same place, to make preparations for the coming games.

Again In Trouble.

MONTREAL, April 28.—The Toronto Mail is in trouble again. In its issue of April 26th the Mail published a statement from its Montreal correspondent to the effect that the Customs officials had made seizures of goods in the stores of Messrs. J. Sadlier and J. B. Rolland and Sons. As a result of this report each of the firms have entered an action for $200,000 damages against the Mail Printing Company. Both firms are in possession of letters from Mr. O'Hara, Deputy Collector here, stating that there was no seizures made nor cause to make any. The firms claim that the report of the Mail will hurt them much, as they have many customers in Ontario.

Great destitution prevails among the poor in the lately inundated districts of Montreal.

Winnipeg is erecting a monument in memory of her volunteers who fell last spring, which will cost $5,000.

The death in Melbourne, Australia, of Mr. T. S. Hellmuth, youngest son of the late Bishop Hellmuth, is announced.

Toronto City Council has appropriated $2,000 to obtain a partial survey to ascertain the practicability of procuring a pure water supply for the city from Bond Lake or Lake Simcoe.

On Wednesday night a man named Gordon, a blacksmith from Montreal committed suicide in Toronto. It is supposed that he had been drinking heavily of late, and in a fit of delirium tremens took the chloroform that caused his death.

The case against Mr. and Mrs. D. R. Smart and their brother, G. A. Smart, accused of bringing stolen money into Canada, has been amicably settled at Montreal. They return $30,000 and are allowed to keep $15,000.

The stockmen of Alberta have organized an association to be known as the Canadian Northwest Stock Association. Each member has a vote for every 500 head of cattle in his herd.

An Ottawa despatch states that it is announced that though the American vessel seized last week for an infraction of the fishery regulations was released, it being the first offence, yet the law will be strictly enforced in all cases in the future.

BAPTIST UNION.

Work Done in Foreign Missions—Annual Meeting of the Union.

TORONTO, April 28.—The Directors of the Baptist Foreign Missionary Society met yesterday. Mr. Chas. Raymond, of Guelph, presided. The meeting was chiefly occupied with routine business. The Missionaries were all reported well and at their posts. Building was going on at Tuni and Cocbanda. The next missionary sent out will probably be a lady medico.

In the evening a banquet took place in McMaster Hall, at which interesting speeches were delivered.

The meeting of the Baptist Union commenced in the Jarvis street Church today at 9 a.m. After devotional exercises an address was given by the President, John Dryden, M. P. P. He said that all were connected with the Church should be done by each man to the best of his ability, and that a man should not merely do that which others did, but should try to excel them.

Committees were appointed as follows: Nomination—T. J. Claxton, J. Philipps, Rev. J. W. A. Stewart, C. A., Rev. Dr. Clarke. Arrangements — Revs. Dr. Thomas, J. Grant, E. A. Cook. Resolutions—Rev. E. W. Dawson, Rev. D. Hutchinson, Rev. J. H. Doolittle, D. Bentley, Rev. Joshua Denovan, Rev. A. G. Upham.

The visitors introduced were Rev. J. C. Shanks, M. A., of Glasgow, introduced by Rev. W. A. McGregor; Prof. Rae, of Michigan, now settled at St. George, introduced by Rev. Dr. Thomas; Rev. J. Kelly, Collingwood, by Rev. D. A. McGregor; Robert Fountain, of Valleyfield, by Rev. J. H. Doolittle.

The meeting adjourned till the afternoon.

The Chairman of Parks and Shade Trees has arranged with a farmer to have on the market 1st May, "Arbor day," 300 maple and bass wood trees, which will be sold at 10 cents each. d2

The Evening Mercury

THURSDAY EVE'G APRIL 29, 1886.

It is announced that Chesley is to be honored with a visit from the Hon. Edward Blake, early in June next. Hon. O. Mowat and Sir Richard Cartwright are also likely to be present.

THE Quebec Government had a deficit of $279,702.59 on the transactions of last year, after all the praise bestowed upon their management by the Tory papers of that Province.

THE punishment for the third offence of selling liquor without license under the Scott Act is imprisonment not exceeding two months. By a printer's error in the article in this column yesterday it was made to appear not less than two months.

THE Prince of Wales will inspect the Colonial Exhibition on Saturday. Canada's display will, it is thought, be very much behind the others on the opening day in consequence of the non-arrival of a large proportion of the exhibits, which have been delayed at Halifax.

Much indignation has been created throughout Newfoundland by the reported resolve of the English Government to carry out the provisions of the agreement with France on the rights of the latter on the West Coast. The Legislature of Newfoundland has already refused to sanction the arrangement, and the whole population are considerably incensed at the action of Great Britain.

ALMOST a year has passed since the people of New York announced that a monument would be erected in that city to the memory of General Grant, which would cost about $1,000,000. People outside of New York are now enabled to laugh at the ambitious design, as so far the amount collected only amounts to $120,648, at which sum it seems likely to stick for some time.

"WHEN a strike of a dozen persons can throw 150 out of employment, as happened in this city not long ago, or a strike of 80 dyers can deprive 1,000 other mill hands of their means of making a living—when such things happen, as they are now occurring in various parts of the country, with others of equal hardship—it is not difficult to understand why General Master Workman Powderly gives such earnest and firm counsel against strikes," remarks the Philadelphia Ledger.

THE Manitoba Local Legislature has passed a law governing the fees to be paid to the Provinces and to the municipalities by the liquor dealers, which appears to be a pattern from the Act passed at the last session of the Ontario Legislature. It provides that the fees demanded by municipalities for licenses shall not exceed the license fees payable to Government. Restaurant licenses in cities are to pay the Government $250. Another 250 added for the municipality and the license will be $500. Wholesale licenses in towns and cities will be $200 to the Government and another $200 added for the muncipality will make them $400. In the same manner, half the amount being for the Government and half for the municipality, hotel licenses in cities will be $300, shop licenses $300.

IT was a poor and heartless retaliation which the captain of a New England fishing schooner made in refusing to take on board a Canadian crew whose vessel was burnt because he was prevented from shipping his crew at a Canadian port. As luck would have it, after drifting about in the small boats for many hours the unfortunate fishermen were rescued by a Halifax fishing schooner. The incident shows the bitterness which now exists between the fishermen of the two countries under the present strained relations. Next time it may be a New England crew who are placed at the mercy of a Canadian captain, and it is to be hoped that in such a case a more humane spirit will be shown. Where life is imperilled revenge should be forgotten, especially as the origin of the difficulty does not rest with the fishermen, but with the respective Governments of Canada and the United States.

THE London Advertiser learns on what seems to be very good authority that it is the intention of the Prime Minister to bring on the elections as soon as possible after the House rises. Ministers are greatly embarrassed by the financial condition of the country, and the outlook is that matters are not likely to improve. The Ministry admit that they have no power to give to the Territories representation in the Federal Parliament, and they are accordingly about to do what the Opposition in former sessions urged them to do—apply to the Imperial Parliament for power to give the Northwest Territories representation in the Canadian House of Commons. But it would seem Ministers are not disposed to wait until the authority is conferred. They propose during the present session to provide for the representation of the Territories in Parliament, although it is in advance of authority to do so. If Parliament is to sit again, there is no reason for attempting to push this proposition through Parliament this session. The Imperial Parliament will legislate on it as soon as invited, and Parliament could provide for representation of the Territories at its next session. But the proposal of the Government would seem to indicate that there is not to be another session before the elections, so it becomes necessary now to legislate.

This is to certify that I have used McGregor's Speedy Cure for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and do honestly say that if it cost me one hundred dollars ($100.00) a bottle I would not be without it, as it has done me more good than all the medicines I ever used, and I feel like a new man.—Yours truly, Alex Steel, Carleton Place, Ont. This medicine is for sale at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at Thos. S. Petrie's Drug Store.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 28.

In the House of Commons Mr. Cook obtained an order for the Orders in-Council respecting the Trent Valley Canal after a considerable discussion.

Mr. Beaty introduced a Bill allowing counties where the Scott Act has not been adopted, to vote on a proposal for the prohibition of the same spirits.

Mr. McMullen moved for a return showing the names of the persons on the superannuated list of retired civil servants.

After recess the House made some progress in Committee on Mr. Edgar's Bill giving a preference for three months' salary to employees of insolvent companies.

Mr. Mulock's Bill amending the Animal Contagious Diseases' Act, was read a third time, an amendment moved by Mr. White (Renfrew) to bring horses under the provisions of the Act having been defeated by 99 to 33.

The Bill of Mr. Robertson (Hamilton) to allow agnostics to testify in criminal cases, was amended to cover certain civil cases also and read a third time, after a motion by Mr. Desjardines to give it a six months' hoist had been voted down by 59 yeas to 68 nays.

The House adjourned at 10:30 p. m.

Our advertisements are written not for sensational effect, but to put before the public in statements that bear the test, the pleasure and advantage to be derived in doing business at our establishment. Our advertising increases our circle of acquaintances. Our treatment of customers increases our circle of friends.

IN OUR

Silk and Dress Goods Department

The general opinion is that in novelty of design and richness of fabric, the goods are such as are shown in the best houses of New York. Then we have all the newest styles of Trimmings to match every shade of goods, which makes it a real pleasure for ladies to make selections for their toilets. In Dressmaking our patrons are assured of getting the most graceful and stylish garments, made by one of the best cutters and fitters in Ontario.

IN OUR

MILLINERY AND MANTLE ROOMS

We feel assured in saying that no lady who has had the opportunity to make comparison of the several establishments in the city, will admit, that for variety, elegance, taste and ability displayed in the making, quantity and value, there is anything that will at all compare with ours. The high and well merited reputation of our Manager, Miss Manny, the extent of our purchases, and the special attention we pay to this Department, are winning as hosts of new customers, and we cordially invite all ladies who are not already patrons, to give us a trial.

So much for Dressmaking and Millinery. Just let us branch off for a few words about

LACE CURTAINS.

Our Importations directly from Headquarters are very large. We show designs not to be found elsewhere, and our prices are very low. Beautiful goods in Nottingham Lace Curtains, same lengths, from $1.50 to $7.50 per pair.

Madras Lace Curtains, very rich and elegant, from $6.50 to $9.50 per pair.

Square lealing, pleasant treatment. Terms cash.

E. R. Bollert,

27 Lower Wyndham Street, Guelph, Ontario.

"OUR FIGURES ARE REDUCED."

New Goods, Low Prices.

We work a system of close margins, buy and sell for cash, every article good, reduced in price to the lowest point of profit compatible with success. We do not believe in the old exploded dodge, making our customers believe that we are selling goods below cost price, nor are we giving some articles away for nothing in order to sell others. Our theory and practice are that small profits yield large sales, and give us steady trade and contented customers. Our stock of Spring and Summer goods complete. We invite the ladies to see our $2.00 Gem Parlor Boot, which cannot be surpassed in price or quality. Leading Boot and Shoe Store.

A Few Facts Worth Knowing

in regard to

THE GOLDEN LION.

1st—We are the only direct importers in Guelph,
2nd—We are the only Firm of any importance having no rent to pay.
3rd—We buy entirely for cash.
4th—We sell entirely for cash.
5th—We deliberately threw up a credit trade of $30,000 and are now doing a larger cash trade than we then did of cash and credit combined.
6th—Our expenses are less than any house in the city doing one half the business.
With these advantages we must and do undersell all others.

WE SHOW

A Beautiful range of Black French Dress Goods.
Our Silks and Satins are unparalleled.
In Millinery and Mantles we excell.

We hold a big range of Silk and Satin Dolmans and Jackets in Plain and Brocade.

MISS MARRIOTT, our Milliner, although young in years, is old in experience and having youth on her side, she naturally adapts herself more readily to the changing styles.

Our Dressmaking Department under MISS TODD has assumed such proportions as we never dreamed of before.

CLOTHING.

We strongly advise young men who want Suits made by MR. McKENZIE for the 24th May, to leave their orders at once, as we are so busy in this department that it is almost impossible to get the work out.

Our Ready-Made Cutter is now engaged in getting out 1,000 Suits which we will be able to sell at $3.95 each.

CHAPTER XXV.

DEEPENING SHADOWS.

Helen said nothing about it, though it was easy to see that she thought of little else, and Mr. Longworthy carrying out what he had said to his wife, did not urge any decisive step upon her. Perhaps it would have been better if he had done. Though he did not know it, it was cruel kindness to leave Helen to herself just now. She would not confess her weakness to her friends, but she would have been inexpressibly grateful o Mr. Longworthy if he would have taken the matter into his own hands and have decided for her.

She was in fact sorely tossed. To begin with, she was not well. The first shock caused by seeing the report of her husband's wedding, coming as it did when she was hardly strong enough to take in the simplest thing, had upset and unhinged her more than any one, even Dr. Holme, dreamed of. Then there was the constant wearing anxiety, the fits of feverish hope which alternated with fits of morbid depression and hopelessness—the natural longing for her home and her husband which she dared not indulge for fear it should never be fulfilled. All these things told on her nerves and her health, and she suffered more perhaps because she exerted herself to conceal it. Partly by natural strength of will and partly by the help she got from Mr. Longworthy she succeeded in concealing from her friends the fact that instead of regaining her natural health and spirits she was growing weaker and less able to come to the decision required of her.

Nor was this all. There was another cause for hesitation, and one which had only lately arisen, being in fact a result of her uns rung nerves. She knew her fear was groundless, but the knowledge was not strong enough to overcome the morbid, nervous dread.

She was haunted by a constant fear of going out of her mind, of losing her memory again. She knew it was only because she was not well that she thought of it at all; but the thought and fear were there. Secretly she tested her memory in every way; she learned music and passages from books by heart; she refused to make a memorandum of anything. Day by day she proved that her memory was unimpaired, and yet she could not shake off the fear which oppressed her. She knew she was in no fit state to consider the question which was before her, and she tried to put it out of her mind for the time, but in vain. She could not help thinking of it, and considering it under the most fantastic lights, which frightened her and seemed a proof that her fears were well founded. Then she shrugged her shoulders saying to herself—

"I must wait and see. It is of no use making a disturbance and turning Alice out, if after all I have to be shut up in a lunatic asylum."

In such a mood as this she strolled out one day. In the misery of her thoughts she had forgotten her promise to Mr. Longworthy that she would not be alone when she felt like that. She put on her hat, wrapped her fur cloak around her and set out for a walk. She walked for some time before discovering that she was too tired to walk any further, and that she must rest before going back.

She had walked along at haphazard, almost without knowing where she had got to, but when she paused and looked round she saw she had reached a little wood which skirted the road for a short distance. Miller's Gate was not a thickly wooded place, and these small stunted trees looked more insignificant than ever in their winter nakedness. Against one of these trees Helen leaned, and looked straight before her. The road along which she had come had been ascending; this little wood stood at the top of the rise, and from where she stood she looked down into the valley. It was rather late in the afternoon and growing misty—too misty to see the lights in the houses scattered up and down. She could no longer see the hills on the other side of the valley, and it needed only a very slight effort to imagine that she was looking over the sea. Instinctively her thoughts turned to Osmotherley; the dim expanse of mist, with the pale red lines of the winter sunset, became the bay with the sun setting at the other side. She looked and looked, her heart yearned to her home, never had she wanted Percival as she did at this moment. She stretched out her arms to the West, and through the thin, crisp winter air broke an exceeding bitter cry.

She stood there with a look on her face of one who carries a heavy burden, and finds the way grows deeper and the burden heavier the further she advances. At last a long sigh broke from her lips, her arms fell down to her sides, for there came no answer out of the stillness; only a mocking echo which threw her own words back to her.

No, she was wrong; an answer did come. Even as her arms fell and her head sank, a step came along the road, a man's figure paused before her, and the doctor's voice said—

"Mrs. Moore, is that you?"

Instinctively she drew herself upright, and her voice sounded very much as usual as she replied—

"Yes, it is I."

"What are you doing here, so late, by yourself?"

"I had been walking and stopped to rest a minute. It is not really late, you know, only the days are so short now."

She felt too tired and depressed even to resent the doctor's masterful tone, of which at any other time she would have expressed her instant disapproval.

"If you are sufficiently rested," he went on, "perhaps you will favor me with your company home."

"Where have you been?" she asked, as she moved on by his side. "It is seldom I see you walking."

"I was called out suddenly, and as the case was not urgent, and my horse had been out all day, I preferred to walk. I I am sorry now that I did."

"Why."

"Because if I had been riding I could have given up my horse to you; you are not fit to walk, and at foot pace you would have managed very well as far as the rectory."

"You are very thoughtful; but, if you had been riding, you would probably have passed either earlier or later, and so we should not have met at all."

He said nothing, and they walked for some little time in silence. At last he spoke again, with both hesitation and constraint—

"I ought to tell you, Mrs. Moore, that I overheard what you said just now. Sound is carried far in this atmosphere."

As it was nearly dark he did not see the expression which crossed her face, but she said nothing, and presently he spoke again, and again with visible effort—

"I am afraid you have some great trouble."

"Yes, a very great trouble."

"You could not tell it to me?"

"No, it is not a trouble of which I can speak to people."

"You have told the rector," he said jealously.

"How do you know?"

"He told me."

"He did not tell you, I suppose, what it was?"

"Certainly not."

"I owed it to him as his guest," she replied, "and I also wanted his advice and help."

"My advice and help would, of course, be of no use to you," he said bitterly.

"I do not think they would."

They walked on in silence.

Uuprecedented.

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show room of Messrs. Clarrk & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes, fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

injudicious to plant potatoes in the ne field the following year after a visi- ion of the "rot," inasmuch as the ound may retain the germs of the dis- se.

7. Avoid planting upon heavy clay soil, s prefer a light and dry soil. This pre- nts the fewest conditions suitable for the owth of the fungus.

The nature of our climate is not so vorable for the development of this in- rious fungus as that of Britain; yet as are sometimes visited by it, and al- ough scarcely viewed as a scourge, it is ll that we should remember its nature d habits and always be ready to guard ainst failure if it appears. As last sum- r was favorable for its propagation, eat care should be exercised in the selec- n of seed this spring.

THE POTATO ROT.

s Cause and Remedies Discussed by Prof. Panton.

At the request of the Ontario Depart- ent of Agriculture J. Hoyes Panton, M. ., Professor of natural history at the gricultural College has prepared the ollowing paper on the potato rot, its causes and remedies. A disease which destroyed a large portion of one of the staple foods of the people in Ontario and lsewhere last year, and which is likely to appear again unless wise precautions are taken—possibly in spite of every precaution,—deserves the most careful study that can be given to it. The best information and advice that science affords should be presented to our agriculturists for their guidance and therefore the suggestions which Prof. Panton offers as the result of investigation will possess a great deal of interest for the country and especially for farmers. Here is the paper:

The use of the microscope in the fields of scientific research has revealed much that is of importance to man. Many forms of disease, about whose origin little was known, have had much light shed upon them since this instrument was employed in their study, both among animals and plants. We find now that man is constantly lashed by invisible foes—some attacking himself and others the food which he eats. During the past summer and fall a striking example of this occurred in the prevalence of the so-called "potato-rot," which has proved a great loss throughout the Province and in many parts of the United States. In the bulletin issued in November from the Bureau of Industries, we learn that the "rot" prevailed through the whole southern belt of the Province. In many cases one-half to three-fourths of the crop was destroyed, and in some it was not worth digging. With such disaster around us, the questions are naturally suggested, What is the cause of the "rot"? and, What remedies can be adopted?

Cause—This disease has received a great deal of attention from botanists since the days when it became a scourge in Ireland and other parts of the British Isles, and is now conceded to be the result of a minute fungus called Phytophthora infestans. This attacks all parts of the plant—leaf, stem and tubers. By those ignorant of the life history of this tiny parasitic plant little attention is paid to its appearance on the tops, and no alarm is experienced until the potatoes are affected. But being very contagious, its presence on the leaves should become a serious matter, especially when we remember that it spreads with great rapidity. It is usually indicated by the tops presenting a blotched, brownish, spotted, dead appearance. A close examination of the potatoes showing this will discover innumerable slender stems growing up out of the surface of the leaves and stems of the affected plants. These branch and swell out at the ends into pear-shaped minute bodies (spores), which are produced by millions When ripe they separate from the stem and being exceedingly light pass into the atmosphere, where they are wafted about many of them finally reaching the ground or settling upon plants. Under favourable conditions of moisture and heat the contents of a microscopic spore may push out a long minute tube, which can penetrate into any part of the potato plant and give rise to the fungus; or may separate into several distinct portions (swarm spores) which burst through the spore wall and become the sources of the parasitic plant. The mature plant which lives in the tops and tubers is very minute, and can be seen only by the aid of the microscope. It consists of many colourless, branching, thread-like structures. These penetrate the tissues of the potato and feed upon the juices, so that it soon weakens and begins to waste away. From the thread like structures tiny stalks arise, assuming beautiful plant like forms and bearing upon their branches the spores already referred to. They live but a short time, but the thread-like structure is perennial and hardy, and from fragments of it new fungi may arise. It is said by some that another kind of spore is produced which can winter, and thus give rise to the organism in another season. These are the so-called resting spores, apparently for the purpose of keeping the species over certain periods, while the spores already considered are produced rapidly so as to hasten the spread of the fungus under favourable conditions. This minute microscopic plant is certainly a low form of vegetable life, incapable of manufacturing food from the mineral kingdom, but fastening upon other plants and feeding upon their juices. A wet season supplies conditions well adapted for its development, and hence we find the "rot" associated with such weather. There is no doubt that many spores are always more or less present, but they are prevented from being a source of trouble because the weather is not suited for their growth.

The latest remedy for coughs, colds, croup whooping cough, bronchitis, etc., is McGregor's Lung Compound. There is no remedy in existence containing any one of the active ingredients composing McGregor's Lung Compound, so do not say you have taken everything until you have tried this for your cold or cough, and your opinion will be the same as all who have used it, viz., that it is the best. Sold in 50c and $1.00 bottles by T. S. Petrie, Druggist.

Edward O'Brien, of Hamilton, a gentleman with a flowing beard, attempted to force Mrs. McAuley off his place. Mrs. M. resented his impertinence, and grabbing him by the beard danced him round at a lively rate, until the handful of whiskers came out by the roots. Then she had O'Brien arrested for assault and fined $2 and costs.

of strikes organized by a society whose ramifications extend everywhere and count as its membership laboring men of every kind. Having learned that delegates of a society known as the Knights of Labor had endeavoured to recruit members in some parts of this Province we believe it our duty, dear brethren, to place you on your guard against it, and please remark that we do not speak in our own names, but in that of the Holy See, whose advice we have asked. In fact during the month of October, 1883, we sent to Rome an authentic copy of the rules and constitutions of the above society, which copy had been handed to us by one of its members, who wished to find out what right or wrong there was in it. Almost one year later the Congregation of the Holy Office, after having examined these constitutions with all the necessary precautions in such a case, sent us the following answer, which should be for you an absolute rule of conduct, and keep you away from the society of the Knights of Labor.

Following is a translation:

On account of the principles, organization and statutes of the Knights of Labor Association that association is to be relegated among those which are prohibited by the Holy See, in accordance with the instruction of this Supreme Congregation given on May 10, 1884.

We do not ignore, dear brethren, that to elude this direct condemnation it was believed that certain changes or alterations in the constitution would suffice. In connection with this we might remark two things:

1. That the judgment being based on the principles, organization and statutes of the Society, everything would have to be altered so as not to be reached by the condemnation.

2. That the Holy See is the only competent judge to decide whether the changes made are apt to render this Society acceptable for children of the church.

While waiting for this decision a Catholic must consider the Society as a forbidden one. The Congregation of the Holy Office continues to exhort the Bishops to use against this Society and all similar ones the means explained in the instruction of the 10th of May, 1884, that is to say to look upon as guilty of grievious sin and unworthy of absolution, all those who persist to retain in it. Therefore, adopt as a general rule, dear brethren, to never enlist yourselves in the Society, especially when this is proposed by a stranger before you have taken your pastor's advice. This will avert from you many serious difficulties, sometimes dangers for your life and fortune. Beware of it all the more for the reason that the Society is covered with the veil of an honest object, which might impose on you very easily. Under the pretext of protecting poor workingmen against the rich and powerful who would oppress them, the heads and instigators of this Society seek to get rich and raise themselves in the world at the expense of these unfortunate and oftentimes too credulous workingmen. They sound very high the honey-coated words of "mutual protection and charity," so as to retain their victims in a continual agitation, and to foment troubles, disorder and injustice.

Then there results for the workingmen two great misfortunes. First, they expose themselves to lose their faith, their good customs and every sentiment of honesty and justice in associating themselves with strangers who unfortunately show themselves very cunning in communicating to them their own perversity.

Then, we have witnessed here, as in France, England and the United States the sad result of these conspiracies against the public tranquility. The poor working men were left with nothing less than deep misery, a total ruin of the industries which gave them daily bread and, after, the rigor of human justice has added to it exemplary punishments.

Believe it well, dear brethren, when your pastors and confessors endeavor to draw you away from these Societies, they prove themselves your sincere and true friends. You would be very blind should you despise their advice to listen to strangers and unknown persons who smile upon you so as to rob you afterwards, and who give you all sorts of seductive promises so as to precipitate you in an abyss when they take good care not to aid you to come out.

Therefore, and the Holy Name of God being invoked, we order wha follows:

1. That the present mandament shall be read in all the Churches and Chapels the first Sunday after its reception.

2. After its readings a Pater and an Ave will be recited for the conversion of all those who have had the misfortune to enter a society prohibited by the Church.

Given at Quebec. (Signed)
E. A., Archbishop of Quebec.

Remedies.—The "rot" usually appears about the first two weeks in August, and if the weather is favorable its spread is very rapid, for as soon as the thread-like structure which arises from the spore is developed it immediately becomes spore-bearing. Hence the importance of examining the plants for the appearance of the brownish spots that indicate the presence of the fungus.

1. As soon as discovered dig the potatoes. Delay will allow it to spread to the stems, and thence to the tubers. If it reaches these and damp weather comes, "rot" will certainly appear.

2. After digging, the potatoes should be put in a cool, dry place, thus surrounding them with conditions unfavorable for the growth of the fungus, if any happens to be upon them.

3. Growing early varieties is worthy of consideration, so that they may mature before the season arrives when this parasite is likely to affect the crop.

4. All potato stalks in affected lands should be gathered and burned, so as to destroy millions of spores which may be upon them.

5. Use none but good seed. If at all affected reject them; and plant in well-drained land. If the potatoes to be used are taken from cellars where affected ones are kept, they are likely to have microscopic spores on them and escape notice. It would be best to get seed from unaffected districts.

6. It is unnecessary to say that it would

THE BASEBALL SUIT.

History of the Case—Decision Again Postponed.

Baseball men made themselves very conspicuous on sporting fields in Canada last year, their games were played harmoniously on the whole, and the championship pennant awarded without any serious trouble; but this year the International League is already causing dissension in the Canadian clubs, and the aid of the law has been invoked to do justice between them. Mr. George Sleeman, of Guelph, as is now pretty generally known has brought action against the Toronto Baseball Association and the Clipper Baseball Club, of Hamilton, asking for an injunction to restrain the defendants from entering into or carrying on any arrangement with the International Baseball League or any other baseball league which would interfere with or prevent the carrying out by the defendants of their obligations to the Maple Leaf Baseball Club, of Guelph, and the Canadian Baseball League, or which would prevent the defendants from playing a series of championship games as members of the Canadian Baseball League for the season of 1886, and to prevent the defendants from withdrawing from the Canadian League. The Canadian Baseball League was formed in December, 1885, by four clubs, viz.,—the Toronto Baseball Association, the Maple Leaf Baseball Club of Guelph, the Clipper Baseball Club of Hamilton, and the London Baseball Club, and a constitution was then adopted. George Sleeman, of Guelph, was appointed President. Mr. Sleeman is also President of the Maple Leaf Club. He contends that the four clubs forming the Canadian League agreed to play during the season of 1886 a series of championship games with each other in Toronto, Hamilton, Guelph and London, and that, relying on this, he and his club went to large expense in fitting up the club grounds in Guelph and engaging players for the season. The Toronto and Hamilton clubs subsequently joined or made arrangements with the International Baseball League of New York, and agreed to play championship matches with the clubs forming that league, and they signified their desire of withdrawing from the Canadian League. Mr. Sleeman contends that if this be allowed it will practically break up the Canadian League and will prevent the defendants from playing the series of matches with the Canadian clubs forming it, thus causing heavy loss to himself as well as the Maple Leaf Club. On Tuesday before Mr. Justice Proudfoot, Messrs. Lash, Q. C., Guthrie, Q. C., and Hoyles acting for him moved for an injunction to prevent this result. Mr. Malone for the Toronto Baseball Club, and Mr. J. W. Nesbitt for the Clippers asked for a postponement of the motion until Tuesday next, which was granted upon he defendants undertaking in the meantime to do nothing prejudicial to the plaintiff's interests. The case is creating intense interest in baseball circles, and the decision will be looked forward to eagerly, as it is the first case of the kind which has arisen in Canada. The result will have a material bearing upon the formation and position of all baseball leagues in the future.

Mr. Justice Proudfoot has delivered a judgment holding Mr. Henry O'Brien's letter in the Howland mayoralty case a contempt of court, but owing to certain circumstances the motion to commit was refused with costs against Mr. O'Brien.

MR. GLADSTONE's great speech contained 24,000 words

THE High Court of the Canadian Order of Foresters meets in Chatham on the 8th of June.

THE Rev. Dr. W. S. Griffin, of Guelph, will conduct the Quarterly services at the Methodist church, Fergus, next Sunday.

MR. WM. ANDERSON, of the Red Flag store, has been suddenly laid up with a severe illness. His many friends hope to see him about again in a few days.

OBSERVATION has convinced us that a cat can set more cubic feet of air in vibration to the cubic inch of cat than any other living creature on top of the earth.

MR. J. C. HARRISON, of Stratford, claims that he has discovered a certain cure for black knot on fruit trees. He is taking the necessary steps to have it patented.

ERIN Advocate:—The Tories of Guelph, according to the Herald, have been detected in an attempt to put a ram lamb on the voters list. The Reformers very properly had the matter laid over.

NOTHING can equal for pure exhilaration the experience of the amateur gardener when he steps on the hoe whilst the responsive handle implants a fervent kiss between his eyes.

THE Board of Managers of the Dominion Alliance have been considering the means to be taken for efficiently carrying out the Scott Act in places coming under its operation to-morrow.

JUDGE DREW, as Revising Officer for North Wellington, will hold a Court of Revision in Palmerston on May 15. On May 16 he will hold a court for the same purpose in the town hall there.

DAVID MCNELLY, of Esquesing, who was tried in Milton on a charge of indecent assault, was acquitted of the charge but fined for assault $10. Along with this he had to pay costs amounting to $44, and an additional bill of $4, making in all $58.

AN Anti-Scott Act man remarked today that even the elements were weeping bitterly over the advent of the Scott Act to-morrow. Some people look at it the other way, and say that nature is providing a copious supply of water to stand the extra drain of quenching parched throats.

"YES," said he to his neighbour across the fence, "the labouring men are in the right. It was time for them to rise against the tyranny of capital. Down with all tyrants, I say—" "John Henry!" shrieked a shrill voice from the kitchen, "are you going to hang out that clothes line and split that wood and draw that water, or shall I have to come out to you?" "Yes, Mirandy," he answered meekly, "I'm going right about it."

GOING TO THE STATES.—The Galt Reformer says:—While in conversation with young Ravennes, of Strasburg tragedy notoriety, at Berlin on Tuesday, he informed the writer that he purposed returning to the United States. The young man creates a very favorable impression upon all with whom he comes in contact, and is the hero of the hour at Berlin. He is the very reverse of murderous looking, and a number of gentlemen in Berlin are taking an interest in his welfare.

THE old-fashioned villanous practice of sweating or filling gold coin would appear to be not wholly cast aside. An examination of a handful of pieces will seldom fail to show that one or more of them have been shaved or worn at the milling edges. It probably would not be a difficult matter to scrape fifty cents worth of gold from a $20 piece without apparently damaging its current value. There is so very little gold put in circulation, especially the larger pieces, that there is very little lost by attrition.

THE DUDE'S DILEMMA.—"Yes, indeed, Miss Clara," continued Mr. La Dedah, giving an account of his travels, "I have been in great perils, don't you know. One time on the railway train out west, don't you know, we were stopped by the train robbahs, don't you know, and one fellow, a terrible brigand he was, you know, he put his pistol to me head, don't you know, an' he sai', 'Your money or your brains!' and 'pon me soul, Miss Clara, I had nothing for him."

A SOLOMON PETER HALE ISM.—St. Thomas Journal:—Rev. Solomon Peter Hale being in the city yesterday, Mr. S. O. Perry invited the rev. gentleman to accompany him for the purpose of receiving an introduction to a prominent specimen of his race. He was taken down and introduced to Disher's Dude. Solomon Peter took the automaton by the hand remarking; "Friend Steve, this gentleman represents the individuality of the corporosity of the human frailty and the congeniality and cosmopolitan character of the common philanthropic cogitations that peregrinate the pericraniums of Solomon Peter and Stephen O."

ANOTHER BOYCOTT FAILURE.—Another example of the failure of the boycott comes from the West. The editor of a weekly Wisconsin paper pitched into a local union and was ordered to be driven to the wall. After a period of six weeks a committee called upon him to see why he hadn't starved, and he explained: "I hadn't but 98 subscribers in the first place, and of these 97 were deadheads. The only live advertising was paid for in stomach bitters, and I had a six months' supply ahead. My railroad pass is good for eleven months to come, and my wife isn't used to but two meals a week. Gentlemen, let your old boycott howl!"

The Chairman of Parks and Shade Trees has arranged with a farmer to have on the market 1st May, "Arbor day," 300 maple and bass wood trees, which will be sold at 10 cents each. d2

TO NIGHT is the last for imbibing the ardent. Many a thirsty one will be looking in vain for his usual morning dram to-morrow.

BUSINESS is slack in the city to-day with the exception of stores licensed to sell liquor which are doing an exceptionally large business.

THIS morning, on account of the unpropitious state of the weather there was no produce offered on the market. Prices remain the same as usual.

A LARGE number of the black bottle brigade have laid in a big stock of the ardent to quench their thirst during the dry spell, when the Scott Act will be in force.

MR. WM. EDWARDS has repainted the brick residences which he lately purchased on Durham street and otherwise improved them, which now gives them a very handsome and attractive appearance.

THE rumor is afloat on the street to-day again that the hotel keepers will close their stables to-morrow. It is supposed there is verylitle foundation for the report although it is understood that the affair had been discussed.

ON Sunday, 9th May, Rev. Mr. Snider, of Hamilton, will preach anniversary sermons in Paisley Street Church, Guelph, and on the Monday evening following the children of the Sunday School will give their annual entertainment.

CAPT. CLARKE'S calisthenic class entertainment will take place in the Skating Rink this evening. Do not fail to take it in. You will be well repaid for your time and trouble. Two hundred and twenty-five performers will appear at one time.

ACCIDENT.—While Mr. J. C. McLean, of the Temple of Music, was overhauling a Smith & Wesson revolver to-day the cartridge was discharged from the cylinder without passing through the barrel, and lodged in the palm of his left hand. Singularly the wound did not bleed, and the doctor by probing was unable to find the ball. No serious result is apprehended on this account.

OBITUARY.—Mrs. John G. Wright, of Woodstock, and daughter of Mr. W. S. G. Knowles, died at her home early Thursday morning. She was well known in this city, more especially to the older residents. For years back she has been crippled by rheumatism and her patient suffering has now come to an end. She leaves a husband and four children.

ESSEX ST. CHURCH.—Last night a free tea was given to the Sunday School children attending this church by the Christian Temperance Union. Much more provision was provided than could be disposed of by the scholars and their friends. Mr. Spragge presided and called upon Rev. Wm. Savage to lead in prayer, after which he in a few well chosen remarks introduced the object of the meeting. Mr. Maddock spoke on the "Duty of Parents," and Rev. Mr. Savage delivered a short address upon "Don't trifle, but heed trifles." In this lessons of instruction to the young were especially offered. Miss Miller presided at the organ, and much credit is due to the ladies of the W. C. T. U. for the entertainment. This school has only lately been organized, and is doing a good work.

A STRANGE AFFAIR.—The Representative says that last week Dr. Jones, of Mount Forest, Coroner, received notice from County Attorney Peterson, to proceed to Harriston to hold an inquest on the body of a woman named Mrs. Jane Kennedy Bird, who died on the 24th of last Dec. The coroner proceeded to Harriston, being accompanied by Dr. Yeomans who was summoned to attend the inquest and make an examination of the body. It appears, according to the complaint which was made by Mr. and Mrs. Stafford, of Harriston, parents of the deceased, that their daughter had died under circumstances which suggested the existence of poison as a means of her death. On arriving at Harriston the coroner empannelled a jury, after which he and the jury in company with Dr. Yeomans and other medical men proceeded to the cemetery where the body was disinterred and identified by Mr. and Mrs. Stafford as being that of their late daughter. Dr. Yeomans then made a post mortem examination in the presence of the other medical men. The stomach, or viscera, of the deceased was removed and sealed up and forwarded to Mr. Ellis, of Toronto, government analyst, to be analyzed. The jury then adjourned.

THE SCOTT ACT.—The Chief of Police was interviewed this morning in respect to the enforcing of the Scott Act. He intimated that he was to make every endeavor to enforce the Act which he said would be hard to do, as pretty good evidence of an actual sale would have to be procured before it would be advisable to prosecute. Where we are handicapped is that liquor may be brought into a certain place and we are convinced that liquor is sold there, but we have to secure such reliable information as will justify us in procuring a search warrant and proving the sale; and it will be a hard thing to prove a sale unless through spies, for you can scarcely get an offender to swear against himself. I am determined, said the Chief, to do my utmost duty. It will be a hard one no doubt, because I will be placed between two fires—the temperance men will not think I have done enough, and the liquor sellers will think I have done too much. The provisions of the Act do not afford us sufficent scope to make anything like successful convictions. However, we are bound to enforce the law as far as lies in our power.

SMOKERS AND NON-SMOKERS.—In my last report, I alluded to the effect of smoking upon young men at college. A very considerable number of our students smoke, and not a few of them are confirmed in the habit. At present I shall not discuss the question, but simply state one or two facts regarding the record of smokers and non-smokers in this institution. In 1884 and 1885, 58 of our students received departmental honors; and 45 of these were non-smokers. Within the last five years, 67 have taken diplomas; and 48 of them have been non-smokers; 14 have won medals and 12 of them have been non-smokers and non-drinkers.—From the President's Report, Ontario Agricultural College.

Wilkinson's Mills, at Beeston, Nottinghamshire, with many adjoining houses, have been burned. Loss, $750,000. One thousand persons are deprived of employment.

Lord Wolverton, the English Postmaster-General, has prepared a scheme which will come into force on the 1st prox, whereby a letter can be insured for a small fee, which will entitle the sender to compensation in the event of the letter being lost.

The Emperor William has sent the Pope a costly gold cross mounted with jewels as a souvenir of German gratitude for the friendly offices rendered by His Holiness in arbitrating the dispute between Germany and Spain over their respective claims to the Caroline Islands.

SOCIAL.—Last night a very enjoyable social entertainment was held in the Orange Hall, under the auspices of L. O. L. No. 133. There was a good attendance, W. Bro. John Smith in the chair. Songs were given by Mrs. Cross, Mrs. Sweetnam, Mrs. Noble, Bros. Thompson and Marriott, readings by Mrs. Bish and good addresses by Bros. Clarke and Sweetnam. The programme was very creditably rendered and a pleasant and profitable evening spent.

The Evening Mercury

FRIDAY EVE'G APRIL 30, 1886.

THE bill for the adoption of the Torrens system of land transfer in the Northwest, has passed a special parliamentary committee appointed to consider it. This insures its passage through Parliament.

According to the Ottawa correspondent of the Montreal Witness there is not a man on the Tory side of the House who can effectually lead the House when Sir John Macdonald is absent. This, remarks the Hamilton Times, is one good reason why the majority of the party are always so ugly in temper when any one suggests, as some Conservative papers have lately been doing, that Macdonald must soon stand from under, and that a successor to him will have to be appointed out of the beggarly array of material now on the front Tory benches.

THE election for a local member for the County of Vercheres, in Quebec, takes place next week. Mr. Bernard, the unseated member, is the Liberal candidate, the Conservative candidate being Mr. Cartier, a cousin of Sir Geo. E. Cartier. The latter has refused to sign the Champ de Mars resolution, condemning the Federal Government for the execution of Riel. It will, therefore, be interesting to watch the contest, for the issue will be a pretty good indication of the feelings of the people on the Riel execution question. Thus the issue is as much one of Dominion as of Provincial politics. It will be a test case which will enable the people of the West to ascertain to what extent this Riel question affects the people of Quebec.

IT seems the Government has not yet done with giving good things to the Canadian Pacific Railway. The Minister of Finance has given notice that at an early day he will move the following:—"That it is expedient to provide that if, after the Canadian Pacific Railway shall have been constructed and duly placed in operation to its terminus on the seaboard in the Province of British Columbia, it shall be established to the satisfaction of the Government, that the retention of the amount of $5,000,000 in bonds under the Provisions of the construction contract, as security for the operation of the railway, is no longer necessary in the public interest, and the Governor in Council may order that the said bonds be released and delivered to the company."

The New York Tribune declares that the House of Commons closed with marked improvements in the prospects of Home Rule. There has been no stampede of the Liberals. Those who were expected to oppose the Government have not done so. The Liberals will stand by Mr. Gladstone, and those who have returned to their constituencies for the Easter holidays have done so under the strong conviction that the measure will carry through the House of Commons. The conciliatory attitude assumed by Mr. Chamberlain upon the Irish Land Purchase Bill would seem to indicate a disposition to return to the Government ranks rather than to ally himself with Lord Hartington, Mr. Goschen and Sir Henry James, leaders who, it is believed, cordially dislike him, and toward whom he has never exhibited any show of conciliation.

NEARLY all the Tory papers in Ontario preserve a solemn silence respecting the New Brunswick Local elections. This is pretty good evidence that they regard the result there as a decided victory for the Liberal Government and a blow at the Dominion Administration. The Tory papers in that Province fought the elections on Dominion party lines, and, therefore, they must accept the result as a defeat not only to the party in the Province, but as an indication of the waning influence of the Government at Ottawa. Should the local elections in Quebec come off this summer, as we expect they will, there is every reason to believe that the Dominion Government will receive a more significant condemnation than it has done in New Brunswick. Everywhere there are indications that the Tory party throughout the Dominion is falling apart through weakness caused by its own corruption. And the disclosures being made this session are doing much to hasten on the disintegration.

THE Ottawa correspondent of the Montreal Herald (Independent) has the following:—"A story is told here, though the names of those alluded to are kept secret, that will not at first blush obtain general credence. I should not have attached any importance to it had I not reason to belive in its truth so far, at least, as it affects one person. The story in one part is that a number of members, at present warm supporters of the Conservative side, are prepared to jump as soon as the proper moment arrives. Sir John's return has prevented this for the moment, and I understand that nothing will be done this session. Aother part of the story hits at overtures from the Conservative side with the view of understanding the position in the event of a change of fealty. This has a strange sound, but there are more things in heaven and politics than are spoken of on the floor of the House. I can't say whether this is true or not, but from what has been said to me, I should hear of it without surprise."

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 28.

In the Commons to-day Mr. Langelier asked some pointed questions respecting the alleged appointment of Mr. Wurtele to the judgeship, which appointment has not yet been gazetted, but received no satisfactory answer.

Mr. Thompson's Bill to make further provision respecting summary proceedings before justices and other magistrates was read a third time.

The greater part of the afternoon and the first two hours of the evening were spent in committee on Mr. White's Bill to amend the Dominion Lands Act. The clauses were closely criticised, and some amendments made. The committee rose and reported progress to resume the consideration of the Bill at a future sitting.

Mr. McLelan, in presenting the Canadian Pacific Railway resolutions, spoke briefly upon the scheme under which the Company is to return $20,000,000 cash to the Government, about $10,000,000 being cancelled in consideration of the relinquishment of certain lands.

Mr. Blake pointed out that this under another guise, was a scheme to benefit the Company. He went over several promises of finality in this bargain, which was always being made finally perfect. He referred to the Government's promises that the rapid building of the road would lead to the increase of population in the Northwest, and contrasted it with the facts shown by the census, and contrasted the promise that the lands sold would pay for the road with the fact that no money had been raised from the lands to apply to the building of the road. He expressed regret that this further proposition to aid the Company was before the House.

The House went into Committee on the resolutions and read them a first time. The House adjourned at 12.50.

The estimates for the Province of Nova Scotia were presented Thursday in the Local Assembly. The estimated revenue and expenditure are $600,284 and $597,135 respectively, showing a balance in favour of revenue of $3,150.

Silk and Dress Goods Department

The general opinion is that in novelty of design and richness of fabric, the goods are such as are shown in the best houses of New York. Then we have all the newest styles of Trimmings to match every shade of goods, which makes it a real pleasure for ladies to make selections for their toilets. In Dressmaking our patrons are assured of getting the most graceful and stylish garments, made by one of the best cutters and fitters in Ontario.

MILLINERY AND MANTLE ROOMS

We feel assured in saying that no lady who has had the opportunity to make comparison of the several establishments in the city, will admit, that for variety, elegance, taste and ability displayed in the making, quantity and value, there is anything that will at all compare with ours. The high and well merited reputation of our Manager, Miss Manny, the extent of our purchases, and the special attention we pay to this Department, are winning us hosts of new customers, and we cordially invite all ladies who are not already patrons, to give us a trial.

So much for Dressmaking and Millinery. Just let us branch off for a few words about

LACE CURTAINS.

27 Lower Wyndham Street, Guelph, Ontario.

"OUR FIGURES ARE REDUCED."

New Goods, Low Prices.

We work a system of close margins, buy and sell for cash, every article good, reduced in price to the lowest point of profit compatible with success. We do not believe in the old exploded dodge, making our customers believe that we are selling goods below cost price, nor are we giving some articles away for nothing in order to sell others. Our theory and practice are that small profits yield large sales, and give us steady trade and contented customers. Our stock of Spring and Summer goods complete. We invite the ladies to see our $3.00 Gem Parlor Boot, which cannot be surpassed in price or quality. Leading Boot and Shoe Store.

CHAPTER XXV.

DEEPENING SHADOWS.

The doctor's heart was hot and sore. His love for Helen had grown into an overmastering passion, and he felt it hard that he could not know the mystery which hemmed her in. He had asked himself all the questions he could think of again and again, till he was tired of asking and getting no answer. Helen had stayed so long at Miller's Gate without apparently the slightest attempt having been made by her friends to remove her. Had she many friends? That cry of bitterness and desolation which had broken from her as though forced out by extremity of loneliness and sorrow, still rang in his ears and haunted him. The fact that she would not trust him, that she acknowledged no bond of sympathy which moved her to open her heart to him, in no wise diminished his love. More than ever he longed to beat down her reserve, and force her to open her heart to him. Sooner or later he knew he would speak and tell her of his love, in spite of all the shadowy feelings which told him she was not free, she felt no inclination to return it. He would not be satisfied until he heard it from her own lips. He would not speak then; inexpressibly though he yearned to her in her sorrow and trouble, he would not speak then. Without knowing how or why, he felt that the hour had not yet come.

His meditations were interrupted by the sound of Helen's voice. It was low and spiritless; she evidently found it difficult to speak at all.

"I must beg of you not to go so fast. If you are in haste do not let me keep you, but I cannot go so fast."

Had he followed his inclination he would have caught her in his arms and carried her for the rest of the way. As it was he only slackened his speed and said—

"I beg your pardon; I am accustomed to swing along with unnecessary speed; when I am thinking I forget myself. But your confession of weariness makes me uneasy. I know you would not confess you were tired until you were ready to drop, and you have not walked half the distance you did that day I drove you home."

"True; but, as you said, I had to be carried home that time, whereas now I am walking. These two distances are equal to that one, I daresay."

"No, they are not, and even if they were, that happened some time ago. You ought to be much stronger now than you were then. This distance ought to cost you no fatigue."

"I daresay not, but it does."

She paused, making up her mind to tell the doctor something of her peculiar mental state, then she went on—

"To tell you the truth I am not nearly so strong now as I was then."

His heart beat faster but he merely said—

"I am sorry for that. Can you give any reason for it?"

"It is partly caused by the trouble you spoke of. I can think of nothing else, and it prevents my sleeping and keeping strong. Then, since I am not quite well, I fancy things. I daresay you can understand that. I know they are not true, and yet I feel sure they are. I do not know whether such an unreasonable state as that comes within your comprehension."

"Perfectly. May I ask what you fancy?"

"I fancy—dropping her voice a little—"that I am going out of my mind."

"What in the name of Heaven has put such an idea into your head?" he asked, forgetting professional calm in astonishment and dismay.

"It would not be so very improbable. You know it happened before, after I had been ill, and I suppose it is always possible for such things to take place again. Is it not so?"

"Certainly," resuming his usual manner, "but you see in your case it never did happen. And it is impossible it ever should without greater reason than I think exists now, if you will allow me to say so."

"You cannot know anything of the reason or its sufficiency; but what you say reassures me a little, I suppose because you speak in that tone of authority and are a doctor. I will give up my theory of insanity for this evening at anyrate. To-morrow I shall probably believe in it again as strongly as ever. But something remains about which I should like your advice."

"Then there are cases in which you consider my advice may be of some use to you?" he asked with some bitterness.

"As I am going to ask you now, you may help me very much."

"I will do my best, if you will let me know how."

"My nerves are all out of order, and everything about which I think assumes exaggerated proportions. I have a decision to make upon a very difficult and puzzling matter, and I know, I feel that I am not fit to make it. I have sense enough left to know that all the things I think I will do in connection with it are impossible, and not the things I should do if I were quite well and able to think calmly and rationally about it. I want you to tell me if you can, how to overcome this."

"Cannot Mr. Longworthy help you?"

"To sneer at Mr. Longworthy is not the way to win my confidence," she said, in a voice which was made a little unsteady by the anger she felt. "I am asking your advice now because you are the only person I know of who can help me in this; but if you speak in that way you will force me to be silent."

"I beg your pardon," he said. "Please forget what I said."

"Mr. Longworthy had promised to abide by my decision, and—I dare not make it. I know that whatever I should decide in my present state would be wrong and fantastic and ill judged. I know that, but I cannot put myself right. I want you to show me how to do so, if you will."

"I am at your service," he replied, mechanically, and then was silent. He understood what she meant. He followed closely her analysis of her state of mind. At last he said—

"Such a state as you describe is not to be changed in a week or a month. Will you think me cruel if I begin by saying that you must have patience?"

"No: I can be patient."

"I suppose it is useless telling you to put this trouble out of your mind for a while?"

"Quite useless. If you knew what it was you would understand that that is impossible."

"Cannot you tell me what it is?"

There was a ring of longing in his voice. Loving her as he did, it seemed doubly hard that she thus held him aloof, and refused to admit him into her confidence.

"No, I cannot," she replied, and her voice too had an accent of pain. "Cannot you understand that there are things about which one cannot speak except to a person with whom one feels in sympathy?"

"And you do not feel in sympathy with me?" he asked, in a tone of which the would-be lightness only brought forward more prominently the unconquerable bitterness.

"No. I am sorry if you feel hurt, but it is so. If you cannot cure me in the dark, I must remain uncured."

"I will do my best. I will think over what you have told me, and let you know the result of my reflections."

By this time they had reached the rectory. As he spoke the last words he held out his hand. She put hers into it, and after saying "Good night" they parted.

The doctor went home and shut himself

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever.

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show room of Messrs. Clarrk & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, crotonnes, fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

John H. Hamilton,

to his study; his heart seemed on fire. If his advances were repelled, gently and courteously, but decidedly. The little fragile woman whom he loved had erected a barrier which he with all his man's strength was unable to overthrow. Her confessions of the afternoon alarmed him. Such a state as she described was well known to him with all its possible serious consequences. How could he help her? He had begged her to confide in him, had pressed his assistance upon her, and when at last she had been prevailed upon to ask him for something, he had been unable to give it her.

"Canst thou not minister to a mind diseased?"

The words flitted through his brain, and for the first time he saw all their force and truth.

She repulsed him always. He could not recall a single instance on which she had seemed to welcome him, or to receive his attention willingly. This very evening she had disclaimed all idea of sympathy. And yet he loved her; and though he knew that he had no hope, he must tell her that he loved her.

He was glad when the maid knocked at the door, and told him he was wanted at once in a neighboring cottage, where a child had just been badly scalded. He roused himself and went out, glad to be recalled to practical life, and to feel that for others, if not for her, he carried healing in his hand.

Two days passed before he saw Helen again, and then he called at the rectory on purpose. He found her alone, the rector had not yet come in, and Mrs. Longworthy had gone to visit the child to whom he had been called away from his unprofitable meditations.

It was growing dusk, and Helen rang at once for the lamp. When it was brought, and the doctor looked into his patient's face, he was both shocked and alarmed at the change in her.

"I ought to have come sooner," he said.

"Why did you not send for me?"

"You could have done me no good," she replied. "I do not know why I told you all I did that other night. Till then I had kept it to myself; now I seem to have lost my self-control, and to my great distress I can no longer hide it from the Longworthys. I have caused them nothing but trouble and anxiety since I came into their house, and it only makes me worse to see their distress."

"And mine?" he asked, unable longer to contain himself, and bending his eyes upon her.

"Yours?" she said looking up. "I don't understand you."

"You think it causes me no distress to see the state into which you have got, and to know that, with all my boasted skill, I can do nothing for you, that I cannot minister to a mind diseased? I am powerless to help you. To an ordinary patient I should recommend rest and change, to you—

He paused abruptly, and Helen sat looking at him in amazement.

"I do not understand," she repeated.

He was going to speak again, when the hall door banged, and the rector's voice was heard outside. By a great effort, Dr. Holme regained his self-command, and saying abruptly "I will see you again," he left the room.

ARCHBISHOP LYNCH ON LABOUR.

Cardinal Taschereau's Mandament Does Not Affect Ontario.

On Thursday a reporter interviewed Archbishop Lynch in Toronto. In answer to the question whether he endorsed the Cardinal's mandament in full, he said: "We are independant of Cardinal Taschereau. Our Archiepiscopal Diocese of Ontario is quite separate and independent of his Diocese of Quebec. We do not interfere with his action in any way, either by approval or disapproval. We tolerate Catholics who have already joined the Knights of Labour, at the same time, however, we do not wish any other Catholics to join the organization until the final decision of the Holy See on the amended constitution of the Knights of Labour."

"Does Your Grace contemplate taking any similar action in your own diocese?"

"Not until we learn the final decision of the Holy See on the amended constitution, and, even then, another change may be made in the constitution by the Knights, so as to make it possible for the organization to be recognized by the church." His Grace at considerable length expressed his sympathy with the labouring classes.

BAPTIST UNION.

Hon. Mr. McMaster presented the annual report of the Northwest Mission. The report was satisfactory, and showed an outlay of $921. A discussion on Home Missions followed, in which it was shown that $11,000 had been expended by this Mission in Quebec with satisfactory results. The education of the French Canadians for the ministry was deemed the most effective way of evangelizing Quebec.

Rev. A. Grant proposed creating a fund to the amount of $25,000 for erection of suitable chapels in new districts.

Rev. J. Grant, on the other hand, presented the claims of the Church Edifice Society, which furnished their churches throughout the Dominion with money at 4 per cent. In nineteen years they had assisted forty churches. He thought the previous speakers killed out the spirit of self-reliance. He wanted to see the Society's fund raised to $15,000.

Some talk followed as to the next place of meeting, but nothing definite was reached. Dr. Thomas, while he thought Jarvis street Church could easily provide entertainment for the delegates, did not think the principle a good one of making Toronto the permanent meeting place.

Horsford's Acid Phosphate

IN Seasickness.

Prof. Adolph Ott, New York, says: "I used it for seasickness, during an ocean passage. In most of the cases the violent symptoms which characterize that disease yielded, and gave way to a healthful action of the functions impared."

A BILL OF FARE.—A gentleman who has been in China for some time past sends us the subjoined bill of fare in English, which he took home from a dinner given by a high official in one of the most important cities of that empire. It was a delicious dinner:—

Birds' nest and pigeons' egg soup.
Fried fish.
Broiled shark fins.
Baked macaroni.
Stewed bamboo shoots.
Cold chicken, with stuffing.
Stewed water chestnuts and mushrooms.
Roast wild duck, with salad.
Chinese cakes.
Biscuits, with vegetable stuffing.
Meat pies.
Almond tea.

Rev. J. Edgar, M. D., a pioneer Methodist Minister, died in his 64th year Wednesday. Dr. Edgar was born at Dundas, December, 1822. At an early age he began school teaching near his native place, at the same time studying with the design of ultimately practising medicine. However, he devoted himself to the ministry, and was called in 1846 by the Primitive Methodist Church. In the year 1880, his health having failed, he took the position of a superannuated Minister, settled in Toronto and devoted himself to the practice of medicine.

The Master Builders of London have complied with the men's demands, and after Monday next the present rate of wages will be paid for nine hours' work.

Guelph Township Council.

This Council met on Monday, 26th April, by a call from the Reeve, pursuant to adjournment. The Reeve in the chair. Present, all the members. The minutes of last meeting were read and confirmed. The following communications were presented: From D. Messenger and others calling the attention of the Council to a portion of the boundary road lying between the Township and the City, which shows that it is at present in a dangerous and almost impassable state. Referred to Boundary Road Committee. From the manufacturers of iron and steel bridges, Toronto. No action. From G. Wilkinson & Co., Aurora Plough Works, recommending their road scrapers. It was considered there would be none required this season. From the Campbell Sewer Pipe Co., Hamilton. No action. From Carswell & Co., Toronto, recommending the Ditches and Watercourses Acts by M.G. Cameron, barrister, &c. The Clerk was instructed to procure one copy. From the Collector on behalf of John Langdale, for error in assessment in being overcharged 50 cents. Ordered to be refunded.

Accounts ordered to be paid:—From Messrs. Hart & Co., for stationery, $2.49; Postmaster for post office box, $2.50; J. A. Nelles, minute book and copies of Ontario Statutes, &c., $21.90; Messrs. Innes & Davidson, printing, from August 19th to date, $38.15.

Mr. George Atkinson was present drawing the attention of the Council to repairs required on his road division. Referred to R. & B. C. East.

Mr. Wm. Grundy made application for some improvements to be made on his road which has to be attended to.

The Reeve stated that it would be necessary for some alteration to be made on some of the road divisions owing to a few of those who were appointed for overseers of highways declining the appointment and others having left the municipality, when it was Moved by Mr. Hood and seconded, that Isaac Fleming be pathmaster in place of Wm. Birney, who has left the municipality; and Robert Place be pathmaster in place of George Atkinson, and that George Atkinson be pathmaster in place of Chas. R. Blyth, and that John Hurley be appointed in place of John Rouse, and David Larter in place of John Mutrie, and that John Sheehan be appointed pathmaster on Forest street, McTague's survey. Carried.

The Council then proceeded to distribute the Statute labor on to pathmasters' schedules on the several road divisions. When completed the Clerk was instructed to forward them to the respective pathmasters.

It was then moved by Mr. Hobson and seconded, that the Council adjourn until Monday, the 26th day of July, then to meet for general business and as a Court of Revision.

A. McCORKINDALE, Clerk.

THE LATE GEO. T. STRICKLAND.—In addition to the announcement of the death of the late Mr Geo. T. Strickland, which appeared in these columns a few days ago, the following fuller particulars given from the Galt Reformer will be read with interest by many, the deceased being widely known and highly respected:—This old and well known resident of Galt, passed away early on Saturday morning, in the 55th year of his age. Although the malady from which Mr. Strickland suffered, from the first manifested dangerous symptoms, it was hoped that his robust constitution would enable him to fight down the disease. The struggle proved an unequal one, however, and although all that medical skill could do was done on his behalf, it was of no avail. Few men were more widely known or more universally respected in this and adjoining counties. The deceased was a native of Somersetshire, England, and emigrated to this country by himself in 1849, when a mere boy. He remained in New York State for about three years, when he removed to Paris, where he lived for about fifteen months. The Wellington, Grey and Bruce Railway had just been completed as far as Galt about this time, and Mr Strickland was appointed freight agent at the "terminus." Subsequently, when the line was continued to Hespeler, he was appointed station master at that point. Ill health compelled him to leave the service of the railway company, when he returned to Galt and engaged in the stove and afterwards in the tannery business. In 1859 he commenced the auctioneering business, and it was in that capacity that he became so well known beyond the confines of this county. Possessed of great shrewedness combined with a jovial and wholesouled manner, he was very successful as an auctioneer, and his services were in great demand—particularly for important stock sales. He was a careful business man, and succeeded in accumulating a competence. The funeral took place on Monday afternoon, to Trinity church cemetery, and was very largely attended, the town council being present in a body.

ERIN SPRING SHOW.—Erin spring show was held at Hillsburg on Friday of last week. The day was fine and there was a large turnout both of horses and spectators. The competition was very keen throughout, and the judges found great difficulty in awarding the prizes. The following is the prize list:—Imported heavy draught—3 entries—Wilson Paterson, Tam O'Shanter, 1st; Donaldson & Carmichael, Bolivar, 2nd. Canadian draught—4 entries—Jas. Reid, Balmoral, 1st; Hall & Macdougall, Royal Charlie, 2nd. General purpose—9 entries—Geo. Davis, Petrocleus, 1st; Jas. Somerville, Young Hard Fortune, 2nd. Carriage—7 entries—W. Berger, Alexander, 1st; D. Campbell, Orphan Boy, 2nd. Roadsters—7 entries, Donaldson & Carmichael, Stockwell Chief, 1st; D. S. McMillan, King Imperial, 2nd. Blood—1 entry—F. C. Grenside, Glengyle, 1st. Judges—Robt. Kirby, Speedside; Hugh Henry, Cheltenham; W. J. Turnbull, Mono Centre.

The difficulty between the St. Catharines News Publishing Company and the Knights of Labour has been amicably arranged, and the order boycotting that paper has been withdrawn.

The latest remedy for coughs, colds, croup whooping cough, bronchitis, etc., is McGregor's Lung Compound. There is no remedy in existence containing any one of the active ingredients composing McGregor's Lung Compound, so do not say you have taken everything until you have tried this for your cold or cough, and your opinion will be the same as all who have used it, viz., that it is the best. Base Ball Notes.

A well known baseball enthusiast of Guelph has offered a bull terrier pup, valued at ten dollars, to the Maple Leaf player who makes the first home run in a match game. Sonny Purvis has already secured a collar and tag for the animal, as he is confident he will be the lucky individual. Tug Dillon asserts that Sonny is too previous and that he will be endeavoring to dispose of the collar and tag to him after the first game.

It is claimed that Charley Campau, of the Maple Leafs, is the best base runner in Canada. Good base runners have been scarce around Guelph for several years. It is claimed also that Williams, the left fielder, can do up the circuit in remarkable fast time.

The average weight of the Maple Leaf players will be about 160 lbs. and the height 5 ft. 10, Stephens being the heaviest, weighing 170 lbs. and Sheiback the lightest, at 155 lbs.

Millar, Campau and Mulholland are great sluggers and will make Sonny hustle to get that bull.

ST. GEORGE'S CHURCH organ recital and service of sacred song will be held on Monday evening, May 3rd. In addition to the full choir, Mrs. Whitehead, the Misses Stevenson, and Mr. Geo. Thomas will take part. Selections from Haydn's Imperial mass, as well as choice Easter music, will be given.

PROVINCIAL FAT STOCK SHOW.—To-day Messrs J. B. Aylesworth, S. W. White, Henry Wade, H. Parker, and Geo. Moore, committee of the Provincial Fat Stock Show, met in the City Hall Messrs John Phin, James Millar, James Taylor, Adam A. Armstrong and Ald. Hearn, committee of the Guelph Fat Stock Club, to arrange the prize list for the Provincial Fat Stock Show to be held here next December.

NEARLY A RUNAWAY.—This morning as a farmer was driving along Gordon street the pole of the waggon dropped from the neck yoke to the ground, causing the horses to become frightened. The driver by holding on to the reins managed to keep the horses in check till a bystander came to his assistance and caught them by the head, bringing them to a standstill. Had it not been for the intervention of the gentleman passing the accident might have been serious.

FAT CATTLE.—Messrs. J. & R. McQueen, Salem, the well known stock raisers, have employed Mr. John S. Moffatt, painter, to paint pictures of their fat heifer "Daisy" and Shorthorn steer "Duke," which along with the animals will be forwarded to the Colonial Exhibition. Mr. Moffatt has admirably succeeded in his effort, which shows his skill as a painter. The canvas for each is six feet by nine, and the contract will have to be completed by Wednesday.

THE SCOTT ACT.—The Scott Act came into force to-day. Only being in operation for a few hours no idea can be formed of how the law will be kept subsequently. To-day the bar-rooms of the majority of the hotels were stripped of alcoholic liquors, and lemonade and other soft drinks took the place of whiskey, ale and beer. Some of the keepers state that the bar business was not a quarter of what it should have been under ordinary circumstances. All the hotel stables were kept open as usual, and it is understood, at least in the majority of cases, that no extra charge has been made for stabling accommodation. The quantity of liquor that was sold from the licensed groceries yesterday was something enormous, the porters having to be up to midnight delivering orders. Many took occasion to celebrate the last night of John Barleycorn with a general spree. Although several went home three seas over there was no disturbance and everything passed off quietly. Some of the hotels were kept open to midnight and others closed at the usual hour. License Inspector Cowan was on the warpath to-day and intimates that he will show no leniency to offenders.

In the last three months 698 families, comprising 3,477 persons, were evicted from holdings in Ireland, and during the same period 256 outrages were committed.

Mr Gladstone denies the story recently circulated that he had decided to join the Catholic church.

MR. JOHN MITCHELL, undertaker, has had his child's hearse repainted by Mr. F. Sturdy. It looks very well.

A YOUNG man named Alex. Bunyan had his arm dislocated last night by falling down a stair, 'tis said, in one of the hotels.

SCHOOL INSPECTORSHIP.—Mr. D. McCaig, Eramosa, has been appointed to the inspectorship of the schools in Algoma district at a salary of $1,900 including travelling expenses. No better man could be appointed to fill such an important position which will be conceded by every one who knows Mr. McCaig, and he is widely known in Wellington and surrounding counties, having been a resident in this section for over 44 years, and 22 years of that period has been connected with education. He was for many years principal of the Rockwood Academy, and was afterwards principal of the Galt Central School and Berlin Central School. It will thus be seen that Mr. McCaig has had a long experience in connection with schools, and is eminently qualified to fill the position to which he has been appointed. While regretting the loss of Mr. McCaig, he has to be congratulated on the appointment, and there is no doubt but what he will give every satisfaction.

Grand Trunk Railway.

LONDON, Eng., April 30.—The general meeting of the shareholders of the Grand Trunk Railway Company was held to-day. Sir Henry Tyler spoke hopefully of the prospects of the undertakings, and claimed that the company has emerged from the recent trials with much less injury than could have been expected. Sir Henry declared that the relations with the Canadian Pacific Railway Company were harmonious. A brief discussion ensued, in which Mr. Abbott, a broker who deals largely in Grand Trunk securities, attacked the Canadian Pacific. The Grand Trunk report was unanimously adopted.

THE IRISH QUESTION.

Archbishop Croke's Views of Mr. Gladstone.

LONDON, April 30.—At a conference between Archbishop Croke, of Cashel, and the priests of his diocese a memorial was unanimously signed expressing deep gratitude to Mr. Gladstone for his past services to Ireland and lauding him for his heroic fortitude, utter forgetfulness of self and fearless devotion in its initiation of his present Irish measure.

LICENSE COMMISSIONERS.

Resignation of the Board—Druggists Licenses Granted.

Yesterday afternoon a meeting of the Board of License Commissioners was held at the residence of Mr. W. J. Fairbank, Eramosa bridge. Present, Mr. W. J. Fairbank, chairman, Messrs. Murphy, Kennedy and Inspector Cowan.

Mr. Fairbank intimated that he had gone to Toronto to see the authorities in connection with the Scott Act. They knew little more about the matter than the Board did. He then read the following report:—

In accordance with the resolution passed by the Board of Commissioners, I have visited the License Department at Toronto, and was received by the Hon. Provincial Secretary A. S. Hardy, Esq., also Messrs. Totten and Manning, with regard to the inquiring of what the duties of our Inspector would be. I was informed that he would be expected to carry out the general principles laid down in the Scott Act to the best of his ability. They did not recommend the employment of detective service until such time as the Commissioners were fully satisfied that such service should be deemed actually necessary. In the matter of the application of Messrs Jackson & Hallett who are carrying on a wholesale and retail grocery business in Guelph, and who have applied for a wholesale liquor license, this department is agreed that no license can be given only on condition that the firm remove the wholesale liquor business to premises entirely separate from the general trade, and recommend the Board to grant a license only on those terms. In the matter of Herod & Co.'s application for a druggist's license it was thought that a license might be granted to them, but to call the attention of Dr. Herod to the fact that the firm could not fill the orders or certificates given by Dr. Herod himself. I informed the Secretary that it was the intention of the Commissioners to resign their office, as they considered that as they were appointed under the Crooks Act their term of office had ceased. He expressed himself sorry and wished me to thank the Commissioners for their services during their term of office and expressed himself entirely satisfied with the manner in which the work had been carried out.

Moved by Mr. Murphy, seconded by Mr. Kennedy, that the report of the Chairman be adopted; also that the Commissioners acknowledge their thanks to the department for their expression of confidence for the manner in which we have carried on the business of the department during our term of office. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Kennedy, seconded by Mr. Murphy, that the application of A. B. Petrie for a druggist's license be granted. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Murphy, seconded by Mr. Kennedy, that the application of Dr. Herod be granted. There being no amendment the chairman declared the motion carried.

Mr. Fairbank reported that he had received a communication from Thos. Watt withdrawing his application for a wholesale license.

In reference to the application from Jackson & Hallet, asking for a wholesale license, it was decided to hold the matter over until such time as the Commissioners were apprised of what premises they were to occupy.

The Commissioners then decided to send in their resignation as follows:

To the Hon. Provincial Secretary.

DEAR SIR,—We hereby tender to you our resignation as members of the License Commission for the Riding of South Wellington. As we were appointed under the Crooks Act, we think that our term of office should now cease. Signed Walter J. Fairbank, Chairman, David Kennedy, John Murphy.

It might be worthy of note to state that Mr. Murphy has been a member of the Board for 8 years, Mr. Kennedy for 5, and Mr. Fairbank for 4.

The licenses for Messrs. Petrie, Herod, and Jackson & Hallet, would only amount to some $300.

The Board then adjourned.

A Boarding Hotel.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—The want of a good boarding hotel has long been felt in Guelph. If the right man is secured to manage the Wellington Hotel this want will be supplied and the owners will find that it will pay well. If 30 rooms are occupied by boarders—5 at $7 per week, 5 at $6, 10 at $5, and 10 (each having two occupants) at $4—the return will be the sum of $10,141.00. With ten more rooms for transient trade at $2 per day the total revenue from 40 rooms will be $17,440.00. With good management more than this can be made out of the hotel, as no bus need be kept and other expenses cut off. It all depends on the management of the house. The owners can rest assured that the citizens want to see the Wellington sustained, and will sustain it if it is properly conducted.

Laudable Enterprise.

To the Editor of the MERCURY:—

SIR,—Have the City Council asked for a bonus for their new and laudable nursery enterprise, they have started to-day? No doubt they are fortunate in having a man of experience at the head of the firm. I cannot understand why the Council of such a business turn of mind allowed Good Friday to pass without opening a bun shop to supply the needy with hot x buns. Perhaps if they tried the dry goods business they might get the City Band or the famous James Gay to give them free music for their opening. Trees have always been plentiful upon the market, brought in by farmers and nurserymen, who make a legitimate living by that.

Davis' Pain Killer.—From the reports of dealers in this city we think no proprietary medicine has had a larger sale. Its valuable properties as a speedy cure for pain cannot fail to be generally appreciated, and no family should be without it in case of accident, or sudden attack of dysentery, diarhoea or cholera morbus.—Montreal Transcript.

At a recent meeting of the Waterloo Township Council, the tender of Mr. Gibson, of Beamsville, was accepted for the masonry of the new Breslau bridge at $6,780; and the tender of the Hamilton Tool and Bridge Company for the iron superstructure for the same, at $20.40 per lineal foot, was also accepted.

CALISTHENICS AND MUSIC.

Grand Success of Capt Clarke's Entertainment.

Capt. Clarke has great reason to feel gratified at the large attendance his calisthenic and musical entertainment drew out to the Speed Rink last night. As usual at such entertainments every available seat in floor and galleries were occupied and standing room could scarcely be obtained on the platform at the entrance. There could not have been much short of 2,000 people present, a fact which confirms more than ever the common remarks that Capt. Clarke can always fill the rink.

It was after eight o'clock when the classes issued forth from the ante-rooms, keeping step to the marching music of two pianos stationed at the side of the building, at which Mrs. Hill and Miss Tom Maitland presided. The classes entered in double file. A company of about twenty lads, who wore white shirts and dark belted trousers and carried shouldered swords, headed the ranks. Then followed about two hundred girls wearing white dresses with blue trimmings. It was noticeable that the members of the classes were younger as a whole than in previous years, a goodly proportion of them ranging from eight to twelve years of age. During the procession around the rink they sang, under Mrs. Whitehead's direction, the bridal march from "Luci di Lammermoor," the effect being highly pleasing.

The next number afforded the first opportunity of judging as to the thorough manner in which the classes had been drilled when the girls marched round the floor and drew up in close order in the centre of the rink. While here they sang the "Evening Prayer" with excellent expression and in good time.

Captain Clarke's care in drilling the young ladies was still further shown in the next event. About half the class comprising the older girls were drawn up by a very pretty movement at open interval, and thus spread out, occupied the whole floor. They were then put through a course of calisthenics which brought both hands and feet into active play and demonstrated the great benefit of such a training.

The fourth event was one of the very best of the evening. It comprised rifle exercise and marching past by the boys. The juvenile company, under the lead of "Sergeant" Bruce, went through the manœuvres with the precision of old veterans, and when their exercises were concluded the lads met with a hearty round of applause.

Once more the young ladies were drawn up in the centre where they sang two choruses, "The White Rose" and "Among the Blossoms." In the latter expression was added by eloquutionary motions.

Bar-bell exercises by the boys concluded the first part of the programme. In these the little fellows acquitted themselves creditably as they did in every other event.

Part two opened with a couple of choruses by the girls, "Among the Blossoms" being repeated, and the "Brown Thrush," another motion song, being given. A well deserved encore was accorded, which was responded to later on in the programme.

Indian club swinging was the next performance. This was participated in by about a hundred of the larger girls. Club swinging is always an interesting feature and the precision and grace which characterized the motions on this occasion were not lost sight of by the spectators, who awarded the efforts with hearty applause.

Next came sword exercise by the boys' class, in which Master Bruce again fulfilled the duties of Sergeant, and he must have felt proud of his command, cuts, points and guards were executed without a hitch. The marching which succeeded was likewise much enjoyed.

"Home Sweet Home" and the "Old Folks at Home" were choruses by the girls which proved very entertaining.

Masters McCrae, Bruce and Guthrie sang "Three Jolly Sailor Boys" in costume and did it so well that a recall was demanded. In response they gave "Nancy Lee." The former was accompanied by a few steps in the "Sailor's Hornpipe," which served to set it off, and in the latter the hand-over-hand movements were given.

The most effective spectacle of the evening was reserved to the last, being the single and double marching by the girls, each of whom carried a flag. Many of the movements were new and all of them were good. In some of the counter marching scenes the effect was particularly charming, being enhanced by the pupils waving the flags above their heads. It was a fitting climax to perhaps the best entertainment of the kind yet given in Guelph.

Before the proceedings closed with the National anthem, Principal Tytler moved a vote of thanks to Captain Clarke and Mrs. Whitehead, which met with a hearty echo from every one present. Whether in the physical or vocal exercises everything was done with a precision which reflected the highest credit upon the instructors. Nothing but an earnest interest in their work could have produced the results seen last night.

During the evening Captain Clarke took occasion to announce his calisthenic entertainment, which is to be held at the Exhibition Park on the 24th of May. This will be on a much more extensive scale than that given last night.

Dominion Parliament.

OTTAWA, April 30.

In the Commons to-day Mr. Bergin introduced a Bill to regulate the employment of children and women in workshops

The greater part of the afternoon was spent in discussing Mr. Foster's Bill respecting the protection of navigable waters, which was read a second time and passed in committee.

After recess several minor Government measures were advanced a stage.

Mr. Carling moved the House into Committee on a resolution providing for the establishment of experimental farm stations. The greater part of the evening was spent in discussing the resolution, which was adopted, and a Bill founded on it introduced.

Mr. White's Bill allowing grants to railways in alternate blocks or townships instead of alternate sections, was read a second time and passed in committee.

Mr. Thompson's resolution providing for the salary of the additional Chancery Judge for Ontario was adopted in committee and a Bill founded on it introduced.

The House adjourned at 12.20 a. m.

Another attempt has been made to burn Mandalay.

The Evening Mercury

SATURDAY EVE'G MAY 1, 1886.

The Exercise of Influence by Members.

The lessons taught by the Beaty-Woodworth affair and the Prince Albert Colonization Company investigation are clear and plain, if the people would only give heed to them, and call members of Parliament to account who meddle with any business beyond their proper duties as representatives of the people. In the first case we have two members of Parliament using their influence as such, and as supporters of the Government, to obtain a railway charter and in some way or other make money out of it. For some reason or other not yet known, Beaty and his friends crowded Woodworth out of the ring, and he, the disappointed speculator, tells all that he knows about the transaction in order to damage his quondam friends. In spite of his profuse professions of morality it is apparent all through that Beaty's sole aim was to look after the "boy," meaning himself, and Woodworth, with no profession of morality at all, would eagerly have shared in the spoil, only that he was bowled out. As we said, these men were simply using their positions in order to make money if possible, for had they not been members of Parliament, and thick and thin supporters of the Government, they would not have been able to secure the land grant for the construction of the railway, without which they could never hope to make the charter worth a dollar. So, too, in the case of Mr. John White, whose connection with the Prince Albert Colonization Company, as also that of Mr. Bowell, has been made the subject of Parliamentary inquiry. The evidence brought out before the Committee clearly shows that Mr. White obtained his "blind share" for the influence he would be able to exercise with the the Government in making a satisfactory arrangement for the company. Mr. Jamieson, Mr. Bowell's son-in-law, got his "blind share" also, and the natural inference is that from his relationship with the Minister of Customs he would be able to exercise greater influence with the Government. It was not proved before the Committee that Mr. Bowell's loan of $500 to Jamieson was to be applied in any way in connection with the company's affairs, but here again the natural inference is that the money was borrowed for this purpose; that Mr. Bowell knew what it was for; and thus in an indirect way is implicated in the affair. But be that as it may, there can be no denial or qualification of the fact that in Mr. White's case the "blind share" was given him for his influence with the Government—an influence which could not be exercised were he not in Parliament. The naked fact therefore, stares us in the face that there men used their position to feather their own nests. Unfortunately, they are not the only supporters of the Government in Parliament who have done, and are now doing, the same thing. Several members whom we could name are promoting the passage of railway charters, and we are free to say that but very few are doing it simply in discharge of their public duty, but are promoting the schemes in the expectation of some way or other making money. Now, all this is wrong in itself, and demoralizing, and tends to corrupt the avenues of public life by showing public men what way they may become rich if they are only unscrupulous enough to follow out the ways and means for doing so. The present Government are equally blameable in this matter, for they have given their sanction to this particular method of bribery and corruption. It is in this way that they have time and again rewarded their followers, and it is in this way that they often secure and retain a doubtful supporter. It is high time that the system should be done away with, and that Parliament should be purged of these greedy and speculating members, who seek to gain their own selfish ends by virtue of the position in which the people have placed them, and who have proved themselves unfit for the trust reposed in them.

THE public expenditure in 1877-8 was put down at $23,503,158; the expenditure for 1884-5 was $35,037,060. The difference between these two sums is $11,533,902. So that the people of this country have to pay $11,533,902 more for carrying on the affairs of the country than they had eight years ago. And how much better are we off now than we were then? The present Government is responsible for this very large increase in our expenditure, which is altogether out of proportion to the gradual increase of our business.

SIR JOHN MACDONALD is going to give some of the Northwest Territories a measure of representation. This is what the Opposition has been contending for in the interest of the settlers there. According to the Act of 1871 this cannot be done without the sanction of the Imperial Parliament. That Act provides only for the erection of Provinces and their representation in the Dominion Parliament. On Thursday of last week the Premier took the necessary steps in the House for submitting a bill to the Parliament in London giving two members to the Territory of the Assiniboia, one to Alberta and one to Saskatchewan. For the present no representation is to be given to the other two Territories of Athabaska and Keewaytin. When the population increases in these two places, we presume they will also be allowed a member each. This measure is no doubt a temporary one, for as soon as these Territories have sufficient population they will be erected into Provinces and have representation in the Dominion Parliament pretty much on the same basis as Manitoba now has. For reasons best known to himself the Premier objected to bringing down the draft of the bill, so that the House has to be content with the resolution signifying the intention of the Government, and the vague explanation which he gave as to the provisions of the bill to be sent to the Imperial Parliament.

A FAIR EXCHANGE.—The Berlin News says that a great many people of that town have been in the habit of going to Guelph for their dry goods: and now it wickedly insinuates that after to-day the people of Guelph will be straying up to Berlin for their wet goods. We are afraid that joke was never the offspring of pure cold water!

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

Mr. A. A. Carlton Speaks on Arbitration and Organization.

Despite the unpropitious circumstances, the lecture given last evening in the City Hall by Mr. A. A. Carlton, Grand Lecturer of the Knights of Labor, was well attended, the hall being filled to the doors. Several members of the Trade and Labor Council of the City occupied seats on the platform, and at eight o'clock Mr. J. C. Walker, President of the Council, moved Mayor Stevenson to the chair, who in a few well chosen words introduced the lecturer.

Mr. Carlton is a man of rather prepossessing appearance, and one who brings to his aid the weight of an earnest impressive manner. He said the subject which they were to consider that evening was one worthy the serious consideration of all thinking men. They wished the people to think and discuss this question, knowing that discussion would show the justice of their claims. He noticed the great change in public sentiment during the past two years. Formerly the press, the pulpit, the educational institutions and all the moulding factors of the land were indifferent or hostile to the discussion of the labor question; now it was the leading topic of the hour, was universally talked over, and often very ignorantly. Intelligent men frequently misconceive our position and mistrust our intentions. Men brought up under existing industrial conditions are educated among the abuses of that system, and filled with wrong notions. There should always be two parties to a contract, not one as in the past. The masses of men who do the work should have some say in the matter. If a man invests his capital in a business, he looks upon it as his own private business and capital and resents any interference in his plans. But the laborer whom he employs also invests all the capital he possesses—his hands and his head—in that business, and is entitled to be taken into the confidence of his employer. Labor demands equal recognition and consideration with capital, and the worker should have some knowledge of the state of the business on which he depends for his daily bread. If their demands were just, then insist upon them; if in the wrong acknowledge it. They would have strikes everywhere unless they had some controlling power. Organized labor prevents strikes by removing the foundation of their grievances. Education along these lines is urgently needed. The system is to blame, not the men. The laboring classes desired to put labor on a higher plane. Employers in their own interest should encourage labor organizations. The workingman wished to known something about government and law, to understand the science of government. The original idea of government was to protect the weak, the actual practice was to strengthen the strong, the true mission of government was to guard those of weaker brain, its power was now used to increase the influence of the stronger brain. The alarming increase in insanity and idiocy was almost entirely due to the prevailing industrial system; the few were protected at the expense of the many. When labor asked for her rights in the legislative halls the cry of "special legislation" is at once raised. True, they did want special legislation, but only to recover the ground they had lost; when labor was placed on an equality with capital, there would be no further need of special legislation. It had been said that this demand for equal recognition prevented investments of capital. Capital was only the creation of labor and the creator should not bow down to the creature; the creator first, then the creation. The wealth of the world whether in coal, iron, gold or other materials was the product of labor. They had been striving for an Employers' opponents were the railroads. If the Liability Act, and their most powerful railway employed a brakeman and he was killed in the discharge of his duty, his family has no claim on the company, but if a good healthy jackass got killed in transportation, the company had to pay his value. What they wanted was to be placed on an equality with the jackass. This question had been argued from a commercial stand point in the past, they wished to raise it to the dignity of a moral question, as a man's life was worth more than all the wealth of the world. This was the doctrine of organized labor. They had no idea of antagonising legitimate enterprise. In their desire for greed, men trod on the helpless, and the latter should have protection. If a man engaged in business the masses of the people formed the market for his goods and if the masses were prosperous, his business would be also. Stephen B. Elkins, a millionare, in addressing the students of Missouri University acknowledged that under the present industrial system the battle was to the strong, and the doctrine of the survival of the fittest held good. The rich man might see his poor neighbor starve and there was no law to compel him to help his neighbor. The prevailing system fostered the law of brute force; property owned almost no law. If the people were educated to look upon stock gambling, stock watering and other schemes of dishonest cunning as a crime against society, the strong arm of the law would soon put down these iniquities. These words were encouraging. They had been told that the law of supply and demand regulated wages; he contended that wages regulated supply and demand. If the buying power of the workingman is curtailed, trade everywhere suffers. If wages were cut in one branch of industry, it affected all, as a reduction in other branches immediately followed. A ten per cent reduction in wages among the shoemakers of the States meant $10,000,000 a year taken out of their pockets, and a consequent depression in trade. If this tendency to reduce wages was checked and the price of labor took an upward turn, their trade would increase. In looking for foreign markets, the Government overlooked the home market. It was utterly impossible for any country to supply all the wants of its people. With wages in his hand, the worker trades and benefit resulted all round. The Knights of Labor were looked upon in some quarters as a great striking machine. Many strikes were laid at their door that they knew nothing about. The K. of L. simply interfere at the request of the strikers to attempt a settlement of any difficulty. In four years' experience at the head of his district he had arbitrated in over 700 cases. Out of these only two strikes had resulted, nine-tenths of them had been settled in favor of the workingmen, and in the others the men had acknowledged that their demand was not justified by the state of the market. If a strike on an average cost $5,000, the amount of money saved was among the million. Peaceful talk with employers in his district had resulted in an increase of a million and a half in wages. The K. of L. did not believe in strikes except as a last resort. New assemblies sometimes were rash and struck, but those educated in the aims and work of the order did not strike. Strikes were the result of ignorance on both sides. The employers and employees, with their heated passions and prejudices, could not come to a just decision, and outside interference became necessary. The K. of L. were ready at any time to agree to arbitration should the employers submit their claims in the same way. It was the aim of their order to submit, if possible, all matters to peaceful arbitration, and not to strike. The workingmen should destroy their prejudices, obliterate their dividing lines, sink their differences and stand shoulder to shoulder in demanding a just and fair recognition of their rights. Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show rooms of Messrs. Clark & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered in to household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, tablings, cretonnes, fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

CAPITAL AND LABOR.

Mr. A. A. Carlton Speaks on Arbitration and Organization.

Despite the unpropitious circumstances, the lecture given last evening in the City Hall by Mr. A. A. Carlton, Grand Lecturer of the Knights of Labor, was well attended, the hall being filled to the doors. Several members of the Trade and Labor Council of the City occupied seats on the platform, and at eight o'clock Mr. J. C. Walker, President of the Council, moved Mayor Stevenson to the chair, who in a few well chosen words introduced the lecturer.

Mr. Carlton is a man of rather prepossessing appearance, and one who brings to his aid the weight of an earnest impressive manner. He said the subject which they were to consider that evening was one worthy the serious consideration of all thinking men. They wished the people to think and discuss this question, knowing that discussion would show the justice of their claims. He noticed the great change in public sentiment during the past two years. Formerly the press, the pulpit, the educational institutions and all the moulding factors of the land were indifferent or hostile to the discussion of the labor question; now it was the leading topic of the hour, was universally talked over, and often very ignorantly. Intelligent men frequently misconceive our position and mistrust our intentions. Men brought up under existing industrial conditions are educated among the abuses of that system, and filled with wrong notions. There should always be two parties to a contract, not one as in the past. The masses of men who do the work should have some say in the matter. If a man invests his capital in a business, he looks upon it as his own private business and capital and resents any interference in his plans. But the laborer whom he employs also invests all the capital he possesses—his hands and his head—in that business, and is entitled to be taken into the confidence of his employer. Labor demands equal recognition and consideration with capital, and the worker should have some knowledge of the state of the business on which he depends for his daily bread. If their demands were just, then insist upon them; if in the wrong acknowledge it. They would have strikes everywhere unless they had some controlling power. Organized labor prevents strikes by removing the foundation of their grievances. Education along these lines is urgently needed. The system is to blame, not the men. The laboring classes desired to put labor on a higher plane. Employers in their own interest should encourage labor organizations. The workingman wished to known something about government and law, to understand the science of government. The original idea of government was to protect the weak, the actual practice was to strengthen the strong, the true mission of government was to guard those of weaker brain, its power was now used to increase the influence of the stronger brain. The alarming increase in insanity and idiocy was almost entirely due to the prevailing industrial system; the few were protected at the expense of the many. When labor asked for her rights in the legislative halls the cry of "special legislation" is at once raised. True, they did want special legislation, but only to recover the ground they had lost; when labor was placed on an equality with capital, there would be no further need of special legislation. It had been said that this demand for equal recognition prevented investments of capital. Capital was only the creation of labor and the creator should not bow down to the creature; the creator first, then the creation. The wealth of the world whether in coal, iron, gold or other materials was the product of labor. They had been striving for an Employers' opponents were the railroads. If the Liability Act, and their most powerful railway employed a brakeman and he was killed in the discharge of his duty, his family has no claim on the company, but if a good healthy jackass got killed in transportation, the company had to pay his value. What they wanted was to be placed on an equality with the jackass. This question had been argued from a commercial stand point in the past, they wished to raise it to the dignity of a moral question, as a man's life was worth more than all the wealth of the world. This was the doctrine of organized labor. They had no idea of antagonising legitimate enterprise. In their desire for greed, men trod on the helpless, and the latter should have protection. If a man engaged in business the masses of the people formed the market for his goods and if the masses were prosperous, his business would be also. Stephen B. Elkins, a millionare, in addressing the students of Missouri University acknowledged that under the present industrial system the battle was to the strong, and the doctrine of the survival of the fittest held good. The rich man might see his poor neighbor starve and there was no law to compel him to help his neighbor. The prevailing system fostered the law of brute force; property owned almost no law. If the people were educated to look upon stock gambling, stock watering and other schemes of dishonest cunning as a crime against society, the strong arm of the law would soon put down these iniquities. These words were encouraging. They had been told that the law of supply and demand regulated wages; he contended that wages regulated supply and demand. If the buying power of the workingman is curtailed, trade everywhere suffers. If wages were cut in one branch of industry, it affected all, as a reduction in other branches immediately followed. A ten per cent reduction in wages among the shoemakers of the States meant $10,000,000 a year taken out of their pockets, and a consequent depression in trade. If this tendency to reduce wages was checked and the price of labor took an upward turn, their trade would increase. In looking for foreign markets, the Government overlooked the home market. It was utterly impossible for any country to supply all the wants of its people. With wages in his hand, the worker trades and benefit resulted all round. The Knights of Labor were looked upon in some quarters as a great striking machine. Many strikes were laid at their door that they knew nothing about. The K. of L. simply interfere at the request of the strikers to attempt a settlement of any difficulty. In four years' experience at the head of his district he had arbitrated in over 700 cases. Out of these only two strikes had resulted, nine-tenths of them had been settled in favor of the workingmen, and in the others the men had acknowledged that their demand was not justified by the state of the market. If a strike on an average cost $5,000, the amount of money saved was among the million. Peaceful talk with employers in his district had resulted in an increase of a million and a half in wages. The K. of L. did not believe in strikes except as a last resort. New assemblies sometimes were rash and struck, but those educated in the aims and work of the order did not strike. Strikes were the result of ignorance on both sides. The employers and employees, with their heated passions and prejudices, could not come to a just decision, and outside interference became necessary. The K. of L. were ready at any time to agree to arbitration should the employers submit their claims in the same way. It was the aim of their order to submit, if possible, all matters to peaceful arbitration, and not to strike. The workingmen should destroy their prejudices, obliterate their dividing lines, sink their differences and stand shoulder to shoulder in demanding a just and fair recognition of their rights. ca economy had failed to solve this question; others had written about political economy, organized labor was acting it out in their life. Manhood should be the first basis; a man should be judged solely on his merits. Laws, whether industrial or legal, should give every man a fair show for his life. When wage earners band themselves together, the burden will be lifted, and shorter hours and higher wages will result. The demand for labor creates a price for it. By reducing the time of labor they would employ the idle, and have more time to cultivate and improve their bodies and minds. He was a little doubtful of the conversion of some of their lately professed friends, and would caution them to be chary in trusting them. Prof. Atwater and Mr. Edward Atkinson had stated that a man could live on eleven cents a day; but their scheme was impracticable, and would tend to degrade the masses. The toiler was entitled to the best the land could afford, and the coarse food prescribed by these professors would produce a grosser and more sensual life. When men subsist on mean food a mean civilization is the result, good food produces good civilization. The question was not how low a man can become, but how high he can ascend. He considered no man could be a Christian on less than $3 a day. Every industrious man earned $1,000 a year, and on an average only got $300. As long as human beings had to work from early morning till late at night for 45 cents a day—a species of human slavery—just so long was there a danger of the mass of labor sinking to that level. The industrial system of the past must not continue; the pathway of their children must be brighter than their's had been; they must go forward or else backward; their watchward should be discipline, organization and strength as against division, dissension, and weakness; they should oppose the cause of humanity to the despotism, injustice, and inhumanity of the past; they should stand up for their rights, be "free, and call no man master."

Mr. E. J. O'Brien moved, seconded by Mr. S. Terrell, a deservedly complimentary vote of thanks to the lecturer which was fittingly responded to. Three cheers for the Queen brought the meeting to a close.

McGregor's Speedy Cure.

When we say McGregor's Speedy Cure is the only perfect cure for dyspepsia, liver complaints, indigestion and impure blood, we are telling plain facts, of which hundreds upon hundreds can testify who have been restored to perfect health by its use. We would therefore advise you strongly if you are a subject of any of the above troubles to give McGregor's Speedy Cure a trial and be convinced. It is sold in 50c. and $1.00 bottles at Thomas S. Petrie's Drug Store.

THE KEPPEL TRAGEDY.

King and Wilson Committed for Trial.

OWEN SOUND, April 30.—The adjourned investigation into the Keppel murder case was resumed to-day before Geo. Price, J. P. Dr. Fisher, of Wiarton, the medical officer who held the post mortem on the bodies of the two murdered men, was examined. He simply described the condition in which he found the bodies of Bailey and the hired man after they were removed from the burning building. After the Doctor's evidence had been taken the Crown objected to calling Ellen McClary, as her evidence had been already recorded. There was no new witnesses to be produced, so the Magistrate concluded to commit James King and John Wilson to stand their trial at the Assizes for murder. Ellen McClary was held as a witness, and, being unable to give bail, was committed to jail.

Mineral Poison.

Nothing but pure extracts from plants and roots are used in preparing McGregor's Lung Compound, the modern and now popular remedy for colds, coughs, bronchitis, croup, asthma, and all affections of the throat, lungs and chest. All mineral poisons and dangerous substances avoided, which renders it safe for children or adults. Sold at 50c. and $1.00 per bottle at Thomas S. Petrie's Drug Store

Caught in the Act.

TORONTO, May 1.—The detective force last evening got word that an attempt would be made to fire a building in rear of 421 King street east used as a stable and storeroom. Accordingly Detectives Cuddy and Brown and Acting Detective Cuddy were detailed to watch the fire bugs. About eight o'clock they concealed themselves at the place and about two and a half hours thereafter three young men stealthily approached the stable. One acted as sentry while the others crept under the building and set fire to it by means of some combustible material saturated with coal oil. The fire bugs when about leaving were called upon to halt, but ran in different directions and when escaping down a lane the officers fired. After a long chase the acting detective followed one of the parties into his home where he had got into his bed with his clothes on. It was then found that one of the bullets had taken effect, having entered the fleshy part of the left side and passed round to the right. The ball was extracted and the wound is not considered dangerous. This man gave his name as James Raymond. His fellow incendiaries escaped.

CAMPBELL'S

TONIC ELIXIR

This agreeable yet potent preparation is especially adapted for the relief and cure of that class of disorders attendant upon a low or reduced state of the system, and usually accompanied by Pallor, Weakness and Palpitation of the Heart. Prompt results will follow its use in cases of Sudden Exhaustion arising from Loss of Blood, Acute or Chronic Diseases, and in the weakness that invariably accompanies the recovery from Wasting Fevers. No remedy will give more speedy relief in Dyspepsia or Indigestion, its action on the stomach being that of a gentle and harmless tonic, exciting the organs of digestion to action, and thus affording immediate and permanent relief. The carminative properties of the different aromatics which the Elixir contains render it useful in Flatulent Dyspepsia. It is a valuable remedy for Atonic Dyspepsia, which is apt to occur in persons of a gouty character.

For Impoverished Blood, Loss of Appetite, Despondency, and in all cases where an effective and certain stimulant is required, the Elixir will be found invaluable.

In Fevers of a Malarial Type, and the various evil results following exposure to the cold or wet weather, it will prove a valuable restorative, as the combination of Cinchona Calisaya and Serpentaria are universally recognized as specifics for the above-named disorders.

CAUTION.—Don't experiment with new and untried medicines, but always keep on hand this safe and sure remedy,—Allen's Lung Balsam.

MOTHERS, have you delicate, weakly children, who are always TAKING COLD, and subject to CROUP? Remember, there never was a case of CROUP which did not originate in a COLD.

ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM IS YOUR REMEDY.

Physicians who have failed to cure their patients should try this medicine before they give the case up, as we know many valuable lives have been saved by being persuaded to give it a trial.

DO NOT DESPAIR because all other remedies have failed, but try this remedy, and you will not be deceived. It will cure when all others fail.

Allen's Lung Balsam is now put up in Three Sizes,
Price 25c., 50c., and $1 per Bottle.

The 25c. bottles are put up for the accommodation of all who desire simply a Cough or Croup remedy. Those desiring a remedy for Consumption or any Lung Disease should secure the Large $1 Bottles.

The Baptist Union.

TORONTO, May 1.—The concluding session of the Baptist Union was held yesterday. Dr. Rand, speaking on the Hymn Book question, found fault with the books used at present by the Baptist Church. The modern Hymn Book was inferior to the old Psalmist formerly used. The type was also too small. He had ascertained from leading publishers in England and Scotland that a good Hymn Book could be procured at a retail price of thirty cents. This resolution carried unanimously:

Resolved that the interests of the Baptist Brotherhood throughout the Dominion of Canada would be promoted by a greater uniformity in the use of a suitable Hymn Book by our Churches in worship at the House of God.

A general discussion on the future policy of the Union resulted in favor of perpetuating the Union as it now exists.

The conference closed at 2 o'clock with the Doxology and Benediction.

Bradstreet's reports that 225,000 men in United States industrial centres are actively moving for shorter hours of labour.

Foreign.

The Prince of Wales visited the Colonial Exhibition on Saturday.

The Marquis of Lorne and Princess Louise will return to London this week from a visit to Italy.

The Spanish Commissioners to Panama have reported favorably on the canal and say they are astonished at the work done.

The Earl of Redesdale is dead, aged 81. He was a member of the Royal Commission on the Law of Divorce, and published a pamphlet entitled "The Law of Scripture Against Divorce."

The rumor that Parnell was about to appear in the role of a novelist originated from the fact that a novel entitled "Lady Drusilla" will shortly be published by a gentleman named Parnell who is not, however, the Irish statesman.

A society scandal is hinted at in London that is likely to find its way into the divorce court. The statement is that a husband found the millinery establishment his wife frequently visited was an assignation house and that she went there for an immoral purpose.

Mary Anderson's Receipts.

CHICAGO, May 1.—Mary Anderson closed her Western tour at the Chicago Opera House here to-night. The box receipts for this week were a little more than $14,000 for seven performances. She goes from here to Boston for one week, then to New York for probably one week, which will close her American tour. She will sail for London early in June, and it is her present intention to remain idle for two years, resting and studying. Her largest business for one week was in Philadelphia, and her largest receipts for one performance was at the Olympic in St. Louis, when, at a matinee, $2,600 was taken at the box office. The receipts of her tour of thirty weeks, it is thought, will reach $370,000, of which the actress receives one-third and $200 a night.

Jefferson Davis was given another gigantic ovation at Atlanta, Ga., Sunday, on the occasion of the unveiling of a statue to Senator Hill.

Local News

THE City council meets to-night.

THE senior proprietor of the Mitchell Advocate was badly bitten by his own dog last week.

SERGEANT MAJOR JOHN QUINN of the Royal Grenadiers, Toronto, one of the oldest volunteers in Canada, having joined about 1832, is dead.

Clara (to friend)—Have you heard the good news? Ethel—No, what is it? Clara (triumphantly)—Papa has been bitten by a mad dog, and we are all going to Paris.

IN its report of the military concert in Woodstock the Sentinel-Review says of Mrs. Whitehead, of Guelph, that she is an excellent singer and met with a warm reception.

MR. D. P. CLAPP, of Harriston, has resigned his position as Inspector of the Listowel public school, and Mr. Wm. Alexander has been appointed in his stead.

IT is announced that Mr Thomas Stock of East Flamboro', ex-Warden of the County of Wentworth, has been appointed Collector of Customs at Dundas, in room of the late William Gillespy.

THE St. Mary's Argus is threatened with a libel suit by Mr Edward A. Hogg. This is a Hoggish piece of business, but brother Crabb don't scare worth a cent, and challenges him to go on with his suit.

THE assessors' returns show the population of Hamilton to be 41,280, an increase of 1,295 over last year. The value of assessed property and income is put down at $20,609,068, an increase of $512,290 over last year.

AT the annual meeting of the Perth Caledonian Society of Stratford, Chief Hossie and the other chieftains, manager and officers were re-elected, except the secretary who is succeeded by Mr. Andrew Macnair.

"A" BATTERY will drill to-night. Several of the men complain that on account of the quantity of stores in the gun shed it is impossible for them to drill to advantage. They are desirous of knowing when the meter in the drill shed is to be fixed.

THE I. O. O. F. of Mount Forest, having made arrangements with the Guelph Team of Oddfellows to be present, will hold a grand entertainment in the Town Hall, on Friday evening, May 7th, at which the leading feature will be the expose of an initiation of a member by the Guelph team.

REVISING OFFICER'S COURT.—Judge Drew will to-morrow evening, in the Court House, at seven o'clock, resume his Court of Revision of the voters' list for the city for the Local Legislature. Every Reformer who has been notified that his name has been objected to should not fail to put in an appearance and establish his right to be put on the list.

UNFORTUNATE.—The Durham Review says:—Henry Hill went to Guelph last week, where he had secured a situation, but in getting off the train on arriving, he was in too much of a hurry and jumped while the train was in motion, and we are sorry to hear that in so doing his leg was severely bruised. He returned to Durham, and we hope he may soon be around again. We also hear that he had some of his clothes stolen at the Durham station.

MEDICAL GRADUATES.—Among the list of graduating students in Victoria University from the Toronto School of Medicine Wm. Dow, Junr., son of Mr. Wm. Dow, of Nichol, got the degree of M.D., C.M., with first class honours. Wm. G. Dow, son of Mr. Peter Dow, of Nichol, took the same degree with second class honours. J. M. Nairn, James Rea and Orton J. Grain, all students from Fergus, are also among those who passed. W. J. Walsh, of Arthur, and O. Groves, of Fergus, passed the primary examination.

"PICTURESQUE CANADA."—The most important cases before Judge Sinclair, in the Ninth Division Court Hamilton, were the actions of the Art Publishing Co., against various citizens who had refused to pay for the work. Various defences were set up by the defendants, L. Garland, Dr. Philp, John Rowan, A. McTheal, Geo. H. Snyder, Andrew Leitch and E. B. Feast, but the Judge in each case decided that there was no getting over the written contract signed at the time the book was subscribed for.

ADULTERATED MAPLE SYRUP.—A contemporary says the greatest part of the maple syrup offered on the market is not maple syrup at all. Enterprising dealers come to town, buy common brown sugar at 5 cents per pound, boil it up, add a very small percentage of maple sugar to give it flavor, and bring it in and sell it for 25 cts a quart. A pound of sugar costing 5 cts will make a pint of syrup, which the economical housewife pays a shilling for, and thus the dealer makes an honest living and 150 per cent profit. A person used to the genuine article can easily detect the fraud by tasting the syrup.

PLENTY OF STABLING.—The statement is made in the Toronto World that farmers coming into Guelph are unable to get stabling for their teams. After that people here can have no difficulty in understanding that Anti-Scott Act organs try to help their cause by lying. There was a large attendance of country people in the city on Saturday, yet there was plenty of stabling for double as many teams. In many cases an extra charge was made, which was fully expected, and in most instances was cheerfully paid.

A DYNAMITE SCARE.—On Sunday morning some of the members of Mr. George Whetstone's family, who live on Albert street, better known as Brooklyn, on going to the front door Sunday morning found a mysterious looking package on the verandah with a ticket fastened to it, on which was written in large letters the words, "Look out for dynamite; chew a stick; stick no bills; per W. W." The party who picked up the parcel first dropped it suddenly and very gently and made a rush for the house. It was sometime before an explanation of her fright could be gleaned, when Mr. Whetstone proceeded to the door. Mr. Whetstone for a short time thought over all his ill deeds to find a reason for this diabolical procedure, and his conscience not accusing him, cut the string and opened the parcel, which revealed nothing more dangerous than a quantity of rhubarb. Mr. Whetstone says he can afford to be dynamited in this fashion every day.

The Board of Works Committee is inspecting the streets to-day.

LIEUT. HIGINBOTHAM leaves on Thursday for a short course at the Kingston military school.

REV. GEO. HARVEY, Dundas, the newly appointed curate of St. George's church, has arrived, and preached yesterday morning.

REMEMBER the organ recital in St. George's church this evening. Mrs. Whitehead and the choir will take part in the song service.

THE customs returns for the month of April this year are $7,161.66, being a decrease from the corresponding month of last year of $354.79.

THE ladies who have promised provisions for St. Andrew's Church bazaar will kindly send them in by nine o'clock Wednesday morning, May 5th. d1.

THE lessees' term of the Speed Skating Rink expired on the 1st of May. The proprietors are making arrangements to keep the rink open as usual.

CPT. CLARKE has received a letter from Manchester Unity I. O. O. F., Toronto, stating that the prospects are their excursion here on the 24th will be large.

AFTER the morning services at the Baptist church yesterday, the offer of Prof. Philp as organist of the church was almost unanimously accepted by a vote of the church members.

The Rev. Mr. Weir who has just completed his course at McMaster Hall, preached in the Baptist Church yesterday. He has been engaged to fill the pulpit of this church and will be ordained shortly.

TROUT FISHING.—Several sports in the city, Saturday being the first day of trout fishing, embraced the opportunity and went out to the trout streams in the immediate neighborhood. The only catches reported are those of James Person who secured about one hundred, and Wm. Holliday and David Shaw who caught forty-one. This morning Adam Robertson and James Goldie, jr., left for Shelburne. They expect to bring home a big lot of the speckled beauties.

A NEW INVENTION.—Mr. L. Walker, of Raymond's sewing machine manufactory is rather an inventive genius. All along discomfort has been experienced in not having communication between the brick factory and the office. The other week Mr. Walker set to work and a three inch zinc pipe with five elbows was laid about an inch under ground for this purpose. The distance is about 100 yards and the experiment acts most satisfactorily, a call from the factory being heard distinctly in every part of he office. The sound is far more distinct than that heard by the telephone connecting the stone factory with the shop.

BASEBALL.

The First of the Season—The Guelphs vs. The Hamiltons.

The Guelphs, with the assistance of Thompson and McArthur as a battery, played the Hamiltons a splendid game on Saturday, they only having two errors, Maddock and Cockman played one of their old time games. Cockman also did some good batting and base-running. The score was 4 to 2.

NOTES FROM THE "SPEC" ON THE GAME.

Little Tommy Cockman had the distinguished honor of making the solitary hit made by the Guelphs. He did some exceedingly clever base running too.

The Scott Act was in force in Guelph when the team left home. Which may account for the lightness of their error column.

The Guelphs act much as if they could make the Canadian league—which the same is the Maple Leafs—hustle, as it were.

Brown of the Guelphs is a new man. He moves about right, and will be a good man when he learns more about those balls that twist.

If Charley Maddock's Saturday's exhibition is a fair sample of his present century's play, the Torontos will have him in the team every game.

The Guelphs fielded magnificently, and ran bases audaciously—when they got a chance.

NOTES.

Charley Maddock took his departure for Toronto this morning. Tommy Cockman starts for Chicago this afternoon. Thus are the Guelphs weakened.

Owen Williams and Wm. George were the first Maple Leaf players to arrive, they arrived this morning. They have the appearance of ball players. The remainder of the team will report to-night or to-morrow.

The Royal Oaks are practicing nightly. From present appearance they are likely to give a good account of themselves during the coming season.

A BATCH OF FIRES.

Port Elgin, Southampton, and Lindsay Visitations.

SOUTHAMPTON, April 30.—A fire was discovered this morning about five o'clock on the premises occupied by W. H. Sparling as a tin shop. After the flames were under control an examination disclosed a lot of old nets saturated with kerosene and other combustible material stretched from the cellar where a barrel of coal oil was thrown to the partition.

LINDSAY, April 30.—The Scugog paper mill here, owned by Patterson BROS. & Wilson, of Montreal, was totally destroyed by fire to-night. The fire originated in the beater room, caused by a lamp exploding. The loss is about $35,000: insured for $20,000. The mill was running at its full capacity, and its destruction throws a large number of workmen out of employment.

PORT ELGIN, April 30.—A most disastrous fire occurred here last night, originating in the north-east corner of J. & J. George's large flour mills, totally destroying the mill with all the contents. The fire then communicated itself to the coal sheds of McLaren, George, & Co., but was kept under control there. The brick residence of C. Carroll, occupied by Mr S. Roether, also caught fire and fared badly. The residence of Robert Strachan next caught, and was considerably damaged. A moderate northeast wind was blowing at the time, but sufficiently strong to carry burning shingles a quarter of a mile, setting fire to the roofs of five different places, but these happily were extinguished without doing any damage. J. & J. George, lose $18,000, insured for $16,400.

Foul Play Suspected.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., May 1.—The body of a woman found in the whirlpool by some boys yesterday afternoon, was taken in charge by Coronor Lewis and placed in the Town Hall. The only piece of clothing on it was a cap hanging at the back of the head, the string being pinned together under the chin. The body was identified as that of old Mrs. Craine, Chippewa, Ont. She was seen around the town on Wednesday last, and left her trunk at the house of Mr. Gray, saying she was going to Stamford. There was a deep cut in her forehead, from which blood freely oozes. One of her legs is broken in two places. Experts claim that the body had only been in the water six hours, and the indications are that she met her death by foul means. Under the circumstances the coronor empanelled a jury, which adjourned for one week. By that time it is hoped some light may be thrown upon how she met her death.

Eight Hours Work.

Saturday the eight-hour a day system came into force more or less generally in Chicago and other large cities of the United States. In some instances slight reduction is made in wages, in others nine hours pay is given for eight hours work, and in others again the reduction in the period of labor is granted without any decrease of pay at all. At Chicago it is estimated that fully thirty thousand men have already obtained the concession. Others have made the demand and threatened to strike if their wishes are not acceded to. Among the trades in Chicago to whom concessions have been made are brewers, bakers, furniture workers, clothiers, cable railway employes, coopers, cigarmakers, bricklayers, stonemasons, slaters, printers, tobacco factory hands, packing and provision employes and boot and shoe hands.

Dying From His Wounds.

MONTREAL, May 1.—Godfra Liviolette, warden of St. Vincent De Paul Penitentary, who was so badly wounded during the revolt of a week ago, is reported to be dying. Magistrate Dugas went to the prison to take his deposition this evening. It now transpires that instead of the warden having been shot by the prisoners he was shot down by the guards themselves. The Dominion Inspector of Penitentiaries is now making an investigation. It is alleged that the warden was shot purposely.

Drowned in a Mill Pond.

WINDSOR MILLS, Que., May 1.—Last evening a young man named Fred MacLean, employed in Hopkins' mill, started to take a boat across a mill pond. The boat leaked, and the young man, seemingly under the impression that it was about to sink, sprang into the water and was drowned.

THE CANADIAN METHODIST MAGAZINE FOR MAY.—Contents—There are three striking illustrated articles in this number. "On the Erie" describes the picturesque scenery of that famous road. "Landmarks of History" records some of the epochal events in the world's progress. "Among the Eskimo," by the Rev. W. S. Blackstock, summarizes recent Arctic discovery. The illustrations of these articles, especially of the first two, are very fine. The Rev. L. N. Beaudry, himself a cultured French-Canadian, contributes a timely paper on the "Relations of the French and English in Canada." John Macdonald, Esq., concludes his account of the strange variety of characters who, on a strange variety of business, visit a merchant's office. An elaborate article by the Rev. J. S. Ross, M. A., discusses a proposed Sustentation Fund for the Methodist Church. The story of "Jan Vedder's Wife" continues to grow in interest. A steel portrait of the late Dr. Rice, with memorial tribute by leading ministers, and other articles of special interest, are in preparation.

American.

Chicago pork packers, employing 25,000 to 50,000 men, are asked to adopt the eight hours a day system.

Mr. Brooks, of Phelps, N.Y., says he has discovered another comet.

A special despatch published at Chicago asserts that chinch bugs have appeared in the wheat fields near Centralia, Ill., in immense numbers, and growers are fearful that the promising crop of this year will be entirely destroyed.

The casualties in the late bloody raid by Apaches in Arizona as far as known to date include nineteen killed, several wounded, one girl a prisoner, a vast amount of property destroyed and a great number of head of stock carried off.

Alexander Ribbola, an Italian 62 years of age, and John Hepsman, a German hostler, 60 years of age, quarrelled in Chicago on Sunday. Ribbola's son rushed between them and was killed by his father. The latter went to his room and shot himself, dying instantly.

Canadian.

The Y. M. C. A., of Ottawa, are to erect a $20,000 building.

It is stated that the Quebec Provincial elections will take place in June.

The C. P. R. workshops, Montreal, were damaged by fire on Sunday to the extent of $15,000.

Thomas Pell and wife have been sent to the penitentiary, at Belleville assizes, for arson. They are an aged couple.

The Queen's Own Rifles celebrated the anniversary of the Cut Knife Creek engagement by attending church parade Sunday afternoon.

The population of St. Thomas, as shown by the assessment returns is now 10,127. The assessable property has increased upwards of one and a quarter million dollars in a year.

During the week ending on Saturday eighteen million feet of lumber were loaded from the piling grounds below the Chaudiere falls at Ottawa into six barges, one thousand men being employed in the work.

A convict at Kingston penitentiary who attempted to escape on Saturday was so frightened by a bullet striking a rock in front of him that he fell down and lay still till he was captured.

Seventy-eight students graduated from Queen's University, Kingston, this year, twenty more than the highest number in any former year. The revenue also shows a gratifying growth, having increased from $7,000 in 1870 to $29,000 for the current year.

The Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Association, at its meeting in Kingston last week, passed a resolution protesting against the change in the duty on raw sugar, on the ground that it gave all the profit to the refiner and left none for the grocer.

Wm. O'Neal went into a room below Moody's roller mills, Ridgetown, Saturday evening to grind a pair of shears. He was found dead Sunday morning, horribly mangled by a shaft, having been caught by the belt when coupling it from the main shaft to the grindstone.

MR. ROBT. SMALL, for over three months clerk at the European Hotel, left to-day for London, from whence he will probably proceed to his parents' home in British Columbia.

THE Committee on Fat Stock of the Ontario Agriculture and Arts Association in conjunction with the Guelph Fat Stock Club Committee on Saturday revised the prize list for the Ontario Fat Stock Show to be held here in December. The prize list will be a large one.

BAGGAGE ROOM ACCOMODATION.—Since the first of May, when the Royal and Wellington Hotels were closed up, commercial travellers have found it impossible to obtain a proper place to show their samples. On Saturday no less than seven of them went away without opening their stock. This difficulty will now be obviated, as Mr. John Kirkpatrick, the former obliging clerk of the Royal, has rented eight rooms in the hotels for that purpose, and is having them fitted up to-day. He is well acquainted with the commercial men and their requirements, and will no doubt give them every satisfaction.

The City Band.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—A report has been circulated through the city, stating that the City Band have not fulfilled their engagement with the Council, in regard to playing on the stands. Certain persons have been mean enough to carry this report to several of the aldermen, in order to prejudice the interests of the organization. The Band have carried out the agreement so far as they understand it. During the season the band shall perform each week from the 24th of May till the middle of September, not more than twenty times in all, including holidays. This they have done, and in some cases have refused engagements in order to fill their contract. And each season they have performed more than the required number of times. Last season they played publicly every night for nearly two weeks, when preparing themselves for the Waterloo Tournament. If the band have not fulfilled the agreement then the only excuse is that they failed last season to put the proper number of men on the stand, as I am informed the contract calls for from 18 to 20 men. Seven went to the Rink, the remainder payed on the stand. On an average there was 17 on the stand and never less than 15, while several evenings there were 24. While the men on the stand carried out the contract, the remainder, in a sense, gave their services gratuitously to the city, because the money they earned was devoted to the bandmaster's salary and the new instruments. If those men had not been allowed to play at the Rink the organization would still be deep in debt. But in allowing these seven to perform there, the full debt of the band has been paid, and consequently the city received more real value from the members at the Rink than from those on the stand, or in other words, by allowing two or three men short of the number called for, the band have, in order to carry out the agreement faithfully and be entitled to the grant of $200, spent in the past year over $2,400. In the face of these figures can any person truthfully say they have not carried out the agreement, when the organization has been compelled to expend twelve times the amount of the sum granted, in order to be entitled to the amount, for which the agreement calls. Respectfully yours,

JAS. HOUGH, Sec. City Band.

Guelph, May 3, 1886.

Dental.

To the Editor of the Mercury.

SIR,—I find a report current this morning to the effect that I have been appointed Inspector under the Scott Act, or in other words, a whiskey detective. I wish to contradict this report, as there is no truth in the statement.

Yours, etc., E. YOUNG.

Guelph, 3rd May, 1886.

On April 7 there were 533 men and 41 women confined in the Kingston Penitentiary. The look contract employed 87 men, tailor and shoe shop 70, carpenter, paint and tin shop 28, blacksmith and machine shop 22, stonecutter's shed 39 men. Fifteen men were employed as masons, 15 in general jobbing, 7 in wash house, 25 in drying room, 18 in dining hall and kitchen, 17 keeping wings in order, 6 in bakery, 29 constantly in quarry, 26 in farm and gardens.

The Inch Arran Ticket Frauds

The Inch Arran Hotel scandal begins to have an ugly look. The Public Accounts Committee of the House of Commons were engaged two days last week in inquiring into the affair. Sometime ago, in referring to it, we stated that there were strong suspicions that the Intercolonial Railway was being used for the benefit of Collingwood Schreiber, chief engineer of Government railways and Sir Charles Tupper's partner in many jobs. The hotel is a summer resort at Dalhousie on the Bay of Chaleur, and it was to bring custom to the house that free tickets were issued over the Intercolonial. Among the other witnesses examined was a Mr. Cormier, a former clerk in the Intercolonial office at Moncton. He produced the stubs of tickets issued by the agent of the road in Montreal to Dalhousie and return. The tickets were marked "nil," meaning that the agent returned no money for them, the only explanation being that they were given on account of the Inch Arran hotel in accordance with instructions from the Chief Passenger Agent. Twenty-five of those tickets were issued, the total pay of these being about $200. No such advantage was given to any other hotels. The sales of tickets were identified by the Montreal agent as having been issued by him on account of the Inch Arran Hotel. These tickets were issued in June, 1884, and strange to say they were paid for on the 4th of February, 1886, the very day on which the Moncton Transcript published the account of these frauds. This fact in itself is the best possible evidence that the railroad was being used for the purpose of carrying passengers free to Schreiber's hotel, and that not a cent of the passage money would have been paid but for the exposure of the frauds. It was hoped by the payment of this money nearly a year and a half after the tickets had been issued and used, that the affair would be hushed up. But the revelations brought out by the Committee make the frauds even worse than if the money had not been paid at all. We cannot help remarking on the disgraceful conduct of the three ministers, Messrs. Bowell, Chapleau and White, who tried to browbeat Mr. Davies and prevent him from eliciting full information from the witnesses before the Committee. The actions of these gentlemen in trying to block the proceedings and keep back information naturally confirms the suspicion that these frauds were committed.

The Fishery Question.

The non-renewal of the fishery clauses of the Washington Treaty has already given rise to some trouble between the Canadian and American fishermen, and will be sure to give rise to a great deal more. Our readers will bear in mind that these clauses ceased to have effect on the 1st of July last, and that the United States Government gave due notice that it did not intend to renew them. Our Government at Ottawa affected to believe that an amicable and satisfactory arrangement might be made with the Government on pretty much the same lines as the old Treaty, and very foolishly we think, on the expiry of the Treaty made a temporary six months' arrangement, allowing the American fishermen during that time to fish wherever they liked in our waters. But our fishermen had no such reciprocal privileges, for they had to pay $2 of duty on every barrel of fish they sent to the States. The six months expired, but the United States Congress showed no disposition to renew the old Treaty, or even to open negotiations with the view of making a fresh agreement. On the contrary, its Senate refused to appoint a Commission for that purpose, and matters are now as they were before the Reciprocity Treaty of 1854, which remained in force till 1866, and before the Washington Treaty of 1872, which remained in force until the 1st of July, 1885.

Previous to 1854, and between 1866 and 1872, during which periods the treaties referred to were not in force, the fishermen of both countries were supposed to be guided by the Treaty of 1818, which was a settlement made of all matters in dispute after the war of 1812 between Great Britain and the United States. The following is the principal article of the fishery clause of this Treaty;—"And the United States hereby renounce forever any liberty heretofore enjoyed or claimed by the inhabitants thereof to take, dry, or cure fish on or within three marine miles of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, or harbours of his Britannic Majesty's dominions in America not included within the above mentioned limits; provided, however, that American fishermen shall be admitted to enter such bays or harbours for the purpose of shelter and of repairing damages therein, of purchasing wood and obtaining water, and for no other purpose whatever. But they shall be under such restrictions as may be necessary to prevent their taking, drying, or curing fish therein, or in any other manner whatever abusing the privileges hereby reserved to them."

The above article was fairly acted on by the American fishermen for a good many years, but by and bye they set up the claim that they had a right to enter the large bays to fish, that the three mile limit should follow the indentations of the coast, and that this limit should not count from headland to headland. This was what caused the trouble before, and what is likely to cause trouble again even though the decisions of the United States Supreme Court in cases arising between States of the Union have settled the headland question by affirming that the three-mile limit must be measured from a line drawn from headland to headland, even in cases where the headlands are twenty miles apart. But in the matter between the United States and Canada the public men of the former country and the fishermen try to put a different construction on the article of Treaty given above, and the latter also ignore its provisions in other respects, of which we have already had several instances. Hence arises the necessity for again establishing our marine police and employing cruisers to enforce the rights of Canada in her own waters. But in spite of this, and as in former times, there will be endless trouble which will tend to create and keep alive a feeling of irritation between the two countries.

SENATOR PLUMB is in the dumps because he has not been appointed to Sir Alexander Campbell's place in the Cabinet, and failing that because Sir John has not selected him to lead the Senate during Sir Alexander's absence through illness. But, perhaps, Sir John knows that Plumb has been measured and found wanting long ago by even his Tory confreres, and that whenever he rises to speak the most of them instantly leave the Chamber.

THE Government at Ottawa show their unfriendliness in every way to the working man and wage earner. They and their friends on Wednesday did all they could to defeat Mr. Edgar's bill to secure the wages of employees of insolvent banks and trading companies. The bill is a very necessary one to secure payment of wages to workingmen who may be in the employ of corporations which become insolvent and it had been favorably reported upon by the Banking and Commerce Committee; but simply because it was in the hands of a Liberal member the Ministers sought for some reason to throw it out. The sense of the House was, however, against them and they, afraid to kill the measure, succeeded in adjourning the debate. In this way they may succeed in preventing the passing of the bill this session. If they do so they will be held responsible for postponing a measure which is framed solely in the interest of employees.

THE Trent Valley Canal scheme was again ventilated in Parliament the other day. In referring to it some time ago, when a deputation was at Ottawa urging upon the Government to spend more money on the enterprise, we stated that it was a huge job got up in 1878 for the purpose of bribing the people in the constituences interested. It was again in 1882 held out as a bait to secure Government support, for the real truth is that the people in that quarter want money spent among them and they care more for this than for the canal, which in these days of railway competition would be of very little benefit to the country.

Silk and Dress Goods Department

The general opinion is that in novelty of design and richness of fabric, the goods are such as are shown in the best houses of New York. Then we have all the newest styles of Trimmings to match every shade of goods, which makes it a real pleasure for ladies to make selections for their toilets. In Dressmaking our patrons are assured of getting the most graceful and stylish garments, made by one of the best cutters and fitters in Ontario.

MILLINERY AND MANTLE ROOMS

We feel assured in saying that no lady who has had the opportunity to make comparison of the several establishments in the city, will admit, that for variety, elegance, taste and ability displayed in the making, quantity and value, there is anything that will at all compare with ours. The high and well merited reputation of our Manager, Miss Manny, the extent of our purchases, and the special attention we pay to this Department, are winning us hosts of new customers, and we cordially invite all ladies who are not already patrons, to give us a trial.

So much for Dressmaking and Millinery. Just let us branch off for a few words about

LACE CURTAINS.

Our Importations directly from Headquarters are very large. We show designs not to be found elsewhere, and our prices are very low.
Beautiful goods in
Scotch Lace Curtains, 3, 3½, and 4 yds. long from $1.00 to $5.00 per pair.
Nottingham Lace Curtains, same lengths, from $1.50 to $7.50 per pair.
Madras Lace Curtains, very rich and elegant, from $6.50 to $9.50 per pair.
Square dealing, pleasant treatment. Terms cash.

Kindly Accept our most Hearty Thanks.

You have done us good and we are properly grateful. You have seen fit by your purchases to increase our sales by many thousands of dollars beyond what it has been in the past.

We have striven and will continue to strive to deserve the confidence placed in us.

It is only by going to the foreign markets that we can procure goods to the very best advantage. To do this, it is necessary to buy in very large amounts. So much is this the case that there are very few retail houses in Canada who can import to advantage, but those who can handle the quantities and are acquainted with the old country markets are on a level with the wholesale houses in this country from whom other merchants buy their goods. Now we claim that we are selling many lines of goods at just the figures that merchants buying in this country pay for them. Then why pay two profits when you can save one by buying directly from importers.

Our Stock is all beautifully New and Fresh and of the very Latest Styles.

NEW ARRIVALS,

Just to hand a large shipment of Black Dress Goods in all the newest effects.

A magnificent assortment of Flouncing Laces in Oriental and Spanish in Black, White, Cream and Baize.

A visit to our Store will interest you and it will give us much pleasure to show our goods, as we are convinced styles and prices are right.

GENTLEMEN,

We have engaged in the department you are interested in, the services of Mr. J. R. McKENZIE, a man we can safely say unequalled in his line in the Dominion. We know what we assert in this matter, and we are certain that he will give the very best satisfaction when you favor us with an order. Our styles and prices are right and our fits are the best.

CHAPTER XXVII.

LOST IN THE FOG.

Helen sat alone in the Rectory drawing-room; it was a dim, misty afternoon, and she had not yet been out. In the morning it had rained, and Mr. Longworthy had on that account declined to take her with him when he left home after breakfast. He had not yet come back. Mrs. Longworthy was busy with some parish work, and Helen was all alone. She laid down the book which she had been reading, went to the window and looked out. It was not late, and though the gloom of the day made it darker than usual, there was light enough for anyone to go for a walk who had as little dislike to, or distrust of, lonely country roads as Helen, so she went upstairs and dressed herself for walking. Before going out she rang for the housemaid and bade her, should Mrs. Longworthy come home first, say that she had gone out, but was not going far, and should be back before long.

She went out of the garden and then stood still to consider in which direction she should go. She was glad to be out; fresh air was a necessity to her, and she was fond of walking alone. She had said so once to Mr. Longworthy, and his lips had twisted into a smile as he said that he quite agreed with her; in more senses than one she was fond of walking alone. She thought of this now, and it was with a smile upon her face that she at last set out upon the road she had chosen, a high road leading over the hills to a village that lay upon the other side. Helen knew that when she got to a certain point, she would be able to see the lights of this village twinkling in the valley below, while if she turned her head she would see the lights of Miller's Gate dotted all over the hillside. She was fond of this walk, and though she had sometimes encountered a tramp on his way from one village to the other, she had never been in any way annoyed.

As she walked on, her eyes wandered quite lovingly over the country; in spite of the fact that in Miller's Gate she had known deep trouble, she could not help growing fond of it. Her heart turned instinctively to the hills and found comfort there. So now, though this lonely little moorland village was looking by no means attractive, and to a stranger would probably have appeared a place from which to flee in horror, Helen felt her heart grow warm as she thought of it.

As she went on, the road grew higher and higher. The mist seemed to have lifted. She was in the humor for walking, and she thought she would extend her stroll until it was time to return to tea. There was not a sound to be heard; the high hills rose around her and shut her in from the world. She might spend her whole life in Miller's Gate and no one would know of her existence. She had made no attempt to hide herself; everyone knew her as Mrs. Moore, and she was as safe as if she had wrapped herself in the mystery of half a dozen aliases. She walked on steadily, thinking of one thing and another, when she heard the sound of footsteps coming behind her. It was evidently a man who was walking; that long, measured, swinging step could not belong to a woman. A moment later, as he gained upon her, she recognized the footstep of Dr. Holme, and she made a little grimace, as she thought—

"He will give me a lecture for being out so late."

She had seen the doctor once since he had called at the Rectory and startled her by his agitation; as on their second interview he had appeared as usual, and made no mention of that o her time, she had concluded that he was disturbed about something in no way concerning herself, and had straightway forgotten all about it.

The minute after she had recognised his step he was upon her, and saying in a questioning tone—

"Mrs. Moore?"

"Good evening, Doctor," she replied, turning round and holding out her hand.

"It is late for you to be out alone," he said as he took it.

"I do not think it is much after half-past four."

"Half-past four is late for ladies at this time of year."

"Really," she said smiling, "I believe you would confine us altogether to the house if you could. I have met you at all hours of the day, and you generally had an objection of some kind to make."

"You are imprudent also in your choice of roads. This is probably the only one in the neighborhood on which you run a risk of meeting beggars or tramps; it is really not safe, though, I hope, you have been fortunate enough not to meet any."

"I am sorry to disappoint you. I have met several; not to-day, but I seldom come up here without meeting at least one able-bodied pauper."

He was silent for a moment, then he said,

"I am going to make a suggestion which I hope will not be disagreeable to you."

"Let me hear it."

"I have to call at the house on the top of the hill, just where the road begins to dip. Will you come so far with me, wait for me, and accept my company back to Miller's Gate?"

"You speak as though you were asking something which you had every reason to suppose I should refuse. On the contrary, I shall be very glad; only shall you be very long?"

"I do not suppose so. Why?"

"I must get back to the Rectory by tea time. I left word I would be home by then, and if I am not they will be uneasy."

"I will not keep you beyond your time."

"There is another thing—where am I to wait? The people here so dislike strangers coming into their houses, and I do not know these people at all."

"It will be all right if you will not mind sitting in their kitchen."

"I should be fanciful indeed if I could object to the kitchens here, with their slated floors that look like grey marble, and their huge fires which are reflected from a whole wallful of brilliant metal dishes and dishcovers."

They were silent after this. The charm of Helen's solitary walk was broken; even though she did not dislike the Doctor's presence her thoughts were turned forcibly from their former channel, and began to run on Miller's Gate and the people she knew there. Dr. Holme on his side was perfectly content. He was walking with the only woman for whose society he had ever felt more than a passing wish, and he was sure of having her with him for some time. He promised himself a holiday in the evening a holiday which he would spend at the Rectory, again in her society. He felt quite happy and youthful at the thought. He did not care particularly to talk; he was quite willing to be silent, and to think his own thoughts.

Before they reached the house at the top of the hill it was quite dark, and out of the darkness rose up a man's figure, and a voice half-surly and half-whining asked if they had "a copper to spare"

"Thank heaven, I am with you," said Holme as they walked on.

"Do you really think I should have run any risk if I had met him alone?" she asked with some curiosity.

"Probably; you would have been alone and very much smaller and weaker than himself, two very good reasons for being attacked. If you had given him anything he would have wrested your purse from you; had you refused, he would have forcibly possessed himself of every valuable you had about you."

"I have none as it happens, I left everything, purse, watch, and rings, at home."

Things of Beauty are a Joy Forever,

And any one who inspects the Carpets of Messrs. Clark & Thompson, St. George's Square, will have no hesitation in pronouncing them things of beauty. It is little over four years ago since Mr. Clark, a practical weaver from Dundee, Scotland, arrived in Canada and entered into partnership with Mr. Thompson. They started on Wyndham-street with one loom, manufacturing rag carpets. The keen business perception of Messrs. Clark & Thompson saw that there was likely to be money in the manufacture of Woolen Carpets and ventured the risk. The undertaking succeeded beyond expectation, and it was soon found necessary to remove to the larger premises now occupied by the firm on the west side of St. George's Square. There another extension was made to the business, namely, that of importing all kinds of carpet for retail purposes. The show room of Messrs. Clarrk & Thompson is now well worth looking at. Superior wool carpet, medium wool carpet, all kinds of union carpet, tapestry, brussels, three ply, &c., are on exhibition, besides oil cloths, all widths of stair carpets, many of the patterns being chaste and elegant. Recently they have entered into household furnishings and carry a large stock of bedding, taablings, cretonnes, fringes, blinds, &c. The front of the store since the firm took possession, has been greatly altered and decorated, so that it looks like another building. Energy and enterprise deserve support.

"Then he would have left you by the wayside half dead, in revenge for having cheated his expectations."

"I did not think you had it in you to talk so much nonsense," she said composedly. "I fancied all your utterances were marked by the strictest adhesion to truth and common sense."

"You should always be prepared to have your preconceived ideas on any subject overthrown."

"Quite true; from which I suppose you acknowledge that what you have just said was not common sense."

"You are too quick," was his only reply.

"Isn't this the house to which you were coming?"

"It is. Now, will you come in? The household consists only of the man and his wife, who is my patient. You need not fear any annoyance; they have no children."

She followed him into the large, clean, comfortable kitchen of the country, where they found a man smoking, who stood up at their entrance. The doctor exchanged a few words with him and then went upstairs, leaving Helen alone with her host.

EIGHT HOURS A DAY.

A Great Number of Strikes in Progress in the States.

CHICAGO, May 1.—May 1st was the date set for inaugurating the eight hour day for wage workers in Chicago. About 4,000 men from the lumber yards and lumber mills formed in procession and marched through several streets, shouting and yelling, to a hall where addresses were delivered in Bohemian, Polish, German and English. One speaker advocated the burning of every yard the proprietor of which refused to concede to the demands of the men. The procession dissolved at about one o'clock, without causing any damage. The lumber owners express anxiety as to the safety of their property, and are settling about means for the better protection of the yards. The Special Committee of the Lumbermen's Exchange to which was referred the demands of the men for a reduction of hours to eight, appointed a sub committee to notify the men on Monday that they could return to work at the former basis of ten hours per day for ten hours' pay. This decision affects the largest body of workmen now on strike, they numbering fully 12,000. They are composed largely of Bohemians, Poles and Germans who cannot speak English and are considered an easily excited and dangerous class. Detectives circulated among them and report the leaders are making the most incendiary threats as to their intentions in case of a refusal of their demands. Their orators declared they would apply the torch and would make open war if the yards did not grant their demands.

NEW YORK, May 1.—Union Square is ordinarily rather desolate at night, but 15,000 people, armed with banners, torches and colored lanterns, accompanied by brass bands, and cheering and shouting for shorter hours of labor, transformed the place this evening. The workingmen of New York and Brooklyn met to declare themselves unmistakeably for more time to devote to their families and to amusement and mutual improvement.

Below is given a list of the strikes reported by the associated press on Saturday, all, unless otherwise stated, being for eight hours a day:

Baltimore—Carpenters for $2 a day to August 1, and $2.50 thereafter and eight hours a day.

Chicago—Lumber yards and planing mills, 12,000 men; Lark Soap Factory, numbering 700; the freight handlers on all the 25 railways except the Baltimore and Ohio, 3000 men; 25 Swedes at Wabash elevator; 23 employees of Swift's slaughter house. Fully 35,000 men, all told, are now on strike in Chicago.

Cincinnati—Furniture hands, 500; Brunswick Balke Billiard Co., 100.

East St. Louis—Waterworks employees 200 strong.

Jersey City, N.J.—Machine shops, about 2000.

Milwaukee—Brewers and malsters, 3000 affected.

Minneapolis—Plumbers.

Pittsburg and Alleghany—Nearly every furniture factory, over 6000 out. Carpenters and stonecutters.

Philadelphia—Betz brewery.

Portland, Me.—Cigarmakers, for an advance in wages.

St. Louis—Plumbers, 200 strong; tobacco employees, for an advance in wages; Glendale Zinc Works, 200 strong.

St. Paul, Minn.—Plumbers.

The strike among the sugar refining men is practically over, because the men have actually been starved into submission.

Eight thousand men demonstrated in favour of the eight hour movement at St. Louis on Saturday. Jay Gould was hanged in effigy.

The cigarmakers of Rochester, N.Y., commenced to work on the eight hour system on Saturday. The manufacturers do not object as the men are paid by the piece.

At a meeting of the Western Boot and Shoe Manufacturer's Association it was resolved to grant eight hours for eight, hours pay for two weeks and then adopt a revised scale of prices.

McGregor's Speedy Cure.

When we say McGregor's Speedy Cure is the only perfect cure for dyspepsia, liver complaints, indigestion and impure blood, we are telling plain facts, of which hundreds upon hundreds can testify who have been restored to perfect health by its use. We would therefore advise you strongly if you are a subject of any of the above troubles to give McGregor's Speedy Cure a trial and be convinced. It is sold in 50c. and $1.00 bottles at Thomas S. Petrie's Drug Store.

A NOTORIOUS TOWNSHIP.

Keppel the Scene of an Attempted Assassination.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., May 1.—A dastardly attempt was made last night to take the life of Joseph Ramsay, jr., a highly respectable resident of this town and a blacksmith by trade. It appears that Ramsay went out in the vicinity of Cruikshank Postoffice, Township of Keppel, Friday morning, with the intention of collecting some outstanding accounts, and on his way home, coming through what is commonly known as Long Swamp, about six miles from here, was suddenly assaulted by three men, who rushed from the bush. One man fronted the horse and said: "That's one of them; go for him," evidently taking Ramsay for one of the detectives who worked up the murder case a few weeks ago. Ramsay says the men from behind fired three shots, one ball going through his hat, another grazing his side, while a third passed through his arm. He now fell from the rig and remained unconscious for some time. He afterwards made his way to the nearest hotel and was conveyed home. His wounds are not considered dangerous. The ball in the elbow has not yet been reached. This daring attempt at life-taking, occurring so soon after the murder near Oxenden, with its revolting details, caused intense excitement, and the public are loud in their demands for a thorough investigation of this new case. Ramsay is unable to give the slightest clue to the perpetrators. There can be no doubt, however, but the men who did it belong to a gang of desperadoes who appear to have taken up their abode here, and are determined to keep up their criminal conduct and defy all law and order.

Newspaper Law

1. A postmaster is required to give notice by letter (returning the paper does not answer the law) when a subscriber does not take his paper out of the office, and state the reason for its not being taken. Any neglect to do so makes the postmaster responsible to the publisher for payment.

2. If any person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay all arrearages, or the publisher may continue to send it until payment is made, and collect the whole amount whether it is taken from the office or not. There can be no legal discontinuance until the payment is made.

3. Any person who takes a paper from the post-office, whether directed to his name or another, or whether he has subscribed or not, is responsible for the pay.

4.—If a subscriber orders his paper to be stopped at a certain time, and the publisher continues to send, the subscriber is bound to pay for it if he takes it it out of the post office. This proceeds upon the ground that a man must pay for what he uses.

5. The courts have decided that refusing to take newspers and periodicals from the post office, or removing and leaving them uncalled for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

Ovations to Jeff Davis.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 30.—Jeff. Davis arrived here this afternoon and was met by a crowd estimated at 50,000, which cheered him wildly. The ex-President received an ovation at all the stations between Montgomery and Atlanta, and made some brief speeches. The children of Atlanta, numbering not less than 8,000, were in a line a mile long from the depot to Mrs. Hill's residence, where Mr. Davis will remain during his visit, and scattered flowers before the ex-President's carriage. Two thousand ex-Confederate veterans followed the carriage. The city, which is full of visitors, is beautifully decorated, and during the ceremony of unveiling the Hill statue to-morrow all stores will be closed.

Division Court.

Judge Chadwick held the Division Court this morning. One of case of interest came up.

RUSSELL VS. SUTTON.—This was an action brought by William Russell against John Sutton, his former foreman, to recover a balance of over forty dollars due on goods taken by the defendant from the factory of the plaintiff. The facts of the case as disclosed in court are that Mr. Russell in January last was in financial difficulty and owed the defendant over eighty dollars for wages. The defendant with the intention of seeing himself paid took certain goods from the factory which the plaintiff claimed were worth $42.95 more than he owed the defendant for wages. The defendant claimed that he bought the goods taken from one Maddock then in Mr Russell's employ. His Honor held that Maddock had no authority to sell the goods as the defendant acknowledged that he could not get them from Mr Russell had he been there. Judgement reserved.

An earthquake shock of sufficiet violence to sway houses and startle the occupants occurred at Athens, O., at 9:30 o'clock Sunday. The shock was felt at other places in Ohio.

THE STRIKES CONTINUE.

Great Rioting in Chicago—The Police Fight the Mob.

CHICAGO, May 3.—At 2 o'clock this afternoon over 6,000 men, lumber shovers, planing mill hands and factory men assembled on the prairie at Robey street and the "Black Road" to hold a mass meeting. The meeting was addressed by Socialists. One German Speaker particularly inflamed his hearers. He said to them: "Quit the Kights of Labor, they will never do you any good. Join the Central Labor Union, which will help you to you rights and freedom. Anarchy is the only way for the workingmen to break the chains of slavery in which they are bound by the capitalists. It is your only way to freedom. With a revolver in one hand and your knife in the other and bombs in your pockets march on to revolution and freedom. Workingmen must starve together and stand together and fight together for their rights."

After listening to inflammatory harangues the crowd began to throw stones at the surrounding buildings. Then, as if moved by one spirit, the six thousand men started toward McCormick's Reaper Works, half a mile west. It was about 3:20 o'clock when the crowd arrived there. The mob met the workmen coming from their benches carrying their dinner-pale. Immediately they began an attack on McCormick's employes, applying vile epithets and stoning them without mercy. McCormick's crowd retreated within the gates, but one of their number, who was so unfortunate as to be left behind, fell into the hands of the assailants and was nearly beaten to death. The attacking party now entered the gates and pelted the windows and walls of the factory.

Superintendent Averill, of McCormick's works, telephoned for police. On arriving at the scene of the riot, the police charged upon the strikers, using revolvers and clubs. The crowd scattered in all directions. The strikers shortly reorganized in force and moved once more toward McCormick's. The police telephoned to Lieut. Crooke, of the West 18th District. He soon appeared on the scene with another waggon load of officers. Immediately after the arrival of the patrol the mob again attacked the factory hurling stones and sticks, shouting and carrying on in the wildest manner possible. Another detachment of police came up almost immediately and opened a brisk fire with their revolvers, apparently shooting high and without noticeable effect. The mob seeing that none of their number was injured simply jeered at the officers, but Capt. O'Donnell and a squad of twenty-six men from Twelfth Street appearing on the scene gave promise of more serious business.

Firing then began from the mob's side. One rioter bolder than the others began shooting at an officer who was sitting in a patrol waggon. Officer Brennan turned his attention to him, firing his revolver at point blank range, but apparently without hitting him. After a short, sharp chase, the rioter was captured and taken into the factory for safe keeping.

By 4.25 at least 150 policemen were on the ground. The windows of the factory were riddled with stones and bullets.

At 5 o'clock the police were forming a hollow square inside of which they intended to escort McCormick's men beyond the mob's reach. Soon afterward the men were escorted up beyond 22nd street without trouble except from an occasional stone hurled from safe hiding places. Four men were found wounded with bullets. Two of them were taken away in a patrol wagon, one shot through the hip, and one through the leg. It is expected that late developments will show more wounded. There were many badly damaged heads.

The factory of the Chicago Malleable Iron Company is closed; 900 employees are on strike.

All calculations of the Stockyard packers were upset by the great strike among the sausage makers. Nearly 7,000 men are on the movement.

The Fairbanks Canning Company settled with their men by agreeing that there should be no cut in wages of men working for less than $2 a day, and all over that figure should get nine hours' pay for eight hours' work. Morrell also settled with the men on the same basis.

Only half of the men employed at McCormick's reaper works went to work this morning. The firm immediately sent word that they would give the men ten hours' pay for eight hours' work until they found out how the eight-hour movement came out.

American.

It is reported that the Yankton Sioux and other American Indians are threatening trouble, and have invited Sitting Bull to join them.

A petition is being circulated in New York asking for the pardon of James D. Fish, the convicted President of the Marine Bank.

The New York police Monday found six cases of smallpox in that city. Five were in the Italian quarter among laborers employed on the new aqueduct.

Showers or Thunderstorms.

Probabilities—Moderate to fresh winds between the south and west; mostly fair, continued warm weather with showers or thunderstorms in some places towards evening.

Local News

THE Reeve of Nichol paid the city a visit yesterday.

MESSRS. HARVEY & Co. received a large shipment of hardware to-day.

MR. HUGH MCMILLAN, lawyer, is now located in his new office over the Central Bank.

THE glass in the front of Hughes' store was taken out to-day to allow of two large plate glass panes being put in.

MR. W. D. SHATTUCK and Mr. Robert Mitchell went fishing yesterday. They secured a trout weighing about a pound and a half and a minnow.

MR. ROBERT COLVIN, of W. G. Smith's drug store, who has been absent for the past two weeks visiting his friends in Teeswater, has returned to resume his duties.

MR. DAVID N. HOGG, who has been absent in the Old Country for the past two months on business, arrived home last night. He looks well, and enjoyed his trip greatly.

Two prisoners, R. Spencer and John Lindsay, charged with escaping from Kingston Penitentiary, were sentenced to a year's additional imprisonment in that institution.

MR. F. G. SHRAGGE has been appointed organist of the Congregational church, Mrs. Crowe, who for a number of years past has been the efficient oraginist of that church, having resigned.

MESSRS. ROBERT CRAIG & SON, Brampton, are shipping to-day a car load of extra cattle, purchased in this neighborhood. Seventeen head were from Mr. Frank McMillan and Mr. Sinclair. The average price was about 5½ cents.

CONTRACT AWARDED.—Warden Sweetnam was in Fergus yesterday letting the contract for the county line bridge between Fergus and Garafraxa, swept away by the spring freshets. The bridge had to be attended to at once, and the contract was awarded to Mr. Richard Boyle, to be completed by the 1st of June.

SAYS the Hamilton Times:—Few men in America of Maddock's years could play ball as he did on Saturday. He will be superintendent of the new Toronto grounds this year at a salary of $70 a month, and every admirer of the game in Hamilton was glad to hear of the veteran's appointment.

PELTED WITH ROTTEN TURNIPS.—On Saturday night a young man in Guelph drove a young lady to Arkell. On his way he was greeted with a fusilade of rotten turnips which destroyed his clothes considerably. He jumped out of the rig and securing one of the offenders made him confess as to who his confederates were. The result was that the parties settled with the injured party for the sum of $18 rather than face a police court.

WASTE OF WATER.—For a dayor two Chase's drinking fountain on the Market Square has been somewhat out of repair. One of the spouts has been pulled out, and a bolt taken from the basin so that the water is running from the fountain far faster than required. The water was shut off this morning and the Chairman of the Market House Committee should see to having it repaired at once, as the fountain is a great convenience and is much used. A coat of paint would improve its appearance.

ORGAN RECITAL.—The organ recital and service of sacred song in St. George's church last evening was well attended. The presence of several talented vocalists was no doubt a great attraction, and with the choir of the church an interesting programme was gone through. The Misses Stevenson sang in solo and duet, Mrs. Whitehead also kindly lending assistance to the chior and in solo singing. These ladies contributed very materially to the success of the programme, and their numbers gave good satisfaction. The anthem singing by the choir and the solos by members thereof were well given. Mrs. Clarke and Mrs Harvey gave selections on the organ which displayed the power and sweetness of the instrument, also the musical abilities of the performers. The concert on the whole appeared to be much enjoyed.

VICIOUS RUNAWAY.—About four o'clock yesterday afternoon one of the most exciting runaways that has taken place for some time occurred from the Catholic hill. John Bianoffski, with his horse and cart, has been employed drawing gravel from the foundation of the church and dumping it in the hollow on the south side to level up the ground. After a load had been dumped and the cart righted, the wind caused a piece of tin to rattle which frightened the horse which at once started off at a furious rate. On passing out at the gate at the Priest's house the cart struck a tree. This only changed the animal a little in its course and it proceeded down the hill at a terrific rate gaining speed as it went along till it came to the embankment, on Norfolk street, where it jumped over the eight foot high embankment, clearing a distance of full ten feet on the level ground. The horse was lying on the side of the road with the cart on top of it. After the harness had been undone it was fully ten minutes before the horse could be got on its feet. The animal received a severe wound on the breast and on the rump. It is a question if the horse will recover.
